Declares Hope of Enforcement of Prohibition Lies With Democrats; Feels It His Duty to Vote for Al.

PROLONGED APPLAUSE GREETS STATEMENT

"Hoover Democrats" Denounce Action of "Regulars"; Make Bitter Statements Against Smith.

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Sept. 11. — Governor Moody placed himself on record tonight as unequivocally in favor of the presidential candidacy of Governor Smith and the democratic party's national and state tickets.

"I never intend to backstep on prohibition," Moody said, "I opposed the nomination of Smith before the national convention, but I accept the decision of the majority and feel it my duty to vote for Smith.

Lauds Democrats' Service

"The record of the democratic party has been one of service. The record of the republican party has been one of corruption in high places. Hope of enforcement of the prohibition laws lies with the democratic party, not outside of it and I hold it is my duty to support the nominees of that party."

Mr. Moody made his "loyalty" declaration in accepting formally the nomination for re-election before the state democratic convention in session here.

Loud and prolonged applause followed.

The ostensible purpose of this, the second party convention in the state this year, was to adopt a platform.

4069 Enrolled In Lubbock Schools

Record Breaking Registration Is Expected; Is 800 Increase Over The 1927 Figures.

Surpassing all previous enrollment marks by approximately 800 students, the enrollment of the Lubbock city schools now stands at 4069 for the first week of school, M. H. Duncan, superintendent, announced yesterday. The figure is the highest initial enrollment in the history of the schools.

Every Room Is Filled

"Every room in the entire system is filled to capacity with the exception of three rooms in the Sanders school," Mr. Duncan said. He added that in the Dupree school, half day classes were in vogue to care for the large crowds of children enrolled there. Other schools of the city, although heavily enrolled with students, are not experiencing as much congestion, he pointed out.

The enrollment is distributed as

JOHN GETS TO WORK 10 MINUTES EARLY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept 11. (AP)—John Coolidge settled down to work as an ordinary clerk for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad today and began to learn the miscellaneous routing duties expected to carry him forward to a higher position if he continues his interest in railroading.

Arising shortly after seven a. m. at the Yale graduates club where he is living temporarily, the young son of the president walked to work and arrived ten minutes before schedule. A cameraman stood outside the door of the building and many people on their way to work stopped to gaze at the youth as he entered. Dressed in a natty blue suit, blue tie and blue shirt, he was greeted by Joseph Wipper, chief clerk of the operating department under whom he will work for the present. In the room with Coolidge will be six other men.

TO DEMONSTRATE PUNCTURE GUARD

Demonstration of an electro-magnetic machine which clears the road of nails and other forms of metal will be held at 10:30 o'clock near Tech on College Avenue this morning, highway officials announced yesterday.

The machine was invented and will be demonstrated by H. R. Andrews, of Roswell, N. M., in a preliminary demonstration yesterday about 145 pounds of nails, wire, and other materials were picked up by the machine in a distance of about one-fourth of a mile.

It is claimed that the machine will pick up as much as 500 pounds of metal. The machine is mounted on a light truck.

A number of city officials have been invited to attend the demonstration this morning.

Pants Burglar Is Active Here; Gets Watches, Money

Dozen or So Homes Are Pilfered Monday Night And Tuesday Morning; Police Are After Clues.

With additional reports coming up until a late hour last night of petty robberies in the residential section of the city, indications were that the "pants burglar" who cleaned the pockets of men's trousers in almost a dozen homes here early yesterday morning made a full night of it.

Mystery Surrounds Thefts

Mystery surrounding the thefts increased as several conflicting theories were advanced. No tangible clues had been developed last night, although the police department was exerting all efforts to learn the identity of the robbers.

Entering residences the burglar would remove the trousers of the sleeping men to a safe place before a search was made.

Report that a woman and man were seen at an early hour yesterday stopping in front of one of the residences robbed to return a few moments later has been circulated. Reports from Ralls of a number of similar robberies there indicated that the marauders were making a ransacking tour.

Net Less Than $100

The robberies here netted the burglars less than $100 and several watches, a check-up shows.

Homer Stanton, 1808 10th Street, reported late yesterday the robbery of $46 from the bill fold in his pants as he was sleeping. A $30 check was overlooked. He said it was necessary for the robber to pass through another bedroom which was occupied to get to his room. No one was awakened.

Reports of Prowlers Sent In

Several calls were phoned in to the police station last night by nervous citizens to the effect that some man had been seen prowling around. A search in each instance proved fruitless.

Other residences to be invaded by the pants purloiner include those of Pink Parrish, Rev. R. E. Dunn, Woody Wester, J. K. Wester, J. B. Anton, W. L. Barnes, Louis McFarland and others whose names were not given.

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—Amid the wildest scenes that ever marked a democratic meeting in Texas, delegates refusing to endorse the presidential candidacy of Governor Smith bolted the State Democratic Convention here today and organized a separate convention of their own in the blazing sun of the steps of Fair Park auditorium.

ENDORSE NATIONAL PLATFORM

DALLAS, Sept. 11. (AP)—Regular democrats of Texas in convention tonight "cordially endorsed" the national party platform and Governor Smith in their state platform, and in the same document called on "all officers of the government and all members of the party" to rally for the "destruction of the traffic in alcoholic liquors."

Many of the state's most prominent political leaders swung their fists in a free-for-all fight that ensued when former Gov. Oscar Colquitt, avowed anti-Smithite, sprang to his feet a few minutes after the convention opened and shouted:

Maine Goes G. O. P. In State Election

Last Remaining Democrat Is Swept From State Senate When Holmes Loses; Gardiner Lead Increases.

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 11. (AP)—Scattered returns from small upstate communities, received late today, increased the lead of William Gardiner, republican gubernatorial candidate, to 94,891 over E. C. Moran, Jr., his democratic opponent, in the Maine state election held yesterday. The majority is the largest ever given a gubernatorial candidate in this state.

Carries Every City In State

Only 17 precincts out of the 639 in the state remained to be recorded. Mr. Gardiner carried every city in the state with the exception of Biddeford and Lewiston, both of which are normally democratic by wide margins.

The Senatorial contest between Frederick Hale, republican and Herbert E. Holmes, democrat, resulted in a margin of 80,004, for the republican candidate.

The republican victory swept the last remaining democrat from the Maine State Senate according to figures compiled thus far, making that body unanimously republican in the next legislature. The democratic membership in the house was reduced from 22 to 16 or 17, depending upon missing returns from two Knox county towns.

Wife of Oklahoma Governor Charged With Speeding But Won't Face Court

Justice Of Peace In Small Town Is Riled

(By NEA Service)

MULHALL, Okla., Sept. 11.—Mrs. Henry S. Johnston may be the wife of the governor of Oklahoma, but it doesn't mean a thing to "Squire" R. M. Kincaid, justice of the peace here.

The justice has on his docket a charge against the governor's wife and insists, when the opportunity presents, that the first lady of the state will be tried just like any other accused person.

Mrs. Johnston, motoring with a friend, was arrested in Mulhall last May charged with speeding. She was released on her own recognizance but a formal charge was filed in the justice court by George W. Partridge, county attorney.

Since that day Mrs. Johnston has not passed through Mulhall in her car and the case has lain dormant.

"But that doesn't mean it is ended," the country justice remarked the other day. "We enforce the law here just like it is written and it matters not whether the offender is a tramp or the governor's lady."

Denial is made by the justice that he is operating what outsiders call a "speed trap."

"If they'll just stop speeding we'll be satisfied," he said. "I'm ready to close up shop whenever the motorists begin obeying the law."

Mrs. Johnston expressed indignation over her arrest and has been heard to remark that she certainly does not intend to go to Mulhall and pay a fine.

Governor Johnston has refused to make any statement about the case except to remark that it is his wife's affair and not his.

Class B and C Fliers Are To Land At Mines Field Today; National Interest Turns to Fete.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11.—National aerial interests finding a focus in Mines field here gave way today to a regional airplane race from San Francisco won by H. S. Myres, Los Angeles who led 17 fliers across the finish line. The race started at Mills field, San Francisco.

Although Myres was unofficially declared the winner the official announcement awarding the prize of $2,000 will not be made until after a careful check-up of the elapsed time of the fliers.

Races Near Finish

While the state race was being settled three groups of transcontinental fliers were within a day's flight of the finish line.

The crash of one plane, with serious injury to a passenger and probable abandonment of the race by a leader in Class B, marred the day at Yuma, Arizona, where fliers of that group and of Class C rested for the night before the final dash to Los Angeles.

The Waco biplane of Stuart F. Auer, Milwaukee, crashed at Wellton, Arizona, after going into a tail spin. R. E. Herron, Milwaukee, whom Auer carried as passenger, sustained a scalp wound and was rushed to the Cochrane sanitarium at Yuma. Though seriously hurt, physicians said, Herron would recover.

Auer Is Out Definitely

Auer's plane was definitely out of the race. E. E. Ballough, of Chicago who drove his Laird plane always near the front of the procession of Class B craft across country, may be definitely out of the race. A valve dropped from his motor just as he topped the pass on the last stretch to Yuma, and unless a new motor could be gotten by tomorrow he would be compelled to drop out, he said.

Rumor That Tech Will Be Swamped Is Incorrect, President Horn Says

College Is More Adequately Equipped to Take Care Of Students Than Ever Before, President Declares In Statement; Building and Teachers Added

Setting to end reported rumors that Texas Technological college will be so swamped with students this fall that it will not be possible for the institution to properly take care of them, Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of the college, issued a statement yesterday in which he pointed out that the facilities of the school are now greater for caring for students than ever before and in a like manner, the city of Lubbock is better equipped to handle the housing problem of the students.

Rumor In Portions of State

Numerous rumors of the likelihood of badly congested conditions in the school have been circulating over portions of the state, is was learned.

Dr. Horn cited the completion of the new engineering building, which provides for class room and laboratory space for hundreds of students, and the approaching completion of the science building as two provisions for additional space in the school. From twenty to thirty faculty members have been added this year, providing plenty of instruction for the enrollment expectations.

"The college will be able to adequately take care of every student who may enroll during the coming year," Dr. Horn's statement said. "The college authorities have learned from several sources that there is a rumor in circulation to the effect that Texas Technological college will this fall be so swamped with students that it will not be possible for the institution to properly take care of them. I can assure the public that this rumor is absolutely incorrect."

Record Enrollment Evident

"It is true that every indication points to the fact that we shall have a record breaking enrollment. Nevertheless, it is also true that both in buildings and in faculty, our capacity has been greatly increased over that of last year," he said.

"The new engineering building is equipped and ready for occupancy," Dr. Horn said. "This will not only take care of the engineering classes, but will provide for a number of BRECKENRIDGE, Sept. 11.—While the mangled bodies of Lucius Shook, 26, and his brother, Leon 21, lie in an undertaking establishment at Cisco, officers of two counties are endeavoring to solve the mystery of their deaths.

The bodies were discovered Tuesday at Leeray, 18 miles south of here, officers of both counties after working all day on the case have only a slender clue.

Told of Finding Still

The older brother was said to have told a sister, Mrs. Frankie Pieros, Cisco, whom he recently visited, that he had found a whisky still near his cabin at Leeray, and that the operator at the point of a gun had ordered him to leave the county. Officers are searching for the man thought to have operated the still.

They also are working on the theory that robbery may have been the motive for the double murder. It is said a banjo, clothing and a pistol owned by the younger brother are missing.

An inquest verdict today was that the brothers were murdered.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

The "headstrong" child! What about him? Is he a black sheep, an incorrigible, one to be lamented, berated, and apologized for?

Not a bit of it. Quite the opposite. Be careful. If you have a "headstrong" son or daughter you have a prize.

But like all precious things, care must be used in the handling.

"I never could conquer John," sighs a mother unhappily. "He never listens to a word I say."

"Mary thinks she knows it all," says another mother. "She pays no more attention to my commands than if I were a radio. I mean absolutely nothing to her."

Both of these mothers have made fearful admissions of failure. They are to be pitied, of course, but not so much because their children won't stand dictation, as because they themselves are unconsciously showing their lack of knowledge of their children, and their inability to cope with characters stronger than their own.

True, I would not throw obedience to the winds. No household can be without fundamental law. But you can do wonders with the headstrong child by reasoning with him and talking to him and showing him that not only others but he himself will suffer by thoughtless impulsive behavior. What he needs is guiding, not managing.

After all what is child training but molding. And you can not always set your own pattern. You must mold according to the material you have.

I get tired of hearing the weak, docile child praised and the strong-willed so-called headstrong child condemned. The men and women who get to the top are almost invariably the ones who had minds of their own as children.

Of course there is such a thing as incorrigibility—the nature that acknowledges no law and no master. But that is abnormal and not so common as people think. Such children need special attention. They are really pathological cases.

But don't try to beat or bull-doze or nag a fine child into complete submission merely to satisfy your craving for superiority, or your desire to pattern him after an idea of your own. You would not try to make a mastiff into a lap-dog.

With all the babble about the wage-earning wife, there's one phrase of the fact that has received little or no attention. Few mention the plain pests, nuisances and conceited upstarts that thousands of women who know their home job well enough but know no other job, have become.

Fed and inspired and goaded on by all the the prattle to the effect that any intelligent woman is wasting her God-given talents on mundane housekeeping and home making, they rush in, utterly untrained and unprepared, where angels fear to tread.

Morning after morning the influx begins in any newspaper office. Literally dozens of wives and mothers, utterly poised and unabashed, beard a busy, distracted editor in his den to offer him very often with actual condescension, the products of what they are sure is a gifted pen.

"My own children have always liked the bedtime stories I made up for them better than those in any book," is one frequent remark. 'So I began writing them down. It seemed to me that if they liked them, other children would."

Nothing so illogical or preposterous in that statement, to be sure! As a matter of fact, perhaps six well known writers of children's stories did begin in that very way. But for these six there are literally 60,000 others whose stories are utter "flops."

Hundreds of mothers want to write on 'how to bring up children." Any inquiry as to their special fitness for the task brings forth, "I've raised four of my own. I guess I ought to know something about it."

"Dr. So and So who is in charge of the largest children's hospital in the world writes our child articles," I once told a woman aspirant.

To which she retorted: "It takes more than theories to know what you're talking about. Did he ever have a baby?"

Please don't misunderstand me. No one appreciate more than I the courage of women who attempt to lead a fuller life than their own home permits them. I have the greatest respect for women of real capacity who want to utilize that capacity to the utmost.

But I cannot abide nor tolerate women with neither capacity nor ability but with a superfluity of cocksureness and absolutely no recognition of their own limitations who think the world is gasping for a chance to use their wares.

Bridge Party Is Given Yesterday At Country Club

Misses Snyder, Moxley And Boyd, Collegemates, Are Hostesses With Affair Tuesday Afternoon.

Four young women who were classmates at Ward-Belmont college in Nashville, Tenn., last year, entertained a group of friends with bridge at the Country club yesterday afternoon. They were Misses Kate Boyd, Lucille Moxley, Mary and Ann Snyder.

Favoring colors of green and lavender, ices molded into the form of purple dahlias were served on dahlia leaves with cakes iced in green. Nuts and candies completed the refreshment plates which were passed with the assistance of Misses Nancy Ruth Leaverton, John Anna Boyd and Frances Snyder.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST — Chilled apie sauce, cereal, cream, fish balls, tomato sauce, cornmeal and wheat muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON — Stuffed eggplant, raisin bread, peach and melon salad, milk, tea.

DINNER — Cauliflower cocktail, mock fillet mignon, French fried potatoes, New England succotash, peach cream in cantaloupes, milk, coffee.

Don't forget the simple expedient of shaping ground round steak in small flat cakes and binding with a strip of bacon held firmly with wooden toothpicks. These can be pan-broiled or really broiled in the broiler just like real fillet mignon.

Cauliflower Cocktail

One small firm head cauliflower, 2 tomatoes, 1 teaspoon minced chives, French dressing.

Remove outer stalks from cauliflower and separate into flowerettes. Let stand in cold salt water for one hour. Drain and chill on ice. Peel tomatoes and cut in dice. # Radio Stations To Have New Wave Lengths, Nov. 11

Federal Radio Commission Believes Reception Will Be Put On High Plane As A Result.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The Federal Radio Commission today completed the task which has occupied most of its time for a year —reallocation of the nation's radio facilities—a plan the commission and its engineers believe will place reception on a higher plane than ever before.

The wave length of nearly every one of the 629 stations in the country will be changed November 11 when the reallocation order takes effect.

Simultaneously the commission ordered a reduction in chain broadcasting. Each of the forty stations with power of 5,000 watts or more, which will be on cleared channels, were notified that they could broadcast identical programs for but one hour daily between 7 p. m. to midnight, unless thansmitters were separated by more than 300 miles, were operated on the same frequency, or received special permission as in cases of extraordinary events.

The forty stations, eight in each zone, to be allowed exclusive channels in the ether, form the backbone of the reallocation plan.

In the new plans, some small stations located in opposite parts of the country will have the same wave lengths and broadcast either simultaneously or on time-sharing basis.

Among stations on the 40 large assignments, with their power and wave lengths are:

Third zone:

WBAP, Fort Worth, and KTBA, Hot Springs, Ark., 5,000 and 500. WFAA and KRLD, Dallas, 5,000 and 1,040. WRR and WOAI, Dallas, 5,000 and 1,190.

Dummy's Potential Tricks—3

The object of the following illustrations is to show that a card should not be played from dummy without a conscious realization of the outcome. When you do play a card from dummy your next move already should have been formulated.

The card to be played from dummy is determined by reading the leader's hand, and by the bidding and fall of the cards. It also often is influenced by where you desire the lead to be.

In the following illustrations, assume that west leads any small card below 10. Holding each of the following hands, west should play from the dummy as explained after each illustration.

Dummy holds hearts 10 3; declarer holds hearts A J 5.

Play small. East will probably cover with the King or Queen of hearts and you will be sure to make two tricks.

Dummy holds diamonds J 5; declarer holds diamonds K 8 4.

Play the Jack of diamonds. It is the only possible way to make two tricks.

Dummy holds clubs Q 6; declarer holds clubs A 5 4.

Play the Queen of clubs. It is the only possible way to make two tricks.

Dummy holds spades Q 7; declarer holds spades 6 5 3.

Play the Queen of spades. It is the only possible way to make one trick.

The license granted yesterday was to Eugene Bolton and Mable Terry.

Officials of the county clerk's office report that the issuance of marriage licenses has been considerably higher throughout the year than last year.

The Archdeacon of Nottingham, Eng., declared in an address recently that he felt the day was coming when it would be necessary to post "Gentlemen remove your hats; ladies put on your skirts," on the outside of his church.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — By Ahern

Curtis Says He's Ready To Stump

Republican Leaders Assure Nominee of Wide Margin Of Votes On Eve Of His First Campaign Address.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—Returning to Washington for a rest after his campaign in the east, Senator Curtis, republican vice presidential nominee, today found another heavy assignment facing him in a trip through the west.

The nominee went to work preparing addresses for his tour through the agricultural region, to start at Lexington, Kentucky, Saturday and carry him as far west as Billings, Mont., and Denver.

The veteran campaigner says he is ready to meet the requests of the national committee for "stumping." Their present program calls for one of the most strenuous trips ever undertaken by a republican candidate. Thirteen speeches will be made in as many cities and in as many days.

The itinerary for Senator Curtis carries him finally to his home at Topeka at the end of the month and just where he will go for the final days of the election drive has not been decided. He is over the outlook in the east, where he has been speaking, and reported to party leaders today a "definite trend" of republican sentiment in this section.

WARNS AGAIN

Chief Lemond To Take Action On All Weedy Lots

An additional warning was issued yesterday by Chief of Police John Lemond for Lubbock property owners to cut the weeds from their property.

A war on weeds which was declared recently by city authorities has been suspended until everyone is given a chance to cut the weeds. Notices will be served on those who fail to comply with this warning.

More than 8000 Ontario, Canada, farmers light their homes and barns, milk their cows, pump water, saw and thresh with electricity; while their wives cook, wash, iron and sweep with the same magic power.

Spur High School Has Good Opening

Large Attendance of Both Parents and Pupils Is Had at Opening; New Building Is Added.

(Special to The Avalanche)

SPUR, Sept. 11.—Spur school opened Monday with a large attendance and much interest shown by the patrons and public alike. Supt. R. N. Cluck urged that full co-operation on the part of everyone in the district be given that this may be the best school ever experienced by the people of Spur.

Several interesting talks were made in an effort to encourage pupils and patrons to shoulder their part of the burden, and assist the superintendent and faculty in every phase of the school work.

All haste is being made that the new ward school may be available at the earliest possible date, thus giving Spur three good brick buildings, which will enable the establishment of the Junior High School in the system this year, and will also take care of the crowded conditions experienced in previous years.

COLEMAN, Sept. 11.—Assurance that the San Antonio Bears will train in Coleman next spring was given here today, when Leon L. Shields, president of the Coleman West Texas League club, announced that final arrangements had been completed with Harry Ables, president of the San Antonio, Texas League club.

Training will likely start in the latter part of February, Mr. Shields stated. In the season just closed, Coleman was the San Antonio farm, and it is highly likely that the same agreement will be in force next season.

Use Same Hall

Smith and Straton To Talk in Okla.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 11. (AP)—Dr. John Roach Stratton, here for an anti-Smith address, said today that friends in Oklahoma City have arranged for him to use the same hall there on the night of September 21, that Governor Smith, democratic presidential nominee, will use on the preceding night.

Mr. Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, New York, declared his intention to challenge the democratic nominee to a "face to face debate out there in the West where things are lively, splitting time with me either on his or my night at the hall. I'll hear Smith talk on the night of the 20th and I hope that he will hear me on the night of the 21st. I shall have plenty to say."

There is "an awful revolt" going on in the South, he added, in speaking of his tour of several Southern states, under the sponsorship of the Anti-Saloon League.

A calf that weighed only two pounds at birth is thriving on the farm of Theodore Tegeler, near Battlecreek, Neb.

All Have Fears

Old Salt Says Sea Men Hold Them

HOUSTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—Men of the sea always will be superstitious, even though the motor and steam ship have largely displaced romantic and colorful sailing vessels, an old salt, in port at Houston for a day, insisted.

"But don't you use my name," he said to the reporter as a parting shot. "If my bosses knew I was superstitious it would cost me my job."

Weather Is Big Part

Most of his superstitions, as well as those of other followers of the sea, deal with the weather. For instance, whistling on board is just as bad as whistling backstage. In the former case, you're due for a storm, and in the latter, something surely will make your act fall flat. To whistle, NO matter how softly or for how short a time, is enough to bring forth the worst of storms. In a sailor's opinion.

Should a sailor fail to pay a bill before the ship leaves port, some disaster is in store. This is especially true when the "washerwoman" is the creditor.

Making Predictions

Another thing that brings bad weather is to predict it. Amateur forecasters have brought disaster to more ships than any other cause, sea men insist.

On the other hand, black cats are permissible, and walking under a ladder is a commonplace affair. But the worst of all is to have a preacher as a passenger. When a minister comes aboard, all sorts of dire things are predicted by the crew.

"Of course," the old salt said, "there are a thousand other superstitions, as each sailor has his own pet omens, but these are generally accepted."

Bambino's Smash Comes With Score Knotted In Eighth

Victory Puts Hugmen 2 and One-Half Games In Lead Of Connie Mack's Struggling Warriors.

BY WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—With 40,000 fervent fans roaring for the kill, the world champions Yankees batted down the Philadelphia Athletics 5 to 3 today, and just about clinched the American league title pushing Connie Mack's struggling warriors 2 1-2 games behind them. It was the Athletic's third straight defeat in this super-crucial series.

The kill was put off until the eighth inning. The Yankees then tied the score with none out, and George Herman Ruth waddling to the plate, found his home-run pal, Lou Gehrig, on second base. Connie Mack and Bob Grove elected to fight it out with the great Bambino rather than frank him to first base, and the battle began.

The Babe, seizing his chance, strove to cross the opposition by hunting the first one, but was foul on the third base line by a shade. Mr. Ruth next took a called ball and then it happened.

Yes, into his own right-hand bleachers it rode for home run number 49, with all the earmarks of a pennant fastened upon it.

French Net Stars Sweep U. S. Match

Some of The Leading Stars On American Team Go Down Before Smashing Attack Of Foreigners.

By F. G. VOSBURGH
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 11. A solid wave of Frenchmen swept through the second round of the United States National Tennis Championship today, engulfing some of the leading American defenders.

All five strong French players who remained in the tournament at the start of the day's play, won their matches nine of the 16 survivors were Americans, five French, one English and one Australian.

Allison Defeated.

Wilmer Allison, Fort Worth, the dashing young Texan, seeded third in the American group and counted upon to help hurl back the French, was the main U. S. casualty of the day. After getting away to a two-set lead, he lost to Rene De Buzelet, the French youngster, whose every move recalls Rene LaCoste, by scores of 2-6, 1-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Christian Boussus, another promising youth whom the French are grooming to replace the present Davis Cup "musketeers" when they begin to fade, won from H. H. Hyde of Hartford, Conn., 7-5, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2; and Jacques Bruugnon downed Samuel S. Gilpin of Philadelphia, 6-1, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, while the big guns of the tri-color Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra flashed in defeating Arnold W. Jones of Providence, former Yale captain, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3, and the easy, almost lazy, manner in which Cochet downed young Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City, 7-5, 6-5, 6-3, intensified the threat of an all-French final.

Stars Win.

The Americans who remained to prevent that from coming to pass included such stars as George M. Lott, Jr., Johnny Van Ryn, Johnny Doeg, Francis T. Hunter, Frank Shields, the junior champion, and Fritz Mercur, Dr. George King, Harris Coggeshall and Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J.

Henry W. Austin, known to his teammates as "Bunny" was the sole surviving Englishman and Jack Crawford alone remained to uphold the banner of Australia.

Officials of the Dallas club said these shifts were the first step in rebuilding the Steers for next season.

Jack McVey and Jock Malone were tossed out of a Chicago ring for waltzing. The Illinois Boxing Commission did nothing about it, however, probably on the theory that a waltz isn't so very different from a polka after all.

The commission held that their styles were too much the same to allow for a good fight between the two. Neither gent knows how to fox trot or quadrille, and the customers do get tired of watching the waltz, pretty though it is.

Strange things can happen to a boxer. Tunney ascribes his sudden desire to sit in that round seven in Chicago to astigmatism. It would take a Tunney to think of that one.

Tough blow for the Giants. They have to play a string at the Polo Grounds, greatly hampering Muggy's style. Probably it'll cost them the pennant.

McGraw wins most of the games on the road because of incendiarism. He makes the home crowd so mad that all the players catch what Mr. Tunney might call astigmatism.

McGraw must fight to win, it seems. If he could only get the fans at the Polo Gorunds completely sore at him and his ball club he might take the bunting yet.

Jones Trails In Open Golf Match

Open Amateur Champion Is Facing Stiff Competition In Retaining Crown; Voight In Lead.

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

BRAE BURN COUNTRY CLUB, NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 11.—George Voigt today finished the job of qualifying for his first National Amateur Golf championship by leading the field and winning the medal worn for the past two years by the king of the realm, Bobby Jones.

Representing the New York district he finished the two 36-hole qualifying test with the score of 71-72—143, one under par for Brae Burn's rugged layout.

Voigt Beats Rival.

It was one stroke short of the tournament qualifying record, but good enough for the dark-haired Voigt to beat out his rival, Harrison R. Johnson, Minneapolis, by a stroke in a duel that these two fought out by themselves from start to finish. Johnston's figures, 71-73—144, exactly matched par.

Jones was more like himself today, pulling up from around 16th place to fifth with a 74 that gave him 151 for the two days, but for the second successive day the three-time champion was forced to occupy the unusual position of trailer and watch Voigt steal his customary thunder.

May Be Champion.

Voigt's performance in beating out the sharp-shooting Johnson, always a good medal performer, and leading the rest of this crack International field by six strokes prompted many experts tonight to pick him as the next champion.

Third place in the qualifying list went to Don Moe, Portland, Ore., who came through with 74-75—149 to beat C. Ross Somerville, Canadian champion, by one stroke, and Bobby Jones by two.

Forty Candidates Now In Training For Matador Team

Squad Ends Two Days' Work With Entire Crew Training Hard For Hard Games Ahead.

Two new arrivals at the Tech training camp ran the total of men working for positions on the 1928 Matador team to forty. Buddy Brothers, halfback and Mule Fikes, tackle, arrived yesterday in athletic headquarters primed for the impending season. With forty already in camp, the number has reached the mark set before the opening of the training season, but still others are expected to report before the week is over.

On the second day of training the Matadors continued their light practice with an additional session of side-stepping, pivoting and other fundamentals. In spite of the blazing hot sun, the candidates went through the exercises with a snap that made the perspiration flow freely. In view of the number of men in uniform who can receive passes with equal aptness, the Tech team should prove to be a threat in this respect when the season gets under way on the 29th of this month.

With a little more than two weeks in which to round out a football machine, the Tech mentors face a tough assignment in the Schreiner team which comes here for the first game. The Institute is reported to have a squad of veterans working hard with their eyes on the game here against the Matadors.

Candidates for the Matador eleven who have reported since the first workout Monday morning are: Jack Camp, halfback; Prentiss Viles, guard; Red Castleberry, tackle; Leon Fisher, end; Jack Durham, guard; Paul Marr, quarter; Homer Hardberger, half; Buddy Brothers, half and Mule Fikes, tackle.

A number of promising aspirants who are yet missing are: Toughy Vermillion, Clarence Hoddges and Jimmie Kerr.

Westerners Show Improvement Of Two-Weeks Work

Backfield Aspirants Showing Rare Form In Early Broken Field Running Practice.

With their first game a little more than a week off, the Lubbock high school Westerners continue to show improvement in the daily workouts held behind closed gates at Merrill Park. Between fifty and sixty candidates for positions on the team are reporting each afternoon to Coaches Frnka and Morgan who are in high spirits over the showing made thus far by the squad.

The high school mentors are gradually heaping up work on the gridsters. Besides the usual period of calisthenic, passing and running, the squad has started drill on several plays. Present indications show that the Westerners will have both a fast and shifty backfield capable of scoring against the strongest in the district. A quartet composed of Powers, Pierce, Dowell and Pangburn should be able to advance the pigskin far into enemy territory. The last named is one of the strongest members of the high school team on defensive play. Pangburn excels in blocking as well as backing up the line on the defense.

In blocking practice, the Westerners went through a stiff practice session yesterday afternoon, Pierce, Powers and Smith were on the safety position and showed rare form in returning punts while the ends dodged the interference to get to the ball luggers. The candidates are primed for their first scrimmage practice Friday afternoon, one week before the first game here with Post.

NEW ROAD OPENED

Avenue H Entrance Now Comes Under Subway

Giving motorists a new passageway out of the city north, the new section of the Lubbock-Plainview highway will be opened up to traffic this morning. The new section leaves the old highway at the north entrance of Avenue H just south of the canyon and goes over the Idalou highway until the Santa Fe tracks are encountered. Here it goes through an underpass and on through to the old road and connecting with it at the top of the canyon on the other side.

Under construction since July this road is 8,100 feet long, entailing a cost of aproximately $8,000. By the new section, the distance will be shortened considerably and two sharp curves in the former road will be eliminated.

Smith Expected Defeat In Main

Democrat Nominee Says He Thought State Would Go Republican All the Time; Wants to Meet Straton.

(By Associated Press)

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 11. —Governor Smith indicated today he was not worrying about political trends in states which he is convinced the democrats have little or no chance of carrying in November. He puts Maine in that class.

The only official comment of the democratic presidential nominee on yesterday's election result in the Pine Tree State was this:

"I never was optimistic enough to think Maine would be anything but republican."

Had Little Interest

Although he evinced little interest in the Maine voting, the democratic standard bearer showed plainly he was concerned over the political situation in New York state, which his advisers hold he must carry to win over Herbert Hoover. He announced that before his departure for the West Sunday night on his first stumping tour he had one conference on his schedule, and that with Democratic leaders in the state.

The Governor is anxious not only to map out a campaign that will bring success for the National ticket but will keep the executive branch of the New York State government in Democratic hands.

During today's press conference some one called attention to the announcement of Rev. John Roach Straton, assailing the Governor regularly, that the New York Baptist clergyman intended to be present when he delivers his Oklahoma City address September 2, and might challenge him from the floor.

"I'll be pleased to see him," said Governor Smith grimly, dismissing the subject.

West Texas Fair To Revive Races

Horse Racing Will Be Feature of Abilene Exposition; Many Horsemen Are Expected to Enter.

ABILENE, Sept. 11.—Horse-racing, one of the first sports ever presented in West Texas, but which has been neglected considerably during recent years, will be revived in full force in this city during the West Texas fair, September 24 to 29.

A three-day program of turf contests has been arranged for the fair week and already entries have been received by Cecil Childers, manager of the meet, on more than 100 horses. In the list are a number of animals that have given outstanding performances on other tracks of the southwest.

Several horsemen now racing in the Riverside Park meet at Kansas City are to ship here following the close of that affair. Liberal premiums are being offered for all three days of the fair program and officials of the association are expecting every event to be full of thrills and interest for the thousands of West Texans who will come here for the meet.

A HOPEFUL SIGN

President Calles' firm resolve to not take advantage of the opportunity to succeed himself as chief executive of the republic presents a hopeful sign of Mexico's redemption from military rule and establishment of civil government. It is not surprising that the large army of generals should stand aghast when confronted with this declaration and indulge in wonder concerning the fate of both the army and the government it has long dominated.

When Alvaro Obregon fell before the assassin's bullet the prediction was freely made that Calles would continue as president even though it would be necessary to change the Constitution. Removal of that obstacle, however, would have been easy of accomplishment because the Congress was known to be friendly to the president and earnestly desiring to perpetuate his regime at least for another term.

When that body assembled the president lost no time in making known his fixed determination to retire at the end of his term, leaving to the Congress and to the voters the matter of selecting his successor by the manner and means provided by the Constitution. And thus by one bold stroke Calles delivered a staggering blow to the military influence which have shaped and controlled and practically dictated the politics and policies of the Republic for years.

The president's course should and will be encouraging to that of the population capable of appreciating the superiority of civil over military rule. They will see in it the vanishing power of dictatorships which in the past have used the people as unwilling pawns on the checkerboard of selfish ambitions. Heretofore they have had little encouragement to attempt to make themselves articulate at elections for the reason that the army supervised all elections and through its intimidations a free and frank expression of the people's will could not be obtained.

The main influence could and would have made it possible for Calles to continue as president, a fact he well knows, but he chose to rise above personal ambitions and present to the people of his country an example of renunciation from which they should and probably will draw profit. It is true that a president, interim, will be selected who will rule until another election is held, but in face of the Calles example, whoever is chosen will not dare use the power and influence of the office to bring about his election. Should he succeed himself it will follow as a result of the people's will.

THE WOMAN VOTER AS A PROBLEM

Owing to the widespread interest in the prohibition question, persons addicted to political speculation naturally are trying to gauge the influence of woman voters on the national campaign. "What will she do?" is a question put by some newspapers, especially in southern cities. The answers are not very definite.

American women who voted in 1920 and in 1924 did not greatly influence the results of the national elections of those years. Only about 40 per cent of the women who were legally entitled to vote went to the polls—phenomenon not at all strange, considering the remarkable ease with which equal suffrage had been obtained in the sates and the difficulty of getting out the full vote of the ruder sex. Most of the women divided politically, exactly as did their husbands, fathers and brothers and cousins. That they would do so might have been foreseen.

In some circles, however, the idea persists that so-called moral and welfare issues unite women to a much greater extent than they do men. Since prohibition is regarded by them as a moral issue, it is claimed by some of the drys that four-fifths of the women will cast their ballots for the republican ticket this year if Mr. Hoover explicitly commits himself to the status quo and opposes repeal or amendment of the Volstead law. It is true that the great national organizations of women stand for law enforcement and for a longer and more effective trial of prohibition. Whether in this view they represent the mass of the unorganized women of the urban centers is a question yet to be determined.

Psychologists and sociologists formerly contended that women were too conservative, too emotional, too disposed to put their in law and authority to be given the ballot. Equal suffrage, it was asserted, would lead to paternalism and overlegislation, and hence to the destruction of civil and personal liberty. This view has not been entirely abandoned, but experience thus far has not lent it much support. The Nobember election may shed light on the interesting question.

Meantime, it may be noted that in Germany, where women's votes are tabulated separately, an analysis in seven leading cities has shown that the women, at the recent general election, voted mainly for the center parties, particularly for the nationalists. Few of them indicated by their votes that they were either radicals or reactionaries.

UNIVERSITY MEN AND BUSINESS

At this time every year positions are being sought by hundreds of young men freshly graduated from the universities. As in the past, many will be absorbed into the various professions or into public life, but it is safe to say that a larger number than ever before will this year seek to find their sphere of useful activity in the realm of business.

The prejudice against university men in business arose not from their having been tried and found wanting therein, but from the fact that many men who have in the past built up great industries have not been university men themselves and have not seen the importance of a system of training which was not their own. That prejudice is, however, on all hands breaking down. It is commonly recognized today that university training is a great help toward success in the business world.

The business value of a good degree in commerce or science is fairly obvious, but in this connection the utility of that of Bachelor of Arts, which still remains the typical university degree, is perhaps not quite so apparent.

Without the technical or administrative knowledge of his colleague in science or commerce, it may appear that the graduate in arts has nothing whatever to offset his complete lack of experience. But this is not the case. Experience is an important thing, but capacity for experience is more important still, and capacity for experience of whatever kind is the principal object of a humanistic education. The graduate in arts, therefore, if he has usefully employed his time, should be able to benefit far more from the lessons of experience than the man wo has gone straight from school into business,though hi s experience may, on account of his university studies, be three or four years shorter in duration. Moreover, the taking of a good degree in classics or in history, for example, denotes a capacity for coordinating facts, and for distinguishing the essential from the nonessential, a power of applied and organized thought, and an eye for character which are surely not without value in dealing with the problems that present themselves in business activities.

THEY HAVE A RIGHT TO ACT

In some quarters there are evidences of considerable bitterness as the people of Texas are definitely aligning themselves for the battle of ballots in November. "Hoover republicans, "Anti-Smith democrats," just plain "democrats" and all the other divisions into which the people are drifting are beginning to say mean things about each other, as the people usually do when they approach important elections and there are sharp differences of opinion. Some such unnecessary and unjust criticism has been voiced with reference to the democrats of this country who oppose the nominees of their party and who met the other night to form and organization for active campaign work against Governor Smith. If there were no differences of opinion in our political thought and activity, this would be a dreary world indeed. But we can't agree as to politics—or as to religion, or dress, or personal habits or food or anything else—and as long as the world stands it will be futile to seek such an agreement. The law of averages will prove that all of us are wrong sometimes, and our own experiences, if honestly reviewed, will convince many of us that we have been wrong many times. It is better to think, and act, even in error occasionally, than not to think or act at all.

The self-styled Anti-Smith democrats may be wrong, some think, but they think the rest are wrong who propose to support the nominees of our party. They have a right to think as they choose, and to act in accordance with their convictions. If this right is not conceded them, then others can not claim a right to their opinion which is in conflict with theirs. All of us, whether favoring the party's nominees or opposing them, ought to be tolerant toward the views of others, although it is our duty to hold fast to our own opinions so long as we are convinced that they are sound. When the election is over we will continue to dwell together as a community and the scars of the campaign will be negligible if we make them so.

Full reports on armament manufactures would help tolimit them, representatives of the United States and Canada at Geneva insist. Their stand is well taken, as pitiless publicity of this kind is the most merciful.

SO THINK WE

We think from the indications of the building permit reports over West Texas 1928 is playing a big part in the general construction of the vast territory. Reports showed that Lubbock ranked fourth for the past week in the state. Many other West Texas cities, including San Angelo, Plainview, Slaton, Big Spring, and others had unusually large amounts for the 1928 building programs.

We think a person might have to be your severest critic to be your best friend. But they do not have to be your best friend to be your most severe critic.

We think some women think the best idea is to run away from a man, and some think it is better to go after them, but we think the best is to sit still, highly charged with come-hither.

We think direct steamer service to Turkey is likely to be established most any time should the reports of the recent tourist of Turkey get widely circulated for they state that something like ninety percent of the Turkish men loaf while all the women work.

We think the fair weather the South Plains has enjoyed in the past few days in adding greatly to the prospects of the crop conditions.

PRESS COMMENTS

LET'S GET BUSY

Inauguration of train service on the newly constructed lines of the Fort Worth and Denver in the South Plains is scheduled for the early part of October. It is practically a month away, but it is not a bit too early for Fort Worth to begin preparation for its part in that celebration.

Fort Worth should send a special train for a tour over these lines and the train should be made up of its most representative citizens in every line of business activity. Anything less will not be in keeping with the importance of the event, of the new territory opened by the construction of these lines, or Fort Worth's position with respect to them.

Fort Worth can not afford to overlook this territory. It can not afford to send a small delegation or to join with any other cities or towns. It must have a large and thoroughly representative delegation or to join with any other cities or towns. It must have a large and thoroughly representative delegation of its own—of men who represent their own businesses and the City of Fort Worth and who know and have business dealings with the men of the South Plains. They must take the time to make the trip, tour the new lines and visit the towns.

Some of the richest territory in Texas that has suffered for the lack of railroad outlet, will be brought into direct connection with Fort Worth with the opening of these new lines. The possibilities of development, are limitless. The people regard Fort Worth as their natural market place. They fought for the Denver extensions in order that they might obtain a direct connection with Fort Worth rather than to be forced to haul and ship their products elsewhere. Whether Fort Worth profits to the full from the opening of this new territory or some other city is allowed to obtain the benefits, rests with Fort Worth.

We can not afford to be shortsighted. Let's get busy, organize a large delegation, get a special train and show these people that Fort Worth appreciates their friendly attitude, rejoices with them in the acquisition of railroad service and is prepared to serve their needs.

The time is not too much, if Fort Worth does the job as it should.—Star-Telegram.

YOUR HEALTH

Changes

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Ass'n and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Adolescence is the period between the stage of childhood and that of the full grown adult. It commences in girls about 12 years of age and lasts 10 years; in boys, it begins at about 14 years of age and lasts for a varying period of from seven to 10 years.

During this period various important changes take place in the child. It develops the characteristics that definitely distinguish the grown man or woman from the child.

Rapid Growth

During this period, growth is more rapid than at any time, except the first two years of life. Quick growth is associated with greater possibilities of physical and mental disturbance.

The mortality rate is lowest during the ages from 12 to 20, but the possibility of danger to the child's health during this period is as great, if not greater, than at any other. Particularly the expenditure of energy must be observed and overstrain in attention and in social activities.

During this period of growth the muscles develop somewhat more slowly than do the bones. For some time it was thought that this fact was responsible for growing pains, but it is now definitely believed that these pains are associated with infections in the nose and throat and rheumatic complications.

Between the ages of 13 and 15, the volume of the heart becomes nearly doubled. Some children react unfavorably to this development with fear responses, but there seems to be no reason to believe that the rapid development of the heart is to be controlled in any way.

Chlorosis

It used to be quite common for girls during this period to become pale, thin and anemic. The condition was called chlorosis and was believed to be a legitimate indisposition of the period. It is now realized that the condition was due to the fact that girls of this age were taken away from outdoor play and carefully watched.

Moreover, they were shut up in study rooms or drawing rooms and their garments were changed to the heavy frocks, petticoats and corsets that used to be the style of the period.

Nowadays the girl of adolescent age wears garments at least as light as those worn by grandmothers, and devotes a vast amount of time to outdoor sports. As a result, chlorosis as a disease of adolescence has practically disappeared.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that the Democrats of New Mexico have placed a state ticket in the field and the Republicans will soon have their nominees ticketed. It is probable that the hardest fight will be made this year by both parties in that state due to the fact that it is presidential year and for the reason that both organizatios have been edging up toward a decisive year for several election years.

It is reported that one East Texas county is boasting of their fair being a paying organization. The Panhandle-South Plains through its great co-operation of tireless workers has been a paying exhibition for sometime.

It is reported that the Lubbock high school has a Senior Class enrollment of from 250 to 300 for this year. It was only a few years back whe nthe high school graduates numbered in the thirties and forties.

It is reported that from now on candidates in Mexico would much rather be notified as to their nomination over long distance.

It is reported that one exchange believes that about the most successful method of farm-relief is driving to the city and attending a movie.

LOW PRICED CORN

Low priced corn is predicted throughout the corn belt, where an unusually good crop is rapidly maturing. Illinois stock feeders are predicting fifty-cent corn this winter. Somewhat contingent on the basic price of corn, the sorghum grains, the primary fed crop in this immediate section, is getting away from the influence of corn, as a variety of special uses have developed for the sorghum grains during the past few years. For example, much of our kaffir and maize moves to the Pacific Coast where it is used as poultry feed. Much of it is being used by manufacturers of mixed feeds. Even some of it is finding use in foreign quarters where brewers use it for making beer.

Strangely the prediction is for a fair to good price for the sorghum grains while low-priced corn is the dopesters' guess.—Plainview Herald.

DOUBLY TRAGIC

The disapearance of the secretary of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board and a shortage of approximately a million dollars in the funds of the Baptist convention is doubtly tragic because it involves infidelity upon the part of a trusted church official and the loss of a huge sum of money by an organization which was already hard pressed for funds with which to carry on its extensive program of work.

Of course, the Baptist promptly assumed all outstanding obligations incurred by the man who had been acting in their behalf through a long period of years, and will under take to replace the large fund which has apparently been misappropriated at their cost. Such a severe loss, however, is certain to harrass the work of the church for several years to come, and may make it necessary to curtail the home mission program for a long period of time.

No church organization in the country has been more zealous in its home mission work than has the Southern Baptist convention. Sacrificial giving by the membership at large, coupled with heroic service by hundreds and thousands of ministers and other workers, has made it possible to carry out a systematic home mission campaign that has been marvelous in its results and has caused the church at large to grow by leaps and bounds. The tragic incident which has just come to light will add to the difficulties but will scarcely discourage the Baptists, for they have already met and overcome many difficulties that seemed insuperable. The strength of the church is not in its dollars but in its men and women whom nobody can steal.—Brownwood Bulletin.

MEN OF LEADERSHIP NEEDED

Men who can see the value of an improvement to the community before it is completed are the kind of men who are needed for leadership. All too often, those who are of a conservative frame of mind control the sentiment by reason of their positions and development is retarded. They have never taken a chance in thier business and they don't believe in anything in which the element of chance enters. They lack vision. The man who draws back always comes around after the improvement is completed and agrees that it is all that was ever said for it. They are to be admired for the position they take. They can't be blamed perhaps, because they have a type of mind that can't visualize things. Being for it when it is done is something.—Paducah Post.

What Education Really Is

BY M. H. DUNCAN
Superintendent Of Lubbock City Schools

PASSING OF THE RECITATION

The recitation seems to be an inseparable part of our school program and many people can not think of a school without it. However, it is based on a wrong conceptin of education and must give place to a procedure more suited to the needs of the modern school. It is a corollary of the conception of education as information getting and can not meet the needs of the schools as experience getting institutions. In the recitation, the teacher and the book are the center of gravity and the aim is for the pupil to give back or recite the information he has gained from the textbook or that he has copied in his notebook from the lectures of the teacher. The recitation is the place where the pupil reproduces the ideas of others when he should be solving problems of his own. It tends to make him a passive recipient of what others have said and does not make provision, as it should, for his using the experiences of others in meeting the needs of his own life. The recitation is a time of training the pupil's memory. It is the time when the teacher sits on a high pedestal away from the children and above them, and looks into their minds to see if they have actually memorized the things they are supposed to have memorized.

It is easy to see that such a procedure does not meet the needs of the schools of to-day where the aim of the pupil is not to cram into his head the information of the textbook, but to learn to do by doing. It is not a fit procedure in the schools where the aim is to make American citizens capable of meeting the requirements of the great social order to which they belong. The class period is the very heart of our school program and it should reflect the ideals and aims we have in mind to attain in the schools. It should be a time of pupil work instead of pupil passivity, a time of producing instead of reproducing a time of investigation, of searching for the solution of problems that are to the pupil vital problems, a time when he uses his mind, under the inspiration and guidance of the teacher, in an attempt to remove the difficulties in the way of his better living.

The class period, in English literature, in composition, in history, in civics, and the other studies should be a work period where the children are engaged in doing the things they want to learn to do. It should follow the procedure of the laboratory period in science, home economics, mechanical drawing, and woodwork, where the aim is the acquisition of a skill and not a reproduction of the things others have said. Teacher talk should give place to pupil activity where the pupil is engaged, under the leadership of the teacher, in solving the vital problems of his everyday life and thus preparing himself to solve the problems even more vital further on.

It is easy to see the absurdity of making the class period a time of mere talk and discussion about things extrinsic to the child's life and that do not touch any of his vital needs. Suppose the teacher of manual training were to say to his class, "Now, students, I realize that people learn to do by doing; but handling saws, planes, hammers, and the other tools in this department is a very commonplace business, beneath the dignity of educated men and women, and we shall in this course study the history of these tools, their places in the progress of the world, and we shall admire the fine words of those who have written about them." The members of that class would regard that teaher a crank and would tell him very plainly that they cared little or nothing about the things he named, but that they wanted to learn to use the tools and do the things required in the department.

Everywhere in the classes in English literature, history, and the other social studies, we are doing just what this teacher of manual training wanted to do. We are having the pupil read about the fine deeds of others. We are having him study the history of institutions, social customs, and we ask him to admire the fine words of the different writers, and we fail to make the class period a time for practicing the virtues we want him to learn. We forget that children learn the virtues necessary to the right kind of character only by practicing them. We fail to realize that learning takes place only in connection with doing, and that, if we build in the boys and girls the kind of character we want to build, we must give them opportunity to practice the virtues necessary to such character. The class period must cease to be a time of mere recitation and become a time of activity where the pupils are engaged in doing the things they want to learn to do.

Today's Poem

SEPTEMBER

By Elizabeth Hart

Hustle, hustle through the house
Pencil, book and rule,
Scarcely time to say goodbye
Buddy's off to school.

Long discarded cap atop
Plastered rebel hair
Bump of mischief rather large,
Teacher best beware.

Rover lonesome and forlorn
To the doorway steals,
Mother, wistful, strokes his ear;
Knows just how he feels.

Set the scooter in the shed.
Put the toys away.
Something tells me this will be
A long and quiet day.

INDIAN SUMMER

A port of wistful witchery,
Is in the air today,
A glint of brighter gold, it seems
Within the sun's soft ray.

The sky seems just a bit more blue
Though flecked with foamy white,
Each flower fragrance wafted seems
To bring a fresh delight.

I wonder if the reason's not:
When summer says farewell,
She lingers for a last embrace
Once more God's love to tell?

THIS HAS HAPPENED

TAD THORNE and VALERIE WEST are married in a little chapel by the sea, with grandeur and a great deal of holiness.

It's like Val," thought SYBIL THORNE, whose own love affairs had made plenty of talk. "She's making it seem complicated 'but that doesn't make any difference. It comes untied these days, however elaborately it's tied."

Sybil, who worships her brother, is exceedingly unhappy because she dislikes Valerie. Her own engagement to CRAIG NEWHALL fills her also with forbodings. Because, though Craig is fine and wealthy and handsome Sybil does not really love him Years before, her sweetheart, JOHN LAWRENCE, marched away to war on the eve of their marriage—and never returned.

Convinced that she can never be happy again, Sybil became engaged to Craig to make her dying father happy. But Mr. Thorne was dead before she could tell him, and now Sybil does not know what to do.

Val and Tad go to Canada for a wedding trip and Sybil goes alone to their summer place at Winno to prepare for the homecoming of the newlyweds.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

The town was full of memories. The beach where Sybil had walked with John Lawrence. The lawns about the house where they had strolled in the moonlight. Everywhere she went a shadowy figure walked beside her. A tall slim boy in khaki, with hair like gold, and lovelight in his eyes.

It seemed to Sybil that she was closer to John there, where she had learned to love him, than she had ever been anywhere else.

At night she found the place on the beach where he had kissed her first. And she stood, as she had stood that night, with her face to the sea, while the wind whipped her dress about her, and blew her hair where John's cheek should have been.

Then she put up her arms to nothingness, and raised her face to her phantom lover.

"Whatever I do," she whispered, "I'll love you still. Forever and forever, John."

The mist was rolling in clouds when Craig found her on the sands, A little huddled figure, watching the tide creep up. He had driven down when Mrs. Thorne told him that Sybil was there for the night working with a charwoman from the village.

"I'll drive her home if she'll let me, and down again first thing in the morning," he promised. So he had hurried there and, finding the house deserted, had sought her on the beach.

"Sybil," he cried when he saw her there, "are you crazy, dear? It's cold as the devil out here, and damp. What are you doing mooning away all by your lonesome."

"Thinking about you," she lied lightly.

"Honest?"

He took her hand fondly, and she could see how happily he smiled. Poor Craig. It was so easy for her to please him. Only a little word of affection—a loving smile.

"Sit down," she invited. "I want to tell you something."

He put the coat he carried about her, and she pillowed her head against his shoulder.

'Craig, I'm the unhappiest girl on earth."

"I know, honey,"

His arm about her drew her gently closer.

"No, you don't, Craig. You think it's because John is dead, and daddy. And now Tad married, And mother and I at sword's points, because we don't speak the same language. But that's not all of it, Craig. It's something inside of me, like poison. I don't know, exactly. Something that makes me bitter and rebellious—and miserable. Oh, Craig, you don't know."

"I think I do, dear."

"Oh, it's dreadful, Craig! Everything's all gone wrong. My whole life. It's something worse than losing people. It's losing everything ideals and dreams . . . and hope.

"There's such an all-gone feeling As if the bottom had simply dropped out of things. I wish I could make you understand."

"I do understand Sybil."

"Craig, I'd make a rotten wife."

"You're a morbid little sweetheart, I'll say that for you."

"But I'm dreadful serious Craig. I don't think I ought to be married . . . feeling the way I do."

"You're all upset right now, honey. It's sort of a reaction after the wedding. You're tremendously high strung, you know. You let things affect you too much. Valerie's been getting your goat, I knew she would, from the minute I laid eyes on her.

"Tad's probably made a mistake. But after all, that's his funeral. If you could only learn to take things as they are. But you're always rebellious. Seething inside all the time. Popping off like a little firecracker. You've got to learn to take life gracefully, Sybil. Bucking fate is a tough job. We can't do it, little girl. There's no use trying Life's so much bigger than any of us."

"But, Craig, look at me! I lost everything. You can't expect me to fold my hands, and murmur "Thy will be done." You can't expect me to just lie down, and let the gods of fate walk all over me."

"First, there was that dreadful war and my poor boy was led to slaughter. And, Craig, that drove me nearer insanity than you'll ever know. And when there were the crazy years afterward when we all went wild. Things happened then, dear, that I'd like to forget. If it hadn't been for my job, I'd have gone off the handle entirely.

"I loved that job, Craig. In the office from nine till five, busy every minute. Accomplishing things. Feeling important. All those contacts with worthwhile people. Part and parcel of achievement.

"It was glorious. I got so I stopped pitying myself. Introspection has always been my curse, and there wasn't time for that sort of thing at Lothrop & Sons. Something doing every minute. That was my salvation.

"And then, of course, I had to give it all up, when daddy got so sick. And now—with daddy gone—and Tad—I'm like a fish out of water. High and dry on a rocky shore. Nothing to do, but think about it. It's a devil of a life, Craig.

"And mother doesn't make things any better. Oh, I suppose it sounds disloyal. But I'm not a very filial sort of a girl. I never could see why people assume that there's a sort of mystic bond between parents and progeny. I adored my father, because he was the most wonderful thing that ever lived. Not just because, by merest accident, he happened to be my father.

"And mother worships Tad in the same blind fashion. I suppose it gives a woman an awful kick to have a splendid son—bone of her bone, blood of her blood, as they say. But as for me—I'm nothing to send telegrams home about. Mother was never particularly wild about me—not since I grew up and started to have a mind of my own.

"We're far apart as the poles, mother and I. Probably I sound like an awful egg, talking this way. Of course I love mother. And God knows I feel sorry for her. But the woman who does our washing would be a darn sight more congenial."

Sybil's head burrowed a little hollow in Craig's arm, and he held her closer. The only sound about them was the wavelets lapping at their feet.

"Craig," she said, "I ought to be muzzled. Shooting my idiotis head off like a darn fool. Talking in circles, and back where I began. What's it all about?

"What is life for? We don't know where we're going, but we're on our way. That's about the size of it, Craig. Same old thing, day in and day out—life in and life out. Getting up in the morning, going to bed at night. Laughing, crying, fighting, praying. Talk—talk—talk. Human cattle. Stepping on each other's necks. Or getting stepped on. Squabbling with the other cattle. Torn by greed and sex. Reproducing ourselves. The endless procession. On and on . . . What's it all about?"

"Sybil, there's a poem of Oscar Wilde's—a beautiful thing called Panthea. And it begins like this:

"I am too young to live without desire.
Too young are thou to waste this summer night.
Asking those idle questions which of old
Man sought of seer and oracle, and no reply was told . . .
Vex not they soul with dead philosophy,
Have we not lips to kiss with,
Hearts to love and eyes to see!' . . .

"Sybil, I want a kiss."

And when she had given him her lips, she settled herself again in his arms.

"I guess I'm getting old, Craig I haven't had an honest-to-God thrill in ages."

"That's a nice thing to tell me!"

"Well, it's the truth," she insisted. "Remember how I used to run around? I kidded myself that I was having a pretty good time. But now—Lord, Craig, I couldn't get any more kick out of a roadhouse than a prayer meeting. Bootleg liquor and country club flirtations give me a pain in the neck. Life's lost its zest. I'm all fed up."

Craig stiffened.

"I'm sorry that I am so utterly inadequate."

* * *

Instantly she was contrite. "Oh, darling, I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. It isn't you. It's I. You're adorable, Craigie."

"Then marry me, sweetheart,"

Sybil drew her knees up under her chin.

"And now,' she remarked, surveying the ocean. "We're back where we started."

"Please, dear."

"I told you I'd make a rotten wife."

"I know you did. But I want you just the same."

"I tell you what I'll do, Craig." Resolutely she faced him. "Mab Blake is goin to Havana next week. Wretched time for it, I suppose. Rainy season, or something. That's why Mab's going—they've cut the rates in half. And you know Mab on bargains. She's been trying to get me to join her. A month's trip. Mother's been urging me to go ahead. And Tad and Valerie will be home next week.

"I can't make any decisions, Craig, with you around. And mother is so disquieting. I simply cannot do it. Mab's a tranquil old jane. Thirty-four, and getting sour. You know how it is with social workers. She'll keep me out of trouble. Perhaps the rest and change would help me. Whole days on the ocean. Peace and quiet. It couldn't hurt, Craig. And it might help What do you say?"

Maybe it was the wind from the sea that made Craig shiver Maybe it was Doubt's cold fingers laying hands on him He lit a cigaret, and as he held the match to his face Sybil thought how pitiful he looked—how weary and defeated. If she had loved him enough she would have taken his head in her arms and kissed his wistful lips. But she raised them, instead, to the leaden sky, where one small planet gleamed.

"Star bright, star light,' she cried, "first star I've seen tonight. Wish I may, wish I might get the wish that I wish tonight, And I wish," she told the heavens with great solemnity, "that Mister Craig Newhall will see the advantages of Miss Sybil Thorne leaving immediately, if not sooner, for Cuba"

Craig shifted his weight heavily from one elbow to the other, like an old man.

"It's the way life is," he told her. "You don't care enough—that's all Not that I blame you, Sybil. God knows we can't love where and when we would."

"But Craig," she cried. "That's not fair. I do love you—only—I—I'm all mixed up inside. Oh, Craigie, dear, what's the use of talking. I don't go if you don't want me to. I'll do exactly whatever you say."

"The devil you will!" he retorted grimly. "You'll do whatever you want—and you darn well know it."

What did Sybil do? Something adventurous, of course. It's in the next installment.

Racing to Bradford, Eng., by taxicab and train, Eugene Ramsden defeated by 15 minutes the first of 500 pigeons released in London.

William Picton's feet were so big that they stuck out when he hid under Mrs. E. H. Leffort's bed in St. Paul, and he was arrested for burglary.

Mrs. Mary Carthen of Boston testified in her divorce suit that her husband deserted her twice in a week, going for good the second time.

Highland Cowmen Expect Good Year

Shipments from Alpine Are Expected to Total More Than 50,000 Head; Prices Have Good Range.

ALPINE, Sept. 11.—The banner year, for stockmen of the Highland area is expected with the fall shipments of fat cattle beginning now in about a week. Shipments from Alpine alone this year will reach the 50,000 mark, is the estimate of Joe D. Jackson, prominent cowman of Alpine. Practically all of the calves to be shipped are already contracted for, and these will go to northern feed pens and stockfields.

With ranges in the best condition they have been for many years and prices soaring to high levels, the ranchers of this section will have one of the best years in the history of the country.

Want Fat Cattle

Bill Connally, representing the Hardy Packing company of San Diego, California, and R. L. Cooper, of Los Angeles, cattle buyers who buy many cattle from Highland ranchers each year, are here looking for fat cattle. Mr. Cooper is looking for stuff to pasture and feed in California. His company has been handling the Hearst cattle in Mexico for several years.

Jackson and Harmon report the purchase of 165 head of two and three year-old steers and 59 head of cows from W. N. Gourley. The delivery was made Tuesday and the stock will be placed on the Jackson and Harmon ranges near Alpine.

DAILY MARKETS

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Sept. 11. (AP)—The cattle market here today was about steady. A few cow sales were 10c to 15c lower. Steers sold from $10.00 to $11.50, cows $7.00 to $9.50, and calves $12.00 to $12.75.

Hogs were steady. The top was $12.15, with the bulk selling from $11.40 to $11.75. Sows sold from $9.00 to $9.75 and pigs $8.00 to $8.50.

The sheep trade was steady with lambs selling from $12.50 to $13.00, yearlings at $11.00 and wethers at $8.50.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 11. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Moderate receipts and firm to higher prices at eastern dressed beef markets were fully factors to the cattle trade around the 11-market circuit; Chicago reported lower prices on the inbetween grades of steers but at other points steady to 25c higher prices were enforced; country demand for finishing steers continued to furnish a decided support to the market on grass steers; Chicago had a top of $18.25 on heavy steers, while at Kansas City, Omaha, and St. Joseph new local high levels for the season were established, better kinds of western grassers at Kansas City cleared from 13.00 to 15.25; those at the latter price showing the effects of a grain ration, a string of choice light weight stockers in Omaha scored $14.35; total receipts were estimated at 50,400 as compared with 59,759 a week ago and 49,665 a year ago.

Fat lambs suffered an addition price decline of 10 to 25c. Considerable uneveness prevailed in the hog market.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11. (AP)—Cotton prices made new lows for the present movement today under a continuation of selling on the recent bearish Vermont crop estimate and increased hedge selling and liquidation by trend longs. December contracts traded off to 17.18 or 32 points net down about 61 a bale above the lows and the delivery closed at 17.31. The general market closed steady 14 to 17 points net down.

Liverpool also continued to feel the effects of the government estimate and came in 11 points lower than due at the opening here. First trades showed losses of 14 to 15 points on selling in sympathy with the drop in the English market local prices continued downward after the start under the impetus of hedging and general liquidation until October traded to 17.17, and December and January to 17.22, or 22 to 23 points below the previous close.

Fair trade buying developed on the scale down price rallied 7 points but a renewal of liquidation by longs and continued hedging supplied the demand and carried off 26 to 28 points below yesterday's close. October traded at 17.13 December 17.17 and January 17.21.

After mid-session the decline extended to levels 32 to 33 points under the previous close but it was checked by covering probably induced by uncertainty over what the weekly weather and crop summary due tomorrow will show. October rallied from 17.06 to 17.24 and December from 17.13 to 17.31, and closed at or near the highs.

Receipts 54,166; for week 125,994; for year 619,402; last year 964,220. Exports 27,033; for week 65,765; for year 496,747; last year 533,638. Stocks 589,154; last year 1,317,383. Stock on shipboard 84,948; last year 80,363. Spot sales 40,780; last year 33,744.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. (AP)—Selling continued in the cotton market today, promoted by relatively easy cables and favorable weather reports. Prices made new low ground for the movement, December selling off to 17.71 or 31 points net lower and 144 points below the high level last Saturday. Closing at 17.94. The general market closed steady, at net declines of 7 to 12 points, and soon showed net losses of about 20 to 27 points under southern selling, further liquidation and local selling. Extensive trade buying was reported on the decline while there was also covering, but demand was supplied on rallies of a few points and the market eased again in the forenoon October selling off to 17.92 and March 17.73 or 25 to 30 points below yesterday's closing quotations.

Offerings then subsided and a flurry of covering caused rallies of several points from the lowest. Demand failed to broaden on the upturn and the market weakened again in later trading.

The favorable view of weather conditions seemed to stimulate the selling, while some of the earlier buyers for a rally were reported to be selling, while some of the earlier buyers for a rally were reported to be liquidating their cotton on the decline. October sold off from 18.04 the best price touched on the midday bulge to 17.85, while March declined to 17.67 net losses of 30 to 37 points. Last prices showed rallies of 8 to 13 points from the lowest on covering.

Private cables reported increased hedging and general liquidation in Liverpool. Exports today 27,033 making 496,263 so far this season. Port receipts 54,166. U. S. port stocks, 584,175.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By STANLEY W. PRENSIL
(Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—Violent speculation for the advance was resumed in today's stock market, after an opening period of irregularity. Prices of several active issues fell back 1 to 4 points at the start on overnight selling inspired by the stiffening of money rates yesterday. These offerings were readily absorbed, and a series of bullish demonstartions started which carried nearly two score issues to reach high levels on gains ranging from 2 to nearly 12 points. Trading, which had shown a tendency to turn dull on the reaction, picked up on the rally, the day's sales running well over 4,000,000 shares.

Call money renewed unchanged at 7 1-2 per cent, with a plentiful supply of funds available. More money acme into the street during the day, and "outside loans" were arranged as low at 7;034:3,58, the afternoon. Time money rates continued firm, with 7 per cent asked for the shorter maturities.

Buying orders were spread over a broad list, but the motor accessory, food, copper, mail order and steel shares gave the best exhibitions of group strength. Pools were again in the market on a big scale, and the flood of orders which poured over the brokerage wires from all sections of the country indicated that they were attracting a large public following. Sale of a stock exchange seat at the record-breaking price of $410,000 was widely commented upon as a bullish development.

Except for the publication of a series of favorable earings statements, the declaration of a 50 cents extra dividend on National Biscuit and a 2 for 1 split up of American Chicle, there was little in the today's business news to influence the price movement. Wall Street was eagerly awaiting the return from Europe on Friday of William C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, who is expected to have something to say regarding plans for a world curtailment of crude oil production.

Briggs Manufacturing was one of the sensations in today's market, climbing more than 5 points to a new high record at 52 1-8 on a turnover of nearly 250,000 shares. One block of 38,000 shares changed hands at 50. Buying was based on reports that earnings in the last half of the year, due to heavy Chrysler and Ford orders, would approximate $5 a share, as against slightly more than $1 in the first half.

Montgomery-Ward continued its sensational climb by touching a new high record at 264, or 147 points above the year's low, but it slipped back to 257, up 3 points net, on realizing. Union Carbide ran up 11 1-2 points to 181 1-2 and closed at the top. Motor Products soared 14 points to 156 and then dropped back to 151. Advance Rumley Common and Preferred, American Bosch Magneto, Atlantic Refining, Butterick, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Commercial Solvents, Detroit Edison, International Business Machines, Loose-Wiles Biscuit, National Dairy Products, National Tea, the Purity Baking Issues, Stanley Company of America, and Wright Aero all sold 5 or more points above yesterday's final quotations, most of them setting new peak prices.

Steels were heavily bought in expectation of large last quarter earnings. Republic, with a gain of 5 points at 79-2, a new high, was the feature. Accumulation of the coppers was stimulated by reports of unusually low reserve stocks and predictions of higher commodity prices. American Smelting ran up 6 points, and Greene Cananea 3, while Anaconda, Chile and Cerro de Pasco moved into new high ground.

A sharp rise of more than 2 cents a bushel in corn prices in reflection of a lower than expected government crop estimate, featured the commodity markets. Wheat prices advanced fractionally. Cotton fell back about $1 a bale. Coffee and sugar quotations were firmer.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading with sterling cables quoted around $4.85 3-32.

SUIT IS CONTINUED

Norris Libel Suit Will Be Heard In March Term

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 11. (AP)—The $100,000 libel suit of Rev. J. Frank Norris, Fort Worth, Baptist minister, against the Jackson Daily News and Frederick Sullens has been continued from the September term of the Hinds county court to the March term, it has been learned here.

Both parties are said to have agreed to the continuance. The suit grew out of an allegedly libelous editorial appearing in the Daily News, which the Texas minister said hurt his work as a minister of the gospel and cast reflections on his character.

The new Buick is the New Style
Graceful contours instead of straight lines--the gleam and sparkle of brilliant colors and chrome plating instead of drab effects . . . the most beautiful bodies ever built . . . Buick's masterpiece bodies by Fisher
At a time when motor car beauty was practically standardized—when imitation was the vogue—when there was a glaring lack of originality in body design—Buick has swept far beyond the commonplace and achieved a style which the entire country is acclaiming as the most distinctive and beautiful ever shown!
Fisher, the world's foremost builder of automobile bodies, has cooperated with Buick, the world's foremost builder of fine cars, to create a new mode—a new fashion—and so luminous is the result and so eagerly is the public welcoming it that Buick's great factories have reached new production levels in an effort to keep pace with an ever increasing demand!
Inside and out, the new Buick bodies by Fisher are the most beautiful ever built. Together with the wonderful new standards of performance introduced by the Silver Anniversary Buick, they are winning the greatest demand and the greatest preference ever enjoyed by any fine car!
The new Buick is the new style! And by that is meant, not merely a new type of beauty—not merely a thrilling turning point in body design—but a great countrywide vogue!

Hoover Is Silent On Maine Victory

Tells Service Men Attempt Will Be Made To Give Just Dues; Congratulates Air Derby Winners.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Herbert Hoover today touched on the policy of the government toward war veterans and governmental fostering of private aviation development, but remained silent on the outcome of the Maine election.

Speaking to a delegation representing war veterans organizations at his headquarters, the republican presidential candidate assured them he desired to see a continuance of a policy which would be just to veterans.

Thinks Aviation is Ahead

A few moments later he called attention to the conclusion of the trans-continental Air Derby without mishap, terming the successful finish of the race an indication of the removal of aviation from the area of adventure to the field of commerce.

"I think we ought to congratulate the winner of the trans-continental Air Derby," Hoover said. "It marks an important stage in our flying progress and indicates the removal of the industry from the area of adventure to the field of commerce."

Thinks Maine is Hoover

In addressing the group of former service men, which included officials of various veterans' organizations, the nominee spoke of the expenditures of the government in providing pensions and compensation to veterans.

While Hoover had no formal comment to make on the Maine election, he felt with Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the republican national committee, the unusual would vote for Herbert Hoover, republican nominee.

Democrats

ficers broke up a half-dozen melees before order finally was restored and the Hooverites repaired to their meeting place on the front steps.

The bolt was precipitated when a motion was introduced demanding that only those delegations loyal to Governor Smith be seated. The motion was an anti-climax to the action of the state executive committee yesterday, when anti-Smith delegations from five counties were notified that they would not be seated in the convention. It has been "open season" on insurgents for two days.

Love Is Elected.

Meeting apart from the regular democratic group, the Hooverites elected former State Senator Thomas B. Love temporary chairman, named committees and listened to several addresses before adjourning the rump convention and leaving their future activities in the hands of an executive committee, headed by Alvin S. Moody, of Houston.

Both Love and Colquitt addressed the bolters, telling them to go to their homes and "prepare for the fight." A set of resolutions adopted by the Hooverites branded the nomination of Governor Smith as an "unfortunate error" and condemned the "highhanded and lawless methods of the regular convention."

Voluntary retirement of the delegates opposed to the democratic nominee left loyal forces free to elect officers, frame their platform and attend to routine business without prospect of further interruptions. Before adjourning for noon recess the regulars heard an address by Myron Blalock, temporary chairman, and appointed committees on resolutions and platform.

May Tangle On Dry Plank.

Barring a possible conflict between Gov. Dan Moody and certain members of the platform committee over the inclusion of a prohibition plank in the platform, the wind-up of the regular convention promised to be tranquil.

Governor Moody announced that he would seek to incorporate a plank endorsing the principles of prohibition, and it was known that several members of the committee who believe that any indorsement of prohibition by the convention would be looked upon as a reflection upon the candidacy of Governor Smith, planned to fight such a plank.

Officers Are Elected.

Acting on recommendations of the permanent organization committee, the convention unanimously sanctioned appointment of W. A. Tarver, of Corsicana, as permanent chairman and appro[ved] also the following officers: Mrs. Lee J. Rountree, Bryan, vice chairman; Margie Neal, Carthage, secretary; C. C. Renfro, Dallas, and Ernest May, Fort Worth, assistant secretaries, and Ranger Capt. Tom Hickman, Fort Worth, and John Davis and Pat O'Keefe, Dallas, sergeants-at-arms.

Escorted to the speakers' platform while a band in the convention hall struck up "The Sidewalks of New York," Tarver stepped before the loud speaker and launched into tribute to "two of the outstanding personalities in the democratic party," Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, and the party's standard bearer, Smith.

A burst of cheering punctuated his speech as the giant Texan lauded the New York executive for his rise in life from a newsboy on New York's East Side to the leadership of the democratic party.

Tarver Lauds Smith.

"Governor Smith has taken a place beside Bryan and Wilson as champions of the American people," Tarver's deep-toned voice boomed through the auditorium. "With this sterling democrat as our candidate, and following the leadership of Senator Morris Sheppard and Governor Moody, let us roll up a tremendous majority in Texas this year in order that victory may again perch on the banners of the believed leading Ballough in elapsed time, came in third behind the leader. John H. Wood, Wausau, Wis., in a Waco biplane, was second. All three planes competing in Class C of the cross country classic arrived safely at Yuma before the last of the B craft was in. Robert W. Cantwell, Duncan, Oklahoma, believed to have an elapsed time margin on his fellows, arrived at 11:04:14 a. m. Followed shortly afterward by Captain C. B. D. Collyer of New York, in a Fairchild plane and Edward Brooks, driving a Fokker plane at 11:48:50 a. m.

All But Two Arrive In

By 2 p. m. mountain time, all but two of the Class B craft besides that of Auer, had arrived. The tardy planes, reported going strong at that time, were piloted by Raymond Merritt and Matthew Whittall, respectively.

While the last two sections of controlled race drew near along the Sunset route, two fliers participating in the international classis from Windsor, Ont., to Los Angeles, were believed to be close to Salt Lake City. democracy."

While a platform committee was engaged in drafting the planks on which the convention was to take action in a session tonight, another group canvassed the returns of the primary election and announced nominations for United States Senator and principal state officers.

Congressman Tom Connally, nominated United States senator, and Governor Moody, Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller and Atty. Gen. Claude Pollard, who were named to succeed themselves at the primary, were notified of the results of the canvass by committees.

With the exception of Governor Moody, who was to acknowledge his nomination at the night session, all of the candidates were escorted to the stage ,where they spoke.

Republicans Are Flayed.

All flayed the republican party for its purported corruption and failure to aid farmers of the country, and pleaded that as democratic marshal their forces for a clear-cut victory in November.

Former Congressman R. L. Henry of Houston, and Helen B. Moore, flotorial representative, also spoke.

Late in the afternoon many of the 500 delegates remaining in the building when bolters retired shortly after the convention opened and held a rump session on the steps of the convention hall, left their seats, weary of the day's ordeal. Still others gathered in small knots in the corridors to discuss the day's events, a precedent in Texas democratic political gatherings.

The platform was adopted by the convention without a single dissenting vote, but it took eight hours of wrangling in a sub-committee before leaders could reach a satisfactory statement of the party's views on prohibition.

Want State Utilities Control.

Other planks placed in the platform tonight advocate creation of a government agency in the state to control public utilities; consolidation of various agencies and departments of the state government into fewer independent bodies; a scientific revision of the state system of taxation; abolition of the commission of appeals and creation of a supreme court of nine members; adoption of a uniform system of state accounting; further legislation looking to the establishment of a centralized prison system; tariff reform, lower freight rates on agricultural products and legislation designed to improve agricultural conditions; continuation of the present per capita school apportionment; correction of inequalities in educational opportunities; legislation giving equitable protection to both labor and capital; liberal support for the state institutions of higher learning; legislation to stop the appropriation of waters of rivers and streams by private enterprises; the maintenance of highways by charges upon traffic.

The convention also included a resolution presented by Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier of Austin, urging that the state purchase the land around the Alamo, which once was a part of the Alamo inclosure.

Florida Issues Call For Alligators

BEAUMONT, Sept. 11. (AP)—A hurry call for baby alligators has been received from Tampa, Florida, by the Beaumont chamber of commerce. The letter, from the self styled "world's largest dealer in deep sea wonders," points out the alligator crop in Florida this season is falling down.

Alligator trapping in Jefferson and Orange counties and in adjoining Louisiana parishes is the second largest trapping industry muskrats coming first. Thousands of alligator hides are shipped from this section annually.

Moody Endorses

Governor Smith, former Governor O. B. Colquitt, who led "Hoover Democrats" from the state convention in Dallas today, addressed an anti-Smith rally here tonight.

"After the usurpation of power at the state democratic executive committee meeting Monday and continuation of the same tactics in the convention in Dallas Tuesday, Colquitt said, "it was impossible for us to remain in the convention and we called for all those who opposed the election of Al Smith to leave and we walked out."

No Such Courage at Houston

"There was not that much display of courage at Houston when Governor Smith bolted the platform before the convention adjourned. They can kick me out of the party as much as they want to, but I'll kick in just as fast as they do. We will uphold the constitution in defiance of Al Smith, Tammany and all the foreign population of New York."

Mr. Colquitt declared party loyalty was limited "only by one's honest conviction and conscientious belief. There is no obligation except such conviction and action as you believe is best for the government, for the community and the people."

"Our facilities in the way of boarding houses are also much more extensive this year than they have ever been before. The town of Lubbock has been building rapidly."

"There are likewise some twenty to thirty additions to the faculty."

"I can assure the public that although there will likely be a much larger number than previously, the increase is merely the healthy growth which we all along have been expecting. The college will be able to take care adequately of every student who may be enrolled during the coming year."

and state precincts in today's primary revealed an unexpectedly large democratic vote.

Returns both in Denver and the state were slow in coming in, but it was indicated that the democratic vote in Denver would exceed by one-third the number that had been predicted, while it appeared that the republican vote would be lighter even than had been expected.

DOVER, Del., Sept. 11. (AP)—After a bitter factional fight, what is known as the organization wing of the Republican party in Delaware scored a victory today in the state convention by nominating C. Douglas Buck, son-in-law of the U. S. Senator T. Coleman Dupont, for Governor. Buck is state highway engineer and lives at State Road, New Castle county.

Former Governor John G. Townsend, jr., was nominated for U. S. Senator and Robert G. Houston was renominated for Congress, without opposition.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 11. (AP)—The renomination of Governor John E. Weeks, republican, in today's primary appeared assure don returns from 178 of the 248 cities and towns in the state, which gave him a lead of 8500 over Mayor Edward H. Deavitt, of Montpelier.

This was the only contest for a major office in either party.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 11. (AP)—Governor Roland H. Hartley lead opponents for the Republican gubernatorial nomination when returns from 71 precincts out of 2561 in the state primary election here today were compiled. Hartley had 4670 votes as against 3964 for E. L. French and 831 for Claude Bannick. A. Scott Bullitt was leading Stephen J. Chadwick for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Bullitt had 929 and Chadwick 477.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 11. (AP)—Nomination of Charles W. Tobey of Temple for Governor by New Hampshire Republicans was conceded tonight by his opponent, Ora A. Brown of Ashland, after returns from 207 of the 294 wards and towns in the state had given Tobey a lead of 3103 votes. The figures were:

Tobey 19,026; Brown 15,923.

Eaton D. Stewart of Nashua appeared assured of the Democratic gubernatorial nomination when he was leading his opponent, Charles W. Ward of Manchester almost three to one. Returns from 189 wards and towns gave Sargent 3,928 to 1,844 for Brown.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 11. (AP)—Organization of the American Legion national convention liaison committee to function during the convention at San Antonio October 8-12 is going forward rapidly under the direction of J. L. Fitzgibbon, chairman.

Members of the committee will be assigned in pairs as hosts to each of the 57 departments of the legion, Mr. Fitzgibbon said. One committeeman will be on duty as host for his state at all times.

Before the delegations arrive in San Antonio, the liaison committee will contact each delegation through its department adjutant. The time and place of arrival will be learned. This information will be consolidated with information as to the delegation's hotel and other details of their plans during the gathering here and made available to the committeemen in charge of the delegation. The committee assigned will meet the delegation at the train and assist them in getting settled.

Not content with their destruction of cotton bolls, boll worms are destroying maize in fields in Lubbock county, it was revealed here yesterday when a number of the insects were brought into the office of County Agent D. "Insufficient Funds" Checks

If you have neglected to settle your accounts contracted last month or before, pay them today. They are considered due on or before the tenth, of course, but better late than later.

This thing of prompt payment of obligations is of greater importance than many of us realize. Good credit risks—from the standpoint of the merchant or doctor or banker—are those people who have established a record for taking care of their obligations WHEN THEY BECOME DUE. In this age of business when a person's responsibility is based on character rather than collateral you owe it to yourself to maintain a reputation for prompt payment of your accounts and other contracts. Not every man may have "gilt edged" collateral, but every one may be possessed of "gilt-edged" character.

Protect your credit character by making satisfactoey settlement of your obligations when they become due.
