Guerrillas, soldiers fight in South Africa

By The Associated Press

The South African and Rhodesian governments reported killing 87 black guerrillas in two border battles as the U.N. Security Council prepared to vote today on four African resolutions censuring South Africa.

The South African government reported its troops killed 61 guerrillas and lost five of its own soldiers in a 36-hour battle last week along the border between South-West Africa and Angola. It was the heaviest fighting reported in the 10-year-old bush war for the independence of the pre-World War I German territory.

The announcement did not say where along the 800-mile border the fighting took place.

Meanwhile, the Rhodesian government said its army intercepted a guerrilla force crossing into Rhodesia from Zambia and killed 26 of the black insurgents. It did not say when or where along the border the battle took place.

The Rhodesian government also announced an exchange of fire with Zambian troops across the Zambezi River near the Victoria Falls. The communique said Zambian forces shelled Rhodesian emplacements, and Rhodesian forces returned the fire and appeared to hit an ammunition dump. No Rhodesian casualties were reported, but there was damage to buildings and vehicles, the government said.

Representatives from Britain and the United Nations were scheduled to begin two days of cease-fire talks with leaders of the black Rhodesian guerrillas today in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania.

Lord Carver, Britain's commissioner-designate for Rhodesia, and Gen. Prem Chand of India, designated by the United Nations to head a transitional peacekeeping force, then will go to Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital.

At U.N. headquarters in New York, U.S. sources predicted that British vetoes would kill three African resolutions calling for embargoes on arms, trade, investments and loans to South Africa but the council as a stopgap measure would approve the fourth resolution demanding that the South African government lift the bans it imposed Oct. 19 on black organizations and newspapers.

The sources said after the votes, the council members probably would begin work on a compromise resolution calling for an arms embargo, using a less forcefully worded draft being promoted by the United States, Canada, Britain, France and West Germany.

Andrew Young, the American ambassador to the United Nations, said on the ABC television program "Issues and Amswers" that economic sanctions against South Africa don't make sense "businesswise" and he would not support such a program.

Young also said he does not favor a ban on the sale of nuclear fuel to South Africa. He said the country has such an advanced nuclear potential that a cutoff "would only encourage separate development."

Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, said on CBS"-Face the Nation" that South Africa's racial problems must be settled peacefully to prevent the intrusion of the Soviet Union or Cuba.

Gas-guzzling cars: To tax or to ax is question

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, convinced the automobile is the chief cause of energy waste, is looking for a way to steer American motorists toward gasoline-stingy cars.

But the lawmakers, who are now considering the transportation part of President Carter's energy program, cannot decide whether to impose a tax that will make inefficient autos unattractive to buyers or to ban them altogether.

The Senate planned to vote today on the tax, similar to the one recommended by Carter and passed by the House.

Meanwhile, a Senate-House conference committee that is considering non-tax portions of Carter's program is hoping to break a deadlock over a provision, already passed by the Senate, that would prohibit production of cars that get poor mileage.

That ban, which House conferees have twice refused to accept, would apply starting in 1981 to cars getting less than 16 miles per gallon, and rising to 21 mpg by 1985.

The auto tax is one of several issues that remain to be considered before the Senate completes work on its energy tax bill. Approval of the bill could come late today, sending it to the conference committee.

Another set of conferees representing the Senate and House will try once again to agree on conditions under which federal Medicaid funds could be used to finance abortions for the poor.

The dispute is tying up a $60.2 billion appropriation bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. Failure to act on that bill could delay paychecks for thousands of federal workers.

The House has voted to allow federally paid abortions only in cases in which the woman's life would be endangered by a fullterm pregnancy and in some rape cases. The more liberal Senate position would require that the health of the woman and her fetus be considered.

In other congressional action, House leaders planned a vote today on a resolution aimed at winning cooperation of the South Korean government in the investigation of alleged efforts by Koreans to buy influence in Congress.

Tuesday will bring House consideration of a bill to implement President Carter's decision granting Alcan Pipeline Corp. the right to build a natural gas pipeline to deliver Alaskan gas to the 48 contiguous states.

Two priority issues stand in the way of congressional adjournment for the year: energy and Social Security. Because of delays in reaching agreement on a national energy policy, adjournment — originally scheduled for Oct. 8 — now is unlikely before the end of November.

The toughest issues on energy — taxes and natural gas pricing — have not even been considered yet by the conference committee that will write the final compromise bill.

Smaller check main reason SS system shunned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $311 difference between a typical federal employee's retirement check and a monthly Social Security payment helped convince government workers to shun the Social Security system.

But the higher benefit wasn't the only difference that led federal workers to fight successfully against integration of their pension plan with Social Security.

Some federal employees already qualify for both plans, meaning they can now look forward to two checks.

And civil servants maintain their higher pension was intended. A bigger chunk of their paycheck goes to the retirement fund than is paid by those under Social Security, and career employees enter government service partly because of the promise of the higher pension.

The Social Security system is going broke, however, and the federal employees are being looked at hungrily by some as a potential multibillion dollar infusion of cash for the system.

But the proposal by the House Ways and Means Committee to bring them under the Social Security umbrella was thrown out by a 386-38 vote Wednesday, partly because of civil service resistance and partly in fear that the plan was not sufficiently thought out.

No one has suggested simply substituting Social Security for civil service pensions. But the proposal did not say how the systems would be integrated, a fact that concerned many committee members.

The differences between the systems now can be illustrated by looking at two 65-year-old employees ready to retire at the end of this year: a civil servant and an employee of a private business.

Both make about $16,500 a year, the mean income of American families in 1976.

The civil servant leaving government service after 35 years will get about $748 a month in pension or $8,960 a year, at least part of which is taxable.

The retiring private employe will draw only $437 a month or $5,245 year in Social Security checks, which are not taxable.

If the Social Security recipient has a spouse, the check is increased by 50 per cent, $218.55 a month, making the total benefit $7,868 a year for the couple. A civil servant's pension does not increase solely because of the presence of a spouse.

Aid against imports pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is considering proposals to expand by 50 to 100 percent the government program to help companies, workers and communities hurt by foreign competition.

Administration officials said Sunday the proposals would help American firms compete with imports, but also would try to soften the impact when foreign competition costs workers their jobs.

The proposals would sharply increase the money available for communities hit by imports and shift the emphasis of the program away from simply making cash payments to laidoff workers.

The suggestions, given to the president last week, include low-interest loans to companies seeking to modernize their facilities, higher retraining allowances for displaced workers and aid to cities which have lost industry, administration aides said.

The proposals come as many workers face layoffs or shutdowns because of increasing foreign competition.

On Thursday, a group of congressmen from steel-producing states asked Carter to impose import quotas, saying steel from Japan and West Germany is undercutting domestic production.

Carter refused their request, but said laws against dumping products at below-cost prices would be enforced.

American firms are moving abroad also. Zenith Radio Corp. has announced plans to eliminate hundreds of jobs in its TV plants in Watsontown, Pa., and Chicago, and moving the jobs to Taiwan and Mexico, where labor costs are lower.

"Labor unions have called the current program 'burial assistance' — payments to help workers once they have been bounced out of work," one official said.

"The proposals continue to assist workers once they are out of work, but would also provide help to workers, companies and communities to adjust," he added.

Under the proposals, appropriations for the program would be increased by 50 to 100 percent from its current $230 million annual level, aides said.

The recommendations also would make it easier for cities hurt by foreign competition to obtain economic aid, they said. Funds would be provided primarily to help the communities attract new industry.

Workers still would be given extended unemployment compensation benefits, but also would receive more help in retraining for new jobs and relocating, the officials said.

And while low-interest loans would be available for companies trying to become more competitive, firms unable to compete might be advised instead to switch products.

Sedate St. Lawrence primed to whoop it up

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

ST. LAWRENCE — This community rarely makes the headlines.

There's not much going on around St. Lawrence, except folks making a living at the farm or ranch and "working" at living when the chores are all done.

And they'll be doing a bunch of the latter — living it up — next Sunday. The occasion will be the annual St. Lawrence Fall Festival.

The St. Lawrence live-ins will be serving up home-made German sausage, barbecued beef brisket and all the trimmings around noon and then again at supper time.

Booths will open at the same time — 11 a.m. — and the line to the kitchen will be forming. These stands will feature spin-a-wheel, grab bag, the country kitchen, hobby shop, bingo, cotton candy and the Coke ring.

Cool suds for the sipping and good food will be on tap.

The festival's really big show will be at 2 p.m., when the auction to benefit the St. Lawrence Catholic Church begins. To be auctioned will be bales of cotton and merchandise donated from businesses all around.

That night, folks will dance to the tunes of Bill Henderson.

The parishioners here are doing all of the preparations for the annual festival, which, by the way, ain't free.

So bring a few bills for food, drinks and fun-at-the-booths. Bring more if you care to do some bidding.

And with that sausage-to-go, you can take a bit of St. Lawrence back home with you.

Helping the festival take shape are these people:

The St. Lawrence men will start making the sausage early Saturday

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer

Wake up at 6 a.m. He does. And he makes his own bed.

Be prepared to hear a lot about Amy. Like any other father, the president of the United States dotes on his blonde, 10-year-old daughter. He'll tell you all about her tree house and her dog, Grits.

Don't panic. He'll only stay a night.

And afterward you'll be able to organize tours for the neighbors and point to the sheets on your bed and say, "The president slept here."

Jimmy Carter has a penchant for visiting.

On three trips so far, to New England, to the South and to the Midwest, he has scorned hotels and motels, where presidents usually stay. Instead, he bunked with people he considers plain folks.

If they were, they aren't now.

Here are other things that happen — courtesy of Ed and Kay Thompson of Clinton, Mass.; Owen and Elizabeth Cooper of Yazoo City, Miss., and Woody and Mary Diehl of Indianola, Iowa. They have given Jimmy Carter bed and board, and they know what it's like.

If you're picked, you'll get the word a few days ahead of time. But the White House staff will ask you to keep the visit secret until Press Secretary Jody Powell announces it.

Agents will put lights and detectors in your yard to stop intruders. They will put blackout blinds on your windows to eliminate silhouettes. If you've got a motor home, the agents will make it their headquarters.

If your laundry room is handy, like Woody Diehl's was, some of the White House staff will take it over. You can depend on the Secret Service to pick the least likely bedroom as the safest for the president.

"It was a room upstairs that hadn't had anything done with it for years," mutters Elizabeth Cooper. "The carpet was worn. It was where the girls had stayed when they were little."

At the Diehls, Carter got the master bedroom. Woody and Mary moved out "a few personal things." Woody took some clothes out of the closet to make room, Mary put new linen on the bed.

Aides put a special phone by the president's bed. It was connected to the White House. Two other such phones were installed for his staff. Expect about 400 calls, says Elizabeth Cooper.

You'll see the president arrive at the head of a motorcade. He's likely to carry his suitbag into the house over his shoulder.

"Once we got inside, he carried it down the hall by himself and put it away," says Woody Diehl.

Elizabeth Cooper forgot and called him Jimmy. She apologized.

"Oh, call me Jimmy," he said.

But she couldn't. The whole family called him Mr. President.

He sat at one end of Mary Diehl's sofa. She shuddered. It's the worst seat in her living room.

"He was a lot more at ease than I was," she says. "He has so many interests, he makes you feel at home. Our oldest granddaughter has a record collection. He liked that. Our youngest granddaughter is the same age as Amy. I'm interested in Indian artifacts. So's he."

Carter lifted one grandson. The 11-month-old boy looked at him sleepily. Then he perched a 4-year-old granddaughter in his lap and fed her some of his ice cream.

Mary Diehl learned he likes

Midland woman robbed

ODESSA — Police here continue their investigation today of the reported robbery Saturday night of a Midland woman.

Odessa Police Capt. Jack Fillyaw said that Mrs. Marie J. Turner of 2602 W. Kansas Ave. in Midland told officers she was putting two money bags in the night depository in the 700 block of North Texas when she was robbed shortly before 9:17 p.m. Saturday.

The money bags contained receipts from the 10th Street Liquor Store, 1101 West 10th, which is operated by the woman and her husband, Charles W. Turner, Fillyaw said.

Mrs. Turner told officers that after opening the night depository and slipping the two money bags inside, someone came up behind her and shoved her against the night depository, Fillyaw said.

After pulling a gun, the man took the money bags, Mrs. Turner's purse and her car keys. He then got into her car and drove off, Fillyaw said Mrs. Turner told officers.

Mrs. Turner was treated at Medical Center Hospital for a head injury and released, Fillyaw said. Police said the gunman made off with an "undetermined" amount of money.

CONTINENTAL AIRLINES started a new flight to Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla., today. A ceremony was held prior to the first departure at 7:30 a.m. The new flight will have only one stop in Lubbock, compared to previous flights which stopped in Lubbock, Wichita Falls and Lawton, Okla. Helping passengers with their tickets for the new flight this morning is David Boxley.

ODESSA — Police detectives are seeking clues today in Sunday's shooting death of an oilfield worker whose body was found in the parking lot of a restaurant here.

Kenton Lee Hart, 25, of Odessa was found on the ground between two cars in the parking lot of the Bo-Weevil Restaurant, Police Capt. Jack Fillyaw said.

Hart was shot one time in the chest with what appeared to be a small caliber weapon, Fillyaw said.

Police say so far they have determined no possible motive for the shooting. After interviewing several persons at the restaurant, police determined Hart had been a customer there prior to the shooting, Fillyaw said.

Hart had moved to Odessa from Wichita, Kan., several months ago, Fillyaw said.

Singapore reportedly promises to surender hijackers to Hanoi

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Singapore government will hand over to Vietnam the four men who hijacked a Vietnamese airliner last week, Radio Hanoi reported today.

There was no immediate confirmation of the report from the Singapore government.

The broadcast was the first public comment on the hijacking by the Vietnamese government. It said the hijackers had "committed crimes in Vietnamese air space."

One of the hijackers shot and killed the plane's flight engineer and radio operator and another one stabbed and badly wounded a steward.

The Singapore government said earlier that it would hold an inquiry to determine the facts of the incident "which will then be processed in accordance with international laws and conventions governing such matters."

The newspaper New Nation reported the four men were seeking political asylum in the United States or France after first asking to stay in Singapore. A government spokesman refused to confirm or deny the report.

Singapore does not have diplomatic relations with Vietnam, and the Hanoi broadcast did not say when or how the hijackers would be returned.

The aged DC3 returned to Saigon Sunday with 31 passengers, three crew members and the bodies of the two dead crewmen. The steward was in serious condition in a local hospital, and one passenger, a 26-year-old man, refused to go back and was allowed to stay, the government said.

The government did not identify the hijackers but said one was armed with a .38-caliber pistol and the others had knives.

The plane was hijacked Saturday during a flight from Saigon to Phu Quoc, an island off the west coast of Vietnam. There were 36 Vietnamese passengers, including the hijackers, and six crew members aboard.

mixed nuts. So she had some for him. But he's easy to please. Kay Thompson put out cheese dip and crackers.

"I feel at home," Carter said.

Elizabeth Cooper promised White House aides "we would make it easy for him to be in his room by 11 p.m. At five minutes after 11 p.m., we went to bed."

But the Thompsons couldn't resist staying up without him to watch his arrival on television.

"Before we went to bed," says Woody Diehl, "Mary asked him if he'd like some milk, buttermilk or fruit.

"He said, 'I'd just like a glass of buttermilk.'

"Well, Mary likes buttermilk, too, so she poured them each a glass. I got a little fruit yogurt out of the refrigerator. We leaned there against the kitchen counter and visited for another 10 or 20 minutes just like he was your neighbor down the road.

"I said, 'I'm usually up by 6.' He said, 'Six will be fine. You call me at 6, and I won't bother to set my alarm.'

"At 6 in the morning, I went down the hall and knocked on the door. I said, 'Mr. President, it's 6 o'clock' — just like I used to call my hired men."

But a thought stopped Woody Diehl in his tracks.

He added through the bedroom door: "The cold is where the hot should be and the hot is where the cold should be."

To a family, Carter's hosts say he comes to breakfast bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. There are no reports of presidential snoring.

He told Elizabeth Cooper he didn't want breakfast. But when he got to the table he couldn't turn down fresh peaches and cream and homemade tomato juice brought by a neighbor.

At the Diehls, he asked for just coffee.

Before he left the Diehls, Woody asked him if he could take 30 seconds and meet the hired hands. "Why, sure," the president said.

"Please excuse Jane for being late," he wrote for Kay Thompson's 14-year-old daughter, tardy at school. "She had a guest in her house."

He won't leave a thank-you note on your pillow, but you'll get one almost immediately in the mail — handwritten by the president.

City rainfall total still under normal

With only .1 inch of rainfall in the last 24 hours, Midland fell behind the average rainfall of 1.38 inches for October, the weatherman said.

The city has had 1.27 inches of precipitation this month, and this year to date, the city has had 6.55 inches of rainfall, running well behind the average annual rainfall of 12.5 inches.

The weatherman predicted skies should be generally fair with temperatures a little cooler tonight and Tuesday. The low temperature tonight should fall to the lower 50s. The high temperature Tuesday is expected to be in the middle 70s. Winds should be light and northerly tonight.

Sunday's high temperature was 84 degrees. The overnight low temperature was 54 degrees, the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

All area towns reported clear weather this morning with some fog reported in Rankin and Big Lake.

Early today, the front was moving eastward along a line from Vernon to west of Abilene to near Sanderson. Behind the front, skies were clear and temperatures were slightly cooler.

Ahead of the front, there was considerable low cloudiness in eastern and central portions of the state and some shower activity was reported during the night over portions of South Central Texas.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s with extremes ranging from 43 at Dalhart in the Panhandle to 76 at Brownsville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, The Associated Press reported.

Young pair still critical

David Printz, 15, of 53 Perry Lane and Stacy Stover, 14, of 4506 Andrews Highway remained in critical condition early today in the intensive care unit of Midland Memorial Hospital from injuries they received in a one-vehicle accident Friday morning.

Joe McEwen, 14, of 4411 Princeton Ave., who was released from the hospital Friday, was readmitted Sunday for observation, according to a hospital spokesman. He was listed in satisfactory condition early today.

The three youths were injured when the pickup in which they were riding overturned about 8:30 a.m. Friday on Fairgrounds Road north of Midland.

According to the Department of Public Safety, the vehicle was traveling south when it left the road, returned to the other side and then overturned.

Police plan extra watch for spooks

Midland police will he out in fuller force than usual tonight as "spooks and goblins" search for treats, according to police Chief Wayne Gideon.

Gideon said additional police officers will patrol streets, while others will be at school carnivals.

"We want everyone to have a safe and happy Halloween," Gideon said.

"We want motorists to drive safely and watch the children by the street, while the same token we urge parents to accompany their children," Gideon said.

Gideon urged trick-or-treaters to confine their activities to a reasonable hour, and to confine their activities to within their neighborhoods.

He also urged parents to check all treats for harmful substances before the children have a chance to eat anything they are given.

Gideon said Halloween has been "reasonably quiet," for Midland in the past. However, he addied the department "will pursue any malicious destruction or vandalism of property."

"In the past, young people have been very conscious of other people's property," Gideon said.

Midland has been fortunate, he noted, in that there have been no reported cases of poisoned treats thus far.

Munns win father-son cake contest at Midkiff

MIDKIFF — An experimental cake baked by 16-year-old Todd Munn and his dad, Wayne Munn, won first place Saturday night in the Midkiff Boy Scouts' father-son cake baking contest.

Winning second in the 21-cake competition was a Texas-shaped cake baked by Dwayne Braden, 16, and his father, Gene Braden.

Third place was taken by two bachelors, Slim Smith, 22, and Marvin Baker, 21. This duo of assistant Scoutmasters concocted a two-tier Texas-shaped cake.

The cake contest judges were N. M. "Pete" Anderson, Don Harkrider, Mart Cope, Tom Martin and Ed Todd, all of Midland; Reagan County Commissioner Wayne Dolan of Big Lake, and Big Lake Mayor Bill Scheemann.

Baptist school holding open house all week

Oaklawn Park Baptist School is holding open house this week, with visitors touring classes while school is in progress.

"We thought it was the only way we could explain to people the accelerated method we use," Principal David Piearcy said. "Our system of motivation and control, our curriculum and overall structure is so totally different that you just have to see to believe," he said.

Special personel will be at the school from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. each school day to answer questions and serve refreshments.

Oaklawn Park School, 3001 N. A St., began operation in August.

High court rejects Odessa death appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Condemned Texas murderer James Paul Burns lost his bid today for Supreme Court review of his conviction and death sentence.

The court refused without comment to review Burns' 1973 murder conviction in the bizarre and brutal beating death of G.W. "Pete" McDonald in Odessa.

Only Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, both opposed to the death penalty under any circumstances, voted to strike down Burns' sentence.

Last June 14, Justice Lewis F. Powell had postponed Burns' scheduled execution in the electric chair pending review of his appeal by the full court. Now, Texas officials are free to reschedule it.

Burns had urged the high court to overturn his conviction, arguing that nine prospective jurors were excused illegally from serving at his trial for expressing objections to capital punishment.

Burns was convicted by an Ector County district court jury in early 1974 for McDonald's murder.

Prosecutors said Burns and three other men picked up McDonald as he was leaving an Odessa drive-in movie, took him to an isolated area and beat and kicked him to death.

Texas death penalty laws for murderers were upheld as constitutional by the Supreme Court on July 2, 1976.

Investigation of union confirmed

(Editor's Note: The following story is the result of a six-week effort by Brownsville Herald reporter James Pinkerton with assistance from AP Correspondent Miller Bonner.)

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The FBI and a local auditing firm have begun peering through the "smoke" looking for any illegal fires stoked by the Harlingen-based Plumbers and Pipefitters Local 823 and a spinoff corporation formed to handle more than $1 million in federal Manpower funds.

"When you blow smoke long enough, somebody is going to come around sooner or later and look for the fire," said an accountant who at one time was involved with the union's Manpower-funded training program for disadvantaged and unskilled laborers.

A FBI spokesman in San Antonio acknowledged the ongoing investigation into the union sparked by a disgruntled former employee armed with copies of checks, expense accounts and taped conversations that the employee claims prove local union officials were involved in illegal activity. The FBI declined further comment on the investigation.

The former employee claims Local 823's business manager, Don Gray, sold union memberships for $500 to increase the local's membership, that business associates and family members were allowed to use Gray's union-issued credit cards for gasoline purchases and that union funds failed to find their way into proper bank accounts.

"The union initiation fee is $500," said Gray from his paneled office adorned with pictures of Gray and his brother Clarence, posed with Gov. Dolph Briscoe and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. "No, I have never accepted $500 for a union book and our union books are always open to the members.

"I was involved with the national office in Washington a few years ago but that was a power-play deal. . .It had nothing to do with that," continued Gray.

Taped phone conversations between a lawyer representing Gray's interests and a lawyer representing the national union alluded to Gray "operating a book mill down there."

"But he never received a dime for it," responded Gray's attorney.

"I'm not sure of that," countered the other lawyer.

The audit of the spinoff corporation—South Texas Building Trades Educational Services Inc.—by a local auditing firm was reportedly initiatied by the Cameron County Manpower agency.

"What they are doing isn't really wrong, it's the way they're going about it," offered the former accountant. "If they'd come right out and said, 'Hey, this is what we're doing,' then all the conduit corporations wouldn't be causing any problems.

"The union's (Manpower funded) training program has done a lot of good," he continued. "They have done work on the Boys Clubs, schools and parks in the area and they've trained a lot of people that would still be unemployed right now if they hadn't gotten the training."

The union's training program is one of the top recipients of the federal funds handled by Cameron County Manpower, an organization with a penchant for controversy.

"I think it's not news to anyone that I have been extremely vocal and critical concerning the way the (local Manpower) program has been controlling its funds," said Cameron County Judge Ray Ramon, who along with the four county commissioners has control over the local manpower operation. "Unfortunately, on this one issue the majority of the court has disagreed with me. But I think now we will come to an understanding on exactly how we will act."

Last week, the Commissioners' Court asked for and received the resignation of Manpower Executive Director E. A. Gonzalez.

Andy Muniz was elevated from deputy director to acting executive director but placed on a 90-day employee probation.

"Manpower funds have been mishandled in a flagrant way, in my opinion," continued Ramon. "But I feel that we can correct that situation.

"I feel we are not blameless in this matter but in my opinion, DOL (Department of Labor) must share some of the responsibility."

The DOL is the federal agency charged with monitoring the $11 million in federal funds made available to the local Manpower agency for this fiscal year.

In 1975, the union began contracting with the Cameron County Manpower program to provide training for disadvantaged, unskilled laborers. The initial grant was for $36,745,01 and was followed with grants totalling more than $1.6 million over the next two years from Cameron and adjoining Hidalgo County Manpower agencies.

The Cameron County Manpower Planning Committee — whose recommendatons for funding has in the past received an automatic stamp of approval from the commissioners court — is chaired by Clarence Gray, Don's brother.

"That may appear to be a conflict of interest," noted Don Gray, "but somebody has to fill that position. Somebody has to spend time in the barrel."

The union's Manpower-related operations came under the scrutiny of Manpower Comptroller Peter Sturdivant in July 1977 who presented a preliminary audit report to then Manpower director Gonzalez with the following recommendations: "That independent auditors be assigned to investigate and substantiate or refute the findings due to the limited audit capabilities of our organization," and "that any proposed changes or modifications to contracts in effect with the above Agency (Plumbers and Pipefitters Local 823) be subjected to opinion of competent legal counsel and appropriate management review prior to submission of such proposals to the Commissioners Court for approval."

Brownsville, Texas: for approval.

John Gonzalez, the DOL representative from Dallas who monitors this area, said Friday he had sent a copy of Sturdivant's report as had the Dallas DOL chief auditor but that DOL "policy is to let the local agency take care of it."

Four days after Sturdivant's interoffice memo, the commissioners court quietly approved the modification of Manpower contracts with the union on the recommendatoin of then deputy director Muniz, in spite of the chief financial officer's warning.

The modification removed the union's name from the contracts and substituted South Texas Building Trades Educational Services Inc., a non-profit corporation with Clarence Gray as the executive director at an annual salary of $33,000.

Sturdivant's preliminary audit report called attention to the following irregularities:

— No procedures for consolidatng the various balance sheets and expense statements existed so that a picture of the entire financial structure could be drawn. "This is very critical since there is mo mechanism at this time (except an extensive audit) to prevent charging the various contracts for the same costs," read the report.

—The "General Ledger and Subsidiary Books of Account" for the union were not available for inspection and "since there are numerous inter-department transactions, a complete review of the program administration is impossible without these records."

—And the union had no set procurement policies for equipment and materials used in the Manpower programs, which "appears to be in violation" of federal regulations.

Don Gray said federal regulations do not allow the purchase of equipment used in the building trades training programs thus the union rented trucks, welding machines, table saws, concrete mixers, and other equipment to the Manpower training program.

One typical rental contract, dated Oct. 1, 1976, notes that "Plumbers and Pipefitters" could rent the "Building Trades Special Program's" 65 pieces of equipment for $26,600 annually.

When asked recently who owned the rented equipment, Don Gray said that a leasing operation, South Texas Ram Corporation, had rented the equipment to the union.

When asked what association he had with South Texas Ram Corp., Gray said, "I'm not involved in it."

He admitted, however, after further questioning that he had once been an officer but left the corporation because it appeared "there was a conflict of interest."

According to franchise tax records from the State Comptroller's office in Austin, the officers of the South Texas Ram Corp., are Don Gray, president; Clarence Gray, secretary-treasurer; and Jack Wheatley, unspecified. Don Gray said that Whatley is the Plumbers and Pipefitters union international representative for Texas and Oklahoma.

A former accountant who worked for Clarence Gray said that no bids were advertised for equipment rental for the Manpower training programs as required by federal guidelines.

Amnesty asked for illegal aliens

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Ethnicity and immigration commanded attention on several fronts over the weekend in San Antonio. Focal point was a call from a Mexican-American convention for unconditional amnesty for all illegal aliens, an open U.S.-Mexico border and demonstrations of support the week of Nov. 18-20.

Some 2,600 delegates to the national Chicano-Latino Conference also went on record as opposing President Carter's proposed immigration policies.

Conferees called for full civil and human rights for what they called "undocumented workers." They defined human rights as rights to social services, welfare, jobs and retirement and said the Carter plan would not allow aliens to receive social services or welfare.

Joe Calderon of Denver, Colo., said an argument over inclusion of the Socialist Workers Party in the movement resembled a "cat fight." He said the conference should not support the Socialist Workers party "because their foundations are falling apart."

Mario Compean of San Antonio, a founder of La Raza Unida, said the movement needed support of all civil rights groups. Compean called the documented worker issue "the civil rights movement of the future."

Black activist Dick Gregory spoke to the conference Saturday and said, "I look at the whole immigration issue as another form of genocide.

"Immigrants are like the Indians — fighting the problems of survival," Gregory said. "The Indians are telling the Rockefellers and the DuPonts 'I want the land that your castle is built on.'"

Gregory said the proposed immigration policy "is just another extension of all the filth going on in this country."

The KKK began patrolling the Mexico border looking for illegal aliens last week, and Mexican-American groups patrolled to keep an eye on the KKK.

Gonzalez said reports of those patrols "have been exaggerated to the point of absurdity.

He said he had complete confidence in Texas law enforcement agencies to cope with any border unrest.

A group of some 30 Anglos, meanwhile, announced formation of the American Caucasian Committee Opposed to Reverse Discrimination (ACCORD).

Albert Withey told that group "There are 43 Mexican-American and black groups in this town that are funded by the city, county, state and federal governments for millions of dollars. It's time we got our share."

Withey said ACCORD is not opposed to anything. "We're not racist," he said. "We're for something — and that's equal rights under the law."

Later, Withey said "In our hearts, all of us tend to look upon the others in a racist way."

Referring to the MexicanAmerican conference, Withey said Texans are in danger of losing control of their state to illegal aliens.

The Chicano-Latino conference ended Sunday with adoption of several resolutions, including:

—That the government should recognize the presence of the aliens as legal and legitimate.

—That a "uniform and just" minimum wage, adjusted for inflation, be made available to all, including the aliens.

—That the conference oppose Carter's plan to add 3,000 border patrolmen.

—That full constitutional rights be provided aliens in all judicial and administrative proceedings.

Citizens' swap among suggestions as way to stop nuclear arms race

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Should the United States swap about a million Americans for an equal number of Russians, with each group serving as hostages in the other's cities?

How about exchanging U.S. and Soviet leaders and using them as hostages so that "neither side would attack the other for fear of killing its own leading citizens?"

These suggestions were among those offered by people responding to an unusual advertisement for ideas on stopping the nuclear weapons race. The ad was placed by a Pennsylvania political science professor working temporarily at the Pentagon.

Dr. Martin E. Goldstein, who holds the temporary title of assistant to the deputy director for negotiations and arms control, said he drafted the appeal in an effort to generate "a fresh source of ideas" on ways to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

"I asked myself how it would be possible to reach people who have been thinking of this problem but who don't know how to make their views known," said Goldstein, a 37-year-old associate professor at Widner College in Chester, Pa., now at the Pentagon on a fellowship.

"I decided that one way was to put notices in a couple of professional journals. It wouldn't cost the government anything. So last February and March, I put notices in the Bulletin of Atomic Scientists and in PS, journal of the political science community.

A career bureaucrat would be unlikely to do anything like that. But Goldstein said he regards himself as a kind of free soul — "I'm outside the government system, so I could do something like this."

As a result, Goldstein said, he received about 25 written replies ranging from the bizarre to the practical, a number of them accompanied by extensive discussions.

"Some came from fantastic crackpots," Goldstein said. "But there are some from very knowledgeable people."

He has digested and summarized some of the ideas he received and plans to forward them to David McGifford, assistant defense secretary for international security affairs.

Some of the other suggestions offered:

—"Arouse public awareness of the dangers of nuclear weapons proliferation...by taking rash actions that will re-awaken the public's horror of nuclear war. Such actions might include renewal of atmospheric (test) shots, so scheduled as to be tourist attractions."

—"Press the World Bank and other such lending institutions to deny credit to those nations that acquire nuclear weapons."

—"Decrease the number of nuclear warheads in national arsenals by substituting a certain number of "dud" warheads on actual missiles. Since the enemy won't know which warheads are duds, a nation could have the same deterrent with a reduced number of live warheads."

Still others offered ideas on prohibiting production or shipment of nuclear weapons materials, shutting existing nuclear power plants and strengthening international inspection and enforcement powers.

Communities hit hard when industry moves out

CLEVELAND (AP) — After 43 years in tiny Garrettsville, Ohio, the Polson Rubber Co. announced it was stopping production, ripping out the equipment and shipping the guts of its operation to Tennessee.

"The effect was traumatic," says Polson vice president Paul Diehl, who stayed behind to run the sales operation. "It put a lot of people out of work and wreaked havoc on our tax base."

Garrettsville lost about 40 percent of its tax base when the 400 workers lost their jobs.

"I've got no idea of the destiny of our workforce," Diehl said. "I'm sure some of them found jobs, and some of them are still looking."

Faced with incidents such as Polson and the nearby closing of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. in Struthers, Ohio, there is a campaign in Congress and among some local officials to regulate plant relocation to cushion the impact on workers and the community.

Proponents of regulation hope to minimize the damage to a community and its workers when a company moves a production site.

In Ohio, the Conference of Alternative State and Local Public Policies, a group of public officials, is calling for state legislation that would require companies to pay severance benefits for workers idled by a plant movement.

A bill introduced in the Ohio General Assembly last summer would require benefits equal to one week's pay for every year an employee has worked for the company.

The bill also would require that 10 percent of the gross annual wages of affected employees be paid by the company into a state fund for re-development of the affected community.

Legislation introduced in Congress by Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., would require two years' notice before relocating a plant. In that time, company executives would work with government officials to determine if there is actually a need for the relocation and whether federal help to the company might make such a move unnecessary.

If a company refused to give notice, or refused to follow through on efforts to seek an alternative, the legislation would cut the firm off from a variety of federal assistance.

Attendance record set at prison rodeo

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A record-setting crowd watched convict cowboy James Warfield, serving 10 years from Crockett, earn enough points Sunday in saddle bronc and bull riding to hold onto his lead and win the championship trophy in the 46th annual Texas Prison Rodeo at Huntsville.

Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Ron Taylor said Sunday's crowd of 21,291 pushed attendance this year to a record 90,373, eclipsing the 1965 mark of 84,964. Taylor said the rodeo grossed around $500,000 this year, up some $80,000 over 1976.

All profits from the rodeo go to treatment services for TDC inmates.

Warfield moved into the lead last week and earned a total of $206 for the five weekends of the rodeo competition.

In Sunday's hard money event, Robert Nicholson, serving 15 years from San Antonio, plucked tobacco sacks from between the horns of two bulls to earn a total of $75. A bonus of $25 was awarded to bring Nicholson's purse to an even $100.

Other first place winners Sunday were Fred Burke, serving 99 years from Henrietta, mad scramble; James Kaiser, serving 10 years from Athens, bareback bronc riding; David Binyon, serving 35 years from San Angelo, saddle bronc riding; and Lloyd Lizakowski, serving 15 years from Breckenridge, bull riding.

Winners of the women convict competitions Sunday were the teams of Lucille Thomas-Betty Hood, calf tussle; and Barbara Shaw-Sandra Bergens, greased pig sacking.

Madalyn's new target

Madalyn Murray O'Hair is capable of causing a disturbance most anywhere and at any time, and she really made her presence felt last week in her home city of Austin.

The atheist leader's new target is church bingo, and an Associated Press news release out of Austin said "she has taken after it the way Carry Nation did saloons in the early years of this century."

Mrs. O'Hair reportedly broke up a church bingo game last Wednesday night and later accused police of not doing their duty by following up with arrests.

One of the men in the church's bingo quarters said, "She came charging in like a Brahma bull." It really must have been quite a fracas.

Mrs. O'Hair said she was trying to make citizen arrests, because she had complained earlier to police about the illegal bingo games and they had done nothing.

Can't you just see the atheist leader rushing in and taking charge of the situation? Who else but Madalyn Murray O'Hair would attempt such a thing — taking over a church bingo game.

She said that officials had responded to her calls for action against the fund-raising bingo games by saying no one would sign a complaint against the bingo players.

That apparently was all that the atheist crusader needed. She said she decided then and there to be the complainant.

The bingo players, according to the news release, thought the entire incident was a "publicity stunt." And it very well might have been. Mrs. O'Hair is a past master at breaking into the news at most any time she chooses.

One of the bingo players said, "She doesn't have the right to scare people." But Mrs. O'Hair doesn't know that, and it perhaps wouldn't make much difference if she did.

It was reported by one of the men in the hall that a man accompanying Mrs. O'Hair threw the first punch in the fracas after he was pushed in return for shoving a player's wife.

A security guard at the church said "five or six" people escorted Mrs. O'Hair from the hall. She reportedly said "20 people jumped me."

A day or so later, Austin police had made no announcement about what action they would take, if any. It is doubtful if any further action is necessary. Mrs. O'Hair has gained her point.

The news release went on to report that the incident followed a week of hectic activity for Mrs. O'Hair: "She filed theft charges against one of her employes and assault charges against two persons, including the president of a local parent-teacher association. In a Wednesday morning news conference, she broke relations with her son, William Murray, who condemned her controversial flurry of legal activity."

A 'Spartan event'

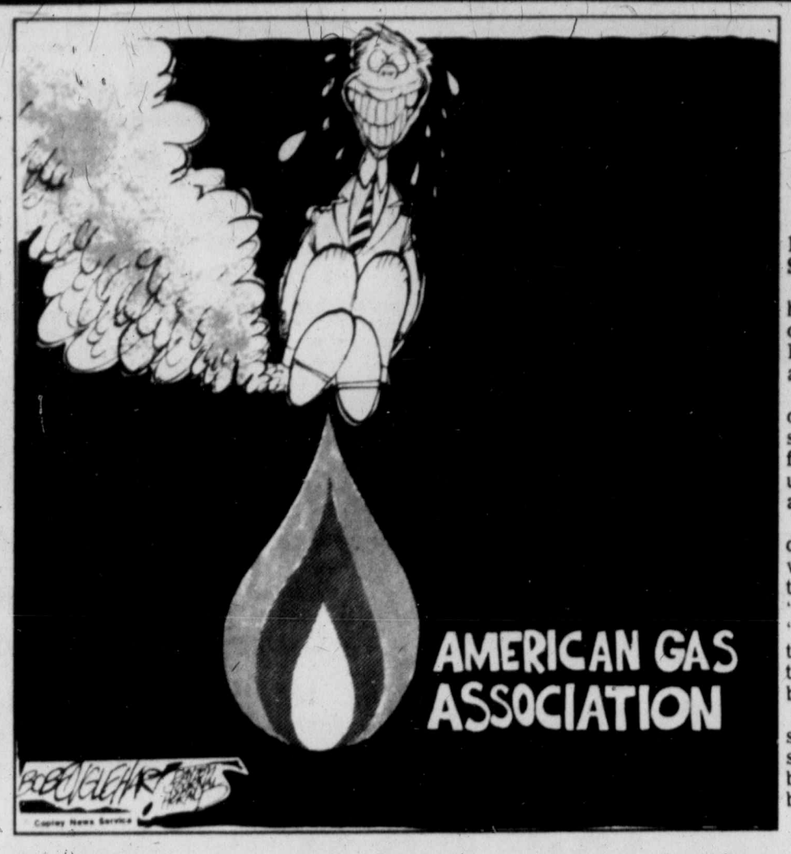

The pledge by Los Angeles to make the 1984 Olympics a "Spartan event" may have been persuasive in winning support from the U.S. Olympic Committee for its bid to host the competition as it did in 1932.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley told the committee that the goal of the committee and host alike should be "halting and reversing the trend of ever-increasing deficits." The low-spending budget envisioned by the California city, made possible by existing facilities which include a 100,000-seat coliseum, was in contrast to proposals of New York City, which made a determined effort to capture the committee's nod.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey promised the state's financial backing to erase any deficits.

Gov. Brown, however, flew over to Colorado Springs to reaffirm the insistence of Los Angeles officials that there would be no cost to the taxpayers. The state, he said, would not contribute to the spectacular.

The final decision will be made by the International Olympic Committee in Athens next spring. In the meantime, Californians might consider methods of holding Gov. Brown's successors to his "nonpledge."

CHARLEY REESE:

Rescue at Somalia was thrilling event

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

The rescue of the Lufthansa hostages in Somalia by a German commando unit was, like the raid at Entebbe, a thrilling event. But why are we thrilled by it?

If you think about the answer to that question you can gain an insight into a subject which on the surface seems far from terrorism and commando units. The subject is criticism of the arts.

Certain critics invariably dismiss dramas, motion pictures or books which treat man as heroic. Usually they refer to them as "escapism" or "commercial entertainment" or "simplistic." Such criticism implies that in real life which true art conveys there are no heroes, no good guys and bad guys.

As the rescue at Somalia demonstrates, however, life as often as not is simplistic and does boil down, in a bottom line analysis, to good guys and bad guys.

People willing to slaughter innocent human beings to extort money or to gain political power are bad. There are no shades of gray, no justifications, no rationalizations — they are just bad.

People who have the courage, the skills, the ingenuity, and the will to rescue innocent people from these bad guys are good. It is irrevlevant if as individuals they use foul language, have marital or financial problems, are not well read in the classics, or put their elbows on the table when they eat.

What counts is that when the crisis came, they were able to muster those virtues that were necessary to solve a human problem. An event like the rescue thrills us because it says to us that human beings can solve problems and can control their own destiny. It is a demonstration in the belief of the efficacy of man.

That is precisely why some critics hate such events when they confront them as fiction, for these critics hold the belief that mankind is a corrupt, weak, helpless mass tossed about and ever at the mercy of forees and fates beyond its control.

Dramatic works which confirm their views of man are treated as important works of art while those which contradict it are dismissed as escapism or commercialism.

Every work of art, whether it's a painting, a composition, a novel, a poem, a motion picture, or a television show inescapably reflects the creator's view of life. Ihe critic's response reflects his view of life.

Credit for this insight belongs to Ayn Rand, author of "Atlas Shrugged," but I am passing it along because many of you must have had the experience of reading a review which raves about a book or a movie only to discover the work is a depressing, often inane saga of perverts and bums, floundering in their self-created misery.

It's not a question of the critic being an intellect and you being a boob; rather it's a question of you having a healthy view of life and the critic seeing life as an open sewer.

These gloomy critics really have problems when great masses of people discover and respond to films like "Rocky" and "Star Wars." Confronted with an overwhelming success they can't deny, most of them fall back to a smirky attitude that, well, this is obviously just a childish fairy tale that has no relationship to real life but it's, after all, fun to indulge ourselves in fantasy.

Yet the truth is the films appeal to people for the same reason certain events, like the rescue in Somalia, appeal to people — they are reaffirmimg the belief that the good guys — those who respect human life, who love liberty, and who are decent and courageous — can overcome the bad guys who spread death and slavery.

The fictional "Rocky" is no more unrealistic than the real life of Joe Louis, Joe Frazier or Muhammad Ali The exploits of the "Star Wars" heroes are not unlike, in terms of human capacity, those of thousands of American GI's.

Don't let these gloomy critics trick you. They are preaching the sermon of slaves: give up, accept, submit. They are softening you up for the tyrant, but they are lying. Life is not misery, defeat, corruption and perversion.

History tells an opposite story — a heroic, escapist, romantic story of real people who dared to do the impossible, who endured great hardships, who overcame tremendous odds, who refused to submit, who refused to give up, who did not accept life on someone else's terms.

We stand today on their accomplishments and the responsibility is ours to carry on their tradition. Our times and our tasks and our foes are different but what is required of us is what was required of them: respect for life, courage, honesty, honor and strength.

Those qualities separate the good guys from the bad guys whether they are in Somalia in 1977 or in another galaxy "once upon a time."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Consumer Protection Agency (?)

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Several of the nation's most high-powered corporations have joined in a conspiracy to kill the unborn Consuner Protection Agency. An awesome array of corporate powers has succeeded in blocking the proposed agency for more than eight years.

The opposition formed a pressure block which it calls the Ad Hoc Consumer Issues Working Group. This lobbying force has pulled wires, scratched backs and twisted arms on Capitol Hill. It has also provided blistering, anti-consumer speeches for willing congressmen. Despite these efforts, the consumer legislation squeaked through the House Government Operations Committee last May by a 22 to 21 vote. It would create a small independent, nonregulatory agency to represent the consumers in the policy councils.

But the horrified business nabobs saw it as an institutionalized Ralph Nader, with all the harassment powers of the federal government. They got busy behind the scenes, therefore, lining up votes to strangle the agency in its crib.

But the pro-consumer congressmen engaged in some backroom strategy of their own. They worked out an agreement to modify the legislation to satisfy some of its critics. This might get the bill past the formidable opposition that the Big Business lobby has organized in the House.

Word of the conpromise leaked out and the alarmed corporate powers called an emergency meeting the other day at the Washington Hilton. There was much bellyaching and backbitinq. Some businessmen complained that no one let them know what wes going on. Others cursed the Carter administration for trying to sneak the hated legislation past them.

Armstrong Cork's blunt spoken Emmett Hines, who presided over the secret session, was not interested in a compromise that would satisfy both sides. He just wanted to bury the Consumer Protection Agency. "The better the bill, "he snorted," the worse it is for us."

Another participant also rejected any concessions, warning the assembled busIness tycoons to remember the "Trojan Horse" story. The moral of the story was to beware of strangers bearing gifts.

Still another warned that the White House would throw its full weight behind the bill because there is a big need for a White House victory, and this could well be it.,"

The assembled tycoons agreed to make a last-ditch effort to defeat the consumer bill. Already, congressmen are being bombarded with calls and letters from their friends with corporate connections.

THE WRIGHT MAN: Hardworking Joe Shosid is a one-man band who beats the drums for House Democratic leader Jim Wright in Fort Worth, Texas.

During the past two campaigns, Shosid ran Wright's congresslonal office in Texas, served simultaneously as Wrlght's campaign treasurer, disbursed campaign funds to his own advertising agency and purchased campaign ads through himself. Here are the fascinating details:

Shoside drew a $27,000 annual salary from the taxpayers until the end of last year. He also owned a firm called Advertising Unlimited, which handled Wright's political advertising during the two campaigns. He funneled $42,855 in campaign business through his own agency.

Last December, Shosid sold his advertising agency and gave up the campaign treasurer's post to avoid even the appearance, he said, of a conflict of interest. To ease the sacrifice, Wright quietly increased his congressional salary to $38,000.

As campaign treasurer, Shosid previously helped raise $132,435 for the congressman's 1976 campaign, although Wright had an easy campaign and didn't need the money. Many of the contributions came from the aerospace, construction and highway lobbies that need a friend like Wright on Capitol Hill.

Both Wright and Shosid talked to us at length. The congressman admitted Shosid's juggling act was "unusual" but insisted it was "not unethical." Wright added that he was unaware any income at all had gone into Shosid's firm.

Shosid claimed that most of the money went to pay for ads and commercials, with only about $5,000 going to the firm in commissions. His total profit on the campaign. Shosid told us, was no more than $1,000.

Footnote: Wright himself is a skilled advertising man and collected $6,000 in fees from the Shosid firm several years ego.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Rep. Bob Leggett, D-Calif., is fuming over an incident at the White House, friends confide. He stopped by to present his constituents' views on California water problems. When he came out, part of a White House tree had fallen on his car, causing some $250 in damage.

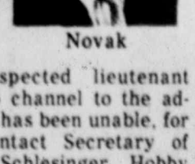

— Last July, we revealed that a House communications subcommittee staff had written a scathing report, blaming the networks for the daily diet of murders, rapes and muggings on television. There ia a sequel to the story. The report was quietly watered down by the Republicans. One Democrat complained that they "totally whitewashed the networks." In the showdown, Chairman Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., voted with the Republicans for the sweetness-and-light report. He happens to be e former broadcaster. His broadcast background, countered a congressional spokesman, gave him the expertise to decide the issue.

Carter's Southwestern slump noted by columnists

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

AUSTIN, Tex. — When President Carter sent shockwaves through the Southwest's political establishment Oct. 13 by warning of an infamous oil industry "ripoff," it climaxed the disillusionment of one influential Texas Tory Democrat who last year greeted Jimmy Carter's candidacy with enthusiasm.

"I give up on him," this important figure told us. Prepared to sell his fellow Tories on the virtues of the Panama Canal treaty, he now opposes it himself. To this Texas politician, Mr. Carter has branded himself "just another ultra-liberal even if he is from the South."

We found that attitude prevalent among Democratic politicians we questioned in the oil-producing etates of Texas and Oklahoma the week after the President's "ripoff" charge. Those presidential advisers who see anti-Carter resentment here limited to big oil do not appreciate the hostility among moderate-to-conservative Democrats who last year embraced the peanut farmer from Georgia as one of their own.

That the President's difficulties in this region stem from more than oil policies can be seen in the disaffection of three early Carter backers: Oklahoma Gov. David Boren and Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Lt. Gov. William Hobby of Texas. Their stories possibly point to reasons for the President's national decline.

Hobby: An admirer of Mr. Carter since visiting him in 1971 to observe his reforms as governor of Georgia, the widely respected lieutenant governor has no channel to the administration. He has been unable, for example, to contact Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger. Hobby says he reacted with "sorrow" to Mr. Carter's blast at oil, but his private reactions are markedly stronger.

Briscoe: He was friendly from the start toward the Carter candidacy and risked his own prestige to carry the state for Mr. Carter last November. The phlegmatic governor is genuinely outraged by the President denouncing Texas politicians for supporting natural gas deregulation which had been promised by candidate Carter.

Boren: The aggressive 36-year-old governor of Oklahoma represents a highly dramatic change of relationships with the President. The first governor west of the Mississippi to back Mr. Carter for President, Boren elicited the now repudiated pledge for gas deregulation.

Boren was completely cut off from the White House before the energy program was unveiled last April, his telephone calls unanswered. Since then, he has had only one personal contact with the President: an astonishing — and fruitless — appeal from Mr. Carter for Panama Canal treaty support. At no time has the President explained to the governor, much less apologized for, breaking his word on deregulation.

Thus, the President's Southwestern slump is caused not only by his stand on oil but how he has taken that stand. While not trying to soften the blow among his supporters, the President implied that anybody opposed to him is more interested in appeasing the greedy oil companies than in furthering the national interest.

Nor is resentment limited to politicians allied with the giant oil corporations, as the White House supposes Govs. Briscoe and Boren to be. Texas state land commissioner Bob Landis Armstrong, a liberal and Mr. Carter's Texas campaign chairman, opposes both the substance and the rhetoric of the Carter energy program. Needless to say, his advice has not been asked.

Even more striking is Robert A. Hefner III of Oklahoma City, an independent oil producer and political foe of both the big corporations and Gov. Boren. While attacking Boren as too closely allied with Phillips Petroleum, Hefner is no less outraged than the qovernor over Mr. Carter's position. The President's "ripoff" statement is "a theatrical attempt to gain emotional support," Hefner told us.

In fact, independent producers are perhaps more anti-Carter than the oil giants the President chastises. The independents believe that the Carter program, with its emphasis on government regulation, could eventually doom the independent and unwittingly limit oil production to a few big hands. That sentiment has poisoned the political well, far beyond just oil industry executive suites, for Mr. Carter in Texas and particularly in Oklahoma (where Boren privately tells friends the President could win no more than 25 per cent of the vote today.)

Even with this disagreement over oil and unhappiness with his position on farm questions and illegal aliens, the President could restore his position in the Southwest — if he began rebuilding burned bridges to the Borens, Briscoes and Hobbys. The alienation of the Southwest is no less a matter of decaying personal relationships than of unpopular policies, perhaps a hint of what has gone wrong with the Carter presidency.

THE BIBLE

CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER

1. One reason we are plagued by snipers and mass murderers today is because nothing is done to control them. How long would the ancients have stood for their daughters to be raped, their sons mugged and murdered, their cattle stolen? — Deut. 22:27, Jdgs. 19:22-30. Gen. 9:6 Ex. 22:4.

Love softened her feelings

By GEORGE RAMOS
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Christine is married to an illegal alien from Mexico.

Terms — illegal alien, wetback, bracero — do not mean much to this U.S. citizen. She and Juan, whom she met at work, are in love.

The fact that she is married to an illegal seems more surprising when she recounts being raped by a Mexican at the age of 14.

"From that point on (the rape), I was more than prejudiced," Christine recalls.

"I hated Mexican men. I never understood their culture, was insulted by catcalls and was irritated that the United States permitted such trash to enter our country."

But Juan, who comes from Santa Rita, Jalisco, made her think differently, she said. Perhaps it was his aloofness, his quiet manner or the inner strength he seemed to exude.

Whatever it was, Christine, now 38, says Juan made her curious about the illegals who come to the United States for work. And, she was curious about him personally.

She wanted to learn more. Enough so, she said, that she wanted to marry Juan, who is now 28.

Her parents were upset at the prospects of marriage. "You should have learned enough about Mexicans to know not to marry one," her parents lectured.

> "I hated Mexican men. I never understood their culture, was insulted by catcalls and was irritated that the United States permitted such trash to enter our country."
>
> Christine

Nevertheless, the couple married.

That was three years ago. But the problems still exist.

For example, they must remarry in September in order to process Juan's formal application to remain in this country legally. The previous application, the couple was told, was inadequate.

There also is the specter of Juan's being deported. They are less afraid of apprehension, than the violence he might encounter at the border. Juan has many stories of his border experiences. "I don't want to try that again," he admits.

The couple met at a Gardena, Calif., factory. Christine recalls trying her little knowledge of Spanish one day in order to communicate with Juan.

"I went to him and very bluntly said in Spanish, 'Are you married?' He said no, but he immediately turned around and began working again — always at his fast and furious pace. He then ignored me."

Later, it turned out that Christine had asked Juan if he was tired (cansado), not if he was married (casado).

The plant was raided several years before the couple was married. Juan was among those who were deported back to Mexico.

The situation in Mexico, he says, is a hard one for Americans to understand.

"The men come here to work and we don't take away any jobs from the Americans," Juan said. "Rights? We have no rights here. The Border Patrol just catches you and sends you back."

The couple's life at home is relatively simple. She does all the driving. They tend to stay at home, spending much of their leisure time in the backyard with an assortment of animals.

Juan does all of the cooking ("He's a great cook," Christine says) and much of the other domestic work.

The only language spoken in the house is Spanish, although Juan knows a few words in English. Asked if he has problems with the neighbors, he quipped:

"I don't have problems with the neighbors. I don't speak English."

Christine fervently defends the presence of the Mexican illegal in the United States, saying they are here for honest work. Others, however, think love has made her understand the plight of illegals here.

Perhaps her own words say it best:

"How do I feel about Juan? It isn't important that he's a wetback and a Mexican. Years ago, I was told to stop looking for a Prince Charming because he didn't exist. How very glad I am that I didn't take that advice. My Prince Charming not only exists, he is my husband. And he has made me his princess."

Women wear pants

According to a recent survey, the average American woman owns seven pairs of slacks with two-thirds of the women planning to buy more slacks during 1977, reports Mrs. Becky Culp, area clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M Univeristy System.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the unhappy wife whose husband always gives her unsigned greeting cards on special occasions.

He sounds like my husband. One year he gave me a birthday card with a $10 check in it. On the card he wrote, "Put this away for us to use on our vacation."

Can anybody top this for cheapness?—WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Yes. Read on for three toppers:

DEAR ABBY: For Mother's Day my big-hearted husband gave me a check for $50 and asked me not to cash it until after June 1. Well, I waited until June 5 to cash it, but it bounced anyway!—PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine told me that on her birthday her mother instructed her to go to the desk, get out the box of handy "all-occasion greeting cards," pick out the one she liked best for "birthdays," read it, and then put it back in the box!—HYSTERICAL something really special. I gave it to him, but I never saw that "something special"—and I never saw my $100 again, either.

DEAR ABBY: What is my obligation to a woman, 30 years my senior, who is ignorant, petty, vicious, demanding, selfish and obnoxious? She lives nearby and does not leave me alone for one day. Everyone in the family visits her for five minutes and runs. She is my mother-in-law, and I cannot stand her!—STUCK

DEAR STUCK: Get help, dear. All that hostility, bitterness and resentment is doing YOU more harm than the object of your hatred.

DEAR READERS: To illustrate how much times have changed in the last 50 years, this item appeared in the Milwaukee Sentinel in 1927:

"MILWAUKEE—The Marquette University dean of men has announced a ban on private apartments for men. 'First thing we know,' he said, 'these apartment dwellers invite in some girls for a party, and trouble follows.' Girls must present excuses if out after 11 p.m., the dean of women announced, but otherwise will have plenty of freedom. They may wear short skirts and apply rouge as their consciences dictate."

Men get breast cancer, too

By LEW SCARR
Copley News Service

Breast cancer in men? Yes. It is rare but even more deadly than breast cancer in women.

Breast cancer in men accounts for only about 1 per cent of all cancers in men, a distinguished clinician and researcher reports.

"But the 5- and 10-year survival rates in men are considerably lower as compared with that in women," Dr. Thomas L. Dao said.

Dao said that from 600 to 700 American men every year get breast cancer compared with approximately 90,000 women. Still, he recommends that men practice regular self-examination of their breasts just as women do.

In fact, he believes that failure to do this accounts in part for the poor prognosis of the disease in men.

"Sixty to 65 percent of male patients, we have found, have axillary lymph node metastasis (spread of the disease to nodes in the armpits), compared with only 45 per cent in women," Dao said.

He said this indicates that men do not think about examining their breasts as women do, and when they do find something suspicious, tend to put off seeking medical advice longer than women do.

His clinic sees about 100 cases of breast cancer a year in men. He said that research he has conducted convinces him that the origins of the disease, as in women, is related to production of the hormone estrogen.

"In the last few years in our laboratory," Dao said, "we have measured highly elevated levels of estrogen in the (urinary) excretion of men with cancer of the breast, indicating that there is an altering of the metabolism of estrogen in men with breast cancer."

Dao said that in patients upon whom orchiectomies (removal of the testes) were performed, there were reductions of estrogen in the urine. He said this indicates that estrogen, a hormone responsible for development of feminine sex characteristics; is testicular in origin in the male.

He said there is no way to predict what types of men will tend to develop breast cancer. However, he said that he has seen two cases of men who took estrogen as part of a sex-change procedure and developed breast cancer.

Breast cancer is a lesion which forms in the mammary glands, which men as well as women have. However, male nammary glands are about 1-100th the size of women's, which is just about the difference in the incidence of the disease in the sexes.

Dao said that primary treatment of breast cancer in men is about the same as women.

"Although radical mastectomy has been practiced for decades on women," he said, "we have routinely performed modified radical mastectomy for male breast cancer in our clinic.

"However, we often choose simple mastectomy in elderly patients, particularly in those over 70."

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — In a matter of weeks, Nola Moore experienced her highest and lowest moments as a Sedgwick County prosecutor who deals solely with sexual assault cases.

A man on trial for taking indecent liberties with a minor was acquitted by the jury, and the alleged victim, a 14-year-old girl, began crying as Mrs. Moore told her the verdict.

But a short time later, the assistant district attorney received a letter from the girl. It read: "Please don't feel bad. You did a really good job ...you understand people a lot more than others."

"It meant a lot to me," Mrs. Moore said. "What made me feel good was I felt I had done something to help her. I was upset I had lost the case but I felt I had done my job because she understood and she was not bitter. I think what I did made it easier on her."

Mrs. Moore is one of four young women who are handling sexual offense cases in Kansas' three largest cities — Wichita, Topeka and Kansas City. But the women prosecutors seldom lose their cases.

Of 23 cases closed by Mrs. Moore and Sharon Werner, members of the Sedgwick County district attorney's sex offenses division, 21 have resulted in convictions or a guilty plea.

Joan Hamilton of the Shawnee County DA's office in Topeka has lost two cases in about 75. Anita Mortimer of the Wyandotte County DA's office in Kansas City, Kan., has had only three acquittals in about 35 cases.

None of the four attorneys, all in their mid-20s and graduates of Washburn University law school in Topeka, claims her success is due to the fact that she is a woman. But it hasn't hurt.

"I'm not saying that men are not compassionate," Mrs. Moore said. "I just think we have a better rapport with women. We usually have them telling us things they'd never tell anyone else."

Said her partner, Ms. Werner, "I truly believe after working with a victim from the initial interview that we acquire a feeling about that particular person and as a result I believe it's less traumatic for that person in the courtroom. I think through this the woman can be put more at ease, her testimony can be more coherent in the courtroom."

Mrs. Hamilton, who has prosecuted sex offenses for a year, says being a woman often helps her relate better to the younger victims. But she cautions that it cannot be carried too far.

"You have to keep your professionalism. You must keep away from a 'I'm a woman, I know what she's going through' attitude," she said.

The first thing she asks a victim is "if they prefer a male attorney." Mrs. Hamilton added, "If they're not confident with a woman, I'm not going to let my personal pride overcome what she wants." So far, none has refused her services.

Old farm, yard gadgets add interest to decor

By CAROL EICHEN
Copley News Service

If you're moving from the farm to a city apartment or from a big house to a maintenance-free condominium, don't throw away the farm equipment or old yard tools.

Instead, clean the dirt off, spray them with paint and hang them on an accent wall. Any old farm implements like hoes, pitchforks, rakes, tools and other gadgets which have lost their usefulness can be given a second life as part of an exciting wall decor.

The best idea is to group several of these antiqued collectables and paint them white with an enamel spray paint. For a dramatic effect, hang them on a brightly colored wall of red, green, yellow or even brown.

If the landlord insists on your keeping the walls white, you can create an eye-appealing effect by hanging white on white. The shadow effects can be quite dramatic.

To highlight the wall decor, install track lighting which will spotlight each of the objects. The biggest bonus is that all of this can be done on a low budget.

It's a perfect way to create a focal point in a family room or den which might otherwise be very ordinary. To complete the rural American feeling, use calico fabrics for the curtains and upholstery and add a few hooked rugs.

Furnishings for such a room can include an Early American harvest table, antiques from the Colonial period or anything that creates the feeling of provencial America.

This same idea can be extended to the kitchen.

Paint them white and hang them on an otherwise drab kitchen wall. Placed on a brightly colored background, an arrangement of old kitchen utensils can add some warmth and interest to the room.

When cleaning out the closets, take a good look at the "junk" before you discard it. You'd be surprised at some of the creative ways you can find to "recycle" it.

Best ages listed for having child

Based on physical and maturational factors, the best age for women to have two children is at age 28 and 30—and for men at age 30 and 32. This does not, however, account for individual differences, says Debby Johnson, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Programs discussed

The directors of the Midland Woman's Club met in the clubhouse to discuss programs and projects for the year.

Kathy Peters, president, announced Mrs. Jeanne Turner was winner of the quilt presented at the Flea Market.

The next meeting for the Woman's Club will be at 11:30 a.m. Nov. 17. There will a luncheon and program on "Hands Up." A Christmas program, "Christmas Around the World," will be presented by Bill Cormack of the Midland Independent School District Dec. 15.

Stock market declines

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned lower today, halting a four-day rebound that dominated trading last week.

The noon Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue chip stocks was down 3.73 to 818.95, after rebounding more than 21 points from Tuesday's two-year low of 801.54.

Despite the decline in blue chips, the overall mix of trading on the New York Stock Exchange showed the lower trend to be a narrow one. By midday, 556 of the traded issues had declined, but 520 had gained.

Analysts, who noted some weakening in trading Friday, said disappointment over the government's latest report on leading economiic indicators helped renew long-term investor worries over the economic outlook. The Commerce Department Friday reported a three-tenths of one per cent increase in the index, which is used as a guide to future economic trends.

Among actively traded issues, Vetco Inc. was up ½ to 24¼; Dr Pepper slipped ⅜ to 14¾; and Globe Union gained 2½ to 46.

Oil and chemical issues, two industries that have shown general weakness in recent quarterly profit reports, showed some continued weakness in trading today.

Among oil issues, Exxon slipped ⅛ to 46⅞; Mobil was down ¼ to 60⅞ and Getty lost 1 point to 153. But Texaco was up ⅛ to 28.

Union Carbide was actively traded and down ⅝ to 42¼; Du Pont slipped ¾ to 112¾. Dow Chemical Co. also was actively traded but unchanged at 28⅞.

The NYSE's noon composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks slipped .09 to 50.68. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .08 to 112.94.

Volume on the Big Board came to 6.86 million shares over the first two hours, up slightly from the 6.82 million in the same period on Friday.

Kidnapper pictured

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — Police today circulated a composite drawing of a black-haired, mustachioed suspect in the kidnapping of Maurits Caransa. The Dutch millionaire's family said, meanwhile, none of the many ransom demands telephoned to newspapers seems genuine.

The drawing, published in the mass-circulation newspaper De Telegraaf, was based on a description provided by a woman who witnessed the abduction last Friday.

Police said an alert also has been issued for a stolen red Fiat sedan that may have been used as the getaway car.

The Caransa family has appealed by radio to the kidnappers to make their demands known.

A police spokesman said the flood of telephone messages to the press making various ransom demands was hampering efforts to find the victim and his captors.

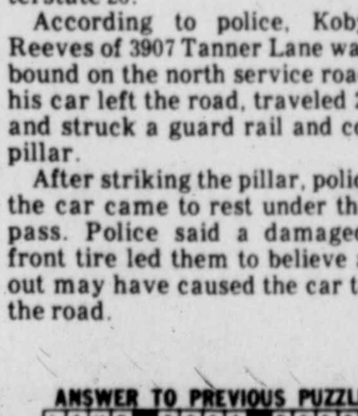

Youth hurt in accident

An 18-year-old Midland man was listed in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital early today after he was injured in a car accident about midnight Sunday at the intersection of Lamesa Road and Interstate 20.

According to police, Koby Ray Reeves of 3907 Tanner Lane was westbound on the north service road when his car left the road, traveled 289 feet and struck a guard rail and concrete pillar.

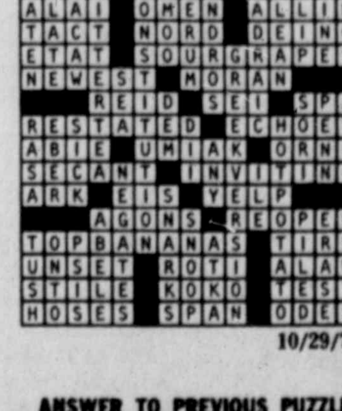

After striking the pillar, police said, the car came to rest under the overpass. Police said a damaged right front tire led them to believe a blowout may have caused the car to leave the road.

Texans claim ERDA refuses to consider small energy firms

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — If Thomas Edison had depended on ERDA, we'd be using kerosene lamps today. Or so believe two colorful characters named Johnny Carter and Dave Marke.

And this view has some support on the Texas Energy Advisory Council and in segments of the budding solar energy industry.

ERDA is the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration. Its job is to help develop alternate energy sources.

Carter, 29, and Marke, 31, own Solar Dynamics Ltd. It has two other employes and a big barn of a workshop on Warehouse Row. It also had a dream — manufacture of a compact solar-powered home electrical plant "that would enable the consumer to disconnect from the city."

What it doesn't have is the money to build the working prototype it needs to sell the concept and get the capital needed to start production.

That's where ERDA comes in. And that's where Carter gets mad. ERDA has ignored him for a year and a half. He'd like a yes or a no. Preferably a yes.

They contend ERDA ignores the small outfits and hands out the research and development money to established industrial giants such as Boeing, Rockwell, McDonnell-Douglas and Martin-Marietta.

"You've gotta have a billion-dollar gross to be able to compete for contracts," says Carter, a short, bespectacled man with long hair and the scruffy beginnings of a beard. His business suit is a work shirt, old blue jeans and cowboy boots.

Sour grapes?

Possibly.

But listen to Bob King, coordinator of solar programs for the Texas Energy Advisory Council.

"ERDA is not interested in funding anything they didn't think of first. They are not interested in funding anything that is large-scale unless it is a large corporation," King said.

He said he visited ERDA in Washington and found it was interested in dealing neither with states nor small companies.

King said ERDA's people "come from places like RCA, GE, Martin-Marietta. It is ridiculous. If big money is to be had, it is for big corporations."

The journal "People and Energy" looked at ERDA's solar contracts for fiscal 1976 and concluded that "large energy companies such as General Electric, Lockheed, RCA, Boeing and Westinghouse received ERDA solar contracts worth five times the amount awarded to small businesses."

Moreover, it said, these companies have interlocking directorages "with such other energy giants as Standard Oil of California, Atlantic Richfield, Getty Oil, Nuclear Corp. of America and other utility, oil and nuclear companies."

Which brings us back to Carter and Marke, certainly no industrial giants.

Are they nuts with a far-out concept nobody in their right mind would bankroll?

Hardly, say both King and Gary Vliet, associate professor of mechanical engineering at The University of Texas at Austin.

"The technology they are working with is already developed. They are not taking on anything new ... The technology is definitely viable," says King, whose agency has $1.5 million in money for research on alternative energy sources.

United stand against plan to be urged

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill said today he will urge top state energy officials Thursday to take a united stand against parts of President Carter's national energy program.

Hill denied, at a news conference, that his presentation of a resolution Thursday to the Texas Energy Advisory Council was any part of his 1978 campaign for Texas governor.

"I want the resolution judged on its merits, not politics," Hill said.

At a previous meeting of the council, Hill and Comptroller Bob Bullock, a supporter of Gov. Dolph Briscoe, tangled at length over Hill's accusations that Briscoe had not done all he should in the energy crisis.

"Our consumers in Texas have suffered more than those in any other state from energy price increases and resulting utility bill increases," Hill said today. "Not only has this suffering gone unrecognized in Washington, but we would be penalized even further by some of the proposals pending before Congress."

Hill's resolution includes 21 proposed policy stands for the advisory council of 10 high state officials, including:

—"Kill the crude oil equalization tax," which he said would penalize Texas drivers by raising gasoline prices.

—Reject the House version of a proposal to tax businesses and utilities that continue to use natural gas for fuel. He said this would just increase bills of utility consumers.

—Adopt the Senate plan for phased deregulation of natural gas over a 2 to 5-year period.

Nuclear plants creating tough disposal problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is studying whether it needs tougher rules to deal with worn-out nuclear power plants, facilities which would remain radioactive for more than 50,000 years after their shutdown.

The NRC and its predecessor, the Atomic Energy Commission, already have licensed 67 nuclear power plants for commercial operations and have authorized construction of 77 more.

None of those power plants has yet run through its useful lifetime, considered by the nuclear industry and the NRC to be around 40 years.

But when they do, their power-generating innards will be left dangerously radioactive from years of exposure to the energy bursts of splitting atoms.

And they will stay "hot" and hazardous for periods of time that make human generations seem like mere instants.

The nuclear industry's chief expert in this field testified last month that it would take 51,350 years for the carbon-14 radioactivity created in one kind of nuclear plant, gas-cooled, to decay "to acceptably low levels."

The expert, William J. Manion, a divison president of Nuclear Energy Services, Inc., testified it would take between 234,000 and 505,000 years for the acceptable decay of nickel-59 radioactivity in water-cooled reactors, the kind already in general use.

It was Manion who directed a study published in November 1976 for the Atomic Industrial Forum, the nuclear industry trade organization, which estimated the costs of keeping these "hot" powerplants isolated from the public and the environment.

Basically, Manion's study identified two ways of doing this: either tear down the radioactive powerplant immediately, with careful and costly protection of workers and the public, or seal the plant for about a century, until the radioactivity has cooled off enough to make dismantling easier and cheaper.

In either case, the radioactive parts would eventually be buried someplace where it is hoped they would remain isolated and undisturbed for the rest of the 51,000 to 505,000 years their significant radioactivity would last.

Manion told a House subcommittee that "mothballing" a powerplant for 100 years — locking it up and posting 24- hour guards — and then burying its radioactive parts would cost up to $29.7 million.

"Entombing" the plant — sealing it with concrete and dispensing with around-the-clock guards — might cost around $23 million, including disposal of the radioactive parts after 100 years.

Immediate dismantling and burial of the radioactive parts would require a large initial investment, but eliminate the expenses of guarding and mainenance for a century, and would cost somewhere between $25 million and $38 million, Mansion estimated.

Depending on the type of reactor, he said, it could cost an additional $7 million to $15 million to tear down an obsolete plant completely, including the portions which are not radioactive.

Manion's estimates did not consider the added cost of tying up money that could be used more productively for something else during the many years it would take to "decommission" a plant and bury it once and for all. Nor did it include the effects of inflation.

This letter no thriller

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Raleigh attorney Gerald Bass always wanted to receive a letter from a president. But the note he got last week from former President Gerald R. Ford left something to be desired.

Bass's name was misspelled throughout the plea to support U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in his reelection bid next year.

The "B" in Bass was left out. "The kicker was the last sentence," Bass said, laughing. "It said: 'With kindest regards, Mr. A-, I am sincerely, Gerald R. Ford.'"

Bass, a Democrat, said he probably wouldn't be supporting the Republican Helms anyway.

Mahon asks farm views

WASHINGTON — West Texas farmers and agricultural leaders should let their views be known on proposed federal regulations governing the use of set-aside acreage under the new farm program, Congressman George Mahon said Saturday.

Mahon said he was concerned that under the proposed Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service rules farmers would be unable to graze wheat set-aside acreage as had been the practice in previous farm programs.

"I urge farmers to make their wishes known. In my opinion it would be most damaging to our wheat-growing areas for this traditional practice to be denied. I have protested to the Secreatry of Agriculture in person and by letter and I hope farmers will also make their voices heard in this matter," Mahon said.

Britain lets pound float

LONDON (AP) — The British government suspended its attempts to keep the value of the pound sterling down today and allowed it to float in the world's money markets.

The rate of exchange jumped from $1.77 to around $1.84 in hectic trading on the London exchange. A prediction of the government's action in a Sunday London newspaper triggered similar increases on exchanges in the Far East.

Mexican soldiers patrol border area to prevent confrontations

DOUGLAS, Ariz. (AP) — Mexican soldiers have been assigned to patrol the Sonoran border to prevent a confrontation between Mexican nationals and members of the Ku Klux Klan, the U.S. Border Patrol said.

A Border Patrol spokesman said there were no reports of any Klansmen patrolling the border in Arizona this weekend. The Klan's national leader, David Duke, announced in Tucson, Ariz., Friday that about 35 Klan members would begin patrolling the border in the Douglas, Ariz., area Saturday.

He said Klansmen would be unarmed and would drive unmarked vehicles, reporting any illegal alien activity to authorities.

Douglas police and Cochise County Sheriff's deputies also said the Klan apparently did not show up.

The U.S. Border Patrol office here said it received a memorandum from Max Hyatt, U.S. anti-smuggling agent in Nogales, Ariz., concerning the detachment of Mexican troops to the border. According to the memo, Hyatt met Oct. 20 with Conrad Batiz, an official of the Mexican Immigration Service in Nogales, Sonora, and was told that the army detachment would patrol along the border and several miles to the south.

The Border Patrol spokesman said the presence of troops may have accounted for decreased illegal alien activity during the weekend. He said only one illegal Mexican alien was encountered Saturday.

"Once they know the federales are patrolling the area, activity along the border slows down to nothing," an agent said.

Although there were no indications of Klan activity, a Roman Catholic Mass of non-violence was held at the ternational boundary Sunday and Mexicans were warned to be careful "because the Klan is very dangerous."

The warning came from Margo Cowan, director of the Manzo Area Council, a Tucson social work agency, in an address before the Mass.

Earlier this month, she urged a boycott of border town businesses to highlight a plea for federal intervention in the acquittal of two Douglas-area brothers in an illegal alien torture case. Thomas and Patrick Hanigan were acquitted on several counts in the alleged kidnapping and torture of three aliens in August 1976. The FBI is investigating whether the Mexicans' civil rights were violated.

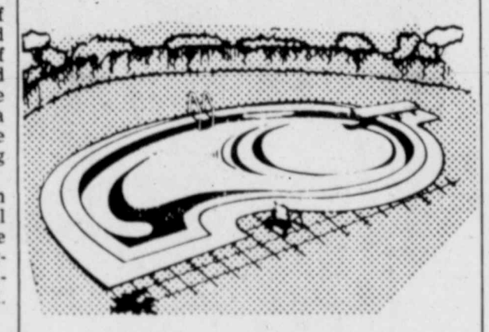

Pair held in slaying

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Pennsylvania man and a Texas resident were arrested Sunday in the stabbing death of a California man, police said.

They were being held in the Maricopa County jail for questioning in the slaying of Walter McClosky, 53, an unemployed miner from Mt. Pass, Calif.

Oregon gets snow

By The Associated Press

The Oregon Cascades are having their first major snow of the season with accumulations of from 6-to-12 inches at some spots.

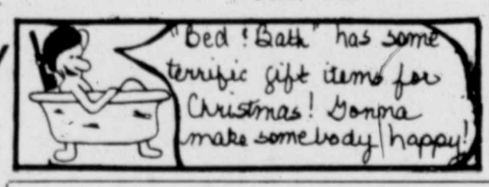

Timberline Lodge had six inches of snow Sunday, and Mount Hood Meadows, another ski area, received a foot of snow.

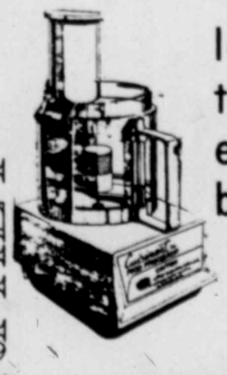

Thunderstorms extended from northeast Texas and northern Louisiana through Minnesota and eastern sections of the Dakotas. Windy weather also plagued the Dakotas. Light rains and cool weather were reported across Oklahoma.

Thunderstorms also continued over eastern Florida. A tornado touched down near Melbourne, Fla., late last night. There were no reports of damage or injuries.

Showers were widely scattered from the Gulf Coast across extreme south Texas, just east of the central Rockies and from the northern Rockies to the Washington coast.

Karen Master tries again to clear boyfriend Davis

By MIKE COCHRAN

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Karen Master indicated today she did not tell a grand jury about awakening and seeing Cullen Davis in bed beside her because she was not asked that question.

It is possible, she also suggested, that she misunderstood the question posed to her on Aug. 12, 1976, nine days after her millionaire boyfriend was charged with killing two persons at his hilltop Fort Worth mansion.

As related by a defense lawyer today, apparently Mrs. Master was asked if she remembered "anything" between midnight and 4 a.m. when she learned of the shootings in a telephone call from the defendant's brother.

Mrs. Master suggested the question was in effect if she remembered "hearing anything" during that critical time span.

The 28-year-old divorcee contends Cullen Davis was asleep in bed beside her when the defendant's young stepdaughter and his estranged wife's lover were slain.

She testified Friday it was precisely 12:40 when she awoke the morning of Aug. 3, 1976, and saw Davis, 44, asleep in her king-size bed.

But she did not explain on cross-examination by prosecutor Joe Shannon why she did not tell investigators or a grand jury about the timely and most critical awakening.

It was within minutes of 12:40 a.m. that a man in black killed Andrea Wilborn, 12, and Stan Farr, 30, and wounded Davis' jet-set blonde wife Priscilla, 36.

The fourth victim of the midnight carnage, Gus Gavrel, 22, was crippled in the gunfire but his date that night Beverly Bass, 19, escaped injury.

Mrs. Master, mother of two young sons, said she began dating Davis shortly after he and Priscilla separated in the summer of 1974.

She said he moved into her suburban Edgecliff Village home in September 1975, which would have been about three months before Farr began sharing the $6 million mansion with Priscilla.

The two sets of lovers crossed paths on three or four occasions, she testified, but there was never any hostility between Stan and Cullen. They were friendly if not friends.

However, Shannon brought out that Davis referred to the six-foot-ten Farr as "Too Tall," perhaps in a disparaging way, but that was not the prosecutor's prime target area.

Guerrillas, soldiers fight in South Africa

By The Associated Press

The South African and Rhodesian governments reported killing 87 black guerrillas in two border battles as the U.N. Security Council prepared to vote today on four African resolutions censuring South Africa.

The South African government reported its troops killed 61 guerrillas and lost five of its own soldiers in a 36-hour battle last week along the border between South-West Africa and Angola. It was the heaviest fighting reported in the 10-year-old bush war for the independence of the pre-World War I German territory.

Meanwhile, the Rhodesian government said its army intercepted a guerrilla force crossing into Rhodesia from Zambia and killed 26 of the black insurgents. It did not say when or where along the border the battle took place.

The Rhodesian government also announced an exchange of fire with Zambian troops across the Zambezi River near the Victoria Falls. The communique said Zambian forces shelled Rhodesian emplacements, and Rhodesian forces returned the fire and appeared to hit an ammunition dump. No Rhodesian casualties were reported, but there was damage to buildings and vehicles, the government said.

Representatives from Britain and the United Nations were scheduled to begin two days of cease-fire talks with leaders of the black Rhodesian guerrillas today in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania.

Lord Carver, Britain's commissioner-designate for Rhodesia, and Gen. Prem Chand of India, designated by the United Nations to head a transitional peacekeeping force, then will go to Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital.

At U.N. headquarters in New York, U.S. sources predicted that British vetoes would kill three African resolutions calling for embargoes on arms, trade, investments and loans to South Africa but the council as a stopgap measure would approve the fourth resolution demanding that the South African government lift the bans it imposed Oct. 19 on black organizations and newspapers.

The sources said after the votes, the council members probably would begin work on a compromise resolution calling for an arms embargo, using a less forcefully worded draft being promoted by the United States, Canada, Britain, France and West Germany.

Andrew Young, the American ambassador to the United Nations, said on the ABC television program "Issues and Amswers" that economic sanctions against South Africa don't make sense "businesswise" and he would not support such a program.

Young also said he does not favor a ban on the sale of nuclear fuel to South Africa. He said the country has such an advanced nuclear potential that a cutoff "would only encourage separate development."

Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, said on CBS"-Face the Nation" that South Africa's racial problems must be settled peacefully to prevent the intrusion of the Soviet Union or Cuba.

Gas-guzzling cars: To tax or to ax is question

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, convinced the automobile is the chief cause of energy waste, is looking for a way to steer American motorists toward gasoline-stingy cars.

But the lawmakers, who are now considering the transportation part of President Carter's energy program, cannot decide whether to impose a tax that will make inefficient autos unattractive to buyers or to ban them altogether.

The Senate planned to vote today on the tax, similar to the one recommended by Carter and passed by the House.

Meanwhile, a Senate-House conference committee that is considering non-tax portions of Carter's program is hoping to break a deadlock over a provision, already passed by the Senate, that would prohibit production of cars that get poor mileage.

That ban, which House conferees have twice refused to accept, would apply starting in 1981 to cars getting less than 16 miles per gallon, and rising to 21 mpg by 1985.

The auto tax is one of several issues that remain to be considered before the Senate completes work on its energy tax bill. Approval of the bill could come late today, sending it to the conference committee.

Another set of conferees representing the Senate and House will try once again to agree on conditions under which federal Medicaid funds could be used to finance abortions for the poor.

The dispute is tying up a $60.2 billion appropriation bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. Failure to act on that bill could delay paychecks for thousands of federal workers.

The House has voted to allow federally paid abortions only in cases in which the woman's life would be endangered by a fullterm pregnancy and in some rape cases. The more liberal Senate position would require that the health of the woman and her fetus be considered.

In other congressional action, House leaders planned a vote today on a resolution aimed at winning cooperation of the South Korean government in the investigation of alleged efforts by Koreans to buy influence in Congress.

Tuesday will bring House consideration of a bill to implement President Carter's decision granting Alcan Pipeline Corp. the right to build a natural gas pipeline to deliver Alaskan gas to the 48 contiguous states.

Two priority issues stand in the way of congressional adjournment for the year: energy and Social Security. Because of delays in reaching agreement on a national energy policy, adjournment — originally scheduled for Oct. 8 — now is unlikely before the end of November.

The toughest issues on energy — taxes and natural gas pricing — have not even been considered yet by the conference committee that will write the final compromise bill.

Smaller check main reason SS system shunned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $311 difference between a typical federal employee's retirement check and a monthly Social Security payment helped convince government workers to shun the Social Security system.

But the higher benefit wasn't the only difference that led federal workers to fight successfully against integration of their pension plan with Social Security.

Some federal employees already qualify for both plans, meaning they can now look forward to two checks.

And civil servants maintain their higher pension was intended. A bigger chunk of their paycheck goes to the retirement fund than is paid by those under Social Security, and career employees enter government service partly because of the promise of the higher pension.

The Social Security system is going broke, however, and the federal employees are being looked at hungrily by some as a potential multibillion dollar infusion of cash for the system.

But the proposal by the House Ways and Means Committee to bring them under the Social Security umbrella was thrown out by a 386-38 vote Wednesday, partly because of civil service resistance and partly in fear that the plan was not sufficiently thought out.

No one has suggested simply substituting Social Security for civil service pensions. But the proposal did not say how the systems would be integrated, a fact that concerned many committee members.

The differences between the systems now can be illustrated by looking at two 65-year-old employees ready to retire at the end of this year: a civil servant and an employee of a private business.

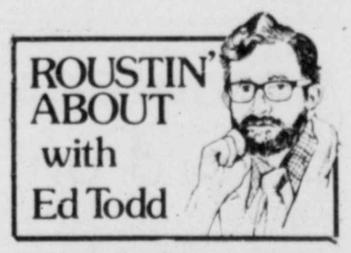

Both make about $16,500 a year, the mean income of American families in 1976.

The civil servant leaving government service after 35 years will get about $748 a month in pension or $8,960 a year, at least part of which is taxable.

The retiring private employe will draw only $437 a month or $5,245 year in Social Security checks, which are not taxable.

If the Social Security recipient has a spouse, the check is increased by 50 per cent, $218.55 a month, making the total benefit $7,868 a year for the couple. A civil servant's pension does not increase solely because of the presence of a spouse.

Sedate St. Lawrence primed to whoop it up

ST. LAWRENCE — This community rarely makes the headlines.

There's not much going on around St. Lawrence, except folks making a living at the farm or ranch and "working" at living when the chores are all done.

And they'll be doing a bunch of the latter — living it up — next Sunday. The occasion will be the annual St. Lawrence Fall Festival.

The St. Lawrence live-ins will be serving up home-made German sausage, barbecued beef brisket and all the trimmings around noon and then again at supper time.

Booths will open at the same time — 11 a.m. — and the line to the kitchen will be forming. These stands will feature spin-a-wheel, grab bag, the country kitchen, hobby shop, bingo, cotton candy and the Coke ring.

Cool suds for the sipping and good food will be on tap.

The festival's really big show will be at 2 p.m., when the auction to benefit the St. Lawrence Catholic Church begins. To be auctioned will be bales of cotton and merchandise donated from businesses all around.

That night, folks will dance to the tunes of Bill Henderson.

The parishioners here are doing all of the preparations for the annual festival, which, by the way, ain't free.

So bring a few bills for food, drinks and fun-at-the-booths. Bring more if you care to do some bidding.

And with that sausage-to-go, you can take a bit of St. Lawrence back home with you.

Helping the festival take shape are these people:

— Women's committee: Mrs. Delmer Batla, Mrs. Francis Hagan, Mrs. Dennis Fuchs, Mrs. Floyd Wilde, and Mrs. Ronnie Hirt.

The St. Lawrence men will start making the sausage early Saturday morning at the Alfred Schwartz place. It'll be something to see.

Aid against imports pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is considering proposals to expand by 50 to 100 percent the government program to help companies, workers and communities hurt by foreign competition.

Administration officials said Sunday the proposals would help American firms compete with imports, but also would try to soften the impact when foreign competition costs workers their jobs.

The proposals would sharply increase the money available for communities hit by imports and shift the emphasis of the program away from simply making cash payments to laidoff workers.

The suggestions, given to the president last week, include low-interest loans to companies seeking to modernize their facilities, higher retraining allowances for displaced workers and aid to cities which have lost industry, administration aides said.

The proposals come as many workers face layoffs or shutdowns because of increasing foreign competition.

On Thursday, a group of congressmen from steel-producing states asked Carter to impose import quotas, saying steel from Japan and West Germany is undercutting domestic production.

Carter refused their request, but said laws against dumping products at below-cost prices would be enforced.

American firms are moving abroad also. Zenith Radio Corp. has announced plans to eliminate hundreds of jobs in its TV plants in Watsontown, Pa., and Chicago, and moving the jobs to Taiwan and Mexico, where labor costs are lower.

"Labor unions have called the current program 'burial assistance' — payments to help workers once they have been bounced out of work," one official said.

"The proposals continue to assist workers once they are out of work, but would also provide help to workers, companies and communities to adjust," he added.

Under the proposals, appropriations for the program would be increased by 50 to 100 percent from its current $230 million annual level, aides said.

The recommendations also would make it easier for cities hurt by foreign competition to obtain economic aid, they said. Funds would be provided primarily to help the communities attract new industry.

Workers still would be given extended unemployment compensation benefits, but also would receive more help in retraining for new jobs and relocating, the officials said.

And while low-interest loans would be available for companies trying to become more competitive, firms unable to compete might be advised instead to switch products.

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer

Wake up at 6 a.m. He does. And he makes his own bed.

Be prepared to hear a lot about Amy. Like any other father, the president of the United States dotes on his blonde, 10-year-old daughter. He'll tell you all about her tree house and her dog, Grits.

Don't panic. He'll only stay a night.

And afterward you'll be able to organize tours for the neighbors and point to the sheets on your bed and say, "The president slept here."

Jimmy Carter has a penchant for visiting.

On three trips so far, to New England, to the South and to the Midwest, he has scorned hotels and motels, where presidents usually stay. Instead, he bunked with people he considers plain folks.

If they were, they aren't now.

Here are other things that happen — courtesy of Ed and Kay Thompson of Clinton, Mass.; Owen and Elizabeth Cooper of Yazoo City, Miss., and Woody and Mary Diehl of Indianola, Iowa. They have given Jimmy Carter bed and board, and they know what it's like.

If you're picked, you'll get the word a few days ahead of time. But the White House staff will ask you to keep the visit secret until Press Secretary Jody Powell announces it.

Agents will put lights and detectors in your yard to stop intruders. They will put blackout blinds on your windows to eliminate silhouettes. If you've got a motor home, the agents will make it their headquarters.

If your laundry room is handy, like Woody Diehl's was, some of the White House staff will take it over. You can depend on the Secret Service to pick the least likely bedroom as the safest for the president.

"It was a room upstairs that hadn't had anything done with it for years," mutters Elizabeth Cooper. "The carpet was worn. It was where the girls had stayed when they were little."

At the Diehls, Carter got the master bedroom. Woody and Mary moved out "a few personal things." Woody took some clothes out of the closet to make room. Mary put new linen on the bed.

Aides put a special phone by the president's bed. It was connected to the White House. Two other such phones were installed for his staff. Expect about 400 calls, says Elizabeth Cooper.

You'll see the president arrive at the head of a motorcade. He's likely to carry his suitbag into the house over his shoulder.

"Once we got inside, he carried it down the hall by himself and put it away," says Woody Diehl.

Elizabeth Cooper forgot and called him Jimmy. She apologized.

"Oh, call me Jimmy," he said.

But she couldn't. The whole family called him Mr. President.

He sat at one end of Mary Diehl's sofa. She shuddered. It's the worst seat in her living room.

"He was a lot more at ease than I was," she says. "He has so many interests, he makes you feel at home. Our oldest granddaughter has a record collection. He liked that. Our youngest granddaughter is the same age as Amy. I'm interested in Indian artifacts. So's he."

Carter lifted one grandson. The 11-month-old boy looked at him sleepily. Then he perched a 4-year-old granddaughter in his lap and fed her some of his ice cream.

Mary Diehl learned he likes

Midland woman robbed

Odessa Police Capt. Jack Fillyaw said that Mrs. Marie J. Turner of 2602 W. Kansas Ave. in Midland told officers she was putting two money bags in the night depository in the 700 block of North Texas when she was robbed shortly before 9:17 p.m. Saturday.

The money bags contained receipts from the 10th Street Liquor Store, 1101 West 10th, which is operated by the woman and her husband, Charles W. Turner, Fillyaw said.

Mrs. Turner told officers that after opening the night depository and slipping the two money bags inside, someone came up behind her and shoved her against the night depository, Fillyaw said.

After pulling a gun, the man took the money bags; Mrs. Turner's purse and her car keys. He then got into her car and drove off, Fillyaw said Mrs. Turner told officers.

Mrs. Turner was treated at Medical Center Hospital for a head injury and released, Fillyaw said. Police said the gunman made off with an "undetermined" amount of money.

Odessa man found slain

ODESSA — Police detectives are seeking clues today in Sunday's shooting death of an oilfield worker whose body was found in the parking lot of a restaurant here.

Kenton Lee Hart, 25, of Odessa was found on the ground between two cars in the parking lot of the Bo-Weevil Restaurant, Police Capt. Jack Fillyaw said.

Hart was shot one time in the chest with what appeared to be a small caliber weapon, Fillyaw said.

Police say so far they have determined no possible motive for the shooting. After interviewing several persons at the restaurant, police determined Hart had been a customer there prior to the shooting, Fillyaw said.

Hart had moved to Odessa from Wichita, Kan., several months ago, Fillyaw said.

CONTINENTAL AIRLINES started a new flight to Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla., today. A ceremony was held prior to the first departure at 7:30 a.m. The new flight will have only one stop in Lubbock, compared to previous flights which stopped in Lubbock, Wichita Falls and Lawton, Okla. Helping passengers with their tickets for the new flight this morning is David Boxley.

Singapore reportedly promises to surender hijackers to Hanoi

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Singapore government will hand over to Vietnam the four men who hijacked a Vietnamese airliner last week, Radio Hanoi reported today.

There was no immediate confirmation of the report from the Singapore government.

The broadcast was the first public comment on the hijacking by the Vietnamese government. It said the hijackers had "committed crimes in Vietnamese air space."

One of the hijackers shot and killed the plane's flight engineer and radio operator and another one stabbed and badly wounded a steward.

The Singapore government said earlier that it would hold an inquiry to determine the facts of the incident "which will then be processed in accordance with international laws and conventions governing such matters."

The newspaper New Nation reported the four men were seeking political asylum in the United States or France after first asking to stay in Singapore. A government spokesman refused to confirm or deny the report.

Singapore does not have diplomatic relations with Vietnam, and the Hanoi broadcast did not say when or how the hijackers would be returned.

The aged DC3 returned to Saigon Sunday with 31 passengers, three crew members and the bodies of the two dead crewmen. The steward was in serious condition in a local hospital.

and one passenger, a 26-year-old man, refused to go back and was allowed to stay, the government said.

The government did not identify the hijackers but said one was armed with a .38-caliber pistol and the others had knives.

The plane was hijacked Saturday during a flight from Saigon to Phu Quoc, an island off the west coast of Vietnam. There were 36 Vietnamese passengers, including the hijackers, and six crew members aboard.

mixed nuts. So she had some for him. But he's easy to please. Kay Thompson put out cheese dip and crackers.

"I feel at home," Carter said.

Elizabeth Cooper promised White House aides "we would make it easy for him to be in his room by 11 p.m. At five minutes after 11 p.m., we went to bed."

But the Thompsons couldn't resist staying up without him to watch his arrival on television.

"Before we went to bed," says Woody Diehl, "Mary asked him if he'd like some milk, buttermilk or fruit.

"He said, 'I'd just like a glass of buttermilk.'

"Well, Mary likes buttermilk, too, so she poured them each a glass. I got a little fruit yogurt out of the refrigerator. We leaned there against the kitchen counter and visited for another 10 or 20 minutes just like he was your neighbor down the road.

"I said, 'I'm usually up by 6.' He said, 'Six will be fine. You call me at 6, and I won't bother to set my alarm.'

"At 6 in the morning, I went down the hall and knocked on the door. I said, 'Mr. President, it's 6 o'clock' — just like I used to call my hired men."

But a thought stopped Woody Diehl in his tracks.

He added through the bedroom door: "The cold is where the hot should be and the hot is where the cold should be."

To a family, Carter's hosts say he comes to breakfast bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. There are no reports of presidential snoring.

He told Elizabeth Cooper he didn't want breakfast. But when he got to the table he couldn't turn down fresh peaches and cream and homemade tomato juice brought by a neighbor.

At the Diehls, he asked for just coffee.

Before he left the Diehls, Woody asked him if he could take 30 seconds and meet the hired hands. "Why, sure," the president said.

"Please excuse Jane for being late," he wrote for Kay Thompson's 14-year-old daughter, tardy at school. "She had a guest in her house."

He won't leave a thank-you note on your pillow, but you'll get one almost immediately in the mail — handwritten by the president.

Youth hurt in accident

David Printz, 15, of 53 Perry Lane and Stacy Stover, 14, of 4506 Andrews Highway remained in critical condition early today in the intensive care unit of Midland Memorial Hospital from injuries they received in a pickup accident Friday morning.

Joe McEwen, 14, of 4411 Princeton Ave., who was released from the hospital Friday, was readmitted Sunday for observation, according to a hospital spokesman. He was listed in satisfactory condition early today.

The three youths were injured when the pickup in which they were riding overturned about 8:30 a.m. Friday on Fairgrounds Road north of Midland.

According to the Department of Public Safety, the vehicle was traveling south when it left the road, returned to the other side and then overturned.

Shreveport gas well runs wild

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Workers hoped today to plug a natural gas well that blew wild all weekend, sending up a 125foot geyser of gas, salt water, mud and rocks.

Wild well fighters were carefully removing metal pipe and derrick from above the well, which blew out of control Friday night while drillers were changing bits.

After clearing the area above the well, the next step would be to try to close the well with a new "blowout preventer," a spokesman said.

No one was injured when the well blew out, and the spewing gas did not ignite.

One crewman, Randall Womack, said he was atop the 100foot derrick when he heard the blowout beginning. He said he scrambled to the ground just below the blowout reached the surface.

Larry Oswald, general manager of C.L. Morris Co., owner of the rig, said a few sparks flew when bits of rock flew out of the ground and hit the metal rig, but he said the salt water helped prevent a fire.

Conferees still seek accord on abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate members are trying once more to reach a compromise on the abortion policy that will regulate the government's health service programs for the poor during the next year.

But congressional leaders say that even if House-Senate conferees don't succeed by their self-imposed deadline of midnight tonight, the dispute is unlikely to jeopardize paychecks for government employees whose agencies' funds are tied to the question.

The conferees planned to meet today to discuss the last remaining obstacle delaying passage of a $60.2 billion, appropriations bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare and some smaller, related agencies.

The conferees have tried without success to agree on an abortion policy since July. The proposal that Congress appoves will affect programs like Medicaid and social services until Sept. 30, 1978.

Should they fail again today, they probably will ask Congress to pass and the President to sign a second resolution insuring that the agencies have operating money while the debate goes on.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who heads the Senate conferees, said "the chances are good" that a continuing resolution will go through if no agreement is reached.

But he noted, "I want to get this done if I can on Monday."

Congress passed the first resolution on Oct. 13 to silence the protests of about 240,000 federal employes whose paychecks were threatened.

City rainfall total still under normal

With only .1 inch of rainfall in the last 24 hours, Midland fell behind the average rainfall of 1.38 inches for October, the weatherman said.

The city has had 1.27 inches of precipitation this month, and this year to date, the city has had 6.55 inches of rainfall, running well behind the average annual rainfall of 12.5 inches.

The weatherman predicted skies should be generally fair with temperatures a little cooler tonight and Tuesday. The low temperature tonight should fall to the lower 50s. The high temperature Tuesday is expected to be in the middle 70s. Winds should be light and northerly tonight.

Sunday's high temperature was 84 degrees. The overnight low temperature was 54 degrees, the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

All area towns reported clear weather this morning with some fog reported in Rankin and Big Lake.

Early today, the front was moving eastward along a line from Vernon to west of Abilene to near Sanderson. Behind the front, skies were clear and temperatures were slightly cooler.

Ahead of the front, there was considerable low cloudiness in eastern and central portions of the state and some shower activity was reported during the night over portions of South Central Texas.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s with extremes ranging from 43 at Dalhart in the Panhandle to 76 at Brownsville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. The Associated Press reported.

Some early morning readings included 46 at Amarillo, 64 at Wichita Falls, 70 at Texarkana, 68 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 72 at San Antonio, 70 at Lufkin, 66 at Houston, 75 at Corpus Christi and McAllen, 66 at Del Rio, 65 at San Angelo, 62 at El Paso and 54 at Lubbock.

Bass's name was misspelled throughout the plea to support U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in his re-election bid next year.

The "B" in Bass was left out. s"The kicker was the last sentence," Bass said, laughing. "It said: 'With kindest regards, Mr. A-, I am sincerely, Gerald R. Ford.'"

Bass, a Democrat, said he probably wouldn't be supporting the Republican Helms anyway.

Munns win father-son cake contest at Midkiff

MIDKIFF — An experimental cake baked by 16-year-old Todd Munn and his dad, Wayne Munn, won first place Saturday night in the Midkiff Boy Scouts' father-son cake baking contest.

Winning second in the 21-cake competition was a Texas-shaped cake baked by Dwayne Braden, 16, and his father, Gene Braden.

Third place was taken by two bachelors, Slim Smith, 22, and Marvin Baker, 21. This duo of assistant Scoutmasters concocted a two-tier Texas-shaped cake.

The cake contest judges were N. M. "Pete" Anderson, Don Harkrider, Mart Cope, Tom Martin and Ed Todd, all of Midland; Reagan County Commissioner Wayne Dolan of Big Lake, and Big Lake Mayor Bill Scheemann.

Love softened her feelings

By GEORGE RAMOS
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Christine is married to an illegal alien from Mexico.

Terms — illegal alien, wetback, bracero — do not mean much to this U.S. citizen. She and Juan, whom she met at work, are in love.

The fact that she is married to an illegal seems more surprising when she recounts being raped by a Mexican at the age of 14.

"From that point on (the rape), I was more than prejudiced," Christine recalls.

"I hated Mexican men. I never understood their culture, was insulted by catcalls and was irritated that the United States permitted such trash to enter our country."

But Juan, who comes from Santa Rita, Jalisco, made her think differently, she said. Perhaps it was his aloofness, his quiet manner or the inner strength he seemed to exude.

Whatever it was, Christine, now 38, says Juan made her curious about the illegals who come to the United States for work. And, she was curious about him personally.

She wanted to learn more. Enough so, she said, that she wanted to marry Juan, who is now 28.

Her parents were upset at the prospects of marriage. "You should have learned enough about Mexicans to know not to marry one," her parents lectured.

> "I hated Mexican men. I never understood their culture, was insulted by catcalls and was irritated that the United States permitted such trash to enter our country."
>
> Christine

Nevertheless, the couple married.

That was three years ago. But the problems still exist.

For example, they must remarry in September in order to process Juan's formal application to remain in this country legally. The previous application, the couple was told, was inadequate.

There also is the specter of Juan's being deported. They are less afraid of apprehension, than the violence he might encounter at the border. Juan has many stories of his border experiences. "I don't want to try that again," he admits.

The couple met at a Gardena, Calif., factory. Christine recalls trying her little knowledge of Spanish one day in order to communicate with Juan.

"I went to him and very bluntly said in Spanish, 'Are you married?' He said no, but he immediately turned around and began working again — always at his fast and furious pace. He then ignored me."

Later, it turned out that Christine had asked Juan if he was tired (cansado), not if he was married (casado).

The plant was raided several years before the couple was married. Juan was among those who were deported back to Mexico.

The situation in Mexico, he says, is a hard one for Americans to understand.

"The men come here to work and we don't take away any jobs from the Americans," Juan said. "Rights? We have no rights here. The Border Patrol just catches you and sends you back."

The couple's life at home is relatively simple. She does all the driving. They tend to stay at home, spending much of their leisure time in the backyard with an assortment of animals.

Juan does all of the cooking ("He's a great cook," Christine says) and much of the other domestic work.

The only language spoken in the house is Spanish, although Juan knows a few words in English. Asked if he has problems with the neighbors, he quipped:

"I don't have problems with the neighbors. I don't speak English."

Christine fervently defends the presence of the Mexican illegal in the United States, saying they are here for honest work. Others, however, think love has made her understand the plight of illegals here.

Perhaps her own words say it best:

"How do I feel about Juan? It isn't important that he's a wetback and a Mexican. Years ago, I was told to stop looking for a Prince Charming because he didn't exist. How very glad I am that I didn't take that advice. My Prince Charming not only exists, he is my husband. And he has made me his princess."

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the unhappy wife whose husband always gives her unsigned greeting cards on special occasions.

He sounds like my husband. One year he gave me a birthday card with a $10 check in it. On the card he wrote, "Put this away for us to use on our vacation."

Can anybody top this for cheapness?—WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Yes. Read on for three toppers:

DEAR ABBY: For Mother's Day my big-hearted husband gave me a check for $50 and asked me not to cash it until after June 1. Well, I waited until June 5 to cash it, but it bounced anyway!—PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine told me that on her birthday her mother instructed her to go to the desk, get out the box of handy "all-occasion greeting cards," pick out the one she liked best for "birthdays," read it, and then put it back in the box!—HYSTERICAL

DEAR ABBY: How's this for a "generous" anniversary present from a loved one! Just before our 10th anniversary, my husband asked to borrow $100 so he could buy me something really special. I gave it to him, but I never saw that "something special"—and I never saw my $100 again, either.

DEAR ABBY: What is my obligation to a woman, 30 years my senior, who is ignorant, petty, vicious, demanding, selfish and obnoxious? She lives nearby and does not leave me alone for one day. Everyone in the family visits her for five minutes and runs. She is my mother-in-law, and I cannot stand her!—STUCK

DEAR STUCK: Get help, dear. All that hostility, bitterness and resentment is doing YOU more harm than the object of your hatred.

DEAR READERS: To illustrate how much times have changed in the last 50 years, this item appeared in the Milwaukee Sentinel in 1927:

"MILWAUKEE—The Marquette University dean of men has announced a ban on private apartments for men. 'First thing we know,' he said, 'these apartment dwellers invite in some girls for a party, and trouble follows.' Girls must present excuses if out after 11 p.m., the dean of women announced, but otherwise will have plenty of freedom. They may wear short skirts and apply rouge as their consciences dictate."

WOMEN'S NEWS

Men get breast cancer, too

By LEW SCARR
Copley News Service

Breast cancer in men? Yes. It is rare but even more deadly than breast cancer in women.

Breast cancer in men accounts for only about 1 per cent of all cancers in men, a distinguished clinician and researcher reports.

"But the 5- and 10-year survival rates in men are considerably lower as compared with that in women," Dr. Thomas L. Dao said.

Dao said that from 600 to 700 American men every year get breast cancer compared with approximately 90,000 women. Still, he recommends that men practice regular self-examination of their breasts just as women do.

In fact, he believes that failure to do this accounts in part for the poor prognosis of the disease in men.

"Sixty to 65 percent of male patients, we have found, have axillary lymph node metastasis (spread of the disease to nodes in the armpits), compared with only 45 per cent in women," Dao said.

He said this indicates that men do not think about examining their breasts as women do, and when they do find something suspicious, tend to put off seeking medical advice longer than women do.

His clinic sees about 100 cases of breast cancer a year in men. He said that research he has conducted convinces him that the origins of the disease, as in women, is related to production of the hormone estrogen.

"In the last few years in our laboratory," Dao said, "we have measured highly elevated levels of estrogen in the (urinary) excretion of men with cancer of the breast, indicating that there is an altering of the metabolism of estrogen in men with breast cancer."

Dao said that in patients upon whom orchiectomies (removal of the testes) were performed, there were reductions of estrogen in the urine. He said this indicates that estrogen, a hormone responsible for development of feminine sex characteristics, is testicular in origin in the male.

He said there is no way to predict what types of men will tend to develop breast cancer. However, he said that he has seen two cases of men who took estrogen as part of a sex-change procedure and developed breast cancer.

Breast cancer is a lesion which forms in the mammary glands, which men as well as women have. However, male nammary glands are about 1-100th the size of women's, which is just about the difference in the incidence of the disease in the sexes.

Dao said that primary treatment of breast cancer in men is about the same as women.

"Although radical mastectomy has been practiced for decades on women," he said, "we have routinely performed modified radical mastectomy for male breast cancer in our clinic.

"However, we often choose simple mastectomy in elderly patients, particularly in those over 70."

Women attorneys win cases

By PAUL STEVENS
Associated Press Writer

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — In a matter of weeks, Nola Moore experienced her highest and lowest moments as a Sedgwick County prosecutor who deals solely with sexual assault cases.

A man on trial for taking indecent liberties with a minor was acquitted by the jury, and the alleged victim, a 14-year-old girl, began crying as Mrs. Moore told her the verdict.

But a short time later, the assistant district attorney received a letter from the girl. It read: "Please don't feel bad. You did a really good job ...you understand people a lot more than others."

"It meant a lot to me," Mrs. Moore said. "What made me feel good was I felt I had done something to help her. I was upset I had lost the case but I felt I had done my job because she understood and she was not bitter. I think what I did made it easier on her."

Mrs. Moore is one of four young women who are handling sexual offense cases in Kansas' three largest cities — Wichita, Topeka and Kansas City. But the women prosecutors seldom lose their cases.

Of 23 cases closed by Mrs. Moore and Sharon Werner, members of the Sedgwick County district attorney's sex offenses division, 21 have resulted in convictions or a guilty plea.

Joan Hamilton of the Shawnee County DA's office in Topeka has lost two cases in about 75. Anita Mortimer of the Wyandotte County DA's office in Kansas City, Kan., has had only three acquittals in about 35 cases.

None of the four attorneys, all in their mid-20s and graduates of Washburn University law school in Topeka, claims her success is due to the fact that she is a woman. But it hasn't hurt.

"I'm not saying that men are not compassionate," Mrs. Moore said. "I just think we have a better rapport with women. We usually have them telling us things they'd never tell anyone else."

Said her partner, Ms. Werner, "I truly believe after working with a victim from the initial interview that we acquire a feeling about that particular person and as a result I believe it's less traumatic for that person in the courtroom. I think through this the woman can be put more at ease, her testimony can be more coherent in the courtroom."

Mrs. Hamilton, who has prosecuted sex offenses for a year, says being a woman often helps her relate better to the younger victims. But she cautions that it cannot be carried too far.

"You have to keep your professionalism. You must keep away from a 'I'm a woman, I know what she's going through' attitude," she said.

The first thing she asks a victim is "if they prefer a male attorney." Mrs. Hamilton added, "If they're not confident with a woman, I'm not going to let my personal pride overcome what she wants." So far, none has refused her services.

Old farm, yard gadgets add interest to decor

By CAROL EICHEN
Copley News Service

If you're moving from the farm to a city apartment or from a big house to a maintenance-free condominium, don't throw away the farm equipment or old yard tools.

Instead, clean the dirt off, spray them with paint and hang them on an accent wall. Any old farm implements like hoes, pitchforks, rakes, tools and other gadgets which have lost their usefulness can be given a second life as part of an exciting wall decor.

The best idea is to group several of these antiqued collectables and paint them white with an enamel spray paint. For a dramatic effect, hang them on a brightly colored wall of red, green, yellow or even brown.

If the landlord insists on your keeping the walls white, you can create an eye-appealing effect by hanging white on white. The shadow effects can be quite dramatic.

To highlight the wall decor, install track lighting which will spotlight each of the objects. The biggest bonus is that all of this can be done on a low budget.

It's a perfect way to create a focal point in a family room or den which might otherwise be very ordinary. To complete the rural American feeling, use calico fabrics for the curtains and upholstery and add a few hooked rugs.

Furnishings for such a room can include an Early American harvest table, antiques from the Colonial period or anything that creates the feeling of provencial America.

This same idea can be extended to the kitchen.

Paint them white and hang them on an otherwise drab kitchen wall. Placed on a brightly colored background, an arrangement of old kitchen utensils can add some warmth and interest to the room.

When cleaning out the closets, take a good look at the "junk" before you discard it. You'd be surprised at some of the creative ways you can find to "recycle" it.

Best ages listed for having child

Based on physical and maturational factors, the best age for women to have two children is at age 28 and 30—and for men at age 30 and 32. This does not, however, account for individual differences, says Debby Johnson, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Programs discussed

The directors of the Midland Woman's Club met in the clubhouse to discuss programs and projects for the year.

The next meeting for the Woman's Club will be at 11:30 a.m. Nov. 17. There will a luncheon and program on "Hands Up." A Christmas program, "Christmas Around the World," will be presented by Bill Cormack of the Midland Independent School District Dec. 15.

Two British zoologists trying to save threatened orangutans

The Washington Post

BOHOROK, Indonesia — A young couple living deep in the Sumatran rain forest near here is teaching pet orangutans how to return to the wilds. The reddish apes, whose name means "man of the forest," are considered prestigious pets by many Indonesians, although keeping them is illegal.

Cuddly and babylike when they're young, adult orangutans can weigh over 200 pounds and have the strength of three men. That's when their owners tend to get nervous and call for Rosalind and Conrad Aveling.

The Avelings, both 26, are British zoologists who run the Orangutan Rehabilitation Project, organized by the Swiss-based World Wildlife Fund. The project involves curing the orangutans of any human-borne diseases they've picked up in captivity and then preparing them to live without human support in the rain forest.

But the rehabilitation of the apes is largely symbolic.

"Rehabilitating a relative handful of orangs isn't going to make much of a difference in the survival of the species," Conrad said. There are now guessed to be anywhere between 4,000 and 12,000 orangutans in north Sumatra, Borneo and the east Malaysian state of Sabah, their only natural habitats.

"The orangs are the figureheads for what we're really trying to do here," he continued. "Our main task is to try to preserve their habitat, to halt the wholesale destruction of the rain forest itself."

According to Conrad, who holds a doctorate in entomology, the study of insects, the Sumatran rain forest is rapidly being eaten away by oil exploration, voracious timber-cutting and inefficient farming.

"In another 10 years, 80 percent of the forest will be gone," he predicted gloomily. "The consequences for the ecology of Sumatra and for worldwide knowledge of tropical rain forests could be disastrous."

With this in mind, the Avelings work from 7 a.m. to midnight on a variety of research projects concerning the dense, steamy jungles that comprise the 80,000-acre Langkat Reserve in northern Sumatra.

"Research is critical right now," explained Rosalind, who's a specialist in primates. "So little is really known about tropical forests, and it's essential that we move quickly ...before it's all gone."

But the eye-catching part of their job is working with the orangutans. "It's what draws the visitors. Believe it or not," Conrad said the other day, "we get as many as 150 tourists out here on a Sunday."

It is a little hard to believe. Anyone traveling to the project site, five hours by rattletrap bus from the port city of Medan or three hours in a jeep over rocky roads, has to walk the final mile through a natural-rock tunnel, along a steep, hilly trail, parts of which were recently washed out in a monsoon deluge, and then cross a narrow but swift river.

The crossing is accomplished by first shouting for one of the three Indonesian forest rangers who work with the Avelings. One of them meanders down the hill from the rough hut where they live and bails out a pencil-thin dugout canoe.

Squatting in the dugout and hauling on a rope linked to a steel cable stretched across the river, the ranger floats over and takes visitors back. More often than not, the canoe is full of water once again by the time it completes the trip.

Then a scramble up the slope to where the Avelings live in a tiny concrete-block, thatch-roofed cottage. Conrad, blond and bearded, looks the part of a jungle researcher. But Rosalind, whose long brown hair and porcelain complexion give her a certain Alice-In-Wonderland look, seems oddly out of place.

Until the visitor realizes the infant she's cradling is an orangutan. "We got him when he was 1 month old," she said. "Loggers had shot his mother and were keeping the baby. The Indonesian conservation authorities confiscated him and turned him over to us.

"We named him Riang, which means 'cheerful,' because he was so happy even though he was shriveled and dehydrated and one of his fingers had been broken." Rosalind paused for a moment and then added with a smile, "But we weren't terribly cheerful when we had to get up in the middle of every night to give him his formula." Riang is now 4 months old, sleeps through the night and no longer wears diapers. But he still drinks canned baby-formula milk.

Although she was obviously attached to Riang, Rosalind said she'd have no trouble sending him off to the jungle when he is 9 months old or so. "After all," she said, "that's what this project is all about."

Rosalind has shown herself to be tough when the welfare of the orangutans is at stake. Recently, she said, while on a trip to a remote area in north Sumatra, she confiscated a pet orangutan from some loggers and brought it back, on a 16-hour bus trip.

"Actually, we have no authorization to confiscate the animals," she admitted shyly. "But I bluffed my way through. It wasn't too difficult, because most Indonesians know it's illegal to keep an orang."

The Avelings are now training 12 orangutans to climb trees and to forage for their own bananas, leaves, bark and insects. Another five of the apes were being confined in quarantine cages scattered around the cottage.

Rosalind Aveling fondles a baby that later could weigh more than 200 pounds.

"The orangs are highly susceptible to human diseases," Conrad said. "They can pick up anything from colds to tuberculosis, and it's terribly important that we don't introduce these diseases into the habitat." While in quarantine, the orangutans are innoculated for a number of diseases and dosed with worm medicine.

The length of the teaching process varies, depending on the age of the orangutan and how long it's been in captivity. Each morning, either Rosalind or Conrad and one of the rangers trudge up 400 steps hacked into the side of a steep jungle hill.

At the top of the hill the orangutans are waiting, swinging from trees and vines, for their share of the 150 bunches of stubby cooking bananas distributed each week. The apes drop onto the top of a large, empty cage where the bananas are handed out and then scamper back up into the trees.

Some of the animals, particularly those who've spent more than two or three years as pets, are reluctant to climb. In these cases, Conrad and the rangers have to pretend to threaten them — swinging sticks, stamping on the roof of the cage and shouting in order to scare them up into the trees. If they stay on the ground, they easily fall victim to predators.

"We play at psychology," Rosalind said. "I'm the gentle one and Conrad is the bad guy. That way, the orangs don't become overly insecure."

Orangutans have a number of near-human physical and psychological traits, the Avelings noted. Their gestation period is nine months. They live to 35 or 40 years and attain sexual maturity between 8 and 12 and can acquire the intelligence of a 5-year-old child.

Conrad told a story about forgetting his 35 mm camera at the feeding station one evening. "When I went back next morning, the thing had been taken completely apart," he said. "Not smashed, but completely unscrewed."

Orangutans live in trees and make fresh nests each night and often just to take a midday nap. Mothers nurse babies for 18 months and keep children with them until they're 3 or 4 years old. "It's not at all unusual for a frightened 2-year-old to return to its mother for nursing when it needs comforting," Rosalind said.

Although the Avelings mourn the erosion of the rain forest, they're pragmatic. "I know human advance must come first," Conrad said. He noted, for example, that the Indonesian government's policy of transmigration, moving thousands of families from the overcrowded island of Java to Sumatra, would make a major contribution to destroying the jungle. "So will the Sumatran highway, when it's completed," he said. "But that's called progress."

The Avelings have been here since last March and plan to stay another two or three years. Their predecessors, a Swiss couple, stayed only nine months, "evidently because they didn't like all the visitors," Conrad said.

The orangutan project was founded in 1973 by two Swiss women, Regina Frey and Monica Borner, and is funded mainly by West Germany's Frankfurt Zoological Society.

Family keeps 8-year-old alive with special helmet

CROSS PLAINS, Tex. (AP) — Avoidance of sweets and fatty foods is part of the medical regimen 8-year-old Alethea Albrecht must adhere to because of a congenital condition. To guarantee that she does, her family has her wear a helmet.

The action has sparked controversy and charges of cruel punishment.

The Albrechts admit that some people view the helmet as a punishment. "To us, it's a matter of life and death," her mother, Barbara Albrecht, said.

"Alethea is living today because we love her. We could shut her up like our hamster, inside the house with a little treadmill for exercise and get her fat, like some people have suggested. But what would that do to her mentally?

Alethea's problem is an intestinal condition she was born with that prevents her body from assimilating food and liquid normally.

Doctors found that fatty or sweet foods aggravated her problem, causing diarrhea, which results in dehydration and extreme weight loss. Her weight and height are already below normal.

Amy Albrecht, Alethea's grandmother, came up with the idea for a beekeeper's-like hood, a screen mesh helmet that fits over her head and rests on her shoulders.

Some have compared it to literature's "Man In The Iron Mask" — a form of cruel punishment.

"I went to the school and explained to Alethea's teacher," said Barbara Albrecht, Alethea's mother. "She told the children that when you have a broken arm, they put your arm in a sling. Or when you have a broken leg, they put it in a cast. And that this helmet is designed to help Alethea's problem."

Brown-Callahan County Department of Human Resources director Gary Bailey said he had received calls from persons concerned about the use of the helmet and that a social worker has been working with the Albrechts.

"This is a family concerned with a unique problem," Bailey said. "Our program is a resource to the family and their doctor as they work to help the child adjust to her condition as well as possible."

"We want her to live as normal a life as possible until her problem is solved," said her mother. "If anyone can come up with a better idea, we're ready to listen."

They made him do it

CLEVELAND (AP) — The note from the holdup man said he had a gun and that the request for $10,000 was no joke, so the Cleveland Trust Co. teller put some cash in a bag and handed it across the counter.

Trouble was, the teller said, the robber was too short to reach it, so the man in line behind him handed it down to the dwarf.

Police said the robber, who was known to the security guard and teller at the bank branch as Little Eddie, was arrested at a nearby auto parts store shortly after the holdup Friday, and the bag full of money was recovered.

No gun was found.

Detectives, who held the robber for questioning, quoted him as saying, "Four big guys made me do it."

Texans claim ERDA refuses to consider small energy firms

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — If Thomas Edison had depended on ERDA, we'd be using kerosene lamps today. Or so believe two colorful characters named Johnny Carter and Dave Marke.

And this view has some support on the Texas Energy Advisory Council and in segments of the budding solar energy industry.

ERDA is the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration. Its job is to help develop alternate energy sources.

Carter, 29, and Marke, 31, own Solar Dynamics Ltd. It has two other employes and a big barn of a workshop on Warehouse Row. It also had a dream — manufacture of a compact solar-powered home electrical plant "that would enable the consumer to disconnect from the utility."

What it doesn't have is the money to build the working prototype it needs to sell the concept and get the capital needed to start production.

That's where ERDA comes in. And that's where Carter gets mad. ERDA has ignored him for a year and a half. He'd like a yes or a no. Preferably a yes.

They contend ERDA ignores the small outfits and hands out the research and development money to established industrial giants such as Boeing, Rockwell, McDonnell-Douglas and Martin-Marietta.

"You've gotta have a billion-dollar gross to be able to compete for contracts," says Carter, a short, bespectacled man with long hair and the scruffy beginnings of a beard. His business suit is a work shirt, old blue jeans and cowboy boots.

Sour grapes?

Possibly.

"ERDA is not interested in funding anything they didn't think of first. They are not interested in funding anything that is large-scale unless it is a large corporation," King said.

He said he visited ERDA in Washington and found it was interested in dealing neither with states nor small companies.

King said ERDA's people "come from places like RCA, GE, Martin-Marietta. It is ridiculous. If big money is to be had, it is for big corporations."

The journal "People and Energy" looked at ERDA's solar contracts for fiscal 1976 and concluded that "large energy companies such as General Electric, Lockheed, RCA, Boeing and Westinghouse received ERDA solar contracts worth five times the amount awarded to small businesses."

Moreover, it said, these companies have interlocking directorages "with such other energy giants as Standard Oil of California, Atlantic Richfield, Getty Oil, Nuclear Corp. of America and other utility, oil and nuclear companies."

Which brings us back to Carter and Marke, certainly no industrial giants.

Are they nuts with a far-out concept nobody in their right mind would bankroll?

Hardly, say both King and Gary Vliet, associate professor of mechanical engineering at The University of Texas at Austin.

"The technology they are working with is already developed. They are not taking on anything new ... The technology is definitely viable," says King, whose agency has $1.5 million in money for research on alternative energy sources.

Vliet calls the Marke-Carter proposal "feasible" but thinks Solar Dynamics is "a little over-optimistic about the possibilities in terms of a near-term market for solar electric power generation."

Carter, something of a drummer, handles the business end. He has run a construction company, been a music show promoter and lobbied in Louisiana on "everything from stopping the war to legalizing pot."

Their device — it has no name as of now — consists of a 12-foot fiberglass dish, lined with aluminized plastic film. Heat would be concentrated and reflected down a pipe, to be stored in a metallic salt compound in a ceramic-lined container, where temperatures would reach an average of about 1,800 degrees Fahrenheit. The heat would boil a gas such as freon, which would turn a turbine and develop the necessary alternating current. The system could provide 28 days' storage for periods of low sunlight, Marke says.

Marke thwacks a cane against the back brace he wears because of an injury received in Nevada and says, "To get the thing into the marketable phase, we need $100,000 for a prototype."

"Realistically, in 10 years, you should be able to buy it with six or seven thousand of today's dollars," he said.

Nearby is the fiberglass master mold that he and Carter built in a temporary cast they fashioned from lumber and ordinary clay.

"The innovative aspect is it is an integrated system — the thing as a whole. Nobody's done it yet," Marke says.

Carter, meanwhile, says he's going to be less persistent in beating on doors in Washington, and it might be a good idea.

"Carter sometimes oversells ... ERDA is pretty sick of hearing from him. Everybody at ERDA knows who Johnny Carter is. They really have no interest in him — dealing with a small company," King says.

Nuclear plants creating tough disposal problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is studying whether it needs tougher rules to deal with worn-out nuclear power plants, facilities which would remain radioactive for more than 50,000 years after their shutdown.

The NRC and its predecessor, the Atomic Energy Commission, already have licensed 67 nuclear power plants for commercial operations and have authorized construction of 77 more.

None of those power plants has yet run through its useful lifetime, considered by the nuclear industry and the NRC to be around 40 years.

But when they do, their power-generating innards will be left dangerously radioactive from years of exposure to the energy bursts of splitting atoms.

And they will stay "hot" and hazardous for periods of time that make human generations seem like mere instants.

The nuclear industry's chief expert in this field testified last month that it would take 51,350 years for the carbon-14 radioactivity created in one kind of nuclear plant, gas-cooled, to decay "to acceptably low levels."

The expert, William J. Manion, a divison president of Nuclear Energy Services, Inc., testified it would take between 234,000 and 505,000 years for the acceptable decay of nickel-59 radioactivity in water-cooled reactors, the kind already in general use.

It was Manion who directed a study published in November 1976 for the Atomic Industrial Forum, the nuclear industry trade organization, which estimated the costs of keeping these "hot" powerplants isolated from the public and the environment.

Basically, Manion's study identified two ways of doing this: either tear down the radioactive powerplant immediately, with careful and costly protection of workers and the public, or seal the plant for about a century, until the radioactivity has cooled off enough to make dismantling easier and cheaper.

In either case, the radioactive parts would eventually be buried someplace where it is hoped they would remain isolated and undisturbed for the rest of the 51,000 to 505,000 years their significant radioactivity would last.

Manion told a House subcommittee that "mothballing" a powerplant for 100 years — locking it up and posting 24- hour guards — and then burying its radioactive parts would cost up to $29.7 million.

"Entombing" the plant — sealing it with concrete and dispensing with around-the-clock guards — might cost around $23 million, including disposal of the radioactive parts after 100 years.

Immediate dismantling and burial of the radioactive parts would require a large initial investment, but eliminate the expenses of guarding and mainenance for a century, and would cost somewhere between $25 million and $38 million, Manion estimated.

Depending on the type of reactor, he said, it could cost an additional $7 million to $15 million to tear down an obsolete plant completely, including the portions which are not radioactive.

Manion's estimates did not consider the added cost of tying up money that could be used more productively for something else during the many years it would take to "decommission" a plant and bury it once and for all. Nor did it include the effects of inflation.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, however, has used the industry's estimates to calculate "that decommissioning costs add very little (probably less than one percent) to the cost of generating electricity."

As a result of that opinion, the NRC has not been particularly concerned about requiring specific financial arrangements by the companies to guarantee eventual decommissioning.

Testifying before the same hearing as Manion, Clifford V. Smith, Jr., director of the NRC Office of Nuclear Materials Safety and Safeguards, explained that the commission does not require specific plans or funds for future decommissioning when it authorizes a new nuclear powerplant.

The NRC, he said, "must be satisfied that feasible decommissioning alternatives do exist and that the applicant possesses or has the capability to provide the necessary funds to complete the task.

This means the company building the plan must show it can pay for disposing of the plant 40 years, or maybe 140 years, later.

Mahon asks farm views

WASHINGTON — West Texas farmers and agricultural leaders should let their views be known on proposed federal regulations governing the use of set-aside acreage under the new farm program, Congressman George Mahon said Saturday.

Mahon said he was concerned that under the proposed Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service rules farmers would be unable to graze wheat set-aside acreage as had been the practice in previous farm programs.

"I urge farmers to make their wishes known. In my opinion it would be most damaging to our wheat-growing areas for this traditional practice to be denied. I have protested to the Secreatry of Agriculture in person and by letter and I hope farmers will also make their voices heard in this matter," Mahon said.

Young pair still critical

An 18-year-old Midland man was listed in satidfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital early today after he was injured in a car accident about midnight Sunday at the intersection of Lamesa Road and Interstate 20.

According to police, Koby Ray Reeves of 3907 Tanner Lane was westbound on the north service road when his car left the road, traveled 289 feet and struck a guard rail and concrete pillar.

After striking the pillar, police said, the car came to rest under the overpass. Police said a damaged right front tire led them to believe a blowout may have caused the car to leave the road.

DOUGLAS, Ariz. (AP) — Mexican soldiers have been assigned to patrol the Sonoran border to prevent a confrontation between Mexican nationals and members of the Ku Klux Klan, the U.S. Border Patrol said.

A Border Patrol spokesman said there were no reports of any Klansmen patrolling the border in Arizona this weekend. The Klan's national leader, David Duke, announced in Tucson, Ariz., Friday that about 35 Klan members would begin patrolling the border in the Douglas, Ariz., area Saturday.

He said Klansmen would be unarmed and would drive unmarked vehicles, reporting any illegal alien activity to authorities.

Douglas police and Cochise County Sheriff's deputies also said the Klan apparently did not show up.

The U.S. Border Patrol office here said it received a memorandum from Max Hyatt, U.S. anti-smuggling agent in Nogales, Ariz., concerning the detachment of Mexican troops to the border. According to the memo, Hyatt met Oct. 20 with Conrad Batiz, an official of the Mexican Immigration Service in Nogales, Sonora, and was told that the army detachment would patrol along the border and several miles to the south.

The Border Patrol spokesman said the presence of troops may have accounted for decreased illegal alien activity during the weekend. He said only one illegal Mexical alien was encountered Saturday.

"Once they know the federales are patrolling the area, activity along the border slows down to nothing," an agent said.

Although there were no indications of Klan activity, a Roman Catholic Mass of non-violence was hggm international boundary Sunday and Mexicans were warned to be careful "because the Klan is very dangerous."

The warning came from Margo Cowan, director of the Manzo Area Council, a Tucson social work agency, in an address before the Mass.

Earlier this month, she urged a boycott of border town businesses to highlight a plea for federal intervention in the acquittal of two Douglas-area brothers in an illegal alien torture case. Thomas and Patrick Hanigan were acquitted on several counts in the alleged kidnapping and torture of three aliens in August 1976. The FBI is investigating whether the Mexicans civil rights were violated.

They were being held in the Maricopa County jail for questioning in the slaying of Walter McClosky, 53, an unemployed miner from Mt. Pass, Calif.

Oregon gets snow

By The Associated Press

The Oregon Cascades are having their first major snow of the season with accumulations of from 6-to-12 inches at some spots.

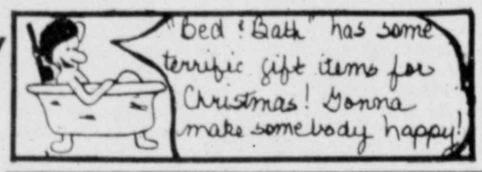

Timberline Lodge had six inches of snow Sunday, and Mount Hood Meadows, another ski area, received a foot of snow.

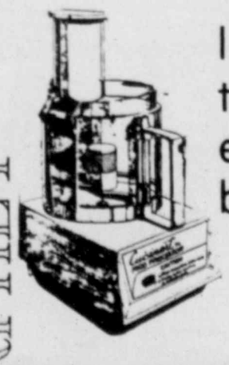

Thunderstorms extended from northeast Texas and northern Louisiana through Minnesota and eastern sections of the Dakotas. Windy weather also plagued the Dakotas. Light rains and cool wether were reported across Oklahoma.

Thunderstorms also continued over eastern Florida. A tornado touched down near Melbourne, florida late last night. There were no reports of damage or injuries.

Showers were widely scattered from the Gulf Coast across extreme south Texas, just east of the central Rockies and from the northern Rockies to the Washington coast.

By MIKE COCHRAN

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Karen Master tries again today to convince a jury her millionaire boyfriend was home with her when a gunman killed two persons at a hilltop Fort Worth mansion.

The 28-year-old divorcee contends Cullen Davis was asleep in bed beside her when the defendant's young stepdaughter and his estranged wife's lover were slain.

She testified Friday it was precisely 12:40 when she awoke the morning of Aug. 3, 1976, and saw Davis, 44, asleep in her king-size bed.

But she did not explain on cross-examination by prosecutor Joe Shannon why she did not tell investigators or a grand jury about the timely and most critical awakening.

It was within minutes of 12:40 a.m. that a man in black killed Andrea Wilborn, 12, and Stan Farr, 30, and wounded Davis' jet-set blonde wife Priscilla, 36.

The fourth victim of the midnight carnage, Gus Gavrel, 22, was crippled in the gunfire but his date that night Beverly Bass, 19, escaped injury.

Mrs. Master, mother of two young sons, said she began dating Davis shortly after he and Priscilla separated in the summer of 1974.

She said he moved into her suburban Edgecliff Village home in September 1975, which would have been about three months before Farr began sharing the $6 million mansion with Priscilla.

The two sets of lovers crossed paths on three or four occasions, she testified, but there was never any hostility between Stan and Cullen: They were friendly if not friends.

However, Shannon brought out that Davis referred to the six-foot-ten Farr as "Too Tall," perhaps in a disparaging way, but that was not the prosecutor's prime target area.

He pointed out that Mrs. Master once said under oath she went to bed at 9 or 9:30 the night of Aug. 2 and did not awaken until 4 or 4:15 a.m. when Davis' brother Ken telephoned with news of the shootings.

It was a misunderstanding, she said. She meant she did not get up out of bed during that time but that she had indeed awakened and noticed on a digital clock that it was 12:40 a.m.

"Your boyfriend had been arrested for murder and you did not tell (police) he was home in bed with you?" Shannon asked sarcastically.

"No, I did not," she replied.

Mexican reserves make it potentially wealthy

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The director of the government oil monopoly Pemex said last week this nation's petroleum reserves are estimated at 120 billion barrels, making the Mexico potentially one of the oil-richest nations in the world.

The announcement by Director Jorge Diaz Serrano during a meeting of Mexico's lower house was double the previous official estimate of 60 billion barrels, although foreign experts had put the figure higher.

Diaz Serrano said that as of June, Mexico had proven reserves of 14 billion barrels. He said that since then 2.8 billion barrels of additional reserves havebeen proven.

He said geological surveys and test drilling had shown probable reserves of 29.2 billion barrels with the remainder classified as "potential".

"For the first time in its history, Mexico has wealth that opens the possibility of solving the economic problems of the nation," Diaz Serrano said.

He also said Mexico has the chance "to build a new country, a rich country where the right to work is a reality."

In November 1976 Mexico reported its proven reserves at only 6.3 billion barrels.

The director told the chamber of deputies many of the nation's new oil fields are in southern Mexico, and that some lie below previously developed fields.

He said the additional petroleum deposits were only discovered since 1973 with new technological developments.

"In the region of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec . . . petroleum deposits have been found between 4,400 and 6,600 yards below the surface," he said.

He said the new Reforma fields near Carcenas presently are producing some 900,000 barrels of crude and natural gas a day.

"It is our opinion, which is shared with geologists and oilmen from other countries, that the Reforma fields are one of the greatest oil deposits in the world," Diaz Serrano said.

Extenders completed

The Paladin (Pennsylvanian) field of Winkler County gained a fourth well and ¾-mile west extension with completion by David Fasken, Midland, of his No. 2-29 Sealy-Smith Foundation, 13 miles southeast of Kermit.

The daily flowing potential was for 174 barrels of 35.4-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio measuring 1,701-1, producing from pay behind perforations at 8,718-8,956 feet. It finaled on an 18-64-inch choke.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 29, block A, G&MMB&A survey.

REEVES EXTENDERS

Chevron USA, Inc., has finaled two extensions in the Marsh, South (Delaware) field of Reeves, 10 miles southwest of Orla.

It is 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 35, block 45, PSL survey.

No. 1-39 Reeves-State, 1¼ mile southwest of No. 1-35 gauged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 620,000 cubic feet of dry gas daily, through perforations at 2,787-2,950 feet. The section was fractured with 6,000 gallons and 5,000 pounds.

McMillian, former Midlander, and chairman and chief executive officer of Northwest Pipeline, said the new 215-mile, 20-inch line would be jointly owned by Trans-Intermountain Gas & Energy Resources, a subsidiary of Northwest Pipeline, and by a subsidiary of Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Co. of f f f Detroit, which will construct the new line and serve as the operator. Northwest Pipeline is a subsidiary of Northwest Energy Co. and Michigan Wisconsin is a subsidiary of American Natural Resources Co.

McMillian said the new pipeline, named Wyoming Interstate Natural Gas System, will tap gas fields in the Wind River Basin and extend southwest to connect with Northwest's line near Opal, Wyo.

Patricia Neal to be honored

Remote sensing course set Nov. 10 at UTPB

ODESSA — One of the nation's leaders in the field of remote sensing for geologic exploration will present a seminar at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin Nov. 10.

Scheduled at 7:30 p.m. in Classroom 392 on the UTPB campus, the admission-free seminar will feature Dr. James V. Taranik, principal applications scientist in geology for the EROS Data Center, United Staces Geologic Survey, Sioux Falls, S.D.

He will discuss "Characteristics of the System for Geologic Application." The system uses data col.-ected from two satellites, one launched in 1972 and another in 1975. Each satellite circles the earth 14 times per day in a polar orbit, taking measurements in both visible and infrared light which can be used as an additional tool to the exploration geologist.

Bill Ramsey-Palmer, UTPB lecturer in earth science, said the principles used in this type petroleum exploration are essenbially the same as those used in aerial photography, except the undisturbed overview is much greater and the data more enhanced at a greatly reduced price.

He said the use of OF Landsat data can eliminate millions of dollars spent in geophysical and aerial photography costs.

Although the Landsat system may be used in may ways, Ramsey-Palmer said Taranik's remarks will pay special attention to applications to petroleum exploration.

Taranik holds a B.S. degree in geology from Stanford University and a Ph.D. in geology from Colorado School of Mines. He serves as an adjunct professor at the University of South Dakota and the University of Iowa.

Parking ends

CLAWSON, Mich. (AP) — Bernard McGartland was just trying to park his car, but when he opened the door and stepped out, he found himself in the middle of his neighbor's living room.

The Ireys, who were just driving away from their home, saw it all in the rear view mirror of their car.

McGartland got back into his car, threw it into reverse and backed out of the house, leaving the living room in wreckage, police said.

American belly dancers popular

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Rosemarie Park went to Egypt to study with the world's greatest bellies and found hers is one.

"It was a fiasco," the shapely blonde said in an interview. "The purpose of the tour was to learn authentic Middle Eastern belly dancing, but the people who set up the tour didn't arrange any dance seminars so we never had a lesson anywhere."

"But it had been advertised that we would be in some of the clubs and that we would perform. So we did."

And that's how Mrs. Park, a church-going lady with a young son, found herself dancing on tables in a tent in the Saraha, surrounded by a cast that could have been out of a Rudolph Valentino film.

"They sat us down at a little bitty table and gave us dinner and a lot of wine," she said. "Then after the show, the emcee reached down, grabbed my hand, pulled me onto the stage, and asked me to belly dance."

"Well, I was right near the edge of the stage, and someone pulled me onto one of the tables and they pulled me from table to table.

"It was quite an experience," she said, "surrounded by people in Arab dress with a headrobe and others in Western clothes. It was something I'd never done before and I may never again."

Mrs. Park, a public relations official for the Hamilton County Air Pollution Control Bureau, joined 33 other American belly dancers in September for the tour, promoted by a California agency which promised luxurious accommodations at a first-class hotel.

"It was a very nice hotel — we saw it later," Mrs. Park said. "But they put us in another hotel in downtown Cairo. We were on the ninth floor and the first eight floors were condemned."

"We should have known when they wouldn't let us use the stairs."

The American belly dancers, particularly the blue-eyed blondes like Mrs. Park, quickly found they were the object of much attention.

"Some of the girls were single, and I guess they enjoyed the advances," she said. "Some of the girls were married, and I guess some of them enjoyed the advances, too."

Despite its shortcomings, Mrs. Park said, the tour was a rare opportunity to watch authentic Middle Eastern belly dancers.

Here's expert answer to that home problem

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — The house we recently moved into has embossed vinyl flooring on the kitchen floor. We do not like the color or design and intend to install new sheet vinyl flooring. Can it be put on right over the old flooring?

A. — No. While sheet vinyl can be installed over nearly all surfaces, there are two exceptions. One is when the old vinyl is cushioned. The other is when it is embossed.

Q. — I have been following written instructions, taken from an old magazine, about refinishing some furniture. The instructions say to use non-rubbing varnish. My hardware dealer says a so-called stain sheen varnish he sells is the same thing. Is it?

A. — Yes. Remember, however, that any non-rubbing varnish should not be sanded, so be sure the final coat is applied in a dust-free atmosphere. What is usually done is to use regular varnish for the first one or two coats, sanding lightly to remove irregularities, then use the non-rubbing varnish for the top coat.

Q. — I recently saw an oak table in a friend's house which appeared to have white paint in the large pores of the wood. My friend called this a pickled effect but had no idea how it was done. Do you know?

A. — There are several ways to obtain this kind of appearance. Here's one that worked well some years ago. After the wood was thoroughly sanded, it was coated with an application of the white finishing material used to cover the wild grain of fir, especially fir plywood. Your hardware dealer will know what you want if you ask for it that way.

Arguments slated in murder trial

HOUSTON (AP)—Final arguments are to be presented today in the murder trial of Stephen A. Hatcher, accused of the slaying of his wife last April 1.

The charge to the jury was prepared late Friday and was to be read this morning. Final arguments then were to be presented.

The case was expected to go to the jury late this afternoon.

Hatcher, 24, is on trial in state district court in Houston for the shotgun killing of his 23-year-old wife Ann.

Hatcher was arrested April 3 at a campsite on Lake Sam Rayburn. He led police to the body of his wife, placed in a large oil can about 25 feet from the shoreline.

Hatcher has claimed, "I loved Ann. I never intended to kill her. It was an accident. It was a freak accident. I swear Ann Hatcher left this world while she was going to greet her husband."

Payton didn't want to top Gale's mark

By The Associated Press

What they were saying after Sunday's National Football League games:

"I didn't want to break Gale Sayers' record because Sayers is a super guy. What's a record? I just wanted to win the game." — Walter Payton, after he tied Sayers' club record of 205 yards rushing in the Chicago Bears' 26-0 victory over Green Bay.

"Turnovers were the difference. We had eight turnovers the last time we met but we didn't have any turnovers today and were able to keep the upper hand." — Oakland Coach John Madden, after the Raiders avenged a 30-7 loss to Denver two weeks ago by beating the Broncos 24-14.

"It feels good, but doesn't mean anything ...We're still not a solid football team yet. We need

Cowboys take 7-0 in stride

BY TED BATTLES
R-T Sports editor

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys would have been 7-0 many years earlier if today's Detroit Lions had provided the opposition. Maybe that's one reason the Cowboys were hesitant to make any big deal out of the milestone victory, a 37-0 yawner.

Twice previously Dallas reached 6-0 only to have Green Bay thwart the bid for No. 7 in 1968 and Cleveland play the spoiler in 1969.

In those days both the Browns and Packers were nagging tormentors for Dallas teams that really were just beginning to come of age after those turbulent founding years.

Against a foe the caliber of the old Browns or Packers, it would have meant a lot more, which is probably why the Cowboys took it in stride.

HARVEY MARTIN, the president in charge of sacks for Doomsday II, maybe summed it up best, "It's a nice cushion, 7-0, but a lot of teams with cushions haven't made the Super Bowl."

Or Tom Landry, "It doesn't mean anything until you win it all."

Perhaps the most impressed viewer was Detroit Coach Tommy Hudspeth, who has gone through these days before at UTEP, "We simply didn't give our people enough tools to work with. All I can say is that Dallas is a tremendous football team. I thought out defense played fairly well."

It had to. The Lions made only two first downs in the first three quarters and poked their offensive head outside their own 40 only once during that stretch as Dallas pecked away to a 23-0 halftime lead.

EFREN HERRERA toed 21 and 45 yard field goals in the first two periods to give Dallas a 6-0 lead 1:38 into the second period, which, as it turned out, was enough to win it.

"It could have been different if they had scored a touchdown after our two field goals," Landry reviewed. The reason they didn't was a "great defense, the controlling Factor which provided us with good field position throughout the game."

Mark Washington, filling in for the injured Aaron Kyle, intercepted a Greg Landry pass and returned 21 yards to the Detroit 18 to set up a 15-yard Roger Stauback to Billy Joe Dupree touchdown pass with 9:08 left in the half.

It was still 13-0 heading inside the two-minute warning when Tony Hill intecepted a Joe Reed pass at the Detroit 42.

All it took was a 26-yard pass from Staubach to Drew Pearson and an 18-yard screen to Scott Laidlaw for the score.

Of Laidlaw's 18-yarder, Staubach demured on credit, "It was a bad pass and he made a great shoetop catch. That 72 (245-pound Ernest Rice) was bearing down and I kinda lost Scott. I didn't see him when I threw the ball."

Randy White's fumble recovery and a 2-yard pass to Tony Dorsett set the stage for Herrera's third field goal, a 30-yarder, after a TD pass to Drew Pearson was wiped out by a holding penalty.

AS FAR as Landry was concerned the third period touchdown drive was the one that decided it. The Cowboys covered 80 yards in 16 plays, consuming 10:50 in the process before Staubach passed one yard to Jay Saldi for the TD with 4:55 left in the third.

"The game could have gone better for them (the Lions), if they had been able to do something early," Landry said, "But our defense was so dominant."

In holding Detroit to 79 yards total offense and making three sacks, the Cowboys weren't too far off their all-time defensive best of 63 yards and this despite the fact that not all the regulars were hearty. Aaron Kyle and D.D. Lewis both were out of action.

"Aaron would have played, but he's not going to until he gets that cast off," Landry said. "Besides Mark (Washington) has proven himself at cornerback as a first class player and he gives us depth. Lewis was sick before the game and tried before the game, but had to give it up."

"OUR BENCH reminds me of the days when I used to watch the Cowboys on TV," Martin said. "It's a credit to the Cowboys' scouting system."

"Sure it's nice...7-0," Martin went on, "but it's a plateau. I'd rather be 8-0. But we don't walk into any city unexpected, even if we have lost, so we've got to be ready any time we play."

Staubach said the Lions didn't blitz as much as they have in the past, which may have been one reason why he wound up with 16 completions for 25 attempts for 179 yards and three touchdowns.

As for the pressure of being 7-0, Staubach said, 'I don't look at it as pressure. I consider it a plus."

The Cowboys schedule down the stretch is another plus as far as Staubach is concerned. "It will be a tough grind with St. Louis, Washington, Pittsburgh and Denver down the stretch. Last year we didn't finish that way and it hurt us in the playoffs.

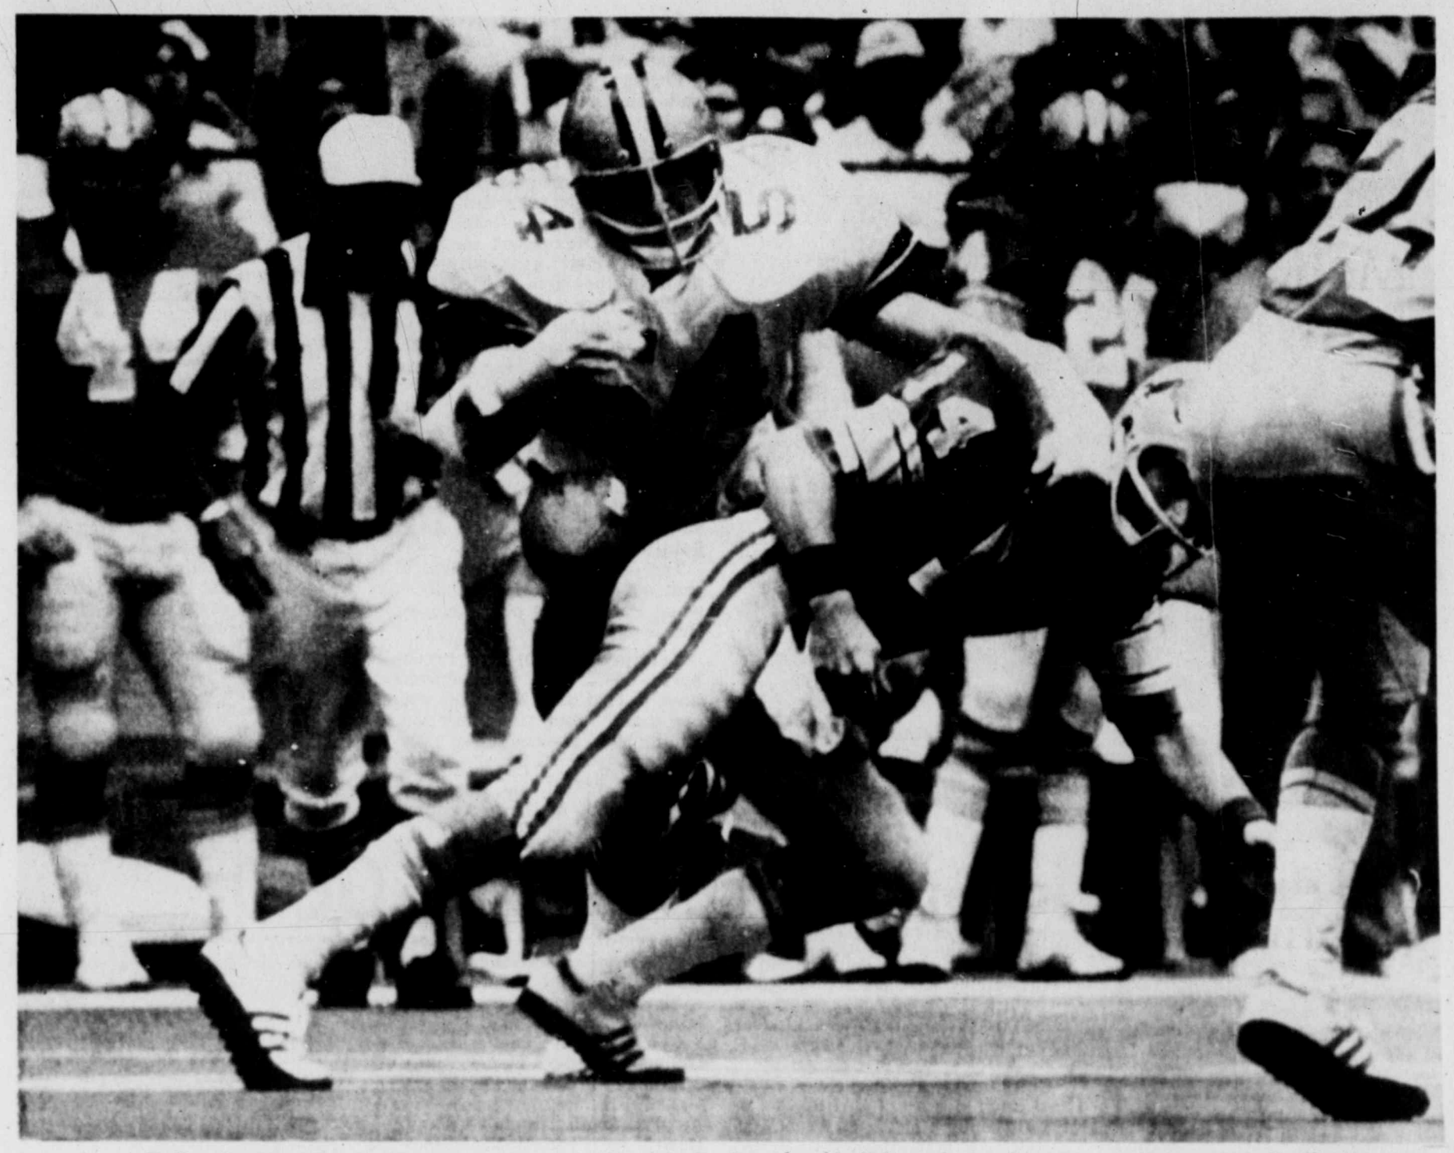

"We are very good now, but not where we are capable of being. Right now, we probably rank with eight other teams that could beat each other on any given day," he adds.

Dallas defense? "It was sensational today. I'm just glad I don't have to play against it."

COWBOYS BRIEFS — On a first half Dallas drive, Staubach was hit after scrambling for a short gain and speared. A flag immediately was thrown but no penalty called.

Roger got up and apparently was protesting, but said it wasn't what it seemed. "I was telling the ref that it wasn't a fumble. I wasn't aware a flag had been thrown and I knew I got hit, but I didn't realize it was a late hit."....

Bob Verdi, Chicago Tribune sports writer who was im Scottsdale last spring covering the Cubs, was in the Dallas dressing room to do an extensive feature on Tony Dorsett. "It was an exciting baseball season," admitted Bob, "Until Bruce Sutter got hurt and the White Sox came back to earth."...

Dallas Cowboys' Randy White (54) charges for loose ball after jarring it from the hands of Detroit quarterback Joe Reed.

Marauding Cowboys maul toothless Lions, 37-0

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

DALLAS (AP) — Quarterback Roger Staubach threw three touchdown passes and Efren Herrera kicked three field goals Sunday to propel unbeaten Dallas to a 37-0 rout over Detroit, giving the Cowboys their best start in the 17-year history of the franchise.

Dallas' seventh consecutive victory was forged by a smothering defense that limited the Lions to only three first downs until late in the game when the Cowboys went into a prevent defense. Detroit never got out of its own end of the field until less than eight minutes remained in the one-sided contest.

Mark Washington and Mike Hegman intercepted passes and Randy White stripped the ball away from reserve Lion quarterback Joe Reed to set up 17 of the Cowboy points.

Playing in a light rain, Dallas started slowly on field goals of 21 and 45 yards by Herrera, then beat the Lions over their helmets with every mistake the visitors made.

Staubach cashed in Washington's interception with a 14-yard scoring pass to tight Billy Joe Dupree and flipped a little screen pass to Scott Laidlaw following Hegman's interception for an 18-yard touchdown.

The Lions, now 3-4 for the year, have lost 10 of their last 11 games on the road.

Dallas remained three games ahead of Washington and St. Louis in the National Conference Eastern Division while Detroit fell two games behind Minnesota in the NFC Central.

Dallas was so dominating on defense that Detroit didn't get past its own 46 yardline and had only 44 yards total offense after three quarters.

Dallas scored 10 points in the final 53 seconds of the first half. After Staubach's touchdown pass to Laidlaw, White stole the ball from Reed to put Herrera in position for a 30-yard field goal to give Dallas a 23-0 halftime lead.

Former All-Pro linebacker Chuck Howley was riding in a convertible after his induction into the Cowboy Ring of Honor and Roger Staubach flipped him a shovel pass. Howley dropped it.

There was a giant roar of laughter which was a relief to the Lions, who had most of the hilarity directed at them in a game more one-sided than the score.

Detroit made only seven first downs-five of them in the final period as the Cowboys intercepted two passes, recovered a fumble and sacked Greg Landry and Joe Reed six times.

"We were afraid we would get booed if we let them score," said safety Charlie Waters. "They didn't have much of an offensive attack."

The Cowboys were somewhat irate because they almost lost to Philadelphia last week (16-10).

"We lucked out last week," said defensive end Harvey Martin, who got three of the sacks. "We needed a shutout and we went out and got it."

It was the first shutout for the Cowboys in three years.

Safety Cliff Harris of the Cowboys said "We stayed after them the whole game, not just one guy but the whole team. It's not all that much talent...it's just getting after it.

"We are more intense now than the Super Bowl teams we have had. This is the most intense I've ever seen use in the regular season."

Steers still trying to put it together

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — This will come as precious little comfort to the University of Houston, but there is a feeling among the players on the nation's No. 1 collegiate football team that they have yet to put everything together over a full 60 minutes.

Houston is on the Texas Longhorns' schedule this Saturday in the wake of Saturday's 26-0 romp by Coach Fred Akers' confident crew over battling 14th-ranked Texas Tech.

"We still aren't playing as well as we're capable," said tailback Earl Campbell. "Something little seems to always slow us down. Maybe we're saving it for somebody down the line."

Quarterback Randy McEachern, the world's most publicized former third stringer, was even criticizing his 57-yard touchdown pass to Olympian Johnny Lam Jones.

"It was a thrill to see Lam run under that long one," said McEachern, who has quarterbacked Texas to victories over Oklahoma, Arkansas, Southern Methodist and Tech since signal callers No. 1 and 2 were injured in the first period of the Oklahoma game.

But McEachern added, "Truthfully, it was far from a perfect pass. I've still got a lot of improving to do."

Akers, who had seen his team come from behind to win the three previous weeks, said, "We had some trouble offensively in the first half and forced our defense to spend too much time on the field. But there were times when I felt all phases of our game had their moments. The kicking, running, passing and defense."

Campbell rushed for 116 yards to move up to 12th on the NCAA all-time list. Russell Erxleben kicked field goals of 60 and 35 yards, and the Longhorns' sophomore-dominated defense yielded only three first downs in the second half. Halfback Johnny Ham Jones also got into the act with touchdown runs of 3 and 11 yards.

"After the first two games we started to get a notion that we were going to have a fine defense," said Akers. "And now, Houston. They're next."

"This just proves to me that I can do it again," Thompson said Sunday after his solid, three-under-par 68 had produced a two-stroke victory in the Pensacola Open, the last official event of the long pro golf tour.

"Under the circumstances, having been down so long, I really think this is a bigger thrill than winning the first one."

THE HUSKY Thompson, a seven-year tour veteran, put himself in trouble a couple of years ago when he went on a crash diet, shedding 40 pounds in four months.

"I went from 225 to 185," he said. "I thought losing the weight would make me play better.

"Well, I never have been accused of being too smart. I lost that weight and I couldn't hit the seat of my pants with both hands. I couldn't do anything. So I put the weight back on and I was still playing bad. I was so far down it was miserable just to be around me in a locker room.

"That's about the time Arnold started working with me. He'd spend three-four hours at a time with me on the practice tee. He didn't have to do that. You know he's got lots of other things he could be doing.

"HE'S REALLY helped me a lot and I appreciate it. We've got to be pretty good friends. I think the thing is I treat him like just another guy, not like he's Arnold Palmer. I think he likes that."

Thompson, now carrying a solid 210 pounds, capped his comeback with a 50-foot birdie putt on the final hole and seht his putter flipping high into the air with the second victory of his career. He won it with a 268 total, 16 under par on the 6,549- yard Pensacola Country Club course.

It didn't come easily, however. He started the final round with a two-shot lead, blew that with a couple of early bogeys, got the strokes back with birdies on the next two holes, then watched rookie Curtis Strange, playing in front of him, mount a determined bid.

The 22-year-old Strange, a former national collegiate champ from Wake Forest, reeled off a string of five consecutive birdies that started with a chip-in on the eighth hole. That pulled him into a tie for the lead.

"I THOUGHT I was in the driver's seat then," he said.

But he made bogey six on the 14th, putting his third shot in a bunker. "That was the turning point," said Strange, who finished with a 68 and a 270 total. He watched while Thompson scored his spectacular birdie on the final hole.

"He finished like a winner," Strange said. "He won it. I didn't give it to him."

J.C. Snead came on with a 67 and took third at 272. Tied at 273 were Bill Kratzert, Butch Baird and Fuzzy Zoeller. Kratzert had a last-round 65, Baird 67 and Zoeller 69.

Sabres solve Canadiens, 4-0

By The Associated Press

The Buffalo Sabres have learned how to slow down the Montreal Canadiens: slow down the game.

Forcing faceoffs when they could and playing painfully deliberate hockey, the Sabres stunned the mighty Stanley Cup champions 4-0 on Montreal's own ice Sunday night.

"There were 98 faceoffs in the game and 49 of them were in their end," fumed Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman. "We caused some of the faceoffs, their goaltender caused some and the referee caused some.

"They were walking off the ice on their line changes, taking their time. It took two hours and 45 minutes to play the game and there were only seven penalties."

Bowman had just cause to be irate. The Canadiens, who lost but eight regular-season games last year en route to the Stanley Cup, dropped their second in a row after six victories and a tie this season. They were whipped by the Los Angeles Kings 5-3 Saturday night.

The last time the Canadiens were shut out at home, incidentally, was when Philadelphia beat them 3-0 on Nov. 2, 1974.

Buffalo Coach Marcel Pronovost borrowed a page from Bowman's book to beat him. Pronovost pointed out that he had seen Bowman use similar slowdown tactics to those he utilized Sunday night.

"He won't tell you he did, but I will," said Provonost. "You don't want to give the puck away in a danger area. If you are going to give the puck away, you have to lose it away from the danger area or lose it in a certain way that you have a chance to get it back.

Kings 5, Rangers 3

Black Hawks 6, Barons 1

Darcy Rota scored in each of the first two periods and veterans Ivan Boldirev and Cliff Koroll added one goal each to lead Chicago over Cleveland. The Hawks broke the game open with a three-goal third period as Cleveland lost its fourth straight game.

Vilas picks up easy $50,000

By The AssociatedPress

Argentine ace Guillermo Vilas picked up another $50,000 this weekend, easily beating Romania's Ilie Nastase 6-2, 6-2 in the finals of the four-man Super Tennis 77 tournament in Caracas, Venezuela.

Borg, the Swedish star and No. 1 seed, whipped unseeded John Lloyd of Britain 6-4, 6-2, 6-3 Sunday and won the $50,000 Swiss International Indoor Championships at Basel, Switzerland.

Gerulaitis, from Kings Point, N.Y., beat Geoff Masters of Australia 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 to capture the $50,000 West Coast Tennis Championships at Perth, Australia Saturday night. The victory, Gerulaitis' second on the Australian circuit, was worth $8,000.

"It certainly has been a pleasant trip," Gerulaitis said.

Gottfried, of Lauderhill, Fla., trounced Poland's Wojtek Fibak 6-1, 6-1 Sunday to win the $10,000 Fischer Grand Prix tournament in Vienna, Austria. South African veterans Bob Hewitt and Frew McMillan took the doubles crowd, beating Fibak and Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-3 in the final.

Ms. King, the New Yorker who has been playing well in her comeback effort, won both the singles and the doubles titles in the Brinquen Tennis Classic in San Juan, P.R.

She beat Janet Newberry of St. Petersburg, Fla., 6-1, 6-3 on Saturday for the singles crown.

Cajuns eye first place in SLC

By The Associated Press

Southwestern Louisiana hopes to catch Southland Conference leader Louisiana Tech this Saturday but Tech appears to have an easier task on the road than do the Ragin' Cajuns.

Tech, owning a 3-0-1 league ledger, travels to Beaumont to play Lamar University, which has lost its last seven games.

The Ragin' Cajuns are at Arkansas State in an attempt to improve on their 2-0-1 mark.

Louisiana Tech defeated Texas-Arlington 34-12 although Derrick Jensen gained176 yards against the Bulldogs' highly rated defense. Tech had allowed an average of only 62.5 yards per game but the Mavericks gained 275 yards on the ground.

Arkansas State, McNeese State and Texas-Arlington are all 1-2. Lamar University is 0-2.

In other games Saturday, Southwestern Louisiana tripped East Carolina 9-7, Arkansas State outlasted Northeast Louisiana 31-20, McNeese fell to Nicholls State 24-7 and Lamar tumbled 43-21 to Drake.

Javs remain 2nd banana

Texas A&I may be No. 1 in the NAIA small college poll but the Javelinas are still second banana in the competitive Lone Star Conference.

Southwest Texas upset the experts and East Texas State 34-20 Saturday to grab the LSC football leadership with a 4-0 record.

In other games, Abilene Christian remained in contention with a 35-21 victory over Stephen F. Austin while Sam Houston dropped Howard Payne 28-9.

S.F. Austin's Bobby Mitchell carried a school record 32 times for 140 yards but the Lumberjacks stil lost their 15th consecutive game.

A&I halfback Larry Collins rushed for 167 yards, including scoring jaunts of67 and 63 yards to become the LSC's alltime rushing leader. Collins now has 4,366 yards. The old record was 4,285 by East Texas' Arthur James.

In key games this week, Southwest Texas is at Angelo State and Texas A&I travels to East Texas.

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Turnabout was fair play — or perhaps it was the turnovers.

"Turnovers were the difference. We had eight of them the last time we met, but we didn't have any this time and were able to keep the upper hand," Oakland Coach John Madden said after his Raiders, literally mugged by Denver 30-7 a couple of weeks ago, turned around and broke the Broncos' backs 24-14 to bring the Mile High City back to earth.

The National Conference, meanwhile, now has the only unbeaten team. The Dallas Cowboys, off to their best start since the team was formed in 1960, mauled Detroit 37-0 on Roger Staubach's three touchdown passes and Efren Herrera's three field goals.

RED MILLER, who had the Broncos flying high in his first season as Denver's head coach, could only applaud Oakland's solid, basic play.

"They used their weapons to the utmost," he said. "They had great blocking in running to their left side ... and our two turnovers made a difference. It was just the opposite of what happened in Oakland" when Denver played virtually error-free ball and the Raiders' Ken Stabler was intercepted seven times.

That left side was manned by guard Gene Upshaw and tackle Art Shell, who opened gaping holes for Mark van Eeghen and Clarence Davis. They teamed for 187 yards and had a touchdown run apiece. Stabler started the scoring with a 21-yard TD pass to Cliff Branch and Oakland had a 24-0 lead before Denver did anything.

Colts 31, Steelers 21

The last time the Steelers visited Baltimore, Terry Bradshaw passed for three touchdowns in a 40-14 playoff romp. This time it was Bert Jones' turn. The Colts' quarterback came through with scoring strikes of 26 yards to Roosevelt Leaks and 13 yards to Lydell Mitchell and a 6-yard TD run of his own.

Bears 26, Packers 0

Walter Payton's 205 yards rushing tied Gale Sayers' 1968 club record for a single game — and Chicago's popular running back was delighted he never got the 206th.

"I didn't want to break Sayers' record because Sayers is a super guy. What's a record? I just wanted to win the game," he said after scoring on touchdown runs of 6 and 1 yards and setting up Johnny Musso's 3- yard scoring run in the rout of the Packers.

"Walter is super every game, but we wanted to make this a truly great game for him," rookie tackle Ted Albrecht of Chicago said. "The coaches wanted to take him out when he had 196, but we asked them if he could carry for one more play. He did, and he got it."

Saints 27, Rams 26

Rich Szaro's field goal with three minutes to play — a 31- yarder that brushed the right upright and wobbled through the goalposts — gave the Saints their upset over Los Angeles.

Pat Haden threw for two Rams touchdowns and Tony Galbreath ran for a pair for New Orleans. The difference in the game was a missed extra point, when a center snap sailed over the LA holder's head.

49ers 20, Bucs 10

Delvin Williams ran 35 yards and Wilbur Jackson went in from the 2 for San Francisco touchdowns, but the Bucs once again helped beat themselves with a costly fumble.

Seahawks 56, Bills 17

Seattle, which won two games last year, won its second of 1977 and it was by far the Seahawks' most impressive game. Jim Zorn, sidelined for a month with a damaged knee, fired four touchdown passes, two to Steve Largent, and ran for another score in the rout of the Bills.

Virtually nothing went right for Buffalo. O.J. Simpson, a questionable starter because of knee problems, sat out the second half after getting only 32 yards in the first two periods.

Chargers 14, Dolphins 13

Benny Malone fumbled away Miami's victory, giving the Chargers the ball on the Dolphin 33-yard line with 1:48 to play. Exactly 1:48 later, San Diego quarterback James Harris ran 5 yards for a tying touchdown, then Rolf Benirschke kicked the winning extra point.

Harris also threw 2 yards to Bob Klein for a TD while Chargers safety Clarence Duren starred on defense with three interceptions and a fumble recovery.

Patriots 24, Jets 13

Steve Grogan passed for touchdowns of 11 yards to Darryl Stingley, 52 yards to Stanley Morgan and 4 yards to Don Hasselback in the Patriots' victory over the Jets. In all, Grogan hit 16 of 23 passes for 228

"If I missed, I dig a hole and crawl in it." — Chris Bahr of Cincinnati, after his 22-yard sudden-death field goal produced a 13-10 victory over Houston.

"It did add a certain drama, didn't it?" — New Orleans Coach Hank Stram, after Rich Szaro's 31-yard field goal grazed the right upright, then bounced over the crossbar to give the Saints a 27-26 victory over Los Angeles. 8

"Not letting my kids beat me up as much as they usually do." — Joe Theismann, on how he prepared for his first game as Washington's starting quarterback. He threw two touchdown passes in the 23-17 victory over Philadelphia.

"This game was a source of embarrassment. We didn't play well at any point. There were no bright spots. Today was a disaster." — Kansas City Coach Paul Wiggin, after the Chiefs were routed 44-7 by Cleveland.

"I think everyone got their money's worth. It was a good football game. We just couldn't come up with the big play, and they did." — Coach Walt Michaels, after his New York Jets lost 24-13 to the New England Patriots.

"When I first left the center with the ball, it was a pass-run option. When I looked up, it looked like the defenders were dropping off and at that point I was thinking, 'Run for the flag.' But it looked like I never would have made it." — San Diego quarterback James Harris, whose 5-yard TD run as the gun sounded tied the game. Rolf Benirschke's extra-point kick then beat Miami 14-13.

Stevens, Shepherd win in Cardinals 500

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Carl "Bugs" Stevens and Morgan Shepherd provided a whole new look to the $107,960 Cardinal 500 Classic twinbill as all the defending champions and pole winners faded from sight.

Stevens, a Pinto driver from Rehoboth, Mass., made his seventh Martinsville Speedway victory look easy as he moved in front on the 148th lap and coasted to a two-lap triumph Sunday in the 250-lap Modified race that opened the doubleheader.

It was a different story in the 250-lap Late Model Sportsman race as Shepherd, a Ventura driver from Conover, N.C., led only five laps. But they were the last five, and Shepherd held off three Nova drivers in the same lap to capture the doubleheader's second race.

The Modified race was basically a two-man scrap between Stevens and Geoff Bodine of Bellingham, Mass., who had won the race the last two years and who had started on the pole Sunday.

But Bodine suffered a broken spring on his Pinto and dropped out on the 151st lap after yielding the lead to Stevens the second time, and Stevens went on to earn $7,675 as he averaged 73.929 mph in a race in which there were five caution flags for 34 laps.

Billy Hensley of Ridgeway, Va., was second in a Vega, followed by Brian Ross of Ballston Spa, N.Y., and Hank Thomas of Winston-Salem, N.C., in Pintos and Ken Bouchard of Fitchburg, Mass., in a Vega. Bodine wound up 22nd.

Estaba retains WBC Jr. Flyweight ring title

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — World Boxing Council junior flyweight champion Luis "Lumumba" Estaba of Venezuela retained his crown Sunday night with a unanimous decision over Thailand's Netrnoi Vorasing.

It was Estaba's 11th successful title defense, a record in the junior flyweight division. The Venezuelan fighter won the crown two years ago when he defeated Paraguay's Rafael Lobera.

Bear frets over pass defense after 37-7 scare

By The Associated Press

You've got to feel for Bear Bryant.

"I think they hurt us more than any team I can remember with their passing attack," the veteran Alabama coach said following Saturday night's meeting with Mississippi State. "We obviously need a lot of work on pass defense."

And now would anyone care to guess what score Alabama lost by? What's that, you say, they won 37-7? What about it, Bear?

Oh.

WHEN second-ranked Alabama wasn't allowing Mississippi State to pass for 227 yards, the Crimson Tide's fleet and deep corps of runners was rushing for 311 yards, starting with Tony Nathan's 58-yard touchdown gallop in the first period.

The victory kept 'Bama atop the Southeastern Conference with a 4-0 record to 3-0 for both seventh-ranked Kentucky, which blanked Virginia Tech 32-0, and unheralded Auburn, which upset No. 18 Florida 29-14.

Alabama is the odds-on favorite to represent the SEC in the Sugar Bowl — Kentucky is ineligible — but Bryant has other things on his mind first.

"I haven't thought about it at all," he said. "I've got enough to worry about LSU next week."

Yup, you've got to feel for Bear Bryant.

MEANWHILE top-rated Texas slugged No. 14 Texas Tech 26-0, third-ranked Ohio State battered Wisconsin 42-0, No. 4 Oklahoma trounced Kansas State 42-7, fifth-ranked Notre Dame crushed Navy 43-10, sixth-ranked Michigan whipped Iowa 23-6, eighth-rated Arkansas downed Rice 30-7, No. 9 Penn State mauled Miami of Florida 49-7 and No. 10 Southern Cal bowed to California 17-14.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Texas A&M outscored Southern Methodist 38-21, No. 12 Nebraska dumped Oklahoma State 31-14, No. 13 Pitt creamed Tulane 48-0, Missouri upset No. 15 Colorado 24-14, No. 16 Clemson defeated Wake Forest 26-0, No. 17 Brigham Young beat Arizona 34-14, Indiana shocked No. 19 Minnesota 34-22 and No. 20 Florida State turned back North Texas State 35-14.

Texas used a 57-yard pass play from Randy McEachern to Olympic sprinter Johnny "Lam" Jones, two touchdowns by Johnny "Ham" Jones and field goals of 60 and 35 yards by Russell Erxleben to turn back Texas Tech. Earl Campbell didn't score but rushed for 116 yards and moved into 12th place on the all-time NCAA list.

"That was a tough football game," said Coach Fred Akers. "I was glad to see Ham Jones running and scoring and Earl had another great day and now Houston ... they are next."

MINNESOTA, last week's 16-0 conqueror of No. 1-ranked Michigan, had a short stay in the Top Twenty. The Golden Gophers made it to the No. 19 spot last week but Indiana took care of that with fourth-quarter touchdown runs by Scott Arnett, Ric Enis and Tony D'Orazio.

"There's always a letdown after a game like last week's," said Minny Coach Cal Stoll. "We wanted to play, but we were just going through the motions."

Another newcomer to the rankings was Florida State and the surprising Seminoles undoubtedly will stay there after boosting their record to 6-1 by trimming North Texas State, which also came into the game with just one defeat.

The score was tied 7-7 but Ivory Joe Hunter returned an interception 19 yards late in the second period for a touchdown and Willie Jones recovered a North Texas fumble in the end zone 44 seconds later as Florida State nailed down its first winning season in five years.

Meanwhile, nose guard Ron Simmons, only a freshman, sacked North Texas quarterbacks five times for 51 yards in losses.

"Ron Simmons kept making the big play," said Coach Bobby Bowden. "I never saw as many big plays as he made tonight."

BUT IT was a disastrous weekend for the Florida Gators, another good bet to disappear from the Top Twenty. Auburn got an SEC record five field goals from Jorge Portela while sophomore Charlie Trotman passed for 177 yards and a touchdown in his first varsity start.

"I was proud of the team for sucking it up and playing hard whena lot of people had given up on us," said Coach Doug Barfield.

Ohio State came out throwing against Wisconsin and Rod Gerald heaved a 79-yard scoring bomb to Jim Harrell on the second play of the game. "We thought they were crowding us," Woody Hayes explained.

Thomas Lott scored three times as Oklahoma rushed for 483 yards and destroyed Kansas State and Joe Montana passed for 260 yards and defensive end Ross Browner set a Notre Dame career record of 295 tackles as the Fighting Irish torpedoed Navy.

Another career mark was set by Michigan quarterback Rick Leach, who tossed his 23rd, 24th and 25th touchdown passes — the three scoring aerials tied a school record — as the Wolverines defeated Iowa.

Two scoring passes and a 45-yard TD run by Derrick Ramsey paced Kentucky over Virginia Tech and Michael Forrest scored twice to lead Arkansas over Rice.

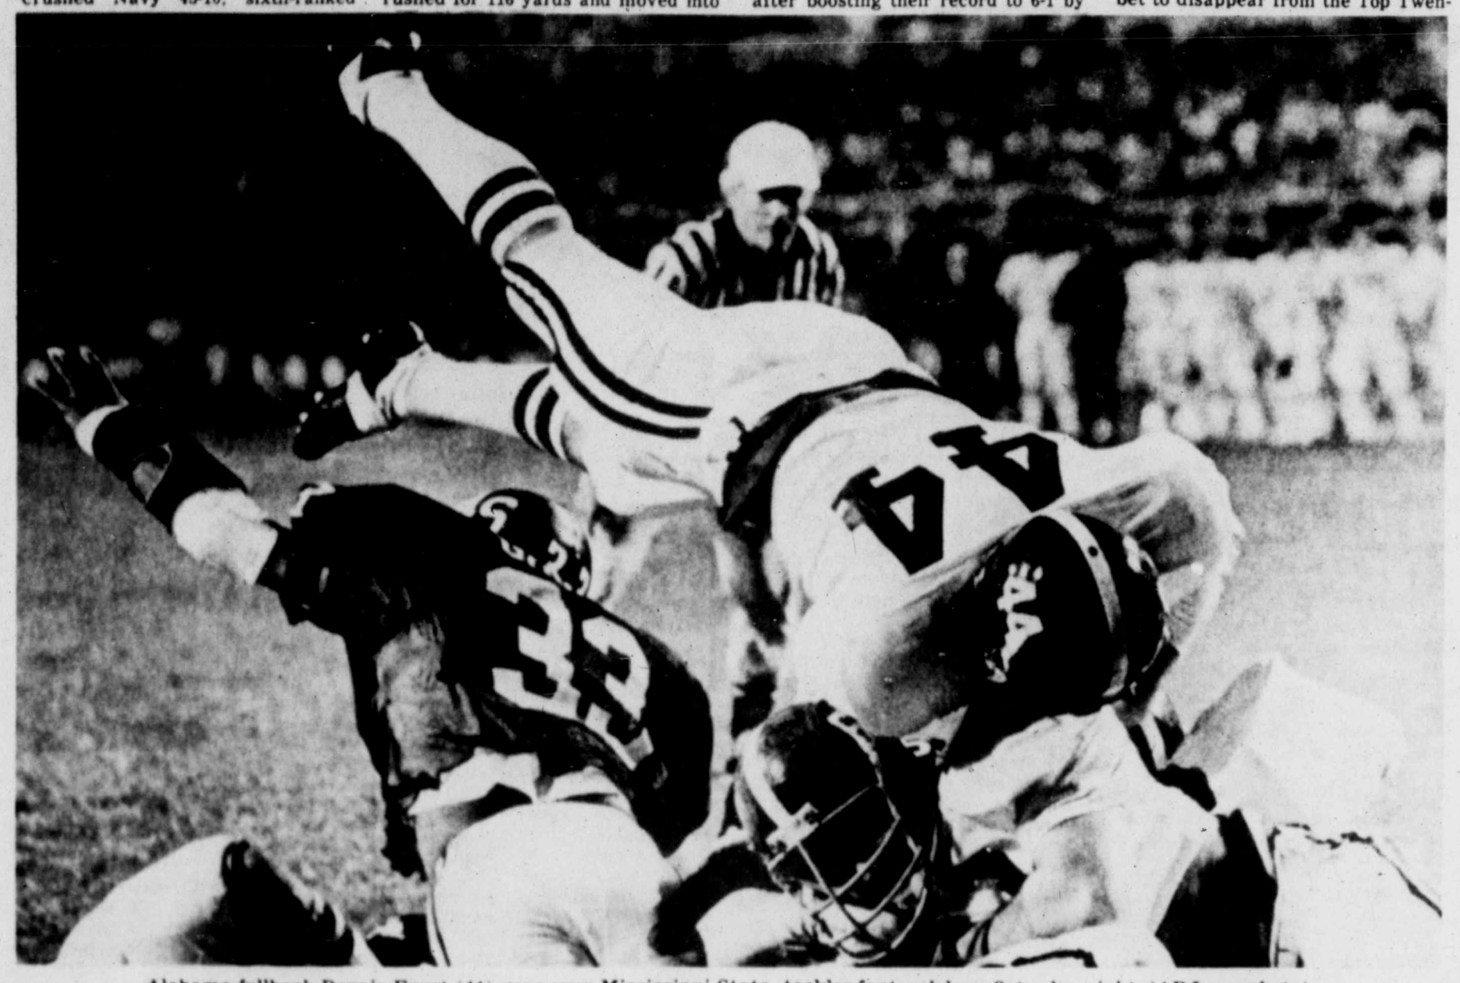

Miami of Florida boasted the nation's No. 1 pass defense but Penn State riddled it for 232 yards — 192 by Chuck Fusina, who threw 56 yards to Ed Guthrie and 72 to Scott Fitzkee for touchdowns.

CALIFORNIA dedicated its game against Southern Cal to the memory of Joe Roth, last year's quarterback, who died of cancer. The Bears then used short runs by Paul Jones and Charlie Young and Jim Breech's field goal to hand the Trojans their first Pac-8 setback in two seasons.

"We're a very much uptight team right now," said USC Coach John Robinson. "But we're still in the Rose Bowl race. We're 3-1, and if we win the rest of our games we'll go to the Rose Bowl."

It was time for nostalgia at West Point, where Army walloped Holy Cross 48-7 with its three Heisman Trophy winners — Doc Blanchard (1945), Glenn Davis (1946) and Pete Dawkins (1958) — on hand for special halftime ceremonies.

The highlight was a school record 97-yard gallop by Greg King, who rushed for 212 yards on 19 carries.

Redskins 23, Eagles 17

Coach Allen asked Joe Theismann to take over for Billy Kilmer and wake up Washington's slumbering offense against Philadelphia. And, as the coach later decided: "He did everything we asked of him, and more." What he did was team with Jean Fugett on a pair of 15-yard TD passes in the first period for a lead Washington never relinquished.

Browns 44, Chiefs 7

Cleveland, first in the AFC Central Division, got 153 yards rushing from Greg Pruitt — 78 on a TD play — and three field goals from Don Cockroft in the rout of Kansas City.

"I think that's probably the best over-all game we've played in the three years I've been here," Coach Forrest Gregg said. "I'd have to say — I would have to finally admit — that the team is where I want it to be."

Vikings 14, Falcons 7

Fran Tarkenton, who had lobbied for Minnesota to acquire unhappy tight end Bob Tucker from the Giants, repaid the Vikings in the fourth period with a 6-yard touchdown pass to his new teammate to beat Atlanta.

Bengals 13, Oilers 10

Ken Anderson, who replaced ineffective John Reaves at quarterback for Cincinnati in the second period, marched the Bengals 58 yards in 10 plays with the fifth-period kickoff, then Chris Bahr kicked the 22-yard field goal that beat the Oilers with 5:51 gone in sudden death.

Giants, Cardinals clash in TV tiff

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Either the New York Giants or the St. Louis Cardinals, who once both tottered on the brink of early extinction, will bounce back into the National Football League's playoff picture tonight.

The heated rivals, who clash on national television, are two of only seven teams in the National Conference scarred by three or fewer defeats.

St. Louis' Don Coryell, the coach of an entry that matches New York's 3-3 record, did not dispute those who previously counted his Cards out of the running for an NFL postseason berth.

"You look at it on paper and you'd have to agree," Coryell said. "People would have to say that any 3-3 team has a very slight chance to make the playoffs. But that doesn't mean that one of them won't make it. Probably one of them will."

Gold Dust Twins now turned to silver

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — When they flashed across the West Point gridiron more than three decades ago they were known as the "Gold Dust Twins."

But the gold has turned to silver around the temples of Glenn Davis, "Mr. Outside," and both he and his famed running mate, Felix "Doc" Blanchard, "Mr. Inside," will be 53 before the end of the year.

Blanchard and Davis, who won the prestigious Heisman Trophy in 1945 and 1946, respectively, were considerably heavier than 30 years ago when they returned to West Point Saturdey for special ceremonies, along with Pete Dawkins, Army's 1958 Heisman winner.

THEY SAW Army wallop Holy Cross 48-8 and boost its record to 5-3, best in nine years.

It was a time for nostalgia and the West Point faithful traveled down Memory Lane to Army's national championships of 1944 and 1945, sparked, of course, by Blanchard and Davis.

They have drifted apart over the years, but then they were never really inseparable except on the football field and in the glowing media reports of their exploits.

"We see each other about once a year and we talk on the phone every once in a while if something comes up we're both involved with," said Blanchard, who retired to Lake Buchanan, Tex., as a colonel — "I'm retired-retired," — after 25 years in the Air Force.

"But even at West Point we saw very little of each other, the way our schedules ran. We ate at the training table and we practiced together, but we weren't in the same company and that was it."

DAVIS, WHO lives in North Hollywood, Calif., and is director of special events for The Los Angeles Times, was back at West Point five years ago for his 25th class reunion, but for Blanchard it was the first visit in more than a decade.

Naturally, they were asked about Army's modern-day recruiting problems and the difficulty in recruiting blue-chip athletes because of the postgraduate five-year active duty commitment.

"A friend of West Point had seen me play football in high school and that's the way it all started," Davis recalled. "He corresponded with Col. Blaik (Coach Earl "Red" Blaik) and I decided to take him up on his offer even though I had signed up for the wartime V-12 program at Southern California."

Blanchard began his college career at North Carolina, where he played one season and was drafted into the Army.

"After about a year-and-a-half I had been in eight different places," he said. "When they asked me to come to West Point I was in Clovis, N.M., and I said, 'Yeah, that would be nice.'"

IT WAS nice for West Point and the three Heisman winners — only Notre Dame and Ohio State have had more — saw no reason why Army couldn't return to some level approaching its football glory days.

"How'd Navy do against Michigan this year?" Davis asked, noting the 14-7 score. "It can be done. A little improvement can mean a lot. You really shouldn't have to sell West Point to anyone. The people you're recruiting should be honored."

"The appeal of this place among high school-age men and women is on the rise," said the erudite Dawkins, a one-time Rhodes Scholar and now a colonel in charge of Headquarters Command at Fort Ord, Calif., with responsibility for 2,700 men and women. "And among those people it appeals to I believe are some fine football players.

"IT WOULD be a mistake for the Army not to take a shot at the very best teams every once in a while, but I don't think they ought to schedule 10 of them back-to-back. In fact, it's a myth that in some golden era Army played the top 10 teams in the country and beat them every year."

The Heisman trio reviewed the parade of cadets before Saturday's game and Davis said the day brought back "many fond memories, but the greatest thrill of all is being a member of the Long Gray Line."

Then he tried to shrug off the football accomplishments of Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside.

"There was never any competition between us," he said. "Doc did one thing and I did another. We didn't keep any records and we didn't care who was scoring the touchdowns or getting the publicity. Today there's probably more emphasis put on things like that.

"We had a lot of good football players here and we were just two other guys on the team."

But who else was Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside?

UT remembers the slaughter

By The Associated Press

Should new Texas Coach Fred Akers need an insirational message this week for his topranked Longhorns he can thumb to page 22 of the University of Houston media guide.

The text under ninth week reads:

"Scoring: UH-Blackwell 7 run (Coplin kick); Coplin 23 FG; Coplin 20 FG; Coplin 32FG; Lynch 1 run (Coplin kick); Davis 28 run (Coplin kick). A: 77,809."

The 30-0 slaughter in Houston's first year of official play in the Southwest Conference last year came in Texas' hallowed Memorial Stadium.

IF ANYTHING Akers may have to sprinkle tranquilizers in the training table mashed potatoes this week to keep a lid on the Longhorns who were around to recall the day.

"Houston ... they're next," said Akers after Saturday's impressive 26-0 victory over defending SWC co-champion Texas Tech.

Enough said for such Texas seniors as Earl Campbell and Brad Shearer.

Also, enough said for Yeoman who had Texas on his mind shortly after his Cougars thumped Texas Christian 42-14 Saturday.

"Texas has a totally outstanding defense and probably the nation's top offensive threat," said Yeoman. "We won't do anything special. We'll just have to play extremely hard."

Of course, Houston is operating without quarterback Danny Davis, its Cotton Bowl hero who suffered an early injury.

THE COUGARS with two losses can only play a spoiler role. The other SWC co-champion, Texas Tech, also has two defeats.

The 2 p.m. game in Houston rates as the top attraction on the SWC schedule although once-beaten Arkansas, still very much alive in the conference race, entertains tough and rested Baylor.

Arkansas, which defeated Rice 30-7, has had trouble with Baylor in the past. This time the Bears have two weeks to prepare for the Razorbacks.

Texas and Texas A&M, which parlayed a solid second half into a 38-21 victory over SMU, are atop the SWC ladder with 4-0 records. The Aggies are idle this week, preparing for a Nov. 12 joust with Arkansas in College Station.

Texas and Texas A&M don't hookup in their annual war until Nov. 26—also in Kyle Field at College Station.

In other games Sunday, Rice is at SMU in what should be a wild aerial show and TCU is at Texas Tech.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Bland, Shearer win in golf tournaments

VICTORIA FALLS, Rhodesia — John Bland of South Africa shot a one-under-par 72 and scored a three-stroke victory over countryman John Fourie in the $57,500 Victoria Falls Golf Classic.

ADELAIDE, Australia — Bob Shearer of Australia fired a final-round 67 and scored an easy seven stroke victory over countryman David Good in the $56,180 West Lakes Golf Classic.

SODEGAURA, Japan — Fujio Kobayashi of Japan carded a final-round two-under-par 70 to score a three-stroke victory Haruo Yasuda in the $120,000 Bridgestone Golf tournament.

AUTO RACING

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Gordon Johncock got a victory he wasn't sure he could save when a crash on the final lap prevented Al Unser from making a challenge in the Bobby Ball 150 for Indianapolis cars.

Unser was directly behind Johncock the last 10 laps, and seemed to have enough power to pull up on Johncock. He was getting a bead on the leader when fourth-place runner Spike Gehlhausen got wide coming out of the fourth turn and tore into the guardrail along the length of the straightaway.

Johncock and Unser arrived on the scene a few seconds later and dodged through the debris. They ran nose to tail around another lap to the checkered flag.

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — Carl "Bugs" Stevens of Rehoboth, Mass., took the lead on the 148th lap and raced to a two-lap victory in the Modified half of the Cardinal 500 Classic doubleheader.

Stevens, driving a Pinto, averaged 73.829 mph on the .525mile track as he beat out Billy Hensley of Ridgeway, Va., in a race in which there were five caution flags for 34 laps.

In the 250 lap Late Model Sportsman race, Morgan Shepherd grabbed the lead with five laps to go and scored a hardfought victory over Billy Hensley.

Shepherd averaged 68.570 mph and earned $6,775 as the caution 4flag was out eight times for 50 laps.

ICE SKATING

MONCTON, New Brunswick — Linda Fratianne of Northridge, Calif., and Robin Cousins of Britain skated superbly to take the titles in the Skate Canada 77 competition.

Cousins fought off a strong threat from American Charles Tickner to win the free-skate final and the combined gold medal for men.

WAC back to normal, Kush is grumpy again

By The Associated Press

Things are back to normal in Sun Devil country. Arizona State is steamrolling opponents, and Coach Frank Kush is grumpy.

After his squad ripped Utah 47-19 Saturday, rolling up 630 total yards despite wind and icy rain in Salt Lake City, Kush said his team suffered a near-fatal letdown in the second quarter, and committed too many fumbles and penalties.

"Our mistakes gave Utah two easy shots at scores," said Kush. "I was not pleased overall. I'm going to get on quite a few of our guys on offense and defense."

The rout kept the Devils unbeaten in Western Athletic Conference play with a 3-0 record. Brigham Young, which downed Arizona 34-14 in Provo, leads the WAC with a 4-0 mark. It looks like a two-team race for the title, since all other WAC teams have at least two losses.

But ASU appears to have the inside track toward a Fiesta Bowl berth, since BYU, if it should win the league crown, won't play in the bowl because of school policy against playing on Sundays.

In the only other WAC game of the weekend, Wyoming upset Colorado State 29-13 in Laramie. New Mexico downed New Mexico State 35-13 in a non-league affair.

ASU quarterback Dennis Sproul fired scoring strikes of 61 and 91 yards to split end John Jefferson, and Sproul ran for two more scores in the romp over Utah. "Sproul's two TDs to Jefferson were exactly the way you draw them on the board," said Kush in a rare charitable moment. "Our defense played well in the second half. Utah was fired up after closing the gap on us in the second quarter."

The Devils, who had taken a 27-0 lead, saw the Utes close to within 27-19. Randy Gomez tossed two TD passes to Jack Steptoe for the Utes, who dropped to 1-3 in the WAC and 2-5 overall.

BYU quarterback Marc Wilson was back on target, completing 23 of 43 passes for 334 yards and two touchdowns against the Wildcats. Arizona's only scores came on 1-yard runs by Derriak Anderson and Hubert Oliver.

"Marc was exceptionally sharp today, and he's going to get better with experience," said BYU Coach LaVell Edwards. "We were surprised that Arizona played a regular defense against us. There wasn't much pressure and they didn't drop many people off on the pass."

Wyoming halfback Myron Hardeman rushed for a schoolrecord 215 yards and scored twice, and Dan Christopulos kicked a record five field goals, including a 62-yarder, as the Cowboys downed CSU. "We decided to go back to the basics, and we finally got the execution we were looking for," Wyoming Coach Bill Lewis said.

Ram quarterback Dan Graham passed for 260 yards, including a 10-yard TD toss to Ron Harris.

Mexican reserves make it potentially wealthy

Diaz Serrano said that as of June, Mexico had proven reserves of 14 billion barrels. He said thai since then 2.8 billion barrels of additional reserves havebeen proven.

He said geological surveys and test drilling had shown probable reserves of 29.2 billion barrels with the remainder classified as "potential",

"For the first time in its history, Mexico has wealth that opens the possibility of solving the economic problems of the nation," Diaz Serrano said.

He also said Mexico has the chance "to build a new country, a rich country where the right to work is a reality."

In November 1976 Mexico reported its proven reserves at only 6.3 billion barrels.

The director told the chamber of deputies many of the nation's new oil fields are in southern Mexico, and that some lie below previously developed fields.

He said the additional petroleum deposits were only discovered since 1973 with new technological developments.

"In the region of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec . . . petroleum deposits have been found between 4,400 and 6,600 yards below the surface," he said.

He said the new Reforma fields near Carcenas presently are producing some 900,000 barrels of crude and natural gas a day.

"It is our opinion, which is shared with geologists and oilmen from other countries, that the Reforma fields are one of the greatest oil deposits in the world," Diaz Serrano said.

Extenders completed

The Paladin (Pennsylvanian) field of Winkler County gained a fourth well and ¾-mile west extension with completion by David Fasken, Midland, of his No. 2-29 Sealy-Smith Foundation, 13 miles southeast of Kermit.

The daily flowing potential was for 174 barrels of 35.4-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio measuring 1,701-1, producing from pay behind perforations at 8,718-8,956 feet. It finaled on an 18-64-inch choke.

American belly dancers popular

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Rosemarie Park went to Egypt to study with the world's greatest bellies and found hers is one.

"It was a fiasco," the shapely blonde said in an interview. "The purpose of the tour was to learn authentic Middle Eastern belly dancing, but the people who set up the tour didn't arrange any dance seminars so we never had a lesson anywhere."

"But it had been advertised that we would be in some of the clubs and that we would perform. So we did."

And that's how Mrs. Park, a church-going lady with a young son, found herself dancing on tables in a tent in the Saraha, surrounded by a cast that could have been out of a Rudolph Valentino film.

"They sat us down at a little bitty table and gave us dinner and a lot of wine," she said. "Then after the show, the emcee reached down, grabbed my hand, pulled me onto the stage, and asked me to belly dance."

"Well, I was right near the edge of the stage, and someone pulled me onto one of the tables and they pulled me from table to table.

"It was quite an experience," she said, "surrounded by people in Arab dress with a headrobe and others in Western clothes. It was something I'd never done before and I may never again."

Mrs. Park, a public relations official for the Hamilton County Air Pollution Control Bureau, joined 33 other American belly dancers in September for the tour, promoted by a California agency which promised luxurious accommodations at a first-class hotel.

"It was a very nice hotel — we saw it later," Mrs. Park said. "But they put us in another hotel in downtown Cairo. We were on the ninth floor and the first eight floors were condemned."

"We should have known when they wouldn't let us use the stairs."

The American belly dancers, particularly the blue-eyed blondes like Mrs. Park, quickly found they were the object of much attention.

"Some of the girls were single, and I guess they enjoyed the advances," she said. "Some of the girls were married, and I guess some of them enjoyed the advances, too."

Despite its shortcomings, Mrs. Park said, the tour was a rare opportunity to watch authentic Middle Eastern belly dancers.

Here's expert answer to that home problem

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — The house we recently moved into has embossed vinyl flooring on the kitchen floor. We do not like the color or design and intend to install new sheet vinyl flooring. Can it be put on right over the old flooring?

A. — No. While sheet vinyl can be installed over nearly all surfaces, there are two exceptions. One is when the old vinyl is cushioned. The other is when it is embossed.

Q. — I have been following written instructions, taken from an old magazine, about refinishing some furniture. The instructions say to use non-rubbing varnish. My hardware dealer says a so-called stain sheen varnish he sells is the same thing. Is it?

A. — Yes. Remember, however, that any non-rubbing varnish should not be sanded, so be sure the final coat is applied in a dust-free atmosphere. What is usually done is to use regular varnish for the first one or two coats, sanding lightly to remove irregularities, then use the non-rubbing varnish for the top coat.

Q. — I recently saw an oak table in a friend's house which appeared to have white paint in the large pores of the wood. My friend called this a pickled effect but had no idea how it was done. Do you know?

A. — There are several ways to obtain this kind of appearance. Here's one that worked well some years ago. After the wood was thoroughly sanded, it was coated with an application of the white finishing material used to cover the wild grain of fir, especially fir plywood. Your hardware dealer will know what you want if you ask for it that way.

Arguments slated in murder trial

HOUSTON (AP)—Final arguments are to be presented today in the murder trial of Stephen A. Hatcher, accused of the slaying of his wife last April 1.

The charge to the jury was prepared late Friday and was to be read this morning. Final arguments then were to be presented.

The case was expected to go to the jury late this afternoon.

Hatcher was arrested April 3 at a campsite on Lake Sam Rayburn. He led police to the body of his wife, placed in a large oil can about 25 feet from the shoreline.

Hatcher has claimed, "I loved Ann. I never intended to kill her. It was an accident. It was a freak accident. I swear Ann Hatcher left this world while she was going to greet her husband."

Strange Bath Coup puzzles plumbers

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Anybody can look out of the window and see that it's raining, but only the exceptional person can see that the drops resemble what you get in the tub and should therefore be called a "shower." Likewise, only the exceptional bridge player can see a Bath Coup when it's upside down.

Opening lead — ♠ 10

Sooner or later, West gets the ace of clubs and leads his other spade. Thereupon East takes four spade tricks to defeat the contact.

If South has a poetic eye, he sees the upside down Bath Coup. The normal Bath Coup is to refuse to win the lead of the king when you hold A-J-x. If the suit is continued, you win two tricks; and if the leader shifts to a different suit you gain time to set up a suit of your own.

REFUSE TRICK

You get the same position in this hand if you refuse the first trick. If East leads another spade you get dummy's nine as well as your own ace.

East must shift to a different suit, such as hearts. Now you can knock out the ace of clubs while you still have the ace of spades to stop the dangerous suit. You win game with one spade, two hearts, three diamonds and three clubs.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1-NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: SKQ872; HQJ108; DJ3 C85. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking to raise two spades to four spades, or two hearts to four hearts. If partner bids two diamonds, showing no major suit of four or more cards, you will bid two spades.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Mouth lesions may be cancer

Dear Dr. Solomon: What is it that one should watch for in one's mouth in order to spot early cancer signs? I'm asking this because my brother has just found out he has oral cancer—oddly enough, his dentist found it when he went to have his teeth cleaned last time. The doctor told him, however, that it was caught early enough so the chances of a complete cure are good and he doesn't have to worry. But this has made the rest of us very conscious of mouth cancer, which I gather is something we can watch out for by ourselves, provided we know, exactly what to keep an eye out for.—F. R.

Dear F. R.: For many years, what the experts have been urging us to look out for, as a possible precancerous symptom in the mouth, is leukoplakia — whitish patches. If you notice any of these, you should certainly ask your doctor to check them. However, some recent reports indicate that reddish sore spots are more frequently the symptoms to be watched for. Dr. Arthur Mashberg of the Veterans Administration Hospital in East Orange, N.J., reported on this recently in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Dr. Mashberg said that almost all lesions are found on the floor of the mouth, on the bottom or side of the tongue, or on the soft palate way in the back of your mouth. There are, he added, two distinct kinds of reddish lesions that may indicate cancer. One kind, he says, looks like worn velvet on which a few granules of farina have been sprinkled. The other is a smooth, primarily red, sore spot that looks like an inflammation; it, too, appears rather worn, but with few or none of the white dots.

Most of the lesions, Dr. Mashberg says, are found in heavy smokers or drinkers over forty. He stressed that these sores can be found when they are still very small, before there is any bleeding or ulceration, if the patient himself, his dentist or his doctor is alert to them, and they can be removed at that time with very little damage to the surrounding tissue. The recurrence rate in such cases, he adds, seems to be less than 5 percent.

Other surveys have indicated that more than half of oral cancers are relatively large by the time they are spotted, which obviously makes the outlook much less promising.

Dr. Mashberg and other aughorities urge everyone to check with his or her doctor if any mouth irritation lasts more than a week or two. The things you should be particularly alert to are bleeding, numbness in any part of the mouth, or any lump or swelling.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My roommate found she had a lump in her breast, but her doctor told her it was harmless and not to worry about it. He did say he wanted her to keep checking back with him periodically—do you think this means it might be dangerous? I thought most lumps were cancerous.—Gil Y.

Dear Gil: No, most lumps in the breast are not cancer. But the only person who can really tell if a lump is or isn't malignant is a doctor. And, incidentally, that is a very important point — no woman should ever try to decide this herself. I'm glad your roommate did do the sensible thing.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in this column.)

Mondale's action unlike normal off-year pattern

WASHINGTON (AP) — This may be a quiet, nonpolitical year, but no one seems to have told Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

He has campaigned for the two Democratic gubernatorial candidates, helped fill the coffers of local party organizations, and spoken at preliminary fund-raising parties held by Democratic members of Congress.

Mondale likes to spend as much time as possible at the White House counseling the President or preparing himself on a broad spectrum of foreign and domestic issues, but he is also trying to play a role that is more traditional for vice presidents.

So, a little time spent shaking hands at the corner of 34th Street and Sixth Avenue in Manhattan is worked into his calendar. So is a trip out to the West Coast to help Democrats running for state legislative posts.

A brunch for New York State Assemblyman Arthur Eve, the Democratic mayoral candidate in Buffalo, N.Y.; a luncheon in Port Chester, N.Y., for Westchester County Executive Al Del Bello, a Democrat running for re-election; handshaking with pedestrians in Manhattan to boost the campaign of Democratic mayoral candidate Ed Koch; a reception for Irwin Landes, the Democratic candidate for Nassau County, N.Y., executive, and an evening speech for Koch.

Mondale's staff members acknowledge that he is carrying out some of the more routine political activities of the Carter administration, but they say he is doing so with no reluctance.

Instead, such activities are seen as an opportunity to "get around the country and get a handle on what is happening around the country," said Mike Berman, the vice president's counsel and one of his political advisers.

Not to be ignored is the fact that the administration naturally wants to protect the large Democratic representation in the House, Senate and governors' mansions, or the fact that its political favors won't go unnoticed.

"If you go out and do something for a congressman, obviously they appreciate it more than if you don't do something," said Berman.

Of course Mondale, who has shunned some of the ceremonial duties that often befall a vice president, has more time to carry out such chores than does President Carter.

The vice president spent 12 years in the Senate and his friends there are anxious to benefit from his elevated status, welcoming him at political events in their home states.

"A guy stops him on the (Senate) floor and says 'I want you to do one for me' and it's a rare occasion for him to say no," Berman said.

New system cutting San Antonio's crime

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The MOB is helping San Antonio cut its crime rate.

That's right, the MOB — Major Offense Bureau. It's a new unit of the district attorney's office that uses a computer and top prosecutors to zero in on a select group of "career criminals."

The objective, says District Attorney Bill White, is to get those professional criminals off the streets. White says they are responsible for as much as 80 per cent of the crime here.

The program, begun April 1 with a $256,000 grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, already is producing dramatic results.

"The situation seems to be much improved. There are more burglars remaining in jail," Hoyack said.

In applying for the federal grant earlier, White estimated that 25 per cent of all felony offenses committed in Bexar County are the work of persons who have at least one felony conviction.

"There is a need for a special capacity in the district attorney's office to prosecute repeater or 'career' offenders," White said then.

The goal of MOB is to obtain longer sentences in a speedy manner for major and career criminals.

By targeting such criminals and keeping them in jail, White said he hopes to stop the "revolving door" through which many return to the streets on bond.

"We had one who admitted 26 in one day. He did it strictly as a contest," the policeman added.

But the burglar in jail cannot work.

"Every day you keep them in jail," said Hoyack, "you're that much ahead."

White added, "I figured that if we concentrated on trying to prosecute these people and keep them off the street for an extended period of time, it would have a serious impact on the crime being committed here in Bexar County."

In the first six months of the MOB program, 25 cases were processed through the courts. Another 32 defendants were awaiting trial — most of them in jail.

Already, White said, MOB prosecutors have obtained 16 life sentences, two 99-year sentences and a 50-year term. Eleven of 19 defendants currently in jail are held without bond.

To run the MOB, White has hired seven attorneys in his prosecuting office, a special investigator and several clerical workers.

Assistant District Attorney Gordon Armstrong, who heads the MOB program, said the office uses a computer to target repeat criminals, multiple offenders and those charged with serious crimes.

The timetable calls for investigation of a criminal case within 15 days and processing by a grand jury within 15 more days.

White has no sympathy for career criminals.

"Studies show the chance of rehabilitating them is zilch," he said. "My feeling is that these people have had their chance to be rehabilitated and have not responded."

"If you get this bunch of criminals who are experts and professionals and put them in jail, it's got to cut crime. The kids and nonprofessionals are not going to commit five or 10 burglaries a day," White added.

Phantom plant

NEW YORK (AP) — A $125- million generating plant may never be built because customers of General Public Utilities Corp. in New Jersey and Pennsylvania have changed their schedules for using electricity.

The company's 1.5 million customers have shifted 300,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity away from the peak daytime hours of use, says company chairman William B. Kuhns. This amount is the capacity of a medium-sized, coal-fired generating station, Kuhns notes. While some of this reduction in peak demand for electricity is the result of conservation, energy management by its customers is the major factor, he explains.

Finance issue in S.F.

By DAVID JOHNSTON
The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — This city faces a municipal finance problem "that will approach critical proportions within a few years" if present trends continue, according to a report prepared last Feb. 14 for Mayor George R. Moscone.

The report was not made public at the time of its distribution and some of those involved in preparing it say now that the city has not responded adequately to its recommendations for reform.

City Budget Director Rudolph Nothernberg hotly disputes these criticisms. With the resources available to him, Nothenberg said, "and my sense of priorities I think we've done a great deal."

The report said "at this point in time San Francisco has the available resources to present a viable fiscal picture."

But it also warned that "per capita expenditures are very high" and "expenditures are increasing at a higher rate than revenues."

If this trend is not stopped and other problems dealt with adequately, the report said the city faces possible reduction in its coveted Triple A bond rating.

A reduced bond rating would mean higher interest costs on the money the city borrows to finance major improvements.

An economist and other municipal bond experts, all of whom declined to be identified, said there was considerable concern in the investment community over what they described as the city's "archaic accounting procedures."

"There is some concern" one of the bond experts said, "that the city really doesn't know just how much money it has coming in or going out."

Nothenberg and Chief Administrative officer Roger Boas both used the word "archaic" to describe the city's accounting system. They said corrective efforts were underway.

Both also said the report's facts and conclusions were accurate.

The report was one of four prepared by subcommittee's of the Mayor's Financial Advisory Committee. Others recommended major reforms in civil service, the controller's office and pensions.

Controversy over whether the city has responded adequately to the Feb. 14 report by the fiscal condition subcommittee centers on a proposal for a five-year projection of city operations spending.

Nothenberg confirmed in an interview that the city had no projections of future spending for operations, but said later an aide told him a five-year projection had been worked out on paper.

"What I don't need right now is a plan," Nothenberg said. "I've got enough plans. This city needs managers so it can get a handle on what is happening now."

One urban finance expert who worked closely on the report said he viewed the subcommittee's major role as "trying to impress on the city that they have to recognize their responsibilities."

he said Nothenberg and other city officials wanted to talk more about new revenue sources than managing existing dollars.

Nothenberg said the Moscone administration has found that "the ability to respond quickly, to manage in a modern way, doesn't exist under the city charter."

The subcommittee report was prompted by two studies done in the wake of New York City's financial crisis. The subcommittee found that the data used in those studies was misleading, as applied to San Francisco, and painted an overly bleak picture.

The report states that San Francisco levies $1,025 per capita in municipal taxes, the second highest figure in the nation. New York is highest at $1,516 and Los Angeles is third at $1,005.

In addition, San Francisco ranks third in bonded indebtedness per capita at $741. New York's figure is $1,622 and Boston's is $1,001. Los Angeles bonded indebtedness per capita is '401.

Half of San Francisco's debts are revenue bonds for its international airport. Supervisor John Molinari and other critics contend that a "great goldbrick building program" has gone on at the airport for years.

Soviet soccer riot revealed

MOSCOW (AP) — An estimated 15,000 Lithuanians streamed out of a soccer stadium in Vilnius, ripped down propaganda posters, overturned cars and set police vehicles afire in some of the worst rioting since the Soviet Union took over the Baltic country in 1940, dissident sources said.

A spokesman for the Interior Ministry in Vilnius (Vilna), the capital of Soviet Lithuania, admitted there was a "disturbance" after a soccer match between a Lithuanian and Russian team on Oct. 10. But he said it was not serious.

"As often happens, several teen-agers got into a fight after the game," he said. "Four of them were detained, spoken to and let go."

One dissident, ambulance medic Alexander Podrabinek, said he visited Vilnius and was told the trouble began when the crowd at the match began to shout "Russians go home" and "Katsapy," a derogatory term for Russians.

When the game ended, the spectators started their rampage through the streets. Militiamen, security police and auxiliary policemen tried to control the rioting, but when they made arrests, the crowd surged in to free the prisoners, residents said.

Podrabinek said he didn't know how many people were arrested. He said he was told there was another disturbance four nights later but could not confirm it.

The Vilnius newspapeer Vecherniye Novosti reported several days later that the rioting was the work of "drunken hooligans," he said.

There has been sporatic violence in Lithuania since 1940, notably in 1956 after the Hungarian revolt and again in 1972.

The 1972 riot in the city of Kaunas was touched off when a 20-year-old man set himself afire for nationalist and religious reasons, sources said at the time.

In Moscow, meanwhile, 40 dissidents appealed to the Soviet government to release thousands of imprisoned dissidents as part of the nationwide amnesty that is expected for the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution on Nov. 7.

In an open letter given to Western newsmen, the appeal asked that the amnesty apply "without exception to all political prisoners internal exiles and those in madhouses for political reasons, no matter what the charge against them or the length of their term."

An amnesty was declared 10 years ago for the 50th anniversary of the revolution, but most imprisoned dissidents were excluded.

Trains canceled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Amtrak commuters found their regular trains canceled today as the national passenger rail service began making budget-dictated cutbacks, mostly in the Northeast.

An Amtrak spokesman said Sunday four trains were being cut this week and others tentatively are scheduled for elimination on Nov. 6. He said the lines might yet be saved if Congress approves more money.

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee voted last week to give Amtrak an additional $18 million to keep the trains running, but final congressional action still must be taken.

The planned cutbacks would hit the busy Washington-to-Boston corridor hardest with an average of 22 daily trains serving those routes being dropped.

The trains canceled included two of eight regular Turboliner runs between Chicago and Milwaukee and the "Clamdigger," a weekday commuter service between Providence and New Haven, the spokesman said.

Metroliner service between New York and New Haven also was terminated due to a change in the line's electrical system, he said.

The planned cuts are intended to help ease an annual $50 million Amtrak operating deficit. Officials estimated the cancellations would save $28 million a year and eliminate about 1,000 jobs.

'The Mini Page' joins Weekender features

The creator, who holds a master's degree in education from Duke University, was an elementary school teacher for 10 years.

Her father, W. E. Debnam, was a newspaperman and television personality in North Carolina. Her grandfather, J. E. Debnam, was a public school superintendent and editor and publisher of the North Carolina Weekly.

"The Mini Page" has received distinguished achievement awards from the Educational Press Association of America for excellence in education and journalism. It also has received a Freedom Foundation honor certificate for outstanding achievement in bringing about a better understanding of the American way of life, and the American Dental Association Science Writers award.
