City raises water meter connection fees

Water tap fees are going up — in some cases to double or more than double the present rates — as a result of action in Rockport's city council meeting Monday night.

Officials emphasized, however, that the increases are necessary to offset the costs of materials used in making the water connections. "We are recommending this increase to break even (on materials costs)," Director of Public Works J.C. Gurley told the council. Labor costs are also figured into the increases.

Preparation of an ordinance officially setting the rates was authorized and is expected to be presented to council members in their Dec. 14 meeting.

In other action in Monday's council session, members approved advertising for bids for redrawing or reproducing the City House Numbering Map.

As approved by the council Monday, new water tap fees will range from $160 for a 1/2-inch water tap inside city limits to a $640 fee for a two-inch water tap outside city limits.

The proposed new fees, together with existing fees for comparison, are as follows:

For a 1/4-inch water tap, current fee is $70 inside city limits and $80 outside. This will increase to $160 inside city limits and $175 outside. Current cost of materials for this connection, Gurley said, is $144.53.

For a one-inch tap, present fees are $130 inside and $155 outside city limits. Proposed increase is $220 inside and $245 outside, to offset materials cost of $202.77.

For a 1.5-inch tap, present fees are $325 inside, $360 outside. Proposed new fees are $490 inside, $515 outside. Cost of materials, according to city figures, is $468.96.

For a two-inch water tap, present fees are $450 inside, $475 outside, and this will increase, under the proposal, to $615 inside, $640 outside. Present cost of materials is $584.

Taps to meters larger than two inches, Gurley said will be based on actual cost of materials and labor plus 10 percent.

He added that this increase is "in line" with fees charged by other cities of a size comparable to Rockport.

Council members voted to seek bids on redrawing of the City House Numbering Map, a measure expected to cost at least $3,000, even though the funds were not included in the 1981-1982 city budget allocations.

City Secretary Herman Johnson told council members the existing House Numbering Map — actually a series of maps — was prepared in 1958 and is now in poor condition.

Besides the deteriorating condition of the maps, Johnson pointed out they do not show areas of the city developed since 1958 — such as the areas around Dana Drive and Shadyside Drive.

Alderman Burt Mills moved to advertise for bids and was seconded by Alderman W.B. Allen. Bids will be opened on Dec. 14, according to city officials.

RFHS students injured in accident

Aransas County paramedics work over one of three Rockport-Fulton High School students injured when their pickup flipped over on Highway 35 north of Rockport Monday afternoon. Although Highway Patrolman Jerry Richardson said he could not release the names of the three, on the basis that they are minors, it was learned that they were Tony Goodwin, Kevin Hallmark and Ronald Jones. Goodwin, believed to be the driver of the pickup, was reported to be in critical condition in Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi Tuesday morning, with apparent head injuries. Hallmark and Jones were reported to have been treated and released from the office of Dr. Curtis Kovacs. Story is on page 10 of today's Pilot.

Small ACTA turnout doesn't bother Senator Brown

Despite the fact that State Senator Buster Brown was special guest at the most recent meeting, the turnout at Aransas County Taxpayers Association sessions continues to drop.

At the meeting held Thursday, Nov. 19, in the district courtroom the Senator spoke to a crowd of less than 30 people, a considerable contrast to the first meetings of the association, during which the courtroom was filled to capacity.

When ACTA officer Ed Brennan apologized for the low turnout, saying, "I'm very disappointed in the crowd,"

Brown replied, "I'm not disappointed. When I began my campaign for the Senate, several times I had to talk to only two or three people!"

Fresh from his first term in office, the Republican senator called his first year, "interesting."

He explained that he felt that people throughout the country were, like the ACTA, becoming more interested in government.

"Something goes along for a long time in the same way and when it begins to

Police ask citizens to 'call on us' during holidays

By Pat Blair

Rockport residents going on a long holiday weekend or merchants who notice someone suspicious in their stores are urged to get help from those trained to provide it — their police department.

"We're here to help," says Police Chief Joe Hinojosa. "We want people to call us — especially if you're planning to leave town during the holidays."

During the holiday season, "everything goes up," Hinojosa said. "Accidents, shoplifting, thefts... We get more thefts between Thanksgiving and January," he said.

He added he didn't know if burglaries actually increase during the holiday period — "I think if there is such a thing as 'normal' for crime, burglaries are about 'normal'."

But, he added, although burglaries aren't necessarily "up" in numbers, they are still a threat, "especially close to Christmas when the Christmas trees are up and the presents under them."

The police chief urged anyone planning to leave town to call the police department first. "We'll make an extra effort to patrol your residence in your absence," he said. "It isn't an inconvenience — we want to do it."

"It's good for the resident," he said, "and in the long run, it's good for the police. If we can prevent a burglary, we don't have to investigate it later."

Hinojosa said the police take extra measures during the holiday season — from about November until the first of January — to hold down crime and accidents in the city.

"We step up patrols. I try to keep all the manpower I can during the holiday season," he said. He added there are other measures the police take "but I can't say what they are for security reasons."

As much or more than burglaries during the holiday period, there is a danger from thieves and shoplifters, the chief continued. Both of these crimes increase during the holiday period.

"When you're shopping," Hinojosa cautioned, "whatever you buy, lock it in the trunk of your car. Visible packages in a car tempt thieves and even if the car is locked, they can break in." He also cautioned shoppers to lock their cars "and take the keys with you."

He cautioned merchants to be on the alert for shoplifters "and call the police immediately if you see someone who looks or acts suspicious."

On the subject of security — both for residences and businesses — Hinojosa said he has taken a crime prevention course and holds an "expert" rating in security surveys.

"You don't have to follow the recommendations," Hinojosa added, "but you will have them."

Any Rockport resident or business owner who wants a security survey for his or her property can get one — free — by calling Hinojosa at the police department. The survey is free of charge, the chief emphasized, and the property owner receives recommendations on how to make his business or residence "burglar-proof."

"The name of the game," he said, "is, don't give anyone the chance to commit a crime."

Schools, banks, businesses to close Thanksgiving

Aransas County school children and county employees will get a long weekend for their Thanksgiving holiday while most area businesses will be closed at least for the holiday itself.

The Aransas County School District will let out classes at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday for four days. Classes will resume Monday morning, Nov. 30.

The Aransas County Courthouse will close Thursday and Friday so employees can take a long holiday. Rockport's City Hall however will close Thursday only.

Offices will be open for business as usual at 8 a.m. Friday.

Assistant City Secretary Helen Brafett added that routine Thursday garbage pickups will be made on Friday this week so sanitation department employees can enjoy a holiday.

Banks and savings and loan institutions also will close Thursday only, with business resuming Friday.

Most Aransas County businesses will be closed for the holiday, including Rockport's H.E.B. and Super D food stores.

The majority of money in Aransas County "is in some type of savings account," according to George Cone, president of Live Oak State Bank.

But, according to Cone and Bob Mosier, executive vice president and comptroller at First National Bank here, that's nothing new for this area.

Nationwide, according to Ron Liles, chairman of the Texas Credit Union League — the state association for Texas' 1,365 credit unions — "there has never been a better time to be a saver than today."

But Cone and Mosier seem to agree that Aransas County "has had more savers than other places all along," in Mosier's words.

"Most banks are now running 75 to 80 percent in time (savings) money as opposed to demand (checking account) money," Cone said. He added that the most popular form of savings is money market certificates which require a minimum investment of $10,000 for six months.

Also popular are the All-Savers Certificates which allow return of up to $1,000 in interest ($2,000 for a couple) tax-free. Among the drawbacks to All-Savers Certificates — which are not for all savers, officials emphasize — is that they require a minimum investment of $500 for a one-year period.

The certificates carry a substantial penalty for early withdrawal of invested funds and persons in lower income brackets will actually get better returns by investing their money in other forms of savings.

Investors who want to keep their money accessible might consider pass-book savings, according to Liles. These accounts pay less than other forms of savings, but the money can be withdrawn at any time.

Other forms of savings, Liles added, include small savers certificates, intended to benefit those who don't have the $10,000 to invest in money market certificates. Although there is no legal minimum on small savers certificates, most financial institutions require a minimum investment of $1,000-$2,000.

Also available are money market mutual funds which usually require minimum investments of $1,000 to $2,000.

"We've always had a pretty healthy savings trend" in Aransas County, Mosier said. "People are putting more and more money into savings."

Pilot turkey winners named

Twelve lucky Aransas County residents will be carving free turkeys on their tables Thanksgiving Day. They are the winners in the Turkey Giveaway sponsored recently by the Pilot and 11 local merchants.

A winner was drawn Monday at each of the 12 participating businesses, with only one winner permitted per family.

Winners — and the participating merchant who drew their names — include Ruth Mitchell, Crazy Daisy; Dorothy Smallwood, Live Oak State Bank; Lee Rohm, First National Bank; Mrs. Richard Martin, Johnson Drug; Gertrude Bryant, Lettie's Liquor.

Also Jim Hays, Gould Appliances; Tom Crain, Super D; John Weiss, H.F.B.; Sylvia Torres, Pilot; Juanita Parsons, Monroe's; Lilly Lanfair, Roatan Drugs; and Cora Pasino, D&L Pawn Shop.

Johnson to appear at commissioners' court

The next meeting of the commissioners court, Wednesday, Nov. 25, will include a visit from Rockport city secretary Herman Johnson.

Johnson will ask the court to reconsider their request for more city funding to cover service provided by the county to the city police, including the use of dispatchers.

The city council had denied a request from Sheriff Bob Hewes for more city input, monetarily, to the jail, for the second time on Monday, Nov. 9. That request bore the endorsement of the county commissioners. The commissioners had voted to endorse Hewes request following the first denial by the city the month before.

The city denied Hewes request due to the fact that it was submitted following the finalization of their yearly budget.

"I'm not saying that they don't have a legitimate need," said Johnson. "But it should have been brought up before we adopted the budget for the fiscal year."

"Budgets can be amended but the city doesn't feel that at the present time they have the extra money to do so," said Johnson.

Johnson continued, "Our budget went into effect on Oct. 1 and the county's isn't effective until the first of the year."

The secretary said of his appearance before the commissioners, "I am going to ask them to reconsider. If they don't, we'll have to look elsewhere within our budget."

According to Johnson, the city spent approximately $15,000 last year on the jail.

"If I went and asked the county for the money, it would be the same thing," said Johnson. "It's just not feasible at the present time."

Richest futurity forecast for Goliad

Fantastic best describes horsemen's feelings about La Bahia Downs' 1982 Texas Futurity "Breeders Stake" and South Texas Derby, said Leonard Von Dohlen, III, track manager. "The response has been great and we fully expect the richest Futurity and Derby purses ever offered in Texas in March and April. Our 1982 spring dates are March 20-21, 27-28 and April 3-4, and this is certainly the best time of the year for developing two year olds and three year olds beginning their sophomore season," continued Von Dohlen.

The Texas Futurity "Breeders Stake" will be run at 330 yards for an estimated purse of $350,000 with $25,000 added. Last years Futurity which was the richest ever run in Texas had a total gross of $226,764.26, and was won by PAMPER OH, owned by Harold D. Stone of San Antonio, Texas. Futurity trials will be run March 27 with finals and consolation set for April 4. Nominations without penalty close Dec. 1, 1981. The Texas Futurity added money is sponsored by owners of seven stallions all standing at Southwest Stallion Station at Elgin, Texas, and South Texas Race Association. The horses and their owners are: JOHNEY MITO, owned by a partnership: JODY OH, owned by a partnership: EASY CRIMSON, owned by Joe Kirk Fulton; NATIVO, owned by Tom Neff; JET CREEK, owned by Bert Coats; KEPAS OH, owned by Billy and Toni Bode; and NEVER BEND FLY, owned by Billy and Toni Bode.

The South Texas Derby is advertised as the worlds richest non-mutual Derby and has $12,500 added. The race at 350 yards has an estimated purse of $125,000. The 1981 winner was KID AT HEART, owned by J.D. Chandler and Weldon Mallett of Victoria, Texas and the total gross purse was $64,186.14. Trials will be run March 20, with the finals and consolation March 28. Nomination deadline without penalty is Dec. 1, 1981. Derby added money sponsors are Lone Star Beer and the Goliad Chamber of Commerce.

New dining room for COA

That's what this 800-square-foot addition to the Council on Aging Building on Church Street will be when Don Stone completes work on it. According to Gwen Gonyea, COA director, "Don has done everything on this [addition] except pour the slab — and he supervised that." In addition to providing a dining room, the addition will double the size of the COA's kitchen and provide a storage room. The existing building will be converted entirely into work space says Gwen, who said the enlarged dining area is needed to accommodate growth of the organization's daily hot meals program. Also in the organization's future plans: conversion of part of the existing building space into a store which will sell items made in the COA workshop to help fund the organization's various projects for Aransas County senior citizens. Figueroa brings experience to office

STATE OF THE REGION
Juliet K Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

Octavio Figueroa, Jr., of Alice has brought to the office of mayor a variety of experiences which give him an unusual perspective. At the same time he is mayor of this city booming with the active oil industry, he is a teacher of remedial reading in the city's public schools, working with the children of migrant laborers who represent another facet of the economy.

The man who is serving in these two capacities has qualifying experience to draw upon in each. Before he was mayor, he was a city councilman. Before he was grown, he was a migrant laborer for 12 years, traveling with his family to Michigan, Indiana, Maine and West Texas.

He was born in Alice and the family has been at the center of his life. His parents still live there and have his great affection and respect. It was they who continually emphasized education and encouraged him to catch up when they returned from picking fruit or harvesting crops to enroll in classes in October or November. He holds a Masters Degree. Of seven children in his family, five are college graduates.

Mayor Figueroa is able to relate to his students, some of whom work in the same places and even for the same farmers where he once worked in the fields. Many of his students are three or four years behind, but he points out that about 80 percent of the students in this nation are not reading at their grade level. The children can relate to him, bring him their problems, and accept his guidance. It is impossible within time constraints to bring all of them up to the educational level they should be at their age. It is a wonderful thing to him when one student who has been slow and given no reason for hope, in one school year takes his or her place among good students.

One of his goals as mayor is a type of economic development that will open up jobs for the young people he is preparing to hold them. He wants them to have the option of remaining in Alice to work or turning to larger cities. He wants to be able to demonstrate that getting the education is worth it.

The need to cooperate and coordinate is one of the things he stresses. To accomplish this, he works as closely as possible with County Commissioners, with the Chamber of Commerce, within his own city administration, and within the Council of Governments. He believes in personal contacts, one-on-one, making sure you understand one another.

Mayor Figueroa believes that when you are honest with people, they are cooperative. He says that he is frank about what he says, and that he votes for what he believes in, even if it is politically unpopular and an election is approaching. He doesn't think this loses him votes, and anyhow, he says he doesn't intend to stay in the job forever.

Since as a school teacher his salary is paid by governmental entity, he cannot collect the $100 a month that he would otherwise receive as mayor. He would like to donate it to charity, but the law doesn't allow that. So he works for the things he finds important, among them, making sure everyone associated with the city government is open and attentive to the public and quick to respond to public requests.

Pet talks

by Dr. Hap Lutz

Dr. Lutz is a former instructor of diseases of dogs and cats in the college of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A&M University.

[Last of this series]
Kidney Disease in Dogs and Cats

In the previous articles I discussed the function of the kidneys and the symptoms of the two types of failures. In this article I will discuss causes of kidney failures, how the disease is diagnosed, and the treatment.

Causes of Kidney Diseases: They are many and varied. The most common are bacterial and viral infections, poisons, tumors, injuries, parasites and congenital defects.

Diagnosis of Kidney Disease: A detailed history from the owner is most important. A veterinarian can perform an excellent laboratory tests, even in your home, to confirm a diagnosis. The tests that are available are urine tests, blood tests, and kidney function tests. Other tests are X-ray and biopsy of kidney tissue performed by a pathologist.

Treatment: This will depend on whether the function is acute or chronic. In acute infections, it is necessary to restore the water and electrolyte balance with special hypodermic fluids. Antibiotics should be used. If poisoning is the cause, an antidote will be given. Painkillers may also be necessary. Anti-inflammatory drugs are given to prevent shock. If the pet recovers from the acute crisis, therapy can be changed over to the standard treatment for chronic kidney disease.

Kidney disease in dogs and cats

Chronic Kidney Disease Treatment: There is no cure for chronic kidney disease, but therapy can prolong a dog's life for many years without great inconvenience or expense to the owner or suffering to the pet.

1. Encourage the pet to drink lots of fluids to eliminate waste materials.

2. The pet should be exercised daily (a cat can be taught to walk with a leash).

3. Decrease the amount of waste materials to be eliminated by the kidneys by diet control. The best diet for this condition is called K/D (Kidney Diet). It is a prescription diet which can be obtained from a veterinarian. This diet is less expensive than if you tried to duplicate it at home. A home diet would include a mixture of oatmeal, cooked eggs, cottage cheese, corn syrup, skimmed milk, vegetable oil, and lean cooked lamb, plus the addition of vitamins and minerals.

If you have any questions concerning the health and care of your pet, send them to the Rockport Pilot. Dr. Lutz will answer them in the weekend edition of the paper.

Meek elected president of Retired Officers Association

Maj. Donald C. (Don) Meek was elected president of the Rockport-Fulton Chapter of the Retired Officers Association at a dinner meeting of the organization last Wednesday at the Sandollar Restaurant.

Col. James B. Reed was named vice president and Major Leonard H. Specht was elected secretary-treasurer. Elected members of the board of directors were Lt. Col. Walter A. Addis, Capt. W.D. (Del) Alley and Col. Gerard (Mick) Ladner.

Raulie Lee Irwin, local history buff, gave an illustrated talk on settlement and development of Rockport Live Oak peninsula and the surrounding area.

Starting with the era when Texas was a part of Mexico, he told of a number of early settlements many of which were abandoned years ago — and described numerous individuals and families who played leadership roles in growth of this area.

Irwin used charts and maps to illustrate the location of early settlements and displayed blown up photographs of pioneer leaders in agriculture, business and shipping. Irwin's talk was filled with dates and incidents that provided a graphic picture of community and family life.

He told those at the meeting that at one time this community was known as Aransas Pass but the name was changed to Rockport, reportedly because of rocky outcroppings along the shore of Aransas Bay.

Many of this region's early commercial activities were marine oriented with sailing vessels serving much of its transportation needs.

At one time plans called for Rockport to become the site of a deepsea harbor. However, Corpus Christi advocates outmaneuvered Rockport partisans in Washington and Corpus Christi was selected for the harbor which has grown in size and commercial importance through the years.

During World War I the Heldenfels shipyard on Rockport's south beach was commissioned to build four large wooden ships designed to carry supplies to the war in Europe, Irwin said.

Shortly after the Civil war Rockport enjoyed a boom related to the butchering and processing of beef cattle, mostly longhorns. At that time only the tallow, bones, horns and hides were utilized because of transportation problems before the invention of artificial refrigeration, Irwin said. The meat was discarded because it could not be marketed.

Later, land speculators attempted to sell small truck farms in the Rockport area. They brought hundreds of prospective buyers from the north to this area in special trains but met with only indifferent success, Irwin said.

Some resort business was developed in and around Rockport and a number of large hotels were built on the beach to accommodate visitors from the north according to Irwin, who added that the 1919 hurricane disposed of the hotels.

Seafood harvesting and processing remain the outstanding industry of this area with boats from Rockport and Fulton harbors supplying an important part of the country's total shrimp harvest, Irwin said.

The ubiquitous snail darter survives

Like Mark Twain's obituary, reports of the imminent extinction of the snail darter, a tiny, rare fish of the perch family, have turned out to be premature.

According to officials of the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA), the snail darter has been found swimming in a tributary of the Tennessee River in Alabama. The discovery is at least the seventh in three different states, and led a TVA scientist to declare the fish did not deserve the status of an endangered species protected by federal law.

The government, it may be recalled, succeeded in the late 1970's in blocking the construction of the TVA's $119-million Tellico Dam in Tennessee in order to spare what then was thought to be the only known habitat of the fish.

Federal regulators were wrong, not the first or last time. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, which argued it was foolhardy to block construction of the dam over the snail darter, recently documented additional cases in which the scientific credibility and reliability of federal agencies have fallen into disrepute. Most notable, perhaps, was the case of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), whose bungling touched off a public panic in 1980 at Love Canal, New York, over chemical wastes buried in the ground and alleged chromosome risk to nearby residents, only to have its findings thoroughly discredited. The truth has yet to catch up with the true story.

The case of the snail darter? It was a fishy story to begin with.

When it comes to recipes

Rockport's Ann Thomas believes in sharing the (culinary) wealth

"If I have a good recipe, I want to share it with everybody," says Ann Thomas.

With an attitude like that, Thomas should be ideally suited to publishing a weekly recipe column in a newspaper. And that's just what she will be doing, right here in the Pilot.

"Bon Appetit," a recipe column compiled and written by Thomas will soon be appearing in every Pilot Weekender.

"The column will have recipes for everybody," says Thomas. "I'll try to get in something for everyone, from a few gourmet-type recipes to some good old plain vanilla cooking," she says.

Features for younger cooks, special recipes for those on restricted diets and even some "Winter Texan" recipes are on Thomas' list of column ideas.

Holiday recipes, like the Thanksgiving meal featured here will be included in the column during the year.

In light of the double turkey blitz of Thanksgiving and Christmas, Thomas has already promised a column on what to do with all those leftovers!

Thomas credits her mother, "a fantastic cook", with her life-long love affair with cooking. A career woman since college graduation, she says she's "never had the chance to be a housewife" and cook as much as she'd like to. "Working in the kitchen has always been a special time for me," says Thomas.

Thomas and husband Bill, an independent drilling consultant, have recently moved here from Corpus Christi and she's now looking forward to more time for cooking.

With a degree in nursing, Thomas worked for many years as a nursing home administrator and director of nursing for several homes. She has had staff and supervisory nursing experience in several hospitals and government facilities.

Thomas' hobbies reflect her interest in cooking: she collects cookie cutters, menus, salt cellars and, of course, recipes and recipe books. She estimates that she owns some 35 hardback books and anywhere from 50-80 paperbacks, plus "boxes and boxes" of recipes collected over the years.

She belongs to a recipe book club and says, "When a new cook book comes in, I sit down with that first night and enjoy it like other people read novels."

Bill's work has taken the Thomas family from Texas, to Louisiana, to Arkansas, and New Mexico and Thomas has collected regional recipes all the way and hopes to share some with Pilot readers. She encourages reader participation and the sharing of favorites, too.

A point that Thomas stresses repeatedly is the fact that liking to cook does not a good cook make. "Just because I have a lot of recipes, does not mean I'm a wonderful cook. I have had some absolutely monumental flops in the kitchen — more than I care to think about."

She credits some of her memorable failures to her constant desire to "just change the recipe up a little bit..."

Her favorite thing to cook is desserts. "My grandmother used to say that a good cake depended on how much you beat it and I can turn out a real light and fluffy one," says Thomas.

She adds that the philosophy spreads to all areas of cooking.

"What you put into a recipe is what you get out of it."

And now, here's

Ann's first column

Hello, and thank you for joining me in this first edition of what we at the Pilot hope will be a welcome addition for you ladies and gentlemen who enjoy cooking or just collecting recipes. The plan is to present recipes for special holidays and/or celebrations, when indicated, and in between those times just some interesting recipes from my own collection and from my readers. Remember, it's your column too, and I want you to share your favorites with other readers. All you winter Texans out there be sure to join us! Here we go!

Thanksgiving Dinner 1981

Onion soup, roast turkey with stuffing and gravy, green beans with almonds and mushrooms, sweet potatoes in orange shells, holiday cranberry salad, butter way rolls, butter, beverage, southern pecan pie and lemonade cake.

This recipe lets us put to use some of our local and subsequently fresh seafood.

Clam Stuffing

2 ounces salt pork, diced
1/4 c. butter or oleo
2 medium onions, diced
4 c. soft stale bread crumbs
6 1/2 oz. minced clams, drained. Save liquid for more moistened stuffing
1/4 tsp. each thyme and marjoram leaves
1/2 tsp. celery seed
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook salt pork until browned. Add butter and onions and saute five minutes. Add to remaining ingredients and mix well. Add desired amount clam liquid and stir well. Makes about five cups.

Sage and Thanksgiving has always gone hand in hand in my parents' home so here's a dressing that will stuff a 14 to 18 pound bird, and pacify those of us who think we have to have a taste of Sage.

Sage and Celery Dressing
4 qts. lightly toasted bread cubes
2 medium onions, chopped
1 qt. chopped celery with tops
1 T. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 tsp. dried sage
1 tsp. poultry seasoning
1 c. (1/2 pound) butter, melted
Broth or stock to moisten

Saute the onion and celery lightly in a little of the butter, if you wish. Combine all ingredients lightly. Cooked, ground or chopped giblets may be added to the dressing.

Are you tired of the traditional candied yam or baked sweet potato every holiday? Then try this pretty and delicious recipe for 6 or 8 guests.

Sweet Potatoes in Orange Shells
3 or 4 medium oranges
6 to 8 medium sweet potatoes, cooked and skinned

1/2 c. butter
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 c. orange juice
Grated rind of 1 orange
1/2 c. brown sugar
1/2 c. broken pecans or walnuts
1/2 c. sherry

1/2 c. tiny marshmallows
Cut oranges in halves and extract juice, then scallop edges after removing pulp. Mash potatoes with electric mixer until smooth and fluffy. Add all remaining ingredients except nuts and sherry. Blend well. Add nuts and sherry. Place orange shells on a heatproof platter and fill with potato mixture. Dot with marshmallows. Bake at 350 degrees F. for about 20 minutes.

No holiday meal is complete without a salad and here is one you are sure to like. It's pretty and you can make it ahead of time.

Holiday Cranberry Salad
1 lb. cranberries
1 - 3 oz. package cream cheese
1 1/3 c. water
2 pkgs. cherry gelatin
1/2 c. sugar
1 c. Tokay grapes, seeded and cut in half
1 c. finely chopped celery
1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) crushed pineapple
16 marshmallows, quartered

1 c. whipping cream
Crisp lettuce leaves
Wash cranberries, add water and cook until they start to pop. Boil 5 minutes.

Beat with a rotary beater to break up the berries. Add the gelatin and sugar and stir until dissolved. Place over ice water. Stir frequently until mixture is thick. Fold grapes into jellied mixture with celery and undrained pineapple. Pour into a pan about 12 x 8 x 2. Chill overnight. Mash cheese slightly in a bowl. Add marshmallows and cream and place in refrigerator overnight or several hours. Beat with an electric or rotary mixer until stiff. Cut salad into squares and serve on lettuce leaf and top with whipped cream mixture.

And finally a light dessert that's both simple and delicious.

Lemonade Cake

1/2 c. shortening
1 c. sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 1/2 sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. soda
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 c. sour milk or buttermilk
1 c. seedless raisins, ground
Rind of 1 lemon, ground
Lemonade Topping
Topping: Combine 1/2 c. sugar, 3 T. lemon juice, 1/2 tsp. grated lemon rind and 1 T. water.

Cream shortening and sugar well, blend in eggs. Beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with sour milk. Add raisin and lemon-rind mixture and mix well. Bake in greased 9 x 9 x 2 pan at 350 degrees for 50 to 60 minutes. Allow cake to cool about 10 minutes, then spoon on the topping slowly, allowing it to soak into the cake. Serves nine.

Onion Soup

Allow about 45 minutes to cook the onions. This will turn them a deep golden brown and release their flavor.

3 T. butter
4 c. thinly sliced onions
1/2 tsp. sugar
1 T. flour
Freshly ground pepper
4 slices toasted French bread
1/2 c. Parmesan cheese
Salt

Melt the butter in a large pot, add the onions and cook them very slowly. (Use low heat). Stir often. Stir in the sugar and flour and cook for three minutes. Add 4 c. water and simmer, partially covered for 30 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serve with a slice of French bread in each bowl. Pass the Parmesan cheese.

Guide for Roasting Turkey

Wgt.	(hours)	Temp.
6-8 lbs.	3-3 1/2	325 F.
8-12 lbs.	3 1/2-4 1/2	325 F.
12-16 lbs.	4 1/2-5 1/2	325 F.
16-20 lbs.	5 1/2-6 1/2	325 F.
24-24 lbs.	6 1/2-7	325 F.

Frozen turkeys should be thawed in the refrigerator for two-three days. If you are pressed for time, and the turkey is in a sealed bag it can be thawed under running water for six hours.

Turkey Gravy

Remove turkey from the roasting pan and pour drippings (fat and meat juices) into a pint measuring cup. Skim off the fat. Return three T. fat and 3 T. flour to roasting pan; blend thoroughly. Cook slowly, stirring over low heat to brown fat and flour only slightly. Add water, milk, or giblet broth to meat juices to make two cups liquid. Add to fat and flour. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened. May add diced giblets if desired. Simmer about five minutes. Makes two cups. This recipe can be doubled as many times as needed.

Green Beans with Almonds and Mushrooms

This is easy to prepare and will serve eight.
6 c. cut green beans (1 1/2 lbs.)
3 T. butter or oleo
1/4 c. toasted and coarsely chopped almonds
1 - 4 oz. can mushroom slices, drained
3/4 tsp. salt
1/8 to 1/4 tsp. savory leaves
1 tsp. lemon

Cook green beans in boiling water (salted) until tender; drain. Melt butter and add almonds and drained mushrooms. Cook until the mushrooms are heated. Add to beans along with remaining ingredients. Toss. Serve at once.

This recipe is unusual in that it is a yeast roll, but is treated as a muffin batter. It won a blue ribbon at the Parke Co., Ind. Fair.

Batter-Way Rolls

1 1/2 c. warm water
2 pkg. dry yeast
4 c. flour
1/4 c. sugar
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/3 c. soft shortening
1 egg

Pour warm water into mixing bowl, add yeast. Stir until dissolved. Add half the flour, sugar, salt, shortening and egg. Start on medium speed or beat by hand until the flour disappears, about two minutes. Add the rest of the flour and stir by hand until the flour disappears, about two minutes. Scrape down batter from sides of bowl. Cover with damp towel and let rise until doubled, about 30 minutes. Grease muffin tins. (Need 24 muffin cups). Stir down batter in 20 to 25 strokes. Spoon into pans, filling half full. Let rise in warm place until batter reaches top of pans, about 20-30 minutes. Bake at 375 F. for 10-15 minutes.

And what is Thanksgiving dinner without a pecan pie? This is very rich so you'll want to serve it in thin wedges.

Southern Pecan Pie

1 - 9" pie crust (unbaked and chilled)
3 eggs
1 c. light brown sugar (tightly packed)
6 T. melted butter or oleo
1/4 C. light corn syrup
1/8 tsp. salt
1 heaping C. pecan pieces
Pecan halves*

1 tsp. vanilla
*The pecan halves are to decorate the pie in daisy fashion prior to baking and may be deleted if desired.

Preheat the oven to 400 F. Beat the eggs and vanilla for three minutes. Add the sugar and continue beating until well blended. Stir in the

Sandollar puts Vienna little closer

The Rockport - Fulton Choir Boosters are one step closer to their goal of "Vienna in '82", thanks to this weekend's benefit dances, sponsored by Joy Carr, manager of the Sandollar Restaurant.

Carr donated the entire proceeds from dance ticket sales to the boosters. According to all reports, the dances were well attended both nights, though no figure is yet available on the final ticket sales.

Music was provided for the dancers by the "Texas Cooking" band of Bob Christian, Fidel Garcia, Bill Morgan and Martha Richards. Disco music was provided by Tommy Wise and John Jacobs.

The special boosters drawing was held at the Saturday night dance with Jim "Chief" Craigmile drawing the winning tickets.

First place winner was Jimmy Gil Garza of Fulton. Second and third prizes went to Dean Monroe of Rockport and Ericka Trevino of Taft.

butter, corn syrup, salt, and pecan pieces. Pat the bottom of the crust with a little flour and pour in the filling.

Smooth it evenly. If using pecan halves, place them daisy fashion on the center of the pie. Place on a baking sheet and bake 10 minutes.

Reduce the heat to 300 F. and continue baking 25 to 30 minutes or until firm. Serve cool.

Have a very happy holiday and please join me next week for some apple recipes and reader's contributions as well. Bon Appetit!

Gardening

Impossible but true potatoes from seed

By Ted Brice,
 The Garden Editor
 Potatoes from seed, impossible say veteran gardeners. But this week I received a seed catalogue that listed potatoes from seed. The variety is Explorer and is considerably less than the normal cost for seed potatoes.

Potato seed can be treated just like tomato or pepper seeds in preparation for planting in the home garden. Start seedlings indoors about four weeks before the last frost is expected. Spread the seed over a moist, well drained soil mix and cover very lightly (1/16 inch) with either the same soil mix or vermiculite. Seed can also be started directly in pots either fiber or plastic.

Gently water the container with the seed, being careful not to disturb the seedlings. Place the container in a well lighted south window or under fluorescent lights in a cool room.

Optimum germination occurs at 64 to 72 degrees F. Do not allow the seed to be exposed to temperatures above 75 degrees. In 10 to 15 days, you should see the young seedling potatoes. Transplant when about 1/2 inch to small pots. Keep the plants in a high-light, cool (below 65 degrees F.) area until ready for transplanting to the garden.

Plants can be set into the garden as soon as possible after danger of frost has passed. Dig a furrow trench 6-8 inches deep and 10 inches wide. Place the plants in groups of three, every 12 inches in the bottom of the furrow. If the plants are tall and leggy, lay the main stem of the plant down in the bottom of the furrow, much like you would tomato plants, and cover with soil. Leave the top 3-4 inches of plant uncovered. Pull soil up around the bottom of the plant and water if the soil is dry.

As plants continue to grow in summer weather, soil should be pulled in from the sides of the furrows up around the plants. This is "hilling" just like you're used to doing with potatoes. Always leave the top 5-6 inches of the plant exposed. The three plants will grow together and resemble one plant.

A side dressing of fertilizer once a month during the summer with a basic garden fertilizer will promote tuber growth.

Potatoes should always be grown in a well-drained area in full sun. If necessary, add sand, peat or compost to loosen the texture of heavy or compact soils. Cultivate the area to a depth of 10 inches.

Use a balanced fertilizer such as 8-8-8 or 12-12-12 or one of the special vegetable fertilizers on the market.

Control potato beetles during the summer by hand picking them from your plants or with a vegetable garden dust. When vines mature and die, which should be 90 to 120 days after planting, dig the potatoes from the hills with a spading fork. Potatoes should be cleaned, dried and stored in a cool area or refrigerated if they are not to be used immediately.

Just a few years back, growing geraniums from seed was considered the plant triumph of the year. Now gardeners have just as startling an introduction in being able to grow potatoes from seed.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN — Texas producers and consumers of natural gas have been discriminated against in the past, are being discriminated against now, and will continue to suffer if Congress does not act quickly to amend the Natural Gas Policy Act (NGPA) of 1978. Natural gas is the last remaining resource still under price controls imposed by the Carter Administration's National Energy Plan.

By 1985, Texas consumers will pay over three times the price that their northern neighbors pay for the same natural gas gathered in Texas. Texas citizens are being forced by law to subsidize northern and northeastern consumers at the expense of our State's tax base and the residential and industrial ratepayers of our State. Measures are needed to place interstate and intrastate consumers of natural gas on equal footing.

Another aspect of this complex act is the poorly planned price controls which are based on 1978 oil prices. Drastic oil price hikes in 1979 and 1980 increased the price discrepancy between oil and gas thereby reducing incentives to explore for new gas. To compound the problem, Saudi Arabia recently announced plans to cut oil production, further increasing the likelihood of more price hikes in foreign oil.

Results of several studies, one of which was done by the Department of Energy, estimate that the existing schedule for decontrol will leave natural gas prices from one-third to forty percent below free market oil prices. To help alleviate some of the economic impacts of decontrol a cabinet-level committee has recommended to the President that newly discovered gas be decontrolled at a faster rate than under AGPA.

Laws on natural gas contract provisions and Federal Energy Regulatory Commission pipeline transportation rules are also discriminatory to Texas and warrant the immediate attention of Congress.

Action on this issue is essential to stabilizing the price of oil-based petroleum products such as gasoline, diesel, heating oil, aviation fuel and others. Action is also essential to stabilize the natural gas market and to stabilize the future economic picture in Texas.

I urge you as a Texas consumer to convey your views on this matter to President Reagan and your representatives in Congress.

Rockport-Fulton Jr. High teams capture trophies

The Rockport-Fulton Jr. High School seventh grade and eighth grade boys basketball teams played some hard basketball games in the Ingleside Tournament and walked away with a first and second place. The seventh grade boys basketball team beat Ingleside Friday 36-27 to advance to the finals Saturday. The Taft team however was just too much for the R-F boys to handle and the seventh grade boys went down to a 24-21 defeat against Taft. The eighth grade boys also defeated Ingleside 44-13 in a Friday game to advance to the finals against Aransas Pass who they defeated 38-32 for the championship.

The seventh and eighth grade girls basketball teams took consolation at the Ingleside Tournament in Saturday's game.

Both the seventh and eighth grade girls lost their games to Ingleside on Thursday but the seventh grade girls team came back to beat Aransas Pass seventh grade team 16-2. The eighth grade girls also came back Saturday to beat Taft eighth grade 31-20.

Varsity, JV and Lady Pirates all suffer defeats in tourney

Just three days after Carroll had used a big third quarter to pull away from the Pirates of Rockport-Fulton, Port Lavaca (Calhoun County) used the same situation to rack up a 68-46 win over the Pirates after Rockport had trailed by only 31-28 at halftime.

It was the same story as in the season's opener. The Pirates came back after the half with nothing but flatness. To add to their misery of only scoring seven points in the third quarter, the Pirates were whistled heavily for fouls by the officials. In all, Calhoun shot 43 times from the free throw line.

As in the first game of the year against Carroll, no one would step out to lead the Pirates in scoring. Still looking for a double figure scorer, the Pirates were led by Zachary Green with nine, while Dwayne Walls and Michael Simmons, only two weeks out of football, each had seven points.

After a quarter, the Pirates were even with the Sandcrabs at 12-12, and then trailed by three at the half. The third period had the Crabs outscore the Pirates 18-7. By then the game was out of reach.

Rockport's JV, still trying to learn to play together, dropped a 54-37 contest to the Sandcrabs. A four-point first quarter dug a hole for the Pirates and presented a barrier they could never overcome as the Crabs hit for 13 points and then went on to extend their lead to 31-16 at the half.

Jeffery Dickerson, top scorer in the game for the Pirates with 12 points, hit for 10 points in the second half to keep the Pirates from being blown away.

In girls action, the extremely young Lady Pirates dropped a pair of games in the Flour Bluff Tournament over the weekend, losing to Alice 56-29, and to Incarnate Word 49-22.

In the opening round of the Tournament, the Lady Pirates fell behind 17-6 in the first quarter, and that set a pattern for the remainder of the game. In that 56-29 loss, Diana Herman scored 19 points in the game.

After being forced into the loser's bracket, the Lady Pirates drew the Incarnate Word Angels, and lost 49-22. The story was almost the same as the first game as the Ladies found themselves behind 16-4 after only a quarter. Herman and Lee Anna Cassel each had six points for high point honors.

Redfish and trout regulations amended

AUSTIN — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has amended regulations currently in effect dealing with the importation of red drum and spotted seatrout, to allow both species now to be imported whole, filleted or in any other form as long as they are packaged with only one species per package.

Previously, only whole redfish and speckled trout could be imported into the state according to regulations the Commission adopted as required by House Bill 1000, which prohibited the sale of Texas-caught redfish and speckled trout after Sept. 1.

Commercial fishing interests had brought suit before the U.S. District Court of Judge DeAnda in Brownsville challenging the constitutionality of HB 1000. DeAnda upheld all aspects of the bill except for the portion specifying that only whole redfish and speckled trout could be imported into the state, ruling that processing of the two species should be treated the same whether in Texas or out of state. The action of the Commission to amend the importation requirements was taken to comply with DeAnda's ruling.

In related action, the Commission voted to allow a 14-day period during which redfish and speckled trout lawfully possessed by seafood dealers prior to Sept. 1 could be transported out of Texas. This was done to comply with a request from seafood dealers who had been unable to dispose of inventories of the two species within the 60-day period previously allowed by the Commission after HB 1000 became effective.

Time to put pride back in teaching profession

Mike Morrow, executive director of the Association of Texas Professional Educators (ATPE) told delegates to the 72nd annual Texas PTA convention that it's time to put pride back in the teaching profession.

Morrow, whose association represents more than 30,000 educators in Texas, said, "Accountability for the education of Texas children does not start and stop at the classroom door. Educators, school boards, parents, and the entire community must share equally the responsibility of insuring quality public education."

Citing incidents in Michigan where public schools have closed for lack of community support, Morrow reiterated that equal opportunity for a public education is as essential to a democratic free society as the right to vote.

"Acute teacher shortages already exist in math and science," Morrow said. He added that in the next few years, Texas will be looking not only at a severe shortage but at a less qualified individual in the classroom. "The best and brightest young people are not going to choose a profession demanding a college degree and tremendous responsibility that pays the equivalent of unskilled labor," he said.

Morrow asked the PTA delegates, "Do you want your children taught by the most qualified person available? Would you encourage your child to become a teacher?"

He said that until the answer to both questions is an "emphatic yes," the future of public education is in danger. In addition to salaries that can't compete with industry, the other issues that are driving teachers out of the classroom and young people away from the colleges of education are mountains of paper work in addition to the traditional grading, social promotion of children whom teachers know have not mastered the basic skills, and discipline problems.

"It's up to each one of you," Morrow told the delegates, "and every member of the adult community to support the thousands of dedicated teachers who have stayed in the classrooms despite dwindling respect and outright attacks by the media, taxpayers, and parents. The school's best friend is an informed parent."

Before joining ATPE, Morrow was an educator in the San Antonio North East School District where he served as classroom teacher, assistant principal, and principal of a high school.

Scandinavian Student Exchange seeks community representatives

The American Scandinavian Student Exchange is seeking individuals who will help recruit high school students for the ASSE exchange program and interview host families for Scandinavian students coming to this country for a year.

The ASSE is a U.S. non-profit high school exchange program operating under the auspices of the Swedish

Ministry of Education to sponsor American high school students for a summer or school year of studies in Scandinavia while sponsoring Scandinavian students in this country.

Community representatives are needed to interview host families, oversee Scandinavian high school students during the school year and represent ASSE's exchange program in their community.

The representatives also are asked to help recruit American high school students for the program and have an opportunity to travel overseas. They are reimbursed for their expenses.

Anyone interested in serving as a community representative for the program is asked to call collect 616-530-0698 to the ASSE Regional Director.

Predators inflict heavy livestock losses

COLLEGE STATION — Predators continue to inflict heavy losses to livestock, poultry and other wildlife, pointing to the need for an effective remedy.

That remedy could come in the use of toxic chemicals, but use of such materials, particularly Compound 1080, is not yet sanctioned by the Environmental Protection Agency.

However, some inroads are being made toward legalizing the use of these chemicals, points out Dr. Dale Wade, a wildlife specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Information presented at recent informal hearings may warrant the EPA to open formal hearings before an administrative law judge.

"If such hearings do come about, they would include information on the use of the 1080 toxic collar to protect sheep and goats as well as possible use of 1080-treated baits," notes Wade.

While such hearings might finally lead to an effective predator control technique for ranchers, they likely would not be completed in time to allow use of toxic chemicals during the coming winter season, adds the specialist.

"Coyotes continue to cause the heaviest losses to livestock and poultry, and their populations are increasing," says Wade. "They have been a problem to sheep and goat producers for many years, but now they also are causing increased losses in cattle. And the problem is no longer confined to western states; several eastern states now report increased coyote populations and significant livestock losses."

In addition to preying on livestock and poultry, coyotes also have inflicted heavy losses in pronghorn antelope, mule deer and other wild species in recent years, adds Wade. This has led some state wildlife agencies to support the use of toxic agents against predators.

"With ranchers currently operating at low profit margins or even losses due to poor prices, livestock losses to predators are a major concern," points out Wade. "Furthermore, these losses will ultimately be reflected in reduced meat supplies at higher prices."

An added factor is the loss of agricultural land to other uses when small operators can no longer survive production and predator costs. When this happens, producers, consumers and the whole nation suffers, contends the specialist.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, Tradition for a good cause should be perpetuated, let it be known that starting at least 3200 years ago, according to the 16th Chapter of the Book of Deuteronomy, Moses gave to the children of Israel the celebration of a holiday of thanksgiving exactly seven weeks after they began harvesting their first crop in the Promised Land; and

WHEREAS, In the 17th Century, the Church of England provided in their Canon Law a day of thanksgiving; and

WHEREAS, In December, 1621, 360 years ago, the pilgrim fathers proclaimed a day of thanksgiving in this new land; and

WHEREAS, On Thursday, November 26, 1789, President George Washington set aside this day as a day for universal thanksgiving throughout the newly-formed republic; and

WHEREAS, 118 years ago, President Abraham Lincoln reinstated through a Thanksgiving Proclamation the Thanksgiving Day of President Washington.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Walter S. Falk, Jr., Mayor of the City of Rockport, Texas, do proclaim the 26th day of November, 1981 as a day when all citizens should thank their God for the blessings they have received.

Brown

change, the people become more aware of it," said Brown.

Speaking on the necessity of taxes, Brown said, "The process that operates the government takes money, and besides several indirect means, the main source of that money is taxes."

"Throughout history, we've enjoyed the luxury of not having to worry about our economy, about how well we've spent our tax dollars," said the Senator. "When you've got plenty of money, you don't worry about spending it, but when you get into a marginal area, like the country is in now, you look at every expense."

Brown said, "When the cost of gas or some other commodity goes up for you, it goes up for the government too." He told the group, "You want to help determine how your tax dollar is spent and make sure it's spent in the best way, but you cannot be opposed to the idea of taxation. Without taxation, there can be no government."

Brown next spoke on the new 100 percent evaluation method and the changes it had brought to the state. "It hasn't worked out fair for some people. People want equal taxation, but I don't think that can be done," Brown said. He gave a hypothetical example illustrating his point by saying that people in Cotulla and people in Aransas county could pay the exact same amount of school taxes, but if the school scores in Aransas County were higher than those in Cotulla, then those people had not gotten the same results from the same amount of tax dollars — therefore, taxation would be unequal.

Saying that "dollars can never be the guide for equal taxation," Brown stated, "I'm not sure there is an answer. I'm not sure it's worth worrying about trying to find one. The best you can do is worry about what's happening here, in your own area."

Speaking about the coastal bend area, the Senator said, "People make decisions to live where they can enjoy life and a lot of people have decided to live here."

Saying that the move to this area by northerners was in keeping with a general trend of southward migration, Brown warned ACTA members, "With more people, there are more government services and with more government, the tax burden gets greater."

With more public awareness and a greater amount of tax burden, Brown said the responsibilities of lawmakers were constantly growing. "We have to start being very careful about how we spend our tax dollars."

"If we say yes everywhere we'd like to, we will certainly bankrupt the government. We no longer have the luxury of doing something that sounds nice at the time without careful calculation about how it will affect us down the line," said Brown.

He praised the efforts of the ACTA, saying, "This type of group is good. You should be working all the time, with all your government, not just at the county level."

"Good close communication", according to Brown, makes for the best kind of government. "If legislators know that people are watching them, they will pay more attention to work at hand. The best kind of government is close to the people."

Brown continued in the same vein, saying that in his years as a lawyer, he often had doubts as to his own judgement, but that when a decision was put into the hands of the jury — the people — he was confident in their decision.

He said of participation and attention to local government by groups like ACTA, "If you let people study it a while they will come up with the right decision."

Roller rink, flea market get council okay

Requests from Henneke Roller Rink Inc. for permission to operate a skating rink on Navigation District property and the Rockport Art Association to hold a flea market got approval of Rockport's city council Monday night.

Victor Henneke, who operates a skating rink on Navigation District property in Rockport annually, received permission to operate this year from Dec. 2 through the month of February, 1982.

In a letter to the council, Henneke said he will be sponsored by the new Catholic School here and plans to seek sponsorship from the Rockport - Fulton High School choir. Under terms of the sponsorship, a portion of Henneke's proceeds from the rink go to the sponsor(s).

The Rockport Art Association was given permission to hold a sidewalk flea market in the 400 and 500 blocks of Austin Street on the weekend of Jan. 23-24. Proceeds from the sales will go into the Association's Art Center Building Fund.

The project is being conducted by local volunteers.

In other action Monday night, the council accepted a letter of resignation from Police Patrolman Richard Martinez who cited "personal reasons" for his decision.

The council also voted to amend the bid awarded to Commercial Motor Co. for a new garbage truck, increasing the bid by some $953.19, to $25,892.39.

Director of Public Works J.C. Gurley said Commercial Motors would still be the low bidder on the truck. The bid was amended in order for the city to purchase a heavier truck. This was based on a recommendation by Pakmor, the company that is providing the packer for the garbage truck.

Bids on purchase by the city of 500 sign posts was awarded to the apparent low bidder, Price Barricade & Signal Co. of Hearn, provided the company meets the city specifications. The low bid was for $4,921 with 15-30 days for delivery of the posts.

Signs are being provided by the State of Texas.

Council members voted to table appointment of two members to the city's park board. Alderman Murray McMillan was absent from Monday's meeting and a decision was made to defer the matter of appointments until the full council can consider it.

Youth critical following mishap

Rockport-Fulton High School student Tony Goodwin was reported to be in critical condition in Memorial Medical Center, Corpus Christi, after suffering head injuries in an accident on Highway 35 north of Rockport Monday afternoon.

Highway Patrolman Jerry Richardson who investigated the accident declined to identify the youth or two companions who were also injured in the mishap, on the basis that they were minors.

Both units of the Aransas County Emergency Medical Service responded to the accident which occurred about 3:40 p.m. just north of Kingsbury Square. The other two youths, identified as Kevin Hallmark and Ronald Jones, were treated and released from the office of Dr. Curtis Kovacs, according to Kovacs.

Richardson said the accident occurred as the youths, northbound in a blue pickup, attempted to pass an 18-wheeler being driven by Clifford Dale Allen of Waco.

Richardson said the pickup was in the outside lane of the four-lane highway, passing the 18-wheeler on the right, when the truck began moving into the outside lane.

The pickup went off the road then apparently attempted to get back onto the road, Richardson said. At that point, it flipped and rolled twice.

Richardson said no charges have been filed at this time in the mishap but the incident is still under investigation.

Margaret Yaffe and Helen Chastain with the Private Eyes collection

Merle Norman dealers work hard for their customers

You don't have to be a fortune teller to predict what colors and fashions women will be wearing this season. Helen Chastain and Margaret Yaffe of Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio have all the inside information.

The studio is inside Kitty's Fashions at 105 N. Austin.

Margaret and Helen have just completed the Merle Norman Cosmetic Career Seminar in Houston, a two-day school in the latest makeup and fashion trends.

"We can bring the new makeup trends to Rockport customers," says Helen. "We have all the new colors and the new ideas."

Margaret agrees. "The schools let us know about the latest up-to-the-minute advanced styles."

As Merle Norman dealers, both women attend such seminars often, for the purpose of keeping their customers abreast of the latest makeup news. "The schools are quite rigorous," says Helen. "We must know all the correct facts about the makeup."

Speaking of rigorous, the women had to attend a three-week training school prior to obtaining their franchise three years ago. They had to travel to Los Angeles for the course, but did not even have time for enjoying their trip. With 32 other prospective dealers, they attended Merle Norman classes five days a week.

"They don't want people to represent their products unless they know the products," says Helen.

The newest makeup trends include a move to more compact, easier-to-use makeup items and Helen and Margaret are right on top of it. New items in the store include a set of lip and eye pencils convenient for carrying in a purse.

Says Margaret, "Makeup shouldn't take a long time and take up a lot of room. It's a misconception that many women have."

Another "compact" special that Merle Norman is featuring is the Private Eyes collection. A $42.50 value, now available for only $11.50 with an $8.50 Merle Norman purchase, the set offers two pencils, mascara and 14 eye shadows all tucked into a plum colored quilted roll up bag.

In addition to the newest in makeup, Merle Norman also offers a complete line of fashion purses, of all sizes and styles.

Helen and Margaret enjoy what they do — and what they do is a lot! Besides the regular sales of the extensive Merle Norman line, the studio offers facials, make-overs, lessons in makeup for groups and individuals, club programs and makeup help for special occasions, like weddings. The Merle Norman motto is "The Place for the Custom Face" and Margaret and Helen try their best to provide that for their customers.

"When someone comes in looking for makeup, we tell them all we can about it, and try to find out what's best for them," says Helen. "We help them enjoy it."

New attitudes toward learning part of new era in schooling

RESTON, VA. — Students and educators today have a new attitude toward learning that reflects a new era in secondary schools, according to Scott Thomson, executive director, National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP).

"Principals throughout the nation tell me students have a new attitude toward getting the most they can from their academic subjects," Thomson recently told a national conference of education reporters. "Students are most positive today about learning than they have been in the last 10 years. This reflects their concern about getting a job upon graduation and greater support from their parents."

Thomson believes that the whole theme of secondary schools has changed from the late sixties and early seventies.

"Schools are very flexible and reflect the desires of the society," he indicated. "After Sputnik was launched, there was a call for more emphasis on math and science. During the Great Society movement, schools were asked to provide social services. Today they are focusing on productivity."

"The focus on productivity reflects the challenge that we face as a nation from other nations. The strength of our economy is linked intimately with the strength of our educational system. Our exports are based on the knowledge and skills of our people."

Thomson predicted that schools will not disregard equality, but they will emphasize quality with work in foreign languages, math, science, and the technologies.

"We (schools) are flexible enough to respond to the call of society, but we can't change the focus of the institution overnight," he stated. "No other institution, with the possible exception of the armed forces, has contributed one-half as much to equality of opportunity as schools have. We (schools) can do anything society wants us to do, but we can't do everything."

The secondary school today is being viewed as a serious place, according to Thomson. It is not a grim place, but a place where everyone is serious about learning.

Part of the changing attitude on the part of students is because they are also looking at the economy.

"Sixteen and 17-year olds are concerned about getting jobs. They realize that the more work they accomplish, the more knowledge they gain in school, the better chance they'll have to land the job they want."

Parent support is also continuing to change, according to Thomson. Parents are realizing that learning is a cooperative partnership between the school and the home, and they are motivating their students to become serious about their work.

"We are about halfway toward achieving this new focus on productivity," he said. "Society, however, is facing a dilemma. Unless we invest in elementary and secondary education, we will fall farther behind other nations. The farther behind we fall, the less we'll be able to compete. Our country's economic future lies in the success of our schools."

Bilingual author predicts early spring slowdown on program

AUSTIN — The author of the state's bilingual education statute is predicting a slowdown in early spring on the bilingual program entry/exit criteria approved Saturday by the Board of Education.

Senator Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi says the issue of achievement test scores to determine eligibility for placement in a bilingual program will be back before the board very soon.

"The issue is an educational one and is not going to go away until it is properly addressed by the Board," Truan said.

"We are not willing to wait for a ruling from the 5th Circuit Court. It is the responsibility of the Board to implement the mandate of the legislature and they can't palm off their responsibility on anyone else," Truan said, referring to the state's appeal of William Wayne Justice's decision in U.S. v. Texas.

The rules, which were the subject of over 300 letters and telegrams sent to the Board members the week of the meeting, effectively lower the achievement test scores a child must have to exit from the program to the 23rd percentile. Until the rules took effect on an emergency basis in August, the required score was at or above the 40th percentile, the same figure named in Truan's bill (S.B. 477).

"Our friends on the Board were obliged to recommend approval, knowing we can go right back and amend the rules. Their emergency status would have expired Jan. 13, leaving us without any rules, if they had made a substantive change," Truan said.

"As far as we are concerned, the stage is set for a hard analysis of these criteria. The Committee for Special Populations made it clear in their report that this issue is far from resolved. We have technical questions for TEA about their rationale, and we have some data to share with them. There's no reason we can't sit down and reasonably come to terms on this. We have the common goal of quality education for Limited English Proficiency students. And I don't see how anyone with that goal can accept criteria which will exclude children from a special program they truly need."

Nursing Home News

By Maxine Mayer
The Aransas Pass Nursing and Convalescent Center was a very nice as well as busy place to be last week.

We had visiting volunteers and friends and relatives out daily which always makes our residents feel good.

Monday morning, Lydia Trevino was out to visit with our people on a one-to-one basis.

Monday afternoon, Dorothy McCaleb was out to visit and brought greeting cards, and slacks which were donated by Levi Strauss Co.

Tuesday afternoon, Lydia was back again and the ladies from First Presbyterian Church of Rockport were over to visit one-to-one and bring name plates to go above doors of our new residents.

Wednesday morning, Delma Rodgers, one of our most devoted volunteers, was back to visit and run errands for several of our residents. Also, Lydia was out to visit. Wednesday morning, Cora Lee Hall and Margaret Rhodes representing the W.M.U. of First Baptist Church of Aransas Pass were out to distribute fruit baskets to members and friends of their church. This was for Thanksgiving.

Wednesday afternoon was Bible Study time with brother Bob DeWolf of the Episcopal Church of Aransas Pass.

Our residents are really enjoying this fellowship and study.

Thursday afternoon, the order of Eastern Star Group from Ingleside were over to entertain our residents with a good game.

Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Connie Johansson and Mrs. Loree Hamrick were out to visit with many of our people.

Lydia was also out to visit her residents one-to-one. Friday morning Frankie Edwards, Sarah Basley and Sadie Flirt were out to lead our residents in their paint class program. Friday afternoon was our old fashioned sing along time with the members of the Rockport AARP.

We were honored once again to have Merna Young playing the piano for us. She is 83 years young and can play anything that you name. We all enjoyed our program very much.

Saturday afternoon, the family of Mrs. Sarah Cheaney honored their mother with a big birthday party in celebration of her ninety-first birthday. Fun was had by all who attended to enjoy the refreshments and entertainment.

Sunday morning worship services were led by our own Rev. Al Bankert and Sunday afternoon, members and friends of First Christian Church were over from Ingleside for their monthly "Sing In" program.

We had exercise class each morning and social and coffee each morning and afternoon.
