Snow Covers Oklahoma; Hard Freeze is Predicted

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Dec. 15.—A white blanket today lay over Oklahoma prairies and oak studded hills while Texans were warned to hustle cover and replenish fuel in anticipation of colder weather tonight.

Light snow fell in the vicinity of Amarillo with the temperature ranging around 27 degrees. The temperature was 33 degrees at Wichita Falls today, and a light snow is expected there.

The weather bureau forecast a hard freeze for the eastern portion of West Texas and below freezing in the Dallas area.

One-fifth of an inch rain is reported from Palestine, while Tyler received half an inch.

A dispatch from Sweetwater to the Associated Press bureau reported a freeze during the night. A hard shower fell at Corsicana.

MOUNTAIN FARMERS BAN IMPORTED FOOD

(By Associated Press)
HENDERSONVILLE, N. C., Dec. 15.—Farmers in mountain counties of western North Carolina plan to use only home-grown products.

They have adopted as a slogan "Not one pound of butter, butter substitute or beef imported into western North Carolina," and set this as a goal for development of livestock.

County farm agents are leading the campaign. They report the section last year produced dairy products valued at $5,000,000.

Many Boxes Ready For Legion Tonite

The American Legion "box supper" will be promptly at 7:45 o'clock tonight and every citizen of Ballinger is invited to be present and witness the old fashioned Christmas program. A committee of Auxiliary members reported Monday that there was a large number of boxes prepared. These boxes will be offered to the highest bidders by clever auctioneers.

All boxes contain enough delicious food for several persons and the Pat Williams post will have plenty of steaming hot coffee to serve free. Tables will be arranged on the first floor of American Legion Hall, where everyone may spread hunches either picnic style or individual groups.

An interesting program of songs, readings and instrumental music will be presented during the sale of boxes. No high-powered salesmanship will force prices of boxes to unfair heights.

Stoves were lighted in the hall Monday morning and the building will be warm and comfortable.

At the close of box selling a big surprise is promised the guests.

The local post is anxious for a large audience to be present and a cordial welcome is extended to the public.

Dallas Man Plans to Play Santa Claus to 5,000 Poor

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Dec. 15.—I. Rude, a Dallas merchant noted for his generosity and charities, has announced he plans again this year to play a real Santa Claus role for the poor who need clothes.

For the eighth consecutive year, Mr. Rude will supply clothes to the poor who crowd into his store Christmas morning. The stock of the store is placed at the disposal of the poor. Last year 3,780 men, women and children were furnished from these charity stocks. This year Mr. Rude has laid plans to clothe about 5,000.

"The only requirement I make," Mr. Rude explained, "is that those who want clothes have an honest face and show an obvious need for help. These are the only credentials they must have. I am rarely fooled or imposed upon."

On Christmas morning the crowds of men, women and children, white and black, native and alien, will gather in a line at the store, as is their custom. Mr. Rude's doors will open at 9 a. m.

Fire Destroys 15 Movie Stars' Homes

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—An explosion and fire destroyed the fashionable Malibu Beach homes of fifteen motion picture players here today.

Fire department officials estimated the loss to be about $800,000.

Many stars and other occupants of the houses, fled in their night clothes. Many expensive automobiles also were destroyed with the household effects.

A north wind fanned the flames, increasing the intensity of the destruction.

The homes of Louise Fazenda, Marie Prevost and Allan Dwan were among those destroyed.

The cause of the blast and fire is a mystery.

Shepard Meets Poison Charges

(By Associated Press)
KANSAS CITY, Kans., Dec. 15.—The prosecution charges that Major Charles A. Shepard fatally poisoned his wife with mercury were met with defense testimony at Shepard's murder trial today that another medical corps officer, Major M. A. Rose, used bichloride of mercury in treating Mrs. Shepard for "trench mouth" up to the time of her death.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Dunlap returned Sunday from San Antonio where they had been for several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Arterburn met them in Eden and accompanied them to Ballinger. Mr. Dunlap returns home greatly improved following an operation several weeks ago.

Blaze Damages Underwood Home

Fire discovered at the home of D. C. Underwood, 309 Seventh Street, early Saturday night was soon put out by the efficient work of the local department.

The fire, which originated in a trash box on the back porch, burnt through the wall and into the kitchen where flames shot up the walls and into the ceiling. As soon as the firemen arrived they began using chemicals but also prepared to lay lines of hose and make connections if necessary. Men climbed to the roof and tore away shingles where the fire was located, soon controlling the blaze with no damage except in the kitchen and one other room.

The report of the department showed a total of 40 gallons of chemicals and 30 gallons of water from the booster tank on the large truck used.

Planes Put Chicago Seven Hours from New York City

Roundway is now within seven hours of the midwest. Exterior and interior views of the eight-passenger, tri-motored planes used are shown above.

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—A late breakfast in Chicago and an early dinner on Broadway are now possible.

The first direct air passenger line between the country's leading cities has made such a feat practicable.

New tri-motored planes, carrying eight passengers will be flown by N. A. T. whose airmen have carried mail over the route more than three years. Service was begun this month.

The airline also operates a combination air and rail passenger service between Chicago and New York. This will be continued.

Eastbound planes will take off from the Chicago municipal airport at 9:30 a. m. and will land at Newark at 4:54 p. m., a half hour from New York. Traveling west the planes will leave Newark at 12 noon and reach Chicago at 7 p. m. Intermediate stops will be made at Cleveland and Toledo.

The establishment of the line will bring the Golden Gate of San Francisco within 31 hours of New York. Planes fly the Chicago-San Francisco route in 24 hours.

All Stores Join Show Window Fair

Ballinger firms that did not prepare Christmas windows last week were busy Monday morning getting them ready to enter the competition here from now until Christmas eve. The Hub, Higginbotham Bros. & Company, King-Holt Company, Woodroof & Son, Stone's, Cameron's Garage, Carr's Man Shop, were all busy Saturday and Monday arranging beautiful windows which, with those already mentioned, will make practically every show window in Ballinger decorated in the Christmas motif.

All these windows will be ready Monday night and lighted for the inspection of the public. The civic committee of the chamber of commerce stated that when the judging is done every window in town will be carefully inspected and that no entrance is necessary. No cash prizes will be paid this year but ribbons will be stuck on the windows giving first, second and third prizes in each of the two classes. The classes are for firms with only one small window and for all firms with two or more windows.

Side walk Christmas trees are practically all lighted at present and the downtown section is very beautiful at night. The crowd here Saturday night was large and many were walking the side walks inspecting the gift suggestions on display.

(By Associated Press)
MADRID, Dec. 15.—Spain's political drama burst forth today into a nation-wide revolt against the throne, continuing the manifestations which started with the inauguration of Primo de Rivera's dictatorship in 1923.

The rebels at Bilbao proclaimed Alcala Seamora president.

Ramon Franco, rebellious aviator, who had been in prison before escaping recently, is reported to be among the revolutionary leaders.

King Alfonso remained in his castle at Madrid.

Premier Berenguer, who slept little during the past week, moved to whip the government and the army into line.

The rebels have captured the flying field at Cuatro Vientos, and planes from there are flying over Madrid dropping literature urging all citizens to join the revolution.

Leopoldo Mattos, minister of the interior, today declared the government had complete control of the revolutionary situation, and that the federal troops had recaptured the airdrome at Cuatro Vientos with artillery.

The most rigid censorship prevailed.

Martial law has been proclaimed throughout the nation.

Apparently winter has arrived and most motorists are still using cars without non-freeze fluids. Where this is practiced it will be wise to drain radiators.
A norther is sending the mercury
tumbling here and a hard freeze
is forecast during the present cold wave.

The public schools will close in Ballinger Friday afternoon for the Christmas holidays and all students will be free for the next ten days. Most teachers will leave late Friday afternoon for their homes and will not return until time to report for duty on December 31.

The first Goodfellow's committee to report urged that some unfortunates be helped at once,
and not wait until Christmas.
Some families were found with scant clothing, little fuel and practically nothing to eat. These families have pride and hesitate to go to the charity board. Tabulations of all committee reports will doubtless show that much aid is needed.

Practically all Ballinger religious organizations will observe Christmas in some manner next Sunday. Special programs are being prepared and these should tend to boost attendance during the national go-to-church campaign. Every church will welcome visitors next Sunday and members are asked to do personal work for the campaign in inviting friends to services.

Merchants are having trouble
keeping colored lights on sidewalk trees. Globes stolen from some sets make all go out. One merchant even had his tree stolen. These occurrences make discouraging to beautify for the holiday season. What good a small light globe or a tree could be if anyone is difficult to understand and it appears they are being removed either for spite or for the thrill of stealing.

The visit of Santa Claus to Abilene Saturday brought the largest crowd that city ever had the pleasure of entertaining.
Twenty-seven blocks of streets
were roped off from automobile traffic, sidewalks, streets, awnings and windows being filled with old and young trying to get a glimpse of the children's patron saint. Every town in a radius of 75 miles of that city was reported to be well represented, and while adults were in the majority they came along of course to bring the kiddies.

Distance to Stars 75 Million Light-Years Away
Measured by Spectrograph and Huge Telescope

Dr. Edwin Hubble (upper right) explains that measurement of distance of far-away objects is like viewing lights of Los Angeles and surrounding towns (below)—and from them alone trying to tell what kind of people live there. Upper left shows a spiral nebula as viewed through the 100-inch telescope.

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor)

DR. EDWIN HUBBLE, Mt. Wilson

astronomer who measured the incredible distance of 75 million

light-years, points to the lights of Los Angeles and explains quite simply how it was done.

He was standing on a balcony

of the observatory laboratory,

looking into the valley a mile below where lights of 60 towns surrounding Los Angeles winked a message to the stars.

"It is like looking at those lights," he said, "and from them

alone trying to tell what manner

of people live there."

Then inside the laboratory he picked up a photograph of those same valley lights, not an ordi-

a spectrograph, a glass prism,

which changed the lights into tiny ribbons bearing vertical stripes.

The change was startling. The lights had lost their sameness.

They now revealed the make of some of the street lamps. Some were incandescent, others carbon arcs.

Anyone learning spectrograph

lines could tell at least one thing about the "manner of people,"

namely the towns which had old-fashioned and those with up-to-date street lighting systems.

With the same sort of spectro-graph, and the world's largest telescope, Dr. Hubble measures

the vast distances to faint objects whose light, starting toward earth 75 million years ago, is only

now reaching here—that is, 75

million light-years.

Instead of street lamps, the keys to these astronomical measurements are the "lighthouses of the sky," which are bright, hot stars called Cepheid variables.

Their variability consists in regular dimming and brightening of their light.

A few years ago a Harvard woman astronomer, Miss Leavitt,

discovered that the time interval

between fluctuations depended directly upon luminosity of the Cepheid. If an astronomer knows

a star's luminosity, he can calculate its distance, and Miss Leavitt's discovery was the beginning of a new era.

In the 100-inch telescope the Cepheid "lighthouses" are visible

in seven nebulae, which are separate universes of stars, millions of light years distant from the Milky Way. The Cepheids fix the distances of these seven.

They also are stepping-stones

for setting up other star lighthouses. These are variable giant stars, helium blue stars and novae. The novae are stars which flare suddenly for a brief period,

such a star as some astronomers

believe flamed for the three wise men seeking Bethlehem.

All these stars are familiar objects in our own Milky Way,

something measurable is known about their luminosity. So they serve to check, confirm and build up the Cepheid information.

Far beyond the seven nearby

nebulae are others, so distant

that no Cepheid can be seen.

These are scattered uniformly in every direction in the heavens,

and they are the present ultimate

"lighthouses."

There are about two million of these distant nebulae so far visible, a whole host of universes,

differing in shape, size and luminosity. They range from round spots to spirals, spindles, tops

and irregular blotches of light.

Study of these extends the measurements to 75 million light-

TO USE IN LIEU OF
A CHRISTMAS TREE

IF YOU are not sure of what to buy
for the time-honored custom of having
a Christmas tree, if you are sure
substances that may appeal to you
because of their novelty or practical-
ity:

A Christmas umbrella lends itself
well to living room decoration and requires less work in preparation and clearing away than a tree. Get a large, colored umbrella, the kind in
use for advertising purposes, or utilize
any old umbrella that may be on hand.
Put a heavy string through a hole
bored in the top just below the ferruginous ribs of which to suspend the open umbrella from the ceiling. The fringe may be decorated in any desired manner. A good effect is obtained by covering the inside and outer
surface with green crepe paper and
relieving the severity with tinsel
festooning. A green paper-covered umbrella decorated with "icicles" and
show like that used on Christmas
trees also makes a strong appeal.
Strings of popcorn, festooning of any
kind, bright-colored paper chains, ornaments, in fact, anything that is used
to decorate the Christmas tree may be pressed into service on the Christmas umbrella.

Fasten pin hoods, such as are used
to hang draperies, to the under side of
the umbrella for holding the Christmas gifts. The better articles should
be hung along the ribs to be in view,
but light gifts can be distributed
all over the surface.

A Christmas cornucopia is an interesting and unique solution of the problem of gift distribution. Make a large
cornucopia out of cardboard and cover
it with green or gilt paper. Hang this
from the ceiling so that the large end
is considerably lower than the small
one.

Before hanging the cornucopia
place in it the various gifts well
wrapped so as to prevent leakage.
Fashion a cover firmly over the open
end and decorate it to correspond with
the cornucopia. It is well to have the large end so arranged in hanging that
when the covering is removed the
gifts will land on the table.

A Christmas chariot gives little
folk a fine chance to help in the distribution of gifts. By using a few
baths, some stiff wire and an old
baby cart the framework of the Christmas chariot may be easily fashioned. This can be decorated with green crepe paper, tinsel or the like. The driver, a small doll, is easily obtained, and the other children appear to be in the chariot.

While not inappropriate for the
home, nevertheless, the Christmas
cross seems especially well adapted
for use in the church where an interesting program may center around
it.—Alice Crowell Hoffman.

A Christmas chariot gives little
folk a fine chance to help in the distribution of gifts. By using a few
baths, some stiff wire and an old
baby cart the framework of the Christmas chariot may be easily fashioned. This can be decorated with green crepe paper, tinsel or the like. The
driver, a small doll, is easily obtained, and the other children appear to be in the chariot.

While not inappropriate for the
home, nevertheless, the Christmas
cross seems especially well adapted
for use in the church where an interesting program may center around
it.—Alice Crowell Hoffman.

IF YOU are not sure of what to buy
for the time-honored custom of having
a Christmas tree, if you are sure
substances that may appeal to you
because of their novelty or practical-
ity:

A Christmas umbrella lends itself
well to living room decoration and requires less work in preparation and
clearing away than a tree. Get a
large, colored umbrella, the kind in
use for advertising purposes, or utilize
any old umbrella that may be on hand.
Put a heavy string through a hole
bored in the top just below the fer-
ruginous ribs of which to suspend the
open umbrella from the ceiling. The
fringe may be decorated in any desired manner. A good effect is obtained by covering the inside and outer
surface with green crepe paper and
relieving the severity with tinsel
festooning. A green paper-covered umbrella decorated with "icicles" and
show like that used on Christmas
trees also makes a strong appeal.
Strings of popcorn, festooning of any
kind, bright-colored paper chains, orna-
ments, in fact, anything that is used
to decorate the Christmas tree may
be pressed into service on the Christmas umbrella.

Fasten pin hoods, such as are used
to hang draperies, to the under side of
the umbrella for holding the Christmas gifts. The better articles should
be hung along the ribs to be in view,
but light gifts can be distributed
all over the surface.

A Christmas cornucopia is an interesting and unique solution of the problem of gift distribution. Make a large
cornucopia out of cardboard and cover
it with green or gilt paper. Hang this
from the ceiling so that the large end
is considerably lower than the small
one.

Before hanging the cornucopia
place in it the various gifts well
wrapped so as to prevent leakage.
Fashion a cover firmly over the open
end and decorate it to correspond with
the cornucopia. It is well to have the
large end so arranged in hanging that
when the covering is removed the
gifts will land on the table.

In New York Theaters

By Mark Barron
NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The first and only play written by the late William Bolitho leaves an impression that, had he lived, he would have become as important a figure in the theater as he was in the world of prose.

COLIN CLIVE

"Overture" was written by this cosmopolitan essayist in an experiment to see if his talent for writing extended to the drama form. He carried the play to London for production last summer and then went away to rewrite it amid the quiet cathedrals of Avignon. There he died.

Now the play has been brought to New York and produced exactly as Bolitho wrote it. Its few faults can be assigned to the fact that its author had not edited it into its final form.

However, his widow wished that it should be seen as solely his work, and so we view it as it came last from the hand of the author.

Tragedy
It is a forceful, tragic drama—this "Overture"—filled with the anguish of a wrecked civilization trying to reclaim itself. Its sometimes beautiful, sometimes stinging dialogue is eloquently spoken by such excellent players as Colin Clive, Pat O'Brien and Barbara Robbins.

"Overture" begins in 1920 in the little manufacturing town of Herford, Germany. The town council has passed a law that the citizens must work 12 hours a day at half pay until Germany has recovered from the depression and destruction of war.

The workers revolt and capture the town. They are led by Ritter, an idealist, and Maxim, a communist who believe that "we must find some substitute for this romanticism if we are to remake the world."

Not So Isolated
This isolated revolution may seem far away in its German factory town, but Bolitho has written it with that international viewpoint that characterized all of his writings.

In this play Bolitho has written a love scene that must stand as one of the most beautiful of the stage has been given. The idealist Ritter and his sweetheart, just as they are at the realization of their love, are to be sent before the firing squad.

Their love must end just as it was beginning on this earth—they must look forward to aeons of timeless space beyond the firing squad.

Mason and Dixon are serving penitentiary sentences in connection with the slaying, which occurred last year.

MANY MEXICANS MOVE

LAREDO, Dec. 15.—More than 12,000 Mexican repatriates from all portions of the United States have passed through Laredo during September, October and November returning to their native land to again take up their domicile after having been residents of the United States for from five to twenty-five years or more. The figures are from statements given out by the Mexican immigration department in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, after the Mexican repatriates reported there.

POWERFUL SHEIKH IS IBN SAUD'S AGENT AT ENGLISH COURT

SHEIKH HAFEZ WAHABA

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Dec. 15.—Ibn Saud's right hand man, Sheikh Hafez Wahaba, has handed in his credentials as the first ambassador to England from the king of Hedjaz.

He is a man of great physical power, although very short, as he stands only a little over five feet. In this he is unlike his king, who towers above six feet, but he gives the impression of great courage and great competence and is a picturesque addition to London's diplomatic colony.

RUSSIAN HAS GOOD RECORD AT U. OF T.

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Dec. 15.—Boris L. Lerner, Russian student at the University of Texas, has made a splendid record since coming to the United States. He is a sophomore engineering student.

Six years ago he came to America, and since that time he has been graduated from grade and high school and has completed one year of his university work. He started in the first grade at the Goose Creek school, and the second year was promoted to the second grade. When he landed at New Orleans he could not speak a word of English.

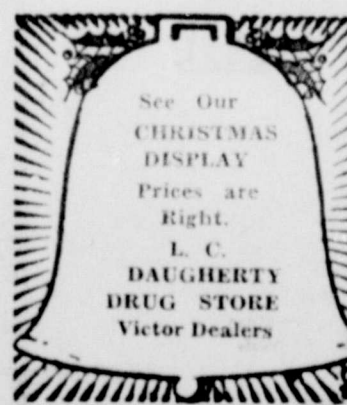

"The best thing about the university is its classiness," he said. "I like to take them riding in my yellow car." The car is a home made vehicle of which Lerner is exceptionally proud.

BOY, 13, KILLS BUCK WITH HUNTING KNIFE

(By Associated Press)
UVALDE, Texas, Dec. 15.—West Texas rodeo tactic used by Ira Smith, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Smith of Batesville, Zavalla county, enabled the lad to kill a large 11-point deer near his home.

The youth was hunting alone and wounded the deer which fell to the ground. As the boy approached the deer, however, it arose and started away slowly. Forsaking his gun, the youth jumped astride the animal's neck and clutched his hunting knife in one hand while he held to the buck's horns with the other. He finally managed to strike the animal a fatal blow in the neck.

Letters to Old Santa

From now until Christmas The Ledger will publish a limited number of children's letters to Santa Claus daily. On account of limited space no great number will be printed any one day but on Christmas eve an extra large number will be carried.

Children who wish to write to Santa Claus should address their letters to "Santa Claus, care The Ledger, Ballinger, Texas," which will be published and saved for the jolly old fellow when he calls for them. The Ledger has been named as Santa Claus' mail depot in Ballinger and will take care of this correspondence for him.

Children are asked to write for the things they want most, telling old Santa also of any poor children he should visit, giving exact names and addresses.

Here are some of the missives already received:

"Dear Santa Claus:
"I want a scooter, skates, or tricycle. And I want a doll too, please. And please leave something in my stockings.
"Your little friend,

LITTLE STORIES OF Little Stars

ROBERTA GALE

INTO the movies from a convent came red-haired, dark-eyed little Roberta Gale.

Born in Pittsburgh, she has lived most of her life in Miami, Fla., where she attended public schools and later a convent, specializing in music and dramatics.

Maybe it was some fairy god-mother who placed the mother of a film executive in the audience at a little musical play in which Roberta appeared. At any rate, voice and screen tests were arranged for her and a featured player's contract was the result.

Blood Transfusions Made Possible By Nobel Prize Winner's Finding

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Thousands of persons literally owe their lives to Dr. Karl Landsteiner, winner of the 1930 Nobel prize in medicine.

Blood transfusion, now a common means of saving the lives of persons weakened by loss of blood or anemia, was made possible by his discovery that there are four major types of human blood.

Sufferers from infantile paralysis have been aided by Dr. Landsteiner's experiments with monkeys. He was the first to find that these animals could be infected with the disease.

This led to the discovery that the serum of infantile paralysis convalescents might be used as a protective or checking agency in patients who had the disease in its incipient stages.

Dr. Landsteiner has been studying the human blood for 30 years. His discoveries have ranged from a clue to the causes of immunity against disease to enabling police detectives to identify blood stains.

Dr. Landsteiner, a tall, slender man, nervous and modest, was born in Vienna 62 years ago and worked in Europe until 1922, but he speaks English with only a slight accent.

Science is both his work and his play. He has no recreation. He is busy day and night in his laboratory at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and lives close to the institute so as not to waste time traveling back and forth. In the summer he transfers his activities to a home on the Massachusetts coast.

DEER HUNTER KILLS BIG MEXICAN MOUNTAIN LION

(By Associated Press)
LAREDO, December 15.—A Laredo deer hunter in quest of a supply of venison returned with mountain lion instead, as a result of having been compelled to bring down one of the more dangerous animals instead of a buck. He was just getting ready to fire at a big buck some distance away when a Mexican lion crossed his path and he brought down the six-foot animal.

For a number of years past Mexican ormountain lions have been killed on some of the big ranches in the northeastern portion of Webb county. The latest lion killed was about 20 miles to the north of Laredo. Ranchmen have sought these lions after they have depredated herds of sheep or goats and now deer hunters going into the thickness of the chaparral go prepared to bring down a lion on short notice if one shows up. During the year 1928 seven of the lions were slain on one ranch in northeast Webb county.

ROME, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Wool production in Italy for the first eight months of 1930 showed a drop from the 1929 crop. During the early part of last year the wool production was 1,335,860 tons, but it slumped this year to 1,117,637 tons.

Scanning New Books

By Richard Massock
NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—December is inventory time in the book-scanning business.

Production stands still until after Christmas, permitting reviewers to look over back volumes to see which ones they can safely send to their friends with reasonable assurance that the gift will not only be read, but enjoyed.

Here, then, is my list. It is short because it includes only books that I am confident would be appreciated, even if they fell into strange hands. There are doubtless others of as much merit among the unmentioned titles.

Adventure In Biography
First, I don't see how anybody can go wrong with "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" by Major Francis Yeats-Brown. The situation in India makes it almost topical, but it fits into the categories of adventure and autobiography.

Yeats-Brown is a British officer, soldier, polo player and pig-sticker, who put on native clothes and lived among the people of India.

He absorbed their mysticism, the feet of a guru (teacher) and became a Yogi. He smoked opium (and loathed it) in order to escape a Turkish prison, and he has watched match girls dance.

"The Letters of Henry Adams" also are excellent as a travel record of an earlier day. The travel part is incidental, however.

The chief merit is in Adams' comment on his times and his self-revelation as a rather cynical member of a distinguished family, studying hopefully in Germany and finally wandering futilely in the South Seas.

Characters of more recent acquaintance are revived in "Taft and Roosevelt: The Intimate Letters of Archie Butte" and in Mark Sullivan's "Pre-War America."

The first is unconsciously funny, the latter is even more humorous in spots, although it is finished off in a little too much haste.

Polar exploration can hardly be overlooked this season. Besides Admiral Byrd's "Little America" and "Andree's Story," the detailed records of two widely different flights to icy wastes, there is another graphic volume on the bitter hardships of the Antarctic land route, "The Worst Journey in the World," by Apsley Cherry-Garrard.

Novelists' Fun

In novels I liked most of all Somerset Maugham's "Cakes and Ale," and that stands for the story as well as the writing. In a brutal and brilliant manner Maugham strips a Victorian reputation from a recognizable old man of English letters and thrusts sharply at lesser authors. Rose Macaulay's "Staying With Relations" is delightfully amusing, and Rosamond Lehmann's "A Note in Music" is a worthy successor to her "Dusty Answer."

Printed cabinet of secretary size stationery makes ideal Christmas gift. See them at The Ledger office. 12-Std.*

LEAVES FROM PALM TREES VALUABLE AS FERTILIZER

(By Associated Press)
HAVANA, Dec. 15.—The palm tree, producer of many commodities in the tropics, including coconuts, copra, liquor and fuel, is about to add another marketable attribute to the list.

Leaves of the palm have merit as fertilizer, it has been found. Recently Russell Cunningham, American financier, and Clarence F. Hyne, botanist, conferred with Dr. Julio de Cardenas, chief of laboratories for the Cuban department of agriculture, regarding deposits of more than 100,000 tons of palm leaves in Santa Clara province.

The Americans are reported contemplating establishing a factory near the site of the deposits and to arrange direct shipment of the fertilizer to the United States.

Goodfellows Begin City Departments Canvass of Town Report Busy Week

All Goodfellow Club committees began making a canvass of the city Monday seeking those who will need help this Christmas. Every section of the city proper and South Ballinger will be combed during the day and the committees will report in writing to the distributing committee to go into action Christmas eve.

The fund is mounting slowly and it now appears that the activities will be limited to providing for the children. Cash is coming slow and clothing and toys slower. After two weeks of the campaign three bundles of clothing have been received and not a single toy. The fund to date is about one-third that of the same time a year ago. Clothing is needed badly and approximately $350 in cash is necessary to put over the drive.

While the list will remain open until Christmas eve the committee needs to know immediately the amount available so it can govern its purchases accordingly.

Cold weather is adding to suffering, calling for warmer clothing and fuel. A number of Yuletide programs will be held this week and presents will be turned over to the Goodfellows for distribution. At the Christmas tree to be held by the young people's department of the First Methodist Church Tuesday night every member will bring something for donation to the Goodfellows.

Today's receipts are as follows:
Cash $1.00
Cash 1.00
Weeks Drug Store 5.00
American Legion Auxiliary 5.00
Cash 1.00
C. H. Stone, Jr. 2.50
Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lynn 5.00

Big Match Output
LISBON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—During the first half of 1930, Portuguese match factories turned out 3,792,000,000 matches or 59,000,000 boxes. Efforts of a match trust to secure a long term monopoly, have failed, because the government is bound with two native companies which hold rights bordering on monopolies.

Farm Dwellers Decrease
WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—There are 4,000,000 fewer people on American farms than 10 years ago, the department of agriculture estimates.

New tile has been shipped here for the roof on the city hall and during the week the present covering will be torn off and the new tile placed in accordance with the color scheme called for in the contract. Suggs & Dunlap, contracting firm, has made an inspection of the building and expects to finish all work here this week. A number of minor details are to be attended to in the interior and the structure will then be ready for the final inspection by Architect Paul G. Silber. Fifty-seven yards of dirt were hauled to the yard and spread during the past week and the grounds are now ready for landscaping. The Daniels lots directly across the street have been grubbed and cleaned and all trash burned.

Final settlement was made with the contractors on the water reservoir last Wednesday and that job accepted by the commission. Deep water signs were placed at the crossing above the upper dam and a ditch cut there to drain the excess water faster. The valve on the new dam has been closed as the water has run down sufficiently to allow fording at the upper crossing.

At the pumping plant a crew is tearing out the concrete for a shift of the Cameron unit and removal of the 37 h. p. Fairbanks motor and pumping unit.

The police department makes the following report for the week: Four arrests, 3 fines assessed, 1 fine collected and 1 arrest for Coleman officers. Arrangements have been made to place man at dump grounds to see that all trash and rubbish is dumped at proper spot. Some have been piling trash on privately owned property before arriving at the regular ground provided by the city for this purpose. The secretary calls attention to the fact that this is a fineable offense.

Local firemen answered two alarms and all equipment was washed three times. Three nights of school were held and two practice runs made during the week. The health department reports a visit to one scarlet fever patient and establishing quarantine.

The dairy inspector is now in the midst of his semi-annual dairy inspections. During last week he graded 4 dairies, issued 4 permits, inspected 71 cows, made 16 laboratory tests of milk and visited one plant.

Paved streets were swept every morning last week and graders and tractors operated in various sections of the city. Other departments, while on routine work, reported their full time taken up.

ELECTRICAL TREATMENTS HAILED PNEUMONIA CURE

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—An almost certain benefit for lobar pneumonia is claimed for an electrical treatment being used at St. Elizabeth's government hospital here.

While much less effective as a cure in bronchial pneumonia, electrical treatment of this malady has resulted satisfactorily, hospital officers say.

The method, as described by a member of the hospital staff, is to send through the chest a high frequency alternating current at approximately 1,500,000 alternations a second, using two large tin foil plates on the front and back.

The voltage is about 70. The object is to get heat inside the body. The patient feels no skin sensation, the two electrodes against the skin remaining cold.

DESIGN NEW U. S. PRISON TO RELIEVE CONGESTION

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—

Designed to help relieve the criminal-hardening and riot-breeding congestion in federal prisons, the new government penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., will be built to provide the "maximum in decent living conditions."

Construction of the prison, costing 3,800,000, is expected to be completed, for partial occupancy at least, a year from this fall.

Although the Lewisburg prison will be rated at a 1,200 man institution, it will be designed to care for several hundred more.

In addition to cells of the ordinary type, there will be individual rooms, two-man rooms, four-man rooms and 12-man dormitories.

There were 1,200 fewer marriages in California during the first nine months of 1930 than during the corresponding period of the preceding year.
