Councilmen dispute tax hike

By KEELY COGHAN
Staff Writer

A proposal by the city administrative staff to raise property taxes is just that — a proposal, say four city councilmen.

Although City Manager Don Davis and Finance Director Tom Ferguson said Tuesday night that the city probably would see an increase in property taxes, councilmen say they haven't discussed figures or a raise.

"There have been some real strong statements about holding the line," said Councilman Johnny Rutherford. "I don't know that we are going to have an increase."

"I'm going to try and keep it down," said Councilman Gary Don Carey. "I pay taxes, too."

Rutherford, Carey, Mayor Clyde Angel and Councilman Henry Sanchez said the council has not discussed figures, tax increases or the budget in detail.

The council begins budget work sessions the week of Aug. 12, when members will examine departmental requests and tentative budgets in detail.

Davis said Tuesday at the first of three public budget hearings that the city was considering a property tax increase. The increase would be caused by the impact of the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act, which cities no longer are exempt

"There have been some real strong statements about holding the line. I don't know that we are going to have an increase."

Johnny Rutherford, City Councilman

from, and by a 3 to 4 percent inflationary increase in operating expenses.

At that time, Davis also said the city would increase its water rates as well because of an increased cost of raw water and the beginning of debt retirement from capital improvement bonds passed in 1980.

Council members present at the hearings agreed that residents would see a water rate increase. "It's inevitable," Carey said.

In addition to the other factors mentioned by Davis, Rutherford said the city also was considering whether to build a new water treatment plant.

A plant that would eliminate some of the salts in the water would have cost $10 million a few years ago, and now probably would cost more, Davis said at the first public budget hearing.

Final details bog budget package

Lawmakers eye Friday deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate budget negotiators are struggling to resolve the final details of a $50 billion-plus deficit reduction package, but it remained uncertain today whether Congress could act on the plan before beginning its August recess Friday.

GOP senators complained today the plan didn't do enough to cut long-term overspending and House liberals opposed defense spending levels they said would be too high.

The senior members of the House and Senate budget panels met for 10 hours through Wednesday night, emerging after midnight from the second day of closed-door talks with word that few differences remained. The full House-Senate budget conference committee was meeting later today to iron those out.

"We are close to perhaps achieving something," Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said after the meeting. But he cautioned, "We don't have a budget yet."

Today on the House floor, Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, objected to Gray's request to bring a budget to a vote before adjournment, since House rules normally prohibit such speedy action. Smith said he wanted a separate vote on the defense spending level in the budget resolution.

The objection forces a vote on the rules waiver, putting one more obstacle in the way of House action.

The Senate budget chairman, Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., said after a meeting with GOP senators today that most were willing to accept the package as "probably the best we could get."

But he said "even with very good economic assumptions," deficits in fiscal 1988 and beyond would exceed $100 billion annually.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright said, "There appears to be a reasonably good chance that we will be able to reconcile the few remaining differences, ... which will cut $57 billion in fiscal 1986 below President Reagan's February budget request."

The Texas Democrat said the plan would save $270 billion over three years.

Sen. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, said he expected most GOP senators to support the package but some were strongly opposed, favoring "a serious effort for reduction rather than this half-step."

House Democrats led by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Mass., right, hold a Capitol Hill news conference Thursday where they declared Reagan and Republicans "have squandered their mandate."

from the 1984 elections. At left is Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-o., and House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas.

Board OKs new $60 million Texas prison

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Board of Corrections, scurrying to meet a court order to ease inmate overcrowding, decided Wednesday to build a $60 million maximum-security prison at a site near Palestine.

The Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis Unit in Huntsville was chosen as a secondary site, but "unless there's an earthquake, it's going to be at Coffield," said board chairman Robert Gunn.

Coffield is a TDC prison unit just outside Palestine, an East Texas city of about 16,000 that is some 100 miles southeast of Dallas.

The new unit, to be built on 300 acres of donated land, will house 2,250 inmates, employ more than 600 people and have an annual payroll of about $14 million. Construction is to begin in December and be completed by September 1987.

Gunn, speaking after the closed meeting Wednesday, said he voted against the Coffield site because he thought the one in Huntsville would cost less to maintain and be easier to staff.

But Lindsley Waters said members opted for Palestine because it would be cheaper to build there and that labor and utilities would be less expensive than in the Houston area.

"In the Dallas area, construction costs are 4 to 6 percent lower than in the Houston area," he said, which makes a difference of about $2.4 and $3.6 million in the project.

"After considering all recommendations, we were fully satisfied that our decision for the number one location would be Coffield," he said after the 7-1 vote.

Officials are hoping the unit, whose funding was approved in the 1985 Legislature, will ease the overcrowding that the TDC is under court order to reduce.

"We're in an absolutely horrible time crunch" because of that court order, Gunn complained. "We have to start depopulating our prisons."

Palestine beat out Odessa, Navasota, Gatesville and Huntsville in the site selection process. Officials from the five cities came to Huntsville in July with slide shows and brochures to try to lure the TDC into their communities.

Man gets 10-year prison term

LUBBOCK — Federal District Court Judge Halbert Woodward Monday sentenced a 39-year-old Big Spring man to 10 years in prison on a drug-related charge.

Robert "Bobby" Marquez, 39, of Gail Route was sentenced in federal district court in Lubbock on a count of distribution of cocaine, said his parole officer, David Harman of Big Spring. Marquez had been on parole since October 1980 on state convictions for felony possession of marijuana and theft, Harman said.

His parole has been revoked, Harman said.

Marquez pleaded guilty in early June to one count of distribution of 6 ounces of cocaine Jan. 26 to a federal undercover agent, said U.S. Attorney Dick Baker.

He faced a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison and a fine of $125,000 for the offense.

In exchange for the guilty plea, three other pending federal charges against Marquez were dropped, Baker said in June.

Dropped were federal grand jury indictments for a second count of distribution of cocaine and conspiracy to distribute cocaine. A federal charge of perjury also was dropped, Baker said.

Marquez was arrested Jan. 26 at the Holiday Inn parking lot in Big Spring, along with two other men, in a "buy-bust" operation for allegedly selling 6 ounces of cocaine to undercover agents. The undercover operation was a joint effort of the Midland Department of Public Safety narcotics division, the Midland office of the Drug Enforcement Agency, a DEA task force from Lubbock and the Big Spring Police Department.

The two men arrested at the same time and Marquez' brother, Tony, 30, of 1105 E. 15th, all have pleaded guilty to various counts of drug-related offenses.

Before his arrest, Bobby Marquez was a housebuilder. He also was employed by T. Marquez Jr. and Sons TV and Radio Repair of Big Spring.

S. African sanctions OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like a dam bursting, Congress is giving final approval to a flood of legislation, adopting billions of dollars in money bills, drafting sanctions against South Africa and working toward another fragile compromise on a deficit-fighting budget.

Wednesday's torrent of legislative action was spurred by the desire to clear the way for both houses to adjourn for their month-long August vacation by the end of the week.

"We've moved a lot of legislation today," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan. "If we can work out some of the other bills by Friday, we'll be in better shape for the recess."

Money matters dominated the agenda, with both houses moving rapidly on authorizing and appropriating the funds that fuel the federal government.

House and Senate negotiators called for an immediate ban on the sale of South African gold coins in the United States as they agreed on a package of economic sanctions aimed at pressuring the Pretoria government to end its policy of racial segregation.

The compromise also would bar the export of U.S. nuclear technology to South Africa, as well as the sale of computer materials used to enforce the racial policy of apartheid. New bank loans also would be forbidden. But American firms would be permitted to make new investments in South Africa.

Leaders in both houses said they would press for a final vote on the compromise before Congress adjourns.

However, conservatives, including Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., have raised the possibility of a Senate filibuster to stop the sanctions.

President Reagan has consistently opposed sanctions against South Africa in the past and it was not clear whether he will sign the measure.

The queens of handball

Unlikely duo teams up to win national championship

AUSTIN (AP) — Needing a physical education class to complete her 1978 fall semester schedule at Texas A&M, Susan Oakleaf scanned the register of available sports and suddenly became frustrated at the lack of desirable offerings.

There was no tennis, no racketball, no basketball — nothing that whetted her competitive appetite.

She was miffed. The only class left was handball. But hit a hard rubber ball with her palm in a white square room? For an hour? Banging her head against a wall seemed just as appealing. Oakleaf had no choice, though. Hesitantly, she signed up.

"If something else had been available, I'm sure I would have taken that," Oakleaf remembers. Then she smiles.

"But it's worked out pretty well. I'm not surprised I stuck with it."

No, it's not too surprising — especially when you consider that Oakleaf is one of the best women handball players in the country. So is her doubles partner, fellow Austin resident LeaAnn Tyson. Recently in Tucson, Ariz., the duo won the National Women's Doubles title, sweeping all five of their matches, including an upset of top seeds Peanut Motal and Nancy Molter in the finals.

The title is Oakleaf's second in doubles. In 1981, she combined with Rosemary Belinni to take the crown. But when that pair lost in the finals next year, Belinni refused to accept her second-place trophy. Oakleaf thought it was a poor display of sportsmanship and the duo split. Belinni moved to New York and Oakleaf went searching for a new partner. Quickly, she teamed with Tyson, whose husband, Pete, teaches handball at the University of Texas.

Practicing at Gregory Gym, they started to blend their games. Three years later, they became champions.

Handball champions LeaAnn Tyson, left, and Susan Oakleaf stand in seats of an Austin handball court early in July. They are one of the top women's handball doubles teams in the nation.

But in handball, winning the national title won't make the front page. Or the classifieds. It's a sport that rests in anonymity, shadowed by the more popular racquetball.

Handball is closer to a cult sport; its enthusiasts fancying the ambidextrous skills required while wearing only a small padded deer-skin glove with which to hit.

Oakleaf estimated that when she became interested in racquetball after signing up for that 1978 class, there were about 35-40 serious women handball players. Now, she puts that total at around 250.

"I think it's grown more popular because colleges and universities offer it as an option now," said Oakleaf, a printed circuit designer at Tandem Computers. "Plus, YMCAs are starting to promote it for their juniors. I don't know if it will ever as well known as racquetball. But it plugs right along."

"The lack of publicity doesn't bother me as much as people just not understanding handball," added Tyson, an elementary school teacher at Anderson Mill.

"Sure, it's played in the same court as racquetball and basically has thence can be bought from a vending machine at Lufkin Memorial Hospital and one a plastic bottle bought at Budgies sing both hands and hitting off a smaller surface." After teaming up in 1982, the Tyson-Oakleaf pair found success — but not to the degree they desired. They went to the finals before losing in 1983 and lost in the semis last year. Finally, this summer, they broke through.

"The main reason we do so well is that we just like each other," said Tyson. "With some doubles teams, you look at the individuals, maybe ranked No. 1 and 2, and think they'd be awesome together. But most of the time, they just don't play well together. We do."

"There are no conflicts between us. We just have a great time playing together. We have fun and laugh all the time."

"LeaAnn and I have an advantage in that we communicate well with each other," added Oakleaf. "We can interpret each other's moves and anticipate the shots needed for us to win."

Plus, the two have skills that mix perfectly. Oakleaf is the aggressor, the attacker, the one who make the winning kill shot. She ends rallies by blasting drives past her opponents.

Weather

Local

WEST TEXAS — Widely scattered thunderstorms mainly southwest and in the Panhandle. And continued mostly sunny days and fair nights elsewhere through Friday. Not quite so warm Panhandle, otherwise little change in temperature. Highs Friday near 90 to low 90s north. Far west and southwest mountains ranging to upper 90s south. Lows tonight 68 to 74 except around 60 southwest mountains.

State

A high-pressure cell aloft pumped warm, dry air into most of the Lone Star State today, but a weak cold front brought showers and thunderstorms to the Texas Panhandle.

The storms, some very heavy, generated scattered modest rains along and north of the front. Light showers dotted the Northwestern Panhandle west of Dalhart, and other precipitation fell between Spearman and Miami.

Patches of low cloudiness stretched from the middle and lower Gulf coast to the southern Hill Country while thin high clouds covered South and Southeast Texas as well as the south plains.

Police Beat

Crews replace traffic lights

City public works crews have replaced broken traffic lights at the north and south FM 700 service road intersections at Gregg Street with temporary signals, said a department employee.

The four lights — one on the north service road and three signals and a pole on the south service road — were shattered by a dump truck early Wednesday morning, causing about $4,500 damage, said police.

A witness told police the bed of the dump truck was raised, making it too tall to pass under the lights, said Police Sgt. Melvin Fowler.

Police have not made any arrests in the felony criminal mischief case, but do have a suspect, he said.

The police report said the lights were broken at 4:45 a.m. Wednesday.

The city has ordered replacement traffic lights for the intersection, said public works employee Johnny Shortes.

Burglars stole a red 3.2 horsepower lawnmower between 6 p.m. Friday and 9:30 a.m. Wednesday from a storage building at 1401 E. 19th, S.A. Walker told police.

The lawnmower is valued at $200. Police Wednesday afternoon arrested Carmen Moreno Gonzalez, 37, of 602 N. San Antonio in the 400 block of Dallas on suspicion of driving while license suspended.

Police Wednesday morning arrested DeWayne Bledsoe, 25, of 113 W. 19th in the 100 block of W. 11th on a warrant for forgery by passing.

Police reports show that someone used a cancelled credit card to obtain $118 in goods and services from the Byron Harris Texaco station at the intersection of Interstate 20 and State Highway 350 between April 22 and May 21.

W.G. Fuller of 1500 Runnels told police someone stole a blue dirt bicycle between 4 and 6 p.m. Wednesday from the Comanche Trail Swimming Pool building. The bike is valued at $200.

Mrs. Wayne Allen of 1407 Sycamore told police someone stole a black BMX bicycle between 9 p.m. Tuesday and 9 a.m. Wednesday. The bike is valued at $100.

Police Wednesday afternoon also arrested Kathlene Joyce Mings, 17, of 1314 State Park, at the K mart store on suspicion of theft of more than $20 and less than $200.

According to the report, she was suspected of trying to shoplift $30 of jewelry and clothing from the store.

PD transfers 6 to county jail

Big Spring Police transferred six persons to Howard County jail Thursday after each was arrested and charged in separate incidents. They are:

• Raymond Lopez Chavarria, 29, of 1217 W. 6th who was charged with auto burglary. He was released on $3,000 bond.

• Harold L. Nichols, 45, of Snyder who was charged with driving while intoxicated. He was released on $1,000 bond.

• DeWayne Bledsoe, 25, of 113 W. 19th who was charged with forgery by passing. He was released on $2,500 bond.

• Jeffrey Allen Briscoe, 19, of Sand Springs who was charged with driving while license suspended. He was released on $500 bond.

• Kathlene Joyce Mings, 17, of 1314 S. Park who was charged with theft over $20 and under $200. She was released on $1,500 bond.

• Carmen Gonzales, 37, of 602 N. San Antonio who was charged with driving while license suspended. She was released on $500 bond.

• The sheriff's department received a report at 11:26 p.m. Wednesday of gun shots in the Sand Springs area near Eddins Bit Service.

Upon investigation, deputies discovered persons target shooting, and according to the sheriff's log, they "were told to put up weapons and go to bed."

Deputies arrested Albert Chavarria, 31, of 511 Abrams on a warrant charging him with outstanding fines owed to the county. He paid $49 and was released.

Dance to highlight reunion

A barbecue, dance and fiddling contest Friday will highlight the 61st annual Howard-Glasscock County Old Settlers Reunion.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. at Comanche Trail Park, where activities will include Outlaw Band music, horseshoe pitching, washers, tobacco spitting and husband-calling.

The fiddling contest is open to men and women of all ages, with cash awards going to the winners. Prizes also will be awarded to the eldest woman, eldest man, native coming the greatest distance, couple married the longest, most children, most grandchildren and most authentically dressed man, woman or child.

The barbecue will be served at noon. Cost is $4.50 per plate, and persons over 70 may eat free.

The dance will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Dora Roberts Community Center, featuring Ben Nix and The Boys Band. Admission is $3 per person.

For more information, contact Gertrude McCann, secretary-treasurer for the planning committee, at 267-6476.

Prison camp selects top employee

Judy Ingram, financial assistant, was selected as employee of the quarter for the second quarter of 1985 at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

Ingram received the award for efficiently running the commissary operation at the camp primarily by herself during the quarter, camp officials said.

During this time she balanced the commissary operation's records.

Ingram was presented a plaque and cash award by John Gluch, superintendent, at a recent general staff meeting at the institution.

Budget

At Wednesday's budget hearing at the 11th and Birdwell Fire Station, three of the four residents present called on the city to improve its streets and water lines. Their comments echoed complaints and requests from residents at the first public hearing Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. P.B. Enfield of 704 Lorilla asked the city to replace a water line in an alley between Lorilla and Anna, because it was continually breaking. They also asked the city to pave Anna, which leads to several industries including Co-Exx-Pipe and Permian Research Co.

Another resident said she was concerned about better control of loose dogs. Davis said the animal control department, which employs two people, works mainly on a complaint basis. Usually only one person is on duty at a time.

If the animal control employee does not witness an animal running loose, a resident can file a complaint with the city. "After a person pays a fine a couple times, they'll make sure their animal is penned up," Davis said.

The city will allow the maximum 30 percent homestead exemption this year and a $5,000 discount for citizens over 65, Ferguson said.

Fire guts rec-vehicle

Fire Wednesday afternoon gutted a New Mexico couple's recreational vehicle on State Highway 176 about four miles west of Big Spring.

No one was injured in the fire, but damage was estimated at $70,000 because the propane tank exploded, according to the fire department reports.

Cause of the fire has not been determined, but apparently the fire started while the vehicle was moving, said Arson Investigator Burr Lea Settles.

Smoke and flames from the 1979 Sport Coach, owned by Jim Taylor of Cloudcroft, N.M., were visible for several miles, said firemen who responded to the alarm at 3 p.m.

As the first fire engine arrived at the scene at 3:07 p.m., the propane tank exploded and the fire began moving toward the truck, according to the report.

Firemen had managed to knock down most of the flames by the time that engine ran out of water and the second engine arrived, the report stated.

The barbecue at Fat's Buffet today was a little crispier than usual when fire broke out early this morning in a meat smoker.

According to fire department reports, a buildup of grease in an oven cooker that was converted to a smoker caused the fire at the restaurant, located at 1103 11th Place.

The fire was contained in the smoker, said Settles. Fat's will be open today.

The new Scrabble champ

BOSTON — His favorite word was "unbe," and while he "didn't have any big words" or plays over 100 points, "qoph" and "axone" helped Ronald Tiekert spell success and capture the North American Scrabble Open title.

Tiekert, 38, an education materials editor from New York, said he didn't expect to win the $10,000 cash prize and trip for two to Hawaii.

"I didn't have any big words," he said after capturing the title Wednesday with 20 wins in the 22-round, four-day tournament. "I had no plays (worth) over 100 points."

But Tiekert outscored 301 other word mavens with a lot of strategy and such words as "vug," "probang" and "qintar."

Promoting contraceptives

NEW YORK — A physicians' group says its media campaign to reduce unintended pregnancies by promoting contraception has been stymied because two major TV networks rejected public service announcements as too controversial.

CBS and ABC have rejected the announcements, Cable News Network has tentatively agreed to air them and NBC wants more information, said Dr. Luella Klein, immediate past president of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

Network spokesmen said ABC has made no final decision and that NBC hasn't had a chance to complete a review.

Paul Brickman of Martin E. Janis & Co., the public relations firm handling the campaign, said NBC's initial response indicated a rejection is coming.

Earthen dam takes hike

LABELLE, Pa. — Thirteen families living in front of a dam holding back about 60 acres of water and coal slurry were evacuated today after officials discovered the dam was moving.

"It's sort of a shaky situation right now," said Bob Davis of the National Weather Service.

Officials from the Bureau of Mine Safety, coal company representatives and state and county emergency management officials were monitoring the situation.

The NWS issued a flash flood watch for Luzerne Township in Fayette County following heavy storms earlier today that dumped about two inches of rain in the area.

Death of a supernova

LOS ANGELES — A supernova, which exploded like no other star seen before by shredding its outer layer before fully erupting, has been witnessed by two scientists observing a galaxy 30 million light years away from Earth.

Using the 200-inch telescope at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, astronomers Alexi V. Filippenko of Berkeley and Wallace Sargent of Caltech witnessed the completely different type of supernova February 28.

The Common Market Foreign Ministers in a joint statement early Thursday condemned the racial policies of South Africa and decided to withdraw their ambassadors for consultation.

Revolt on racism

Discontent mounts against S. African policies

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu told about 1,000 mourners at a funeral today that he would defy new bans on public services for victims of racial unrest. However, today's funeral for three blacks apparently did not violate the regulations.

In Helsinki, Finland, foreign ministers of the 10 Common Market countries agreed to recall their ambassadors from South Africa for consultations to protest that country's racial policies, a Common Market statement said today.

The statement said the ambassadors would attend a meeting to discuss what measures might be taken to protest apartheid, South Africa's system of racial segregation. The foreign ministers were in Helsinki for the 10th anniversary of the Helsinki Accords on human rights and European security.

The U.S. ambassador was withdrawn from South Africa on June 14, to protest a raid by South African troops into neighboring Botswana to attack alleged guerrilla strongholds. France withdrew its ambassador and imposed economic sanctions last week to protest apartheid.

"Please allow us to bury our people who died because of apartheid. Don't rub salt in our wounds," Tutu, the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize winner, said at the funeral service in Tumahole, near the white farming town of Parys about 60 miles south of Johannesburg.

The three men being mourned were killed in a clash with police after another funeral two weeks ago.

Citing the violence that has often broke out at funerals, police on Wednesday banned outdoor services for victims of racial unrest, ordered that separate funerals be held for each victim, said only ordained ministers could speak and that they would be barred from discussing politics.

The new restrictions will cause a "legacy of bitterness" among blacks that could lead to more deaths, Tutu said.

"We are already bruised, don't trample on us. All we ask is that you recognize us as human beings," he said. The Anglican bishop of Johannesburg said he would "continue to speak at all meetings, responsibly, as a minister."

Tutu said God had called upon him to preach, and said, "I listen only to God, not to any other authority."

The restrictions went into effect immediately in 36 riot-torn towns and cities where a state of emergency was declared 12 days ago.

Tumahole and Parys are not on that list. It also appeared that the organizers of today's funeral service might have acted to prevent any police action by holding the service inside a community hall rather than outdoors on a sports field, as is customary.

On Wednesday, Tutu told Britain's Independent Television News that the state of emergency imposed by the government under which almost 1,300 people have been detained is adding to unrest among blacks.

"The consequence of putting the lid on is merely to allow the steam to build up, and the pressure increases. And before you can say Jack Robinson, you have an almighty explosion," he said.

The Rev. Allan Boesak, an anti-apartheid leader, said in Cape Town that the government "is deliberately provoking our people, forcing them to challenge the awesome power of the government so that they can be slaughtered."

An estimated 500 blacks have been killed in nearly a year of protests against the white-minority government. Some have been killed by police, but others, particularly policemen and city councilors, have been attacked by blacks who see them as collaborators with the government.

A government notice said mourners at Parys would have to travel in vehicles, putting an end to the common practice of defiant marches of chanting youths from churches to cemeteries.

The Rev. Beyers Naude, white secretary-general of the South African Council of Churches, said funerals were one of the "last remaining channels" for political dissent. As many as 50,000 mourners have attended recent burials.

Dollar takes downturn

LONDON — The dollar drifted lower in early European trading today in the absence of any news that would propel it sharply in either direction. Gold prices were higher in London.

Dealers said U.S. economic indicators released Wednesday were better than expected but still didn't provide a clear picture of how the U.S. economy is performing.

The U.S. index of leading economic indicators for June rose 1.0 percent, exceeding market expectations, but at the same time the May index's gain was revised to a mere 0.1 percent from the originally reported 0.7 percent.

U.S. factory goods orders rose 1.9 percent in June, well above market expectations of a 1.2 percent gain, dealers said.

Blast rocks news building

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Iran's official news agency says a powerful explosion shook the government-owned Syrian news agency building in the Syrian capital of Damascus.

The Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Beirut, quoted its correspondent in Damascus as saying heavy black smoke billowed from the building Wednesday, but did not mention casualties or give other details.

Damascus radio made no reference to the explosion in its main newscasts and the report could not be independently confirmed.

It was the first such explosion reported in Damascus since the government cracked down on the Moslem Brotherhood in 1982. The group, a fundamentalist movement of mainly Sunni Moslems, was seeking to topple President Hafez Assad. Assad comes from Syria's minority Alawite Moslem community.

Defector returns home

OSLO, Norway — A woman who jumped a Soviet cruise liner, swam ashore and walked for four days in an attempt to defect, has voluntarily agreed to return home, Norwegian authorities announced today.

The officials, who spoke only on condition they remain anonymous, said the unidentified 29-year-old woman decided to return to the Soviet Union after a brief meeting with a Soviet consul Wednesday.

On July 22, the woman jumped into the cold sea from the Soviet cruise liner "Maksim Gorkij" off Svalbard Island. Unnoticed by the ship's crew, she swam ashore and walked for four days before being spotted by a Norwegian engineer.

The woman, who was suffering frostbite, was hospitalized for several days in Longyearbyen, the Norwegian administrative center on Svalbard.

Ugandan leader sworn in KAMPALA, Uganda — Paulo Muwanga, who was vice president and defense minister under the ousted President Milton Obote, was sworn in today as prime minister of the military government that seized power in a coup five days ago. He said a new Cabinet would be named soon.

Shuttle studies sun's atmosphere

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's astronauts studied the sun's stormy atmosphere and flew circles around and fired an electron beam at a small satellite today as they sped through an invisible electromagnetic ocean.

The satellite fly-around tests could give scientists a better understanding of the complex processes occurring in the ionosphere, a layer of Earth's atmosphere which transmits radio signals around the globe.

The data will add to a harvest of scientific information being reaped by the seven astronauts as they continue their study of the sun, stars, galaxies and the atmosphere.

Most of the day was devoted to astronomy, with astronauts Karl Henize, an astronomer, and Loren Acton, a solar physicist, aiming Challenger's telescopes at the sun. They focused on the corona, an area of high speed winds of solar gases surrounding the sun.

They hope to learn what mechanism governs gas dynamics on the sun, a key to unlocking mysteries of the sun and other stars as well.

Brazil: test case in democracy

The United States is fixated on Central America as the focus of the struggle for democracy in Latin America. But Latin America is watching Brazil — the largest and most populous Latin American nation — to see if its experiment in democracy can survive.

Brazil was the first major South American country to lose its democracy to a military coup, in 1964. And it is one of the last countries to return the military to the barracks, in 1985.

Brazil's military dictatorship was harsh, but not nearly as brutal as the regimes in Chile or Argentina. The transition to democracy was made peacefully in Brazil, not violently as in other Latin nations.

It is still not complete. The Brazilian Congress elected President Tancredo Neves, who died following intestinal surgery without ever taking office. Power was turned over to the vice president, Jose Sarney. Direct elections will not be called until next year, when representatives will be chosen to a constitutional convention to be held in 1987.

The institutionalization of democracy is the greatest challenge facing Brazil — and all of Latin America. But that goal is threatened, in Brazil, by the worst economic crisis in the nation's history.

A member of a Brazilian senatorial delegation visiting the United States called Brazil's foreign debt a "phantom hanging over the country."

It is a phantom with vampire's teeth, sucking the lifeblood from Brazil's economy. To pay the interest on its debt, Brazil has been forced to export twice as much as it imports. Many domestic industries are idle, forcing millions of workers out of jobs. Inflation is 250 percent.

Brazil's military government got the country into this mess by borrowing more money than Brazil could afford. But the democratic government is being asked to pay for the military's mistakes.

"If hunger increases there will be an explosion with a far leftist regime, which will extend to the rest of South America," warned one senator from the ruling party.

We have no reason to doubt him. The United States can help Brazil by helping the democratic government renegotiate its debt with the International Monetary Fund and by keeping the door open to Brazilian exports of shoes and other manufactured products. Brazil is a good investment.

Justice to fight abortion decision

The Justice Department's request that the Supreme Court overturn Roe v. Wade, its 1973 decision effectively legalizing abortion on demand, may be faulted for displaying more valor than shrewdness. The court reaffirmed that ruling just two years ago, and its membership hasn't changed. Given the doubtful health of Justice Lewis Powell, the administration might better wait until President Reagan has had the chance to install a replacement.

The friend-of-the-court brief filed on behalf of two state laws regulating abortion also has been depicted as a cynical political gesture. Its real purpose, the thinking goes, is not to persuade the court to reverse itself, which is highly unlikely, but to appease anti-abortion groups.

Granted, the chance of success is slim. Nothing suggests that a majority of the justices is ready to repent of the court's sweeping presumption.

In an ordinary case, caution might be smart. But Roe v. Wade was no ordinary ruling. It was a legal sanction of the mass killing of unborn children. The efforts to overturn it can't begin too soon. Both the court and the American people need to be educated about the profound defects of the decision, as law and as policy.

The laws being considered by the court here are by no means sure losers. They oblige doctors to provide patients with certain scientific information, to use the abortion method least dangerous to the fetus and to protect surviving fetuses. Some of these provisions may pass muster with the court, even if it stands by the 1973 ruling.

In the 1983 Akron decision, the court did broaden Roe, striking down one requirement (hospitalization for a second-trimester abortion) that it had suggested itself in 1973. It also showed impatience with restrictions on methods and with requiring information apparently aimed at discouraging abortion.

Still, the court conceded that states can require that patients be fully informed about "the physical and emotional implications" of the abortion. In a separate case, it upheld a Missouri law requiring that a second physician be present at the abortion of a "viable" fetus and "take all reasonable steps... to preserve the life and health" of the child.

These laws arguably fall within the type of regulation allowed by the court, an argument that will be made by the two states' legal representatives. The administration, seeing nothing to be gained by simply echoing them, has concentrated its energies on exposing the unraveling fabric of Roe.

At least three justices already recognize the error. In a dissent from the Akron ruling, Sandra O'Connor spoke for William Rehnquist and Byron White when she wrote that "the state's interest in protecting potential human life exists throughout the pregnancy." Medical science has rendered late-term abortions safer while making fetuses "viable" at an ever-earlier age, she noted, putting the ruling "on a collision course with itself."

But that view falls two votes short of prevailing. Some court-watchers think Chief Justice Warren Burger, who voted for the original decision, would repudiate it if his vote would make a majority.

Pentagon blocks oil leases to protect national defense

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon has quietly asserted control over millions of acres of federal land in a move that puts the Defense Department squarely at odds with Big Oil and on the side of environmentalists.

The strange "land grab" involves huge portions of the Outer Continental Shelf that the Interior Department wants to lease to the oil and gas industry for offshore drilling. The Pentagon has designated 115 million acres of the underwater "land" off-limits to exploitation. By comparison, the total amount of wilderness protected from development in Alaska and the lower 48 states is only 89 million acres.

The Pentagon claims that preservation of the offshore areas is vital to submarine and other operations required for national defense. The appearance of oil rigs and exploration equipment would make these military operations difficult if not impossible, the Pentagon says. Here's what our associate Donald Goldberg has learned about the bureaucratic battle:

The ocean-bottom land has been a subject of controversy ever since then-Secretary of Interior James Watt proposed leasing nearly a billion acres for oil and gas development four years ago. Partly on environmental grounds, Congress imposed a moratorium on some of the leases, covering about 45 million acres.

The Pentagon's secret war with the Interior Department has been going on ever since. "Disagreements between the agencies were well hidden," wrote an expert in the congressional Office of Technology Assessment. "However, what was once handled on a routine case-by-case basis seems now to be turning into a problem too broad and complex to be dealt with ad hoc."

Complicating the matter is the lack of clear authority over withdrawal of public lands for military purposes. One law gives this power to the president and the defense secretary; another gives it to Congress. Playing it safe, the Pentagon refers to its assertion of authority over the offshore land merely as "deferrals" of development.

In testimony last year before a House subcommittee, one defense official said the Pentagon supported the congressional ban for national security reasons.

Several weeks later, the same official told another subcommittee the Defense Department opposed the moratorium, thereby quietly conforming to the official administration line.

Here's the list of offshore areas the Pentagon has said must be preserved from exploitation:

- The Navy's Narragansett Bay Operating Area off southern New England, containing the transit lanes used by 54 attack submarines assigned to the Atlantic Fleet and based at Groton, Conn.

- Explains the Navy document: "Oil and gas structures positioned within submarine transit lanes or high-usage operating areas present safety-to-navigation hazards and acoustical interference." Furthermore, the noise from drilling would bollix up the delicate sound sensors that monitor enemy subs off the coast, according to the Navy document.

- The Mid-Atlantic area of Norfolk, Va., where drilling would hamper a number of sensitive Navy operations, including missile tests, supersonic flights and firing of cruise missiles and torpedoes.

- The South Atlantic area off the Carolinas and Florida, including Cape Canaveral. In addition to submarine transit lanes, this area "encompasses a unique combination of launch areas and support facilities associated with submarine-launched ballistic missiles."

- The Gulf of Mexico, where carrier training of Navy pilots takes place, as well as mine countermeasures, anti-submarine warfare and amphibious operations.

- Central and northern California operating zones, with a wide variety of military activities occurring from Point Conception near Santa Barbara north to the Oregon border.

Footnote: Last week the Interior Department tentatively agreed to put most of California's coastal waters off-limits to oil drilling until the year 2000, in exchange for an end to the congressional moratorium on other areas of the California coast.

Ya se me acabó el tiempo en esta prensa. Ahora me llama San Antonio.

Lo que no me quisieron dar aquí me lo dio la prensa, La Luz de San Antonio (San Antonio Light). Y si quiere Dios, ya nomás dos mas artículos escribire en español.

Hace mas que un año que vine yo a este pueblo y al Big Spring Herald. Al los tres meces me dejaron escribir este artículo en español. Yo creo que ya les pesa dejarme hacerlo.

El artículo fue bien recibido por unos; pero a otros les cayó muy peseten.

Pero que les guste o no les guste no es lo que importa. Lo que deberas cuenta es que por fin salio algo en esta prensa que fue dirigido a los mexicanos.

A veces uno piensa que a nadie le importa de uno, especialmente si uno es mexicano. Y fíjese, la mayoría del tiempo eso es verdad.

Si, es verdad que le ponen el oído; pero nomás porque tienen que. Y de quien hablo? Hablo de los que no son mexicanos. Hablo de las personas que en el trabajo le hablan tan bien y en la calle niquiera le dan la cara.

Esas personas fueron las que les cayo muy mal que yo escribiera un artículo en español. Piensan así porque ellos se miran que son mas bueno que uno de mexicano. Y no me diga que no es verdad, porque si es.

Así es la mentalidad de la mayoría de los americanos por estas partes de tejas (y aquí en Big Spring). Nunca han aceptado al mexicano como un igual.

Mis tíos y mis padres me decían y todavía me dicen que el americano ha sido muy desgraciado. De primero no les creía. Pero con el tiempo lo ha aceptado.

Uds. me pueden decir que han cambiado los americanos. Pero no es verdad.

Lo que ha cambiado es el comportamiento o el conducto de ellos a nosotros. Las leyes de este país exigen que todos tengan los mismos derechos. Lo que hacen no es porque quieren hacerlo; pero porque que tienen que hacerlo.

Y lo que ellos piensan de nosotros nunca ha cambiado; eso siempre ha sido lo mismo.

Por eso me voy a San Antonio donde al mexicano lo miran como igual... y donde el mexicano es rey.

Hasta luego.

Reagan actions undercut Senate GOP

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leader Bob Dole hung up the phone after talking to the president and hurried across the Capitol to a meeting with his political rival, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.

As he reached the speaker's private office, the Kansas Republican encountered a group of reporters asking if he knew what the White House was about to announce on the budget.

Dole was caught by surprise.

President Reagan had just rejected the Senate Republicans' latest plan for cutting the federal deficit, but Dole didn't realize it was being trumpeted from the White House in a televised announcement.

He thought he was there to inform O'Neill privately and make another attempt to find room for some other compromise.

But not only had the president just torpedoed the latest budget strategy of his own allies in Capitol Hill, but his spokesman was telling the world — including O'Neill — about it before Dole could break the news himself to his chief Democratic adversary in the high-stakes budget battle.

Dole "was absolutely stunned," O'Neill said later. "His chin hit his chest."

For some of those present, it was a reminder of times past when O'Neill was the one being undercut by his party's chieftain in the White House, Jimmy Carter.

Carter's failure to understand and heed the special sensitivities of his fellow Democrats on Capitol Hill was legend. And his inability to get along with O'Neill cost him one battle after another.

But Ronald Reagan, who like Carter came to Washington as an outsider, proved himself

They have a lot of meetings down there; you can't make them all.

Sen. Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., on why he didn't attend a Senate GOP meeting with Reagan.

a master of legislative politics right from the start. The irony is that in his second term he seems to have lost his touch.

Some Republicans in Congress say they can't remember when they have been so stymied by their inability to work with the president, particularly when they are trying to produce a deficit-reduction package Reagan demanded.

"Some of us are terribly frustrated by the failure of the administration to accept what many of us thought was a good proposal," said Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo. "Now, obviously, we're split. It's pretty bleak."

The depth of that frustration was evident in gestures as well as words.

Shortly before GOP leaders from Capitol Hill were expected at the White House for a meeting Tuesday with Reagan, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes was asked if the White House would, as usual, make its press briefing room available to the Republican congressional leaders to report on their session with the president.

"Catch 'em on the lawn," the spokesman snapped.

Reporters did, of course, snag several members outside and got their comments.

Dole, however, wasn't there. Nor was his whip, Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo. Speakes said the majority leader and his assistant had a news conference scheduled and needed to open the Senate's daily session, events which have not deterred them in the past.

Dole attributed his absence to the need to tend to other business on the Hill, including a temporary loss of electricity in the Capitol.

"They have a lot of meetings down there; you can't make them all," Dole said.

White House officials, however, appeared in no mood to offer further compromise, insisting Reagan has given ground time and again but remains determined not to reduce the deficit by increasing taxes.

Speaking both on the record and privately presidential aides insisted the congressional Republicans were simply dreaming if they thought Reagan would accept the Senate's latest call for periodic freezes on Social Security pension benefits, imposition of oil import fees or other revenue-raising gimmicks.

Reagan, according to Speakes, "believes that his approach is correct, that he was elected on a program of no taxes and he believes that what he is doing is right. Not only is it right, but it's been endorsed by the American people."

"We appreciate their sensitivities," one aide said, asking not to be identified. "But the president has strong feelings on this issue, and he's not going to let the Senate push him around."

"Let's see them try to push the House around for awhile."

Boyd named to state board

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Hal Boyd, Big Spring airport and industrial development manager, was named Thursday by Gov. Mark White to the Texas National Guard Armory Board.

Boyd, 55, replaces Fred Avila of Pasadena, whose term expired. Boyd's term extends through April 30, 1991.

The board is a quasi-corporation established to provide for financing, acquisition, construction, sales, rental, control, maintenance and operation of more than 130 National Guard or State Guard armory facilities in Texas.

Fiberflex president resigns

Freeman, president of Fiberflex Products Inc., a Big Spring oil industry-related firm that produces fiberglass sucker rods, has resigned, a company spokesman said Wednesday.

Freeman, one of the company's founders, resigned to "pursue personal interests," Debbie Pool, a company secretary, read from a prepared release.

Neither she nor other Fiberflex employees would comment on when the resignation occurred.

The release stated the former president will continue on as a consultant, primarily engaged in new products.

No announcement has been made about who will be his replacement.

Chris Christopher, owner and chief executive officer, could not be reached for comment today or Wednesday.

Judge sentences 3 to prison

118th District Court Judge James Gregg sentenced three persons to terms at the Texas Department of Corrections this morning.

Herman Griffin, 26, of Beattyville, Ky., pleaded guilty to a charge of theft over $750 and under $20,000. He was indicted of the felony last January by the Howard County grand jury. He was sentenced to five years at TDC after being credited for 153 days spent in jail.

Klaus Quernheim, 27, of Gail Route was sentenced to four years at TDC and given credit for nine days spent in jail. He entered a plea of guilty to a burglary of a building charge.

William Melton, 19, of Forsan was sentenced to four years at the state penitentiary after his probation for a prior theft charge was revoked.

Gramm blocks federal campaign audit

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm is making a federal case out of the Federal Election Commission's attempt to investigate his 1984 campaign spending.

FEC officials say a preliminary probe showed evidence of discrepancies in campaign fundraising and spending. They want to take a more detailed look, but Gramm has filed suit asking a Dallas federal judge to bar the investigation.

Larry Neal, Gramm's press secretary, said Wednesday there were minor, clerical errors in the voluminous campaign finance report. But there were no major violations of election law, according to Neal and James Schoener, the Washington lawyer who filed the suit on behalf of Gramm's campaign committee.

"There were what amounted to clerical errors in the course of dealing with 50,000 and more individual contributions ... We had a lot of volunteers doing a lot of work on an enormous report," Neal said. "They're getting crazy," Schoener said of the FEC.

Gramm's reports show he spent $9.8 million to beat Democrat Lloyd Doggett last year. The reports came to the FEC's attention after Donna Mobley of Austin, former director of Texas Common Cause, filed a complaint last October, before the election.

The commission staff persuaded the commission that there was "reason to believe" there were violations. A full audit was ordered.

But on June 19, Gramm filed suit in U.S. District Court in Dallas, alleging the deadline had passed for the FEC to audit his 1984 campaign books.

The campaign committee will respond to specific questions, but it doesn't believe a full audit is proper, Schoener said.

"An audit is terribly expensive, probably somewhere between $60,000-$70,000. They want to rummage through things. That's too costly and too wasteful of the taxpayers' money and the campaign's money," he said.

FEC officials, who claim they are bound by confidentiality requirements, have little to say about the case.

The agency's response to Gramm's lawsuit is to be filed in the Dallas court by Aug. 19.

"I cannot divulge what is going on in the investigation until the matter is closed," said Lois Lerner of the FEC's general counsel staff.

The six-member commission is made up of three Republicans and three Democrats.

The allegations against the Gramm campaign include charges that it mishandled donations to a joint fund-raiser breakfast at the Republican National Convention in Dallas last year.

An FEC staff report said at least one contributor did not realize that some money from the Presidential Nomination Breakfast Ball would go to Gramm's campaign.

East Texas shootout

Chapman, Hargett duke it out in congressional runoff

DALLAS (AP) — As Jim Chapman and Edd Hargett duke it out in their runoff campaign's final days this week, increasingly anxious GOP eyes from around the nation are focusing on the piney hills of East Texas for a hint of Democratic doom.

Republican analysts said this week that if Hargett, a former Texas A&M University quarterback in his first political contest, can pull out a GOP victory in Saturday's special congressional runoff election, that could be a sign that the Solid South is shifting sides.

"It would be Armageddon for the Democrats if they lose" in the 1st District where no Republican has been elected for 114 years, said Texas GOP Chairman George Strake. "We'll never have another chance like this."

But some Democrats — especially Chapman, a former Hopkins County district attorney — counter that the race is not a litmus of Southern sentiment and that its national importance is being blown out of proportion.

"Give me an 80 percent voter turnout, and then talk to me about realignment," said Chapman, 40.

"This is conservative East Texas, and it isn't representative of the rest of Texas, much less the nation."

Voter turnout was about 20 percent in the June 29 special election that pared the field from eight candidates to two. Hargett, the lone Republican, polled 42.2 percent. Chapman, one of six Democrats, garnered 30.2 percent.

So far, all indications are that the race is close and that turnout in the 20-county district that is the state's third poorest will be crucial. Democrats say they'll have the edge if with a large turnout, and are charging that Republicans are trying to stymie that through the Justice Department.

The department has filed suit over the election date, claiming that it should have been cleared through Washington first. Gov. Mark White has flatly refused to cooperate with that demand and says Texas doesn't have to.

Both say they are deeply conservative men in a far right-wing district, but Hargett says his Republican affiliation "will give me the ear of the president."

Dear Abby

Wrong number

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago I dialed a wrong number and found myself talking to a man with a great voice and charming manner of speaking. (I'll call him H.) He must have liked my voice, too, because we got into a conversation and discovered many mutual interests. Our conversation ranged from serious to hilarious. I told H. my real name and he told me his, and we exchanged telephone numbers. Now we call each other once or twice a week to chat.

I am married with children, which I told H. right off the bat. He's divorced and has a girlfriend. (We are the same age.)

I told my husband about our telephone conversation, and also that I have no intentions of meeting the man, so it is perfectly harmless.

My husband believes that even though I have no intentions of meeting H., I am out of line to pursue this telephone friendship. In fact, he has asked me to discontinue it. My husband has no reason to mistrust me, but I agreed to go along with his wishes in order to prevent a rift in our relationship. I believe I have done nothing wrong and it's unfair of him to deny me the pleasure of talking to H.

What do you think?

DEAR WAITING: I do not blame your husband for resenting the telephone conversations between you and H. Nor do I fault him for requesting that they be discontinued. How would you feel if your husband became charmed by a woman with a great telephone voice, and he continued to call her and receive calls from her?

The most honorable people encounter enough temptations accidentally. Why look for trouble?

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 30-year-old man with a problem that seems to be getting worse as time goes by.

The problem is my voice. I sound like a woman. I'm so tired of people thinking (and asking if) I'm gay. I make a conscious effort to lower my voice when I talk, but that doesn't seem to help. I would even undergo surgery to lower this high-pitched voice if I had to.

I am at the end of my rope. Please help me.

SOUNDS LIKE A GIRL

DEAR SOUNDS: If your high-pitched voice is not due to some physical abnormality, a voice coach may be able to help. Or contact the National Association for Hearing and Speech Action, 10801 Rockville Pike, Rockville, Md. 20852. The toll-free number is (800) 638-8255; in Maryland, call (301) 897-8682. The above agency can provide you with the name of a certified professional in your area who deals with the causes of abnormal speech and how to correct it if possible.

DEAR ABBY: You will probably not print what I have to say, but at least I will get this off my chest.

Before I read my newspaper, I put on a pair of rubber gloves and a plastic apron, as the black ink comes off onto my hands and the garment I'm wearing. Needless to say, this is not very comfortable, but it's necessary.

I am enclosing a pair of new rubber gloves to show you the condition they are in after reading my newspaper. The apron is in the same condition. Filthy!

Can't something be done about this?

FILTHY FINGERS

DEAR FILTHY: Perhaps if enough readers inquire about it, some action will be taken or some answers provided. In the meantime, I don't want to initiate a smear campaign concerning this annoying and common problem.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Dr. Donohue

Cause, treatment of urticaria

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Will you please tell me what urticaria is, its cause and treatment? I have suffered a long time with it. — Mr. S.J.G.

Urticaria is the fancy name for hives. The word has its roots in the Latin, "urtica," a reference to a genus of nettle plants that cause a stinging reaction. We'll stick with hives here.

Hives is the accumulation of fluid that has leaked out of blood vessels and settled under layers of skin to cause the characteristic welts and itching. A hive may disappear and a new one form in a different place.

The causes are so many and varied that I can only list a few. Anything that can cause an allergic reaction can cause a hive — animal dander, foods, pollens, even things like heat, cold, or skin pressure from a belt or a tight-fitting garment. Notable food culprits include chocolate, eggs, nuts, shellfish, pork and tomatoes. And just about any insect sting can cause the reaction.

Most cases of hives are short-lived, but if they become chronic (lasting for six weeks or so), more serious causes must be investigated. They include hepatitis, parasite infections, lupus, even certain cancers. Unless a long and exhaustive search is made, at least 80 percent of the cases remain unexplained.

For most cases of hives all that can be done is to try to control the discomfort with antihistamines. Some sufferers will get no relief from one antihistamine, but will from another. Hydroxyzine is one that's commonly used. For severe hives, steroids are needed, but are used for the briefest possible time and at the lowest possible dosage to minimize side effects.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How many pills of aspirin can one safely take to relieve arthritis pain (in a 24-hour period)? — F.S.

As many as three tablets, four times a day are used by many arthritics. You can tell how much is suitable for you within that range by how well your pain is being eased and whether or not you are having bad effects, like ear-ringing. You can get a more precise answer by having your blood checked to see if the level of aspirin is suitable for control. We're all different, and react differently to medicines. What might be a big dose for one can be for another.

FOR W.K. — It is true that some people inherit certain factors that promote atherosclerosis, the plaque buildup in arteries. Some may inherit faulty genes that foster high levels of the bad cholesterol. These aspects of the cholesterol problem are being studied with interest.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 2, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon you will be able to get much of value accomplished in an unusual and progressive fashion so up and at-em and show your finest abilities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You understand how to expand in your interests in the morning, and later you can get right at them and solve problems.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) The morning is fine for going after your personal ambitions and gaining them, but later do not be forceful.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get into the bustling business world early and get a good deal accomplished, but safeguard your reputation later.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You get fine ideas in the morning and should carry through with them vigorously since later the aspects are not good.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You can improve your romantic life in the morning, by doing something thoughtful for the one you love.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Using more modern mechanisms where your work is concerned can save time and energy and gain you greater efficiency.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may get an invitation early in the morning, which should be accepted and later clear up any blockages in your capabilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Endeavor to find some way of establishing greater harmony at home in the morning, but don't irk anyone there in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Some added phrase to correspondence that will get quick attention would be wise, but later be more conventional.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Morning is the best time to come to decisions concerning any problematical affairs, and ingenuity will gain you more assets.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are able to gain your personal wishes if you get an early start on them. Confide in your pals who can also be of assistance.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You get excellent ideas for your progress in the morning, so note them down, but later don't change any plans you have made.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will get fine creative ideas early in life and should not be thwarted in expressing them just to be like other children, or the great promise here will be curtailed. Be sure you give a comprehensive type of education. Success can be greater than that of most.

Officials rescue toddler

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — A two-year-old boy was rescued by police after being dangled from a third-floor window by his father, who at times held a knife to the toddler's throat as officers waited below with a blanket in case the child was dropped.

Richard Thomas Gaudry, 33, was charged with unlawful confinement, possession of a dangerous weapon, assault with a weapon, extortion, and breaking and entering after the rescue Wednesday, police said.

Neighbors said the man was upset about losing a court fight for custody of the child, according to police. Officials said the man apparently seized the child after arguing with his wife.

The incident lasted 2½ hours. During negotiations, police cordoned off the area and diverted traffic.

At one point, the man held the boy by the ankles and dangled him out of the window of the third-floor apartment, threatening to drop him. At another, he held a knife to the child's throat and ordered news cameramen away.

Several policemen stood against the wall holding a blanket to catch the boy, clad in shirt, socks and a diaper, if necessary.

Police negotiators distracted the man while talking to him in a narrow stairwell in the building and were able to grab the child.

Panel questions governor in impeachment hearings

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Bill Sheffield, amid signs that a move to impeach him may be failing, sought to assure a Senate panel Wednesday that he did not lie to a grand jury investigating whether he steered a state lease to a political crony.

"It didn't matter to me at any time who owned the building" for which the lease was granted, Sheffield said in answer to a senator's question.

"It could have been anybody's building," Sheffield earlier told Sam Dash, former counsel to the U.S. Senate Watergate Committee who was hired by the Alaska Senate for the proceedings.

Sheffield, 57, was accused by the grand jury July 2 of manipulating specifications for a $9.1 million state office lease on a building partly owned by Lenny Arsenault of Fairbanks and then lying about his role. The panel returned no indictment but recommended the Legislature consider impeaching him.

Sheffield said the building was picked as a site to consolidate state offices in Fairbanks because he felt it was the best location and the best deal for the state.

Following his testimony Wednesday, the governor said, "I feel confident there will be no motion to impeach; the situation will be resolved personally for me." He was hustled from the hearing room by his aide Bob Miller before he could answer further questions.

Sheffield's attorney, former Watergate prosecutor Philip

Alaskan governor BILL SHEFFIELD faces possible impeachment.

Lacovara, said: "There's nothing here. I think everybody agrees with that. ... I'm reasonably confident" Sheffield will not be impeached.

A more reticent Dash would say only that he would focus on perjury allegations during his summation on Thursday.

Several senators, including veteran Democratic Sen. Bill Ray and Republican Sen. Dick Eliason said the required seven votes for impeachment are not there, and the proceedings would be finished by this weekend.

Questioned repeatedly by Dash, Sheffield stuck to his testimony before the state grand jury that he could not recall a crucial meeting on Oct. 2, 1984, with then-chief of staff John Shively and Arsenault in the governor's office.

Shively and Arsenault testified earlier that the meeting involved narrowing lease specifications to favor a building partly owned by Arsenault, who raised $92,000 for Sheffield's $2 million 1982 campaign.

"I don't recall that meeting," Sheffield snapped at one point Tuesday. "I was told not to speculate. ... I don't remember the meeting. I don't know what to tell you."

The first-term Democratic governor, a millionaire hotel chain owner, did say that he now recalls that he learned in late 1983 of Arsenault's financial interest in the building, rather than in 1984 as he had told the grand jury.

Senate lawyers Monday released a December 1983 note from Sheffield to his chief of staff in which Arsenault's interest was mentioned.

Sheffield said that, in two appearances before the grand jury, he first recalled becoming aware of Arsenault's interest in mid-1984 and then said he wasn't sure when he became aware.

"But looking at the memo that was found yesterday, it had to be late '83," the governor said, his testimony carried live on statewide television.

Storms rake Northeast

By The Associated Press

A powerful storm unleashed a deluge on parts of the Northeast today, flooding streets in parts of Massachusetts with up to 6 feet of water, while twisters downed trees and tore roofs off homes in Philadelphia and south-central Pennsylvania.

At least two people were reported killed in weather-related traffic accidents.

Two inches of rain was recorded in an hour today at Boston's Logan

International Airport, for a total of more than 4 inches. In Worcester, Mass., a boulevard was reported to be under 6 feet of water and Police Capt. Reginald Needham said water was 4 feet deep on streets around the city's Centrum stadium.

"Just about everywhere you travel, there is chaos," he said.

Roads in Boston, including a major commuting route, also were shut down. The rain also flooded a Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority tunnel.

CBS blocks Turner's bid for takeover

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS Inc. said today it had successfully ended its offer to buy back 21 percent of its common stock as part of a financial reorganization that would make broadcaster Ted Turner's current takeover bid impossible.

The announcement came a day after the Federal Communications Commission canceled a hearing that had been scheduled in Washington today to evaluate Turner's qualifications to take over CBS.

CBS sought the cancellation on the grounds it expected to successfully complete its stock buyback offer by the deadline of midnight EDT Wednesday.

The FCC said in announcing the 4-0 vote canceling the hearing that "a question is now raised as to whether Turner Broadcasting System will prosecute the applications now before us, without further amendment."

The FCC noted that the chief financial officer of Turner Broadcasting, William C. Bevis Jr., had said that success of CBS's recapitalization plan would be necessary "to withdraw (the) existing offer."

In an unsuccessful bid by Turner to block CBS, Bevis testified in U.S. District Court in Atlanta that completion of the CBS offer "will definitely kill the Turner Broadcasting offer. It cannot proceed."

CBS's reorganization plan includes a limitation on the debt that could be taken on by the network. Turner's takeover offer, which involves stock and debt securities, would exceed that limit if he took over CBS.

CBS said today that it had been tendered nearly four times the 6,365,000 shares it was seeking for $40 cash and $110 face value in notes for each share.

In a statement, CBS said it expected to determine the shares to be accepted and begin buying them around Aug. 13.

Lawyers for Turner earlier filed notice that they would appeal the federal judge's denial of their request for a temporary restraining order to block CBS from including special restrictions, including limitations on debt, as part of its stock repurchase plan.

Turner contended the restrictions were specifically designed to block his takeover attempt.

The Howard County 4-H Club held its annual Trap and Skeet Shoot this past weekend, hosting nine county chapters from North and West Texas. The Howard County contingent fared quite well, garnering 31 trophies and 15 ribbons during the two day meet.

High Point Overall trophy in the Senior Division went to Howard County's Shon Parker. High Point Junior was Kerry Fryar. The Senior Sportsmanship award went to Todd Farris.

The Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association is sponsoring its annual Two Member Ladies Scramble Golf Tournament Saturday August 3, 1985. Tee times are scheduled between 8-10 a.m. Entry fee is $50 per team. Carts will be made available for an additional $10 fee. The teams will be flighted following completion of the first round. Coffee and doughnuts will be served in the a.m. A luncheon is scheduled following completion of the tournament.

For more information on the tournament contact Al Patterson at the Comanche Trail Golf Course (263-7271) or Ruby Honea at 263-3274.

In other ladies golf news, the Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association participated in the Four Lady Team Scramble Tuesday in Lamesa. Two teams from Big Spring tied with one team from Lamesa and one team from Seminole for second place in the second flight.

The team of Delores Hull, Bobbie Patterson, Jackie Roach and Natalie Peurifoy won with a birdie on the first hole of a sudden death playoff. Natalie Peurifoy won the closest-to-the-pin competition with a cozy shot on Lamesa's 112 yard par 3.

Winners from the Stanton Tournament included in a July 30 story were incorrectly reported. The correct winners were: Jerry and Jackie Roach, 2nd, Championship Flight; Marvin Williams and Annette Kestermeir tied with Joe and Patsy Sharpnack, 3rd, 1st Flight.

The AJRA National Finals Rodeo and World Championships will be held in Snyder August 13-17 (Tuesday - Saturday) in the Scurry County Coliseum at 8 p.m. nightly. 1985 will be the tenth consecutive year for the AJRA Finals to be hosted by Snyder.

The best of the pros are back for the 1985 Finals as well. Bob Tallam will be the featured rodeo announcer for the fifth consecutive year. Pro clowns Rick Chatman, Tom Feller and Leon Coffee will also be in the spotlight. Sammy Smith of Mullin will provide the livestock for the third year. Miss AJRA will be crowned Friday night August 16 and Country Western Disco dances will be held in the Coliseum annex Monday, August 12 through August 17, excluding Friday night.

Tickets for the AJRA Finals may be purchased at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce office at 915-573-3558. Box seats are $6, Adults $4 and Children $2.

Congratulations go out to Big Spring bowling champion Beverly Martin, who garnered a state championship in the Texas Women's Bowling League's Class B division. Martin rolled a combined 1752, outdistancing second place finisher Sue E. Weber of Houston and Sharon Dipuccio of Texas City/LaMarque.

Gamblers set to merge

NEW YORK (AP) — The Gamblers won't be going back to Houston and Doug Flutie won't be playing in New Jersey for the Generals, according to reports surrounding the expected merger of the two United States Football League teams.

According to the Boston Globe, the Houston Gamblers and the New Jersey Generals will merge, throwing Flutie, the former Heisman Trophy winner, out of a job as the Generals' quarterback. He would be replaced by Jim Kelly, the Gamblers' record-setting passer.

... out of a job

The league office on Wednesday said the owners of the two teams would attend a news conference in New York at 11 a.m. EDT today.

"I heard it was all signed, sealed and delivered," Kelly said from his home in Houston when asked if a merger was the reason for the meeting. "We're going to be playing in New Jersey.

"I heard it from different individuals," Kelly said, acknowledging that his sources were in the Gamblers' front office.

The league said in a release announcing the conference that Donald Trump, owner of the Generals, and Steve Ross, head of a group which last week agreed to buy the Gamblers, will "announce details of their teams' future."

The Globe said that Trump, a New York real estate magnate, will retain control of the Generals but will sell 50 percent of the club to a group headed by Ross, another New York City businessman. Ross purchased the Gamblers last week.

The team will be called the Generals and would continue to play in Giants Stadium at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J., but Coach Walt Michaels and his staff will be replaced by Jack Pardee and his Gambler staff, the Globe said.

It also reported that Kelly would join Herschel Walker in the Generals' backfield, leaving little room for Flutie, who would apparently be traded. At least two unidentified Boston groups are apparently interested in acquiring him and setting up a USFL franchise in Boston.

The Globe said Flutie was unavailable for comment.

The former Boston College star was injured as the season ended and failed to live up to the billing after signing a six-year, $8.3 million contract with the Generals.

Bob Rose, a public relations spokesman for the league, said he "could not confirm or deny" any merger.

Pitchers dominate NFS finals

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Pitchers Jimmy Moore of Mountlake Terrace, Wash., and Ella Vilche of Hayward, Calif., punctuated their dominance of the National Sports Festival softball tournament with the same kind of awesome performances they had provided all week.

Moore and Vilche spun 1-0 shutouts Wednesday night, adding gold medals to their collection of records.

Moore, who pitched the festival's first perfect game on Sunday, barely missed another in the gold medal game, giving up a single with one out in the seventh and final inning after retiring 19 straight North batters.

"Sure, I was thinking about it, but I just wanted to get the win," he said.

The hit was a single by Steve Larson to right field. "It was an inside rise ball off his hands," Moore said.

He struck out the last two batters, giving him 18 in the championship victory, a single-game record for the festival. He fanned 51, another men's record, in going 4-0 over the five days of competition.

Vilche, also 4-0, extended her string of scoreless innings to 57 in pitching the North to victory over the East in the women's championship contest, her fourth straight 1-0 victory. Her 62 strikeouts was another festival record.

Included in her string was a 21-inning victory over the South in a game that decided a berth in the championship game.

Vilche said she shook off a case of nerves at the start of the game, relaxed and got her confidence back. "I knew we could do it, even if it took 22 innings," she said.

Elsewhere, Danny Manning, a 6-foot-11 center from the University of Kansas, scored 19 points Wednesday night to lead the North to an 81-77 victory over the South in the men's gold medal basketball game.

"We were thinking gold all the way," said Manning. "That's what Coach (Larry) Brown and all the coaches were saying all week — 'we're here to win the gold.'" Brown is Manning's coach at Kansas.

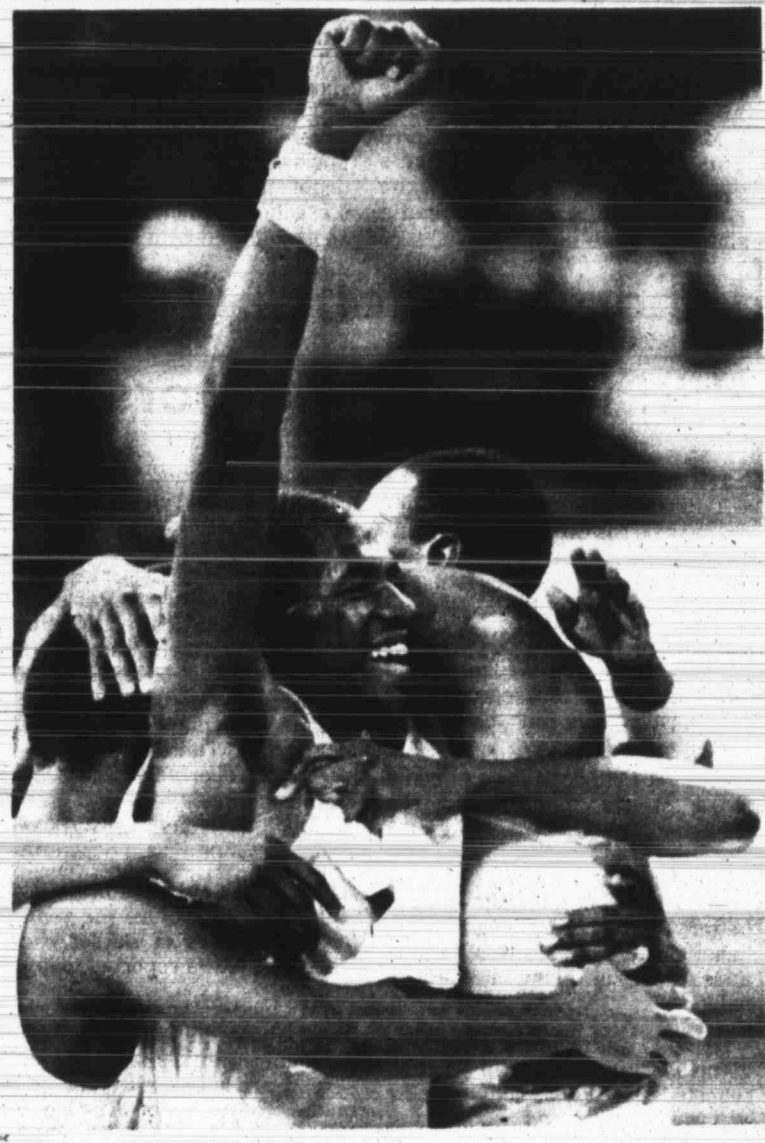

The men's bronze was won by the East, which beat the 0-4 West 97-91 behind 17 points by Shelton Jones.

Yulonda Wimbish of Victoria, Texas and the University of Texas, scored six of her team's last 10 points to rally the South to a 65-61 victory over the East in the women's basketball championship game.

Katie Abrahamson, an incoming freshman at Georgia, scored 14 points and grabbed three rebounds to lead the North to a 78-71 victory over the West in the women's bronze medal game.

In volleyball, the West women took their fourth Sports Festival gold medal, downing the South 15-9, 6-15, 11-15, 15-11, 15-8. Julie Evans of Newport Beach, Calif., had 21 kills for the West. Brooke Herrington of Corona Del Mar, Calif., had 14 kills, and Stacy Buck of Tazana, Calif., had 10.

The South beat the West 2-1 to win the gold medal in baseball, both runs coming in the fifth inning for the winners. Dean Decillis of Pembroke, Fla., singled home one run, then later scored the winning run on a squeeze bunt by Mike Mordecai of Birmingham, Ala.

ED HORTON of Springfield, Illinois, playing for the North, celebrates with teammates following their 81-77 gold medal victory over the South in men's basketball action Wednesday night at the National Sports Festival.

North downs South stars, 92-84

DALLAS (AP) — Lance Blanks and Sean Gay were once teammates but they shot it out against each other Wednesday night in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star Basketball game.

Gay won the personal duel but Blanks' North team whipped the South 92-84 before 6,100 fans in Moody Coliseum.

Gay did everything but string the nets on the rim.

He scored 32 points, collected 13 rebounds, and even won the slam dunk contest at halftime.

Gay and Blanks were teammates two years ago at Houston Madison.

Blanks, who scored 16 points and had two steals, moved to Conroe McCullough for his junior and senior seasons.

Gay, who is headed for Texas Tech, and the Virginia-bound Blanks were named Most Valuable Players of their respective teams.

Gay, who hit 14 of 23 shots from the field and 4 of 5 from the free throw line, scored the third highest point total ever by a South player.

Richie Dozier of Austin Westlake came off the bench to also score 16 points for the North, which now trails the South 21-20 in the series.

North Coach Robert Hughes of Fort Worth Dunbar said "Blanks was no surprise to me. He is a great player with a great career ahead of him."

Hughes also praised Dozier, saying "Richie did an excellent job. He kept the flow of the game going and ran the offense. He can play when the chips are down."

Hughes also complimented Gay. "He's a player no doubt about it," Hughes said.

"Sean is pretty unstoppable," said South Coach Larry Brown. "He played a whale of a ballgame. Blanks and Gay are tremendous players. Any coach would win with either of them on his team."

Another big contributor to the victory was Reginald Muhammad, who will attend Southern Methodist University. He scored 11 points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

In double figures for the South was Bennett Fields of Sweeney who hit 6 of 9 field goals and 2 of 6 charity shots for 14 points.

The North blew the South out of the game in the third period 30-18 and the Gay-led Southerners could never recover.

Arlington, Ill.

still smoky

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — While authorities investigated the cause of a fast-moving fire that destroyed Arlington Park race course, the state's Racing Board scheduled an emergency meeting to consider where to hold the remainder of Arlington's thoroughbred schedule.

The blaze began in the track's Post and Paddock Club on the western edge of the course early Wednesday morning and then spread to the grandstand, said Fire Department Capt. John Lelidgon. The track's general offices, housed in the grandstand, also were destroyed.

The Racing Board is investigating the possibility of Arlington Park staging its allocated racing dates at another park, said Susan Zivalic, deputy director of the board. The board will meet Friday in Chicago to consider the options, she said.

The Arlington season, which began May 19, was scheduled to run through Sept. 30.

Joseph F. Joyce, Arlington's chief executive officer, said he would meet today with Tom Carey, president and part-owner of Hawthorne Race Course, who had offered Arlington officials use of that facility to complete their meet.

Joyce said he was uncertain whether to accept Carey's offer, which also would require approval from the Illinois Racing Board.

Racing Board Chairman Farrell Griffin said the board would review any alternative plans for Arlington's meeting and would announce a decision Friday.

Joyce, a member of the group that bought the 58-year-old track four years earlier for a reported $20 million, said he would like to see the facility "rise Phoenix-like from the ashes."

Astros' bats overwhelm Reds, 9-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Glenn Davis' three-run homer and John Mizerock's three-run double powered a 13-hit Houston attack and led the Astros to a 9-2 victory Wednesday night over the Cincinnati Reds.

Davis' eighth homer wiped out a 1-0 Cincinnati lead in the fourth inning and kept starter Mike Scott unbeaten against Cincinnati since August 1982.

Max Venable tripled in the third and scored on Pete Rose's opposite-field double for the game's first run. Rose also had a single to leave him 25 hits shy of breaking Ty Cobb's all-time mark of 4,191.

Kevin Bass and Jose Cruz singled off starter Tom Browning, 9-8, in the fourth ahead of Davis' homer. Scott led off the fifth with his first homer, and Dave Parker countered with his 19th in the bottom of the inning.

The Astros scored four in the sixth, loading the bases on infield singles by Jose Cruz and German Rivera and a walk to Davis. Mizerock cleared the bases with a double into the left-center field gap off reliever Bob Buchanan, and Scott followed with an RBI single.

BREWERS 5, RANGERS 2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jamie Cocanower shuffled his delivery and totally avoided the walks and wild pitches that have dogged him as the Milwaukee Brewers completed a three-game sweep.

Bill Schroeder hit a two-run homer, his eighth of the season, in the seventh for the game's final runs and the Brewers defeated the Texas Rangers 5-2 Wednesday in the final match of a three-game series.

The Rangers got nine hits off Cocanower, but he gave up only an infield single after the fifth inning. Cocanower, 2-1, recorded his first complete game since Oct. 1, 1983.

The Rangers scored in the first when Oddibe McDowell doubled down the leftfield line on Cocanower's second pitch. He went to second on a groundout by Toby Harrah. Cocanower then fielded a chopper in front of the plate hit by Pete O'Brien and threw to first, allowing McDowell to score.

The Brewers came back in the bottom of the inning when Cecil Cooper beat out an infield hit. Ted Simmons singled. Ben Oglivie singled to right to drive in Cooper.

Texas went ahead 2-1 in the second when Geno Petralli singled, stole second and scored on a single by Curtis Wilkerson.

Landry's patience wearing thin with missing Dorsett

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry says he has decided to start finding missing tailback Tony Dorsett $1,000 per day for not reporting to the National Football League team's training camp.

And Landry said Wednesday he has moved Dorsett's close friend Ron Springs from fullback to first-string tailback.

"I think I did as much as I could for a player," Landry told the Dallas Morning News. "The fine started Tuesday night. This is all kind of surprising to me. I thought Tony would communicate a little better. I have been giving him the benefit of the doubt. This has the appearance of being a contract holdout."

Dorsett was due to report to camp last week. He still had not reported as of Wednesday evening and was not expected.

Dorsett owes the Internal Revenue Service $414,000 in back taxes, penalties and interest and has yet to show for camp while he tries to negotiate a better contract. His deadline for reporting to camp was last Thursday night, but team officials at the time granted him an extension to help him iron out his affairs.

Howard Slusher, who has a history of holding clients out for extended periods, is handling Dorsett's contract.

The Cowboys last talked to Dorsett on Saturday afternoon, when Dorsett called Cowboys president Tex Schramm. Dorsett said he could not honor the 48-hour extension given him because he had meetings planned with the IRS Monday and Tuesday.

Dorsett reportedly was seen in Austin on Monday. "I'm disappointed we haven't heard anything," said Schramm.

Schramm said the Cowboys are willing to restructure the remaining three years of Dorsett's contract. The News reported today.

"My understanding is Tony is upset about the abundance of his personal affairs that have been spread around in all types of the media. He has a lot of pride, and I'm sure that is embarrassing. This is where his advisors made a mistake. If he came to camp when he was supposed to, this never would have been an issue."

"I'd like to live in a happy world when all of a sudden a car pulls up and Tony is here," he said. "But I don't think that is going to happen."
