Lubbock Gas Bond Issue Will Be Decided At Polls Today

Early Voting Plea Is Made Of Residents

Electorate To Decide Whether $1,300,000 In Bonds Is To Be Issued And Whether City Shall Build System

Polls Open At 8

Chairman Of Citizens Group Expects Defeat Of Issue If As Many As 1,200 Exercise Rights Of Voting

ISSUANCE of $1,300,000 in bonds for construction of a municipal natural gas system will be at stake in a City election today. There was a plea for early voting.

"We put the question up to the voters and it's for them to decide," said Commissioner J. C. (Cash) Royalty. Mayor Ross Edwards was out of town last night.

"We've done all we can to reduce rates," said Commissioner George E. Benson. "The commission in the future will be guided by the action of the voters."

Confidence Expressed

E. K. Hufstedler, chairman of Citizens association, formed to oppose the proposal, was confident voters would defeat the bonds. "If we get 1,200 voters out, it looks like we'll defeat the bonds between 3 to 1 and 4 to 1," said Hufstedler.

Polls, in City hall, will be opened at 8 a. m. and closed at 7 o'clock. W. E. Ballew, George Foster, and R. Bush Smith are presiding officers.

Both the City administration and Citizens association have conducted mass meetings, used display advertising, and resorted to other media for expression of their views.

Requirements Listed

In addition to meeting other election requirements, a voter in the bond election must live in the corporate limits and must have rendered taxable property for taxation. He must have been a resident of the state at least one year and of the city at least six months, and must have paid poll tax or obtained a poll tax exemption certificate.

Mayor Edwards has declared that City commission unanimously favored the issue, and that approval or disapproval of the bonds is "up to the thinking citizens of Lubbock."

Personal canvasses and carrying of persons to and from polls today have been planned by the Citizens association. Headquarters are in the new Cotton exchange building, Thirteenth street and Texas avenue, telephone No. 686.

Famous Oratorio Given Wednesday

The chorus and orchestra of Texas Technological college, directed by Julien Paul Blitz, head of the department of music at the institution, presented the oratorio, "The Seven Last Words" (Dubois) before an audience of students and townspeople at the college gymnasium Thursday evening.

Tribute should be paid to Mr. Blitz, who a master of technique, demonstrated that he could present a masterpiece in flawless fashion with 80 singers. Especially appealing were the fading choruses that lingered like the strains of a harp.

The soloists who carried the leads and presented the theme words sang with a dramatic and sincere quality.

Mrs. Blitz, who has been described as a "one woman orchestra," lived up to that reputation last night in her sympathetic piano accompaniment.

Soloists were Mrs. Carl Scoggin, soprano; Hillard W. Moore and Clarence Whiteside, tenors; George Dale and Gordon Gaines, baritones.

Invocation was given by Dr. W. F. Fry and Dr. James M. Gordon, dean of the division of arts and sciences, pronounced a benediction.

Proponnts Of Liberalizing Social Security Losing Hope

WASHINGTON, April 17 (AP)—Virtually all hope of inserting broad liberalizing amendments in the administration's social security bill was abandoned tonight by advocates of the four outstanding proposed substitutes.

By contrast, the confidence of administration leaders was shown when they made final arrangements to permit direct votes on the most-talked-of substitutes. The votes, leaders said, would eliminate the opposition-proposals as threats for the remainder of the session.

Criminal Career Of Fults Ended With Denton Arrest

Friend Of Hamilton Does Not Resist When Taken

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Staff Writer

DENTON, April 17—Ralph Fults, who teamed with Raymond Hamilton in a Mississippi bank robbing escapade recently, threw up his hands in meek surrender near here today.

Fults, whose police record dates back ten years to when he was 14 years old, tumbled out of his wrecked automobile at the end of a "blind" lane on Millionaire's island at Lake Dallas, east of here, and surrendered to three Denton officers.

"Don't Shoot, Boys"

"Don't shoot, boys—I'm the man you want and I won't make any trouble," he shouted to Officers Luther Allen, Roy Moore and Sam Gentry, who had chased him to the end of the road after spotting him near Denton.

He didn't touch a pistol inside his shirt. Brought here, he admitted he and Hamilton had looted the Prentiss, Miss., bank several weeks ago and had split the $1,100 in currency.

"I'm glad they caught me in Texas because I didn't want to get mixed up in a rope party in Mississippi," Fults said.

Rangers To Take Him

City Marshal Lee Knight today announced he would give custody of the prisoner to Texas Ranger Sid Kelso, who was expected to reach Denton tonight.

Knight would not say why the rangers wanted Fults, nor would he

An Important Election

TODAY is an important one in the history of the City of Lubbock. On this day, the qualified taxpaying voters of the City of Lubbock are to determine whether the City will issue $1,300,000 of general tax-bonds for the purpose of building a municipal gas pipeline and distribution system.

Voters should weigh the question carefully. It is not one for snap judgment, either for or against the problem. There is much to be said on both sides of the issue; thinknig people should find it well worth their time to consider and ponder before marking their ballots.

The qualified voters of this city, regardless of whether they are in favor of or whether they are opposed to the issuance of such bonds, owe it to themselves and to the City of Lubbock, to cast their votes today in order that the City commission may know the will of all the people rather than just a few.

Whether you favor or oppose the bond issue, the Morning Avalanche suggests that you owe it to yourself as a taxpayer, to vote!

Showers Fall In Oklahoma As Dust Storms Continue

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 17 (AP)—While dust storms still blew in the Panhandle showers fell in scattered sections of Oklahoma today.

At Nowata and Miami a freshening rain fell during the day. Other points reporting showers were Ada, Claremore, Tulsa and even Beaver, where the dust has been severe for weeks, was grateful for rain during the day.

Until tonight most of the state had lost out on its "50-50" chance, predicted by Harry Wahlgren, federal forecaster, for a heavy rainfall. The forecaster said the state may be blanketed by another dust storm tomorrow.

Twenty or more persons were suffering of pneumonia here. Of that number, perhaps six were in a critical condition.

Two of the persons who were claimed by the disease yesterday were not Lubbock residents.

Severe duststorms this season have aggravated pneumonia cases, if they have not been a contributing cause of the illness.

Republicans Open Series Of Private Conferences For Reorganizing Party

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 17. — A series of private conferences between Republican leaders aimed at rebuilding the party for the 1936 presidential campaign, will begin here tomorrow.

Disclosure of the parleys, considered of major importance by some GOP leaders here, came on the eve of the arrival of the veteran Emporia, Kansas, Republican publisher, William Allen White, from New York, and former Senator Henry J. Allen, Wichita, Kansas.

These discussions are preliminary to the projected meeting of Republicans from 12 midwestern states tentatively scheduled for Kansas City in May, and to similar proposed gatherings in New England, and on the west coast.

Although Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, today was out of town, efforts are to be made for White and the chairman to explore the Republican situation.

Meanwhile, Republican leaders in congress said privately they did not believe former President Hoover was behind

Preliminary Commercial Air Service On America-Hawaii Route Inaugurated; Trip Is Said Uneventful

BY WILLIAM H. EWING
Associated Press Staff Writer

HONOLULU, April 17 — Preliminary commercial air service between the American mainland and Hawaii was inaugurated today when the huge Pan American Clipper alighted here to complete a swift, sure flight from California.

Teh big plane went through her schedule like a limited train.

Her flight marked the beginning of a new era in American aviation —regular service all the way across the Pacific—to be established this summer.

Lops Off 7 Hours

She lopped exactly seven hours off the previous record and had to slow down occasionally and even leave her course to make her time 17 hours 45 minutes for the 2,400-mile all-water route.

Although the flying Clipper was sandwiched between enormous cloud strata high in the air for hundreds of miles, her personnel always knew exactly where they were, for they followed a certain guiding force—radio waves.

She landed at Pearl Harbor at 7:57 a. m. (12:27 p. m. est.), just

CHICAGO, April 17 (AP)—Supervising Police Captain Thomas Condon announced today that Joseph Bothe, 35, inmate of an insane asylum, had been identified as the thin man last seen with 4-year old Richard Max Perrot when the boy disappeared from his home 13 days ago.

The captain said Mrs. Rose Sparr, former landlady of Bothe, made the identification Wednesday when she confronted him at the state hospital at Elgin, Ill. Bothe, who escaped from the asylum several years ago, was seized April 8 for questioning in connection with the missing lad, but was freed April 9, when officials were unable to connect him with the case.

German Arms Move Rapped By League And By 13 Nations

In Effect, Notice Is Served That International Pacts And Obligations Must Be Respected By Reich

(By The Associated Press)

GENEVA, April 17.—Thirteen nations joined today in rebuking Germany for rearming and in effect served notice that international treaties and obligations must be fulfilled.

Only the voice of Denmark was raised in warning that condemnation of Germany's treaty violation would not help to smooth Europe's troubles.

The League of Nations council adopted the Franco - British - Italo resolution, introduced yesterday, censuring Germany for rearming in violation of the Versailles treaty and asking financial and economic sanctions against any power which disregards international obligations in the future.

Denmark Does Not Vote

Denmark alone abstained from voting, the 13 other nations on the council all deciding for the tri-power move.

Even Poland, which yesterday voiced fears that new security efforts might disturb the good relations she has established on her borders, voted for the resolution, Foreign Minister Joseph Beck saying "tui," without comment, when its name was called.

The concern over the political situation in Europe was freely expressed after the Russian's arraignment of "a state" whose armaments lead to "apprehensions" that they

Huey Long's Administration Wins Election Control Fight

BATON ROUGE, April 17 (AP) — Huey Long's house of representatives today passed a bill giving the state administration absolute control of Louisiana's election machinery after one legislator futilely stormed that it "disfranchised the white people of Louisiana."

In addition to the election bill the house also passed Long's other major measures, including those giving the state supervision over expenditure of federal loans and grants, prohibiting governing agencies from seeking financial relief in federal courts without state permission, and abolishing the office of assistant district attorney in the hostile capitol parish of East Baton Rouge.

Soil Erosion Experts Suggest Plans Designed To Fight 'Black Blizzards'

(By The Associated Press)

GARDEN CITY, Kas., April 17.—Soil erosion experts from five plains states—the experience of a "black blizzard" fresh in their minds—recommended today that the Kansas dust barrier program be extended across the entire breeding ground of dust storms.

While the experts concluded their conferences with M. L. Wilson, assistant secretary of agriculture, on a tour of the dust area, the soil continued to blow.

A long time anti-dust storm program in the five state area adopted today by the soil experts included determination of the best cropping methods and re-sodding of land susceptible to blowing, with suitable grass crops.

Meanwhile southeastern Colorado reported silt-laden clouds which swooped down from the northeast and came back a second time from the southeast. Dust also was reported in western Kansas.

At Colorado Springs, A. E. McClymonds regional director of federal soil erosion, received appeals from Utah for aid in combatting the dust. From Grantsville City, Utah, came a report that 1,200 persons were

Harrison Plan To Be Fought By Patmanites

Rather Than Take Compromise Measure, Soldiers Said To Prefer Losing Entirely In Long-Waged Fight

Texas Representative Thinks His Measure Will Be Held To By House; Language Of Bill Causes Speculation

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 17 — Cash bonus advocates today gave the compromise proposal drafted by Senator Harrison (D-Miss) a thoroughly hostile reception.

Representative Patman (D-Tex), author of the greenback bonus bill approved by the house, asserted the ex-service men would rather lose their battle than to accept the Mississippian's proposal.

Harrison, who said he thought his bill would be satisfactory to President Roosevelt, formally introduced his measure today.

Redemption In Bonds

It would provide for redemption of the service certificates in negotiable bonds and would date the interest bearing period of the certificates back to Armistice day instead of 1925.

The bonds which the veterans would receive in exchange would bear three per cent interest and Harrison said this would make them readily negotiable. He estimated his proposal would cost $1,300,000,000, or a billion dollars less than the cost of the Patman bill.

"I don't believe it will be satisfactory to the veterans at all," Patman said. He predicted that the house would stand by his bill and refuse to accept the compromise.

Speculation Aroused

Despite the explanation by Harrison, the technical language of the bill aroused some speculation as to its practical effects.

Experts who aided in drafting the measure said, however, that the bill would make it possible for a veteran with a certificate which would mature under the present law at $1,000 in 1945 to either obtain negotiable bonds for which he could get 2770 cash, or hold his certificate for ten years and get $1,115 instead of $1,000.

Under Harrison's proposal, if veterans did not desire to turn their certificates over to the government and receive bonds, they would hold

CULTURE GRADATIONS

JOHN GOULD, who writes a perfectly swell column in the Wichita Daily Times, turns his attention to a discussion of culture. He believes folk are either nightingales or ravens in their tastes with the black birds leading. He also maintains O Henry was right when he asked, "is the raven any less happy because it cannot sing like the nightingale?" Says Mr. Gould:

"There are, as I understand it, four cultural gradations. Highbrows, low highbrows, high lowbrows and lowbrows. You can use chewing gum as the means of classification. If you chew gum, openly and shamelessly, everywhere you go, you're a lowbrow. If you chew it, but only in your home or among close friends, you are a high lowbrow.

"If you chew it infrequently, and then only in the privacy of your bedroom, you are a low highbrow. And if you do not chew it at all, but eschew it, that entitles you to rate among the highbrows. Grand opera, the book review section of the New York Times, psychology, poetry that doesn't rhyme, snooty music, and other things like these, don't count at all. Chewing gum is the test."

Check up and find how you rate, why don't you? We would wager that you credit yourself with being a "high lowbrow."

THE AGED TRAVELER

THE old man on the road is getting along all right, thank you. He was near Snyder Tuesday when Dr. and Mrs. Jerome H. Smith and daughter, Rozeltha, returned from San Angelo. When they left Lubbock Sunday morning they saw him near Post. He was not making much mileage as the crow flies but just plugging along down the highway. Yo you know of a more desolate journey than from Snyder to Post where you go for miles and miles without seeing anything except grasses and weeds?

SORRY THEY'RE GOING

BY the way, Lubbock's loss is San Angelo's gain in receiving the Smith family. Mrs. Smith has worked faithfully in Camp Fire work, parent-teacher association and the Episcopal auxiliary of St. Paul's church. She served as chairman of the woman's auxiliary to the Lubbock County Medical society during the time that Doctor Smith was president of the society. And Rozeltha is the least spoiled of any little "only child in the family" about whom we know.

WRITING ON SHELLS

ASIDE from the conventional dyeing of eggs, and their decoration with those fascinating transfer pictures, the most exciting trick you can do to make the egg hunt a success is to inscribe the hunter's name on it. To do this, hardboil white eggs and dye with light colored dyes.

Now dip a stub pen into melted wax or paraffin and write the name on the egg. When the wax hardens, dip egg into a dark colored dye which has been cooled. A hot dye would melt the wax. The name appears in the color the egg was first dyed against a background of the last dye.

By the way, when you choose baskets for the egg hunt be sure they are reasonably strong. What greater tragedy would there be than for the handle of the basket to pull out, turning the precious Easter eggs into ill-fated Humpty-Dumpties?

DOES YOUR HUSBAND CALL YOU GROUCHY?

He's truthful if not tactful. Manlike, he is bewildered by your offishness and irritability. He can't understand what you have to be blue about. He wishes that you'd snap out of it. He'd do anything he could to help you. If he knew how good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was, he'd go straight to the nearest drug store and buy you a bottle.

Mrs. Barbara Spears

"My husband says I am my old self again," says Mrs. Barbara Spears, 799 Elma Street, Akron, Ohio. "I was tired and all in with no appetite. Had no pep and was in poor spirits. Your Vegetable Compound eliminated that awful tired feeling."

Don't try your husband's patience too far. Get a bottle from your druggist NOW. It probably will help you, because nearly a million American women know from personal experience that it helps them.

Sidelights Of Dairy Show At Plainview

(By Staff Correspondent)

PLAINVIEW, April 17.—Regular visitors at the eighth annual dairy show here, wondered for three days what was lacking. There was something familiar that had not appeared, but no one was able to place the missing link.

Finally, it was discovered by a newspaperman, that there were no "sheet writers" for Progressive Farmer, Farm and Ranch, Cappers Weekly or other nation-wide or Southwide farm papers.

John Lucas, Santa Fe agent here, put one over on E. C. Kuykendall, Denver general agent. The big room where exhibits and concessions were on display was floored. Grain doors from the Santa Fe yards were used. "Santa Fe all the way" said Ralph Trolinger, Lubbock traveling passenger agent, who came up to look the show over.

Most popular man around the show, next to Grady Shipp and Walter Evans was Frank Reeves, who runs the chuck-wagon in the Fort Worth Star Telegram. Frank had his big camera along and the boys with the fat cattle and the women with the dairy products followed him around.

Joe Vaughn, outgoing association president, as "Old King Cole" in the dairy pageant Tuesday night, was all that such an old monarch should have been, except that he did not have the adipose. Joe was one of the busiest men around the show, putting in from 16 to 18 hours a day, answering a dozen demands for advice, information, etc. This year's show was one of the hardest to put over, because of conditions. Much of the credit for its success goes to Joe.

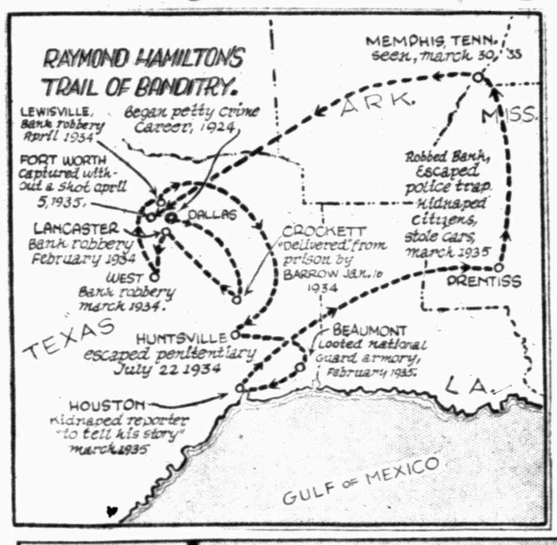

The Wortham carnival did a rushing business between sandstorms and played to good crowds.

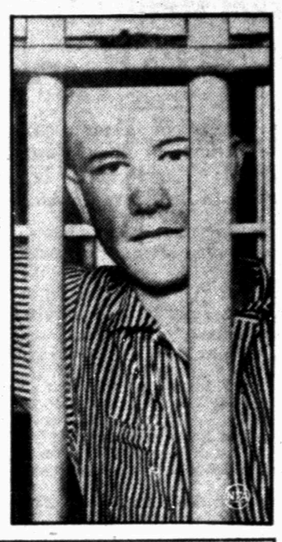

The Pool brothers, sons of W. M. Pool of Lubbock, held an informal reunion during the show. There were four of the boys here, one being unable to get away from his plowing. Mart, former Lubbock hotel man, is boniface at the Hilton and he was host to Lee, Gaines couny agent, W. M. jr., certified seed grower, and H. D., assistant Parmer county agent. Ray operates a farm at Sudan. Lee and H. D. attended the ex-Aggy banquet, as guests of Mart, as did W. M. jr.

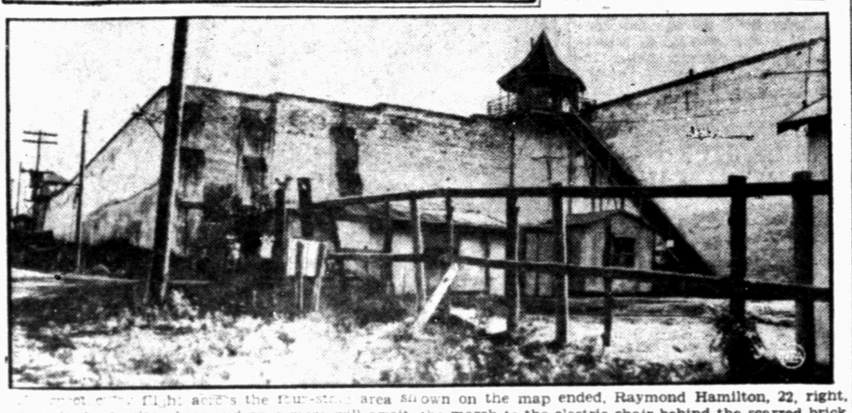

Mrs. Julia Kelley, Hale county agent, was missed during the show. She was called to Lubbock by the serious illness of her father, S. S. Rush.

The Lubbock high school band made a hit with the show crowd Tuesday. The boys, after playing down town and at the grounds, scattered and saw the show. It was an "off day" for the boys and they enjoyed it to the limit.

Hamilton Again Awaits Death, Flight From Law Ended

Hamilton's short, flight across the four-state area shown on the map ended, Raymond Hamilton, 22, right, again is back of prison bars and once more will await the march to the electric chair behind the scarred brick walls of Huntsville, Tex., state prison, shown below. Over this wall Hamilton and two other convicts escaped in July, 1934, the engineer of the break being slain by a guard shooting from the tower shown at the far left. Hamilton, recaptured in Fort Worth, already was facing 362 years in prison when he was sentenced to death for murder of a prison guard in another escape January, 1934.

Oklahoma Speaker Claims Marlin Statement Untrue

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 17. (AP)—Speaker Leon Phillips of the house today branded as "ill advised and untrue" a statement made earlier by Governor Marland that "something other than schools may close" if Oklahoma's outstanding non-payable warrants are not funded by the legislature.

"I understand the afternoon press is carrying a story that something besides schools may close if members of the house do not abandon their ideals and pass a two per cent sales tax," the speaker shouted.

"There is no danger banks which have taken warrants on appropriations by the legislature will not get their money. It was just a warning to us to quit voting appropriations at all until we get the money."

Rangers Leave Laredo When Onion Workers Stop Strike

LAREDO, April 17. (AP)—The onion workers strike which paralyed the harvesting of 1,000 cars of Bermuda onions in the vicinity of Laredo was at an end today.

Commissioner J. R. Steelman of the U. S. department of labor, Washington, personal representative of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, announced the termination of the dispute after appearing before a mass meeting of several hundred workers last night.

Captain Will McMurray and four other Texas rangers sent here Monday in connection with the strike left Laredo today.

Joint Editing Of Magazine By SMU, LSU Falls Through; Long Not Blamed

DALLAS, April 17. (AP)—Members of the faculty of Southern Methodist university said today that Senater Huey Long had been given undue credit for disrupting an agreement between the university here and Louisiana State university at Baton Rouge for joint publication of the Southwest Review, a literary quarterly.

Both Dean C. S. Potts, chairman of the SMU publications committee and Professor John H. McGinnis, one of SMU's three co-editors of the review, denied Long had entered into the matter. Professor McGinnis said the break was over editorial policy, chiefly literary criticism.

"For instance," he explained, "there were disagreements as to whether J. Frank Dobie can write good English. There were also such questions as to whether we should run a department for the review of cowboy books; whether Stark Young has written a great novel, and questions on the type of poetry we should print."

"The questions on which we differed were things Huey Long wouldn't know about and wouldn't care about."

He said the SMU co-editors wished the LSU editors well in the launching of their own review.

Mr. Dobie is a Texas writer, who has specialized in the history and legends of the cow country and old Spanish and Mexican days in the state. One of his books, "Coronado's Children," was brought out several years ago by one of the national book clubs. Stark Young, who also formerly lived in Texas, is the author of the novel, "So Red the Rose."

Shipments of coffee from Colombia this year were much greater than in 1933.

Experiments with loud-speaking telephones are being made; using such apparatus, a speaker could walk about the room while telephoning.

Construction Of Three Dams In Arkansas River Basin Asked; Would Form Triangle In Dust-Ravaged Area

WASHINGTON, April 17. (AP)—Pleas for construction of three dams in the Arkansas river basin—the Caddoa in Colorado, Conchas in New Mexico and El Reno in Oklahoma—forming a triangle in the dust-ravaged area will be carried direct to President Roosevelt.

A committee named last night at a meeting of representatives of Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas started work today on the brief petition which will be submitted to the president Thursday.

Governor Clyde Tingley of New Mexico and Governor James V. Allred, of Texas have an appointment with the president tomorrow and will be accompanied by a delegation representing the states interested in construction of the three irrigation and flood control projects.

Two Injured When Tire Causes Wreck

Charles A. Guy and Charles C. Watson, jr., both of the Avalanche-Journal editorial staff, were injured when an automobile in which they were riding turned over about 8 o'clock Tuesday night in state highway 9 about 6 miles south of Plainview.

Its left front tire exploding, the automobile, a Chevrolet sedan, apparently turned over two or more times and came to rest on its wheels in a borrow pit. The car nearly was demolished.

X-ray examination Wednesday at West Texas hospital showed Guy suffered a 2 1-2 inch skull fracture behind the left ear. Additional examination was to be made to determine whether he also suffered a vertebra fracture. Watson suffered a severe laceration of the forehead and bridge of the nose, cuts on the face, and bruises of the body and shoulder. Guy was driver.

A passing motorist, Charles L. Adams, sr., of Lubbock, took the injured men to Plainview, where 16 stitches were taken in Watson's most severe wound. The two subsequently were brought to Lubbock.

The two newsmen were on the way to attend a pageant of an eighth annual Panhandle-Plains Dairy show when the mishap occurred.

Back In Hollywood

So her husband, Stephen Ames, who had been divorced from Adrienne Ames, went back to Hollywood with her, and you'll see her soon in a new picture. Ames will stay close to her in Hollywood this time, a lesson he learned from his former marriage, when he was in New York and Adrienne in Hollywood.

Bowie Farmer Says War Is On Way, Citing Eggs Laid By His Prophetic Hen

TEXARKANA, April 17. (AP)—Charles Settles, a Bowie county farmer who in 1912 predicted the World war, today predicted another conflict within two years.

Settles explained that in 1912 one of his hens began laying the same type eggs he found in nests today.

"Everybody laughed at me then when I said a war was coming," he said, "but two years later they were laughing on the other side of their face.

"If another war doesn't break out within two years, then my hen doesn't know her business."

The eggs are cylindrical and carry a protuberance on one end which, Settles pointed out strongly suggests the head of a torpedo.

Efforts To Bring All Utilities Under Stringent State Regulation Failing

Not Much Time Is Left For Bill

Under Debate Three Days, Bill Goes Over For Consideration Until Friday; Hopes Held For Passage

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, April 17.—Sponsors of the administration bill to bring all utilities under stringent state regulation clung tenaciously today to fading hope for final success.

Under debate three days in the house, the bill went over for further consideration until Friday when leaders trusted they could obtain its passage and send it belatedly to the senate. They feared, however, it was too late in the session for the bill to get through a senate committee, be given floor consideration there and have its provisions agreed upon in conference.

Predictions Heard

Prediction that public utility regulation had been killed at this session was made by Senator Tom Deberry of Bogata. The general utility bill designed for the good of the people, and not for the utilities, is dead so far as this session is concerned, he said.

The bill underwent what its sponsors charged was a filibuster in the house. Amendment after amendment was hurled at it. All regarded as adverse were turned back, but the house consistently refused to cut off debate to permit final passage. Debate, however, was limited to three minutes on each amendment, but approximately 50 will be pending when work on the bill is resumed.

Production Speeded

The house speeded production to clear its calendars of local and uncontested bills. In a night session 20 bills were passed, six of them on one vote.

Among the bills was one to aid enforcement of oil conservation orders of the Texas railroad commission by making forgery of permits to transport petroleum or its products a misdemeanor. It was advocated by the attorney general to permit prosecution of persons using fraudulent tenders to move oil products.

Another bill would throw more strict regulations about absentee voting. It would require absentee voters to appear before a notary public for identification and vote under oath. Sponsors of the bill said they believed hundreds of fraudulent absentee votes were cast in last year's elections.

Small Bill Reported

After futile efforts to exempt certain deep gas fields in Brazoria county, the senate state affairs committee favorably reported a bill by Senator Clint Small of Amarillo intended to conserve and prevent waste of natural gas. It was a substitute for a bill passed by the house.

"If gas could be used only for heat, light and fuel, it would be a good bill," Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston sponsor of the amendment applicable to Brazoria county said.

"But I don't know what other uses may be more important. The bill will deprive many people of a livelihood and the state of considerable tax money."

The Small bill provides that production of gas shall be prorated on the basis of prevention of waste and market demand while the house bill does not contain a direct market demand clause.

Under the Small bill the principal use of sweet gas would be for light and fuel and sour gas could be utilized for the manufacture of carbon black only after the extraction of the natural gasoline content.

Sims-Culbertson Bridge Match Sets A New All-American Record As Husbands And Wives Play Without Arguments

NEW YORK, April 17. (AP)—The last trump has been played, the last finesse taken, the last trick collected. The Sims-Culbertson bridge match is ended.

Victory went to Ely and Josephine Culbertson by 16,130 points.

That was their final margin over Mr. and Mrs. P. Hal Sims at the end of the 150th rubber of the match that Culbertson called the "bridge battle of the century."

Set New Record

The match was supposed to demonstrate the superiority of either the Sims or the Culbertson systems, but it did more than that. Two husbands and their wives sat through more than 100 hours of bridge without an argument—which possibly may set a new all-American record.

So far as the superority of the Culbertson system is concerned, Hal Sims is not ready to concede it.

"I don't by any means concede anything to the Culbertson system," said Sims. "Our play was certainly better, even though we did lose the match."

Cards Were Poor

Sims insisted his cards generally were poor in spite of the fact the count of aces, kings and queens showed the Simes in the lead.

"Such a count is the bunk," asserted the portly bridge master from Deal, N. J.

The honor count for the match gave the Simses 1,751 aces, 1,765 kings and 1,784 queens; the Culbertsons 1,729 aces, 1,715 kings and 1,696 queens.

Culbertson laid his success entirely to the effectiveness of his system.

No Radical Change

"The efficiency of the new Culbertson system was so great that it brought us a decisive victory despite splendid play by the Simses and my usual bidding fantasies," he said. "I am so satisfied with the 1935 streamlined model that I can now announce there will be no radical change and few improvements for many years to come."

During the three weeks duration of the match, the two families played 870 hands during which the Culbertsons rolled up 127,270 points and the Simes 111,140. The Culbertsons led in rubbers 82 to 68. With the exception of the first night's play the Culbertsons were in the lead all the time, holding an advantage which stayed above 10,000 points during the last half of the match.

Bear Is Forgiven By Miss Rasputin

PERU, Ind., April 17 (AP) — Marie Rasputin bears no ill will against the black bear that put her in a hospital here.

The Russian "Mad Monk's" daughter, who came to this country to become a circus animal trainer, was recovering rapidly today from the clawing given her by a performing bear.

"It was just an accident," she explained. "'Himy' (her nickname for the Himalayan black bear that injured her) is a good bear," said Miss Rasputin. "She's one of the nicest animals we have."

Again...TERRAPLANE
proves amazing economy—
in nation-wide test

Unbeatable Gasoline Mileage of Course—Plus the Upkeep Savings that Ruggedness Makes

22.9 miles to the gallon of gas—in a full-sized, 88 horsepower sedan! That's the average mileage, shown by scores of reports from leading cities, of stock Terraplanes in nation-wide economy tests held just last month. With five gallons of ordinary gasoline, officially checked, these Terraplanes ran an average distance of 114.71 miles each. And some of these cars went over 25 miles per gallon!

In everyday driving, of course, you don't expect the kind of gas mileage you can get under test conditions—but even in city traffic Terraplane is also the outstanding economy car. This is proved by thousands of actual statements from actual owners, sworn to before notaries.

Big Savings in Upkeep, Too!

But these affidavits also show an even more important type of economy for Terraplane owners. Hudson's way of building automobiles—with the only bodies all of steel, the greater ruggedness of Terraplane chassis, the higher quality of materials used throughout—is your guarantee of longer life and unusual freedom from repair expense.

What other car can pile proof of economy on more proof, as Terraplane does for you? Drive a Terraplane, soon. Compare other lowest price cars with it. Then decide.

Is Your Car over 70 horsepower?

If it is, you must have motor oil of extra high film strength to get SAFE LUBRICATION

YOUR car today has twice the horsepower and speed of the car you drove ten years ago! The average of 22 leading cars in 1934 was 108 horsepower.

Bearing pressures and temperature have increased correspondingly—so greatly that motor parts are now made of new alloy metals of extra strength and durability to stand the load!

To protect such a motor you need an oil with enough extra oiliness and film strength to withstand the extreme pressures and temperature!

Yet motor oils generally have no more oiliness and film strength now than they had ten years ago. New refining methods have recently come into use to make oils free from carbon and sludge. But these refining processes have lowered instead of increased oiliness and film strength—the very qualities on which depends an oil's lubricating value!

There is one exception—Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. It, too, is free from carbon and sludge troubles. But, more important, the new Germ Process—adding concentrated oily essence to highly refined oil—puts into this oil 2 to 4 times the film strength of any straight mineral oil, as tests on Timken and other machines have proved! That extra film strength gives safe lubrication under the most extreme pressures!

Germ Processed Oil protects your motor another way. Its penetrative film, the "Hidden Quart," stays up in your motor and cuts down starting wear.

Germ Processed Oil gives longer mileage with greater motor protection, as the Indianapolis Destruction Test proved.

Say "O. K.—Drain"—fill with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and drive with the assurance that your oil meets your motor's needs!

These Back Hitler's Defiance Of Versailles Treaty

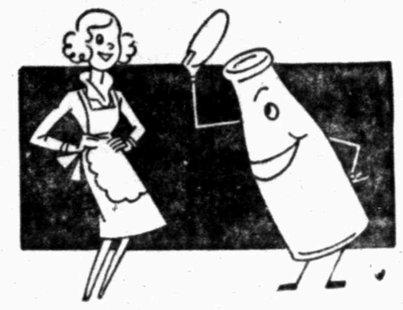

Although Germany has been restrained by terms of the Versailles Treaty from openly developing a strong armed force, the small Reichswehr forms the nucleus of a modern army. Modernization of the Reich's military establishment is shown in this picture of cadet officers lined up on motorcycles at the cavalry school—a hint of the speed with which the new German army could take the field.

With his bold announcement of the immediate conscription of 500,000 men to provide Germany with a standing army comparable to that of neighboring powers, Chancellor Adolf Hitler ended the subterfuges under which militarization of the Third Reich was being conducted. Above he is shown (on the platform in left foreground), reviewing 50,000 massed members of the famous labor corps, whose drilling with shovels won soldierly admiration. Conscription may impress these already-trained men into the new army.

Texas Farmers Plan To Visit FDR And Request That AAA Setup Be Retained

PLAINVIEW, April 17. (Special) More than 250 Texas farmers will go to Washington late this month to tell President Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, AAA officials, and the Texas delegation in congress they do not want the present setup disturbed at this time.

They are not going to Washington to demand anything of the administration; they are not going to play politics by trading support of this program for that. They simply want the president to know that they appreciate his efforts on their behalf and that the Texas delegation in both houses who have supported the president's efforts have their hearty support.

Have No Ax To Grind

"We haven't any ax to grind or demands to make," said Cliff H. Day, Hale county master farmer who has three contracts with the AAA on cotton, wheat and corn-hogs and who is state chairman of the Texas advisory cotton committee. "We know President Roosevelt is beset on every side by many to change the whole AAA program or to change it in such away as to do away with the whole affair. We, as farmers, do not want to see the present AAA program crippled, or abandoned, until a long-time program for agriculture has been worked out."

Members of the state control committee, of which Mr. Day is the chairman, conceived the idea of staging a special train to Washington to tell the president about it. Quietly the committee sounded out the proposition that they decided to issue a call for farmers to join such a train.

Leave About May 20

It is planned to concentrate delegations at a central point, probably Fort Worth, on or about May 20 and to leave in a special train for Washington, arriving there about May 23 and spending that day and the following visiting administration officials, from President Roosevelt on down. A conference with probably a luncheon, would be arranged for the Texas delegation, both the senators and congressmen. At this meeting the representatives would be told the position of the group. A call on the president probably would be arranged, the affair to be held on the White House lawn so that the chief executive would know just how the farmers of Texas stand.

One day might be given over to sight-seeing, with a return begun that night.

Want County Delegates

An appeal is going forward to every county cotton control committee in the state, there are 230 of them, asking them to approve the plan and to get a representative or more. If a farmer cannot pay his own way, the suggestion will be made that the committee arrange to raise the money among the farmers of the county.

Wheat, corn-hog, rice and peanut growers of the state also will be asked to join. Other states will be asked to tune in.

Chairman Day, with Vice-Chairman V. C. Marshall, of Heidenheimer and J. R. McCrary, Calvert, meet Thursday in Longview and go to Washington, arriving there Saturday morning. In Washington, the committee will make final arrangements.

C. H. Matthews, Columbus, is secretary, but is unable to make the trip at this time. Others on the committee are: H. G. Lucas, Brownweed; Donald Cothran, Caveniss; M. A. Pillars, Wheeler; J. Walter Hammond, Tye; J. O. Cooper, Center; W. A. Satterwhite, Fort Worth and L. P. Cook, Corpus Christi.

John

Taxpayer

His Column

Volume 9.
April 18, 1935.

MY name is John Taxpayer of the "City of Lubbock", West Texas. I am a taxpayer and can vote, therefore, I think:

Today is election day. I am going to the polls and vote against this bond issue to go into the gas business. I do not want this lien placed on my home and my little business. I believe that it is to the best interests of my friends and neighbors who pay taxes in Lubbock and the institutions, other than city tax-free institutions, to vote against this tax bond issue, and when the election is over we will still be united in the view that we have enough taxes already; that this is no time in our history to experiment; and this bond issue will be defeated by an overwhelming vote of the tax-payers. Then our representatives whom we are paying at the city hall can settle down and look after the city's business, representing us in the business of city government; and I believe that we will be a happier, more peaceful, contented people.

I still do not believe that this bond issue is a good thing for the "Thinking Taxpaying Citizens of Lubbock."

I will think as I go about my business tomorrow and every other tomorrow of a better and finer Lubbock.

Though it has been said that there are two light systems in Lubbock and that the water system is successful, I am thinking that so far as electricity is concerned it can be made here in Lubbock; that so far as water production is concerned same can be produced out of the ground here in Lubbock. But it is not so with gas, for it must be conveyed many miles before we can get the benefits of it here in Lubbock. Some say that they do not intend to run the West Texas Gas Company out of business here; that there will be competition between the city and the West Texas Gas company just like there is between the city in the production and distribution of electricity and the Texas Utilities company. I do not believe there will be such competition for the following reasons:

1. The volume of the distribution of gas is not sufficient to warrant such competing businesses; both companies would go broke, and then where would the taxpayers be on their bonds?

2. There will be two gas companies in Lubbock like the light systems because, if I recall the history of Lubbock correctly, the Texas Utilities' light franchise to do business in Lubbock was granted by the "City of Lubbock" on March 27th, 1913. The home-rule charter of the "City of Lubbock", under which our city government now operates, prepared by some of our citizens acting as a citizens' charter commission, among whom was a present employee of the "City of Lubbock" was voted on by the citizens of Lubbock on December 27th, 1917, over three years after the franchise to the Texas Utilities company to do a light business was granted. The franchise for the West Texas company to distribute gas in our city was granted by the "City of Lubbock" in 1927, nearly ten years after the adoption of our present home-rule city charter.

This gas franchise to the West Texas Gas company granted at that time was granted subject to the provisions of our present home-rule city charter. In that charter, if I recall the page correctly, on page five (5), Section No. Nine (9), of Article No. Two (2), it was provided in 1917 that our city should have the right of eminent domain and had the right to condemn private property for public purposes, including properties designated as "gas plants" or "gas systems." In Section No. Ten (10), on page six (6), of our city charter, if I remember correctly, it was provided in 1917 by one if the present employees of the city and other taxpayers and citizens that the "City of Lubbock" "shall have the power to acquire by lease, purchase or condemnation the property of any person, firm, or corporation, now or hereafter conducting gas or electricity lighting power plant, or plants, for the purpose of operating such public utility, or utilities, and for the purpose of distributing such services within or without the city or any portion thereof." On page seven (7), at the top of the page, same being Section No. Thirteen (13) of Article No. Two (2), for this same home-rule city charter so adopted, if I remember correctly, it is provided: "In the event said city shall acquire by purchase, gift, devise, deed, condemnation or otherwise, any water works system, electric light or power system, gas system, street railway system, telephone system or other public service utility to operate and maintain for the purpose of serving the inhabitants of said city, the right to operate and maintain such public service utility, so acquired, shall be exclusive."

NOW, I have not heard of the city charter of Lubbock being amended, knocking out these provisions, therefore, it seems to me that if these provisions are true, and certainly they are in the city charter, the "City of Lubbock," through its representatives, does not intend to spend six hundred thousand labor hours in building a gas distribution system, but should intend under the provisions of the charter to drive the West Texas Gas company out of Lubbock, take over its properties by condemnation and operate this hazardous and specialized gas business from the City hall to the exclusion of its tax-paying competitor, and resulting in the unemployment of a large number of families.

I do not believe this bond issue is a good thing for the "Thinking Tax-paying Citizen of Lubbock."

Respectfully, but positively,
John Taxpayer.

DAR Election Issue Is Hot

Undercover Revolt Seen While Rival Candidates Mass For Today's Election; Becker Group Claims Strengthen

WASHINGTON, April 17. (AP)—A wave of exciting anticipation ran through the ranks of the Daughters of the American Revolution today as opposing Becker and Gillentine forces got ready for tonight's floor nominations and tomorrow's triennial election.

Mrs. William A. Becker of New Jersey and Dr. Flora Myers Gillentine of Tennessee, rival candidates for president general, were checking the states they counted loyal to their causes, and the doubtful ones.

Both candidates had places on today's continental congress program. Each was to make a committee report giving the 3,000 daughters a chance to register sentiments in applause.

Supporters of Mrs. Becker claimed enough state blocks of votes to make her winner, and were talking the ethical obligation of voting "solid."

Dr. Gillentine's backers issued a statement which said: "There is undercover revolt in the DAR. State delegations are refusing to toe the mark." As one example, the Gillentiners claimed Missouri even though saying its state regent was for Mrs Becker.

Backed by Mrs. Russell William Magna, who is now president general, Mrs. Becker was generally termed the "administration candidate." But Mrs. Gillentine kept right on raising issues and contended she had strong support in Mrs. Magna's cabinet, her board of management.

Eleven national officers are to be elected.

Lonely Echoes Inhabit "Dream House" Of Barrymores; Star's Wife Silent

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., April 17 (AP)—High on a hill in Beverly is the handsome home John Barrymore bought for his bride, the former Dolores Costello. For years it has been pointed out as "the Barrymore home."

But Dolores doesn't live there anymore, and John hasn't been there for months.

Today Dolores was installed in a new home in the exclusive Wilshire district. Her roving actor-husband still is somewhere in the east.

Whatever the status of their domestic affairs, Barrymore and the beautious Dolores, who gave up screen stardom to become Mrs. Barrymore, kept strictly to themselves.

Mrs. Barrymore, who may be planning to return to pictures, leased her new brick wall-enclosed home for a year. Why she left her husband's palatial mansion had the film colony guessing today.

Helene Costello, Dolores' sister just returned from Cuba, was asked if the Barrymores had come to a final parting of the ways. She said she was as much in the dark about her sister's affairs as anyone else.

"Dolores is determined to remain dignified in her actions no matter what happens," Helene added. "When the proper time comes, if it ever does, she will say whatever there is to say, but not until then. I know nothing myself about her affairs."

Mrs. Barrymore's attorney added: "When and if matters shape themselves so it is necessary, a statement may be issued."

Constipation Relief

While its long record of usefulness runs back to 1840, Thedford's Black-Draught is right up to date. Modern medical opinion holds that the plant leaves which give Black-Draught most of its active principle are among the best laxatives in all the acceptable materials of medicine.

"When constipated, I feel dull and stupid," writes Mr. O. C. Green, of Andrews, N. C. "I have taken Black-Draught several years for constipation and find it gives me immediate relief."

Costs less than other laxatives.

Matador Track Team Prepares

New Mexico Aggies Come Here Saturday For Dual Meet To Start Local College Track And Field Season

Encouraged by yesterday's favorable weather, Texas Tech's track and field athletes circled the oval and spiked the pits in snappy practice routines as they prepared for Saturday's dual meet with their Border conference foes, the New Mexico State college Aggies here Saturday.

Coach Ballard and his boys were hopeful that favorable weather conditions would prevail Saturday, permitting them to engage in their first meet of the season at home. Two dual meets scheduled earlier with West Texas State Teachers college were postponed indefinitely when sandstorms had their way.

Tech Squad Handicapped

The Matadors, forced to work indoors recently, are not in the best of condition for the meet, but given a fair day today they should overcome the handicap and be better prepared for the meet.

Vaughn Corley, former Texas Tech athlete, will be in charge of the Aggies when they invade Lubbock this week. Little is known of the actual strength of the Aggie team, but unofficial reports have it that the New Mexico athletes have looked good so far this season.

The meet is booked to start at 2 o'clock at the Texas Tech field.

GREAT GOLF
By Art Krenz

Runyan Explains Spoon Shot That Made An Ace In Phoenix Open Tournament

WHEN a good golfer tries for a hole-in-one and makes it, you can't call it just plain luck. There's great golf behind the shot, especially when a well-known pro happens to be the scorer.

Paul Runyan, brilliant money player of the last three years, scored a hole-in-one during the 1931 Phoenix Open. It came on the 17th hole, and was just what he needed to bring him up among the leaders at the close of the second round.

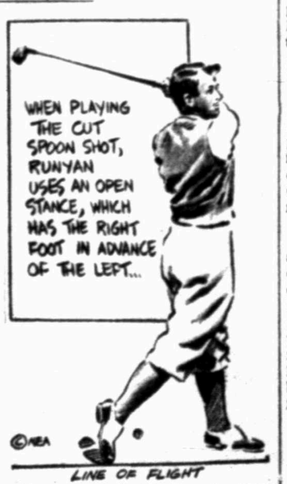

A strong wind was blowing when Runyan stepped up to the tee. It was from behind him, making the job of carrying the guarding bunkers and still holding the green a difficult task.

Taking his spoon, this foremost exponent of that club in America sighted for the pin, 229 yards from the tee, and shot. The spoon was selected because not sufficient height would be acquired in an iron shot, and Runyan had a little trick with a spoon that put a cut on the ball which stopped it more quickly on the green.

The ball rolled true to the pin and dropped into the cup, picking up two strokes for Runyan.

Here is the way the diminutive pro explains the shot:

"In the cut spoon shot I use a slightly open stance, with the ball even with the left heel. The stance causes the club, during the backswing, to travel on the outside of the intended line of flight, thereby setting up an inclination to draw the club in on the down swing.

"This type of swing causes the ball to spin from left to right, which in turn enables it to climb higher in the air and stop more quickly after hitting the ground.

"Play slightly to the left of the flag in the cut shot, as the ball curves a little to the right in its flight."

Webber Tosses Senor Castana In Main Event

New Yorker Needs First Pair Of Falls To Win; "Masked Marvel" Draws With Hill, But Is No "Marvel"

BY COLLIER PARRIS
Avalanche Sports Editor

Senor Pascual Castana from Spain, by way of California, is a tall, dark and rather handsome bucko and a fairly good rassle-man, but he is not as good a rassle-man as Herr Victor Weboer from Germany, by way of New York.

So it took Herr Webber only 9 minutes to win the second and deciding fall, after taking the first in 22 minutes, of the main event last night on the grappling card promoted by Mister Fletcher M. Allen from Oklahoma, by way of St. Louis.

Webber, the same who has been a popular favorite around here since early in 1935, was the focal point of boos and Bronx cheers last night, which constituted about the only satisfaction Senor Castana got out of the entire proceedings.

The fans, a whole hall-full of them, cheered lustily when Castana executed a coup against Webber, and just as lustily they reared back and tossed verbal vegetables at Webber when he gained the advantage. This may have been brought on by the bulldog-like tactics employed by Herr Webber, who apparently has grown weary of three-fall bouts.

Among the better class of wrestlers there is the unwritten maxim: "Find your opponent's weakness—if he hasn't got one, make one—and hang on for dear life."

Castana has a variety of weaknesses, also a lot of power and a number of good points, but with the help of Webber he developed a peculiar weakness in the right shoulder last night. After it was developed, Webber hung on like a lobster, first with a short-arm scissors and second with a punishing hammer-lock.

Misses His Mark

The short-arm, or figure-4, scissors did the work in the first fall after Castana had jumped from the top rope and landed on his shoulder instead of on Webber. Vic put it on, whipped the senor around the premises and won a give-up fall with a final desperate tug.

When they came back for the second, Webber insisted on grabbing the sore arm, which is in strict accordance with rassling rules but which apparently was not looked upon as altogether sportsmanlike by the customers. They were sympathetic with the Spaniard, maybe because he needed lots of sympathy, and they did not criticize when Castana sought to grab a drop-toe hold with which he had almost played havoc with Webber's leg in the first fall. Had Castana left the leg alone and he's a neat leg-wrestler—it is possible that Webber would not have pressed the shoulder situation. But he did, and a mighty hammer-lock in the second fall made Pascual groan in Spanish.

Webber drew cheers in the first fall when he came out of a bad hold, grabbed Castana's feet and pressed them down by the Spaniard's sides in an unusual-looking double toe-hold. It was torture, and Castana resembled a peg-legged man minus his pegs.

Newcomer Hides Face

Mystery, dark-masked and ostensibly sinister, shrouded the identity of one of the gents in the special event. Introduced as the "Masked Marvel," the "Unknown," a strapping fellow, fast as a flash and tough as leather, opposed Don Hill in a 30-minute draw, but while his head and face were hidden by a black helmet, the newcomer did not impress the patrons as being a marvel by any means, nor did he execute any unknown feats of wrestling.

With only his eyes, nose and mouth revealed by slits in the mask, the "Unknown" went through a rapid routine of holds and kicks, punches and hair-pulls, that gave Hill some trouble but never seriously threatended to beat him. The uncommon speed of the mystery fellow was his greatest asset, although he shows records to the effect that he is undefeated in two years of major competition.

Brown Beats Britain

The match waxed fairly rough toward the last, and ringsiders stood up for better vision. Hill loosed a barrage of fists and feet, but the quick, snaky punches of the masked one made it about even.

Lobo Brown of Amarillo pinned O. H. Britain of Lubbock in 17 minutes of their scheduled 20-minute prelim. The fall came after a better than usual exhibition of leglocks, slams and punches. Brit was hoisted high, dropped backward and smothered by the slightly better-equipped Lobo.

They All Have A Chance And Breaks May Decide, Avers Cronin Of Boston

Red Sox Boss Gazes Through Crystal At League Race

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

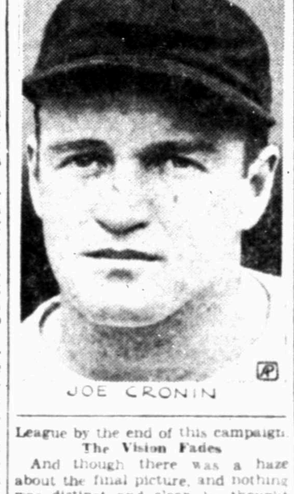

NEW YORK, April 17. — Joe Cronin, costly young pilot of the Boston Red Sox, peered into baseball's crystal ball today and saw many things off in the summer's distance.

He saw every club in the American League with a chance to win the pennant, with the issue resting finally on the breaks, and freedom from injuries.

He saw the contenders in August knocking each other over, leaving the field clear for any club that can stay within striking distance into the stretch.

He saw Wesley Ferrell, the veteran right hander who shut out the Yankees with two hits in yesterday's opening game here, coming back into the greatness of the first three years with Cleveland.

He saw in Bill Werber, his crack young third baseman, the best all-around ball player in the American League by the end of this campaign.

The Vision Fades

And though there was a haze about the final picture, and nothing was distinct and clear, he thought he saw the answer to Boston's prayers of almost two decades—a pennant winner.

"The club that keeps intact through the summer is the one that will win," he said. "The Tigers have a lot of power. The Yankees look to be a little better off than the rest of us for pitching. I don't think Cleveland is as strong as everyone figures. We've got lots of balance, plenty of youth with enough veterans. If we get good pitching . . ."

That's where the haze thickened.

"The strangest thing about this entire league right now," Joe explained, "is the lack of infield reserve strength on every club. There isn't one team in the league can throw in a really strong replacement if injuries hit them. It looks to me as though some of the steady veterans back in the minor leagues can get ready to return about August.

"It's going to be the year for fellows to come back and pull teams through like Stuffy McInnis did for the Pirates years ago, and Mark Koenig for the Cubs."

Chaos In Oil Industry Forecast If Thomas Oil Bill Enacted By Congres

Legal Snarls Are Predicted

Chairman E. O. Thompson Of Railroad Commission Thinks Industry Would Be Beset By Volume Of Litigation

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Chairman E. O. Thompson of the Texas Railroad commission predicted today that if the Thomas oil bill were enacted such litigation would follow as to cause chaos in an industry which now has confidence and stability.

He told the senate mines subcommittee there was no need for the legislation, Texas is controlling production and the legislature is constantly strengthening laws affecting the state's oil fields.

"Mark my prophecy that if the pending bill is approved by congress it will unloose a flood of litigation that will bring chaos and uncertainty where we now have confidence and stability," he said in prepared testimony. "Opposition to such a law will come not alone from a vast majority of the members of the industry but from the sovereign states and their officers as well.

Rulings Are Cited

"The supreme court of the United States has declared so many times that the production of oil is simply and essentially a mining operation and therefore subject to exclusive state control that it would seem that proposals such as are contained in this bill would not receive the serious consideration of congress.

"That court has likewise repeatedly laid much emphasis upon the elemental proposition that the commerce clause of the federal constitution was never intended to authorize congress to exercise any control or authority over the states in the exercise of their police power over local commerce."

Experiments are being made with magnesium sulphate, or epsom salts, in hopes of finding a material lighter than aluminum.

'Never Before A Medicine Like The New Gly-Cas'

Declares Mr. Willis: Had Lost Weight Continually, Appetite Failed, Kidneys Caused Night Risings—"Health Wreck" Until He Began Gly-Cas

Taking poisonous impurities from the system in a way that is positive, yet harmless, with an action on the intestinal tract declared to be entirely different [illegible] all medicines, this new Gly-Cas medical discovery is giving complete relief in so many old and agonizing cases of rheumatism, neuritis, stomach, liver, kidney, bowel and blood troubles, that it is truly astonishing. For instance, read what Mr. C. M. Willis, 206 Kendall, Ave., Wichita Falls, Tex., well known and respected local gentleman, said recently to the Gly-Cas Man who is daily meeting the local public everyday at the Mark Halsey Drug Store, 1219 Broadway, this city.

MR. C. M. WILLIS,

"For years I had suffered with kidney and bladder trouble," said Mr. Willis, "I was up eight and ten times at night, rest was disturbed and until a good nights sleep was impossible. I actually felt worse of a morning than when I went to bed. I lost weight, weak and appetite failed me completely, and so nervous at times I was miserable. I tried lots and lots of so-called "cures" but none of them amounted to anything in my case. I was not benefitted even a little—until I began Gly-Cas."

"This new medicine Gly-Cas was more than a medicine—the way it helped me it seemed to be a combination of several medicines," continued, Mr. Willis," I have taken less than three boxes but I am feeling fine again. My kidneys are acting normal now, appetite restored, nerves better, sleep fine and am a new person in everyway. It is wonderful that suffering people can get a medicine with the merit of Gly-Cas—and I think everyone should know about it—I know there are many right here in Wichita Falls who need Gly-Cas."

There seems to be no end to the praise for this new Gly-Cas — it actually accomplished in case after case what all other medicines had flatly failed to do. Is it any wonder this new remedy has created such a sensation throughout this section in the short time it has been known here.

The Gly-Cas man is meeting the local public everyday at the Mark Halsey Drug Store, 1219 Broadway, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this new valuable medical discovery.

Curriculum Parley Is Slated At Tech

A second curriculum conference will be conducted at Texas Technological college June 28 and 29, according to announcement Wednesday.

A conference last summer drew about 900 instructors from this section. Curriculum revision will be discussed and about 10 section meetings will be conducted to help teachers of different subjects in their problems.

Among speakers will be Dr. Henry Harap, Western Reserve university, Cleveland, O., chairman of the National Curriculum society. A program will be finished soon, it was announced.

Poisoning became so common during the decline of the Roman Empire that persons of wealth and rank had "tasters," slaves who did nothing but taste each drink or dish of food before it was consumed.

Flemington? Let's See. Something Familiar About Name. Oh, Yes—!

BY PAUL HARRISON

FLEMINGTON, N. J., April 17. (NEA)—The horde of reporters, photographers and telegraph operators; the artists, crime analysts, lady novelists and sob sisters, the wood experts, fingerprint specialists, squads of state troopers and battalions of witnesses—all have gone.

Old settlers of the Sourland foothills have reclaimed the chairs in the lobby of the Union Hotel. Citizens of the town have reclaimed the guest bedrooms that were rented to newspaper folk. The sheriff and his constabulary are concerning themselves with the mystery of a dastardly theft of 22 chickens. The statue of a Union soldier now peers up Main Street at a normal, somnolent scene.

But Flemington never will be quite the same again. It has a new set of local heroes, a fresh anthology of anecdotes, a large measure of self-esteem. No longer a pin-prick on a large-scale map, Flemington now appears on the charts of destiny—a bold X marking the spot wher World Enemy No. 1 and a city-slicker lawyer got their come-uppance.

The verdict of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's guilt was almost unanimously approved here. Townsmen, too, have expressed resentment at Defense Attorney Reilly's introduction of several witnesses who quickly were discredited. They hope reports are true that Attorney General Wilentz will prosecute these people for perjury.

Such trials would enliven Flemington again, bringing back at least a small part of the army-of-many-occupations which spent about $5,000 a day in Flemington during the 32-day trial.

During a day's visit here, this correspondent found only three names on the hotel's register. They're all salesmen, the rear guard of an army of opportunists who already have combed the town, seeking to trade insurance policies, high-priced cars, mechanical refrigerators and oil stock for the citizens' newly-acquired wealth.

Two waitresses now have little to do in the hotel dining room where 40 employees used to serve 900 persons each day. Nellie's Bar, named for a stray mongrel which became enamored of the gentlemen of the press, has been dismantled. "Poppy" Hann, veteran court crier, fireman, constable, detective, fisherman, gardener and pinochle shark, brought his level and reset the pool tables which had been moved out to make way for the taproom.

The lanky young man whom thousands of trial-goers know only as Earl is alone behind the hotel's main bar, and has plenty of time for gossip with his applejack customers. Earl is busy only on Sundays, when sightseers motor to Flemington and inspect the courthouse and jail across the street. Burt Pedrick, the hotel manager, isn't too busy for gossip, either. Downright lonely, Burt is, with all the newspaper boys gone. He sells, as do several Main street stores, souvenir pictures taken during the Hauptmann trial, and books about the case.

Many of the Hauptmann trial principals have scattered far from Flemington. Judge Trenchard, Attorney General Wilentz and lesser members of the legal staffs are vacationing. Special Assistant Attorney General George K. Large is picking up the tangled threads of his private law practice. Chief Deputy Sheriff Oden Baggstrom, who guarded the jury day and night during the trial, has resumed driving one of the two school buses he operates under contract with the county.

A "Third Economy"

NEW ways of looking at the unemployment problem are rare. Rexford Tugwell seems to have provided one the other day in his speech at Rochester, N. Y., when he suggested that the unemployed constitute in themselves a great national resource which the country might as well start using.

Mr. Tugwell's point is simple. In addition to depression unemployment, we have technological unemployment—men displaced from their jobs by improvement in productive technique rather than by hard times.

Even when prosperity returns, a large number of these men won't be able to go back to work. They'll be with us in good times as well as bad—skilled and industrious workmen who want nothing under the sun except a chance to work.

It is Mr. Tugwell's idea that these men be used in what he terms a "third economy"—a system half way between Socialism and individualism. The government would put them to work on projects which would not be done by private enterprise, and which would be of benefit to the country as a whole.

SUCH projects would include the Civilian Conservation Corps, a gigantic slum-clearance program, checking of soil erosion, provision of sanitary and recreational facilities that are now lacking, development of reclamation works, and possibly some large-scale scheme for resettlement of the under-privileged.

All this is worth thinking about, because it reverses our ordinary attitude toward unemployment. We look on it as a sad and expensive responsibility; this plan would have us see it as a great opportunity.

This country is enormous, and it is more richly blessed by nature than any similar place on earth. It can be turned into a veritable garden spot, where human life can be richer and freer than anything we have yet dreamed of. The possibilities are here; all we need do is exploit them.

AND that is just another way of saying that there is work enough in America to keep us all busy for generations to come. All we need do is go after it.

Until every American family occupies a modern, up-to-date home, until every region is served by broad, smooth highways, until every river has been harnessed and controlled and every farming region has been freed from threat of flood and wind, until our marvelous productive plant has given an abundance of necessities to every citizen—until that day comes, it is silly for us to say that there is no work for the jobless.

Mr. Tugwell's idea calls our attention to this fact. The work is waiting to be done, and we have millions of men who ask nothing but the chance to do it. Seen in this way, unemployment is a challenge and an opportunity.

WITH OUR CONTEMPORARIES

"More than twice the number of votes were cast in the Seagraves city election than in the Brownfield city election," Willard Bright chatters in the Gaines County News. (Andy Jack, please note.)

"A lot of country papers today are merely running for the dollar they get out of the business and no word is ever raised about what the government is doing, national or state, city or school, and as a result people are not warned about legislation and not instructed as to what is about to befall them," J. W. Smith, sr., says in the Lamesa Reporter.

"If you must travel, pay a visit to some other section of the United states," W. J. Baldwin advises in the Hockley County Herald. "This country is worth seeing."

"There's no question about it—too many flat tires can affect business here," John A. Price, editor of the County-Wide News, opines in his paper.

"A red-headed school teacher who taught me most on the long leisurely walks home from school, said he believed the world would be relieved of considerable trouble if the youngest member of each family were drowned in infancy," Douglas Meador says in the Matador Tribune.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

And He cometh the third time and saith unto them, (the disciples) Sleep on now, and take your rest; it is enough; the hour is come; behold, the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

Arise, let us be going; behold, he that betrayeth me is at hand.—St. Mark 14:41—42.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By George Durno

"CACTUS JACK" GARNER bids fair to convert the vice-presidency from a "political graveyard" into a live man's job. He has never been content to be merely the official diner-out of the administration. His alert mind and natural yen for power have led him to a never-exercised prerogative that will make vice-presidents a potent influence in shaping legislation—provided the Senate doesn't finally clip their wings.

Garner's decision to scrap the time-honored custom of allowing chairmen of Senate committees to select their own conferees and to name them himself should have some important results the next time a controversial piece of legislation needs ironing out between the two Houses.

The vice-president is tired of seeing Senators selected as conferees who are opposed to the piece of legislation in question. It happened last when the $4,880,000,000 work-relief bill floundered around in conference.

EXPERIENCE: This reaching out for power is characteristic of Garner. When he became minority leader of the House he did not resign from the Ways and Means committee—as is customary—and tend strictly to the business of leadership. He held both jobs and ruled the Democrats with an iron hand.

Nor was he relegated to innocuous desuetude when he became vice-president. Although he announced with becoming modesty that he was merely the Senate's presiding officer, he continued to wield great influence in the House and has been steadily expanding his territory to cover the Senate as well.

He often says the last word about legislation at Cabinet meetings—as befits his third of a century of experience in Congress.

WITHDRAWN: Senator Robert D. Carey (R., of Wyoming, rates as the CCC's No. 1 nemesis. First he stirred up that toilet kit investigation in the early days of the forest army which nearly had the New Deal on its ear. Now he has again stepped in to ask "How come?"

The Senator learned some days ago that an invitation for bids had been sent out by Director Robert Fechner's corps for the furnishing and delivering of fabricated material and supplies for complete mail order barracks. A little private investigation convinced him that buildings of this type might prove a great deal more expensive than structures erected from local lumber by local labor.

Carey got in touch with Fechner and stressed the desirability of providing as much work for local labor as possible—also suggesting that comparative costs be more carefully checked. Fechner saw the point and the invitations to bid were withdrawn.

FOOTWORK: New England is building a bonfire under the administration on the cotton processing question. Cotton mills are making a tremendous howl and are backed by legislators and governors. The Massachusetts delegation demands protection against Japanese cotton imports and denounces President Roosevelt for failing to apply an embargo as authorized by the recovery act.

Secretary Wallace is roasted by angry New Englanders for his threat to boost processing taxes instead of lowering them. The movement in opposition to the processing tax is spreading. FDR is urged to pay farm benefits directly out of work-relief funds—as he is authorized to do—thus doing away with the tax which New England claims is killing the textile industry.

Quick footwork will be necessary to save the new AAA bill.

DIES: The Senate Agriculture committee will soon report out favorably the Frazier-Lemke Farm Mortgage Refinancing bill. This provides for the mandatory issuance of farm credit corporation bonds at 1 1-2 per cent interest—the money to be used in refinancing farm debt at the same rate of interest.

One feature of the measure requires the Federal Reserve banks to buy the bonds—which are based on the full value of the farms mortgaged and 65 per cent of the livestock. The banks would then be required to issue currency against these bonds with farm and livestock backing.

One member of the committee observes, "If the bull dies, so does your 'ruck.'"

NOTES: Buying in Seaboard Oil is attributed to John Hays Hammond's casual remarks in his autobiography showing its profits. . . . Bi-partisan confabs in the House are aimed at killing off the processing tax—and this group counts on help from the Supreme Court. . . . Some of FDR's best friends are cautioning him against trying to whip Congress into line on bills that Democrats privately oppose. . . . He is carefully sounding out the situation. . . . "To curb monopoly," said Pat McCarran, when asked the object of his new NRA bill.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

FOR some weeks past financial men have been quite serene about the prospects for banking legislation at this session. They have figured that central bank advocates and supporters of the bill already introduced to centralize power in the Federal Reserve Board were too far apart to join forces—and that either of these groups plus conservatives such as Carter Glass who want no change at all would be strong enough to checkmate the other. Their peace of mind may be rudely shattered soon. A move to unite the elements which want bank reform behind a compromise plan—so far carefully guarded from publicity—is nearly ready to spring.

Several New Yorkers took part in a private Washington conference last week which may have momentous consequences for the banking setup. Among those present were Frank A. Vanderlip—author of a Federal Monetary Authority plan, James H. Rand Jr., General Robert E. Wood and other members of the Committee for the Nation, Federal Reserve Governor Marriner Eccles, several leaders of farm organizations and members of the House and Senate banking committees.

The recently announced proposal to separate the deposit insurance and technical amendment sections of the present bill from Federal Reserve reform and pass them first—approved by both conservatives and reformers—helps pave the way for the stroke this meeting was called to discuss.

MANAGED: The big idea is to amend the bank reform bill by substituting a Federal Monetary Authority—closely patterned on Mr. Vanderdlip's specifications—for the proposed changes in the Federal Reserve system. Adherents of the latter are to be won over by designating the existing Federal Reserve board as the Authority instead of creating an entirely new organization. This would also greatly simplify the mechanics of establishing what amounts to a central bank free of private banker influence. It's not certain yet that the plan will go through—there are many controversial details to be settled—but don't lay any bets that it won't.

If the move succeeds it will mean revolutionary changes in the financial system. The Authority would have the sole power to issue paper money—notes which would replace the present Federal Reserve currency. It would also have full control over purchases and sales of gold and silver—an angle to which the Treasury is likely to object.

This implies a managed currency on the British model—divorced from a metallic base—and management of the volume of credit by a body independent of the banks.

WOE: The farm groups are backing the plan on the nose and their influence may be decisive in pushing it over. Its adoption would spill a lot of wind from Father Coughlin's sails.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE ROAD TO RUIN

The Madeira-Mamoré railway, about 200 miles long, is situated in the Territory of Acre, which formerly belonged to Bolivia. When it was awarded to Brazil in 1903, the latter country undertook to build a railroad across the seething jungle, to allow Bolivia an outlet to the Atlantic. Several companies went bankrupt trying to build it, until an American engineer of York, Pa. took over the job on a cost plus basis.

The first five miles of rail were laid at a cost of 10,000 lives, literally requiring a life for each crosstie laid. In their progress through the jungle, fever, beri beri, quicksands and poisonous insects continued to decimate the crew of laborers. The loss of life was so great that 90 per cent of the lumber was imported from Formosa, half way around the world, although virgin forests were at the right of way. The largest order of quinine ever placed—25 tons at a clip—was quickly used up in this undertaking. The exact number of victims is unknown, but it is safe to assume that it justifies the reputation of having "each cross tie resting upon a human skull."

"DO AWAY WITH EXCESS WEIGHT"

In exactly one year, Lawrence Mack of Detroit reduced his weight 123 pounds without dieting or exercising.

On April 14, 1933, Mack was so heavy he couldn't sleep in an ordinary bed, couldn't dress himself, and had great difficulty in walking. He weighed 328 pounds and doctors gave up hope for him if he grew heavier. Then he spent some time studying every medical book he could find dealing with overweight and obesity. He experimented with harmless mineral combinations, and before long had a combination that produced real results. On April 14, 1934, Mack's doctors weighed him again. To their astonishment he tipped the scales at 205—123 pounds lighter than a year before.

SYNOPSIS: James Stimson, Jr., seems to be doing well enough in his law practice, but for the "catch" of the town to behave as he does is disconcerting to all his Aunt Sarah's friends. They have chosen Jane Northrup for him, and he prefers Leslie Harris, although Jane is rich and Leslie is the daughter of a drunken printer. Aunt Sarah is giving a dancing party, however, and has asked Jane for James, without consulting him.

Chapter 18
MOON GODDESS

The collusion led to much planning and plotting and contriving of inexpensive but original favors between the two leaders.

James found himself evening after evening, when he wanted to be with Leslie, on his way to the Northrups in answer to a peremptory telephone call to discuss some vital matter concerning the dance.

James appreciated that Jane was giving a lot of time and attention to helping his aunt and naturally he was grateful and had to be decent about it. Jane excelled in this sort of thing and gradually fired James with her own enthusiasm and ambition to make this the most successful party ever given in New Concord.

James tried to explain all about it to Leslie and why he went so often to the Northrups, but for once he found Leslie incredibly difficult. She apparently was not at all interested in his movements or the whys and wherefores of his not coming to see her.

Indeed she had been so busy it seemed she hadn't even noticed his comings and goings. James, aghast at the callousness of woman, was so unhappy he wanted to die.

It was a very beautiful party, danced on the Stimson lawn to the soft music of violins with Japanese lanterns everywhere trying to outrival the midsummer moon. Jane was the first arrival. She had a new dress, a filmy thing of white and silver, with a circle of brillians in her dark wavy hair.

"You look like a moon goddess," James said to her as he greeted her on the porticoed front veranda "like Diana herself."

"And you as the perfect host have played Jupiter and provided me with my chariot," Jane laughed, waving toward the moon.

"See how clear the lady is tonight. I am certain she is pleased with our party. Look, she is telling us we must be a little mad tonight, that we must search out a moonbeam and dance up and up . . . Will you go with me? Will you help me search?"

"To the ends of the world," James answered gallantly. And turned and saw Leslie Harris framed in the doorway, the ubiquitous Fletcher just behind her carrying her wrap.

Leslie was in flesh-colored organdie that fell from waist to floor. How sweet she looked, as sweet as a tea rose as sweet as his grandmother. For damn it, he wished she wouldn't look up at Sam in just that particular way . . . with that smile he had thought she kept for him alone . . .

"I hope we are not interrupting," said Leslie coming forward. "I'm afraid we are a little early and I know you and Jane have a lot of things to talk over. We'll come back later."

"You're not early," said James hastily. "Jane and I settled everything a week ago. Here, let me have your cloak."

"I'll keep it," Sam answered grimly. "Leslie and I want to take a walk, to see the grounds. This is too swell a night to waste poking around indoors."

"I agree with you," Jane said tightly. "Hello, Sam. How lovely you look, Leslie. Did your mother make that dress? She's a wonder if she did."

"I made it myself," Leslie answered. "You're gorgeous tonight, Jane dear. James is right; you do look a moon goddess. The party can't help but be wonderful with Diana and," she paused and gave a little throaty chuckle, "and Jupiter in command. Come on, Sam. Let's go and explore. Perhaps if we're lucky we'll find a moonbeam ourselves."

She caught Sam's hand and ran with him down the steps out into

Tech Studes Among Those Who Enjoy Largess Of Sen. Long Of Louisiana

Several Texas Technological college students scrambled with others for treats of candies and cigarets "on" Huey Long at Louisiana State university last week when the Kingfish bought all sundries in a bookstore at the university and magnanimously told students to help themselves.

Nineteen students and Cecil Horne, journalism instructor at Texas Technological college, returned Tuesday evening from Baton Rouge, La., where they attended a Southwestern Journalism congress. Tech's delegation was the largest from any of the 13 colleges represented.

Six students expelled from L. S. U., supposedly for printing violent criticism of Long, sent a telegram to the congress renewing their attack on the president of the university, accusing him of unfairness. They are now attending the University of Missouri.

H. F. Harrington, of Northwestern university, author of a textbook used at Technological college, was one of the principal speakers. Next year's congress will be at the University of Oklahoma. H. H. Herbert, head of the journalism department there, is the new president of the congress.

Town Misnamed

Handwriting Cause Of "Oakalla"

TEMPLE, April 17. (AP)— Oakalla, a small village in Bell county, got its name as the result of poor handwriting when Texas was young.

The community had been named Oak Valley after a town in Indiana but the application for a post office apparently was framed in simplified spelling for at Washington the name was interpreted "Oakalla." The postoffice was granted in that name but the settlers were so happy at getting it that the mistake was overlooked.

Pilot Is Estimated To Have Flown Plane Million Miles

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 17. (AP) Nine years ago Richard L. Dobie, army-trained pilot, inaugurated air-mail flight from Kansas City to Chicago. He now is acclaimed the first pilot to fly 1,000,000 miles for a commercial air line.

Dobie recently was awarded his eighth service star signifying completion of his 8,000th hour of flying for one concern. Prior to joining that staff, Dobie had 2,500 hours of flying time, making a total of 10,500 hours—calculated to mean approximately 1,250,000 miles and equal to 50 trips around the world at the equator.

Recently Dobie was assigned temporarily to instruct pilots of a German air line in the handling of American-made craft.

TARZAN AND THE LION MAN, No. 4

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

An Arab horseman brought Orman a report of the new attack: a sudden volley of arrows—two askaris slain—a fusillade by the guard at their jungle—veiled enemies. Thus had the Basutos delivered their second warning. Orman clenched his jaw stubbornly as cars, horsemen, and blacks streamed in from the fatal forest.

When camp was made, Bill West, chief cameraman, sought out Rhonda Terry. "You don't seem afraid," he said admiringly. "You're a wonder; and Naomi Madison treats you like scum. But, for looks and acting, you've got her beat. I like you, Rhonda. I love you." She laughed. "This is no place for love scenes!"

Major White was vaguely worried when he saw the headman of the safari's blacks approaching. "Be careful how you handle this situation," he warned Orman. "If the blacks leave us, we'll be in a mess. Remember the lives of all of us, including two white women, are at stake!" Orman scowled haughtily and took another drink.

Kwamudi stood stolidly before them. "My people go back." "You can't go back," Orman thundered. "You signed up for the whole trip." "We not sign up go Basuto country," Kwamudi answered. "We not sign up be killed. If you stay here, we go back." Tom Orman went white with rage. "I'll teach you, you . . .!" he yelled.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Selling of rail stocks and bonds finally got on the speculative nerves today and all sections of the stock list dipped in the late trading.

The periodic nervousness over the carrier situation which has set off selling several times in recent weeks came to the fore again as the Chicago & Northwestern announced its intention of postponing payment of the interest due May 1 on its 4 3-4 per cent convertible bonds.

The announcement was sufficient to reverse the moderate showing of strength which had appeared in some other sections of the stock market in early dealings, and fractional losses were the rule.

The grain markets were likewise an unsettling factor. Wheat was weak at declines of 1 7-8 to 2 3-8 cents a bushel and cotton lost 70 to 90 cents a bale. Corn, which had been able to rally early in the trading session, finally yielded its gains and ended 1-8 to 3-4 of a cent a bushel down.

Rail trouble afflicted the bond market, as it did the stock list. The Chicago & Northwestern 4 3-4s broke 3 1-2 points to 97-8, and numerous secondary rail issues lost 1 to 3 points or so.

The turnover on the stock exchange although a little higher than on Tuesday, aggregated only 855,540 shares. The Associated Press average for 60 stocks declined .8 of a point at 38.1.

The day's news, however, was not without its bright spots. Early estimates of the latest week's freight loadings set the figure a shade better than a year ago. A compilation of the first quarter profit of 30 important industrial companies showed net of $15,877,962 compared with $11,582,615 in the initial period of 1934.

Atlantic Refining held about steady at 24 1-2 following publication of its $129,000 loss in the first quarter, against a profit of $613,000 in the like period a year ago.

Union Pacific was a weak spot among stock leaders with a decline of 3 1-2 points at 86, while others off a point or so included American Telephone at 105 3-4, Allied Chemical at 139 and Santa Fe at 38 1-2.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, April 17. (AP)—Cotton lost ground today for the third successive session and futures closed from 16 to 18 points lower.

While there was no concerted pressure exerted against the market light offerings during the day found few buyers and commitments were made on a point to point decline. Most of the business was liquidation of the May contract, and evening up of commitments for the coming holiday.

Business was restricted, as is customary in pre-holiday sessions, and routine orders were about all the market had to absorb.

At the opening active positions were practically unchanged from Tuesday's finals. But point by point the market began to ease and with buying interest almost totally lacking May ended at 11.36, Oct. at 11.15, Dec. at 11.22 and Jan. at 11.25.

Lower prices for stocks and grains also served as a depressing influence on cotton prices. Most of the news emanating from the trade was comparatively bullish.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, April 17. (AP)—In cotton today the reactionary tendencies of yesterday were repeated. There was further liquidation and realizing, and the close was barely steady at net declines of 14 to 18 points.

Liverpool and the continent were credited with buying, but the far east was a seller and business otherwise was confined to evening-up for Easter holidays.

Selling increased during the afternoon following weakness in grain and declines of 16 to 18 points brought in increased trade buying, but rallies were not maintained and closing quotations were at or within a few points of the lowest.

TRIAL IS SET

LONGVIEW, April 17. (AP)—The murder trial of Don Covin, accused in the slaying of Mrs. Emma Sage last Thursday at Gladewater was set today for April 24. Covin pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge W. C. Hurst.

Sweden's government finances for the last year show a surplus.

KANSAS CITY REPORT

KANSAS CITY, April 17. (AP)—Approximately 30,000 cattle were offered at 11 midwestern centers today compared with 29,299 and 44,987 a week and a year ago, respectively. Slaughter steers and yearlings cleared readily at strong to 25 higher levels as against Tuesday's quotations. Other killing classes of cattle shared the advance at some points and sold on the strong side at others. Cattle returning to the country were scarce except for the supply in dealers' hands where a fair clearance is in view. A new season's mark was registered at Chicago when 15.50 was reached on 1438 lb. Nebraska fed steers. At Kansas City several loads of 805-862 lb. South Texas grass steers in cutter flesh went at 5.50@6.50.

The hog run totaled 33,000 which was 30,000 less than figures for the corresponding day a year ago. At Omaha and Chicago trade was slow with most sales on a weak to 15 lower basis. All other markets, however, reported a gain of 5 to extremes 20 over Tuesday's sales. A few sorted light weights made 9.30 at Chicago.

Fed lambs cashed generally strong to 15 above Tuesday's figures, springers went unchanged except at Omaha and Kansas City. At the former market a loss was recorded while Kansas City prices were up around 25. Other classes were unchanged. Arizona springers brought 8.90 at Kansas City while best wooled skins at Chicago turned at 8.50.

Grains

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, April 17. (AP)—Despite notable relative strength shown by the corn market today, all grains ended with price losses owing to acute weakness of wheat values.

Spreading operations in which selling of wheat was done here against purchases at Kansas City had much to do with unsettling the Chicago wheat market. A little moisture relief in domestic wheat territory southwest, with prospects of more, counted also as a bearish influence, together with downturns of securities.

Wheat closed unstable at the day's bottom level, 1 7-8 to 2 1-2 cents under yesterday's finish, May 100 1-2@100 5-8, corn 1-8 to 3-4 down, May 89 1-8@89 1-4, oats 5-8 to 1 cent off, and provisions at 5 to 10 cents decline.

An exhibition of comparative weakness in the Liverpool wheat market preceded the downward swing of Chicago wheat futures.

Oats took their cue from wheat.

Provisions ranged lower with hog values and with grains.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, April 17. (AP) — Demand for grain here continued quiet today. Estimated receipts were: Wheat 2 cars and corn 16 cars. Prices quoted by the grain and cotton exchange, based on bids, offers and actual sales to midday, ranged as follows, basis carloads on track at Fort Worth, freight paid to delivery point.

Cordination of the shelterbelt program with the soil erosion program was discussed with Wilson today by Paul H. Roberts, Lincoln, Neb., director of the tree planting plan. He said planting of trees on farms west of the shelterbelt area was a probability.

them, and at maturity date could obtain interest at 4 per cent compounded annually from Armistice day, 1918, or they could continue to operate under the old law if that proved best to them financially.

Would Move Date Up

The Harrison bill would move the issuance date of the certificates up from 1925 to Armistice day, 1918, but the maturity date would not move up to the same extent, because the 25 per cent bonus added to the certificates in 1925 to make up for the deferred payment would be cancelled.

In an effort to head off future demands for a general world war pension law which some members of congress have predicted would follow payment of the bonus, the bill would state as a declaration of policy that there should be no pension legislation for the veterans of the World war.

Such a declaration would not be binding.

Hearings on the compromise bill have been called by Harrison for Monday or Tuesday of next week.

Thousands Cheer Landing

Thousands cheered as the flying boat dipped in a graceful salute and settled to the harbor surface.

Thus ended the first commercial flight between the mainland and Hawaii, for the Clipper carried a "pay load" of more than 100 pounds of air mail.

Captain Edwin C. Musick, veteran Pan American Airways pilot in charge of the flight, as he stepped ashore to receive greetings and congratulatory message said:

"This project means the final stretch of overseas pioneering and is a tribute to the remarkable strides made by aviation in the last three decades."

Eventually, probably this summer, the service will be gradually extended westward until American planes will be spanning 8,000 miles of ocean between California and the Orient, via Honolulu, Midway island, Wake island, Guam and Manila. Another air line will link Manila with Canton, China.

tell of any plans for removal of the prisoner.

Two department of justice officials from Dallas were closeted with Knight and City Attorney Reginald Gambill late today.

Denton Man Questioned

A Denton man was held for questioning in connection with the Fults case, but Knight also maintained his silence regarding this second prisoner.

Mississippi authorities have already started making moves to have him returned there for trial of the capital offense charge. Hamilton, captured at Fort Worth April 5, is awaiting execution in the Huntsville state prison May 10 for slaying a prison guard.

Fults said he was in a Wichita Falls hotel on the day of Hamilton's capture and heard newsboys shouting the news.

Praises Hamilton

"Ray was a swell kid and I know he never killed anyone. I was surprised when they caught him like they did. He had told me several times he would fight it out with officers and get it over with rather than to face the 'hot seat'."

Fults said he had been in Dallas last night and left there early today, headed for Prosper, Texas, where he intended to rob a bank.

"It was gonna be a one man job and it wouldn't have taken me that long," Fults said and snapped his fingers.

Had Planned Robbery

He said he planned to go to Mineral Wells after the bank robbery and raid an armory to obtain machine guns and additional ammunition. He added he had made several unsuccessful attempts recently to rob armories, mentioning one place in Kansas in particular, where he said three armed guards frightened him away.

Later Fults said he had parted with Hamilton at Memphis after the pair had discarded old clothing in a hotel. He traveled back through Arkansas to Texas and made a trip to McKinney, his home, where officers nearly captured him several days ago.

"I just outran 'em there," he said. "My folks sure seemed surprised to see me."

Fults said he still carried 60 buckshot in his back, received when a Mississippi posse opened fire on him after the bank robbery. He said Hamilton picked him up when he fell, put him in a stolen car and fled.

the scented moon-drenched garden, her laughter floating behind her. Jane slipped her arm through James'.

"I'm afraid," she said lightly, "that Leslie is making fun of us. I'm afraid I was a little sentimental about the moon. But it's a night for sentiment. I can stand it if you can. And perhaps we ought to go in and find your Aunt Sarah. As a matter of fact, she sent me out here to bring you back."

"Oh, Leslie didn't mean anything. She just likes to laugh."

"Oh, didn't she? Well, perhaps not. Leslie's head is probably turned. It will be a step up for her, a big step, if she marries Sam."

There was a call then for James from his aunt. The guests were arriving and he must go inside and greet them. He was grateful he did not have to answer Jane. A step up for Leslie! That mutt! But she had no right to smile at him as if she . . . as if she . . . But of course she did not. Well, if Leslie wanted to dance on a moonbeam he'd find her one. Sam wouldn't know a moonbeam from a power station.

But James had reckoned without his duties as host. He did not see Leslie again until he was on the dancing platform leading the grand march with Jane. Afterwards he made many attempts to favor Leslie.

But she never seemed to see him or catch his signals until he was right before her. And by that time Sam or Bud or Jackson had grabbed her. When James finally danced with her he found her distrait and unresponsive, vehement in her praise of Jane's beauty, Jane's charm, Jane's cleverness.

"Look here, I don't want to talk about Jane. She's all that you say, but I want to know why you are treating me like this. What have I done? You've got to tell me. You know I'd rather cut off my right hand than . . . "

"Jimmy dear, don't be so tragic. You haven't done anything. And I'm not treating you any other way than I always have. But one cannot monopolize one's host."

"Monopolize? You call it monopolizing . . . "

The waltz ended abruptly leaving Leslie just beside Julia Millard. Leslie linked her arm in Julia's, could not be pried away. Time and time again during that hectic and endless evening Leslie eluded James' attempts to get her alone.

James felt he never could have endured the sharp and continued disappointments if it had not been for Jane's gallant support.

Good old Jane never failed him. After every petticious snub from Leslie there Jane was, calling him to some neglected duty, claiming a favor, laughing up at him gaily, telling him how distinguished he looked . . . not handsome exactly but distinguished. She assured him that he was an aristocrat to his fingertips, no one could mistake it.

James, naturally enough, was diverted for the moment from thoughts of suicide on the Harris' front lawn. Nevertheless, even while he glowed and purred under Jane's flattery, he never forgot for a moment that he meant to have it out with Leslie this very evening.

It was late and supper long over before James' opportunity came and Leslie was finally persuaded to cut a dance and stroll with him to the edge of the spacious lawn to investigate whether the far famed river view was living up to expectations in the moonlight.

But luck was against James that night. Hardly had they reached the edge of the shadows when James heard his name called.

"Your aunt wants you," said Leslie.

"Oh no, she's calling Tom," lied James shamelessly.

"I distinctly hear her say James."

"That's because you wanted to hear it. And even if you did it's nothing more important than to dance with some wall flower or say goodnight to some dowager.

"But I tell you right now I am not going to let you out of my sight until you tell me why you have treated me thees last two weeks as if I were some nasty little buy trying to crawl down your neck."

"Silly! I never . . . "

"Ssssssh! Someone's coming this way."

Hastily James pulled Leslie into the darkest shadow and stood in front of her to shield her light dress. As he did so his heart gave a great glad leap—the first in days—for his divinity did not protest but stood as obediently still and quiet as the great black oak that sheltered them. Nor did she move when James reached back and caught one hand and held it tight.

"James, James, where are you?" called Miss Sarah anxiously. "Oh, there you are. I am so relieved. That dreadful drunken Mr. Harris."

James goes through a difficult scene, tomorrow.
