What partnership means to South Plains Wind Energy

By Homer Marquez

In a press release that was published in last week's Hesperian-Beacon; it was announced that wind development partners Tri-Global Energy, LLC and the locally run, Floyd County Wind Farm, LLC would join forces with renewable energy investor Westerly Wind, LLC.

The Joint Development agreement between the three parties created the South Plains Wind Energy, LLC; a partnership designed to accelerate the initial stages of development for this particular wind farm.

So what does this actually mean? Well to get a better perspective on the impact of this deal we asked local Floyd County Wind Farm members to explain the basic importance of the new South Plains Wind Energy, LLC partnership.

"It means that Westerly is going to put up a considerable amount of money in the development phase of the project," commented Larry Bramlet from the Floyd County Wind Farm LLC, "It will have a great impact because it's going to give us the money to go ahead and move forward," he added.

Basically, whenever a wind farm development group decides they're going to put up a wind farm in an area, the group must first complete a considerable amount of steps before the first wind turbine starts spinning.

First, the group must acquire land for the wind farm; wind turbines need about 80 acres of space between each other. Second, tests and studies need to be performed to calculate how much wind is being produced in the area and will the farm have any negative impact on any environmental or archeological issues. This acquirement of land and the collection of studies are known as the initial development stage.

After the data is collected, the group decides whether or not to pursue the project. If they decide to pursue the project, the development group will then find someone to buy the energy produced at the farm. Once they find someone, the group will then erect wind turbines as well as build a way to connect to the transmission line which acts like an energy highway that transports all the energy produced by area wind farms to buyers.

As simple and elementary as this concept of building wind farms seems to be; the actual process is very complex and difficult, as each stage requires tons of hard work and tons of money. The entire process of building a wind farm from the ground up can cost a development group a little over a billion dollars to finally get wind turbines spinning and energy moving down the transmission line.

However, the potential of Floyd County's wind energy capability has investors chomping at the bits to get a piece of the action.

According to studies, Floyd County has some of the strongest wind the area, as winds coming off the Caprock measure in at about a four or five grade.

"By some of the maps I've seen, we have some of the best wind...that there is in the United States," explained Bramlet.

Along with high winds, the new Competitive Renewal Energy Zone (CREZ) transmission line will run right across county, once it is completed in 2013. According to the press release, the new multi-billion dollar transmission lines will significantly increase to capacity of the ERCOT grid to support additional wind power generated in West Texas.

Floydada VFD will offer fire detectors to residents

Local farmer directs $2,500 through America's Farmers Grow CommunitiesSM

FLOYDADA, Texas (March 7, 2012) – With so many fires in Texas in 2011, the necessity of a working smoke detector is apparent now more than ever before. The Floydada Volunteer Fire Department will now be able to offer these lifesaving tools to more residents thanks to a local farmer and America's Farmers Grow CommunitiesSM.

Grow Communities, sponsored by the Monsanto Fund, gives farmers the opportunity to win $2,500 for their favorite local nonprofit organizations. Max Yeary was the winning farmer in Floyd County. He recognized the need to help the local fire department save more lives.

"I'm glad I could help the fire department," Yeary said. "In my eyes they were the most deserving after all of the fires they had to fight last year due to the dry weather." The fire department will use the $2,500 to buy smoke detectors for those in need.

"We plan to buy smoke detectors for the elderly and low income residents of Floydada," said Gary Brown, treasurer of the fire department. "We want to help out anyone who doesn't have one. We will also contact local businesses and individuals in an effort to get a dollar to dollar match."

Lockney Firefighters responded to a fire on Washington Street that consumed a trailer home last Friday evening. The trailer was owned by Melissa Molina who was not at home during the incident. No one was hurt in the fire; however four dogs were lost in trailer. Fire crews responded at around 7:30pm and extinguished the fire at around 10:30. The cause of the fire is still undetermined.

In a ceremony held on Monday, March 5 at the Floydada Fire Station, Yeary got the chance to present the volunteer fire department with the $2,500 donation.

Through America's Farmers Grow Communities:

- Farmers in 1,245 eligible counties have the chance to win $2,500 for their favorite community nonprofit organizations.

- The Monsanto Fund has invested more than $3.1 million to rural communities this year alone.

- More than $352,000 in total has been donated to nonprofits in Texas.

Floyd County Friends 17th Annual Gala coming March 31

By Elaine LaBaume

Floyd County Friends 17th Annual Gala is coming on March 31st. Remember that this is "the biggest social event of the year in Floyd County."

This year will be something a little different. The entertainment will be a "Dinner Theatre", the dinner being as in the past, steak with all the trimmings. The play is being presented by the Lubbock Community Theatre. The comedy is entitled "Porch" and it is about a mother and daughter sitting on a porch "talking about life" in a small Texas town. Jay C. Brown, Artistic Theatre Director, will be directing the play. The play was written by Jack Heifner.

This year's theme for the gala is "Deep In The Heart of Texas" to go along with the setting of the play. As in the past there will be a live and silent auction. American State Bank is the sponsor for the $1000 give away that is always a popular and fun way to win $1000.

There are a limited number of tickets available so get your tickets as soon as possible. The past two years have been a "sell out." You can purchase tickets at Nick Long State Farm Insurance or Jon LaBaume in Floydada and D & J Gin in Lockney. Price of tickets are $30 each or $280 for a table of 8.

Burn Ban reinstated, AgriLife Agent announces retirement

By Homer Marquez

During their March meeting this past Monday, Floyd County Commissioners approved the motion to reinstate the burn ban by a vote of 4-1. "We're pressing our luck," commented County Commissioner Mike Anderson, "we're still in a drought and the wind's blowing; we can get in big trouble."

Despite recent perception, some of the commissioners agreed that the wet weather has not been enough to ease the risk grass fires. Judge Penny Golightly commented that if a wildfire were to breakout and the county did not have burn ban in place; the county and volunteer fire departments could be exempt from any grant money or federal assistance to cover damages.

The City of Floydada employees recently finished digging the new waste pit shown in the picture. The pit is approximately 1,025 feet long, 50 feet wide and 20 feet deep. The city spent approximately $ 47,500.00 digging the pit. A private contractor estimated the cost at $ 170,833.00. By doing the work themselves, the city employees saved the taxpayers more than $ 120,000.00 plus engineering fees if the city had hired a private contractor.

Visiting Dignitary in Floydada

Flat Stanley arrived in Floydada on March 5

By Karen Houchin

Flat Stanley, of the famous Flat Stanley series of children's books, is visiting Floydada until March 17. This classic hero has returned to travel the globe. Yes, this is the same Stanley who was first flattened by a bulletin board in his original adventure in 1964, over forty-five years ago, enabling him to fly like a kite, slip under on February 21 to Nana and Pops, but he was two weeks late getting here. He was lost in transit somewhere, and we are not sure what adventures he had while lost, however, his visit in Floydada has been exciting. Flat Stanley was welcomed to Floydada by new Chamber Manager LaTresa Miller on Wednesday with a welcome bag and t-shirt. He and even did a little research on land titles in the County Clerk's office.

On Thursday, Flat Stanley was given the key to the City of Floydada by Honorable Mayor Bobby Gilliland. Of course, the key had to be flat like him to travel back with him to Ft. Worth. He also conversed with Floydada's First Lady Barbara Gilliland and Script employee, A. J. While in town, he had local CPA Fred Thayer file his income taxes.

Flat Stanley expresses his appreciation to the City of Floydada for making him feel so warmly welcomed. He has visited many businesses in town and hopes to see even more before he leaves for home with Eli on March 17th. He has a collection of photos and souvenirs to take back with him from this adventure. He states that he is very proud of the war memorial that Floyd County has built. He was honored to get his picture made there this week. Flat Stanley says Floydada must be a really nice place to live with so many friendly folks. He says so many people have gone out of their way to make him feel welcomed and excited to hear all about his life. Eli's Nana and Pops are making a scrapbook of Flat Stanley's adventures to take back with him to Lily B. Clayton to share with all the students his trip to Floydada and the area.

Before his return to Ft. Worth, he plans to make a trip down to Silver Falls and the Dickens Springs for a little hiking. He hopes to get over to Texas Tech and check out the campus. He has been to Texas Plains Federal Credit Union doors, and travel by mail; the same Stanley who has inspired countless children to make their own flat character cutouts to send through the mail. Flat Stanley is of international fame. Flat Stanley is in Floydada, courtesy of Eli Houchin and the kindergarten classes of Lily B. Clayton Elementary of Ft. Worth, Texas. Eli colored Flat Stanley's clothes for his trip. Then Eli's parents mailed him then attended the Floydada Rotary Club, whose members all posed with him for a picture.

Flat Stanley went on to the courthouse to testify in Judge Smith's 110th Judicial District Courtroom. From there he has been to County Court to be sworn in by Judge Golightly to give testimony in a case pending in County Court. While at the courthouse, he applied for a driver's license and car tags

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS
TIME is here again. Hopefully you remembered to set all of your clocks ahead one hour before going to bed this past Saturday night. If not, you might have been surprised when you were late to church or some other event. I always feel that I get up an hour earlier and go to bed an hour later, until my internal clock adjust to the change. OH, WELL... Here we go...Nothing is as inevitable as CHANGE.

Tummy Bug, Upper Respiratory, Flu and Whatever-this-is-that-I have....If you are exempt...My...How fortunate you are. Now, this couldn't possible be the fact that in the morning there was a terrible high Wind and Dirt Storm, followed by a Sudden Drop in Temperature and on my car windshield...Is that SNOW, SLEET or RAIN??? Mr. Weatherman...how on earth can you so accurately predict these situations? As I look out my window today, a light rain is falling, with small puddles collecting, and it is ever-so-still and peacefully calm. JUST WAIT...the Calm comes just ahead of the Storm.

Euna Bradford is doing well and has recently had out-of-town guests. Her son, Conley and wife, Kay (Hammonds) of Phoenix, Arizona were here visiting Euna and Kay's mother, Ruth Hammonds. In keeping up with our new modern technology, Conley helped Euna with a new computer and an iPhone. I know she is enjoying communicating with her family by using this newer method.

Lockney ISD Upgrades Notification System

Lockney ISD is proud to announce the integration of a new call-out notification system called School Reach. The notification system allows the school district to notify parents and staff about important events or notices pertaining to the district. According to Randy Jackson, Technology Director for the district, the School Reach system eliminates the need for personnel to manually enter student and staff contact information into multiple systems while allowing the district to streamline the process by utilizing the data which is already contained within the district's database. According to the Jackson, "with the previous notification system, we continually had to add and update contact information in several different systems which required undue man hours, so it made sense to change to a system which integrates with what we already have to help streamline the process".

The School Reach notification system allows the district to contact staff and parents by phone, text message and email, depending on what contact information has been provided to the school. School is able to notify parents easily about upcoming events at their child's campus, school delay notices, or even notifications regarding library fines or important information. When you receive a call-out from the system, the message will begin with a recording informing you that "This is a School Reach notification from Lockney Independent School District", and then will proceed with the message being sent.

Jackson explains "we are excited about this new addition of technology to our district but with all things involving technology, it will work only as well as the information it contains". Jackson encourages parents to make sure to keep the school district informed of any changes they may have in phone numbers, addresses, etc. The contact information the school has for most students is that which is provided at the beginning of the school year during the registration process, but if phone numbers change the school is not aware of the changes unless the parents call in to notify the district.

Jackson stated "unless we have your up-to-date contact information our notification system cannot reach you so you will miss out on important information". Jackson encourages all parents to contact the district anytime they have a change in address or phone number so that the records can be kept updated.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To my patients, friends, and family:

I want to clear up some misconceptions about why I am leaving W.J. Mangold Memorial Hospital and Cogdell Clinics. It is true, and I have expressed this to many of you that I desire more time with my family and a more active role as a father and husband. However, my leaving is not the fault of W. J. Mangold Memorial Hospital or Cogdell Clinics. When I first was looking to return home back in 2007, WJ. Mangold Memorial Hospital offered me a wonderful opportunity to serve my community. I am forever grateful for that. We now have a very strong clinic in Silverton due to their foresight. I knew what was expected of me in relation to call, ER, and Hospital duties, I chose to live in Quitaque and drive back and forth to work. I have been doing this for nearly 5 years. My children are at a stage of their lives when they need me to be present more often. I have no frustration or ill will toward W. J. Mangold Memorial Hospital, Caprock Hospital District or Cogdell Clinics. I pray for them to have continued success, and blessings as they serve the people and communities that you all belong to. I have the utmost confidence that W. J. Mangold Memorial Hospital and Cogdell Clinics will continue to provide excellent care for you all in my absence. Please understand that the people of these organizations are dear to my heart.

In summary, I feel that overall my time with W. J. Mangold Memorial Hospital and Cogdell Clinics has been a positive in my life as well as for these excellent organizations. I want to leave on a positive note. I appreciate all the support and prayers that I have received.

Sincerely,
Jamie W. Cox, M.D.

Dear Editor:

This letter is in response to concerns that have been voiced by many of our patients regarding Dr. Cox's decision to resign from the medical staff of W. J. Mangold Memorial Hospital and the perception that the hospital has in some way brought about his resignation through changes that we have made. It is important for all to know that we have not changed our end of the agreement that has been in place with Dr. Cox from the beginning. If anything, we have worked to make it better for him by adding full-time emergency department physician coverage that allows Dr. Cox to be in the clinic of his choice while he is on-call and to also be home with his family while on-call.

In 2007, our hospital went out on a limb to reopen the clinic in Silverton for Dr. Cox so that he could relocate his family back to his hometown community. When Dr. Cox made the decision to open a practice in Floydada, we again supported him in this endeavor and have worked diligently to make this clinic successful for him, our hospital and those living in the Floydada community. When he then decided that trying to cover both clinics was too much for him, we gave him the opportunity to work only at the Silverton clinic, as he originally wanted to do, and

Floydada takes first in district standings

By Coach Seago

The Floydada baseball team started district this week and went 2 and 0 with wins over Dimmitt and Abernathy. The Winds started the district race Tuesday, when they traveled to Dimmitt and came home with a tough 13-10 victory.

Seth Nilesen was the starting pitcher going 4 innings and recording 5 strikeouts on 7 hits but allowed a season high 8 runs and left after the 4th inning with an 8-8 tie. Jose Martinez came in to shut down the 5th, 6th, and 7th innings to secure the victory. Martinez recorded 7 strikeouts while giving up only one hit. Offensively the Whirlwinds had 15 hits with 9 RBI's. Jose Martinez lead the hit attack with 3 hits, one being a 2 run double while Pedro Guerrero and Hunter Galvan had 2 two hits each. Galvan hit a 2 run bomb in the first inning to start the day.

On Monday, Floydada faced Abernathy for their first home game of the year. Jose Martinez was the starting pitcher and went 6 strong innings recording 9 strikeouts while allowing only 6 hits and giving up three runs. Seth Nielson came into the seventh inning and struck out one to end the game after making a great pitch to cause Abernathy to hit into a double play to earn his first save of the year. On the offensive side, Floydada hitters earned all 7 runs with 10 hits while only striking out 3 times. Tyler Renfro, Hunter Galvan, and Bense-lado Perez had two hits each to lead all Whirlwind hitters.

With the victories, it takes Floydada to an 8-2 overall record and a 2-0 district start. The Winds will travel to Muleshoe on Saturday with the varsity starting at 12:00 and the J-birds at 2:30 before they return home on Tuesday to take on the Wildcats of Idalou with the varsity starting at 5:00 and the J-birds playing at 7:00.

Sales tax report shows an increase in Floydada business

By Homer Marquez

It seems that last month's figures weren't a fluke as the March Sales Tax report, which was recently released by the Texas Comptroller, showed a 73.53 percent increase in sales tax collected in Floydada.

Once again this report shows that money in moving in Floydada as this numbers reflects the sales tax collected on all things being bought and sold in Floydada. This month's numbers, which reflect sales taxes collected from Floydada's 1.75 percent sales tax, show an increase in sales tax revenue from the $20,643 reported in March 2011 to the $35,824 reported in March 2012.

As for sales taxes revenues collected in the fiscal year-to-date, Floydada also saw a 44.83 percent increase by so far collecting $96,280 in 2012. Last year at this time, Floydada had only collected $66,474.

Floydada increase of business seems to be a trend as Floydada had just reported a 50.71 percent increase for February's sales tax revenue report.

Lockney would see a decrease in collected sales tax revenue as March's numbers showed a 23.19 decrease for the city. Lockney was shown to only have collected $7,648 from their 1.50 percent sales in the March report; this would be a decrease from the $9,958 collected last year. As for numbers reflecting the fiscal year-to-date, Lockney saw a small decrease by so far collecting $26,399 for 2012; this would be a 9.70 percent decrease from last year.

Other numbers reported around the area include a .34 percent increase in Plainview for the month; a 29.33 percent increase in Hart; and a 4.92 decrease in Petersburg.

The Paperboy

By CHRIS BLACKBURN

The winter wheat looked amazing on a quick drive into Oklahoma to deliver my niece to my sister.

In fact, I traveled from Childress to Post to Floydada in the rain and sleet last week and it was a beautiful sight.

This time last year our concern was growing as our last real moisture had come back in October of 2010. That was just the beginning of the year from hell.

We're not out of the woods yet. The same water restrictions we were under to end the year are still in effect here. Portions of the state have made much more progress, but the kind of year we had last year takes a very long time to fully recover from.

Right now, we're in kind of a "crop-to-crop" situation. Farmers told me this moisture was critical. The ranchers, they'll tell you how important it was. With smaller herds, they see the benefit of stockpiling some hay.

Lord willing, we'll continue to get rain on into cotton planning season. An average cotton crop this year would be monumental at this point. Particularly after hearing the experts chirp on about a 20 year drought or changing weather patterns and on and on.

In my opinion, we know much more about weather than we did 50 years ago, but we don't know it all. Not even close. For all we know, this could end up being a very wet year. I just don't put much stock in weather forecasting.

The effects of the drought are very evident in my weed infested yard. It is baffling how quickly the various weeds can take over such a large area. I'm still not sure how many plants we've lost, but we've got serious gardening to do. Well, since we still can't put abundant water on the yard or plants, maybe we'll just get everything cleaned up and ready for planting. Regardless, I'm declaring war on the weeds!

Apple is now the largest company in the history of the world.

Let that sink in.

Apple's stock now exceeds Exxon, the second largest company in the world, by more than $100 billion. To put that in perspective, there are very few companies worth over $100 billion.

Apple's market cap is now at $514 billion compared to Exxon at $403 billion.

How do they do it? They are first on the block with the latest technology. The company sold 37 million iPhones, 15.4 million iPads and 5.2 million Macs during the fourth quarter of 2011. Throw in iTunes and the App Store and the company is a virtual ATM.

On the horizon: the newest iPhone which is rumored to come out in the fall. It is expected to feature a larger 4-inch screen and include new patents like crack-proof glass and the "iWallet," which is a digital system that uses technology to complete credit card transactions and bestow users complete control over their financial accounts directly over their iPhone.

I make the joke sometimes that Apple has an alien craft and they slowly release that technology to the market. I doubt that's true, but obviously Apple has some of the best and brightest minds in the high-tech industry and they continue to stampede despite a sorry economy.

I REMEMBER, I REMEMBER
By Homer Steen

THE FIRST JAIL HOUSE

Although the Floyd County Commissioners Court had given jail building their consideration in their first meeting June 12, 1890, by the time the July meeting was held they decided to have "plans and specifications" for it, so they named Judge Arthur B. Duncan and Clerk R. T. Miller to prepare the papers and advertise for bids. The minutes read "a jail house be built of the following dimensions:

"Twenty-two by 30 feet with partition wall cutting off eight feet at the front of the building for a jailer's office; that the wall will be 12 feet high, a boxed building and stripped; covered with iron roofing; four windows, two on either side, two barred at the jail end; two doors, one at the front of the building and one in the partition wall, the one in the partition wall to be made of D & M flooring and doubled and closely nailed; the other to be a panel door six feet eight inches by two feet eight inches, all of first class material.

NO FLOOR NEEDED

"The jail part of said building is not to be floored. The windows are to have eight lights, the lights 12 x 16 inches. The rafters are to be every two feet and laths every 18 inches; the roof to have a pitch of two feet and six inches. All to be well put together and in workman-like manner."

It is to be remembered the court had already bought a "pair of jail cells" in their first meeting on June 12, along with a safe to keep records in. The safe and jail cells set the county back a total of $3,700, of which $200 was contracted to be paid in cash, the remainder in "bonds to run 15 years at 6 per cent with option to pay at any time."

When the commissioners advertised for bids to build the jail house they had only one offer. This was by J. N. Smith. His bid was rejected on Sept. 15. On the following day, however, Smith must have changed his bid to the liking of the court. They voted to "receive the second bid of J. N. Smith and to construct the jail house for the sum of $375, and the contract awarded to said Smith."

WHY THE DELAY?

But still there was delay, which may or may not be accounted for by one of three things, or a combination thereof. (This is simply a matter of conjecture). (1.) Members of the court were elected in May, their terms to expire on general election day Nov. 4.

Members of the court might have been "shelling the woods: for re-election. Also, (2) since the court was requiring Mr. Smith to make bond for performance he could have been having difficulty finding acceptable bondsmen in this raw start of organized civilization.

Or (3) it could have been the court told Smith to hold up, since a more elaborate plan might be hatching. For, after the election there appears on the court's minutes an order for an election to vote on a bond issue of $4,000 for jail-house bonds. Nothing further came of this order evidently. A notation apparently in R. T. Miller's hand writing on the margin of the page says "Was Not."

Whatever the delay the minutes record that on Dec. 16 the court voted to accept the J. N. Smith bond for proper construction of the building "and it is hereby approved." From then on everything must have been hotsy totsy, for the court voted to hand over the $250 to Smith to buy lumber, and in 1891, February 13, "The court received the jailhouse building from the contractor and his sureties released from his bond and that final settlement be made." Final settlement on the $350 contract was a check for $122.16 balance due.

This is almost the end of the story but not quite. J. B. Shaw was allowed $21.84 for "corrozzated iron" for the jail roof. At this late date in history we wouldn't know whether "corrozzated iron" was the same as "corrugated iron." Maybe yes, maybe no.

issuing the burn ban, disagreed, saying that recent moisture did in fact reduce the threat of a wildfire; he also stated that even if there was a grassfire, financial assistance from federal and state organizations would be questionable because a lot of those organizations were out of money. The commissioner also commented that many people still had some burning to do.

After a vote, the burn ban was put back into effect with Anderson, Morris, Golightly, and Morales voting for; and Johnson voting against.

If the county ever did receive the right amount of rainfall; the state would automatically lift the burn ban.

Also during last Monday's meeting, AgriLife Extension Agent, Melissa Long announced that she would be retiring at the end of May. Long who has worked as an extension agent for over 20 years commented that she felt it was time to retire and that someone maybe a little younger needed to take the reins.

"It's been my privilege and honor to serve the people of Floyd County for the past 20 years," commented Long, "I couldn't have asked for a better place or for better people to have spent the past 20 years with."

The commissioners and Judge Golightly expressed their appreciation for Long's years of service and hard work.

Long did comment that she had heard through the grapevine that someone was very interested in filling in the position left open by former Floyd County agent, Mark Carroll, who left for a promotion at the end of last year; but so far she didn't know who that was.

In her AgriLife monthly report, Melissa Long explained that the 4-H was busy preparing for a number of events including; the County Fashion Show that is coming up this Tuesday; the Floyd County Gala that will be held on March 30; the County Round-Up that will be held on April 17; the District Rifle competition that will be held on April 21; the District Archery contest that will be held here in Floyd County on the 28th; and the District Round-Up that will be held during the first Saturday of May.

Banquet since 1955, the event will present the distinguished Citizen of the Year Award as well as the Business of the Year Award and much more. Also being recognized this year will be Lockney Boy Scouts for their commitment to the community.

Also during the meeting, the Commissioners approved the option of payroll deductions for any county employee who wanted to sign up with New York Life Insurance. The decision merely allowed an option for payroll deduction for anyone who wanted to take advantage of the life insurance offered by New York Life; the approval would not replace or affect any current policies offered by the County.

In other business, Commissioners moved to deem old metal and wooden desks from AgriLife as salvage. They also approved the crossing of a CR 300 with 4 in. irrigation pipe at the request of Jason Pyle; and approved the consent agenda. The consent agenda included the payment of the bills, a financial report, and farm contacts. As of Feb. 29, the total amount of funds held by the County Treasurer, as well as other assets in her hands, amounted to $2,854,207.98. Farm contracts approved for the month were a ditch clean-out for water east of Muncy and south of Spears per Hulon Carthel; and trench work on a drip system for water conservation per Pierce Home Place.

Also at the meeting, Commissioner Amado announced that his precinct had taken donated RAP to fix a road in Dougherty, and was now planning to use old railroad material to fix a road east of Floydada.

An agenda item to amend the county's policy manual was not approved. The amendment, which was brought up by Commissioner Morris, called for a mandatory time for all County email, texts and elect communications to be erased after a certain duration of time. Judge Penny Golightly commented that after research, she found that they couldn't amend the policy manual with that request but did say that each commissioner and department could do what they wanted. Morris then told the court that he would erase all emails, texts, messages, and elect communications after five business days.

Agenda items tabled for another time would be an item to approve a contract from Sharyland Utilities; however a Sharyland representative was not present.

The CREZ lines are projected to support an increase from 10,000 MW to more than 18,000 MW of installed capacity as more wind farms are added to the grid. Add these two factors together, and Floyd County is poised to becoming one of the country's largest wind farms.

"It's going to be a different world," commented Bramlet as he described the future of Floyd County.

Investors and development groups have also recognized the potential of the area and have quickly starting making their moves to stake their claim in the area.

One of these groups was the Floyd County Wind Farm LLC, a group of landowners and community investors who recognized the potential of wind energy. Soon the Floyd County group would lease nearly 51,000 acres of land for the wind farm which will be located north and northeast of Muncy. Around 70 percent of the landowners involved are also stakeholders in the project.

Needing to team up with someone who had a little more experience in the industry, the Floyd County Wind Farm, LLC teamed up with Tri-Global Energy. Tri-Global, who specializes in developing utility-scale community wind power projects, has around 13 current wind projects throughout West Texas and Eastern New Mexico. Together, the partnership began the initial stages of development by erecting a MET tower a little over a year and a half ago. The MET tower would be used to gather data on winds speeds at the Tri-Global Floyd County Wind Farm site.

After a year and half of collecting data, funding for the project would not be enough to cover the cost of performing other developmental tests. It was at this time that Tri-Global and the Floyd County Wind Farm approached the renewable investment group, Westerly Wind.

After reviewing the wind data collected by the MET tower, Westerly Wind recognized the potential in the project and agreed to partner up with the group and provide funding for initial development.

According to Westerly Wind CEO Joe Cofelice, "The South Plains Wind project is well positioned to take full advantage of the construction of CREZ transmission lines and we look forward to advancing development of this project with Floyd County Wind LLC and Tri Global Energy LLC. The continued support of the State of Texas for the development of new wind energy projects was a major driver in our decision to join forces with our partners to advance the South Plains project."

Now with the appropriate funding, the South Plains Wind project will now continue its various studies.

"We're going to put up more MET towers, we're going to get the environmental studies done, -(and) various things that have to be done before a wind farm can actually be built," commented Bramlet.

The growing interest in this particular project has partners and investors in the South Plains Wind project very excited about their future and their chances to finally get turbines spinning.

"That tells me that we have a good project and that our year and half of wind data carries a lot of weight," added Bramlet.

Once the additional MET towers are up the South Plains Wind project will continue to conduct studies for a little over a year.

and First National Bank and hopes to make the other banks in town. He thinks he might like to be a banker one day.

He says he may even go up to Pampa to see Eli's great-grandmother. He really wants to go exploring for rocks in Palo Duro Canyon. He hopes to stop in at Scott Gin and see how cotton is processed there and of course, ride a tractor too. He figures a good banker should know all about farming.

If it works in to his schedule he plans to take in a baseball game of the Whirlwinds. He has a desire to ride a horse, maybe check out the animals at Assiter's. He heard they have some new miniature babies. It would be nice to find someone his size to visit with while here.

Author Jeff Brown created the character of Flat Stanley when his son joked that he thought the bulletin board over his bed would fall on him and flatten him in his sleep. The joke was so funny, Mr. Brown decided to write a story about what would happen if a bulletin board actually did flatten a sleeping boy, and Flat Stanley was born. Even during a quick trip to Lubbock on Thursday evening, Flat Stanley was recognized by a college student in the checkout line and high-fived. If your family or school class would like to know more about Flat Stanley, how to send your own Flat Stanley on an adventure or about his books, check out his official website www.flatstanleybooks.com.

to cut back the days he was there so that he could have more time with his family. In spite of all of these accommodations, Dr. Cox still feels that it is in the best interest of him and his family to relocate away from this area. It is unfortunate for all of us that Dr. Cox has made the decision to leave, but please know that our hospital has done nothing to cause this and has done everything possible to avoid this situation. We greatly appreciate the time and work that he has invested these past few years for our hospital and our patients and wish him the best of luck.

We want to assure you that we remain very committed to our clinics and to our patients and will work to ensure that you continue to receive the highest quality healthcare possible. Our remaining physicians have agreed to provide coverage at our Silverton and Floydada clinics in addition to continuing their primary practices in Lockney. In the meantime, we will be working diligently to recruit another physician to be the full-time physician at our Floydada clinic.

We are very appreciative of our medical staff and know that our hospital would not be here today if not for the dedicated and loyal physicians that we have had throughout the years that have worked tirelessly to assure that we have a wonderful healthcare system available for persons living in our area. We will continue to work hard for all of our patients in fulfilling our mission, which is "to provide excellent healthcare for our patients, with compassion, respect and dignity." We appreciate you and thank you for your support of our hospital and clinics.

Hospital Foundation donates fund to Hospital

Mangold Memorial Hospital Physical Therapy and Fitness Center purchases new equipment

The W. J. Mangold Memorial Hospital Foundation recently approved funding to the hospital for the purchase of equipment for its physical therapy and radiology departments.

Funds donated to the Mangold Memorial Hospital Physical Therapy and Fitness Center were used to purchase five new pieces of equipment for patients and fitness center members. This new equipment includes two exercise bikes, a new commercial-strength treadmill, an elliptical, and a seated elliptical. According to Krystal Delgado, Director of Therapy Services, "The PT Department and Fitness Center are now able to provide an increased variety of exercise options that allow each client to individualize a program that is best for suited for their needs and level. There are now more options available for WB aerobic exercise as well as options to decrease stress to joints. The wider variety meets the needs of the beginner or the person looking for a more vigorous workout." She announced that in celebration of the addition of our new equipment the Fitness Center will be offering a special for new fitness center members. New members will be given $30 off the new member fee through March 31, 2012. Monthly fees thereafter are just $20 a month for an individual or $30 a month for a family.

In the Radiology Department, funds donated by the foundation were used to purchase a bone density scanner. Jerry Klein, Director of Radiology, was extremely pleased with the hospital's decision to purchase this equipment, stating "Our physicians often refer patients to Plainview or Lubbock for these tests, which can now be done at our facility." Tests performed using this equipment can help determine the amount of bone loss, the need for osteoporosis-prevention treatments and the effectiveness of existing treatment plans. It is a great prevention and detection tool for our physicians and patients.

W. J. Mangold Memorial Hospital is very thankful for the hospital foundation and its board members and also for those who have contributed to help make this funding possible. Sharon Hunt, hospital CEO stated that just after the foundation announced this funding to the hospital, she received word from the Cogdell Foundation that they were donating $40,000 to the hospital. She explained that "this donation was very much needed and appreciated and will help to replenish the equipment fund for the hospital to help with future funding needs."
