On ill-fated ferry

82 feared dead

LULING, La. (AP) — A giant floating crane today righted the Mississippi River ferry that capsized after a collision that left up to 82 river commuters dead, but the ferry remained partially submerged.

Efforts continued to bring the ferry to the surface even as divers stood by on the the shore to resume to search for bodies.

Sheriff's officers said 22 bodies were recovered in the hours after the collision, many of them still trapped in cars that were aboard the ferry.

The bodies of many of the missing were believed trapped in the ferry or sunk in the 10 feet of mud on the river bottom, officials said. .

Laboring through the night, workmen on the floating crane attached lines to the 120-by-55-foot ferry, which had settled upside down with its rusted hull protruding after it was rammed by the 664-foot Norwegian tanker Frosta.

Eighteen persons survived the collision, but it was unknown exactly how many were on the George Prince ferry when it was hit broadside just before dawn Wednesday.

Many of the dead were factory workers en route to jobs on the west bank from Destrahan and other east-bank towns about 20 miles upriver from New Orleans.

Some passengers were on foot, but others had remained in their cars with windows rolled up to keep out the cold.

The impact of the collision dumped cars and screaming passengers into the cold, swift water, which reached depths of 80 feet.

Divers searching for survivors on Wednesday reported hearing tapping from the hull, but found only bodies bumping around.

No one was injured aboard the Frosta, which was empty and was heading to Baton Rouge to take on cargo. The freighter remained anchored a mile and a half upstream while the Coast Guard launched an investigation of the accident. The cause of the collision was undertermined.

Sheriff John St. Amant estimated from reports of missing persons from factories and homes in the area that 96 passengers were on the ferry. But he said later that the total probably exceeded 100.

Mistrial motion overruled

Ingram jury retires

By JOHN EDWARDS

"That's the one that shot my son," the mother of the late Michael Ralph Green blurted as she walked from the witness stand in 118th District Court Wednesday afternoon.

"Oh, dear God," she cried. "Oh, dear God."

"Mr. Bailiff," District Judge Ralph W. Caton said

"Oh, dear God," Mrs. Green repeated, leaving the courtroom.

Jay Doug Ingram, 26, Vincent, is being tried for the April 10, 1975, shotgun slaying of Green.

Judge Caton instructed the jury to disregard comments Mrs. Green made after stepping down from the witness chair. Judge Caton overruled the motion of Roger Brown, defense attorney, for a mistrial.

The jury started deliberation at 11:25 a.m. today.

Ingram took the stand to answer this question, which the jury submitted to court earlier:

"Prosecuting attorney

"Witness J.D. Ingram

"How did J.D. Ingram see Mike when he saw him when he couldn't see in front of his car"?

"I have no idea. My vision was changing . . ." Ingram replied.

Changes in ability to see is a symptom Ingram could have had after the fist fight, Dr. W. Thomas Holman, a psychiatrist and neurologist, had testified.

"He (Ingram) was released from jail on Saturday, and my husband and I several days later were sitting on the front porch," Mrs. Green related.

She went inside, came back out and saw Ingram drive by and give them a raspberry, Mrs. Green said, crying and shaking.

Ingram said he had not seen Green's parents during this period, except in a dream or hallucination. Green was smiling in the vision.

Local crowd is told

'Texans to decide' race

By JAMES WERRELL

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, with a gold-plated peanut dangling from the lapel of his suit, instructed a crowd of about 50 at the Howard County Airport to vote for Jimmy Carter. He also asked that they get out and urge their friends and neighbors to vote.

The Governor touched down in Big Spring 2 p.m. Wednesday on one of many stops throughout West Texas touting Carter. He had visited Lubbock and Amarillo before coming to Big Spring, and planned to make speeches in Sweetwater and Abilene before the day was over.

Briscoe was preceded here by a speech from Texas Commissioner of Agriculture John C. White, who set the tone for the afternoon.

"Texas will decide who the next President of the United States will be. We can make a difference," he said. "And the Republicans are not going to change. But it will not be the people in the glass towers in Dallas who decide who the next President will be. The small towns will be the deciding factor in this election."

Gov. Briscoe then stepped to the microphone to continue the attack.

"In Texas we have sound local government, and sound Texas legislature. And it is the Democrats who make it so," said Briscoe. "We also have a zero base budgeting procedure which we borrowed from Governor Carter. When Carter goes to Washington (D.C.) he will do the same for the country. We need a balanced budget."

Briscoe stressed that "fiscal responsibility" is the most important issue in this election.

"President Johnson left a surplus in the budget when Nixon took office. The Republicans have since doubled the national debt. We have the largest deficit in our country's history. We also have the highest rate of unemployment and the highest rate of inflation since the Hoover administration," said the Governor.

When he had ended his speech, he shook hands with the crowd amid strains of the UT fight song played by the Forsan High School Band. Following this, he answered several questions posed by reporters.

Briscoe had told Herald reporters earlier this year that if Webb AFB were to close, he would consider using the base as a state agency facility. What specific agency did he have in mind?

"Well, in the first place, I hope that the base is not closed. I, my office, will work to see that it is not closed," he replied. "A state agency would not completely make up for the significant economic impact of a base closing. But we would want to work with Big Spring to best utilize the facility if Webb were to close.

"Perhaps (the establishment of) Texas Youth Council or Mental Health and Mental Retardation facilities here would help offset the adverse economic impact of a base closure," he added.

GREETING THE GOVERNOR — Howard County's campaign manager for Jimmy Carter and former National Delegate Delano Shaw (center) greets Gov. Dolph Briscoe (left) as he arrived at the Howard County Airport wednesday.

Are these the two specific state agencies he is considering?

"At this point, I would not rule out any state agencies. Big Spring can be assured of the help of the entire state government to help lessen the blow of a closure if it occurs," the Governor replied.

Briscoe was also asked to comment on the fact that two Texas death row prisoners had had dates set for their execution that morning.

"I strongly believe in the death penalty, and, in order for it to be effective, the penalty will have to be carried out," he replied.

Briscoe was also asked about a letter he had received recently from Governor Carter regarding a national energy policy. According to Briscoe, the policy would have "highest priority" in a Carter administration.

In the letter, Carter called for deregulation of new natural gas to provide an incentive for new exploration and for encouragement of enhanced recovery from wells already in production. He also urged a "substantial shift" from the use of oil and gas to coal which, he said, the nation has in abundance.

"Switching to the use of coal will require strong presidential leadership and proper federal incentives to encourage the conversion process," Carter said. "A Carter administration will provike this leadership."

Demos, GOPs plan phone campaign for support

The bells will be ringing all over Howard County for both Ford and Carter between now and election day. Both the Democrats and Republicans intend to mount telephone campaigns designed to drum up the vote. These campaigns will be the major impetus of vote-seeking by both parties, as well as their attempt to roust out as many voters as possible in what has been reported as an apathetic election year.

Howard County Republican chairman Ben Bancroft said his campaign would begin with phone calls to his list of Republican primary voters. He said they number about 1700 in Howard County.

From there Bancroft said the calls would go on, accompanied by radio ads, bumper sticker and buttons.

Democratic chairman Raford Dunagan said his phone campaign would be designed to get the people out "exercising their right and privilege" and "letting the people's choice be known."

At any rate, according to Zirah Bednar, County Tax Assessor, there are 17,090 registered voters in Howard County. There are six working days left until the polls open. That means that to call everyone once the committees will have to make 2,850 calls a day.

So if your phone rings in the next few days, answer it quickly. The people on the other end want you to vote, but they don't have much time to tell you.

UW drive picks up

Howard County United Way collections reached $33,201 Wednesday, roughly 25 per cent of the objective.

Alyce Butler of the United Way office reported that 100 per cent of the employes at Security State Bank and First National Bank had contributed toward the drive.

The campaign is due to gain momentum in the next couple of weeks, as UW teams fan out to make personal contacts. Dearl Pittman, UW president, said he was still optimistic that the objective can be reached by Nov. 15.

United Way division chiefs will gather for a Dutch treat luncheon at the Spanish Inn next Wednesday for an update on the progress of the drive.

Election study slated tonight

County Clerk Margaret Ray will be conducting a school for election workers tonight at 7:30.

The meeting is scheduled for the district court room in the Howard County Courthouse. Assisting with the instruction will be Lucille C'DeBaco of the election division in the Secretary of State's office.

In addition Ray announced that the County Courthouse will be kept open Saturday from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. to permit absentee voting. Absentee voting ends Oct. 29.

Ray also reported the status of absentee balloting in the county at 150 office voters and 573 ballots mailed out.

Q. Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter is going around the country referring to himself as a nuclear engineer. I know he's a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy but is he qualified to be a nuclear engineer?

A. We called the Associated Press about this and they checked on Carter's credentials in Washington. The answer, according to the AP, is "yes." Mr. Carter took several courses in nuclear energy after having earned a bachelor of science degree at the Naval Academy and can rightfully refer to himself as a nuclear engineer, if he wishes — granted that his training was on a so-called elementary level. There's not much doubt, however, but that Mr. Carter is more prepared to talk about Political Science.

Offbeat: Calf was invited

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) — The groom wore a vested suit, the bride wore a blue muslin gauze gown and the calf was decked out in his usual roan coat, white face and canvas halter with metallic-colored chain.

The calf?

Yes, right there with all the other honored guests at Debbie Bryant and Randy Spaet's recent wedding was Gimpy, a 4-month-old member of the moo set who's considered by all in the family to be a part of it.

Gimpy was born to a heifer who died giving birth. It also left the calf with a game leg, and gave him his name. Roger Bryant, father of the bride, sawed the ends off a pair of skis and used them to make a splint. Without a mother, it looked like Gimpy was doomed, but tender loving care — not to mention a giant baby bottle — kept him going.

Mrs. Spaet said inviting the calf was an idea she and her husband came up with although "everybody else thought it was kind of dumb."

indicated affection for Green.

Dr. Holman said Ingram's testimony, as related by Brown, was consistent with symptoms suffered by someone with a moderate concussion.

Ingram and Green fought with fists before the shooting.

Ingram described seeing the clouds part and a bright light and feeling peaceful while Green choked him.

Dr. Holman gave his interpretation of the surreal vision: "Some people say it's resignation to death . . . meaning that the person actually thinks at that time they are dead."

"I had the occasion to interview 30 survivors of the (World War II) Batan death march," Dr. Holman said. "This was a five-year study at no expense to the taxpayers."

Ingram did not shoot Green a second time, testimony indicated. "It would give me the impression he is a different type of person from the hardened criminal," Dr. Holman said.

Other alleged happenings indicated Ingram may have felt remorse for the shooting, Dr. Holman said.

"They do not exclude the possibility of cold-blooded intent?" District Attorney Robert H. Moore III asked.

"Those opinions . . . I couldn't draw a conclusion from that," Dr. Holman replied.

Before going to the home of Donna and Lloyd Gene Nichols, where the shooting happened, Ingram said Bob Daily gave him a "lid" or small plastic bag of marijuana.

Daily denied giving Ingram the substance but testified Ingram could have stolen it from him.

Ingram broke down on the witness stand Wednesday.

Ingram insisted he killed Green in self-defense, that he felt his life was in danger.

When Moore challenged Ingram's version of events, Ingram replied, "what they (previous witnesses) told this jury and the truth are two different things."

"Had anyone asked you to leave the party?" Brown asked Ingram.

"Contrary, they (Donna and Lloyd Nichols) asked me to eat supper," Ingram responded.

"The only thing I said to Mike Green was 'happy birthday,' " Ingram said. "Carol, I said hello to," Ingram added.

Green and he left the party for beer and returned at Green's suggestion, Ingram said.

Green got behind him, Ingram said, and "something hit me." Ingram claimed Green grabbed his arm and swung him.

" 'Whoa, wait a minute, what's going on?' " Ingram said he asked. "When I came to, my head was under Mike Green's car."

Green pulled him out, Ingram said, and continued the fight.

" 'Nobody in the house wants you in there,' " Green said, according to Ingram.

" 'I want you to stay away from Carol,' " Green was quoted.

Ingram said that he ran to the car after the fight "expecting to be hit." He said he did not look back and assumed Green was still at his heels.

Moore asked Ingram to explain why a man in fear of his life and afraid of being hit would run to his car and try to unlock the trunk.

At one point in the testimony Ingram explained that Green came after him a second time because he was still mad, "he couldn't get over it."

"Did Mike ever attack your husband?" defense attorney Brown asked Mrs. Green.

One night, her son came home and sat down on their bed, Mrs. Green recalled.

"He said 'Daddy, do you believe I'm drunk' and he (her husband) said 'Are you, son?' and he (her son) hit him playfully in the ribs," Mrs. Green said.

Mrs. Green said she called the police: "I'm a very nervous person, and I can't stand violence."

Ford, Carter attend same dinner

By the Associated Press

Jimmy Carter and President Ford are heading for the same political dinner tonight and, although their paths will cross, the candidates don't plan to run into each other.

Both candidates are scheduled to be at the Al Smith dinner in New York City tonight. But their schedules have been carefully tailored to keep them from seeing each other. Ford's schedule calls for him to show up at 7 p.m. EDT and leave at 8:30 p.m. with Carter arriving at 9 p.m. and staying for about an hour.

The nonpartisan dinner honors the former New York Democratic governor who was the first Catholic presidential candidate. It is a fixture in New York politics, particularly in presidential election years, and is looked upon as a virtual mandatory event for candidates seeking the Catholic vote.

Carter has been criticized by some members of the Catholic Church hierarchy because he is opposed to a constitutional amendment that would outlaw abortions. Carter, however, says he is personally opposed to abortion.

Ford at one point also opposed a constitutional amendment on abortion, but he now says he would favor an amendment that would let each state decide the abortion question on its own.

Both candidates spent Wednesday at home as they prepared for Friday's final debate in Williamsburg, Va. Their running mates, Democratic Sen. Walter Mondale and Republican Sen. Bob Dole, were campaigning.

Ford held a news conference Wednesday as his "event of the day." And he invited Hungarian freedom fighters to the White House today in what appeared to be another effort to repair damage done when he asserted two weeks ago that the Soviets do not dominate their Eastern European satellites.

Ford's news conference got off to an inauspicious beginning when a White House doorknob broke and Ford couldn't get into the room where the news conference was to be held. After entering through another door, Ford was hit by questions dealing with Watergate issues. He also volunteered harsh criticism of Carter.

Ford, who pardoned resigned President Richard M. Nixon, said he does not plan to issue pardons to other Watergate figures. Asked by a reporter who said there was speculation that pardons would be forthcoming for former Atty. Gen. John N. Michell and Nixon aides H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, Ford replied:

"There is absolutely no validity whatsoever to that rumor."

Ford's attorney general, Edward H. Levi, said shortly after the news conference that the Justice Department will not investigate Ford's role in rallying House Republicans behind a successful effort to block an early investigation of Watergate.

Residents alerted

Howard County Sheriff's Department asked today that Big Spring residents be alert for a phony roof spraying operation which is believed to be headed this way.

According to reports from the Garden City Sheriff's Department, the phony group tried today to pull their third reported rip-off there. The group, which is believed to be traveling in a black and gray Dodge pickup with New Mexico plates, usually attempt to sell their door-to-door services to elderly homeowners, taking payment for spraying a cheap and usually useless substance on the roof.

The group also is believed to have several small children traveling with them.

Howard County Sheriff's Department asks that if you are approached by such persons, call the Sheriff's department in order to verify their credentials, and try to get a license plate number.

Baby is burned, bitten

DALLAS (AP) — An 18-month-old boy remained hospitalized today with cigarette burns and bite wounds on his face while his young parents were in jail on child abuse charges, police said.

Charges of inflicting serious bodily injury to a child were filed Wednesday against Robert Smith, 22, and his wife, Eva Marie, 18, said Justice of the Peace Cleophus R. Steele Jr., who set bond at $50,000 each.

Police said Robert Smith Jr. had bite marks on his upper lip and wounds in his buttocks and chest. His fingernails and toenails were mangled. He also had cigarette burns on his fingers and toes.

The Smiths, originally from Lufkin, had taken their child to a Dallas osteopatic hospital Tuesday night after he had stopped breathing, police quoted the mother as saying. The child was transferred to Parkland Hospital.

State district court records in Lufkin indicate that Smith's parental rights were terminated on Nov. 10, 1975. The child was placed in the custody of the mother.

Court records also indicate Smith had been employed in the Lufkin area as a laborer.

Dallas Detective Sgt. Billy Parker said Smith had been employed by an Oak Cliff welding company.

Parents charged with murder of infant

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — One young Amarillo couple remained jailed and charges were pending against another mother in the unconnected deaths of two infants here, police say.

Lionel Tschudy, 30, and his wife, Beverly, remained in the Potter County jail today under $100,000 bond, charged with murder in connection with the death of their three-month-old son, Terry Wayne.

Authorities also are investigating a similar death involving a two-year-old who was brought to a hospital here early Wednesday morning. Officials indicated charges were pending against the mother.

Justice of the Peace Cliff Roberts, who is also the Potter County coroner, said an autopsy showed the Tschudy child died of malnutrition.

"They brought the baby into the hospital Monday night," said Roberts. "Of course, it was DOA (dead on arrival)."

Roberts said the two-year-old was brought into St. Anthony's Hospital about 7:35 a.m. Wednesday. The autopsy report showed the child died of brain injuries.

Woman nabbed after Huntsville escape

HOUSTON (AP) — Police officers acting on a tip Thursday morning arrested escapee Shirley May Thomas who is serving 50 years in prison for killing a Georgia man last New Year's Day.

A police spokesman said Miss was arrested without incident at a private residence.

Huntsville prison authorities said it was not known how she made her escape early Wednesday. Houston officers returned her to the prison Thursday.

Trial testimony showed the 20-year-old woman shot and killed Randle Marlowe and wounded Alan Shope and Michael Robertson, all of Gainesville, Ga. in a downtown Dallas motel room.

During her trial, she testified the men had kidnaped her in Houston and raped her on the way to Dallas.

The men said they picked her up in a Dallas bar and she agreed to provide sexual favors for money.

The men were in Dallas to attend the Cotton Bowl football game.

Ford still has chance in Texas, campaigner says

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Ford's campaign director in Texas says he thinks Ford still has a chance to carry Texas.

"We have held our own pretty well. We have stayed in striking distance. We have some shot at getting it done," R. Doug Lewis told a news conference Wednesday.

He said he thought the state race was "closer than the private or public polls indicate."

He said he made the comment based on an 11-day trip throughout Texas checking on Ford organizations.

"As I understand it, we are doing well where Republicans traditionally do well, particularly in the urban areas of Dallas and Houston," Lewis said.

Lewis said one finding of the trip was that many courthouse politicians have been "neutralized" by Gov. Dolph Briscoe supporting Jimmy Carter and former Gov. John B. Connally supporting Ford.

"They have been asked by Briscoe to do one thing and by Connally to do another. As a result a lot of them are just sitting on the sidelines. That is somewhat of a plus to our campaign."

"Frankly there is a general apathy," he said. "There is very little voter distinction of what the issues are."

He said Connally would begin an intensive campaign within the state next week that would last until the election. He also said he expected President Ford to make another Texas visit.

In Watergate inquiry

Solons claim Ford coverup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department's refusal to investigate President Ford's role in blocking an early inquiry into Watergate "smacks of a new cover-up," says a member of Congress who asked for the probe.

Ford's attorney general, Edward H. Levi, announced Wednesday that he would not launch an inquiry to determine whether Ford lied about his participation in the succesful move to halt the 1972 Watergate probe by the House Banking Committee.

"There is no credible evidence, new or old, making appropriate the initiation of a further investigation," Levi said.

Levi issued the statement after Ford told a news conference: "What I did was at the request of the responsible people on the (House) Banking and Currency Committee and, under the same circumstances, as I knew it then, I think I would do exactly the same thing."

Rep. Elizabeth D. Holtzman, D-N.Y., and Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., had asked Levi to investigate whether Ford had lied about his role in halting the investigation when he was asked about it during his vice presidential confirmation hearings.

Rep. Holtzman said the attorney general's refusal "is irresponsible and smacks of a new cover-up."

"If the attorney general believes that the President who appointed him is innocent, why is he afraid to investigate the allegations?" she asked.

The two members of Congress also had asked Special Watergate Prosecutor Charles Ruff to investigate. Ruff said last week that such an investigation by his office was not warranted.

Before former President Richard M. Nixon's re-election in 1972, the Banking Committee headed by the late Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., considered probing possible bank law violations in the laundering of Nixon campaign funds used to finance the Watergate break-in.

When the proposed Patman inquiry was mentioned to Nixon during a meeting with his aides on Sept. 15, 1972, Nixon directed that Ford, House Republican leader at the time, be enlisted to help halt the investigation.

Former Nixon counsel John W. Dean III has said the White House feared Patman's probe might have unraveled the Watergate cover-up conspiracy. Dean said Nixon directed two aides, William Timmons and Richard Cook, to talk to Ford about it.

Dean has said he was told that Cook contacted Ford. Timmons and Cook have denied carrying out orders to talk to Ford.

In any case, Ford has said he did talk to Republican members of the committee about blocking the committee's investigation. He met with them twice, and they voted solidly against empowering the committee to issue subpoenas essential to the probe.

At his news conference, Ford was asked if Nixon or anyone acting for him on the White House staff had requested him to do anything in connection with the Patman inquiry.

He replied that he had testifed at his confirmation hearings that he was not contacted by Nixon and had no recollection of any requests from White House aides to coordinate Republican opposition to the probe.

"That was my answer in 1973; it is my testimony, or my answer, to your question today," Ford said.

Criswell says Carter is a 'fine Christian'

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Rev. W. A. Criswell of Dallas said Wednesday Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter is "a fine, Christian man."

Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, said his recent critical remarks concerning Carter's Playboy magazine interview had nothing to do with his ministry.

Criswell addressed a loyalty dinner for Park Hill Baptist Church in North Little Rock.

He took exception to Carter's having granted an interview to Playboy and to Carter's view that churches should be taxed on property other than their buildings. He later endorsed President Ford.

Dr. Dale Cowling, pastor of Little Rock's Second Baptist Church, and a Carter supporter, has been sharply critical of Criswell's statements.

In his address to the church crowd, Criswell refrained from commenting on politics, except to say, in reference to financial support of the church, that any institution must avoid bankruptcy "and that goes for the American government."

In an interview, he said he feared Carter's policies because they were fiscally irresponsible.

Cowling praised Carter for trying to reach Playboy's subscribers with an essentially Christian message.

Criswell said he had no real quarrel with the content of the Playboy interview, which he had read, but he objected to the fact that the interview was granted to "a cheap pornographic magazine."

U·S· writer assures Nobel sweep

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Novelist Saul Bellow was awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature today in an unprecedented sweep by Americans of all five Nobel prizes this year.

The 61-year-old Bellow, born in Canada of Russian Jewish parents and reared in Chicago, was cited "for the human understanding and subtle analysis of contemporary culture that are combined in his work."

Bellow is the seventh American winner of the literature prize and the first since John Steinbeck in 1962.

Among his books are "Humboldt's Gift," "Herzog," "Mr. Sammler's Planet," and "Henderson the Rain King."

During the past two weeks Americans won the 1976 Nobel Prizes in economics, physics, chemistry and medicine

Other American winners of the literature prize have been Sinclair Lewis in 1939, Eugene O'Neill in 1936, Pearl Buck in 1938, William Faulkner in 1949 and Ernest Hemingway in 1954.

Bellow's nine major works deal with mixed up, scarred and scared people who in severe crises of identity and faith strive to find a meaning to life and death.

Despite widespread critical acclaim Saul Bellow has remained unimpressed with himself.

"I feel I've fallen short of my talents," he said after publication of "Humboldt's Gift," which won for him the Pulitzer Prize in 1976. "I've fought inertia in myself. Charlie Citrine, (the main character of "Humboldt's Gift") feels he's snoozed through life, missing the great events of his time. I've fallen short of true wakefulness, too. I've struggled with torpor."

Those statements were made a year ago, as Bellow, 61, was mentioned as the favorite to win the that year's Nobel. It went instead to Italian poet Eugenio Montale in a sharply split vote.

At the time, Bellow, vacationing in Israel, said: "I'm not disappointed. There's plenty of time to win it yet."

Today, he did.

Partly because of the disappointment of last year, Bellow himself was not immediately available for comment.

His most recent work is the nonfiction "To Jerusalem and Back: A Personal Account," based on the journal he kept during his visit to Israel last year.

Born in the Montreal suburb of Lachine, Bellow moved with his family to Chicago when he was 9. Though he received a bachelor's degree in anthropology from Northwestern University in 1937, his goal from his youth on was to be a writer.

Bellow has been a faculty member in the University of Chicago's English Department since 1962 and was chairman of the university's prestigious Committee on Social Thought from 1970 to 1976.

He has been married four times and has three sons.

Though admittedly tempted from time to time to join the more visible literary world of New York, Bellow has remained a Chicagoan, spending most of his life in the Hyde Park neighborhood surrounding the university.

Folklore expert sees snowy, mild winter

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — If you can believe the woolly bear caterpillar, wild geese, and persimmon seeds, the coming winter will be snowy but not very cold, a folklore expert says.

Nevyle Shackelford said he's looked in vain for traditional signs of a hard winter, including dark wide bands on the caterpillar, large flocks of geese flying south, and squirrels scurrying to store nuts.

And you can be sure there'll be a lot of snow because it was foggy during many mornings last August, added Shackelford, who has written about folklore and native wildlife for University of Kentucky agricultural publications.

Shackelford, of Beatyville in south-central Kentucky, said he's seen "several woolly bears, and they just had a little black on each end of them. And I've seen two or three that didn't have any stripe on them at all."

As far as squirrels and other wildlife, he said he's detected no unusual activity, "which is a pretty good indication to me that at least the first part of the winter is going to be mild.

"I usually see jays and woodpeckers and ground squirrels and grey squirrels just working up a storm storing up walnuts and acorns, but they haven't done that this year," Shackelford noted.

Farm

Ford memo cost taxpayers?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Jimmy Carter farm spokesman says the head of a large Agriculture Department agency has distributed at taxpayer expense what he described as political propaganda on behalf of President Ford.

Bobby Smith, chairman of the Carter-Mondale food and agriculture campaign, said the information was sent to state and county offices at the order of Kenneth E. Frick, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) in the department.

The information concerned the Oct. 4 resignation of Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz in the aftermath of protests stirred by crude racial remarks made by Butz.

Smith said in a statement that Frick "sent that political propaganda at government expense to all ASCS employes and state and county ASCS committeemen with instructions to circulate it to their many thousands of employes throughout the nation," Smith said.

William H. Cummings, director of information in Frick's agency, provided a copy of the document at the request of a reporter and said it was distributed "simply to acquaint our people with the actual wording of the various statements" made by Ford and Butz in regard to the latter's resignation.

Cummings had no estimate of the cost of distributing the memo.

Frick's memorandum was signed by him and dated Oct. 7, three days after Butz' resignation. In a comment included in the memo, Frick said it was being distributed so that agency employes could have "accurate information" about the resignation. He wrote that the resignation "will not signal a change in the administration's farm policies."

Frick told state and county agency officials to "please circulate this memo and enclosed statements to all employes in your office."

Bigger citrus crop looming

AUSTIN — The first estimate of the 1976-1977 Texas citrus crop indicates that production will be five per cent greater than last year's crop and 49 per cent greater than the small crop of 1974-1975.

The total citrus crop is forecast at 17.7 million boxes by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Grapefruit production is projected at 11,500,000 boxes, seven per cent above last season's harvest. Agriculture Commissioner John C. White noted.

Production of all oranges remains at 6,200,000 boxes, unchanged from last year. Early and mid-season oranges are forecast at 3,800,000 boxes; Valencia oranges are forecast at 2,4000,000 boxes. Both figures are the same as last year.

Growers report that as a result of ample rainfall during the summer, trees are in good condition. Rust mites have caused some problems.

Harvest of early oranges is under way, but most grapefruit growers are waiting for the fruit to size more before picking it.

Europeans like U. S. wheat

WASHINGTON (AP)—European flour millers and processors say they are satisfied with the quality of this year's U.S. wheat crop according to Great Plains Wheat Inc.

The wheat-market-development organization said in a statement released here that the European comments were gathered by Arlin B. Ward of Kansas State University who recently made a four-week tour of Europe.

Ward reported that "the 1976 hard red winter wheat crop has the strongest overall quality factors since the 1971 crop" and that he found European buyers "well satisfied" with it.

Beef consumption due to rise in '76

WASHINGTON (AP) — Per capita consumption of beef this year is expected to climb to another record, according to the Agriculture Department.

Also, the department said today in a report on the livestock and meat situation, the new 1976 estimate of 128.5 pounds per American is up from a forecast in August of 126.9 pounds. Last year's beef consumption was 120.1 pounds per capita, also a record.

The consumption figures are based on carcass weights of beef before it is cut into retail portions. On a retail weight basis, this year's per capita consumption was put at 95.1 pounds, compared with 93.9 estimated in August and the 1975 average of 88.9 pounds. The rise in beef consumption reflects the larger slaughter rates of cattle the past several years.

Planters don't always beautify

Pictured at right is a concrete planter, designed to make the Big Spring downtown more green and beautiful.

Something's gone wrong, yes?

THIS PLANTER, located on Main Street between 2nd and 3rd, was photographed by Big Spring Herald chief photographer Danny Valdes while it was not contributing to the overall beauty of the downtown. The plant is gone. Trash is piling up.

The concrete planters are beautiful containers for greenery, but they make unsightly trash receptacles.

Why does this happen?

The City of Big Spring has the responsibility for keeping the planters clean and filled with shrubs.

But City Parks Director Jerry Foresyth says it's not an easy task.

"Every time we put in a plant, people tear them out," he says. "The plants sometimes don't last a week."

THE CONCRETE planters aren't big enough to put trees inside them that could perhaps protect themselves from the public, and the citizens seem bent on killing the shrubs with soft drinks and tobacco juice and by pulling off the leaves and limbs.

Foresyth also said that there is a problem of hauling water to the planters.

BICENTENNIAL PLANTER — This concrete planter, located on Main Street between 2nd and 3rd, had no shrub and had filled up with trash. It is painted red, white and blue for the Bicentennial year.

Even so, I have seen some of the planters go without shrubs for rather long periods of time, and I think the city could surely find some plant tough enough to withstand at least some of the public's abuse.

It is a sad comment on Americans that public property is so mistreated. Is there no way to make people be more careful and thoughtful? Must we live to see every effort at beautification become an ugly blot?

Big Spring is fortunate to have an alive and attractive downtown. It didn't happen by accident. It was made to happen by people who cared.

THESE CONCRETE planters were part of a late 1960s beautification project which also improved the sidewalks. The project was carried out by the City of Big Spring with the help and urging of the downtown merchants.

It was a good idea — one that shouldn't be allowed to die from abuse and neglect.

Foresyth said he has plans to paint the planters white following this Bicentennial year when they have been red, white and blue. He said he hopes to put some blooming plants in them next spring.

Perhaps at that time the people won't fill them with trash. Perhaps our community will be able to have something attractive without public vandalism.

In the meantime, it will be hard to be proud of the Bicentennial planter pictured here as it stands on Main Street dressed in red, white and blue and filling up with trash.

Who takes high road?

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — It has been traditional in most presidential campaigns that the men running for President take the high road and their running mates for Vice President take the low road. For some reason it hasn't happened this year.

I discovered this when I took the high road the other day and found a lonely traffic cop sitting in his car.

"You're the first person I've seen up here since the presidential campaign started," he said.

"Where is everybody?" I asked.

"I HAVE no idea," he said. "They sent me up here after the political conventions just to make sure everything was all right. They told me to expect Ford and Carter and busloads of press and campaign aides and advance men. My job was to keep the traffic on the high road moving along. But I haven't had a thing to do."

I looked along the high road and it was completely empty. It was an eerie feeling. "You mean to say neither Carter nor Ford has used the high road once?"

"Nope," he said. "As far as I can tell from my radio they're both taken the low road. I don't understand it. The low road is made of dirt. It has ruts in it and is full of muck and mire. Why they'd want to take it when we have a beautiful concrete highway up here is beyond me."

"THAT'S FUNNY," I told the cop, "because Ford insisted only last week he was taking the high road, but Carter was taking the low road. Then Carter said he tried to take the high road, but Ford wouldn't let him. I wonder if they even know where the high road is."

"Oh, they know where it is, all right," the cop said. "In their nomination speeches they both promised to take it. Millions of people came up here to see them. But in spite of their vows neither man has seen fit to take it just once."

"Maybe their aides won't let them take it. Perhaps the people running Carter's and Ford's campaigns have told them that if they take the high road no one will vote for them. After all, there are a lot more people who live on the low road, and that's where the votes are."

"Well, they're wrong," the cop said. "The American people expect their Presidents to take the high road. That's why we went to so much expense to build it. Nobody likes to see the man they're going to elect as their leader for the next four years throwing mud and rocks at the other fellow. The low road was built for vice-presidential candidates only. That's why we didn't pave it."

"You have a point," I admitted. "As a matter of fact, I came up here on the high road in hopes of getting a glimpse of Ford and Carter myself."

"WELL, DON'T hold your breath," the cop said. "I hear they're both taking the low road for their third debate.

'Negative' mom poses problem

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: my mother, who is 91, lives with us. For the past seven years she has lived in a negative world. Her mind is rational and excellent except that everything is viewed negatively and she utters ugly remarks.

It begins to affect my children and my husband and our relationship to each other. Mother is loved and wanted (although she denies this to all). I could not sleep at night if I had to put her into a nursing home.

Isn't there a drug on the market that would make her see the happier side of life, one that would not injure her? I am literally at wits' end. — R.C.

Tranquilizers might quiet her down and perhaps make her see the "happier" side of life, but I wouldn't go on record as favoring them for her. For one thing, tranquilizers are notorious "maskers" of real ills.

Before you push any panic buttons, have your mother examined for possible nutritional deficiencies. These are not uncommon among very elderly persons. Diet or vitamin supplements often correct the situation.

Too, there can be a subtle circulation impairment, and there are medicines to improve that. Perhaps what your mother really needs is a massive dose of TLC (tender, loving care).

Negative personalities usually reflect insecurity or anxiety. At 91, she should be allowed some eccentricities, I'm sure you will agree. When she gets overly negative, avoid arguing. Just toss if off with, "Oh, I don't think you really mean that," and let it pass. The children can be taught to understand, and I'm sure your husband can learn to forgive an elderly mother's outbursts.

Since her mind and general health do seem basically good, I would also try to avoid the nursing home to allow her to spend her remaining years among loving (and understanding) relatives.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband suffers intolerably with leg pains. He is a very active person and works in construction, climbing, squatting, bending, etc. His legs do not bother him during the day. However, when he goes to bed, no matter how tired he is he cannot lie more than a few minutes before his legs start to ache.

He says they are not cramps, just aches. He rubs them, stretches them, and moves them around, but nothing helps.

He smokes a lot. Would this cause poor circulation? — B.W.

I'm not convinced that this is primarily a circulation problem. If it was, he would have trouble during his working day, and you say he doesn't.

It sounds more like muscle fatigue. That is usually due to excess accumulation of lactic acid in the joint muscles. In a sense you might look at it as a residue from substances muscles "burn" during exercise.

While circulation is not the cause of the accumulation, it can contribute to the aching. The muscle "residue" is normally removed by blood. Cutting down on his smoking might help. Smoking causes spasm (constriction) of the arteries. Such spasms often occur at the end of a day.

Ill-fitting footwear can also contribute to leg muscle problems. My booklet on leg cramps may offer further leads to you. If you'd like a copy send 35 cents to me in care of this newspaper, along with a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any harm in the recreational use of nitrous oxide (laughing gas) aside from the possibility of accidental asphyxiation? — A.P.

Nitrous oxide is a mild anesthetic often used in conjunction with other, stronger types. It is non-toxic. But — and this is a big but — it can often result in a deficiency of white blood cells in the body and hence make one more vulnerable to infection.

By recreational use I assume you mean in order to get a "high." The possibility of accidental asphyxiation, which you seem to accept as a minor thing, should be enough to steer you away from the substance. Coma can result. If that doesn't give you second thoughts the potential for blood problems should.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I get very discouraged at the constant signs of moral decay in our nation. It seems like our world has become morally sick. Is there really any hope for our world? — Mrs. S.H.

DEAR MRS. H.: In one sense I don't think we should be surprised at the moral decay we see around us. The Bible teaches that we live in a sinful world where men are in revolt against the living God and His moral laws. In fact, many Biblical scholars believe that the time just before the Second Coming of Christ will be marked by widespread moral degeneracy.

At the same time, Christians are called to do what they can to fight the evil in this world. Jesus said to His disciples, "Ye are the salt of the earth . . . Ye are the light of the world" (Matthew 5:13, 14). We must do what we can to stop the decay around us and to spread the light of the Gospel. We are to "become blameless and pure, children of God without fault in a crooked and depraved generation, in which you shine like stars in the universe as you hold out the word of life" (Phil. 2:15, 16, New Int'l. Version).

Ultimately, the only hope for this world is Jesus Christ. Someday we will be able to sing with the angels, "the kingdoms of this world are to become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign forever and ever" (Rev. 11:15).

Still worried

Around the rim

James Werrell

I wonder whether the recently formed Libertarian Party will ever amount to anything?

To begin with, I, and I assume most Americans, know very little about the party. What little I know stems from five minutes of TV coverage of its national convention many months ago, and a televised interview of its presidential candidate aired this weekend.

THE CANDIDATE is George McBride, a chubby, unphotogenic attorney from Chicago (I think it was Chicago). Though he flinched at the suggestion, he half admitted during the interview to being a renegade Republican.

Not far into the interview, however, one learned that McBride has a facile mind, an irreverant attitude toward our current method of picking a leader and, most important, some new answers to old problems.

The Libertarian Party seems to be a strange alliance between traditional foes in our current two-party system. More so than any current third party I have heard of, the Libertarians embrace liberals and conservatives, Democrats and Republicans, iconoclasts and traditionalists.

What draws the factions together is basically the attitude that an individual in our society should have the right to forge his own future (or dig his own grave and lie in it) without the interference of the government. This attitude encompasses both the ideal that government should not in any way impede individual growth, economic or otherwise, and that government has no responsibility to protect the individual from his own bad judgment.

WHAT SEEMS to draw people of all political persuasions is the seemingly vast number of pet issues covered by the blanket of libertarian laissez faire government. The Libertarians call for the legalization of marijuana smoking, prostitution, gambling and all the so-called victimless crimes. They call for completely liberalized abortion, stating that a woman herself, and no one else, has the right to determine what is to be done with her body.

And in the same breath, the Libertarians also call for a return to the most basic form of supply-and-demand free enterprise, the abolition of the National Bank, the Federal Drug Administration, Social Security, the Federal Welfare System, National Health Care and a number of other Federally sponsored programs.

It is a strange party of strange bedfellows, but, at the same time, pretty compelling.

THOUGH THERE are probably few who believe that McBride will be our next President, his and his party's ideas lend some meaty ideas to the present lackluster political gristmill. Who among us would not like to get the Federal Government out of his hair in some form or another? That is what makes the Libertarians attractive.

The party's ideas about individual enterprise and the lack of government interference are easy to live with. Where I begin to worry is the party's objection to protective government.

I worry that if the government doesn't tell us that Red Dye Number Two causes cancer, then who will? If automobile manufacturers are not forced by the government to produce safe cars, is the consumer powerful or wise enough to demand them?

Maybe McBride is right. Maybe the consumer and Nader's Raiders are capable of demanding fairness and honesty from big business. But I still worry.

A larger question is whether a third party is viable in this country. The time is certainly ripe, and we shouldn't close our eyes to this alternative.

Both parties are moving so close to that amorphous gray area known as the "middle of the road" that we may become a one-party Democracy.

Make comeback

WASHINGTON — Those pernicious, all-hearing Nixon tapes are back again to haunt the GOP. The tapes seem to support John Dean's charge that in 1972 then-President Richard Nixon used Gerald Ford to help block an early Watergate investigation.

Even more troublesome, we have now established that Nixon purposely altered the tape transcripts to cover up Ford's possible role in stopping the late Rep. Wright Patman, D.-Tex., from investigating Watergate.

PATMAN WAS hot on the trail of the Watergate conspiracy before the 1972 election. He discovered, for example, how the Watergate money had been laundered in Mexico. But the White House brought pressure on his House Banking Committee to halt the probe dead in its tracks.

Ford has conceded that, as House Republican leader, he opposed the probe. But twice he has sworn that he acted on his own without any pressure from the White House. Former White House counsel John Dean has all but called him a liar. Dean now claims that he learned from two White House aides, William Timmons and Richard Cook, that they had consulted with Ford about derailing Patman.

Our own investigation doesn't disprove Ford's sworn testimony. But we have positively established that Nixon altered the transcripts in at least eight instances to conceal Ford's possible involvement. In each instance, Nixon appeared to believe that his staff would be in touch with Ford and that Ford would intervene.

On Sept. 15, 1972, for example, a worried Nixon discussed the Patman probe with aides. He wanted the investigation stopped, he told his aides. Then, referring to Ford, Nixon declared: "Jerry has really got to lead on this. He's got to really be . . ."

Nixon was emphatic. He said Ford should be told: "Now goddamn it, get the hell over with this (ending the probe)." To stress the urgency, Nixon added: "I'm getting into this thing."

These statements were picked up by the hidden microphones in the Oval Office. But Nixon later deleted them from the transcripts.

At another point, Nixon suggested that Rep. William Widnall, R.-N.J., the top Republican on Patman's committee, was too weak to stall the investigation. "Put it down," instructed Nixon, "uh, Jerry should talk to Widnall and, uh, just brace him." This instruction was also deleted from the transcripts.

One of the most significant omissions involved Timmons, whom Dean identified as a go-between with Ford. Nixon said: "The game has to be played awful rough . . . You'll follow through with . . . Who will over there? Who . . . Timmons, or with Ford." This reference to Ford and Timmons was also struck out of the transcripts.

On another part of the tape, Nixon questioned whether Ford could "do anything with Patman." Again, Noxon stated that Ford has "got to know" that Nixon personally wanted the probe killed. Dean acknowledged, according to the tapes, that Ford would be advised Nixon was personally behind the request. These embarrassing remarks, too, were deleted.

THERE IS CLEAR evidence, in short, that Nixon censored the references to Ford from the transcript. This doesn't necessarily mean that Nixon's instructions to his staff were carried out. It is always possible, as Ford insists, that they never spoke to him about the probe. It should also be noted that Ford had nothing to do with editing the transcripts. It wasn't Ford but Nixon who was responsible for the deletions.

Footnote: Timmons and Cook both deny that they talked with Ford about killing the Patman investigation. We have been unable to get any comment from Nixon.

Dear Editor:

It is extremely difficult to address a complicated, technical subject in a short letter. However, because the development of nuclear energy is so vital to the well being of this nation and its citizens, I feel obligated to respond to the letter published Oct. 13 expressing concerns about nuclear energy.

My comments will be general but I will try to assure your readers that nuclear power plants and the commercial use of nuclear power are safe and also correct some of the erroneous information previously given.

Nculear power has been used to produce electricity in the U.S. since 1957. There are 61 nuclear plants producing electricity in the U.S. today. The safety record is perfect. No one has ever been injured by radiation from a commercial nuclear power plant.

At only one step in the nuclear fuel cycle is any radioactivity created that was not already present in nature. This is the fission process in the core of the reactor. Because of the design and manner of operation of nuclear power plants, there is practically no chance that any harmful amount of radioactivity could ever be released.

The claim that one ounce of plutonium could kill every human being on earth will not stand up to the facts. Five tons of plutonium have been released to the atmosphere during nuclear weapons testing without measurable health effects.

The claim that a breeder type reactor plant could explode like a bomb and release a radioactive cloud has been investigated by the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration and found to be unjustified.

Nuclear power has been proven a safe and clean way to produce the electricity we need.

Yarbrough won't comment on suit

HOUSTON (AP) — A state civil district court has been asked by the State Bar of Texas to begin disbarment proceedings against Donald B. Yarbrough, the Democratic nominee for the Texas Supreme Court.

The 40-page lawsuit, filed Wednesday by a grievance committee of the State Bar, accused Yarbrough, 35, a Houston attorney, of violating state and federal securities laws.

The legal action, filed in 113th District Court here, also alleged that Yarbrough violated the attorneys' code of professional responsibility.

Yarbrough was not available for comment. His attorney, Michael Maness, said he had "cursorily" read the allegations but said he would have no statement.

"I'm not going to make any kind of public comment as far as I'm personally concerned," Maness said.

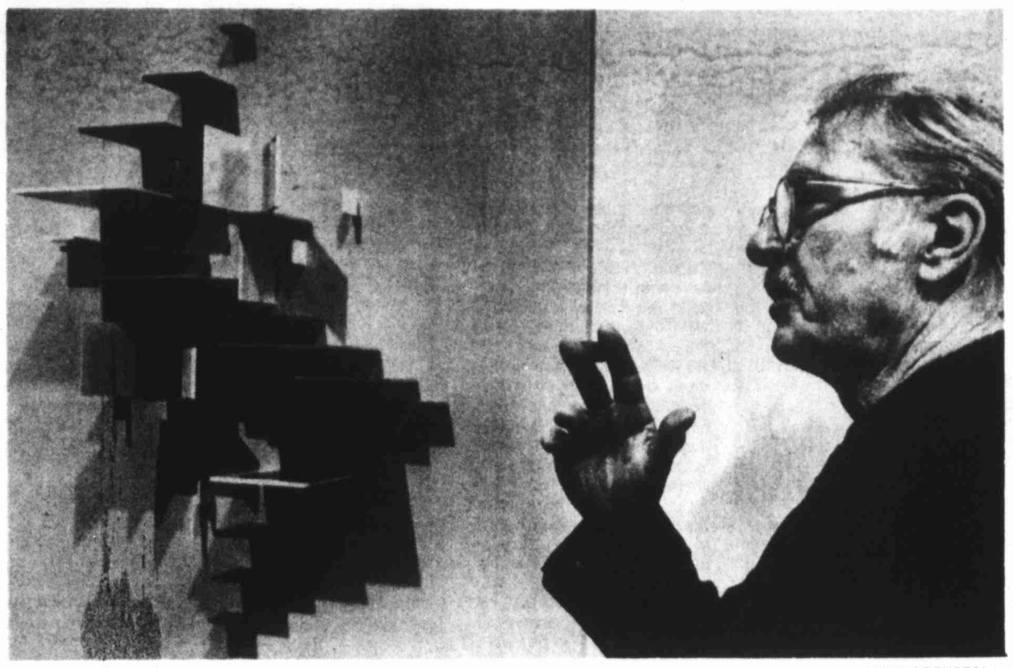

Yarbrough has no Republican opposition to the Nov. 2 general election but is challenged by two write-in candidates, State District Court Judge Sam Houston of Denton and Tom Lorance, a Houston lawyer.

The lawsuit listed 53 allegations against Yarbrough, accusing him of violating the Code of Professional Responsibility, the Texas Securities Act, offenses against property and fraudulent and dishonorable conduct.

The state bar committee also accused Yarbrough of 12 acts of professional misconduct.

The 53 allegations involve Yarbrough's dealings with eight individuals and they involve alleged felony violations of seven state securities laws and one federal securities statute as well as one misdemeanor violation of the Texas Penal Code.

County truck hauled grain, witness says

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A Duval County truck with the same license plate number as one which prosecutors say Ramiro Carrillo misapplied pulled loads of grain onto scales at a Jim Wells County truck firm in 1974, an executive of the firm has testified.

Carrillo's official misconduct trial resumes today.

O. B. Head, general manager of Heldt Bros. Trucks in Alice, testified Wednesday the exempt license plate on the truck carried the number 907-724. That is the same license number on the Duval County truck that Carrillo kept at his ranch while he was a county commissioner.

Heldt Bros. weighed 14 loads of grain pulled by the truck in 15 days in July 1974. The grain was taken to a grain elevator in Alice.

Earlier Wednesday, the prosecutors were instructed not to mention the name O. P. Carrillo, and the defense attorneys were told not to mention the name George Parr.

District Judge Joe Evins of Edinburg instructed attorneys for both sides to restrict themselves to the issue of whether Carrillo, while serving as county commissoner, used the county truck to haul grain.

O. P. Carrillo, the defendant's brother, lost his seat on the 229th District Court bench after conviction by the Senate in January on an impeachment charge that he schemed to steal taxpayers' money through phony equipment rentals.

Consumer prices up again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose four-tenths of a per cent in September as grocery costs declined for the first time in six months, helping offset increases for other goods and services, the government said today.

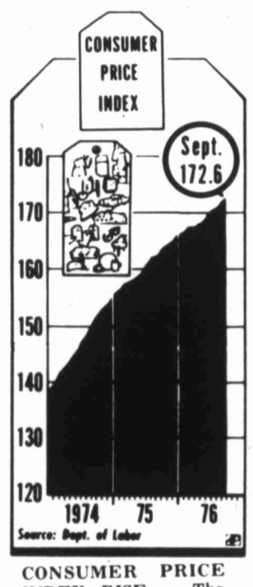

The over-all rise in the consumer price index translates into an annual inflation rate of about 4.9 per cent, a level in line with the basic underlying rate of inflation in the economy of 5 to 6 per cent.

September's rise follows increases of five-tenths of a per cent in each of the previous three months.

While inflation eased slightly last month, the Labor Department said the purchasing power of the average worker's paycheck continued to shrink. The department said real earnings — what's left of salary after deductions for taxes and adjusted for inflation — declined five-tenths of a per cent last month.

The price report was the final major economic statistic to be released before the November elections.

President Ford has claimed that his economic policies have helped cut the inflation rate to half of its 1974 levels, while Democrat Jimmy Carter has charged that the current rate still is twice as high as when the Democrats were in office.

CONSUMER PRICE INDEX RISE — The Consumer Price Index stood at 172.6 in September, an increase of four-tenths of a per cent over August. The figures released by the Labor Department on Thursday translated into an annual inflation rate of about 4.9 per cent.

Consumer prices surged 12.2 per cent in 1974 and slowed to 7 per cent in 1975. Over the past 12 months, prices have risen 5.8 per cent.

But for Americans accustomed to price increases averaging about 2 per cent a year through much of the post-World War II period, the current rate is high.

Over-all, the Consumer Price Index stood at 172.6 in September, meaning a market basket of goods and services costing $100 in 1967 now costs $172.60.

Grocery prices declined in September one-tenth of a per cent after seasonal adjustment, the first decline since March when they fell eight-tenths of a per cent.

Pork and poultry prices declined sharply as they have in recent months. Beef prices also fell but by less than in July or August, the Labor Department said.

Prices of cereal and bakery products dropped for the first time since March, and sugar prices declined sharply. But prices for fresh vegetables, dairy products and coffee continued to increase.

The over-all food index, which includes prices of both store-bought food and restaurant meals, was unchanged in September, following three months of relatively small increases.

Prices for non-food commodities rose four-tenths of a per cent last month, compared with increases of six-tenths of a per cent during the spring and summer months and three-tenths of a per cent early in the year.

The recent rise in wholesale prices indicates that consumer price inflation may accelerate soon. In September, wholesale prices jumped nine-tenths of 1 per cent, the largest increase in 11 months. Higher prices for farm products and most major industrial goods were blamed.

At a news conference Wednesday, President Ford told reporters he was disappointed at a sag in the growth rate of the Gross National Product to 4 per cent in the last quarter. But the President said he was encouraged that the same report showed a decline in the GNP inflation rate.

First F16 rolls off GD line

FORT W[illegible], Tex. (AP) — The first of what may be as many as 4,000 F16 fighter planes has taken to the air in roll-out cermenonies here attended by an estimated 10,000 persons.

Officials from the United States, including Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld, and four European countries Wednesday watched the fighter perform a short distance takeoff and a routine of steep climbs and dives.

Rumsfeld said the fighter development project is a tribute to the cooperation between the U.S. and its NATO allies.

The red, white and blue air combat fighter bore the flags of the United States, Belgium, Denmark, The Netherlands and Norway, the five nations which have announced plans to procure nearly 1,000 of the new fighters.

A spokesman for General Dynamics, which is building the aircraft, put the price tag at $4.6 million per plane.

Rumsfeld said, "It's still expensive but the defense of freedom has a cost. There's no free ride in life."

The Defense Secretary said the F16 should meet NATO and American air defense requirements in the 1980s.

The General Dynamics YF16 won the military "contract of the century" last year in fierce competition with Northrup's YF17, the French Mirageand Sweden's Saab Viggen.

The crowd watched the five-minute demonstration of the multi-mission aircraft, which resembled a feisty hornet as it darted and dived through cloudless skies.

"This program demonstrates the possibilities of co-production with continued cooperation from both sides of the Atlantic," said Rumsfeld, speaking from a platform decorated with the flags of the five North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) countries.

"If such a multi-nation venture can successfully be undertaken with a complex weapons system such as the F16, then surely we can succeed in other efforts as well.

"Through this example," Rumsfeld continued, "alliance members can learn the important lesson that co-production and greater standardization can work to a mutual benefit."

He said the project indicates that participating countries can have the best equipment at the best price, "preserving the two-way street to the benefit of our common defense and the taxpayers of our respective nations."

Asserting that the defense of freedom is not without cost or effort, Rumsfeld recalled this quote from author H. L. Mencken: "We must be willing to pay a price for freedom for no price that is ever asked for it is half the cost of doing without it."

Sledge enlists in air force

Stephen K. Sledge son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sledge of Big Spring, enlisted Oct. 20 in the United States Air Force, according to Sgt. Jerry D. Parks, local Air Force Recruiter.

Steve was a 1976 graduate of Big Spring High School. He has departed for Lackland AFB, Texas to take six weeks of basic military training and has selected the General Aptitude career field.

Need for strong defense is stressed by senator

By MARJ CARPENTER

"We have to win the game of World Freedom and we cannot do this without a strong defense. We need a more efficient government operation and we cannot do this with additional social action programs. We need to keep the right to work law in states like Texas where citizens want the freedom to decide whether they join a labor union or not."

Sen. Bob Dole, stumping for the Ford-Dole ticket in Lubbock Wednesday, hammered out these statements to an overflow crowd in a student center at Texas Tech where 2,000 students cheered inside and more waited in the yard.

A few remarks about the winning Red Raider football team brought the Texas Tech students back to their feet. But they also cheered loud and long over statements that the "Republicans are against gun control of any kind," that "Republicans are for the right to work law," and that "Republicans are for a strong defense coupled with peace, and not sending young men out to fight useless wars."

(AP WIREPHOTO)

BRIEF VISIT — Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, making a swing through Lubbock for the Ford-Dole ticket, visits briefly backstage on the Texas Tech campus with Mrs. Polly Mays, Big Spring's may pro-tem. Mrs. Mays, long active in the Republican party here, was raised in Kansas.

Dole, in a brief exclusive interview with the Herald reporter back stage, agreed that a lot of bases such as Webb were being closed unnecessarily. In his speech, he came out strong for defense and strength and stressed keeping the Defense budget intact.

Backstage, he said, "If we win, we need to take a look at any defense cutbacks and possible base closures." Dole has been a strong backer of the Richards-Gebaur fight to keep that base near Kansas City.

He also said backstage, "It's looking much better in Texas then we dreamed possible a month ago. I still think we're going to win in Texas. Most Texas voters really study the issues before they cast a vote. They're too intelligent to fall for rhetoric."

On stage, he hammered away at the strong influence of George Meany on the Democratic Party. "Somebody asked Meany why he didn't run for President and he answered, 'Why should I step down?'" Dole recalled.

The Vice Presidential nominee also told the group that Carter, after apologizing to Lady Bird Johnson for his comments on Lyndon in a magazine article, has turned around and cast another bad light on Lyndon Johnson in the forthcoming issue of the Ladies Home Journal.

"He's going to have to apologize to Mrs. Johnson again. After he achieves his political purpose, he apologizes to the victim," Dole added. "He has an Alice-in-Wonderland quality which is part of his charm, but he can be unkind to somebody one moment and then trot out all his soft words in apology."

Dole also struck out at the agriculture planks in the Democratic platform and their plans for an export license. "We don't need embargoes. We didn't even need the President Ford embargoes and he has now come out with a statement that there will be no more embargoes except in extreme cases."

He cited an example of agriculture during a Democratic administration when Orville Freeman, then Secretary of Agriculture, was placing what he was referring to as out-of-condition corn into the market to keep the corn price down. "In the corn states, this was a real important issue," Dole recalled.

He reminded the group that "Unless a student is in a ROTC unit or a National Guard Reserve, we see very few of our youth in uniform. The world is at peace because we're strong, but we must remain strong."

"Every war in this century has started in a Democratic administration. As youths who might have to fight, or as parents or grandparents of youths who might have to fight, we need to work for peace in the world. It is the only hope for the Free World."

He pointed out that Carter is already talking about discussing with Russia withdrawing the troops in South Korea. "I hope he knows that it's China that controls North Korea, not Russia," Dole stated.

After being met at the airport and calvacaded to the Tech campus, Dole was honored at a packed-house reception hosted by Lubbock Republicans.

FPC rescinds rate hike set for gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government regulators of natural gas are reducing by $580 million the natural gas price hikes they approved because of prospects that consumers were going to face larger increases than the government intended.

The Federal Power Commission voted Wednesday to rescind 25 per cent of the record $2 billion rate increase it granted to natural gas producers last July.

At that time, the commission had estimated its new legal ceilings on gas prices would mean consumers would pay an additional $1.5 billion nationwide. However, as gas producers began filing their new rate plans with the commission, the FPC staff calculated the actual increase to consumers was going to be more than $2 billion.

The commission's action Wednesday was expected to bring the total increase to natural gas users to about $1.462 billion, just about what the FPC originally estimated.

According to the original estimates, the new ceiling will mean a price increase of 4 to 8 per cent over the next year in the yearly residential gas bill. The FPC has said this will vary widely, ranging from about $5.20 in Florida to about $23.14 in Ohio, depending on the source of the gas and the amount consumed.

These estimates would have been exceeded if the $2 billion total had been allowed.

Gas quality due check

AUSTIN — Comptroller Bob Bullock has announced that his office is initiating a pilot project to test the quality of gasoline sold at service stations in Texas.

Bullock said the Comptroller's Office has received a number of consumer complaints in recent months indicating that some service stations are selling inferior gasoline.

"We've had calls from people whose engines totally burned out a few miles down the road after filling their tanks," he said.

The Comptroller said that Articles 8601-8611, Vernon's Texas Civil Statutes, set out specific gasoline standards and empower his office to test to see that the standards are met.

Selling inferior gasoline to the public without clearly indicating it's substandard quality is a misdemeanor, he added.

Bullock urged motorists who can document that their engines have been damaged by inferior gasoline to call his Motor Fuels Tax Division toll-free from anywhere in Texas at 1-800-252-5555.

The pilot project will be closely coordinated with effots by Sen. Lloyd Doggett of Austin to strengthen the State's power to test and enforce reasonalbe gasoline standards, he said.

Martin has extended

An extender in Martin County and a venture in Borden are among the area oil patch news this week.

The Martin County portion of the Spraberry Trend Area was extended 1⅝ miles southwest with completion of John L. Cox, Midland, No. 1-K Guy Mabee, one mile south of Dean production in the Lacaff multipay field and 15 miles north of Midland, for a daily pumping potential of 107 barrels of 38 gravity oil, plus 15 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 650-1.

Production was through perforations at 8,568-9,929 feet, which had been fractured with 90,000 gallons.

Drilled to 10,020 feet, 4½-inch casing was set at that depth.

Location is 660 feet from the south and west lines of 12-39-2n-C&MMB&A.

Bobby Bonner, Midland will drill the No. 1 Juanita Hull, as a 6,850-foot wildcat in Borden county, one mile south and very slightly east of the current two-well marginal Apclark (lower Spraberry field) and five miles southwest of Gail.

Location is 1,980 feet from the south and east lines of 9-31-4n-T&P. The Apclark field produces at 6,490 feet.

Teachers due yule bonuses

ANDREWS — Christmas cheer comes a little early for the 232 staff members in the Andrews Independent School District. They will be receving bonuses in December, the board of trustees announced after a recent meeting.

Supt. Dr. Norman Hall said a $500 bonus will go to professional personnel, including all teachers and those administrators who did not receive a raise at the beginning of the year. Para-professional personnel, such as aides and clerks, will receive a $250 bonus.

In rewarding teachers who have "worked very hard and done a commendable job," Supt. Hall said the board's approved bonus will cost about $109,636. No raise has been given since August, 1975, Supt. Hall added.

In other business, Dr. Hall reported an increase of about one per cent in this year's enrollment over last year's figure.

The group approved aluminum seats for the 8,500 capacity football stadium at a cost of about $50,000.

Papers sued by candidate

Jerry Sadler, who ran an unsuccessful campaign for the Railroad Commission in the 1976 Democratic primaries, is suing the Associated Press and several newspapers for libel.

Included among the defendants are several sister papers of the Big Spring Herald, among them the Abilene Reporter News, San Angelo Standard Times and the Corpus Christi Caller Times.

The suit was filed in 3rd District Court in Palestine.

The Palestine News Herald stated Wednesday that the suits involved news stories and advertisements critical of Sadler during the campaign.

Sadler is suing the Abilene Reporter News for $1 million, the San Angelo Standard Times for $1 million and the Corpus Christi Caller Times, named jointly in the suit with State Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, for $1.5 million.

The Fort Worth Star Telegram was also named a defendant in the suit.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Finish any work at hand with cooperation of co-workers and clear the slate for bigger things ahead. Improve your appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take no chances with one who has a chip-on-the-shoulder attitude. Doing whatever will please closest ties brings good results now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you handle tasks at home that will make your weekend more pleasurable. Sidestep on who is your nemesis.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you handle important correspondence before it is too late. Take steps to improve your surroundings.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) There are practical affairs that need handling right now. Don't commit yourself too heavily where investments are concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You still have to work on details concerning a new project you started, and this is a good day for such. don't be too extravagant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use your hunches with regard to some new action you have in mind and get excellent results. Strive for happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If your mate asks questions to reach a better understanding, don't become irritated, but be cooperative. Make future plans.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will want to cooperate with others and have happy dealings with them, which is fine provided your progeny does not get into so many complications that it will be difficult to get out of them. Don't neglect ethical training.

Inmates get appointment with death

DALLAS (AP) — The prospect of "riding Sparky" became one legal step closer for two convicts who've had their execution dates officially set by the State of Texas.

Jerry Lane Jurek and Ernest Benjamin Smith Jr. Wednesday became the first of 48 death row inmates to have their appointments with death set offically by the state since the new death penalty law was established in 1973.

They would become the first Texas convicts in 12 years to "ride Sparky," or be electrocuted in the electric chair. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled the law constitutional earlier this year.

Smith, 28 and father of two children, was told Wednesday by Dallas District Judge R.T. Scales that he would die in the electric chair "anytime before sunrise" Nov. 22.

Jurek, 25, was taken Tuesday to Cuero from his death row cell in the Texas Department of Corrections at Huntsville. In Cuero, a judge ordered him executed Jan. 19, also "before sunrise."

Smith, an Army veteran who spent 18 months in Vietnam, stood motionless, hands folded behind his back, while the judge set his execution date. Aside from bidding Scales a "good morning, your honor," the condemned man had nothing to say.

Sheriff's Lt. Harry Weatherford said Smith appeared "real reserved" in court but added, "Back there (in the holdover cell) he was sitting and sipping a cup of coffee and was just as jolly as he could be."

Smith was convicted of the September 1973 killing of convenience store clerk William Moon, 55. An accomplice, Howie Robinson, was also convicted in the robbery-slaying and is currently on death row.

Jurek was convicted Feb. 4, 1974 of the drowning of 10-year-old Wendy Adams, daughter of a Cuero police officer. It was his challenge of the constitutionality of the Texas death penalty that the U.S. Supreme Court ruled on last summer.

Shortly after the Supreme Court's decision, several of the death row inmates spoke with reporters. Smith and Jurek were among them:

"Wouldn't you be scared?" Smith asked reporters. "We're talking about whether you're going to live or die."

Jurek said he had not anticipated the court's decision but was still "going on faith.

"I guess some of the men took it hard," he said. "I took it hard."

The prospect of death loomed closer for Smith Oct. 6 when the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals issued its mandate for him to be executed.

Howard Wilson, one of Smith's court-appointed attorneys, said Wednesday he anticipates an attempt will be made to appeal the case on some constitutional grounds to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"For myself, I feel very sad," said Wilson. "I hope there is some way (to stop the execution) especially in Smith's case because he was a principal in the shooting, not the triggerman."

Smith was returned to his cell Wednesday afternoon to await word from his attorneys on his federal appeal--or to wait for Nov. 22, anytime "before sunrise."

During his July interview, Smith was asked what he would do if he were selected to die tomorrow.

"I'd be thinking about my children and how my dying might affect them," he said.

Talking about the events that led him to death row, Smith said: "A dude just mentioned, 'let's go make some money'. I'm broke and we just end up in a grocery store."

Recipes hail from Belgium

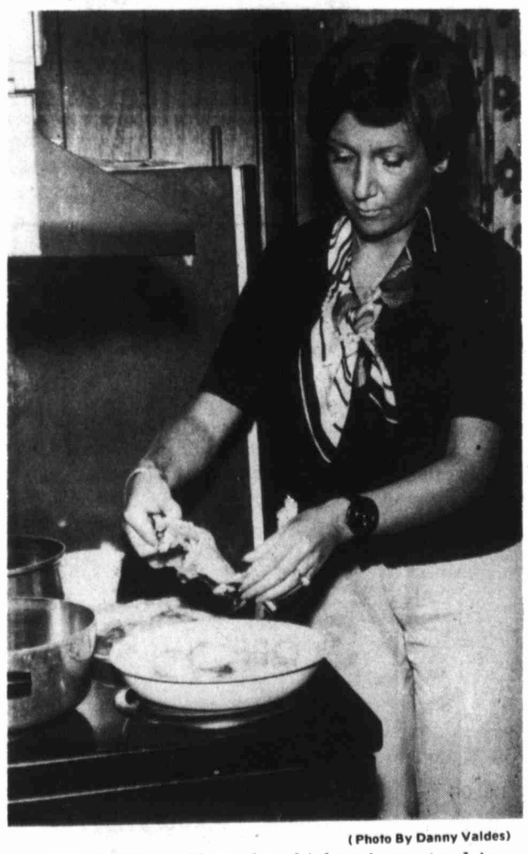

(Photo By Danny Valdes)

VOILA! — The finished product is a beautiful and delicious dish of rice, chicken, eggplant, zucchini, tomatoes, mushrooms and onions cooked with a European flair. It's called Poulet "a la Provencale."

(Photo By Danny Valdes)

STEP ONE — Cutting the vegetables beforehand keeps the cooking smooth and easy.

STEP TWO — Here the chicken is sauteed in butter immediately before adding vegetables and final seasoning.

One of the easiest ways to learn the metric system is to have a great recipe measured metrically. Here from Belgium only a month, Mrs. Jean-Marc Chwialkowski gives several favorite dishes from her country.

Mrs. Chwialkowski moved to Big Spring with her husband, an engineer with Petrofina and originally from Polland.

The recipes are traditional and authentic Belgian and French dishes translated from French.

MOUSSE AU CHOCOLAT

250 grams chocolate
3 eggs
50 grams butter
pinch of salt
2 tbsp. sugar

Heat the chocolate with the butter and stir together well. Add the three egg yolks and the sugar. Beat the egg whites until snowy and firm with the pinch of salt.

Mix delicately the chocolate mixture and the egg whites. Pour into a souffle dish. Put in the refrigerator for six hours. Serve very cold.

CHOUX-FLEUR AU GRATIN
(Cauliflower with Cheese)

1 cauliflower
200 grams Gruyere cheese (Swiss cheese will do)
1 tbsp. butter
1 tbsp. flour
50 cl. (centi-liters) milk
1 egg yolk
salt, pepper and

Boil or steam the cauliflower in salted water. Make the cheese sauce by melting the butter in a small sauce pan and adding flour, then milk and stir until creamy. Add ¾ of the grated cheese and egg yolk. Season with salt, pepper and spice.

Add the flowerettes of the cauliflower to the sauce and mix delicately. Pour into a shallow pan or chafing dish.

Cover with the rest of the cheese and put in the oven at 400 degrees. When the top of the dish starts to brown, serve immediately. Serves foiur persons.

ROASTBEEF

"BOUQUETIERE"

1 roast — any cut; tenderloin or center cut works best
1 cauliflower
1 pkg. of asparagus
medium-sized can of tiny peas
several carrots — about 4 or 5 4 tomatoes
salt, pepper
thyme, laurel, (bay leave), garlic or garlic powder
1 onion
butter

Cook the roast beef in the oven seasoned with salt, pepper, thyme, laurel and garlic uncovered. Judge cooking time and heat according to cut.

Cook the vegetables slightly in salted, boiling water. Drain and saute in butter, each variety of vegetables sauted separately with salt and pepper except the little peas. The peas should be sauteed with the finely minced onion in butter, salt and pepper.

CREPES "SUZETTE"

8 thin crepes juice of 4 oranges
juice of 1 lemon
2 tsp. powdered sugar
2 shot glasses of Grand Marnier (liquer)
50 grams butter

CREPES

1¼ c. flour
2 tbsp. sugar
pinch of salt
3 eggs
1½ c. milk
2 tbsp. butter (melted)

Prepare the crepes in advance. Melt the butter in a frying pan. Add the juice of the oranges and lemon, sugar and 1 shot of Grand Marnier. Heat the crepes flat in the mixture. Fold them into four crepes and leave in the frying pan. Unfold them, turn them in the pan on opposite side and refold them. Turn the heat on high. Add the second shot glass of Grand Marnier. Heat to boiling and light with a match.

Serve immediately.

POIRE "BELLE HELENE"

4 pears in heavy syrup
250 grams chocolate
almond or vanilla ice cream
whipped cream

Heat the chocolate on low and let sit on warm. Put two scoops of ice cream in each serving dish (you can use ice cream bowls). Put ½ of each pear on each side of the scoops of ice cream. Add the melted chocolate when ready to serve. Add the whipped cream on top of each dish. Serves 4.

POULET "A LA PROVENCALE"

4 large pieces of chicken breasts
½ lb. mushrooms or 1 small can
1 zuchini
1 green pepper
1 green chili — large green variety
1 small eggplant
2 tomatoes (cut to garnish)
1 small tin of peeled tomatoes
2 red onions, medium
3 cloves of garlic
pepper and salt to taste
thyme and laurel (a bay leave)
fine herbs (poultry seasoning may be used)
50 grams butter
4 cubes of chicken bouillion
2 c. cooked rice

Cut the vegetables in one inch pieces. Saute until brown; put pieces of chicken in butter.

Transfer the chicken to a stew pot and add the chopped vegetables to the chicken. Season with salt, pepper, thyme, laurel (bay) and fine herbs. Let simmer on a low fire. Adjust seasoning to taste.

Serve with rice cooked in the two cubes of chicken bouillion and salt and a little rose wine, extra-dry.

The chicken and vegetables may be served over the rice on a large platter garnished with the tomatoes in a large serving platter.

Serves 4.

OMELETTE AUX PIMENTS

8 eggs
2 chile peppers, large green variety
1 tbsp. tomato paste
100 grams grated cheese (Swiss)
2 tomatoes fresh
salt, pepper
butter, melted

Mix all the ingredients and season. Pour into a shallow baking dish. Cook in the oven at 300 degrees until fully cooked. To see if it is completely cooked, stick a knife into the omelette. If the omelette is fully cooked, it will not stick to the knife.

Serve with a main dish of baked chicken and red wine.

CELERIS AU GRATIN
(Baked celery with cheese)

4 full-length sticks of celery
8 slices of ham
400 grams grated Gruyere cheese (Swiss cheese is very similar)
1 c. milk
butter
yolk of one egg
salt and pepper
1 tbsp. flour

Boil in salted water the celery until tender. Cut into two parts each stick. Roll each ½ stick of celery into one slice of ham. Season with salt and pepper.

Make the cheese sauce. Melt a tablespoon of butter. Add the flour. Add the milk and cook until the moment the sauce is creamy. Add ¾ of the grated cheese and the egg yolk. Season the sauce with salt, pepper and spice.

Put the rolled celery into a shallow pan or chafing dish. Pour the cheese sauce over the rolled celery, and sprinkle the rest of the cheese on top. Dot lightly with a little butter and put in the middle of an oven at 400 degrees until cheese begins to brown, about 15 minutes.

The other woman tells her side

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from HIS WIFE who wrote an open letter to all women who were in love with a married man. I hope you will give me equal space to respond:

DEAR WIFE: He has never told me you are a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) or that you have neglected him sexually. Instead he speaks only in glowing terms of you, how you stood by him in rough years, through all the difficult times.

There is no talk of divorce. I know I will never see him on Sundays or holidays. I don't call him at home. We meet at hotels since there are teenagers at my place. Yes, I sometimes spend more on him—on transportation, gas for the car, whatever. But we do not measure our relationship in money. And I insist he not buy me gifts.

I know how you feel about social status, financial security and retirement income. I ended my loveless, unhappy marriage without regard to such things. I love your husband; and we share a need for each other that has nothing to do with your set of values. But because your husband is a good man and would never hurt you, I know we will probably never be together.

I never went after your husband; he pursued me, because I recognized his pain and bewilderment, his triumphs and delights, in a way you have forgotten or belittled. He needed to be actively loved, or I would not be a part of his life.

THE OTHER WOMAN

DEAR ABBY: I beg to differ with you when you state that a girl can tell if a man is married because she never sees him on weekends or holidays.

I went with Rob for 14 months and he was with me morning, noon and night every day of the week. And last Christmas he came to my house at 9 in the evening and stayed until 10 the next morning until after the kids had opened their gifts. Then he left, saying he had to go to a family dinner. He came back again at 7 that evening and left at 6 the next morning.

When my little boy had an operation, Rob stayed at the hospital with me all day and night. Finally, on New Year's Eve, I learned he was married when we ran into some people who knew his wife.

He confessed it was true, and said he and his wife didn't sleep together but she didn't believe in divorce. I figured if he treated her that way, he'd eventually treat me that way, too, so I kicked him out. Why would a woman want to hang on to a louse like that?

STILL SINGLE AND LOOKING

DEAR STILL LOOKING: Because she probably figures she's better off with him than without him. I think he showed his "lousiness" more by lying to you about his marital status than by seeking satisfaction outside marriage to a woman who refused to sleep with him but refused to divorce him.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to pose an ethical problem faced by many doctors. Here's the scenario:

A husband phones to say that he has picked up a case of gonorrhea and fears he has infected his wife. Since the wife is coming in for a routine checkup he wants you to diagnose and treat her without telling her what she has.

Should the doctor:

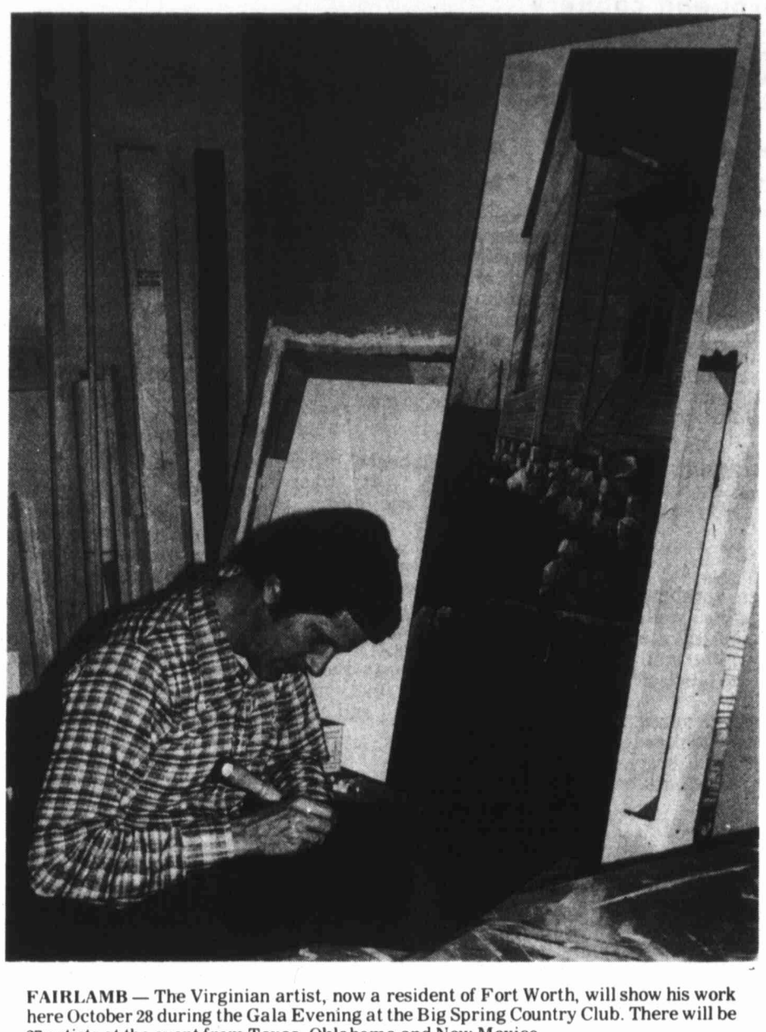

A. Refuse subterfuge and insist that the guy level with his wife?

B. Agree to test for gonorrhea, and if the test is positive, tell the wife the whole story?

C. Go all out and even lie a little to keep the philandering husband out of trouble?

ALABAMA M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Under no circumstances would an ethical doctor treat a patient for a venereal disease without telling her what she has. (She could conceivably infect others.) And in the interest of public health, instruct the V.D. source to tell his wife—or you will.

FAIRLAMB — The Virginian artist, now a resident of Fort Worth, will show his work here October 28 during the Gala Evening at the Big Spring Country Club. There will be 27 artists at the event from Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Gala artists get ready

As the date for the Gala Evening nears, set for October 28 at the Big Spring Country Club, artists all over the Southwest are getting ready to show their work. One will be Burr Fairlamb.

The artists attending the function will contribute a percentage of their sales that night to the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. The center depends heavily on the donations collected that night since all patients are accepted there, despite ability to pay.

Born in Norfolk, Virginia in 1935, Burr Fairlamb's fascination with drawing dates as far back in his childhood as he can remember.

After moving to Texas, his interest in art was recognized and encouraged by his teachers, principally Beatrice Dunning, under whose tutelage he compiled a record number of Scholastic Art awards. During the intervening years, he attended the University of Colorado and TCU; he was studied with Max Butler, James Sterett, Bror Utter, McKee Trotter, and David Conn, and has been influenced by such diverse artists as Paul Klee, Rembrandt, Picasso, Goya, Homer and Andrew Wyeth.

As a result, his work at times has ranged from totally abstract to impressionistic to the traditional realism with which he is now deeply involved. Every painting for him purposely presents a problem-solving situation, and his goal is a successful merger of the reality of the subject and what he wishes the viewer to see — elements which are recognizable to the viewer but which primarily move the viewer through abstract design.

Actual brushwork consumes the smaller percentage of his time, with the majority being spent on how best to express the personal statement he wishes to make, regardless of the subject. Fairlamb lives and maintains his studio in Fort Worth, the studio being a large garage apartment behind the sixty-year-old home he and his wife are renovating.

He has shown at the Texas Art Gallery in Dallas, the Brazos Gallery in Granbury and the Meinhard Gallery in Houston.

In addition, exhibitions of his work have been sought by several recently opened galleries as well as banks with exhibition space. His works are in the private collections of banks, business firms and numerous individuals across Texas. Even though he occasionally sells to visitors at his home his work is currently handled by E. Ralph Carr as sole agent in Fort Worth.

Art, craft sale coming

The Big Spring Art Association will present their annual Pre-Christmas Art Sale November 26th at Highland Shopping Center Mall.

The group announced that the recent and forthcoming sales in Big Spring titled "Starving Artist Sale" do not include the works of local artists and are not sponsored by any local art group.

At the October meeting of the Big Spring Art Association, Martha "Dalmar" Conway presented a program of slides with commentary on the paintings of famous artists up to the 20th century. Mrs. Conway was recently honored by having her painting selected to be a part of the "Big Country Circuit Show" which will be in our city on tour at a future date.

Terry Patterson was named area director for "Big Country Assn." replacing Roberta Ross, both of Big Spring.

"Tipping of the Brush" honors were voted to Arlys Scott and Bess Wagner for paintings which will be shown at State National Bank during the month of November.

New members in the association are Robert Folding, June Harbin and Mary Rough. Hostesses for the October meeting were Corma Stovall, Linda Roy and Flora Lee Brown.

Interested persons are welcome to attend meetings of the Art Assn. held on the third Tuesday of each month at the Kentwood Center. The Robert Gartland Watercolor workshop will be Nov. 1-4 at the Hobby Center. Contact Hazel Duggan (Ph. 263-7464) or Barbara Rogers (Ph. 263-0902 after 5 p.m.) for information.

Lola Knowles gives program

A program titled, "What Altrusa Is" was given by Lola Knowles during the October 14 meeting of the Altrusa Club at Coker's Restaurant.

Mrs. Knowles explained that Altrusa is an organization of business and professional women of different classifications. There are hundreds of both major and minor classifications in a guide prepared by the international office.

The main purpose of the club, she explained, is to cultivate friendly relationships and understanding between women actively engaged in business and professions. Also, they try to encourage high professional standards and give vocational information and be of service to both young and mature women.

The group also participates in community and public affairs and promotes education and cultural training and improvement. Mrs. Knowles noted that membership has been classified for several reasons. Among them are insurance of the finest personnel and representation, bringing together women with similar interests and keeping the size of the club small enough to assure rapid acquaintance.

Obligations of members was the final part of Mrs. Knowles program. They include learning bylaws, practicing the club's objectives, paying dues and developing their career abilities fully.

Mrs. Myrtle Tatum, president, announced that Frances Hendrick and Jeanette Barnett were attending the District Conference in Dallas October 16-18. Katheryn Perry's resignation from the club was accepted with regret the club said.

President's project set

Big Spring Drove 61 of the BPO Does met in the Elks Lodge Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Alma George reported that Ann Carson and Kay Williams helped serve coffee and donuts to the patients at the VA hospital Monday morning.

Mrs. Ann Rutherford said the sale gifts should arrive this week and will be delivered to the members to sell.

Mrs. Karen Mason will represent the Drove at the Hall Luncheon for Volunteers at the State Hospital Thursday, oct. 21.

Plan for the President's Project will begin soon, said Mrs. Kay Williams.

Next meeting will be at 8 a.m. Nov. 2 in the Elks Lodge.

Wilder discusses this year's Hawks

Harold Wilder doesn't want to hazard a guess as to how his Howard College Hawks will fare in the Western Conference basketball chase. One thing is for certain — it will be tougher than ever before.

"We once could count on beating about three teams by showing up," he told the Downtown Lions at their Wednesday meeting at the Western Sizzler. "Now everybody's tough."

All things being equal, Wilder said Texas Western — last year's champs — with four returning starters, has to be considered the favorite.

Among most promising and seasoned players on his squad Wilder counted Paul Cathey (6-6), David Crooks (6-0), Reggie Leffall (6-5), Mike Little (6-3), Marc Meyers (5-10), Daryl Scoggins (6-6), Lowell Walker (6-6), and Eugene Williams (6-6). Other squadmen with promise are Joe Cooper (6-9), Rick Hogue (5-10), Johnny James (6-7), Alex Norwood (5-10), Jim Ray (6-2).

"When you come down to it," he said, "it's the players who make the team, and I feel that we have a good group."

One who got away was Cesar Fantauzzi, from New York. Cesar, who played for the Puerto Rico team which lost to the Olympic champion U.S. team by only one point, came her but West Texas was too different from the metropolis or Puerto Rico.

HC Rodeo team looks national

The Howard College Men's Rodeo Team has made an impressive showing so far this season. After participating in four college rodeos this school year, they have 5 trophies and 4 saddles which include the team trophy in three of the four rodeos: the Portales, the Sul Ross, and the Texas Tech rodeos.

In addition, Pat Luton was named all-around cowboy at the Portales rodeo and Charlie Burnes received all-around cowboy honors at Sul Ross.

The Men's Team competes in bareback riding, saddlebronc riding, bull riding, calf-roping, team roping, and bull dogging.

In the most recent rodeo at Texas Tech, Charlie Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. L.J. Burns, Route 1, Cement, Oklahoma, and a sophomore at Howard College, split second and third the first go-round and third and fourth in the short go-round, winning third in the average in the bare back riding.

Pat Luton, freshman, son of Mrs. R.W. Luton, Bastrop, Texas, split second and third in the bare back riding and wor fourth in bull riding.

M..ck Altizer, from Del Rio, Tex., tied his first calf in 8.3 seconds to win first go-round. His time of 9.4 on the second calf won him second in the short-go-round and put his average at the amazing time of 17.7 for two head. Mack teamed up with Olin Smith in the team roping to win the first go-round in a blazing time of 5.3 seconds.

Bryon Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Walker, Rt. 2, Palmer, Texas, won the steer wrestling with an average of 10.2 on two big steers. He won the first go-round with a 4.1 and third in short go with a 6.1.

Howard College finished the Tech rodeo with 360 points for team trophy and were 100 points ahead of the second place team.

Other team members who contributed to the outstanding record of the HC Men's Team are: Ken Smith, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Smith of Carlsbad, New Mexico; Ron Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Mitchell, Gail Route, Big Spring; Rex Cox from Gail; Bud Marshall, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marshall, 262 Carlton Road, Laredo, Texas; Tim Polk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Polk, 1805 Ft. King Road, Dade, Florida; Kelly Marzett from Dallas; Joe Martinez from Pecos; and John Hutto, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Hutto of Del Rio.

The men's team is working toward qualifying for the National Rodeo Finals to be held in June. A team qualifies if it has enough points. Points are taken from the five best rodeos entered by the team. There will be 12 rodeos this school year. It took 1230 points to qualify for the Nationals last year and in four rodeos this year the HC team already has amassed 1385.

Upcoming rodeos this semester include a rodeo at Amarillo sponsored by West Texas State University this weekend and Clarendon College's rodeo at Clarendon on October 30-31. During the second semester, there will be six more rodeos.

Tomorrow: The women's team.

WEGNER STOPPED SHORT — Robbie Wegner (33), fullback for the Big Spring Steers is shown here being mobbed by the entire left side of the Permian Panther defensive line as he tries for first down yardage in the third quarter. Stopped here, he made substantial gains intermittently throughout the game. The Steers will be facing a much bigger and quicker defensive line in Midland Lee this Friday night in Big Spring's Memorial Stadium.

Celtics defend title

NBA opens season

By the Associated Press

The Boston Celtics, bloodied and battered but as yet unbowed, begin defense of their National Basketball Association championship tonight when they take on the Indiana Pacers in one of four National Basketball Association season openers.

Three new coaches will be involved in tonight's other games, all of them making their debuts on the road.

The Los Angeles Lakers, with Jerry West at the helm, take on the New York Knicks; the Houston Rockets open under Tom Nissalke against the Atlanta Hawks, and the Buffalo Braves, led by Tates Locke, meet the Milwaukee Bucks.

The other members of the 22-team NBA begin their 81-game seasons over the weekend.

Boston, which beat Phoenix in six games in the playoff finals last spring, is not in the best of shape right now.

Center Dave Cowens and forward John Havlicek, the 36-year-old team captain, are both questionable for the opener because of back problems. Cowens worked out with the club Wednesday after missing a number of preseason games, but Havlicek did not take part in that final practice session.

Power forward Paul Silas was traded to Denver Wednesday in a three-way deal that brings Curtis Rowe from Detroit, but Rowe isn't expected to play in the opener.

Sidney Wicks, purchased from Portland last week in an effort to bolster the frontcourt, will start at one forward position, although he has been hampered by a groin pull. "He'll go as far as he can, but we don't know how far that will be," a Celtics spokesman said.

Havlicek and Cowens are also penciled in as starters, but if they can't make it veterans Steve Kuberski and Jim Ard will get the call.

Indiana, meanwhile, has its own problems. Perhaps the least imposing of the four ABA teams to be admitted to the expanded NBA, the Pacers were further weakened by the loss of starting center Len Elmore and reserve guard Kevin Joyce, both of whom are out for the season with knee injuries.

That puts more of a burden on Billy Knight, the brilliant forward who was second in the ABA in scoring last season with a 28.1 average. And he's been hurting lately, a sprained ankle forcing him to miss the Pacers' final preseason test.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, coming off perhaps his best season ever when he won Most Valuable Player honors for the fourth time, is again the focus of things on the Lakers. He finished the preseason with a 28-point effort against Phoneix and appears in top form.

Guard Lucius Allen has also looked good in preseason, averaging 14 points and six steals.

The Lakers were unable to obtain the power forward they sought during the off-season, but did pick up a couple of competent guards from the ABA.

Pastorini recovering

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini, recovering from injuries suffered in a traffic accident, says he will be physically fit for the Oilers big American Football Conference Central Division game against Cincinnati Sunday.

Pastorini, suffered minor cuts and bruises early Tuesday when his camper truck struck a clump of trees.

He spent Tuesday night in a local hospital but went through a routine practice Wednesday.

V-ball tonight!

"We're thrilled to death," said Steerette head coach Nancy Deason about her squad's Tuesday night victory over Abilene, and the defeat of Midland High by Permian.

The local volleyball sextet is now 1-0 in the second half of district play, after finishing the first half tied with Mildand.

But all the cupcakes are on the line tonight when the squad hosts that Midland High team at 7:30 in the BSHS gym. The Steerettes have an excellent chance for capturing the district crown, and Deason urges all enthusiasts to attend the game and cheer for the home-team.

In Tuesday night's action, the Junior Varsity also defeated Abilene High, 15-3 and 15-6. Brenda Beil was high-pointer with nine tallies, and Rose Magers, Becky Reagan, and Eva Rich also put in a good defensive effort. Tracy McClean was noted for her defensive maneuvers.

Steers await Lee

Dixie bandits coming!

By DANNY REAGAN
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Steers have another tough task facing them this Friday night when they play host to the Midland Lee Rebels in Memorial Stadium.

Midland Lee could possibly be the second-best overall team in the district. On the season, Lee is 5-1, beating two tough El Paso squads, a scrappy Plainview bunch, and two District 5-4A opponents, San Angelo and Abilene Cooper. Their only loss was a nip-and-tucker with Odessa, 15-14.

Offensively, Lee throws up a Houston Veer type offense, the same as used by many colleges, including the very successful Texas Tech Red Raiders. Lee's best ball carrier, who runs extremely well out of the Veer, is Clyde Gary, a 175-pound senior who led the district last year in rushing, and who currently has a 9.4 average.

Lee alternates their quarterbacks, and both are considered good passers and "excellent runners." David Hobbs, 185-pound senior is perhaps the best pilot from the option, but Brad Wright, 190-pound senior, is the ace passer.

Lee also has a big, strong offensive line, led by David Dakil, Donald Salinas and the bruiser who many people think is the best football player in the league this year, Brian Ramsey, a 225-pound senior strong-side tackle.

Lee averages in at over 200 pounds on the line, and is as big as Midland High and quicker.

The favorite target of both quarterbacks is split-end John Lowrey, a 183-pound senior.

Defensively, the Lee tough guys utilize an Oakie 5-2 system, where the noseguard jump around a lot and his buddies follow his movements frequently by stunting.

The two talented noseguards are James Lundy and Jeff Degenfelder, both seniors. "They are both quick as a cat," said Steer coach Don Robbins.

"They have a 'stic em' type of defense," said Robbins. "They lay back their ears and come at you."

The defensive backfield that the Steer passing game will be up against consists of a varied configuration. The four cornerbacks lineup and play some zone, and generally mix up their defenses. Theirs is similar to the type of pass defense Big Spring fielded.

The Bovines' opponents have scored an average of 14 points on them in the three district games, and if the Steers are to turn their season around there is one thing they must do, according to head coach Robbins.

"We have to play 48 minutes of football," Robbins said. "During the first quarter and a half against Permian, we played pretty good football, but then we lost our poise because of a couple of mistakes and didn't play football for the remainder of the game."

"We'll be satisfied and proud of our boys if they get out there and play and do their best. Even if they lose, that's all you can ask for," said Robbins.

Game time is 8 o'clock Friday night in Memorial Stadium with cold but clear weather predicted for the game. Robbins urges the fans to turn out and support his Steers.

"We won't give up, and they won't either," he concluded.

Series on again

NEW YORK (AP) — The fourth game of the World Series between the Cincinnati Reds and New York Yankees, postponed because of rain, was expected to be played tonight — but under chilly weather conditions.

'I want to go home'

Lackluster series ends tonight?

NEW YORK (AP) — The Summer Game has become a waiting game and the wait could end tonight.

The World Series of 1976, lacking the drama that most of the October Classics usually bring, took a night off Wednesday, pleasing nobody.

Not the all-but-champion Cincinnati Reds.

Not the all-but-vanquished New York Yankees.

Not the all-but-bored fans.

"I don't like a day off. I would like to get it over with. The season's over. I want to go home," Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion said after Wednesday night's game was washed out.

"A postponement doesn't do a thing for us now," said manager Billy Martin, whose Yankees face the prospect of being swept in four games, the first team to go under in four straight since Baltimore rolled over Los Angeles in 1966.

"Why did you call the game off?" asked one upstate New York fan, telephoning Bowie Kuhn's office shortly after the Commissioner's 2 p.m. decision to postpone the game.

Tonight's game begins at 8:30 p.m. EDT. If a fifth game is necessary, it would be played Friday. But when Friday is not known.

Because of the debate between presidential candidates Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford, the game originally scheduled for 8:30 p.m. may be pushed up to an afternoon or twilight starting time.

The Reds came into this Series trying to achieve a feat unmatched by a National League team since the 1921-22 New York Giants, namely to win successive World Series.

Now the Yankees are trying to achieve a feat never before accomplished in the Series' 72-year history, namely to win a championship after losing the first three games.

The Yanks say they are not about to roll over and play dead. "We're not quitters," says Martin. "I am not a quitter and my guys aren't. We have been a comeback club all year." And second baseman Willie Randolph adds, "We can play our game and come back."

But Will McEnaney, the reliever who took over for rookie Pat Zachry and nailed down Cincinnati's 6-2 victory Tuesday night, sees things differently.

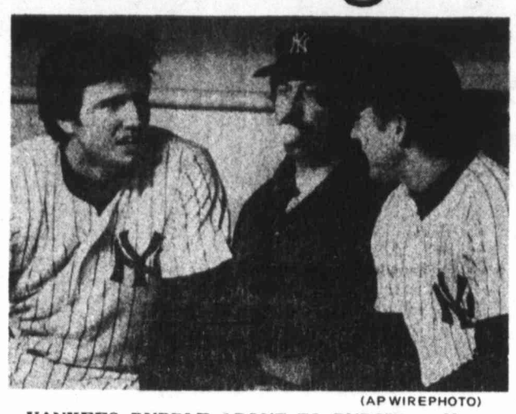

"The pressure is really on them now," McEnaney says. "They have to throw away their game plan and start from scratch."

The Reds are sticking with their game plan. That means Gary Nolan will be pitching for them tonight. If Martin sticks to his plan, Ed Figueroa will be the Yankee starter. But the rain delay has given him an option. He could start Catfish Hunter.

Sparky Anderson, the outspoken manager of the Reds, thinks this Series should have ended a long time ago. "The Series should be over by October 1," he says. "That would be best for everybody. But then it is not my job to run baseball."

His job is to run what he believes is the best team in several decades.

"I'd like to win the Series in four games," he told newsmen Wednesday. "In order to make you ask the question, 'Are we as good as the old Dodger and Yankee teams of the 1960s?'"

DALLAS COWBOYS

PRESTON RETURNS!

DALLAS (AP) — Halfback Preston Pearson returns to fulltime duty Sunday and Dallas Coach Tom Landry hopes the veteran, clutch performer brings some magic to the suddenly human Cowboy offense against the scrappy Chicago Bears.

Dallas (5-1) and Chicago (3-3) are on the rebound from tough losses last week in which both teams hit the self-destruct button.

The Cowboys dropped three potential touchdown passes and had a fourth called back when Roger Staubach stepped over the line of scrimmage before throwing the ball in a 21-17 loss to St. Louis.

The Bears, playing in Texas Stadium for the first time in the 3 p.m. game, have lost back-to-back games to Minnesota and Los Angeles.

"We've played good football but too many mistakes have been too difficult for us to overcome," said Chicago Coach Jack Pardee.

Pearson, who scored three touchdowns in the National Conference title game against Los Angeles, missed most of the preseason and has been slowly working himself back into shape.

"Pearson will move back into a more prominent role," says Landry. "He's coming back pretty strong."

Pearson's emergence means demotion for Charley Young, who dropped a sure touchdown pass from Staubach and failed to get across the goal on a fourth and one against the Cardinals.

Dallas could move into first place in the NFC Eastern Division with a victory. St. Louis (5-1) and Washington (4-2) meet in a Monday night game.

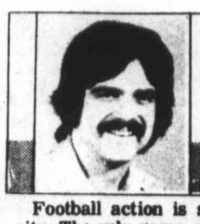

Landry heaped lavish praise on the Bears, who have the second youngest team in the National Football League behind Tampa Bay.

"The Bears are just a blink of the eye behind teams like Los Angeles and Minnesota," said Landry. "Walter Payton can run with any back in the league. He's like Larry Brown used to be with Washington—a tough runner who won't give up."

Chicago, which has an all-time 3-3 record against Dallas, leads the NFL in quarterback traps with 28.

Staubach is rated the No. 1 passer in the league.

Payton, who has 679 yards to lead the league and has three consecutive 100-yard games behind him, averages five yards per carry.

THROUGH the fieldglasses

Football action is scarce tonight in the city. The only game on tap is the intra-city rivalry between the Runnels 7th graders and their competition up the road . . . Goliad, at Blankenship Field. Time: 4:30.

Both 8th grade teams are open this week, the freshmen team travels to Monahans for a tough battle, and the Junior Varsity is going to Midland to test the mettle of the young Rebels.

In local and area grid wars tomorrow, the pigskin should be flying hot and heavy.

BIG SPRING (1-5) hosts the Midland Lee Rebels (5-1) in what most critics of the local 22 term a "Oh no, not again" type of game. But the Steers have to be primed for an upset one of these Friday nights, and something tells me it's going to be this one. Score: Big Spring 28, Lee 22.

In other action in the black-and-blue crew of District 5-4A, look for the hungry Abilene Eagles to munch on a bunch of overconfident Odessa Bronchos in Abilene 17-13.

Permian should keep its record intact by easily overcoming an outmanned and outclassed Abilene Cooper squad. Score: Permian 33, Cooper 0.

San Angelo Central has to be mad as a herd of wet dripping Bobcats. Midland High has to be down from the upset loss to the Eagles last week, and the two "has-to-be's" spell trouble for the Bulldogs. Score: Central 21, Midland 14.

FORSAN should have little trouble in keeping their pearly white slate clean Friday as they "entertain" a feisty, but outmuscled crew of Bearkats from GARDEN CITY. Score: Forsan 52, Garden City 0.

STANTON has had a week's rest, but Seagraves likes being on top too much, and have their winning blood running hot and quick after their 44-0 pounding of Shallowater last week. Score: Seagraves 21, Stanton 6.

LAMESA is one of the hottest teams around, but they have to go to San Angelo to meet an even hotter team. Score: Lakeview 23, Lamesa 13.

The IRA Bulldogs are my sentimental favorite, but this week Trent just looks too tough to hold any hope for the traveling 'Dogs. Score Trent 40, Ira 6.

No matter where you find it or how you pronounce it, Whitharral has too much power for the luckless GRADY Wildcats. Score: Whitharral 34, Grady 12.

SNYDER is good, but after a couple of setbacks they are ripe for upset. And SWEETWATER is just the one to do it. Score: Sweetwater 20, Snyder 14.

Don't ask me how or why, but SANDS is going to beat BORDEN COUNTY. Score: Sands 16, Borden County 6.

COAHOMA will come off of their embarrassment to Colorado City last week with no ill side-effects. Ballinger is no match for them. Score: Coahoma 30, Ballinger 12.

There are rumblings of a national championship coming from Howard College these days. No, not from the basketball team, (but don't count them out either).

No, a national crown may come this way due to the impressive Rodeo team that has been put together out there.

Read the story in today's paper (Sports page 1), and you'll get a general idea of how good the team really is. There is no one in this region that can shine their spurs.

We'll be keeping a close eye on them down here, and through the efforts of their number one fan Jim Corbell, and number one information lady Mrs. Johnnie Lou Avery, you'll see the drama build up as the Men's and Women's Rodeo team try for the ultimate in the thrill of victory.

Despite the loss to St. Louis last week, the Dallas Cowboy statistics are looking as impressive as ever. The Pokes have 133 first downs to their oppositions' 117; they have 2,447 total yards offense to the opponents' 1,814; and they have scored 150 points to only 88 for the foe.

Staubach's percentage fell off somewhat due to a bad day against the Cardinals, but he still has hit 104 passes of 155 for 1,448 yards, a 67.1 percentage, and nine touchdowns. He has had only three intercepted.

Doug Dennison is the leading Cowboy rusher with 271 yards on 66 attempts for a 4.1 average. Robert Newhouse is a close second with 269 yards on 55 attempts for a 4.9 clip, and Scott Laidlaw comes in third with 190 yards on 44 rushes for a 4.3 average.

Billy Joe DuPree leads all receivers with 26 catches for 412 yards. Drew Pearson and Scott Laidlaw each have 20 receptions for 329 and 171 yards respectively.

Gonzales wins again

The Chicano Golf Association of Big Spring held its year-end Low Ball-Partnership tournament Sunday at Comanche Trial Golf Course. Seventy players participated, including members of the Chicano Associations from Abilene, Odessa and Midland.

Winning teams were Munoz-Gutierrez, first place, with low ball of 58; Contreras-Aleman, second place, with low ball of 61 and Gomez-Flores, third, with a low ball of 65.

Members of the local association also competed with low net scores for a perpetual trophy which will indicate the Association Champion each year. Mrs. Viola Gonzales, the only lady golfer member of any of the Chicano Association, won with a 71.

Mrs. Gonzales, wife of local member Abe Gonzales, just recently won the Ladies City Championship as well.

Besides being an outstanding representative of ladies golf in Big Spring, Mrs. Gonzales also finds time to teach second grade at Cedar Crest Elementary School and attend to her two sons, Blake and Jay.

Immediately following the tournament, a buffet was held at Carlos' Restaurant and awards were presented by Sam Subia, President of the Chicano Association of Big Spring.

Permian gains

5-AAAA Stats

After three weeks of hectic action on District 5-4A, the pre-season favorites are emerging into their expected positions on the stat board.

Permian is leading the conference in offense with 59 first downs, and a total offensive output of 1,043 yards. Midland is a close second with one less first down and 48 fewer yards. Big Spring is on the bottom offensively with 35 first downs, and only 720 total yards gained. However, the bovines still have a commanding lead in passing yardage due to their potent air attack.

Defensively, Abilene High is in the top spot, by only allowing 664 yards against them. Permian is second, and Big Spring is last, giving up 1,276 yards in three contests.

Quarterback Bubba Stripling is still the third-leading passer in the district. Kenneth Coffey leads all receivers with 12 catches for 323 yards. That's four catches and 131 yards better than his nearest competitor.

Coffey also leads all scorers with 30 points.

That time again

with Marj Carpenter

Just about every five weeks, I take time out to touch on quite a few short subjects. And this is one of those times.

For one thing, I noticed a story about a reception that I'm sorry I missed. Mrs. J. W. (Ruth) Butler, Loraine postal employe for the past 32 years and serving as post mistress for the past six — was honored with an all-day reception Thursday in honor of her retirement.

More than 200 guests registered to pay their tribute to this employe. They were served home-baked cookies, coffee and punch. She was presented a gold locket with her initials and the dates of her service.

I'm sure Mrs. Butler must know more about Loraine than any other human being there. There's no way you could work in the Post Office in a town that size for that long without knowing almost everything about everybody.

And apparently, they all love her for it. Let me add my congratulations and may you enjoy your retirement Mrs. Butler.

Now — out to Forsan where I owe Don Roberson an apology. I credited his twin brother, Ron Roberson with interception of a pass actually caught by Don. Ron was on the sidelines with an injury. They laughed about it and were glad I didn't give it to somebody in another family, but actually, it was all Don's.

I suppose Coach Don Robbins might sympathize with those lads. He also had a twin brother named Ron who played and coached football for a number of years. But I don't think anybody would have dared credit Ron with anything Don did. But who knows? They may have.

Unlike the rest of you Big Springers who have known Don so many years, I've known Ron since 1961. And when Don arrived, I almost ran up and hugged him. He looked so much like Ron. However, he assured me that he was better looking than Ronald. Like looking in a mirror.

Speaking of sidelined ball players such as Ron Roberson, who fortunately has minor injuries . . . we certainly are missing Jess Doss and hope he's doing fine from his knee surgery. Also, a youth named Mike Brooks, who plays on the junior varsity, has a pin in his arm and was to go on to Lubbock this week for additional medical tests. Good luck, Mike.

And another family that I would like to wish a little luck is that of State Trooper David and Mrs. Jones, who took their infant son to Dallas this week for medical tests and serious surgery at Baylor Medical. Our prayers are with you.

Now — back off in another direction, if the puzzle has been guessed by today, ignore this one. But the funniest guess that has been submitted has been "a woman's girdle." Since that was the incorrect answer, I too give up.

Here at the office, Danny Reagan, turned out to be the most fearless and intrepid reporter of them all because he has gone down and taken the swine flu shot. The rest of us are watching him daily.

Seriously, the shots are available for those who want them on Tuesday and Wednesday at the city-county health unit behind the Rehab Center.

Be thankful I got through this column. That means there won't be another hodge-podge for at least five weeks. But every now and then I need one to catch up on the little things — when I'm out ridin' fence.

Sunday hours are popular

Citizens of Howard College area, Howard College faculty and students continue to take active advantage of the extra hours the college library is open Sunday afternoons. A service which was begun early in September by the library has been greeted favorably by users.

Sales of dated books, culled by the library's weeding process, continue to move from a table which has been set up in the lobby of the building.

Added to these books, beginning Sunday, Oct. 24, will be coppies of Life magazine, dating from May 3, 1937 to November 30, 1953. All holdings of Life are now on microfilm, for easier storage, and the bulky boxes of the periodical are for sale, to the person or persons arriving first, at $1 per issue. Sales from all discarded library materials will go into the fund which the library has toward the purchase of carpeting.

Mrs. Mary Crawford, college librarian, would again like to remind all area residents that the library is here to serve them, as well as the students of the college. One can fill out a short form at the circulation desk for a borrower's card.

Hours of the library are: Monday through Thursday 8:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Sunday, 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Local volunteers win David Wade Plaque

The David Wade Plaque, given annually for outstanding participation, was again awarded to Big Spring State Hospital volunteers during the October 14-16 meeting of the Volunteer Services State Council in San Antonio. Twenty-nine councils from over the state were represented, with top runners-up for the award being Wichita Falls and Brenham, San Angelo ranking sixth.

The presentation was made Saturday by Dr. David Wade, former commissioner of Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, with Jack Y. Smith accepting on behalf of the volunteers. Smith, a long-time volunteer for TDMHMR, is incoming treasurer for the local council.

"Volunteerism is the only significant advance in social service to human beings in the past century," said Dr. Wade, speaking at the assembly's final session. He urged continuance of high standards of delivery of service, noting that the annual meetings enable volunteers to "exchange ideas, catch up with advances and know what's going on in our field."

Mrs. Theo Ferguson of Midland and Mrs. Hope Leyva, both BSSH volunteers, were recognized as being among the top 20 volunteers in Texas.

Early arrivals at the meeting had the opportunity to tour the San Antonio State Hospital or view "Media Magic," a screening of films produced at various state facilities. Among those chosen for the presentation was "The Ombudsman," a vidotape featuring Big Spring State Hospital.

The opening day's keynote speaker was Ivan H. Scheier, Ph.D., director, National Information Center on Volunteerism, who expressed innovative ideas in the field of modern volunteerism.

"Now, there is no age or sex qualification," said Dr. Scheier. "Now, children, men, students and senior citizens are joining the traditional women volunteers, and we are looking for situations where everyone wins. We are viewing volunteering as a reciprocal or mutual benefit; where workers receive a psychological paycheck."

As to why people volunteer, Dr. Scheier said some do so to sharpen skills, gain experience for employment, receive college credits, support issues, play an advocacy role, sharpen self-awareness or to give of themselves as "natural helpers."

"Volunteers are, historically, path finders," continued Dr. Scheier. "We will find and justify new areas of human service for we have learned how to motivate people without money. Volunteering is work, and people work for only two reasons, dollars or desire."

In conclusion, Dr. Scheier said, "Modern volunteering is a new dimension. It is in metamorphosis; the heart is the same, the body different — and it will fly."

Of particular interest to local participants was the Friday session featuring Dr. Orie L. Forbis Jr. who spoke on delivery of MHMR services in a rural setting. (Big Spring State Hospital operates 20 Outreach Centers in its catchment area).

"A rural setting has less money but has more sense of warmth and recognition of a patient as a person," noted Dr. Forbis. "In rural areas, one must be able to stand up be counted, be involved. Just because a person is sick, that person is not considered unimportant. Rural communities have more extended families, and there is more caring for relatives and neighbors."

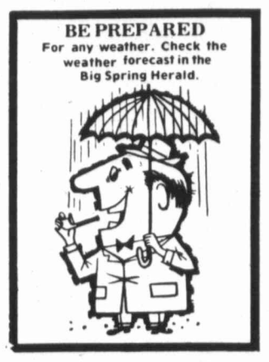

It summation, Dr. Forbis said because of distance and dollar feasibility, staff alone cannot deliver needed services so "the volunteer is the answer."

Workshops focused on Outreach volunteers, creative therapy, energizing local councils, overturning volunteer turnover, drugs, fund raising and youth volunteers.

Other highlights of the three-day event were a commentary by Dr. Kenneth D. Gaver, commissioner, TDMHMR, and a program by Ellen S. Straus of New York, N.Y., founder of Volunteer Professional, Inc.

Maj. Rolan Chambless of Amarillo, retiring state council chairman, installed new officers during a luncheon and business session Saturday. Assuming the chairmanship for 1976-77 was Gerald Bensberg, Ph.D., of Lubbock.

Hosting the event was the Volunteer Services Council, San Antonio State Hospital, assisted by Nancy Barker of Austin, chief, Volunteer Services, along with other staff personnel.

Ford vs the door knob

WASHINGTON (AP) — The television lights switched on, the cameras focused on the door, the members of the press stood and the introduction was solemnly made:

"Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States."

The reporters waited, but nobody came in.

Then there was a rattling and thumping at the door of the White House East Room. President Ford couldn't get in.

Finally, he appeared from another door leading to an adjacent hallway and took his place at the rostrum.

"We just had a doorknob break off," he explained, quickly adding: "You can't blame that on me."

There was some confusion about the doorknob incident.

Ford, describing the doorknob affair, said it occurred as he was trying to leave the Oval Office for the walk to the East Room where the reporters were waiting for him to start his news conference.

He said the Oval Office doorknob came off in the hands of one of his aides, Terrence O'Donnell.

But another aide later clarified the President's remarks, saying the door that lost its knob actually came from the Green Room from which the thumps had emanated at the start of the news conference and not the one leading from the Oval Office.

The Green Room shares a doorway with the East Room but it is impossible to enter the East Room from the Oval Office, which is in another part of the White House.

The aid said the doorknob wasn't a knob, actually. It was a ring-type handle.

LITTLE OWL, BIG STUMP — A small owl, confused by heavy fog near Sultan, Wash., clings to his nighttime perch atop a post.

National rodeo finals due to be televised

DENVER, Colo. — The last go-round of the National Finals Rodeo will be televised again this year by the Hesston Corporation, and by more than 1,200 participating Hesston farm equipment dealers in the U.S. and Canada.

The Finals, rodeo's "world series" in which the 1976 world champion cowboys will be determined, wind up Dec. 11 in Oklahoma City, Okla. The complete telecast of the last go-round will be carried into more than 40 states and Canada on the following Monday, Dec. 13. The program will last two-and-a-half hours, and fit into an early evening time slot.

"We delayed the telecast this year because that particular Saturday is a big day for football, and we wanted to avoid a conflict," said Robert Eidson, television representative for the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

"This is the third year for the telecast, and it has proven to be very popular," he said.

An independent survey estimated that 20 million persons viewed last year's telecast.

The three major networks, ABC, NBC and CBS, will carry the telecast, though not all the individual affiliates will receive it. Last year the telecast was aired on 132 stations in the U.S., including three in Hawaii, and 43 stations in Canada. This year 195 U.S. stations will carry the program, including the three in Hawaii; the 43 Canadian stations will also receive it.

Gene Countryman, corporate communications manager for Hesston, in Hesston, Kan., will produce the telecast again this year. The Finals will be covered by six color cameras including one installed in a ground-level pit to provide slow-motion instant replay scenes.

Clem McSpadden of Claremore, Okla., Finals general manager, and Lex Connelly of Hayward, Calif., will co-host the program again. Both are veteran rodeo announcers.

The finals, featuring the top 15 winners for the season in each of seven events, will have prize money totaling $188,500.

Division standings:

ALL AROUND COWBOY — Tom Ferguson, Miami, Okla., $85,560.
SADDLE BRONC RIDING — Monty Henson, Mesquite, Tex., $33,165.
BAREBACK BRONC RIDING — Joe Alexander, Cora, Wyo., $44,990.
BULL RIDING — Don Gay, Mesquite, Tex., $32,916.
CALF ROPING — Roy Cooper, Durant, Okla., $32,945.
STEER WRESTLING — Tom Ferguson, Miami, Okla., $49,304.
TEAM ROPING — Leo Camarillo, Oakdale, Ca., $29,542.
GRA BARREL RACING — Jimmie Gibbs, Valley Mills, Tex., $20,864.

Nominations are sought

The Hall of Honor Committee of R. L. Paschal High School, formerly Fort Worth High School and Central High School, has announced it is now accepting nominations for this year's additions to the Panther Hall of Honor. In conjunction with the Bicentennial, the Panther Hall of Honor was established last year with the induction of the following members: Sue B. Mann, Gladys Parker, Price Daniel, Earl Meadows, Jack Robinson, Dan Jenkins, Charles Pendleton and Alan Bean.

Individuals to be considered for the Hall of Honor must be Paschal graduates who have distinguished themselves through exceptional achievement, community service or civic concern.

Nominations for the Hall of Honor might include the candidate's occupation, background, area of achievement and current address.

An induction ceremony honoring the new members will be held in the spring of 1977.

FTC slaps Sears for ad techniques

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission today approved an order that bars Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, from using bait-and-switch tactics to sell major home appliances.

Sears, in agreeing to the order, admitted no wrongdoing. But the company said in a statement that "incidents which came to light in the recent FTC hearings were violations of Sears policy as well as FTC standards."

Sears had been accused by the FTC of luring buyers into stores with advertisements for especially low-priced appliances and then trying to pressure customers into buying more expensive models. This practice is known as bait-andswitch.

There is no penalty involved in today's FTC order; Sears only agreed not to use such tactics in the future. But the order has the force of law and any subsequent violation could cost Sears $10,000 per offense.

Arthur M. Wood, chairman and chief executive officer of Sears, issued a statement saying the order "reflects our long-standing company policy and we will vigorously enforce it.... We regret that even one such case occurred in our annual transactions of some 9.5 million major home appliances."

The case against Sears was launched in 1971 as a result of complaints from customers and competitors, and the FTC began formal action in 1974, an FTC spokesman said.

Forty-seven witnesses, mainly Sears salesmen and customers, testified before the FTC in Chicago earlier this year before the hearings were stopped at Sears' request for purposes of negotiating a settlement. Today's order resulted from the hearing.

The original complaint was based on a Sears ad that offered, for $58, a sewing machine that could do button holes, sew zig-zag stitches and operate in reverse.

If a customer sought to buy that machine, the FTC said, he was told that the appliance really could not perform those elaborate functions, was noisy, lacked a standard guarantee and could require a long time to deliver. A more-expensive model was suggested.

"We had a lot of salesmen testify that divisional sales managers put a lot of pressure on them to sell the more-expensive items," said Stephanie Kanwit, director of the Chicago regional FTC office. "The salesmen then decided they had to push the high-priced goods."

In many cases, Mrs. Kanwit said, the advertised special was unavailable for sale. The hearing evidence showed that Sears' bait-and-switch tactics were a nationwide problem, she said.

Although the FTC case was based on an ad for a sewing machine, the order applies to television sets, refrigerators, washers and any other appliance line whose most-expensive model sells for $50 or more.

In accepting the order, Sears agreed not to:

—Disparage advertised appliances in an effort to sell a more-expensive model.

—Use demonstrations or displays that make the advertised appliance appear defective.

—Make misleading comparisons with other products in the same line.
