Hitler Tightens Control On Germany

U.S. Forces To Be Reduced In China

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — The United States government decided today to reduce the number of American armed forces in North China.

The state department announced withdrawal of the 15th infantry now stationed at Tientsin and the transfer to Tientsin from Peiping of two companies of marines. This will leave at Peiping two companies of marines.

Developments Cited

The action, officials said, is in line with "the principle of effecting the withdrawal of such forces whenever the situation so develops as to warrant the view that withdrawals can be effected without detriment to American interests and obligations in general."

It was added that "the American government has long been committed" to this principle.

Chinese Fighting Desperate Rear Guard Defensive

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5. (Saturday) (AP) Chinese are fighting a desperate rear guard action along the frozen banks of the Hwai river to cover the retreat of their main army northward from Japanese conquered Pengpu.

The Chinese army is withdrawing to positions near Kuchen, approximately 30 miles north of Pengpu, for a renewed defense of the 180-mile wide corridor along the Lunghai railroad that separates the Japanese areas of conquest in north and central China.

Swirls Around Lakes

The engagement has swirled through the chain of marshy lakes along the Hwai since Pengpu, until then center of the Chinese resistance, fell to the Japanese Wednesday.

Encircling Japanese units reported today they had surrounded an estimated 10,000 Chinese who had strayed from the main body in the falling slush. Japanese said they were attacking the division at bayonet point.

While Japanese armies attempted to conquer central China by force, reports from Canton, in the far south, said Japanese undercover agents were plotting a coup d'etat with disgruntled Chinese leaders to set up a pro-Japanese South China regime.

Other reports, which were considered more reliable, said that one-time Chinese pirate chieftains, with Japanese backing, have established puppet administrations on several small islands off the southern coast.

Cost Of Housing Loans Reduced

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The Federal Housing administration slashed the cost of government-insured financing for small homes tonight under terms of the new housing legislation signed by President Roosevelt last night.

Simultaneously, Stewart McDonald, the housing administrator, appealed for the "whole-hearted cooperation" of lenders and the building industry.

Most Favorable In History

"This program is designed to assist families of moderate means to obtain decent and adequate housing on the most favorable terms in the history of the country," he said in a statement.

"I am confident it will safeguard the interest of both the borrower and the lender. It should prove a stimulus to the construction industry, but too much should not be expected of it at once.

Success Depends On Co-operation

"The machinery is here for the government to do its part. The success of the program in the long run, however, depends upon the wholehearted, voluntary co-operation of private capital and private industry, by which I mean the lending institutions, the material and equipment manufacturers and distributors, the builders and developers, and labor."

Officials were reluctant to predict how much money the program might sluice into building channels, but a spokesman said the agency had received applications for mortgage insurance on more than $50,000,000 of large-scale projects alone.

Explaining reductions in the cost of financing homes with government-insured mortgages, McDonald said:

The annual service charge of one-half of one per cent, which lending institutions have been permitted to

Noted Leader Of Women's Clubs Dies Friday

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 4.—Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, 76, an international leader of organized womanhood and one time president of the general Federation of Women's clubs, died at her home here today.

Friends and officials mourned the loss of the civic and educational worker. Flags on the Texas capitol were ordered half staffed.

Friend Of Mrs. Roosevelt

A close friend of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and a frequent White House visitor, Mrs. Pennybacker had suffered a long illness. She is survived by a daughter, Ruth, a member of the University of Houston faculty; two sons, Percy of Port Arthur and Bonner of Austin, and a brother, Judge A. F. Hardwicke of Dallas.

He activities covered many fields, including teaching politics, war relief, woman suffrage and writing.

Studied Abroad

A native of Petersburg, Va., and daughter of the Rev. J. B. and Martha Dews Hardwicke, Mrs. Pennybacker attended high school in Leavenworth, Kansas, and extended her formal education at Sam Houston Teachers' college, Huntsville, Texas. She studied also in New York, France, Germany and Italy.

She taught school for 14 years but the birth of children of her own took her from the school room and into women's organization work.

Her list of services, in addition to the presidency of the general and state federations of women's clubs, included associate membership in the Democratic National committee, membership in the Y. W. C. A. National War Committee of One Hundred and Advisory Committee for Food Administration in Texas and chairmanship of the Child Welfare committee of the League of Women's voters.

In addition, she was a leader in

Eastus Refuses To Cut Woman's Bond

DALLAS, Feb. 4. (AP)—U. S. District Attorney Clyde Eastus refused today to lower the bond set for Mrs. Helen Miller, who, with her husband, Sidney, is in the county jail here, charged with mail theft.

Mrs. Miller's bond was set at $7,500 and her husband's bond at $15,000, when they were arrested in Atlanta, Ga.

Both are held in connection with the disappearance several weeks ago of a mail pouch from a railway mail car en route to O'Donnell, Texas. The pouch contained $28,500.

Eastus said the government would not release claims to $4,300 found in possession of the couple.

DALLAS, Feb. 4. (AP)—The New York World's fair and San Francisco Golden Gate exposition commission for Texas today announced a drive to raise $500,000 for Texas' participation.

The commission, composed of 45 Texans appointed by Gov. James V. Allred, elected Karl Hoblitzelle, Dallas theater magnate, president of a non-profit corporation which will handle the state's part in the two expositions.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, is chairman of the commission.

Two Planes Drop Bombs Over Craft; Second Vessel To Be Sunk In Past Five Days

(By The Associated Press)

BARCELONA, Feb. 4.—The British freighter Alcira was pounded into a flaming hulk and sunk today off Barcelona by two Spanish insurgent bombing planes.

The ship's officers said the Alcira displayed five British flags besides the European nonintervention pennant attesting her neutrality.

The vessel was the second British craft to be sunk within five days in an attempt to run the insurgent blockade of the government coast with a load of coal—legitimate cargo under the 27-nation nonintervention accord.

ITALY AGREES TO ACT

LONDON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Italy, under pressure from Great Britain and France, agreed tonight to their program for stamping out pirate attacks on Mediterranean shipping.

Count Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to Great Britain, gave foreign Secretary Anthony Eden Italy's consent to the France-British proposals which were understood to include drastic measures. Two British ships have been sunk within the past five days.

All Survivors Picked Up

Most of the Alcira's crew of 25 and an observer for the nonintervention committee—all British—abandoned ship in lifeboats, but several seamen were hurled into the sea by the concussion of one of the bombs.

All were picked up and brought to Barcelona by a Spanish coastguard vessel and fishing boats.

Five bombs struck the vessel.

Most of the crew was asleep when two planes, bearing the black crosses of Spanish insurgency, roared out of the dawn, apparently from Palma, Mallorca, the Balearic island naval and air base.

Radio Order Picked Up

Machine-gun bursts warned the freighter of the attack to come. The Alcira's radio operator picked up a radioed order from the circling planes that the crew abandon ship.

But while half-dressed seamen lowered the lifeboats the first three

Speedy Approval Of Bill Is Seen

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Administration leaders predicted today that congress would give speedy approval next week to new crop control legislation.

Members of a senate-house committee reached final agreement today on all provisions of the "agricultural adjustments act of 1938," which is a compromise of house and senate versions of the "ever-normal granary."

To Be Introduced Monday

Chairman Jones (D-Tex.) of the house agriculture committee said he would introduce this compromise Monday.

While these leaders talked of quick action, legislators from dairy and livestock regions spoke of blocking the bill because of changes made by the conference group in the "dairy-livestock" amendment.

This provision provided that benefit payments and loans would be denied to corn, wheat, cotton, rice and tobacco farmers if they used land taken out of these crops to produce dairy or livestock articles for market.

Members of the conference committee modified this provision to permit normal dairy operations by all farmers. Limits would be applied to livestock production only if the secretary of agriculture odered them.

Representative Boileau (Prog-Wis) predicted he could muster enough support against this changed version to send the entire bill back to conference.

KEENE, N. H., Feb. 4. (AP)—The Rev. Robbins E. Ralph, pastor of the Court Street Congregational church, was eliminated from a spelling bee last night although his church won the contest with members of the first Baptist church.

The Rev. Ralph's downfall was the word: "Genesis."

'Little Business' Demands Toned Down For FDR

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—"Little business" finally told President Roosevelt what it thought of the government today.

A series of recommendations based on resolutions adopted at yesterday's tempestuous meeting of small business men was carried to the chief executive by a special committee.

Lose Some Vehemence

The resolutions had lost some of their anti-administration vehemence in the committee's hands.

A general discussion ensued in which Mr. Roosevelt said a large number of the proposals were constructive and possible of fulfillment, but that others, were to his mind impractical.

The committee put a recommendation that the government provide little business men an easier method of finding capital, or obtaining loans for the enterprises.

Loans Are Recommended

"Enable the American banking system to make insured loans for all necessary purposes," said recommendation No. 1. "Set up a government agency to render this service wherever financial institutions are unable or unwilling to function."

Others on the list of 23 included: repeal the undistributed profits tax, modify the capital gains tax, investigate the administration of the Wagner act, hold the employer and employe equally responsible for carrying out labor agreements, enforce the anti-trust laws, broaden the income tax base and simplify tax return forms.

The resolutions on which these proposals were based were formu-

National Administration Lauded By Allred In Talk At Kaufman

KAUFMAN, Feb. 4. (AP)—The national administration was praised here tonight by Gov. James V. Allred of Texas.

"I'm glad that we have a great national government that has concerned itself with 'the poor devil,'" said Allred, speaking before the annual meeting of the Kaufman Chamber of Commerce. "Most of our trouble in business and government is due to immorality and human selfishness, when we come to the question of what is wrong."

Ohio highway patrol officers at first believed that one of the slain men was Charles Bird, called "Public Enemy No. 2" by federal agents.

Move To Shunt Lynching Bill Voted Down

Senate Blocks Efforts Friday To Pigeon-Hole Measure; No Chance Seen For Passage

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — The senate blocked today, 52 to 34, the first attempt of the session to pigeon-hole the anti-lynching bill.

The vote came on a motion by Senator Glass (D-Va), chairman of the appropriations committee, who asked the senate to take up the $1,400,000,000 independent offices appropriations bill instead of the anti-lynching bill.

Keep Up Oratory Flow

Southerners have kept up a steady flow of oratory against the bill since the session started, meeting charges that they were filibustering with statements that they were only engaging in "free debate." Meanwhile other measures have been piling up on the senate calendar.

Republicans and northern Democrats largely opposed Glass' motion today; Southern Democrats were almost unanimous in supporting it.

Southerners Confident

Southern leaders said they were confident the measure would be tossed aside next week and would not be resurrected this session.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, has served emphatic notice that the senate could not "waste or consume the entire session" on the anti-lynching bill. He said he was ready to pigeonhole it any time the senate decided it had seen enough of "futile debate."

Barkley voted against Glass' move today, however, saying he did not believe the senate was yet ready to suspend consideration of the bill.

Made After Borah Attack

Glass' motion was made immediately after Senator Borah (R-Idaho) made an attack on the anti-lynching measure, denouncing it as an invasion of states' rights, concluding with a plea that the senate keep "local powers in the hands of

More Testimony Given In Probe

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. — A senate committee investigating Land Commissioner William H. McDonald heard more testimony today about persons claiming to have influence with the state land office, then recessed the inquiry for at least ten days.

Sen. T. J. Holbrook of Galveston, chairman of the group, emphasized the work was not yet completed. He pointed out that the committee at present was unable to locate certain persons it wanted to question and committeemen would be in better position to determine the future course of the inquiry after "digesting" testimony during the last ten days.

Allred Criticized McDonald

Governor James V. Allred has sharply criticized McDonald for frequently accepting high royalty over high cash bids on state leases for mineral development and for renewing a lease to the Venmex Oil company in the new K. M. A. field.

A. R. Stout of Ennis, the governor's representative in the inquiry, took a leading part in the interrogation of witnesses.

Everett Hughes, Wichita Falls abstractor, was the day's principal witness. He testified several persons approached him with propositions they would press his vacancy claims before the land office in return for a cash consideration or an interest in the claims. These persons voiced confidence, he said, they could ob-

Survivor Of Mid-Air Crash Gives Version Of Disaster

(By The Associated Press)

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Feb. 4. —All the crew of the navy bombing plane 11-P-4, which collided with a sister ship during maneuvers last Wednesday night, bringing death to 11 men, escaped from the ship's hull before it sank.

This was the story of Aviation Chief Machinist's Mate D. B. McKay, one of the three survivors, who was brought here today aboard the hospital ship Relief. He received a fractured leg.

All seven of the crew, he said, either parachuted from the falling plane, or managed to free themselves from the wreckage after it struck the water and before it sank.

"Two or three of us managed to hold the unconscious form of Lieut. Hutchins (Commander Carleton B. Hutchins) above the surface of the water for half an hour or so, until, weakened by exposure and our injuries, we were forced to release him," McKay said.

"Shortly afterward we were

Former Federal Oil Tender Board Examiners In State Linked With Criminal Ring

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The senate public lands committee received charges today that two former examiners for the federal oil tender board were "connected with one of the worst criminal rings in Texas' history while engaged in prohibition enforcement work in that state in 1928.

Senator Pittman (D.-Nev.) placed the accusations before the committee during hearings on the nomination of Ebert K. Burlew to be first assistant secretary of the interior.

Pair Is Identified

Identifying the pair as Victor J. Buthod and Walter S. Behrens, the Nevadan said they were the same men later "whitewashed" by the interior department of "hot oil" running charges. He said they had been hired as examiners in 1934 despite a report by the department's investigation division that they were "not of good moral character."

Pittman told the committee the allegations connecting Buthod and Behrens with the Texas criminal ring were contained in a special report filed with Secretary Ickes July 15, 1936, by Lee Shannon, one-time associate of the pair in prohibition enforcement work in Texas.

Entire Report Read

Pittman read the entire report into the record of the committee hearings.

Among other things, Shannon accused the pair of sending $1,000 "to one A. D. (Mike) Michael" at Wink, Texas, "as a bribe to keep him from divulging valuable evidence in the assassination of one W. L. Edwards in Houston, Texas."

"The record from this case," Shannon reported to Ickes, "will show that D. R. (Dick) Cheatham, an associate of Walter S. Behrens, and a federal prohibition agent, was

New York Youngster Remains His Father's Boy In Spite Of Court; Stages Runaways

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—Howard Frankel's fourth runaway in 12 days from his unwanted home in Brooklyn ended early today when a newspaper employe, on his way from work, found him at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn bridge.

The 12-year-old youngster, who remains his father's boy in spite of a court order giving him to his mother, has disappeared so often that a special detective has been assigned to conduct all searches for him.

Description Now Familiar

He did not return home from school yesterday and his description, now familiar to thousands in New York and in New Jersey towns across the Hudson, went out over police wires again.

Desperate in his attempts to return to his father, Julius Frankel, in Linden, N. J., the boy has threatened to kill himself.

He fled for the fourth time while his father and interested outsiders were seeking a way to modify the chancery court order which placed him in the sole custody of his mother, Mrs. Rose Frankel, two weeks ago.

More Power Is Concentrated In Swift Move Friday; New Secret Cabinet Formed

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, Feb. 4. — Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler assumed direct command of all Germany's armed forces tonight and tightened his immediate control of the ministry of foreign affairs.

Hitler concentrated more power in himself and a chosen few subordinates to consolidate his regime and hasten the fusion of the Nazi party and the German state.

The blonde, "socially impossible" bride of the ousted war minister, Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg, precipitated the most drastic cabinet shakeup in the five years of Nazi rule.

ILL OMEN FOR FUTURE

LONDON, Feb. 5. (Saturday) (AP) — Fears that Germany would embark on a new adventurous course in Europe, possibly starting with a putsch in Austria, as result of her army crisis were diplomatic gossip here today.

Diplomats took a grave view of what they considered the success of the radical wing of the Nazi party over the moderate element in Chancellor Hitler's drastic government shakeup.

The elevation of Joachim von Ribbentrop to foreign minister and the expected disappearance of Konstantin von Neurath's influence in the government were held in informed circles to be an ill omen for the future.

Inmate Of Infirmary Kills Four Patients

TEWKSBURY, Mass., Feb. 4. (AP) —Firing as he ran from bed to bed in the crowded wards of the Tewksbury state infirmary, a giant inmate today killed four fellow patients and critically wounded one other with a mail order pistol.

Three hours after he clambered down an infirmary fire escape, John Mack, 79, who stands six feet three inches, was picked up by police in Lowell, three miles from the hospital.

Four charges of murder were placed against him. Police quoted him as saying he was enraged because the five victims called him "bad names."

Captain John F. Stokes, chief of state detectives, said investigation disclosed that for two years Mack had saved his "tobacco money" month by month, to buy the pistol.

He kept the weapon buried in a tin can on the infirmary grounds, Stokes said, until the opportune moment arrived.

UAW Head Proposes Debts Moratorium

DETROIT, Feb. 4. (AP)—A United Automobile Workers mass meeting that filled Cadillac square, in the heart of Detroit's business district, roared its approval late today of a proposal that a moratorium be declared in Michigan on debts owned by unemployed persons.

The crowd, estimated by Police Inspector John A. Hoffman to number between 50,000 and 75,000 and by Homer Martin, international president of the UAW, at 250,000, adopted by acclamation half a dozen resolutions demanding more generous treatment of the unemployed.

The meeting, under a permit granted by the city council and with 2,500 policemen in watchful attendance, passed without disorder.

Martin, one of seven speakers, demanded "immediate relief of $1,000,000 a week, in cash, for the unemployed of Detroit and Michigan" and a WPA allotment of $150,000,000 for Michigan.

Martin, recalling the sit-down strikes that were in progress last year when the UAW held a mass meeting in the same place, said there was no need for such strikes now because "all plants are either organized or closed."

Socials Of Every Description Are Slated For This Week-End And After

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

CLUB women of Texas have lost a loyal supporter and an influential personage in the death of Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, internationally known woman leader. Friend of the great and the near-great, this tiny, energetic woman has labored untiringly through the years for woman suffrage, prohibition, state's rights, for Her Master and championed any and every cause that she deemed worthy.

Known chiefly for her accomplishments in the Woman's Federation, we first heard of Mrs. Pennybacker through her history of Texas which was studied by the generation behind us.

MRS. PENNYBACKER spoke in Lubbock March 30, 1936 at a spring convention of the seventh district, Texas Federation of Women's clubs. Her subject that night was "Texas of Yesterday Teaches Texas of Today" and we remember many things said by that frail, white-haired woman, one being, "Texas of today can do no greater thing than live up to the ideals of her forefathers." She was presenting Stephen Austin to her hearers that night and the auditorium rang with applause several times during her stirring address.

Mrs. Pennybacker was appreciated by her club women. They hung her life-sized portrait in Permanent Headquarters, last year they honored her with a page picture in their year book and many times during the years they have paid tribute to that loyal Texan who Friday went quietly to her final rest.

MORNING POEM

HELEN WELSHIMER has written a poem, "Where You Stay," that you may not have seen:

LET cynics say that life's profundity
Has proved that Heaven does not lie in space
Beyond our eyes—let magi fail to see
The certainty of that uncharted place.
But I know better, better than them all,
That I must find you somewhere down the years.
And since you have no earthly voice to call,
No fleshly hands to wipe away my tears—

YOU must bring comfort in some higher place.
Where we shall come at length to understand
That death reveals a dear and imaged face
Beyond the gate in some unending land.
Heaven was here before you went away;
Now it must be that country where you stay.

COOKING BY CALENDAR

WHAT'S an almanac to a woman? In February it might be a Martha Washington chicken pie.

The recipe in Martha Washington's cook book called for a young chicken, boiled and allowed to cool. The bones were removed, a sliced onion, some celery and parsley were put in the broth, all boiled one-half hour, then strained and returned to the chicken. A half pound of fresh mushrooms sauted in butter was added. Very short pastry was made, rolled thin and fitted into a casserole, the chicken and gravy placed in this, sliced hard cooked eggs on top, and over all was fitted a crust having a vent in it. The edges of the two pastries were crimped together and then the pie was baked until the crust was brown.

Labor Relations Board Is To Be Advised By Dallas Firm It Cannot Comply With Ruling

DALLAS, Feb. 4 (AP)—Emil Corenbleth, attorney, said today he would advise the National Labor Relations board in a few days that his client, Sheba Ann Frocks, inc., cannot comply with the board's ruling.

"The discharged employes have not worked for the firm since the strike," Corenbleth said, "and those employes who have are not members of the union and do not want us to bargain with anyone regarding their pay."

Corenbleth said the board had found that none of the discharged employes lost his job because of union activities.

Nation's Retail Sales Slow Up

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Retail sales for the nation as a whole this week marked time at last week's levels, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

"Reduced payrolls and curtailed employment started to slacken the pace of consumer buying in many of the leading centers of retail distribution, so that sales were held down to barely even with the previous week's," said the credit agency. "Alongside rising February, 1937, totals, few districts could show a gain. This cut the estimated comparative, taking the country as a whole."

Regarding wholesale trade, the agency reported:

"Inflow of cash from successful January promotions provided many retailers with funds sufficient to place more generous commitments for spring merchandise than had been planned at the beginning of the year. In addition, spring market openings, trade shows, and conventions gave most of the principal wholesale markets a busier aspect than was apparent in the week preceding."

Validity Of County Seat Vote Attacked

BARSTOW, Feb. 4. (AP)—With a temporary restraining order keeping county records here, Barstow's fight to remain the county seat will be continued at the next term of 109th district court.

Barstow citizens are contesting the election which, by a vote of 1149 to 467, favored the removal of the Ward county seat to Monahans. Counsel for Barstow has attacked the validity of 452 votes. Successful challenge of 216 votes would be sufficient to change the results of the election.

Plaintiffs also are attacking the validity of the election on the grounds it violated a state statute requiring the lapse of 10 years between elections for the removal of county seats.

Judge J. A. Drane, hearing the suit, probably will rule on the latter angle of the controversy at this term of court. A decision on the validity of the challenged ballots is not contemplated uhtil the next term of court, after other witnesses have been heard. Most of the 452 voters have been summoned to describe the cogditions under which poll tax receipts were obtained and their qualifications to cast ballots in the election.

Cardenas Is Seeking To Ease Unrest In Tamaulipas State

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 4. (AP)—President Lazaro Cardenas is seeking to ease unrest in Tamaulipas state, along the United States border, by increased public works employment.

The president has ordered the department of communications to give work to all unemployed in northern Tamaulipas on the Matamoros-Ciudad Victoria highway, now under construction. Ht is urging also that irrigation projects along the Rio Grande be completed, thereby opening new fields to agricultural development in an effort to relieve unemployment.

Four persons were killed on Monday in a clash among agrarians of Tamaulipas and the disturbance was attributed in part to resentment over economic hardship.

Horse And Mule Breeding Gains In Texas In 1937, Report Says

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—Horse and mule breeding in Texas continued on the upgrade last year when colts worth an estimated $210,000 were sired by 247 state-owned stallions and jacks.

The department of agriculture which began the breeding program in 1934 reports 17,000 colts foaled since then and valued at $1,020,000.

J. E. McDonald, agriculture commissioner, said the breeding plan has been unimpaired since the stud animals were leased last September to private individuals. Purchased and maintained by the state from taxes on horse-race wagering, the leasing arrangement was decreed by the legislature after it repealed legalized betting.

Mothers! Treat Children's Colds This Proved Way

More mothers use VapoRub than any other medication of its kind—they have proved it by use in their own homes. It was further proved in the world's largest colds-clinic. No "dosing"—just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Almost at once, its poultice-and-vapor action starts to loosen phlegm, relieve irritation and coughing, help break local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Name Of Market Week Here Changed;

Style Show Not To Be Staged

The name of the West Tex-New Mex Wholesale Clothing Marketing Association was changed to the Western Wholesale Market association at a meeting of the board of directors in chamber of commerce headquarters at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Dates for the spring market were set as March 31 through April 3, according to Luther A. Godwin, president. Directors voted to eliminate the style show and substitute a dinner dance on the opening night.

Expect Good Participation

At least 75 exhibitors are expected to participate in the spring showing which will be held in the Lubbock hotel on the second, third and fourth floors. Spring styles, in time for Easter season, in ready-to-wear, millinery, men's clothing, accessories, lingerie, hosiery, shoes, sports wear, woolen and leather goods, and novelties will be shown.

Members of the board of directors are: Godwin, president, I. A. Stephens, Ernest Pope, Morris Levine, Arlie Crites, O. J. Sexton, and Sam Rosenthal.

Exhibitors From Centers

Exhibitors from New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Seattle, St. Louis, Dallas, Fort Worth, and other style and manufacturing centers have indicated intentions of displaying merchandise here.

A program of entertainment will be arranged for the retail merchants of this entire area and the dinner dance will be free to merchants and guests with three tickets allowed each firm represented, regardless of size, it was pointed out.

More details of the market will be announced soon, Godwin said.

Attendance-Membership Drive Is Planned By Business Club

A double-barreled contest, attendance and membership, is to be sponsored by the American Business club, two committee reports indicated yesterday at the luncheon in the Hilton hotel. Complete plans will be presented at next week's meeting.

Chairman John Broome of the attendance committee, said his group was working on contest plans.

A. C. Sanders was chairman of the day's program, with Wilmot Caton, co-chairman. Charles McClain, with the Ned Bradley orchestra, played two piano numbers. President William Collins presented Joe Leaverton, as a new member.

Earl McClure, scout executive, said the Mexican section about 35 or 40 boys of that nationality, from among which a troop of from 16 to 20 scouts can be formed, J. L. Hinds, teacher, will be the scoutmaster, if a troop committee can be secured. McClure gave suggestions on the needs of the boys. President Collins asked the civic and welfare committee to make a report to the board of governors.

Dorothy Thompson Suggests FDR Apply Pressure On Mayor Hague

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 4. (AP)—Dorothy Thompson, author and newspaper columnist, suggests that President Roosevelt, as head of the Democratic party, should "apply pressure through patronage" on Mayor Frank Hague to make him cease his war with Committee for Industrial Organization leaders and others he has denounced as communists.

Likening Hague to Hitler, she says President Roosevelt, "as head of that liberal party which passed the labor relations act," should be asked about the conception of government held by Hague, state Democratic leader and vice-chairman of the national Democratic committee.

Army-Navy Airplane Mishaps

THE unfortunate collision of two naval bombers off the Pacific coast with the loss of 11 lives inevitably is followed by the inquiry from many sources: Why are tragedies of the air of such frequent occurance in the aviation branches of our armed forces?

There is no disputing that they do occur more often among the winged men of the army and navy than among commercial pilots of the recognized airlines. That fact, however, does not reflect on the service airman.

The difference is that safety is the keynote of commercial flying. In the army and navy, the pilot must be prepared for any conditions. The commercial airplane is built with the safety factor given first consideration, speed second. In war, the fastest plane is likely to be the winner. Safety, therefore, is sacrificed to speed in the design of the warbird. In the commercial field there is no such thing as group or formation flying. In the military, safety in time of war demands formations of such precision as to put wingtip almost against wingtip.

Of course it may be that many of the more skilled army and navy pilots gravitate into the commercial field because of the greater safety and larger compensation. But the chief reason for more accidents within the armed services is that the hazards are greater.

Watching Building Chances

FEW spots in the nation are watching the progress of the newly enacted federal home building measure more than Lubbock and the South Pains.

Architects, building contractors and others in position to give authoritative opinion are virtually unanimous in their expressed belief that if there is no "catch" in the legislation, it will lead to the greatest era of home-building Lubbock and the Plains have seen. They are making no positive predictions, until they know exactly what the workings of the measure will be but the inquiries to them leave no doubt of the existance of desire to build homes.

Lubbock for the last two years has been the scene of home building which, in almost any other city of its size in the nation, would be a "boom." But any observer has known that the building actually done has been no more than a fraction of what would be done of easy financing were procurable and if conditions were deemed opportune.

Perhaps the signing by the President of the new home-building legislation may be the signal for residence construction on a scale which will be a "boom" even for Lubbock and the South Plains.

Visual Education Gaining

AMONG the interesting news of the past week is an announcement from Whitharral that its new movie equipment; recently purchased at a cost of $750, has been installed in the school and that a program of visual education will result.

As has often been noted in these columns, schools of all kinds are missing a good opportunity to do better work by overlooking possibilities in education via the moving picture. Superintendent M. L. H. Baze, of Brownfield, probably was the first in this section to put thought into action and he testifies that Brownfield's visual education program is quite valuable to faculty and students, alike.

We cannot refrain from complimenting Whitharral, an up-and-coming community in Hockley county, for instituting visual education, nor from commending Brownfield in its leadership in the matter. We hope on some hot too far distant day to be able to report that every South Plains school—including those in Lubbock—have adopted and are profiting from visual education.

If a lie is repeated often enough, it is finally accepted as truth—even by the person who started it.

The One-Minute Sermon

Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried: but the wicked shall do wickedly: and none of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand.

And from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days.

Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days.

But go thou thy way till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days.—Daniel 12, 10 through 13.

EXPLANATION OF CARTOON

THE BLIND HISTORIAN

William H. Prescott (1796-1859) lost the sight of one eye through an accident and the sight of the other as a result of an inflammation, so that to all intents and purposes he was totally blind before he started on his career as an historian. He purchased an instrument called a noctograph. This implement, consisting of a frame crossed by a number of brass wires, held a sheet of thin carbon paper on which the blind man could write with a short pointed stylus instead of a pen. It was on this contrivance that Prescott wrote a series of great works on the history of Spain, Mexico and Peru, with an endurance that baffles comprehension. It was easily the most heartbreaking handicap genius has ever mastered.

Empire For A Lady

Chapter One

A Girl From Another World

IT WAS impossible to believe that she was there, whenever I looked away from her.

Beyond the motionless bowsprit of the little ship lay the flat, blazing salt water of the bay of Balingong; beyond that, the jungle hemming the broad mouth of the Siderong river. And from all through the foothills and the jungle and the river was coming the tireless, dissonant beat of Dyak agongs, singing war, and hate, and blood hunger. Nothing about the land or the sea would let you forget for a moment that you were in the deep tropics of Asiatic waters—half way between Borneo and Australia, in that maze of 10,000 dark-skinned islands some of whose waters still lie uncharted.

Incredible that an English girl of 20 should be there, siting in a folding officer-chair under the jawls after-deck awning. Every time I heard her low voice it was with a repeated sense of bafflement, of disbelief.

Yet she was there, and we were all acutely aware of her—more conscious of her than of the agongs, or the brassy sea, or of our own ship, the Linkang, which lay at anchor six chains away. And she was real—very real.

In the fantastic dream which is my memory of Balingong, Christine Forrester stands out as more actual than any other thing. Plainly I can hear the weird battle cry of the Malays, and smell the burning nipa thatch, and watch the silky nerve-edging smile of the Rajah Mantusen offering lies more deadly than his kris. But those things, and not the English girl, are what seem unreal.

As she sat that day under the awning of the afterdeck, the picture of her is very clear. I see the little pulse in her throat, and the grave steadiness of her eyes, and her slim straight fingers. She remains as real as the tarred deck seams, or the scent of ginger blossoms from over the flat salt water.

At first, though, her presence was bewildering. Two years in Asiatic waters had accustomed me to many things. When you are new out there it is very hard to realize that so much of the world can remain so little known. To a Londoner or a Gloucesterman, that part of the Pacific is a full 10,000 miles from home, and you are shocked to find that you can trade tinfoil to a Dyak because he wants to use it in decorating a human skull.

But presently you begin to see reasons. The Pacific is a big place, with more than 30,000 islands in one great belt which swings a good 3,000 miles across the South Seas. And the simple fact is that we have known nothing of this vast maze because we have not realized until lately that there was anything there to steal. I got used to the idea that there are whole groups of islands where it is unsafe for any vessel to go; and even those islands lost their strangeness when they became the fabric of my daily life.

But now the presence of an English girl very actually drinking tea in the bay of Balingong brought all that first strangeness back. Here were two exactly opposite worlds set side by side, and it did not seem possible that both of them could be.

Baffled

James Clyde, my uncle, showed his bewilderment. For years he had known this vessel. But as I had gathered from his occasional frivolous references to it, in all that time Clyde had regarded it simply as the hobby of an uncompanionable Englishman with a glassy-eyed curiosity about strange peoples. Now the Avon had changed in ways that did not explain themselves, and bafflement was plainly readable in my uncle's face.

James Clyde was only 10 years older than I was—in his middle 30's—but those 10 years had been spent in Asiactic waters, so that his lean features had a carved, leathery polish. Uusually he looked lively and vital, his wide-set, natively pleasaht eyes very much aware of everyone around him; but now he seemed to have forgotten altogether that others were watching him, too. Every time I glanced at him, his blank expression forced a chuckle cut of me—he seemed so disarmed, so unaccustomedly at a loss.

He paid no attention to me. His eyes would shift from Christine Forrester to her brother Robert, a slim sun-red young man with a high-bridged nose and blonde hair smoothly combed. Robert Forrester had much too controlled a face for James Clyde to appraise immediately. When ever my uncle tried that, his glance would sheer off from ycung Forrester after a moment or two, as from a closed door that refused to budge, although its knob turns smoothly round and round.

'A Dangerous Place'

Then my uncle would look at the squat, heat-puffed figure of the Avon's sailing master Marvin Stocker, Old Captain Stocker's eyes were bright and bulgy with fever, and finding him hopelessly sick and stolid, Clyde would be forced back to Robert Forrester again.

"I can't understand," James Clyde said slowly, "why I can't seem to explain this to you. I am trying to tell you that you've anchored in a much more dangerous place than you realize."

Robert Forrester would have had a right to resent that. To "come" to a dangerous place may imply purpose and courage, but merely to "anchor" in one plainly suggests fat-headedness. It was a weakness of Clyde's to say too often exactly what he meant.

Young Forrester, however, showed no irritation. But I could sense a slowly thickening British stubbornness behind his manner of faintly resentful politeness.

He said now, "I should imagine we will be quite all right."

"That's exactly what you shouldn't imagine," Clyde told him.

Yet it was easy enough to see, in a way, what persuaded Robert Forrester to this sense of security. He and his sister were sitting on their own ship's deck with their own things around them, the civilized, intimate comforts of their own people. For, remember, the Avon was not tropic trading schooner.

The afterdeck awning, covering the whole semi-circular sweep of the poop, was permanent, of wood. It was a luxury, all right. Coarse screens of finely split bamboo were made fast around the rail, reefed on the shade side, but let down to kill the glare on the sun side. With canvas chairs and some little teakwood tables set out there, it was nothing like the poop of a ship at all, but more like the veranda of some club, overhanging the water.

And now tea things were set out on the little tables. There were thin China cups and a long-spouted silver teapot and pitcher steeply canted on their bases as they are made by the silver-workers of India. When I looked at those things I didn't believe in Dyaks myself, though I suppose I have seen hundreds of thousands.

'A Big Boil-up'

"But I am trying to tell you," Clyde was insisting, "that you are absolutely not all right. I've been in these islands for 10 years, and I've never heard so many drums and gongs together in one place. There's smoke hanging over the jungle along a shoreline of eight miles. You're anchored hard against a big boil-up of Dyak tribes on the wild loose, at war. If you have eyes and ears at all you should know that.

Robert Forrester said with reserve, "I hardly think they're out after us."

"And I'm trying to explain to you that that makes no difference," Clyde kept on, grave and patient. "When a Dyak war party turns loose they'll raid and loot and pirate anything that they can handle—and there are enough of them across the bay to tackle a first class sloop of war. My vessel is easily three or four times stronger than yours; yet I tell you that I wouldn't rest here five minutes if I didn't have definite business that forces me to."

Robert Forrester turned and looked across the water at Clyde's three-master, the Linkang. She was a converted whaler, bluff and high in the counters. She carried as heavy an armament as her crew could man—two three-pounders each at stern and bow—not heavy guns, but big enough to knock a prau out of the water—and a long six-pound swivel mounted amidships, where the tryworks had been. She was by no means safe in Balingong bay, but she represented all the precautions we could reasonably take. Robert Forrester, though, did not seem to like the comparison. I thought he was about to dispute the matter with my uncle, but he did not.

Instead, he spoke with an unmistakable air of summing up the situation before dismissing us. "I've already told you, Captain Clyde, that we also have important business here. As I mentioned before, it's our intention to trade for pearls. We came here for that purpose, and we expect to remain here until it is carried out."

Plainly, my uncle wanted to swear at him, but he held himself back. "Think what is likely to happen to you," he urged. "It's a wonder to me that they haven't swarmed over you already."

"They are scarcely alone in that," said the blonde young man suavely.

My uncle passed over it. "You can't count on them—not even for one more night. There must be enough war praus in the Siderong to cover this bay like a mat. If a single Dyak chief sends out his praus, just to look you over, the rest will turn it into a race for the loot. When that happens, nothing under heaven can save you."

Former Senator Gore And Wife Are Injured In Washington

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (AP)—Former Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma and his wife were injured today in a collision of their automobile with a city refuse truck.

Physicians at a Washington hospital said the blind former senator, now practicing law here and his wife both suffered concussions and lacerations on the head.

The word "sparrow" originally meant any small bird.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

PRESIDENT Roosevelt's recent restatements of his price objectives apparently perplex housewives as well as bigwigs among bankers, builders and labor leaders. His supposed inconsistencies on this bread-and butter issue underscore the general feeling of economic uncertainty.

The President reassured Messrs. Lamont, Young and Lewis recently that he had been misunderstood—again. There was, he said, no clash between his 1933 demand for a return to 1926 levels of living costs, and his fresher declarations that certain prices, chiefly durables, were out of line. His new warnings, as well as the Jackson-Ickes drive against monopolices, were designed to straighten out the salients in the advancing price lines.

But the latest statistics (Mr. Roosevelt's own) disclose that the general run of prices for necessities—food, clothing, fuel, house furnishings—is still far below the 1926 goal. Thus, if the President holds to his original purpose, the lady of the house must presently pay a lot more for her groceries.

REVISION: The relationsdip between President and press has become more strained, more difficult, than at any time since the first Roosevelt. Even friendly reporters are demanding sweeping revision of his newspaper conference methods.

Chief trouble lies in Mr. Roosevelt's habit of reversing himself without accepting responsibility for a shift in attitude. Obviously delighted with the star performer's role at these give-and-take sessions, and sure of his ability to "handle" interviewers, he sometimes enunciates a major policy without considering the consequences. Business men seeking light from Washington gasp at reports of his utterances, as do his closest advisers. Next week he suggests that he was "misinterpreted," whereas factual copies of his statements reveal that he was quoted accurately the first time. The on-again-off-again holding company pronouncement was the most glaring example.

This characteristic accounts for the uncertainiy prevailing over his immediate and long-time policies. Now many correspondents want a return to the less entertaining but more responsible system of written questions and answers—with both querries and replies well thought-out first.

RULES: Two subtle thrusts at the federal patronage system demonstrate why enemies in Tennessee—and Washington—regard Senator Kenneth McKellar as the most machiavellian feudist in public life today. Seemingly innocuous reforms, they would transform every Senator of the party in power into sole boss of his state.

The first provides that no official dragging down more than $4,000 a year can be appointed without Senate confirmation. Under the rules of senatorial courtesy this would permit each Senator to dictate all nominations within his bailiwick. That proposal has been properly publicized. But it is meaningless except when allied to another McKellar amendment that has attracted almost no notice. It was introduced separately, and it contains verbiage incomprehensible to a layman—or even a smart politico.

The second suggestion requires that agencies at Washington set up merit standards for all state officials performing quasi-federal functions. Thus Governors would have to appoint people acceptable to officials at the Capital, and the latter, under the $4,000 confirmation system, would be under senatorial dictation. Note: Mr. McKellar is now engaged in a death struggle with Governor Gordon Browning, who hankers for a Senate seat some day.

SEAPOWER: President Roosevelt and Operations Chief Adrimal Leahy were deliberately vague in asking Congress for $15,000,000 for construction of experimental warships.

Not even a super-spy could unearth naval secrets under prevailing systems of surveillance, but it is understood the most sensational surprise will not be the giant 45,000-ton battle wagons, but a smaller, powerful vessel of the line known as a "pocket battleship." The navy wants to experiment with these specialized creations while the experimenting is good. Another new type may be the watersled with two torpedo tubes for anti-submarine use. Only 50 to 60 feet long, they spin along the surface like waterbugs and turn in their own length. Hitler and Mussolini have pioneered in these midget craft.

The new tankers will be veritable camels of the seas, supplying their own engines with fuel from their own cargoes, if necessary. The innovation will give them an almost unlimited cruising radius. With the navy's new picket line stretching from Alaska to Hawaii, the fleet must be supplied with movable filling stations superior to those Japan already has.

OUTGO: The problems besetting Social Security administrators as they prepare for the historic act of paying out the first federal unemployment compensation in American history would anger a saint. The first allotments will be shipped out in a few days.

Thousands of small employes in cities and rural towns have failed to certify with the board the names of their employes. They have paid their taxes, but they have not sent in the number and names of the people for whom this money is to be held in trust. Without this detailed information Washington has no record for following the worker from plant to plant or from city to city, if he shifts his occupation. More than 300,000 stand in danger of losing future claims unless the situation is adjusted. Treasury agents are now scouring the countryside to enlighten these employers on this question.

CRUSADE: The growing movement for a boycott of Japanese goods has produced almost Oriental confusion among the ranks of American labor.

The workers whose jobs depend on processing raw materials into finished goods— silk into stockings, etc protest bitterly against a scheme which may deprive them of their livelihood. But those whose products suffer from invasion of competing Japanese exports—makers of caps, dresses, etc.— have enthusiastically endorsed the idea. Some American industrialist, including members of the anti-labor National Association of Manufacturers, have allied with C. I. O.-ers in joint resistance to the buy-no-silk crusade.

Latest trade figures indicate that Japan is suffering, though not seriously yet. Administration scouts are studying the statistics for whatever light they may cast on American sentiment.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

WALL Street is a hotbed of inflationary rumors these days. There are reports that the gold price is to be raised to 44 (equivalent to devaluing the dollar to 50 cents); that the dollar is to be detached from gold entirely; that the President will issue new paper currency under the authority conferred on him by the Thomas amendment, etc., etc.

The best-posted financial sources scoff at these "feed-box specials" as without foundation. They see no indications that Mr. Roosevelt is wavering in his proven aversion to further monetary tinkering. They figure it would take an extraordinary emergency—not in sight at present—to drive him to measures he inherently dislikes.

Another angle: Pressure for monetary inflation usually comes from overburden private debtors craving relief, as in 1933. There is no such loan of private debt now to motivate a vigorous campaign for inflation. The outstanding debtor today is the federal government, and there is as yet no urgent demand to make that debt easier to pay. Realists cannot see direct inflation, via the printing press or dollar-doctoring method in the 1938 picture.

ESCAPE: But there is another important—and insidious—aspect of this question. President Roosevelt speaks of a federal budget of seven billion dollars annually as normal for the future. Never in the history of the United States has revenue from taxation reached that figure. Only once has it gone over six billion, and on two other occasions exceeded five.

Fable: Once a person asked another person if he was boring him, and he was, and the other person said yes.

A READER dropped by yesterday with a thought that should be passed along to Lubbock public school and Texas Tech teachers and officials, and also to parents of students in both institutions.

Here it is:

Practically always—if not always—athletic teams of both Lubbock and the Tech are transported on road trips by common carriers. Thus they are safe-guarded as best they may be against accidents—and should an accident occur, insurance and responsibility would be set. That is as it should be.

But how about students who go out to represent their institutions in other activities?

Usually they are not transported in common carriers. Are the private drivers with whom they ride fully insured? What would happen in case of an accident?

Here, The Plainsman thinks, is something that should be gone into in both the Lubbock school system and at Tech and probably in every school in every town in all this section of the country.

This column knows of several occasions when students in both the Tech and the high school have been transported in private cars—sometimes with more persons in the conveyance than is best for safety.

We do not know whether insurance was carried, or not, but are bringing out this point in the hope that the matter will be gone into and then be taken care of, once and for all.

In case an accident should occur, everyone would be dreadfully sorry, even if insurance were carried.

But if it were not, everyone would feel even worse.

WHETHER or not you're reading the current articles in The Journal concerning the vast organization involved in keeping Social Security records straight and whether or not you approve Social Security or consider it a lot of foolishness you'll be interested to know it has boomed at least one business. That is the business of tattooing.

According to tattoo artists all over the country, thousands of men and women are having their Social Security numbers needled into their hides, so that even if they lose their cards they'll still know their numbers.

Thousands of dollars are being spent that way and the tattooers, of course, are very happy.

Thus we learn all over again that "every cloud has its silver lining!"

ON OUR own South Plains of Texas and in our neighboring fields of Eastern New Mexico there are today some 350,000 men, women and children going about their various pleasures, sorrows and duties—most of them with never a thought that their lives might greatly change.

Possibly we are right.

Perhaps the great majority of us will go on living and loving, working and playing, giving and taking, just as we have done today.

Yet it is entirely possible that a brief span of days, months, or years might find us living in a very different category—under terrifying different conditions.

Five years ago, the ordinarily peace-loving, indolent people of Spain were living very much as we, today, are living, as far as absence of personal dangers are concerned.

They gave never a thought to the hair-raising possibility that some day things might be different.

Yet today death stalks among them, tapping a shoulder here, another there. Ruins of their homes and their buildings lie all around them. Rotting corpses foul the countryside.

OH, WE'RE a long way from Spain and the indescribable cruelties of civil war. But so the people of Spain thought about war five years ago.

Read this, from the current edition of the magazine Newsweek:

"Mediterranean people appreciate the winter sun as a restorer of life and economizer of fuel bills. Sunshine followed a spell of bad weather in eastern Spain last week and along San Juan boulevard, Barcelona, young and old trooped out of doors. This is a low income quarter where most apartments have no heat except little charcoal-burning braziers. But the parkway is wide, with plenty of room for basking. It was the winter's first sunny day and children rolled hoops along gravel paths, while their elders formed frieze-like groups at the bases of monuments and about the park fountain.

"At 12:15, without warning, anti-aircraft guns barked. Instants later, six great bombing planes swooped overhead. The bombs struck without giving people time to scramble even into the precarious shelter of doorways. Windows and doors of an eight-story apartment exploded into the street; at an intersection the facades of four houses folded inward; a geyser of paving stones struck down a score of men, women and children. On the sea front a direct hit crumpled an entire warehouse. The raiders left between 300 and 400 killed, 1,500 wounded. Ten out of 11 direct hits, several with 440 and 660-pound bombs, struck apartment houses.

"The whole job took just 90 seconds."

That is not a pretty picture.

It is an even uglier one when we, in our mind's eye, substitute Lubbock for Barcelona; Broadway for San Juan Boulevard; our own people for the Spaniards.

Yet that same thing could happen to us sometime. And it doesn't take any great amount of imagination to realize it.

THE trouble with man is, his sense of balance, his ideals of civilization and of living have not gone ahead with his ability to invent and manufacture things which, in addition to making life better, are also fitted to make life a living hell.

We have gone a long way in science and in the mechanics while going a short way—if any distance at all—toward a sense of responsibility for the welfare of ourselves and others.

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT No. 18 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As best he could Tarzan hollowed out a shallow grave and buried the mortal remains of Lord Mountford, who had at last found relief from the tortures he had suffered in the land of the Kaji. Over the grave the ape-man heaped stones to protect it from the beasts.

And now, instead of heeding Lord Mountford's warning to go back, he turned his footsteps toward the forbidden land. He feared his friends were already in the hands of the mysterious Mafka. He must try to reach them before some horrible fate overtook them.

Soon, as had Wood and van Eyk before him, he encountered the tribe of friendly blacks. "You saw white men go this way?" Tarzan asked. "White men go that way," the chief answered; "they not come back. They never come back. You go, you never come back!"

Twice Tarzan had been warned of the inscrutable mysteries of the Kaji. But no warning could deter the valiant ape-man. More than ever he was eager to pit his strength against the terrible Mafka. There was a foe worthy of his mettle. The mighty Tarzan advanced!

LEADING ISSUES CLIMB BACK

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP) — The stock market put on a right-about-face today and leading issues climbed back fractions to more than 2 points.

The list slid into new low ground since 1935 at the opening, but offerings quickly dried up and a plodding recovery got under way which continued to the close.

Brokers generally attributed the upward reversal mainly to the speculative theory that an apparently oversold market is due for at least a temporary revival.

Transfers totalled 806,290 shares with 1,088,350 Thursday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up .9 of a point at 42.2.

American Telephone flopped more than 3 points at the start, but eventually retrieved all of this and emerged with a net advance of 1¼ points at 131⅞.

The financial sector displayed somewhat surprised satisfaction over the outcome of the "little business" men's conference at Washington which agreed on legislative remedies for the recession along lines previously proposed by large industrialists.

charge under FHA regulations, will be discontinued on all mortgages approved for insurance hereafter.

Elimination of the service charge and a reduction in the cost of mortgage insurance will save a maximum of about one per cent a year to home builders carrying insured mortgages of $5,400 or less. On all other insurable mortgages the savings will be about three-fourths of one per cent yearly.

The total maximum annual carrying charge for an FHA-insured mortgage approved for insurance hereafter will be five and one-half per cent. (Formerly it was 6.24 per cent, an official said.)

In the case of new homes securing mortgages of not more than $5,400, the total annual carrying charge to the borrower will be five and one-fourth per cent.

On a newly-constructed $6,000 home, the minimum down payment will be $600. On a newly-constructed $10,000 home, the minimum down payment will be $1,400.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 4. (AP)—Local and foreign buying absorbed offerings in the cotton market here today and last prices were steady at net advances of 6 to 9 points.

Occasional setbacks were encountered during the day on rumors from Washington that the administration would oppose certain amendments to the farm bill. Later, however, discounted the rumors and last prices were near the top.

Expectations that the farm bill would be reported soon were the main incentives behind the buying.

Brokers with foreign connections were the best purchasers although local shorts covered in increased volume. Contracts were scarce and prices traded above the previous close throughout the day.

March contracts closed at 8.62-bid, May at 8.72, July at 8.80, Oct. at 8.91, Dec. at 8.96 and Jan. at 8.97.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—Although early advances in cotton today attracted increased hedge selling, the market again developed a steadier tone toward the close. May, which had reacted from 8.63 to 8.53, closed at 8.58, with final prices 5 to 9 points net higher.

The market opened at an advance of 3 to 7 points. Net gains of 8 to 11 points were established during the morning as the buying from abroad continued. With the market more than $1.00 a bale above the early lows for the week, increased hedging through spot houses and realizing developed. Reactions to around the previous closing levels by mid-afternoon, however, attracted trade buying and covering.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 4. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton at 10 southern spot markets today was 8.62 cents a pound; for the past 30 market days 8.53 cents a pound.

the struggle which led to woman suffrage and a member of the jury of award for the Woodrow Wilson foundation.

She was married at Tyler, Texas, in 1884 but Mr. Pennybacker died at Palestine, Texas, in 1899.

A charter member of one of the first woman's clubs organized in Texas, her work in this field was known in all sections of the nation. Although she claimed Austin as her home, much of her time was spent in travel, fulfilling engagements at home and abroad. As president of the general federation, her interests in behalf of women took her to Alaska, Cuba, Canada, England and Ireland.

She was an author of note, having written a well-accepted history of Texas.

Friends said her sense of duty, adherence to principles, ability to stand criticism and a dislike for strife moulded her into a natural leader, but Mrs. Pennybacker frequently said these qualities came from her parents.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Feb. 4. (AP)—An upward whirl of 2 cents a bushel in Chicago wheat values today from an early low point accompanied sudden renewal of European war talk.

Despite extensive profit-taking on the bulge in prices, the wheat market here showed only about ¼ cent reaction at the last from the day's peak.

Late estimates put European purchases of North American wheat today at 400,000 bushels, including moderate amounts to Germany.

Something of a wet blanket, however, was thrown on wheat buying ardor in Chicago when the Liverpool market closed without showing any price upturn of consequence.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1 cent to 1¼ cents above yesterday's finish, May 95⅛@95¼, July 90⅞@91, corn ¼ to ½ up, May 59⅛@59⅜, July 60⅝@60½, oats unchanged to 10 cents higher.

At the time, Shannon said, Buthod was acting deputy prohibition administrator at Houston, and Behrens was a prohibition agent.

Shannon, in his report, asserted Behrens was dropped from the prohibition service in 1930 when his car, allegedly liquor-laden, was seized by police at Fort Worth.

Pittman said he expected to inquire fully into the Buthod-Behrens case when the committee resumed hearings next Tuesday. He contended it had a bearing on the qualifications of Burlew, whose confirmation he opposes, to be first assistant secretary.

In Case You're Interested, The Governor Of Missouri Was Not In Lubbock Friday

Governor Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri was not in Lubbock Friday.

For thirty nervous minutes a policeman, a reporter, and a big fistful of interested individuals looked for him, found him, but "he" was a woman.

Cause of the furor was a long, conspicuous looking automobile bearing Missouri license No. 1. Since 26 states issue that number to their chief executive, it was reasoned the Hon. Mr. Stark might have hied himself into the city.

Finally the woman and her negro chauffeur appeared to burst the fantastic bubble.

She explained that she was the wife of a Jefferson City, Mo., corporation lawyer, and for 31 years he had been accorded the honor of placing license No. 1 on his vehicle.

Mustangs Under 'Investigation'

DALLAS, Feb. 4. (AP)—The Times-Herald said today Southern Methodist university authorities were conducting a wholesale probe of hazing involving between 35 and 40 of the school's foremost varsity athletes.

The probe, the paper said, grew out of retaliation against freshmen football players for shaving off the mustache of Nolan Jackson, star football and basketball player for the Mustangs.

The mustache whittling occurred Jan. 25, the paper reported.

All varsity men connected with the incident, the Times-Herald said, asked that all be given the same penalty if any was forthcoming.

Maximum penalty for hazing at S. M. U. is suspension for one semester.

Arkansas Trounces Froggies, 53-26

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Feb. 4. (AP) — Arkansas university easily trounced Texas Christian university 53 to 26 here tonight before a near capacity crowd of 2,700 cage fans who came to witness the dedication of the new Razorback field house.

Don Lockard scored 24 points to lead the parade. The rest of the Arkansas scoring was spread among seven others.

T.C.U. got off to a 3 to 0 lead but Arkansas immediately went ahead. The lead changed several times before Arkansas finally pulled away 24 to 12 at the half.

Coming back after the rest period, Arkansas scored at will, with Lockard and Robbins both hitting the basket consistently.

Reserves played much of the last half and among them Johnson and Chambers stood out.

This Kovacs Lad Is Somebody To Watch

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4. (AP)—Eighteen-year-old Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., bounded into the Surf Club tennis finals today with a 6-3, 6-2, 7-5 victory over Wilmer Hines of Hollywood, Calif.

Thus Kovacs, only recently graduated from the junior ranks—where he ranked second nationally—virtually assured himself of another crack at Bobby Riggs of Chicago.

Top-seeded Riggs, the United States' second ranking player, was a heavy favorite to defeat Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., in their semifinal match tomorrow.

Kovacs, who toppled Bitsy Grant yesterday, lost to Riggs in the Miami Biltmore tournament semifinals several weeks ago but his game has improved steadily.

Big-Name Pros Have Trouble Following Newcomer In Pasadena Open Tournament

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Feb. 4. (AP)—Matching flooded fairways, slow greens, and intermittent rain, stocky Early Fry of Alameda, Calif., turned in one of four below par rounds posted today to lead the field in the first round of the $3,000 Sacramento 72-hole golf tournament.

Fry, one of five golfing brothers of Northern California, played the finest competitive game of his career to set the pace for a field that included some of the outstanding links troupers of the country.

He was out in 33, three strokes under par for the first nine of the Municipal course, and came home in 37 for a total of 70. Par for the layout is 36-36.

Only three others of the nearly 100 starters were able to better standard figures. They were Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J.; Horton Smith of Chicago and Tony Penna, of Dayton, Ohio. Ghezzi and Penna each turned in 36-35 and Smith a 37-34 for 71's.

Jolson-Mead-Armstrong Fight Continues In Superior Court

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4. (AP)—Round three of the verbal battle between Singer Al Jolson and Fight Manager Eddie Mead was reached today over the tangled ownership of Featherweight Champion Henry Armstrong.

Jolson, carrying out a threat sounded in the first round, filed suit in superior court against Mead. He asked that he be recognized as co-owner of the crack little negro boxer, and that Mead be required to give him half of the money he has collected since September, 1936, on Armstrong's ring earnings.

Mead contended, in yesterday's second round, that Jolson merely loaned him $5,000 to buy Armstrong's contract from another manager, Wirt Ross, and that a final payment of $1,000 is in the hands of Jolson's attorney.

He claimed further that when Armstrong's price was doubled during the original negotiations, George Raft, screen star, loaned him another $5,000 which has since been repaid.

Demands Toned Down

lated by subdivisions of the little men's conference. They were approved at a gulp yesterday by the conference as a whole, although some members protested vigorously.

Since each group had enlarged the scope of its assigned subject and presented resolutions covering many phases of the economic problem, the composite result was filled with duplications and contradictions. So the chairmen of the ten sub-divisions were made a super-resolutions committee to bring order out of the chaos.

Demands Toned Down

In so doing, they toned down repeated demands for repeal of the Wagner act, to an investigation of its administration; and outright opposition to federal regulation of wages and hours became a statement questioning "the merit" of a wage-hour law.

Vigorously stated objections to government interference with business came out of the mill as a suggestion that the "government continue to cooperate with business."

The committee took its report to the president soon after a press conference at which Mr. Roosevelt said he was trying to put a floor under wages in the same manner that he was seeking to put a floor under agricultural prices.

Hitler Assumes New Powers

Ambassadors Recalled

3. Not only withdrew von Ribbentrop from London but recalled Ambassadors Ulrich von Hassell from Rome, Herbert Dirksen from Tokyo and Franz von Papen from Vienna without indicating either their new assignments or successors;

4. Summoned the reichstag to meet in Berlin Feb. 20 for what was believed to be an important announcement of international policy.

He deposed as chief of staff of the army, Gen. Werner von Fritsch, who forced the crisis by demanding von Blomberg resign, and named Walter von Brauchitsch to his post with the rank of colonel-general. Von Branchitsch has been commander of the motorized divisions of the army.

Deputy Warlord Is Created

Wilhelm Keitel, former state secretary in the war ministry, was raised to cabinet rank as Hitler's deputy warloard with the title of "chief of the high command of the armed forces."

Hitler's right hand man, Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, prime minister of Prussia, dictator of economic self-sufficiency, air minister, etc., was raised to the rank of field marshal general.

With von Blomberg eliminated, this title makes Goering the only German field marshal in active service. Goering had been known to be working for von Blomberg's post as war minister as well.

Typical Hitler Suddenness

The drastic reorganization of Nazi rule came with typical Hitler suddenness after days and nights of maneuvering in which von Fritsch had sought to force a showdown on the whole question of Nazi control of the army.

To his secret cabinet council on foreign policy Hitler named Goering; von Brauchitsch; Keitel; von Ribbentrop; Rudolf Hess, minister without portfolio; Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda; Dr. Hans Heinrich Lammers, minister without portfolio; and Admiral Reich Raeder, chief of staff of the navy.

While the army leaders were known to be bitterly opposed to von Blomberg's marriage to a woman who would not have been approved as the wife of a junior officer, the real tension within the crisis was the conflict between party and army leaders.

Land Office Probe

tain approval of the claims within a comparatively short time.

Tyler Man Said He Lied

It was the second time during the ten days that questioners had developed testimony along this line. B. A. "Jerry" Adams of Tyler admitted to the committee regarding the previous testimony that he lied when he represented to M. H. Hackney of Longview that he had "pull" with the land office.

Adams was one of the persons mentioned as having offered to assist him on some of his vacancy claims. He also mentioned two Wichita county residents.

Under cross-questioning by Grady Owen of the land office legal staff, he testified he had rejected any suggestion other persons might influence procurement of vacancies and was aware none of his rights had been finally affected by any land office action.

Can Have Suit Filed

"You know you can have the attorney general file suit and if any of your claims are determined to be vacancies they are yours, do you not?" inquired Owen.

"Yes," the witness answered.

One of the Wichita county men who tried to make a deal with him on certain of his vacancy claims was represented to him by a third person, he said, as having raised money for McDonald's campaign in 1936.

He told the committee that of the eight vacancy claims he had filed none had yet been approved.

"My attorney finally told me," the witness said, "that he didn't believe I ever would get anything through unless I worked through someone else."

More Testimony On Heath

The committee devoted the last part of its hearing to further examination of the bank accounts of W. W. Heath, assistant attorney general until a few months ago, and members of his family.

Heath had said yesterday that any savings he had managed to make had "nothing to do with state business—land office or otherwise—except my salaries as secretary of state and assistant attorney general." He was secretary of state under Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

Evidence was introduced today to the effect that Mrs. Heath's savings account in a Normangee bank now amounted to $4,700. Heath had testified almost a third of that was from the sale of bank stock.

Sen. Joe L. Hill of Henderson introduced a record purporting to show that the account for the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Heath had grown to $2,847.

Color To Come Into Prominence In New Men's Spring Suits

Slacks combined with odd jackets and the new bamboo shirts in unusual colors will be the style of smartly-dressed men this spring and summer.

Palm Beach men may create raspberry and burgundy as the color mode for spring but Lubbock men's store and tailor shop proprietors say they believe baby blue will be the prevailing shade for this more conservative section of the country. Baby blue is the "newest thing", and will be worn in the town and country for sports and dress wear. Green is on the increase.

Darker Colors Best

"Darker colors in tropical weights are predominating," said a dealer for men's clothing.

The Merchant Tailor Designers association predicts men's trousers will be half an inch shorter at the cuff, but leading salesmen here said Lubbock men probably will wear theirs much the same as they did the previous year.

A style highlight of the season, however, is the trend toward the bamboo shirts (canary yellow). They will be worn by college men, business men and sportsmen alike, it was forecast.

Ties To Be Subdued

Ties definitely will be more subdued in the spring. Ties of splotched color of no design will be popular. They are being shown with matching scarfs and handkerchiefs — and will be worn with tuxedos! Green will prevail widely in ties, socks and handkerchiefs.

The big idea now is to leave the bottom button of the coat unbuttoned, and patch pockets on coats are also most fashionable.

More and more straw hats will be seen this spring, regardless of conservatism.

Cross Breeding Of Corn Process Is Added To Museum Exhibits

A process for cross breeding corn is an exhibit which has been added to collections at the West Texas museum on the Texas Technological college campus.

Obtained from the Iowa State college experiment station by Earl T. Duke, instructor in agronomy at Tech, the display shows development of a new variety of corn having a 14 per cent higher yield than pure line varieties over a five-year testing period.

It is adapted to climatic and soil conditions in eastern and southern parts of Texas, according to Dr. A. W. Young, head professor of plant industry, but not to West Texas planting.

Welding Session Closed Friday

A two-day welding conference ended at Texas Technological college Friday afternoon after programs including papers, discussions, motion pictures, demonstrations and exhibits had been presented before more than 300 persons from a large territory.

The college mechanical engineering department sponsored the conference. H. F. Clodeke is head of the department and J. C. Hardgrave is assistant professor.

Old Shop Of Interest

Welding equipment was sent here by companies for the conference. An old-fashioned blacksmith shop was included in exhibits, offering contrast to modern equipment shown. J. A. Wildman, aged blacksmith of Tatum, N. M., had paid $28 for the shop 20 years ago and last week received the same amount for the building and equipment. It will be taken to Columbia, Purdue and other universities for welding conferences and will become a permanent exhibit of the Stoody company, Whittier, Calif.

Papers were presented Friday by F. C. Hutchinson of the Linde Air Products company, R. W. Van Kirk of the General Electric company, and Mike Murphy, pipe line engineer for the Air Reduction Sales corporation. Murphy read a paper which had been prepared by C. A. Mulligan of the Mulligan Welding and Surfacing company of Houston. C. Monroe, advertising manager of the Welding Engineer of Chicago, read excerpts from the Texas Boiler code.

Dean O. V. Adams of the college engineering division presided at the morning session and C. K. Rickel of the Victory Welding Equipment company at an afternoon session at which a motion picture obtained from the bureau of mines experiment station at Pittsburgh, Penn., was presented.

Eight Countries To Be Included On Trip Holden Is To Sponsor

Eight countries will be included in itinerary of the second European tour to be conducted by Dr. W. C. Holden, head professor of history and anthropology at Texas Technological college.

Sailing from New York on the Queen Mary July 20, the party will make a motor bus tour of Scotland and England. With Edinburg as headquarters, they will go on an excursion through the Trossachs, returning to London down the eastern coast. Visits in England include trips to Stratford-on-Avon and through the lake districts.

Sightseeing trips through Holland and Belgium will be followed by a boat trip up the Rhine to Heidelberg; through Switzerland to Italy thence through southern France to Paris. The return trip is from Cherbourg on the Berengaria arriving in New York Sept. 2.

Total cost of the trip, from New York, is $595. This includes third class boat transportation, food and other traveling expenses for the entire European visit.

Before London's Victoria embankment was erected, the Thames river flowed over ground where scores of buildings now stand.
