Suit to Recover Sums Suggested to Legislature

AUSTIN, May 16. (AP)—The "one cent per acre fund" created by assessments against purchasers of state lands was at all times a public fund and all the money which remained unexpended by the land commissioner in the actual administration of the 1925 reappraisement act is the property of the state, the joint legislative committee which investigated the land office, concluded, it told both houses in its report today.

J. T. Robison, land commissioner, had testified he believed the state to have no interest in the fund and so believing he had accepted amounts of refunds which had been sent to land owners.

The manner of handling the fund was described as "inexcusable, unwarranted and unjustified; that the same involves an unsound public policy and should not be countenanced by any public official in the discharge of the duties of his office."

Commissioner Robison had testified that he kept no accurate account of the receipts and disbursements of the fund.

"The acceptance of gifts and gratuities as practiced by the land commissioner, if carried on by officials of a democratic form of government to any extent, is calculated to destroy the confidence of the citizenship in the government, and finally to wreck and destroy the same," the report said.

The committee made no specific recommendations to the legislature concerning acts of the land commissioner. The committee recommended that the attorney general investigate the advisability of instituting suit against the land commissioner, "calling upon him to make an accurate accounting of the fund, ad for the recovery of the sums of money which such accounting shows had not been legitimately used by the commissioner in administering said account."

The committee found that operating under the law that all unsurveyed lands or scrap lands may be sold without advertising such lands for sale, "the land office has in at least two instances sold such lands located in proven oil territory for a nominal consideration and that as a result the public school funds have suffered extensive damages and losses."

An analysis has been made by the merchants association of New York gives statistics showing that the output of men's and boys' clothing in the city dropped from $379,000,000 in 1925 to $338,000,000 in 1927 while productions of women's clothing increased from $1,008,000,000 to $1,145,000,000.

IMPEACHMENT OF LONG IS GIVEN UP TODAY

BATON ROUGE, La., May 16—(AP)—The Louisiana senate court of impeachment today abandoned trial of Governor Huey P. Long and dissolved by unanimous consent without hearing any testimony on the impeachment charges against him.

The adjournment was taken on an oral vote amid scattered handclapping and a few muffled cheers. The gallery was packed and the rule limiting spectators was suspended to permit throngs to come in and stand around the rail.

Adjournment was forced by the Long forces' move in presenting a signed motion for adjournment sine die bearing the signatures of 15 senators declaring thehy would vote to acquit the governor regardless of the evidence as they believed the charges had been voted in violation of the law and constitution.

GRAF ZEPPELIN MOTORS FAIL—'HEADING BACK'

NEW YORK, May 16. (AP)—The Columbia Broadcasting company today received the following bulletin from its correspondent on the Graf Zeppelin: "Two broken motors. Heading back."

The radio marine corporation said it had received the same message and was attempting to confirm it.

The Columbia Broadcasting company officials said the cable was signed by Frank E. Nicholson, their correspondent. It came in over the commercial cables.

The full cable reads: "Two broken motors. Heading back Germany. Can not go fast."

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany May 16—(AP)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, mighty mistress of the air, raced westward with the sun today above Southwestern Europe on its second trip across the Atlantic to America. It made a previous trip last October.

Before it lay a variable course above Gibraltar, probably the Azores and Bermuda, to Lakehurst, N. J., which the dirigible master, Dr. Hugo Eckener, did not expect to reach before late Saturday night or Sunday morning.

Aboard the ship were 40 of the crew, 18 passengers, and a female gorilla, "Susi." The only woman passenger was Mrs. Mary Pierce, wife of a New York utilities broker, who made the trip despite urgent pleadings of her husband and mother. Among the men was Captain Sir George Hubert Wilkins, Arctic explorer.

Leaves in Drizzle

The ship was trundled from its hangar at 5:45 a. m., and at the pilot's command was released for its long voyage at 5:57 a. m., (11:57 p. m., Eastern Standard Time Wednesday). It rose slowly in an intermittent drizzle, while 200 or more spectators cheered. It circled the field once, and disappeared in ten minutes in the direction of the Lake Constance and Basel, Switzerland.

After flying over Walashut and Saeckingen the dirigible arrived over Basel at 7:30 a. m., a fog obliging it to descend close to the ground to discharge its first load of air mail. Five Swiss airplanes joined it there and acted as an escort as far as the French frontier which it wirelessed t had crossed at 7:55 a. m.

Mrs. Pierce was one of the first at the field. Her decision to make the trip was believed here never to have been changed by protests of relatives in America although she had it reported she had cancelled her booking and she herself sent messages to America saying she was not going.

"I hope you all told your papers I'm not going," she told several American correspondents. "Won't my relatives be suprised when I droy in on them after all?"

Passengers Jovial

Dr. Eckener whs the last aboard the Zeppelin. It was taken from its hangar, poking its nose imposingly into the dreary grey mist. At 5:56 he gave the command to start the motors and the next minute the vast dirigible was on its way, first describing a loop over its hangar.

All the windows on the starboard side were lined with faces, whose owners waved their hands in answer to the "hoghc" of the crowd below. All seemed in a cheerful, jovial mood.

As the dirigible was taken from its hangar another stowaway—the seventh since yesterday—was caught as he, dressed in mechanic's clothes, attempted to sneak into the hold through a closing door.

There were various contrivances aboard for passengers' amusement, such as a phonograph with a loud speaker and chess boards. Most of the passengers had cameras and there were several typewriters.

The ship carried 4,400 pounds of freight in addition to its passengers, this included considerable air mail, a grand piano, a painting and other things.

Instead of blau gas for which the ship's motors are best fitted, a supply of leunal gas was taken along for fuel.

Guardsmen Arrest 200 Picketeers on Highways

Bus Driver Crashes Into Crowd—Four Hurt

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., May 16. (AP)—An explosion of dynamite today severed the water main serving Elizabethton and the American Bemberg and the American Glanzstoff Rayon plants, and shortly afterward George Crow, identified by Sheriff J. M. Moreland as the man who warned him last night the main would be dynamited, was arrested.

Two hundred national guardsmen were hurriedly dispatched to the scene. They arrested 100 picketeers charging them with intimidation and blocking the highways.

Lieutenant H. M. Ferris reported that a girl picketeer with the help of two men wrested a pistol from a deputy sheriff, and taking a position in the middle of the highway trained the weapon on drivers of buses and taxis bringing workers to the Rayon plants, prohibiting them from passing.

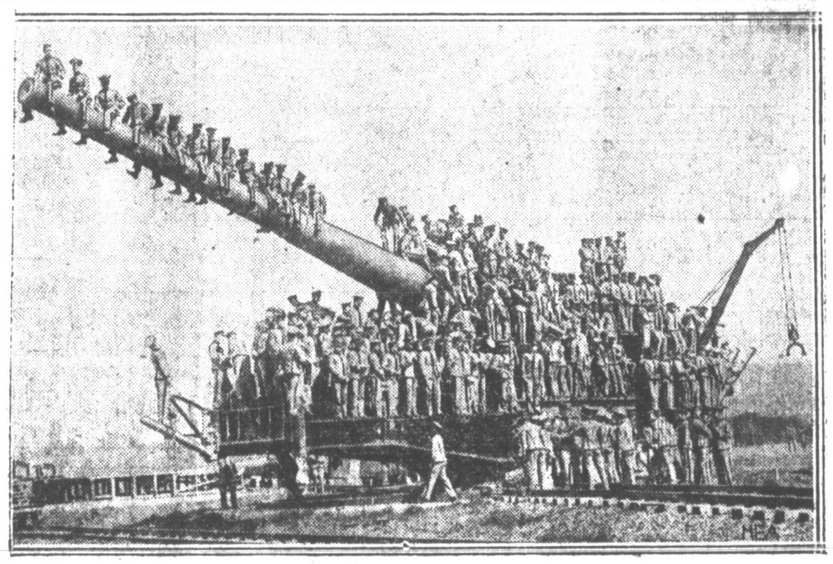

The picketeers were marched to the Carter county courthouse where they were held under guard.

Joe Calhoun, driving a bus load of workers to the Rayon plants, ran his machine into a gathering of strikers who attempted to block the road, injuring four of them. Calhoun was spirited to Jonesboro, 18 miles away, for safe keeping.

LEAKING STEAM PIPE BLAMED FOR EXPLOSIONS AND DISASTER AT CLEVELAND—DEATH TOLL 122

CLEVELAND, May 16—(AP)—Boffrey Bogg, a plumber called yesterday to the Cleveland clinic to repair a steam pipe, today said the fireproof door to the chamber in the basement of the structure which housed the x-ray films where the first explosion occured, was open immediately preceding the blast and that the room itself was supercharged by steam, apparently coming from a leaky steam pipe.

CLEVELAND, May 16—(AP)—The noxious, brownish gas which shattered the Cleveland clinic hospital and dropped patients, doctors and nurses in their tracks as they fought for escape, continued its insidious work today, driving the death total toward the 150 mark. Thirty-three persons were in a critical condition.

The two terrific explosions and the fire which followed ignition of x-ray films in the basement yesterday and which took scores of lives did not do all the damage. The poisonous fumes continued to act on the blood of the victims and resulted in hourly reports of additional deaths.

The great majority of the 121 dead reported at noon were residents of this city, a score being from cities outside Ohio and a dozen or more from other cities in the state.

CLEVELAND, May 16. (AP)—The death toll in the Cleveland clinic explosion reached 117 today. Victims who had fought for their lives through the night succumbed one after another, and physicians predicted that eventually others whose bodies were poisoned with gas would die.

The gas had attacked the blood, they said, slowly destroying red corpuscles. The victims were compared to the "walking gas cases" of the world war—gassed soldiers who withstood the inroad of the poison for a few days and then fell over dead.

Some of the survivors were patients, nurses and doctors at the clinic. Others were firemen and policemen who risked their lives in the acrid smoke to remove bodies. Some were volunteers who had worked feverishly with them. Physicians said most of them had but little chance fo rtheir lives.

Noted Doctor Dies

Such a case was that of Dr. John Phillips, one of the founders of the clinic. Two tanks of oxygen were used, but he collapsed after walking some distance to his home from the clinic. This recourse having failed, Dr. George

Gangsters Slay Chicago Officer

CHICAGO, May 16—(AP)—A police detective was fatally wounded late yesterday by a gang of extortionist whom he had attempted to trap by disguising himself as the agent of their intended victim.

Ray Martin, the detective, was shot down by the men as he approached their automobile. The extortionist escaped under a spray of bullets fired by policemen hidden nearby.

Police ordered the arrest of Martin O'Leary, West Side gang character, and the Frontana Brothers, Carlos and Ernest, described as bootleggers and gangsters.

Martin had disguised himself as Moses Blumenthal, brother of Philip Blumenthal, reputed millionaire bootlegger who recently was kidnaped and released upon the payment of $15,000 and his promise to pay $35,000 more by June 1. Moses Blumenthal was ordered yesterday by the kidnapers to pay more money immediately.

After policemen had stationed themselves in weeds in vacant lots nearby, Martin walked down the street until he came to an automobile containing four men.

As he approached the car, the men, supposedly seeing through Martin's disguise, opened fire and sped away.

JAILER KILLS MAN HELD FOR PRISON TERM

Raymond Sellers Said to Have Attended Wisconsin U.

TWO OTHER MEN BADLY WOUNDED

Four Prisoners Try to Escape This Morning

WICHITA FALLS, May 16. (AP)—One prisoner was shot to death and two others wounded when four men in the Wichita county jail rushed their jailer today in an attempt to escape.

Raymond Sellers, 23, was killed and T. O. Cagle, 21, and C. W. Bruner, 31, were wounded.

W. W. Allen, jailer, suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Jack Stewart, Dallas, under burglary indictment, was the fourth prisoner. He threw himself to the floor and escaped wounds after his companions had been shot, Allen said.

Sellers, under two automobile theft sentences totalling 7 years, said in his trials he had studied for three years at the University of Wisconsin. Bruner, Burkburnett, Tex., was shot through the hips. He was awaiting the outcome of an appeal from a 10-year sentence for auto theft. Cagle, Petrolia, Tex., was awaiting trial on six burglary charges. He was shot through the abdomen.

Registration Bill Probably Will Be Vetoed If Passed

AUSTIN, May 16. (AP)—Scarcely resembling its original form, the Tillotson-Hubbard motor registration bill which passed the house last night 108 to 4 after two days of debate was ready to be sent to the senate.

The measure as finally approved is topheavy with amendments, one of which was hailed last night as a certainty that the bill would meet with a veto in the governor's ofice if not removed either by the senate or in a conference between the two houses. Rep. W. E. Pope, Corpus Christi, was successful in inserting into the bill a provision that state funds for road construction could not be expended except through agreement of county commissioners courts.

This clause, stubbornly contested by authors of the bill, will have the same effect as a measure by Rep. Paul Finn, Sunset, which passed both the house and senate only to be disapproved by Governor Moody. The Finn bill stipulated that the highway department could not reroute roads passing through towns of more than 200 population without the consent of the commissioners' court.

"We've killed the registration bill so let's adjourn," Rep. Harold Kayton, San Antonio, asserted after the membership had balloted 62 to 44, to sustain Pope's amendment.

Rep. Leonard Tillotson, Sealy, said he hoped the objectionable feature might be eliminated when the measure comes before a senate-house committee to adjust what diferences arise on the bill.

Pope was halted in a second amendment which would not allow the highway department to route a highway on any designation other than that approved by counties at a bond election through a ruling from Speaker Barron that the proposed change could not apply to a revenue raising bill.

As the financing plan finally was approved by the house, license fees on privately owned cars are reduced 35 per cent, buses are increased 5 per cent, and fees on small trucks and medium sized trucks remain the same.

"It's Like This—"

THE CLEVELAND DISASTER, as awful as it was, may be of value if it impresses upon the nation the horrible toll that poison gases are apt to take if there is another war.

* * *

It is unthinkable that those responsible for the presence of the gas forming materials had the remotest idea of what might happen. But the result was as devastating as if some master fiend had planned it all.

* * *

The gas which was liberated was, moreover, as nothing compared to what could be brought about should a sky filled with airplanes drop bombs containing even more deadly gases. It is proposed to outlaw use of gas and airplanes in warfare, yet agreements in the past have been broken and may be broken again.

* * *

The realization of the possibilities of future warfare, however, should help to bring about international good will, out of which wars are less apt to grow. There is no sense in warring with restricted arms—the intent is to reach a decision, and death is horrible enough regardless of methods of inflicting it.

BEAUTY IS SKIN DEEP, but a great deal depends upon the shape over which the skin is drawn. We refer to the Irish potato, which is usually homely in form even if it has a skin you love to touch when it is taken steaming from the stove.

* * *

Beauty is a great quality, and all nature strives for it. The potato, however, has been taken out of nature's hands and made to grow many times the size it originally did. In the effort to achieve quantity, potato raisers have neglected the beauty phase. Perhaps "Eat More Spud" weeks would not be necessary if the potato apealed as much to the eye as to the palate.

* * *

So the potato is to have its face lifted, its eyes treated, and its skin texture improved. Uncle Sam is sponsoring the move in the hope of improving Mr. Spud's commercial appeal. The department of agriculture will spend $20,000 in the face-lifting program. Some may believe this will be money ill spent, but not so.

* * *

Beauty is a sign of well being over several generations. The beautiful potato will be less susceptible to diseases which damage the crops. Housewives who see smooth, well formed potatoes in the stores will think of easy peeling and slicing and the beauty will, furthermore, suggest a palatable dish—pretty white mountains of mashed potatoes or tasty spuds served in the skins, piping hot, with butter, salt, pepper to taste.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON— When last your correspondent visited the Democratic headquarters here there was so much plastering, painting, hammering and sawing going on that no one seemed to know just what was being done. But it was perfectly apparent that the offices were being considerably expanded and the inference was that the space would be ready soon to active occupancy.

It may all be very futile and nothing good may ever come of it, but the fact that the Democrats plan to keep their business alive between campaigns ought to be convincing proof that some persons having to do with the leadership of the party still have enough sense to realize what ought to be done in the party's interest, whether it can be actually achieved or not.

Raskob Is on the Job

There will always be Democrats who will dislike little John J. Raskob, the national chairman, because he is a Catholic and because he is wet, but unless you count those items in there are very few harsh things that can properly be said about him. In fact, little Raskob, since the campaign, has been doing all sorts of things which ought to entitle him to rounds of loud cheers from any stray Democrats who are still interested in some day electing a Democratic president.

It is little Raskob, of course, who is putting in the main licks in the attempt to put the party back on its feet. In the face of all the abuse he has had, publicly and privately, from Democrats of the South, he has been patiently and quietly picking up the pieces and proceeding to raise money to pay the bills.

Many men in his position might have given the party up as a bad job and plunged right back into business to make a few more millions. But Raskob played the game like a good sport, and Democrats in Congress were astounded when they learned of the extent of his success in reducing the party debt left over from the campaign.

Little Raskob is a modest person, almost shy. The southern Democrats here have never liked him very much, but he has treated them so well that they are left high and dry when they want to tell him where to get off. The fact is that the southern leaders themselves have been unable to produce anything in the way of national leadership and are not exactly in a position to crab.

Of course, if little Raskob had been arbitrary and hard-boiled since the campaign they might have been in a position to eat him up, but he isn't like that. He has transferred national headquarters from New York to their own stamping grounds in Washington, promised them plenty of help in the next congressional campaign and stepped politely into the background with pleasant words to the effect that they would really be the most important factor in welding party policies for the next few years.

It may even be that little Raskob ought to get some credit for the recent surprising showing of the Democratic bad one in Congress. It is since his recent visit to Washington, with words of kindly cheer and inspiration—and promises of funds—that Democratic senators have been herded together behind the export debenture proposal for farm relief. Support of that measure is not storing up an immense number of votes for the party now, but it offers some hope to Democrats who would like to see their party present a more or less solid front in the national legislature.

Will Have Stronger Position

And if the administration's farm relief measure, which presumably will be enacted, fails to help the farmer materially, as it is likely to fail, the position of the Democrats will be much stronger than if they had taken no position at all.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT C. PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—The disposition of the President and Mrs. Hoover to avoid ceremony as much as possible is appealing tremendously to Washington officialdom, so accustomed is it to an atmosphere or rigid formality.

White house guests are saying that the Hoovers' present life is little different from that in their pleasant S street home. The informal Sunday evening supper parties are especially notable for their simplicity.

If the President has gone in for public economy, he is showing no signs of personal economy in the matter of entertaining. There are white house guests for luncheon or dinner pretty nearly every day. And such entertaining is paid for out of the Hoover's own pocket for the public purse provides only for state functions at the white house.

NOBODY MOVED

There is an amusing story told of a group who attended one of the earliest of these informal white house dinners and sat around afterward waiting for their hosts to make the first move toward breaking up the party.

At all formal functions at the executive mansion it is the custom of the President and first lady to withdraw as soon as a suitable time has elapsed for after-dinner conversation. All through the Coolidge administration the same routine was followed at even the most informal gatherings.

The guests on this occasion expected the same procedure.

But 11 o'clock came. Midnight. And no move had been made.

Then the ranking guest caught the President smothering a yawn and decided that it was time to be going. Whereupon the President and Mrs. Hoover accompanied their friends to the white house door and sped them on their way—as they had done many times before from the door of their S street home.

FRIENDLY GATHERING

A typical Sunday evening party at the white house included Attorney General and Mrs. Mitchell, Senator and Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett, Senator and Mrs. Frederic M. Sackett, Representative and Mrs. Willis C. Hawley, Rep. Frederick M. Davenport, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahncke and two or three others.

Informality extends to other activities of Mr. and Mrs. Hoover.

Secret Service operatives are less conspicuously in evidence than for many years.

Mrs. Hoover elects to drive her own car—unmarked by the familiar white house seal—when the spirit moves her, just as she did before she became first lady of the land.

And recently when the President surrounded himself with a party of close friends and explored the fishing preserve which has been set aside for him in the Shenandoah national park, in Virginia, the little group of guests—men and women—was treated to a picnic luncheon.

Wilbur Cooper Tames Buffaloes and Sports Win

By GAYLE TALBOT, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Old Wilbur Cooper, a major league cast-off whom the experts long since had classified as through, found enough cunning left in his good right arm to puzzle the ambitious Houston Buffs and deprive them of an opportunity to climb into a tie with Waco for the Texas league lead.

Cooper, who once performed mighty deeds for the Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates, was clouted from the hill in his first start for Shreveport over a week ago, but he was right as a fox yesterday. He limited the Buffaloes to five scattered safeties while his new mates batted out a 5 to 2 victory and an even break for their series.

All this occurred while the touring Cubs were dropping their second straight to Wichita Falls, 8 to 1, and as a result Dell Pratt's battlers still had a one-game lead as they moved into Fort Worth for a three-game series today.

It is doubtful the Buffs will improve their percentage materially the next three days, as they are at Dallas for a series with the recurrent rambunctious Steers. After taking their third in a row from Beaumont yesterday 7 to 3, the Mavericks again look like a dangerous animal to fool with. Milt Stock's valuable team has been sliding up and down the pennant ladder faster than a fireman ever since the season started. Today it was back up in fourth place.

After dropping two straight to the San Antonio Indians, the Fort Worth hopefuls finally got Pat Newman's Braves back on the reservation yesterday and handed them a 3 to 1 licking in their series final at Cattown. Hobo Carson pitched a brilliant game for San Antonio, giving up only four hits, but the breaks were against him. The losers gauged Lefty Walkup for seven knocks.

Shell Nine to Play in Amarillo Next Sunday

The baseball season in Amarillo will officially open Sunday afternoon when the fast Shell nine from here will invade Amarillo to meet the town team, known as the Tackless Texans. The game will be played at Metro park on 10th street starting at 3 o'clock.

With the veteran Ed. Gober in the Shell line-up the team will be bolstered for the rest of the season. The redhead had about decided to give up managerial duties and get some enjoyment out of being one of the players. The team is under the leadership of Duffy Jones, veteran ball player.

In the Amarillo line-up will be Hayden, Vaught, Nicklaus, Hamilton, and the veteran Skeet Gibson, who has just returned from Pensacola, Fla., where he has been this spring.

Manager Jones wil probably use "Sugar" Edwards in the box and the veteran Clayton behind the bat. He will have Dickey and Bullock in reserve .The Shell boys have been playing snappy ball, only losing one game since the Industrial league was organized. They are a hard hitting aggregation and have a strong defense.

Texas U. Netters Expected to Win

AUSTIN, May 16—(AP)—Led by the brilliant Berkeley Bell, the Texas university tennis team is favored to sweep to an easy victory in the Southwest conference net tourney here this weekend.

Other members of the Longhorn squad, which has gone through five dual conference meets with the loss of only one set, are Barnes, Ferguson, and Dunlap. In addition to their conference meets, the Steer netters also have engaged Grinnell college of Iowa, Oklahoma State, Oklahoma A. & M. Tulane, Southwest Texas State Teachers and Drake university. Against all these teams Dr. Penick's players dropped only two double matches.

Rice is expected to give the Longhorns their strongest opposition in the approaching meet. Jack Hess, Owl star ,came within a point of taking a set from Bell in the dual meet here May 4.

Women Wrestle at Pla-Mor Dance

An added attraction at the regular Wednesday night dance at the Pla-Mor auditorium last night was a wrestling match between Miss Teddy Myers, claimant of the woman's championship, and Miss Billie Jackson, local woman wrestler. The two young women wrestled to a 15-minute draw.

The two women will probably finish their battle at the Pla-Mor auditorium a week from tonight when a big wrestling card is being planned. An attempt is being made to get Arthur Saxon, strong man, to wrestle Oscar Dotson, local blacksmith.

Jack Sandson, Miss Myer's manager, is also seeking a match for that night and has issued a challenge to Leo Chase, local man.

No Hit Game Is Played Here

The first game of hitless baseball of the season was played at Magnolia park last night. Edwards and Dickey for Shell let the Gulf Gunners down without a hit. It would have been a no hit, no run performance, but Gulf scored a lone run in the sixth on an error and a wild pitch.

While the Shell pitcers were holding the Gunners, Rains, former Shell hurler, let his teammates down with three hits and two runs. The winning encounter crossed the plate on a wild pitch.

Hunter, Clayton and Wisdom were the hitters for the Shell boys.

Tonight at 6 o'clock at Magnolia field, Shell will clash with the fast Cabot nine. It should be another tight game.

Batteries for Shell-Gulf game: Shell, Edwards, Dickey and Clayton. Gulf, Rains and Sherrod.

Texarkana Will Give Up Franchise in Small League

TEXARKANA, May 16—(AP)—Texarkana notified T. H. Fisher of Dallas, president of the Lone Star League, last night, it was returning its franchise to the league because of lack of support.

President Fisher was on his way here today to try to straighten out the difficulty, but officials held little hope. They announced yesterday, when only 100 persons saw a double header, that they were through.

Sherman and Tyler both had considered withdrawing from the circuit, but weathered the storm.

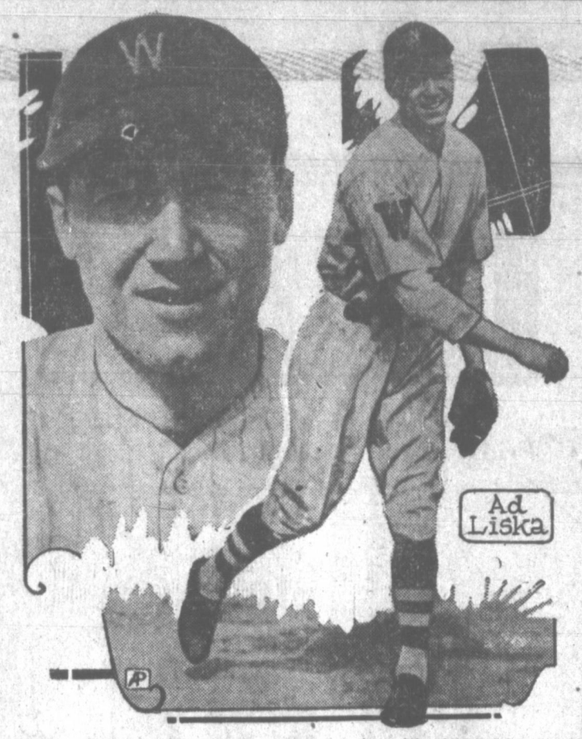

LIQUOR RUNNER NEARLY DROWNS AT GALVESTON

GALVESTON, May 16—(AP)—Two men were arrested and about 200 cases of liquor, valued at approximately $10,000, were seized by customs inspectors and coast guards here today.

The men were arrested as they attempted to escape from a motor boat from which they were grappling for liquor cached in the waters near the draw bridge of the Galveston causeway. In their attempt to evade the officers one of the men was nearly drowned.

SENATORS' ROOKIE HURLER HEADS HARD-LUCK BRIGADE

Ad Liska, Washington's $20,000 recruit with $100,000 worth of stuff, has the best earned run average in the majors, but he can't boast a break, losing three games by a one-run margin.

BY JAY VESSELS
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK (AP)—Out in front with the best 1929 earned run average of major eague pitchers is a 22-year-old recruit named Ad Liska.

Yet with all of his hurling brilliance he hadn't won a ball game on May 7. At that time the unofficial averages showed Ad had worked in something like 38 innings and had allowed only 13 hits. On top of this were several bits of remarkable tossing flashed during pre-season play.

This is pretty hard luck for young Liska, who has been used to winning his games. In fact, all last season he lost just four games against 20 victories.

The $20,000 beauty whom Washington bought from Minneapolis of the Amelcan asociation held Boston to six hits in his first start, but lost, 2 to 1 Then he went in as a relief flipper against the Yankees and with the score tied, hurled near-perfect ball for three innings. He lost in the ninth after holding the world's champions to two hits in 3 1-3 innigs.

Ad's best performance brought no better luck. He checked Cleveland with two hits, losing out, 1 to 0, because of two errors.

Liska's climb from a Mississippi Valley league player in 1927 to a Washington regular in 1929 centers around his one-year stay with Minneapolis during which he won 20 games and lost four.

Mike Kelley Minneapolis manager, who has sent several of them on their way to the top, writes this about Ad:

"When Liska came to us in the spring of 1928 from the Mississippi Valley league he used a sinker—an underhand style delivering a fast ball which broke inward on a right handed batter and outward on a left hander before it sank.

"It was a smart delivery, but they were bound to get him in time. I suggested a change and worked with him to get him to throw a curve with the same underhand motion, with the ball spinning enough to give it a slant upward.

"You couldn't tell what was coming—it was one delivery with a fast sinker and the same delivery with the curve and slant upward He knew when to cross them up. The batters don't care for it".

Sandstorm Blows as Marathon Crew Start Long Run

ANSON, May 16—(AP)—A twisting sandstorm, followed by a heavy rain promised C. C. Pyle's coast to coast marathon cavalcade a taste of tough going that is to come when they lined up today for their run to Sweetwater, the next control point. The 45 miles of dirt roads between the two towns were transformed into mudholes and the pace of the runners was expected to fall off long before Sweetwater was sighted.

Johnny Salo ran faster as the sun got hotter yesterday and finished first on the run to Anson from Albany. His victory sliced ninteen minutes from the lead which Pete Gavuzzi, bearded Anglo-Italian has built up and cut Gavuzzi's advantage to one hour, ten minutes and forty-five seconds, the lowest it has been since he took the lead in Ohio.

Giants Do Better With McGraw in Bed, It Appears

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

John McGraw didn't know what a break he was getting when the Giants put him to bed. After ten pleasantly idle afternoons, he discovered yesterday that he got well too soon. Back at the Polo Grounds, he saw the Reds skip away with the remains of a two-game series by a score of 12 to 3.

The victory of the Reds gave the Rhineland invaders two straight at the Polo Grounds, and left the Giants nursing just three small victories and seven bumps on the jaw for their stand at home against the west. One tie also entered into the record.

With Dazzy Vance ill, Glenn Wright on his way home and Burleigh Grimes in the box for Pittsburgh, the Robins found a perfect setting for their eighth straight defeat. Babe Herman's homer off Grimes in the fifth with two Robins on base tied the score at 4 to 4, but the Pirates soon regained command to win eventually by 9 to 4.

While all of this brawling was going on about the metroplis, the Cubs were tommyhawking the Braves by 7 to 4 at Boston and the Cards were punching the Phils by 4 to 1. These two contending forces thus remained on even terms at the head of the National league parade.

Harry Heilmann butted himself into insensibility against a ball held in the iron paw of Mickey Cochrane in the ninth inning at Detroit yesterday, but conscious or unconscious, sprawled across the plate with the winning run. The Tigers won from Philadelphia, 6 to 5.

The Yankees put the Indians to no such extereme in the finale at Cleveland, contenting themselves with Lou Gehrig's eighth home run as the tribe pounded George Pipgras and three other Yank slabmen to win by 7 to 1.

The Browns shaded the Senators by 5 to 3 in the get-away game, remaining in the thick of the fight, and the White Sox of Chicago nipped their red hosed namesakes from Boston by 5 to 4.

Tell Hoover Plan of $25,000 Rome-to-Dallas Flight

About New York

NEW YORK—Riverside drive is full of Gobs and girls. The fleet is in.

Once a year a string of navy greyhounds parades up the Hudson to be tied in midstream, off the Manhattan shore, for a week or two. As this is written, Uncle Sam's scout cruisers are showing off to city lubbers.

While the fleet is here, it is like a circus day for children in the park along the drive. Apparently it is also a gala time for the nursemaids with plenty of bluecoats for all. Uniforms color the whole waterfront, patrolled by extra force of police who keep in line the hundreds waiting impatiently for launches to take them out to the warships.

All types are in this line—big outdoor men from the west, pallid, undersized youths in pinch-back coats, grey-haired couples, uniform-worshipping boys from off the streets and girls. Especially the latter, who usually are too eager to wait for free passage and pay 50 cents instead for quicker trips in tugs. Their conversation indicates that many are repeaters who visit several ships in an afternoon to giggle and make dates.

Oh, For The Life—

Aboard, many are slightly disappointed. "Oh I thought it would be bigger," they say, expecting perhaps something like a Broadway palace.

They overrun the ship, however, peeping into gun-breeches, watching cooks in the galley, climbing up to the crow's nest, borrowing spy-glasses. The boys miss nothing. The girls on the other hand, make only a perfunctory inspection of the war-machines. They soon are grouped with the gobs around a deck piano. And if the sailors can't go ashore the girls tell it to the marines who can.

Ashore the sailors rollick around the town. Clubs give parties for them and dance-halls are filled to capacity. The slick-haired city boys haven't a chance.

Trinket venders also reap a harvest. Upon landing after the river trip, sight seers buy "Navy" pennants to hang in their homes, and dolls or other knick-knacks for the kids who always want such things. Sidewalk photographers snap the sailors.

New Peaks And Old

While a new landmark was being planned for the downdown money center—a 40-story hotel that will form the first unit in a $50,000,000 Wall street residential "city"—anouncement came that the old Spanish Flats on the edge of Central park would be replaced by a 39-story apartment hotel, the tallest in midtown.

Built in 1882 by Jose de Navarra, then Spanish consul to New York, the flats were among the first co-operative apartments in the city and forerunners of a type of home that is spreading over the city.

Another pioneer co-operative in the Chelsea hotel, built a year later. Only three of the original 40 owners still live there—Louis Harrington, Charles B. Champion and M. E. Ingersoll, the latter a relative of the watch manufacturer whose factory formerly occupied the site. Champion, who is 92 years old; Harrington, 83, and Ingersoll have 50-year leases expiring in 1982. When the leases were signed there was more permanence in life.

New Producers in Gusher Class

Production in both new wells in the Finley-Brown pool has increased in he last 36 hours put them in the gusher class.

The Texas company's No. 1 Cook-Faulkner in the northwest corner of section 29, block B-2, H. & G. N. survey, which blew in Monday night, made 1,440 barrels in 24 hours. The test made 175 barrels the first 24 hours, but later dropped to 35 barrels an hour. Tuesday the new producer increased its production to 60 barrels an hour.

The new well is an offset to the Marland discovery well and a south offset to the Operators' gusher.

The other new well, the Phillips Petroleum company's No. 1 Palmer in the southeast corner of section 31, block B-2, produced 1,085 barrels in only 24 hours and was continuing to show an increase each hour. The test came in last week making 10 barrels an hour with 50,000,000 feet of gas. At present the flow is 15,000,000 feet.

In the same territory the Texas company's No. 2 Cook-Faulkner, the Marland Production company's No. 1 Finley-Brown, the Champlin Refining company's No. 1 Coble and the Danciger et al's No. 1 Beck are drilling on top of the pay and at least two of them are expected to be drilled in this week.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE meets and falls in love with STEPHEN ARMITAGE. He is lured away from her by PAMELA JUDSON, who tells him that Mildred is trying to marry her brother, HAROLD, for his money. Harold loves Mildred but he is in deadly fear of HUCK CONNOR, who has a check which he forged. Huck is infatuated with Pamela, who plays with him to make Stephen jealous.

Believing that Mildred is a cheap little fortune hunter, Stephen permits Pamela to announce their engagement when she tells him that is the only way she can break with Huck. Infuriated, Huck frames Stephen for the theft of an auto and plants evidence in his room which causes his arrest. Pamela breaks the engagement, but Mildred goes to see him in jail and promises help.

Harold has confessed to Mildred once that Huck was the cause of his fear and that he was going to "get Armitage" to keep him from marrying Pamela. With this as a clue after Stephen's arrest, Mildred determines to force Harold to tell what he knows about Huck.

Meanwhile, when Huck makes new demands on Harold, he defies him and tries to fight. Huck hurls the boy through an open window to death below. He makes a getaway and the death is called accidental. Duke Broggan warns Huck that the police are suspicious. Mildred tells Stephen what Harold had told her—but they have no proof and things seem hopeless.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

MILDRED was speechless with excitement. She watched Stephen with the parted lips and wide-open eyes of a person utterly overcome. He took a few more strides up and down and then paused again to go on with his disclosures about Huck Connor.

"It was out in Indiana," he said; "in my home town. You know I worked for a big distributing agency out there. Well, I had some half-baked ideas to get out of my system." He looked at Mildred sheepishly, but she nodded sympathetically. He went on then to tell her about the cars that had been stolen from his firm.

"But I'll bet your idea helped to sell a lot more," Mildred declared defensively. "I can see how it would work. A man buys a car and just because it's his it's one of the best. By the time he'd driven one of your cars a few miles all by himself he thought he owned it. I think it was a marvelous idea, Stephen."

Stephen puffed his chest a bit. "Well," he said with a trifle of reluctance, "I thought it was pretty good, myself, and it worked too, until Connor and his gang . . ."

"Huck!"

"He's a crook all right, Mildred. We didn't suspect him then, but I'm wise now. A week or two before the big coup was pulled off he dropped in to look at our cars and someone told him about our honor system. He said he'd prefer a demonstrator, and a man went along with him. He didn't buy and I heard the salesman grousing about it. I only got a couple of casual looks at him myself. That's why I didn't recognize him when I saw him here in New York."

• • •

"CAN'T he be arrested?" Mildred asked breathlessly.

"There isn't any evidence against him. But we may get it, and when we do I'd like to be the one to go after him."

"If you weren't too stubborn to ask your family to bail you out of here you could do some detective work yourself," Mildred said trickily.

"No." Stephen was resolute. "I'm afraid my mother couldn't stand the shock."

Mildred sighed, and got up to go. "I'm late," she said, glancing anxiously at her wrist watch.

Back at the office she showed a more cheerful countenance than they'd seen her wear for some time. But as the days passed and Stephen's lawyer made no progress in his effort to tie Huck up with the automobile thefts, her lowness of spirit returned.

Huck never had mixed his low-brow acquaintances with his high-brow victims. And since his departure from the Judson Hotel and it was not possible for Stephen's lawyer to have him shadowed, nothing could be learned of his connection with Duke Broggan and Ras Poberlin.

Finally, because she saw the hopelessness in Stephen's eyes deepen, Mildred decided to appeal to Pamela to help him.

This time she did not risk a rebuff. She entered the hotel at noon and went up to Pamela's rooms without having herself announced. She rapped firmly on the sitting-room door and set her foot in readiness to enter as soon as the door was opened. The maid who answered her summons was taken aback by her abrupt and almost forceful entry.

"Is Miss Judson in her bedroom?" Mildred asked, and the maid nodded before she could collect her wits.

Mildred stepped quickly over to the bedroom door and thrust it wide open.

As she had hoped, Pamela was not yet out of bed. She was having her breakfast as usual. She did not look up until Mildred appeared beside her. Then she set her coffee cup hastily back on the saucer and drew herself higher on her silken pillows with a gesture of anger.

"Don't bother to have a tantrum," Mildred said coolly. "I've come to talk to you about Stephen."

"Your nerve is . . ." Pamela began, but Mildred stopped her.

"Colossal," she supplied. "But you'd better listen to me, Pamela, unless you want to go on being responsible for an innocent man's being in prison."

• • •

PAMELA was too astonished to give the order to have Mildred ejected. Mildred had planned her attack with that object in view. She turned to the maid who had followed her to the connecting door then back to Pamela.

"Dismiss her," she said curtly, "unless you want the whole place to know what I've got to say to you."

Pamela waved a hand to the maid and told her to close the door and wait in the next room. She was more than a little afraid of Mildred's determined manner.

"Do you know why Stephen is in jail?" Mildred began at once.

Pamela shrugged. "Because he's a thief, I presume," she said sneeringly.

"You know he isn't," Mildred charged. "He's there because Huck Connor wanted him put out of the way."

"Really?" Pamela drawled, but her interest was now definitely aroused.

"So he'd have a clear field with you," Mildred went on in a rush.

"Your conclusions are interesting but insolent," Pamela remarked, and daintily picked up a bit of toast.

"Oh, you fool!" Mildred cried in exasperation. "Did you honestly believe that you could play fast and loose with a man like Huck Connor?"

"Now see here," Pamela snapped, "you can cut the rough stuff or get out."

"If the truth hurts I can't help it," Mildred retorted, "but I didn't come here to quarrel with you. I want you to help Stephen."

"Oh, you want me to help Stephen," Pamela mocked.

"Because you're the only one who can," Mildred broke in before she could say anything more. "If you hadn't flirted with Huck Connor Stephen wouldn't be in jail and I want to tell you that unless he gets out pretty soon you're going to find yourself in trouble."

• • •

"ARE you threatening me?" Pamela asked incredulously.

"No. Only warning you. Stephen knows that Huck is a thief and I'm sure that he hasn't gone so far to stop now. He wants you, Pamela, and if I were you I'd want a man like Stephen around to protect me."

"Aren't you clever?" Pamela laughed.

Mildred bit her lip. She was reluctant to speak of Harold to Pamela. Still if she could not get to Mr. Judson . . ."

"I'm not clever, Pamela," she said quietly, "but I believe that Huck is a dangerous man. A man who would not hesitate to do murder if it suited his purpose."

She was totally unprepared for the effect of her words upon Pamela. The girl's face blanched instantly and Mildred could see the shiver that ran over her slim body. She saw, too, that Pamela's eyes were rimmed with dark circles and that her lips looked pinched.

She was staring in surprise when Pamela cried out suddenly: "Murder, oh, my God!" and buried her face in her hands.

Mildred rushed to her side. "What is it?" she cried. "Oh, Pamela, do you know?"

Pamela dropped her hands from her tear-filled eyes and nodded. "That's what the police told dad," she said sobbingly. "They say Harold didn't jump or fall from the window as we thought."

Mildred pressed her fingers tight against her own quivering lips. She had known it all the time, but to have others say it was true . . . she wanted to shriek, it had become so horrible.

She dropped to her knees at Pamela's bedside and started to cry. Pamela struggled to overcome her own emotion. When she succeeded she wanted Mildred to talk.

"How did you know?" she asked and Mildred began, brokenly, to tell her.

"I knew that Huck had some terrible hold on Harold," she said, "and I tried to make Harold tell me what it was. Oh, Pamela, I wish I hadn't. I think they killed him so he wouldn't talk."

"Why haven't you told us?"

"Your father wouldn't see me. I didn't know what to do. I'd no idea the police suspected it was . . . murder. I had no proof to take to them."

• • •

"AND you think that Huck did it?" Pamela asked in horror.

"I'm sure of it," Mildred stated. "Poor Harold lived in terror of him. He told me Huck wanted to marry you, Pamela. I think he stood in the way. And he knew that Huck meant to fix it so you wouldn't have anything more to do with Stephen. How could you have believed that Stephen would steal anything?" she added accusingly.

"I don't know. I must have been blind," Pamela admitted. "Tell me," she urged suddenly. "What does Stephen say about me?"

Mildred drew back, aghast at Pamela's question. Pamela seemed to have heard enough about her brother. It struck Mildred as callous, but in the next moment she told herself that Pamela must love Stephen after all.

"He doesn't say anything," she said, "but I know he's breaking his heart over you, Pamela."

"I'll make dad get him out!" Pamela exclaimed.

"Won't you go to see him?" Mildred urged.

"Well," Pamela hesitated, "I hate to think of going to that awful place. . . ."

"Don't forget that he's there because he loved you," Mildred reminded her.

"I'll go," Pamela said, "but you must see dad before you leave. I'll tell him you're coming." She stepped out of bed, slipped her feet into satin mules and got into the coat of her pajama ensemble.

"This phone is disconnected," she said of the one at the head of her bed. "I couldn't stand it ringing in my ears so I've had one put in the other room."

Mildred remained where she was until Pamela returned and told her Mr. Judson wanted her to come immediately to his office.

Amos Judson received Mildred with mixed feelings. Pamela had not bothered to explain the truth about that cable she'd sent, charging Mildred with trying to ensnare Harold.

"Well, young woman," he said after a briefly civil greeting, "I suppose you've heard about the offer I've made."

Talks To Parents

"KEEP OFF THE GRASS"
By Alice Judson Peale

The sign "Keep off the Grass" meant less than nothing to eight-year-old Burke. He ran over newly seeded lawns and walked with large feet in the freshly cultivated flower beds of the neighborhood. People scolded him and reported him to his mother, recommending violent measures.

She explained to him about the growing seeds, about the amount of work and money it took to make the gardens pretty in the summer. But Burke was not impressed. Reproofs and penalties also were tried with no more success. Burke, in quest of his ball or in the midst of a game, was oblivious of consequences.

Finally his mother decided to try the experiment of giving him the responsibility of making attractive a certain bare corner of the yard. She showed him how to prepare the ground and plant the seeds.

He seeded his lawn, put up a "Keep off the Grass" sign of his own, and every day went out to see how his grass was coming. He planted nasturtiums and petunias and attributed their subsequent growth to his own skill and assiduous care.

His trespassing on neighborhood lawns ceased. Instead he gazed with interest and respect at the achievements of other gardeners. He even assumed the duties of policeman with the children, dragging them back from treading on tended grass with an authoritative, "Look out, can't you see it's been planted?"

The best way to make a child respect young lawns and flowers is to tell just what Burke's mother did. The child who is permitted to plant seeds and watch for the first sign of green begins to understand why adults are ready to do battle for their gardens.

Frigidaire Makes Millionth Unit at Dayton Factory

W. H. Curry, manager of the local Southwestern Public Service company office, today received the following telegram from E. G. Biecher of Dayton, Ohio, president of the Frigidaire corporation:

"I know you will be tremendously interested in the fact that the millionth Frigidaire was built today. Our factories are running night and day at maximum capacity and orders are greater than at any time in the history of the business. This definitely indicates the overwhelming leadership in Frigidaire over other makes of electric refrigerators combined in both the household and the commercal field. Thank you for part you played in securing this record breaking volume. Let's take full advantage of this proof of Frigidaire popularity as we start on our second million."

The Southwestern Public Service company is agent for the Frigidaire line.

April shipments from the Dayton factory totaled 1,501 cars. The plants cover 53 acres of floor space and miles of conveyors are loaded with Frigidaire cold products in process of assembly. The Frigidaire cold control, announced in February, is a new creation of the engineering department, and is attracting much attention in the 63 sales districts.

The Frigidaire line now comprises 18 household cabinets, 9 apartment house cabinets, 20 compressors, 60 cooling coils, 14 ice cream cabinets, four ice makers, five series of water coolers, milk cooling equipment, and one room cooler.

W. Crile, co-founder and head of the clinic, performed a blood transfusion upon his colleague. In spite of everything that could be done for him, he died.

Six similar cases were recorded at Mount Sinai hospital last night, three of them victims who had left the charred clinic with no apparent effect of the noxious fumes. One was Miss Ella Moeller, stenographer at the clinic who jumped from a window and went home believing she was untouched.

Later she felt ill and went to Mt. Sinai. She laughed and talked while waiting for treatment and then collapsed. A blood transfusion was ordered with the hope that what seemed the inevitable might be averted.

The other two patients were a fireman and a woman who entered the clinic just as the first blast occurred. She got a whiff of the gas, returned to her home thankful to have escaped death, and then felt the ominous effects of the fatal fumes. All three underwent blood transfusions.

Gas Is Identified

The gas was identified by Dr. William E. Lower, one of the chiefs of the clinic, as nitrous peroxide, released by burning x-ray film. The celluloid preparation was fired in an unknown way in a basement store room.

An explosion of the pent-up gas that rocked the building followed. It filled the building with gas and as the compression increased a second and larger blast demolished the interior and set the woodwork aflame.

More than 300 persons were in the building when the first explosion came at 11:25 o'clock in the morning. Some escaped before the fumes reached them Others died in frantic flight, their bodies strewing the stairways and floors Many died after reaching the open air and still more succumbed in hospitals

A constant stream of ambulances hurried between the clinic and nearby hospitals, and other convoy bore the dead to the county morgue. There they lay while long lines of persons passed the bodies, many of them stretched in lines along the floor. The building was taxed to capacity.

As the bodies were identified they were removed, but the long queque silent and sorrowful, passed through the morgue until late last night. Today were removed, but the long queue, tified.

Blast Course Studied

Six investigations were under way today. Deputy State Fire Marshals and representatives of the state division of safety and hygiene were assigned to go into the reasons for the mysterious catastrophe. Both the Cleveland police and fire departments organized their own inquires, and City Manager William R. Hopkins declared he would devote his office to determining reasons for the explosions. Coroner A. J. Pearse laid plans for an inquest as soon as the dead are identified. Dr. George W. Crile, head of the clinic, declared he too would attempt to learn the origin of the fire.

Much official interest in the investigations was turned to the steel fire door to the storage compartment. Officials had been unable to learn whether this door had been left open or was blown out by the force of the bursting film.

With the first explosion, firemen concluded, the gas swept upward and filled the building. Pent in, with compression increased as the heat in tensified, the gas exploded a second time.

The skylight was shattered and glass from the windows was hurled across the street. Doors reeinforced with steel buckled under the terrific suction of air.

The swirling brown clouds, nauseating and made heavier by the sickening smell of burning celluloid enveloped the building. The fire soon spent itself, but the clouds of gas, smoke and the odor of burning chemicals clung to the building hours after the fire was extinguished.

It happened so quickly that few had opportunity to escape. It was past so soon that within an hour and a half all the bodies had been removed. Firemen said the loss to the building, despite the number of dead would be no more than $50 000.

The explosion and fire at the Cleveland clinic hospital yesterday ranks high in the list of disasters in institutions, public buildings and factories that have taken a heavy toll of life in the United States in the last 75 years.

Among these disasters were:

Iroquois theatre fire, Chicago, December 30, 1903, 575 dead.

First Freight on New Line Is Shipment of Hogs

Santa Fe mixed train No. 47, from Clinton, Okla., arrived here at 6 o'clock last night, two hours late. The delay was caused by the train's late arrival at Cheyenne, Okla., over the old line.

Between Cheyenne and Pampa the train made excellent time and did not lose a minute despite a longer stop at Mobeetie than expected. The Westbound train was composed of the engine and water car, one passenger coach, and two cars of hogs billed for California.

There were 30 passengers on the trip. Most of them went on board at Mobeetie, where the townsite sale was opened.

Sale of lots at Mobeetie was brisk. Several hundred persons attended the sale of Santa Fe lots, where the new town of Mobeetie will be situated. Location for a bank ,stores, office biuldings, filling stations, post office and other buildings were purchased yesterday.

Mixed trains will leave each end of the new line at 7 a. m. daily.

Hollywood Sights 'n Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Stage walls do not a prison make, nor camera booths a cage—now for the new talkies.

Mournful predictions weer made, and seemed justified in the earlier days of the adenoidal cinema, that its coming would confine the hitherto footloose movie within the four walls of a sound stage, imposing upon it all the limitations of setting which have handicapped the legitimate drama.

Lately there has been abundant indications that the talking screen could not be so cofined, and now there is much evidence that the movies, unimpeded by the rigors of sound-recording, will continue to make "the world their stage," in fact as well as pretense.

Not that the art of the set-decorator, who has often made a sound stage interior look like an Eskimo farm or a tropical jungle, is being neglected; naturally, most of the studios prefer for economic reasons to make their movies on the home lot as far as possible; but some are demonstrating that the microphone has nothing to fear far afield, if the location trip is deemed worthwhile.

OVER THE WORLD

One talkie company has sound recording units touring Palestine and India and the South seas taking 'stock shot" for possible use in feature pictures A "Trader Horn' unit has been recording and filming in Africa.

"The Girl from Havana," with Lola Lane, will have scenes filmed and recorded in Havana and along the Panama canal; Death Valley is the "location" for "Behind That Curtain," and "Song of the West" and "The Great Divide" are being made partly in the high Serras, at Lone Pine.

Ships at sea, streets of London, Paris the frozen north (of the United States) Annapolis—all are to be "listened to" by microphones in the near future.

Triumphs of outdoor recording, incidentally, are becoming rather common on the home lots, the latest being the sound-filming of a fox hunt, in which all the noises of the chase, the champing of horses, the baying of hounds, the swift flight of the prey, are caught.

LITERARY NOTE

Movie stars read pretty dull literature—at least when in character. Some of the titles noted at random in a large library are "California Blue Book;" a report of the Chicago department of public works; dusty year books of the department of arigculture; reports of the bureau of animal industry; "Our India Missions;" bound volumes of college fraternity magazines of years ago; "A Compendium of the Tenth Census of the United States, 1880;" "Iowa at the St. Louis Exposition;" "Iron Ores in Missouri and Michigan."
