PAMPA — There will be a benefit dance for Amy Newhouse on Saturday, Apr. 24 from 8-midnight at the V.E.W. building with 100 percent of the benefits going to the family. Azria will be the live band from White Deer. Cost is $3 per person, they will be accepting other donations, cokes will be sold.

PAMPA — Pampa Middle School's seventh and eighth grade choirs are presenting a concert Mon., April 19 at 7 p.m. in the school auditorium.

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. George W. Bush said Friday he's pushing for a Senate vote on a pilot program of public funding for private school tuition. Democratic senators said they have the votes to block it — including that of a lawmaker who would leave his hospital bed to oppose the bill.

"I believe that the voucher bill ought to be given a chance to get to the Senate floor. ... I'm making calls to that effect," said the Republican governor. "I think it's necessary for Texas. I think it's a good bill. I support it strongly."

Amarillo's Teel Bivins' bill would create a five-year voucher program targeting public school students in six counties — Bexar, Dallas, El Paso, Harris, Tarrant and Travis — who have failed a state standardized test and qualify for the free- or reduced-lunch program targeting low-income students.

Opponents say vouchers would drain badly needed money from public schools.

A two-thirds vote is required to bring up a bill for debate under the rules of the 31-member Senate, which includes 16 Republicans and 15 Democrats.

Sheriff's proposal could save money, create 3 new jobs

Gray County Sheriff Don Copeland thinks he has found a way to save the county money. "I feel we could provide meals for less money," he said.

About $40,000 less money. Meals for Gray County inmates are currently provided by Fine Host, a commercial food preparation service. Copeland said the cost of meals from the service averages about $2.54 each. The county paid Fine Host a total of $137,139 for the period from March of last year through February of this year.

Copeland said he contacted several jails in the area that prepare meals in-house and was told food cost would average between $1 to $1.15 per meal for the food. Figuring the 50 prisoners that Gray County jail averages and three meals a day, Copeland said the jail averages 54,750 meals a year.

To provide the meals, the sheriff's office would have to hire a full time cook and two part-time cooks, according to Copeland. Trustees would also be utilized to help. The salaries, including benefits, would total $35,835 for the three new employees and adding that to the cost of the food would result in an average cost of $1.80 per meal, a savings of 74 cents a meal that would mean a yearly savings of $40,267.

When County Judge Richard Peet asked about the requirements of having a dietician approve menus, Copeland said the area dietitians he contacted averaged about $35 an hour. Commissioner James Hefley asked if Copeland had contacted the Home and Health Agent, JoAnn Gray, to see if she could do that. When asked later in the day, Gray said she was not a licensed dietician.

Copeland said he talked to the jail commission who has a program that will prepare a menu, but it still needed to be certified by a dietician.

Copeland said, "The only concern I have is with the staff, I'm concerned we might not get the right person to apply."

He also said that the only thing he didn't like about Fine Host was the price. He said they did a good job providing a turnkey service.

The county has all the cooking utensils already, but might have to buy plastic serving containers.

The contract expires June 17, according to County Attorney Todd Alvey, who said the county could just renew the contract if the commission wanted, and would not have to go out for bids if

Police cars to reflect more 'traditional' look

By KATE B. DICKSON

Five new Pampa Police Department squad cars are on the street and each is sporting new accent colors — red and blue — to reflect a more "traditional" police look and to match the uniforms of local officers.

So says Pampa Police Chief Charlie Morris who also said the color change, from Pampa High School colors of green and gold, was requested by members of his force.

"They wanted a more traditional look," the chief said. "And since we can now make our own decals, the cost to change is minimal."

Rather than paying as much as $300 to tully decal a single squad car, Morris said the five new cars have been marked at a total cost of $200.

That's because the city street department has a computer and special printer it uses for making reflective signs and its use has been adapted to the police decals, Morris said.

The cars — all 1999 Ford Crown Victorias — were bought and Pampa musician living her dreams, says it doesn't seem real ...

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY

One Pampa musician is making her mark in the music world at the University of North Texas this year.

Completing the residency portion of her Doctor of Musical Arts in Conducting degree, former PHS chorus teacher Susie Wilson says her experience in the prestigious music school is almost like living a dream.

"Sometimes, I have to pinch myself," said Wilson during a recent phone conversation.

Technically a "Teaching Fellow" in the College of Music at the University of North Texas in Denton, Wilson directs the Women's Chorus and teaches Fundamentals of Conducting while taking classes toward her doctorate in Choral Conducting with a minor in voice.

Names in the news ...

NEW YORK (AP) — Sean "Puffy" Combs has been charged with beating a record executive in an alleged dispute over a rap music video.

The 29-year-old rapper and producer surrendered to police Friday on charges of second-degree assault and criminal mischief. He could face up to seven years in prison.

Investigators said Combs was upset over his appearance in a video Universal Records executive Steven Stoute had produced for another artist.

But Stoute said he didn't produce the video. "I don't know why they beat me," he said.

Stoute said he suffered a broken arm, a broken jaw and cuts to his head on Thursday. He said Combs was one of three assailants, but he did not recognize the other two.

Combs was released on $15,000 bail and left court without commenting.

Last year, Combs earned $53.5 million and ranked 15th on Forbes magazine's list of highest-paid entertainers.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The split between Brooke Shields and tennis ace Andre Agassi apparently hasn't robbed the actress of her sense of humor.

Accepting a Genii Award on Friday from the Southern California Chapter of American Women in Radio and Television, Shields made a lighthearted reference to her situation.

"I'm thrilled to have won this Genii Award. I sure could have used a real genie last week," she said — one who could have granted her "power of attorney."

Shields and Agassi filed for divorce last week. Mia Ricchiuti, a publicist for the couple, declined to say why the two-year marriage was ending.

Shields stars in the NBC comedy "Suddenly Susan." Also honored with Genii Awards for excellence were actress Victoria Principal, radio and TV personality Mother Love and Anne Sweeney, president of Disney-ABC Cable Networks.

PIGEON FORGE, Tenn. (AP) — "Welcome to church!" said Dolly Parton as she dedicated the Southern Gospel Music Hall of Fame and Museum at her Dollywood theme park.

Sheriff

Copeland found a problem with implementing the program.

The Commission approved the change and authorized the sheriff to advertise for the three cook positions.

Police Cars

outfitted with sirens, radios, etc., for $122,500, said City Finance Director John Horst.

"It used to be that we could buy a squad car for about $13,000 but that was when there was no competition and Chrysler and Chevrolet were also making a full-size car," he said. "Now all we have is Ford."

Several years ago, Horst said the city gave smaller, mid-size, front-wheel drive cars a try but said, "they just didn't hold up under the grind of police work" like the full-size rear-wheel-drive vehicles do.

No cars will be taken out of the police fleet and the new ones will mean that every uniformed officer will be assigned to a specific car under the recently-adopted "take-home plan," said Morris.

The idea behind the plan is to have more squad cars visible in city neighborhoods as the cars will be parked at the officer's home when he or she is off duty, the chief said. Also, officers with cars may be asked to respond during off-duty hours if there is a need for more officers at a particular scene.

Though only in force for a short time, Morris said he is already seeing results.

"I've had several people tell me that traffic has slowed where the cars are parked on the street," he said. "People aren't sure when they see the car if there is an officer in it operating radar or not."

Also, officers have come across "incidents" on their way to and from work and taken action — a requirement of the take-home plan.

And finally, it's hoped that having individual officers responsible for their car's upkeep and not using the autos "24-7" will result in an increased useful life and ultimately lower taxpayer costs, finance director Horst said.

Musician

American Choral Directors Association in Chicago, Illinois, one of only six college choirs from around the world invited to sing," according to Wilson. "In addition to being a member of this group, I serve as its assistant conductor."

The opportunities at the school's program are "fabulous," say Wilson.

"I feel very privileged to be a part of this fine program, which has an international reputation," she said.

As part of her year-long residency, Wilson is conducting choral concerts this spring in the "recently opened multimillion dollar Lucille 'Lupe' Murchison Performing Arts Center," she said.

"It is an incredible facility with several performing venues, the largest of which is Winspear Hall. I sang with a 200-voice choir, accompanied by the UNT orchestra for the gala opening in February, a stellar event attended by many dignitaries, including Van Cliburn," Wilson added.

Wilson is conducting two concerts both at 6:30 p.m. in Winspear Hall — the Women's Chorus on Thursday, April 15, and the A Capella Choir on Tuesday, April 27. A soprano singer, Wilson will also be performing in her own voice recital on June 26, at 6:30 p.m. in the school's Recital Hall.

"If everything goes as planned, I should finish my course work this summer, take the qualifying exams in the fall, give two more recitals and write my dissertation," according to Wilson.

The PHS choir director for eight years, Wilson also taught voice lessons in Pampa for 20 years prior. She is married to Pampa's Jerry Wilson, who she says has been vital to her success this year at Denton.

"I could not do what I am doing if it were not for the loving support of my husband, Jerry ... we 'date' each other on week-ends and he comes to Denton for every performance in which I am involved," said Wilson.

'Baywatch' cast members to help Austin find lifeguards

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It's not the sandy beaches of the Pacific Ocean, but cast members of the television show "Baywatch" will visit Austin next month.

Since Baywatch draws a reported one billion viewers worldwide, city officials hope they can pull in 650 potential lifeguards.

Jose Salano, who plays the character Manny Gutierrez, and Kimm Collinsworth, an extra and former student from Round Rock, will visit an Austin job fair on May 1 to help the city recruit lifeguards for Barton Springs Pool and other public swimming holes.

The city has had difficulty recruiting enough workers to keep its pools open for the swimming season.

The City Council in March voted to raise the pay rate for lifeguards, and the Parks and Recreation Department, Austin Triathletes, Run-Tex and Capital Fitness invited the "Baywatch" stars.

The show is known for its slow-motion shots of muscled men and buxom beauties running on the beach as they rescue beachgoers, the cast also promotes water safety.

The television series is paying for their visit, according to city officials.

CRP acres plagued by weeds

Attention all CRP participants! It's that time again to control weeds on your conservation Reserve Program acreage. In the last few weeks, we have received some rain, but not enough. The rain showers have stimulated the weed problems throughout Gray County. This has brought about the necessity for weed control on CRP fields. When a producer signs up for his or her CRP contract, they agree to control weeds on their CRP fields. If a producer does not control weeds on their CRP fields, he or she will be subject to fine or termination of their CRP Contract. Weeds have a tremendous effect on newly seeded grasses. On newly seeded grasses, weeds will sap needed moisture from the soil and shade the sun from the young seedlings which will hinder plant growth. Many CRP participants don't take weed problems seriously enough until the field is covered in weeds. Producers can control weeds by either spraying or shredding. Spraying weeds is much more effective than shredding. CRP producers are required to control weeds according to their contract. (See, CRP, Page 5)

Enzymes used to reduce volume of contaminated material

AMARILLO — The Amarillo National Resource Center for Plutonium reports research indicates that commercial enzyme solutions can be used to separate radionuclides such as plutonium, americium, neptunium, uranium from cellulose material and thereby reduce the volume of waste that requires disposal at facilities like the Waste Isolation Pilot Program facility in New Mexico. This means the lifetime and storage capacity of these special disposal facilities can be maximized, saving significant taxpayer dollars.

Contaminated cellulose materials (e.g. paper products, cotton fabrics) are generated by national laboratories, Department of Energy facilities and some private industry. When applied to radionuclide-contaminated cellulose, certain commercial enzymes digest the majority of the cellulose, thus significantly reducing the volume of these materials that require special handling and disposal.

The research showed that the enzyme solution does not cause significant disposal problems, and does not create by-products that require special disposal. In addition, the process requires no special containment for operations performed at high temperatures or high pressures.

The cellulose degradation research was conducted by ANRC researchers Dr. Caryl Heintz, Dr. Ken Rainwater, and Luther Swift of Texas Tech University; Dr. Laura Worl of Los Alamos National Laboratory, and Dr. David L. Barnes of ANRC.

Library staff truly dedicated

There's big doings going on at the Lovett Memorial Library this afternoon at 2 when the grand reopening of the renovated facility becomes official with the snip of a ribbon.

And to make an exciting event even more exciting, Pampa is lucky to have famed Texas author Larry McMurtry on hand to do the honors. And he's even agreed to sign his books if those attending want to pull some off their shelves and bring them along.

His list of writings is extensive and, while many think of him as strictly a "western" writer, he's not. Of course, there's "The Last Picture Show" and Pulitzer Prize-winning "Lonesome Dove," but there's also the fantastic "Terms of Endearment."

He's truly gifted and his willingness to share his time with us is greatly appreciated.

Last week I wrote an editorial calling attention to those who have helped to make the library project a reality — especially those who helped with the moves both out of and back into the library.

Kate B. Dickson

Associate publisher/editor

Something told me when I wrote it I was asking for trouble. Anytime one lists names there's always the chance of leaving someone off, getting a name wrong, etc. I knew the risk and started to take the easy way out — just not write it — but I didn't.

And sure enough, I missed the proverbial elephant in the living room. I forgot some of the most important people of all — the library staff. I am telling you that now, but a week from today you can read the letter to the editor (it was too late for this week) which gave me a light bashing about it.

So, to correct my error — and with happiness to do so — here are the library folks.

Anne Stobbe is the head librarian and Shanla Brookshire is the children's librarian. Barbara Craig, Mable Pletcher, Lynda Arreola, Joyce Porterfield, John Mead, Wanda Watson, Tabitha Jones, Nathanael Taylor and Glenn Wright make the staff complete.

... Next time you see these folks, thank them for all they did and endured during the 14-month old renovation and for everything they do all year long!
Happy reading!

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, April 18, the 108th day of 1999. There are 257 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On April 18, 1949, the Irish republic was proclaimed.

On this date:
In 1775, Paul Revere began his famous ride from Charlestown to Lexington, Mass., warning American colonists that the British were coming.

In 1906, a devastating earthquake struck San Francisco, followed by raging fires. About 700 people died.

In 1942, an air squadron from the USS Hornet led by Lt. Col. James H. Doolittle raided Tokyo and other Japanese cities.

In 1945, famed American war correspondent Ernie Pyle, 44, was killed by Japanese gunfire on a Pacific island off Okinawa.

In 1946, the League of Nations went out of business.

In 1955, physicist Albert Einstein died in Princeton, N.J.

In 1978, the U.S. Senate voted 68-32 to turn the Panama Canal over to Panamanian control on Dec. 31, 1999.

Child tax credit is a good start

It's that time of year again — the time when we pull out our checkbooks, figure out what we owe in taxes and send off our money to Washington.

I've heard more than one person complain that taxes remain too high, and the tax code itself remains too complex. There's no getting around the fact that our tax system needs to be reformed. The IRS itself admits it takes the average person nearly 10 hours just to complete a standard 1040 form.

There's also no doubt that taxes continue to take too big a bite out of our wallets. Taxes take a bigger bite out of our economy than at any other time since 1944. And the Tax Foundation reports that the median two-income family sends over 37 percent of its annual income off to the government.

If there's any good news as after we finish filing our returns, it's that a lot of parents in our area will be getting a break in the amount of taxes they owe. Congress passed a $400 per child tax credit two years ago that goes into effect this year. In the 131 District alone, there are 87,400 children who are eligible for this tax credit. This extra money will mean a lot to parents. But clearly, much more needs to be done.

The House recently passed a budget that will cut taxes by $800 billion. This relief will start small, then grow over the next 10 years. While most of the details of this plan have not yet been written, the goal is to send more tax dollars back to you, and less to Washington.

If there's a goal worth cheering, that has got to be it.

Thought for today

Whose credibility is at stake?

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., has announced that we are "losing the war" in Kosovo. Funny, did we declare it?

If a Republican president were preparing to make war, it is inconceivable that a Democratic Congress would be as quiet as this one. Wars needn't be declared to be legal — a fact now enshrined in the War Powers Act — but they should be declared by Congress in order for the nation to adequately prepare itself for the attendant sacrifices.

President Bush committed mischief on this score by asserting that he had the power to forge ahead with the Gulf War even without a congressional resolution. Fortunately, that proposition was never tested, as the Congress did, narrowly, authorize the war.

But before we plunge into a ground war in Kosovo — toward which the horrifying pictures of refugees and talk of "genocide" are propelling us — there ought to be a full and complete national debate on the subject.

It is hard to think clearly in the face of such agonizing pictures as now enter our homes from Kosovo. And some urge that, whether the bombing campaign was good policy or not, the president has committed us. In the words of Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., "We're in it, so we have to win it."

But the president has never thought more than two weeks ahead in his life. While his administration spokesmen calmly explain that they knew all along that Slobodan Milosevic would step up his ethnic cleansing of Kosovo if we bombed Belgrade, this is pure tripe. One of the stated justifications for the bombing campaign was to "save" the Kosovars from Serb brutality. Remember the "suffering of innocents" argument? It may feel like ancient history, but that was only two weeks ago. And if the administration suspected that Milosevic would move his terror troops into Kosovo in force after NATO's bombs began to fall, why did we do so little to prepare for the humanitarian crisis we supposedly saw coming?

Mona Charen

The plight of the Kosovars is an anguishing sight. And it is right and proper that the NATO countries are airlifting out several thousands of the refugees — though the explanation that they will stay in the host countries temporarily, until they can return to a "free and democratic" Kosovo — as Secretary of State Madeleine Albright put it — is pie in the sky. It is doubtful that they will ever see their homes again.

What is our goal in the Balkans? The Washington Post reports that the White House is considering removing Milosevic as our war aim. Without whitewashing Milosevic — he is a war criminal — it is nevertheless worth recalling that the worst ethnic cleansing yet in the 10-year Balkan wars was committed not by Milosevic but by the Croats against the Serbs in a place called Krajina. More than 150,000 Serbs were driven from their homes with many of the same tactics that the Serbs have employed against the Kosovars and before that against the Bosnian Muslims — wanton murder, torture, disfigurement and rape. The United States and NATO were fully aware of these outrages at the time and yet did nothing. Somehow, the "credibility" of NATO did not seem to be at stake then.

Yes, it is terrible that this murder and displacement is happening. Yes, seeing refugees herded into boxcars brings back memories of the Second World War. But it is stretching the analogy too far to call this genocide. If those boxcars were headed for death camps, the word would fit. But they are not. They are headed for the border. That is barbarous and savage, but it isn't genocide. Nor is it a challenge to NATO, which was formed to repel attack from Russia. For all the talk of NATO's credibility, it is not as if a NATO member had been attacked.

President Clinton may well have exacerbated the Kosovars' suffering by his bombing campaign. But it is doubtful that we can fix that blunder by sending in ground troops. The Kosovars will continue to press for full independence, to which the Serbs will never accede. This would not be peace keeping, as in Bosnia, but rather another attempt at "nation building" as in Somalia — a humanitarian gesture that ended in disgust and failure.

Father-in-law was one of a kind

Spring has come to the Texas Hill Country. The sun seems to grow a little warmer every day, and wildflowers turn every hillside into a tapestry any king would covet.

Yet our hearts are heavy. This Easter, we lost my wife's father. Martin Goebel finished only the fifth grade, in a one-room schoolhouse attached to the church where his father and his father's father had worshipped.

But he was smart. Smart enough to fix or build anything mechanical: farm implements, cars, heavy machinery.

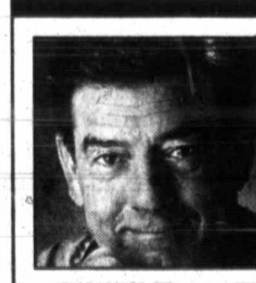

He was a builder and a dreamer, enough of both to start half a dozen small manufacturing businesses and make them successful enough to make a living and to provide employment for hundreds of other people over the years.

He eventually lost all but one of his tiny factories. First one thing, then another. But he seldom complained. When he lost a business, he'd just dream anew and build another one.

In his own shade-tree mechanic, baling-wire and duct-tape way, he was an entrepreneur before the word became fashionable.

He had a glint in his eye, a pioneer gaze that seemed to take in the whole horizon at once and maybe saw a little bit beyond the horizon, too.

You can still see that glint in the eyes of his daughters. I saw it in Jeannie's eyes, and I married her.

Dan Rather

Syndicated columnist

We buried Martin in the cemetery behind his little church. As the steeple bell rang, a passing train nearly drowned it out.

Martin would've liked that. He once earned his living repairing locomotives, often making the replacement parts himself.

He was a big man, well over 6 feet and 200 pounds. He was filled with outsized passions and prejudices, not all of them admirable. That's the way with most of us. But Martin was never shy with his opinions.

"Don't confuse me with the facts," he once thundered. "I've already made up my mind."

On another occasion, he created a stir in a restaurant by loudly announcing to a waitress: "Young lady, salad isn't FOOD. Salad is what food EATS!"

Beef is what he ate. Bourbon is what he drank — no ice, no water. Straight.

Which is also how he talked. He could be counted on to give the anchorman an earful. Whether the anchorman wanted it or not.

The truth is seldom easy, least of all when it's coming from your father-in-law. But it was the only language Martin really understood.

My own parents passed away while I was still a young man, but for more than 40 years, Martin obligingly acted as a kind of surrogate father for me. I was able to turn to him for comfort or honest criticism. And I always felt safe in the knowledge that he was looking out for our family.

Now I will have to learn what it means to be a grown-up without him.

For years, Martin and his wife, Hilda, kept our family connected to the small-town Texas that bore us, but that is fading away.

Martin and Hilda reared their daughters — and oversaw the rearing of their grandchildren and great-grandchildren — to be citizens of a small town, no matter where they went. To look out for their neighbors. To work hard. To appreciate life's blessings.

Now it's up to us who survive to keep passing those lessons along.

In my lifetime, I've circled the globe a hundred times. I've walked and talked with presidents and princesses, with tribal chiefs and tenors.

I've looked in them for the qualities I admired in him. But I never met the match of Martin Goebel.

WTAMU receives grant to assist migrant workers

CANYON — West Texas A&M University received a $1.5 million grant from the U.S. Department of Education recently to help migrant and seasonal farm workers succeed in higher education.

The College Assistance Migrant Program will be funded through $310,800 in federal money each of the next five years, making the initial year of college education available annually to 30 economically disadvantaged migrant students in the Texas Panhandle.

"We will enroll 30 new students each year for the next five years.

Through this grant and other federal financial aid, all the costs of their first year of college will be paid," Lise Blankenship, WTAMU director of enrollment management, said. "Even notebooks and computer disks will be covered by this grant."

Besides tuition, fees, books and supplies, half of each student's housing will be covered through CAMP, which will also assist migrant students in obtaining additional aid to cover remaining housing expenses. To administer the program, four full-time positions will be created at the University. CAMP director, academic counselor, outreach counselor and office administrator.

Migrant students will be recruited with assistance from the Region 16 Education Service Center in Amarillo which has programs already in place for younger migrant students. With approximately 10,300 migrant students between the ages of 3-21, Region 16 has the third-largest migrant student population in the state, Blankenship said.

CAMP will not only recruit and assist migrant students through their first year at WTAMU, it will help them obtain financial aid for their subsequent college years while providing counseling, tutoring and supplemental instruction through part-time tutors and instructors as long as they remain at WTAMU.

The first 30 CAMP students will be enrolled at WTAMU for the fall semester of this year.

For more information about the program, contact Blankenship at (806) 651-5286.

FPC receives donation from Agrium

BORGER — Frank Phillips College was recently awarded a check for $50,000, the first installment of a five year, $150,000 grant from Agrium U.S., Inc. The funds will assist in the development and construction of a Center for Workforce Development and Emerging Technologies at the FPC campus in Borger.

Larry Wood, Agrium Borger Nitrogen Operations plant manager congratulated FPC President Dr. W. A. Griffin, Jr., and his administrators and staff for their insight in addressing emerging needs of industrial businesses in the panhandle.

"We at Agrium are proud to play a significant role in helping the College provide ongoing training for those currently employed and to develop the skills of those who will come into the workforce in the future," Wood said.

The check, presented by Wood and Agrium Human Resources and Safety Advisor Rod Collins, was accepted on behalf of the college by FPC President Griffin, Vice President and Dean of Instruction Dr. Herbert J. Swender, and Director of Workforce Development and Applied Technology Steven Bloomberg.

Letters to the editor

Thanks to all the wonderful Kids Club volunteers

To the editor,
First, we want to thank the Board of Directors of the Pampa Kids & Youth Club for accepting the opportunity and responsibility for our youth. Our Board of Directors are: Chris Perez, Rev. I.L. Patrick, Danny Hoover, Misty Jimenez, Steve York, Dr. Laxmichand Kamnani, Lois Gonzales, Charlie Phillips, Jimmy Goode, Rusty Gallagher, Lessia Brooks, Peter Rodriguez. We wanted to make sure of all of our children in the community were represented, and believe that a diversified board represents all of the communities' children. To be able and offer programs and services that care about the well-being of the youth, the members who run an organization have to represent the entire community.

The coaches we have had this past season also deserve acknowledgement and thanks for such an outstanding season. The coaches and other volunteers spent a lot of time and energy attending to the needs of many children. This enabled the organization to become as successful as it is. The coaches include: K-first grade: Lorena Baker, Kira Chumbley, Randy Watson, Drew Watson, Donny Hooper, Jimmy Slater, Alfredo and Misty Jimenez (three different age groups); second-third grade: Juan and Tabitha Arreola, Steven Stillwagon, Michelle and Michael Dimore, Doug Hassel, Dean Crocket (two different age groups), Brenda Amador; fourth-fifth grade: Ricky Maciel, Rusty Gallagher, John Crowell, Robert Cottrell, Bob Olson, Stan Mathis, Danny Bedolla, Pat Darling, Jorg and Amy Hernandez; sixth-seventh grade: Jonathan Brockington, Gary Gattis, Jon East, Larry Lenderman, Scott Badia, Danny Hendricks; eighth grade: Ricky Addington, Peter Rodriguez, Adam and Sonia Mulunax, Mike Crain, Louis Gonzales; High School: Leo Ramirez, the other H.S. teams were ran by the individual players themselves. We had a wonderful group this year. The majority of our coaches not only have experience playing the sport, but with coaching. We do encourage volunteers to know the sport of their coaching, but there are times, especially with as many teams as we had this year, that we had to fill in some openings. No matter the experience, we appreciate the dedication that they showed.

We had to form more teams this spring season. We could not have been able to accomplish this task without the help of other sponsors. They include: HealthStar, CentraMedia, CST Cabot, Kirby Cochran Welding, Dyers Barbecue, Big County Tire, Pampa Regional Medical Center, J.L. Leverich.

We are excited to see so many middle school and high school students taking the time not only participating, but to help us run the program. They got experience in running the clock, keeping books and refereeing. They would help us all day Saturday, and whenever we needed them throughout the week. We want them to know how much we appreciate them, taking time out of their own lives to help others. These volunteers include: Kim Conner, Sam Conner, Stephanie Gattis, Ricky Gattis, Jake Mulanax, Ben Mulanax, James Silva, Aaron Silva, Danny Bedolla, Arthur Ruiz, Nefi Meza, David Robinson, Trevor Muniz, Raynor Muniz, Chad Platt, Joel Botello, Johnny Salazar, Dustin Johnson, Louis Gonzales Jr., Loe Ramirez, Booby Dorsey, Shawn Stone, Matt Cook, Kenneth Reed, Bryce Taylor, A.J. Taylor, Coy Devoll, Jeremy Hall, Nicki Gallagher. Also, thanks to Kevin Hall and Stan Mathis for volunteering to referee.

Pampa Kids & Youth Club had a great 1998-99 basketball season. We had over 400 kids and youth this past year. Because of the overwhelming response to the program and the numerous parents that asked us to initiate other programs; we started the basketball/softball program. We are excited to give to the community an organization that focuses on integrity, responsibility and the desire to focus on the needs of all the children. The programs are kept at a low-cost to provide for all of the children.

Like our basketball program, we will not end sign-ups for baseball/softball. The registration fee is $20, and scholarships are available. Any child can join at any time, no matter which sport they are interested in playing. In baseball/softball, we're letting our kids and youth form their own teams (optional). Kids and the youth are more interested in playing with their friends than searching for the "strongest" players, at this young age. We do not believe in a draft, due to "stacking" by coaches that go on prior to a draft. The key to a great program and great sportsmanship is having compassionate coaches and volunteers.

We are now looking into a Major National Sports Organization (charter), that will focus on a variety of sports, and more opportunities for the children. This charter will not only provide insurance (it's mandatory with any charter your affiliated with to carry insurance on the kids, its not optional) in every sport for the child, but will give more to this organization. There are opportunities that we are working on to bring to this community, it's just a matter of time.

This has been a fun and successful experience for us this past year. Many seem to think we get paid for what we're doing; I wish we did! Then, we wouldn't have to find work elsewhere! We just enjoy what we do, volunteering our time because of what we saw that the community was in desperate need of. An organization doesn't work just because you put a lot of "titles" in the club but from people that have one goal in mind — to do what is best for every child. We desperately ask that our parents take a stand for every child, if you see one mistreated child in a program, it's one too many. If people support a program knowing the problems; then they're accepting what they do to others! Sometimes it's hard to take a stand; but if you have a conscience, it's not tolerable! We have to show integrity and responsibility; a title or money just doesn't do it! It only shows us that something is obviously wrong if you have to use it to get what you want (this type of tactic is called propaganda; the government uses it all the time to make people believe in something that's not right). We love our own three boys, but we love to help others too, and feel a calling to do as much as we possibly can to protect and help others especially the children! Please make an effort, if you haven't yet, to take a stand for the children who are discriminated against by race, status or ability. No matter where it is — churches, organizations, businesses — do not support them! Take a stand; one person can make a difference!

Because of Sonny and Ryan's (Tinde's brother) tragic truck accident did not allow him to help out the second season, he wants to thank volunteers who stepped in on his behalf. Thank you also for the many prayers and your thoughtfulness during this time. Because of a miracle, they are both recovering. Because of God's grace they are still here.

If you have any questions or comments, please call us at 669-6732 or 669-7762 or write to Pampa Youth & Kids Club, P.O. Box 1057, Pampa, TX 79065.

Unfortunately, wars cannot be fought without casualties

To the editor,
Anyone who has been paying attention to the world scene realizes that there is a problem in Europe — the Balkans to be specific. It seems that there is a new Hitler on the horizon, and no one seems to care enough to deal with him effectively — no one, that is, except NATO.

Perhaps the biggest obstacle confronting NATO today is the contemporary American belief that this country can conduct a military operation without sustaining any human casualties. When an American plane was shot down during the first week of the bombing campaign, political pundits predicted the death knell for American involvement if the pilot did not survive. That sort of thinking will eventually revert U.S. foreign policy to the isolationism that existed in the early part of this century. Although that policy could not withstand the pressures of World War I, the new breed of American isolationist — those who believe that war and death can be mutually exclusive — is quite likely to ensure that the U.S. will cease being the world's strongest nation.

There is a means through which America can protect weaker nations and still keep her citizens reasonably content. Something that may not be known by the average American — who is inundated with media depictions of service men and women holding a baby on one arm and a spouse on the other — is the fact that some in the military are actually there to fight. Soldiers at Fort Bragg, N.C., for instance, are no doubt licking their chops over the situation in Kosovo. There are also those who wear black berets (U.S. Army Rangers) who are probably questioning why they haven't already been deployed.

As gasoline prices soar, Americans reconsidering long drives, gas-guzzlers.

NEW YORK (AP) — Pamela Williams and her husband have been planning a summer vacation drive from their home in Philadelphia to Virginia Beach, Va., and New Orleans.

But after watching gas prices soar roughly 25 percent over the past six weeks, they've begun checking out train schedules.

Mrs. Williams said it was inevitable that the price would go up. "But I didn't think it would go up so fast and so much," she added.

Petroleum industry leaders say prices are merely returning to normal after months of unprecedented lows, but the sharp rise has provoked some Americans to change their gas-guzzling ways.

The latest nationwide review of 10,000 gas stations by the authoritative Lundberg Survey showed the average price was nearly $1.23 a gallon. Three weeks ago, it was $1.09, and in late February a stunningly low 99.8 cents.

California, where heavy demand and extra environmental regulations make gas especially expensive, has experienced the sharpest rise. Premium prices are now flirting with the $2 mark, prompting state Attorney General Bill Lockyer to open an investigation into what he calls price gouging by oil companies.

The big jumps were fueled by a combination of events: OPEC cuts in crude oil production, fires at California refineries and heavy travel during the Easter holiday.

Nell Crawford of Los Angeles drives a Volkswagen, but a few months ago, she and her husband found themselves tempted by trendy sport utility vehicles.

"My husband said, 'No way. These things are gas guzzlers. What are we going to do when gas prices go up?'" she said. "And sure enough, they did."

Now, she says they'll stick to the Volkswagen — no bargain at the pump, but more efficient than an SUV.

Fernando Mercado of Los Angeles drives a Ford Expedition SUV, but he said his family has curtailed the use of their second, smaller car. Now he, his wife and their three children pile into one car for trips to school and work.

"We have two cars, but now it's like we only have one. Even though it is an Expedition, it is cheaper than filling up another gas tank," said Mercado.

Some drivers say they won't change their behavior unless prices rise much higher. Steven Milaitis, who works in Manhattan, drives about 20 miles to work nearly every day from his home in northern New Jersey. He said he doesn't want to rely on buses or carpools. "I have four kids," he said. "If I need to get home quickly for a game or a concert, I like having that freedom."

Modest increases in the price of gas rarely influence commuters to give up their daily drive, said Jean Stimolo, executive director of Rideworks Commuter Transportation Services, a New Haven, Conn., car pool coordinator.

"If it goes up a dollar a gallon, I think we'll see a change," she said. "But it's a good economy. Maybe people are less sensitive to gas prices."

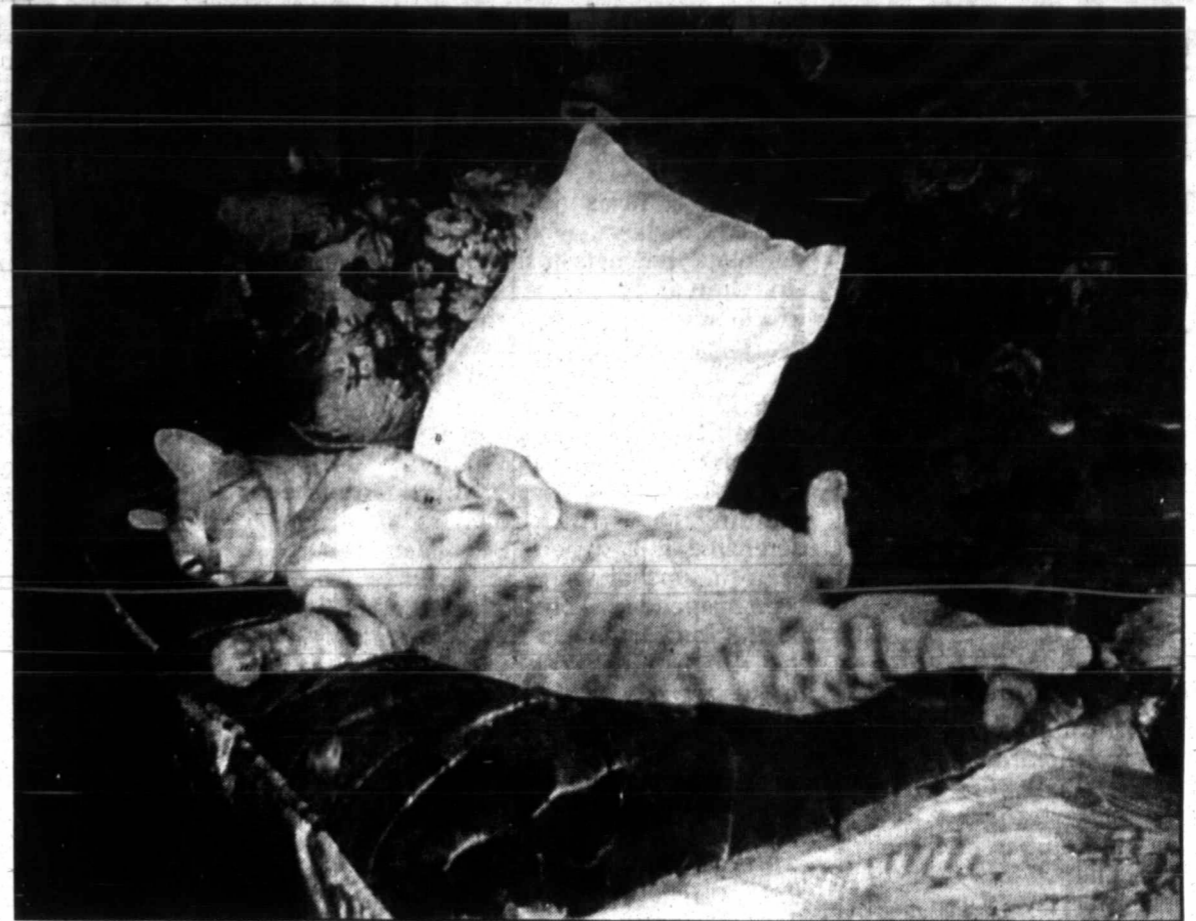

Some industry experts said drivers angered by the recent price increase may have been lulled by the months of ultralow prices as an oversupply of oil forced refiners and dealers to cut prices.

"For a long time, it looked like prices would just remain low forever," said Roy Littlefield, executive director of the Service Station Dealers of America.

Still, most travel industry professionals don't expect the price increases thus far to greatly affect summer travel.

"When a family of four is spending $100 for a hotel and $100 for meals, spending $20 to $30 on gas isn't a big factor," said Mitch Fuqua, a spokesman for the American Automobile Association.

INS plans to make Houston deportation hub for Latin America

HOUSTON (AP) — In an effort to save money, the federal immigration agency plans to use Texas's largest city as a hub for deporting Latin American and Caribbean detainees, officials said.

A draft of the Immigration and Naturalization's hub plan claims that deportation time and effort would be reduced because Houston and Chicago — which would serve as a hub for European, Asian and African immigrants — both have international airports and foreign consulates.

"We all agree that we need to be as efficient as we can be," said Houston INS district director Richard Cravener. "And we agree it is beneficial for all to reduce time waiting in jail."

The Houston Chronicle reported in today's editions that most immigrants are currently detained in the cities where they arrived or live. About 4,300 are currently in detention in the INS' 18-state central region — stretching from Texas to New Mexico to Wisconsin and the Dakotas.

Houston and surrounding counties have about 860 detainees facing deportation, most of them in a Houston jail near Bush Intercontinental Airport and the rest in nearby county jails.

Regional INS spokeswoman Mariela Melero in Dallas said the agency would ultimately cut costs by detaining illegal immigrants in INS facilities than in jails, which charge $50 to $70 per day per immigrant.

But immigrant advocates say the plan could affect people's due-process rights and separate immigrants from their relatives. They also question whether there will be any savings, saying that in all likelihood, more jail space will be needed in the hub cities.

They also raised legal considerations.

Gordon Quan, an immigration attorney and member of the American Immigration Lawyers Association, told the Chronicle that many immigrants' cases could be affected.

"If they are living in Houston and are moved to Chicago, how can they get their witnesses there for the hearings?" he asked. "They might also need to get a new attorney and start all over again. At least if they remain in Houston, they could possibly get a bond and be released pending their hearing."

INS officials said several Texas cities are part of the hub plan. For example, Dallas would serve as a processing center because agency reviews have found that cases are reviewed fastest in Dallas.

But Magali Candler, an attorney for Associated Catholic Charities, is worried about the lack of specifics in the plan.

"If they send all Central Americans to Dallas for their hearings, is Dallas prepared for that?" Candler asked.

The draft of the "Central Region's Hub Site Detention and Removals Plan" has a tentative start date of May 1, but INS officials said implementation may be delayed to gather public comment.

FOOTBALL

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys defensive tackle Leon Lett has failed an NFL drug test for the third time and could be facing a lifetime suspension, a league source told The Associated Press.

The eight-year veteran has been enrolled in the NFL's substance-abuse program since 1995. His two previous suspensions have cost him 20 regular-season games between 1995-97.

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos still don't know the intentions of 38-year-old, Hall of Fame-bound quarterback John Elway and apparently, neither does he. Of four Broncos players interviewed, two said they believe Elway will retire this year. Another said he was surprised Elway came back for the 1998 season.

AUTO RACING

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Dario Franchitti led the way through the 30-minute qualifying session for the Toyota Grand Prix of Long Beach with a lap of 106.244 mph on the course that has been extended from 1.57 miles and seven turns to 1.824 miles and 11 turns.

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Mike Bliss was the fastest among 15 drivers who bettered the Craftsman Truck Series qualifying record at Martinsville Speedway and won the pole for Saturday's NAPA 250. Bliss' speed of 94.275 mph easily topped Rich Bickle's record of 92.796 mph.

HOCKEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Wayne Gretzky kept his emotions in check while announcing his retirement. The hard part will come Sunday when he takes off his skates for the last time following the New York Rangers' game with the Pittsburgh Penguins at Madison Square Garden.

"That will be a tough time," the 38-year-old Gretzky said. "I've played for 35 years ... since I was 3. Now I'm handing in my skates. I'm done."

Gretzky remained composed Friday as he announced he was leaving the game he loved following several months of agonized self-searching.

"It's a gut feeling, something I really believe is right," he said.

Dallas looking for defense

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, who lost two defensive linemen in the expansion draft and may lose Leon Lett to a suspension, go into the NFL draft Saturday without any choice but to try to shore up their front line of defense.

The Cleveland Browns picked Hurvin McCormack and Antonio Anderson in the expansion draft, thinning out the Cowboys' defensive line, where Lett has been the anchor when he hasn't been suspended. This is likely to be the fourth time in five years that drug use has cost him playing time.

Without those three, Dallas is left with Kavika Pittman, Greg Ellis, Chad Hennings and Darren Benson as its top defensive linemen.

Ellis was a No. 1 pick last year, and Pittman was selected in the 1996 draft. Shante Carver, the No. 1 pick in 1994, was a bust at defensive end and is no longer with the club.

Some of the top defensive linemen included Jevon Kearse of Florida, Anthony McFarland of LSU, Ebenezer Ekuban of North Carolina, Patrick Kerney of Virginia, Lamar King of tiny Saginaw Valley, Reggie McGrew of Florida, Dimitrius Underwood of Michigan State and John Thornton of West Virginia.

The Cowboys not only won't comment on Lett's situation, which sources say includes failure to pass a drug test, but they are close-mouthed about the draft.

All owner Jerry Jones will say is, "It should be an interesting day."

Once Jimmy Johnson left the Cowboys they have turned from being wizards to wafflers in the NFL draft.

Jones, who has three Super Bowl rings as proof of the team's prowess on draft day in the early 1990s, has had more misfires than hits since his breakup with old pal Johnson.

First picks Pittman in 1996, Sherman Williams in 1995, Carver in 1994 and Kevin Williams in 1993 have produced little joy at Valley Ranch.

Just the other day the Cowboys had to sign Mark Stepnoski again, giving up on another high draft pick, center Clay Shiver, another Jones reach who turned out to be too short, too small and not tough enough.

The jury is still out on Ellis and tight end David LaFleur in 1997.

The best difference-makers the Cowboys have managed to extract from the draft have been offensive lineman Larry Allen, a second-round pick in 1994 and now a Pro Bowler, and offensive lineman Flozell Adams, who started most of the games for the team last season.

Going into his second year, coach Chan Gailey needs to make sure the players he selects are going to produce enough to get Dallas out of the first round of the playoffs. Dallas was 10-6 in Gailey's first year of replacing Barry Switzer but the Arizona Cardinals whipped the Cowboys 20-6 in the playoffs.

Last year's draft was a bust except for Adams and first pick Ellis, who showed signs he could develop into a solid defensive end.

112 players gather for the shotgun start at the 1998 Hospice Benefit Golf Scramble. Registration is under way for this year's scramble, set for 9 a.m. May 1.

Hospice Benefit Golf Scramble set for May 1

PAMPA — Registration for BSA Hospice's (formerly Hospice of the Panhandle) ninth annual Benefit Golf Scramble is under way at Hidden Hills, announced Sherry McCavit, hospice manager.

A shotgun start is scheduled at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 1 at the public golf course north of Pampa just off Texas Highway 70. An entry fee of $40 includes green fee and golf cart. To register, call Hidden Hills Golf Course at 806-669-5866.

More than 100 players from throughout the Texas Panhandle and Oklahoma are expected to participate in the four-person team scramble. David Teichmann, golf pro at Hidden Hills, asks that only one player with a 9 handicap or below be on each team. Eligible players are 18 or older and no longer have UIL eligibility.

In addition to prizes for first, second and third place teams, prizes are also planned for longest drive and closest to the hole. Free sandwiches, desserts and soft drinks are to be provided by BSA Hospice volunteers.

Proceeds from this event go to BSA Hospice, a not-for-profit agency that provides compassionate and competent in-home care for terminally-ill patients and their families throughout the Panhandle.

In 1998, the golf scramble netted $5,390 to care for hospice patients and to help provide grief and bereavement services for patients' family and loved ones.

Last year, the hospice spent more than $18,000 to care for patients and families for whom it would receive no form of reimbursement.

BSA Hospice serves all appropriate patients and their families through funding from Medicare, Medicaid, private insurance, memorials, donations and fund raisers.

For additional information about the BSA Hospice's Benefit Golf Scramble or hospice care in general, call 806-665-6677.

Wrestler competes at state

Aaron Holmes and his wrestling awards.

HUGOTON, Kan. — Aaron Holmes, the son of former Pampa residents, competed in the Kansas State Wrestling Tournament this year in Topeka.

Aaron, who competes in the 10 and Under 95-pound class, placed sixth out of 16 wrestlers in his bracket. It was the second time for Aaron to place in the top six at the state tournament. There were 1,465 wrestlers entered in this year's tournament.

Aaron, who compiled a 29-7 record for the year, finished second in the sub-district at Pratt and fourth in district at Liberal before advancing to the state tournament.

During the year, Aaron won six tournament titles and placed third in another one. One of his victories was at the Hutchinson Tournament in which 1,065 wrestlers were entered. His other wins came at the Gray County-Cimmaron, Hugoton, Liberal, Garden City and Dodge City meets.

This is Aaron's fourth year in the wrestling program.

His parents are Joe and Terri Holmes of Hugoton, Kan. Grandparents are Larry and Darlene Holmes of Pampa; Aubrey and Mary McCord of Pampa.

Padres beat Brown, 3-0

By The Associated Press

Kevin Brown went back to San Diego and faced the music. Baseball's first $100 million man was greeted by hearty boos and the Beatles' "Can't Buy Me Love," then gave up three hits to Tony Gwynn and was outduelled by Andy Ashby's five-hitter as the San Diego Padres beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0 Friday night.

After leading San Diego to its second NL pennant, Brown left to sign a $105 million, seven-year contract with Los Angeles. The public address system played "Can't Buy Me Love" while Brown threw his warmup pitches in the bottom of the first, and Pink Floyd's "Money" in the fourth.

"It's not my song, so I didn't pay attention to it," Brown said. The Padres spoke with respect for Brown, based on what he did for them in 1998.

"It's a tough situation, probably for Kevin, it's a tough situation for the people trying to understand what happened," Ashby said. "It's tough, but I have a lot of respect for Brownie. He's a good man. I'm just glad that we got a win out of it."

In other games, Arizona beat San Francisco 10-4, St. Louis beat Houston 5-3, Chicago beat Milwaukee 9-4, Philadelphia routed Florida 17-3, Montreal beat New York 6-4 and Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh 6-5. Atlanta's game at Colorado was snowed out.

At San Diego, Brown (1-1) allowed two earned runs and 10 hits in 6 1/3 innings, struck out nine and walked one. The loss was his first in 12 road starts, a stretch that included eight victories.

Ashby (2-1) struck out eight and walked two in his fourth career shutout.

Diamondbacks 10, Giants 4
Tony Batista, Matt Williams and Travis Lee each hit two-run homers and Steve Finley added a solo shot in a game that featured a bench-clearing fight and the ejection of Arizona pitcher Todd Stottlemyre (1-0) and Giants third baseman Charlie Hayes.

At Phoenix, Batista also had two doubles and drove in three runs. Giants starter Mark Gardner (0-2) has been rocked for seven home runs and 17 runs in 13 innings.

Cardinals 5, Astros 3
Mark McGwire doubled with second baseman Craig Biggio playing as a fourth outfielder, sparking a five-run fourth at the Astrodome.

McGwire led off the inning with a liner to right-center as Biggio moved to a position between left and center field. Eric Davis followed with a triple to center off Shane Reynolds (2-1) as center fielder Carl Everett tried to make a diving catch and missed. McGwire scored to tie it at 1, and Fernando Tatis followed with a go-ahead single.

One out later, Eli Marrero hit an RBI triple, Joe McEwing singled in a run and Darren Oliver (1-1) hit an RBI double to put St. Louis ahead 5-1.

Cubs 9, Brewers 4
In the last opener at County Stadium, Bill Pulsipher (1-1) gave up five runs, five hits and three walks in three innings. Milwaukee moves into Miller Park next season.

The Cubs hit four home runs, including one by Sammy Sosa, who hit 12 of his 66 homers off Milwaukee last year.

12 ANGRY MEN

The life of a 19-year-old youth hangs in the balance while 12 men must decide his fate in the course of one afternoon.

Innocent or guilty? No one leaves the room until the jury's vote is unanimous.

Adapted from the television show, Sherman L. Sergel's "Twelve Angry Men," is coming to ACT I's stage next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 22-24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Pampa Mall.

The fourth show of the organization's season, "Twelve Angry Men" is being directed in collaboration by Sean Boales, Debra Hartman and Miranda Bailey.

Although shows in the earlier season were performed at M.K. Brown Auditorium, said Bailey, this show is being taken into the intimate stage of the ACT I theater primarily because of scheduling constraints at M.K. Brown.

"While our goal has been to provide Pampa audience members and actors alike with the experience of a larger stage at M.K. Brown this year, the ACT I theater really does lend itself well to the setting of 'Twelve Angry Men,'" according to Bailey.

In addition to changing locations for this show, the ACT I Board of Directors have chosen to dedicate next week's performances to John McKeon, a former board member who died earlier this year.

Always a task to find the right actors for the right parts, Sean Boales, manager of Radio Shack, successfully began recruiting men across the city to participate in the large, all-male cast he envisioned almost two months ago.

"This is a first for ACT I," said Hartman. "We've never seen this many men in a production before ... the men of Pampa have really come out for this one."

Many of the cast members are new faces to the ACT I stage, including the jury's Foreman, played by Shannon Pettit. The show is also featuring strong performances by Ace Acevedo, Jimmie Collier, Art De Mar, Eric De Mar, Geoff Gatlin, Gary Hartman, Howard Hayden, Bill Hildebrandt, James Kane, Jimmy Lindsay, Uri Mesa, and Sam Roundy.

Ticket reservations for "Twelve Angry Men" are being taken by Berinda Turcotte at 665-9369. Adult tickets — $7.50/Student tickets — $3.50. Volunteer ushers get in free ... call for details.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Heiskell

Heiskell anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Heiskell recently celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary. Children of the couple hosted the special occasion.

Orville Heiskell and Elizabeth Ray Earp were married April 9, 1940, at 725 E. Kingsmill in Pampa. The couple have been Pampa residents for the past 50 years and belong to Highland Baptist Church.

Mr. Heiskell graduated from high school at Pampa in 1934 where he participated in high school football, basketball and track and field.

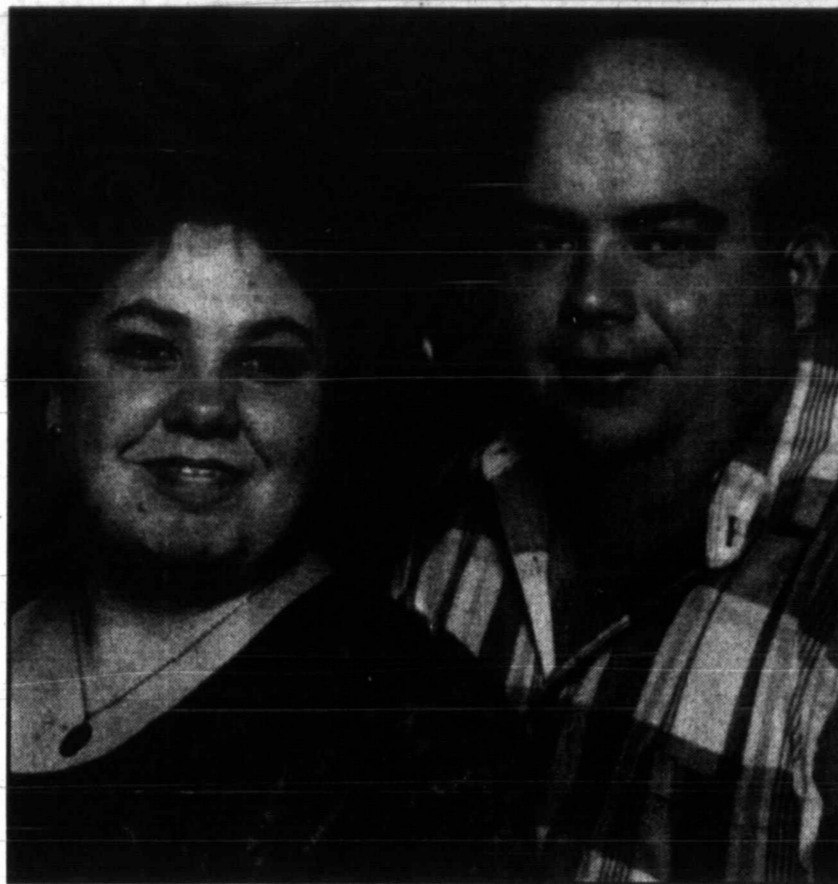

Mrs. Heiskell graduated from high school at Weinert, Texas, in 1936-37 and participated in high school basketball and volleyball.

The couple operated a drilling, building and machine shop and Lee-Tex Valve for 18 years.

Mrs. Heiskell retired from Lovett Memorial Library on Sept. 30, 1985.

Children of the couple are Vicki Heiskell of Arlington, and Larry Heiskell and Ted L. Heiskell, both of Pampa. They have six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Stephen & Ellen Kotara of Dallas, Tx. Welcome their son, Peter Francis, born on March 31, 1999. Peter weighed 8 Lbs. 8 Oz. He is welcomed by his grandmothers, Evalyn Breaux of Fort Worth and Nancy Paronto of Pampa.

Shauna Kitchens and Gregory Don Epperson

Kitchens-Epperson

Shauna Kitchens and Gregory Don Epperson, both of Pampa, plan to wed July 10 at First Baptist Church in Pampa.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Betty Kitchens of Pampa and Howard and Louise Kitchens of White Deer. She is a 1992 Pampa High School graduate.

The prospective groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Epperson of Pampa. He is a 1987 Pampa High School graduate and is currently employed with Evenson Trucking Company out of Sunray.

Newsmakers

The United States Achievement Academy recently announced Veronica Arreola, a Pampa High School student, was named a United States National Award Winner in leadership. The academy bestows the USAA award on fewer than 10 percent of all American high school seniors.

USAA winners are selected based on academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability and recommendation from a teacher, director or other qualified sponsor.

Arreola was nominated for the award by PHS counselor, Starla

Veronica Arreola

Kindle. She will appear in the USAA Official Yearbook, published nationally.

She is the daughter of Pedro and Lynda Arreola of Pampa and is the granddaughter of Celestino and the late Juanita Arreola of Durango, Mexico, and the late J.D. and Ruby Wright of Seymour, Mo.

PLAINVIEW — Business students at Wayland Baptist University participated in the state leadership conference held recently on campus. Twenty-eight business students placed in the top three spots of the competition categories at the Texas Phi Beta Lambda conference.

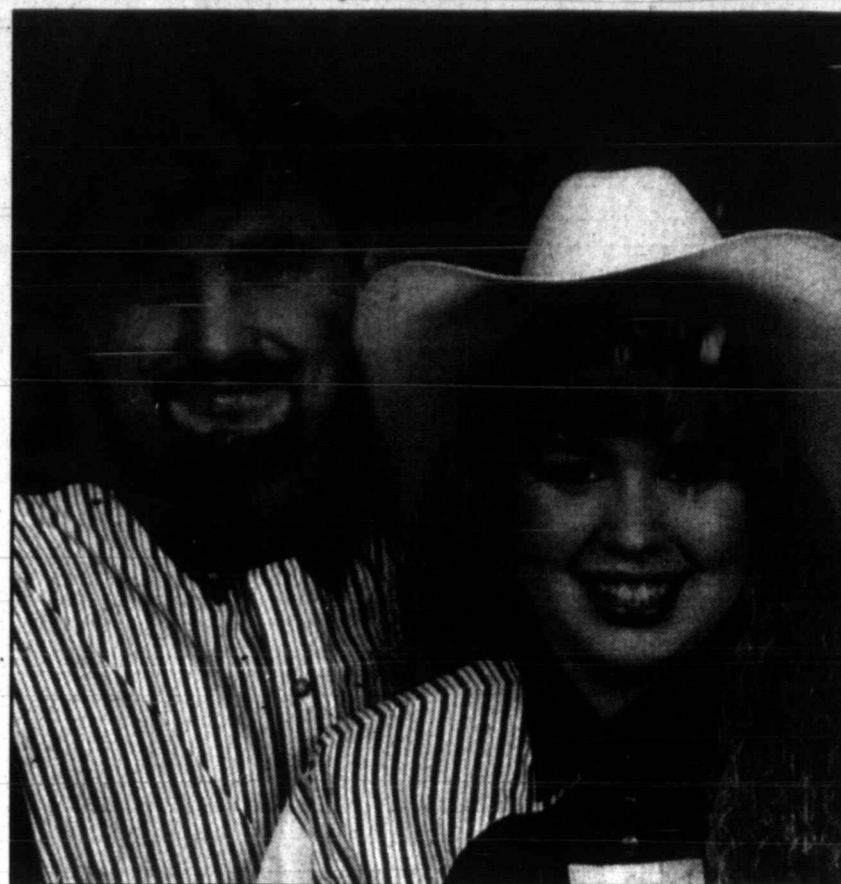

Among students claiming second place honors were Patricia Dinges, freshman from Pampa, in Parliamentary Procedure.

Students receiving first and second place recognition are eligible to advance to the national PBL conference to be held July 4-7 at Chicago, Ill.

CANYON — Twenty-two West Texas A&M University education majors were recently inducted into Iota Theta Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi.

The national scholastic honor society for education majors requires inductees to have an overall grade point average of 3.25 or better, a 3.0 GPA in education coursework, three semester hours in education and a class standing of second semester sophomore or higher.

New members include Kelley B. Bilyeu, a senior reading major of Pampa.

Amber Dawn Priddy and Jeremy Dean Biggs

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT (BULL)

Outlook: The bearish news is a generally favorable crop outlook combined with a weak export lineup. The bullish news is planted what acres are the lowest in 26 years with much of the growing season yet to come. Well, what are the charts saying? Lets look at the July (first new crop) Chicago futures. The market bottomed in late February at multi-year lows. This time is typically a seasonal low. The market then proceeded to rally 50 cents, almost 20 percent, during the month of March. As we go to press, the market has "corrected" about 25 cents top to bottom. This '50 percent retracement' is typical, even in the bull market, and prices are still making higher lows and higher highs. In other words, the charts indicate the trend is still up regardless of the news. This is assuming the 280 level holds, of course. Since April is seasonally a bullish month for wheat, I look for another leg up into the end this month. Seasonally, this might be a peak leading to lower prices into harvest time (assuming no crop problems).

Strategy: Hedgers: Our hedge advice to date has been to sell 25 percent of anticipated new crop production using put options when the market traded above $3 basis the July Chicago futures. Those who have maintained ownership of precious sold cash wheat are long the July 270 Chicago calls. The objective is 310 or better to take profit objective of 310.

CORN (BEAR)
Outlook: The important Mar. 31 Crop Report was bearish for corn. The market has sold off as a result. The most bearish aspect was not the acreage number, but the Mar. 1 corn stocks number. At 1.49 billion bushels it's a big number, plain and simple. So we know there's a lot of corn around. Yet, now that the market has fallen close to 20 cents (near 10 percent) and is testing the February lows, it is probably the time to temper our bearishness. This is because the entire growing season is yet ahead of us. This year's corn crop is just beginning to be planted and there always seems to be 'weather rallies' along the way. We will leave the bear in the box for now, but be aware it is an old bear.

Strategy:

Hedgers: At this early stage in the growing season we are on the sidelines, however we will be looking for a place-to begin hedging operations.
Traders: We remain on the sideline.

SOYBEANS (BULL/BEAR)

Outlook: Negative sentiment abounds for the soybean complex, but the fact remains that new crop soybean futures (first month November) have virtually no 'risk premium' built into price. In the very short term, however, there is not much fundamental news to move prices much higher. The Brazilian harvest is progressing on schedule with good yields reported. While this is not exactly bullish news, it is already discounted in price to a major degree. Our goal is to look ahead. The USDA reports farmers will plant 73.1 million acres this growing season. This is a big number but not as big as most had originally thought. Prices are hovering just above 25 year lows and with any weather problem at all in the coming months, they have a lot of room to go north. The growing season remains fully ahead of us, so I would be very careful about getting too bearish (like many are) at this time.

Strategy: Hedgers: Selective hedgers remain long July futures at 492. Look for a 40 to 50 cents profit objective (if attained it will most likely be during the 'weather scare period', starting now but more into the summer). Risk no more than 25 cents. 'True' hedgers are out.
Traders: Traders remain long November beans from under

495. Risk to 480 and leave the upside profit objective open at this time.
CATTLE (BULL)

Outlook: In the last few weeks, the cash market (and futures as well) have been generally quiet. Cash in the mid-sixties appears to be an equilibrium level where both packers and feeders have reached a temporary standoff. Markets are dynamic, however, and we know prices never remain stagnant for long. The futures market is saying prices will move lower into the summer. The USDA has reported very high placement levels, which indicates more cattle to come in the June through August period. This will keep feedlots current, discourage overfeeding, and the futures is probably overly bearish at this time. While cash may reach a near term peak in April, and move lower into the summer, longer-term the market should move higher. The overall supply will start to turn after today's higher placements are absorbed, with higher prices to come the second half of the year and into the new millennium.

Strategy: Feeders: Feeders have been advised to own at the money put options from higher levels in the June through August time periods. Puts protect your downside but never limit you upside potential.
Cow/calf operators: Cattle feeders remain by-hedged at an average price in the 68-69 range basis the May forward futures. Hold until you buy your replacement feeders.
Traders: The August futures under 62 look too cheap despite the worry of a "glut" in the summer. Look to be a buyer under 62. Risk 150 points for an objective of 6450.

Extension In Progress

Range Meeting - Miami, Texas

There will be a Weed and Brush Control meeting at Miami on Apr. 20. They will meet at the Wanna Be Famous Cafe at noon. There will be two continuing education units offered for the meeting.

Discussion will focus on laws and regulations, Grazing Distribution and Management, and Weed and Brush Control. Call if you have questions!

Result Demonstration Handbooks - 1999

You can pick up your copy of the 1999 Result Demonstration Handbook at the Extension Office. This year's handbook is filled with demonstrations conducted by local producers on all crops raised in 1998.

Special thanks to the demonstrations involved in this past year's tests.

Early Weaning

Illinois researchers studied effects for weaning calves at 90, 152, and 215 days. All calves were placed in the feed lot at weaning and fed until 14-15 months old. Calves were spring-born, Simmental sired, and out of Angus X Hereford cows. Early weaned calves gained more on feed than calves left with their dams on pasture. But those weaned normally gained faster from 215 days to slaughter. So, slaughter weights did not significantly differ. Feed efficiency was highest for 90-day weaning an lowest for normal weaning, but more total feed was consumed by the early weaned calves, as they were in the feed lot longer. There was essentially no difference in USDA Quality or Yield Grade. Pregnancy rates were 12 percent higher in dams of 90-day weaned calves. If feed is cheap enough early weaning is a viable alternative, especially if pasture is short.
True Management - Part II

Danny Nusser

Gray County Extension Agent-Agriculture

Last week we discussed lawn management from a turf selection and fertility standpoint. This week we will discuss mowing and its importance.

Proper mowing can not be over emphasized. Mow every five to six days so that no more than one-third of the leaf blade is removed at any one time. It is best to leave the grass on the lawn to be recycled in to the soil. These clippings are about 85 percent water and the dry matter is about 20-30 percent protein.

With proper mowing, these clippings and nutrients can be recycled into the soil. These clippings do not contribute to thatch. Thatch is a result of fast growing tissues high in lignin such as roots, rhizomes, stolon, and crowns. If you do not mow regularly or do not catch you grass, it will contribute to thatch.

Mowing heights are determined by the type of grass you have. For example, Bermuda grass should be mowed at two and a quarter inches by the end of the growing season. Fescue and bluegrass by comparison are cut at three and three-fourth inches.

Mowing is very vital part in the health and looks for your lawn. Remember, never take more than one-third your leaf blade with each mowing, and you will be just fine.

Next-week we will visit about watering your lawn and how frequent watering actually contributes to unhealthy turf.

Wheat forecast is down

Texas wheat producers expect to harvest 95.0 million bushels this year, 30 percent less than the 1998 crop and 20 percent less than the 1997 crop.

According to an April 1 survey conducted by the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service, planted acreage for the 1999 crop is estimated at 6.2 million acres, up two percent from 1998 but down two percent from 1997.

Producers on the Northern High Plains is expected to total 46.0 million bushels, down 27 percent from a year ago. Most irrigate fields across the region are in good condition Recent rain improved dryland fields, however, more rain is needed.

Producers on the Northern High Plains is expected to total 46.0 million bushels, down 27 percent from a year ago. Most irrigated fields across the region are in good condition Recent rain improved dryland fields, however, more rain is needed.

Producers in the Blacklands expect to harvest 16.0 million bushels, down 30 percent from last year. Planted acres for the region were up three percent for the previous year at 780,000 acres. Moisture conditions are good in this region and fields have made good progress.

Statewide winter wheat conditions around Apr. 1 was rated at 69 percent of normal compared with 76 percent last year.

Texas is the only state that makes an Apr. 1 winter wheat production estimate. The first national wheat forecast will be released May 12.

New milk proposal gets union objections

A new milk market order system will have little impact on consumer prices but will cut into the profits of Texas milk producers, according to the Texas Farmers Union.

Changes in the system, proposed March 31 by the United States Department of Agriculture, will lower prices for milk producers in Texas by at least 50 cents per hundred-weight, according to TFW President Wes Sims.

The proposed reform of the milk pricing system consolidates 31 orders into 11 and sets new pricing formulas to even out prices paid to producers in different regions. The changes would bring lower prices in Texas because of the lower price differentials in the state, Sims said.

"Market orders are an important tool to ensure producers get paid for their product and protect them from fraud," Sims said. "We support market orders and appreciate the work USDA has done on this major revision; however, producers who hoped reform would increase their profitability may be disappointed. While a few areas will gain, the reforms will erode income in many regions. Dairy producers across the country are already reeling due to a record plunge in prices last month. Under these circumstances, we should level prices up instead of down."

The Waco-headquartered Texas Farmers Union insisted that reforms do nothing to stabilize prices.

"Congress must take separate action to reestablish a dairy support price at a meaningful level," Sims said.

Without such action, he said, effort to establish regional compact will increase.

Congress has 60 days to object to the USDA's proposal. Producers will vote on the new market orders in August, which will take effect Oct. 1, if approved by a two-thirds majority.

If the order fails to pass, Sims said, the region becomes unregulated.

Farmers drop health insurance to save money

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Even though he has a wife, a 1 1/2-year-old daughter and a job that can involve dangerous accidents, Clint Jacobs says he had no choice but to cancel his health insurance policy.

"It was too expensive, and we didn't get any coverage. We had some really high deductibles and there was no way of paying the premium," said Jacobs, 30, who raises 200 cattle on his ranch near Amidon, N.D.

Like most farmers and ranchers strangled by the sour farm economy, Jacobs has fallen victim to increasing agriculture concentration and new government trade policies — not to mention floods, blizzards and other weather disasters.

Until he dropped the policy in September, he paid $550 every three months and had a $1,000 deductible for each member of his family.

Jacobs tries to avoid thinking about what would happen if he were injured in a car crash or fell seriously ill.

"What happens, happens," he said. "We're broke anyway. What's a little more brokenness?"

As for health care assistance from the government, some farmers and ranchers complain it is tailored to urban lifestyles and excludes needy farm families.

Farmers, who are self-employed, generally pay much more for private health insurance than do people who join their employers' insurance programs.

One rancher in northwest South Dakota who has a $4,500 deductible said he worries every day that an accident or illness will bankrupt him, his wife and their baby. The family of three pays more than $6,000 a year on health premiums because one member is epileptic and another is diabetic.

Although his ranch is not making money, he, too, is ineligible for government health care assistance, he said. "If you've got any machinery, that's a liquid asset," said the rancher, who did not want to be identified.

In a recent survey of 82 farmers and ranchers, 26 said they had to drop their health insurance to make ends meet, said Sandra Simonson Thums, a rural specialist with Lutheran Disaster Response and Lutheran Social Services of North Dakota.

Slaughter market feedlot numbers

AUSTIN — Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in Texas feedlots with capacity of 1,000 head or more totaled 2.61 million head on March 1, virtually unchanged from a year ago. According to the monthly report released by the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service, the estimate was down 2 percent from the Feb. 1 level. Producers placed 400,000 head in commercial feedlots during February, up 29 percent from a year ago, but down 6 percent from the January 1999 total.

Texas commercial feeders marketed 440,000 head during February, unchanged from a year ago. Monthly marketings were down 7 percent from the January 1999 total.

On March 1, there were 2.13 million head of cattle and calves on feed in the Northern High Plains, 82 percent of the state's total. The number on feed across the area was up 2 percent from last year, but down 1 percent from the February total.

February marketings in the Northern High Plains totaled 336,000 head, down 2 percent from the January total. Marketings were down 5 percent from last month at 361,000 head.

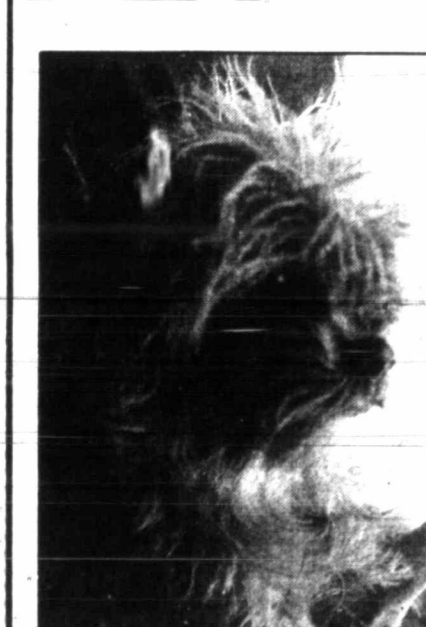

Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in the United States in feedlots with a capacity of 1,000 head or more totaled 10.4 million head on March 1, 1999. The inventory was up slightly from the 10.38 million head on March 1, 1998.

Placements in feedlots during February totaled 1.79 million head, 20 percent above 1998. During February, placements of cattle and calves weighing less than 600 pounds totaled 333,000 head; 600-699 pounds totaled 492,000 head; 700-799 pounds totaled 596,000 head; 800 pounds and greater totaled 367,000 head. Marketings of fed cattle during February totaled 1.82 million, 1 percent below February 1998, but 1 percent above February 1997.

Feeders in the historical seven monthly states with feedlots having a capacity of 1,000 head or more reported 8.86 million head on feed March 1, up slightly from last year, and 1 percent above March 1, 1997.

Filmmaker Moore delivers 'The Awful Truth' to viewers, sticks it to the big guys

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Timidity is at the very core of television, which remains as inoffensive as possible to keep as many viewers as possible. Even when programs veer into controversy, boundaries are carefully observed.

As in his films, his aim is to stick it to the big guys and give a lift to the little ones. He also wants to make us laugh and think at the same time.

There's a narrow range of political debate, although it's hard to tell for all the screaming on TV talk shows. Even shows that seem racy or profane turn out to be morality plays at heart; the bad guys — and it's assumed we all agree on what's good and bad — always lose in the end.

You want real daring, bluntness, outrageous opinion? Go read an alternative publication. Go listen to the radio. Don't bother turning on the TV set, where the status quo is handmaiden to commercials for cars and cola.

Except, except ... here comes Michael Moore, variously described as guerrilla, maverick or rogue filmmaker, to put a little static in the picture. "The Awful Truth," which airs at 9 p.m. EDT Sunday on Bravo and repeats at 10 p.m. EDT Friday, is a 12-week series in the style of Moore's documentaries "Roger & Me" and "The Big One."

As in his films, his aim is to stick it to the big guys and give a lift to the little ones. He also wants to make us laugh and think at the same time.

"Media exist to reinforce the status quo, to reinforce people's fears and prejudices and to guarantee that citizens will not rock the boat," Moore said in an interview. "It is meant to sedate people, to numb their minds."

"The Awful Truth" is no dose of Prozac; viewers risk being delighted or offended by its naked satire.

The first episode offers a skit in which Moore, accompanied by a band of performers dressed as Puritans, invade the nation's capital to show independent counsel Kenneth Starr and Congress how to conduct a better and cheaper "witch hunt."

In another segment, Moore champions the cause of a man who, we are told, will die without the pancreas transplant his HMO refuses to cover. Moore's tactics include a rehearsal funeral, casket and all, staged in front of the company's headquarters.

Future bits: A chorus of people who have lost their larynxes to smoking serenade tobacco executives and lobbyists; Moore attempts to give software magnate Bill Gates a weed trimmer for his lavish estate; Moore plays matchmaker for Hillary Rodham Clinton, figuring she'll be available in January 2001.

Moore's trademark baseball cap and gleeful expression give him the look of a kid who just smacked a ball through the crabby neighbor's house. Ask him to apologize, and he'd probably hand you a bat and ball. He seems as comfortable in his subversive skin as he is in that all-American cap. The economic recovery, for example, he dismisses as the property of the rich.

The average schmo is "living on five Master Cards and three Visas and paying the minimum balance from month to month. ... The whole recovery is financed on personal debt on the backs of working people of this country."

That the system has cleared air time for a harsh critic doesn't surprise Moore.

"There's this incredible flaw in capitalism which says we must make as much money as possible, no matter what. Even if we have to put a guy on TV who we completely disagree with and who is opposed to everything we stand for," he says.

"There's that old saying: The capitalist will sell you the rope to hang himself with. That is such a beautiful description."

The Roberts County 4-H and Miami FFA Youth along with the Roberts County Livestock Show Board would like to thank the following contributors for their support of the 1999 Roberts County Livestock Show and Sale. Because of you, our Show and Sale was a big success.

BUSINESS ASSOCIATION

P.O. B

Downtown Business Association

Downtown Business Association would like to welcome "Carousel Expressions" to downtown and good luck to them in their new location.

April we sponsored the Easter Egg contest. The winners were Dustin Neef - 1st Place from Travis, Elizabeth Terry - 2nd Place from St. Matthews Day School, and Brandon Grimsley - 3rd Place from St. Matthews Day School. They received $50, $25 & $15 in Downtown Bucks.

Also coming up is our Mother's Day Contest. And don't forget about our Summer Street Party, July 31st. It's going to be lots of fun.

The Downtown Business Association has been nominated for the 1999 Golden Touch Award. This is a significant honor, recognizing the Downtown Area of Pampa.

Every Child Must Learn That Actions Have Consequences

DEAR ABBY: I would like to comment on the letter from "Victorious in Oregon," the woman whose young daughter and niece made adult entertainment telephone calls amounting to $260. She was fortunate that, by law, she was not obligated to pay for the calls, but there are other issues involved.

The girls were old enough to know they were doing something wrong, and I assume they were punished. But I still think the charges were legitimate. Parents should be financially responsible if their children break the law (i.e. commit vandalism).

Children must be taught that actions have consequences for which they must take responsibility. Years ago, when my daughter was a teen-ager, she was careless about guarding her telephone calling card PIN number, and a friend of hers used the calling card without permission to make $50 worth of calls.

Neither of us knew the source of these charges, and the telephone company was willing to remove them from our bill. When we figured out the identity of the caller, I asked the phone company not to deduct the charges, and my daughter paid them.

It was an expensive lesson for her, but an important one. Today she is a thoughtful, responsible adult — not that she wouldn't have been had I paid the charges or allowed them to be deducted.

LYNN B.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

FOUNTAIN VALLEY, CALIF.

DEAR LYNN: I agree that children should be taught the consequences of their actions — and I'd be surprised if the children involved in making those phone calls didn't receive a severe lecture and grounding for their mischief. Styles of discipline vary from family to family, and making the girls foot the bill seemed excessively strict to me since it was a first offense.

I am aware that there are more issues involved than whether the parents should have been liable for the phone bill the girls ran up. The children seem to have a lot of unsupervised time on their hands, which in this case they used to satisfy their curiosity about sex. "Victorious" is overdue for a frank discussion with the girls about sex. Now that the hassle with the phone company has been settled, she should turn her attention to enrolling the girls in after-school activities such as music, sports or special-interest clubs, so their minds will be occupied with more wholesome things than X-rated adult entertainment.

DEAR ABBY: I am a bride-to-be who is in the midst of planning my wedding. I have several single guests on my wedding invitation list. Am I obligated to invite the single person with a guest if I know that they do not have a significant other? I did not find that point in your wedding booklet.

JUNE BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: You are under no obligation to invite single guests to bring an escort to your wedding, but it would be very gracious of you to do so. Sometimes unattached people feel isolated at weddings because it may seem that everyone else is part of a couple.

Thank you for pointing out that this was omitted in my wedding booklet — I'll correct it in the next printing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LOOKING FOR A BETTER FUTURE": "When things are bad, we take comfort in the thought that they could always be worse. And when they are, we find hope in the thought that things are so bad they have to get better." (Malcolm S. Forbes) difficult and argumentative. Tonight: Do your own thing!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
  Someone you don't usually count on surprises you. Pull back some and think. Listen to news, gather feedback and honor your goals. You might be overwhelmed by work. A loved one lets you know, in a bellicose fashion, how much he misses you. Tonight: Work late.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
  You could be spending recklessly. There is a tomorrow, however! A partner keeps asking you to hold back some. Be realistic about your limits. You are full of ideas. Detach from your immediate situation and take an overview. Unusual solutions pop into your head. Tonight: Catch up on e-mail.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
  Your temper can be hot at times. You feel frustrated and wonder what you can do to defuse a tough situation. Think before you say something you could regret. A partner understands when an adjustment needs to be made. Listen to him about real estate and personal matters. Tonight: With a favorite person!
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
  Others are challenging and, at times, testy. You cannot count on another's choices right now, though he means well. He simply has a different way to reach the same goals. Tempers flare; you could be accident-prone.

Have you been getting enough rest? Tonight: Make it an early night.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
  A friend has a strong sense of direction, while you could be cramped by restraints right now. Work and endurance will pay off. Don't be discouraged. You come through for others in a big way. Let another understand your intentions. You are trusted. Tonight: Get some exercise.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
  Trust your creativity to come up with solutions and ideas. A romance takes an interesting twist. Perhaps you don't realize what you have triggered of late. Allow more joy and caring into your life. Don't get hung up by demands from others. You could feel depressed. Tonight: Let the spirit of the weekend continue.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
  News from a distance could be unsettling. Your perception of the correct action might change when you see your limitations. Build on existing foundations. A home office is a strong possibility. Don't undermine yourself, especially if you feel tired and withdrawn. Tonight: Head home.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
  Talk up a storm. Be willing to find out what others are thinking. In some ways, this could be a puzzle because of their unpredictability. Nevertheless, you can pinpoint another's viewpoint. A money issue could be frustrating; clearly, a partner doesn't see eye to eye with you. Tonight: Avoid a royal battle!
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
  You could be fretting over money, the hows and the wheres. Agreement with another proves challenging; in fact, it's downright frustrating. Both of you seem to be stuck in your positions. Is there a way around this? Talk to a boss. Ideas flow. Tonight: Back off for now.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
  You can beam in what you want. Your personality sparkles; others respond to your energy and ideas. Listen to another; his feedback is certainly interesting. You might be avoiding an important issue through working hard. Be more conscious of your needs. Tonight: Get real physical!
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
  An associate surprises you with his willingness to tackle an important matter. Think before you leap into action. Tempers flare. When you think you are being creative and open, another sees you as challenging.

If units such as these were given the opportunity to volunteer for service in Kosovo, the problem of who to send would easily be solved. And, so the media doesn't exploit soldiers with young children, only those who are single and childless need apply. While such a practice would no doubt be viewed as discriminatory by gung-ho soldiers who are married with children, it would help to ensure that the media propaganda campaign against sending troops to do the job they were trained for would have a little less fuel.

This is not, by any means, meant to condemn service personnel who enlist to take advantage of military benefits. The recruitment slogan, "It's a great place to start" is an excellent description of the Armed Services today. Those who enlisted to fight, however, should not be penalized by the ludicrous belief that wars can be fought without casualties.

in a cell with an inmate that has a staff infection. Now I have the same staff infection. This inmate has had this staff infection for two years and it is documented in his medical file.

They should have quarantined him and unassigned him because all I have to do is use the bathroom at the school and Warden De La Rosa will have an epidemic on his hands and Huntsville, Texas, and the Health Department are going to want to know how this happened.

Sometimes I wonder where they got their medical degree, Sears and Roebuck, Wal-Mart, K-Mart, and T.D.C.J.I.D. wonders why they get so many lawsuits. They also hire staff by the pound, so if you are overweight you are sure to get a job here. Thank you!

Pokemon — Some schools fed up with little monsters

By JIM FITZGERALD
Associated Press Writer

PELHAM, N.Y. (AP) — Pikachu, Jigglypuff and the other mutating monsters on the Pokemon juggernaut are running into roadblocks at grade schools around the country.

The hot-selling trading cards that capitalize on the Japanese cartoon phenomenon have been banned, restricted or discouraged by some principals in New York, New Jersey, Washington and elsewhere because they're distracting the early-reading set.

In Pelham, just north of New York City, all four grade schools have come down in some fashion on the cards, which have sold in the millions since they came out in January.

"They seem to be the latest craze and the children are beginning to become obsessed by them," said Gerard Finelli, the principal at Colonial school. Finelli has banned trading between pupils "because some of our younger kids were getting suckered out of their more valuable cards."

The cards are banned entirely at Prospect Hill school, where principal Richard Limato said, "We were having instances in which the children were losing them and then getting very upset."

Kevin Wolski, a second-grader at Colonial, has about 60 of the cards, a poster illustrating all 150 of the sometimes cuddly, sometimes scary monsters, a Pokemon comic book, a T-shirt and a pin. The 7-year-old doesn't bring his cards to school anymore because "the teachers don't like it and the principal said he'd better not catch us trading."

Besides, he said, wide-eyed, "Somebody was stealing them!" Like millions of other kids, Kevin jumps out of bed to watch the Pokemon cartoon each morning and can converse rapidly and astutely about the details of the trading-card game: about the gentle goldfish Magikarp, who can evolve into the powerful sea serpent Gyarados; about Psyduck, whose powers increase "if he has a really bad headache"; and about Kadabra, "who can hypnotize lightning bolts when his eyes light up."

Kevin's mother, Linda, has no objections to her son's new obsession, noting that the cards encourage kids to read, the game requires some arithmetic skills, and the cartoon takes pains to teach lessons, "like making fun of the vanity of the villain."

Kevin's father, Mike, likes that among the big-eyed human characters, "boys and girls are equally powerful."

The Pokemon phenomenon originated in Japan three years ago as a Nintendo Game Boy game. Until recently, it was best-known for the cartoon episode that sent 700 Japanese viewers to hospitals when they reacted, some with epilepsy-like spasms, to a scene that flashed bright colors in rapid succession.

Undaunted, Pokemon quickly expanded into cartoons, comic books and the trading cards, which are made by Seattle-based Wizards of the Coast under a license from Nintendo.

Wizards spokeswoman Carol Rogalski said the targeted age for the cards was 8 to preteen, but kids 5 and 6 have been collecting the cards as well.

"It's just turned into this hottest thing," she said, and the cards are headed for a fifth printing.

The rarest cards sell to collectors for more than $100, but a starter set with 61 cards has a suggested retail price of $7.99. Other packs have list prices of $2.79 to $9.99, but there have been markups to $20 or so, Rogalski said.

Wizards also makes "Magic: The Gathering" cards, which sparked a federal lawsuit against the Bedford Central schools when some parents thought they were satanic and shouldn't be allowed on school grounds. A decision in that suit is pending.

Security officials warn of impending Oklahoma City, Waco anniversaries

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department security officials on Thursday issued their annual security warning to employees about the April 19 anniversary of the Oklahoma City federal building bombing and the assault on a religious compound in Waco, Texas.

"Although the FBI does not have any specific threat information concerning the week of April 19," Justice Security Officer D. Jerry Rubino issued the annual warning "to raise your level of security awareness."

The FBI sends a similar alert to federal, state and local law enforcement around the country each year at this time.

Rubino noted that April 19 is "meaningful to self-styled patriots in the current militia movements."

On that date in 1995, the Oklahoma City federal building was bombed by Timothy McVeigh, a drifter who had expressed anger over the assault by federal agents on April 19, 1993 on the Branch Davidian compound in Waco, Texas. McVeigh has been sentenced to death; two other men have been convicted as accomplices.

More than 70 residents of the compound died at Waco of various causes as a fire broke out during the assault. The Oklahoma City blast killed 168 people and injured hundreds of others.

April 19 also is the anniversary, Rubino pointed out, of the 1775 battles between British soldiers and American Minutemen at Lexington and Concord, Mass.

Rubino noted the week ends with the 50th anniversary celebration here of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and "the continuing conflict in the Balkans also has the potential for initiating terrorist threats" aimed at NATO officials.

Rubino said all identification badges will be checked on entrances to Justice buildings and arriving packages will be X-rayed. He advised employees with windows on the street to close their blinds or shades.

Believe it or not ...

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Believe it or not: Ripley's wants Pamela Anderson Lee's used breast implants.

Ripley's Believe It or Not! wants to acquire the implants, which were recently removed, to display at its Hollywood museum.

They would be included in an exhibit on what people do to themselves for beauty's sake, said Christine Barnes, a curator for the Orlando-based company.

Ms. Barnes said the exhibit will include displays of the old Chinese practice of foot-binding, corsets and body piercing.

Ms. Lee's spokeswoman, Marleah Leslie, said the implants were not for sale and called Ripley's efforts a publicity stunt. She said the company hadn't contacted Ms. Lee.

"She is not considering donating her implants," Ms. Leslie said. "She is not considering selling them."

Surgery was performed last week in Los Angeles on the 31-year-old actress.
