Buck Rambin called our attention to an oddity concerning current postal rates. We didn't know about it and perhaps you were not aware of it. The rate for first class mail (regular letters) is 13 cents an ounce—that is for the first ounce. If your letter weighs over one ounce, it is 13 cents for the first one and then only 11 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof above one ounce. So, a three-ounce letter would cost 35 cents rather than 39 cents.

Postmaster Jack Tilson says there was a similar deviation for first class mail weighing more than an ounce even when the first ounce cost only 10 cents. Also, it extends to other classes of mail. For Postal Service personnel it merely adds to the confusion, since they can no longer figure up postage by simple multiplication of the rate per ounce times the number of ounces as had been the case for years and years and years and years.

But, if you have a lot of extra-weight first class mail, the difference could mean a significant savings over a year's time.

Speaking of savings, there were some inquiries the other day about the status of the County School Superintendent's office, which county voters agreed two years ago to abolish. The office cannot legally fade from the picture until the current four-year term expires, which is 1978. However, Roy Carter, the county superintendent who ran on a pledge to abolish the office, reports that the operation now costs only a little over 20 per cent as much as it did before voters cast their ballots in favor of "phasing out" the office. The budget for the office was $24,000 for the 1973-74 school year, but was reduced to $15,000 for 1974-75 and now has dropped further to only $5,000 for 1975-76.

Carter says this means a tax saving to the Snyder Independent School District of approximately $65,000 during the interim period between the election to abolish the office and the time when actual election results go into effect. Part of these savings result from the fact that Carter is continuing to fulfill the few functions of the office and not accepting any salary since Sept. 1, 1975.

If you have been a registered voter in Scurry County and haven't received your new registration certificate through the mail, don't panic and don't converge on the county tax office. That is the word from County Tax Assessor-Collector Don Adams and his staff, who are busy registering automobiles and mailing out registrations now.

Adams said there had been a lot of confusion following publication of a voter registration article in the Abilene Reporter-News a few days ago. The information in that article concerned Taylor County only.

"We have just received our registrations and are now mailing them out," said Adams. "If you have been registered and don't receive one by March 15, contact our office. But there is no need to do so at this time."

Some counties got their new registrations earlier, but the supply for Scurry County only arrived late in the past week.—WACIL McNAIR.

On this date:

In 1792, the Italian operatic composer Rossini was born.

In 1808, the French captured the Spanish city of Barcelona.

In 1956, President Dwight Eisenhower announced he would seek a second term although he had suffered a heart attack.

In 1964, it was announced that the United States had secretly developed a jet airplane that could fly 2,000 miles per hour at 70,000 feet.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the British House of Commons, after bitter debate, approved treaties with the German principalities to furnish mercenaries to fight in the American Colonies.

Ford Warns Cuba Against Intervention

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — President Ford today warned Cuba against armed intervention in Latin America and said Fidel Castro is an "international outlaw" for sending troops to Angola.

In his strongest criticism yet of the Castro regime, Ford said the United States will take "appropriate measures" if Cuba or any other nation embark on an armed adventure in the Western Hemisphere.

Ford, taking his presidential campaign to Florida, made the statements in a speech at a naturalization ceremony in which 1,161 persons, mostly Cuban refugees, became American citizens.

The new citizens and about 1,300 other persons in the audience jumped to their feet and repeatedly cheered Ford as he attacked Castro.

Tens of thousands of Cubans who fled from Castro's Cuba live in the Miami area and most bear deep resentment toward their one-time leader.

The speech kicked off a busy weekend of campaigning for the President in his bid to defeat Ronald Reagan in the March 9 Florida Republican primary. In their first head-to-head test, Ford squeaked out a narrow victory in Tuesday's new Hampshire primary.

Meanwhile, Ford's campaign manager predicted the President will win both the Florida primary and the Illinois GOP primary on March 16. Howard (Bo) Callaway said Reagan would have a "difficult time continuing a credible campaign" if Ford is successful in the two states.

Speaking to reporters aboard the presidential jet en route to Florida, Callaway said Florida and Illinois were Reagan's strongest states and he forecast close battles in both.

"Both states will be tough," Callaway said. "If we win in Florida and Illinois, and I think we will, it will be very difficult for Reagan to continue a credible campaign."

But he declined to predict if Reagan would quit the race if he lost both states. Callaway said Ford's narrow victory in New Hampshire last Tuesday has generated great momentum for his campaign to win the GOP nomination.

Also on the flight, presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford believes he is going to win in Florida.

"It's going to be a damn close race, I'd say nip and tuck," Nessen said.

In his condemnation of Castro, Ford said, "The Fidel Castro regime of Cuba, by sending an expeditionary force of 12,000 soldiers to intervene in a civil war in Angola, is acting as an international outlaw. Fidel Castro has committed a flagrant act of aggression.

FOR PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

Court Ruling Ends Threat Of Federal Funds Cutoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court says Congress can take 20 more days to change the makeup of the Federal Election Commission, ending the threat of an immediate cutoff of federal funds for presidential candidates.

The FEC had been scheduled to hold its final meeting on Sunday to dispense some $2.5 million to presidential candidates only hours before a court deadline that would have stripped the panel of its powers.

But the Supreme Court decided on Friday to give Congress 20 more days to pass legislation that would renew the FEC's power and make it constitutionally acceptable to the court.

The court ruled last month that the commission was not properly constituted because the President and not Congress should have sole power to appoint its members. The court told Congress it would have to restructure the FEC or put the panel out of business.

But the citizen lobby Common Cause, the League of Women Voters, President Ford and a number of Democratic presidential candidates asked the court to extend its March 1 deadline so as not to cut off the matching funds for candidates.

After the court's action Friday, Ford issued a statement urging Congress to act quickly, but warning that he will veto any FEC bill that seeks a major restructuring likely to cause confusion.

Ford said he wants a simple bill that merely meets the court's specific objections. He said he will "veto any bill that will create confusion and will invite further delay in litigation."

A White House aide later said that was a general statement and not necessarily a specific threat to veto the FEC revision bills now under consideration by Senate and House committees.

But Republicans in both committees say Ford aides have told them he will veto the bills as "pro-labor" because he objects to a provision that would limit corporations to soliciting political contributions from executives and stockholders, but allow labor union committees to seek money from all members.

Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., of the Senate Rules Committee said he was pleased by the court's decision and predicted Congress could pass a bill within the additional 20 days.

Chairman Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, whose House Administration Committee staff drafted the bill, said his panel will meet twice daily next week in an effort to get the bill out as soon as possible.

And in a rare effort to speed up action, the Senate Rules Committee is expected to report out what basically is the Hays bill on Monday.

The Senate and House committee bills meet the court objections on the makeup of the FEC, but go far beyond that to extensively revise the campaign finance law.

In addition to amending the rule on corporate campaign committee political solicitations, the measure would require the FEC to try to get candidates to voluntarily stop questionable campaign practices before taking legal action against them.

All Draft Boards Closed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's military draft boards, reopened when the Cold War heated up in 1948 and a target of antiwar activity during the late 1960s and early 1970s, have all been closed down.

The last boards were shut Friday, completing the first nationwide closing since 1947, leaving the nation's draft machinery on a standby basis.

No one has been drafted since December 1972. The President's authority to draft men expired June 30, 1973, and the Selective Service System's 1,400 full-time employes will be cut to 100 by mid-1977.

The requirement that 18-year-olds register for the standby draft and the holding of annual lotteries to decide the order in which persons would be liable to be called up in emergency also has been halted.

The boards have not functioned, for the most part, since last fall. Most boards were phased out before Friday's deadline, in line with a proposed reduction in the Selective Service budget of $37.5 million this year to $6 million next year.

Most of the 1,400 full-time employes of Selective Service due to be separated by Friday left the agency earlier, the spokesman said. Five hundred of them asked for retirement.

Another 200 will be terminated May 8, according to present plans.

The 100 remaining will be backed by Reserve and National Guard personnel assigned to Selective Service who train on a weekly basis and for two weeks each summer.

Weathersbee Rites Today

Funeral services have been set for 2 p.m. Sunday for Mrs. Eunice Weathersbee, 80, who died Friday afternoon in Cogdell Memorial Hospital following a brief illness.

Services will be at the First Baptist Church in Snyder. Burial will be in a Rotan cemetery, under direction of Weathersbee Funeral Home of Rotan. Officiating pastor will be Rev. Ken Andress.

Born on Aug. 27, 1895, in Louisiana, she married Ennis E. Weathersbee on March 10, 1921. They moved to Snyder in 1930 from Rotan. Mr. Weathersbee died in 1939.

Mrs. Weathersbee was a member of the First Baptist Church of Snyder. She was also a member of the West Texas Porcelain and Art Club. She served as district clerk for Scurry County for 26 years.

Mrs. Weathersbee is survived by one son, Claude Weathersbee of Floydada; one daughter, Mrs. James (Mary Belle) Ture of Andrews; one brother, Perry McFarland of Natchitoches, La.; one sister, Mrs. Hettie Sensiba of El Paso; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The body will lie in repose in the Bell-Seale Funeral Home until the time of the services.

Clayton Claims Crime Epidemic

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton says crime has become epidemic in Texas and its control should be among the top four issues in the 1977 legislature.

He announced Friday that he has appointed a special nine-member task force to seek out things the legislature can do to make life tougher for criminals.

Clayton said Gov. Dolph Briscoe had asked him, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Atty. Gen. John Hill "to think about what should go into a law and order package we can all support."

Rep. Joe Spurlock, D-Fort Worth, vice-chairman of the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee, will head the task force.

Other members are Reps. Craig Washington, D-Houston, chairman of the criminal jurisprudence committee; Senfronia Thompson, D-Houston; Ronald Earle, D-Austin; James Kaster, D-El Paso; Bob Maloney, R-Dallas; Tom Uher, D-Bay City; Bob Vale, D-San Antonio; and Phil Cates, D-Pampa.

Spurlock is in a tough race for district judge. Washington is running unopposed for re-election, but Clayton said he did not make him chairman because "Craig is so busy I doubt he would have the time that is needed."

Briscoe said Wednesday he is working on a crime control package to submit to the legislature.

Clayton said he favored bills that would deny probation or a suspended sentence to anyone convicted of using a gun during commission of a felony and would add five years to sentences for several crimes if a firearm was used.

"Our crime wave is epidemic," Clayton told a news conference.

Clayton said he believes there "is going to be plenty of money" for new crime control programs without new taxes in 1977.

On other matters, he said:

—A special property tax committee of the Legislative Council will be looking more at recodifying the tax laws than reforming them, as Hobby implied in a statement Thursday.

—Progress is being made toward merging a number of House and Senate services to save money. "We are trying to get the Senate to agree on some things. This is going to be a pretty good reorganization."

Mrs. McAllister Dies Saturday

Mrs. J.B. McAllister, 88, died at 12:20 a.m. Saturday in Snyder Nursing Home.

The body was taken to Bell-Seale Funeral Home and was to be transferred to Madden Funeral Home in Ashdown, Ark., where funeral service will be held at 2 p.m. Monday. Burial will be in the Peytonville, Ark., Cemetery. Mrs. McAllister was a native of Peytonville.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Bates Harned of Dallas and Mrs. W.J. (Mary) Pitts of Snyder; three sisters, Mrs. Lillie England of Gary, Okla., Mrs. F.E. Williams of Austin and Mrs. J.F. Hayes of Mobile, Ala.; three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

FOR SPECIAL WEEK

Schools Invite Visitors

School open house and classroom visitation will highlight this year's observance of Texas Public School Week in the Snyder schools.

Governor Dolph Briscoe has issued a proclamation designating the week of March 1-5 as Texas Public School Week. The Snyder schools have scheduled a variety of activities during this week for the public's participation.

Open house at each of the elementary schools is scheduled for Monday at 7 p.m. In addition to the open houses several other activities, such as special assemblies, tree plantings, and other programs have been scheduled at each of the elementary schools throughout the week.

Snyder Junior High and Snyder High School will each have an open house from 7-9 p.m. on Tuesday. The public is invited to visit these two facilities during this time or at any other time during this week.

Parents are invited to visit in their children's classrooms throughout the week and are also encouraged to join their children for lunch in the school cafeteria in accordance with the following schedule: Kindergarten, Monday.. Grades 1 and 4, Tuesday.. Grades 2 and 5, Wednesday. Grades 3 and 6, Thursday.

There is no set schedule for visitation or eating at the junior high and high school. Visitors will be welcome throughout the week. Cost of adult lunches during the week is $1 each.

IRS Will Listen More, Act Slower On Delinquencies

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service, seeking to rein in "overzealous" tax collectors, says it will be quicker to listen and slower to act in dealing with citizens whose taxes are overdue.

An IRS official said Friday the IRS is modifying its attitudes and procedures. For instance, agents are now being told "taxpayers are not to be prejudged as evaders" since special circumstances may have caused their tax delinquency.

When the IRS feels it is forced to act, a special "management review" by the IRS will be required before it seizes a personal residence and before it imposes levies against a worker's salary.

Thomas Davis, director of the IRS' Collection Division, also said the agency is "receptive to proposals" to exempt a portion of wages for living purposes when a levy is placed against wages to collect overdue taxes.

The IRS said that during fiscal year 1975, it carried out 19,864 seizures of property and 660,639 levies of cash in its collection program.

Seizures only rarely apply to homes, a spokesman said, adding that the more likely objects are automobiles, business holdings or other non-residential property. Levies can be filed with anyone having money owed to the taxpayer, such as an employer, bank or trustee.

Davis said the agency is considering giving short-term extensions for payment to first-time delinquent income taxpayers "solely on the strength of their request."

Legislation to increase the dollar exemption for both personal and business properties subject to seizure may be considered, too, he said.

The changes were outlined in an article written for the Tax Adviser, a publication of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Davis said the changes ar proposed changes result from "complete reappraisal" of many collection procedures that was begun in late 1974 in response to both public and private criticism of the collections process.

He said the criticism resulted in part from the public's growing concern for individual rights of citizens. But he also acknowledged that "overzealousness on the part of a few revenue officers can and occasionally has offset the good work" of the majority of the agency's 6,000 field revenue officers.

Davis said the distinction between chronic violators and first-time delinquent taxpayers has not always been adequately made in IRS agent training programs.

"As a result, some of our employes have tended to propagate a taxpayer stereotype — evasive, unwilling to cooperate, negligent about his or her financial affairs," Davis added.

VIEWPOINT

The Warnings Paid Off

Mile for mile, 1975 was the safest year for motor vehicle travel in U.S. history—or at least in the 52 years that the National Safety Council has been recording statistics.

The council's preliminary figures for last year show that the death rate dropped to 3.5 fatalities for each 100 million vehicle miles traveled. In 1974, the rate was 3.6.

In terms of total numbers this was a saving of 600 lives in 1975 (45,600 fatalities compared to 46,200 in 1974), even though Americans drove an estimated 25 million more miles in 1975 than in 1974 and there were four million more vehicles on the road.

Single most important factor responsible for this slight but nevertheless welcome reduction in fatalities was lower speeds, says the council. Other factors were less travel on high-risk rural roads, less night driving, a reduction in the average number of occupants per vehicle and an increase in safety belt usage.

"The 1975 traffic reports indicate to us that motorists have changed their way of driving for the better," says council president Vincent Tofany. "There seems to be a new emphasis on safety, and we hope that that emphasis will continue through 1976, with the same lifesaving results."

It would be a nice Bicentennial present to ourselves.

Time To Visit Schools

It has been said that turmoil in schools and churches attract more attention than anything else in the average American community. Every taxpayer has his own idea of how to run a school and every member has his own idea of how to run a church—regardless of whether he participates actively in the everyday functions of these two institutions.

When controversy arises, they emerge with sage advice, if not dictatoral decree.

Texas Public School Week begins tomorrow, and it offers an excellent opportunity for all citizens to take a close-up look at their schools under normal conditions, that is if normalcy exists these days. There is no need to wait until some specific problem arises. You may go to your shcools during the coming week and see for yourself how they operate. They will welcome visitors at any time during this week. The only request concerning any type of visitation schedule involved the noon meal. If you plan to eat in an elementary school cafeteria, the school people hope you will be able to follow a schedule that is listed elsewhere in this issue of the paper. But, if it is impossible for you to follow that schedule, they will welcome you whenever you can come.

The welcome mat is out. And, who knows? It may be a pleasant experience to visit a school when you have no special problem to take along.

"I just woke up from a three-year nap. What's new?

Aliens Cost School Districts

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — It has cost school districts along the United States-Mexico border $50 million to educate legal aliens, according to a study made by an official of the Region 1 Education Service Center here.

The report was made by Jim Henlsey, deputy director of the education center, at the request of the State Board of Education. It covers 61 school districts on the border.

Of the 281,845 pupils attending the 61 schools, Hensley said, more than 26,000 of them are aliens who pay no taxes but must be accommodated by the schools.

The main cost to the school district is in the term of buildings, Henlsey said. He said that although the state and federal governments provide funds for programs for aliens, the school district receives little aid in paying for the additional classroom space needed because of the alien influx.

"The burden for educating these children should be shared by the state and federal governments," Hensley suggested in the report.

The city of Brownsville is one of the hardest hit districts. Hensley said, noting that the school district there had to build 30 extra classrooms to accommodate the alien pupils.

Edinburg, which has 9,900 pupils, has 593 aliens enrolled in school, Hensley said.

A Texas House subcommittee has held hearing at various locations in South Texas to listen to alien problems cited them by school administrators.

Letters To Editor

To The Daily News:

As lifetime citizens of Snyder and 3rd and 4th year students at W.T.C. we would like to express our opinion on the production of "Play It Again, Sam." We saw the Sat. night show and loved it. The acting, the set, make-up, and costuming were all very well done. But everyone's so busy objecting to the subject matter that we doubt anyone noticed the quality of the play. The responsibility of choosing the plays is left up to director, Charles Holland. They are not reviewed by anyone before being put into rehearsal. Holland takes a lot of consideration in choosing a show. He has rejected many that he would personally like to do in favor of ones he feels that Snyder as a whole will appreciate more. But in reaction to the complaints received, Holland and Dr. Clinton closed the second week's run of performances.

The only admirable thing for the school administration to do would have been to instruct Holland to continue because school time and money was already invested and tickets were reserved, and to back him and tell complainers that W.T.C. is not a denominational school and Holland can handle his own job. There are some people who don't wish to be protected; They prefer to see and judge for themselves. These people were upset when they had to redeem their tickets.

Why should they be forced to submit to the standards of others? Our magazines have been limited, and our movies are so butchered that we pay full price to see one third of a movie. What's next? An ethic code for our theatre? Shall our college do grade school level plays? Holland feels very strongly that if his students are to leave W.T.C. with any qualifications as actors, he owes them the opportunity to experience a variety of roles. Just as anyone can try out for a play, drama students are not required to try out for any play they don't wish to. We can't understand why the fuss is being raised now.

Last year's performance of "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers" was a modern comedy dealing with adultery. It was the best-received play of the year, probably due to the star, Glenn Polk. We wouldn't blame Holland if he resigned on the spot. W.T.C. has lost several faculty members to just this sort of thing. Holland would be a great loss, and don't think he can be easily replaced. He can't. What's going to come next? Fig leaves on the statues? We might add—the only nude stutue in Snyder is the white buffalo.

To The Daily News:

In Mr. Hinojosa's letter to the editor concerning the WTC drama department's decision to cancel this week's schedule of its dinner theater production, he referred to the "....School Board who decided that the play was not 'RIGHT' for the community of Snyder."

I feel sure Mr. Hinojosa was referring to the College Board of Trustees but the term "school board" is usually used in speaking of the public schools Board of Trustees and the Snyder I.S.D. Board has not discussed the WTC drama production and certainly has made no decision whether the play was right or wrong for the community, said affairs of the College being outside the purview of the Snyder School Board.

To The Daily News:

Oil monopoly? What is an oil monopoly? I want to give you some facts on the one-eighth royalty interest owners in the SACROC unit of Scurry County. Eighty per cent of the one-eighth royalty interest of the SACROC unit is owned by people past 60 years old. There are several tracts that the royalty interest owners exceed the number of acres in the tracts. The average one-eighth royalty interest owner in the SACROC unit has less than five acres.

Is this what they are talking about when they bring up the windfall profit? Is this part of the monopoly that is getting rich off the public? The year 1976 is the 200th birthday of a nation that believed in free enterprise and the old adage of supply and demand setting the market price of their products.

Bikini Girl Gets Degree

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — Kathryn King, whose masters thesis in mathematics was rejected by Lamar University here because it contained pictures of herself in a bikini, has been awarded the degree after all.

Miss King agreed Friday to split the thesis on navigation instruments into two volumes, the second one containing only a few personal pictures —including the bikini picture— which she says were included to show navigation instruments.

She also agreed not to file suit against several persons in the university. But she said she has not ruled out filing a sex discrimination complaint with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

She said Friday the two-volume requirement "brings this absurd affair to an appropriate climax."

"I am glad they did the right thing," she added.

Lamar president Dr. John Gray also rescinded his approval of a charge of plagiarism and improper referencing in connection with Miss King's thesis, and withdrew consideration of her proposed suspension by the university's graduate council.

Engineering dean Robert A. McAllister, who had brought the accusation of plagiarism, told the graduate council Friday he was withdrawing it because of "extensive and compelling new evidence..."

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Many health-giving drugs have potentially dangerous side-effects. They are marked "by prescription only" and should be taken only under professional supervision, cautions the Pharmaceutical Mfg. Assn. One can understand that a complex chemical drug, while having a desired beneficial effect on one part of the body may, however, upset an important chemical balance in another part of the body. Yor doctor and pharmacist are a professional team to be consulted before any drugs are taken, to avoid possible dangerous side effects.

Mr. and Mrs. David Melvin McCarter

Biddle, McCarter Wed At Dunn

Miss Debra Lavon Biddle became the bride of David Melvin McCarter in a single ring ceremony Feb. 19 at 7 p.m. at the Dunn Baptist Church. The bridegroom's father, Rev. Dayton McCarter, a Baptist minister, performed the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Geneva Biddle and Windle Biddle, both of Snyder. The bridegroom is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Dayton McCarter, of Snyder.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of white sheer fabric, featuring short puffed sleeves and flowered lace trim extending down the front. A gardenia corsage complimented her attire.

Miss Vickie Mills, of Lueders, was maid of honor.

Serving as best man was Barry Keller.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. O.B. Franks, of Snyder. Serving in the house party were Renee Waller, Thelma McCain and Ann Franks.

The two tiered wedding cake was white trimmed with blue and white flowers and topped with a miniature bride and groom.

The couple will make their home in Snyder, where the groom is employed by S.T. Rains Well Service.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Morris Fraley from Big Spring.

A New Look At Engineering

THE EXISTENTIAL PLEASURES OF ENGINEERING. By Samuel C. Florman. St. Martin's. 160 Pages. $7.95.

"It should be apparent that engineering's Golden Age ended abruptly about 1950, and that the profession, for all its continuing technical achievements, finds itself at the present time in a Dark Age of the spirit."

This plunge from the salad days of engineering when the men of the profession were looked on by the people, and regarded themselves, as builders of a utopian society to the present time when the former heroes are regarded at least with suspicion, if not as villains, Samuel C. Florman sees as stemming from President Truman's directive on Jan. 31, 1950, "that work would begin on the development of a hydrogen bomb."

Despite the "marvelous engineering feats" that have been accomplished since that date, an antitechnocratic feeling has imbued much of society and the engineer has been toppled — to his dismay — from the pedestal he once occupied. In "The Existential Pleasures of Engineering," Florman, an engineer himself, tries to refute the current condition by applying the principles of an esoteric philosophy to the profession he is so proud of. "Today's engineer has lost faith in the utopia that engineers of an earlier age thought they were bringing to mankind. Yet his work, springing as it does from the most basic impulse of humanity, can fill him with existential joy."

Florman obviously is a well-read, highly intelligent man, but there are parts of this overly long lecture where he gets so wrapped up in his theme that his arguments tend to become simplistic, his writing gooey. Much of what he has to say is moderately interesting, but there are times when the reader's patience is tried.

Collection Sparkles With Talent

FOREIGN AFFAIRS & OTHER STORIES. By Sean O'Faolain. Atlantic-Little, Brown. 226 Pages. $8.95.

The number of really good short story writers working these days can be counted on one hand, give or take a couple of fingers. It goes without saying that Sean O'Faolain is one of the select few, a fact he proves again, although he doesn't have to, with the eight stories that make up "Foreign Affairs."

Gifted, supremely so, with wit, clarity of line, the talent for creating striking imagery, O'Faolain once again demonstrates his mastery of the short story form in this stunning collection whose locales range from the major cities of the world to the confines of the human heart.

In "Liberty," O'Faolain demonstrates in the first line of this story dealing with a mad man who is not mad and the woman doctor who loves him his fine ability to sketch in a scene quickly, but fully, with no words wasted. "Three men are seated on a low grassy wall opposite the high, white, wide, double, wooden, open gates and porter's lodge of a mental institution a mile from the modest town of B—." In the second, he shows the wry wit which appears in so much of his work, "Once it was frankly called The Madhouse, later more delicately The Asylum, still later, more accurately, The Mental Hospital, finally, less candidly, Saint Senan's Home."

The same talents illuminate the other stories, especially "Something, Everything, Anything, Nothing" — an engaging tour of Italy and the Italian psyche — and "The Faithless Wife," a captivating story of a woman's love and a man's failure to understand it.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — You told someone a few weeks ago that the sweating on his inside windows might be caused by ill-fitting storm sash, permitting cold air to get past it to the inside. Since several of the inside windows on my house were bothered by sweating, even though I have storm sash, I decided to refit all the storm windows. It worked on all but two of the windows. On these two, there is still sweating on the inside windows. What do you think can be causing this? The storm sash has wooden frames.

A. — There is no doubt that air must still be getting past the storm sash of those two windows even though the openings might not be visible. Get some of that putty-weatherstripping that comes in rolls. Apply it all around the outside of the sash, pushing it firmly into the joints where the wood and the frame meet. Meanwhile, consider another possibility — that the putty around the edges of the glass in the storm sash is in need of repair or replacement and is permitting air to infiltrate.

Q. — I just took the finish off a cabinet with a varnish remover. I now find that the surface is all fuzzy. What caused this and how can I eliminate it?

A. — Some types of varnish removers occasionally raise the grain of the wood, which is what happened in this case. Sanding the surface will take off the fuzz. Sand with the grain, using a fine grade of paper.

Abby Resolves Not To Interrupt in 1976

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: It started out to be a blue holiday season until I saw you on the Dinah Shore show on New Year's Eve. Abby, just seeing you on that show changed my life. You announced to millions of people that you were making a New Year's resolution that you weren't going to interrupt anybody!

When I heard you say that I realized that had been my problem all my life. I always talked too much. I never let anybody finish a sentence.

I am a salesman, Abby, and I'm a good one, but my boss used to take me aside and suggest that I listen instead of talk so much. I never took him seriously. I don't know why it didn't hit home until I heard you say it.

Thanks for the best idea I've had in years!

L. IN LOS ALAMITOS

DEAR L.: Making a resolution is one thing—keeping it, another. So far, I've kept it, but it's not easy. Write to me in June and let me know how you're doing. And lotsa luck!

DEAR ABBY: I think I have the perfect way to shut off the flow of gossip from an older woman without being disrespectful.

An acquaintance used to bring me gossip I didn't care to hear, so when she'd tell me something, I would ask, "Are you praying for her?" (Or him, or them, as the case might be.)

She admitted that she was not. Then I would tell her that they needed a lot of prayers, and she should be praying for them every day.

A few instances of that, and she didn't bring me any more gossip.

C. S. IN LAKELAND, FLA.

DEAR C.: Beautiful. Your suggestion may inspire people who haven't prayed in years to resume praying.

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of two adopted Oriental children, and we'd like to say a word on behalf of all adopted children of different ethnic backgrounds.

Strangers constantly stop us in public places and gush variations of the following: "Look at those dolls! Aren't they precious? Look at those eyes!" Then they ask, "Where did you get them? Are they Chinese, Korean, Vietnamese, Filipino or Japanese?" (They never guess correctly.)

Meanwhile, our children stand there wondering why their blood lines and ancestry are so all-fired important to these loud strangers who carry on as though the children are deaf. Such scenes have already made the little one painfully shy.

We adopted these children because we wanted to share our lives with them, not because of their doll-like cuteness.

Please tell people that if they want to gush, they should find a poodle to babble over. One man even picked up our little daughter and carried her off to "show his wife" in another part of the store. We were horrified when we discovered she was missing.

Next time I hope he picks up a Doberman to "show his wife."

Please print this, Abby. It may make those who behave this way realize that we parents don't appreciate such compliments, and it only makes our children feel like freaks.

OREGON MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Here's your letter. I hope it helps.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26¢) envelope.

Moore Novel Blends Variety Of Themes

DUBAI. By Robin Moore. Doubleday. 474 Pages, $10.

It had to happen. A novel combining the Arab-Israeli conflict, Middle East oil riches, gold smuggling and Vietnam corruption was probably inevitable, but it took Robin Moore, creator of "The Green Berets" and "The French Connection" to bring it off.

Moore's middle-aged hero, Fitz Lodd, is forced to resign his army intelligence job in the Tehran embassy because a newsman misquoted his remarks about Arab-israeli relations. An embarrassment to the government, Lodd becomes a private citizen-entrepreneur in Dubai, where he takes up gold smuggling, arms running and ownership of a hotel and bar.

In his attempt to become part of the establishment again, he also does some part-time work for the CIA, and gets involved with a rich dilettante who wants Arab interests to buy an American television network.

There are plots and subplots, love interests and desert adventures. Unusual characters are especially well drawn.

Moore has polished this kind of adventure. Each mini-story leads to something else; there are always new worlds to conquer. His fans will appreciate his fast-paced writing.

Young Interested In Antiques

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Young people may have parlayed their interest in handcrafted things into an appreciation of the oldest American antiques ... it is very difficult for dealers to find authentic old antiques ... geographical factors influence the popularity of antiques styles.

Those were some of the thoughts expressed by dealers at the recent Winter Antique Show in New York. A little gloom was displayed, but it wasn't because the dealers weren't selling. It was a big sell show. What bothered many dealers was the scarcity of antiques.

In her 43 years in the antiques business Lillian Blankley Cogan of Farmington, Conn., has never seen early things so scarce. But it isn't because of Bicentennial buying, she says.

"People have begun to understand that there are just so many old things available and they must get them while they can." Then, too, people are holding on to the old things they own.

"A pleasant surprise for me has been the great interest young people are now showing in the very old things. They want to know everything about them. They are knowledgeable, careful and discriminating in their selections. They are buying for pleasure, use and potential investment."

She never encourages people to buy for investment, she says, but "it is a safe thing to do if they want to do it. I certainly think there is no place for prices of old things to go but up."

An early sale in the show had been a Spanish foot tea table (1700s), she said. Among other choice things in her booth was a William and Mary ballfoot desk with its original brasses, pewter spoons with trifords — three point ends — and a rare New England Bible box (1680) with stamped decorations of sunflowers that "had been done with a little tool." The sturdy large box from the Pilgrim period had created a lot of interest, especially among young viewers.

Some things are unique for values that surpass even age and workmanship, she explained. Revolution buffs are especially interested in her silver tankard that was made by Samuel Minott of Boston for Ichabod Rollins, a planner of the Revolution. It seems Minott was reported to be a Tory, which provides great intrigue.

Other things that might otherwise rarely be seen outside museums always make this show for the benefit of the East Side House Settlement a unique event.

Lawrence King of Monroe County, Ill., was exhibiting a large handcrafted cupboard made by Norwegians in Wisconsin. It was decorated with a variety of motifs and was one of four made for daughters — three others like it are in museums — explained Raeburn Stanley, who operates King's other shop in Ohio. There was also a primitive-looking Norwegian chair that had been carved out of a log.

Some antiques style trends must be considered on a geographical basis; tastes vary, Yvonne Allen said. Whereas she specializes in 18th century at her Spring City, Pa., shop, she imagines that her new shop at Los Altos, Calif., "will require a more varied stock, maybe Chinese."

Although Constance Williams of Litchfield, Conn., thought the Bicentennial was probably "focusing people's minds on the early days" and perhaps prodding them into purchases that might have been postponed, "it isn't easy to find old pewter," she said. She and her husband Tom are well known for their pewter.

"It is easier for us than it is for most dealers. We are often able to buy big lots. Some people comb the coast and they cannot find anything."

Throughout this show were pieces to intrigue even little collectors — old plates, a basket here and there at a good price — Bicentennial or not. There were eagles and quilts and authentic muskets and Washington motifs as well as French, English and Chinese furniture, porcelains and whatever.

Some interesting and unusual fancy chairs of maple painted green in bamboo style with rush seats were shown by William Dennis and Walter Angel of Fredericksburg, Va. They were particularly proud of a beautiful, carved ivory, 19th-century bird on a natural root base.

Single- Pot Cooking Has Many Merits

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The catchall cookpot has been a favorite for ages, since the days when desert nomads simmered the results of the day's hunt over a brushwood fire while they swapped tall tales.

One-pot cookery not only saves time and effort, it also saves money as housewives are finding in these days of ever escalating food costs.

When I was a kid my mother called it stew and usually threw in leftovers of the week. But today the one-pot dish has acquired a lot of fancy names, from the French specialty called navarin, which usually means a delectable concoction of mutton, onions, turnips and potatoes, to the classic ratatouille that turns a batch of vegetables into a culinary symphony, and the bouillabaisse, the pungent fish stew of the Mediterranean.

The casserole is a popular method of one-pot cooking which involves baking food slowly in a heavy dish with a tight-fitting lid like the famed coq au vin or spicy creole of beef.

As most cooks know, the cheaper cuts of meat are preferable to the choicer ones when they stew them because they retain their flavor and texture better than the more tender cuts. Coq au vin, for instance, was traditionally made with a rooster in the old days and it usually took several hours of simmering in wine to make it edible. An even longer session over the stove was needed to cook beef ragout back when our forefathers had to make do with the stringy Texas longhorns that were butchered after they had been herded over miles of trailways.

Today meat is generally more tender and it is just as well, since most housewives have other interests in addition to cooking and want meals that do not require too much watching — meals that can be frozen and served again if there are leftovers.

Casseroles and the like are ideal if you are entertaining. They can be cooked ahead of time, put in the refrigerator and then reheated while you are serving cocktails.

Here is an example of one-pot cooking, known as creole beef casserole.

2 tablespoons corn oil
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ onion chopped
1 pound ground round of beef (or chuck)
1 can (1 pound 3 ounces) tomatoes
½ cup dark corn syrup
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf
2 tablespoons corn starch
3 cups cooked rice
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese

Heat oil in skillet over medium heat. Add onion and green pepper, saute, stirring occasionally, till tender. Add beef, browning lightly. Drain ¼ cup tomato liquid and reserve. Add tomatoes and remaining tomato liquid, corn syrup, salt, chili powder, pepper and bay leaf to beef mixture. Bring to boil, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Mix corn starch with reserved ¼ cup tomato liquid. Stir into mixture in skillet. Boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Arrange alternate layers of rice, meat mixture and shredded cheese in large baking dish. Bake in 350-degree oven for half hour. Serves 6. Good with a robust red Burgundy.

Opening lead — K ♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When your partner leads the king of a suit against a suit contract you are supposed to play high with a doubleton in order to ask your partner to continue the suit and let you ruff the third lead.

East knew this play very well. He didn't know that there was no reason to give this come-on signal when you really didn't want to ruff so he played his eight of hearts at trick one.

West continued with the ace and another heart and East ruffed happily. Then he looked around for new worlds to conquer but there weren't any. South got in, drew trumps and eventually discarded a diamond on dummy's queen of hearts.

Now look what would have happened if East had played his deuce of hearts. West would have shifted to another suit and probably to a diamond. East would get a trick with his king and this trick plus two hearts and a trump would have cooked South's goose.

It says the study also shows that persons between 35 and 44 have more legal problems than any other age group.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Every one of the nation's 46,883 elementary schools has been invited to participate in the Johnny Horizon (JH) Bicentennial tree-planting campaign. The event will be topped off next spring with the planting in each state capital of a tree symbolic of America's faith in the future. The trees will be oak seedlings raised from acorns collected at Mt. Vernon, George Washington's home. They will be presented to the 50 state governors by the state presidents of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Johnny Horizon has symbolized a do-it-yourself environmental program in which individuals, groups and industries could participate. JH was established by the federal Bureau of Land Management in 1968 and was initially identified with the need for coping with land pollution problems in the 450 million acres administered by the Bureau. It has involved cleanup campaigns, beautification, tree plantings, minipark development, bicycle trails and nature centers.

In the Bicentennial tree planting campaign, schools taking part have received from "My Weekly Reader" informational material, posters and other aids. Similar materials are being distributed to youth, civic and service organizations.

The program is a joint venture of Johnny Horizon, My Weekly Reader — an educational magazine — the National Recreation & Parks Association, American Association of Nurserymen, General Federation of Women's Clubs, Men's Garden Clubs of America, National Governors' Conference, 4-H and Homemakers Extension Service of the U.S. Agricultural Department and bureaus of the U.S. Interior Department.

Winners of a nationwide Plant-A-Tree poster and slogan contest among school children, their teachers and parents will be two-day guests in Washington, D.C., of the American Nurserymen in March. The winner will attend tree-planting ceremonies.

First Woman for AAS

For the first time in the 43-year history of the All-America Selections, a woman has been named a vegetable judge.

Miss Lois A. Stringer, stationed at Burpee's Fordhook Farms in Pennsylvania, will help test seeds of prospective new varieties of vegetables. She will evaluate vegetable entries in the All-America Trials.

For 18 years Miss Stringer has been working with vegetable breeders at Burpee, emphasizing work on new and improved cucumbers, melons, squash and tomatoes.

There are 25 vegetable trial gardens and 32 flower trial gardens for All-America in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

New Garden Book

In a year of blossoming interest in home landscape care, there is a new book titled "Home Pro Landscape and Lawn Care Guide," introduced by 3M Co. The book offers step-by-step instructions for landscaping lawns, ground covers, trees and shrubs and gardens. There is information about equipment, tools and supplies you will need.

Want to know how to plant, select and care for garden items? "Landscape and Lawn Care" is one of 10 titles in the "Home Pro" series of do-it-yourself manuals, available in many home and building centers.

Did you know: that rhubarb is part of the buckwheat family? That artichokes and dandelions are closely related? That asparagus is more closely related to the lily than to any other vegetable?

Functional and Pretty

HOME DESIGN LIBRARY
by Larry Farnsworth

This pleasant looking house is planned to make everyday living function with smooth efficiency.

Note, for example, how traffic is neatly guided by the main entry and also by the cleverly placed utility room-laundry which serves as a back entrance from the long patio and a passageway to both kitchen and bedroom hall.

Note too how the sunken living room with its cozy fireplace is charmingly separate from the higher, railed entry.

The large dining room, a counter width away from the U-shaped kitchen, also has access to that patio which fits so neatly into the angle of the house.

And note how this angle facilitates master bedroom use of the patio too. This room, as well as the other two bedrooms has excellent closets and there is also a big general closet in the hall. Note too the two baths, back to back for plumbing economy.

This is a pretty house with lots of livability.

You may purchase complete working drawings, material lists and plan books from Larry Farnsworth, P.O. Box 1841, Las Vegas, Nevada 89101.

Pork Is Noted For The Great Versatility

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Pork is considered by many to be the world's most versatile meat. And it is true that you could feature this delicious meat at every meal for days without repeating a single dish.

In pork, you have the makings of rosy-hued hams, crisp bacon, succulent fresh pork roasts, tender chops and a wide range of other dishes.

Pork adds substance and flavor to scores of sausage types from bland to spicy. Fresh pork is the basic ingredient of country sausage meat and links, as well as fresh thuringer-style sausage. In many varieties of bologna and frankfurters, pork is combined with beef for endless taste combinations. The same holds true for salami, metwurst, knockwurst, cervelat, Polish sausage, bratwurst and countless other blends of meat and spices.

Pork is the most widely used meat in China, where the pig was first cultivated for the dinner table around 2000 B.C. And in ancient Rome the suckling pig became so popular that pigs grew scarce and laws had to be passed forbidding the slaughter of virgin swine.

Before the discovery of modern refrigeration methods, pork was a favorite in agricultural societies because it was the only meat that tasted when cured as good as or better than fresh.

In early America, pork consumption used to rival that of beef, especially in farm country. Today beef outsells pork, but Americans still consume nearly 70 pounds of pork per capita a year. Which is close to the 84 pounds averaged by the Austrians, pork eating champions of the Western world.

No matter how fresh pork is prepared, it is vital to remember one thing. It must be cooked until well done and slow cooking is recommended. Like lamb and veal, pork should be young meat, so it is naturally tender.

The Germans, who consume almost as much pork as their Austrian neighbors, have many tempting recipes, including this one for chops simmered in white wine, apples and sauerkraut:

8 pork chops, ¾-inch thick (center cut)
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
4 cups sauerkraut
1 teaspoon caraway seed
3 tablespoons honey
¼ cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped apples
4 ounces Rhine wine

Brown pork chops in vegetable oil and season with salt and pepper. Mix kraut with all other ingredients and place in pan with cover. Lay chops on top, cover and cook over low heat at least 1 hour. Baste with juices to keep chops moist. Serves 4. Good with chilled Rhine wine.

GS Cookie Sale Successful

Lou Voss, Girl Scout Service Unit Chairman, has announced that the cookie sale which has just ended has been the most successful one ever. A total of 7,884 boxes of cookies were sold this year. One Scout earned a one-half campership; Seven Scouts earned one-quarter camperships; and ten Brownies and their fathers will enjoy the overnight outing at Camp Boothe Oaks in June. Each girl selling forty-two boxes of cookies earned a patch. There were 108 girls who earned patches.

"Snyder Girl Scouts would like to express their appreciation to the community, KSNY and Snyder Daily News for Helping them have another successful cookie sale," Mrs. Voss stated. "We would also like to express our thanks to Mrs. Morris Light and Mrs. Barney Tate for doing such an outstanding job as Snyder Cookie Chairman this year."

Book Tells How To Feed Birds

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The birds are working night and day to clear the air for you. All they want in exchange is a little food and shelter when the going gets tough, says Irene Cosgrove, a Connecticut housewife and bird-watcher.

"Even when you are sleeping, night hawks, fly catchers and other birds are flying about keeping the air bug-free. Then, too, birds help control the weeds by eating weed seed," Mrs. Cosgrove says.

She not only feeds the birds — 150 pounds of feed a month — but she has also devised some yummy casseroles for the feathered boarders.

Cardinal Casserole, Finch Fries, Chickadee Crunch and Dove Delight are among the recipes in a little 16-page book "My Recipes Are For The Birds" she has published with the help of her husband, Ed, and his illustrations and business acumen.

"Eight years ago when we moved to Ridgefield from an apartment in New York, I became enchanted with the birds and I began studying them," she says. "People told me to tape suet to trees and so on, but I thought there must be other ways. I began to research what different birds like to eat and I kept a record of how they enjoyed those taste treats. I now have hundreds of birds nesting in our trees."

She decided to share her findings with people publishing the book.

For a Cardinal Casserole combine 2 cups of bread crumbs with one-quarter cup of bird seed mixture and 1 cup of cut-up green grapes. Set aside. Put raw beef suet through a meat grinder, then into a double boiler to melt. Remove it from heat and allow it to cool and harden slightly. Reheat it and while it is in liquid form, pour one and a half cups of it over the dry ingredients. Add one-half teaspoon of sand. Mix well with a fork. Turn into a foil, loaf-size pan 5 inches by 3 inches by 1 inch. Refrigerate until firm. Place on feeder tray.

The Dove's Delight includes any amount of crushed dog biscuits, kitchen scraps, cracked corn, peanut hearts, sunflower seeds and thistle seeds mixed together and poured into a plastic container that is two to three inches deep and lined with sand and gravel.

"Sand and gravel should be replaced often, especially after rain or snow. Birds need it every day, especially when they can't get a lot of grit from the ground. They don't have teeth like ours," she explains.

After she had figured out what birds like to eat — Junco Jubilee includes grape jelly, Nuthatch Nibble has a cup of popcorn, Waxwing Wedge includes apple cubes and raisins — it took her about three months to figure out the exact amounts that should go into each formula.

All birds like crushed dog biscuits which she crushes in the blender. She uses an assortment of containers that includes coconut shell halves and upturned plastic garbage can covers.

"Suet should not be put in one of those uncoated wire grids. When it becomes icy birds can lose an eye, leg or tongue which might stick to the grid when they try to get food. The suet can be put in nets or it can be put in a cake pan, hardened and cut to fit the feeder," she says.

Mrs. Cosgrove tapers off feeding in the spring when she sees insects around and cautions that people shouldn't spray insects — they are natural food for birds. Some birds may be poisoned by eating insects that have been sprayed.

She strings cheese cubes, popcorn, raisins, peanuts in shells, and dried fruits across evergreen trees so that the birds can have nibbles when they want them. They should be fed twice a day, she says, and if you have nothing else put out kitchen scraps such as stale bread or leftover cookies. If you put out peanut butter be sure to mix it with suet since birds can choke on the sticky peanut butter.

Suet is important "because a bird generates between 100 and 120 degrees and must constantly produce energy to make heat. Suet should be put through a grinder before you melt it, and it should be reheated to make a hard cake," she explained.

The Cosgroves put the little book together more or less for local book store sales. Now they are getting the result of word-of-mouth advertising, calls from school teachers, nature projects and others who want to order books.

BUTTERMILK BREAD

Repeated by request.

4½ to 5½ cups flour
2 packages active dry yeast
1 cup buttermilk
¾ cup water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons sugar
2½ teaspoons salt

In the large bowl of an electric mixer stir together 1¾ cups of the flour and the undissolved yeast. In a saucepan stir together the buttermilk, water, butter, sugar and salt until warm — 115 to 120 degrees; pour into flour mixture. Beat at low speed ½ minute, scraping bowl constantly. Beat 3 more minutes at high speed. Gradually stir in enough more flour to make a workable dough. Knead until smooth — 5 to 10 minutes. Shape into 2 loaves and place in two greased loaf pans — each about 8 by 4 by 3 inches. Let rise in a warm draftfree place until doubled — about 45 minutes. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven about 30 minutes. Turn out on wire racks and cool.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

A model and actress, Susan Blakely appeared in "The Towering Inferno" and is the star of the ABC-TV 12-hour special, "Rich Man, Poor Man." Susan and writer-husband Todd Merer have been married for six years and live in Beverly Hills, California.

MAURICE: Your dad was in the Army. I understand you owe your modeling career to the U.S. government.

BLAKELY: I'll tell you a funny story. A soldier at the base, who happened to be a photographer, developed a crush on me and went around snapping pictures every time he saw me. I was 17 at the time and was very flattered. One day he mailed the best photos to a German magazine. The editors sent me a modeling contract plus a ticket to Berlin.

MAURICE: Did you have second thoughts about going to Berlin?

BLAKELY: No. That's one thing about growing up, being an Army brat. You have your own independence. I never hesitated. I took the first plane and was working almost from the moment I landed. However, my parents were extremely unhappy. They threatened to come and pick me up if I didn't return home. So I went back to the base. But several months later I set out for New York and the "big" time.

MAURICE: Do you think one must be an extravert to be a model or an actress?

BLAKELY: Yes. However, I never had the nerve to audition for a school play. Nobody knew me and I couldn't overcome my shyness. On those rare occasions I would mention to my parents that I wanted to act in a school play. They'd laugh at me and say, 'Hey, listen to her! Another Sarah Bernhardt!' So I kept my feelings to myself.

MAURICE: Yes, but working in front of a camera as a model must have given you a certain sense of security?

BLAKELY: The security came when I found myself tremendously rich. I didn't have to depend on anyone and could come and go as I pleased. It was a wonderful feeling to be young and wealthy and I loved it for the six years I worked as a model.

MAURICE: Was it tough becoming an actress?

BLAKELY: I think the toughest part was saying to people that I was an actress. You see, I have a psychological block about using that word. I've always felt very uneasy using the term. It was a big step to even come out and tell people what I did.

MAURICE: How do you feel about the word star?

BLAKELY: That word frightens me to death. To a lot of performers I've met, becoming a star means everything. That's their entire life. To make it all the way. And they are ruthless towards others in their drive towards that goal. I have never seen such competitive feelings. Personally, I don't like it. I don't want to have anything to do with that kind of back-biting viciousness. I am happy that the overwhelming desire to be a star hasn't hit me, and I hope it never will. Sure, I'd like to be famous, but it wouldn't kill me if I failed. In fact, if I never acted again, it wouldn't be the end of the world for me. I still have my husband. And that's all that really matters.

MAURICE: What do you think it takes to make a happy marriage?

BLAKELY: I believe it's the woman who must set the tone of the marriage. No relationship can enjoy any satisfactory permanence if it's one-sided. All you're doing is avoiding confrontation, which is part of life. It's just not realistic. What makes life interesting and enjoyable is effort, effort by both parties. I feel it's dishonesty that ruins most marriages. If we were more "up front" with our partners, we'd all be a lot happier."

Song May Have Honored Club

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) — The "Maple Leaf Rag," one of Scott Joplin's best known ragtime compositions, may have been written in honor of a private, genteel gentlemen's club rather than a bawdy house.

The "Maple Leaf Rag," written in 1899, was popularly believed to have been written in honor of a boisterous brothel and barroom here.

But this week the Pettis County recorder uncovered an old yellowed copy of the incorporation papers for the Maple Leaf Club.

The paper, dated Dec. 23, 1898, said the club was formed "for the purposes of advancing by social intercourse the bodily and mental health of such persons as might be or hereafter become its members." That enlightenment, the papers said, would be achieved by discussion and maintaining "a library and other species of amusement" for members.

Press Gets Grant

NEW YORK (AP) — Columbia University Press says it has received a $90,000 grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation "to help subsidize the publication of works ... in the humanities and humanistic social sciences."

The grant is to be used over a three to five year period.

Man Held In Boy's Abduction

HOUSTON (AP) — The 8-year-old son of well-to-do salesman was kidnaped Friday and held for a $1 million ransom until he escaped from the locked car trunk where he was held eight hours, police said.

Authorities said a man was arrested in the abduction.

Colin Kerr, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Kerr, was kidnaped about noon while fishing with some boys near his home in nearby Friendswood, an upper middle class community. The father is a salesman for a nuts and bolts manufacturer.

Friendswood police said the abductor had demanded $1 million in cash for the safe return of the boy.

Police said young Kerr escaped from the trunk of a car while the automobile was parked at a drive-in grocery store. They said a man was arrested in some bushes at a park on the city's southwest side.

Deputy Police Chief R.J. Clark said Houston Criminal Intelligence officers had arranged to drop money at the park before the man was arrested. No money was ever dropped, however, police said.

Robert R. Franck, special agent in charge of the Houston Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said the boy escaped by slipping from his bonds and jiggling the trunk latch free.

The elder Kerr told newsmen "the only thing I can say is that the boy is safe and I am very happy. These people have done a fine job."

Police said the boy was picked up about noon by a man driving a small white car who parked near where Kerr and three or four other boys were fishing.

Friendswood police officer Russell Williams said the man talked with the boys a few minutes and then convinced Kerr to get in the car.

About five minutes later, Williams said, Mrs. Kerr received the first call. She said the caller was a man who demanded $1 million in denominations smaller than $50 with no visible numbers.

Mrs. Kerr said the man later called again and told her "If you don't do as I say, you will never see your son alive."

Mrs. Kerr notified police. Later the man called again and Mrs. Kerr was able to talk to her son. She said he told her he was scared.

Police said the man in custody already had been arrested when the boy managed to escape. The boy got a passerby to help him call his mother.

Kissinger To Palm Springs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is flying to California to spend the weekend at Palm Springs with his wife, Nancy.

Robert L. Funseth, a State Department spokesman, described the stay as personal. Mrs. Kissinger is convalescing from surgery for gastric ulcers.

Funseth said that while in Palm Springs Kissinger would not meet with former President Richard M. Nixon for a report on the Nixons' trip to China.

Anne Hospitalized

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne entered a London hospital Friday for what a Buckingham Palace spokesman described as a "routine check-up."

The spokesman said the check-up was planned three or four weeks ago and the princess will leave the hospital within 48 hours.

The spokesman denied rumors that the princess, 25, might be pregnant. The palace has denied such rumors several times in the past year.

Anne's husband, Army Capt. Mark Phillips, was at their home at Sandhurst military academy.

Man Claims Proof He's Lindbergh

By MICHAEL SHORT
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — A factory worker from Maine says he is the son of Charles A. Lindbergh kidnaped 44 years ago and can prove it in court.

If his story is true, it means Bruno Hauptmann, electrocuted in 1936 after one of the most celebrated trials of the century, was executed for a murder that may not have been committed.

Lawyers for Kenneth W. Kerwin filed a petition in Circuit Court this week on Maui Island, where Lindbergh died in 1974 and where his estate is in probate. The brief petition asks that Kerwin be declared one of the aviator's heirs.

Kerwin "has had a pathetic life and has had only a third-grade education" said his attorney, Robert W. Bryan of Birmingham, Ala. "But he never mentioned money to me, only getting this straightened out."

Court records list the value of the Lindbergh estate at less than $300,000 and name survivors including five children and the widow, author Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

Lindbergh family members and spokesmen were not available for comment on the suit.

Kerwin's lawyers refused to disclose his whereabouts, saying only that he lived in the Northeast United States. News reporters in Maine said Kerwin worked for a sportswear company in Springvale, Maine, but that he is currently vacationing at an unknown location.

The Portland, Maine, Press Herald said Kerwin has lived in the Biddeford-Sanford area, which includes Springvale, for several years.

The newspaper quoted one area resident, Bernard Gaines Sr., as saying that Kerwin used to come into a local bar and talk about being the Lindbergh child.

"I have no doubt he's Charles Lindbergh's son," said Gaines. "He's so sincere. ... All he wants out of life is his true identity."

Kerwin once worked at a textile mill in Biddeford and was employed last summer as a clown at a local amusement park, the newspaper said.

Kerwin's lawyers disclosed few details about their case, but they said it is based on more than 500 pages of documentary evidence.

Bryan's associate, Theodore G. Meeker, said the badly decomposed and incomplete body found after the 1932 kidnaping was never identified by fingerprints or other certain evidence as Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. In addition, he said, there is medical evidence helping to demonstrate a relationship between Kerwin and Lindbergh.

Bryan said that after being kidnaped the Lindbergh baby was reared in New England as the son of a couple named Kerwin. In 1948, Bryan said, the Kerwins told the boy who he really was. Neither Meeker nor Bryan would say what had become of the Kerwin couple.

Mail Service Cuts Would Be Resented

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cutback in mail delivery to three days a week would be deeply resented by the American people, some members of Congress say.

Senior Assistant Postmaster Gen. J. T. Ellington said in an interview that three-day delivery was "one of the options" being considered by the agency in its campaign to cut costs. He said elimination of one delivery day per week was "our most immediate option."

But Chairman Charles Wilson of the House postal facilities subcommittee said of the three-day-per-week delivery idea: "It's ridiculous even to consider anything like that. It's stupid."

Wilson, D-Calif., said Friday, "This is going to stir up the American people considerably."

Another member of the subcommittee, Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said, "This is another step in the wrong direction. The Postal Service is making the same mistake that the railroads did. If they cut back service, they are just going to increase their deficits."

Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., chairman of the Senate Post Office Committee, said, "I don't expect three-day service unless others outside the Postal Service fail to live up to their responsibilities. I'm speaking about Congress and the President."

McGee is the sponsor of a bill to double the Postal Service's congressional subsidy for the next three years. President Ford opposes the bill and a similar proposal was defeated by the House last fall.

McGee said the Postal Service does not believe three-day delivery "would be good postal policy. But they do have to stay solvent. They have to have some alternative ready so that they can pay their bills."

Leaders of the two largest postal unions said they would fight any decision to reduce deliveries to three days a week.

Francis Filbey, president of the 350,000-member American Postal Workers Union, said his union "would fight any effort to impose such a drastic cut in service."

James Rademacher, president of the 200,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers, said postal managers "are going to have the fight of their lives" if they try to reduce delivery days.

Reagan, Ford In Florida

MIAMI (AP) — President Ford and Ronald Reagan campaigned in Florida today, scene of their second major presidential primary test. Ford, in a speech at a naturalization ceremony for mostly Cuban refugees, called Fidel Castro an "international outlaw" for sending troops to Angola.

The President said the United States will take "appropriate measures" if Cuba or any other nation embarks on an armed adventure in the Western Hemisphere.

Ford made the statements during a ceremony in which 1,161 persons became American citizens. The new citizens and about 1,300 other persons in the audience jumped to their feet and repeatedly cheered Ford as he attacked Castro.

Tens of thousands of Cubans who fled from Castro's Cuba live in the Miami area and most bear deep resentment toward their one-time leader.

First Lady Betty Ford, who has been campaigning throughout Florida for her husband, joined the President at the ceremony.

The speech began a busy weekend of campaigning for the President in his bid to defeat Reagan in the March 9 Republican primary. Ford finished with 51 per cent of the vote in New Hampshire's primary election Tuesday to 49 per cent for Reagan.

Reagan was scheduled to make appearances in Polk County and Jacksonville today. The former California governor campaigned in Tampa and Sun City, Fla., Friday.

Ford's campaign manager, Howard (Bo) Callaway, told reporters aboard the presidential jet enroute to Florida that the President will win both the Florida primary and the Illinois GOP primary on March 16.

Both men are on the ballot in Massachusetts for that state's presidential primary next Tuesday, but neither has campaigned there personally.

The Bay State primary is the first one in which all the major Democratic presidential candidates are on the ballot.

In a speech in Boston Friday, Jimmy Carter defended himself against attacks from rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination, chiding his critics and declaring he won't reply to them in kind.

Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana has been among the most vocal of Carter's critics, accusing the former Georgia governor of taking and acting like a Republican on jobs, the union shop and other issues.

Libraries Are Being Ripped Off

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Oregon's museums and libraries are being ripped off.

James Burghardt, head librarian of the Multnomah County Library, estimates $50,000 worth of books and magazines disappear annually.

The Oregon Museum of Science and Industry spends nearly $14,000 a year on security and insurance, but still loses a steady stream of exhibits.

Bennett Builds Own Railroad

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Jack Bennett built his own railroad in his front yard.

After almost six months work, Bennett recently drove a golden spike that joined the ends of his Missouri Flat & Applegate Valley Railroad. It covers 10 acres of his 95 acre farm. He has two engines six passenger cars, and nearly a mile of track. He purchased his "rolling" stock from two amusement parks that were going out of business.

Only One Mishap Reported Friday

The Snyder Police Department reported only one traffic accident Friday.

Involved in the accident at 900 Twenty-first Street were two vehicles. Driver of a 1966 Ford was Olga Gonzales Chamberlain of 1101 East Pecan. Driver of the other vehicle, a 1974 AMC, was Elecia Garcia Albarez of 101 Browning Street.

THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS
SECTION B., FEB. 29, 1976

Adult Education Classes Are Semi-Weekly Specials

Adult Education classes are Tuesday and Thursday night specials in the Learning Resource Center at Western Texas College.

These classes are designed to offer instruction in the fundamentals of English, math, science, social studies and reading for adults who did not complete their high school education. The adults who enroll come from varied age groups and educational backgrounds.

Among the students presently attending Adult Education classes are Bobby Nolan, an employe of the public school system, and Steve Hernandez, a truck driver for the City of Snyder. Nolan expects to qualify for a General Educational Development (GED) certificate soon, and Hernandez plans to continue in the program at least until he receives his certificate. Many employers, colleges and universities accept the GED certificate in lieu of a high school diploma. Persons applying for the certificate must pass tests covering material taken from the subjects mentioned above.

Hernandez is presently working on math, English and natural science. He feels the informal manner in which the classes are conducted makes them a pleasant atmosphere for individual study and better suited to adult needs than a lecture-type class would be. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Alderete often bring their daughters to the Learning Resource Center with them. Michele is nine and Alma Marie is five, and they are busy with pencils and papers and books while their parents concentrate on their studies.

Alderete, a Sun Oil employe, has passed two of the five tests required for the GED and is concentrating on math now. Mrs. Alderete has passed three of the five tests and is working on math and science. Both Mr. and Mrs. Alderete enrolled for the first time last fall.

Terry Romp, an employe of Ezell-Key Grain Co., gets the feeling of "being back in school" as a student in Adult Education. He enrolled last fall when classes resumed after the summer vacation and is studying four subjects. Like Hernandez, he appreciates the personalized approach of the program and encourages other interested adults to investigate it. Students may enroll at any time since each person works at his own speed and may begin at any level.

Mrs. Mabel Johnson began attending classes in January. She has already passed two GED tests and is now working on social studies and English in preparation for those tests. Preparing for the tests is easier when the prospective applicant follows a regular study program, Mrs. Johnson feels, and having classes to attend encourages her to continue her study.

Mrs. Rosa B. Walker, a former Adult Education student, received her GED certificate in January and is now enrolled in college credit courses in typing and reading.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baldwin have also received GED certificates, but they are continuing in the Adult Education program for personal enrichment. Baldwin, an automobile dealer, has increased his reading speed by 100 words per minute and finds his reading comprehension has also improved.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin are working on algebra now, and she has enrolled in a college credit business machines course as well. She assists her husband in the operation of his business.

Adult Education students pay no fees for the courses and all books and study materials are furnished, Gerald Corkran, program director, said. There is a fee of $3 for each GED test taken.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jenkins and Corkran serve as instructors for the program. Mrs. Kay Holland, secretary for the counselors's office, previously worked as an instructor and is still available when additional help is needed. Mrs. Janet Wesson, high school counselor, administers the GED tests. She also counsels with persons interested in obtaining a GED certificate and refers them to the Adult Education classes if they feel they are in need of additional preparation before taking the tests.

Persons wishing information about the classes are invited to call Mrs. Holland or Corkran or to visit the classes.

Isolation Of Inmates Ended

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County jail officials have ended isolation of 12 inmates discovered earlier this week to have been carriers of meningitis.

Dr. Marjorie Sewell, assistant county health officer, said Friday, "We feel the danger has passed."

More than 60 jail inmates and employes were tested for the sometimes-fatal disease last week after a 24-year-old inmate was hospitalized and diagnosed as suffering from meningococcal meningitis, which affects the covering of the brain and spinal cord. He is reported recovering.

Gets Two Grants

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Crafts Council says it has received grants from the Robert Sterling Clark Foundation and from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Donald L. Wyckoff, council president, says "the funds will be used to develop a prototype of a portable modular unit for exhibitions."

Boy Hero Sent Out Of Town

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the days of the Hardy Boys, heroism brought esteem. For 10-year-old Leon President, it has meant death threats and beatings.

Leon got a Los Angeles Police Commission citation and a pair of real handcuffs for helping capture a juvenile bandit suspect last fall with a pair of toy cuffs.

But his mother, Kathy President, said Friday she is sending her son to live with his father in another city for his own protection.

"It's mostly the teen-age gangs," she said. "It's not too good. The best thing is to send him somewhere until things cool off."

Mrs. President said Leon has been beaten and threatened with death by the gangs in Hollywood. He is now escorted to and from school by her 19-year-old stepson, she said.

"He's not afraid of them," she said. "He just wishes they'd leave him alone. A lot of pressure's been on him and it will be good for him to get away."

It began last September when Leon became suspicious of the sudden affluence of four neighborhood friends. He knew that several elderly residents of a Hollywood apartment house had been recently burglarized.

When he asked his friends about it, they offered him $11 to keep quiet.

He took the money to the Hollywood police station and acompanied officers to an address where two boys, 10 and 11, were arrested, and to another address where a 12-year-old girl was arrested.

A 12-year-old boy tried to escape officers, but Leon yanked him off a bicycle allegedly bought with stolen loot and manacled him with his toy handcuffs.

Leon is only 4-feet-6 and weighs 90 pounds. The boy he captured was 8 inches taller and 35 pounds heavier. It was nothing, Leon said later.

Frozen Snake Bites Man

PORT ARANSAS, Tex. (AP)—Robert Herndon swears this is not a tall Texas tale and he has the scars to prove it—he was bitten by a frozen rattlesnake.

Herndon, speaking from his hospital bed Friday, explained he is a taxidermist who works mostly with rattlesnakes in this South Texas coastal town.

He bought 25 of the reptiles Tuesday, as alive as they come, and then did what he always does—threw them in a large freezer where the temperature is kept at an even 15 degrees and left them overnight.

"That usually kills them," he said. He kept the animals there for at least 16 hours before pulling a six-footer and going to work on it.

"I stretched it out on the table and started to work on it, cutting from the tail up. When I got to the mid section I stopped for a cup of coffee.

"Then I went back and put my left hand on its belly and started cutting again. That's when it reached back and bit me on the hand. It gave me a complete injection. I had to pull it away with my other hand and dump it back in the freezer."

Herndon said he got a specially prepared cold pack over the wound and rushed to a doctor who operated on him to remove the poison.

"Rattlers can adapt to cold better than you and me," he said. "I guess this one was frozen only in its mid section. The others were very dead. No, sir, this is no tall tale; it's the real McCoy."

Herndon says he will have the last laugh. He plans to mount the snake and "keep it for myself with its mouth open to remind of this foolish accident."

1975 Safest Travel Year

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council says that — on a mile-for-mile basis — 1975 was the safest year for motor vehicle travel in American history.

The council says preliminary traffic safety statistics for the year show "the mileage death rate, dropped to 3.5 fatalities per 100 million vehicle miles traveled — the lowest mileage death rate the council has recorded, in the 52 years it has kept motor vehicle statistics."

In 1974 the mileage death rate was 3.6 fatalities per 100 million vehicle miles.

Tigers Baseballers In Action Monday

The Snyder Tigers open their 1976 baseball season Monday afternoon here in Snyder against the Seminole Indians, coach Speedy Moffett announced. Game time is 4 p.m. at Moffett Field in Towle Memorial Park.

The junior varsity is scheduled to play the Big Spring Steers in Big Spring on Tuesday. Game time for the junior varsity is 4:30 p.m.

In two pre-season scrimmages against the Big Spring Steers, Snyder lost 2-1 and 9-3.

The varsity has only four lettermen from last year's team. They are Gary Greenlee, Ricky Beard, Kelly Ragland, and Randy Gressett. The remainder of the varsity players are rookies, untried in varsity competition.

"I think we're going to have a good ball club," said Coach Moffett, a veteran of 27 years of coaching in Snyder.

The only weak area of the Tigers may be the outfield, Moffett said. The strength of the Tiger team lies in its pitching. The pitching, Moffett believes, will be strong enough to offset any other single weakness.

The starting lineups are tentatively set as follows:

VARSITY

Pitchers: Gary Greenlee; Kelly Ragland, Danny Chaidez; Mitch Mackey.

Catchers: Tracy Witherspoon; Lee Allen Jarrell; John Hopkins.

First base: Tony Lewis; Dennis Buchanan.

Second base: Dray Sikes; Buddy Doe; Kelly Ragland.

Third base: Salvadore Canales.

Shortstop: Kelly Ragland.

Rightfield: Kyle Sikes.

Centerfield: Randy Gressett.

Leftfield: Mitch Mackey.

Designated hitters: John Hopkins; Danny Chaidez.

JUNIOR VARSITY

Pitchers: Danny Chaidez; Buddy Doe; Mitch Mackey.

Catchers: David Zajchek; Randy Tate.

First Base: Scott Crenwelge.

Second base: Charles Wharton; Randy Tate.

Third base: Sid Everton; Randy Tate.

Shortstop: Buddy Doe.

Rightfield: Joe Longbotham.

Centerfield: Jamie Ortegon.

Leftfield: Mike LaPointe; Randy Tate.

Designated hitter: David Zajchek.

Rockets Win On Murphy's Surge

By The Associated Press

Calvin Murphy had 14 points against Buffalo in the first half, but Johnny Egan wasn't satisfied with his game. Neither was Murphy, as a matter of fact.

"When he's open I want him to shoot," said the Houston Rockets' coach, "but Calvin has a tendency to go one-on-one when he plays a player like Randy Smith and it's quickness against quickness. We discussed that at halftime. In the first half, he got away from his game."

He was more like the old Calvin Murphy in the second half, though. Not only did he score 19 points, but he also got six assists and penetrated better.

The result was a 113-107 National Basketball Association victory over the Braves Friday night.

"I wanted to get the folks involved in the second half instead of working on one individual," said Murphy, who had just two assists before intermission.

In the other NBA games, the Detroit Pistons beat the New York Knicks 97-93; the Golden State Warriors topped the Philadelphia 76ers 121-114; the Boston Celtics defeated the Seattle SuperSonics 122-118 and the Los Angeles Lakers stopped the Kansas City Kings 97-90.

Behind Murphy, the Rockets played almost flawlessly on offense in the second half—making 28 of 35 field goal attempts and committing only two turnovers, the first with 1:33 left.

Pistons 97, Knicks 93

Bob Lanier scored 33 points, five in the final 68 seconds, to lead Detroit over New York.

Warriors 121, 76ers 114

Jamaal Wilkes scored 31 points to lead Golden State.

Celtics 122, SuperSonics 118

Jo Jo White scored 34 points and John Havlicek hit for 28 as Boston rallied down the stretch to beat Seattle and snap the SuperSonics' eight-game winning streak.

Lakers 97, Kings 90

Los Angeles outscored Kansas City 12-2 early in the fourth period and beat the Kings behind Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 27 points.

Challenges Criticized

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The big-money challenges of tennis featuring Jimmy Connors here have been criticized by some as bad for the game. Some have claimed the matches take away from the World Cup Tennis tournament circuit.

But for those who play in them, particularly Connors, say they're just fine.

"I think they're great for tennis," said Connors, 23, prior to his $250,000 challenge of Manuel Orantes today. "I think they really increase interest in tennis by the public."

And Connors said he believed the billing of the match as the "Heavyweight Championship of Tennis" was valid.

"It's a lot like boxing, you know," he said. "We're both there in what looks like a ring, and it's just the two of us for all U.S. Open last year but lost to Connors nine times previously.

The challenges, televised by CBS-TV, are not finished either. The winner has a contract to defend his title against an opponent to be chosen later.

Billingsley To Austria

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana University diving coach Hobart S. Billingsley says he may feel "a little funny" in an Austrian uniform, but he has agreed to coach that country's team in the Summer Olympics.

"Nationality doesn't mean anything in diving because it is an art," said Billingsley, who has coached at IU since 1959. "I'll coach anyone who has talent and desire."

He said he was asked to coach the U.S. team, as he did at Mexico City in 1968 and at Munich in 1972, but declined, since the training schedule doesn't coincide with his duties at IU.

Dave Bing Makes A Long Trip Back

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Bing has come back—a long way back.

Four years ago he was lying on a hospital bed, engulfed in darkness, following surgery to repair a detached retina in his right eye. A former National Basketball Association scoring champion, his career appeared at an end and his ability to see was in question.

"That was the scariest time of my life," Bing recalled. "Three days after the operation they took off the patches and opened up the eyes. It really was an exhilarating feeling when I knew I would be able to see again."

He could see, but could he play basketball? Could he see well enough to judge distance as precisely as is required to shoot well? What about his peripheral vision—could he still engineer the Detroit Pistons' fast break, spotting wing men and anticipating the split-second openings for his passes?

"The doctors in Detroit were skeptical about my playing basketball. They were afraid it might happen again, and warned me that I might lose my sight in that eye altogether.

"But I was in my fifth year of pro ball. I didn't want to quit while I was just approaching the top of my game. It was a risk, but so far it's turned out okay."

Bing was injured when he was scratched in the eye by Happy Hairston of the Lakers in an exhibition game before the 1971-72 season. But he worked his way back into shape and played the second half of that season, averaging 22.6 points per game. While that figure was the lowest of his six pro seasons, it proved he could still play in the NBA, and play well.

He spent three more years in Detroit, helping the club to its best record ever in 1973-74, then going through a dissension-riddled campaign in 1974-75. That year began with a contract squabble. Bing, and the Pistons, never really got going.

In the off-season, Bing was traded along with a No. 1 draft choice for flashy Kevin Porter, one of the NBA's best penetrating guards. Bing's immediate reaction to the trade was predictable—after nine years it was not easy to leave Detroit, but in the Washington Bullets he would be joining a winning team, one which reached the NBA playoff finals last year.

In a way, Bing was making another comeback.

"It was a change for me to go to another organization," said the 6-foot-3 Bing, who has had to wear a contact lens on the court and glasses off-court since the eye injury. "The only thing I could add to the Bullets was a championship, since they'd already gone to the finals."

There was pressure because he had to replace Porter, Washington's playmaker and the key man on its fast break. That represented a big change from Bing's early days in Detroit, when he was known primarily as a scorer.

That Bing, now 32 has adjusted to his new surroundings is evidenced by his statistics, 15.7 points and 5.3 assists per game; by the fact that after a slow start, the Bullets are now winning again, and by his having been voted to a starting berth in the NBA All-Star game.

Weatherford, WTC In Regional Finals

Although the air had the smell of possible upsets, it was not to be as favorites Western Texas College and Weatherford downed Clarendon and South Plains, 78-64 and 57-50, respectively, Friday night to put the Dusters and Coyettes in Saturday night's final match for the second year in a row at the Region V Junior College Women's basketball tournament.

In the Weatherford-SPC tilt, it was questionable who would win until the final 20 seconds, Weatherford hit the nets first, but SPC came right back. The Coyettes' biggest edge of the night came at 14:48 when they led, 7-3. The Texanettes tied it at seven as the clock had 11:45. Weatherford pumped three quick points and SPC then added four and led 11-10 at 8:49. Weatherford regained the lead, only to lose it again.

As the clock ticked down to 7:10, both squads were in foul trouble. SPC's big gun, Capri Kimbrow, and Weatherford's Gloria Benavidez were tagged with three fouls each.

South Plains took a 16-14 lead at 6:40 and stretched it to 18-14 as Benavidez was hit for her fourth foul as the clock struck 5:52.

Continually enlarging the lead, SPC started its biggest scoring drive at 4:27, putting in seven points in less than a minute, while holding Weatherford to none. The drive gave the Texanettes a 27-18 edge, their biggest of the evening.

Weatherford nibbled away at the score and as the intermission buzzer sounded, it had cut the lead to four points at 31-27.

The second half saw SPC struggle to hold a fired-up Coyette squad. Less than six minutes into the period, Weatherford regained the lead at 38-37. Seizing opportunity, they soon led 43-37. SPC seemed doomed, but they were determined to make a fight of it. At 7:39 the score was knotted at 45-45 as the Texanettes bench rose up with renewed hope to cheer their team-mates.

The Coyettes took the lead on a jump shot from 6-3 Sarah Williams and from there on it was all Weatherford. The Coyettes stretched their lead to seven at 53-46, but could get it no further. The SPC defense tightened, but its offense was stalled.

Williams was the high scorer with 26 points and Miles Primrose also hit in double figures with 16. Leading SPC was Lisa Risinger with 16. Jane Goheen had 14 and Sharon Booth had 10.

As WTC and Clarendon squared off, fans were anxiously awaiting the battle. Though favored, WTC faced a much-improved Bulldogette team.

Defense proved to be the name of the game. WTC took the opening tipoff and failed to score and nearly four minutes elapsed before the board was lighted up. Becki Cranford hit a long shot to give WTC a 2-0 edge.

Marilyn Payton stole the sphere 10 seconds later and made the score 4-0. Clarendon finally scored on a 25-footer by Leonora Oatman as the score read 4-2 at 15:59.

Surprisingly, Clarendon never got any closer. The Dusters steadily increased their lead and at 12:20 held a 16-8 advantage.

The Green's Brenda Jurecek was tagged with three fouls at 12:03, putting the WTC defense in jeopardy. But the lead steadily climbed to 26-11 at 8:11 and the biggest lead of the night came at 5:33 as Payton sank two free throws to give WTC an 18-point advantage at 35-17.

With 50 seconds remaining in the first half, Barbara Denman injured an ankle after nabbing a defensive rebound and was out for the remainder of the game.

The Dusters led at half-time, 43-26. They came out shooting in the second half and soon led by 48-28. The gap was stretched to 60-34 at 14:09. Then renewed spirit hit Clarendon and they began to close the gap. Jurecek fouled out at 9:15, but an epidemic of errors hit Clarendon, as it tried desperately to pull it out.

Clarendon's Jewell Waggoner fouled out and at 5:47 and Leonora Oatman left the game, followed by Geneva Naylor at 2:27. Then, starters Theresa Heard and Mickey Henderson both fouled out.

WTC's Theresa Beal led all scorers with 22 points. Payton had 15 and Annie Tillman had 14. Carol Vincent led Clarendon's offense with 17 points. Teresa Conrdon hit for 14 while Carolyn Sparkman added 10.

Thus, WTC and Weatherford were matched Saturday night in their third game of the season against each other. This was a rubber game for the season, since each had one a victory over the other in regular season play. Weatherford had won by three points a year ago to take the regional title.

NAHI Gauges Athlete's Fat

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers third baseman Ron Cey was thought to be overweight. The 5-foot-10, 185-pounder waddled on the basepaths and earned the nickname The Penguin.

Then Cey went through a testimony program at the National Athletic Health Institute here and found that his body contained only 5 per cent fat, far below that of any other baseball player tested so far. He also found he could make use of a greater amount of oxygen than similar athletes and that he is in remarkably good shape.

The program Cey went through is the first of what may soon be a multifaceted approach to athletic health—an approach that already has important implications not only for athletes but for all people: it may help to prevent heart attacks.

"I suppose you might say it's an additional health insurance policy against heart attacks," said Dr. Jack Wilmore, executive director of the NAHI. "But really, it's nothing more than preventive medicine."

This initial program offers a basic physical exam of the cardio-vascular system, including an electrocardiogram under stress, muscular proficiency tests and a double weighing. In the latter, a person is first weighted on a traditional scale and then weighed under water. Since fat is less dense than muscle, the underwater measurement can help determine what percentage of his body weight was fat.

"Most height-weight charts in doctors' offices are notoriously inaccurate," said Wilmore. "What really counts is the fat-to-lean weight ratio." The normal 30-year-old male has about 19 per cent fat. At 40 that increases to 22 to 26 per cent."

The first program undertaken when NAHI opened last July 1 was cardio-vascular testing and Wilmore said he hopes the program will help "change the consciousness of Americans about their conditions. People who become sedentary and put on weight, even just a little extra weight, don't remember how good they felt when they were younger and in good shape."

After the two-hour physical, an individual gets about 45 minutes of consultation which includes recommendations on a diet and a regular exercise program tailored to his or her needs.

The institute charges about $200 for the series of tests.

Pan Am's Rogers Aiming For NBA

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — Marshall Rogers, the nation's top college basketball scorer this season, has his guns trained on yet another target: "I'm going to play guard in the NBA. I would like to play with a team that just runs, runs, runs."

Rogers, who has led Pan American University to a sizzling 17-5 season and at-large berth in the NCAA playoffs, should be able to pick and choose among pro basketball offers.

"I don't know of anybody else who has ever set that criteria for himself and was able to do it. He hasn't had a bad game in two years," says Coach Abe Lemons.

Rogers, 6 feet 2, is well ahead of all scorers across the nation with his 36.3 point average. He's also made good on 169 of 200 free throw attempts.

He began the current season with three goals in mind: to play with a winning team, to get into postseason tournament play and to be among the top three scorers in the country.

"Winning is the most important thing. If our season was 5-17, the season would be rotten, no matter how much I scored," he said.

The University of Kansas had the star during the 1972-73 season but his "run and gun" style of offensive work just didn't fit in with the ball-control-minded Jayhawks.

"I wanted to come where Abe Lemons coached. I was treated well at Kansas and all that but I wanted to come here and play for him," Rogers said.

Lemons said Rogers' disposition "is against ball control. His personality is to go, and go, and go."

Rogers credits much of his success to enthused Pan American fans and guard Jesus Guerra.

"I could have done it without out him (Guerra) but it would have been much harder," Rogers said.

Tanzanian Flash Has 3:56.1 Mile

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, world record holder in the 1,500 meters, admits he was fibbing a little when he told newsmen he wasn't in shape for the National AAU Indoor Track and Field Championships.

The rest of the field certainly wasn't in shape for Bayi.

Bayi won the mile Friday night at Madison Square Garden, turning in the third-best time ever over that distance indoors, and the Tanzanian speedster—along with double winner Jan Merrill—highlighted the AAU's version of the national championships.

Miss Merrill, a 19-year-old distance runner attending Thames Valley Technical College in Norwich, Conn., won the women's two miles and came back about 40 minutes later to win the mile, both in meet record times.

Bayi was clocked in 3 minutes, 56.1 seconds and demolished the old meet record of 3:59.0 by Jim Beatty in 1963. The time, however, was well off Tony Waldrop's 3:55.0 world indoor record.

"Nobody was leading the pace," the wiry Bayi said. "It was all myself. On the last lap, I saw the time and I knew a record was possible, but there was no one pushing me."

Paul Cummings of the Beverly Hill Striders was second in 3:58.4, trailing Bayi by 5-10 yards most of the way.

Miss Merrill won the 1,500 at the Millrose Games here earlier this year but lost three times since, in the 1,500 and the 1,000 to Francie Larrieu in Canada, and again in the 800.

But Friday night, she was awesome. The skinny, ponytailed runner completely outclassed the 1,500 field, finishing in 9:59.6 and shattering the meet mark of 10:22.0 set by Brenda Webb last year. The mark, however, is far off the U.S. indoor mark of 9:39.4 set by Miss Larrieu in 1974.

The meet also was highlighted by record-breaking performances by Army Lt. Tommy "T-Bird" Haynes in the triple jump and Rosalyn Bryant of the Los Angeles Mercurettes in the 220-yard dash.

Rick Wohlhuter, last year's Sullivan Award winner as the nation's top amateur athlete, came from behind to win the 1,000-yard run; Steve Williams of the Florida Track Club won the 60-yard dash after judges reversed an earlier ruling; France's Guy Drut won the 60-yard high hurdles, and Roland Carter of the Gulf Coast Track Club won the pole vault for the second straight year.

Haynes, the U.S. outdoor record holder at 56 feet, 5¼ inches, added the indoor mark to his credits with a leap of 55-5½, one-half inch better than the old mark set by John Craft in 1972.

Miss Bryant bettered the 220 mark in the trial heats, covering the distance in 23.5, one-tenth of a second faster than the mark she set in this meet last year. However, she was beaten in the final by Pamela Jiles of the New Orleans Superdames. Both were timed in 24.0 in the final.

Two Refs For Texas Relays

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Two coaches—a man and woman—will serve as referees at the 49th Texas Relays April 2-3.

They are Bob Groseclose of Northeast Louisiana and Margaret Ellison of the Texas Woman's Track Club in Abilene.

Groseclose won three state track championships at Abilene High School before moving to Louisiana 16 years ago. He was a three-sport letterman at Texas Christian University.

Ellison has coached women's track for 18 years and her teams have finished first or second each of the last 10 years at the U.S. Track and Field Federation meet.

Seven years ago Mike Kryzewski captained Army's basketball team. Now he coaches the Cadet quintet.

Planting Is Increasing Despite Dry Conditions

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Despite the lack of moisture, planting of cotton, corn and sorghum is increasing in South Texas and along the Coastal Bend, Dr. John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says.

Some corn and sorghum is being planted in southern portions of Southwest and Southeast Texas, he said.

Warm weather late last week caused grasses to begin greening up and brought peach, plum and pear trees into bloom in southern areas, Hutchison said.

Planting of vegetables in home gardens has increased in many counties, and commercial plantings are active in eastern and southern areas, he said.

Hutchison said more cattle have been moving to market, especially in western areas where dry conditions have persisted.

Supplemental feeding of livestock remains heavy in all areas of the state. Hay supplies are running short and stock water is low in many areas, he said.

District agricultural gave these reports:

Panhandle: Dryland wheat continues to deteriorate. Many farmers are trying to control wind erosion. Greenbugs continue to infest irrigated wheat. Land is being readied for potatoes in Deaf Smith County. Range cattle are being fed.

South Plains: Irrigated wheat is beginning to make some growth. Dryland wheat remains in poor shape. Blowing sand has damaged or covered up many wheat fields in sandy areas. Farmers are applying fertilizer, herbicides and preplant irrigation to croplands.

Rolling Plains: Small grains are suffering from dry weather and blowing dust. Potatoe planting is 60 per cent complete in the Munday area. Cotton ginning continues in Cottle County where about 8,000 bales remain in gin yards and on ricks in fields.

North Central: Small grains continue to suffer from lack of moisture and greenbug damage. Some vegetables are being planted. Pastures and ranges are below average. Supplemental feeding is heavy.

Northeast: Land preparation for spring planting remains active. Some vegetable planting is under way. Livestock are in fair shape but internal parasites remain a problem in some cattle.

Far West: Irrigated small grains are making some growth and providing grazing. Calving and lambing are active. Sheep and goat shearing continues on many farms and ranches.

West Central: Farmers in Mason County are getting land in shape for watermelons. Home gardeners are busy preparing plots. Many fruit trees are budding. Lambing and calving remain active. Many producers are treating stock for external parasites.

Central: Warm weather has brought many plum, peach and pear trees into bloom. Some fruit trees still have not received enough cold hours to meet their chill requirements. Livestock feeding remains heavy. Lambing is in full swing.

East: Planting of early season vegetables is active. Despite some improvement in pastures and ranges, livestock feeding remains heavy. Shrinkage and internal parasites are evident in cattle.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: A few farmers have begun planting corn and sorghum. Home vegetable gardening is becoming active. Some cool season vegetables are still being harvested. Peach trees are beginning to bloom. Hay supplies are getting short in some areas.

South Central: Land preparation continues for vegetables. Some early season vegetables such as onions and cabbage are being planted. Livestock remain in poor condition.

Southwest: Corn planting has started in southern counties. Buds on pecan trees are beginning to swell. Livestock and grazing conditions are poor. Sheep shearing has started. Goat shearing is past the halfway point.

Coastal Bend: Most oats have died because of dry weather. Flax is blooming but needs rain. Planting of corn, sorghum and cotton has started. Cabbage and spinach are being harvested. Planting of home vegetable gardens is increasing. Peach trees are blooming and pecan trees are budding. Hay supplies are nearly exhausted.

South: Planting operations are under way and sorghum planting in full swing in Willacy County. The watermelon crop is making good progress. Carrots, cabbage and citrus continue to move to market.

WOODEN WATER MAIN BICENTENNIAL BOUND—Jack Gasnick holds in New York a 200-year-old wooden water main earlier this week which will go to Washington for use in a bicentennial exhibition. The main, dug up outside historic Fraunces Tavern in New York in 1913, was for years on display in the Manhattan plumbing and hardware store operated by Gasnick and his brother, Walter. Pollution Fighting Has Become Big Enterprise

EDITOR'S NOTE — Despite the problems and setbacks in cleaning up the environment, the task is going forward with considerable public support, according to public opinion polls.

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smog still pollutes some major American cities. Oil spills occasionally foul beaches. Coal operators continue to destroy the landscape by strip-mining for coal in some states. And chemical pollutants threaten health.

But six years after Richard M. Nixon signed the National Environmental Policy Act and declared the '70s the decade for cleaning up the environment, there are many claims that progress has been made toward eliminating pollution.

In the process, pollution fighting has become a major American enterprise. The Environmental Protection Agency, for example, is the government's largest regulatory agency, with 9,000 employes, although it is only five years old. Most states and large cities run agencies similar to the EPA.

The production of pollution-control equipment is a multi-billion-dollar industry. The federal government estimates that $15.7-billion was spent last year — $5.7-billion by federal, state and local governments and $10-billion by industry. The outlay produced one million jobs, according to federal statistics.

Pollution control is one of the few industries not hurt by the recession, says Russell W. Peterson, chairman of the White House Council on Environmental Quality.

More than 50 groups dedicated to improving the environment have been organized since 1970, the Library of Congress reports, and dozens of lawsuits have been filed in behalf of the environment. Most demand compliance with a clause in the 1970 National Environmental Health Act that requires "environmental impact statements" for all federal activities significantly affecting the environment.

The National Wildlife Federation, the nation's largest conservation organization, annually assesses progress in seven major environmental areas: timber, water, minerals, air, wildlife, soil and open space.

Its recently issued report for 1975 concluded that air pollution decreased, but in the six other areas there was loss of quality, in part because of failures to comply with new federal regulations, or the failure of the federal government to enact necessary legislation.

A federal land use bill, for example, didn't get through Congress last year and President Ford vetoed a bill to regulate strip mining. Although the National Wildlife Federation noted progress in reducing air pollution, even the EPA said that few utilities and industries met the June 1 deadline last year for compliance with federal standards on emissions of smoke, dust, sulfur dioxide, carbon monoxide, smog and nitrogen dioxide over urban areas.

Nevertheless, the National Wildlife Federation concluded: "Despite this generally somber picture, there are some encouraging signs. Most significantly, perhaps, the polls still show undiminished public support for environmental goals."

Others point to these accomplishments:

—After a concerted federal, state and local effort, fish life is again thriving in Lake Erie, considered a "dying lake" a decade ago. And Lake County beaches near Chicago, closed by pollution in 1969, were reopened last summer.

—For the first time in 100 years, Atlantic salmon have returned to the Connecticut River.

—The waters of Pensacola's Escambia Bay in northwest Florida — the site of numerous fish kills in the early 1970s because of industrial pollution — are clearing. Shrimp and oysters are gradually coming back and the natural ecology is being restored.

—Hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide levels in the exhausts of 1976-model automobiles are 85 per cent less than in vehicles made before 1968, the EPA says.

—More than three-fourths of the 20,000 "major air pollution sources" in the nation are complying with pollution abatement plans, the EPA says, although many are behind schedule and there are some notable problems.

Despite the problems, Russell Train, the EPA's administrator, says: "We have definitely turned the corner on all the major pollution problems that faced us in 1970. But I'm not suggesting that we don't have a lot of problems ahead."

In an interview, Train said the environmental movement that started in the 1960s because of "justifiable outrage on the part of the public," has now largely been institutionalized.

"There's a lot less emotional excitement about the environment today, but perhaps an even deeper acceptance of the issue by the public. The environment has just taken its place among the nation's priorities and values today," Train said.

He has been running the EPA since 1973, when he took over from William D. Ruckelshaus, the agency's first administrator.

Charged with enforcing regulations on everything from air and water pollution to pesticides and noise, the EPA has been controversial from its inception. It has been buffeted with criticism from both environmentalists who say it knuckles under too often to industry pressure and from industry, which has accused the agency of over-zealousness.

Within the administration, Train has differed with President Ford. Twice last year he urged the President to sign bills imposing enviromental controls on strip mining; Ford vetoed them.

"In all fairness," Train said, "I don't think the President has evidenced a strong environmental record on some of the issues that he's been confronted with, such as strip mining."

The energy crisis and the 1973 Arab oil boycott "obviously complicated" the job of enforcing environmental laws and regulations, Train added. "But I really don't think we need to rip off the environment or public health to achieve our national energy goals. In any long-range sense, we've got to do both jobs together."

Train said that despite his differences with Ford on some matters, he feels the EPA has "remained a strong force within the administration" and that public support for environmental programs "continues at a high level."

A recent public opinion survey seems to bear this out.

The Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., last summer polled 1,222 persons, a cross-section of the American public, on their attitudes toward enviromental issues. The poll showed that despite the recession, high unemployment and rising fuel costs, those interviewed opposed cutting back enviromental control programs.

Plant Changes Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has ordered utilities operating 17 atomic reactors around the country to make changes to increase the safety margin in the reactors.

A spokesman for the commission said the plants will not be required to shut down but can make the changes while continuing to operate.

The 17 boiling water reactors must undergo modifications similar to those made recently at the Vermont Yankee Nuclear plant in Vernon, Vt.

The commission said Friday the changes will provide additional assurance that the containment system at the plants would be fully effective in the event of a loss of coolant accident. If such an accident were to occur, the core of a reactor could overheat and melt, releasing radioactivity.

The changes involved adjusting the pressure between a pool used to condense steam following loss of primary coolant and the so-called dry well in order to reduce the forces caused by movement of water.

The utilities and plants involved in the announcement Friday were:

Jersey Center Power and Light Co., Oyster Creek.

Niagara Mohawk Power and Light Co., Nine Mile Point.

Boston Edison Co., Pilgrim I.

Commonwealth Edison Co., Dresden II and III and Quad Cities I and II.

Northeast Nuclear Enegy Co., Millstone I.

Northern States Power Co., Monticello.

Philadelphia Electric Co., Peach Bottom II and III.

Tennessee Valley Authority, Browns Ferry I and II.

Georgia Power Co., Hatch I.

Nebraska Public Power District, Cooper.

Iowa Electric Light and Power Co., Duane Arnold Energy Center.

New York State Power Authority, Fitzpatrick.

Subpanel Studying Uninsured Drivers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Spokesmen for two major segments of the Texas insurance industry have declared that mandatory auto liability coverage would not work and would drive rates upward.

But a University of Texas law professor said such coverage would benefit numerous accident victims and might be worth paying a little more.

Testimony was before a House subcommittee studying the problem of uninsured drivers.

Steve Hacker of the Insurance Counselors Association of Texas said mandatory liability failed in all three states that tried it. He suggested there might be some relief for accident victims through increasing the amount of coverage provided by uninsured motorists policies from $10,000 to $20,000 a person.

J. Sam Winters, representing the Association of Fire and Casualty Companies in Texas, said the legislature already has taken several steps to compensate victims of accidents with uninsured drivers. Uninsured motorist coverage must be offered with each auto policy, as must the new "no-fault" Personal Injury Protection coverage.

Winters said liability rates in New York and Massachusetts were double the national average before they dropped their mandatory liability laws in favor of no-fault car insurance.

In addition, he said, mandatory liability is impossible to enforce and never provides 100 per cent coverage. States that have tried it found that a number of drivers were "insurance dodgers" who bought policies then dropped them after receiving their license plates, he said.

"Some people apparently get a thrill out of trying to beat the system," said Michael E. Waters of the National Association of Independent Insurers.

UT Law Prof. Albert Jones said compulsory liability might add $10 or $12 to the price of car insurance but the peace of mind obtained would be worth the cost.

"A person should not be able to use an instrumentality capable of inflicting death and injury without the financial responsibility to pay for such injury," Jones said.

Other witnesses pointed out that uninsured motorist protection extends only to medical expenses. They said it sometimes is hard to prove in court that another driver actually is uninsured. And to collect on one's uninsured motorist coverage, he or she must be free of fault in an accident.

Singers Pay Last Respects To Ballard

DETROIT (AP) — Singers Diana Ross and Mary Wilson and thousands of fans have paid last respects to Florence Ballard, one-time singing star with the Supremes.

Miss Ross and Miss Wilson, childhood friends of Miss Ballard who worked with her on the Supremes, sobbed at the casket.

Miss Ross, who split with the Supremes to make her mark as a solo performer, walked up to the casket with tears on her face and said she wanted a silent prayer for "Flo."

"Nothing ever disappears. Flo's soul is with us," Miss Ross said Friday.

Miss Ballard died Sunday, eight years after she left the Supremes and her singing career fell apart. At the time she said she had been forced out of the group. As recently as a year ago she was on welfare.

She was 32 at the time of her death, which was blamed on a heart attack.

Sisters Killed In Collision

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two young sisters were killed Friday night in a two-car collision at an intersection on San Antonio's northeast side, police said.

The girls were identified as Kathy Howell, 13, and her sister Terry, 11. Police said the girls were the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Howell of San Antonio.

Mrs. Howell and two children from another family were hospitalized in stable condition with injuries suffered in the crash. The occupants of the second car were not hurt.

Burns Fatal To Two More

LUBBOCK (AP) — A 42-year-old woman and her 19-month-old grandson have died of burns suffered Wednesday night when a leaking gas pipe exploded and caught fire near the West Texas community of Whitharral.

A spokesman for Lubbock Methodist Hospital said Maria Elozondo, 42, and Michael Sustaita, 19 months, died Friday of extensive second and third degree burns.

The baby's mother, Lupe Sustaita, 23, and Edwin Havins, 59, remain hospitalized in critical condition with burns suffered in the fire, the spokesman said.

Mrs. Elozondo's husband, Bennie, 46, was killed in the blast, which destroyed a mobile home.

GREENBUG RESISTANT SORGHUMS:

Seed of sorghum hybrids that resists the attack of menacing greenbugs are now available to producers in Texas, and other sorghum producing states.

Greenbugs are small green aphids that have been a thorn in the side of Texas sorghum growers for the past eight years. Not only have the tiny pests reduced sorghum yields substantially, but some have developed a resistance to common insecticides that provided successful control in previous years.

The greenbug threat to the sorghum industry brought about a diligent search by scientists of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station to find plant sources that would ward off greenbug attacks. The greenbug resistant factor was uncovered in poor agronomic types and used to develop greenbug resistant parental lines of acceptable agronomic quality.

Taking a further look at the newfound greenbug resistant trait in these sorghums, the word "resistant" is a general term applied to a plant that is inherently damaged or infested less than another hybrid when grown under the same conditions. Greenbugs will likely infest these new sorghums but will inflict less damage as long as other environmental factors are kept intact. In other words, under normal environmental conditions, greenbugs will not reduce yields of these new sorghums. This allows for the fact that beneficial insects play an important role in the overall performance of greenbug resistant hybrids. If insecticides are applied, then the environmental conditions will be changed and the advantages of resistant sorghums may be jeopardized.

Emphasizing the point about the new hybrids tolerating greenbug attacks simply to alert producers to the fact that there may be greenbugs on plants from this new seed if, in fact, there are greenbugs in the vicinity. It's important that producers realize that greenbugs will not back away from these new resistant hybrids. They may still infest the plants but the plants will resist their attack.

The resistance mechanisms bred into the new hybrids are generally threefold: (1) tolerance--the plants will tolerate greenbug attacks, (2) antibiosis--the plants affect the life cycle of greenbugs that feed on them, causing certain abnormalities, reducing reproduction and increasing mortality, and (3) non-preference-the greenbugs simply do not like these new sorghums as well as those without the resistant trait.

The new greenbug resistant sorghums can have a big economic as well as ecological impact on Texas agriculture. Sorghum yields have been significantly reduced by greenbugs in certain areas, and these new hybrids should help reduce such losses. Just as important is the fact that the new hybrids will hopefully reduce the widespread use of insecticides to control greenbugs. This should reduce production costs as well as allow beneficial insects to thrive and to function as nature has intended.

Greenbug resistant sorghums are a tremendous breakthrough and fit well in an overall pest management program. It is now up to producers themselves to make them work.

City Manager Defends Phone Rebate Request

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas City Manager George Schrader says he feels he is on "solid ground" in his request for a $1.9 million customer rebate by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Schrader said Friday he had studied a transcript of an April hearing on a rate increase request filed by Bell, and he says it is evident the city council wanted Bell to establish with some of the new revenues a $5 million "escrow" account to benefit the company and its customers.

Telephone company officials have said there is nothing in the rate increase agreement which requires them to return any portion of it to customers.

Bell division manager LaRue Robinson has said the company will take legal action if necessary to avoid making the reimbursement. The company says its earnings already are below the 7.5 per cent rate of return and it will be forced to ask for a $13 million rate increase if the city insists upon the rebate.

Schrader said, "It is our opinion that a reserve fund was established and the public ought to benefit from it."

Schrader and Tom Taylor, city public utilities director, also have recommended that $200,000 of the fund be used to develop a dial tone emergency system for pay telephones that would allow persons to dial the operator without inserting 20 cents.

The city council has scheduled hearings on the matter March 22 and 29.

A Little About One Or Two Hundred Things

By JEAN EVERETT

by Jean Everett

I need 8 gallons of rain water, 3 quarts of syrup and 2 yeast cakes. Water, syrup, yeast cakes. That doesn't seem too hard to come by. Oh, rain water. Well now, that may take a little planning.

How do you get rain water? Place a barrel under the gutter to catch the runoff. Simple. But my roof isn't guttered. No problem, the catalogue still lists guttering materials. A ladder and tape, I have. What to do about my fear of heights? I'll overcome! Just this once, long enough to measure the roof line.

A barrel. Where's a barrel? The trash ones—too dirty. Yuck. Yuck. And that oil barrel would never come clean, not even with the White Knight and Mr. Clean combined...Ah, a plastic basket should do nicely.

Rain?? Hey, Hon, what's the man's name who seeds the clouds for the Colorado River Water District?

Yes, typing recipes from 50 to 100 years old does strange things to you. You start living in the mind of that time. You begin cooking cornmeal dumplings and vinegar pies. You don't go to the grocery store quite so often. Instead, you make do with what is in the pantry. You add a little more water to the soup bone for another meal. You begin to notice how extravagant you are. So you place a saucer on top of those leftover potatoes, instead of tearing off a square of foil. You make potato patties and corn fritters before giving these leftovers to the dogs. You even consider making your own vanilla extract and brewing your own vinegar.

The red ant season isn't upon us yet, so I haven't tried rubbing an onion slice on the sting. And to be perfectly truthful, I have not even been tempted to test the cure for rheumatism that calls for catching several large rattlesnakes, penning them up until you have 8 or 10, then cooking them into cracklings. The extracted oil is supposed to be rubbed on the sore joints.

Going to press soon, COUNTRY DOINGS, Scurry County's Centennial Cookbook is sure to please your palate and awaken your memories. The committee is still typing, sorting, arranging, editing, and proof reading and although they haven't counted the entries, they are extremely happy over the number of submissions. Thanks to all Scurry County cooks who shared recipes, remedies and household hints, the book promises to be a unique contribution to our centennial celebration.

The response to the "Name The Book Contest" was gratifying. Sixty-four name suggestions for a difficult decision. All were good. Selecting one name took the judges three hours.

Wade Ashley, a young man home from college, had the winning name entry. Surprised that a male entered the contest? He was not the only young man to do so. Times have changed. The kitchen is no longer woman's throne room—the king has entered it. Wade also submitted a recipe for the book, a bread recipe no less. Explaining, Wade said that he became hungry for home cooking after tiring of college dorm food. He and a friend rented a house, and Wade began to experiment with cooking and bread baking. Like other cooks-in-the-making, Wade threw much away, but he had success after he came across an old tested and tried bread recipe.

About his winning title, Wade said: "A cookbook of a local area should reflect that area not only in recipes but in methods of doing things such as cooking, canning, curing—the tried and true ways found by the local people to get the most out of their own surroundings and unique resources. Country Doings seemed a logical choice for a name of the book, since the book is to be like a mural showing how people living in West Texas have done their thing, not only with their hands but also with their heads."

Thank you, Wade, for the book title, COUNTRY DOINGS.

Conservationists In Winter Session

Local conservation leaders were in Lubbock on Tuesday attending the winter meeting of the South Plains Association of Soil and Water Conservation District Directors.

W.L. Wilson, Jr., chairman, Walter Stirl, vice chairman, and Leon Sterling of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation Districts Board of Directors, and Erwin A. Pavlik, district conservationist for the Snyder Field Office, Soil Conservation Service, attended from Borden and Scurry Counties.

Participating on the program were W.D. Criswell, South Plains Association Chairman; Charles Wood, Lubbock, Secretary-Treasurer of The Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts; Frank Gray, Member, Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board, State Senator Kent Hance of Lubbock, and Soil Conservation Service State Conservationist George Marks, Temple.

Senator Hance traced the history of Agriculture Land Use. He went on to say that Agriculture in the South Plains will continue to play a significant role in the economy of the area. He told Directors present that farmers and ranchers must continue to present a good image for agriculture.

Wood and Gray reviewed the recent 30th Annual Meeting of the National Association of Conservation Districts held in Honolulu Hawaii.

Marks commended the directors on the role they have had in making our environment a better place to live. He told the directors that they have a heavy responsibility in getting conservation applied on the land during this period of drought. He urged them to tell the story of what Districts have done to help keep down blowing dust and wind erosion.

Marvin Bowling of Sudan was elected Chairman for 1976 and Victor Arrington of Spur was elected Vice Chairman. Sam Ellis of Southland was reappointed Secretary-Treasurer.

The August meeting will be hosted by the Hale County Soil and Water Conservation District at Plainview.

Checks Go To Eighteen Texas Cities

AUSTIN (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill has mailed checks totaling $86,165 to 18 Texas city water departments and districts as their share of an anti-trust suit settlement against cast iron pipe manufacturers.

Hill said the state also got a check for $2,932, which he referred to the state treasurer.

The money was the final one-fourth due Texas particpants.

The state alleged that American Cast Iron Pipe Co., Amsted Industries Inc., Clow Corp., Lone Star Steel Co., McWane Cast Iron Pipe Co. and United State Pipe & Foundary fixed, maintained and stabilized prices at artificial and non-competitive levels by submitting collusive bids and allocating territories. A 1973 trial resulted in a hung jury and a retrial brought on the 1975 settlement, Hill said.

Hill said the cities involved included Ben brook, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Greenville, Harris County, Houston, Irving, Marshall, Mesquite, Midland, Mineral Wells, Palestine, Plainview, Texarkana, Waco, White Settlement and Beaumont.

Denton Seeks Free TV Time

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Lane Denton said Saturday he has asked television stations to donate an hour for a forum to which all candidates for the Railroad Commission would be invited.

Denton, one of the candidates, said letters were sent to more than 50 stations.

"With regulation of such activities as gas utility rates, transportation safety and strip mining, the commission affects Texans every day. For this reason, the selection of a new commissioner should be forcefully brought before the public," Denton said.

Glenda Treat Is Chairman Of Hike-Bike

Glenda Treat has been named chairman of the Scurry County 1976 Hike-Bike for Retarded Citizens, it has been announced by Robert Miller, advisor of the local Teens Aid the Retarded.

"On April 3, residents of Scurry County will have an opportunity to take part in this worthwhile event," said Miss Treat. "We hope everyone who can will join us in the Hike-Bike, either as participants or sponsors."

The Hike-Bike campaign calls on volunteers to either "hike" or "bike" for retarded citizens over a measured course. Businesses and individuals are asked to pledge so much per mile walked or ridden by participants.

The Hike-Bike will take place at 8 a.m. April 3. Hikers and bikers will rally at the Humble-Smith School and the measured course will run 22 miles. Check points will be set up at intervals along the route to accurately clock miles walked or ridden by participants.

"Walks and rides have been very successful," Miss Treat said, "And have raised thousands of dollars for the mentally retarded. I know the citizens of Scurry County will want to help us make the campaignanoutstandingonehere again this year."

Brokerages Slow To Hire New Employes

NEW YORK (AP) — Business has been booming for more than a year at brokerage firms and the major stock exchanges, but Wall Street has been slow to hire new employes.

Ten top brokerage firms surveyed recently by the Securities Industry Association had an average 8 per cent increase in real growth of manpower during 1975 as volume on the New York Stock Exchange set a record and Wall Volume lately has been averaging 30 million shares a day.

But even better than last year's record, a spot check of several brokerages shows little desire to add significantly to payrolls. One large firm, which asked not to be identified, even said it is studying ways to cut back on employes.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, the nation's biggest brokerage house, added about 1,100 workers to its staff during 1975, bringing the total to about 19,200.

But a spokesman said that so far this year, the industry giant has added only "30 people net."

He explained that Merrill Lynch had, like many other brokerages, made great strides in computerizing back office handling procedures since the employment peaks reached in the late '60s and early '70s. The amount of paperwork has been greatly reduced as a result.

Thus Merrill Lynch is getting along with about 2,000 fewer employes than it had five years ago.

There's been no rush to rehire workers on Wall Street, even with the recent record-breaking volume, for another reason.

"We expect to be lean, but it's hard to say just how many will be hired. We want to avoid excesses we'd have to rescind later," the Merrill Lynch spokesman said.

Wall Street hired thousands of workers in 1967-68 when the first great burst of trading volume threatened to bury back offices in paperwork. Work rolls were later cut back when business soured during the bear markets of 1969-70 and 1973-74.

Both brokerage houses and the exchanges themselves have adopted a far more cautious rehiring policy this time around.

At the New York Stock Exchange, the payroll actually has shrunk from 1,594 employes at the end of 1974, to 1,551 as of the latest count Feb. 20.

The American Stock Exchange's workforce has grown in roughly the same period from 470 to 494, and there are plans to hire 30 or 40 more by mid-March to handle their booming new options market and to add to staff on the regular stock trading floor.

Dr. Lamb
Frankquestions onhysterectomy

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife and I are conservative in our sex life, with little experimentation or variety. Our sex life has improved with each year of marriage as we have grown used to each other and have overcome inhibitions.

My wife has always been somewhat modest and concerned with feminine hygiene, although not to excess. Our only methods of birth control over the years have been either withdrawal or use of a condom, neither 100 per cent satisfactory to either of us, but sufficient to keep my wife from getting pregnant for over 20 years, after bearing several children who are now all gone from home.

A few months ago my wife had a hysterectomy which has been successful both physically and emotionally. We have some unanswered questions my wife is embarrassed to ask the doctor.

Should we continue to use birth control measures as mentioned above? Is there any harm in the woman having the semen deposited in her vagina following a hysterectomy? Is there any benefit? What about feminine hygiene? Douches? What happens to the opening after a hysterectomy at the end of the vagina when the uterus and cervix are both removed? How often should Pap smears be taken in this case? What do you have to say about cleanliness as a result of intercourse without a condom or withdrawal?

These are frank questions and we would like frank answers. Your answers should help many other couples in the same situation.

DEAR READER — A complete hysterectomy surgically cuts out the uterus and cervix. The area at the top and far end of the vaginal vault, where the cervix is located, is then sutured together. There is only a scar where the tissues have healed. The vagina remains as before except it is a complete blind tube with no openings at all into the body cavity.

This means your wife cannot get pregnant. You do not need to worry about birth control ever again of any type.

As long as she has a normal amount of female hormones the vagina will behave as before surgery with normal lubrication from natural secretion. These secretions are nature's way of maintaining hygiene. Nevertheless I know some women will want to douche anyway, even if it washes away nature's natural protection. The answer here is to treat the vagina and hygiene problem exactly as you did before a hysterectomy. It is not different in any way.

If your wife is deficient in female hormones she may develop drying of the vaginal vault and may need hormone replacement.

The semen will have no adverse effect at all on the woman and it will not help her either. Normally the man does not withdraw or use a condom. These are simply birth control procedures you no longer need. You should be able to have a relaxed, enjoyable sex life unconcerned about such matters.

Pap smears are done primarily to detect cancer of the cervix. The need for these is greatly minimized. There are rare cancers of the vaginal vault. Your wife still needs an annual checkup and breast examination and I think that would take care of the problem.

Every couple has to solve their own cleanliness problem. Some women perfer to douch after intercourse, others do not. However, I do not think a normal marriage relationship should use hygiene as a reason why the man must use a condom or use the withdrawal technique.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About three times a week I take a spoonful of Metamucil and I find if I don't wash the glass and spoon right away it leaves a slimy surface on the glass and it takes hot water to get it off. I wonder if it could coat my stomach and intestines so I could not get the good from my food. I don't take any other laxatives and the Metamucil works fine.

DEAR READER — No, it won't hurt you a bit. Your entire digestive system is constantly forming secretions that bathe its surface. Your stomach already has a layer of thick mucus over its surface which would make what you are talking about on your glass look like nothing at all. That mucus surface protects the stomach cells for its own acid digestive juice.

The lining of your intestine is shed and replaced as often as every three days. The lining incidentally is digested and absorbed for food for your body so you don't lose energy or important proteins this way.

Metamucil is a good bulk expander and isn't harmful. I do hope, however, that you include in your diet enough bulk and particularly cereal fiber from whole wheat products. If you use enough of that or bran or bran buds you may not need Metamucil to provide bulk for you.

Those wanting information on controlling constipation can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 3-1, Irritable Colon and Constipation. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was so delighted to have your article stating that oysters do not have a high cholesterol count. I called a dietician at the hospital where I had been a patient and she said I could also have shrimp, lobster and crab. I've no idea where her information comes from and I hope it's true, although since you didn't mention the other shellfish I'm rather skeptical.

There are two diets I'm supposed to follow, a low cholesterol and low sugar or starch diet because I'm hypoglycemic. However, the cholesterol diet is of first priority. Do you have any recent information regarding this particular diet? I know there must be a great number of people who have this same dietary problem.

DEAR READER — You should be skeptical. You can eat almost any food if you limit the amount depending on what other items you include in your diet and still have a low cholesterol intake.

Oysters are relatively low-fat, low-cholesterol foods based on the most recent findings which replace older values that listed them as high-fat, high-cholesterol foods. A three and a half ounce serving of raw oysters contains from 37 to 58 milligrams of cholesterol; a similar amount of shrimp is 150 milligrams; lobster, 200; and crab 52 to 98.

You can eat shrimp in moderation, restrict your lobster intake a little more and need not be concerned about crab any more than you would any similar amount of meat. If you limit your cholesterol intake to 300 milligrams a day, you can't eat much shrimp and lobster and still eat other cholesterol containing foods you need for a balanced diet.

Land Use Book Being Reprinted

The Soil Conservation Service has announced the reprinting of a widely used SCS publication, "Conquest of the Land Over 7,000 Years." The author of the journal, written in 1942, was Dr. Walter Clay Lowdermilk, a pioneer in soil and water conservation.

In 1938, the U.S. Department of Agriculture commissioned Lowdermilk to make a survey of land use in the older European and Asian countries in the interest of conserving our own land resources.

"The land bears a record of what men write on it...a record easy to read by those who understand the simple language," Dr. Lowdermilk wrote.

In his tour of England, Holland, France, Italy, North Africa, and the Near East, Lowdermilk followed agriculture from its beginnings 7,000 years ago to modern times.

He observed fields that had been in cultivation for thousands of years. The publication is a prophetic account of his search for reasons why land that once supported thousands of people now lays in object waste.

The answer to his quest was soil erosion. He tells why erosion acted as a catalyst in the desecretion and destruction of many advancing civilizations.

"One of the most important findings on this survey of the use of land through 7,000 years," Lowdermilk said in summation, "is that tillers of soil have encountered their greatest problem throughout the ages in trying to establish a permanent agriculture on sloping lands."

The publication, AIB-99, "Conquest of the Land Over 7,000 Years," is available from your local Soil Conservation Service office.

ON DECONTROL BILLS

Oilmen Assured Of Ford Veto

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb met Texas and Oklahoma independent oil producers here Friday to reassure them that President Ford will veto any natural gas deregulation bills which he may feel will hurt the oil industry.

Zarb came here for a meeting with the oilmen from the two states hosted by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex.

The federal official said also he had discussed with the oilmen ways of improving domestic energy production.

Several of the oilmen, emerging from the three-hour session, appeared relieved and called Zarb "a good man" who "knew what he was talking about."

After the session, Zarb said these meetings were doing what he felt they would — "bring out a better understanding of what the facts are."

"Sen. Tower has been telling me that we should get out in the oil patch and see the people that make it all work," Zarb said.

Zarb said he was able to explain some of the programs under which the oil industry is now operating.

Zarb said he told the oil operators that President Ford would veto any natural gas deregulation bill that contained the unacceptable items in the one recently passed by the House.

"We hope to have a true deregulation bill," he said, but he added there would be little forthcoming in the way of natural gas de-regulation before summer.

He said there is a "need to put Americans to work" to help the country become energy self-sufficient.

'How-To' Guide Issued For Women Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new "how-to" guide for women considering running for public office offers tips for potential candidates, including a suggestion that young children not to be too visible during the campaign.

"They may bring to voters' minds strong feelings that the candidate belongs at home," the pamphlet states.

Sponsored by the National Federation of Republican Women, the 71-page guide is a collection of practical advice for would-be female candidates. Except for promoting several prominent GOP women and a few final pages pushing the Republican party, the book's suggestions apparently could be used by women of any political persuasion.

Written by Sally Goodyear Siddon, a freelance writer from Alexandria, Va., the guide states that women often have more trouble running for office than men.

The reason?

Women often feel they have to be more successful than men, more responsible, more dedicated and more moral, the guide suggests.

The author reports the most common complaint of women running for office is the difficulty of raising money. She poses some questions to be answered before a woman declares her candidacy, such as "Who can you expect to contribute?" and "Who is the most effective fundraiser you know?"

In a chapter on the husband and the family, the guide suggests the potential candidate make sure she has her family's support: "It could be deadly for a candidate to tell people how supportive her husband is — only to find him telling people that her campaign is upsetting his whole life."

The potential candidate should undertake some painful self-analysis, the guide suggests. "Consider whether you are able to meet people easily; whether you are a good public speaker; whether your appearance is all it should be; whether your health is good; whether your personal finances are in order; whether your background bears scrutiny."

Mrs. Siddon, who federation officers say has not run for public office, also offers advice on getting legal counsel, volunteers, public relations and, finally, votes.

"Don't get carried away with trying to educate voters," she writes. "Concentrate on winning their support. ... Concentrate on giving an impression of confidence, even if you are scared to death."

Washington Inks First Patent Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — When George Washington signed the first patent bill April 10, 1790, the United States became the first nation to recognize by law that inventors had a right to profit from their inventions. Prior to that law, inventors were dependent upon privileges granted by a monarch or through a special act of legislature.

According to Intellectual Property Owners Inc., a group seeking to create public awareness of an effective patent system, responsibility for granting patents was placed upon a board whose first members consisted of Thomas Jefferson, Secretary of State; Henry Knox, Secretary of War and Edmund Randolph, Attorney General.
