Final arguments heard in Kerrville

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — The soul of a hitchhiker who prosecutors say was tortured to death and burned on a Hill Country ranch will not rest until his killers pay for what they did, jurors were told today.

"We may never know the true cause of Anthony Bates' death," prosecutor Gerald Carruth said in closing arguments of the nine-week organized crime trial. "All that remains of Anthony Bates are spread out before you on the jury box."

Nodding toward small plastic vials of bone fragments found at the ranch, Carruth said, "We know he's not with us, but we know his soul is out there somewhere and will not rest until those responsible are brought to justice."

Final arguments were scheduled to conclude later today, with the jury expected to begin deliberations afterwards.

Nuns, missionary kidnapped

ZAMBOANGA, Philippines--(AP)Soldiers searched a southern Phillipine island today for a U. S. missionary and 10 Filipino nuns kidnapped by armed Moslem bands, but reported no contact with the missing or their abductors, an army official said.

Brig. Gen. Pedro Balbanero, deputy chief of the army's Southern Command, said officials also appealed to residents of Marawi, considered the capital of the Philippines' 5 million Moslems, for assistance in finding the 11 people kidnapped in separate incidents on Mindanao island.

The American missionary, Brian Lawrence, 30, of Madison, Wis., was abducted from his dormitory room at Mindanao State University in Marawi Saturday night.

Carol Ann Lawrence, the protestant missionary's wife, was able to hide in a cabinet in the room before the kidnappers, about 20 heavily armed men, entered and dragged her husband away, Balbanero said.

On Friday, the Roman Catholic nuns, members of the Carmelite order, were abducted from their hilltop convent about two miles from the university, Balbanero said.

Witness said they saw armed men lead the nuns--the mother superior, six nuns and three novices--from their convent and take them away in two motorboats.
them away in two motorboats.

Balbanero, who is based in Zamboanga, 170 miles northwest of Marawi, told reporters the military has sent out five small teams of soldiers to hunt for the kidnappers and their victims. A battalion is on standby, he said.

In addition, the governor of Lana del Sur provinces has asked the province's 37 mayors and their police chiefs to join the search.

No group has claimed responsibility for the kidnappings, which Balbanero said appeared aimed at embarassing the 4 ½-month-old government of President Corazon Aquino.

Alan Croghan, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy, said the embassy was in touch with local authorities and was considering whether to send an American representative to Marawi, 510 miles south of Manila, the capital.

Sales tax declines with May

For the second month in a row, Snyder's sales tax return has shown a decline — but a stronger showing earlier in the year was again sufficient to keep the year-to-date figure at a plus 8.4 percent.

The recently released figure from the Texas Comptroller — which reflects buying here during May — indicated consumer spending was down some 14 percent this year compared to last during the month.

The same estimate for April had consumer purchases at some 11 percent less.

This downward trend was sufficient to drop the year-to-date figure from its high of a plus 15.6 percent to the current level of plus 8.4 percent.

In actual dollars, the state sales tax has returned some $494,000 to the city this year compared to some $456,000 at the same time last year. The exact figures for each are $494,553 and $456,106.

The monthly return for May equaled almost $51,000 this year compared to just over $59,000 last year. During April, the recent monthly return was almost $49,000 compared to more than $55,000 last year.

April and May reflect the only months during 1986 when Snyder's sales tax return has been less than the previous year.

Across the state, the comptroller's office sent checks totaling some $56.6 million in local sales tax payments to the 1,015 cities that levy the one-percent city tax.

The largest check went to Houston with a monthly return of $8.8 milliion, down some 4 percent from last year.

Area cities both larger and smaller than Snyder received sales tax payments which indicated economic activity either near or slightly less than last year's total. Examples of these include:

—Lubbock: plus 2.3 percent with $7.5 million returned to date compared to $7.4 million last year. The monthly return this year compared to last was $875,787 and $795,500 respectively.

—Abilene: minus 3 percent with $4.5 million returned to date compared to $4.6 million last year. The monthly return this year compared to last was $487,767 and $519,435 respectively.

—San Angelo: plus 2.4 percent with $3 million returned to date compared to $2.9 million last year. The monthly return this year compared to last was $326,255 and $343,537 respectively.

—Big Spring: minus 0.77 percent with $855,749 returned to date compared to $862,363 last year. The monthly return this year compared to last was $79,207 and $85,081 respectively.

—Snyder: plus 8.4 percent with $494,553 returned to date compared to $456,106 last year. The monthly return this year compared to last was $50,990 and $59,306 respectively.

—Sweetwater: minus 4.1 percent with $391,321 returned to

Counselor seeks out 'what scares you'

By VICKI BROWN
SDN Staff Writer

There's a new fellow in town who likes to hear about what scares you, but don't let that make you nervous.

His speciality is fear — specifically a wide variety of anxieties triggered by common experiences and grouped under the name "phobias."

Ron Lepard, a Big Spring licensed professional counselor, recently opened an office locally. Among the services he offers is group therapy to persons overcome by phobias.

Fear attached to a phobia is much more intense than the fear usually caused by a temporary situation. Most fear can be characterized by momentary uneasiness, a pounding heart or sweating.

Fear associated with phobias, however, is generally accompanied by severe anxiety attacks — sometimes characterized by acute uneasiness, disorientation, paralysis, fainting or feelings that the individual is mentally ill or going to die.

Often the anxiety attack can be triggered simply by anticipating the object of fear before actually meeting it.

Lepard explained that phobias can develop around any item or situation — from insects to crowds of people.

Psychologists and psychiatrists have assigned clinical labels to such phobic states, such as claustrophobia, the fear of closed places; acrophobia, the fear of high places; and agoraphobia, the fear of open spaces.

Regardless of the type, most phobias tend to be learned responses to particular situations.

Clinicians have struggled since the 1920s to find effective treatments for phobia sufferers. Mary Cover Jones developed the first laboratory treatment procedure sometime in the mid-1920s by using enjoyment to help a young boy overcome his fear of rabbits.

In the late 1940s, Dr. Joseph Wolpe employed deep muscle relaxation techniques developed by Edmond Jacobson in 1938. By teaching these skills to his patients, he could help them overcome their particular phobia.

Lepard uses a series of relaxation techniques with his patients as well, in both individual and group therapy sessions.

"During treatment, we identify the fear. Then I teach people how to relax to counteract that fear," he said.

He also employs the "invivo" method as part of his treatment plan. "In the invivo method, the individual simply visualizes the

Commissioners offer club's meeting place

Commissioners offered Monday to allow members of the Scurry County 4-H Dog Club to meet each Saturday in the ag complex at the coliseum.

Commissioners noted that they would discuss the proposal with coliseum manager Charlie Yoast.

Some seven dog club members and three adult sponsors met with the court Monday. They noted that the club has been meeting the past four years.

Adult leader Sharyon Bond said the youth have been meeting outside in Towle Park each Saturday and were seeking a location indoors during adverse weather. "Right now, We don't hold class if the temperature drops below 32 degrees, if the wind is blowing more than 20 mph or if it's raining," she said.

The club's plans include hosting the state 4-H Dog Meet in the coliseum on Aug. 30. Kathryn Roberts, county extension agent, added that the meet will be set in Snyder again in 1987.

Jason Limmer, president for the group, also requested space to store equipment to be used in conjunction with state meet activities.

In addition, commissioners will determine a location in Towle Park for a Hall of Fame Walk for dog club members. Audra Bond

Smoking is banned

Individuals attending trial proceedings in either county court or district court will no longer be allowed to smoke or to bring food and drink items in the hallway outside the courtrooms effective Monday.

At Monday's commissioner's meeting, the court agreed to ban smoking and the consumption of beverages or food in the halls on the third and fourth floors of the courthouse.

The action came at the request of District Judge Gene Dulaney and District Clerk Polly Underwood

They noted damage incurred during court sessions last week.

Ruling party candidate takes lead in election for governor

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP) — The ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party has taken a strong lead in the bitterly contested governor's race in the northern state of Chihuahua, according to partial election results.

The National Action Party, the main opposition party, immediately criticized the results, calling the state-wide election on July 6 "a disgusting thing" that was tainted by fraud.

The state electoral commission said Sunday night that Fernando Baeza of the Revolutionary Party had 164,097 votes, or nearly 62 percent, to 94,784 votes, or nearly 31 percent, for Francisco Barrio, the National Action candidate.

The Popular Socialist Party won 1,462 votes and the Revolutionary Workers Party had 5,001.

Enrique Sanchez, administrative chief of the electoral commission, said the results were from five of the state's 14 districts. Additional tallies were expected Monday.

The ruling party, known by its Spanish initials as PRI, had claimed a sweeping victory in the elections shortly after the polls closed. National Action leaders complained that the voting was marred by ballot box stuffing and other voting irregularities.

Guillermo Prieto, state president of National Action, said Sunday night that the party was preparing documents to officially contest the elections and ask for an annulment of the vote.

"The results are not important because this is a vicious process from the beginning until now," he said. "This is a disgusting thing."

Leaders of the ruling party have denied that the election was marred by vote fraud and argue that the PAN officials are sore losers.

The electoral commission said the PRI won 22 of the 67 mayoralties at stake in the elections.

Sanchez said that Mario de la Torre, the PRI candidate for mayor of the state capital of Chihuahua, had 74,024 votes and Miguel Fernandez, the PAN candidate, had 61,782 votes. He said the results were virtually complete in that race.

Beauty contestant is stabbed by man

HOUSTON (AP) — The accused assailant of a 14-year-old year girl who was stabbed on her way to a teen beauty pageant was charged in the 1984 stabbing of a woman but was judged to be mentally incompetent, court records show.

In an interview from Hermann Hospital, Misty Morse said that halfway through her meal Friday afternoon at a southwest Houston fast-food restaurant, she went to the restroom located outside and was attacked by a man who beat and stabbed her.

The teen-ager was listed Sunday in stable condition recovering from stab wounds to the shoulder, back and both arms, said a hospital spokeswoman who asked not be to identified.

Miss Morse and her mother, Glenda Lee Morse, 34, had stopped to eat before going to a practice of the Miss Teen Houston pageant.

Miss Morse was about to leave the restroom when she heard someone knocking on the door.

"I thought it was my mom," she recalled, "so I turned off the light and opened the door to leave and this man lunges at me."

The man shoved her into the corner, threw her down and began punching and kicking her, she said.

"He started trying to rip my clothes off and I wasn't gonna go for that, so I started kicking back at him," the feisty 5-foot-7 teen said.

"Then he pulled out a knife and started having a heyday with me. But I wasn't going to stop fighting until he killed me.

"It was like fighting off a pit bulldog," she said.

The suspect, Joel Tyrone Carter, 36, was charged Saturday with attempted capital murder. He remained in the Harris County Jail without bond Sunday, according to jail spokesman Mike Heffler.

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

See neurologist about injuries

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband has been in two car accidents in the past year. In both, he either hit his head on the steering wheel or went through the windshield. He sustained no spinal injury, but continues to have blurred vision, severe headaches and nausea, and sometimes glass fragments come out of his forehead. Could remaining fragments cause his symptoms? He refuses to see a specialist, but he might take your advice.

DEAR READER — Without knowing the exact nature of your husband's injuries, I cannot comment on his visual difficulties and headaches, except to say that a concussion (brain bruise) would be a common cause for his symptoms. Glass fragments can appear in a healed wound for many months after an accident. Unless the shards caused internal damage, I doubt they are the source of his problems.

I think that he should see a neurologist for two reasons:

First, the specialist needs to define the extent of your husband's injuries. Was there a simple concussion or did he have a fractured skull? Was there bleeding to the brain that might contribute to his blurred vision and headaches? What other structures in the head might have been damaged? There are lots of questions that need answers.

Second, I'm concerned about why your husband had two serious car accidents within the past year. Did he have a small stroke or cardiac irregularity that might have affected his motor skills or judgment just before the accidents? Could his blurred vision and headaches be due to an underlying medical condition, and not at all to the accidents? Is there some health problem that should be corrected so that your husband can avoid further accidents in the future? Why does he refuse to see a specialist? Could this reflect a subtle change in his thought processes that might have come either from the accidents or from some undiscovered illness?

I hope that your husband will take my advice, because continuing symptoms after head injuries may be caused by treatable conditions.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My son, 12, had a 102-degree fever, white spots on his throat and was pale. The doctor did blood tests and said he had some kind of hepatitis — not A or B, but another kind. He didn't explain it too well. Will his blood be like that of people who have had hepatitis A or B? Why didn't my son turn yellow? What effect will this have in the future?

DEAR READER — You describe a throat infection associated with fever and, I assume, blood tests indicating liver inflammation. In my experience, the most likely diagnosis is infectious monocucleosis, a type of virus infection that can affect the lymph glands and spleen, as well as the liver. Patients with mono rarely become yellow or jaundiced because — despite the liver inflammation — the liver itself continues to function reasonably well.

Hepatitis is unusual in children in this situation. Moreover, if your son had hepatitis, I would expect type A (infectious). Type B (serum) is not common in youngsters. Apparently he had neither, so the doctor is left with two possibilities: non-A, non-B, which is very rare in children; or delta hepatitis, which is always seen in conjunction with hepatitis B.

I put my money on mono. This can be diagnosed — sometimes weeks after the infection has cleared — by a blood test. See if your son's doctor checked him for this common illness. Incidentally, if your son did have mononucleosis, he should recover completely and be relatively immune to catching it in the future.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report, WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT NURSING HOMES, offers a step-by-step guide to rating facilities and finding the best care available. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

Sargent art viewed in Museum

NEW YORK (AP) — The largest retrospective ever assembled of the work of John Singer Sargent (1856-1925) will be shown at the Whitney Museum of American Art Oct. 7, 1986, through Jan. 4, 1987.

The museum says the exhibition will "encompass the full range of the artist's career. More than 150 paintings, drawings, and watercolors, some of which have not been see publicly for many years, are being borrowed from museums and private collections in England, Scotland, France, Switzerland, Italy and the United States."

Sargent is best known for his full-length portraits of prominent English and American figures. The museum says these "will be well represented."

GROWING SHRIMP

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Shrimp harvesting is a booming industry, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce, but harvests of wild shrimp this year may not satisfy the high demand.

Aquaculture — also known as shrimp and fish harvesting — is expected to provide much of the additional shrimp needed to meet the demand.

One technological advance in aquaculture is production by Proyesto Corp. of a feed for shrimp larvae which supplies nutrients essential to shrimp growth.

An earthquake in 1693 killed an estimated 60,000 persons in Catania, Italy.

Class of 1981 reunion set

The class of 1981 has its five-year reunion planned for the weekend of July 18-19. The weekend will begin Friday at 7 p.m. with a reception at the Snyder National Bank Community Room. All former teachers of this class are invited to attend.

Saturday morning the reunion will start with a 10:30 brunch at Towle Park. That night a dinner and dance will be held at the Snyder Country Club, beginning at 7 p.m.

The cost for the weekend is $15 per person or $25 per couple. If you have not received your reservation form, or if you have pictures pertaining to this class, please call 573-9571, 573-3296 or 573-8347.

Penguins were called "strange geese" when they were first described in 1520 by the ship historian on Ferdinand Magellan's voyage around the world. During the following centuries, visitors from the Western world, including whalers and explorers, clubbed, boiled and ate the birds, turned their hides into clothing, and used their blubber for fuel.

HONORED WITH BABY SHOWER — Cindy Lee was honored with a baby shower July 1 at the Texas Electric Reddy Room. Hostesses were Gina Fogle, Edith Walker, Malinda Jones, Sue Blythe, Sandy Harlan, Bolt Browning, Joyce Barnes and Carolyn Cox. MORE VACANCIES

NEW YORK (AP) — Hotel occupancy rates in 1985 declined slightly from nearly 66 percent to 64.5 percent, and another slight decline is expected this year.

This is the conclusion of Laventhol & Horwath's 1986 outlook for the lodging industry, which says the major reason for the decline in occupancy is due to the continuing increase of available rooms.

Another 70,000 rooms are expected to be added this year, bringing the total to 2.82 million. Industry revenues also are expected to increase by 4.1 percent.

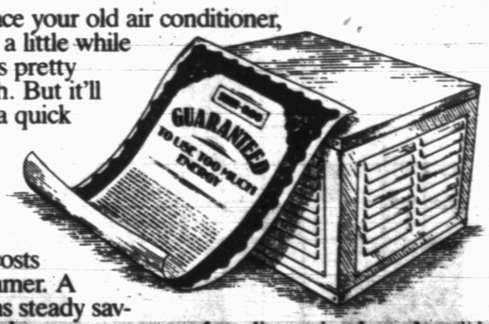
SOME PEOPLE BUY AIR CONDITIONERS LIKE THERE'S NO TOMORROW.

When it's time to replace your old air conditioner, it'll probably only take you a little while to find a new one that looks pretty good and doesn't cost much. But it'll take a lot longer to realize a quick bargain is likely to cause a slow burn on your wallet every month.



A high-efficiency air conditioner could make a difference in your cooling costs this summer and every summer. A high-efficiency choice means steady savings because you're getting the same amount of cooling using less electricity than with a low-efficiency unit. On top of this, you'll get a valuable rebate from your electric company if your central air conditioner or window unit meets our Energy Action standards.

See your recognized Energy Action air conditioning contractor or dealer for help in choosing a high-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump. Tomorrow, you'll be way ahead of the game.

It pays to choose an Energy Action Unit.

Sluggers gear up for Tuesday all-star game

HOUSTON (AP) — The American League is breaking out a new set of sluggers for the All-Star Game. Still, that may not be enough inside the Astrodome.

"This is a pitcher's park. It always has been," says Houston's Mike Scott, a member of the National League staff.

"Nobody hits well here," says starting NL third baseman Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia.

That was never more evident than the last time the All-Star Game visited Houston. In 1968, an AL lineup featuring Harmon Killebrew, Carl Yastrzemski and Frank Howard was held to three hits in a 1-0 loss.

On Tuesday night, rookies Wally Joyner and Jose Canseco will help the AL try to reverse a trend that has seen it lose 13 of the last 14 meetings and fall behind in the series 36-19-1. They'll have to do it against Dwight Gooden & Co. inside a place considered the worst hitter's park in the major leagues.

Home runs have been more frequent at the Astrodome since they pulled in the fences a couple of years ago. But, the slash-and-run style, something associated with NL ball, has always worked better than the hit-and-trot, an AL characteristic.

"Home runs are hard to come by here," says Schmidt, who has hit 477 career homers — but only 10 at the Astrodome. Two of those shots came Sunday in a game against Houston.

The top sluggers at the All-Star Game this year once again belong to the AL.

Canseco, an Oakland outfielder who is a reserve, leads the majors with 23 homers. California's Joyner, who will start at first base, has 20.

Starting catcher Lance Parrish of Detroit and reserve outfielder Jesse Barfield of Toronto have hit 21 each. They will be joined by Jim Rice, Don Mattingly, Cal Ripken and Dave Winfield.

Houston's Glenn Davis, a reserve first baseman, is the only player in the NL with 20 home runs this season. Schmidt is second with 18.

But, as the AL has found out all-too-often, big numbers do not win this ballgame. So what is the key ingredient?

Some say pitching. NL staffs led by Fernando Valenzuela and Gooden have held their rivals in check the past two years.

Others say attitude. After last season's game — a 6-1 victory for the NL in Minneapolis — several players on the winning side said their approach was more intense.

"It just seemed like in the National League, the teams were more enthusiastic. I don't know what to attribute that to," says San Diego reliever Rich Gossage, who worked the final inning of the last two All-Star Games for the NL. Gossage, not on the staff this season, pitched twice for the AL with the New York Yankees.

Winfield said he also noticed a difference in team spirit; but discounted the notion that the All-Star Game goes toward proving which league is superior.

"There's no reason why they keep winning," Winfield said. "It's not that they're better, it's not that they're any luckier. It's just a streak."

January wins in playoff

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP)--Don January tapped in a 1-foot par putt on the first playoff hole Sunday to defeat Jim Ferree and capture the Greenbrier-American Express senior tournament for the second straight year.

January shot a final-round 1-under-par 71 to finish at 9-under-par 207. Ferree, five shots back when the final round started, put together a 6-under-66 that included a hole-in-one on the 177-yard third hole.

Zoeller takes home $90,000

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)--Midway through the final round of the $500,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic, Fuzzy Zoeller looked up at the leaderboard and spotted the one ingredient necessary for him to win the tournament.

"Nobody was moving," said Zoeller, who began Sunday's play at three under par, five shots behind the leaders, and had moved to six under after nine holes.

Zoeller put together four more birdies on the back nine and finished the tournament with a 274 total, 10-under-par and two strokes ahead of Jodie Mudd.

Zoeller earned $90,000 for his third victory of the year and 10th of his 14-year career. The purse boosted his 1986 earnings to $332,883. Joey Sindelar was third at 277 after a 67 Sunday.

Women's Open playoff today

KETTERING, Ohio (AP)--The champion of the 41st U.S. Women's Open golf tournament was either a professional who didn't pick up a golf club until she was 17 or a seasoned veteran of competition on three continents.

The title was to be decided today in an 18-hole playoff.

Jane Geddes, a late-blooming 26-year-old who has never won a professional tournament, and Sally Little, struggling against illnesses and injuries which have stifled a promising career, were the only players left in the chase for the title after 72 holes over the 6,243-yard, par-72 NCR Country Club layout.

At stake is the $50,000 first prize and the most prestigious championship in women's golf. Both players finished the rain-plagued 72-hole tournament Sunday with 1-under-par 287 totals. Geddes had a final-round 69 and Little shot a 70 to set up their head-to-head meeting.

Fish tourney won by three strokes

Bob Stangby, a former Western Texas College golfer, teamed up with Pat Doran of Snyder to capture first place in the championship flight of the Earl Fish Memorial Golf Tournament.

The pair shot a 62-69 for a 131 total for the win.

The two-day event saw some 60 teams compete for the top spots in six flights Saturday and Sunday at the Snyder Country Club.

Taking second were Jake Broyles and Jerry Staggs at 63-71- 134 with Van Whatley and Don Osborne placing third at 63-72-135. David Holt and John Boren captured day money with a 69.

Top winners in the president's flight were Johnny Powell and Alton Patterson with a 67-72-139. Wesley Key and Rick Hall had to settle for second with a 65-74-139 followed by D.R. Richards and Rob Hall at 69-74-143. Dalton Walton and Mark Duke took day money by shooting a 73.

Joe Fowler and Phil Fortune garnered first place honors in the first flight with a 69-71-140. Herb Reed and John Reed placed second with a 70-73-143 followed closely by Donnie Newman and Glenn Patterson at 70-74-144. Day money went to Hank Jordan and Bush Jordan with a 73.

In the second flight, Brett Creeser and David Sisson's consistency led them to the first place spot with a 72-74-142. Mike Wells and Jimmy Wadkins took second with a 66-77-143. Although leading with a 65 after the first day of play, John Medlicott and David Sharrock slipped to 78 in the second round to settle for 143 and a third place finish. Harold Lacik and Don Sealy captured day money with a 78.

Bud Feagen and Bill Stuckey's 71-76-147 was enough to take first place honors in the third flight. Ricky Williams and R. Bownds placed second with a 73-79-152 followed by Ricky Daniell and Eddie Epley at 74-82-156. Day money went to Drew Bullard and Frank Grimmett with an 82.

In the fourth flight, Cary Coffee and Bob Jones paired for the win with a 75-78-153. The team of Rex Robinson and Leon Autry and the team of L.A. Berry and Powell Berry took second and third with a 74-81-155 and a 77-82-159 respectively. Don Dollins and R.O. Gray captured day money.

Rangers back on track

CLEVELAND (AP) — Larry Parrish didn't take it personally when the Cleveland Indians walked Gary Ward intentionally to get to him in the 10th inning, but he did make them regret it.

Parrish lined a single through the right side of the infield to drive in the tiebreaking run Sunday as the Texas Rangers defeated the Indians 5-3.

"I don't feel anything personally about a situation like that. It's just a baseball move," said Parrish, who had also been walked intentionally two innings earlier to set up a double play.

Pete O'Brien singled leading off the Texas 10th against reliever Scott Bailes, 7-5. Pete Incaviglia's groundout off Ernie Camacho moved O'Brien to second with one out, so Camacho walked Ward to set up the force play.

"I'm a good double-play man. I don't have a lot of speed," Parrish said. "It was a good percentage move."

But with a 1-2 count, Parrish poked the ball between first and second to drive in O'Brien and send Ward to third. Ward scored an insurance run on Steve Buechele's forceout.

"He (Camacho) made a good pitch to me, a fastball down and away," Parrish said.

Hostages' family always remember

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Relatives of Americans held captive in Lebanon joined hundreds of other people at a music festival designed to honor the hostages and keep attention focused on their plight.

Mayor Ken Schultz on Sunday welcomed the families "on behalf of all the freedom-loving citizens of Albuquerque." He said the Freedom Awareness Latin Music Festival, which featured Latin bands, was being held to remind the nation during its celebration of 210 years of freedom that not all Americans are free.

Among those attending was Sue Franceschini, sister of the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, 51, who served as a pastor in Belen before moving to Lebanon, where he was abducted last year.

"I feel him here with you and with so many people here today that knew my brother. And he touched your lives, and now you have touched ours," Mrs. Franceschini, of Joliet, Ill., told the crowd.

Also held in Lebanon are Terry Anderson, 38, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press; Thomas Sutherland, 54, acting dean of agriculture at the American University; and David Jacobsen, 54, director of the American University Hospital. William Buckley, 57, a U. S. Embassy political officer, reportedly was killed, but his death has not been verified.

Jacobsen's 30-year-old son Eric performed a song he and his brother, Paul, wrote "not only for my father, but for all the hostages and anyone who's been separated from a loved one."

Jacobsen, of Huntington Beach, Calif., urged the audience to request that local radio stations play the song, "When the Word Comes."

"It's a simple way that we can keep this in front of the general public," he said.

Jacobsen said he thinks the U.S. government lacks a sense of urgency in freeing the hostages.

"Up until the TWA hijacking, I don't think President Reagan really mentioned the hostages," Jacobsen said. "But I don't want to get into criticizing the president, because I think he really is concerned.

"But at the same time, we have to keep a fire lit under everybody — not just the State Department or government officials — to keep up a sense of urgency."

Mae Mihelich, also a sister of Jenco, was more critical of the government's role, but said she believed demonstrations such as the one here can play a role in the hostages' release.

"Quiet diplomacy was the name of the game," Mrs. Mihelich said of officials' response to her brother's abduction. "But quiet diplomacy does not mean doing nothing."

Sutherland's daughter, Kit, also attended the festival.

Anderson's sister, Peggy Say, canceled her appearance after Magrgaret Papandreou, wife of Greek premier Andreas Papandreou, invited her to that country to make private and public appeals for the release of the hostages. Mrs. Say, of Batavia, N.Y., was scheduled to leave today for Greece.

Festival coordinator Mark Ipiotis said this is the second in a series of Latin music festivals sponsored by local rado station KANW, but the first one dedicated to the hostages.

"We're not going to plan another annual freedom festival because we anticipate they'll be released before that," Ipiotis said. "But we will have another when they're set free."

Cartoonist attends comic book confab

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Conventioneers at a comic book show and trade fair sought autographs from a 30-year-old artist who has drawn cartoons about Indiana Jones, Darth Vader, the Incredible Hulk, Batman and Superman.

Sam de la Rosa has been keeping the unusual company for the past four years.

Divers discover floating spacesuit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A lone NASA flight suit, floating eerily 87 feet below the ocean's surface, was the marker that told two Cocoa Beach divers they had found space shuttle Challengers crew cabin, the divers say.

Mike McAllister and Terry Bailey, divers for Petchem Inc., an Air Force contractor, recall picking their way through a mass of mangled metal when the spacesuit appeared out of the heap of rubble.

The spacesuit "was in the pile and it was pinned down underneath some debris," McAllister said in interview with the newspaper Florida Today. "It was full of air and the legs were floating up toward the surface."

The divers plunged into the ocean Feb. 7, a week after the shuttle's explosion on Jan. 28, to investigate a sonar contact at the discovery site. Two earlier dives to search for the crew cabin and a $100 million satellite were unsuccessful.

With the exception of the suit, the divers had found nothing easily identifiable that would indicate they were near the crew cabin.

"It was just like a bomb had gone off in an airplane or something," McAllister said in the interview, published in Sunday's editions.

McAllister, who worked in the shuttle program for four years, knew flight suits were not worn by the seven Challenger astronauts during launch but were stored in the crew cabin's mid-deck for use in orbit.

With six minutes left on their oxygen, McAllister and Bailey marked the location of their find with a buoy and returned to their ship, the LCU, about 18 miles northeast of Cape Canaveral.

The rest of the task of recovering the cabin parts and the astronauts' remains was turned over to the U.S. Navy divers aboard the USS Preserver.

Board approves certificate plan

AUSTIN (AP) — Supporters of the proposal called it a "certificate of completion." But opponents said it was merely "something less than the real thing."

The State Board of Education, in a 7-6 vote, decided Saturday against allowing districts to award the certificates in 1987 and 1988 to students who earn the necessary credits for high school graduation, but fail the state's exit-level test.

Minority members of the board said the certificates could be used to move black and Hispanic students out of school without a real diploma.

"We are giving them nothing," Mary Helen Berlanga of Corpus Christi said of the certificates of completion.

The three Hispanic and one black board member at the Saturday meeting voted against the plan that had been backed by a board committee.

Emmett Conrad of Dallas, the black board member present, said, "Of what value is a certificate of attendance." He called the certificate "something less than the real thing," and said it would give a false impression to the student and his or her family.

The 1984 Texas school reform act barred diplomas to students who fail that test, even if they have all credits needed for graduation. Lawmakers rejected proposals similar to the certificate of completion for students who fail the TEAMS test.

Jack Strong of Longview, chairman of the board committee that proposed the plan, said the certificates are a fair way to deal with students who meet all the requirements that were in place when they started high school.

Board member Geraldine Miller of Dallas said the certificate would be an important accomplishment for "slow learners" who cannot pass the exit test.

"This may be the biggest thing and it may be the only thing in that child's life that he is going to accomplish," she said. "I don't perceive it as a dumping ground. I don't perceive it as a cop-out."

Katherine Pearcy Raines, board member from Cleburne, said the certificate could be "a carrot to say stay in school one more year" for students who otherwise might drop out because they had no hope of earning a diploma.

But Ms. Berlanga said, "We're putting the wrong kind of carrot out there."

"This is opening up an area for the masses of students to graduate and not receive diplomas. The masses will be minority students. This is nothing more than consolation to administrators who feel compelled to give youngsters something after 12 years and some consolation to parents who want to see their children walk across the stage," she said.

Pete Morales Jr., board member from Devine, said the certificates would be "a giant step backwards in education" for minorities.

Voting against the proposal were Ms. Berlanga, Conrad, Morales, Rebecca Canning of Waco, Maria Elena Flood of El Paso, Jon Brumley of Fort Worth and William McBride of San Antonio.

Voting for the proposal were Ms. Miller, Ms. Raines, Strong, Carolyn Honea Crawford of Beaumont, Paul Dunn of Levelland, John Mack Prescott of College Station.

Also Saturday the board approved passing scores for the Examination for Certification of Educators, administered for the first time in May to more than 6,000 college graduates who want to teach.

Graduates must pass the exam to get a state teaching license.

More than 80 percent of the people who took the test passed it. Tests were given in 34 subject areas.

steps involved in his fear. For example, if he were afraid of riding in an elevator, he would visualize walking to it, pressing the button, going up to each floor and so on."

Lepard added he also plans to encourage individual group members to accompany one another in real-life situations. "Each one can help the other overcome his fears by participating with him," he said.

Lepard noted that although a group situation might be intimidating to some persons, group therapy can offer them additional support. "Sometimes people feel ashamed of their phobias," he explained. "In the group, individuals can identify with one another and help each other understand that they don't have to be."

He encourages persons who suffer any form of phobia to seek help. "So many (people) feel like there's no hope out there and they're not going to venture out. They need to understand that there is treatment."

To people who know phobia sufferers, Lepard advises, "Detach the person from the stigma. Most people look at the phobia and think 'How silly.' They need to think about a time in their own lives when they have been in a situation that produced high anxiety, like narrowly avoiding being hit by a car. If they can understand that a person with a phobia has those attacks of anxiety, maybe they can better sympathize with him."

Lepard holds a bachelor of arts degree in psychology from Texas Tech University and a master of arts degree in psychology from Stephen F. Austin University. A counselor with the Big Spring Mental Hospital for the past 10 years, he was affiliated with the mental health clinics in Post and Snyder.

Group therapy sessions for phobics are offered each Tuesday evening at 6 p.m. at 1911 25th St.

Dear Abby

Spartacus Ready to Fight Abuses in Nursing Homes

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter from "Helpless," who said she couldn't send gifts to her mother in a nursing home because they would be stolen. The management claimed that this was beyond their control and they could not be responsible for it, since it was "standard."

This is a lie. Theft is not a normal part of the aging process. The trauma for anyone to have a wedding ring stolen can be considerable. For an elderly widow or widower, it can be devastating. Unfortunately, theft is the least of the abuses that occur in nursing homes. Once you accept theft as "normal," it is easier to accept bedsores, rapes and broken bones from beatings as "normal."

I learned a great deal about nursing homes while doing research for "Amos," a television movie. I was horrified at the real-life abuses I discovered and spoke up. I received a flood of letters from the nursing home industry, vilifying me personally and telling me that I didn't know what I was talking about. I also received hundreds of heartbreaking letters from people who had had hideous experiences with nursing homes.

I turned some of these letters over to the authorities, and one — a murder — to the police.

Answering all that mail was difficult. It was like writing hundreds of condolence letters. I got a small taste of what it must be like to be Dear Abby. I respect your stamina.

"Helpless" said that her mother was "attached" to some of the staff. Of course she was attached to them; she's dependent on them. But they are stealing from her.

Over an 11-year period, a trusted woman employee embezzled $173,000 from 32 elderly servicemen living at the U.S. Soldiers' and Airmen's Home in Washington, D.C.

Of course there are some good nursing homes. My mother, at her own request, spent her last seven years in one, and she was very well-cared for. But you don't have to be related to a movie star to be well-cared for. The non-profit nursing home where we filmed "Amos" had an excellent reputation, but it also had a three-year waiting list. I am sure those who operate good nursing homes are not happy about those in their profession who break the law and get it off as standard industry practice.

"Helpless" is not helpless. Nursing home records are open to the public. Before deciding on a nursing home, you should go to your local department of health and ask to see the state inspection reports of the facility you are considering. These will include any complaints and fines for violations.

If you have a problem with a nursing home, contact the state ombudsman through your state's Department of Aging; he or she will refer you to the local ombudsman. This is a federal program in every state set up specifically to investigate and resolve complaints in nursing homes and in board and care homes. Many of the ombudsmen are volunteers — retired nurses, doctors or pharmacists. They do it because they care. They are confidential and discreet. In some states, such as California, not allowing the ombudsman into a nursing home is a crime.

The last week in June was "Elder Abuse Awareness Week" in Los Angeles. We need a "National Elder Abuse Awareness Week" — 52 weeks a year.

Making the public aware of a bad situation is the only way to change it. Thank you, Abby, for bringing this hidden horror to light. You may use my name.

KIRK DOUGLAS

DEAR MR. DOUGLAS: Thank you for an excellent, informative letter and kudos for caring enough to write.

Davis denies Wilborn's claim

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The father of a young girl slain 10 years ago in the mansion of industrialist Cullen Davis said last week that Davis recently asked his forgiveness "for what I did." Davis denies making such a request.

"Cullen did come to me and ask me to forgive him," Jack Wilborn told The Associated Press.

Through an attorney, Davis acknowledged the meeting with Wilborn but said he did not ask forgiveness for the slaying, nor did he admit any role in it.

The Davis case dates back to a summer night in 1976 when a "man in black" invaded the isolated hilltop Davis mansion and gunned down four people, killing two, including 12-year-old Andrea Wilborn.

Davis, then the richest U.S. citizen to be tried for murder, was acquitted in the child's death and was not brought to trial for the other shootings. He did not testify at the murder trial but asserted his innocence outside the courtroom.

Describing his exchange this spring with Davis, Wilborn said:

"He did not say, 'I want you to forgive me for murdering Andrea.' His words were: 'Could you forgive me for what I did?' "

Wilborn, a born-again Christian, said he replied: "Cullen, I forgave you a long time ago."

Authorities told the AP the Wilborn-Davis exchange has no significance legally as far as criminal charges are concerned.

"Cullen could stand up on the pulpit and admit the whole thing and there wouldn't be a damn thing we could do about it," said Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry, whose office prosecuted Davis.

Curry said that there is no statute of limitations on capital murder, but the state's "Speedy Trial Act" would preclude prosecution at this late date.

There are no criminal charges pending against Davis but several civil suits by Wilborn and others against the millionaire remain active.

Asked for what Davis sought forgiveness, Wilborn said, "The only thought I had was Andrea's death. There was no question about what he was talking about."

Wilborn's wife Betty, Andrea's stepmother, told the AP that Davis grabbed and hugged her and said, "Betty, I want you to know how sorry I am for all the pain I've caused you. Can you ever forgive me for what I've done?"

The Wilborns said the emotional confrontation occurred at the conclusion of a Sunday night, interdenominational church service in Dallas. The three wept openly, the AP was told.

"I had to forgive him to have any peace," said Wilborn, a Fort Worth car dealer. "It probably was the most difficult thing I ever did in my life. You know how much that little girl meant to me.

"I think of her constantly."

Wilborn, who once said he considered killing Davis, asserted that there is "nothing in the world that will destroy a person more than hate, and I had a lot of in me."

In researching a story on the 10th anniversary of the mansion shootings, the AP heard reports that Davis met Wilborn this year in church and asked forgiveness. The AP obtained a first person account from Wilborn, who first declined comment before seeking legal advice.

Davis did not return phone calls from the AP but later denied through Dallas lawyer Steve Sumner that his request for forgiveness involved the death of Andrea.

Instead, Davis said, he approached Wilborn to forgive him for his activities years ago.

Berry's World

"Lighten up will ya, fella — can'cha see we're havin' a little party?"

No-disaster status said not surprising

WINNIE, Texas (AP) — Hurricane Bonnie reduced a huge greenhouse to a pile of glass and twisted metal and damaged at least 40 homes when it hit, but to the people that count, that's not enough damage for a disaster declaration.

Mike Gaspard says his 30-by-96-foot greenhouse, built to boost his produce business, was turned into a pile of nothing.

"I started with nothing, so I guess we'll have to start over again," Gaspard said.

But Gaspard won't be getting any help from the government.

On Friday, the Small Business Administration denied the state's request to name Jefferson County and its adjacent counties disaster areas. That designation would have helped homeowners get low-interest loans to repair Bonnie's damage.

The SBA said it couldn't find the required 25 homes and-or businesses in the county with a 40 percent uninsured loss attributable to the hurricane — the minimum requirement for the declaration.

Jefferson County Emergency Management Coordinator Dick Nugent said he had an "intuition from the beginning" that the county would not qualify for the low-interest loans, the only federal or state assistance anyone expected to draw after Bonnie.

"I was trying to let the folks down gentle because I thought I read this in the very beginning," he said.

Nugent said he thought an SBA construction analyst conducted a "random sampling" and turned in about 12 houses and three businesses on a report to the SBA office.

McDonald's has Welding Machines and Supplies

McDonald Welding Supply has gained a reputation for service, and for good reason. The staff at McDonald Welding Supply comes early and stays late. This is especially important to the area's busy oil fields, and this is why so many companies have depended on McDonald Welding Supply for their supply needs.

The firm serves an area bounded by Sweetwater to Loraine to Colorado City and Big Spring and back to Snyder. The Company has three 18 foot bobtail trucks for delivery to farms, businesses and well locations.

In stock at McDonald Welding Supply is the Milfer and Lincolin Welding equipment line, which includes small engine drives and electric machine for farm and home use. They also have a large stock of smaller welders. They vary in size and can fit in the rear of a foreign truck as well as a two-ton truck. In addition, they carry Victor and Uniweld welding and cutting equipment and Walton vises.

If you need steel for oilfield fabrication, you can find exactly what you need at McDonald Welding Supply. The firm has a complete line of Milwaukee heavy duty electric drills and grinders. They have Williams hammer wrenches and heavy tools.

Safety equipment of all types is stocked including goggles, first aid kits and refills, hard hats, liners and fire extinguishers. This popular business also stocks chains, cable, tubing and chain hoists. They have recently added a complete line of Grade "8" Hard Bolts and Nuts in sizes from 5/16 to 1 ¼. Blocks as well as all types of pulleys may be added to the list.

The available list of supplies is almost endless, just ask for it. Stop by and see Gayle or Jack McDonald and the staff at McDonald Welding Supply, 1110 College Ave.
