Al Espinosa Takes Lead In El Paso Open, Leading Tommy Armour, Smith and Brilliant Field In Round

Professionals Honored At Dinner In Juarez; Bright Sunshine Adds Zest.

EL PASO, Jan. 21.—Leading Tommy Armour, national open champion, and MacDonald Smith, winner of the Los Angeles open, by five strokes, Al Espinosa of Chicago, turned in a brilliant 69—four under par—on his second round this afternoon, to take the lead in the second annual El Paso open golf tournament.

Coupled with the 75 card he turned in for the first 18 holes of the 72-hole match, Espinosa has a total of 144 for the 36, just two strokes ahead of Larry Nabholz of Cleveland, and Bill Burke of New York. Nabholz shot par golf for the day, making 104 rounds in 72 par for the course.

Puzzling Rules In Basketball

The Lubbock Morning Avalanche will carry a series of questions and answers on basketball rules, as served by James Nichols, editor of A. G. Spalding's, rules for basketball. These tips and explanations of the rules will assist players, officials, coaches, and fans.

Q.—A substitute on the floor, does not report to the referee, and communicates with a team mate. How many fouls should be called? A.—Only one, Rule 15, Sec. 2.

Q.—A substitute, after reporting to the referee, stations himself near the side lines while waiting for play to start. The coach then remembers some additional information he wishes to report to him, calls him to the edge of the court and talks to him. Has a foul been committed? A.—Yes. Once the substitute reports to the referee he is legally in the game and any subsequent communication with the coach is a technical foul. This foul should be called on the coach and charged to the captain of the team. Rule 15, Sec. 7.

Q.—During the progress of the game one team makes a substitution. The captain of the opposing team asks the referee what position the new man is to play, and how their lineup is to be changed. Should the referee give him this information? A.—There is no place in the rules where it says that a referee must give such information. The proper thing is not to do so. The substit-

Westerners Win Off Monroe Five

Score Is 16 to 14 In Fast Game Played Following Tilt Between Matadors and Wayland Team.

Immediately after the college game in the Tech assembly hall last night, the Lubbock high school Westerners met the Monroe quint and by a very narrow count defeated the community five, the score being 16 to 14. Lubbock and Monroe have played several practice games this season and in each event there has been a very narrow margin.

The games played with the Monroe machine do not count in the county championship race as dates have been set aside for tournaments in which the county laurels will be at stake. The game having been played merely for practice and to test the relative strength of the two clubs prior to time for the meet.

Joe Powell, Western guard, and Exum, range pivot man for the Monroe machine, shared scoring honors with six points each.

Wade Hardy Will Run For Sheriff

Member Of Police Force Is Candidate; Statement Is Made; He Has Resided In County For 18 Years. Wade Hardy, a member of the Lubbock police force and a resident of the county for 18 years, will be a candidate for the office of sheriff of Lubbock county when the democratic primary election is held on July 28th. Mr. Hardy authorized the Avalanche-Journal to present his statement, which follows:

To The Public: I take this method of announcing that I will be a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Lubbock county, subject to action of the democratic primaries.

In announcing for Sheriff, I fully realize the responsibility of the office, having been on the police force of the city of Lubbock for the past five years. I know something of the duties of the office and feel that I am in every way qualified to fill same.

If elected Sheriff of our county in addition to the duties of attendance upon the various courts and serving papers in civil suits, I will personally see to it that the laws of the State of Texas are given strict enforcement in Lubbock county without bias or prejudice, fear or favor. I will appoint as my deputies a sufficient number of good men who not only can but will afford the protection to each and every person and his property that the laws of our state contemplate.

I will welcome the closest investigation of my official conduct as an officer for the past five years and my character and reputation as a citizen of Lubbock county for the past 18 years.

Believing that I am in every way qualified for the office I seek and believing in the democratic principle of, if the office is a good one it should be passed around and if not an office to be desired, then it should not be imposed upon the same person for too long a time.

Your sincere consideration, influence and active support towards my candidacy will be greatly appreciated. Sincerely, WADE HARDY.

Cupid Steps Ahead

Takes Commanding Lead With Four Marriages. Four marriage licenses issued from the office of the county clerk yesterday gave Cupid a commanding lead over divorcees for the first time this month.

Marriages have more than doubled the number of divorcees thus far this month, the count now being 23 marriage licenses as opposed to 11 divorce suits filed in the district courts.

Those receiving marriage licenses yesterday are: Earl Parrack and Miss Lola Ruth Thompson, E. D. Norman and Miss Era Exum; John J. Ritchie and Miss Etta Mae Lindsey, H. B. Booker and Miss Mary Rich.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. McKinney, of Carlsbad, New Mexico, are to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Davis, 2006 Main, today. Mr. McKinney is a federal bank receiver and has been stationed at Carlsbad.

County Agent To Have Busy Week

Visits To Be Made to Several of Clubs by Miss Baird, Home Demonstration Agent. County Demonstration Agent Louise Baird will have an exceedingly busy time during the present week, according to a schedule mapped out.

Monday morning she meets with the girls' club of the Southwest Ward community; Tuesday morning in company with Miss Mabel Irwin, she will visit Southwest Ward and Wolfarth communities to judge entries in the living room improvement contest; Tuesday afternoon she will visit both girls' and women's clubs at Carlisle community; Wednesday she will meet with the New Hope girls in the morning and with the Posey girls in the afternoon; Thursday morning living rooms at Hardy community will be judged; and in the afternoon women's clubs at Woodrow and Southwest Ward will be visited; Friday morning the County Line community girls' club will be visited, and both girls and women of the Hardy community will be visited that afternoon.

In addition, she will meet in conjunction with the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association meetings four nights next week. Tuesday night at 7:30 women of the Wolfarth home demonstration club will meet with Miss Louise Baird, county demonstration agent, to make plans for the serving of one hot lunch daily to the children of the Wolfarth school. The meeting will be held at the schoolhouse. The program being planned for the occasion includes talks by Mrs. W. M. Blair, County Superintendent; W. M. Pevhouse, Miss Jonnie McCrary of Texas Tech college, and a program by the children of the school. M. F. Stephens, principal of the school, will preside. Mrs. Henry Schroeder is president of the women's club at Wolfarth.

The plan if carried out will give the school a higher rating in the standardization record for rural schools in Texas.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday by County Clerk Amos Howard to Earl Parrock and Miss Lola Ruth Thompson; John J. Ritchie and Miss Etta Mae Lindsey; E. D. Norman and Miss Era Exum; H. B. Booker and Miss Mary Rich.

Unrest For Farm Relief Crops Out

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The unrest of the house farm bloc over farm relief legislation was signalled in two directions today, with Kansas republicans joining the movement to surrender the equalization fee provision in the McNary-Haugen bill and other western members initiating tactics designed to obtain an upward tariff revision on agricultural staples.

Seeks Larger Tariff: At the same time Representative Dickinson, republican, Iowa, announced that several western members intended to introduce bills calling for higher tariff on agricultural commodities similar in many respects to the one he tossed into the house hopper yesterday.

CONTRACT MADE: CLOVIS, N. M., Jan. 21.—At a special meeting of the city commission held Wednesday night the New Mexico Construction company was awarded the contract for the extension of the sewer system in Clovis.

BUILDING BEGINS: ABILENE, Jan. 21.—Actual construction of the Humble Oil and Refining company's new warehouse and storage tanks, which will be located on the Albany highway, north of Abilene, began Thursday after a completion of the survey and locations were made.

NEW GAS LINE: AMARILLO, Jan. 21.—Plans are being made now for another large gas line from the Panhandle gas field to western Kansas.

Eaton Attends Meeting In Plainview When Various Committees Selected To Handle Show

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 21.—Plans for staging the first Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show at Plainview were drawn at the first meeting of the executive committee of the Dairy Show association in Plainview, Friday attended by D. P. Eaton, of Lubbock; P. C. Bennett, of Amarillo; R. C. Nichols, of Tulsa; Cass Stannell, of Floydada; T. L. Shepherd, of Hale Center; Frank R. Phillips, of Canyon; W. L. Stangel, of Lubbock; R. M. Milhollin and Winfield Holbrook, of Plainview; and Bob Anglin, of Tulsa.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the show, and according to D. P. Eaton, president of the show association, breeders all over the territory are arranging to have their best dairy stock at the show.

Publicity Committee: A publicity committee composed of Maury Hopkins, Frank R. Phillips, and Bob Anglin was appointed. A program committee composed of Maury Hopkins, W. L. Stangel, and P. C. Bennett was also appointed to arrange the show program.

RAIL MAGNATE HERE: New York Central Head In Texas. DALLAS, Jan. 21.—Although the New York Central lines do not directly serve Texas, Patrick R. IMPROVE POSTOFFICE: LORRENZO, Jan. 21.—New equipment and fixtures for the Lorenzo postoffice have been received and installed by Mrs. F. B. Hoopie, postmistress of the local office. The new fixtures consist of new boxes, a new delivery window, and a parcel post window. The new equipment adds to the looks of the office and will greatly facilitate the handling of mail. Mrs. Hoopie just recently received her appointment for another four year term. MASONS TO WORK: ABERNATHY, Jan. 21.—A Masonic school of instruction for the members who desire to become more proficient in the work of the order and for those who want to perfect their studies in the lodge, will be conducted throughout the week beginning Monday. Every member of the order is urged to attend the school of instruction. GINS ARE BUSY: ABERNATHY, Jan. 21.—The local gins turned out 192 bales of cotton here last week despite the wet weather during the first of the week. This makes the total ginnings for the three gins of Abernathy reach a total of 2,688. It is expected that more than 200 bales are yet to be ginned in this vicinity. RALLS BUILDING: RALLS, Jan. 21.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Ralls Municipal building this week the following directors were elected: P. B. Ralls, J. Ed McLaughlin, Roy Cooper, B. McKee, C. E. Dean. By a vote of the stockholders present at the meeting it was decided that the building should be finished in its entirety, with seats, stage, basketball court and everything completed. The building when completed will be one of the most beautiful buildings in Ralls and one of the greatest assets to the city. Large crowds can be adequately cared for and many feature programs, conventions, can be brought here. It is thought that the basketball courts of the building will be finished within the next few days and it is hoped that they will be completed for the county championship. INDEPENDENCE BLUE: A wool voile sports frock with flared skirt and nipped in at the waist bodice comes in the new Independence blue. The belt is of darker blue suede.

ROAD SESSION: Big Spring to Send Large Delegation. BIG SPRING, Jan. 21.—Twenty-five Big Spring business men will attend the highway meeting at San Angelo January 26. This is according to Joyce Fisher, chairman of the road committee of the Chamber of Commerce. A large twelve passenger bus owned by J. L. Maudlin will be used by a part of the delegation. Mr. Maudlin is donating the use of the bus as an evidence of his interest in good roads. The county judge of Howard county and his commissioners will be with the delegation of good road boosters. SHOE CONVENTION: Several From Lubbock To Attend Dallas Meet. Lubbock will be well represented at the convention of shoe salesmen which will be held in Dallas next week. Among those who will attend from this city are: Jack May, of Jack May's Shoe Store; Max Morris' Style Shop; Julius Lieberstein of Grolman's; and C. E. Yager of Yager's Shoe Store. COURT AT CROSBYTON: Pharr and Bradley to Leave Monday. Judge Homer L. Tahoka In Front Rank Of South Plains Communities

Lynn County Capital Now Has More Than One Claim To Glory; City Has Record Of Which People Are Proud

Schools And Churches Make Tahoka A Leader; C. Of C. And Kiwanis Club Are Strong

(By Staff Correspondent)
 TAHOKA, Jan. 21.—The city which once based its claim to glory on the slogan "The Smallest City in Texas With Paved Streets" now has myriad claims for honor even though its original slogan has been superseded. Tahoka is not the smallest city in Texas with paved streets today but that's not Tahoka's fault. The city has grown more rapidly than some others whose thoroughfares are hard surfaced but with that growth has come other improvements and now the capital of Lynn county has more than one right upon which to claim its contentions as one of West Texas' best and liveliest municipalities.

With more than 400 homes and a population of approximately 2,200 Tahoka is rapidly becoming one of the most important centers of a great territory. Its schools, its churches, its 22 blocks of paving, its chamber of commerce, court house and its live Kiwanis club are examples of the spirit of Tahoka and from the underlying foundation for what Lynn county people believe will some day be a great city.

Schools Are Fine
 Tahoka has "gone in" for schools. Realizing that where a city is to grow there must be adequate facilities for education, two ward school buildings, of a modern type, are now serving the children of grade school age and a new $100,000 high school building is in use. M. L. H. Beas is city school superintendent; Nat Williams is principal of the high school, E. I. Hill, publisher of the Lynn County News, is president of the school board and a faculty of 22 teachers is working diligently in the system. Lynn county is well supplied with rural schools, under the direction of County Superintendent H. P. Cavness.

Well supplied with churches, Tahoka has a Methodist church, of which Rev. Ike Broedlove is pastor, a Baptist congregation presided over by Rev. B. H. Shepherd; Rev. W. K. Johnson is pastor of the Presbyterian church and Mrs. Minnie Echols is in charge of the Nazarene congregation. The Church of Christ and the Christian church are also represented but at the present time their pupils are not filled.

The Chamber of Commerce, which has had as its volunteer secretary M. L. H. Beas, will hold its annual meeting Tuesday when, in addition to other matters the securing of a paid secretary will be a feature. The program for the meeting has been announced as follows, by the committee, composed of Happy Smith, M. L. H. Beas and Mrs. Paul Miller:

Meeting Program
 1. Song: "Brighten the Corner Where You Are."
 2. Invocation: Rev. B. N. Shepherd.
 3. Dinner.
 4. Band concert by Tahoka band, Monte Brown, director.
 5. Song hits: "Sweet Adeline," "There's a Long, Long Trail," "How Dye Do?"
 6. Address: William E. Wilson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Lamesa.
 7. Song: High school glee club.
 8. Tentative program for 1928—M. L. H. Beas.
 9. Business session.
 President J. A. Brashear will act as toastmaster. The program will begin promptly at 7:30. All members are urged to bring their wives and sweethearts.

The present officers and directors of the Chamber of Commerce are as follows: President, J. A. Brashear; vice president, R. P. Weather; acting secretary, Mrs. Paul Miller; directors, R. H. King, J. C. Wells, L. P. Craft, E. H. Boullion, J. K. Applewhite, Thos. H. Speight, B. R. Tate, E. I. Hill, C. B. Townes.

Kiwanians Are Active
 Tahoka has but one civic club, the Tahoka Kiwanis club, but the members of that organization are doing as much to keep Tahoka improving as several civic clubs are doing in some other places. W. E. Smith is president, Rev. B. N. Shepherd is vice president, Dr. C. B. Townes is district trustee, and R. W. Peniston is secretary. Its roster contains the names of 30 of the city's leading business and professional men.

There are 80 business houses in Tahoka, 6 gas and city has a $100,000 water system. Two designated highways, numbers 9 and 84, connect the city with the world at large and the Santa Fe railroad also runs through the city. Plans are being laid now for a $50,000 sewer system.

Here This Week

REV. THOMAS W. CURRIE

One of the foremost Bible teachers of the country, Rev. Thomas W. Currie, D. D., of Austin, president of the Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, will conduct Bible classes in Lubbock throughout this week, starting tonight. His special course will be offered the general public and will be held each evening of the week at the First Presbyterian church here.

At the present time there is a total of $120,000 in the city treasury.

A volunteer fire department, headed by Chief Homer Harrison, has made such a fine record that Tahoka's key rate for fire insurance is 40 cents per hundred. One chemical and one pumper truck make up the department's equipment.

A service for sending photographs by telegraph has just been started between Berlin and Vienna.

Politics Waxing Warmer As Lubbock Men Continue To Discuss National Issues; Moody's Chances Interesting

Both Democrats And Republicans Give Their Ideas Concerning Condition In Present Situation

Is Dan the man? Will it be Al and Dan, Al and Jesse, or Al and someone else? Will Hoover carry a Democratic, dry and protestant South? Will the solid South stick and go against its own principles? And on and on goes the questions as the nation's greatest political battle begins to settle for what is expected to be the greatest upheaval in party issues ever presented.

Lubbock, only a drop in a very large bucket, is deeply interested regardless of the fact that she will not have much effect on the issues one way or the other even in the state elections.

The situation, as summed up by various political enthusiasts of the city, is one which has no present outlook and which may be swung one way or the other in a moment's notice.

City Leaders Opt of Town
 Neither Dr. I. E. Barr, Republican chairman of the county or F. E. Wheelock, democratic chairman, could be interviewed on their political views this week but various other leading men in the city indicated that much thought is being given to the various issues here.

"Dan Moody will again be a candidate for the governor of Texas and he will again be governor," is the opinion of H. T. Kimbro, director of the Texas Technological college and one who is closely associated with various political leaders over the state. Mr. Kimbro says that he believes Moody will not even consider the acceptance of the nomination of the vice presidency and in the first place the Democrats will not even think of selecting a man from the solid South to carry the votes of Smith. Their man will be selected from some doubtful state where either party is likely to be supreme, he says. As for Al Smith's chances for the election and even the nomination, Mr. Kimbro had nothing to say.

Mayor Frank L. Parrish, a friend of Moody, stated that Dan Moody had too much sense to accept the nomination of the vice presidency. "He would be dead politically in Texas, if he accepted the nomination," Mr. Parrish said, "and as it is he can be in office in the state for many years."

Vaughan has been a close follower of the political issues, states that the situation as it now stands is somewhat perplexing. He says that he can see through the plotting of the Democratic convention in the South and in Texas, the stronghold of the South but he can not figure just how and why the Republican convention was placed at Kansas City when a west man is to be nominated. "Will the east which has always had their way about the nomination, come to Kansas City and nominate Hoover, a western man?" Mr. Vaughan asks. At any rate, whoever is nominated, he will be elected, Mr. Vaughan believes, naturally of course. Another question he raises is: "Will the southern Democrats, so long opposed the wet issue and the Catholic religion, go in and accept the nomination of Al Smith of New York for the presidency?"

Various other political races are under discussion daily in the city, according to investigations and indications point toward many heated arguments in the future as to the relative merits of each man. As to

BAKER BACK HOME

Furniture Man Makes Many Purchase On Long Trip

Norton Baker, owner and manager of the Baker Furniture company here returned Saturday from a trip to eastern and middlewest markets, where he made extensive purchases for his store which, he said, will give him in a short time one of the largest stock of furniture goods in this part of the state.

Mr. Baker visited Chicago, Grand Rapids, St. Louis, Little Rock and Dallas, he said, making purchases at each place. The new stock will begin arriving shortly, he said.

The local politics, nearly everyone was silent, stating occasionally that another would be the victor. Anyway, the fight is on and what a fight it will be!

Swine Breeders Association Laying Plans For Meeting Here This Week; Big Show At Tech Looms As Result

College Officials Helping Members With Plans; Best Show In History Of West Texas Expected

The annual sale and meeting of the Panhandle Swine Breeders association will be held in the stock judging pavilion at the Texas Technological college, Thursday and Friday, and officials of the association, of the Tech and of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce are busy working out the details of what is expected to be a big show.

R. E. Prewitt, secretary of the association of Tulsa, breeder of Duroc-Jersey swine, is in Lubbock conferring with W. L. Stangel, Dean A. H. Leidigh, Ray C. Mowery and others of the School of Agriculture at the college and with officials of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce as to details of the meeting.

Elated Over Prospects
 The association secretary is elated over prospects for a good sale. "This pavilion! It's my dream! It's the best place we have ever had, to hold a sale," Prewitt exclaimed when Stangel showed him the pavilion where the sale will be held.

Mrs. Al Smith Is Thrust Into The Limelight By Operation; New York Finds Her Alert And Conservative

Wife Of Governor Is Forced Into Public Eye Against Her Will; She Prefers To Remain In Background

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer
NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A possible candidate for "first lady of the land," Mrs. Al Smith went to a New York city hospital for an appendicitis operation the other day, and for once, through no fault of her own, found herself squarely in the spotlight.

Ordinarily, Mrs. Smith succeeds as well in making herself inconspicuous as her husband does in gaining attention. She is "the governor's wife" rather than the "first lady of New York." Yet Mrs. Smith is a very alert and well informed member of the Smith household.

But Always in the Background
Whenever Governor Al makes a speech it safely can be assumed that his wife is somewhere in the audience. She is a member of several Democratic organizations. She knows what problems are being thrashed out in both state and national politics—this though no one ever has heard Mrs. Smith "talk politics" publicly.

Despite very modern clothes and a modern background, Mrs. Smith evidently is "old fashioned" at heart. She believes her husband is a superior being, who doesn't need her advice as to running the state. She idolizes her children and adores her grandchildren.

One can't imagine Mrs. Smith making a speech, or reading a chapter in a Browning club, or marching in a suffrage parade. She never has identified herself with suffrage or feminism or reform movements or actively participated in public life.

She enjoys bridge, but she plays temperately. She does not golf or participate in any other sports. Mrs. Smith's favorite recreation is motoring. She loves to take long trips with her husband into the country, preferably along roads where there are antique shops.

A Fine Embroiderer
Her interest in antiques is not so much in old furniture as in smaller ornaments and figures, old glass and old embroideries. Mrs. Smith herself does very fine embroidery, and at present she shares the enthusiasm over making petit point.

Mrs. Smith loves to shop. New hats are her particular weakness. In her girlhood, Mrs. Al Smith was Catherine Dunn of New York city, your typical pretty slip of an Irish girl who had countless beaux, most of them much better pocketed and more established in life than Al.

The future governor happened to be working in a fish stall when he met Catherine.

Both Al and Catherine, it happened, were adept at entertaining. Al was an actor of no mean ability. Catherine sang sentimental songs—a most appealing way. Soon it became an open secret that they were in love. They were married May 4, 1900, at St. Augustine's Roman Catholic church in the Bronx.

Their honeymoon was spent at one of the Brooklyn beaches.

The Smith children number five—Alfred, Jr., Emily Josephine, Catherine Alice, Arthur Williams and Walter Joseph. All except Catherine and Walter are married.

Mansions? Give Her a Home!
Mrs. Smith likes to homes better than mansions. She demonstrated this immediately after her husband went to Albany as governor. The children took along their dogs, cats, monkeys and other pets and installed them in the yard of the governor's official residence. The Smiths have enjoyed just as care-free a life there, with the yes of the state upon them, as they did in New York city.

Mrs. Smith has remained a loyal friend to all her New York acquaintances, including those on the east side. She visits them frequently.

Her hospital experience, which caused concern to others, Mrs. Smith took with her customary calmness. The only regret she expressed was that she couldn't see her grandchildren for a week.

Vaguely Unfashionable
Again, a certain color may have a vogue and it may still be fashionable to say that it is the fashionable color.

All colors are beautiful if they are chosen wisely. Unfortunately there are certain shades which are inherently easy of imitation and granted they please a great majority of women, you then see them become hopelessly popular, which immediately has the effect of making the person with discrimination leave them severely alone. Take for example the tremendous vogue for almond green.

Every season I make a careful study and try several experiments in mixing colors in order to arrive at a shade which seems proper to me. I go to this length because I believe that a really smart color must be difficult to imitate, so that before it can really be copied and is met with everywhere. I can be working on something still newer.

Color always plays an important role in my ensemble, but where it becomes difficult is when several shades are combined. White is always beautiful, alone or combined with other colors, on condition that it remains the major shade. White and pink are about the only two colors capable of enlightening a very sombre dress, but either must be used with great perspicacity. Black is a color to which everyone reverts—I do not know why I say revert to quite some extent in my spring showing, as I have often noticed that many of my clients asked me to repeat a model of a different color in black.

Beige will still be worn, but black and also white will predominate in the new styles.

Jean Patou Draws The Color Line

PARIS, Jan. 21.—What are the really fashionable colors? This is a question which is repeatedly put to me and it is practically unanswerable.

Every new season brings to a counter the necessity of creating a so-called fashionable color. Every collection is influenced to a certain extent by this new color, which means that a certain number of models are presented in that particular shade.

Practically speaking, however, I find that usually the adoption of any new color is far from general, as most of these same models are afterwards ordered in one of the classical colors, better harmonizing with the client's complexion and taste.

Again, a certain color may have a vogue and it may still be fashionable to say that it is the fashionable color.

All colors are beautiful if they are chosen wisely. Unfortunately there are certain shades which are inherently easy of imitation and granted they please a great majority of women, you then see them become hopelessly popular, which immediately has the effect of making the person with discrimination leave them severely alone. Take for example the tremendous vogue for almond green.

Every season I make a careful study and try several experiments in mixing colors in order to arrive at a shade which seems proper to me. I go to this length because I believe that a really smart color must be difficult to imitate, so that before it can really be copied and is met with everywhere. I can be working on something still newer.

Color always plays an important role in my ensemble, but where it becomes difficult is when several shades are combined. White is always beautiful, alone or combined with other colors, on condition that it remains the major shade. White and pink are about the only two colors capable of enlightening a very sombre dress, but either must be used with great perspicacity. Black is a color to which everyone reverts—I do not know why I say revert to quite some extent in my spring showing, as I have often noticed that many of my clients asked me to repeat a model of a different color in black.

Beige will still be worn, but black and also white will predominate in the new styles.

SHOWER ON BIRTHDAY
Prayer Circle Remembers Aged Shut-In Yesterday.

A birthday shower of fruit was presented Mrs. Mary F. Williamson, 84, yesterday afternoon when members of Circle 1, Busy Mothers Union Prayer society, called at the home of the honoree's daughter, Mrs. E. F. Coffey.

During the afternoon, the women sang songs, read scripture and prayed. Those attending were Messrs. W. F. Cole, F. J. Glaze, E. O. White, W. A. Walters, J. M. Norman, M. J. Raybon, A. S. Eads, H.

Beauty! How and Why

MAKING YOUR OWN HAND LOTIONS

There are very many excellent creams and lotions on the market at mildy's service in taking care of her hands; some for softening, other for making them fairer in color. Also, there are many formulas for making preparations for the same purposes.

In my opinion, two different preparations are needed to maintain the hands in first class condition—a cream made of oils and free from hardening wax, and a lotion to smooth and keep them white.

Here is a formula for cream, a fluid of heavy consistency, which has no filler of wax to decrease its efficiency. It contains the oils which laboratory experiment and practical test have proved to be best for the purpose intended:
Lanolin—4 ounces.
Olive oil—4 ounces.
Liquid Petroleum—4 ounces
Almond Oil—4 ounces.

Incorporate above oils by warming gently, and stirring. Then add Tincture Benzoin—2 ounces.
When cool, stir into mixture a little of your favorite perfume.

By using the lotion made from the following formula you may have hands of velvety smoothness:
Borax—1 dram.
Gum Tragacanth—2 drams.
Mix above ingredients and let stand 24 hours in one half-pint of water. Then add:
Spirit of Campher—2 ounces.
Tincture Benzoin—2 drams.
Rose water enough to make one pint.

NEXT: The finger nails.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST—Winter pears, cereal, cream, bacon in tomato sauce, crisp toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Casserole of vegetables, raised corn bread, nutted prunes pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Roast beef, browned potatoes, brown gravy, creamed turnips, endive and grapefruit salad, potato caramel cake, canned fruit, milk, coffee.

Bacon in Tomato Sauce
Eight or ten slices of bacon, 1 onion, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1-8 teaspoon pepper.
Broil bacon in hot frying pan. Reserve 2 tablespoons bacon fat draining off the rest. Mince onion and cook over a low fire in the bacon until soft. Stir in flour and add tomatoes rubbed through a coarse sieve-to remove seeds. Cook stirring constantly, until thick and smooth.

Season with pepper and pour over bacon arranged on a hot platter.
Four tablespoons grated cheese can be sprinkled over the top and the dish slipped under the broiler long enough to melt the cheese just before sending to the table.

MAKES DISCOVERY

There Are No Chubby Girls At T. C. U. FORT WORTH, Jan. 21.—Chubby girls might have held the championship for studiousness if Dean Colby D Hall of Texas Christian university had not made a discovery. Confronted with the declaration of an Arizona university physical education teacher that the plump crowd makes the best student because her sylphlike sister is more bothered with social distractions, Dean Hall took down his student roll book and ran over the list of "A" students, visualizing each girl in turn. After following each girl in turn a couple of columns he looked up with a twinkle. "Why, there are no chubby girls," said Dean Hall. A surgical operation was one of the prizes offered in the recent Lomon Stock Exchange "Help Yourself" Society competition.

Hereford Mourns Loss Of W. P. McMinn, Tuesday. Hereford, Jan. 21.—Hereford is mourning the loss of one of its oldest pioneers. W. P. McMinn, who died here Tuesday, January 17, at the age of 82. Mr. McMinn came to this country when ranching was the principal industry and had made a name for himself in the cattle business which is known throughout the state. Mr. McMinn was born in Mississippi on December 16, 1845. He is survived by a large number of children and grandchildren, most of whom live in Hereford. At the time of his death, Mr. McMinn was one of the largest single landowners in Deaf Smith county. He owns vast ranch interests near here as well as several business lots in Hereford. He had been retired for several years.

Swine Breeders

Swine breeders from all over the Penhandle will have their hogs up for the sale and to the highest bidder goes the animal.

The sale is the first conducted by the association since 1923. During the past four years, due to the slump in the market price of hogs, the sales have been discontinued.

Many Changes Noted

One thing of unusual interest in connection with the sale and meeting here is the changes that were noted last night by Prewitt who has not been here since the last meeting and sale here in 1921 by the association.

At this time Lubbock only had about six blocks of hogs, while now she has over 172 blocks. Population has increased over 450 per cent, yet hog population has experienced a decided decrease. Future prospects for the swine industry on the Plains is much more promising according to Prewitt.

Fred Boerner, of Lubbock, was president of the association in 1921 when the sale was conducted here. Prewitt said last night. The swine breeders went out to see Boerner's hogs that were staked on the land where the Texas Technological college is now located.

"It is unusual," Prewitt said last night. "That we come back to hold our next meeting on this land and find we find a modern college located where the pig pens of Boerner were staked out in 1921."

"It is my dream," Prewitt said regarding the stock judging pavilion at a place to hold the sale. "This is the best place we have ever had to hold our sale."

Officers Are Listed

The officers of the association are as follows: H. C. Roffey, Canyon, Durco-Jersey breeder, president; C. L. Dean, Turkey Poland, breeder vice-president; R. Prewitt, Tulsa, Durco-Jersey breeder, secretary and treasurer; G. H. V. Earl, Poland, Durco breeder; E. A. Poe, Tulsa, Durco breeder; Ed Holmes, Poland, Durco breeder; and J. W. Lillard, Allamore, Durco Hampshire and Poland, Chas. breeder.

The Penhandle Swine Breeder association was first organized in 1908. It was inactive after a few years and was revived in 1917. At the sale here in 1921, despite unfavorable weather and other conditions, the hogs averaged $110 each.

Swine breeders who have entered hogs in the sale are: J. A. McCoy Kress; J. W. McCreary, Wayside; C. L. Franz, Turkey; B. W. Wilks, Plainview; Lillard Farms, Arlington; J. M. Henderson & Son, Hereford; Poland Chinas, J. L. Brewster, Tulsa; Holmes Bros., Floydada; Texas Technological college, Lubbock; H. C. Roffey, Canyon; Lakeview Farms, Tulsa; Lillard Farms, Arlington; R. H. Maxwell, Shallowater-Durocs, Lillard Farms, Arlington-Hampshires.

have been thoroughly searched in order that our Spring Presentation might be complete in every detail.

Grand Rapids and Chicago are to the Furniture World, what Paris is to the feminine Fashion World. In each location, the newest designs and styles are presented in their entirety.

Never in Furniture history have exhibits been as interesting, for each manufacturer exhibited the very cream of his line, masterpieces of craftsmanship, in order that home furnisshers from Maine to California, and Minnesota to Texas, might at a later date, view furniture that makes the home more comfortable and attractive.

Too, values are such that furniture dollars, when invested in furniture of the character shown at the market will do extra duty.

Soon, you will be invited to view the new furniture mode, for we have selected carefully just the designs that will appeal to home-lovers. Wonderful assortments will await you, and the pleasure you will derive from the showing when it is announced will match our pleasure in exhibiting it.

THE CANARY MURDER CASE

THE STORY THIS FAR

"The people I know don't shut themselves in clothes-closets," said the finger print expert. "You positively amaze me," declared Vance. A few minutes later finger prints were found on the inside door-knob of the closet in the apartment in which the beautiful Margaret Odell had been found strangled. But the amazing Vance declares the prints will not lead them to the murderer.

CHAPTER VII

(Tuesday, September 11, 10:30 a. m.)

Markham and Heath and Vance and I were now alone in the apartment. Dark, low hanging clouds drifted across the sun and the gray spectral light intensified the tragic atmosphere of the rooms.

Markham had lit a cigar and stood leaning against the piano, looking about him with a disconcerted but determined air. Vance had moved over to one of the pictures on the side wall of the living room—Boucher's "La Gerçère Endormie." I think it was—and stood looking at it with cynical contempt.

"Dimpled nudities, gamboline cupids and woolly clouds for royal cocottes," he commented. His distaste for the old painting of the French decadence under Louis XV was profound. "I wonder what picture courtesans hung in their boudoirs before the invention of these amorous eclogues, with their blue verdure and beribboned sheen."

"I'm more interested at present in what took place in this particular boudoir last night," reported Markham impatiently.

"There's not much doubt about that sir," said Heath encouragingly. "And I've an idea that when Dubois checks up those finger prints with our files, we'll about know who did it."

Vance turned toward him with a rueful smile.

"You're so trusting, Sergeant. I in turn, have an idea that long before this touchin' case is clarified you'll wish the irascible Captain with the insect powder had never found those finger prints."

He made a playful gesture of emphasis. "Permit me to whisper into your ear that the person who left his sign manuals on yonder rose-wood table and out glass door knob had nothing to do, whatever with the president of the fair of the Mademoiselle Odell."

"What is it you suspect?" demanded Markham sharply.

"Not a thing, old dear," blawndly declared Vance. "I'm wandering about in a mental muck as empty of sign posts as interplanetary space. The last of darkness do devour me up. I'm in the dead vast middle of the night. My mental darkness is Egyptian Stygian, Cimmerian."

Markham's jaw tightened in exasperation. He was familiar with this evasive eloquence of Vance's. Dismissing the subject, he addressed himself to Heath.

"Have you done any questioning of the people in the house here?"

"I talked to Odell's maid and the janitor and the switchboard operators, but I didn't go much into details—I was waiting for you. I'll say this, though, what they did tell me made my head swim. If they don't back down on some of their statements, we're up against it."

"Let's have them in now then," suggested Markham. "The maid first." He sat down on the piano-bench with his back to the keyboard.

Heath rose, but instead of going to the door, walked to the open window.

"There's one thing I want to call your attention to, sir, before you interview these people and that's the matter of entrances and exits in this apartment." He drew aside the gold-gauze curtain. "Look at the iron grating. All the windows in this place, including the one in the bathroom are equipped with iron bars just like these. It's only eight or ten feet to the ground here, and whoever built this house wasn't taking any chances of burglars getting in through the windows."

He released the curtain and strode into the foyer.

"Now, there's only one entrance to this apartment, and that's the door here opening off the main hall. There isn't a transom or air-shaft or a dumb-waiter in this place and that means that the only way—the only way—that anybody can get in or out of this apartment is through this door."

"Just keep that fact in your mind, sir, while you're listening to the stories of these people. Now, I'll have the maid brought in."

In response to Heath's order a detective led in a mulatto woman about thirty years old. She was neatly dressed and gave one the impression of capability. When she spoke it was with a quiet clear enunciation which attested to a greater degree of education than is ordinarily found in members of her class.

Her name, we learned, was Am Gibson; and the information elicited by Markham's preliminary questioning consisted of the following facts:

She had arrived at the apartment that morning a few minutes after seven, and as was her custom had let herself in with her own key, as her mistress generally slept till late.

Once or twice a week she came early to do sewing and mending for Miss Odell before the latter arose. On this particular morning she had come early to make an alteration in a gown.

As soon as she opened the door she had been greeted by the disorder of the apartment, for the Venetian-glass doors of the foyer were wide open; and almost simultaneously she had noticed the body of her mistress on the davenport.

She had called at once to Jessup, the night telephone operator, then on duty, who after one glance into the living-room had not fled the notice. She had then sat down in the public reception-room and waited for the arrival of the officer.

Her testimony had been simple and direct and intelligently stated. If she was nervous or excited, she managed to keep her feelings well under control.

"Now," continued Markham, after a short pause, "let us go back to last night. At what time did you leave Miss Odell?"

"A few minutes before seven," the woman answered, in a colorless, even tone which seemed to be characteristic of her speech. "Is that your usual hour for leaving?"

"No, I generally go about six. But last night Miss Odell wanted me to help her dress for dinner."

"Don't you always help her dress for dinner?"

"No, sir. But last night she was going with some gentleman to dinner and the theater, and wanted to look specially nice."

"Ah," Markham leaned forward. "And who was this gentleman?"

"I don't know, sir—Miss Odell didn't say."

"And you couldn't suggest who it might have been?"

"I couldn't say, sir."

"And when did Miss Odell tell you that she wanted you to come early this morning?"

"When I was leaving last night. So she evidently didn't anticipate any danger, or have any fear of her companion."

"Doesn't look that way," the woman paused, as if considering. "No, I know she didn't. She was in good spirits."

Markham turned to Heath.

"Any other questions you want to ask Sergeant?"

Heath removed an unlit cigar from his mouth, and then forward, resting his hands on his knees.

"What jewelry did this Odell woman have on last night?" he demanded gruffly.

The maid's manner became cool and a bit haughty.

"Miss Odell," she emphasized the Miss, by way of reproaching him for the disrespect implied in his omission—wore all her rings, five or six of them, and three bracelets—one of square diamonds and emeralds. She also had on a pair of pearl-shaped diamonds or a chain round her neck and she carried a platinum, locketette set with diamonds and pearls."

"Did she own any other jewelry?"

"A few small pieces, maybe, but I'm not sure."

"And did she keep 'em in a steel safe-case in the bedroom?"

"Yes—when she wasn't wearing them. There was more than a suggestion of sarcasm in the reply."

"Oh, I thought maybe she kept 'em locked up when she had 'em on." Heath's antagonism had been aroused by the maid's attitude; he would not have failed to note that she had consistently omitted the unctuous "sir" when answering him.

He now stood up and pointed, loweringly to the black document box on the rosewood table.

"Ever see that before?"

The woman nodded indifferently. "Many times."

"Where was it generally kept?"

"In that thing," she indicated.

the Boule cabinet with a motion of the head.

"What was in the box?"

"How should I know?"

"You don't know—huh?" Heath thrust out his jaw, but it's bullying attitude had no effect upon the unresponsive maid.

"I've got no idea," she replied shrilly. "It was always kept locked, and I never saw Miss Odell open it."

The Sergeant walked over to the door of the living-room closet.

"Open that key?" he asked eagerly. Again the woman nodded; but she had a look of mild astonishment in her eyes.

"Was that key always kept on the inside of the door?"

"No, it was always on the outside."

OPPORTUNITY

MOTHERS AND FATHERS

of the South Plains Should Visit This Large Furniture Store

This is a personal invitation to the people of the South Plains interested in home and home-life to visit the Amarillo Furniture Co., in Lubbock. Magnificent assortments of home furnishings displayed to make selection only a matter of moments. Surely an opportunity for securing home furnishing far greater than offered you before!

The prestige of this store rests on the fact that in all our merchandising activities we have always been mindful of our responsibility to the public. Guardians of Quality.

In recognition of these facts our entire stock occupies an enviable position on the budgets of the thrifty folks who, naturally in the Spring, think more of the beauty of home.

In addition to that responsibility we accept another—that of Crusaders for Value—in the fullest sense of the word as applied to giving you supreme values in furniture!

The foundation on which this store has been built is that of VALUE! From the very beginning we have bought cautiously discounted bills promptly and took every short cut to economy that was possible. This placed furniture in our store at a minimum of cost to us. Ambitious to grow and serve we have at all times kept the profit margin as little as practical. We then offer our furniture to responsible people on a dignified, sensible credit basis, making it possible people to have and enjoy good furniture and pay for it in small payments.

Little Things That Make Better Homes

Odd wall space, odd corners, hall ways, need occasional pieces to lend finishing touches to the room. A smart table, a clever mirror, smoking stand or a lamp placed here and there will call for fitting compliments from admirers of beautiful homes.

Intimate furniture such as secretaries, telephone stands, etc., are appropriate pieces which one may choose for her comfort and pleasure.

No where on the South Plains will you find more complete assortments in odd pieces than at this store.

When visiting Lubbock make yourself at home in this West Texas Store

Major Hoople Exercises One Right Of Citizenship As He Cracks Down On Taxes; He Lambasts Highway Tax

Philosopher Says Life Not Worth Living About This Time Of Year; Payment Of Taxes Is 'Hard Job'

MAJOR HOOPLE McCORKLE, Lubbock-Journal Philosopher, at a solid week we have been writing about for a suitable subject write about, but at this moment can't think of a thing on earth other people don't know more than we. Naturally we wanted a silly subject, and to look at you might think most anything might write would come under head-but not so. In fact the silly one is the more difficult to prove an alibi. The truth will creep out.

as we have no subject to discuss we will say a few things "taxes." If there is anything that makes a blue-blooded man get on his ear and yell "it is taxes. We are taxed everything on earth and the humble can not escape. The really happy people are those who don't own a car, don't own a house and don't care to vote, may escape the tax collector's net and by so doing feel free. It becomes our sad duty to inquire them that after all they pay too.

Taxes for Everything pay taxes on land and on things. We pay state tax, federal city tax, school tax, income and special bond issue assessments. Then if there is anything over, or if we are in position to borrow anything in the form of a loan we send for our Uncle Samuel as "income tax or excess profits tax."

Times Have Changed
Henry Ford swamped the world with "lizzies" it was possible to work a man to get enough money to buy a car, but today this is not true. We pay tax on the car—that is the manufacturer does when we buy it. Jones pays the freight and then we pay all we can make for the right to drive it. We call this "tax" but it might be better described as "highway robbery."

We Are Often Fooled
"kick in" with our good money—that is when we have it, and then they pay taxes on her like that will enable us to call this money in life to get a slice of "political pie."

Each member was taxed fifty cents. This amount being sent to the State Biennial headquarters at Austin. The money is to be used for the entertainment of the General Federation of Women's club which meets in San Antonio from May 20 to June 6.

ROTARY CLUB
The Rotary club met for its week luncheon in the basement of the Presbyterian church, Thursday afternoon with 15 members and two guests present.

CARVINGS ON BARK
Comanche Man Has Exhibit Of Work At Dallas
DALLAS, Jan. 21.—An odd group of animal figures carved from bark is on exhibit at Southern Methodist University. It represents the work of Calvert G. Wells, a former living near Comanche. Mrs. W. M. Bibb of Dallas discovered the display in the window of the Comanche postoffice and persuaded Mr. Wells to send it to S. M. U. The display consists of figures of dogs, alligators, bears, frogs, lizards and other wild things. The display has attracted much attention from art students.

Thrills Galore In Crook Drama

Latest 'Lone Wolf' Picture Is Best Of Lot With Bert Lytell In Great Role; It Is Coming To Palace

If you like mystery dramas, you're going to enthuse over "Alias the Lone Wolf," the Columbia feature picture now at the Palace Theatre. It has all the alluring and intriguing that are associated with the alibi feature, moving in the dark, intricate shadows, and plotting and counterplotting. The thrills are many.

The major part of the action takes place on an ocean liner. The heroine, Evie de Montalais (Lois Wilson), is a beautiful and valuable collection of jewels into the United States. It is her intention to sell them for all she can get. The sum realized is to go toward repaying for a large sum of money that her brother has embezzled.

But alas for the time and place. The knowledge that Miss de Montalais has in her possession a king's ransom in jewels is shared by a gang of desperate and unscrupulous thieves, who have taken passage on the same boat in order to filch them from her. Also on board is Michael Lanyard ("The Lone Wolf," Bert Lytell), who is known as one of the most daring adventurers on the continent.

It would be unfair to reveal all the details of the plot, or the manner in which the tables are turned on the gang and Miss de Montalais' jewels, made safe for smuggling, restored to her. Oh, yes, the gang gets the jewels, but only for a while! A swift-moving romance starts soon after the story opens, and this is brought to a successful close with the final fade-out.

Altogether, "Alias the Lone Wolf" can be set down as a worthwhile screen play.

Bert Lytell, as usual, is excellent in what is by this time a familiar and likable characterization. Lois Wilson, as the very-much-beset heroine, is good to look upon, and plays her part with naturalness and restraint. Others in the cast that give more than commendable performances are James Mason, Paullette Duval, William V. Mong, Ned Sparks, Ann Brody and Alphonse Ethier. The photography is excellent throughout.

Crosbyton C. Of C. Elects Officials

Outline Of Work Submitted By Secretary With Full Support Pledged By All Members Of Body

CROSBYTON, Jan. 21—The Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce at its annual business meeting elected five new directors to take the place of those whose term expired this year. The following were elected to serve as members of the board of directors: W. M. Romanc, re-elected; W. W. Cooper, E. M. Perkins, M. W. Tipps and J. I. Fisher.

The outline of the year's work was submitted by the secretary and every one pledged his support to make 1928 the banner year for the Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce. It was voted to continue the work with the rural communities and help in every way possible for the promotion of the poultry and dairy industry in the county. The Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce has eleven junior chambers of commerce in the rural communities and they have done a great work for the past year. Superintendent of Schools C. R. Owens was given assistance that the chamber and committee was back of his movement to establish a junior college in connection with the high school this year.

In order to be better able to carry out the program of the chamber, a committee of men's luncheon club was organized and will meet every two weeks, the first luncheon to be Tuesday January 24. Every member pledged his support and promised to attend each and every luncheon.

Six Debates For Tech Scheduled

Forensic Tilt With Baylor, T. C. U. and Probably S. M. U. Feature Card For Next Four Months.

Six debates with leading college teams in the state are on the schedule of the Tech debating squad for the coming four months. It was announced yesterday from the office of Miss Annah Jo Pennington, debate coach of the college. Three of the contests are with the Southwestern conference schools, T. C. U. and Baylor already contracted and S. M. U. to reply this week. Other debates are to be held with West Texas State University and Murray College.

The debate with Baylor will be held here on February 15 while T. C. U. and S. M. U. will be debated at Dallas and Fort Worth during the week of February 24.

Tryouts for places on the teams have been going on for some time and a general meeting of all interested students will be held tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in room 202. Fifteen men have been preparing for the season.

The question which will be discussed by the boys will be on the American Foreign policy.

Predicts Return Of Longer Skirts

Will Call for Greater Use Of Wool As Clothing Material and Mean More Money to Sheepmen.

OGDEN, Utah, Jan. 21—Prediction that women's styles will change and call for longer skirts, with a resultant increased demand for wool, was made before the session of the National Wool Growers Convention here.

The growers also heard a forecast of steady or rising wool prices during the next 20 years and a demand for a federal board of expert wool appraisers to see that imported wool paid the full tariff to which it is subject under the law.

Declaring that the demand for wool among the women of the civilized world had virtually reached the vanishing point, J. S. Strossenger, member of a large Boston wool firm said that "while we can not expect that women will ever go back to the long skirts of 10 or 15 years ago, some day styles of women's clothing will change and skirts will be somewhat longer and every six inches additional on a woman's skirt means, in the aggregate, millions of yards of cloth."

Again the time is coming when it will be more fashionable for women to wear woollen dresses instead of silk and rayon, and that will mean many more million pounds of wool, he continued. Wool consumption among women is now at its lowest point, and may change in the future will be upward, he said.

Wool consumption among women is now at its lowest point, and may change in the future will be upward, he said.

Turkey Ass'n Has New Organization

Three Year Contracts Are Drawn Up In Hale County At Annual Meeting Last Thursday

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 21—The Staked Turkey Growers association closed a five year period of operation on January first, and at the annual meeting of the organization Thursday, a new three-year contract was drawn up and the association will be continued for the purpose of co-operatively marketing the turkeys of the members.

The association had 75 members, and last year marketed 18,177 pounds of number one turkeys, 11,236 pounds of old toms, and 232 pounds of number 2 turkeys on the Thanksgiving market. There were 1,252 number 1 birds, 62 old toms and 19 number 2. The market price was 27 cents for number one, 17 cents for old toms and 20 cents for number 2. They were marketed on November 10th.

Christmas Sales
On the Christmas market the association sold 36,000 pounds of number one turkeys, 2,846 pounds of old toms, and 1,863 pounds of number 2 birds, realizing a total of $12,962.77 for the shipments, with a price of 30 and one-half cents per pound for the number one birds, 27 cents for the old toms and 20 cents for the others.

W. S. Noel has been the manager of the association. The new board consists of Mrs. Geo. Schick, Mrs. J. C. Fuller, T. R. Galt, R. E. Kenston and W. H. White.

CITY IS GROWING

Plainview Permits Total Is $216,000 In January

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 21—Building permits at Plainview for the first half of January total $216,000. Included in this is $175,000 which is part of the outlay for the construction of the addition to the store capacity of the Harvest Queen Mills, $20,000 for a new Catholic church, and residences totalling $21,000.

The permit of Mrs. H. E. Skaggs, for the construction of a four story office building of a total value of approximately $200,000 was issued in December and work is proceeding on this structure as well as at the Harvest Queen Mills, half million bushel capacity addition to its elevator.

THAT'S COVERAGE!

On the South Plains, carrier service the same as in the city of Lubbock brings the latest news to residents of Slaton, Idalou, Lorenzo, Ralls, Crosbyton, Abernathy, Littlefield, Levelland and Tahoka. The rural route subscribers, not only in Lubbock county but from the principal South Plains towns, are served the same day. The total daily circulation of the Avalanche and Journal for the past sixty days averaged more than—

There's reader interest in the Avalanche and Journal, which amplifies the circulation gains of your newspapers. The whole family reads the Avalanche and Journal. Here are a few reasons why:

Since January 9, the Avalanche and Journal have almost doubled their Associated Press leased wire service, which means a wider selection of news events, more complete coverage on state, national and world news. There are correspondents in all South Plains towns, daily chronicling the important news events in each community, in close touch with the Avalanche and Journal by telegraph and long distance telephone. Then there is the Avalanche-Journal's own staff of reporters, special writers and editors, covering thoroughly events of interest in and about the "Hub of the Plains."

The full service of the NEA comes to make the Avalanche and Journal refreshing with news pictures, cartoons, comics, special features and dozens of other things that go to make a complete newspaper.

The Sunday edition features four pages of eight comics in colors and The Western Weekly, the West Texas Sunday magazine.

GET Your Dollar's Worth

Grandmother reads the latest market prices—"Lands sake alive!" she exclaims, "why, when I was young we didn't have to pay half so much." Yes, in "the good old days" milk sold at five cents a quart, potatoes at forty cents a bushel, sugar twenty-five pounds for a dollar, and so on. And, in "the good old days" a laborer was paid a dollar a day or possibly a dollar and a quarter. But who wants to go back to "the good old days?" Not you—not me.

Prices are higher now, but wages are higher too. You pay more, but the goods you buy are of better material, they are better made, they last longer. Even foodstuffs are better. Inspection and extra care insure their quality.

The dollar can still buy a dollar's worth. Read the advertising in the newspapers and you will find that they will help your dollars go a long way. Advertising tells you where you can get full value for your money. The young housewife of today shops even more intelligently than "grandma," for the advertisements are her guides, they make her a competent judge of values.

Business Expert

PRYOR IRWIN Story in Next Column

"Everything is all set." That's the comment offered yesterday by W. W. Rix, president of the Lubbock Retail Merchants association in commenting on the Merchants Institute that will be conducted in Lubbock this week.

Pryor Irwin, retail counselor and investigator and one of the outstanding authorities on retail merchandising will arrive in Lubbock Sunday to conduct the "Better Business Week" merchants' school.

Is Former Chicagoan Mr. Irwin was formerly with the Retail Merchants Institute of Chicago, Illinois. At the present time he is head of the extension department of the University of Colorado. He is also special lecturer for the University of Kansas, of West Virginia, Utah, Arkansas and Wisconsin.

Mr. Irwin has had ten years of successful experience in retail selling followed by several years of holding institutes. His work has carried him all over the United States and he gathers new ideas and new methods everywhere he goes, to be distributed to other cities and other merchants.

Week of Great Interest The Better Business Week program in Lubbock includes a number of subjects that will interest all merchants, wholesalers, professional salespeople, clerks, and other employees.

Specific objects of the institute are to help the local merchants: First, to help the citizens in general to appreciate the value of cooperative effort.

Second, to meet outside competition more effectively and to get more of the trade that logically belongs to home merchants.

Third, to help them earn a larger net profit out of their margin of profit.

Fourth, to help employees render a better service to their customers, to their employers, and incidentally be worth more to themselves.

Luncheon To Open Meet The Institute will open Monday at noon at a luncheon at Hotel Lubbock. Employees are invited to this luncheon and all the firms who contributed to the expense fund of the school will be allowed one representative at the luncheon free.

Other firms may secure tickets for 75 cents each. The subject of the address at the luncheon is "Meeting Today's Competition."

Monday evening at 7:30 Irwin will speak on "The Salesman's Part in Building Business."

The remainder of the program is as follows: Tuesday morning, "Planning for More Business." Tuesday evening, "Knowing the Goods You Sell."

Wednesday evening, "Getting Returns from Advertising Expenditures."

Thursday morning, "Retail Credit—How to Control." Thursday evening, "The Human Side of Retailing."

Friday morning, "What Co-operation Can Do for the Stores of Lubbock." Friday evening, "Team Work for Community Development."

To Address Civic Clubs Mr. Irwin will speak at the Rotarian club Wednesday at noon on the subject, "Making Your Community Prosper," and at the Kiwanis club Thursday noon on the subject, "The Measure of a Merchant."

Members of the clubs have signified their intention of inviting merchant friends who are members of neither organization as special guests for the luncheons this week.

All the meetings, except the luncheon meetings, will be held in the office of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce on the second floor of the city hall. Morning meetings will be held from 9 to 10 o'clock and evening meetings begin at 7:30.

subject they are most interested in. Mrs. Adella S. Drew, secretary of the Plainview Retail Merchants association stated in a letter to the association writes.

"I am glad to assist in any way possible to get the business men to attend your meetings, and am sure they can derive much benefit from each meeting." W. G. McCoy, secretary of the Bledsoe Chamber of Commerce writes.

"I shall make a special effort to attend the institute and will try to bring the rest of the Sudan merchants with me." L. E. Slate of the Sudan Mercantile company at Sudan writes.

Other letters of similar contents have been received showing the magnitude of the interest over the South Plains.

Will Build Good Will The holding of the institute here and extending other towns invitations will build good will for Lubbock and will make business better in proportion to the extent of the education of all merchants, local men believe.

Several local wholesale houses have instructed their salesmen to help advertise the institute during the past week in order that their customers might attend and receive the benefits to be derived from the addresses on business topics.

"Every business man or employee in Lubbock or on the plains, whether or not he is a retailer, whether or not he is a member of the Lubbock Retail Merchants association, whether or not he has contributed to the expense fund of the institute, is invited to attend any and all of the meetings," W. W. Rix said yesterday.

"We believe that what will help one firm or one employee, will help another," Mr. Rix said, "and if we can help another of our fellow merchants, we will be benefitted indirectly."

Keen interest is being displayed by merchants, retail merchants and chamber of commerce secretaries and others in the surrounding towns.

"The Merchants Institute is a great thing, and we will do what we can to get our members to attend," Mrs. Wm. A. Wilson, secretary of the Lamesa Retail Merchants association stated in a letter to the local association.

"I have been greatly interested in the institute since I first noticed it in the bulletin. I will run the program in my bulletin in order that the merchants here can select the

Special Racers To Try For New Speed

On the broad, smooth sand of Ormond-Daytona Beach, Fla., new speed records will be sought in special racing cars by three men. Left to right they are J. M. White, Frank Lockhart and Capt. Malcolm Campbell.

DAYTONA, Fla., Jan. 21—Speed again will have its inning when three powerful automobiles will race down the famous Ormond-Daytona Beach on the east coast of Florida in an attempt to break the record established last year by Major H. O. D. Segrave of England. This event is scheduled for a week following February 15.

Capt. Malcolm Campbell, British racer, is coming to America with a car that will be propelled by the specially built 450-horsepower Napier engine that won the last Schneider cup race at the Lido, in Italy. He wants to defend the land speed record of 203.8 miles an hour made by Major Segrave.

In America, Frank Lockhart, who has won many a racing event, will be on hand with a special car that is being built in the Stutz factory at Indianapolis and is being backed by 30 wealthy men. It is said to be a veritable bullet, small, light, built for minimum wind resistance and with a high speed engine.

J. M. White of Philadelphia has been building his own racer for this event, a three-motored, 36-cylinder affair which is designed to develop 1500 horsepower.

Another entrant in this unique event may be M. Dependin of France, who recently won the grand prix in Spain. He will bring his own car over.

This race may determine whether the highest speed ever reached on land can be attained by a huge car with enormous reserve of power to overcome wind resistance by sheer force, or by the smaller car whose design is based on a study of aerodynamics, with a minimum wind resistance and a high engine speed.

Major Segrave's "Mystery S." and White's triple engine car, weighing four tons, represent the first type. The other is represented by Frank Lockhart's new car, Capt. Campbell's "Bluebird" and M. Dependin's racer.

Besides the speed events over a stretch of only 11 miles, there will be stock car trials, in which many of the existing models now appearing on the streets will participate.

The new Model A Ford has already been entered, and its closest

Lubbock Delegates, After Carrying Off Honors At Abilene, Looking To Episcopal Convocation Here In '29

Meeting Will Be Held Here Next Year; Members Are Chosen For Positions In Sectional Organization

Lubbock delegates to the eighteenth annual convocation of the Protestant Episcopal church in Abilene last week-end, carried off a number of honors, one of the more important of these being the choosing of W. W. Rix as a delegate to the general convention in Washington this year.

In addition to these honors, the delegation won for Lubbock the distinction of entertaining the nineteenth annual convocation.

Rev. L. G. H. Williams, rector of Saint Paul's Episcopal church, was placed on five committees at this meeting and, with Mr. Rix, was named a delegate to the Provincial Synod.

Reverend Williams and Mr. Rix are on the district pension fund committee and, in addition, Mr. Williams is chairman of the credentials and publicity committee, in the department of religious education, the commission on evangelism and on the district executive committee.

Mrs. Rix, Parliamentarian Mrs. W. W. Rix, who has served as president of the North Texas district branch of the Woman's Auxiliary to the national council for the last three years, was made parliamentarian of the branch upon the completion of her term of office. Miss Ruth Rix is educational secretary for the auxiliary and Mrs. Mary W. Doak, dean of women at the Technological college, is chairman of the life service committee.

Delegates from Lubbock who attended the convocation were Reverend and Mrs. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Rix, Miss Ruth Rix, Miss Frances Hoyt Ford, Mrs. Doak and Mrs. R. E. Strickland.

Mrs. Williams and Miss Ruth Rix were on the auxiliary program, this woman's organization meeting in connection with the general convocation, and Reverend Williams appeared on the convocation program, speaking on "College and Young People."

Bishop Presided The Right Rev. E. Cecil Seaman of Amarillo, bishop of North Texas, presided at the Abilene meeting and is to preside at the meeting next year.

Little is known of plans for the meeting at Lubbock. Reverend Williams said yesterday, except that the attendance is expected to reach about one hundred and fifty, the attendance for this year.

The routine reports and conferences on regular departments of work in the church will be observed. Missions, field publicity, social service, finance and religious education compose the regular goals of work and there are divisions under each of these heads, Mr. Williams said.

New York Sends Speakers The two outstanding speakers at the Abilene conference were Rev. Harrison W. Foreman of New York, chairman of rural work section of the national council department of Christian social service, and Miss

THE STORY THUS FAR
The story is laid in the Indian territory and along the Kansas border in the '80's, when a fight was being waged for the opening of the territory to settlement.

Chief characters:
TONY HARRISON, orphaned at 13 when his father was shot in a poker game;

PAWNEE BILL, adventurer, teacher, Indian interpreter, showman;

JOE CRAIG, who takes Tony to the Bar K ranch to live;

TITUS MOORE, owner of the Bar K brand;

RITA, his little tomboy daughter.

The boy grows up on the ranch and learns the cowboy's trade. When Rita and her mother depart for the east he learns for the first time how much he cares for the red haired, arrogant beauty.

He tries to forget Rita Moore and accompanies Pawnee Bill and BUFFALO BILL on a wild west show tour. After many adventures he returns; but Rita comes back for a visit and he is unable to keep from declaring his love for her. When she fearfully admits she is engaged to another, he leaves the ranch and disappears.

When Pawnee Bill organizes his own wild west show, Tony goes with it and in Washington he and another cowboy go on a spree and rope a cigar store Indian and drag it down Pennsylvania avenue.

CHAPTER XXXVII
Joe Stevens swung his own rope let out a loud "Whoopie!" and the two of them rode down Pennsylvania avenue at a gallop, dragging the heavy, cumbersome thing behind them.

It rattled and banged as they progressed wildly through the street threatening disaster to the innumerable carriages they passed and provoking loud and nervous cries from amazed spectators on the sidewalks.

A mounted man in uniform heard the shouting, sped them and galloped in pursuit. Tony Harrison saw him over his shoulder and shouted at Stevens, "Don't forget to tell him about your brother-in-law, Joe."

"Hell with him," Stevens said contemptuously. "I'm aiming to scalp this Indian right on the White House lawn."

At Fourteenth street two roundsmen caught up with the strange spectacle and joined in the chase. One of them succeeded in getting hold of the wooden Indian, but a sudden jerk of the rope pulled him flat. Above the shouting arose the peering noses of police whistles. Traffic was confused and nervous horses snorted and reared.

Sanity returned to Tony Harrison at that moment. "Here's where we surrender," he called to Stevens, and pulled up on Cherokee. "It was a good fight while it lasted. He trumped for the other was making signs of dissent but we're outnumbered."

They halted and pulled up alongside the curb. Immediately they were surrounded by an excited mob and an irate and breathless policeman put authoritative hands on the bridles. Tony, smiling sheepishly, looked about him. Everywhere save on the faces of the policemen, were cheerful grins. Washington, if it had been shocked, at least had been amused.

"Anybody Joe Stevens was trying loudly for the benefit of the gendarmes whom he was regarding with a disdainful eye. We stowed the old town more excitement than she's seen in coon's age."

But Tony did not hear him. He was staring after an open carriage that had just passed, and his heart was doing strange tricks inside him.

A man and a girl were in the carriage, the man pointing to the amusing spectacle of two drunken cowboys tying up Pennsylvania avenue traffic. The girl, who had cheeks flaming scarlet, staring straight ahead of her.

"Rita," Tony exclaimed in a hoarse whisper, and instantly was cold sober. The man he had never seen before; but he was a young man and handsome in a waxed mustache, and Tony could guess. He could only continue to stare, dumbly, his mouth gaping.

He was aware presently of an irritable voice shouting in his ear—a policeman asking for his name. Joe Stevens was waving expansively to the outraged arms of the law.

"Boys, it's all right," John Nolan's brother-in-law said.

"And who in hell's John Nolan?" the sergeant of police wanted to know.

"Why, the bartender. Runs the saloon down there at the foot of Capitol Hill." He jerked a thumb eastward.

The sergeant snorted contemptuously and Stevens' faith in his brother-in-law's influence began to trickle away like water from a leaky pan. "Don't you know him?" he asked evasively.

"Sure. I know every bartender in town, but all of them put together couldn't keep you two little boys out of jail. Here's the wagon now, come along."

Pawnee Bill bailed them out that night. Tony Harrison told him disgustedly, "I've taken my last drink."

"I'd at least limit myself to maybe four or five at a time," Pawnee Bill said, his eyes twinkling.

"I said I was through. I made a fool of myself. His pride was hurt. That Rita, above all persons, should have seen him under such disgraceful circumstances."

"Probably her husband with her," he thought. "More than likely she's married by now."

The magistrate the next morning was inclined to be friendly. He listened privately to some words from Pawnee Bill and let Tony and Stevens off with light fines.

"But you'll have to buy the tobacco dealer a new Indian. The old one—turning an amused eye toward the silent "evidence" beside the bench—looks most thoroughly subdued. He is somewhat lacking in spirit, Harrison. I had the pleasure of seeing you perform in Pawnee Bill's show. As an evidence of my appreciation, I am giving you the minimum punishment. But the next time you go on the war path don't tie up traffic."

The show proceeded to New Jersey. At Gloucester a combination was formed with Buckskin Bill's show, the star performer of which was Annie Oakley, the famous woman rifle shot.

"We'll have to put you in the background a little bit," Pawnee Bill told Tony. "You can put out your shooting act. Although Annie Oakley never saw the day that she could pull a trigger with you, she's of a big reputation, and besides, he's a woman. I hope you won't mind."

Tony assured him he would not. He combined show performed at fairs through the state, and the rough it drew good crowds it lost money because of unfavorable contracts with the fair grounds owners. Then the weather got bad; day after day rain spoiled their plans and the money drained out of their little treasury.

Hoping for a change in luck, Buckskin Bill withdrew from the partnership and Pawnee Bill and Charlie Southwell once more proceeded on their own. But the rain continued and fall found them in Maryland desperately trying to recoup their losses in the small towns.

"There's a Jonah around some place," Pawnee Bill said and shook his head sadly.

"Maybe it's me," Tony told him pessimistically.

The older man contrived to laugh. "You've been down-bearing ever since that little scrape in Washington. I never saw a man get so remorseful over a little jag."

The young man's eyes clouded. "I learned some sense," he said and spat into the rain.

They would play Eastern the next day, Pawnee Bill informed him. "And if we don't make some money there we smash. We're broke, and I'm just about two thousand in debt to you, between back salary and what I've borrowed."

He shouldn't let that worry him, Tony said. "I feel this thing as much as you do. Another year with better luck, and you'd clean up. We'll hope for sunshine in Eastern."

But in Eastern they found more rain and an attachment by the sheriff. The show lacked railroad fare to move on to another town; it lacked money to pay the board bills of its performers.

"Even my trunk's been attached," said Pawnee Bill cheerfully. "The show business so far has been a complete bust. I'm going to the postoffice to see if anybody still thinks enough of me to write."

"I'll go with you. If the sheriff sees me hanging around this tent he might attach me, too."

The postmaster handed Pawnee Bill two letters. They ducked out and ran across the street to the shelter of the little train shed. There Pawnee Bill settled himself comfortably on a baggage truck and turned his attention to his mail while Tony gazed disconsolately to the drizzle of rain.

"This one's for you, Tony. From Joe Craig, I reckon. He had torn open one of the envelopes to find a sealed one enclosed."

Tony slowly ripped it open. At that moment he felt downright sorry for Joe Craig—for the way he had treated him. "Might have written to him anyway," he murmured, and then stared unbelievably at the words Craig had penned.

Mrs. Moore was dead—twenty-fifth of September—buried near Manassas, in the family cemetery. Rita and her father in Virginia.

He was profoundly shocked, and for the first time since parting with Rita in a blaze of anger, he felt the full measure of his sympathy go out to her. He turned once more to the letter.

"We're still waiting for you to come back, Tony. Anyway, write."

New Process Seen In Auto Industry

Things are right lonesome on the Bar K."

He could well imagine that was true. He turned to the man beside him, but Pawnee Bill, a faraway look in his eyes, was staring into the rain, the open letter dangling in his hand.

Tony asked softly, "Did you get bad news, too, Bill?"

The long-haired man appeared not to have heard him. When he spoke he said, "Tony, maybe there is such a thing as destiny, after all. This letter's from the Chamber of Commerce of Wichita. They want me to head up the Bomers, perfect an organization and take them into Oklahoma. The letter finds me without funds, without a job, without prospects. If that isn't fate," he breathed, half to himself, "what is it? Tony, I'm going, and I'm asking you to go with me."

(To Be Continued)

They go to Wichita, where Pawnee Bill finds a great reception, where the one topic of conversation is the unopened land to the south.

Pride of Craftsmanship Is Noted in Modern Workman Survey of Buick Factory Workers Reveals

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 21—An interesting process to be noted in the automotive industry is the growth of what might be termed pride of craftsmanship, such as has been associated in the past with furniture manufacture, watchmaking, and a few other lines of creative work.

Figures compiled by the Personal Service department of the Buick Motor company indicate that 3,071 of Buick's employes have been with the company more than five years, and several hundred other employes have devoted their time and skill to the manufacture of Buicks for more than three times that period. The fact that pursuit of a single calling for so long a time can not but cultivate a pride in the resulting product would indicate, Buick officials believe, that a development strongly resembling that of the old-fashioned guild, whose primary characteristics was expertise, is going on in this giant new center among industries.

Ten years is not a long time in textiles, in steel, or in any one of a dozen or more lines of productive work. It is a long time in the automotive industry, as the developments of the last ten years indicate. The car of 1918 was a vastly different affair, both in appearance and in performance, from that of 1928. And one of the factors contributing to the improvement is the increasing skill of the automobile worker, resulting from continued application to his job.

The worker who has remained with one manufacturer for so long as ten years is no longer rare. Some of the older manufacturers boast hundreds of such men. Buick has on its payroll 823 men who have completed their tenth consecutive year with Buick, and 3,071 who have finished five years. Almost 1,000 of its workers have been with Buick more than ten years. Three hundred nine have their 15-year service pins; 49 their 20-year pins, and two have rounded out their full quarter century.

"It is sometimes said that the machine age has killed the spirit of pride which workers used to show," said Cady B. Durham, vice-president in charge of production at Buick. "I think the statement is unjust. Machines have taken over much of the heavier work and they are doing it more precisely than human agency could, and in a fraction of the time. There is still vast opportunity for human skill in the operation of machines, in testing, along the assembly lines where perfect coordination of effort is necessary, and in dozens of other phases of motor car manufacture."

"From the public's viewpoint, as well as from the maker's, a stable organization means much. For one thing, a group of men who have performed their task five or ten

Camera Tells Story Of Adolph Hotelling's Murder Of Five Year-Old Child

Death Car Is Found

Here is Adolph Hotelling's car, the famous blue sedan in which Dorothy Schneider was taken to her death. The car was found in Hotelling's garage while he was being questioned. It had been painted black the day after the murder, but a deputy sheriff chanced to rub his hand over the door, the paint came off and the blue underneath was revealed. The photo shows the spot on the door where the paint was rubbed away.

The Crowd That Wanted To Lynch Girl's Slayer

The crowds that surrounded the Flint (Mich.) jail after Adolph Hotelling was arrested for the murder of Dorothy Schneider were orderly at first, but later became so unruly that Hotelling had to be spirited away and state militia had to be summoned. This picture, taken as the crowd was gathering, shows the scene in front of the jail during the evening with armed officers mixing with the crowd to preserve order.

They "Searched the Jail"

There two young men who knew Adolph Hotelling, were selected to accompany the committee that went into the Flint jail at the request of the police to see for themselves that Hotelling was no longer confined there. This was done when the crowd outside threatened to storm the jail and lynch the prisoner. The men shown are Bernard Eldridge, left, and Adelbert Owen.

Dream Is Tip

A remarkable dream had by Harold Lotridge (above) that Adolph Hotelling, of Owosso, Mich., his neighbor, was the slayer of 5-year-old Dorothy Schneider, resulted in Hotelling's arrest.

Gave Tip

Sheldon Robinson, carpenter of Mt. Morris, Mich., is credited by Flint police with giving the tip that led to Adolph Hotelling's arrest. Robinson's suspicions were aroused by the remarks of a friend, and he telephoned a deputy sheriff who went at once to Hotelling's home.

Owosso Youth Retains Lawyers To Aid Him In Fight For Reward That Was Offered For Arrest Of Slayer

Boy Who's Dream Started Search For Hotelling Is Out For Prize; Claim Is Backed By Events

OWOSSO, Mich., Jan. 21.—Did a weird dream that troubled the sleep of 25-year-old Harold Lotridge bring about the arrest of Adolph Hotelling, confessed slayer of Dorothy Schneider of Flint, and so end one of the most feverish man-hunts in Michigan's history? Lotridge believes it did. He has retained an attorney to fight for the $5,000 reward which was offered for the slayer's arrest—and he is ready to admit that his dream, even if it should not win him the reward, has already caused him plenty of trouble.

Lotridge's family lives near Hotelling's family, attends the same church and knows the Hotellings intimately. On the night that Hotelling was elevated from deacon to elder in the church, young Lotridge was made a deacon.

On Monday morning Lotridge and his father went to Flushing, a small town near Flint, where they were employed in the erection of a school house. On the way, Harold told his father of a dream that had broken his sleep the night before.

That evening Hotelling was arrested. After a short questioning he confessed to the murder and after narrowly escaping being mobbed, was taken to the Ionia reformatory for safe keeping. The Lotridges, meanwhile, started home. On their return they found officers awaiting them. And then young Lotridge got a severe and unexpected shock.

Lincoln Neb.—Anthropologists examining the fossilized remains of a civilization believed to be about 4,000,000 years old believe that men who lived on this continent at that time were cannibals. On Harold Cook's fossil bed ranch in western Nebraska have been found marinated human bones, indicating that many an unlucky cave-man furnished the piece de resistance of feasts.

ELECTRICITY

The Restless Energy That Lightens House-Work, Makes Possible Efficient Throbbing Industries, Brightens And Leads City Building!

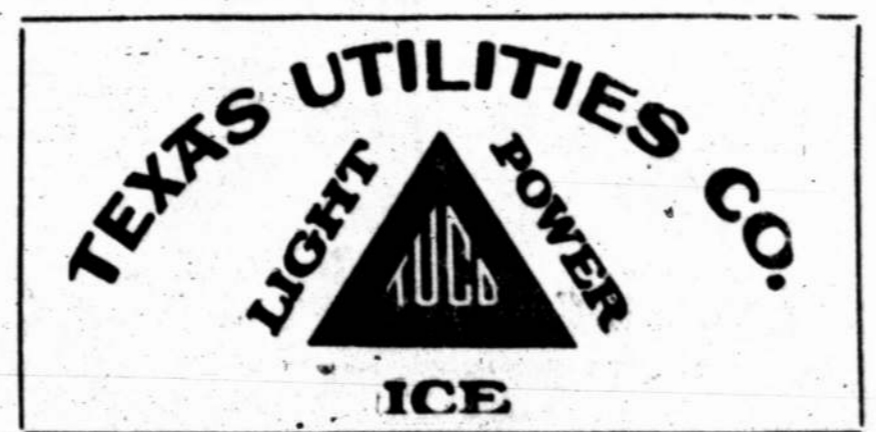

The greatest authorities of the age attribute the great growth of industries and cities in America, the present enviably high standard of living in American homes—to electricity and the many uses it has been put. This mighty force of nature has been harnessed to lighten the home work, to drive great industrial plants and to make safe the constant growth of cities.

Be Sure Of The Appliance You Buy

Greater satisfaction in the use of electricity can be had by using only those appliances that are recognized as standard. Because of our experience in the business and to help our customers derive the greatest possible benefit from the use of electricity we have a complete stock of electrical-appliances that will assure you of satisfaction in their use.

This company is now serving more than three dozens communities in this immediate section. By modern methods of production the current is lower in cost to users than any time in the past.

You can afford to make every available use of electricity as a power, light or heat. You cannot afford to do without it in this fast, progressive age.

Maybe We Can Suggest Some Uses

Your store interior should be kept as near sun-light brightness as possible. It creates more customer confidence and shows your merchandise better. Your show windows will attract if well lighted. Your store front should be a welcoming sign. There are innumerable ways in which electricity can help your business and its cost is very little considering its importance.

Legislation to Protect U. S. Against Rubber Monopoly Urged at Midwinter A. A. A. Board of Directors' Session

Exorbitant Tire Prices In America From Foreigners Would Be Stopped Through Aid of Congress.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 21.—Legislation by congress to safeguard the United States against the dangers of a foreign rubber monopoly and exorbitant prices for tires was strongly advocated by the Board of Directors of the American Automobile Association at its midwinter meeting in New York on January 10th.

The action of the Board of Directors of the national motoring body took the form of a unanimous resolution urging congress to put through as quickly as possible an amendment to the Webb-Pomeroy Act to give importers of rubber and other commodities subject to foreign control, the power of combined purchasing now granted to American exporters under the Webb-Pomeroy Act.

Bills to effect this are now pending in congress and Thos. P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association, who presided over the meeting of the board, gave assurance that representatives of the A. A. A. as well as the rubber clubs would appear before committees of congress to urge the immediate passage of this protective legislation.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and the rubber interests of the country are strongly in favor of the legislation. Prior to the board's action, John H. Raabok, vice president of General Motors and of the Du Pont Company, made a brief address in which he pointed out the beneficial effects of the pool of 50,000 tons of rubber purchased in the open market by American interests last year.

"This pool," he said, "while it only constituted 10 per cent of the total consumed in the United States unquestionably helped to maintain stable prices, with the result that the highest price differential throughout the year was only 9 cents. The 1927 market was far the steadiest in many years and there is every reason to believe that the way to offset the danger of monopolistic control is to apply the combined purchasing power of the United States to buy rubber wherever it is to be had in the open market."

The legislation before congress conforms in every respect with the terms of the Sherman Act and other anti-trust laws, and affords ample protection against any attempt to use an American rubber pool to the detriment of the American consumer.

The discussion brought out the fact that the difference between a fair price of 30 cents for rubber and the price of $1.30 to which rubber soared in 1926 meant a foreign levy of $750,000,000 on the consumers of the United States.

In addition to the resolution calling for a national rubber policy, the board of directors of the A. A. A. took action on several other matters of vital interest to the car owners. Among them are the following: "First a resolution urging all state highway departments to complete at the earliest possible moment the work of placing the federal numbering, direction and cautionary signs on the interstate highways and the constant exercise of vigilance to prevent the imitation of these signs by 'snipe' advertisers along the highways."

Second, a resolution urging the A. A. A. clubs everywhere to advocate the construction and the marking of cut-off routes and belt lines as optional routes around large cities and other heavily populated areas. "Third, a resolution recommending the establishment of a national appointment service for tourist homes throughout the United States, with definite sanitary standards and rates, as a convenience and a safeguard for the motor tourist caravan."

Alleged plans for the construction of toll highways on a gigantic scale throughout the country were called to the attention of the board. The unanimous sentiment was against any wholesale scheme for toll roads in America, under whatever guise such a scheme might be presented, and the legislative committee of the A. A. A. was authorized to investigate any proposals looking in this direction.

Sunday Sermon

necessary to bring up our children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

Having considered briefly, the admonition and warning against provoking our children to wrath, we shall now consider the things that are essential to "the nurture and admonition" of the child, "in the Lord."

God has not left us without specific instruction, in this most important and delicate work. But unfortunately too many parents assume their self sufficiency, and dispose Divine instruction. If we turn to Deut. 6:6-9, we find these directions: "And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy strength, with all thy might, and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. These words shall be thy delight. Thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and thou shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up, and they shall be as thine eyes, and thou shalt write them upon the posts of thine house, and on the gates."

All this does not mean that this shall be literally carried out to meet the Divine requirement; but fully and diligently teach our children, and they shall be as our eyes, and they shall be as our feet, and they shall be as our hands, and they shall be as our mouth, and they shall be as our heart, and they shall be as our soul, and they shall be as our life, and they shall be as our all.

Over 44,000,000 To Take Motor Car Vacations This Year To Spend Over Three and Half Billions, Is Claim

Estimated by A. A. A. Based On Detailed Study of Season Last Year and Allowance for Boost.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 21.—More than 44 million people, over a third of the nation, will take vacation motor tours during 1928 and will spend the staggering sum of three and a half billion dollars, according to preliminary estimates of this year's motor tourist business made by the National Touring Bureau of the American Automobile Association today.

The A. A. A. estimate for 1928 is based on a detailed study of figures for the 1927 season, with an allowance of two per cent increase for this year, which is about the normal growth in the gigantic industry of motor touring over the past few years.

Approximately 49 million people in ten million cars, took to the winding ribbons of paved highways and into the byways for their vacations last year, the national motoring body declared.

"One of the most impressive and important features of the motor tourist business in 1927," says the A. A. A., "was the trend away from the tourist camps and toward the hotels and tourist homes catering to motorists. The latter enjoyed a heavier business than in the previous year, despite weather conditions that somewhat handicapped the annual vacation movement. In this trend, amounting to an increase of 12 per cent in business, is seen a clear indication of the position of the resort hotel as a permanent fixture in the rest and play life of the motorists."

"The figures for last year show that 29,900,000 people in 7,250,000 cars patronized hotels and tourist homes. On the basis of last year's figures, the total of this class of motorists should soar to 32,000,000 this year."

"Figuring four people to a car and allowing each occupant an expenditure of $7.50 a day, for an average period of ten days, the army of motorists patronizing hotels and resorts would spend nearly two and a half billion dollars in 1928. "Wandering in nomad fashion, as lured by climate, scenery and history, more than 11,000,000 campers used their cars last year for vacations. The caravan numbered about 2,750,000 automobiles, including house cars fitted out for housekeeping and as trailers. This would justify the estimate that more than 12,000,000 campers will use over 3,000,000 pleasure cars to visit the great outdoors this year."

"The camper spends three times as long from home as the hotel tourist and on a basis of $3.00 per day per person, nearly a billion and a quarter dollars will be left along the gasoline trail by this class of motorists."

"These tentative estimates for 1928 may seem large, but they are in reality conservative and are based strictly on the figures for the past few years and the normal growth that each year has brought."

Two factors, according to the A. A. A., which handled 10,000,000 tours last year, are playing a predominant part in the development of America's motor tourist business, namely, the establishment of standardized motoring services throughout the country and the growing appreciation of the importance of the motor tourist caravan as a factor in the national economy."

"The motorist's sitting position is as important for his comfort as it is for the economical performance of the car. For, singularly enough, the way the driver sits at the wheel has much to do with the mileage he gets."

Some drivers have the habit of shifting constantly from throttle to brake pedal and back. This is especially true in traffic.

This practice leaves no room for ease and comfort at the wheel, for the driver mentally is always on the alert and physically is adding a strain on himself.

The reason for his doing this, most likely, lies in the fact that too much gas is flowing through the carburetor while the engine is supposed to be idle with the foot throttle in closed position. The result is that the car keeps moving forward faster than the traffic allows, and so the brake has to be applied constantly to check it.

The remedy lies in adjusting the stop screw at the carburetor, where it regulates the position of the throttle when it is supposed to be closed. Turning the screw back a little will permit less gas to be fed through the carburetor and so keep the engine idling more slowly.

As a result, the driver will be relieved of the strain of working both brake and throttle in traffic to such an extent. He will find driving more restful. And he will get much more mileage.

Another contribution to discomfort in driving is the opposite to riding the clutch. So much has been said about this that many drivers do exactly the reverse and find their left foot jumping back and forth, when in heavy traffic.

Idling the clutch is harmful if enough weight of the foot is put on the pedal to cause the disks to slip. But heavy traffic, where there is much stopping and starting, would sap the energy of anyone trying to obey this warning.

In a case like this it is enough to allow the foot to rest lightly on the clutch pedal, so that pressing down on it and letting go up to the point of releasing the disks entirely would still leave the foot in a ready position.

This relieves the driver of quite a strain. It prepares him for quicker emergencies. And it permits him to keep up close to the flow in front.

Dodge Increases Victory Output

Factory Receiving Flood of Wires Requesting Heavier Allotments and Immediate Shipments of Six.

Production schedules for the new Victory Six recently announced by Dodge Brothers are to be materially increased, according to John R. Lee, general sales manager, to make possible reasonably prompt filling of the telegraphic orders which are being received from dealers in constantly increasing volume.

"Factory production and scheduled allotments for shipment to dealers during the first three months of 1928," Mr. Lee said, "were planned in expectation of a very generous demand for the new car, with its advanced engineering features, but the wires asking for immediate shipment and for increased allotments indicate that by the end of January a decided enlargement of our production plans must be completed so that all purchasers of the new Victory Six may be sure of prompt deliveries. Dodge Brothers' immense manufacturing facilities, and orders which have been placed for raw materials, however, are such that it is possible to increase output of this popular type to such volume as will insure cars for buyers without any long delay."

The figures for last year show that 29,900,000 people in 7,250,000 cars patronized hotels and tourist homes. On the basis of last year's figures, the total of this class of motorists should soar to 32,000,000 this year.

"Figuring four people to a car and allowing each occupant an expenditure of $7.50 a day, for an average period of ten days, the army of motorists patronizing hotels and resorts would spend nearly two and a half billion dollars in 1928. "Wandering in nomad fashion, as lured by climate, scenery and history, more than 11,000,000 campers used their cars last year for vacations. The caravan numbered about 2,750,000 automobiles, including house cars fitted out for housekeeping and as trailers. This would justify the estimate that more than 12,000,000 campers will use over 3,000,000 pleasure cars to visit the great outdoors this year."

"The camper spends three times as long from home as the hotel tourist and on a basis of $3.00 per day per person, nearly a billion and a quarter dollars will be left along the gasoline trail by this class of motorists."

"These tentative estimates for 1928 may seem large, but they are in reality conservative and are based strictly on the figures for the past few years and the normal growth that each year has brought."

Two factors, according to the A. A. A., which handled 10,000,000 tours last year, are playing a predominant part in the development of America's motor tourist business, namely, the establishment of standardized motoring services throughout the country and the growing appreciation of the importance of the motor tourist caravan as a factor in the national economy."

"The motorist's sitting position is as important for his comfort as it is for the economical performance of the car. For, singularly enough, the way the driver sits at the wheel has much to do with the mileage he gets."

Estimated by A. A. A. Based On Detailed Study of Season Last Year and Allowance for Boost.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 21.—More than 44 million people, over a third of the nation, will take vacation motor tours during 1928 and will spend the staggering sum of three and a half billion dollars, according to preliminary estimates of this year's motor tourist business made by the National Touring Bureau of the American Automobile Association today.

The A. A. A. estimate for 1928 is based on a detailed study of figures for the 1927 season, with an allowance of two per cent increase for this year, which is about the normal growth in the gigantic industry of motor touring over the past few years.

Approximately 49 million people in ten million cars, took to the winding ribbons of paved highways and into the byways for their vacations last year, the national motoring body declared.

"One of the most impressive and important features of the motor tourist business in 1927," says the A. A. A., "was the trend away from the tourist camps and toward the hotels and tourist homes catering to motorists. The latter enjoyed a heavier business than in the previous year, despite weather conditions that somewhat handicapped the annual vacation movement. In this trend, amounting to an increase of 12 per cent in business, is seen a clear indication of the position of the resort hotel as a permanent fixture in the rest and play life of the motorists."

"The figures for last year show that 29,900,000 people in 7,250,000 cars patronized hotels and tourist homes. On the basis of last year's figures, the total of this class of motorists should soar to 32,000,000 this year."
