Christmas Seal Sale, Gifts for TB Hospital Are Coming Along Slowly

With only $800 received in the sale of Christmas Seals one week after the sale started and with gift deposit boxes for the state hospital at Socorro as empty as a Stalin promise, there was gloom among members of the North Eddy County Tuberculosis Committee of which Mrs. G. C. Kinder, 808 West Main, Artesia, is treasurer.

Out of 3500 letters sent out, each enclosing two sheets of Christmas Seals, receipts have totaled only $800 on the returns.

Four boxes have been put in stores as depositories for Christmas gifts to be sent patients in the state hospital. A mere dribble has been the result.

The boxes are at Goldstein's Book & Stationery, Roselawn and Quay: Irby Drug, 107 South Fourth; E. M. Lovelady, 325 West Main and Williams Furniture, 401 West Main.

Idea is for customers to put into the boxes gifts to be sent patients in the state hospital. Gifts may or may not be purchased at the places the boxes are located.

Among the items wanted, is sets of Christmas cards patients might send their relatives. Others are toys, puzzles, stationery, stamps.

There are five patients from North Eddy County now in the hospital. One of these is a boy only 2 years old, who has been in the hospital since he was a few months old and who, at the time of his admittance, was the youngest ever admitted to the institution.

Headline for the gifts-to-Socorro hospital move is Dec. 16.

Where Money Goes

Mrs. Naomi Votaw, publicity chairman for the campaign and a public-health nurse, gave a detailed exposition today of how the money is used.

"It may seem strange," she said, "that a health nurse would devote a part of her time to helping the Christmas Seal sale, but she knows how the money is spent and how difficult it is to fight tuberculosis.

"How is the money spent?"

"There is 60 per cent that stays in this community, 40 per cent to the state association, out of the latter 34 per cent is retained and 6 per cent goes to the national. "New Mexico uses its share for the state sanatorium at Socorro and for the mobile unit operating over the state. The unit is now in Chaves County and will be in Eddy before too long.

"The remaining 60 per cent that stays in our own community does many things. It has provided nursing care for a patient awaiting admittance to Socorro. It has paid on several occasions, for streptomycin that was being given to some tuberculous patients. Some badly needed pneumo-thorax treatments so necessary for patients was paid for out of our fund.

"All of this was done for patients in our community. The X-ray bill is no small item. Whenever a case of tuberculosis is found by our doctors, all known contacts are urged to have X-rays to determine whether there are any more cases or some in the very early stages.

Frequently, in cases of large families, X-rays of every member would never be taken if it was not for the local association helping on the cost.

A few hundred dollars do not last very long, when contact after contact must be X-rayed. Our arrested cases, that are inactive, are X-rayed periodically and that means that some people have several X-rays in a year's time.

"Postage stamps are needed to put on the Christmas Seal letters and the local association has in the past helped defray the cost of bringing in the mobile unit. So you see, when you buy Christmas Seals, you do get a great deal in return.

How Disease Begins

"There is much to say about the disease of tuberculosis. It is contagious, which means that someone with an active case passes the live germs on to other people. It can be contracted by spraying out through the nose and mouth when a patient coughs, sneezes, spits or talks and laughs vigorously.

"The germ can come from an unsafe milk supply, coming from tuberculosis cows. Frequently, we see spouts that has been spit out on to the sidewalk by very careless people who are not concerned about

POT POURRI

Bob O'Bannon of the Cottonwood community is not only a good sportsman, but he is somewhat of a psychologist, although he may not know it.

As far as that's concerned, Bob may not even know what it means. But we assure him it's nothing bad.

On Saturday, when the pheasant season opened at noon, Bob placed a sign in the lane past his house, which leads to one of the popular hunting areas. It read:

"Pheasant hunters welcome. Please don't shoot my pet quail."

We sincerely hope that every hunter who drove down that lane knew about not shooting quail close to barnlots, which usually are fed by farmers and are protected by them.

But if any of them did not know about it before that, we feel certain not one would have been a poor enough sportsman to have shot into any covey within several hundred yards of Bob's home place.

Thus Bob hung out the welcome sign, at the same time making an appeal from one sportsman to others, which few would fail to heed. And at the same time he demonstrated mighty good psychology.

In that respect, there are many farmers and ranchers who forbid hunting on their places, not because they are not sportsmen and hate to see other sportsmen have their fun and good shooting, but (Continued on Page Eight)

Awards to Be Made in Annual Merit Badge Show

New Constitution Is Adopted By Legion Post Here

Clarence Kepple Post 41, American Legion, adopted a new constitution and by-laws Monday evening at the regular December meeting, to replace the old ones, passed many years ago, which have been lost.

That was the principal matter of business at the meeting, which was held after a joint turkey dinner enjoyed by 150 members of the American Legion and Auxiliary and guests at the Veterans Memorial Building. After the dinner the members of the women's organization held their December meeting in the Sombroero Room, while the legion met in the main hall.

The main course of the dinner was prepared and served by members of the American Legion Auxiliary, all members of which were asked to bring salads or desserts. The constitution and by-laws adopted followed closely a pattern set by the New Mexico department, which all posts have been asked to comply with. They are rather lengthy and required more than an hour for reading by Adjutant J. L. Long and discussion of the various sections by the members.

Herman Fuchs, chairman of the constitution committee, had reported the old constitution lost and (Continued on Page Eight)

New Junior High School Is Modern as Any in Nation

It's a white Christmas for 582 lucky Artesia boys and girls of three grades, six, seven and eight, first pupils in Artesia's seventh and newest school, Artesia Junior High, 11th and Bullock. Exodus of junior high pupils from Park, Central and the old junior-senior high building was Nov. 30. Significantly the junior high is located Artesia's newest vessel of education was on its shakedown cruise this week.

The newly opened junior high school building at 11th and Bullock was filled with 582 students of whom 240 are in the seventh grade, leading the field of the three classes.

There are 197 in the eighth grade. In show spot is the sixth grade with 145.

To Move Trophies

Seventh and eighth grades have somewhat shorter hours than high school. Classes dismiss at 11:48 in the morning to allow pupils to go to the high school cafeteria and to align the schedule with bus runs classes end at 3:40 o'clock in the afternoon.

The junior high plans a cafeteria of its own but does not have one at the present time.

A part of the readying of the new school is preparation for the school fire drills required by law.

An Artesia counterpart to the U.S.-Mexican flag exchange will be the removal of junior high school trophies from the old junior-senior building at 1006 West Richardson.

Home economics pupils of Vada Magatagan, will have the job of polishing the trophies and putting them in the junior high's own hall of fame.

Equipment Needed

Although now open and in operation, the junior high, like other within a half mile of the site of old Wesleyan College, which became the town's first high school. The junior high is as modern as any school in the nation, has a patio in the center, ample windows, plenty of color, fine gymnasium. Don Riddle is principal.

Artesia schools, is short of some equipment. To help pay the cost of obtaining these is the purpose of ticket sales for the operetta, "The Beauty Contest," to be staged at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and again at 7:30 tonight in the high school auditorium.

The matinee will be for elementary and junior high pupils. Admission charge will be 25 cents for grade and junior high, 35 for high school, and 50 for adults.

Needed at the junior high school are sheet music, phonograph, film strip, and motion picture projectors, horseshoe pitching sets, basketball backstops, and furniture for men's and women's lounges.

Another First

Adding to the milestones being set up as the junior high opens is the district student council conference held recently in Roswell, the first of such assemblies at which the junior high has been represented at a separate, individual school.

Represented were schools of Artesia, Carlsbad, Eunice, Jal, Dexter, Hagerman, and Roswell. Attendance totaled 175. Present from Artesia Junior High were Kay Ingram, president of the junior high student organization; Marshall Martin, Donna Haddox, Janelle Blackburn, Cathryn Hayes, social studies teacher, and council sponsor.

"How to Arouse Interest of Students and Faculty in the Student Council" was the conference topic.

High School Now Has Atmosphere Of Jingle Bells

There's a jingle bells atmosphere now around Artesia High School. To replenish their chapter treasury, agriculture students of John T. Short made trips to the mountains this week to cut Christmas trees and to offer these for sale.

Proceeds go to the Artesia Future Farmers of America.

Persons wishing Christmas trees can place their orders with Short at the agriculture building on the high school campus.

Through the Student Council, a Christmas tree has been purchased and will be decorated and put on display on the second floor of the high school building.

Howard Miller, choral instructor, is preparing the program for a Christmas assembly event to be held from 3 to 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 20, in the high school auditorium, last day of classes before Yule holidays begin.

A tape recording of the program will be made by Dave Button, manager of radio station KSPV.

Christmas vacations for the schools begin Dec. 21, end Jan. 2. Classes resume the following day, Jan. 3.

Pupils of Artesia's newest school the junior high will mark their first Christmas in the new building located at 11th and Bullock.

Exodus of the junior high contingent from the old senior-junior building to the new school on Nov. 23 has resulted in sundry changes in the old structure, including replacing old type desks with the removable kind that can easily be shunted about, making it easier for room clean-ups.

Lions Box Supper To Raise Funds For Needy Kids

Plans for a public box supper at 7 o'clock Thursday evening of next week, Dec. 14, to raise funds for a Christmas party for needy children were discussed at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Artesia Lions Club Wednesday noon.

The box supper will be held in the gymnasium at Central School. Every Lion is expected to take a box supper to the affair, it was announced by Floyd Springer, president. And everyone else in the community was invited to attend, with each woman expected to take a box and each man expected to buy a box when they are auctioned off.

Tentatively named as auctioneers were Fred Cole, Jack (Judge Bean) Fauntleroy and Shirley Hager.

After the supper, bingo will be played, to further swell the funds for the party for needy children of the community.

On the program of entertainment are Bill Brown, piano and Fred Hernandez, bass viol; a barbershop quartet and Cal Hall playing a guitar, accompanied by Bill Brown and Louis Campanella.

The Christmas party for underprivileged children will also be in the Central School gymnasium. The date for it has been tentatively set for Thursday evening, Dec. 21.

The committee in charge is Rev. S. M. Morgan, chairman; W. W. Huber, George Fowler and Floyd Embree.

Rules for Printing Tickets Mandatory

Attention was called here Wednesday by Leonard L. Turnage, deputy collector in charge of the Bureau of Internal Revenue office at Roswell, to the regulation pertaining to the printing of admission tickets to any entertainment, for which a 20 per cent tax must be collected.

He pointed out that each ticket a printer makes must show the established price for the event, the amount of federal tax and the total cost; the date, time and place of the event and the name of the organization giving the event. In addition, all tickets must be numbered.

Besides a sample ticket must be sent by the printer to the collector of internal revenue for which purpose a supply of franked and addressed envelopes was left at The Advocate office by the deputy collector.

It was explained that the responsibility for carrying out the provisions lies with the printer. Which means The Advocate will refuse to print which does not comply.

Exceptions are entertainments for charitable, religious or educational reasons.

The regulation has been in effect a number of years and The Advocate has followed it strictly, but at times sponsors of events feel a ticket with less copy and without the consecutive numbering, which would be less costly, would suffice. But it will not, Turnage emphasized.

David Sanders Shoots Self in Arm on Sunday

David Sanders, Artesia service station operator, accidentally shot himself in the right forearm Sunday afternoon while removing a 410-gauge hammer shotgun from his car to unload it.

The accident happened beyond Seven Rivers, where Sanders had been trying out the gun.

He said he believed the hammer caught on something and partially cocked and then released.

The shot crossed upward on the inside of his lower arm, severing the muscle and an artery.

Mrs. Sanders and her mother, Mrs. A. L. Deal of Hamlin, Texas, who has been visiting them, was with him and they applied a tourniquet and brought him to Artesia for treatment.

His physician has told Sanders there probably will be no permanent injury.

Emery Carper Made Honorary Member Of Petroleum Club

Emery Carper of Artesia, president of New Mexico Oil and Gas Association, was made an honorary member of the Petroleum Club, student organization of New Mexico School of Mines, Socorro, on Wednesday at a meeting of the association in Santa Fe.

Presentation of the certificate and key, on behalf of the club, was made by Clarence B. Folsom, Jr., assistant professor in the petroleum department of the college. Folsom also appeared as a speaker on the day's program.

Carper is president of the Carper Drilling Company of Artesia.

Soil Conservation Supervisors Are Meeting Here

Sessions of a two-day training school for supervisors of 10 Soil Conservation Service districts in Southeast New Mexico are to be completed today at the city hall in Artesia.

The school here is one of four being held throughout the state this month by the State Soil Conservation Committee of New Mexico, of which E. O. Moore of Dexter is chairman.

Four of the principal questions regarding the soil conservation job for supervisors of conservation districts up for discussion yesterday and today are:

"What is the job?" "What tools do we have to work with?" "What helpful agencies do we have and how can they help?" "How can we use these tools and agencies in getting the job done?"

Besides Moore, the committee in charge consists of Lee T. Morgan, Soil Conservation Service; Hoy Connelley, Production and Marketing Administration, and J. Grady Wilson, Extension Service, secretary of the state committee.

Chamber Staging Membership Mop Up Today

Beginning the mop up of their 1951 membership campaign, Artesia Chamber of Commerce members started a canvass intended to wrap up the project in one day.

The workers met at a ham and eggs and biscuit breakfast at 7:30 o'clock this morning at Cliff's Cafeteria, 317 West Main, then started out on the clean-up.

Goal is $22,170. To date $14,000 has been obtained but only $2250 is in cash. Out of the $14,000 there was $9200 obtained from the "regulars" of the organization.

There are 130 prospects remaining to contact and $8170 to be raised.

At the directors meeting at 7:30 o'clock Monday night at the Chamber of Commerce office in Artesia Hotel, the members' list was scrutinized and directors assumed responsibility for each having six workers present at this morning's breakfast.

Banquet Dates Set

Annual banquet of the chamber will be on Friday, Feb. 2, with D. Hodson Lewis, Dallas, Southwest division manager of the United States Chamber of Commerce as the main speaker.

Lewis comes to Artesia after addressing a similar gathering on Wednesday, Jan. 31, in Albuquerque.

New Mexico Chamber of Commerce Managers Association will convene in Artesia on Feb. 22-23.

In other business of the meeting, President Bill Siegenthaler announced that bids on the potash-oil-field loop road are to be opened and contracts let by the New Mexico Highway Commission on Dec. 15.

To welcome special guests at the Artesia Country Club dedication and open house on Dec. 16, a five-member entertainment committee was named.

Members are C. L. Withers, Bob Bourland, Stanley Carper, Clyde Guy, and Bill Keys.

Directors heard that action of Pioneer Air Lines in pulling out of Roswell has virtually stymied any hope of keeping up the fight to get Artesia a place on an airline route. The move has been halted twice before by action of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

President at the directors' meeting were Bill Siegenthaler, Wayne Paulin, Thad Cox, Stanley Carper, Bob Bourland, C. T. Gaskins, Doyle Hankins, Clyde Guy, Bill Keys, G. Taylor Cole, and Manager Bob Koonec.

Planning Clinic For Elks Lodges To Be Held Here

Officers of seven Elk Lodges in this area will hold a community service planning clinic in Artesia on Sunday, Dec. 10. Robert E. Boney of Las Cruces, district deputy grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, announced.

Attending will be the exalted rulers and secretaries of lodges in Roswell, Hobbs, Artesia, Carlsbad, Las Cruces, Silver City and Lordsburg. The clinic will meet at noon in Artesia at the Elks Club.

It is one of 152 clinics to be held in a campaign by the order to strengthen the foundations of the American way of life through an expanded program of community services by the nation's 1570 Elk Lodges, according to Boney. The campaign was launched by Joseph B. Kyle of Gary, Ind., grand exalted ruler of the Elks.

The campaign calls for every lodge to study its community's needs in such fields as health, recreation and welfare facilities, with special emphasis upon youth development and then adopt specific projects to meet those needs, Boney said.

"The Order of Elks is spending nearly seven million dollars yearly for benevolent and patriotic activities," Grand Exalted Ruler Kyle declared in a statement outlining the campaign to Boney. "These activities include hospitals and clinics for crippled children, aid to the cerebral palsied, free dental care, summer camps and youth centers, safety education, college scholarships, Boy Scouts and boys' clubs and hundreds of others."

"By rendering such community services, Elks Lodges are nourishing democracy, giving it vitality and force, and are destroying the seeds of communism. As J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, declared recently in an article in the Elks Magazine: 'The spirit of the Elks runs directly contrary to every tenet of communism. To assist the individual, to make life more worthwhile and through him to

By Thomas J. Mabry
GOVERNOR

There is no disputing the fact that all the free world today is tense, and uncertainty and frustration confront us wherever men—hoping and working for peace—turn. But out of it all comes the brighter picture of more unity, less partisanship, and more dependence on our experts in the military and diplomatic fields. Let's hope and pray that a solution will be found, and in the meantime we civilians at home must prepare for our own defense.

Civilian defense against disasters of all kinds is one of the most important problems facing our state today. We were caught short in World War I, we were caught short at Pearl Harbor, and we were caught short in Korea. We must not be found unprepared in case of another worldwide catastrophe.

New Mexico's planning for civilian defense is progressing. At the present time most of the larger cities have completed a civilian defense organization. While the state civilian defense council and the civilian defense director are co-ordinating all work done by local organizations in the state, it is in the final analysis up to the local communities to perfect their own civilian defense plans; at least that is what we have been told by Washington up to this time. I am in hopes that Congress will give us more aid, particularly in the strategic spots like one or two we have here in New Mexico.

We hope that war is not just around the corner. We are merely buying insurance which we hope we will not have to use, but it will save countless lives should disaster strike our state.

I have been very gratified with the co-operation New Mexico has received from many organizations and groups, as well as from town and city councils. The Boy Scouts of America, the Girl Scouts of America, organized labor, the Medical Association, the Hospital Association, the American Legion, and other organizations have come forward and offered the state their facilities and their co-operation in setting up a civilian defense program.

The Board of Finance has advanced sufficient funds to staff the headquarters of the state director of civilian defense. The board has also advanced funds to New Mexico Western College at Silver City to conduct a statewide program for training fire fighters. Fires will be one of our chief hazards in case of emergency.

The next Legislature will be called upon to provide funds for civilian defense activities and I hope adequate funds are made available.

The American Red Cross has offered its statewide services to all individuals who desire to take first aid training courses. It has also volunteered its services in training student nurses. Every adult in New Mexico should be trained to give first aid. Such training should be obtained even though there was no possibility of any general disaster.

Interchange of listings between Artesia and Roswell real estate multiple listing bureaus was set up at a joint meeting of Artesia and Roswell realtors held at the Artesia organization's regular weekly breakfast meeting at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in Artesia Hotel.

There was talk also of inviting Carlsbad to enter into the agreement.

Youse and Stanley Mathis, also of Roswell, president of New Mexico Association of Real Estate Boards, advisor.

Attendance at the breakfast totaled 20. Then 10 present were Roswell guests of the Artesia association.

Gary Cooper Is Starred in 'Bright Leaf'

"Bright Leaf" Warner Brothers' long-awaited picturization of the brilliant novel, comes to the Ocotillo Theater Sunday through Tuesday.

Starring Gary Cooper, Patricia Neal, Lauren Bacall and Jack Carson, the picture is assured of a major cast strong enough to portray the roles in a story of the building of a tobacco empire in the old South, set against a background of Southern mansions, beautiful women, fiery tempers and courtly manners—all that went to make a story of the proportions that has not been seen since the epic "Gone With the Wind."

As Brant Foyle, a devil-may-care southerner, Gary Cooper returns to his home town to woo again the aristocratic Patricia Neal whose father, played by Donald Crisp, will have none of him. Cooper launches a tobacco empire which ultimately ruins Crisp and while he marries the girl, is never happy with her.

Only Lauren Bacall, another beauty of shady background who loves him and Jack Carson, playing a medicine show barker who decides to settle in the southern town remain loyal as the empire subsequently crumbles. All the sweep and magnificence of the moving story by Foste Fitz-Simons, together with the production values which advance the picture, indicate Warner Brother have placed in the film, combine to make "Bright Leaf" one of the most important film to come into town this year. Michael Curtiz, for Hollywood director, handled the megaphone.

Jeff Corey is also featured. New Mexico that desires to set up a civilian defense program and has not yet done so, the state office of civilian defense, headed by Brig. Gen. Charles G. Sage, the adjutant general, and his assistant, Maj. Edward Oakley, will be happy to provide all possible help.

Bulldog Cagers Challenged By Buzz Bombing Yellow Jackets

Artesia Frosh Basketeers to Make Bow in Preliminary

Hope's more than hopeful aggregation of basketball aces, the Hope High School Yellow Jackets, will try their stinging power against Artesia High School Bulldogs and the Artesia C or freshman squad tonight on the Hope court.

The preliminary, which will mark the debut of the C team, coached by Cal Hall, will likely start at 7 o'clock.

It will be the second game for the Bulldogs. Last Tuesday night, they opened the season in impressive form by defeating the Lake Arthur Panthers 52 to 28.

Win Over Hagerman

In previous games this season the Yellowjackets beat Weed 54 to 23 and vanquished Hagerman 37 to 33. The Hope B team defeated Weed 24 to 9 while a Hope grade squad bowed to Hagerman 27 to 17. The Yellow Jackets have an everybody gets in on the act team as evidenced by the scoring against Hagerman. An entire quintet was in the payoff column, led by Forrester with 11 points, Kent Terry 10, Lynn Harrison, seven, Glenn Harrison, five and Sanders with four.

Hornets First Buzz

In the curtain raiser in Artesia, Dec. 5, which marked the premiere of the first junior high school team as representing a separate school, the Artesia Hornets eked out a two-point win, over their Lake Arthur opponents, whose score by coincidence was the same as that of the Panthers, 28.

Final in the preliminary was Hornets 30, Lake Arthur 28. At the half, the Hornets held a slim margin, 15 to 13.

Bill Hamm's basketeers, both the Hornets' opposition and the Bulldogs' competitors, are a plucky aggregation.

Against the Hornets Guerrero got a 4-4 count to score 12 points and lead the Lake Arthur squad. Nelson was a close runner-up with four field goals for eight points.

For the Hornets, John Riddle, was high point man with six field goals and three liberty tosses for 15 points. John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Riddle. Don Riddle is principal of the junior high.

Sanders was runner-up to Riddle with a 2-2 tally for six.

In the Bulldog-Panther clash, Valenzuela, a guard, gave the Artesia cagers plenty of worry, as he played his smooth fast game to amass six field goals and eight free throws for a total of 20 points, high for his team and high for the entire card.

The Bulldogs were paced by Bill Brown, center, with an eight and three count for 19 points, only one less than Valenzuela. Entire roster of the Bulldogs, 15 players, was used in the battle, against the Panthers nine.

The banquet, at which Rusty Russell, head coach of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, will be the main speaker, is sponsored by Artesia Bulldog Parents Club.

Plans for the banquet were outlined at a club meeting held at 7:30 o'clock Monday night at the high school.

Coaches to Draft Area Cage Joust In Meeting Here

To chart the course for the district basketball tournament to be held at New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, Feb. 23-24, a meeting of coaches from seven towns, has been called for 7:30 o'clock Monday night, Dec. 11, in the high school principal's office here.

Represented will be Artesia, Hope, Carlsbad, Lake Arthur, Dexter, Hagerman, and Roswell. Regional tournament will be held March 2-3, place not decided; state, March 9-10, in Albuquerque. T. Stovall, District 5 vice president of the state athletic association will preside at the coaches conference.

Years. Western claimed him after he played at Lordsburg high school. Athletic Director Ray Brancheau told persons attending the banquet that this is the first time in the history of New Mexico Western that any athlete has been so honored. Brancheau, who was toastmaster at the annual banquet, congratulated Ralph Craig for his four years at Western.

Meeting Called To Set Up City Basketball Loop

Artesia men who would rather play basketball themselves rather than simply watch a game will have a chance to put that wish into action come next January.

A meeting has been called for 7:30 o'clock Monday night, Dec. 11, in the Artesia High School gymnasium office at which time a city basketball league is to be organized.

Play is expected to be started the first week of January. Heretofore there have been cases of the circuit starting play in December but always recessing for the Christmas holidays.

This meant that the organization hit a bottleneck and had some difficulty in getting started again.

Location for the games has already been obtained. It is hoped to have two games twice a week, two each on Monday and Wednesday nights, with the possibility that boys of the grade school loop may fit into the preliminary contests.

A municipal basketball league is not new in Artesia but the play has never attained the importance it has in other towns.

Lordsburg Back 'Most Valuable' Western Player

Football fans around Silver City, home of New Mexico Western College, and in the New Mexico conference will never again see Jersey No. 10 on the field of play. The athletic department at New Mexico Western has retired No. 10, so that no other player will ever wear it again. No. 10 belongs to Ralph Craig, senior co-captain and twice elected "most valuable player" by his teammates.

Coach Al Johnson announced retirement of Craig's No. 10 at the annual football banquet. Prior to that announcement, Craig was introduced as the 1950 team's "most valuable player" as elected by teammates.

Craig, senior halfback and co-captain, led the Mustangs in ground gaining in his senior year and tied for the lead in touchdowns scored with seven for 42 points. He also played for the Mustangs in his freshman, sophomore and junior

Quarterbacks to Meet Monday With Sun Bowl Trip Major Item

Putting their plan for continued operation of the organization throughout the basketball and track seasons and not winding up now that the football season is over, Artesia Quarterback Club will meet at 7 o'clock Monday night, Dec. 11, in Cliff's Cafeteria, 317 West Main.

President Ralph Nix says the place has a private dining room that can seat 35 to 40 and more can be seated in the main area.

There is a possibility a motion picture will be a part of the program.

An important item on the agenda will be the collection of money to defray the cost of sending the Artesia High School grid team to the Sun Bowl game in El Paso on Jan. 1.

The club voted at its last session to sponsor this project. While some have donated money to club members and others have indicated they will contribute, only $16 has been received by the Advocate sports editor, to whom the job of receiving the money was assigned.

As time is short, it is imperative that the club make up the amount needed at once.

No Vagueness on This

Used to be there were framed placards of codes and creeds and sayings from Poor Richard's Almanac that were standard decorative fixtures. Along with that went words on sportsmanship.

Too often they remained only that—words on a decoration. Putting action into a fine attribute, T. Stovall, Artesia High School principal and vice president for District 5 of the New Mexico High School Athletic Association, has done something about it.

Talked with him Wednesday morning and he stressed the idea that sportsmanship means something and will be made to mean something in our high school athletic contests.

Principal Stovall says he wants Artesia to rate high in sportsmanship, that both teams and spectators at games in Southeastern New Mexico are being judged on this. That was the subject of a mid-half talk by R. M. Parham at the Artesia-Lake Arthur basketball game here Tuesday night.

It is good to see sportsmanship emphasized. It is doubly good to see it taken out of the dictionary and given life, which is exactly what is being done.

That act at the half, the introduction of players, referees, coaches, gave the game a special effect and emphasized sportsmanship. It was good to see the coaches get recognition, Manager Kenneth Dixon of the Bulldogs, as well as the officials.

Bill Hamm, native of Hamilton in the Buckeye state, is the Panther coach. He's a former New Mexico Aggie, well known by Call Hall and Reese Smith, according to the gondola info.

Fact that Hamm hails from the same section once the home of Bill Hayes, now Bill Sternberg cagers in stead of gridgers, enlivened Keys talk about him.

News and Sportsmanship

I've never encountered any situation in Artesia like the cases cited in a Hobbs-Sun editorial, "Don't Print That," reprinted in Shop Talk, organ of the New Mexico Press Association.

Yet I know from past experience there are persons who are needlessly cautious about the most innocent personal item and charge about with a "don't print that" command.

I think newspapers set a fine example in sportsmanship when, as the Hobbs paper does, they close their eyes to drunks, peace disturbers and family squabbles.

The Hobbs newspaper cites its five-a-week request to keep news out of the paper and says only few are legitimate.

For example one person got vastly excited about a story concerning an automobile accident. A mother of the girl involved was said to be "at point of death" and the "news would be fatal."

The fact was the mother was ill but not critically and the accident about which such an uproar was raised was only a trivial dented fenders case. Because it was trivial the story wasn't printed.

"It is not the intention of the News-Sun to injure anyone. We want no one fired from his job, no one in trouble at home," says another part of the editorial.

That's why I think the public owes considerable respect to newspapermen who have saved many a citizen from losing his job and eliminated a lot of suffering by giving the fellow who may have third teams and honorable mentions as I am of points.

I still say the only true criterion is that of the players. One statewide poll, conducted by the New Mexico High School Athletic Association, among the players, choosing their all-opponent eleven, first, second and third teams, ought to be official.

Of course there will always be newspaper polls and polls taken of sports editors and coaches. These are all to the good and certainly I would not be in the position of criticizing men who know far more about football than I will ever know.

Yet it seems to me that the deal concerns the players primarily and hence the official and final voice should be theirs, regardless of how many other polls may be taken.

Cleaning Out the Tray

Coach Jack Tinson, the grid mentor, looking at peace with the world for the first time since the Jal jitterbug game of Sept. 8. He wasn't on the sidelines at the basketball premiere.

Bulldogs black and white uniforms gave a dinner at 8 color to the contest. Keeping up with uniforms dizzy task with four teams in action and the switch to "home" and "away" outfits.

Smell of popcorn, crowded, noisy, small-sized gym made the place ring like an alarm clock factory. Peaceful enough in the Davis gondola, though.

A. L. Terpening, the torpedoed booming booted prince of punting, in an unfamiliar role, that of spectator, while his grid mates, the Brown brothers, Bobby Morgan, Jimmy Juarez, Jerald "Silver Shoe" Johnson, et al switched from touchdowns to field goals and tosses for free.

Over against a table near the west wall, Supt. Tom Mayfield in animated conversation with another man, identity now known from Davis gondola.

I've kidded Bill Keys before about the matter of adding the half-yards to yards gained in scrimmage when the grid season was going on so I hope he doesn't mind a bit more anent basketball.

Bill, who does a bang-up job on broadcasting sports, had the same trouble I had. It was difficult to switch into basketball after the 12-game football asked so it's no wonder Bill said the played were leaving the "field" instead of "court."

And to Dave Button, manager of the station . . . while "radio booth" may be a general term for the Davis gondola, the steel gray crown's nest is also a press box!

I was there, too, Dave, just like at the football games!

Hope Player Third In Scoring Record Of Mustang Cagers

Howard Forrester of Hope, one of the seven returning lettermen from New Mexico Western college's 1950 basketball squad, rated third place in scoring on the Mustang team last season.

The seven lettermen, of whom the Hope man was one, were responsible for 851 of the 1306 points scored by the Mustangs last year.

Leading scorer from last year's returnees is Mikie Haynes, sophomore from New Castle, Ind., with 228 points on 83 field goals and 62 free throws.

Dick King, all conference center who graduated, scored 284, to take the top bracket.

Below the century mark in last year totals were four of the lettermen. Jay Fletcher, junior forward-guard-center from Lawrenceburg, Ind., scored 98; Ed Harter, sophomore center from New Castle, rung 94; Jimmy Smith, sophomore guard from Rochester, Ind., looped 83; and Louis Rivera, senior guard-forward from Silver City, tallied 69.

Two non-lettermen, returning veterans, Dick Maslow, sophomore guard from Brooklyn, N. Y., and Marian Watts, sophomore forward from Franklin, Ind., combined for 111 points last year. All in all, if these NMW lettermen can carry the brunt of the scoring load this year, as they did last year, and

Frosh Mobilize Basketball Squad

A third squad, the freshmen or C clan, has made its appearance in the local schools basketball picture. The 17-player outfit composed of Artesia High School freshmen is coached by Calvin Hall and will play its first game tonight in Hope.

Workouts started on Nov. 30. Six of the C squad are veterans of the seventh-eighth grade tourney championship team of last season. They are Wray Shildneck, center, Barry Hager, who plays either guard or forward, Roy Johnson, guard, Jim Haddox, Louis Campanella, and Charles Buck, forwards.

Larry Beadle, forward, was on the team also but moved away before the tournament.

A newcomer who is going high, wide, and handsome in practice is Warren Courville, guard, who comes here from Wink, Texas.

The frosh team will compete in the junior high joustings at Carlsbad next February.

Coach Hall says the frosh basketeers can "carry on the good work this year by hard work, keeping in training, playing the game with everything they have and playing it fair and square."

Probable Starters

Raising the curtain of action for the frosh team in the game tonight will be these likely starters, Campanella, forward, Beadle or Hager, forward, Shildneck, center, Johnson and Courville, guards.

Tallest of the squad is Shildneck, 6-2, shortest, Sammy Golden, guard, 5-4. Twelve out of the 17 are 5-9 or better. Out of the 17 players eight are 15 years old, seven are 14, and two are 16.

Pro Baseball Team Name Contest Attracts Illinois Competitor

Longest distance contestant in the Artesia pro baseball team naming contest to date is Richard W. Bruno of 306 North School Street Normal, Ill.

Bruno also is the first to address a letter to me by name, even though he got the first and last in reverse order. Mrs. Bruno, his wife, is a native Artesian, he writes, and "my wife and I hope to be there for the opening of the 1951 season."

Thank you for your letter, Mr. Bruno, and I sure hope you and Mrs. Bruno will be in Artesia for the first game of Artesia's first professional baseball team.

While I'm please at the accelerated pace at which entries are coming in there still aren't enough persons competing. It costs nothing but a little time to fill out a coupon like the one at the top of this page.

The envelopes and coupons are rapidly filling up a big manila envelope I kept in my desk so it will take some time to list them all accurately when the time comes to submit the names to the fans.

You still have until Dec. 18 to enter your name selection for the team of which Dr. Marshall Dyke is owner and Stubby Greer manager.

The plan is to publish the names submitted for the team along with the names of those suggesting those names in the issue of Nov. 19 and 22.

Then a quick referendum will decide the winner, who will receive a season pass good for all home games next season of the team. Contestants, in addition to those named earlier:

Mrs. Rogers said a box would be placed at the Veterans Memorial Building for books and magazines to be forwarded to the Veterans Hospital at Albuquerque and asked that anyone having books and magazines to take them to the building.

Mrs. Boglin gave an interesting talk and said she was proud of the Artesia unit for that it is prompt in getting in reports. Artesia had its membership quota in first, she said. She was presented a lovely gift and also a corsage from the unit.

CHIROPRACTIC

for Stomach Trouble

Stomach disorders may be classed under many different names. The Chiropractic fundamental is to search for the CAUSE of the disorder, rather than to give it a name. We have found the cause in most cases to be an interference to the transmission of nerve energy due to a subluxated (misaligned) vertebra, preventing the 100% transmission of nerve energy from the brain, where it originates, to the stomach, where it is needed for proper functioning.

Wise Planning Assures Adequate Supply Dusting, Spraying Equipment

By Charley S. Taylor (Extension Agricultural Engineer)

It is a wise farmer who makes his machinery and equipment plans now for next year. Domestic and world conditions this fall make early planning more important than ever. Higher prices for consumer goods are indicated, labor costs are increasing, taxes will be higher; in short, production costs are going up.

Increased production of some crops, especially cotton, will be required next year. Labor supply may be short in some areas.

All this adds up to the need for economical and efficient operation of farm mechanical equipment. Machines must be made to last a little longer, repair bills must be reduced, breakdowns and costly delays must be prevented. These things the farmer can achieve through wise planning, proper maintenance, and care of his farm equipment.

Present indications are that the supply of farm machinery and equipment, including spare and replacement parts, will be adequate for 1951, provided it is wisely employed. This doesn't mean that a farmer will be able to run down town quickly and buy a replacement for a tractor that he has ruined through neglect. It does mean that preventive maintenance, systematic reconditioning and replacement of worn or defective parts or machines, and proper storage now can relieve the farmer of equipment worries next crop year.

Winterizing is especially important for dusting and spraying equipment. Many of the chemicals used in insecticides, herbicides, and defoliants are highly corrosive, in addition to being poisonous to man and beast. Therefore, this equipment should not be put away for the winter until it has been thoroughly cleaned and prepared for storage. Fortunately, the process of preparing this equipment for storage is simple and easy.

Cleaning the equipment is of course the first step. Dusting equipment should be hosed down with water. Spraying equipment should be flushed several times with water and allowed to dry.

Then run a light oil, such as fuel oil, through the system. Nozzles must be removed, cleaned with fuel oil, and dried. Do not use gasoline to clean equipment; it isn't safe. Use kerosene or fuel oil. Special precautions must be taken with equipment that has been used for applying 2,4-D, since residual effects of even minute quantities of this chemical can be highly destructive to certain crops. Ordinarily, special equipment should be used to apply 2,4-D, but whatever equipment is used, clean it thoroughly after use. Either a solution of ammonia water or a special commercial preparation now available, is satisfactory for this purpose. See your county agent for recommendations on cleaning solvents for 2,4-D application equipment.

After the equipment is clean and dry, the next step is lubrication. Oil or lubricate the equipment and plug the ends of hoses or pipes to prevent insects or foreign matter from entering. While oiling the machine, make a list of the worn or defective parts or machines that need reconditioning or replacement. Then order the needed replacements and do the necessary reconditioning work during the winter when weather is unfit for work outside. It is unwise to buy more spare or replacement parts than you ordinarily need. Unlike the insecticide industry, machinery suppliers are not benefited by having their stocks depleted. Heavy stocking and storage of mechanical equipment on farms does not increase the supply. Neither is the farmer equipped to store such items as well or as economically as the supplier. Of course, it's a good idea to keep a supply of certain parts or accessories that require frequent or periodic replacement, to keep equipment constantly in good operating condition. Depend on timely maintenance and proper care to keep your equipment in trouble-free operation. The instruction book or operator's manual should be the farmer's bible for machinery maintenance.

Building Pumice Fastest Growing State Industry

The first important research on New Mexico's newest and fastest growing industry has been released by the University of New Mexico Publication series.

Prof. William C. Wagner, civil engineering head at the university; Dr. Dexter H. Reynolds, and Walter E. Gay, the last two formerly with the university, published a booklet on pumice as aggregate for lightweight structural concrete. The authors say pumice, which abounds in New Mexico's extinct volcano regions, is not only much lighter than the ordinary mixture of sand and gravel but by far a better insulating material in concrete.

The booklet says pumice can be used in its original state as dug from the ground by merely sifting it to get it properly graded.

Other arguments in favor of pumice as a mixture for concrete include the fact that as forms are lighter there is a substantial saving when less structural steel is required. Also footing and foundation requirements can be less stringent, the authors state.

One of the most attractive things about pumice is that the cost of handling is definitely lower because of its almost fantastic lack of weight.

Professors have estimated that New Mexico alone has enough pumice to last the United States several hundred years regardless of its building needs.

The book is published under the sub-editorship of Dr. Thomas T. Castonguay, chemical engineering head of the university, and the general editorship of John N. Durrie, head of university publications. Copies of the publication may be ordered from the editor of publications, 106 Administration Building, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque.

Pearl Harbor Day Noted in Program Of Kiwanis Club

The day that will live in infamy, Dec. 7, 1941, was vividly recalled for Artesia Kiwanians at their weekly luncheon at noon yesterday in Masonic Temple when they heard a talk by Red Hunter, a survivor of the historic sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

He served in the Navy for six and one half years, before and during World War II. He was a cook on the U.S.S. Tennessee, and had been at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, H.T., for six months prior to the Japanese aerial ambush.

Events of the day nine years ago when his ship, the Tennessee, midway in the line of the eight capital ships that were the main targets of the Nips, were told by Hunter.

The speaker is with the Artesia Investment Company. A. D. Chatten of Roswell was a visiting Kiwanian. Announcement was made that the speaker for the Dec. 14 meeting would be A. E. Hutchinson, Mayhill, forester. The announcement was by Paul Dillard. Waldo Ports presided at the luncheon in the absence of Justin P. Newman, president.

Artesia Chamber to Lend Aid in Treasury's Payroll Savings Campaign

The Artesia Chamber of Commerce has joined with thousands of similar local organizations in volunteering aid to the U. S. Treasury's payroll savings campaign, now underway.

Bob Koonce, manager, has notified his National Bond chairman that all businessmen in his organization will be asked to install the payroll plan for the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds in their stores, offices, or plants.

The local group is one of 60,000 veterans' civic and service clubs, fraternal societies being asked by the National Organizations Advisory Committee to the Treasury Department, to help in expanding the payroll savings program. The membership of these organizations includes most of the 2,500 business concerns throughout the nation.

Vernon L. Clark, national director of the U. S. Savings Bonds Division, in expressing appreciation to these organizations said: "Businessmen up and down Main Street, U. S. A., are operating the payroll savings plan to make regular saving easy for their employees. They know that it's good business, for they find the payroll saver is happier and more efficient in his work, more regular in attendance and less liable to accident or injury, since he is not distracted by financial worries."

"This partial payment way to buy bonds has been proved since 1941 to be as successful in small business as in giant industries. We need the support of the small businessman."

"The Savings Bonds owned by your friends and neighbors can mean many different things — as many and varied as the people who own them. They represent future buying power for the customers of American business; millions of new homes, college education for millions of young people, liesure and a chance for dignified retirement after working years are over. Buying bonds on the payroll savings plan provides a growing reserve for future opportunities and emergencies."

"We must also give support to our fighting men. To do this we must produce the equipment and materials needed for defense. We must also do all we can to stem the tide of inflation."

"We are proud to have these public spirited organizations, representing 30 million members, as partners in helping to put the country on a strong defense footing. They are demonstrating the spirit of personal citizenship responsibility which made America the great country it is today."

50th Anniversary Booklet Published By Chaves Capital

Artesia, Dec. 7. — Not in Chaves County, rates a brief comment in The Mid-Century Roswell Way, publication of Roswell Chamber of Commerce.

In the initial article, "Half Century Makes a Difference," Dexter, Hagerman and Lake Arthur are other towns in the county about which long stories could be written. Artesia, farther south registered a tremendous gain in population counting 8115 in the 1950 census and civic achievement these is outstanding.

Carlbad, with a preliminary count of 17,913 has grown by leaps and bounds and is an attractive progressive city of the Pecos Valley.

The 50-page booklet is printed with large type and fine illustrations on an excellent grade of paper. It describes advantages of Roswell and of Chaves County, all the way from agriculture and oil to tourists and weather.

Copy of the booklet, which sells at 25 cents, is Number 1 of Volume 19. Claude Simpson, chamber manager, is editor. President is B. B. Ginsberg.

Cover is by Peter Hurd, nationally known artist, whose ranch and studio at San Patricio are 50 miles west of Roswell. The picture shows a fine farm against a mountain background.

the health of their fellowman. This spurt may be from someone suffering from a cold, or sinus trouble — it could contain tuberculosis germs.

The sputum that is deposited on sidewalks is walked in and gets on shoes, which are then handled — and unless the individual has very clean habits and washes his hands frequently, the TB germ eventually gains entrance into the body of any human being who is careless.

Rapid Growth

"Once in the body, breathed in or taken in on food, from fingers, or after handling germ-soiled material, tuberculosis germs rapidly grow."

"That is why doctors and nurses always urge people to have their own individual toilet articles, drinking cups, towels, napkins and to wash their hands frequently."

"Doctors and nurses are not afraid of tuberculosis because they observe the rules of cleanliness."

Hospital Best

"A modern, well-equipped sanatorium is the best place for a tuberculosis patient."

"In such a place constant supervision by doctors and nurses thoroughly trained in caring for tuberculosis cases means that the patient will have the greatest possible chance of making a satisfactory recovery."

"Despite this fact it is apparent there will always be some patients who, for various reasons have to be treated at home. Many thousands of unsuspecting cases discovered in military examinations and industrial surveys may overtax sanatoria."

"This leaves home nursing care a second best to sanatorium treatment but home care, if intelligently handled, can be extremely good and effective treatment."

Chet Dexter, former Artesia oil producer and an honorary member of the Artesia Rotary Club, who became tired of the wet climate here a few years ago and moved to Sunny Los Angeles, is here this week and was assigned his old job of custodian of the milk bottle when he attended the Rotary luncheon on Tuesday.

With a reputation of being the best sergeant-at-arms the club has ever had—with no reflections on any who served prior to or since his years of service in that post—Chet took over for the day and through his efforts swelled the milk fund to the tune of $85.50 through his efforts.

That was a pretty good job of shaking down, but it recalled to some of the older members an occasion a few years ago when $114 and some off cents was dropped into the milk bottle at a Rotary Club meeting.

It happened that Chet had to leave the meeting early. So he whispered to the late "Curly" Williams, who was sitting next to him, that he would turn the milk bottle over to him. And he added that he'd match all that "Curly" collected.

Instead of letting it go at that, "Curly" got on his two feet and repeated Chet's words. And as there was only a short program coming up, the substitute sergeant-at-arms took over.

The late Martin Yates, Jr., started it off with a double sawbuck and others followed suit to the best of their ability, with the result there was something more than $57 in the milk bottle at the end of the meeting.

Chet paid off at the next meeting. And now when he comes back to Artesia on a semi-annual or annual visit, the bottle is handed to him to seek revenge, which he usually does with great success, as witness Tuesday's performance.

State Cop South Goes to Roswell, Munsey Replaces

State Policeman I. W. (Bud) South, who has been assigned to work out of Artesia more than a year, has been transferred to Roswell and A. B. Munsey has been transferred here in his place from Lovington, where he has been assigned about the same length of time.

The transfers for the two men were both effective this week. Patrolman Munsey is married and has a son, Wiley, 19 months old. He has been a member of the State Police about 14 months and drives state car No. 42.

Patrolman South will work out from Roswell, where he has been returned. His car is No. 6.

The territory patrolled out of Artesia is roughly to Hagerman on the north, half way to Carlbad on the south, the Eddy-Lea county line on the east and Elk on the west. However, patrolmen overlap somewhat in their duties.

Patrolman South will work out of Roswell with Patrolman Gene Smith, who has been there several years but who formerly was assigned to Artesia. Patrolman Marable, who has been working with Smith, has been transferred. Patrolman Bill Lewis remains at Carlbad.

Commander John Simons, Jr., announced J. T. (Jack) Easley, one of the American Legion members on the central committee of the United Veterans Club, has resigned because his business keeps him out of the city a large part of the time. Jimmie Bowman was appointed to serve in his stead.

Bill Dunnham, service officer, spoke briefly, stressing the necessity of members turning out for military funerals.

Bob Cornett, building manager for the United Veterans Club, reported the club finances are picking up somewhat and that with the co-operation of the members of the three veterans' organizations the building debt will continue to be reduced. He said some large debts have been paid off recently.

Grady Wright, membership chairman, said about 150 members have been signed up for 1951, whereas the quota is 250 and should be reached by Jan. 1.

The members stood for a minute of silent prayer in memory of Earl W. Dimock, a World War I veteran and long a member of the American Legion, who died Nov. 25 and Cpl. Narcisco Pacheco, Jr., who was wounded in Korea Sept. 18, died in Japan Nov. 6 and was buried here Dec. 1.

In accord with the American Legion Auxiliary, it was decided to hold the regular January meeting on Thursday, Jan. 4, inasmuch as the first Monday, the customary day for meetings of both groups, falls on New Year's Day. It is planned to have another joint covered-dish supper at that time.

Intelligence Tests Taken By Students

High school pupils had their brain power put to test in two examinations this week.

Top and bottom classes, senior and sophomore, took intelligence tests from 10 to 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the high school auditorium.

Similar examinations were taken by juniors and sophomores, the middle classes, on Thursday.

This is a bi-annual event. R. M. Parham, physics and math teacher, directed the tests.

Nearly all such disgruntled farmers and ranchers will permit hunters whom they know and whom they feel certain are sportsmen to hunt on their places.

When they do they are not letting down the bars, but are merely giving special permission.

We heard one farmer say last week that he planned to have his irrigation ditches full of water during the pheasant season, not to keep hunters out, but to keep them from driving through their cotton and alfalfa fields. Which is another way to help make up a farmer's mind that he doesn't want hunters on his place.

You can't blame fellows who have had bad experiences in the past if they post their places and keep hunters off.

But we do feel that in many cases if the same approach were made that Bob O'Bannon used there would be fewer breaches of hunting etiquette and more hunters would become sportsmen.

As much as we discourage poetry—unless we happen to feel like writing it—ourselves—we might have published one we received the other day through the mail, if the person only had signed it.

True, it had the typed signature, "Idis de Clare," but we just declare we don't recognize him or her.

Contributions to this department must follow the same rule as others, whether they be news or letters to the editor: They must be signed. Sources of news items are not disclosed and signatures are withheld from letters, if so requested. The same maintains for contributions to this column.

The quipsome which we received was not of a contraveral nature, so publishing it—had we been so inclined—could have had no repercussions, such as tricky, unsigned, back-biting news item might lead to. But we have a rule—and we stick by it.

Southwest Is

Birthplace of Meteoritics

Meteoritics, which for almost a century has been the little-appreciated stepchild of astronomy, has become a full-fledged offspring because of its scientific and military significance.

Writing in the fall issue of the New Mexico Quarterly, Dr. Lincoln LaPaz, University of New Mexico mathematician and meteoriticist, lays a priority claim for the Southwest as the birthplace of serious study of bodies that fall from outer space.

It is not, the author says, that more meteorites fall in this region, but the presence of a cloudless, arid climate and a root-free terrain that make of New Mexico and Arizona especially a paradise for the meteorite hunter.

Meteorites are so common, Dr. LaPaz writes, that a Southwest observer can spot from eight to 20 or more per hour on clear nights, according to the position of the look-out watch relative to the direction of the orbital motion of the earth.

He cites the case of Oct. 9, 1946, when meteorites fell in such multitudes that at the peak of the display over Albuquerque the hourly rate of those bright enough to be photographed exceeded a thousand.

While the chance or a head-on meeting may be remote, it has become important to the individual and nation that survival, in this atomic age, may depend on speedy ability to distinguish between meteoric and man-made fireballs.

Meteoritics as a science received its first great impetus when D. M. Barringer, owner of the famous Canyon Diablo crater at Winslow, Ariz., identified the big hole as a meteorite impact crater.

A couple of decades ago, Dr. Frederick C. Leonard, U.C.L.A., and at present an associate in the University of New Mexico Institute of Meteoritics, founded the first meteoritical society. The White Sands Proving Grounds added interest to the project by firing rockets into the same atmosphere traversed by meteorites on their way earthward.

The Sunday School was started in Gloucester, England, in 1735. Between 4 and 8 per cent of the population is left handed.

Americans used to freeze mince pies immediately after baking.

Coffee is native to Columbia. An oyster can produce 114,000 eggs during its lifetime.

Combat Casualties Less Among Guard Units, Boys Told

That battle casualties in National Guard outfits were lower than among draftee units was one of the statements made in a special National Guard program for high school boys 17 years and older, held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in the high school.

Purpose of the program was to explain the National Guard, its origin and its aims. Speakers were Capt. Marshall Belshe, commanding officer and Jim Heald, warrant officer junior grade, of Battery C, 697th Anti Aircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons Battalion.

They pointed out the advantage of being with a "home town" group should the National Guard unit be called into federal service and the improved chances of obtaining a commission.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their pocketbooks

There's been a lot of talk in recent weeks about "the buying power of the dollar"—past, present and future.

We can't foretell the future—but we can tell you this right now:

You'll look a long way before you'll find a car that offers as much for the money as you can get in a 1950 Buick.

Close to half a million of these cars have been built and sold this year.

Close to half a million people have checked their features and prices against the field—and decided they'd better buy Buick.

As to prices—they start down below some sixes. And whether you price the SPECIAL, the SUPER or the ROADMASTER, you'll find, on a cents-per-pound basis, that few other cars can touch them for value.

And this is for sure! When it comes to performance—ride—the way they handle and hold the road—and thrifty use of fuel and oil—Buicks have never been finer.

That's another way of saying that coil springs on all four wheels—Dynaflow—torque-tube drive—and Buick's high-compression, high-economy Fireball power produce an out-of-this-world combination.

So if you want your dollars to do extra duty—the time to act is now.

Look at the price tags—look at the features—sample the power and thrill that you get for your money—and you'll know what we mean.

*Dynaflow Drive is standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Look at the Typical Delivered Prices on 1950 Buicks

TV Prohibitive For Small Towns, Rotarians Told

Television will never replace radio or newspapers, but will merely augment them, John Palmquist of Dallas, Texas, a broadcast equipment representative, said Tuesday noon, when he discussed the possibility of television in Artesia at the weekly luncheon of the Artesia Rotary Club.

Palmquist said it might be possible there will be television here in five years or so, but that at present the cost is prohibitive for such communities. Present stations represent an outlay of a quarter million to a million dollars, he said.

However, small television stations could be built, similar to the one at Oklahoma City, for around $100,000, which is perhaps five times the cost of the equipment of the local radio station, Palmquist said.

The speaker said that in order for television to cover such ranch areas as this would require a high-power station, the alternate to which would be smaller stations using films or network programs. However, he added, the filming and broadcasting of films of TV shows made in the East gives results nearly as good as the original.

Palmquist pointed out the high cost of television and the limited amount of revenue to be derived makes it prohibitive for smaller communities to expect it for some time to come.

CONCERNING NEW MEXICO

By Will Robinson
Taking X-Ray pictures of more than 100,000 people of age 15 or over is certainly a gigantic task.

but it will soon be done by the Department of Public Health, which is gathering data about the lung health of the people, and spending a lot of money to do it. The people are asked to co-operate by dropping in at the studios, of which there will be three in Albuquerque, and there have pictures taken of their lung areas, these to be added to the library of the department. In case there is found to be anything wrong with the lungs of the takee, he or she will be notified with full details, so that treatment may proceed.

It will cost something like $25,000 to take these mass pictures of Albuquerque, this amount covering refreshments and entertainment while you wait to "see the birdie." From present indications nearly everybody in the metropolis who can do so will have their chest picture taken. Co-operation with the movement is a distinct public service. The innery of the photographers has not yet been announced, but is certain to cover the larger part of the state.

The release of the figures covering race horse gambling in New Mexico, made public today, would seem to indicate that there is a limit to the number of those of whom one is supposed to be born every minute. There were fewer of them this year. Only 106,000 of the donors were at the tracks, as compared to 119,500 last year. The gamblers raked in $4,110,216, about $50,000 less than last year. The suckers got $79,325, about $10,000 less than in 1949. Tracks will operate next year again at Silver City, Raton, Ruidoso, and Albuquerque.

Ted Bilberry, assessor in Roosevelt County has asked his people for gosh sakes not to try to pay their taxes for a month or so yet.

If this bothers you, cuss Dee Donnell, whose re-valuation nitrage has upset much of the state's tax machinery.

Santa Claus visited Portales last Saturday, and is due to come again on Dec. 16, if the jolly old saint thinks that he can take it. Last Saturday the kiddies mobbed him and he had a real time escaping and continuing his trip to other New Mexico towns. Santa didn't get much help from parents. In fact, some of them were harder to handle than the little ones. Next time it may be necessary to fence Santa off from the crowd. He just simply couldn't stand another such pulling and hauling.

The East Valley View Home-makers have set out 17 evergreens at the Portales City Park, and Editor Greaves of The News was so pleased with the job that he invited the ladies to plant a lot more, any kind except Chinese elms! He was dead right in his ancient battle against the Mongols in the old home town, but doesn't crave any more verbal fights about it.

The official vote in the general election, just announced, shows that New Mexico had a few more real citizens than it did two years ago. The total vote in the election was 182,329. Bob Wiley, for school superintendent, got 105,797 votes, the most received by any candidate. The vote on the pre-primary convention law was 14,000 for approval and 59,909 for rejection.

Gov. T. J. Mabry on Thursday morning of last week patiently interrogated an old man who claimed to be William H. Bonney, the Billy the Kid of Southwestern history. The quiz occurred in the library of the executive mansion at Santa Fe, and lasted more than an hour of uninterrupted time, the governor asking the questions which were intended to bring out whether the solitary witness was backed by an approach to fact.

The witness, who insisted that he was 92 years of age, and looks about 70, insisted that the man shot by Pat Garrett was on Harry Barlow, a desert tramp and crook, and that the real slayer got clear away into Texas, where he has since been living under the name of Ollie Hendricks. It seems that the conscience of Mr. Bonney (Hendricks) got to troubling him, resulting in his final application to Governor Mabry for a full pardon, so he could sleep nights. The privilege of a hearing before the New Mexico executive was made shortly informal, because of the advanced age of the alleged "Billy" and the further fact that Governor Mabry is himself a sick man, and wanted the request submitted before he turned over the reins to Governor Mechem.

Attending were two sons of Sheriff Pat Garrett, who live in Texas; Sheriff Dwight Lee of Carlsbad, Hon. Patrick J. Hurley, a few state employees, and some others, all of these by invitation of the executive, and Bonney (?) was given all the time he wanted without harassment. His memory frequently failed him and he pleaded forgetfulness or refused to answer in some instances.

In conclusion Governor Mabry made it plain that he had no announcement of executive action to make. The hearing was plainly a courtesy matter to the aged and most unusual claimant, and his staff of attorneys from Texas. In all probability the hearing ends drama.

that whole matter of the claim that Billy the Kid survives after all of these years. Neither he nor any of the little audience seemed to be very much impressed by the whole

World Government Now

PROPOSAL FOR WORLD GOVERNMENT was overwhelmingly defeated in a referendum in Oklahoma Nov. 6. The proposal was first put before the states, 22 state legislatures endorsed the idea, but six of them have reversed their decision and have turned the proposition down.

Under the United States Constitution, a convention for the purpose of proposing amendments can be called by vote of the legislatures of two-thirds of the states. The states have not yet voted on the proposal.

Behind the movement had managed to get 22 of the state legislatures to favor an amendment to the Constitution, whereby the states would have cast its vote for world government. This, in effect, would destroy the Constitution and set up a world government of the United States as a part, at such time as a sufficient number of states had ratified the proposition.

World peace, that which most of us in the United States so wish for and pray for, was behind the idea. At least, that is what we would be led to believe.

But the people failed at first to realize what world government would mean, to consider its disadvantages.

But the dangers have become more and more vivid in our minds. What kind of world government another philosophy would be there is another world government proposition, one which would have all of the peoples and be carried on for the selfish gains of the reason which is something our feeble mind has never comprehended.

The original world government idea is still strong in some quarters, which we believe are sincere, but others of which we feel another trap to lead us into ultimate communism. It is a practice constant vigilance to break down the movement in some areas of the country, where the question has not been fully discussed.

But even though every state legislature which has voted for world government is overruled by its voters or reverses its own previous action, thus killing the movement, we still must guard against the threat of communism.

None who places the least iota of faith in the reason we are applying could have any defense of communism, which is a godless philosophy, one which would take away all right to that iota of faith, by other faith.—A.L.B.

Bill Too High

AMERICANS AGREE the tax bill is too high. They know they have been told repeatedly the tax bill is going to be too high.

More they can stand or will stand remains to be seen. The fact that the election is over is no reason for them to let demands for economy in government spending. The mere fact that we have another statewide election for two years is no reason to let them forget they want lower taxes.

Of course, realizes and appreciates the fact it is going to be a long time to prepare to defend our nation. Americans want the money which is appropriated to defend our nation for that purpose.

Still seeking a satisfactory answer as to what the 43 billion dollars voted by Congress during the 80th Congress bought. They learned from the Korean situation that it didn't buy equipment for the defense of the nation.

They also know that the Hoover Commission has made recommendations which can reduce the spending of our nation; bring about efficiency and economy and halt the waste and extravagance. They know that approximately 20 per cent of those recommendations have now been adopted.

They want some more of these recommendations adopted. They want the unnecessary spending halted. They want the duplication in offices and services stopped.

And they want the idea of voting more taxes to halt inflation for the future. It didn't work during World War II, after the war and it isn't working the present war.

It is possible we will have to give up some things we think we need and we want the federal government to provide. And we are prepared to go all the way on the non-essentials. And we want to be sure that we can still give our armed forces what they want to defend America and hold down the tax bill.

Area of working 47 days out of the year to pay our earnings to the government and giving our various forms of government 25 per cent of every dollar we earn should teach us a lesson about the taxes that can be assessed and the taxes we can pay.—O.E.P.

A Common Failing

ALL OF US AS A RULE have the idea we can always run the other fellow's business better than he can run it. Many of us are convinced that the other chap has a snap and that his tasks and job are always a lot easier than ours.

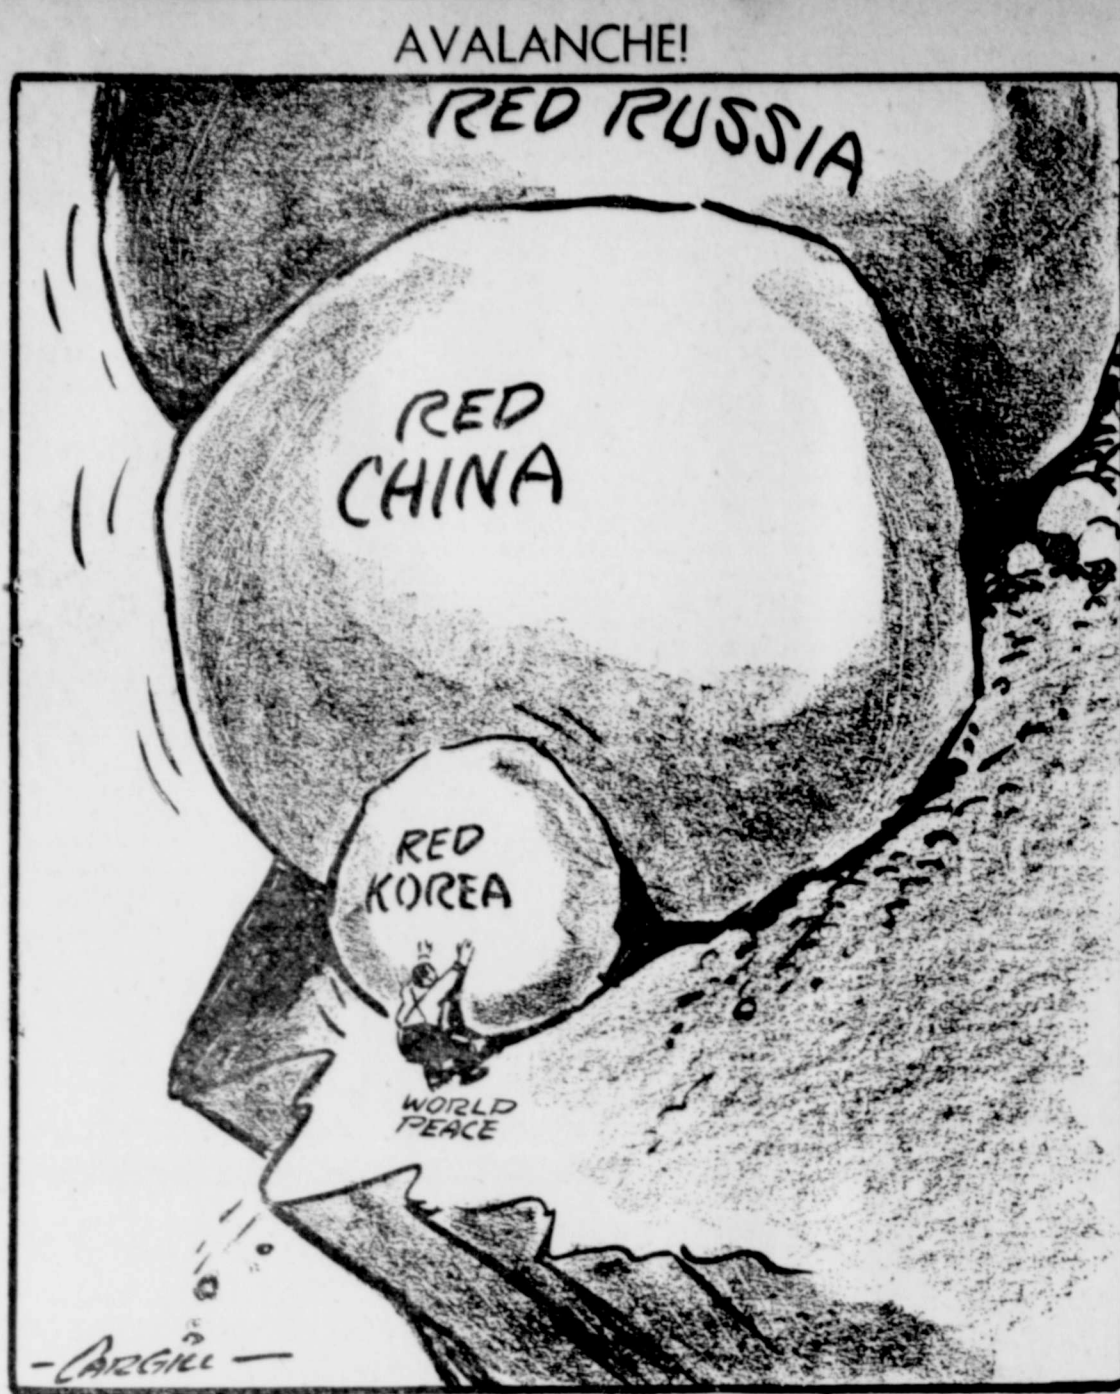

That, we say, is usually common with all of us. There are times, of course, when individuals could run the other fellow's business better than he is doing. But in most instances, the majority of us would be far short of doing as good a job as the individual operating the business is doing.

Many of us through years of experience have learned a good many things about our own business. There are those who seemingly don't seem to learn even after they have been operating their business for several years.

But all of the successful business people have learned that the only way they can remain in business is not to put out more than they are taking in. Many an individual has gone broke because he never learned this lesson.

But the fact remains that if we expect to remain in business we have to keep our expenditures under what we take in or our earnings. We are not able to do this the day and time comes when we fail in business.

Of course, is always far easier to try to tell the other fellow how he should be doing and how he should run his business than it is to actually run his business. And for a good many years as individuals

What Other Editors Are Saying

BALLOT STEALING GOOD OLD CUSTOM

In New Mexico the candidate to get the largest vote is not necessarily "in."

Ballot stealing is common over much of the state, particularly in the north where buying votes, stuffing ballot boxes, miscounting, voting dead and otherwise absent, repeating, altering are practiced in volume to change the intent of the electorate. If the legislature will just try again and put an absentee ballot law on the statute books it will make corruption of the franchise even easier than at present. Convictions for ballot frauds are rare.

Of course, the fraudulent election is a good old Spanish custom and, where a machine continues long in power as in New Mexico, the minority party can't do much to stop corrupt practices that corrode the democratic processes.

In the more enlightened parts of the state—Grant County included—so crude methods are not practiced but through coercion and other more subtle methods votes are influenced. After all, a lot of little people have to eat and you can't blame 'em much if they yield to pressure from those who can give or withhold the small bits of patronage that mean additional comforts for families that have so little.

It should be the constant concern of everyone who believes clean politics are important to guard the franchise from the corruptionists who resort to fraud to win a place aboard the well-known gravy train which the taxpayers provide for the deserving partisans, generally regardless of character or performance. These are the little mice that eat away at the foundation of the palladium which the founding fathers established with such high hopes that republican government would endure.

If the other half of the voting population would go to the polls much political dishonesty could be at least neutralized. Of course, the politicians and their supporters always vote and this bloc—plus the spurious ballots—make election stealing profitable and reasonably safe.—Silver City Daily Press.

We have engaged in this popular pastime of telling other folks what they should and could do.

We have always felt, however, that since the individual operating that business is supposed to know what he is doing and since it is his money in the business, his investment and he is responsible for it, that this also gives him the right to operate it in the manner he feels makes for the most success.

We believe that is still a good idea and one that most of us should follow.

Every one of us can tell the other fellow how to run his business and just how it should be done, but most of us couldn't do it if we were in the other fellow's place.—O.E.P.

KEEP THE STATE GAME WARDEN

We have heard a report from Santa Fe to the effect that State Game Warden Elliott Barker will be removed from office by the next governor, Edwin L. Mechem and that a Tucumcari legislator will be appointed to succeed him. We presume that the legislator is State Senator Henry Eager, who ran for governor in the Democratic primary last June and finished last in a field of five.

We think it would be a double boner for Mechem to remove Barker and to appoint Eager.

Elliott Barker is one of the nation's outstanding state game wardens. He is a veteran with many years service in all lines of state game management work and his department is one that politics has never been permitted to enter. We think that Mechem should keep Barker in office.—Carlsbad Current-Argus.

MUNICIPAL REVENUE BONDS

Among the things which we can hope Governor-elect Mechem will endeavor to have the next Legislature correct is putting proper restraints on the issuance of revenue bonds by municipalities without submission to voters. At the present time general obligation bonds may not be issued without authorization by the electorate. No such safeguard against incurring public debt is provided as to revenue bonds, the spacious argument being that such bonds are not obligations on taxable property but on the revenues of public utilities and similar ventures for which they are issued. Since public utilities are used by practically everyone and everyone is affected by their rates and services, this is merely one way of dodging constitutional prohibitions against incurring of public debt without the assent of taxpayers. It is a dangerous practice. Taxpayers who in the long, long have to pay the bills, directly or indirectly, should have the right to pass on all such matters.—Gallup Independent.

Assignment New Mexico

By G. Ward Fenley

Writers of several letters informed me this past week that they think America—that includes New Mexico—is in a pretty bad shape, educationally speaking.

One letter-writer enclosed want ads from a local paper with her penciled comments:

"For sale: Three ONLY well-built, heavenly-reinforced sample cases." Comment: Well-built is redundant.

"For sale: Mahogany ladies writing desk." Comment: Ladies of all colors and makes found in New Mexico.

"For sale: Good woman's wardrobe." Comment: Would a bad woman's outfit not suit?

"For sale: Girl and boy bicycles." Comment: More atomic age miracles.

One ad had the writer worried: "Special Physiological Design and Interior Decoration in Children's Rooms." Comment: Ignorance, bad proof reading or a new term?

Another letter reminded this column that an Albuquerque street sign spells "Fifteenth Street"—probably to avoid confusion with Fifteenth Street.

A university professor reported last week that out of 50 papers turned in on an examination there were 18 different spellings of Appalachian.

Newspaper Education

Educators are always turning to their children with advice to read newspapers, magazines, and keep up with current events.

Wonder if they help?

The Roswell Record recorded the story of a troop train wreck: The engineer tried to stop but "the breaks wouldn't hold." And The Albuquerque Tribune, in reporting a wedding said the bride-elect is now employed, etc. In these days of high prices and uncertainty, was she so bright?

One Man's Education

The Artes Independent Review said that a local resident got educated last week in a hurry.

One Ted Kittrell thought the animal under his bedroom was a kitten or a stray puppy. He learned upon investigating that he needed fumigating, de-nauseating, and de-skunking.

The Ruidoso News made me blink last week with a story about "the adobe ranch home of Wilbur and Louise Coe of Glencoe." Don't suppose the reference could be to their adobe home?

And for your educational information, The Sierra County Advocate announces that on Nov. 16 Mrs. Alvin Hillard became the postmaster (or mistress) of the newly re-opened postoffice at Dusty, N. M. We respectfully suggest that the postoffice opened five months too soon. It should've been in March.

Improving Standards
That man, A. M. Hoose of Carlsbad, has written me again. This time he lays out his ills right at the door of educators. Who? Me?

Maybe young 22-year-old Bob Laickler, who graduated in June from the University of New Mexico (and jumped right into the middle of the Korean fight), has the answer.

He told university students last week: "I had no sooner hit the Korean waters on a U.S. destroyer until I realized I had frittered away lots of chances to study naval basic training during my four-year college course."

Or maybe, "Jawn" Kirkwood, KGGM radio announcer, has the remedy in suggesting that we glorify and build monuments to Pat Garrett for stamping out crime instead of honoring Billy the Kid for creating it. Yes, an educated man is one who does not blow his knows.

Food Cooked in Aluminum Is Not Poisonous

The propaganda which is currently being spread to the effect that food cooked in aluminum utensils is poisonous was branded as false by Edward L. Greene, general manager of the National Better Business Bureau in New York. Greene said according to investigations made by the bureau there is no evidence whatsoever that the use of aluminum cooking utensils in the home is in any way detrimental to health.

"To the contrary," Greene said, "leading health authorities such as the American Medical Association have advised that it has been proved that there is no harm in aluminum and that its use for cooking is entirely safe."

The text of the bureau's statement follows:

"Despite persistent denials over a period of years from responsible health and governmental authorities, misinformation continues to be spread to the effect that the cooking of food in aluminum utensils is dangerous and that such vessels are poisonous and should be thrown out. After consulting authorities on the subject, the National Better Business Bureau can assure housewives that these rumors are completely false. The top authorities in the nation who have examined into the matter exhaustively have found that the use of aluminum cooking utensils is in no way detrimental to public health."

"The Federal Trade Commission has also issued a statement to the effect that aluminum cooking utensils are safe for use in the home. The commission has also issued a statement to the effect that aluminum cooking utensils are safe for use in the home. The commission has also issued a statement to the effect that aluminum cooking utensils are safe for use in the home."

All-Out War to Mobilize Five to Seven Millions? One Out of Five Needed For Fighting Front Duty

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Pentagon leaders believe that if the China Reds decide to turn the Korean conflict into an all out war, it will require the mobilization of between five million and seven million men. Most of these would be ground forces and, in terms of manpower, would represent about half the effort required to win World War II.

However, in terms of cost, it would be more expensive, per man, than in the past conflict because of inflation. Moreover, a force of five million would place only about one million men on the fighting front. The rest would be needed for rear echelons, such as supply and medical services.

It is recalled that, while more than 14 million men were mobilized in World War II, never more than one million 800 thousand combat troops were ever in the field. Military intelligence is convinced that the Red Chinese troops, equipped with Russian, Japanese and captured United States supplies, could deal with any force of less than a million.

McCarthyism—Senator Joseph McCarthy (R), Wisconsin, is probably doing the heartiest chortling over the past elections. It was his charge that Communists are active in the administration which proved the liveliest issue of the campaign.

The senator is convinced now that he has sufficient evidence to force the criminal prosecution of at least one of those he accused of being a Red. However, McCarthy plans now to sit tight on his new evidence and await the convening of the 82nd Congress in January before exploding his case.

His immediate purpose is to establish proof that the individual involved perjured himself before the Tydings investigating committee, which has been labeled a "whitewash" by anti-administration forces. This evidence is said to involve the use of the diplomatic pouch of an unidentified foreign power. Incidentally, McCarthy now boasts of the term "McCarthyism," widely used by the Democrats in the past campaign as opprobrium.

DEFENSE PROFITS TAX—That is the term being considered by the Treasury to make President Truman's proposed excess profits tax more palatable. The chief executive still clings to the hope that the tax may be passed at the coming session of the 81st Congress despite the heavy tide of business sentiment against it.

Top government economists insist that it is not possible to be very choosy about taxes in the face of heavy rearmament expenditures and the need to shoot at a "pay as you go" budget policy to curb inflation and hold down the public debt.

They maintain that there must be a tax increase designed to bring in an additional $10 billion yearly—a tax increase of about 25 per cent. This would mean not only an excess profits tax but heavier burdens on normal corporation income, individual income taxes, and levies on estates, gifts and consumer goods.

POPULATION INCREASE—Marshall Plan officials have encountered a new difficulty. It is the population boom in participating countries.

According to latest estimates, countries benefitting from the Plan will have populations of 280 millions by the end of 1952. This is about 12 per cent above prewar levels. 12 Per Cent. Consequently, these nations will have to press their efforts to keep agricultural production and housing abreast of the population growth.

Some economists believe that food production can be increased to meet the need. However, they are not so optimistic about housing. Europe was pressed for housing before the war. Now the need will be more urgent.

In addition, new schools and hospitals will be needed. The only hopeful sign is that the birthrate may have reached the peak. It may happen that the rate in the 1950-53 period will be lower than in the 1947-49 era.

sion had occasion to probe into these rumors a few years ago and after hearing the testimony of health authorities, it stated:

"Aluminum has been used in the manufacture of cooking utensils for many years. During that period of time it has been found to be a satisfactory material for use in cooking utensils . . .

"The foods so prepared or kept in aluminum utensils are not detrimental to the health of users thereof and the preparation of food in aluminum utensils does not cause the formation of poisons."

"In its most recent statement on this subject, the American Medical Association stated:

"There was at one time a great controversy about the use of aluminum especially in alum baking powders. There are still many persons who cling to the old prejudice against aluminum and there are a few who make it a profitable business to keep the prejudice alive. It has been proved over and over that there is no harm in aluminum and that its use for cooking utensils is entirely safe."

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

"ALONE at last," sighed a bridegroom to his bride—but he was wrong, for at that precise moment, a pistol was poked into his ribs, and a gruff voice commanded, "Put 'em up."

The intruder, obviously experienced, headed straight for the jewel box on the dresser, but then he got a real glimpse of the bride.

Hastily drawing a circle on the floor with his heel, he commanded the groom, "Into this circle, lug, and if you move out of it, I'll shoot you full of holes." So the poor groom stood in the circle, and watched in misery while the intruder kissed and hugged the gal enthusiastically. When he finally exhaled—having quite forgotten the jewels, incidentally, the bride turned on the groom and cried, "How could you stand there and watch a total stranger making love to your wife? Are you a man or a mouse?"

"A man," proclaimed the bridegroom vehemently. "You didn't notice, I expect, but every time that fellow had his back turned, I stuck my foot right out of the circle."
