Bandit Holds Up Drug Store

Young Texas Minister Missing; Foul Play Is Feared

1925 HOMICIDE DOCKET IN THIS COUNTY FINALLY CLEARED WITH CONCLUSION OF MARSHALL CASE

There Have Been Ten Killings in Ten Month's Time With Total Penalty of 93 Years Assessed By Juries

Wichita county awaits another killing before the grind of justice interests itself in homicide. For practically the first time this year the homicide docket has been cleard with conclusion of the trial of J. L. Marshall.

9 Convictions In 10 Months For Homicide

In ten months of 1925 there have been nine convictions in Wichita county for homicide cases as follows:

January 10—E. B. McClure, five years.
March 26—Frank Collier, three years.
April 22—Mrs. Bertha Wade, five years.
July 28—W. J. Glasscock, 10 years.
September 5—Bob Whitfield, 25 years.
September 16—Euluster Henson, 10 years.
September 16—Farella McJunkins, two years.
September 21—Levi Wilson, eight years.
October 15—J. L. Marshall, 25 years.

The conviction Thursday of Marshall marked the close of the tenth homicide case tried in Wichita county this year and brought the total number of years assessed as punishment for murder up to 93. Convictions were secured in nine of the ten cases, one negro, Ike McKinney, being acquitted of the murder of another negro who was shot in a dispute over some bootleg liquor payments.

One Other for 25 Years.

Marshall's 25-year sentence shares with one other the note of being the heaviest assessed here. Bob Whitfield, convicted of slaying his wife, also was sentenced to 25 years in the pen. The lightest penalty assessed was for two years on a manslaughter verdict returned against Farella McJunkins, a negress charged with slaying L. N. Carroll, a white man. The next lightest verdict returned was one of three years imposed on Frank Collier, former mayor, for the murder of Elzie Robertson.

Of the nine convictions the McClure, Collier, Wade, Whitfield and McJunkins cases have been appealed to the higher courts and with the exception of Whitfield all the defendants are out on bond pending the high court rulings. Whitfield is not allowed bond by reason of having been given a sentence of more than 15 years. He is in the county jail.

Marshall to Appeal.

It is presumed Marshall will appeal, and in this case he too must remain in jail.

Glasscock, Henson and Wilson accepted their sentences, Henson and Wilson each pleading guilty. Glasscock was convicted of killing J. J. Stockley, Wilson of killing Mathew Roberts, Henson of killing Isaac Dabney.

Mrs. Bertha Wade was convicted of killing her husband at Burkburnett, and McClure, formerly a special agent for the Denver railway, was convicted of killing a negro tramp he found on his train one night.

CITY GETS ON NEW CIRCUIT OF VAUDEVILLE

Olympic Theatre Starts Bert Levey Circuit Next Week

Wichita Falls is on a new vaudeville circuit. This announcement was made by Gene Paschall, city manager of the D. F. & R. theatres last night. The Olympic theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week will have five acts of high class vaudeville, the headline act being direct from the Orpheum circuit on the west coast.

The theatre will continue presenting high class photoplays by Paramount Pictures, First National, Fox Film, and Metro-Goldwyn companies, one picture opening on Sunday for a four-day's engagement and another on Thursday for a three-day's run in connection with the vaudeville.

The Bert Levey circuit is the new time that is coming into Wichita Falls.

The first bill includes the following acts: Billie Van in a comedy act entitled "The Crazy Cartoonist," La Tour and Fingg are "Two Lads from Kokomo," Hernando and company are "Master Magicians," Van and York present a comedy skit entitled "A Fat Chance and a Slim Excuse," while the headline act is an artistic creation entitled "Golden Visions."

The picture program is headed by a feature entitled "Bobbed Hair," with Marie Prevost and Kenneth Harlan in the leading roles.

An orchestra has been engaged to play the afternoon and evening shows on the vaudeville days of each week.

REV. J. A. LACY DISAPPEARED TEN DAYS AGO

Failed to Attend Brownsville Presbyterian Meeting

WIFE IS ALARMED

Has Had no Trace Of Husband Since he Left Uvalde

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 15.—The belief that Rev. J. A. Lacy, 24-year-old Presbyterian minister who left his Uvalde home the morning of October 5, had met foul play was strengthened when a state-wide search had failed to find any trace of him Friday night.

Mrs. Lacy said she could conceive of no motive for her husband's disappearance other than foul play. She said he carried only enough funds to pay his fare to Brownsville and return. He started to attend a meeting of the Presbyterian meeting held there last week.

He did not attend the Presbytery, Mrs. Lacy said she had been informed by pastors who knew him. She said no definite trace had been found of him since he caught a bus there at 9 o'clock bound for San Antonio, one week ago last Monday.

Probe Materials On Shenandoah

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Investigation of the wreck of the airship Shenandoah by the naval court of inquiry was practically concluded today with the hearing of the designer of the craft, an engineer of the bureau of aeronautics and the technical director of the aluminum company of America which furnished the metal framing for the craft.

The finding by the court probably will be delayed for many weeks as the bureau of standards has advised that a month will be necessary to complete tests of the specimens of materials taken from the wreckage. After that report is submitted, it may be found necessary to call some other witnesses.

JIM FERGUSON SAYS TIME NOT RIPE FOR TALK

Governor Will Pay no Heed To Unofficial Things, He Says

DECLINES COMMENT

Ma and Pa Await Result Of Many Investigations

AUSTIN, Oct. 15.—(AP)—With the attorney general carrying an investigation into the highway department, the Travis grand jury in session, numerous reports of movements to call a special session of the legislature, Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson and former Gov. James E. Ferguson placidly await developments.

Jim Is Silent.

"There is no need for a special session of the legislature at this time, former Gov. James E. Ferguson said when informed of the opinion the attorney general handed down on the loans made to fight the foot and mouth disease in south Texas. He declined to commit himself on the highway department which has been under fire for two months. He refused to make a statement on the foot and mouth opinion because, "I have not seen it."

"When some one makes an official statement, takes official action or says something of prominence then the governor will make a statement," he declared.

TEST MANAGER PLAN

2 SAN ANTONIO WOMEN INDICTED FOR MURDER

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Two women were arrested under indictments charging murder Thursday afternoon. Both were released under bonds a few moments later after habeas corpus proceedings before Judge W. W. McCrory of the ninety-fourth district court.

Mrs. Mabel Longworth Sheridan, charged with murder of Mrs. Ada McCobb, wealthy widow, with a hammer, was the first taken in charge and was freed under bond of $2,500, the same amount as fixed by Judge W. S. Anderson last week before indictment.

Mrs. Suzanne Crawford, charged with murder of her former husband, John H. Crawford, was released under bond of $1,500.

"I am glad I was indicted," Mrs. Sheridan said. "I want an early trial and have it over with."

The Crawford case was set down for trial Nov. 15, upon the request of her attorney for an early setting.

Crawford was shot while riding in an automobile with his former wife. The woman brought him back to the city and took him to a hospital. He died a short time afterward. Mrs. Crawford told officers she shot the man after he had attempted to drag her from the automobile and had declared: "If I can't have you, I will fix you so no other man will want you."

MASKED MAN ROBS LAMAR STREET PLACE

Proprietor and Clerk Told To "Stick 'Em Up;" Flees In Auto.

A masked bandit early this morning held up E. R. White, proprietor of a drug store at 15th and Lamar streets, and a clerk employed in the store, and robbed the cash register of about $50, police were told.

The bandit entered the drug store while Mr. White and his employe were engaged in a checker game and ordered them to "stick up" your mitts!"

While the bandit held the gun on the drug store men, he backed toward the cash register, opened it and removed all cash in sight.

Then he dashed out of the door, fled across the street and jumped in a waiting automobile and he and several companions sped away.

City Police Officers Donohue and Carmichael were working on the case this morning, but at 2 o'clock had found no trace of the bandits.

Mr. White said the bandit wore a handkerchief over his face.

THE WEATHER

"I'd of got a hundred in arithmetic, but I couldn't remember if it's ounces or pints that goes into a furlong."

LYRICS OF LIFE
By Douglas Malloch.

The Things Too Good.

In every house that wears the name
Of home, the noblest name of all,
You'll find some gilded picture-frame,
A high-boy standing in the hall,
An ample armchair, wide and kind,
A table of another day—
In every homestead you will find
The things too good to throw away.

Now wealth brings every house new things,
And money brings to some too much;
For poor the houses where no one clings
To something old with tender touch,
Where every chair is newly bought,
Where there is nothing faded gray,
No memory that someone thought
A thing too good to throw away.

Because, perhaps, some ancient desk
Would make it home and make it dear,
Though some might say it's "picturesque,"
Some visitor would call it "queer,"
This ancient desk belonged to Dad,
And children will recall some day
Some homelike house that always had
Some things too good to throw away.

And I have found in houses new,
So new that nothing old is there,
They have not even saved a few
Old friends, who loved some friendly chair,
God grant, whatever wealth you crave,
That you will keep them while you may;
For friends of old are things to save,
Are things too good to throw away.

MAYOR SOON WILL APPOINT CHEST BOARD

Advisory Council for Charity Organization To Be Selected

The appointment of the advisory council of the municipal welfare board will be made soon, according to Mayor R. E. Shepherd yesterday. It is the duty of this committee to pass on the budgets submitted by the welfare organizations and to dictate the policy of the campaign.

When the advisory council is appointed, the members are to organize and appoint their own chairmen and officers for the annual welfare drive, as well as select a director for the campaign.

The date of the drive is left to the advisory council.

The approved organizations for 1924-25 include the Y. W. C. A., the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Day Nursery, Colored Day Nursery, Texas Children's Home and Aid society and the Municipal Welfare board.

The chest for 1924-25 amounted to approximately $52,000.

Wichita Women To Make Whole Year Visit in Europe

Two prominent Wichita Falls business women, who have been "building a castle in Spain," will go across the water in a few days to make their year-long dream come true.

Miss Florence Jackson, who for two years has been publicity director of the chamber of commerce, and Miss Irene Davidson, local newspaper woman, will leave Wichita Falls Saturday for a year's stay in Europe.

The young women will go first to Cincinnati and Washington, where they will visit friends. They will sail from New York, October 28, on the S. S. Arabic, and will land at Cherbourg, France, where they expect to spend the greater part of the winter. They will visit also in Italy, Spain, Holland and Belgium.

Miss Jackson and Miss Davidson have been close friends for the past five years, and their plans for their trip to Europe are being realized as they have dreamed them for the past year.

Miss Davidson and Miss Jackson will write on European life.

Miss Jackson is the only woman director of pubility of chamber of commerce work in the south. Miss Davidson came to Wichita Falls from Holland's Magazine, Dallas, where she was associate editor.

A WORK OF ART

The camera will automatically produce an image, but it requires the master hand to paint a portrait with feeling. The sewing machine will trace a pattern, but it requires the flexible hand to give the garment rounded modeling. Machine-made clothing is the rush and rut of ready-to-wear; Hickey-Freeman is the handled-with-care. You see the difference, but much of the difference is due to workmanship you do not see—for instance, the long patient rows of human-hand stitches that underlie the collar, the lapels, the arm-holes and the fronts, stabilizing the shape and endowing the lines with enduring softness and beauty. We invite you to inspect our lines of Hickey-Freeman hand tailored Suits and to judge how desirable these are compared with machine-made goods—at similar prices!

SOCIETY

EIGHTY-THREE members and guests of the First Christian church Wesley Girls and their teacher, Mrs. W. W. Silk, enjoyed a delightful banquet at the Kemp hotel Thursday at 12:30 o'clock which was preceded by a unique original program arranged by Mrs. Alzada Knickerbocker Heyman.

Program Enjoyed.

The invocation was given by Mrs. E. L. Gerhardt and while Mrs. Heyman gave a monologue accompanied at the piano by Mrs. O. B. Kiel, women's styles of the various ages were pantomimed by Mesdames A. C. Dulaney, who dressed like the American Indian, represented the girl of 1615; Mrs. John B. McKinley with her spinning wheel, representing the girl of 1620; Mrs. Hugh Weaver in colonial costume, the girl of 1775, and other periods were represented by Mesdames Grover Bullington, Everett McCullogh, Frank L. Mercer, Jason Walker and P. E. Miller. Mrs. H. C. Cheshire, the class past president, in modish flapper costume, represented the styles of the girls of today. The costumes were splendid duplicates of the styles of the period they portrayed, some of which proved unusually amusing.

Acting as toastmistress of the occasion, Mrs. Silk gave a brief talk concerning the installation of the new officers and gave a clever little toast to both the incoming and outgoing officers, entitled, "These and Those."

Dainty Fairies There.

The curtains of the improvised stage arranged for the pantomime, were pulled aside by two dainty fairies, in the persons of little Misses Elizabeth Fisher and Lillian Hanks.

The table was prettily decorated for the occasion with vases filled with roses and greenery which was strewn lengthwise on the cloth, a four-course menu was served.

New officers installed were: Mrs. A. K. Presson, president; Mrs. P. E. Miller, first vice president; Mrs. John S. Riggs, second vice president; Mrs. L. M. Byars, treasurer; Mrs. W. C. Andrus, recording secretary; Mrs. J. M. Dearman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. B. McKinley, social service; Mrs. Grover Bullington, cradle roll; Mrs. Everett McCullough, publicity; Mrs. W. L. Fisher, program chairman; Mrs. J. S. Gullihorn, house chairman; Mrs. M. D. Rowe, musical director and Mrs. O. B. Kiel, pianist.

DEMAND OF THE COUNTY JUDGES.

County judges of Texas, in state convention assembled, by resolution made it known to the lawmakers of the past and the lawmakers of the future that in their opinion all gasoline taxes paid by a county should be placed in the treasury of that county for road building and road maintenance purposes. They also made it known that they favor, by legislative enactment, stripping the state highway commission of all the power that it possesses today and making it an auxiliary to the commissioners courts of the state.

This would be a return to the methods of other days. It would be a return to the road building program of other days. It would be going back to the customs of the ancients. This is not a criticism of the demand of the county judges or rather the county judges who are members of their state association. It is a statement of facts.

Modern highways have come to stay. Modern highways must be maintained. There must be a maintenance fund provided for the work by the lawmakers of the state. There are eight hundred thousand motor vehicles in the common wealth. Owners of these motor vehicles pay and pay willingly the gasoline tax and all other taxes.

Now of what use would the motorists of the state make of the highways if the wealthy counties kept all the money paid in as taxes for road support and counties that are not wealthy and only partially settled would be without funds to build connecting links of state highways or to provide funds for their upkeep after the highways have been built.

Many so-called democratic statesmen, or rather democratic politicians, are opposed to matching dollars for highway building purposes with the federal government. If it were not for the appropriations made by the federal government in many sections of Texas and other states for that matter, there would be no modern highways. There would be old cattle trail roads which came into existence in the ox-cart period of Texas history.

There is no demand for a return to an ox-cart civilization. There is no demand for a return to the tallow tip civilization. There is no demand for a return to the stage coach and pony express civilization. There is no demand for a return to the days when the people then on earth were without telephones, free rural delivery, hospitals or sanitariums, colleges or real public schools, the reaper and the mower, the tractor plow, all varieties of improved farm and household machinery moved by gasoline or electricity.

Then why a return to the old cattle trail road? Why return to the bogs of the past when the farmer was a million miles from market in the rainy season and was stiffled by dust in the drouthy season while on the road. There is a new civilization in Texas, it may not be a perfect civilization. There are new road laws in Texas. They may need revision or reconstruction.

Regardless of this every step taken by the lawmakers should be a forward step. There should be no backward movement. If changes are necessary to strengthen the law which created the state highway commission, make them. If restrictions are necessary, let the lawmakers provide them.

If a commission with one head is more responsive to the demands of the people than a three headed commission then it is the duty and the province of the lawmakers to go about it in an orderly way. This all taxpaying citizens should demand; for every dollar paid out of the road fund, the people should receive in return 100 cents worth of labor and material.

A public office is a public trust. The dollar of the taxpayer should be a sacred dollar. It should be wisely and economically placed where it would do the most good. Now the people are the masters, they elect the lawmakers. They should instruct their lawmakers as to their desires or demands.

A new legislature will be elected in 1926. Able men in every senatorial and every representative district should be picked by the voters. They should not be hand picked by the little bosses or any big boss. There is a way to go about it and Texans who read and then think should know the way.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

"Why?"

"Why?" is the question most frequently on the lips of an intelligent child.

It is just as frequently on the lips of the philosopher and the scientist.

It is a question that will never be fully answered, for there are some secrets which will be secrets to the end of life.

But the asking of it is a sign of that wise curiosity without which we should still be a race of barbarians.

The person who takes everything for granted, who is never eager to find out the "whys" is a dull person who will go through life in a fog.

For many years it was taken for granted that only birds and bats could fly.

Then Leonardo di Vinci, who was not only a great artist but a great engineer began to ask himself why man could not fly.

Leonardo asked that question several hundred years too early.

But he died satisfied that there was no reason that man could not fly, and that if ever a power of propelling him through the air could be found, he would fly.

Later on Langley and the Wright Brothers asked the same question.

Then the gasoline motor had been invented. And experiments proved that man could fly.

The parents who are annoyed at the continual "whys" of their children are ignorant parents who are unable to answer.

But it is time that even ignorant parents were taught that what they cannot supply from their own knowledge can be supplied to a great extent by others, and it is their duty to those whom they have brought into the world to put them in the way of finding out all they can.

The men to whom the world owes the most are the men who have asked themselves this question repeatedly, and have sought to answer it, not only to satisfy their own curiosity, but to give the answers to their fellow men.

Schools and colleges have been built to answer the question.

Laboratories have been established to answer it.

Through them, and through individual efforts of thinking men and women many mysteries have been cleared up, and in clearing them up the world has been greatly enabled to progress.

When all educated people, and all thinking people devote all their energies to asking this question whenever they are confronted with what we call phenomena, and to answering it as well as they are able, education will take a long step forward.

We can defer for a long time the riddle of the siderial system, and the life beyond the grave.

Enough to learn about the world that we live in, and by repeated "whys" and repeated efforts to explain them, we shall some day become really civilized, a thing we have been attempting to do since the first creature came up out of the sea and thrust forth legs with which to walk on land.

WILL DAUGHERTY COME BACK?

Will Harry M. Daugherty of Ohio come back? He was attorney general of the United States and the death of Warren G. Harding was his political downfall. Now the political writers of Ohio say the friends of Daugherty are going to vindicate him by electing him as a member of the United States senate.

They say he will be a candidate for the nomination in the Ohio republican primaries next year. They say that he will overwhelm Senator Frank B. Willis who has the backing of the Anti-saloon league and is the running mate of Wayne B. Wheeler, who is the general attorney and political agent of the Anti-saloon league and ever active in the politics of Ohio.

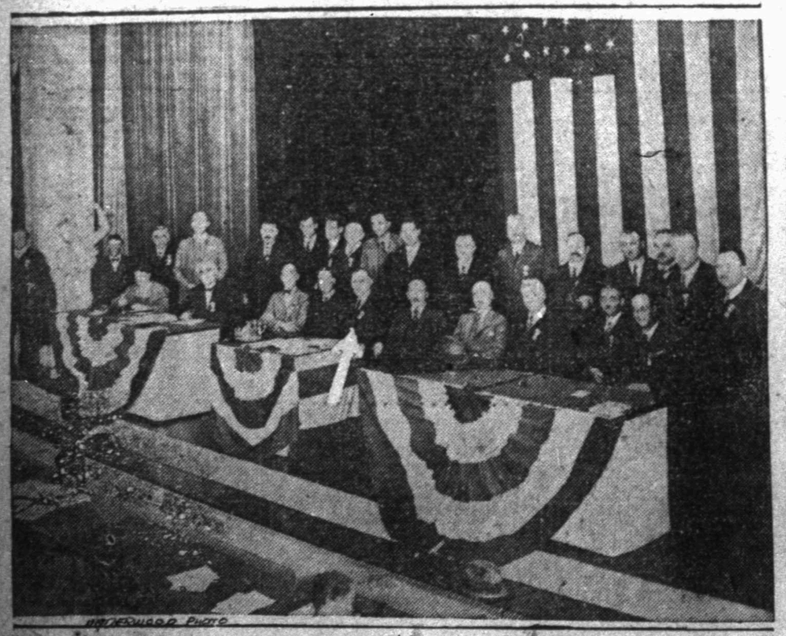

Senator Willis has presidential aspirations. He would like to be the republican nominee for president in 1928. He would like to be returned to the senate in 1926 in order to keep his fences in excellent shape. It would be the irony of fate for Harry M. Daugherty to come back as United States senator from Ohio, but all things are possible in this land of the direct primary, the well organized political machine, the mighty dollar and the blackjack in the hands of an army of political gorillas.

There may be strange happenings in the politics of America next year. There is certain to be sensational scraps under the big dome in the city of Washington before congress is well on its way.

VIEWS OF A HOOSIER STATESMAN.

Former Governor Frank M. Goodrich of Indiana has been in Russia on a diplomatic and economic mission for more than a year. He is coming home with an optimistic impression of the improvement since his last visit to Russia three years ago. He is particularly struck by the agricultural revival. Everywhere he says he found relatively efficient work in the factories so far as human labor is concerned, but mechanical aids to industry are greatly lacking. Mine directors were thunder struck to learn of the reduction of cost accomplished in America by machinery. Their surprise to equal the miners on hearing of the American wage scale. This former governor said he found all the authorities, national and local, intensely eager to adopt American methods and animated by a friendly feeling toward America, not only in the famine area but throughout the country. There appears to be two soviet Russias. The first soviet Russia is the one tainted by British and French correspondents and the second soviet Russia, the one pictured by Senator Borah, former Governor Goodrich and Americans of their type and view point.

A. F. of L. Stands Aloof World Labor Federation

For another year, at least, American Federation of Labor will maintain its policy of "isolation" and not be a party to plans for a world labor federation, as a result of action of delegates in annual session at Atlantic City. Photo shows executive committee of federation expressing its views to representatives from German, English and Mexican labor unions. William Green, president is indicated by arrow.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Libra.

My MAGY BLAKE.

Today's planetary aspects show a decided improvement over those of yesterday, and the stimulating vibrations that prevail are an augury of success in almost any path of legitimate endeavor. It would appear that mechanical research or scientific investigation is most favored by the influences and many problems that have hitherto been complex and difficult of solution, will be worked out satisfactorily under the propitious influences that dominate today. In all matters that relate to your intimate and personal life, there will be a stronger urge than is usual to do that which is right and that which will inure most to your benefit. Any marriage solemnized today promises to be fruitful of happiness and harmony.

Children born today are promised, by the signs, health and vigor, although they must be persuaded to exercise great care in the period of their "teens" in order to avert accident. Temperamentally, a boy will be none too studious, and will have to be urged to pursue his studies with that assiduity which is essential to success. He will, however, be amenable to persuasion and have a very affectionate and kind disposition. He will succeed better in some outdoor occupation than in one where a sedentary life is involved. A girl will be vivacious, and her assertive personality will carry her through all troubles or dangers that may assail her. She will be industrious and painstaking, and capable of inspiring and reciprocating a lasting love.

If today is your birthday, you possess a strong will, and are, in the best acceptation of the term, a very determined character. Your energy is unbounded and defeat is practically an unknown term to you, and you never acknowledge it until you have exhausted all resources. Optimism does not form as large a part of your disposition, as a grim determination to make circumstances be subservient to them. If you can subservient to you, rather than to not force your way through an obstacle, you will go over, under, or around it.

Your nature, notwithstanding, is kindly, generous, and sympathetic. You are slow to anger and quick to forgive.

The planets say you will not only be successful, but lead a very happy and contented life.

Successful people born on this date are:

Alfred L. Loomis, physician.
William R. Shafter, soldier.
William H Pancoast, surgeon.
Augustine Jones, educator.
Russell Sturgis, architect.
Horace E. Scudder, author and editor.

LOSE NOTED ORE SUIT.

Mexican Mine Company Gets Judgment Against Bartlesville Concern.

AUSTIN, Oct. 15.—(AP)—When the supreme court today overruled the motion for rehearing of the case of C. I. A. Minera Rodriguez vs the Bartlesville Zinc company of Bartlesville, Okla., a case of international fame, and of ten years standing was closed. The Bartlesville company sought rehearing of the case which involved 48 carloads of ore sold to it by agents of Francisco Villa. It contended that Villa, then in rebellion against Carranza, had just claim to the Mexican government.

The Mexican mining company secured judgment of $197,807.43 against the Bartlesville company.

TRUETT LEAVES BURK.

Dallas Pastor Concludes Services at Burkburnett Church.

BURKBURNETT, Oct. 15.—Dr. George Truett who has been preaching in the First Baptist church in this city since Sunday, opening with the dedicatory service of the splendid new church concluded his services here last night and returned to his home in Dallas.

The unveiling of the cornerstone of the church was the main service yesterday.

Dr. Truett has addressed crowded houses packed with people from nearby churches and towns, throughout the four days of service.

HOW IT STARTED

The Patchwork Quilt.

In certain country districts the patchwork quilt is an institution and quilt-making as much a popular art as it was in the days of our colonial great-great-grandmothers, into whose sometimes uncolorful lives it brought a mode of self-expression. Many an old woman in the Blue Ridge Mountain district can produce scores of quilts fashioned with her own hands, which she exhibits with as much pride as the print collector shows his Rembrandts and Whistlers. And to us of the cities and towns, even though we may not own one, the patchwork is at least familiar.

To trace the story of patchwork back to its ultimate beginning would be to revive the history of ancient times, for it is a relic of the applique used by the Pharoahs of ancient Egypt and reproduced so faithfully throughout the centuries that examples of it unearthed in ancient tombs are found to be identical with the hangings and other interior furnishings.

This applique or patchwork was carried into Western Europe, where it found its fullest expression in the hangings and drapings of the bed which at that time held a throne-like place in the room. This elaboration descended even into the frugal homes of the colonial settlers; for whatever love for the beautiful and ornate they did indulge could be seen in the hangings and coverings of their beds. It was the vital necessity for thrift that evolved the patchwork quilt as we know it today, in which the small pieces which formed the original applique were joined together and furnished the entire coverlet.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The eighth circuit court of appeals today affirmed the conviction of Bob Chew, found guilty in federal court at Little Rock, Ark., of using the mails to defraud in promoting the Bob Chew Syndicate No. 2 in the Eldorado, Ark., oil field.

MACNIDER IN U. S. POST.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Hanford MacNider of Mason City, Iowa, was appointed today to be assistant secretary of war.

MacNider, who is a former commander of the American Legion, succeeds Dwight P. Davis, who was advanced to the post of secretary of war upon the resignation of Secretary Weeks.

Callaway Damage Case Dismissed

FORT WORTH, Oct. 15.—The $100,000 damage suit filed by Earl Callaway and wife against the Corona Petroleum company, Henry Colgate, multi-millionaire of New York City, and others was dismissed by District Judge Roy Thursday at plaintiff's cost on Callaway's own motion.

The suit was filed shortly before Callaway was indicted in a West Texas county and related to subject matter involved in the indictments. The indictments were returned on the eve of Callaway taking office at Austin as head of the oil and gas division of the railroad commission.

GAS WRECKS BUILDING.

Abilene Barber Shop and Nearby Plates Destroyed by Blast.

ABILENE, Oct. 15.—Property damage of about $12,000 was done and a negro was seriously injured as a result of an explosion here at 6:40 a. m., Thursday which occurred when the negro, Rufus Payne, entered a barber shop and lighted a match. The explosion was caused by ignition of gas which had accumulated during the night. The force of the explosion blew out forty plate glass show windows.

Mrs. Elmer Pfluger Will Be Buried At Lawrenceville, Ill.

BURKBURNETT, Oct. 15.—The death of Mrs. Elmer Pfluger occurred at her home near here at 5:30 Thursday morning after an illness of five weeks.

She was 33 years of age. Surviving are her husband, E. C. Pfluger, an employe of the Panhandle company and two sons, ages five and nine. Other relatives are her father, Mr. Osborn and a sister and two brothers in Lawrenceville, Ill.; from which city the Pfluger family came to Burkburnett about three months ago.

The body will be sent to Lawrenceville for burial.

"How Much Does Elephant Weigh?" Are Big Catch Words Among Wichitans

"Let it rain, let it pour," or words to that effect, The Record News should worry. The rain can't hurt the spots on the $1,000 elephant and can't do a thing to wash off his hundreds of "2's" and "9's." And besides it makes thing pretty nice for the family. It gives them a good cool evening to work on the addition and to find out how much the elephant weighs.

And by the way, the great catch words in Wichita Falls right now are "how much does the elephant weigh." Friends are greeting friends with this call but of course no one is really telling for that would be giving away the great opportunity to earn $500 at one blow.

Don't worry about crops and business. Just sit down and count up the elephant's numbers. The little exercise and fun will enable you to take part in the contest and when the $1,000 is distributed on Nov. 14, you won't be one of those who will say, "gee, why did I let an opportunity like that slip?"

Answers are coming in from all sections of Oklahoma and Texas but as no one knows the correct answer as yet and won't until the evening of Nov. 14, it's impossible to tell how near they are getting. There's plenty of opportunity for you to join this puzzle family which the Record News has inaugurated. Read the elephant ad, which is complete each morning in the Record-News and you may be both wiser and richer.

Get in on the contest. It will give you something worth while to look forward to for about the next month. And if you are one of the 25 prize winners, it will always give you something to look back upon of which you may justly be proud. Before mailing or bringing in your answer be sure you have obeyed all of the rules. There are not many and are so simple that even a small child can understand them.

DOROTHY DIX

Wives Are Neither Saints Nor Toys Nor Domestic Conveniences, But Real Human Beings Who Want Fair Treatment and, Above All, Appreciation

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have a good husband and some nice children, but my trouble is this: My husband thinks that I am not doing the right thing because I insist on staying at home all the time with my children, instead of going out with him. I feel that if I stay at home and work hard that it is not necessary for me to doll myself up as when we were first married. We do not quarrel over this matter, but my husband hints that he will pick up another companion if I do not show him more attention.

Don't you think he is all wrong?

MRS. A.

Answer:

No. A man doesn't marry a woman just to get a household drudge. Nor does he marry her just to be a mother to his children. He marries to get a companion and when a wife fails to be this she fails just as much in her duty as if she were a poor housekeeper, or neglected her children.

When a man picks out a girl for a wife, he does so mainly because she is attractive to look upon. She is pretty and neat. Her hair is curled. Her nose is powdered. She has on good looking shoes. She wears gay dresses and fluttering ribbons. In the slang of the day, she is easy on the eyes, and he thinks that he will have a nice household ornament that he will love to gaze upon and be proud to show off the balance of his days.

Now, if as soon as they are married, the woman quits dolling up, the man has a right to feel that she has cheated him, and got him under false pretenses. For heaven knows, he never would have married the drab, slouchy, slovenly creature who meets him at the door, who smells of the nursery and whom no man could possibly want to kiss.

Certainly a husband has a right to feel that his wife cares very little for him if she does not think it worth while to try to make herself attractive and desirable to him, and he must feel that he bores her if she is never willing to go out any place of amusement with him, and never wants to chum with him.

Of course, the woman's alibi is the children. She says that her place is at home with the children, but again it is not flattering to a man's vanity to realize that his nose has been put entirely out of joint by a red-faced infant in a cradle and his pleasure and his wishes are as nothing compared to baby's.

The alienation of many a young couple comes with the first baby. The wife makes herself a slave to the nursery and forgets that she has any duty to her husband. She refuses to go with her husband and he learns to take his pleasures without her, and so they drift apart.

You had better take your husband's warning, Mrs. A, and doll yourself up and go with him, if you want to keep him. Otherwise, you will lose him. There are many safe people you can hire to take care of your children, but there is no safe woman with whom you can leave your husband.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix:

I am a bookkeeper and stenographer and am 27 years of age, and earn a good salary. I live at home, but am miserable. My mother and I are utterly uncongenial. She "crosses my grain" continually. She nags, criticizes me, ridicules my religion. I have also a sister who makes things unpleasant for me. She is mother's darling, who can do no wrong, while I can do nothing right.

Would you advise me to leave home and find peace and happiness elsewhere?

MAISIE.

Answer:

I certainly should. It seems to me that there is nothing in the world concerning which we are so much the victims of foolish tradition as we are about family life.

Because in patriarchal times whole families herded together, we still feel that people who stand in a certain relationship to each other must live under the same roof no matter how much they antagonize each other, or how miserable they make life for each other. This brings about a lot of unnecessary suffering that we should have sense enough and courage enough to abate.

There are lots of perfectly good people, people who are noble and upright and anxious to do their duty in the world, who are so entirely antagonistic to each other in thought, in taste, in desire, that they bring out all that is worst in each other. They can never be together without continual friction and arguments and quarrels and the only sane thing for them to do is to part and go their separate ways in peace.

There are plenty of mothers and daughters who cannot get along together, many sisters and brothers who are uncongenial. In fact, nearly all families are more fond of each other after they have broken up the family circle than they were when they lived in it.

Up to now men have made the laws that govern society, and they have had one code for the women and a different one for the men. Whether women will ever be strong enough to change this and put the man with the "past" in the class with the Magdalene, and force men to live as clean lives as they force women, I do not know.

But of one thing I am certain, there will never be any uplift movement as long as the vogue for kissing and petting parties prevails.

STREET ITEM INCLUDED IN BOND ISSUE

Tax Payers of City Will Vote on $550,000 Improvements

The city council has officially included in the bond issue to be voted on Nov. 10 a $100,000 item for improvement of streets in Wichita Falls.

Ten days ago when a $450,000 issue was called for various other improvements it was announced that the $100,000 issue probably would be included. Final action, however, was not taken until Wednesday.

Taxpayers here are now certain to vote on a $550,000 issue which will provide a new sewage plant, additions to the fire department, extension of sewer mains and improvement of streets, and there is a strong likelihood of an additional $500,000 or $600,000 being included later on for an aqueduct between Lake Wichita and the water plant to take the place of the open ditch.

This, however, has not been decided on.

MAY RE-TRY NEWTON HERE.

Case Was Reversed by Court of Criminal Appeals This Week.

Whether or not W. L. Newton, convicted in September, 1924, of killing R. F. Sheets, will be retried here because of reversal of his case Wednesday by the court of criminal appeals remains to be seen.

It was stated at the district attorney's office Thursday that an investigation would have to be made and a search instituted for witnesses who may have long since left this territory. No one now connected with the district attorney's staff was in office at the time of Newton's trial.

PLAN INDUSTRY FUND.

Would Give Financial Aid to Prospective New Concerns.

Further discussion of the proposal to create some form of an industrial finance fund here by means of which worthy industrial institutions seeking a location in Wichita Falls may be extended financial aid was held Thursday afternoon by a chamber of commerce committee appointed some time ago to consider the matter.

A sub-committee composed of N. H. Martin and J. T. Harrell was named to draft a definite plan of action and report later to the main committee of which W. M. McGregor is chairman.

GET "DICE TABLE."

Fixture Seized in City Officers' Raid on Bellmont Hotel.

A special "dice-table," said by police to be designed expressly for use in crap-shooting was seized late Thursday afternoon when City Detectives Bryan, Allen, Jenson and Hart visited the Bellmont hotel at Ninth and Lamar avenues. An overcoat said by the police to have been left by a man who hastily quit the place when officers appeared also was confiscated.

No arrests were made, although it was said some were expected today.

INDICTED IN ROBBERY.

Four Men Accused of Stealing Bank Safe Accused at Peacock.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 15.—Four men, who have been indicted for the burglary of the State Bank at Peacock, Stonewall county, were taken into custody Thursday by County Detective Rhodes and Sheriff Bingham of Stonewall county. The Peacock bank was broken into several months ago and the safe rolled out of the building to the country where it was abandoned.

"Bobbed Hair"

The Year's Most Dazzling Mystery Romance, Written By Twenty Popular Writers

CHAPTER I.
By Carolyn Wells.

Connemara sat, absorbed in her own reflections. This statement is to be taken physically as well as mentally, for the reflections she saw were the subject of the reflections she thought.

She could easily see six or seven Connemaras, for her triplicate dressing table mirror, aided and abetted by a hand glass, gave her various and sundry views of her hair. She studied it in deepest meditation, and critical at that, as who should say, a poor thing, but mine own.

Yet it was not a poor thing. Moderately long, moderately thick, moderately curly, its color was—well, Connemara had spent her childish days largely in stamping her foot and shouting back at teasing schoolmates, "It isn't red, it's orburn!"

Of course she had more of a proper name than that. She had been christened Constance Mary, but in her earliest attempts at conversation, lingual ineptitude had brought forth only Connemara, and the name had clung. Her other name was Moore.

For the rest, she was a slender little thing, light and graceful for movement, possessing more temper than temperament and more wit than wisdom.

These traits, in connection with the color of her hair in certain lights, had caused her to be dubbed Cayenne Fairy, and she lived up to the title.

Her boudoir, where she sat, was harmoniously colored in green and white. Even the books were all bound in green, with white leaves inside. From the window she could look out on the green tops of waving trees and on down to the lake, green with reflected foliage.

But Connemara wasn't looking out of the window. She was looking at her own hair, in the repeated reflections of the mirror panels.

"I don't know," she said, half aloud, "I don't know—"

"Don't know what, Connie?" And a figure appeared at her open door. A calm, placid figure, that might have been, nay, must have been the inspiration for the poem that begins, "Serene I fold my hands and wait."

"Whether to bob my hair or not," and Cayenne Fairy turned anxious, troubled eyes toward her Aunt Celimena.

This lady was perhaps half a century old, was as bony as a suspender button, and was, with fine, patient resignation, an old maid. With the idiosyncrasies that spinsters are capable of developing, she had made up her mind that, having herself proved the inconveniences of single life, her niece should not experience them—she would forestall any such nonsense.

Now Miss Celimena Moore was a born forestaller, and when she set her mind to forestalling she did it efficiently and effectively.

Connemara was devoted to Moorelands, the big old country place in the pleasant hills of Connecticut, and Miss Moore merely decreed that if her niece was not married by her twenty-first birthday, the estate should pass into the hands of trustees to be used forever as a children's home. If, however, Connemara proved amenable to reason, and selected one from her shoals of suitors, and announced her engagement in June and was married in October, the place and fortune of her rich aunt would eventually become her own.

It sounds melodramatic, in the telling, but Miss Celimena was so deeply in earnest, and Miss Connemara so deeply attached to the place, that the matter was serious to the point of tragedy.

Moreover, it was the next to the last day of June, and in another twenty-four hours the limit of the time appointed would be uncomfortably near.

Connemara was not entirely unprepared. She had narrowed her possibilities down to two, but between this precious pair she felt unable to make choice.

"Is everybody bobbing?" Aunt Celly asked, politely disinterested. She cared little for passing fashions.

"Of course. You'll come to it yourself soon. But with me it's more than a whim or a notion; it's the whole game."

"Is it? Well, never mind that now. Are you going to announce your engagement tomorrow night?"

"Oh, yes," Connemara sighed. "Of course I am. But I've no idea to whom."

"Nonsense! You must know which one you love."

"That's just it. I love them both—I adore them both. I can't live without both of them. You see, Aunt Celly, they're such perfect complements. It's like bread and butter or ham and eggs. Useless each without the other."

"Don't be silly!"

"I'm not. I want to marry both of them—oh, not both at once; I couldn't, of course. But say, first one and then the other. Only I don't know which to marry first."

"You talk like a fool, Constance Mary. I've no patience with you. But you'll have to make up your mind pretty soon, for I shall make no change in my will."

She walked placidly away, leaving the girl reflecting among her reflections.

The two men were complementary, though exact opposites.

Bingham Carrington, a tall fair Viking of a man, was a southerner, from Raleigh or Richmond or Roanoke or some such place, while Saltonstall Cabot Adams was a New Englander of purest ray serene.

Both men were desperately in love with the Cayenne Fairy, and while Adams was a rich man, Carrington had an unappeased desire for ducks and drakes, and yearned to make them out of Connemara's money.

Yet Bing was a bright, merry, sun-shiny sort of person, while Saltonstall was so serious as to be almost heavy, so erudite as to be almost dull.

A side of Connemara's nature craved this cultural background, yearned for this companionship of wisdom and intellectuality, even while another side of her soul cried out for Bing's overflowing, all-embracing affection.

With an uncertain sigh, Connemara put up her unbobbed hair, and arrayed herself to greet a merry house party coming to spend the week-end.

They came: Poppy Glenn, a red-checked, red-lipped brunette, sporting the very latest style of bob cut. Rose Wraye, Madonna type, endowed with endearing young charms, but scorning to let scissors touch her long, fair tresses. Beside the two men there were Richard Bird, naturally called Dicky, and Cecil Percy Knapp, the artist.

Nor did any dare to snatch off the hat and solve the question. Connemara was not one to stand that.

"You'll know soon enough," she said and her dazzling smile included the two men most interested, as well as the rest of the noisy, rollicking group.

Home they went and off to dress for dinner.

Surely at dinner they must learn the truth, and could then toast the health of the engaged ones.

But at dinner Connemara appeared with a headdress of silver gauze, wound turbanlike round her head. Skillfully, too, so that no hint of shape or size should betray her secret.

"Oh, well," said Bing cheerily, "you will have to show down tonight. The fancy dress ball will last beyond midnight and at twelve you'll have to confess."

"I will," and Cayenne Fairy laughed happily.

"I know her costumes," said Rose Wraye. "She has a stunning Ohelia rig that she's going to wear if she didn't bob, and Peter Pan costume that she'll sport about in if her hair is short."

Connemara nodded agreement to this, and later on, when they all went up to don their fancy ball garb, the girl paused in the room of Cayenne Fairy and saw spread out on her bed the two costumes Rose had told of.

They left her, and Connemara closed and locked the door.

Then she sat down again to her reflections. In the triplicate panel of the dressing table, repeated in the hand glass she held, her lovely Titian hair gleamed in its auburn glory.

Connemara looked at the two costumes on the bed and smiled.

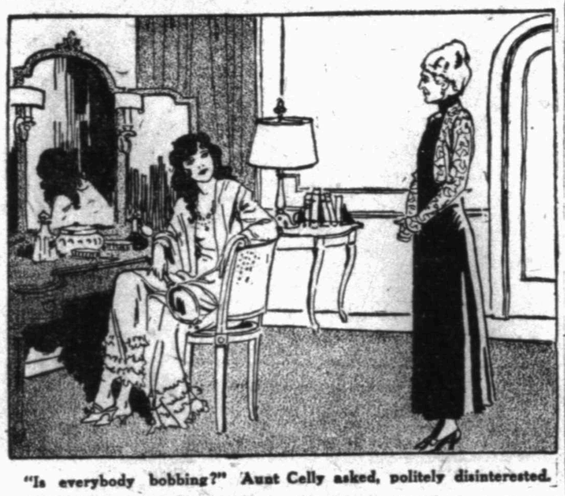

Passing them by, she took from a wardrobe a box and opened it. From it she took a full costume which she quickly donned, deftly adjusting its long white folds.

Soon, completely attired, she went and listened over the banister. Yes, the guests were assembled; Aunt Celimena was serenely receiving them.

She went slowly downstairs and entered the dancing room. A cheer greeted her appearance which turned to a groan of impatience and exasperation as they saw her face, saint-like and beautiful, swathed about by the coifed headdress that belonged to her garb of a Dominican Sister.

CHAPTER II

When it dawned even on the remote and only mildly interested members of the orchestra that the evasive Connemara had found a way to defy her announcement yet a little longer, they flung themselves into the breach with a hub-dub of music, and in another minute the long room of Moorlands resembled a kaleidescope in a state of agitation. But a refreshed topic of conversation had come as a boon to the houseparty, and even those whose small talk was usually exhausted when they had commented on the perfectly splendid dance floor and the perfectly splendid orchestra were kept going indefinitely by their speculations on the invisible locks of Connemara.

Thus the perky Miss Glenn knew, when Adam Brewster asked her for the first dance, that dancing was the last, or almost the last, thing he would have cared to do with her. Mr. Brewster was a withered gentleman of slightly maligant aspect who knew all there was to know about Moorelands and the Moore family except for the single detail about the hair of the heir apparent. He was Miss Celimena's lawyer and had been her father's lawyer before that. Without long and acrimonious discussion with Mr. Brewster, Miss Celimena had never bought a bond or paid a tax and every one knew that the singular document in which the fate of Moorelands was conditioned had been composed with great gusto by Mr. Brewster.

Whereupon Miss Glenn, when the lawyer led her firmly to a seat against the wall and sat down beside her, knew that she was expected to interpret the situation for him.

"I am afraid that our dear Connie is being just a bit theatrical," she said at once, "but I know what's at the bottom of it."

"Perversity?" asked Mr. Brewster.

"Not at all," said Miss Glenn. "Panic."

"Panic?" 'the old lawyer exclaimed. "When both her alternatives are so agreeable?"

"Oh, they're all right, I suppose. But you'll have to admit that Bing is the kind that calls her his Cayenne Fairy Queen. That must be very fatiguing. And Salt raves on about the pleasures of the intellect."

"How do you know?"

"I eavesdrop, Mr. Brewster. Don't you?"

"Never."

"Well, one picks up a lot that way. For instance, I listened in when you and that law clerk from your office were whispering away there under the stairs. That's how I know you have planted him here in case you should need a witness at twelve o'clock. You lawyers are pretty crafty, but I do think that little trap for Connemara isn't quite air-tight."

"Ah, a loophole, eh?" said Mr. Brewster with an indulgent smile.

"An enormous one. She has to announce her engagement before the end of June, and she has to marry by October. Very true. But it doesn't have to be the same man."

Mr. Brewster grunted.

"I wonder if Connemara has noticed that," mused Miss Glenn brightening visibly at the thought of how easily she could make a little trouble. "I think I'll have to go and tell her."

It was really to detain her there with him that Mr. Brewster went on talking.

"But panic?" he asked. "If she's already decided, why—"

The fun began at once. They were a noisy young lot, there was racing and chasing o'er Canobie Lee, there was guying and flirting and petting and all the modern substitutes for Shakespeare and the musical glasses.

And beneath it all the under-current of excitement, wondering what Connemara meant to do.

Late that evening she had two sessions, one with each of her chosen knights.

Bing was first. They walked down the paths to the rambler arbor and sat there, while he pleaded his cause with real eloquence. He was a perfect courtier, and his manners were more than perfect. He could rise at the appearance of a lady, without looking as if he had just heard the first notes of "The Star Spangled Banner." He could hold her cape for her without the effect of hanging out the Monday wash. He was intensely modern, up to date, and a little beyond.

"Of course, you'll marry me, my Cayenne Fairy Queen," he exulted. "We are each other's own, twin halves of a perfect soul made one, and all that. You never could stand that hatchet-faced, beetle-browed, lantern-jawed, gimlet-eyed old Pilgrim Puritan of a Salt Adams. You know you couldn't. And I want you to have your hair bobbed tomorrow, and tomorrow night at the dance we'll tell all and sundry our precious secret, and it is not your metier! Come to me, Fairy darling, we will have pleasures of the intellect, of the mind, of the soul, such as that village cut up can't even understand. I will love you with a devotion, an idolatry, all the deeper and finer and sweeter because of our mental development, our psychic——"

"Cut it out, Connemara!" called Poppy Glenn's shrill voice as she and Dicky Bird intruded themselves upon the scene.

Others followed, and before them all Cayenne Fairy gave her ultimatum.

"I'll decide this matter myself," she said, as they all flung advice at her at once. "Tomorrow, I'll run down to New York, and back, in time for dinner. If I get my hair bobbed while I'm there, it's 'cause I mean to marry Bing. If I come back with my hair as is, it's a sure sign Salt is the man."

Cheers greeted this speech, and there was a sound of revelry by nights that dismissed for the time being the subject under discussion.

"Why should I waste kisses on a girl who may be another's wife?" he declared.

"I am afraid that our dear Connie is being just a bit theatrical," she said

The next afternoon Connemara went to New York. The whole crowd went along, but she went alone into the hairdresser's parlors.

Her going did not necessarily mean a bob; she was as undecided as ever when she advanced to the desk to keep her appointment.

She had arranged by telephone that she was to have the time, and if she concluded at the last minute not to have her hair bobbed, she would pay for the time and keep her locks intact.

The lady at the desk smiled and waved her to an appointed cubicle, where pretty bobbed-haired girls let down her auburn mass and brushed it out.

Then the man with the shears came in. Connemara had a vivid remembrance of the picture in "Struwelpeter" where the great shears open to cut off Conrad's thumbs.

"Wait a minute," she said convulsively, almost hysterically, as he drew the white apron closer about her neck.

He waited, shears open and poised above her head as she watched him in the mirror.

As in a dream the visions whirred across her mind. Life with Bing, happy, debonair, good-natured; life with Salt, clever, deep thinker, distinguished.

Bing, aflame with Southern ardor of devotion. Salt, quivering with passionate idolatry. Bing, triumph of muscular perfection, victor of all outdoor sports; Salt, mentally great, full of imagination and creative genius. Oh, which should it be?

The shears hovered. In the mirror she saw the puzzled face of the barber as he wondered at her indecision.

How about it, my honey-blossom off of a peach tree?"

"I'll see, Bing. I don't know—really I don't yet. But I'll decide tomorrow, of course, and I'll—I'll let you know."

"Good! If you decide against me, don't bother to forward the information. But you won't, you can't. Oh, my little Connemara, nobody could love you as I will—as I do. Star of my soul——"

"I know, Bing—I know. But run now. Saltonstall is coming here. If I decide on you, I'll have my hair bobbed tomorrow, and if I take him, I won't. So you'll know."

Carrington went reluctantly, and Adams came to the arbor, where Connemara had promised him an interview.

It was a stormy one. Salt had a temper equal to Connemara's own, and the two struck sparks.

"I shan't make love to you," he declared, "until you say you will marry me. Why should I waste kisses on a girl who may be another's wife? But Connemara, don't, I beg of you, don't make the mistake of accepting Bing Carrington. He's a fortune hunter a wastrel, a spendthrift. He cares only for the silly, bobbed-haired flapper sort. He'd make you one of that

She held her future poised on the clip of those shining blades. A word from her and the first clip would proclaim her irrevocably pledged to Bing Carrington. Or a mere protest would close those steel arbiters of Fate, and she would be the bride of the worthy scion of the Adams family.

Suddenly, like a flash, illumination came. Her inner soul spoke, the truth appeared to her—she knew!

When Connemara rejoined the crowd who waited for her, they stared at her radiant face. Eagerly they looked at her hair, but her small tight-fitting cloche of a hat was drawn down closely over her whole head, and no hint could be gained as to the state of Cayenne Fairy's hair.

Rotary Observes Tenth Anniversary

"Success of Rotary is through the individual; what it accomplishes must be done through the individual," declared Dr. Q. B. Lee, past president of Rotary, in a short address to the Rotarians who celebrated the tenth anniversary of the organization in a birthday dinner Thursday noon at the Kemp Hotel.

"Mass action never accomplishes anything; it may start something, but it will never finish it," he said. "Where real benefit comes is to the individual which Rotary makes a better citizen."

Dr. C. R. Hartsook, president of Rotary in 1919-20 spoke and with a "Sense of modesty," admitted that his reign was the most outstanding.

T. B. Smock, second president of the club, expressed his appreciation for the organization and briefly told some of its past history.

"We must not forget the word, 'duty'," declared C. U. Daniels. "You can not serve unless you're sold on duty."

Three of the past ten presidents, George D. Keith, Walter D. Cline and P. A. Rogers were absent at the meeting. J. H. Allison announced that a charter to the Graham Rotary club would be presented Tuesday evening, Oct. 27, and invited members of the local club to attend. The Rotary club of Fort Worth will be in charge.

OPEN DAMAGE SUIT

Opening evidence was taken Thursday afternoon before a jury and Judge Guy Rogers in the 78th district court in the case of T. M. West vs Paul G. Putty and others in which the plaintiff seeks damages of $20,000 for personal injuries.

It is alleged that on May of this year he was struck and run down at the corner of Seventh and Lee streets by an automobile operated by a negro employe of the defendants. Carelessness and negligence on the part of the driver is held in the plaintiff's petition to have caused him serious and permanent bodily injury.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs, and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.—(Adv.)

Our Special Sale in Pyralin Bird Cages

An entirely new principle in material and construction of sanitary cages. Beginning tomorrow morning we will start a special sale to introduce this beautiful new line of bird cages by GIVING AWAY FREE of charge a separate Bird Bath with every sale of the PYRALIN or brass bird cage.

This special offer is limited to stock on hand so it will not be necessary to be here when we open our doors.

We are also showing many other new items in household hardware.

Overwrought Nerves

YOU never heard of a red-blooded person—man or woman—becoming a nervous wreck! And you never will. You never saw anybody with healthy, rich, red blood, get wearied by the activities of daily life. Did you?

No! It's weak blood—lack of healthy, rich, red blood. That's the whole trouble with those whose nerves are overwrought. They lack the resisting powers—the stamina that healthy, red-blood-cells give that enable us to stand up under the strain of daily life.

S. S. S. is the salvation of these unhappy people. It is just the thing needed to strengthen the nerves, restore muscular power to the body, and increase the endurance of weak, failing, run-down women and men.

Don't keep on going down simply because your blood is starving for want of healthy, red-blood-cells. You can get back your nerve power with S. S. S. You can do it just as surely as thousands have done for the past century.

S. S. S. also clears the skin of pimples, boils, eczema—hollow cheeks fill out and firm flesh takes the place of flabby muscles. Why, you'll begin living all over again. Get S. S. S. today from any good druggist. And get the larger bottle. It's more economical.

More Truth Than Poetry

TO MY CAT

You fondly rub your back against my ankles,
As breakfastward I journey through the hall,
But in my soul a deep suspicion rankles
That you expect a favor—that is all.
For when you've lapped the last drop from your basin
And are convinced that you will get no more,
You leer at me derisively, and hasten
Out the door.

You let me tweak your ears without demurring,
When bright the coals are glowing in the grate—
There is a pleasant cadence to your purring,
The while my face you calmly contemplate;
But let the room become the least bit colder,
And with a sudden, unexpected start—
You lithely leap across my friendly shoulder
And depart.

My dog, although I might have not to feed him
A shred of meat, the barest meagre bone,
I know will be beside me when I need him—
The love he harbors is for me alone.
He asks of me no tribute, gift or token,
But in my presence takes a real delight,
He'll think, though I grow old and poor and broken—
I'm all right.

But if I kept you waiting for your dinner
I'd see a baleful gleam light up your eye,
If you should find your cream a little thinner
And no warm spot beside the fire to lie;
The bond that is between us you would sever,
You'd leave me, and I know I should not pine,
For though I rather like you, you were never
Friend of mine.

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By BLONDY CROSS.

The potential conference champions, as some would have you believe, swing into action today down at College Station. The winner of the Mustang-Aggie conflict will capture the Southwestern gonfalon, so the prognosticating lads aver.

* * *

On paper the dope has it one of these elevens will sweep the conference, true. But the game itself is played on the gridiron and not on the keys of a sport prophet's typewriter.

* * *

For example, the dope favored Baylor to trample T. C. U. at Dallas Tuesday, but the score was 7-7. The dope had it Texas university would shade Vanderbilt the past week end, and Texas would have done so or gained at least a tie [illegible] for misses afield. The score was 24-6 Vandy. Rice was expected to put it on Trinity, but the Owls flopped by the wayside.

* * *

So, you see this picking the winners is a precarious job, unless you wait until after they have won.

* * *

Mr. Stowe of the Fort Worth Record has confided S. M. U. will grab the championship. This opinion was expressed before any conference team had taken to the field. He made this hazard with one reservation, that is, if the Ponies don't lose to Dana Bible's mean. But S. M. U. should beat the Aggies, Stowe opines.

* * *

AGGIES FAVORED.

There the enthusiastic alumnus of Southern Methodist university erred. S. M. U., according to Stowe's own statistics, should NOT defeat the Aggies. The dope, what there is of it regardless of how little or how much it means, favors the Farmers.

* * *

Comparative scores of season's games to date would give the Dallas team the edge, but comparative scores augur little, in most cases, nothing. The wizard Dana has, again referring to the ever fickle dope, probably the greatest defensive eleven in the conference, and an offense which may surprise the most optimistic. Man for man, the Farmers should shade the Mustangs, and fighting down on Kyle field this afternoon the Aggies are not the under dogs. S. M. U. may win—certainly, but the "dope" is with the Farmers.

* * *

Jack Dempsey is to fight a ten-round decision affair with Martin Burke, in New Orleans, Thanksgiving day. The great question is does Jack intend to eat his Thanksgiving dinner before or after the match? The bout, should mean nothing other than that it may take an hour from Dempsey's celebrations of the day.

* * *

Burke is a fairly good heavyweight, but hardly good enough for Dempsey. He can give the champion a good workout, in fact, he used to do so as a sparring partner. Burke is lean, rawboned, tough and a good boxer. He lost a decision to Tunney after a mean battle, but this can't be held against him. The judges' award went to George Godfrey, a former of Dempsey's former sparring partners, in 1917 that Burke spotted his opponent 40 pounds and then came away unscathed.

* * *

Fred Fulton, the plenteously plastered plasterer, as Bob Edgren refers to him, will not pull off another of those "things" with Tony Fuente in Arizona where promoters had been negotiating for a "natural" match between the pair. The Phoenix commissioners have decided to bar all fighters suspended by the California commish. Both Fred and Tony were given the grand bounce on the Coast.

* * *

Fulton is seeking another bout in Wichita Falls. His performance here a month ago was all square, but perhaps Fulton was became Soldier Lee, his opponent, was no pushover for the elongated one in the first place. Anyhow, Fulton declares he's trying to forget the "mistakes" he's made and start over shooting straight with all concerned.

* * *

A NEAR CASUALTY.

Jim Brown, the Greek grappler who took Matty Matsuda for a fall Tuesday in the feature of the Wichita Falls Wrestling association card, is hugely insulted, feelings hurt and hilariously peeved with the world at large and Matsuda and Promoter Alec Rose in particular. He broke into the office yesterday in an ugly mood, declaring: "All I want is a square deal!"

* * *

Not having an open door close by, he vaulted a desk, grabbed a typewriter in one hand and a pig of type metal in the other, and then tremulously queried as to what it was all about.

"They won't treat me right!" he bellowed. "They bring me down here to wrestle the Jap for his belt and then won't let me do it. They say I can't make the weight. I wrestle him for nothing, and they won't give me the chance."

* * *

Seeing that it wasn't yours truly Brown was after we dropped our weapons, came out from behind the fortifications, and soft-talked him into calming down. Here's the situation: Brown and Matsuda were scheduled for a return go next Tuesday. The match was called off because Brown would not make 145 pounds at seven o'clock the evening of the card. Matty was willing to wrestle at catch weights without the belt at stake. Brown says he'll make weight at three o'clock that afternoon, no later, and will not wrestle unless it's for the welterweight championship held by the Nipponese. It may be repeated that Brown wrestled the other night gratis, receiving no cash consideration other than railroad expenses from Chicago and back.

* * *

The Greek declared that if given a week or ten days he would make the weight at ringside. Promoter Ross has his dates already lined up, he said, and if the match isn't staged this coming Tuesday it cannot be held.

* * *

MATTY YELLOW?

Upon hearing Ross' statement, Brown got fuzzy around the gills again and yelped: "They're afraid of me. Matsuda is yellow, I tell you! The Jap's yellow, and that's why he won't wrestle me for his belt! If they let me in there with him I'll flatten him!"

Harsh words, those.

Fans Would Buy Club for Barney

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Walter Johnsog said today he had been notified by telegraph of the plan, originating in Muskogee, Okla., for baseball fans to raise a million dollars and buy a baseball club for him as a popular tribute.

The famous Washington pitcher voiced his appreciation of the spirit prompting the movement but said he could not say now just what his attitude would be.

"I wouldn't like the impression to be gained that I need money or anything like that," said Barney, "but at the same time I am grateful for the idea apparently inspiring this movement."

Johnson has signed a Washington contract for 1926 and this would prevent fulfillment of such a plan as that started in Muskogee until after that.

SQUAD, RUNNING SMOOTHER, TO OPEN VARIED ATTACK ON OKLAHOMA MOLESKIN CLUB

In the best of condition they have enjoyed this season, and primed to dazzle their opponents with a varied attack, Coach Bubs Mosley's Junior college gridsters are all set to lock with the Cameron Aggies of Lawton, Okla., this afternoon on the Spudder park gridiron. Hostilities begin at 4 o'clock.

The squad recuperated from practically all injuries received in past conflicts and primed for the tilt by nearly two weeks' intensive training will take to the field enthusiastic and confident of victory.

The Indians have been running in for smoother order than displayed in the early season tilts, and the odds favor them to win by at least a close score.

Thursday afternoon's practice session was devoted to signal drill. A probable starting lineup was obtained from the manner in which the first stringers were apportioned in two teams. It is more than likely Harris and Crites will start at the wing positions, Werth and Burks at tackles, Karns and Saunders at guards, Clary at center, Deems at quarterback, Rawls and West at halves, and Beatty at full. Thurman is almost sure to see service at one of the halfback positions or at quarter. Timmons also will be used in the backfield or at end. Horschi will get a shot at tackle, and Gonce will be seen at a terminal during the game. Fact of the matter is, Coach Mosley declared it was possible nearly every man on the squad would be used.

Coyotes and Tigers Just About Ready

The Coyotes worked lightly yesterday in preparation for the annual classic slated for Spudder field with Electra Saturday. Punting, passing and signal drill constituted the workout. The club will work lightly again this afternoon, said Coach McCallum.

Jim Reese's Tigers have been drilling strenuously for this encounter and little is being left undone by the Electra mentor and Line Coach Coke in effort to whip the club into shape. The Tigers are expected, so it's said, to present a powerful defensive team to cope with the open as well as plunging attack of the Pack. However, some of the Tiger backs in scrimmage sessions have shown great improvement at grabbing yardage, and it may be the so-called defensive eleven will break out with a surprisingly powerful offense, according to the Record News' Electra correspondent. Lebus, Dell Coolidge and Tramill have proved consistent gainers during the past several days' practice. Trevor Bell, midget quarter of the second string, has been making a name for himself both defensively and offensively. Fred Brewer at guard for the reserves has been looking alive.

Louis Kent who injured a leg in Tuesday's session, is back in moleskins again and probably will be ready to step Saturday.

Willie Carnahan, center, has been held from scrimmage because of a shoulder injury received in the Burk game last week-end.

One point of interest locally: Jim Reese is working his men hard on forward pass, defense to cope with the more or less heralded overhead game of the Coyotes.

Burk Clashes With Seymour Today

Coach Ludgate sends his Burk Bulldogs against Seymour this afternoon at Burkburnett in the first conference game of the season. Burk boasts this year one of the best clubs ever turned out there. The Bulldogs surprised North Texas grid followers several weeks back by defeating Quanah, 12 to 0, and then proved themselves more worthy of notice last Saturday by holding the class A Electra team to a 6-6 tie score.

Ludgate probably will be forced to go into the game today with out the services of Quarterback Johnnie McDonald, but will have a man to take his place who showed up nicely in the latter part of the game last week with Electra. Jean Burkner is the most likely man to fill the position.

Ludgate will have six letter men to call on. During the absence of Captain Terrance Word, Floyd Patterson has been shifted to center. Buckner, Earl Warren and Mitchell Wolfe are all veterans in the backfield. Patterson at center, William James at tackle, B. F. Gilchrist at guard, are all letter men.

Captain Terrance Word and Quarterback Johnnie McDonald are the only other letter men on the squad, and these are out with injuries sustained earlier in the season.

Burkburnett has been picked by several close followers of the game to be the big winners in the class B circles, and they have a very formidable club with which to come through. They are light as a team, but fast with plenty of fight.

Burk's probable starting lineup: Good and Gillmore, ends; Barker and James, tackles; Gilchrist and Rickam, guards; Patterson, center; Jarrel and Warren, halfbacks; Buckner, quarter; Wolfe, full.

Lions Forego Scrimmage Sessions

The Lions will not have scrimmage a single time this week in preparation for the game with the Quanah Indians Saturday afternoon, according to statement made by Coach Baggatt. "Too many injured," was Baggatt's reason for not sending the squad through scrimmage. Practically every man on the squad is nursing some sort of an injury. Crouch has not been in uniform this week, while Castleberry and Ted Key do little more than suit out.

With the squad in a crippled condition, Baggatt is drilling them on fundamentals again. The club goes through about two hours of signal practice each afternoon, and each man is drilled on every play, and is constantly told what opposing player he must take out of the play.

The Lion mentor announces that he will not take his squad to Quanah until Saturday morning in spite of the heavy condition of the roads.

Cloie Key is filling Crouch's position at half in practice sessions, and will likely start Saturday's game in that position, according to Baggatt. The little player appears to have plenty of speed, but Crouch will undoubtedly be missed if the Lions find the going hard. Crouch will not be put into the game Saturday, regardless of the outcome, fans here have been told.

In signal work this week, Baggatt is stressing nothing but straight football, although he gave the squad a number of new formations last week. Passes and trick formations have not been mentioned in practice this week. The mentor is drilling the squad about 12 men in the line most of the time, in an effort to get the new men in condition to take the regulars' places should it be found necessary Saturday.

Pups Handicapped By Injuries

The Junior high school football squad will take on the Archer City club this afternoon on the Archer City club this Coyote Pups are badly broken up with the injuries to several of their star players. Tackles Baine and Barry are both nursing sore legs. Coach Golden has been working on the supports of those two, and Barry will be out of O. U. Beach. Bill Stevens still has a bad sort in the palm of his right hand.

The squad probably will have several second string men in the game before the contest is over. Coach Montgomery has three nice looking prospects for guard, and may shift one of these to tackle to fill the shoes o fthe first string tackles in case they are not used. Beach, Powell and Hodgkins are the trio of which one may be shifted.

Fat Tandy reported for practice Thursday, and may be able to take his position at guard. Should Tandy be in playing condition by the time for the game today Beach and Hodgkins may both be placed at tackle, and leave Tandy and Fowell in for guard.

Red Nichols is the best looking prospect now in line for center, and is sure to be in the game at the start. Floyd Herndon and Ray George will be on the ends for the starter, with Hack Giles, Bill Stevens, Edwin Goff, and Saye ready to relieve them if needed.

Picking the backfield is easy. Spencer "Shoestring" Delaney will handle the game from the field. This chap is about the best built man on the squad for the position. His shoestring tackles, which earned him the nickname, will be of a great help as safety man on the Archer City sweeping end runs.

Elza Fry will start the game at half, and be on hand for the passing and punting. Roy Brackett will bethe running mate with Fly at the other half. Brackett and Farrisgare about the hardest hitting backfield o nthe squad.

Captain Hunky Fyrris will start at fullback and with the powar he packs in hitting a line should make a good number of gains.

Olney Plays Bridgeport—Hawk Game Off

Coach A. C. Hill's Olney eleven mixes with the strong Bridgeport team this afternoon in what may prove a mighty tough battle for the Hillmen. Olney so far has played three games winning two and tying one. Hill's club beat Jacksboro last week, 6 to 0.

The team is crippled. For several days this week, Harville, West, O'Brien and Collins of the line were out of practices because of injuries. Dunagan, half, K. Grage, quarter, and Enlo, half, were unable to perform in the backfield because of injuries. It is quite likely these men will not be in the starting line-up this afternoon, and they may not be used at all.

With substitutes and a number of second string men on the field the dope is against the Olney team to win. Bridgeport held the powerful Mineral Wells club to a 32 to 13 score recently.

The Grandfield-Iowa Park game scheduled for this afternoon was postponed yesterday morning by Grandfield, announced R. E. Brewster, coach of the Hawks. The contest in all likelihood will be staged at Iowa Park Monday afternoon.

Brewer put his squad through a hard workout Thursday, scrimmaging 35 minutes along with the regular run of grid practice.

Razorbacks Work Late Preparing For Rice Contest

FAYETTVILLE, Ark., Oct. 15.—(AP) Razorback coaches worked far into the night last night arranging a new line-up for the Rice-Arkansas game at Houston Saturday. Absence of McGill and Shaw from the line will force in reserve material as first string men.

The present combination is reported to reduce maximum strength in passing, but if aerial work becomes necessary Rucker may be relied upon to replace Chapman. Rucker is doing his best kicking of the season in this week's scrimmage against freshmen.

MUD HOLDS UP GRAND CIRCUIT.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 15.—(AP)—A muddy track caused postponement of the grand circuit races here today, for the third consecutive day.

Doc Scouts Game At College Station

AUSTIN, Oct. 15.—Under direction of Bill James, head line coach, the Orange and White performers will work out in Dallas late Friday. Coach Stewart will not see his men go through their paces Friday, for he will be at College Station, getting "dope" on the S. M. U. Mustangs and Texas Aggies, who play there Friday.

The Longhorns went through a hard scrimmage today against the freshmen eleven. The first year players used Auburn formations, and made a fair showing against their more experienced opponent.

World Series Notes

(By The Associated Press.)

Roger Peckinpaugh broke all world series records for the worst fielding in big classic, making eight errors and breaking the marks of Hans Wagner, who made six boots in 1903, and Joey Sweil, who ran up a string of six misplays in 1922. The previous error records were made by shortstops, a position most likely to run up the largest number of misplays. Peck made eight oithe nineerrors committed by his team during the series.

Johnson bore down hard in the first two innings today but the Pirates were after his fast ball and they broke through with a barrage of hits in the third which sent over three runs and quickly showed that the speed ball king was not in his invincible form of last Sunday. Even with the help of the dark day the Pirates raked Johnson hard and in only one inning after the third frame did the Pirates fail to threaten. That was the sixth when the home folks went out in order.

Carey was a constant thorn in Johnson's side, he maced him for three doubles and one single and harried the Washington pitcher while on the base paths.

Earl Smith did not help the Pirate cause any in the first inning when he tipped Peck's bat. Peck was given his base and a run was forced over the plate.

The feature of the series was the reaction of the Pirates from their batting slump that gripped them in the first four games. Their last and most spectacular offensive eruption came with two out in the eighth inning today when three doubles, a walk and an error swept three runs across and settled the issue.

Ray Kremer blazed forth as the pitching star of the last game, going into the box in the fifth he disposed of the once world's champions in one, two, three order until the eighth when Peck lofted one over Bigbee's head for a home run. Rube Oldham pitched the ninth and got the Senators in order, striking out Rice and Goslin. It was Rice's only strike out in the series.

Not one of the fifteen hits garnered by the Pirates was tainted with flukiness. All were ringing drives that whizzed by or over the heads of the infielders and kept the outfielders racing to the barriers to hold them in check.

When the field demonstration was staged by the crowd after the game, the bleachcrites made a concerted rush against the barrier which broke down and flocking by hundreds on the field staged a make dance and parade which was led by the band.

The Pirates had a sour first inning. Three walks and two wild pitches by Aldridge, an error by Moore and an interference by Smith, to which the Senators contributed two hits, gave the Senators four runs. Everything looked rosy for Washington but Johnson could not hold the Pirates in check.

Kiki Cuyler from whom much was expected came into his own in the final battle by bringing up a line drive while skating on his nose in short right center and then driving in the winning runs with a double to right. When Kiki emerged from the club house after the game, 5,000 were waiting for him and they carried him on their shoulders to his home a half mile away. Hugs and kisses galore were showered upon the youngster.

The Pirate pitcher curve balled the Senators out of the world series honors. All through the seven contests the American leaguers looked at little else but hooks and saw few fast balls of which they are particularly fond.

The PASSING HOUR

MATHEWSON

I wonder if in his dreaming he is out on the hill once more,
Watching the bleachers shaking, hearing the old crowd's roar,
Again with the old glove stepping in the breach of his battle days,
Taming the Cubs and Pirates on the old remembered ways?

For now he is out of the shadows, back in the land of play,
Where the friends of his youth are calling to the lad who went away;
Out once more in the sunlight, bathed in the spring wind's breath,
Free of the white plague's terror, and men may call it—death.

CHRISTY.

WHEN a man passes on after the crest of his prime has been reached, it is difficult to estimate what loss he has occasioned. A critical sports column the other day spoke of America's "best beloved ball player," and the reference was to Walter Johnson. Certainly a decade ago no one would have questioned that the man meant was Christy Mathewson. And that was just after he had closed his career as a ball player and while Johnson, already a ten-year veteran, was still at his best.

It is doubtful if, four years from now when Johnson as a pitcher is a memory, he will hold the place in the affections of a fickle game that Mathewson retained so long—that held with him even when he was battling at Saranac Lake the fight that eventually proved a losing one.

For Johnson holds the stage as a great pitcher—perhaps the greatest—as Rusie once held it—as old Iron Joe McGinnity, now stumbling through the minors in old age, held it. But Mathewson held the affection of the public for a personality that reached beyond the diamond—that scintillated in the imagination of young America as no other has done. Men loved the name of Mathewson who had never seen him pitch.

THE REASON.

POSSIBLY the thing in him that caught at the heart strings of so many of us was the innate character of the man that brought him back from failure to success. For not the least factor in the story of the big blonde pleasant "Matty" was the dauntless courage and tireless energy that mastered the delivery that is called the "fadeaway" and brought him back a conqueror after the loss of the pitching arm and blinding speed of his youth.

Rusie—Johnson — Waddell — the greatest of the pitchers—have been that because of a fast ball. But Mathewson's greatest years were those from 1906 through 1912 after he had lost the first flush of speed. It is no tradition—no folk tale—that his mastery of the hill was mental—that a man who might maul his delivery once seldom looked again at the service he had fancied in that hitting bee.

He was a fine character of a man—a quiet, pleasant voiced gentleman with a fund of wholesome humor and a boyish spirit that perhaps retained his love of the game itself so long. He liked to pitch.

It is in common with the life of this man who, as a professional athlete, played so great a part in America's life, that his death should be due to his service for his country—lungs infected by his work as a gas officer in France, a division which oddly enough held considerable appeal for the playing fraternity.

THE FUN MAKER.

DURING his playing career, there were innumerable stories developed by his own genius for clean fun making.

McGraw must have gotten a first-class chuckle from one of Matty's jests when the Giants were training in Texas in the spring of 1900. The regulars were playing in San Antonio—Mathewson had charge of the Yannigans who were playing a Saturday exhibition in Houston. Herzog, then a youngster, was handling third base for the first team—a kid of promise but not certain to make the club. Playing third base for the Yannigans was the regular catcher, Roger Breshnahan, who had once been an infielder.

The Rajah had a bad day at Houston and booted three ground balls that cost Matty's team the game. Christy, as manager of the Yannigans, wired McGraw that night:

"Will trade Breshnahan and $100 for Herzog."

Mathewson began four years ago the losing battle at Saranac Lake. For a time his life was despaired of—then the wires clicked the good news that Mathewson was recovering—that he was well. Then came the venture that made him president of the Boston National league club—doubtless financed by his old friends on the Giant ownership, but his recovery had not been complete. For a few months he has been slipping back and now Mathewson is dead.

BUCCANEERS BATTLE FROM BEHIND TO DEFEAT JOHNSON AND CAPTURE CHAMPIONSHIP

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The black emblem of the Pirates flies aloft tonight while a daring, swash-buckling crew rules the baseball world for the first time in 16 years.

Through the haze of a rain-soaked, furiously dramatic struggle on Forbes Field this afternoon these ruthless Buccaneers—Pittsburgh's National league title holders—beat down the resistance of their greatest foeman, Walter Johnson, and riddled the Washington craft with a defeat by a score of 9 to 7 in the seventh and deciding game of the world's series.

Forty-two thousand frenzied fans, fired to a high pitch of enthusiasm, watched this terrific, hand-to-hand fight under adverse conditions which have had few, if any, parallels in championship annals.

They looked on, then broke loose afterward in a wild demonstration of joy, breaking through the wire screens to swarm on the field where the Pirate attack, dominant and flashing similarly had broken through all barriers to drive the Senators from the baseball heights and complete the greatest comeback any series has ever known.

Cuyler Doubles for Victory Margin

In the final rush over the Washington ramparts, Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, a dark browned, dashing young free booter, struck the blow that decided the battle—a two-base thrust down the right field foul line in the eighth inning with the bases full, two out and the score deadlocked, bringing over Carson Bigbee and Eddie Moore with the deciding runs and frustrating the greatest goal of the old master, Johnson, namely, three world series victories.

Cuyler's smash—a drive that at first seemede labelled a home run then was held to two bases under ground rules because the ball buried itself in a pile of tarpaulin in deep right field—came at the crucial moment of the conflict. It was the climax of a succession of battering onslaughts against Johnson that had pulled the Pirates back to even terms after it seemed they had almost thrown the game away in a hectic first inning through the collapse of their pitching star, Vic Aldridge, and loop holes in their defense.

Once they had survived that disastrous first, in which Washington gained a four-run lead and Aldridge had given way to Johnny Morrison, the Pirates fought on with every weapon at their command. Trailing, but always fighting back, as a steady barrage enveloped Johnson, the buccaneers tied the score in the seventh inning, then fought their way to the front in the decisive eighth after Peckinpaugh's home run had put the Senators back into the lead.

This terrific attack with the youthful Cuyler and the veteran Max Carey as its foremost figures was the chief factor in the dowafall of Johnson and the Senators but in the final analysis it was also due to the fielding weakness of Peckinpaugh, whose two errors came at critical junctures of Pirate rallies in the seventh and eighth, as well as to the relief pitching of Ray Kremer, who held the Senators to one hit in four innings after relieving Morrison and Rube Oldham, who blanked the former champions in the ninth striking out Rice and Goslin in a flourishing finish that sent the big crowd onto the muddy field in frenzied ecstacies.

Ban Criticizes Buck For Starting Barney

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—(AP)—President Ban Johnson of the American league tonight criticized Manager Bucky Harris of Washington for starting Walter Johnson three times, declaring that the series was lost to Washington "because of sentimental reasons."

"You put up a game fight, said President Johnson in his telegram to Harris. "This I admire. Lost the series for sentimental reasons. This should never occur in a world's series."

President Johnson wired Manager Bill McKechnie of the conquering Pirates, congratulating him.

Pirates Out Game Their Opponents

These were the high spots of a battle jammed with thrills from start to finish, the major elements of a struggle that flashed in relief against a murky, rain drenched back ground while the champions of two major leagues fought it out for supremacy in the mud and a drizzling shower that fell almost continuously.

It was in such a setting that the Pirates, proving their mettle as daring rovers of the high seas of Forbes field, battered out their third straight victory over the Senators completing their startling comeback after it seemed their cause was hopeless.

Against the heaviest sort of odds and always fighting uphill the Pirates outplayed, out gamed and out steadied their more experienced rivals in a closing rush that knew no obstacles. Perhaps it was due largely to the steadying influence of the veteran first sacker, Stuffy McInnis, for the tide turned when he first took his place in the line-up in the fifth game at Washington last Monday, but it was fierceness on attack that had the most to do with the victorious Pirate march.

Never before in the world's series history where the decision has gone to the best four out of seven games has any team pulled out triumphant as did the Pirates. Back in 1902 in the first modern championship, the Boston Red Sox won four straight from the old Pittsburgh club after losing three out of the first four, but that series was on a ninegame basis and Boston could have lost one more while still winning out.

Here, however, the Pirates won the last three games with the knowledge that defeat in any one of them would mean elimination. While no more spectacular when all elements are considered, it was an even greater comeback than Washington staged a year ago in taking the last two games from the Giants.

Today's battle was expected to be a duel between the two moundsmen who had each won two games in the series, with Johnson and Aldridge seeking the victory that would give either impeachable fame and glory. But instead, it turned out to be a free slugging drama. Aldridge, wild and erratic, passed out of the picture in the first inning, yielding two hits after issuing three passes and making two wild pitches while Johnson was battered for fifteen clean hits and was nearly always in trouble. The big train had held the slugging buccaneers to one run and eleven hits in his first two games but he had nothing with which to check his opponents today. His greatest speed held no terrors for the Pirates and his curves had no baffling stuff on them.

Johnson, however, courageous and gallant even in defeat, took his bitter medicine to the finish, while the Pirates used four moundsmen in their triumphant rally. Morrison, temporarily checking the Senators after relieving Aldridge, was withdrawn for a pinch hitter after Joe Harris had combed him for a double and driven in two runs in the fourth. Kremer, back after a day's rest, and Oldham, twirling the ninth, were the final choices and the most effective ones, permitting only one safe blow, Peck's homer, in a stretch of five innings and holding Washington at bay while the Pirate bats were rampant.

Walter in Trouble from Start

It was apparent from the start that Johnson faced trouble but he might have pulled out the game had it not been for the damaging misplays by Peckinpaugh that figured largely in the Pirate offensives of the seventh and eighth innings. Hard and timely hitting, with Max Carey's bludgeon most prominent, gave the Pirates three runs in the third and another in the fifth, but their next big spurt, in the seventh started when Peck dropped Eddie Moore's high fly and their decisive rally came in the eighth after a wild throw to second by the veteran shortstop with a third put in sight that would have prevented any scoring.

But for that bad toss to Harris on Carey's grounder, Peck might have been the hero instead of the "goat" of the final game, for in the first half of the eighth he had driven the ball over the barrier in front of the score board for a home run that put the Senators into a 7 to 6 lead.

Peck's error in the seventh was followed by Carey's second double and a triple by Traynor, who was thrown out at the plate trying to stretch his hit to a homer.

Two were out in the eighth before the Pirates got in motion again on a double by Earl Smith. This was the signal for a rush of Pittsburgh reserves. Yde replacing Smith on the bases and Bigbee going to bat for Kremer. There was a terrific roar as Bigbee's two-base smash scored Yde with the tying run and the din continued as Moore walked and was safe on Peck's high throw to second.

Thus the bases were filled as Cuyler strode to the plate. Johnson, knowing it was the crisis, used every resource at his command. He called for sawdust to cover the quagmire in the pitching box, he worked the corners with his fast ball but with the count three and two, Cuyler swung and the ball streaked to far right field.

The tumult was at its height as four Pirate runners streaked around the bases. It was only partially stilled as the umpires called Cuyler back to second and Carey to third ruling the blow a double, although the ball was not extricated from its tarpaulin resting place and returned to the infield until after Cuyler had dashed over the plate.

This was the final of the Pirate drive, the Senators, for their part, had nothing to match it through the latter stages of the game. As a matter of fact, the Pirate margin of triumph would have been much wider but for the weird start they made in the first inning, when Aldridge's wild pitching, mixed with an error by Eddie Moore and a detected piece of ball tipping by Earl Smith on Peck, helped the Senators score four times although making only two safe hits.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The cotton market developed fairly active trading in today's session and in the early trading prices advanced 32 to 37 points mainly due to covering. After the demand was satisfied the market became quieter for a time and prices fluctuated somewhat aimlessly, but towards the end of the morning an easier tone developed owing to more or less hedge selling and liquidation by longs and during the afternoon prices eased off more rapidly on predictions of clearing weather until nearly all of the early gain was lost. The close was a little above the low points, however, showing net gains for the day of seven to 13 points.

Liverpool came in much better than due and this together with the weather map showing general and heavy rains all over the belt caused active buying and first trades showed gains of 30 to 34 points. Some of the months made further gains right after the opening call, December trading at 20.95, January at 20.94 and March at 20.90 or 32 to 37 points above yesterday's close, the highs of the day. The low points of the day were reached near the end with December at 20.65, or 28 to 31 points down from the early highs and within four to six points of the previous close. Exports for the day totalled 32,955 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Early advances on report of further heavy rains in the south were followed by reactions in the cotton market today. After selling up to 21.57, December broke to 21.32 and closed at 21.35 compared with 21.31 at the close Wednesday. The general market closed barely steady at net advances of 4 to 11 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 4 to 20 points on the wet weather map and relatively steady Liverpool cables. Considable southern selling and a good deal of realizing or reselling by recent buyers was absorbed on very slight set backs, prices working up to 21.58 for October and 21.14 for March during mid-day, or about 20 to 30 points net higher on the more active positions.

Demand seemed to taper off above 21¼ cents for December and 21c for March, however, an dthe afternoon market weakened under increased southern hedging and liquidation by early buyers, Wall Street and local selling. October was relatively weak, breaking to 21.38, or 13 points net lower, while later deliveries sold back within 2 or 3 points of yesterday's closing quotations with March declining to 20.88. The close was a few points up from the lowest on covering.

Only five or six October notices were reported but the current month was relatively easy during the entire day, closing nominal at a decline of 9 points.

Exports today 32,955 making 1,603,127 so far this season.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Speculation for the rise continued to run riot in today's stock market, upwards of 50 issues breaking through to new high levels for the year on total sales in excess of two and one-half million shares.

With the exception of one day last fall it was the largest single day's volume of business since December 21, 1916 when total transactions exceeded 3,000,000 shares following the "leak" on President Wilson's peace note to Germany. Net gains in the active issues ranged from one to 14 points.

Brokers generally were inclined to attribute the advance to speculative expectations of lower taxes following the announcement that Secretary Mellon proposed to suggest a 20 per cent maximum tax at the hearings on the new tax bill which will begin in Washington next Monday.

Bullish enthusiasm also was stirred by reports of hardening steel prices and increasing mill operations and favorable dividend and recapitalization rumors affecting several of the large industrial companies. Continuation of high call money rates, which caused much of the recent selling, and cautionary advises in some of the conservative commission houses were apparently disregarded although the market did sell off somewhat towards the close on profit taking.

Commission houses reported a marked expansion in public participation, buying orders pouring into the market from all sections of the country. The sudden revival of activity and strength in U. S. Steel common, which touched a new high on the current movement at 125½ did much to stimulate the demand for other standard industrial issues. One block of 12,000 shares of steel changed hands at 125, representing a single transaction of $1,500,000.

Motors took on a new lease of life under the leadership of General Motors which soared seven points to a new high record at 128 in apparent anticipation of a larger cash dividend at the next meeting of the board of directors. It was followed into new high ground by Studebaker, Dodge Brothers "A" and preferred, Chrysler preferred., Yellow Truck preferred, Gabriel Snubber and Fisher Body.

United Cigar stores which is expected in some quarters to do some Melon cutting led another advance in tobacco by touching a new top at 99½. General Cigar and American Sumatra Tobacco preferred, also reached high ground.

Armour "B" which was admitted to trading today after having been dealt in on the curb market, changed hands in large volume, touching a new top at 20 in anticipation of an early inauguration of dividends on a $2 annual basis.

Mercantile shares continued to soar. Kinney scoring an extreme advance of over 12 point at 100 and then slipping back to 97, and being followed into new high territory by Gimbel Brothers, R. H. Macey, National Cloak and Suit, Arnold Constable and Weber and Heilbroner.

Non-ferrous metal stock also gave a good demonstration of group strength, new peak prices being recorded by Cerro de Pasco, Federal Mining and Smelting preferred, International Nickel and Howe Sound. Public Utilities moved forward under the leadership of Columbia Gas, Standard Gas and Electric and North American.

Call money renewed at 5¼ per cent and then advanced to 5½. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges fluctuated within rather narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling held firm at $4.83¾ despite the announcement of additional gold shipments, but French francs eased to around 4.46½. Italian lire rallied seven points to above 3.98 cents. Danish kroner jumped over 10 points to 24.82 cents, but Nodwegian kroner ruled about six points lower around 20.25 cents.

Livestock

FORT WORTH, Oct. 15.—Small packer competition was a factor in the hog market Thursday, prices scoring an advance of 10 to 40c with everybody making purchases of carlots up to $12.25. Most of the run, estimated at 6,000 head, cleared within a spread of $11.90 to $12.25. Salesmen saw an opportunity to prize the market, and they took advantage of it.

Receipts of cattle and calves, amounting to 4,700 head, went scaleward in brisk fashion. All kinds commanded steady prices, but nothing in the cattle classification was any higher. Calf values were steady to strong, the general run of prices being the best of the week.

Feeder buyers purchased the highest priced steers in nthe yards, five cars going at $7.20. A car of cattle, going to slaughterers, made $6.

Some good cows were here, but the market did not offer as many loads of a desirable sort as were on sale Wednesday. A four-car string was cashed in at $4.65. Canners and cutters moved scaleward within a general average of $2.25 to $3.00, and fair to medium cows brought $3.25 to $3.75.

Sales of heifers, yearlings and bulls were made at satisfactory prices. A few yearlings reached $8.00, good heifers brought $7.00 and odd bulls went at $4 to $4.25.

Calves of a weighty type sold as high as $7.25, with several cars going at $6 to $6.75. Good vealers were scarce. The carload top was $7.50.

Stock cows met with a relativoly good call, several sales being made at $2.75 to $3.00. Stocker steers brought $4.50 to $5.50. Feeder steers, clearing at $7.20, were the highest priced that the trade has seen recently. Sheep buyers were out early, looking for supplies. Receipts, however, amounted to only 500 head and those came direct to packers. The market was a nominally steady affair. Good lambs are worth $13 to $13.50, feeders are bringing about as much, yearlings are selling at $11.50 to $11.60, shorn wethers are being taken at $8 and desirable fat goats are commanding $2.75 to $3.00. Receipts of all classes this week have been below trade requirements.

Cattle, 4,700 including 1,200 calves; market steady; beeves $3.50@8.00; stockers $3.25@7.20; fat cows $3.25@5.50; cutters $2.50@3.00; canners $2.25@2.50; heifers $3.25@7.00; yearlings $3.50@9.00; bulls $2.50@4.25; calves $3.00@8.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15. — (AP)—Snow storms and heavy rains reported in some sections of Canada gave an advantage to the buying side of the wheat market today, especially during the late dealings. Closing prices on wheat were unsettled, ½ to ¾c net higher, new style, December $1.43¼ to $1.43⅝ and May $1.42⅛ to $1.42⅝, with corn at ⅛c decline to ⅝c gain, oats a shade lower to an equal advance and provisions varying from 40c drop to a rise of 3c.

Corn and oats were governed largely by the action of wheat. Country offerings of corn to arrive were scarce.

Provisions averaged lower as a result of packers' selling. A small upturn early was ascribed to buying on the part of the previous sellers of nearby deliveries of lard.

Market Gossip

COTTON.

Cotton was strong most of the day with prices averaging fully a dollar a bale over yesterday's finals.

Further general rains over the entire belt, a flood of damage reports from northwestern sections and official forecast of more rains over most states made shorts uneasy and induced enough covering to give the market a fair sized rally and to keep prices steady most of the day. Values slipped about 30 points in the afternoon on hedge selling and short sales based on expectations of clearing weather in the northwest overnight.

The dip met with a good demand and the market rallied to a good closing.

Drygoods news continues of a favorable character and offerings of better grades of spots are decreasing.

Weight of sentiment is still on the selling side but is less aggressive owing to the protracted wet spell. Fair weather however, is likely to result in increased pressure from hedging and short sales.

GRAINS.

Wheat: Independent firmness in Liverpool wheat was the active motive in today's wheat market, although the strong domestic position is beginning to be recognized. As to premiums expecting for cash wheat in Chicago, it seems unlikely that these premiums will disappear for the reason that the movement from the country is over and prices prevailing in outside markets are against any movement to Chicago.

For sometime past the market has been influenced by the neglect of the importer and the heavy movement of Canadian surplus. None the less, prices are now 10 to 12 cents above the low point and cash wheat even more, which leads to belief that the various depressing items have been fully discounted.

We are inclined to believe that there is no further virtue in expecting lower prices, though admitting that a strong upward trend cannot be secured without unfavorable news from southern hemisphere crop or decided betterment in foreign buy. Market seems in a two-sided position.

As nothing has appeared to revive interest in corn, but movement of the new crop and because hog prices are gradually lowering.

STOCKS.

There was another display of pronounced strength at the opening. Motors were again prominent under leadership of General Motors. Trading in this stock was on a heavy scale all through the day which culminated in the last hour in a most sensational run-up, which registered an advance of eight points over the previous close. The advance was due to prospect of another extra dividend.

Others to register righ prices were Fisher Body and United Cigars.

Oils were again active and higher, and among the lower priced stocks International Nickel and Combustion were outstanding. Demand for steel became very insistent and large quantities were traded in, advancing the stock two points.

National Cloak common sold at a new high on outlook for net earning of $14 a share this year.

Equipment also in better demand.

Undertone continued strong, up to the close.

The federal reserve board left rate unchanged at this afternoon's meeting.

EXPECT CALL FOR FEDERAL GRAND JURY

Judge W. H. Atwell Of Dallas Has Been Given List

An order calling the grand jury for the November term of federal court which convenes here Nov. 16 is expected to reach Wichita Falls in the next day or two from Judge William H. Atwell of Dallas who will preside. An order has been received here by Miss Jessie Cowan, deputy U. S. clerk, instructing her to draft the grand jury call and send it to Judge Atwell for signature. This has been done and the official summons is expected back shortly.

A number of liquor violation cases will make up the bulk of the federal criminal docket this term, it appears, although the list of cases is not expected to be exceptionally heavy.

Withdraw Plea For Drouth Feed Rates

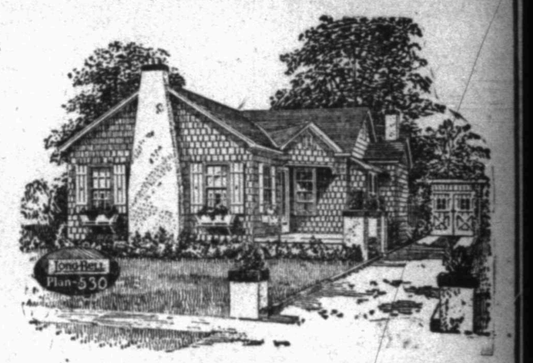

AUSTIN, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Application seeking to have the Texas Railroad commission order emergency rates on all railroads on feedstuff to the drouth stricken area, was withdrawn today by the citizens committee following a hearing here. The committee had petitioned the commission to exercise its authority in Texas by declaring an emergency.

News of the Fields

Burton, Grisham-Wilson
On the Wilson tract in lot 212, Geraldine townsite Burton, Grisham and associates are drilling at 1,430 feet on a very interesting wildcat test and should know the worst by the first of the week.

Garrett-Waggoner
In the new John and Jeff Waggoner pool in section 11, B. S. & F. survey, Wichita county, Garret, Hammon have a sand on their No. 2 at 1,753 feet and drilled for eight feet which is showing all the earmarks of a 60-barrel pumper.

Texhoma-Parrish
To the south of the Sunshine pool and located 500 feet east and 150 feet south of the lease corners in section 97, A. T. N. C. survey, Texhoma is drilling at 1,178 feet on their No. 1-A Parrish which if successful, will make a nice extension to the above mentioned pool.

Verdun-Lyons
To the north of the Mercer pool, C. W. Verden is drilling at 1,033 feet on his No. 1 Lyons and will be looking for the sand today. The well, which lies between the Mercer pool and the Hausler is in extremely interesting territory and will accordingly, be watched for the next few days with a great deal of interest.

Will Young-Abney
To the north of Holliday on the Abney land in section 1, S. P. survey abstract 428, Will Young has a shallow sand in his wildcat at 420 feet on which casing is being set to test. The well, if productive, which it gives every evidence of being, will open a new shallow pool in the Holliday sector.

Maer, Staniforth-Mankins
Just outside the townsite of Mankins as if baiting fate in a third attempt to find oil in the village streets within the past month, Maer- Staniforth and associates are drilling at 1,787 feet in lime rock and should have the sand within the next twenty feet. The well is located in the southwest quarter of S. P. survey abstract 844.

Texhoma-Waggoner
Texhoma has a sand on their No. 6, J. and J. Waggoner lease and is setting casing to test. The well, which is another addition to the pool recently brought in by the Texhoma interests is located in the northwest corner of block 7, section 11, B. S. and F. survey. Sand was topped at 1,763 feet and drilled for two feet showing to be rich in oil. Casing is being set at 1,762 feet to test.

Texhoma-Gose
In the new eastward extension to the Gose pool Texhoma has to all appearances a nice producer in their No. 51. The well which topped sand high yesterday, experienced some trouble with casing seat but same has now been satisfactorily taken care of and the well will be bailed and equipped to pump. Sand in this well is from 1,579-85 feet. No. 50 in the same pool is a junked hole-plugged and abandoned in oil sand at 1,587 1-2 feet.

Perkins-Brezina
In the new extension north of the Harmel and just out of the Megargle townsite Perkins et al., are drilling at 1,050 feet on their No. 1 test on the Brezina land, located about 200 feet to the west of the old Muse dry hole in section 2,410, T. E. and L. survey. To the south, the Sun company are today looking for the sand on their No. 2, offsetting the discovery well which is good for a hundred barrels.

Wichtex-Jackson
In the Aldrich survey to the south of the Wilmot pool and in lot 131 the Wichitex are completing their No. 2 wildcat as an estimated 30-barrel pumper from sand 1,555 to 1,570 feet. The well, a rank wildcat, which showed considerable water, was at first thought to be another fluke in a heretofore dry territory but on driving pipe it was found that the water was coming from above with the result that several feet additional sand were taken and a commercial producer assured.

Knight, Hines-Netherton
On the Netherton tract in section 95, A. T. N. C. survey the Consolidated Oil company have abandoned their No. 2 test as a total dry at 1,650 feet. The well, which is but a few hundred feet to the north of their No. 1, dry, but which had a very favorable show and this, coupled with the fact that the same interests are already rigged up and ready to drill on their No. 3 test, which is about the same distance to the south of the original well as No. 2 was to the north, make this territory take on a very interesting aspect to local operators and the operations surrounding the test will be watched closely.

Magnolia-Portwood
Offsetting the Jones westward extension discovery well to the Brom tract in the southwest corner of Archer county the Magnolia Production company are moving in a Star machine to drill deeper their No. 1, Portwood, located in the southeast corner of the northeast quarter of section 1581, T. E. & L. survey. The well, which has sand from 1,393-95 feet, looks good at present status for from 15 to 20 barrels. This is a shallower sand than that from which the Jones well to the east is producing from; the shallower sand being dry in the last mentioned well. The Magnolia test will be drilled to the deeper pay which is blow 1,400 feet. In the event of failure to make a well it will be plugged back to the upper horizon. To the east of this test on the Darilek land the same company are shut down waiting for cement to set of their No. 1 test at 1,375 feet. This well should be drilled in the end of the week. To the north, Jones, after experiencing considerable difficulty is now drilling at 1,535 feet.

TO DRILL IN COLLIN.

H. J. Heartwell Having Rig Moved to Location on the J. C. Nail Survey.
H. J. Heartwell is having a rig moved to a location on the J. C. Nail survey on the northeast corner of the J. L. Anderson 100-acre tract in Collin county.
C. W. Whitehead has contracted to drill the well, and he is moving the machinery there prior to spudding in.

Two alleged hi-jackers, identified by W. A. Spencer of 103 Dallas street, were arrested Thursday by morning by city officers and Deputy Sheriff McCormick and are now being held in the county jail until charges can be filed.

The big Seagrave pumper truck of the central fire station was put back in use Thursday after having been out of commission for several weeks. A small part in the starter broke and a new one had to be made at the factory to replace it.

Judge P. A. Martin and J. M. Bland will leave today for Greenville where they will attend the North Texas Methodist conference which is being conducted at Greenville. W. P. Ferguson and W. B. Hamilton are also attending the conference.

Matters of importance are to be discussed at the regular meeting of the business council of the chamber of commerce today at noon, according to announcement from the chamber yesterday. All members are invited to attend.

Three marriage licenses were issued Thursday by the county clerk. They went to Ray Gentry, Stamford, and Miss Mary Kelly, Kaufman; Abner Bromagen and Miss Nannie B. Nelson, both of Burkburnett; Gaither Garrett and Miss Pearl Jones, both of Iowa Park.

Rev. and Mrs. Fred T. Datson, who are attending a national Episcopal convention in New Orleans, write home that they are enjoying the meeting. They expect to return to Wichita Falls next week. Services will be conducted Sunday at the Church of the Good Shepherd by Attorney Morrow.

Among the guests introduced at the Rotary luncheon on Thursday at the Kemp hotel were: J. B. Warren, John Wise, W. P. Slaton and Byron Hester of Electra; Andy Anderson of Burkburnett; C. D. Lendon, Oklahoma City; H. B. Carson, Dallas, R. M. Wilhite, Fort Worth; Andrew Egan, Dallas.

A hung jury resulted Thursday afternoon when the case of Corwin Firestone vs. the Burkburnett Machine company was tried before a jury and Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court. The suit involved about $3,000 alleged by the plaintiff as being owed him by the defendant company.

Miss Florence Jackson, who has been director of publicity at the chamber of commerce for the past two years, begins her year's leave of absence today. Miss Jackson leaves Saturday for New York City with Miss Irene Davidson, and the two will sail for Europe later in the month.

The home service department of the Red Cross will be discontinued in Wichita Falls January 1, 1926, except through a voluntary worker, according to announcement by Mrs. T. B. Smith who has been secretary of this part of Red Cross work since its organization in 1917 when the war was going on.

The slaughter starts today. Friday the 16th sees the official lid come off on the duck season and Wichita Falls nimrods, good, bad and indifferent, are planning a hot lead reception this morning for the feathery teal and mallards that are said to be hibernating on Lake Kemp by the thousands.

A. P. Markey, charged with receiving and concealing stolen property, went on trial before a jury and Judge H. R. Wilson in the 30th district court Thursday afternoon. Markey is alleged to have received from one Sam Rowan on June 1, last, a set of cones attached to a rock drill bit owned by J. D. Dillard, drilling contractor of this city.

Damages of $70,000 are asked of the Wichita Light and Power company in a suit filed Thursday by Mrs. Oda Anderson and others and which grew out of the death Oct. 1, last, of the plaintiff's husband. Co-plaintiffs are the plaintiff's minor children, viz., Edmond, Earl, Freeland and Saraha Anderson, and Fannie Anderson.

Eight negro men arrested several days ago when police raided a "business men's club" in the flats were found guilty of gaming when they were tried before a jury in corporation court Thursday night. All were fined $10 each by Judge E. S. Whitelaw. Notice of appeal to the county court was given by counsel for the defendants.

The board of the Grace Methodist church has unanimously asked that the present pastor, Rev. Theatres

Two great "rushes" across the continent mark the history of the west's development. The first was the rush of the Forty-Niners from the east to the gold-fields of California and the free lands of Oregon. The second was the rush of '76 by the farmers of the Mississippi valley to the buffalo fields of Montana and Wyoming.

It is this latter rush that forms the theme of Zane Grey's "The Thundering Herd," which William K. Howard directed for Paramount. It will be the chief film attraction at the Gem theatre today.

The picture vividly recreates the old west of fifty years ago. Throughout the plains of the mid-west, huge herds of buffalo roamed at will. Then, in the spring of 1876, news spread that the hides were bringing as much as three dollars each in the east. Immediately there was a rush. Persons from all over the country and from all walks of life started for the buffalo fields. Perhaps the greatest influx was from Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

The story of "The Thundering Herd" tells of the journey of a group of hardy men and women from their farms in the east to the vast uncivilized territory of the far west—of the hardships they suffered, of the dangers they encountered, the obstacles they overcame and of their ultimate success when they arrived at their destination.

The picture is packed from start to finish with thrilling incidents and dynamic action. Two of the mighty scenes in the production show a terrific battle between five hundred Indians and a handful of white men, and a mad stampede of two thousand fear-crazed buffalo and will be shown at the Gem theatre today only.

A talented cast has been assembled which is headed by four featured players—Jack Holt, Lois Wilson, Noah Beery and Raymond Hatton.

New National Guard Company To Be Organized

A new machine gun company of the One Hundred Forty-second Infantry is being organized here and at the present time is only waiting for a few more recruits and the visit of Captain Floyd H. Moore to give them federal recognition. If the company can pass the strength tests by Saturday night, the recognition will be on the same date but if they fail to make the grade, they will have to wait two more months to start drawing their pay.

There are about 20 vacancies left in the new organization and these must be filled before Saturday night. The age limit is 18 years and the applicant must be of sound body and mind. This training cannot be exceeded anywhere except in the regular army and everyone knows that there is none better than that of the army. The national guard units drill one night a week, for one hour and a half and spend 15 days at camp under full pay and with all expenses paid. This summer the camp will be held at Palachos, on the Matagorida bay and the fun will be lots and frequent. The entire Thirty-sixth division will be camped there and when 8,000 boys get together it can't be anything but fair weather.

Any one desiring to enlist or receive any further information will please call at 302 Morgan building at any hour during Friday or Saturday and the two information bureaus will be more than glad to accommodate you. Come on up and let us talk it over with you whether you enlist or not.—Adv.
