JUNCTION FIRST IN PLANT DIVISION CONTEST

As announced last week, members of Junction High School Class in Agriculture at the recent judging contest open to schools over the entire State.

There were 365 contestants, and the local boys are to be congratulated, and the community is justly proud of them for the excellent showing they made. They were in competition with many of the largest and best equipped schools in the State. Lubbock won in the animal division and Junction in the plant division.

The class won first in Cotton classing and received a silver trophy cup, similar to this one for first honors in plant division judging.

In the contests among individuals, Ira Fleming tied with a student from Silvertown and one from Goforth for first place.

The boys from over the State were welcomed by Dean E. J. Kyle and Dean C. H. Winkler, Monday morning in the big Animal Husbandry Building and immediately afterward went to work in the judging contests.

Gov. Pat M. Neff spoke at the College that day.

The following were the judging team, others competing as individuals: Plant Production, Ira Fleming, Astor Wallace and Clyde Richardson; Livestock, Deland Montgomery, Dennis Wallace and Van Martin; Poultry, Bennett Kendrick, Bill Foley and Fleming Felps.

GRAND OFFICERS O. E. S. ARE JUNCTION GUESTS.

Mesdames Beulah Rawlings, of Leakey, member Grand Examining Board; Birdie Easterling of Del Rio, District Deputy Grand Matron; Norton B. Welborn of Somerville, Worthy Grand Matron of Texas, and Miss Estelle McDonald of Sonora, Assistant District Grand Matron, were guests of Mrs. Coke R. Stevenson last Tuesday.

These ladies were on their way from Kerrville to Menard.

MANY BIG FISH HAVE BEEN CAUGHT HERE.

The closed season on bass and crappie has served to send the local sportsmen after the big cat fish. During the past few weeks a dozen or more of these big cats, weighing from 15 to 54 pounds have been exhibited on the streets.

Walter Buck and a party from Breckenridge caught a 54-pounder week before last. During that same week, C. A. Goodwin and N. S. Craven caught one weighing 53 pounds and Rudolph Becker and Marvin Dechert brought in a 44-pounder. A little while before Albert Becker had caught one almost here in town that weighed 24 pounds, and Otto Oxford brot in one of about the same size.

Saturday of last week Rudolph Becker broke the record by landing one that tipped the scales at 54 pounds.

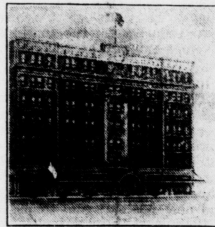

Numerous others have been making good catches recently that we have not been able to get the weights on. Of course a good many of the larger ones got away.

With the opening of the game fish season on May 1st, the rivers will be lined with fishermen practicing the art of casting.

Apparently there is plenty of fish in the rivers and creeks of the county and with the establishment of the Fish Hatchery for another year, and adequate supply for the future is assured, notwithstanding the heavy annual increase in the number of visiting fishermen.

Tourists are beginning to come here. In fact, they have been coming in fair numbers for a month or more, but it is expected that twice as many will be here this summer as have ever visited here before.

Junction is becoming well known over the southwest as the most desirable place to spend a vacation, and with the additional advertising that will be given at the hands of the progressive element of the business concerns and camp site owners in the future, it will become the most popular playground of the State.

TRAVELERS HOTEL PLACES ADVERTISING HERE.

The owners of the Junction Poster Advertising plant, which consists of the big poster panels along the main highway thru town, have just had painted one of the large panels, 11x25 feet, for the Travelers Hotel in San Antonio.

This big sign, just east of the Filling Station, will be seen by all local and transient people passing along the O. S. T., and will prove a valuable advertising medium for this popular San Antonio Hotel, which is already widely known to the traveling public.

The painting was done by K. G. Durst.

The Travelers Hotel knows the value of publicity. For the past two years it has carried an advertisement in The Eagle every week, as well as in a number of other papers in this territory around San Antonio, and in order to direct the people of this section, and the thousands of tourists that will come this way, to this hotel, the managers have bought the use of this big poster panel for one year.

When you are in San Antonio and are in need of first class hotel accommodations, stop with the Travelers, which is located at 218 Avenue C.

From the Devils' River News we note that our good friend D. Q. Adams who lives near the head of North Llano, is a candidate for commissioner of Precinct No. 3, and W. H. Kelley is a candidate for commissioner from Precinct No. 4.

Mrs. Tom Price of Kingsville, was a guest of her sister, Miss Elsie Mathis, this week.

PECAN GROWERS' ASS'N. TO MEET AT FRITZTOWN.

The Radio Post of last week carried the lengthy and interesting program that will be given at the meeting of the Texas Pecan Growers Association at Fredericksburg, June 8th, 9th and 10th.

H. G. Lucas of Brownwood is president, and O. S. Gray of Waxahachie is secretary of the Association.

These gentlemen and numerous other pecan authorities over the State are on the program. Among the others to appear on the program are: S. W. Bilsing, who will discuss the control of the case bearer; W. P. Bullard of Albany, Ga., will explain cooperative marketing; T. O. Walton from College Station will tell what the Extension Department is doing to help the pecan grower; and J. H. Burkett will tell of some promising new varieties.

Top working, cost of developing and maturing pecan groves, pecans in diet, and budding work, are a few of the other important subjects that will be discussed by experts.

Pecan growers will do well to keep this date in mind and should attend this meeting. It is close enough to conveniently attend and a great deal of valuable information can be secured.

Wod and two grand-daughter and one grandson, Mr. Alex Wood and Miss Mary Belle Nichols, Mrs. J. T. Herring and family, Mrs. J. M. P. T. A. LADIES MAKE CHAUTAUQUA SUCCESS.

The Chautauqua which was secured for Junction by the ladies of the Parent-Teachers' Association was a complete success from an entertainment standpoint, and was satisfactory from a financial standpoint, in that all expenses were paid and a small amount left over.

The success of this, the first Chautauqua that Junction has in several years, was due to the untiring efforts of the ladies of the Association of which Mrs. W. P. Riley is president, and they are certainly to be congratulated upon the splendid efforts put forth and the entertainment they brought here for those who appreciate the better kind of entertainment.

The attendance in the afternoons was not as large as it should have been, but the house was filled each night. The price of season tickets was very reasonable, being $2.50 for the seven numbers, amounting to a little more than thirty cents, and each number was well worth the 50 or 75 cents charged for single admissions.

LOCAL O. E. S. MEMBERS ATTEND KERRVILLE O.E.S.

On last Wednesday, a school of instruction for members of the Eastern Star was held at Kerrville and delegates from San Antonio, Center Point, Sonora, Junction, Fredericksburg, Bandera, Hondo, Rocksprings, and other places in this district.

Welborn of Somerville, Worthy Grand Matron, State of Texas; Mrs. Birdie Easterling of Del Rio, District Deputy Grand Matron; Miss Estelle McDonald of Sonora, Assistant D. D. G. M.; Mrs. Beulah Rawlings of Leakey, member Grand Examining Board, and Mrs. Stella Vodie of San Antonio, Grand Associate Matron.

Those from Junction who attended were: Mesdames Coke R. Stevenson, Oren C. Reid, A. L. Mudge, H. O. Patterson, H. Felps, Burt Braley, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Moore of Cleo, Miss Lillian Kendrick and Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Franks, of Rocksprings, who are visiting here.

SPRIT OF PROGRESS PREVAILS IN KERRVILLE

(Kerrville Mountain Sun.)

The past year has meant much to Kerrville from a point of progress and development. Just how much it has meant, and to whom the city is indebted for these strides along progressive lines, is worthy of a little consideration.

The fiscal year of the Kerrville Chamber of Commerce, just closed, and the annual report of the secretary-treasurer, published in last week's issue of The Sun, give one food for serious thought. Another important matter bearing on the future development of the city and the Hill Country is the fact that at the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce last Thursday morning, every official of the previous year was re-elected from the president on down.

All this augurs well for the future, for it means that the men who have had the city's welfare at heart the past twelve months and who have labored night and day for its development, are ready and anxious to begin another twelve months' labor for the public good. Also they unanimously endorse the leaders in this great movement which speaks louder than words of the perfect harmony and unity of purpose of the Chamber as a whole.

These men have devoted lots of time and energy to the public welfare during the past year some of them days, weeks, even months, forgetting their own business cares and troubles and giving their undivided time to furthering the interests of the community. Many of them, unable to leave their places of business for more than a few minutes at a time have always found time to attend a meeting of the Board of Directors at any time, day or night, when the president of the organization thought it advisable to call one.

All and this without the least friction or discord. Is it any wonder that Kerrville has made such rapid strides along civic lines the past year? She cannot help but develop with such a class of citizens directing her destinies.

The old parable of the twelve sticks certainly has been demonstrated in Kerrville the past year. And if the city had a band wagon it would go without a passenger, for the business men and citizens would all be too busy rolling it up the hill to take time to ride. It is this spirit that has built cities in the past and it is this spirit that will certainly build one right here in the Heart of the Hill Country.

WILSON WAS RESPECTED BUT HE WALKED ALONE.

In Woodrow Wilson's nature there was a marked degree of cordiality, of affectionate friendship, and a quick response to every generous impulse. And yet, says Josephus Daniels, in his "Life of Woodrow Wilson," published by the John C. Winston Co., and distributed among its readers by the Junction Eagle, it must be confessed that there was a section of his composite being which he kept under lock and key, and into which sanctum no one outside of his family was allowed to enter.

It was this reserve, according to the men on the faculty who knew him well, that puzzled many people. Professor Hunt and Professor Christian Gauss, both remarked upon the oddity of seeing him so often walking through the campus under the elms alone.

"People would frequently stop and talk with him," said Professor Gauss, "but invariably he would walk on alone, they turning off another way of staying behind."

WHY SHOULD WE HAVE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE?

(Fredericksburg Standard.)

Because if it lives up to its duties, it will be the most potent force for progress in the community. Its duties are to do anything and everything necessary for and incident to the upbuilding and the better building of the city and its environs. Its duty is not only to make a city grow, but also to make it a better, a more sanitary, a prettier and more enjoyable place in which to live.

Your Chamber of Commerce has a first duty in that it must bring all the elements of the entire community, Gillespie County as well as Fredericksburg, together into one compact body, working for the uplift of the community. It must teach the individuals composing these elements the lesson of achievement through co-operation. It must arouse the citizens from the old time lethargy to quickened interest, and always and everywhere preach the gospel of sane, safe and sound development, unselfishness, public-spiritedness and civic pride. Its motto must be, "If it is good for the community, then let us have it." What helps the town as a whole, has a beneficial effect upon everyone within its boundaries.

It is the duty of the Chamber of Commerce to conduct its affairs upon a business basis. Whether in the location of industries or in an effort to secure new and larger parks, there should be a business-like method adopted.

It is the duty of the Chamber of Commerce to interest itself in educational matters. Upon schools depend the future ability and activity of the city's people. This civic body can and should exert its most wholesome influence for the continual development of the school system.

It is the duty of the Chamber of Commerce to give sound publicity to the county's advantages and to do everything in its power to eliminate all forms of detrimental publicity. It is its duty to endeavor in all right ways to attract new residents and new business and to assist in their location in all legitimate ways.

Had you ever thought about it, "A pulling mule can never kick"? If you are not supporting your Chamber of Commerce line up now, use it, and you soon will find that you will not only benefit yourself, but your community by so doing.

KERRVILLE C. OF C. CAMPS SELECTED.

(Kerrville Mountain Sun.)
One committee of the local Chamber of Commerce that has been working hard without much being said about their endeavors for the past several months is the committee composed of Walter Saenger, Chas. L. Mason and R. L. Schmerbeck, who had charge of the organizing and logging a system of camp sites for the benefit of the summer tourists.

After many months of work the committee announces the system ready for the tourists. The camp sites are scattered over the entire section of the Hill Country above Kerrville for a radius of 28 miles and with the exception of Midway Station, on the Divide between here and Junction, each camp site is located either on the Guadalupe River or one of its tributaries, where fishing and bathing are easily available to the campers.

Each camp is plainly marked with a sign bearing the inscription "C. of C. Camp," and each has been especially prepared for the convenience and comfort of the summer visitors. Part are free camp sites and the maximum charge on any is 25 cents per day for each car.

The committee has prepared a map of the different camp sites, showing the location and distance from Kerrville, and The Sun job department has just finished printing 5,000 folders containing on one side this map and on the other a brief description of the advantages Kerrville and the Hill Country has to offer to anyone seeking either a home or investment. These folders will be used in connection with the camps this summer and will prove of great convenience to the tourist public.

The principal camp site, of course, is the Tourist Park, just outside the city limits of Kerrville. Here ample accommodations have been provided for the guests of the city with water and lights, shower baths and paid attendants in charge to look after keeping the camp in a clean and sanitary condition. A committee from the Chamber of Commerce has direct charge of the management of the park for this season and will do all within its power to care for the patrons. This committee is headed by Ben Smith, who has for assistance Oscar Salmons and Chas. L. Mason. The Tourist Park is operated on a free basis for the first three days, after which a fee of 50 cents per day will be charged.

In addition to this ten camp sites are given on the map, as follows: Lakeside Park, inside the city limits of Kerrville; Slim's Log Cabin Camp, on the Guadalupe five miles above the city; Dave Griffin, Hardin Bros. and J. W. Orr, on the Guadalupe near Hunt; Fowler's Camp Site, Webb's Camp Site, Chas. Edin's and Estes Garage, on the Johnson Fork, and Midway Station, on the Divide between Kerrville and Junction. The Guadalupe Inn and Harris Hardin's summer boarding houses on the Guadalupe are also located by the map.

All these camp sites are on good roads, easily accessible to tourists and each will be operated under supervision of the Highway Department of the Kerrville Chamber of Commerce this coming season.

Just another indication that the citizens of Kerrville and the Hill Country are a wide awake, progressive bunch.

"HEART OF TEXAS" FAIR IS PLANNED.

Chewing Gum Aids Digestion

By C. Houston Goodies
National Authority on Nutrition
Publisher of The Foremost—America's Leading Food Magazine
Everyone knows we are given to eating more than we actually need, but when the table is heaped with good food, "what's a feller to do?"
Things are so tempting, and so palatable! Why not enjoy them?
But many a heavy meal which is hugely enjoyed during the process of eating is far from enjoyable during the process of digestion!
Then it is that chewing gum comes to the rescue.
Dr. W. A. Evans, former commissioner of health in Chicago, says in his book, "How to Keep Well":
"To chew gum after a meal aids digestion. Most people do not chew their food long enough to mix saliva with it thoroughly. The chewing of gum adds some saliva to the stomach contents. It is of more service in stimulating the stomach muscle. It is especially serviceable in helping the stomach to empty its contents. If one has overeating and the stomach is heavy something is gained by chewing gum for half an hour, beginning two hours after eating." And it also helps to keep the teeth clean.
Chicle, the base of chewing gum, is the milky juice which is secreted by the inner bark of a tropical tree known as the Achras Sapota.
Only during the rainy season are the trees "bled."
After being refined and sterilized, the chicle is mixed with sugar and flavoring and moulded into the familiar form which has become so popular.

Chamber of Commerce, is the prime mover behind the project.

It is proposed to have an annual district fair for the 15 counties rotating from one county to another until all have had it. In addition to the district fair, it is proposed to foster the holding annually prior to the district fair a county fair in each of the 15 units of the territory. These county fairs will be feeders of livestock, agriculture to the district exposition.

From the district fair the fair association directors propose to obtain sufficient exhibit articles to comprise a general comprehensive "Heart of Texas" exhibit which will be taken to the major fairs of this and other states.

This section, it is pointed out, has more resources than any other section of Texas and can ill afford not to advertise its wealth and opportunities thru the medium of fairs and traveling exhibits. This section contains practically every species of tree life, huge granite mountains, immense quarries of exceptionally high grade marble, deposits of graphite and coal.

It possesses opportunities for development of hydraulic power on innumerable streams, of irrigation and agriculture. It is said the largest per cent of sheep and goats in Texas are to be found in this district. No country surpasses it for scenic beauty and recreational advantages.

The "Heart of Texas" district embraces the following

All obituaries, cards of thanks, resolutions of respect, church or club notices where there is a money consideration, will be run only as paid matter at regular rates.

No anonymous communications will be published in this paper under any conditions. Persons sending in matter intended for publication must sign it, but name will not be used unless requested.

Any erroneous reflection on the character or standing of any person, will be gladly corrected if brought to the attention of the management.

Last week The Eagle started out on another year's run. The week before, was the end of 41 years newspaper work in Junction, while the paper under the present name—Junction Eagle—is only 4 years old.

Although the files are not complete, further back than 1914, we are informed that the Kimble County Citizen was established in 1892.

For a while before the organization of the Junction Publishing Co., in 1919, there had been two newspapers in the town—The Light and The Citizen—and one or two attempts were made to publish a newspaper at London.

There is such a large investment necessary to properly equip a newspaper with modern labor-saving machinery, that it is not ordinarily the case that a town the size of this can support a newspaper in such a way as to make the heavy investment profitable. Because of this fact, both the newspapers that were predecessors of the Eagle were small affairs, poorly equipped with hand operated machinery.

In order to provide funds for equipping a modern country newspaper plant, a number of the business men and ranchmen of this community organized the Junction Publishing Co., and the first issue of the Eagle was published April 18, 1919.

With a modern typesetting machine and newspaper press, and other equipment that met the needs fairly well, the equipment has added to until now the building is packed with practically every needed modern, labor-saving machine that it will hold.

The present management took charge of the paper in September, 1921. At that time we knew as little about the newspaper game as a hog knows about Sunday. We hardly knew the linotype from the job press, or bond paper from news print. We had been in printing offices a few times and had read one issue of a trade magazine. At that time the advertising each week was not sufficient to pay the salary of one man. There were some 250 paid subscribers, and the wholesale houses had entered suits to collect accounts that were from one to two years old. With about $7,000 of the stock paid up, the company owed nearly $5,000. On top of all this was growth and the hills around Junction that are so beautiful now, were about as attractive as a sand dune in a desert. The bottom had fallen out of the prices of every commodity, and every one was wondering what was going to happen next.

The directors didn't know any more about us than we knew about running a newspaper, but agreed to let us try our hand. Nothing wonderful has come of it and nothing out of the ordinary is going to happen. We have been willing to work from twelve to sixteen hours a day to give our friends the best paper possible. Our paid circulation is now nearly four times what it was two years ago, and our advertising is about three times what it was then, and as to the quality of the paper, we are willing to let our readers be the judge.

Any way, we are starting the new volume number with a feeling of optimism. The one purpose in this office is to give value received for every dollar's worth of business given us. The paper is here to serve its readers and its advertisers in particular, and the community in general. We have many plans for a bigger and better paper, that will be carried out just as soon as business justifies such changes.

In starting off this new year, we are doing so with a clean slate. We are dropping all delinquent subscribers. Only a few have failed to meet our request of last week, and although we regret to lose them as readers, we cannot be fair to ourselves and to those hundreds of readers who are paying for the paper in advance.

We believe in the possibilities of great future development in Kimble County; we believe in her people; and we are here to serve the best interests of both.

We are reprinting two articles from the Mountain Sun this week that should be of interest to every wide awake citizen of the community. Not so much because they are such splendid advertising for our neighbor city, but because they show what a live, aggressive Chamber of Commerce can do when it begins to exert its pulling power. In this connection we call attention also to a reprint article from the Fredericksburg Standard, under the caption, "Why Have a Chamber of Commerce?"

Now we know that right here in Junction we have as live a bunch of business men and citizens generally as can be found anywhere. They are interested in bringing in new people, whether transient or permanent home owners; they are interested in developing our natural resources; and interested in seeing the town and community grow.

Of course we have the non-progressive element, a few of whom are in business, trying to reap benefits from the efforts of those who are working for the advancement of the town and community. They close up like clams when they are approached about a public movement that will aid the town, but every town has them and we have only to continue to exert our best efforts toward building up a strong and useful commercial body that will prove a sort of self elimination affair for those who cannot or will not fit in.

Kerrville is becoming a city. It is growing by leaps and bounds. The people there have learned the benefits that come from co-operative effort. They are working together and pulling for the things that will make the town bigger and better. They have learned the lesson that we, seemingly, have yet to learn, viz.: that you must spend money to make money; that people are not just naturally going to fall over themselves to get there, but must be invited and must be offered some inducements; then they must be accommodated after they arrive.

We have a commercial organization in name but not in fact. There are some three directors left, out of seven, and no dues have been paid into the treasury as membership dues in more than eight months. The president, remaining directors and a few others have been doing the best they could under the circumstances, to carry on important work, but they have been handicapped both by lack of funds and by lack of concerted action on the part of many who should have been helping.

We cannot stand still. We are either going backward or we are going to move forward. We can only move forward by the whole-hearted support of the business and professional interests of the community. We ought to get together and re-organize the Chamber of Commerce into an active membership organization, and collect dues and start to pulling for the best interests of Junction and Kimble County. We ought to have 150 members in the town and 50 to 75 in the country and we ought to let the public know who these members are.

We have the best opportunity in the world to make the biggest and best inland town to be found anywhere. We can do it by working together, or we can sit still and ten or fifteen years from now, find ourselves just where we are now, while other towns around us have grown away from us.

Thousands upon thousands of tourists are going to be here this summer. There is much that must be done for their pleasure while they are with us. We can only retain their good will and be sure that they will return, by waking up to our obligations and our opportunities.

The Eagle believes in the future of Junction and Kimble

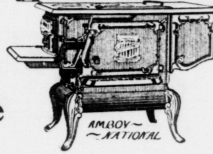

County, and we believe in the people that live here, and this confidence leads us to feel sure that we are going to wake up. We have done much in the past but we have much more to do in the future, and we must get together and do it.

Earl and Carl demonstrated their musical ability with a pleasing number and appeared a second time in response to an encore.

JUDGE J. H. McLEAN IS OUT FOR RE-ELECTION.

The Eagle is authorized to announce Hon. J. H. McLean of Llano, for the office of Judge of the 33rd Judicial District of Texas, and his name appears in the regular announcement column.

While no statement is made in his letter, relative to his candidacy, it might be stated that he has served this District, which stretches from this county on the west to include Burnett County on the east, for the past four years as District Judge, and his ability and fairness as a trial judge is well known to the people over the district.

While this paper takes no stock in politics except an interest in the election of men for office that are well qualified, it is not out of place to say that we have had occasion to closely observe the workings of the court since Judge McLean has been on the bench, and feel that this district has had a well qualified, fair and honest administration during this, his first term.

EVERYBODY PAYS TAXES.

(Farm and Ranch.)

The man who owns real estate, stocks or bonds does not pay all the taxes. The man who has no visible property to render may flatter himself that he is escaping the tax collector, but he is paying just the same. Every time he buys a loaf of bread he helps pay the miller's and baker's tax. He pays the tax on the house he rents, on the suit of clothes he buys, and on everything he purchases, from a package of pins to a new dining room suite. He can't escape. Taxes have a great deal to do with the cost of living.

The poor man pays his share and frequently more, and for that reason he should be as greatly interested in reducing the cost of government as his neighbor who goes to the office of the assessor and renders property for taxation each year.

The man who advocates Government aid for various projects, such as highways, irrigation dams, education and the like, or the man who says, let the Government buy the products of the farm in order to stabilize prices, has to pay his share of the expense. The Government gets the money it spends out of the pockets of the people, and no man escapes making his regular contribution. A proposition to have the Government pay half of the expense in constructing a highway through the county is attractive, but every taxpayer in that county is contributing to the cost of building highways across the counties in all the other States in the Union. In the end, he is not as well off as he would have been had he paid for his own road and not been forced to pay for roads in other counties.

Government aid is a swindle. It is another way devised to create more fat jobs for office seekers and to fasten upon the State and counties of which they are composed, the power of the Government at Washington. The bait is attractive, but it conceals a barbed hook. However, our politicians generally have swallowed the bait, hook and all, and we have fastened upon us a policy of paternalism which will be hard to shake off. We accept our share of Government aid because we have to pay for the tax for somebody else, and nothing is to be gained and much to be lost by refusing. The only way the people can be relieved of this extra burden is to discontinue the practice altogether.

BETTER GRASS IN THE OTHER FIELD.

Have you ever seen it—the amusing spectacle of two donkeys in adjoining pastures, each stretching his neck through the fence to eat the grass in the other fellow's field?

That seems ludicrous, to be sure, yet it's just about what we human mortals often do. How often we think the other fellow's better off than we, or his job is better than ours.

It's difficult, of course, to find out for what vocation in life we are best fitted. Many a man's in the wrong pew, a round peg in a square hole, or a square peg in a round hole. But the truth is that no one can find out for what he is best suited without a thorough tryout.

One man finds that the job over which he was at first enthusiastic is not the thing for him. On the other hand, another chap becomes very efficient at the job of which he was at first skeptical, and, it might be added, is apt to learn to like it when he becomes able to do it well.

The sensible thing, then, is to stick to a job and learn to do it well before concluding too hastily that the grass in the other field is better. Seek to improve yourself and get busy in your own pasture. If you increase your worth, there are bigger fields for you in the business world, a whole prairie of opportunities if you are entitled to have that much rein.—Express Messenger.

FAITH.

(By Austin Callan in The Texas Commercial News.)

Strength, personality, wisdom—these are all great gifts. But Faith out-counts everything. Get a man's purse, destroy his credit, pile financial barriers in front of him; any one of these hurt. Yet there is that something which whippers through the storm: "Be of good cheer; the sun is going to shine after a while." It is the prop that holds you up. It is Faith!

The poorest creature on earth is the one who lacks faith. There may be prosperity today; the business situation might be as clear as a June morning. Still he is beset with doubt; he is afraid of his shadow; trouble is sure to come. Such a man is without peace of mind; he has no confidence in the country, no confidence in mankind. He is even suspicious about there being anything worth while beyond this vale of tears.

There are those who regard religion as a kind of weakness; they feel that it is right for women and children, but that like tobacco which is too mild, it was never made for a real strong man to smoke in his pipe of knowledge. Skepticism is looked upon by such individuals as a high mark of intellect. They feel as if only the learned are able to ask puzzling questions about the divinity of Christ, the human soul and immortality.

But every real strong character of this age is a man of Faith. Not one of any prominence denies Divine influence over human affairs. Not one thinks it worth anything to the world to pick flaws in the miraculous birth of the Bethlehem Babe. The leaders in business, in politics, in arts—everyone of them—feel the touch of a directing hand, invisible, but omnipotent.

Faith leads us to every triumph of any character. It pointed out flaming stacks and bursting blooms to James J. Hill in the great northwest; it gave impetus to all the contributions to the medical science; it sent the wireless from the stranded ship across the snarling sea and summoned help. Men who have no faith accomplish little and the little they accomplish is of a selfish nature.

Faith is not blind belief; it is the recognition of a mighty guiding Power; it is confidence in one's ability to do; it is the acceptance of the final triumph of right; it is the periscope through which we are able to look above and beyond the barriers and find success, prosperity and happiness.

Those who leave Faith out of their lives deny sunshine to the soul; they exclude God, hide all sweet flowers behind doubt and struggle by themselves, never looking up, never trusting and never acknowledging anything superior to their own wills and their own efforts.

And, finally, when the end of the road is reached; when the way grows misty and the step becomes unsteady, they fail to hear those comforting whispers from beyond the drawn curtains. All is doubt and dead to them over there; no song is heard on the other shore; no star gleams out of the mystical realm.

GROWTH OF HOSTILITY TOWARDS RAILROADS.

(By Walter Splawn, Railroad Commissioner of Texas.)

A second source of discontent in the country as a whole, which exerted no little influence in Texas, was a series of panics and periods of depression.

Beginning with about 1869, there was a period of great activity in agriculture and all kinds of manufacturing enterprises and railway building. Many railroads were built into undeveloped country. This drew people away from the older parts of the country and lessened land values in them, but the development of the new territory was not rapid enough to enable the railroads to obtain tonnage in paying quantities. In 1869 Congress prohibited any further retirement of the green back notes. The fluctuation in prices that followed fostered speculation. There followed in 1873 one of the severest panics in the history of the country. Failure was widespread. In the process if liquidation many railroads along with banks and mercantile establishments became bankrupt. There followed the panic of 1873, a period of depression which continued for five or six dreary years.

After this depression there was another period of great activity, especially in railroad building. Most of the new mileage was added in the central and western states. A sharp crisis in 1884 was the result of general over-expansion in business.

Rapid expansion in railroad construction contributed largely to the panics of 1873 and 1884. This fact was generally known and talked of throughout the country. Many people began to blame the railroads for the panics and for the personal inconveniences they had suffered therefrom.

A third source of discontent in the country grew out of the competition between the trunk lines. Another result of the rather rapid extension of the railway net was a period of severe competition among the railroad companies. In some parts of the country roads were built far ahead of the traffic. There was not enough business to sustain all of the new properties. Each road naturally fought to get as much business as possible. This led to the famous rate wars. Various questionable devices were resorted to by the traffic agents of the roads. Discriminations were frequently made between places and persons. Rebates were given to certain shippers to hold them. Much ill feeling was engendered from these practices and enmity towards the railroads was bred.

Out of the hard times following the panic of 1873 arose the Grange movement. The attention of this organization was directed to the railroads. The Grange brought great pressure to bear upon legislation. The railroads met their opposition with little tact. The statements given out in those days by railway officials and the methods they employed to meet the opposition expressed through the Grange rather exasperated the people and strengthened them in their disgust with the railway management of the time. The railroads sought to meet the opposition they encountered in the legislatures by influencing individual members of those bodies. Professional lobbyists were employed, railroad attorneys were sent to state capitals, press agents were put to work, free passes were dispensed liberally among members of legislatures and even more questionable means were used in certain instances. All this merely resulted in arousing the people to the belief that they were being victimized by the railroads.

GOODYEAR BAG WINS FAMOUS AIR RACE.

San Antonio, April 24.—With an air line distance of 1,100 miles, W. T. Van Orman, pilot of the balloon entered by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., of Akron, Ohio, with C. K. Wool as aide, won today the most remarkable air classic ever held in America. Van Orman landed at Rochester, Minnesota.

Captain H. E. Honeywell, piloting a balloon under the banner of the Kansas City Co-Operative club with Captain T. E. Poudinot of Kelly Field as his aide, came second with an estimated distance of 1,050 miles, made when they landed at Sanborn, Minnesota, at 8:30 a. m. today.

Major Norman W. Peck, pilot, and Lieutenant William A. Gray ride of S-14, army balloon, nosed the Detroit Aviation society contestant out by about 29 miles for third place. This makes Major Peck representative of the army in the Gordon-Bennett international race to be held at Brussels in June. The S-14 made an estimated air line flight of 1,020 miles, landing having been made at Stangar, Iowa, at 4 a. m. today.

Herbert Van Thaden and Svend A. U. Rasmussen, pilot and aide, respectively, of the Detroit Gas bag, landed five miles southwest of Dubuque, Iowa, at 2 a. m. today, having made an airline distance of about 1,000 miles.

The American record is 1,172.9 miles, estimated at 172.9 miles, established in 1910. Despite the fact that this record was not broken, race officials of San Antonio pronounced the race the most remarkable ever staged in the history of ballooning.

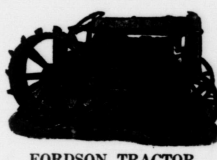

Lieutenant Colonel C. C. Culver, air service officer of the Eight Corps Area, and race executive, pointed out that in the first place the winner made a good record. Again, he explained, there was not a casualty in the race, and relatively few balloon losses despite the fact that every gas bag ran into a storm. B. H. Fournier lost his balloon in a whirlwind in Texas, and Lieutenant Ashley C. McKinley lost his bag when forced down in a storm.

In the third place, according to the race executive, the average flight made by balloons is high, more than 800 miles each. The total mileage is also high, 5,660 miles.

The race will result in much valuable information available for air transportation, Colonel Culver said. Every contestant is required to keep a careful log of his flight, which record will contain data on weather, aerological conditions, and other information needed in lighter-than-air work.

The winner of first place captures a prize of $1,000; second place, $800; third place, $500. Had the American record been broken, every pilot that exceeded it would have received an additional prize of $125.

The winners of the three high prizes will represent America in the international contest two months from now. The prizes are awarded to cover their expenses in this event.

AT THE M. E. CHURCH.

We are sorry that this report failed to get in last week's paper. It was my fault.

At the Methodist church we had 53 at Sunday School; at the morning preaching service the attendance numbered 63; at the night service we had 68.

Next Sunday night at the Methodist church we will begin a series of four sermons on the subject of "Worldliness." Let's have a good crowd present to continue for the following three Sundays.

On June 29th, the Methodist meeting will begin. Evangelist J. L. Bryant and his singer, Mr. B. R. Ellis, will be with us.

And that simple word is the only farewell
That Mabel will ever say.

All day at school she had filled her place;
That evening her busy hands
Had lovingly helped in the usual tasks,
The service of home demands.

We needed her beautiful life and deeds;
God "lent" her these few brief years;
Our hearts though sad and broken with grief
Take courage in midst of our tears.

For we know that our darling so precious
And dear,
Is a link in the chain of love,
Which the Father is using to lead us
To Heaven, where she waits above.

We echo "good-night—until the day dawn
And the shadows flee away."
Safely sleeping, in Jesus' keeping
Till we awake to an endless day.

Kimble is Coming Back---

WHEN WE Make this statement, we mean that we are approaching another era of prosperity; in fact, we are already in the midst of an era of general prosperity throughout this section of the country.

BY RECALLING The days of the extra-ordinary prosperity of the year following the end of the war, we can gain much that will benefit us from our past experiences.

NO MATTER How high wool, mohair, sheep, goats, cattle or other products of this country go, we cannot overlook the fact that we are going to need plenty of feedstuff. The higher our livestock, the better demand there will be for feed, and the better the price of feed will be.

DON'T LET The fact that we have plenty of range grass now, or that you think you can make more money in other ways, keep you from planting a good crop of feed stuff.
