Wichita Falls Wins Place On 1928 National Air Tour

PLANES STOP HERE IN RACE OVER NATION

Effort to Secure 1927 Place, Brings Success For 1928

SPONSORED BY FORD

Annual Tour in Interest Of Aeronautics Comes To Wichita

Wichita Falls has been definitely placed on the itinerary of the 1928 National Air tour, made by a dozen or more planes each year in a contest sponsored by Edsel Ford, according to a telegram received here Saturday by James Boyle, secretary of the Wichita Valley Automobile club. Did had been made for the 1927 tour, but as contest rules prevented changing schedules, this city was granted a place for the coming year, Mr. Boyle said.

This tour, started three years ago by Mr. Ford, is being made each year in the interest of furthering aeronautics in America, and has attracted world wide interest.

Wichita Falls was among the "lucky cities" due to the efforts of Wichita Valley Automobile club officials. This club is affiliated with the American Automobile Association under which name one of the 14 planes on the present tour is flying. It was through the influence of Robert H. Hooper, A. A. A. executive, that the general manager of the tour granted the request to visit this city.

The group on the tour now in progress will reach Dallas July 8.

Mr. Doyle and others from Wichita Falls will be in Dallas for the reception and will make further plans for the visit here during the coming year. One to accompany Mr. Boyle is C. H. Verschoyle of Wichita Falls, past vice-president of the national organization for five years and a director of the Wichita Valley club at the present time.

The AAA plane now on the tour, a tri-motored Ford monoplane, is carrying eight newspapermen, referee and other officials, it was learned.

BUSINESS IN WICHITA AREA IN GOOD SHAPE

CROP VIEW FINE

Uplift in Oil Situation Also Foreseen By C-C HEAD

That business conditions in Wichita Falls and Wichita county the latter half of 1527 will be as good as or better than they were during the first half just passed, with prospects for an immediate stimulus in the oil industry and an excellent farm market in the fall, is the view of C. E. McCutchen, president of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce.

"I see no reason for believing that conditions generally will not continue to improve during the coming months, and there are obvious indications of material betterment," Mr. McCutchen said. "It is rather early to make a prediction on cotton production and price, but I believe that the 1927 crop in the Wichita Falls territory containing about the same acreage as last year, will be one of the finest in the history of the country."

Cotton Outlook Good.

That the cotton market will also be favorable this fall is also the view of this prominent banker, a condition which he affirms will do much to increase the buying power of the farmer and open fresh avenues of trade.

Mr. McCutchen takes the cotton and oil industries of this section of the state as barometers of general business activity, and believes that there are visible and unmis-

Last Lone Star Cattle to Be Placed in Park

Honor of being preserved for posterity is about to be bestowed upon the famous Texas longhorn cattle, that made the Lone Star state famous but, which are now passing out of existence.

Along with the almost extinct buffalo, the longhorns are going to be given a rendezvous in the Wichita national forest in Utah, according to an Associated Press dispatch received Saturday by The Record News.

The order to place the "pride of Texas" in the national forest was issued by the United States forestry service.

LINDY'S ESCORT DIES IN CRASH

Death Mars Festivities At Ottawa, Canada

By Universal Service.

OTTAWA, July 1.—The dominion of Canada, celebrating a birthday, thrilled with pride in Colonel Charles Lindbergh, as he dropped down out of the skies here this afternoon.

Simultaneously, the newspaper world of the continent was electrified into activity by a "grapevine" rumor that the famous conqueror of the Atlantic had crashed.

The fear was stilled, however, within two or three minutes as word flashed outward from here that Lindy had landed safely shortly after 1 o'clock at the Ottawa Hunt club flying field, where 100,000 persons welcomed him.

Then as Lindbergh was leaving the field, one of the 12 escort planes arriving late, glided toward a landing, appeared to halt and point its nose upward again—and in the act of swerving upward was crashed by another plane of the escort party.

The crashed plane fell, carrying to his death Lieut. J. Thad Johnson of Selfridge field.

Lindy himself did not see the accident. He had been placed in a car quickly on arrival and was being driven from the field.

AIR CRAFT VICTIM FORMERLY CLERGYMAN.

SELFRIDGE FIELD, MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich, July 2. (AP)—Lieutenant J. Tad Johnson, killed when his plane crashed today at Ottawa, was commanding officer of the 27th squadron, Selfridge field fliers. He was one of the oldest officers in point of service at the local flying field, having been here for five years.

Johnson was born in Johnson City, Texas, July 19, 1893, and was a graduate of the theological school at Trinity university, Waxahachie, Texas. He leaves a widow who was at the field when Lieutenant Johnson and eleven other flyers of the first pursuit group took off this morning as escort to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

Once a Minister.

Before his enlistment soon after the United States entered the World war, Johnson was a Presbyterian clergyman at Dallas, Texas. He was commissioned a first lieutenant on May 7, 1917, and the following August transferred to the signal corps, going to Rockwell field, Calif., to begin training as a military aviator. He received his advanced training in France and saw active service at the front through all the major campaigns involving American troops.

In 1919 he participated in the transcontinental race and then went to the Hawaiian Islands for a tour of service.

In April 1925, Lieutenant Johnson figured in a parachute jump without precedent in army air service records. While flying from Selfridge field to Washington, he encountered a heavy storm,

Had Narrow Escape.

Above the Blue Ridge mountains his engine failed at a time when he knew he was above the mountains, but could not see the ground. He abandoned his plane 10,000 feet up in the air and fell blindly into the mountains, landing safely in an apple tree in a valley.

Knox County Sheriff, In Wichita Falls, Tells of Capture of Alleged Bandits

George Burgess, the older of the two alleged Truscott bank robbers, is now in the county jail at Dallas, according to Sheriff J. W. Melton of Benjamin who was in Wichita Falls Saturday morning on the return trip, J. C. Rice, a deputy sheriff, was with Sheriff Melton.

"Burgess appears to be an 'old timer' and we decided to place him in a large jail," Sheriff Melton stated. Identification facilities in Dallas are much more complete than in any city near Benjamin and this was a factor in making the transfer, the sheriff said.

James Watson, the other suspect, is being held in the Benjamin jail. Burgess and Watson were captured by Sheriff Melton and C. D. Williams, a tool dresser, after the Truscott bank had been robbed of approximately $1000 last Mon-

LIQUOR CASES HERE DROPPED

Docket Cleared After Court's Ruling

Five cases for the violation of the state prohibition law now pending on the Wichita county criminal docket and the same number of cases which were to be presented to the grand jury will be dismissed as a result of the court of criminal appeals recent ruling relative to search warrants for private residences, E. F. Fruechte, assistant district attorney, said Saturday.

The statement made by Mr. Fruechte followed an examination of the opinion made by the assistant district attorney and Judge P. A. Martin, of the 89th district court.

The opinion of the appellate court holds that to obtain a search warrant officers must first produce affidavits to the court issuing the warrant that liquor has been seen on the premises to be searched.

Heretofore, officers have been issued search warrants on an affadivat that "liquor is on the premises to the best of the belief" of the officer, according to the appellate court opinion, "absolute knowledge" must be sworn to instead of "belief."

BIG IRRIGATION PLAN WILL BE MADE LARGER

$350 PER ACRE

Election On Project Will Be Held Within 90 Days

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, July 2.—Plans for adding another canal by way of Tolbert so that an additional 100,000 acres may be included in the proposed Pease river irrigation project were submitted to the Vernon directors of the Pease and Red river valleys Irrigation association this week by O. N. Floyd of the engineering firm of Floyd & Locheridge of Dallas, who are making the surveys of the project.

The state water board has tentatively agreed to approve the district of 150,000 acres instead of the 100,000 acres first proposed, so the plans of the district have been drawn to include the increased acreage. The entire project will include about 350,000 acres, with an actual water district of 150,000 acres, Mr. Floyd said.

Increase Endorsed

The local officials of the irrigation association, R. M. Fielder, R. H. Coffee and Les K. Johnson, were present at the meeting here and they are unanimously in favor of the incorporation of the increased acreage into district. Similar meetings were held at Electra and other places in the district, and the new plan seems to meet general approval.

That the proposed irrigation of this district will not cost the individual farmers more than $3.50 per acre per year, the cost of irrigation in the Wichita district, was a point made by Mr. Floyd in the meeting here. Wichita county farmers are paying $37.50 an acre as the total cost of the irrigation, in payments of $3.50 an acre per year. The district here should not cost more, Mr. Floyd said.

As soon as the preliminary survey now being made is completed, the state water board will appoint a local board of five representatives, approve the district and call an election to vote bonds to finance a detailed survey of the district. After the water district officials are appointed and the election called, voters of the entire district will vote on whether they accept the district, the district officials and the bond issue for the detailed survey.

Approximately $150,000 will have to be raised by a bond issue for the detailed survey, according to Mr. Floyd, but that will amount to but a few cents per acre for the entire district. The detailed survey must be made before the river dam and other features of the project can be completed. It is now practically assured that the bond issue election will be called.

Election In 90 Days

The proposed district comprises practically all the tight land in the Pease river section. Main canals will be provided to include Elliott, Iowa Park, Harold, Electra, Tolbert and near Vernon sections. Any property owner in the district may withdraw his land and not participate in the irrigation if he so desires.

Local officials and those of practically every town in the district are now working on the project in an effort to include in the district that section of the country which meets the approval of most people. This work is expected to be completed in a short time and the approval of the water board secured, after which the election can be called in ninety days.

TAYLOR CASE UP JULY 9

Electra Police Ouster Order On Appeal

Decision relative to the appeal of the city of Electra from an injunction restraining the city from ousting James T. Taylor as chief of police and fire marshal will probably be made July 9 by the second court of civil appeals at Fort Worth, according to information received Saturday afternoon by Raymond Allred, attorney for the city of Electra.

The case was argued before the appellate court Saturday morning at Fort Worth. At the conclusion of the arguments, the judges announced that they would take the case under advisement.

The injunction restraining the removal of Mr. Taylor was issued by Judge W. W. Cook, in the 78th district court on the plea of Mr. Taylor that the Electra city council was in error in authorizing his removal due to a section of the city ordinance which set out that city officials could not be removed during their term of office by a majority vote of the council. Mr. Taylor was removed by a three to one vote.

In an appeal filed with the court of civil appeals, the city of Electra set out that the ordinance to which Mr. Taylor referred only applied in cases where charges of disorderly conduct were preferred against officials but that there was another ordinance which prescribed the removal of officers by a majority vote when no disorderly charges had been filed. In voting for the removal of Mr. Taylor the council gave no reason for its action.

Merchants' Police Service Opens Here With 70 Stations On List

Results from the first night of operation of the Hodgins merchant police service, which started Friday night in Wichita Falls, was entirely satisfactory, George H. Hodgins, former chief of police, and proprietor of the merchants' service, said Saturday.

Three merchant patrolmen, carrying "punch clocks" were on duty the first night, Mr. Hodgins said.

The system consists of the patrolman punching his clock with a key at every building which he inspects. Each key is constructed differently from the others.

"You can't beat it," Mr. Hodgins said. "Each key is different and punches different on the dial showing the exact time and recording the key number. When the dials are read the morning following the night inspection it only takes a second to discover whether a patrolman is covering his beat, or not."

At present the merchants service is being used at 70 places of business in Wichita Falls.

Widow of Caruso to Become Bride Of Former U. S. Envoy to Madrid

By Universal Service.

PARIS, July 2.—Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso Ingram, widow of Enrico Caruso, and last year divorced from Captain Ingram, of London, announced to her friends today her approaching marriage to Alexander P. Moore, former ambassador to Spain, and wealthy Pittsburgh publisher.

The official anouncement of the engagement will not be made until next month, according to Mrs. Ingram's confidential information to her intimate friends.

The first intimation of the romance was heard at Ciro's Friday night, directly after the arrival of the popular "Alec" Moore from America. A small party greeted the couple with champagne filled bumpers, and ever since then congratulations have been pouring in at the Ritz where Moore is stopping.

According to her friends Dorothy has received as an engagement present a beautiful ruby and diamond ring which is said to be one of the former ambassador's most precious souvenirs.

Neither party could be reached today, Moore having unhooked his apartment telephone and Dorothy's maid stating that her mistress had gone for the week-end.

The marriage, according to present plans it is said, will take place in Paris as soon as Moore has established a residence. After a honeymoon at Lido and Biarritz the couple will return to Paris where it is expected they will spend several months each year.

Wichita Falls Man Pays Top Price For Fine Stock at Cattle Auction

George Keith, produce dealer and breeder of fine cattle, made a valuable addition to his herd on his place east of the city on the Henrietta road, when he topped the sale held by R. B. Colbert and Son near Stamford, Mr. Keith said Saturday.

Mr. Keith purchased five head of Hereford cattle, all of which are of the Anxiety IV strain, the most sought cattle in the United States. The sire Anxiety IV was imported during the 80's, and his descendents are ranked among the finest in the world.

"The Prince Domino," top bull at the Stamford sale, was purchased by Mr. Keith who paid $300 for the animal. He also bought four cows, two of which are heifers and the other two are breeding stock.

Seventy-five head were sold at the sale, an average price of $550 being paid, Mr. Keith stated. The Prince Domino topped the sales.

Buyers from 12 states were present and were guests at a buffalo barbecue tendered by R. B. Colbert and Son.

A party of cattle men spent a day on Mr. Keith's farm on making the return trip. They were Byron Engle of Sheridan, Mo., Obe Harris of Harris and Son, Harris, Mo., Dr. Narbarg of Kansas City, Mo., R. J. Kinzer, secretary of the American Cattle Breeders association, Kansas City and Mr. Dickey of the Dickey Farm, Kansas City.

Mr. Keith now has about 100 head of thoroughbred cattle on his farm. On March 31 Mr. and Mrs. Keith attended the Williams sale at Aurora, Ill., when he purchased the top fehals for $735 and several others.

Famous Texas Longhorn Rare

cell Sr., of Electra, veteran cattleman.

In statements to The Record News, Mr. Moore and Mr. Ancell said that there was "nary a longhorn in North Texas" and that if any could be be found in this state it would be in the Rio Grande river border section of Texas.

Both Mr. Moore and Mr. Ancell said that the only genuine Texas longhorn cattle, if any were in existance, would be found belonging to Mexicans with small ranches along the Rio Grande river.

That the "Texas Longhorn" should be preserved for posterity was the opinion voiced by both Mr. Moore and Mr. Ancell and they approved of the move made by the forestry service.

The "longhorn" has been replaced by cattlemen with heavier and more meaty breeds of cattle and as a result lovers of the "early west" who feared the picturesque animal brought to the United States years ago from Mexico would soon become extinct, appealed to the forestry service for some action which would replace the "longhorn" on a par with the buffalo, that roamed the western plains and disappeared before the enroaching westward migration.

Safe Picker Gets $225 In Raid On Grocery

Police were confronted Saturday with the task of solving a burglary of a type which has not been prevalent here during recent months, that of the "combination" man. The door of the safe in Piggly Wiggly No. 8, Fifteenth and Lamar, was opened by working the combination Friday night or Saturday morning and approximately $225 in cash taken.

Entrance to the store was made by breaking two locks on the front door. Several unsuccessful attempts have been made during the past two months to enter the store, it was reported.

POLICE FINES AT HIGH MARK

$2645 Collected During June, Report Shows

Fines imposed in Judge W. L. Bass' police court during the month of June totalled $2392 and deductions left the total collected in fines at $2645, according to the monthly report of Desk Sergeant Roland Hurst, ex-officio clerk of the court.

The remittances were as follows: Prisoners serving fines in jail, $285; fines released, $17; fines appealed, $395 and fines remitted, $50.

The report further shows that out of the total of 586 cases handled in the court, 154 fines were imposed during the month, 341 bonds were forfeited, 38 were dismissed, 41 were found not guilty, seven were transferred to county court, three were transferred to state courts and two names were placed on the docket through error.

Number of prisoners who served time in jail was 29, while 18 served time working on the streets. Cases appealed numbered 21 while three prisoners were released from jail.

Twenty-two automobiles valued at $3800 were recovered by police during June, the report says.

Business In Wichita Good

takable signs of an uplift in both.

"According to the opinion of the majority, conditions could be no worse than they have already been in the case of oil, and it is inevitable that a depression, or a "slump" is followed by a period of renewed activity in all quarters," he asserted.

He pointed out the fact that overproduction, causing the temporary static state, is being intelligently handled by mutual agreement of operators and application of remedial policies nationally which should quickly bring about desired results. That the time is ripe in this section for what may be considered a "new start" is evidenced in the many rumors of new leases on land and the "rumblings of relief," he declared.

Mr. McCutchen stated that it would be contrary to experience to forecast a continuance of smothered development as the lay of supply and demand and psychological "rise after the fall" indubitably adjust such situations. Because conditions may have been considered adverse for some is no reason to think they will get worse, as the contrary is more applicable, he said.

Money Is Easy.

"Money is easy and will probably be more plentiful during the coming six months, with a consequent larger general volume of business throughout on the supply of money in the hands of the people at large and their willingness to spend it, and I would say that conditions in these two respects are distinctively favorable for the balance of the year," he said.

Mr. McCutchen noted that reports of a reduction in cotton acreage over the country and the loss of thousands of bales in the Mississippi flood evidenced a better cotton market which spreads a spirit of optimism among farmers everywhere. And it is on this general optimism and faith in the future that the outlook depends, he said.

In Wichita Falls, both wholesale and retail trade has kept on the fair side of the balance, with new avenues of action opening up all the time. The city is becoming more and more a mecca for stabilized business concerns at the same time the potentialities of the agricultural sections are being revealed in new industries and successful farming ventures, as indication of greater growth and progress than has been realized, Mr. McCutchen believes.

"Notwithstanding anything which may be said of adverse nature regarding the general situation in northwest Texas, the people of Wichita county need only to reflect and realize that business has contiued with no serious interruption, and that there has been what might be termed a 'gathering power' in all sections.

"Considering these facts and the many accomplishments I believe we are fully justified in expecting a continuance of such favorable conditions, conductive to a normal state of affairs and more reliable development than ever before," Mr. McCutchen said.

been returned against the defendants, will be dismissed, Mr. Fruechte said, because the warrants obtained for the search of each premise were contrary to the holding of the appellate court. This situation applies to five defendants in liquor cases which were to be presented to the grand jury, Mr. Fruechte said.

OFFICERS IN DOUBT TO EFFECT OF RULING

Officers will not be materially hampered in enforcing the state prohibition laws as a result of the recent opinion of the court of criminal appeals affecting the issuance of search warrants, was the belief expressed by Sheriff W. G. Bralley Saturday.

Sheriff Bralley stated that he did not understand the ruling to imply that "absolute knowledge" is neccessary in filing an affidavit in applying for a search warrant.

Police Hampered, Says Burns

His understanding of the ruling is that grounds for belief that liquor is on a premises must be in the affidavit and not an oath that knowledge of liquor is there, the sheiff said.

"The ruling is not as it was first reported. Some time yet will be necessary, however, to ascertain its effects on prohibition enforcement," Sheriff Bralley said.

Police Chief Frank Burns, basing his assertion on newspaper reports of the decision, declared that it will greatly hinder law enforcement.

"Persons who furnish officers with information will have to appear as witnesses in liquor trials in case they gave information which led to the arrest," Chief Burns declared.

"Many persons who are anxious to assist officers in enforcing the law will not do so if they know they are to be drawn into a trial. Many times the source of information should not be made public," he stated.

Morgan Halts Raids

"Officers seldom are presented with the opportunity of learning to their certain knowledge that liquor is kept on a premises," Chief Burns said.

Constable Frank Morgan stated that until he receives a copy of the decision he had discontinued raids on private residences at which beer is believed to be sold. He expected to receive a copy of the decision Saturday afternoon but did not. Mr. Morgan stated that on the face of his present knowledge of the decision, it would be detrimental to law enforcement.

New Electric Sign On Staley Building

A new light made its appearance Saturday night upon the Wichita Falls "White Way" when an electric sign blazed forth for the first time from the top of the Staley building.

The sign, which contains 875 globes, was erected by the Desch Electric company.

STATE HEARS BIDDERS

AUSTIN, July 2. (AP)—The state board of control will hear "sales" talks of representatives of 116 concerns bidding for state highway equipment contracts aggregating about $1,350,000, before the contracts are let, it was announced today.

Wichita Falls All Ready For "Glorious Fourth"

It's Different Now From Declaration Days of 1776

Just 151 years ago today our forefathers brought forth on this continent a new situation—they signed the Declaration of Independence which stopped the payment of tea taxes to King George and started income tax payments to Uncle Sam.

The change of tax payments has caused a celebration on the Fourth of July ever since and the allegation has been made that several of the signers to the declaration knew what was coming and as a result started in the fireworks business, taking advantage of the citizens to levy another tax upon their pocketbooks to buy firecrackers for "little Willie."

However, in Wichita Falls, Fire Chief J. L. McClure has declared that all the fireworking must be consumated in the residential sections of the city and any explosions caused in the downtown section will result in the causer talking to the judge on the morning of July 5.

In 1776 all the lawmakers decided they'd take a holiday on July 4 and repeated the offense in 1777 and since that time as the rest of the lawmakers have kept repeating none of the courts in Wichita Falls will be doing business on July 4, 1927.

Practically the only things that will be opened Monday will be gasoline throttles on automobiles as the drivers, and occupants, wend their way to the ol' fishin' 'oles in the various lakes in this vicinity or to the picnic grounds, which nature provided and human beings decorate with what's left over from the "family dinner."

Although no official programs for the "fourth" have been announced, nevertheless several entertainments at nearby pleasure resorts and hotels will be held, with dancing as the chief source of amusement.

BYRD ANNOUNCES TENTATIVE PLANS FOR FLIGHT TO SOUTH POLE

FRENCH HONOR U. S. AVIATORS

Pres. Doumergue Receives Byrd and Aides

By Universal Service.

PARIS, July 2.—President Gaston Doumergue, of France, this afternoon held an official reception in honor of Commander Richard E. Byrd, and his three companion flyers, Bert Acosta, George O. Noville and Berndt Balchen. President Doumergue praised the American flyers for their heroism, and in return was presented by Commander Byrd with the American flag which his expedition had carried across the ocean on the monoplane America.

"I fully appreciate your purpose in flyng to France," said the president. "You have done a courageous, patriotic thing, something your country can be justly proud of. Although you were not the first ones to accomplish the flight, your journey lacked none of the elements of heroism and courage."

Paris Gives Ovation.

The four American arrived in Paris at 13:20 this noon after having been given a series of ovations at every town along the line from Caen, and a crowd which displayed all the enthusiasm shown at the arrival of Colonel Lindbergh at Le Bourget, almost mobbed them at the Gare St. Lazare. It took them several minutes to extricate themselves from the throng of admiring French people and reach a special room in the station where they were officially welcomed to France by Minister of Commerce Bokanowski.

From the railroad station Commander Byrd and Bert Acosta were take nto the American hospital for an Xray examination which was necessitated by the report of examining surgeons at Caen, who reported that the two had received injuries in landing in the water.

Tonight Paris is again hysterically enthusiastic, just as it was when Lindbergh arirved in his spirit of St. Louis. The Parisians liked Lindbergh's personality, particularly his modesty. Now they have found Byrd and his companions charming, jovial and unspoiled.

Figaro, commenting on the four strangers, tonight says:

"We must give credit to great Americans—success does not seem to trouble them."

Acosta's Arm in Sling.

After their busy day today the flyers all retired early after dining privately. Only Acosta was still chafing under the necessity of carrying his arm in a sling after the X-ray at the American hospital showed he had broken a collar bone.

They have no engagements for tomorrow. On Monday they will have luncheon with M. Bleriot, the first flyer to cross the English channel, and there will be a Fourth of July banquet at the American Chamber of Commerce. They will be tendered a luncheon at the ministry of marine Tuesday and in the afternoon will hold a reception at the Aerio club.

The fliers went to the Elysees Palace at 5:30. Previously they had gone to a specially reserved suite at the Hotel Continental for a short rest. After bathing and changing their clothes the fliers were guests at a luncheon at the Inter-Allied club given in their honor by Sheldon Whitehouse, American charge d'affaires. He was host in the absence of Ambassador Herrick who is in America.

While at the Continental they appeared on the flagdraped balcony and asknowledged the cheers of several thousand of excited people in the streets below.

Other Fliers There.

Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, heroes of the recent flight from New York to Germany, were also guests at the Inter-Allied club luncheon. Levine and Chamberlin had been at the station to greet the new arrivals, but they became separated in the crowd.

Levine managed to reach Commander Byrd's side among the first and congratulated the commander as the two shook hands warmly. Chamberlin did not meet Byrd and his companions until all were gathered at the luncheon, and where all of them were lined up by the numerous photographers.

The possibility of serious injuries to Byrd and Acosta in their landing in the sea Friday morning, was a source of official worry until the X-ray pictures were taken at the American hospital.

Acosta Is Stoical.

In spite of the unconcern with which the stoic Asocta has gone about his vigorous hand shaking ceremonies ever since the arrival of the America on French soil at Ver-Sur-Mer, the X-ray this afternoon disclosed that he had suffered a fractured collar bone from his impact with the side of the plane when it landed in the water.

Commander Byrd, while not having any broken bones, suffered bruises.

BYRD RECOVERS DATA HE THOUGHT LOST

PARIS, July 2. (AP)—En route to Paris today from Caen Commander Richard E. Byrd found to his happy surprise that most of his charts and important records of his trans-Atlantic flight were among the articles that were saved from the trans-Atlantic plane America yesterday morning after the landing at Ver-Sur-Mer.

The discovery came when Commander Byrd and his three companions got together on the train and inspected what they had salvaged from the plane.

TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIER GIVES FLAG TO FRANCE

PARIS, July 2. (AP)—Commander Richard E. Byrd today presented to President Domergue of France a copy of the first American flag made by a great-grand niece of Betsy Ross which he carried with him on his trans-Atlantic flight from the United States and had salvaged from the wrecked America.

The flag, at the request of Rodman Wanamaker, sponsor of the flight, will be consecrated at the tomb of Lafayette and will then be taken back to Independence hall, Philadelphia, as a memorial to the friendship between France and the United States.

BYRD WILL BE GIVEN U. S. FLYING CROSS

WASHINGTON, July 2. (AP)—Award of the distinguished flying cross to Commander Byrd will be recommended to President Coolidge by Secretary Wilbur. In addition Secretary Wilbur said he would see what could be done to take official cognizance of the part played in the trans-Atlantic flight by Byrd's three companions.

The flying cross, the highest American aviation award, was given to Lindbergh and to the pan-American god will fliers. It can not be given to civilian fliers.

SOUVENIR HUNTERS DO DAMAGE TO "AMERICA"

PARIS, July 2. (AP)—The trans-Atlantic plane America suffered severely from souvenir hunters at Ver-Sur-Mer and H. A. Gibbons, personal representative of Rodman Wanamaker, sponsor of the flight, announced this afternoon that it will be removed shortly to a hangar at Cherbourg. Plans for the future use of the huge plane have not been decided on.

Commander Byrd today expressed unwillingness to speculate as to how many miles he actually flew in the 42 hours between Roosevelt field and Ver-Sur-Mer. He said that his data would not justify his making a statement on the point.

BYRD PLANS FLIGHT OVER SOUTH POLE

PARIS, July 2. (AP)—"I expect to fly over the South Poleand Noville and Balchen will be with me" Commander Richard E. Byrd said this afternon.

"My Plans are not yet complete and I cannot announce when we will start," he added.

When asked where he would take off he said it must be from the great ice pack sout hof New the great ice pack south of New great bit of ice from which to start."

The southern half of the Pond Creek school district was added to the Iowa Park district and the northern portion to the Weeth district.

Bids for $20,000 worth of school bonds voted by the Valley View school district for the erection of an addition to the Valley View school house were rejected as being too low by the board on recommendation of Mr. Bryant. The highest bid was par, accrued interest and a premium of $13.

DEATH AUTO'S DRIVER JAILED

Paris, Texas, Wreck Ends In Murder Charges

PARIS, Texas, July 2.(AP)—Mrs. Lillian Vaught, 18, of Talco, and her 13 months old daughter, Linda Jane Vaught, were killed Saturday when their automobile overturned four miles north of Paris. Gordon Vaught, the woman's husband, was painfully injured.

Vernon Riddle, a neighbor of the Vaughts, who was driving, was arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated, and of murder in connection with the two deaths. Riddle, severely bruised and cut, is in the county jail here and his bond has been set at $1000 on each of the three charges. He waived preliminary hearing on the charges.

The party was on the way from Talco in Titus county, to Wilson, Okla. The automobile turned over at the side of the road after it had left the highway 200 yards back.

Mrs. Vaught received a fatal blow on the head, but it is believed the baby was smothered beneath the wreckage.

JOHN DEMPSEY KILLS HIS WIFE

Brother of Former Champ Kills Self, Too

By Universal Service.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 2.—John Dempsey, 38-year-old brother of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, died by his own hand here today after killing his young wife, Edna Carlow Dempsey.

The tragedy occurred in an Emmett street rooming house and was witnessed by the wife's sister, Elsie Carlow. Mrs. Dempsey's refusal to affect a reconciliation is thought to have caused the shooting.

"I was there but could not help my sister," said Miss Carlow. "She and her husband came into the room together. I came in about the same time. A few unimportant words passed between them.

"I heard my sister tell John to go away and let her do her work. She turned her back and John made for her. Edna seemed to sense danger, for she turned around again quickly. Then John fired.

Feared Her Husband

"I screamed and ran down the stairs. And as I was running, I heard one or two more shots. My sister had been afraid of her husband since they had lived in California and he had stabbed her on one occasion."

Jack Dempsey, in training at White Sulphur Springs, N. Y., for his coming come-back fight with Jack Sharkey, is said to have been stunned by the news of the tragedy.

He is coming here to take charge of his brother's body and may take a few days off from his training.

Mrs. Dempsey was 21 years old, the daughter of William Carlow of this place. There was one small daughter.

Estranged from his wife for some time, Dempsey had located her here living with her father, sister and child. For two weeks he had paid her frequent visits, presumably to persuade her to go back to him.

William Carlow, Mrs. Dempsey's father and a toolmaker with the General Electric company, said that on one such visit Dempsey had threatened to kill his wife. Carlow had taken the threat seriously and had urged his daughter not to see Dempsey any more unless he were present.

Visit of Death

The fatal visit was made while the father was at work today. They chatted awhile on a bench in the front yard of the rooming house and then went upstairs where the tragedy occurred.

According to Mrs. Frank Prievo, who conducts the rooming house, Mrs. Dempsey had been rooming there since May and had tried to keep her whereabouts a secret from her husband.

"When Mrs. Dempsey came here, she told me something of her domestic troubles and expressed the opinion that if her husband learned where she was he would take her life," said Mrs. Prievo.

"Dempsey first came here about a week ago. At first his wife refused to see him, but later reconsidered and he had been here every day since then.

"This morning Mrs. Dempsey met him at the front door and they talked a while. They did not seem to be quarreling. They went upstairs and I heard three shots in quick succession.

Baby in Room

"At that time little Bruce, the Dempsey baby was with them and so was Elsie Carlow, Mrs. Dempsey's 13-year-old sister. After the shots, Elsie ran down the stairs screaming, 'My God, John shot my sister.'

"My Plane and I—

FROM THE LIPS OF LINDY HIMSELF"

By WILLIAM HILLMAN.
(Copyright, 1927, By King Features Syndicate)

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

Lindy had known the mob in bygone days as a stunt flyer. He knew the mob as something to be amused, to be thrilled. He had known crowds that cheered for no other reason than that they were enjoying some good stunt, some spectacle that afforded them diversion.

It was difficult for him to realize that the mobs of France, Belgium, England and America were cheering him as something akin to a god for a miracle perfomed that brought more than diversion to them. Emotion is a stranger to Lindy. Emotion in a mob an unfathomable thing.

I have said that sometimes Lindy seemed to realize that people were exulting not only because of him personally but because of some faith they had in humanity, because in his deed they saw the promise of greater deeds to be done.

But Lindy never did show that he realized the tears at the heart of the acclaim, the stirring depths that were awakened by his performance and by his modesty.

Like a Celebration.

"This is like a fourth of July celebration" was Lindy's remark as every little village and hamlet along the Patomac and Washington cheered and boomed and saluted him as he returned to the United States on the Memphis.

"I'd like to steal up the river in a boat and watch it all. Gee, it would be great fun," he said.

Washington was on holiday. The people were not cheering him. The crowd was out having a good time. It was tough being on the bridge of a cruiser when one could get a better view of the picture looking at the cruiser.

These were the thoughts passing through Lindy's mind. He could not envisage himself as the sole stimulus of the acclaim. He could not realize that he alone was the cause of the holiday. He remembered the county fair crowds and the circus crowds who came out to see the stunts and the girls and the blooded stock.

Lindy took his work more seriously than he took himself. Lucky for the world when heroes of Lindy's trait are acclaimed for they ask for no tribute, for no contribution, for no wars and glory that have made the world wonder if some heroes are not tragic luxuries to have; perhaps in years to come, Lindy may rightly appraise the depths of emotion of the mob that greeted him at Le Bourget. How was he to know that when they kissed him, when they shouldered him and carried him around in frenzy that they were shaken to the very corners of that vague thing, their souls.

How was he to know that in him France was remembering their "Charlot" Nungesser when they hailed him that night as "Charlot, Charlot, Charles Lindbergh."

Hardest Part of Trip

I asked him what he thought of that night's reception.

"It was great, but I didn't know as the crowd kept milling whether I was expected to start milling myself," he sid. "It was the hardest part of the trip. Somebody shit me on the head. Some were pulling me one way, some another way. I wondered what I was supposed to do, and when it was going to end and whether I was supposed to end it myself."

How was a lad who sat through 33 and a half hours of gruelling flying, who hated emotional scenes and who thought of nothing but his work, look upon that demonstration in any other way than that?

Later something of the meaning began to dawn on him.

"They kissed me in Paris," he said. "They seranaded me in Brussels. But they pinched me in London."

Perhaps he understood the kissing. But what was the idea of the pinching? Did he have to be pinched by people to prove to them he was alive and real.

The crowds that worshipped Lindy remained alien to him.

Characteristically, he found the crowds in Brussels more to his liking. On his arrival at the Bejgian capital he found the entire city out to greet him. But the crowd was never in a position to kiss him, to put their hands on him, or make it uncomfortable for him. Strong picket fences held them back, and two crack regiments of infantry, the king's own, frowned on any attempt to go beyond the marked line of the field. And flemish mood is slow to fire, slow as Lindy's own mood. But in 24 hours this flemish mob was to follow him through the streets singing.

He's No Bull Fighter

The funiest incident in the whole celebration to Lindy was the band marching at the head of a column leading Lindy to one of the receptions.

The band played the "Toreador," air from "Carmen." "I'm no bull fighter," he told me later.

Lindy was no conqueror needing the trappings of silk and the crowds acclaim to cheer him one, like a bull-fighter. He would have preferred to be without the acclaim.

London taught him again the mult of the mob.

"I never expected London to greet me as it did," he said. "I had always thought Englishmen were reserved."

He was expressing the same thought General Fitzpatric, a noted English soldier, voiced to me after the scene at Croydon:

"Good Lord, we have become an emotional people."

Phlegmatic Britishers, more than 150,000 of them, cast all reserve to the wind when Lindy landed. As his plane swooped down the crowd swept forward, a seething flood of uncontrallable humanity. Fences crumpled. Automobiles were overrun, bicycles smashed, men and women trampled upon. Many fainted.

And the official reception committee, just like the official reception committee at Le Bourget—but tophatted and formally garbed—was swept off its feet.

And more astounding—the English mob, always heedful of the command of the police—how else could London policemen go without revolvers or clubs—thumb their noses to those guardians of the law and swept by them. The police fought with the mob which threatened to become "ugly," but in vain.

Someone snatched the flying helmet from Lindy's head. Lindy got mad.

Lindy Gets Sore.

"No more helmets will be stolen from me hereafter" he said to me later. "Anny one who gets my helmet will have to fight."

Later Lindy said:

"Croydon was a lot worse than Le Bourget— or shall I say 'better.' Were there any police on the job? I don't believe it."

How Lindy admired the New York and Washington and St. Louis police. Nobody could pass them to pinch or kiss him or snatch his helmet.

If the people were to have their circus, he was willing to join in the fun, but he didn't like to be patted on the back either too lovingly or too roughly.

Lindy however was in for a new experience in the United States—that of shaking hands. Shaking hands in Europe was not such an unpleasant task — But shaking hands in America left him weak.

He got his first taste of communal American handshaking on the Memphis. One hour after boarding the cruiser and shaking hands with the officers, he said:

"I'm through shaking hands. I forgot what an American handshake was like. I can't open my hands. They are sore now. I'll be a cripple if I start shaking hands in America.

Lucky Lindy! If the mob forgets him, he will not suffer greatly. He did not understand the mob when it cheered him. And Lindy has his work.

Trans-Atlantic Fliers In Reunion

It was at Bremen, Germany, that Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, who flew from New York to Kotibus, Germany, the longest non-stop flight on record, were reunited with their wives who followed them by steamship. The picture shows the happy couples being cheered by a vociferous crowd immediately after the arrival of Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine.

$4000 LOOT IN PAYROLL RAID

Bandit Trio "Lift Roll" From Paymaster

BOGALUSA, La., July 2. (AP)—Three unidentified men held up the paymaster of the Great Southern Lumber company here this morning and escaped with $4000. Robert Magee, the paymaster, was preparing to take an automobile to the Mississippi logging camp.

Another paymaster, Frank Walsh, was a short distance behind Magee with the $4500 payroll of the Bogalusa Turpentine company. When he saw what was taking place he tossed his satchel into a hedge.

Walter McKean, taxi driver, first encountered the bandits as he drove up to the office of the company. He was covered by one of the bandits. Then Magee approached and he was covered by another.

The car in which the men escaped was later found to have been stolen last night. The men wore the garb of mill workers, their faces were masked and their caps were pulled over their ears and jackets around their necks.

A few minutes after the holdup a dozen cars with heavily armed men started to scour the surrounding territory.

MEDALS GIVEN FOR SHERIFFS

Officers Recognized For Repulsing Mob

ALEXANDER, La., July 2. (AP) Medals for the prevention of a lynching here Feb. 1, 1926, will be presented to U. T. Downs, Rapides parish sheriff, and W. G. Penney, jailer, tomorrow at the Emmanuel Baptist church. The medals were awarded the Southern commission inter-racial cooperation for saving Joe Hardy, alleged negro slayer, from a mob while the negro was held as a prisoner in the Rapides parish.

When a crowd of men appeared at the jail and demanded the prisoner, Sheriff Downs refused to surrender him, replying: "You may kill some of my deputies and myself, but we will get some of you while you are doing it."

The commission awarding the medal is composed of Governor John W. Martin of Florida; Hugh M. Dorsey of Georgia; Marshall Ballard of Louisiana; George B. Dealey of Dallas; the late Governor Henry Whitfield of Mississippi and Mrs. J. H. McCoy of Alabama.

In telling of the capture, Sheriff Melton declared that it was "luck." Local officers did not agree with the Knox county officer on this point.

"They had the advantage of us until we found them and then, fortunately, we held the advantage," he said.

Sheriff Melton told The Record News of the thrilling chase and capture as follows:

"I was preparing to accompany a private detective to Vera on a case when the report of the bank robbery came in. The detective offered his services and I sent him out on a road the robbers could follow out of Truscott and then I started for the scene of the robbery.

"We were there in 17 minutes from the time of starting and found the little town in a turmoil. A curious crowd was in the bank and many citizens had already started out in search of the bandits. I listened to a few details and then Mr. Williams and I took the trail.

Officer Taken For Bandit

"Not many miles from Truscott we were delayed by a group of citizens searching for the robbers. Those men do not know yet what danger they were in. They mistook us for the bandits and drove from the road to ambush us. When they left the road we decided they were the fgultives and Mr. Williams sent a rifle ball in their direction. Luckily we got together without further firing and I advised them to go back to town.

"We had been delayed nearly an hour but shortly after starting again the trail began to get hot. We left our car at a ranch house, mounted horses and struck out for the Wichita river brakes.

"The robbers' car was found in a canyon with the steering wheel apparently having been removed. Mr. Williams and I rode on up the river until we came to a horseshoe bend.

Men Well Armed

"We felt that we were near the men and were riding along at the river's edge when we saw two men lying in a small grou: d sink across the stream from us. A small bunch of cattle saved us here because the two men said later they thought we were cowmen driving the cattle.

"Circling the bend in the river we approached Burgess and Watson from the other side. Watson was sitting up watching with a six-shooter at his belt and a sawed off shotgun at his side. Burgess was lying down. At his side were a six-shooter and a 25-20 rifle.

"Mr. Williams, my companion whom I had never seen before, proved his mettle when we rode up. The men were ordered to throw up their hands. Watson glanced at us, then at his guns. Taking a second look down the barrels of our guns 'he clawed the air.'

"Burgess was dozing, he told us later, and did not hear us. Finally waking up he turned over, which separated him from his weapons. He scanned the situation and raised his hands inch by inch, as though hoping for a break of some kind, until his arms were as straight as he could make them.

"Mr. Williams levelled his gun on the men while I dismounted and took their weapons. From then on it was easy.

Burgess "Jolly Fellow"

"Burgess proved to be a jolly fellow but his younger companion does not take his plight so lightly. No matter how serious a question is asked Burgess his replies are ridiculous and often amusing. Watson has had little to say.

"In jail that night Burgess was asked if a woman had been with them at Truscott to which he made an off-hand answer. Later another prisoner read a newspaper account of an Oklahoma robbery in which there was a woman and two men.

"After the item was read, Burgess said, 'That was us and we had an awful fight after that job.'

"'Fighting over the money'," he was asked.

"'H—— no. We were fighting over that woman. Anybody can get money but few men can get the woman he wants.'

"Some one asked him how he came by a gash over his eye.

"'I had an argument in Amarillo and argued just two minutes too long,' he said with a laugh."

Sheriff Melton stated that relatives of either of the men have not as yet been located. Clues, however, which may lead to the locating of relatives or close friends have been picked up he said.

Now compare this Loan Ghost that stalks the dreams of every LUMP SUM debtor with the safe and easy North Texas Building and Loan Association's Plan of Home Financing.

A North Texas Loan, in the accepted sense of the word, NEVER COMES DUE. A loan on our plan kills itself off by easy monthly payments which cover both interest and principal and usually amount to less than rent. We make these easy monthly payment loans to home builders and home buyers. If you have a LUMP SUM LOAN coming due we will pay it off and finance your home on our plan. SPORTING NEWS — THE RECORD NEWS — FIRST ACCURATE COMPLETE

RUNYON SAYS

Cry From the West— Was Grand Occasion— Boxing Just So-So— Chance For Tunney—

By DAMON RUNYON.

"Hey!" cries my famous west coast operative, T-69, otherwise Mr. Hap O'Connor, "Hey, there, Mister, don't you think it is about time California got a little of that Lindbergh publicity?

"Where was Lindy's plane built? I ask you WHERE? Wasn't it out here in Southern California—in San Diego, to be exact? And where did Lindbergh flight start? I ask you again, wasn't it from Southern California? Is there some prejudice back there in the East against giving us what is coming to us? Have a heart!"

Having relieved his patriotic feelings, Mr. O'Connor discourses on other events out yonder in the Land of Always Afternoon. He presents a report on one matter that will be of deep interest to the citizens of the Roaring Forties, which is the benefit for "Turkey Mike" Donlin, the old slugger of the National League.

Mike has been out in Los Angeles for several years working in the pictures with no little success. Then he came upon a streak of bad luck in the form of a protracted illness. It was characteristic of "Turkey Mike" that he never suggested to any of his friends that the old bank roll might be a little thin, but some one got an inkling to that effect, whereupon steps were taken immediately to fatten it up.

Jack Barrymore, the actor, an old-time friend and admirer of Donlin, headed a committee that included all the celebrities in cinemaland, and that launched a testimonial which Mr. O'Connor tells me produced over $10,000.

"I NEVER saw so many screen stars assembled in one group in my life," reports Mr. O'Connor. "I'll bet the monthly payroll of that gang that participated in the minstrel first part is close to a million bucks.

"Charley Murray was master of ceremonies, and some of the others in it were Douglas Fairbanks, Reginald Denny, Tom Mix, John Barrymore, Jack Mulhall, Monte Blue, Douglas McLean, Kenneth Harland and Buster Keaton. They faced the audience for over an hour.

"Julian Eltinge went over to Dick Ferris' room at the Biltmore in his feminine make-up after the show and several of Dick's old cronies who were sitting in with him on a bottle of Apollinaris stopped telling those stories, thinking the skirts were on the level.

"Senator Wild Will Lyons is stopping at the Biltmore, and you can hear him broadcasting far out to sea. Mr. Jim Woods and Mr. Charley Baad, of the Biltmore, have requested the police authorities to cage the tame squirrels in the park across the way during the Senator's stay in the city, as the little creatures crowd around the hotel entrances and scare the women guests. They are looking for the Senator.

"By the way, I am promoting a non-stop flight from San Francisco to Honolulu. I must raise $25,000 for the plane, and Harry Pollock has promised to be one of my backers and contribute the first $10. I will make the trip myself with a pilot. I do not know why I wish to make a non-stop flight to Honolulu."

"The boxing game is just so-so out here," continues Mr. O'Connor, who wields a wicked typewriter once he gets going. "The Hollywood arena is still packing 'em in, but business at the Olympic, the big club of the town, is only fair. Lou Daro is going big with his wrestling shows.

"The sport public out here is keen for almost any diversion nowadays. I regret to report that the reformers of Long Beach have stopped the good old pastime of horseshoe pitching on Sunday. Well, maybe it did tend to corrput the public morals, at that.

"I saw George Young ,the seventeen-year-old Toronto boy who won Mr. Wrigley's $25,000 Catalina swim last January and then dropped right out of the picture. He walks up and down Broadway and nobody gives him a tumble. Such is fame! When he arrived in town there was no reception for him at the depot, and even you could get that.

"Young tells me he will leave here about the middle of June for Toronto to take part in the $50,000 marathon swim that they are pulling off there. Right now he is in training at Santa Monica. The Toronto swim takes place July 31, as I understand it. Young has some dates in between and will finish up his training at Glen Island, Canada. The Toronto marathon takes place on Lake Ontario.

"Byron Summers, of Alameda, Calif., who chopped three hours off Young's Catalina record, will be in the Toronto race, and the duel between Summers and Young ought to be worth watching. Young hasn't given Summers much thought, probably figuring that as he beat him once he can beat him again.

"Young's manager, a chap named O'Byrne, says his man is in great condition and is a one to two shot to grab the $30,000 that goes to the winner of the Toronto race. The balance of the $50,000 purse goes to the next three to finish."

Mr. O'Connor seems to be in strangely optimistic mood these days. He suggests a match between Mr. Gene Tunney and the terrible Sharkey man of Boston would be a great thing for Los Angeles when the Pacific fleet gets to port out there.

Possibly Mr. O'Connor hasn't heard that the terrible Sharkey man has a prior engagement with Mr. Jack Dempsey, a fellow citizen of Mr. O'Connor's. There is about as much chance of Mr. Tunney meeting the terrible Sharkey man in Los Angeles as there is of Mr. O'Connor making that nonstop flight to Honolulu.

Mr. O'Connor argues that the match would be what they call a natural in Los Angeles. There will be 20,000 sailors in the offing when the fleet reaches port, and as Mr. Tunney is an ex-leatherneck and the terrible Sharkey man an ex-gob, Mr. O'Connor figures that the rivalry between the sailors and marines would lure them all to the arena.

I have no doubt he is correct. But when the terrible Sharkey man and Mr. Tunney meet it will be for a purse approximating $750,000, and my confidence in the perspicacity of the citizens of Los Angeles is such that I doubt they will ever give that much.

GEHRIG SHOWS WAY WITH BAT

Harris, Waner, Frisch Neck And Neck in Nat'l

CHICAGO, July 2. (AP)—The first official week of summer and some genuine hot weather pitching sifted out from the major league batters a few aspiring youngsters and the same old veterans who have carved their names at the top for many years. Columbia Lou Gehrig, who has caught up with his famous team mate, Babe Ruth, in home runs, today leads the American league in batting, too, in averages including games of Wednesday.

The list of ten leading batters today runs from young Lou to Old Zack Wheat, with four youngsters topping six veterans in the select group. Wally Schang of St. Louis slumped badly and so the league lost its only .400 hitter.

Wheat, one of Connie Mack's heirlooms, edged out Bob Fothergill of Detroit and Babe Ruth, after 11 weeks' effort, moved up into the first ten in place of Pat Collins, the Yankee backstop.

In Gehrig's last eight games, he poled out 13 safe hits, six of them home runs, and he is just one tally behind Ruth in runs scored with 68. Although Frisch beat Gehrig to the century mark in hits, Frankie is below Gehrig's batting mark.

Dutch Reuther's mark of seven games won and one lost, gives the Yankee flinger the best percentage of the American league pitchers, but there are fixe flingers in double figures for victories. Ted Lyons of the White Sox has the most, 13, with his buddy, Al Thomas next with 11.

Burns Leads in Doubles

George Burns, Cleveland first sacker who holds the record for two baggers at 59, got four of his special drives this week and with 27 to date has a good chance to boost his mark this year.

Oscar Bluege of Washington has caught Goose Goslin, the league's leading base stealer, who has failed to connect for some time. They are tied now at 10 with several others, including George Sisler, close up at nine.

Leading American league hitters: Gehrig, New York, .383; Simmons, Philadelphia, .380; Meusel, New York, .377; Dykes, Philadelphia, .377; Cobb, Philadelphia, .369; Schang, St. Louis, .368; Heilmann, Detroit, .358; E. Miller, St. Louis, .356; Ruth, New York, .354; Wheat Philadelphia, .353.

Improved pitching has swept through the batting percentages of the National leaguers, and though the same Pirate trio, Harris, Barnhart and Paul Waner—are still leading the league, their figures today are some 20 points lower than last week.

Joe Harris leads the trio today and right on the heels of the three Pirate musketeers is Frankie Frisch, the former Giant who was traded to St. Louis for Rogers Hornsby equalled Lou Gehrig's performance of 13 hits in eight games, but there were not so many for extra bases. Frankie added two doubles, three triples, and four stolen bases to his string this week.

Farrell Passes Hornsby

Another ex-Giant, Farrell, the shortstop McGraw traded off to Boston, passed Hornsby this week for fifth place in the ten leading hitters with a nine point gain.

Pie Traynor dropped out of the big ten, Scott, the Cubs fly chaser displacing him for last place. Kiki Cuyler, long the leading base stealer, is far in the ruck this year, Frisch's score of 22 being seven better than the Pittsburghers.

Lee Meadows' mark of ten victories and only two defeats gives him the foremost place among the National league pitchers, though both Jess Haines of the Cardinals and Charley Root of the Cubs have won more games. Root has credit for 13 wins and Haines for 12.

Hack Wilson's 15 home runs is high mark in the National league with Hornsby only one behind. Three others are in double figures in the four base specialty, Earl Webb of Chicago, Cy Williams of the Phillies and Zeb Terry of New York.

Leading hitters of the National league: Harris, Pittsburgh, .395; Barnhart, Pittsburgh, 392; P. Waner, Pittsburgh, .390; Frisch, St. Louis, .384; Farrell, Boston, .384; Hornsby, New York, .375; Mueller, New York, .370; Harper, New York, .361; Southworth, St. Louis, .357; F. Scott, Chicago, .342.

Big Tilts Today In Cotton Oil League

Cotton-Oil league clubs clash again Sunday afternoon in four sectors with every game looming as a humdinger.

Probably the most interesting melee will be staged at Burkburnett where the Burk Humble tangles with the league-leading Tipton club.

Quite a bit of rivalry will be displayed at the Iowa Park-Electra game at Electra.

The rejuvenated Grandfield club tackles Frederick at Frederick and Davidson pays Chillicothe at Chillicothe.

Veteran Hurlers Are Having Tough Time Keeping on Top

Seven of Ten Leading Pitchers Are Moundsmen Not Considered for 1927

By ROY GROVE

Unless you are one of those baseball fans who [illegible] your box scores with [illegible] coffee each morning [illegible] [illegible]p books on the doings of the athletes you can hardly be anything but partially shocked when you glance over the pitching American league these days.

HERB PENNOCK

WALTER DUTCH RUETHER

The hurling greats of other seasons are having a tough time of it this year keeping their names reasonably close to top of the head.

Where such names as Johnson, Coveleskie, Pennock, Jones, Shawkey, Rommel, Shocker, Uhle, Zachary, and others have been prominent in seasons gone by, you find such names as Lyons, Stoner, Thomas, Hudlin, Stewart and Lisenbee.

Of the ten leading pitchers in the American circuit, after a third of the schedule had been played, seven are men who were hardly slated to give the veterans of the league a strenuous battle for pitching honors.

The only stars of other years who are challenging the right of the newcomers to rule the pitching roost are Waite Hoyt, Dutch Ruether and Herb Pennock, and, oddly enough, all three are members of the New York Yankees.

There is some reason for Lyons of the White Sox, who is in his fifth year, and Stoner, wh ois serving his fourth season with Detroit, being up in the race, for both have been considered promising youngsters for some time.

But it certainly is a surprise for the Thomases, Myles of New York and Alphonse of Chicago, Willis Hudlin of Cleveland Horace Lisenbee of Washington and Walter Stewart of St. Louis to persist in hanging close to the top.

WAITE HOYT

This is the second season for the Thomas boys in the big show while both worked in enough games a year ago to get beyond the trial stage, most of their efforts were in the role of relief pitchers; neither showed enough form to warrant the prediction they would be among the elite at this stage of the race.

When you stop to consider that five of the 10 leading hurlers of the circuit are boys enjoying their first season as regulars, you know why some of the old-timers are beginning to worry about their jobs.

The five young hurlers listed among the 19 leaders boast a winning average of .730, as compared with a mark of .794 for the five veterans.

The two Thomases, Hudlin, Lisenbee and Stewart chalked up 34 victories in their first 46 games, while Lyons, Stoner, Pennock Hoyt and Ruether won 39 of their 49 games. Which, we would say, doesn't speak so badly for the youngsters of the league.

SPUDDERS BILL BRACE SUNDAY

Saturday Games Rained Out in Shreveport

The Spudders of Wichita Falls after being rained out Friday in Beaumont, picked up and ran over to Shreveport for the opening of a two-day stand in the Louisiana balliwick. But is wasn't of much use, for J. Pluve followed them across the state line and caught them in the first inning of the first game of a would-be double header.

With the score 1 to 0, Spudders, the game was called because of rain. As a result, the Spudders, unable to trim the Sports yesterday, are carded for a double header Sunday afternoon in the Shreveport park. First game starts at 2:30, Louisiana time, which is supposed to be the same as Texas' but usually isn't.

Who'll Mr. Williams pitch today? Well, that's a hard schuffle. Unless something goes wrong like maybe the wet weather has injured some arms, it looks like Mr. M. Steengrafe and J. Kiefer with Tom Estell as another possibility.

Two days of rest should have put the flingers in fairly fair condition, as it were, several of them until recently being under the water a bit from getting kicked over and then having to work out of turn.

Wichita Falls moves over to Fort Worth Monday for just another double header. That's four games in two days. Plenty of action there and exercise.

Prexy J. A. Gardner has reserved 500 seats for Wichita Falls fans in the Cowtown park, affording ample seating capacity for the host of fans who plan journeying to Fort Worth tomorrow to see the Independence day encounters. Monday affords the home guard the first opportunity in two weeks to see the Spudders play. The next chance will come Saturday when Mr. Williams and his men return home. Two games in Shreveport today, two in Fort Worth Monday and then a back-and-forth dilly-dally between Fort Worth and Dallas until the week-end skirmishes here.

Secretary Guy Airey will be in the lobby of the Texas hotel Monday morning with Spudder fan reservations for the Monday games, according to Gardner.

CUBS MOVE UP

CHICAGO, July 2. (AP)—Chicago moved into second place in the National league pennant race today when they defeated the world champion Cardinals 7 to 4. After the visitors had tied the count in the seventh inning by driving Blake off the hill, the Cubs came back strong in their half, staging a rally which gave them four runs to win. Score:

PIRATES 7; CINCINNATI 6.

PITTSBURGH, July 2. (AP)—Late inning rallies, climaxed by Barnhart's homer with Traynor on base in the ninth, gave Pittsburgh a thrilling 7 to 6 win over Cincinnati today. Heinie Groh, former big leaguer, making his first appearance as a Pirate, got two single and scored a run. Already badly crippled the Pirates were further weakened when George Grantham, second baseman, was forced to retire from the game in the fourth with an injured leg. Score:

THE WEEK'S SCHEDULE

Friday: Continental versus Panhandle.

By MACK TURNER

The Twilight league race has been taking on a distinct division between the former city leaguers and the pioneer clubs of the twilight league. The old-timers have been working their way through the ranks and pulling off from the other three teams with regularity.

* * *

The much talked of attendance race in the league that is being well sponsored by Leon Horn has been running for a good while now and the race is begining to take form. With the first two weeks of the race back in the rear we find the standings on the attendance race as follows: Muny Gassers 124 points, Texas Electrics 106 points, Jackson Tire 98 points, Panhandle 88, Scotland Plumbers 79, Conocos 63.

* * *

The Muny Gassers have played before more people in the league for the last half than any other team but they are being closely pressed by two other teams in the Texas Electrics and Jackson Tire. If the race works out well enough the winner may be given a good prize for their work in boosting the crowds at the park.

* * *

"Every ticket sold is a quarter gained." This is the motto of League Collector Horn as he boosts the atendance race at the Twilight league. The figures next week may show something worth while.

* * *

In compiling the Twilight league batting averages for the last half race thus far we found several things of interest to the fans. For instance, the Scotland Plumbers had played two games at the time the averages were made out. They scored two runs in the first game and they were blanked in the second. They made one hit in each game and Walsh was the man who got that hit in each instance. One man on the ball team hitting .333 and not another man on the whole team with even a base hit.

* * *

Curly Christian should by all the rights of the game be termed as the best stealer in the league. Speck Roberts has two bases lead over Christian but he had them at the end of the first half. Curly swiped a grand total of seven bases in three games while Speck Roberts had stole nine in about 10 games.

* * *

Coyal Francis is still being told from all angles of the day he was able to step out and slap six for six. This young gentleman has been told of this often when he is on the field playing. Do it once and they will expect it every time.

* * *

Strikeout records are being set up fast in the past week. Wednesday afternoon Joe Randolph went to the relief of McDuffy who turned up wild and six men faced him in one and two-thirds innings. He fanned five of the six that faced him. He went in with the bases full and one out to turn this trick.

* * *

Lefty Marvin Robertson came right back Friday afternoon and fanned 13 men with a sensational ninth inning finish. With the tying run on second base and one out in the last ininng, Robertson faned Long Tom Hall and Fishy Stone with apparent ease and then made the next man fly to left.

* * *

There was an abundance of home runs knocked in the old city league, but they have been unable to hit them out of the lot in the twilight league as yet. Only two home runs have been slapped out this year in the Twilight league and Riley Rawls and Jud Waller have the honors of hitting this pair.

BLACK SPORTS WIN

The Black Sports of Shreveport defeated the Wichita Falls Black Spudders Saturday afternoon at Spudder park, 5 to 4. The Shreveport team had the Spudders blanked until the eighth when they went off into a hard rally.

The second game of the series is scheduled for Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The same teams play at Spudder park again Monday at 4 o'clock.

TIGERS 6; INDIANS 1.

CLEVELAND, July 2. (AP)—The Tigers made a clean sweep of their series with the Indians when they grabbed the seventh consecutive victory, the 11th in the last 12 starts, 6 to 1, here today. Willard Hudlin, a Tiger nemesis all season, was batted from the box in the sixth. He had turned the visitors back in good order for four and one-third innings, but was pounced upon for three hits and the same number of runs n the fifth. When the Tigers started at him again in the sixth Miller was sent in.

MIKE REED TO BATTLE GOTCH

15-Round Boxing Bout On Mat Card Thursday

THE CARD

Mike Reed, Los Angeles, versus Young Gotch, Dallas. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Henry Riley, Wichita Falls, versus Dick Boyd, Wichita Falls. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Fighting Sam, Wichita Falls, versus Black Dummy, Fort Worth. Negro welterweights, 15 rounds boxing.

Dempsey Moore, Wichita Falls, versus George Carpenter, Kansas City. Light heavyweights, six rounds boxing.

Olin Hearn, Wichita Falls, versus Sailor Hilliard, Burkburnett. Welterweights, six rounds boxing.

Time: 8 o'clock, Tuesday night. Place: Ross stadium.

Mat fans and leather enthusiasts alike may cop their fill Thursday eve at the Ross stadium, take it from Matchmaker A. B. Ross, who has lined up a combination wrestling-boxing card. Of such length is the program that the show is to start earlier, being called for 8 o'clock sharp.

Mike Reed of Los Angeles, rugged welter who beat the hard-fighting little Jack Gorman at San Angelo last year in a bitter struggle, who has taken the speedy Basanta Singh's measure, beat Yaqui Joe and who not so long ago scared Matty Satsuda out of Los Angeles, makes his Wichita Falls debut.

Reed comes with the spacific purpose, so he is quoted as having said, of "picking up some of the easy money in this section and chasing Matsuda and Gorman out of their home country."

Reed was matched with Matsuda in Los Angeles about four months ago and the Jap ran out on him. Gorman has been yelping for another fling at Reed ever since he got beat in San Angelo last year. Reed says, "Give me the Jap in there and after I beat him I'll take on all-comers, including Gorman, but not until then." The Californian was told that Matsuda is not available, but he declared he would invade this section, anyhow, in hopes of stirring up a bout with the Jap or Reynolds, or both, for that matter.

The sturdy Young Gotch notices no danger signs hanging out on Reed, so he was given first whack at the invader.

The two black fistic favorites, Dummy and Sam, return in a 15-round battle which Sam declares is the same as saying "finish match." Sam has been training earnestly ever since Dummy took off a shade decision over him here two weeks ago and avers he'll knock the other black boy sky-winding.

Dempse, Moore, somewhat of a favorite, comes back against the tough Carpenter.

Olin Hearn, who has been knocking 'em over right and left, meets probably his stiffest adversary yet in Sailor Hilliard.

Holiday Matches At Country Club

A gala golfer's Fourth of July is scheduled for the Country club links Monday with Scotch foursome coming back into vogue Monday morning and a kickers' handicap tournament on the bill for the afternoon, announces Club Pro Bill Strachan.

Just the ordinary run of play is the order of things at the Muny club with no tournament or anything special on the card, J. T. Yeargin said.

The first nine holes of the Country club will be open for play Monday, Strachan said. This nine has been under repair.

Twilight Cards Holiday Double Headers

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By Blondy Cross.

YOU DID, DIDCHA

If they don't split the season and beat them out, they'll just run the legs off them, anyhow, the way these double headers are stacking up on the Spudders.

* * *

Four games in two days. That's one quick route either to get away up there or come on back down in a hurry.

* * *

Wichita Falls leads the league by a four-game margin this morning. Waco apparently unable to lose. But should the Spudders knock over the Sports Sunday afternoon in both ends of a double-header and Waco come up on the short end of its score, you'll be able to hear that split season wail down in Fort Worth all of the 121 miles up there.

* * *

There's a laugh and there's a touch of pathos to this twist of fortune that has caused Fort Worth, for years ardent anti-split nominee for the Texas league championship, to switch around on the other side and enthusiastically advocate a divided race.

* * *

You can hear those Fort Worth sports writers cry and you almost can feel Jake Aaz's tears flooding up around your shoe tops. "They useta split it on us; now they oughta let us split on them."

* * *

They may split it on us, but the chances are good that they won't. Anyhow, there's no need to weep over the milk before it is sipped and there is no certainty Birmingham will win the Dixie series, says Harry Huggins, and that's so much of that.

* * *

Furthermore, what's that go to do with whether or not Pete and Clete, the grab-and-grunt gentry, merely put on a show for the crowd here the other night or really climbed up there and pitched in earnest?

* * *

All right, all right, we'll lay off that. They didn't.

* * *

In that case, why is a Waco sports writer?

You win. It can't be answered.

* * *

One thing, you have to hand it to those guys down there, they stick together. I kidded Jinx Tucker the other day about his ability (?) as a grandstand umpire, whereupon scribe on the other Waco paper ups and in ladylike rage figuratively spanks me on the wrist. O-o-o, sugar.

* * *

But it looked like they did. Certainly, even if the assistant district attorney did write a lengthy article for A-1 narrating how "fast and FURIOUS" the match was.

* * *

But Clete, with a hurt expression wreathing handsome map, solemnly avers they didn't. And another great question is settled.

* * *

But is that nice: Distel of Shreveport continues to make errors and the Sports continue to win ball games—The Austin American. Showing anyhow, if true, that a shortstop is not all of a team's defense, after all. Or something.

* * *

And along with the regular first-of-the-month insults, there came a missive in the mail, an inclosed clipping of several days vintage from this col. Nothing more. It read, "There is no tough guy so tough that if he keeps on hunting around won't bump into another guy just a bit tougher." I wonder what that bird meant by that.

BUFFS 3 SHIPPERS 1.

HOUSTON, July 2. (AP)—Just to help his battery mate, Ken Penner, to his twelfth victory of the season, Bill Warwick, Houston receiver, Saturday clouted them "wide and handsome," and the Buffs defeated the Beaumont Exporters, 3 to 1, in a well played contest. Warwick's big ash figured in the scoring of each of the tallies. In the sixth, Bill's two bagger to right center scored Martin and Kane, and in the eighth his single to center advanced Henry to second from where he scored on Johnny Kane's single to right. The Exporters threatened several times but their only counter came in the fourth when "Stump" Edington smacked the pellet over the right field fence. Score:

Helen Wills Cops Wimbledon Title

By Universal Service.

WIMBLEDON, July 2.—It remained for that quiet California Miss, known in tennis circles by the affectionate nickname of "Little Miss Poker Face" or just plain Helen Wills, to preserve American prestige at Wimbledon, long the chosen tournament ground of courtdom.

Succeeding where the great Tilden had failed, Helen Wills today won her way to the top of the women's singles division by a straight set victory over the flashy Spanish player, Senorita Alvarez. The score was 6-2, 1-4.

Henri Cochet, one of France's famous "Three Court Musketeers," and conqueror of Bill Tilden both in the American nationals last fall and at Wimbledon this year, astonished the gallery by winning the men's singles crown with a hard-fought victory over Jean Borotra, fellow French Davis cup player. The score of this match was 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

PLUMBERS PLAY PANHANDLE, CONOCOS MEET KILOS TODAY

Hall to Face Randolph On Hill In Opening Melee With Kollman and Andree For Electrics

BY BLONDY CROSS

Your proud Spudders won't be in town this afternoon and they won't be here tomorrow, but Wichita Falls baseball fandom will be served more than a double portion of diamond repast Sunday and Monday, regardless, so the little ball bugs don't need to shed any hungry tears.

For a quartet of fast Twilight league clubs go into battle Sunday afternoon in Katy Park, the first game starting at 2 o'clock. Then a pair of the twilight's best tackle the powerful Schepp's Bakers of Dallas at Katy Park Monday afternoon in another double header, starting at 2 o'clock.

Panhandle plays the stubborn Scotand Plumbers in the opening encounter this afternoon. Following on the heels of these two speedy aggregations come the Conocos and Texas Electrics, also, in regular Twilight play. Both games are to be over the nine-inning route.

Panhandle and the Texas Electrics chase back again Monday afternoon against the premier Dallas amateur aggregation.

The Plumbers probably will shoot Long Tom Hall, sterling right-hander, against the Longhorns this afternoon. Manager Bill Hoehn probably will counter with Joel Randolph, sturdy Panhandle right-hander. The Conocos will draw their pitching pick from Harris, Forbes and Dickey. The Electrics will use Kollman and Andree.

To repulse the Dallas invasion, Panhandle expects to fall back on its ace right-hander, Snipe Connally. However, there is quite a possibility Roy Cannon will start the game on the hill for the homelings. The Electrics hope to use Smoke Luphor if his eligibility can be proved by Monday. There is said to be a bit of haze about Luphor's eligibility relative to alleged infraction of the amateur pitching rule.

Test Game for Champs

The big part of the interest attached to the first game of the Sunday double bill will be the chance of getting a line on the two first half title winners. The Longhorns were the winners in the Twilight league and the Plumbers in the city loop. They will clash for the first time and the smoke of this battle is expected to be heavy.

Another question that will be taking the rounds is, can the stellar pitching staff of the Conocos stop the heavy barrage of base hits that the Electrics have been shooting forth for their pitchers? The Electrics have been piling up hits with regularity and it will be the acid test for the pitching staff of the "Hitless Wonders."

Dirty Waller, Coyal Francis, Willie Miller and Curly Christian will be the big guns in the Kilowatts' attack and this set of ball bruisers will be a hard trio to stop. Right now Coyal Francis, the youngster who slapped out the six for six recently, is one of the contenders for the Twilight league batting crown. Maddox and Melear still stay above him, but only 17 points stand between him and the leadership.

The double header will bring all three of the leaders into action and Sunday night may find the three of them sitting very different in their order.

Watch This Waller

Waller has been in only three games thus far and has piled up a batting average of well over .600 and in that average he has a double, three triples and a home run as well as four singles. Waller is also a great fielder and his work in the outfield is just as important as his work at the bat.

Long Tom Hall's first start in the Twilight league was with the Electrics as an opponent and he was badly hammered. He then came back in his City league form and lost a tough 1 to 0 game to the Conocos when only one hit was given him to win with.

Now it will be up to Hall to check the mad advance of the Longhorns. He will be pitted against one of the best in the league when he faces Joe Randolph. The Longhorn right hander has a very deceptive fast ball and a great curve. Strike outs seem to be his specialty.

WACO STILL WINS

WACO, July 2.(AP)—The Waco Cubs took the first game of the series from the San Antonio team here today by a score of 7 to 6. After see-sawing backwards and forward, going into the ninth inning one run behind, Windle, first up for the locals, went out on an infield play. Moore singled and West hit the second ball pitched for a home run. Tuero went out in the eighth inning for Boggess, a pinch hitter, with the bases loaded, but failed to come through with a hit. Cannon relieved Tuero. Score:

CUBS LEAD IN TEAM BATTING

But Your Spudders Score Most Markers

Randolph Moore of Waco clubbed his way back into the .400 class in the Texas league last week and with an average of .403 heads the regular hitters, Edington of Beaumont holding his own at .395 among the 51 clouters hitting .300 or better. West of Waco and Jenkins of Wichita Falls both tapped the century in hits the same day, June 25, and are now tied for the lead in base blows with 109. Six hitters altogether have 100 or more hits. Charles Miller of Dallas hit his twenty-fourth home run during the week but must hit two home runs by July 5, to again overhaul Kraft's record schedule of 1924. Also, he lost ground to his closest rivals, Galloway pulling closer with 16 and Pratt with 15. Gross, Dallas, holds the lead in stolen bases with 24 to 17 for Martin of Houston. The leading run-getters are Fitzgerald and Jenkins, Wichita Falls, 66; C. Miller, Dallas, 65; Edington, Beaumont, 64.

Waco held the lead in club batting and home runs, Wichita Falls in runs and hits, and Dallas in stolen bases. Steengrafe, Wichita Falls, finally met defeat, but is now tied with Shores, Waco, for the best winning average of regulars. Through Thursday, Williamson, Shreveport, had pitched 24 1-3 consecutive shut out innings. E. Love, Dallas, leads in strike-outs with 78.

Three hundred hitters, club batting and pitchers winning half or better of their games through Thursday, follow:

STEERS 8; CATS 2.

DALLAS, Texas, July 2.(AP)—The Dallas Steers, fresh from south Texas, played rough house with the Fort Worth Cats here Saturday, taking the first of a two game series from their ancient foe, 8 to 2.

Tiny Owens toyed with the tail enders, allowing them only seven hits, while his mates sailed into the offerings of the Panther pitchers, Sullivan and Burns, ripping off 14 hits, six of them together with three runs off Sullivan in two and one third innings.

The herd whammed out the victory proper in the seventh when they swept across with four tallies, three of them coming when Woeber cracked out a two bagger with the bases full.

Will They or Won't They Split?

Fort Worth Would Divide Season On League Leading Spudders

J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Wichita Falls baseball team, leader of the Texas league, does not put much stock in rumors and murmurs about the circuit anent possibility of the league splitting the season on the Spudders and starting the race over again at the mid-way mark.

But IF the league does split on him, Gardner intimates belief Wichita Falls will rock right on through and win the pennant, anyhow.

A canvas of sopring opinion over the state shows, on the surface that only one city in the league appears really desirous of calling for a split race. This city is the home of the Panthers, Fort Worth, six times champion who had to battle the split in every year but one.

Doak Hears Nothing

Opinion of sports writers over the league seems to be there will be no move for a split. Doak Roberts, president of the league, says no split-season intimation has been made at Texas league headquarters.

However, rumors persist over the league that if Wichita Falls is leading by as much as six or seven games July 4, team moguls more than likely will start wiring in for a divided season. Pop Boone, Fort Worth sports writer, declares a split season would be fair to the Panthers since they have endured so many splits themselves when riding high and dry out front of the rest of the pack. Boone says there are sufficient indications and outcroppings here and there about the loop to cause belief that if the Spudders are leading by a goodly margin Monday, several of the magnates will start yelling for the split.

WELL? ! ! ?

Ned Record of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram wurbles words that are food for heavy thought. Says he: "I am against a split season in class A leagues as a matter of principle, but after Fort Worth has lost its hard-earned lead so many times I would consider it retributive justice if the season were split now. Particularly, as Wichita Falls has voted for splits in times past. It's poor policy for a class A league to split, but why did the schedule makers leave that week's difference in the Texas league close and the Southern league's close?

Can't Do It, Says Alvin

Spudder president Gardner comments thusly: "They can't do it. The league put it in the constitution and by-laws back in October, 1925, eliminating the split season. But I don't understand all there is to know about that. They'll have to have an executive meeting and two-thirds vote to do it, anyhow.

"I don't want a split season, but I DO believe that if there IS a split it would take only two or three weeks for the league to get back in line again just as it is now, the weaker clubs soon finding their level again."

Buddy Tanner, former Spudder pilot, yurps a heavy negative on the split-season question. Says he: "The split season cheapens the league. It is class D stuff and we have to good a league for that."

Queries sent by The Record News to the seven other league cities asking the trend of opinion there in regard to the possibility of a split this year brought only a series of warm protests against such tactics.

J. R. Carter of the Shreveport Times writes: "Have never favored split season. Believe Texas league is above such bush league tactics and large enough to carry through like a regular class A outfit. The race is close enough to make it a financial success and a split would not help money matters in any respect. As this always has been the foundation for a split season it should not exist now."

Ables Against Split

G. H. Scherwitz of the San Antonio Light writes: "I am strongly against a split season. So is Harry Ables, owner of the Bears. His is one vote the split will not get."

Victor Davis of the Dallas News wires: "My opinion regarding a split, as always in the past, is against a divided season for the Texas league. A class A league should be above such stuff. I understand the Dallas club owners are against such a move. President Doak Roberts recently assured everybody that the season would not be divided. There is no intimation from any one requesting meeting to vote on question at league office here. What's the use, anyhow? It's still a pretty close race."

Wires Jinx Tucker of Waco: "I would not do it but don't believe it would make much difference to Waco authorities.

Pipes up Vin Burke of the Beaumont Enterprise: "It's the bunk." But Galloway might like it.

Houston expressed opposition to a split season, but the standing of the club officials there was not tapped.

WALLER'S .643 TOPS AMATEUR BLUDGEONERS

Maddox, Melear, Francis Neck and Neck

Jud Waller, smashing the apple at a .643 gait in the three games he has played to date, leads the Twilight league batters in games figured through last Wednesday. The larruping Texas Electric outfielder came into the league at the start of the second half of the split season and has been going great guns, whipping out a home run, three triples and a two-bagger along with four singles during the 14 times he has been to bat.

Maddox of the Panhandle is second with the willow, whamming a .464 average, 13 safeties in 28 times up. Just a few licks below Maddox is Mealear of the Panhandle with .450 and Francis of Texas Electrics with .447. Francis has been coming back strongly with the bludgeon in recent games.

Randolph of the Panhandle with five hits in 12 times up has a .417 mark and Hoehn of the same team comes next with a .387 mark.

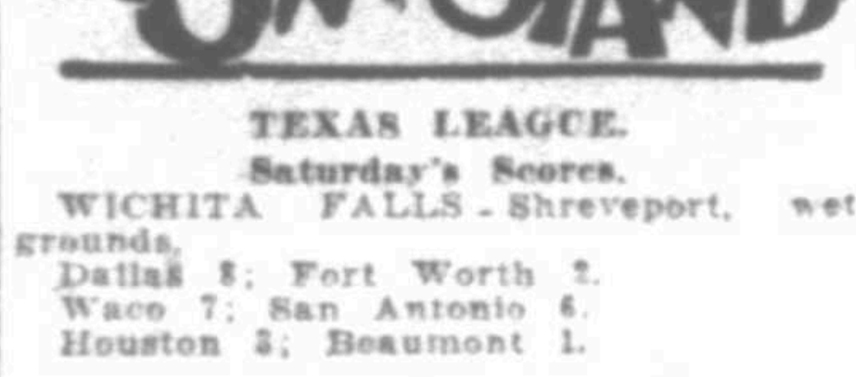

Roberts of Panhandle leads in stolen bases with nine.

Ramsey of Continental leads in two-baggers with six.

In this week's release of individual averages, statistics on players of the three veteran Twilight aggregations, Panhandle, Electrics and Conocos, are figured from the start of the season. Averages of players on the Muny Gasser club the Scotland Plumbers and Jackson Tires, recent Twilight entries from the defunct city league, are figured on basis of games only played in the Twilight league.

A Good Waste Basket Story

LONDON, July 2 (AP) — Thursday night's championship fight between Mickey Walker of New Jersey and Tommy Milligan of Scotland has aroused Sir Hall Caine, noted English novelist, to a vehement denunciation of the "prevailing and preposterous passion for triumphs of brawn over brain."

Shocked by the press accounts of the match, won by the American with a knockout, Sir Hall has written a letter to the Daily Express asking for some man who can speak with authority of the public conscience to call a halt to these "orgies of corrupt, degrading humanity, these gross exhibitions of merciless savagery and loathsome trafficking in human suffering."

Condemning the "prevailing and preposterous passion for triumphs of brawn over brain," the novelist attacks Charles B. Cochran, the promoter, telling him if there were no such men as he there would be no such scenes as those of Thursday night.

"Our horror and shame is intensified," he writes, "when we remember the combatants themselves were merely the slaves—if willing slaves— of the persons who organized their debauch of brutality and of the multitude who paid to look upon it."

The letter was called to the notice of those concerned in the fight, Walter saying there was no brutality, Milligan that they played the game straight and fought cleanly. The Scotchman advised Sir Hall to study boxing.

Jack Kernes, Walker's manager, declared the charge of brutality was sheer piffle." Promoter Cochran ridiculed the novelist's views as "early Victorian flapdoodle," and said that if there has been the slightest brutality we would have stopped the fight immediately."

Texas Wins College Singles Net Crown

HAVERFORD, Pa., July 2.(AP)—Wilmer Allison of the University of Texas Saturday won the intercollegiate lawn tennis championship at the Merion Cricket club, defeating Ben Gorchakoff, Occidental college, in the final round, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

The Texas player completely outclassed his opponent. Allison appeared to be aware of the holes in Gorchakoff's playing and after losing the first game on service Allison won 11 straight games in a row.

Gorchakoff was at times not able to handle the easiest of drives. After the middle of the second set the California player seemed to lose heart and it was an easy matter for Allison to win.

PANHANDLE AND ELECTRICS TO PLAY SCHEPP BAKERS MONDAY

Powerful Dallas Amateurs Test Wichita Falls Championship Contenders in Two Games At Katy Park

PERSONNEL OF SCHEPPS-KLEBER TEAM

Lovic Thompson, catcher; Ewing "Lefty" Howell, "Red" Jordan, "Hooker" Robinson and Bob Deason, pitchers; Guy Quisenberry and Teddy Harris, first base; Jake Romotsky, second base; Al McKay, shortstop; H. Westbrook, third base; Harry Spann, leftfield; Charlie Wadman or Sid Hoover, centerfield; Bobby Allison or Lefty McDowell, right field. George Schepps, manager.

The above aggregation of Dallas amateur baseball players plan to catch a giant motor bus at 6 o'clock Sunday morning out of Dallas bound for Wichita Falls where they will meet amateur teams of Wichita Falls in a double header Monday at Katy park, starting at 2 o'clock.

George Schepps, manager of the Schepps-Kleber team, first half pennant winners in the Merchants league and leading in the second half race, will bring to Wichita Falls one of the most redoubtable amateur aggregations every organized in Dallas. The Schepps-Kleber team is composed of veterans of amateurdom. Many of the players have at times in their careers pastimed in professional company, but are now bona-fide amateurs and registered with the Texas Amateur Baseball Federation. The Schepps-Kleber team has met defeat only twice this season. They lost their last game in the Merchants league first half pennant race when Schepps tried out a bunch of rookie talent after clinching the initial half pennant. They lost their first game at the start of the second half, but since that time have won every battle and are at present sitting on top flag pole at pennantville in their respective league.

Beat Victory Wilson

The outstanding victory of the season for the Schepps-Kleber team was registered several weeks ago when they defeated the formidable Victory-Wilson team, 1926 Dallas and Texas amateur champions, in a close 2 to 1 battle unreeled at Steer stadium for the benefit of disabled war veterans.

This game was witnessed by a record crowd. Jordan pitched the game for Schepps-Kleber and hurled a six hit affair.

Famous Players.

On the Schepps-Kleber roster are men who have carved a name for themselves in amateur and pro baseball. Lovic Thompson, catcher, is a former Southwestern conference star and considered the best catcher to every wear the uniform of Southern Methodist university. Guy Quisenberry, first sacker, is the leading home run hitter. Quisenberry is a powerful 200-pound fellow with a Babe Ruth swing at the ball. Romotsky is a consistent second sacker and is enjoying his greatest year with the willow. Al McKay, formerly of the Cleveland Indians, is being sought after by scouts, but Al has turned his nose up at professional baseball after taking a fling at it in the majors and smaller leagues. Charlie Wadman led the Dallas amateurs in hitting in 1925. Last season he broke an ankle and was out of the game, but this year he is back and again one of the leading hitters on Dallas sandlots. Harry Spann, the man whom no catcher has thrown out stealing this season, will show the Wichita Falls sandlot catcher a thing or two about base running. Spann, not a great hitter in reality, really bats about 400 for his club by his superb base running when on the hassocks. Bobby Allison, has long been one of the hardest hitters on the lots and an all-city player several times.

The Schepps-Kleber team is in excellent condition for their games against the Wichita Falls sandlotters, and fans who witness the combats are assured of seeing the probable 1927 city champions of Dallas in action.

WICHITANS TAKE LEADING PART IN MUENSTER OIL DEVELOPMENT

TOWN SHOWS FINE GROWTH

Oil Prosperity Touches Many Industries

MUENSTER, July 2.—Wichita Falls has been sold again and this time it was not a boisterous crowd of smiling boosters waving gay pennants, sporting loud hatbands and singing peppy songs that made the sale. No previously planned campaign of publicity and commercial hand shakes implanted in the hearts of Muenster's business men a warm spot for the City That Faith Built.

Who did go out and capture this thriving little city as an addition to Wichita Falls' trade territory? What and where is Muenster, anyway, someWichitans may ask.

Muenster is the busiest little oil town in North Texas. It is on the Katy railroad, 17 miles of Gainesville, county seat of Cooke county. It is approximately 75 miles southeast of Wichita Falls, 60 miles north of Fort Worth and 70 miles northwest of Dallas.

Where Business Goes

The latter statement is quite significant in view of the fact that clearings on Wichita Falls banks by the First State bank of Muenster are greater than the combined clearings on banks in Fort Worth and Dallas, two larger and nearer cities. J. M. Weinzappel, cashier of the First State bank of Muenster, is the authority for this statement.

As for selling Wichita Falls in Muenster, it was none other than the staid and square shooting members of the Wichita Falls oil fraternity who attended to that. Oil men of the very highest type who maintain headquarters in Wichita Falls, own property there and feel at home there, were among the earliest operators active in this now important pass.

They made friends and none of them ever gets an opportunity pass to put in a good word for Wichita Falls. They are men who can be relied upon and the fact that an operator hails from Wichita Falls goes a long way in obtaining cooperation from land owners of this territory.

The Muenster field proper, which starts in the southwest part of the townsite and extends nearly a mile north and west along the beautiful Muenster creek, is a thing of beauty in itself. Glistening steel and new wooden derricks tower above the foliage of oak, cottonwood, elm and other trees. Pumping plants, lease "powers," and pipe yards, all clean and in perfect order, dot the sides of the hills while new cut roads are busy with field cars and trucks, transporting materials to this location and orders to that drilling well.

Wichita Men Active

Efforts are now being made to bring vacant property among the residences and business houses into the producing limits of the field. Between the public school building an oil test was spudded in this week. Across the street from this test C. D. Shamburger of Wichita Falls is building a large lumber yard on a half block which he bought outright.

John O'Neil and associates of Wichita Falls are to drill a well just southeast of the Katy depot, which is one of the busiest places in the town. The station agent, "just didn't have time" to tell about the new rush in freight shipments and receipts.

On the south edge of Oilton Addition, a new realty project, the Swastika Oil and Refining company has built a skimming plant which has a capacity of 700 barrels daily and is already turning Muenster crude into motor fuels.

Twenty new residences are under construction or are being planned and L. A. Bernaur is completing a two-story, modern apartment building in the northeast section of the city. Three new brick business buildings are being rushed to completion and four oil supply houses have established branch warehouses here.

Montgomery and Ward, Wichita Falls engineers, are making a survey of the city which will result in the voting on a bond issue for installing water and sewage systems. Muenster has an inexhaustible supply of pure water just 400 feet under the ground.

The Magnolia Petroleum company has brought in a pipeline from its gas production on the Alice Johnson farm several miles north of the city and gas is now available to drilling rigs in the field and homes along the line. Synch and Stahl also have a gas line from the Johnson gas field.

Pipeline at Work

The pipeline phase of the oil industry is now probably as great a contributing factor to the growth and prosperity of Muenster as the field work at wells. The Humble Pipeline company has just completed an enlarged pumping plant at its property and is running oil at full capacity.

The Sinclair Crude Purchasing company is now taking its first crude runs from Cooke county wells, having this week completed its line from Montague county to Bulcher and then here. An electrically equipped pumping plant has been installed just south of Muenster.

The third pipeline project to be started is Ozark Pipeline corporation ,a Roxana subsidiary, line from Muenster to Healdton, Okla. Even in the face of present oil market conditions, drilling activity will be appreciably increased when the three lines are in operation, insuring ready disposal of the oil produced.

Muenster business leaders declare that the civic spirit is unique to say the least. Farmers in the adjacent territory feel that Muenster is their city and they are always anxious to take an active part in anything for bettering the town. The farms are not large in this area and many of them are owned by merchants and business men.

Towns Builds Solidly

Always a thrifty set, making every dollar spent for private or public enterprise yield a dollar's value, the citizens are now taking every precaution to insure the growth resulting from oil being of a substantial and lasting nature and it does not take an economic expert to see that when the oil activity slows down. Muenster will be in far better circumstances in every respect than when the boom started.

(The term "boom" is used advisedly. Seminole and Borger citizens would probably not say that Muenster is experiencing a boom.)

Immense incomes, dropping unexpectedly on the inhabitants of these quiet hillsides, have immeasurably increased the buying power of the district and there is prime facie evidence that salesmen of costly automobiles have already capitalized on this new wealth. The bankers say, however, that the money is largely being sensibly invested.

They All Prosper

One of the first impressions on entering the main street is the large number of cafes. Surely they do not all prosper, is the thought suggested. But just try to find a seat in a cafe a few minutes after 12 o'clock! The system is to spot a friend who is seating and engage in conversation until he is ready to relinquish his place at the counter. Strange to say, the prices are no higher than those on Eighth street.

Muenster has one deficiency, oil men declare. The hotel facilities are not yet sufficient to care for those who would spend the night. For this reason, probably more than any other, Gainesville, "The City of 100,000 Trees," is profiting greatly from the oil development.

Oil men from Arkansas, South and East Texas find Gainesville the most convenient base of operations in Cooke county. The city is also capitalizing on the fact that it is the county seat and much legal business attending the oil trade must be transacted there.

Progress of Industry Shown at Exposition

TULSA, July 2.—Visual lessons in the progress of the oil industry will be a strong feature of the International Petroleum exposition, Sept. 24 to Oct. 1. This showing will have three distinct phases—the original drilling outfit from the Pennsylvania field, a model oil lease in minature and the vast exhibits of new appliances and inventions.

The Drake tools are loaned for the exposition period by Lewis Emery Jr., Brandford, Pa., and the exposition has a replica of the original Oil Creek derrick. The Tidal Oil company is loaning its famous model lease, showing oil field oil field operations as they actually are on thousands of leases.

The technical and scientific side of the exposition is emphasized by the formation of a committee of scientists, technical experts, manufacturers and officials to aid exhibitors and prospective users of appliances.

Seminole Gains 30,000 Barrels in Past Week

TULSA, July 2.—A further gain of 2036 barrels is noted in production of the Seminole field for the 24 hours ended Friday morning, the total for that period being 430,134 barrels from 565 wells. The Bowlegs pool with a total of 190,272 barrels, gained 1270 barrels, this total including the output of the new I. T. I. O. well in 1-7-6. The Earlsboro pool made 104,199 barrels, or a loss of 894 barrels in 24 hours: Seminole city pool did 101,638 barrels, a gain of 441 barrels, and the Searight pool shows a gain of 1219 barrels, its total being 34,025 barrels.

The production of the field has gained 30,364 barrels daily in seven days, the output for the 24 hours ended Friday morning, June 24, being 399,470 barrels from 547 wells, there being an increase of but 18 wells, two of these being gushers however, the Empire well in 3-9-5 and the I. T. I. O. well in 1-7-6.

Deep Well Flows 140 Barrels Per Hour

TULSA, June 2.—The Mid-Continent field's deepest commercial producer, Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 1 McCully, center NE SW of 30-19-4w, near Lovell, in northwestern Logan county, flowed 2329 barrels in 20 hours, and later was flowing at the rate of 140 barrels per.

This well now lacks but 11 feet of being 6000 feet deep, as it drilled itself two feet deeper into the Wilcox its total depth now being 5829 feet. What is believed to be the second Wilcox was topped at 5925 feet, and at two feet in to 5927 feet, it flowed 60 barrels in 20 minutes Wednesday morning.

Below 1200 Feet In Wilbarger County Test

ELECTRA, July 2.—Rubsam and Beheller No. 1, George B. Ancell Sr., section 13, block 7, H. & T. C. survey, 14 miles southwest of Electra just over the line of Wilbarger county is now drilling below 1200 feet.

This test is being viewed with considerable interest, being west of the Ancell-Barnes pool on section 10, Ancell ranch.

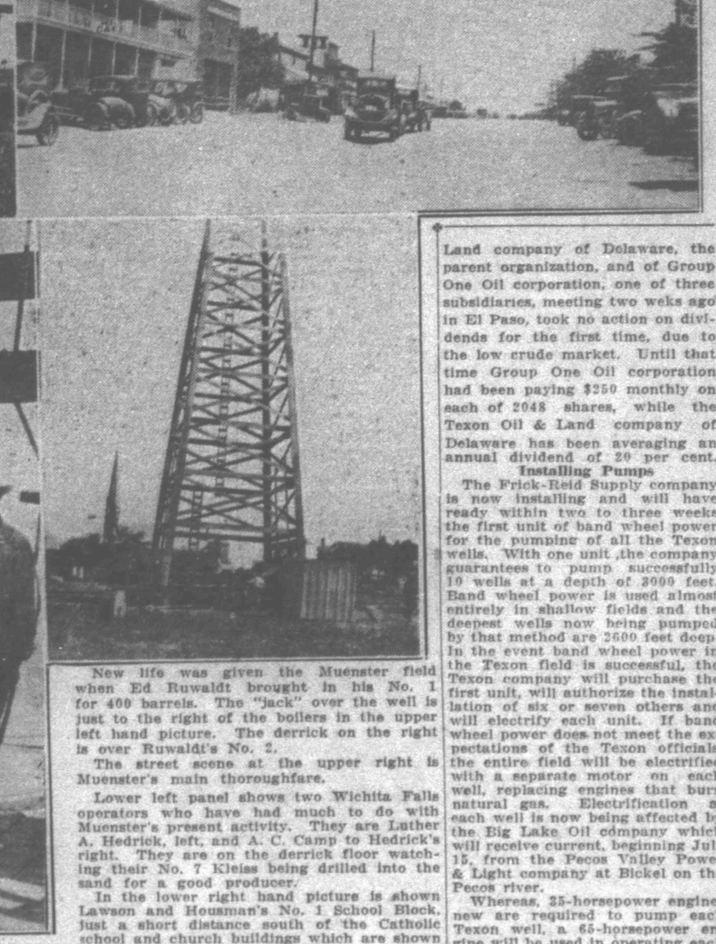

Murchison Oil company No. 1, Rio Bravo on the F. W. Hamilton pasture tract, one and one-fourth miles southeast of the Ancell ranch production, has been pronounced dry and has been abandoned after drilling to 2001 feet.

Peer Makes Location South of Aspermont

Peer Oil corporation has made location to drill a test 10 miles south of Aspermont in Stonewall county. The location is for No. 1 R. P. Morrow, 300 feet from the south and west lines of the northeast quarter of section 105, block D, H. & T. C. survey. Zoch and McCamey are drilling a test in Stonewall.

New life was given the Muenster field when Ed Ruwaldt brought in his No. 1 for 400 barrels. The "jack" over the well is just to the right of the boilers in the upper left hand picture. The derrick on the right is over Ruwaldt's No. 2.

Lower left panel shows two Wichita Falls operators who have had much to do with Muenster's present activity. They are Luther A. Hedrick, left, and A. C. Camp to Hedrick's right. They are on the derrick floor watching their No. 7 Kleiss being drilled into the sand for a good producer.

Small Decline Shown in Wichita District Pipeline Runs in Week

Gains in daily pipeline runs shown during the past week by Cooke, Jack, Throckmorton and Young counties were offset by losses in the other fields to net a 20-barrel decrease for the Wichita Falls district.

While the three fields of Wichita county were showing small losses, the decline in Archer, Montague and Wilbarger counties were much larger, hardly being equalled by increases shown in daily runs in the four counties which gained.

Cooke county reached another high mark, gaining 350 barrels over the previous week to top 4205 barrels daily. The present outlook is for this county to continue gaining for several months.

Daily runs by fields follow:

Field—	Past Week	Prev. Week	Difference

13 New Producers Fail To Prevent Decline in Panhandle District

AMARILLO, July 2.—Although 13 new producing wells added 3410 barrels of initial production to the Panhandle field's total the past fiscal week, it was insufficient to keep the daily production of the field up. As a result the Panhandle slumped 4325 barrels to a daily average of 121,051 barrels per day.

There are a flock of wells in different active areas on top of the sands, but an extraordinary number of fishing jobs have delayed the completion of these wells in Carson, Gray and Hutchinson, and these also contributed to the decline. Then again there were a flock of wells added to the "dry" list, as they had declined to a point where they were not commercially worth keeping "alive."

Hutchinson county fell below 100,000 mark again, the second time for 127. Moore county's two wells are now doing close to 200 barrels per day, but this volume of production will not show up until next week.

The per well average of the field has also declined to 92.40 barrels per well.

The field summary follows:

County—	Daily Output	Prod. Wells	New Wells	New In. Prod.	Well Avrg.

Officers Elected For North Vernon Oil Co.

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, July 2.—Officers for the recently chartered North Vernon Oil company were elected at a meeting Friday morning. T. W. Walker was elected president; Dr. A. P. Howard, vice president and Leon H. Brown, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Brown has gone to Austin to secure a permit to sell stock in the new concern.

The charter for the new company was issued this week, and as soon as the permit to sell stock is secured, the corporation will issue stock.

SHACKELFORD COUNTY

Sinclair Oil and Gas company's No. 10 Nail, in Shackelford county had a sand from 1412 to 1421 feet, and is flowing oil and water. It is thought that the well drilled itself into the water, due to the amount of sand sprayed out with the gas.

Keep Away from Calomel!! It is Quicksilver – Mercury

Never take calomel. It is mercury—a dangerous drug. If you are constipated, bilious, sick, headachy, stomach sour, meals don't taste right, hot days make you drowsy and lazy, take Dodson's Liver Tone. That's all you need.

Calomel salivates. That's why you have to take salts the next day to get it out of your system so it will not eat your bones. You have to stay at home a day to recuperate from the shock it gives you. No wonder Dodson's Live Tone is so popular. All you do is take a spoonful at night. By morning you are cleaned out good, head is clear, you feel as light as a feather, you are not sick, no danger of salivation, and you can eat anything you want. Think of that. Get the big bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone from your nearest store. They all have it. Keep it in the house so you will have it handy to take nights before going to bed.

TEXON MAKES FIELD RECORD

Reagan Concern Produces 8,500,000 Barrels

SAN ANGELO, July 2.—The Texon Oil and Land company's part of the Reagan county oil field since July 8, 1924, has produced approximately 8,500,000 barrels of oil worth an average of around $2 a barrel. Five hundred and 80 proven acres in the area that adjoins the Big Lake Oil company's pool on the east ultimately should yield 28,000 to 32,000 barrels per acre, or 16,240,000 to 18,560,000 barrels, estimates Frank T. Pickrell of Santa Rita, vice president and general manager of the company.

"We should get not less than a total of 16,000 barrels," said Mr. Pickrell ,in San Angelo Tuesday while on business, "which means that production should continue for 10 years, maybe 12 to 14 years. The longer period that will be required to get out the remaining one-half of the oil is due, of course to the fact that it will not be as the initial flow of the wells. We have five more locations to drill on acreage that is proven out of the three sections the Texan retained when it sold 16 sections to the Big Lake Oil company in the fall of 1923. We now have 76 producers making around 7000 barrels of oil a day."

Long Time Contract

The Texon and Big Lake companies are under contracts for the life of the field to deliver 10,000 barrels daily each to the Reagan County Purchasing company, which, in turn, delivers the oil to the Humble Pipeline company. In the event the production of either company falls below this figure, the other makes up the deficit, and the Big Lake Oil company is making up the Texon's daily deficit of around 3000 barrels in addition to the 10,000 barrels it is delivering. But for these contracts, the Texon would shut in its wells or store the oil, owing to the low price of crude, said Mr. Pickrell. The Big Lake Oil company is now storing oil that was being delivered to Marland under a 100,000 barrel-a-day contract that expired June 15 and was not renewed.

Directors of the Texon Oil & Land company of Delaware, the parent organization, and of Group One Oil corporation, one of three subsidiaries, meeting two weks ago in El Paso, took no action on dividends for the first time, due to the low crude market. Until that time Group One Oil corporation had been paying $250 monthly on each of 2048 shares, while the Texon Oil & Land company of Delaware has been averaging an annual dividend of 20 per cent.

Installing Pumps

The Frick-Reid Supply company is now installing and will have ready within two to three weeks the first unit of band wheel power for the pumping of all the Texon wells. With one unit ,the company guarantees to pump successfully 10 wells at a depth of 3000 feet. Band wheel power is used almost entirely in shallow fields and the deepest wells now being pumped by that method are 2600 feet deep. In the event band wheel power in the Texon field is successful, the Texon company will purchase the first unit, will authorize the installation of six or seven others and will electrify each unit. If band wheel power does not meet the expectations of the Texon officials, the entire field will be electrified with a separate motor on each well, replacing engines that burn natural gas. Electrification at each well is now being affected by the Big Lake Oil company which will receive current, beginning July 15, from the Pecos Valley Power & Light company at Bickel on the Pecos river.

Whereas, 25-horsepower engines new are required to pump each Texon well, a 65-horsepower engine will be used in operating each band wheel power unit. The band wheel is a gigantic affair, around 40 fet in diameter, set up horizonally with two plates revolving one upon the other in opposite directions. In the plates are holes where connections for each well are made, the perfect balance of the machinery raising and lowering the pumper rods. The compactness of the Texon field lends itself to the adaption of band wheel power, will cost $22,000 to

Drillers Puzzled at Number of Sands in Cooke County Oil Fields

All that remains to be done to make Cooke county truly a drillers' paradise is for some explorer to find a really deep pay structure.

The county already rivals Young and Archer county in the number of shallow sands from which oil is produced. A gas field has been discovered and the oil production is rapidly climbing to a place of prominence among North Texas fields.

As yet no oil has been found higher than 800 feet, but deeper than that level there are enough sands containing petroleum deposits to keep operators wondering what is coming next.

An instance of this uncertainty is found in the area recently proven by the Pure Oil company on the Embry farm just south of the Bulcher field. Pure's well is pumping 300 barrels daily from a sand at 1404-08 feet and three offsets are considered sureshots, each in a different horizon.

Southeast of the Pure well the Roxana's No. 1 Dennis has cemented pipe on sand at 1424 feet. Sun Oil company's No. 1-a Hyman has pipe cemented at 1454 feet. Kewanee Oil and Gas company No. 1 F. C. Hyman is swabbing 125 barrels from 1140-1250 feet.

Lease owners in the Muenster pool are capitalizing on the two sands there. When a well is drilled to either the 1670 or 1320 foot pa, very often a "twin" ocation is made just 50 feet away to drill to the other sand.

The original Bulcher field produces at 1300 feet. North of Muenster, the Dangelmeyer farm is productive at 810 feet. Fain-McGaha has three wells from 900 feet. So, wildcat drillers never know what to expect.

Five to Be Graduated By San Angelo School

Fain-McGaha Oil company and Roxana Petroleum corporation were successful in blowing out the fire at their No. 1 Matthews, two miles north of Thalia in northeast Foard county, Friday night. The rig is to be rebuilt at once and drilling carried ahead. When the gas flow became ignited, the hole was 1435 feet deep. Two gas showings have been encountered.

Grebin Test Looks For Clay County Pay

F. C. Grebin and associates, drilling a wildcat in southwest Clay county and near the Jack and Archer county lines, are drilling below 700 feet and feeling for the 800-foot pay found in the Empire Holding corporation pool. The Grebin test is in block 1, P. Gilleland survey.

$142,461,059 On Deposit In 14 Banks of Dallas

DALLAS, July 2. (AP)—The combined statement of 14 of the leading Dallas banks, issued today in response to the call for conditions of national banks showed an increase of $10,673,802.66 in deposits and an increase of $8,736,493.23 in resources over June 30, 1926.

The figures showed $142,461,059.67 on deposit compared with $131,787,257.01 a year ago, and recourses $172,513,964.05 June 30 this year against $163,777,470.82 last year.

FOARD COUNTY GASSER AND NEW PRODUCERS IMPORTANT EVENTS

NEW PAY FOUND IN SOUTH BEND

Archer, Wilbarger, Cooke Wichita Get Wells

BY TOM TRULY
Record News Oil Editor

Second gas showing in a Foard county wildcat, discovery of a deeper pay in the South Bend field, several good producers in Archer county, completions in Cooke, and consumation of a $100,000 oil sale summarize the more important happenings in oil activity of North Texas during the past week.

Misfortune atended the important test of Fain-McGaha and Roxana in northeast Foard county after it had encountered its second flow of gas. When drilling was resumed the gas was ignited, destroying the rig with the tools in the hole. After burning 36 hours the fire was extinguished and preparations are now being made to continue drilling.

The second gas was at 1379-87, gauging 3,000,000 feet initially and decreasing to 1,000,000. When the fire occurred the test was 1435 feet deep. The gas was said to be very wet.

Panhandle Refining company, at its No. 20 McCluskey in the South Bend field of Young county, discovered a new pay. It was at 4216-50 feet where a shot enabled the well to swab 41 barrels in two hours. No. 17 is to be deepened and others may also be carried to the new pay.

Archer Producers

Approximately 650 barrels of new production was added to the increasing output of the Lyle-Wilson pool of Archer county. Maer and Staniforth completed Nos. 9 and 10 doing 175 and 100 barrels; Atlantic Oil Producing company's No. 4 swabbed 350 barrels. The three wells are producing from the regular 1540 foot sand.

In Cooke county, Hedrick-Camp Drilling company completed their Nos. 6 and 7 Kleiss, the former doing 240 barrels with swabbing and the latter making 20 barrels per hour when swabbed. Gist and Graddy got No. 1 Harris on the pump for 65 barrels in 12 hours. Kewanee Oil and Gas company No. 1-B Dennis is swabbing 125 barrels.

Wilbarger county's best well was Cosden and Consolidated Oil company's No. 6 Wagger, section 57, block 4, H. & T. C. survey, which topped the sand at 1317, five feet high, drilled to 1337 and sprayed between 200 and 250 barrels in the first 24 hours. It is the second flowing well on the lease.

Wichita Saved

L. P. (Pink) Hammond and associates saved Wichita county from utter embarrassment by completing No. 1 Munger, block 31, K. W. V. L., swabbing 50 barrels in the first five hours, being not only the county's best well in several weeks but an extension to the field.

In purchasing the northeast 40 acres of block 23, Young county school lands, in Young county, from Joe Wooten, Rannel Oil company completed purchase of a 160 acre tract for $100,000, having bought 120 acres previously for $80,000.

Five Locations In Crane County

SAN ANGELO, July 2.—Five locations by Simms-Atlantic and two by Cromwell and others heightened the race for oil in the field that has developed on and along both sides of the Landreth narrow strip of vacant University land in Crane county between the Gulf's McElroy and the University pools.

Three of Simms-Atlantic's locations, Nos. 3, 6, and 7, are along the north line of the Landreth strip, while the remainder are along the east line of section 46, block 30, University land, in which all are situated, the six with others forming a right angle. Simms-Atlantic No. 3 University is 900 feet from the east line and 200 feet from the south line and offsets Landreth No. 7 Cowden State Anderson on the north. No. 6 University is 1,650 feet from the east line and 200 feet from the south line and offsets Landreth No. 8 on the north. No. 7 is 2,310 feet from the east line and 200 feet from the south line and offsets No. 9 Landreth on the north.

Simms-Atlantic No. 4 University is 990 feet from the south line and 330 feet from the east line of the section and is a western offest to Cromwell and others' No. 3 University. Simms-Atlantic No. 5 University is 1,650 feet from the south line and 330 feet from the east line and is a western offset to Cromwell and others' No. 2.

Simms-Atlantic No. 2 University, in the process of completion is 330 feet out of the southeast corner of section 46, block 30, and is a northern offset to Landreth No. 4 Cowden State Anderson.

The rig is up for Cromwell and others' No. 2 University is 1,650 feet from the south line and 330 feet from the west line of section 47, block 30, Cromwell and others' No. 3 University is 900 feet from the south line and 300 feet from the west line of the same section and survey.

Ascot To Drill Test Just North Of Wichita Falls

Derrick is up for a test within sight of any of Wichita Falls' office buildings. The owners could perch on one of the higher floors of a local building, focus a pair of field glasses and watch drilling progress.

The test is Ascot Oil company's No. 1 L. C. Tyson, two miles east of the Continental Refinery and four miles northeast of the intersection of Eighth street and Scott avenue. It is the first test to be drilled so near the city in several years.

The location is 2042 feet west and 150 feet south of the northeast corner of the Walter Harvey survey, abstract 96. It may be reached by going out the Charlie road.

MUCH DRILLING IN PANHANDLE

304 Operations in Big Oil Field

AMARILLO, July 2. — Despite the low price paid for Panhandle field crude oil, and efforts on the part of purchasers and pipe lines to restrict drilling in the Panhandle area, drilling does not slow up as one would imagine it would.

A close scrutiny of the field early the present week showed 304 operations, against 394 the week before, viz:

	Last week	Previous week
Drilling wells	223	272
Shut down tests	75	113
First reports	6	9
Totals	304	394

The above field work was in 41 counties, of the Texas Panhandle, the Oklahoma Panhandle, one county of Southwest Oklahoma-Beckham; three counties of Northeastern New Mexico, and one county of Southeastern Colorado, which all operators term the Panhandle district.

Tank Car Shipments.

Tank car shipments from the Panhandle appear to be increasing again.

The past week they averaged 37,000 barrels a day, after having dropped to around 10,000 barrels a day.

Pipe lines, that is the Humble and Gulf-Magnolia, are moving out 66,000 barrels daily, and the four refineries are receiving 10,000 barrels a day, and railroads moving out 37,000 barrels a ndy, thus leaving 12,000 barrels a day going into storage.

The week before producers ran an average of 41,678 barrels a day into storage. Their withdrawals averaged 21,613 a day, leaving runs to the tanks with a gain of 20,065 barrels.

Official Figures.

The official production figures for 1926 of the Panhandle have just been prepared, and indicate that the five counties in the past year produced a total of 32,223,352 barrels of crude oil.

Phillips Petroleum company led the producers getting a total output of 9,290,376 barrels from its wells in the field. Its nearest competitor was the Gulf Production company with 2,595,999 barrels; Dixon Creek Oil company was third for 2,000,876 barrels; Marland Oil company was fourth for 1,768,987 barrels; Prairie Oil and Gas company, 1,500,000 barrels; No-Man Oil and Gas company, 1,324,206 barrels; Skelly Oil company, 1,186,070 barrels. These were all in Hutchinson county.

In Carson county, the Marland led with 723,662 barrels; American Refining company next for 389,589 barrels; Gulf third for 240,043 barrels, and the Texas Company fourth for 218,951 barrels.

In Gray county, the H. F. Wilcox Oil company led with 656,042 barrels; Gulf was next for 162,443 barrels.

Continental Oil company led in Wheeler with 31,159 barrels; Gibson Oil corporation was second for 25,774 barrels.

Amarillo Oil company is the sole producer in Potter county.

Deeper Sands Ahead.

All of the Panhandle field's production today is coming from two levels—the granite wash and the sandy lime—but many operators feel that a lower horizon that may be true sand is yet to be found.

This brings up the question of producing levels.

The Panhandle's shallowest oil was found in the Eagle King Drilling company No. 1 Mullican, in section 21, block B, of R. N. Thompson survey, near Hale Center, in Hale county, at 407 to 414 feet and is a 3 barrel well.

Deepest oil was found in the Big Bend Oil company's No. 1 Ledrick, in section 7, block A5, of E. L. survey, in Roberts county, at 4992 feet. It is not yet a commercial well.

Average oil pay in the Panhandle is from 1900 to 3100 feet, according to area. Gas is found from 1100 to 3100 feet, and the same rule also applies.

Deepest drilling test in Hutchinson county is the Phillips Petroleum company's No. 12 Elva-Whittenburg, in the Mary Whitley survey, to the north and west of Borger, and it is now below 3700 feet and expecting a pay around 4000 feet.

Sea level, at one time regarded as a place in which to quit in the Panhandle, is now held as but another marker in the geologic section of the area, and quite a number of wells are producing below sea level. More are to be drilled in the future. In Oklahoma, Kansas and elsewhere in Texas sea level is not held as the bugaboo that Panhandle operators have accepted it so far.

A number of geologists have gone on record as forecasting that the lower horizons—all below sea level—can keep the Panhandle field above 150,000 barrels a day, and possibly higher, for years to come. There is no demand for this oil today, but it is one of tomorrow's front line trenches when the Seminole and other flush fields have declined.

FUTILE FURY

It has been discovered that earth worms come to the surface when the fiddle is played to them. Doubtless they regret for the first time in their lives that they are not supplied with fangs like rattlesnakes.

RECORD IS SET IN PECOS POOL

Well Produces 53,000 Bbls. in Seven Days

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, July 2.—Production of 53,837 barrels by Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 6-a Yates in eastern Pecos county during the seven days it ran wild, addition of three new wells in the Landreth vacant strip in Crane county, with others in the process of completion, and drilling in of two wells of undertermined value in Ector county were among features in oil development this week in the Trans-Pecos, on the Edwards Plateau and in far western Texas.

The performance of the Pecos county well, perhaps setting a new record for shallow production, in view of the fact that tools were in the hole, eclipsed all other events. The gusher was tamed at 1:30 o'clock Thursday morning when cement was run between the eight and ten inch casing. Production saved from the time the well blew in at 7 o'clock Thursday night, June 23, until 7 a. m. Thursday, June 30, five and one-half hours after it was brought under control, averaged exactly 7,691 barrels daily. This represented the flow into steel tanks and the oil pumped from earthen storage. The production actually was greater than this, as an undertermined amount of oil was lost.

Seven other wells were shut in entirely, save No. 1-B Yates, which in twenty-four hours ending at 7 o'clock Thursday morning flowed 270 barrels in twelve hours through a quarter-inch choke. Pipe line deliveries were resumed Thursday with the completion of the Illinois Pipe Line Company's 8-inch line, paralleling its 6-inch line from the field to McCamey, with a branch leading to loading racks on the Orient railroad at Hurdle that have a capacity of loading thirty cars at a time. The two lines will permit the daily movement of 30,000 barrels of oil, but this would be inadequate if all the wells were opened.

Crane Completion

Landreth Production company completed its No. 6 Cowden State Anderson in Crane county, flowing 275 barrels daily from 2,910 feet. It topped the pay at 2,725. Tidal I-2, in the process of completion, swabbed 100 barrels in twenty-four hours ending at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning. It is in section 46, block 30, University land, and is the farthest eastern producer in the line north of the Landreth strip.

Simms-Atlantic No. 9-A, also in section 46, block 30, was fishing at 2,915 feet. It drilled to that depth early in the week after topping the pay at 2,860 feet and at that time stood 1,000 feet in oil. Tidal No. F-5, which topped the pay at 2,835 feet and at 2,865 feet stood 1,000 feet in oil early in the week, had been completed and was hooked with No. F-2. The two wells made 2,211 barrels in twenty-four hours ending at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning and 2,628 barrels during the preceding twenty-four hours.

Cromwell and others' No. 7 University was shot with 400 quarts from 2,702 to 2,992 feet and the first eighteen hours made 36 barrels of oil hourly. The total production was 604 barrels and the total depth 3,005 feet. Production for the entire area in twenty-four hours ending at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning was 53,968 barrels, leading all other pools in the county.

Well In Ector

It was estimated that J. S. Cosden No. 2-A Connell in Ector county would be good for 60 to 75 barrels daily when cleaned out. Pipe parted when it was shot with 180 quarts from 3,430 to 3,515 feet. The well sprayed oil for fifteen minutes after the shot and two hours later made 35 barrels in a 30-minute head. No. 3-A Connell was standing 1,700 feet in oil after swabbing 45 barrels in three hours after it was shot with 200 quarts from 3,465 to 3,545 feet. It was making a quarter million feet of gas. Both wells are in section 13, block B, public school land.

The schedule spudding of one test, locations for two more and the leasing of two tracts, on one of which a test soon will be started, attracted attention to Crockett county this week. T. O. Irwin and associates were due to spud their No. 1 W. T. Noelke in the north 200 acres of section 60, block GG. The north 200 acres are under lease. Materials were moved Monday to the location for P. H. Williams and family No. 2 L. P. Powell, 510 feet west of their No. 1 Powell in section 53, block B, kko GC vbgkqj GC&SF Ry. Co. survey. Williams' No. 1 Powell recently extended the Crockett county field a mile south and now is averaging more than 600 barrels daily, or one-third the county's entire production. Humble last week offset the Williams No. 1 Powell on the north.

Newman Oil Co. made the location for its No. 1 Clark, 2,310 feet from the north and east lines of section 1, block B, GC&SF Ry. Co. survey.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, July 2. (AP)—The cotton market was quiet today but prices held generally steady on reports of rains in the southwest and relatively steady Liverpool cables. October contracts after selling up to 17.18 reacted to 17.11, but stiffened up again, closing at 17.15. The general market closing steady at net advances of 4 to 6 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 to 7 points in the first three minutes on a spurt of covering and commission house or trade buying, which appeared to be inspired by the unfavorable weather reports from Texas.

Another spurt of covering occurred toward the close, attributed to the evening up of commitments for over the week-end andthe Fourth of July holiday and last prices were within a point of two of the best on most of the active positions.

Private cables said there had seen trade calling and covering in Liverpool and also reported fair business in cotton cloths for India and China was pending in the Manchester market.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 111,000 bales, against 51,000 last year, and 46,000 two years ago.

Two more private crop reports were issued, one making the condition 75.8 and the decrease in acreage 10.7 per cent, while the other placed the condition at 75.1, the indicated acreage at 44,145,000 and th eindicated crop at 14,321,000.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, July 2. (AP)—The cotton market was very quiet and trading was for the most part of a pre-holiday nature. There was little desire to enter upon new commitments in advance of the Independence day holiday. After trading up to 17.06 October eased off near the end and closed at 17.00 or on a parity with the previous close. The general market closed steady net 4 points up to 1 down.

Liverpool was better than due at start and private reports indicated considerable rain in the western belt. As a result first trades showed gains of 4 to 5 points. The steadier tone was maintained during the early trading when the weather map confirmed the reports of western rains and by the end of the first hour October traded at 17.04½ and December 17.28, 5 to 6 points above the previous close.

The advance led to some liquidation and in the second hour the market turned slightly reactionary. Although there were some minor rallies on trade buying prices gradually eased off until October dropped to 17.00 and December 17.21. The close was at or near the lows.

Exports for the day totaled 23,185 bales.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, July 2. (AP)—Cash wheat on the Fort Worth market scored a sharp advance of one and a half cents Saturday in the face of record-breaking receipts of that grain. Demand at the higher prices was reported very active and the arrivals were disposed of very quickly.

Receipts of wheat Friday were 212 cars, corn 17, oats 16, barley 10, sorghums 1, snapped corn 4, milo and kaffir heads 1.

Other grains were unchanged with fair demand except for corn in which only the yellow was particularly wanted.

Exporters were bidding $1.51⅝ to $1.52⅝ basis prompt delivery No. 1 hard wheat at gulf ports.

Estimated receipts for Saturday: Wheat 228 cars, corn 4, oats 13, barley 4, sorghums 3, and a single car of hay.

MARKETS TO CLOSE.

NEW YORK, July 2. (AP)—The New York stock exchange, the curb market, the cotton exchange, and all other securities and commodities markets will be closed on Monday in observance of Independence day. As it is a legal holiday the banks will not be open.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, July 2. (AP)—Increasing apprehension relative both to spring wheat and to corn did much today to bring about higher prices for all grain. Black rust reports from the northwest vied with talk about deficiency of rainfall in the corn belt.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1¼ to 1⅝c net higher, with corn 1¼ to 2½c up, oats unchanged to ⅝c advance, and provisions 2 to 17c down.

Provisions went lower with hogs and as a result of a larger increase of stocks of lard here than had been looked for.

All Stocks Close Strong Saturday In Face Of Holiday Coming Monday; Heavy Buying Features

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 2.—Stocks closed strong in the face of the approaching Fourth of July holiday on Monday. While a number of leading market interests were absent from the street there was sufficient buying to bring about a stiff rally throughout the list. People regarded as keen observers of the market forecast a continuance of the rise after the Fourth. At that time the week-end vacationists will be back on the job with a number of constructive campaigns to carry out. The short interest in stocks is still large at a time when bankers are predicting a much better market in view of credit conditions. Stocks bought today carry no interest until Tuesday. Commodities and foreign exchange remained quiet with the undertone steady.

New York, Chicago & St. Louis (Nickel Plate featured the rails by rising five dollars. Wall street believes that the Chesapeake & Ohio will seek to have the option for Perne Marquette stock renewed. If any such development takes place it will not be at the old price but considerably higher. This accounts for the persistent strength of Nickel Plate. Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred moved higher on accumulated credited to the account of another railroad. Chicago Great Western moved ahead and Reading and Southern Pacific came i nfor attention. Ontario & Western was strong. If New Haven decides to dispose of its holdings in this road will be at a price above the current market price, it is believed.

Activity continued in the so-called Cutten Stocks. While Baldwin sild off three points, International Harvester rose a simiiar amount. The other Cutten specialty—Timken—showed little change. The big Chicago operator is a big bull on the three stocks and intends to hold Timken, for instance, for 150. Harvester, he forecasts as headed for higher prices. The same is true of Baldwin.

A good demand continued for such stocks as General Electric, American Can and General Motors. The three stocks closed higher for the day with indications of better prices next week. The buying of American Can is regarded as excellent and coming from people in a position to know conditions within the company. General Electric again responded to reports of redemption of the $53,000,000 $10 par stock to talk that some additional will be given holders of the present stock. Union Carbide resumed its advance after a lapse of a week on buying attributed to Chicago interests. This is another stock in which Cutten is said to be interested in. Earnings are showing an increase over last year and its large number of subsidiaries are operating in Black Ink.

Telephone stocks responded to the reinvestment demond at this time of the year, both American and International closing higher on the day. Houston went higher and Atlantic Refining closed strong on a few transactions. Now that Transcontinental Oil has shown a rather fair advance considering its price, traders are turning their attention to Little Superior Oil. This company, according to people close to the management, is showing earnings considerably in excess of those for last year. Superior has made a contract with Atlantic Refining to take a large part of its production which would insure steady earnings.

The group working in U. S. Cast Iron Pipe were active during the two hours and the stock closed nearly five points higher. Pipe is expected to earn twice its dividend requirements this year.

BUYING HIKES WHEAT PRICE

Saturday's Close Near Top For Week

BY CHARLES J. LEYDEN.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, July 2. (AP)—Persistent speculative buying prevailed in wheat today and prices moved into new high ground for the week and closed near the top. Houses that have been identified with the buying side for sometime were again picking up the offerings. Further evidence of black rust infestation northwest helped the upturn.

Corn shorts were not disposed to hold out over the holiday period and their covering together with scattered support lifted this grain sharply, much of the loss of the previous day being recovered. News affecting all grains was without much change, but the undertone of the market was firm.

July wheat opened at $1.44⅛@1.44⅜, rallied to $1.46⅝, dipped to $1.46 and closed at $1.46⅜@1.46½. September opened at $1.43⅜@1.44, sagged to $1.43⅜, rallied to $1.46 and closed at $1.45½@1.45⅝. September corn opened at $1.04@1.04½, rallied to $1.06½ and closed at $1.06¼@1.06⅜.

The seaboard reported export demand as quiet and of holiday character. Liverpool closed ¼ to ⅝ pence lower.

Locally wheat finished 1¼ to 1⅝c higher, corn 1¼ to 2½c hgher, oats unchanged to ⅝c hgher and rye at ⅜ to 1¼c advanced

Corn had a distinctly better undertone Weather condtons over the belt remaned generally favorably, although temperatures on the average were somewhat lower. The condition of the corn crop, particularly its lateness, at this time, remains the bullish card in the market, and unless sustained, fine weather is received enthusiasm on the buying side is unlikely to ebb.

Oats closed in higher ground with other grains.

Rye showed a healthier tone, and closed up in sympathy with the leading grain.

Big Demand For Wichita Potatoes Keeps Produce Houses Busy Packing

Local Receipts During Past Week Good With All Vegetables Plentiful

A potato grader and sacker, recently installed by the Wichita Produce company, has been operated at full time the past week in grading and sacking "City of Faith Potatoes," officials said Saturday.

The potatoes were grown in the Wichita Valley and no let-up has been experienced in local receipts, it was said. In spite of this, however, few shipments have been made because of the local demand for the high grade "spuds" raised near Wichita Falls.

The machine is electrically driven and is operated by one man, grading, sorting and sacking the potatoes automatically. The operator merely feeds the machine and takes the filled sacks away.

The machine separates the potatoes into three grades. Grade No. 1 is sacked, No. 2 is stored and No. 3 is returned to farmers for seed. A fourth size is so small that they are of no value. The loss in small or damaged potatoes has been very light, it was stated.

The only addition made to the list of fresh vegetables received here is green peas which are wholesaling at five cents per pound. Green beans are more plentiful and as a result the price dropped from 12½ to 10 cents.

A reduction in the prices of a number of other fresh vegetables is noted. Tomatoes, however, are higher, opening next week at $1.75 as compared with $1.25 during the past week.

Fresh corn is still on the market but is expected to soon play out as the grains begin to harden in July. Late corn is not due for several weeks.

Fresh, seedless grapes from California are now available in Wichita Falls. The wholesale price is $4 per lug.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, July 2. (AP)—Despite the absence of many traders from Wall street, the stock market today gave an impressive demonstration of strength. Pools, encouraged by the prospect of easier money rates and a good July reinvestment demand, bid up a number of specialties 2 to 5 points, nearly a dozen of them to new high records. The strong buying support apparent for many issues led to rather heavy short covering on the part of those who had sold stocks edrlier in the week.

Clearings through the New York clearing house today set a new high record for all time, falling just short of $2,000,000,000. The weekly statement of associated banks, however, disclosed the fifth successive deficit in reserve, also unprecedented, totaling $2,588,920.

There was little in the day's trade news to influence the market movement although optimistic business forecasts were made by executives of rubber, shipping and chain store companies, prior to their departure for Europe. Business generally appears to be moving in fairly large volume, although the margin of profit in many industries is extremely small.

Railroad shares presented several points of strength. Refusal of the interstate commerce commission to make any decision at this time in the Van Sweringen merger case, resulting in the lapsing of the option given tot he Chesapeake and Ohio railroad by the "Nickel Plate" of Pere Marquette stock held in its treasury, brought good buying into the shares of the "Nickel Plate" which undoubtedly will receive a higher price for its Pere Marquette stock if the merger goes through. "Nickel Plate" common advanced 5 points to a new peak at 150.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading, with demand sterling quoted around $4.85⅝ and French francs just below 3.91½ cents.

PLAINVIEW TO PAVE STREETS

$120,000 Fund Set Aside By City Council

Special to The Record News.

PLAINVIEW, July 2.—A $125,000 additional paving program was adopted by the city council of Plainview Wednesday night in a special meeting called for the purpose of acting on a number of paving petitions received by the council from property owners in Plainview wanting their respective streets paved.

Work on the paving of 24 blocks will begin at once, according to Mayor W. E. Risser, or as soon as contracts can be let and the material placed on the grounds. It is very probable the brick on concrete base type of paving will be put down as this is the only type in use in Plainview now. Property owners on the streets to be paved have agreed to pay three-fourths of the cost of paving and the other fourth will be met by the city from the proceeds of a bond issue voted recently of $30,000 for the purpose.

The streets to be paved are West Seventh and West Eleventh from the points where they are now paved to the end of each on Quincy street where Wayland college is located. West Seventh when paved will connect Wayland college with the business section of the city by pavement. Three blocks will be laid in the business section of the city on Beech and East Seventh streets.

Pioneer Baylor County Resident, Who Came From Sweden, Called by Death

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, July 2. — Baylor county lost one her first pioneers in the death of Chas. E. Holman. He was one of the five men living in the county, who voted in the first election in 1879 in the organization of the county. He was of the rugged pioneer type, having done construction work on the M. K.-T., H. & T. C. as well as other building in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, and this was probably one reason of him coming to Texas.

Born in Sweden,

"Uncle Charlie" as he was known all over the county, was born in Stockholm,Sweden in the year 1843 and was 83 years old on the day of his death, June 21st. Under a law of Sweden at that time he went into a military training school at the age of 18 and took the three years course. At the age of 25 he came to America and landed in New York. At first he worked in wood camps and then went into the railroad construction business. Interesting were the stories he told of the building of the lines of the H. and T. C. and the M. K.-T. into Texas. The first stone building in Denison, Texas was built by Mr. Holman. For several years he did a great deal of construction work in rock and bridge work in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and in southern Texas.

To Baylor in 1879.

He came to Baylor county in 1879 and voted in the first election held in the county. He homesteaded 160 acres south of the Brazos river about 10 miles and has for these many years been a stock farmer. He enlarged his holdings year by year until at his death he owned about 2500 acres of land, all in this county. His home for many years has been on a section on the north side of river, across from the first homesteaded land in the Ogden community, where he was known and loved by every one. In the early days he had a struggle living south of river as the great expanse at that time was owned by Millet Bros. and they and their cowboys made it hard for Uncle Charlie. They were cow men and determined to over run the sheep man and farmer but they had little success with types of men as Mr. Holman. He had come to stay and make his home and stay he did. The county is today indebted to such men of intrepid, fearless character.

First Stone Building.

Mr. Holman built the first stone building in Seymour, erected by Chas. Humphries at that day and now occupied by the Model grocery, of which W. B. and T. E. Craddock are owners. Mr. Holman helped his county in the construction of the first bridge across the Brazos. A dispute arose between the bridge company having the contract and the commissioners. Mr. Holman was called into court by the commissioners and after inspection of the bridge and plans he found out that the piers lacked four feet being high enough and through his help a settlement was made.

Mr. Holman was married to Miss Josephine Wolf of Fort Smith, Ark. Mrs. Holman died 13 years ago. Mr. Holman has been very active for his years going in his buggy to all about his land in different parts of the county. About a year ago he had two light strokes of paralysis. On Tuesday before his death he was taken violently ill, the third stroke did not come until Wednesday morning and he lived until the 21st dying on his 83rd birthday at his own home surrounded by members of his devoted family. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, June 22, at the Seymour cemetery at 4 o'clock with Rev. E. C. Cargill, pastor of the Presbyterian church in charge. Uncle Charlie had been a member of the Lutheran church since the age of 14 years in Sweden. TAX CHANGE WAITS RULING

Delay May Block Action On Petition

An opinion from the attorney general relative to the legality of reducing property assessments in Wichita county and increasing the county tax rate will be required by the county commissioners court before it will take action on a petition to decrease the assessments and increase the rate, County Judge E. W. Nicholson said Saturday.

1927 Change Too Late.

As a result of the stand taken by the court it is practically impossible for the proposed assessment reduction and rate increase to go into effect this year due to the fact that Wednesday is the final adjournment day for the county board of equalization, which would have to pass on the proposal. An opinion from the attorney general cannot be obtained by Wednesday, county officials said Saturday.

It is anticipated by county officials that a petition will be presented Tuesday to the county commissioners court asking for the reduction of the assessments and the increase of the county tax rate in order that citizens in Wichita county will have the amount of their state tax payments reduced.

Judge Nicholson said Saturday that he was of the opinion that a reduction of the assessments and the increase of county tax rate to defeat state tax payments would be illegal and that if the members of the county commissioners court authorized a procedure of that kind they would be liable for criminal prosecution.

Legal Question.

However, Judge Nicholson said, if the attorney general holds that a procedure of that kind would be legal it would remove all criminal liability on the part of the members of the county commissioners court. In that case the court would be open for arguments on the question, Judge Nicholson said.

As matters relative to the taxation question in Wichita county for 1927 stood Saturday, it is very probable that the same county tax rate of last year, .80 cents on the $100 valuation, will prevail this year. This probability was voiced by county officials.

Rate May Fall.

If there is a material increase in the total assessments there will be a decrease in the tax rate, however, A. C. Howard, county tax assessor, said Saturday that it is probable that there would be only a slight difference between the 1026 and 1927 assessments rolls.

The 1927 assessment roll will not be completed until all of the adjustments authorized by the board of equalization have been received by Mr. Howard.

Potato Growers Plan Purchase of Seed

At least one car of seed potatoes of the "Triumph" variety will be ordered for fall seed by the Wichita County Potato Growers' association it was officially agreed at a meeting of the organization Saturday morning. Growers wishing seed will be apportioned amounts as long as the lot lasts, it was affirmed.

The car will be ordered from eastern Oklahoma, O. K. Barnes, manager of the agricultural department of the chamber of commerce said. There are very few fine seed potatoes left in the country as reservations are made early, but Mr. Barnes feels confident that one car can be obtained from this section.

"Many of the farmers intend using seed from their spring crops instead of purchasing with the other growers on the co-operative buying plan," he said.

These seed are of very fine quality and will insure a good fall crop, according to opinions of those attending the meeting.

This will probably be the last meeting of the association held until fall, it was announced.

Tire Company Offers Prizes in Contest

The Franklyn company 510 Travis, dealers in Miller tires, tubes and auto accessories, have announced a contest for the naming of their new service car, a combination of motorcycle and small truck side car.

As first prize a "Miller-geared-to-the-road cord casing will be given for the best name submitted with an explanation as to why it was suggested. Second prize will be a Miller cord type red tube. Third prize will be $5 in trade at the Franklyn garage or service station.

All answers should be sent to the Franklyn company before 6 p. m. Saturday, July 9.

Navy Men Build Pocket-Size Plane

It isn't quite small enough to carry under your arm, but you could park it comfortably in your back yard. The engine is a twin-cylinder and the total weight with the pilot only 600 pounds. Hoyt Holbrook is the pilot, on the left. On the right are W. F. Hopkins and T. Meade, enlisted men of the United States navy, who designed and built the midget. Yes, it flies.

San Angelo Expects 35,000 in 10 Years

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, July 2.—San Angelo in the next 10 years should grow to a city of 35,000 to 50,000 people, and natural gas providing cheap fuel should attract industries that will play a prominent part in its development, believes John A. Reed, public utility operator of Cedar Rapids, Ia. He is the only brother of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, democratic leader whose presidential nomination is expected by many. He spent several days in San Angelo.

"My brother is the politician of the family and I am the business man," he answered when queried as to his belief of his brother's chances for the nomination and election to the presidency. He declined to discuss the matter farther.

He came to San Angelo because of his interest in the gas project now going forward here and because of the rapid developments in West Texas, of which he has heard so much about in the middle west. He plans to return next fall, combining a business trip with hunting.

Traveling Presents— Visitors for Summer—
Summer In Colorado— Honors In Amarillo—
An Age of Travel— Weddings In July—

MEETING a friend during the last holidays and thinking that she was in a rush like I was, doing Christmas shopping, I greeted her thusly, "Whither away?" And the reply was, "O, dear me, I'm so rushed getting my travelers off."

Naturally you would think, Kitty, that she was seeing somebody off on the train or packing up some of the family for a journey, so with an ear ever open for news, I said quickly, "Who's going away, pray?"

Come to find out upon close questioning, the travelers she referred to were some presents received past Christmases, that she had no use for and didn't want, so she left them done up and the cards in them, and when the new festival was approaching she enclosed a pretty Christmas card and did up the package anew and sent it to some friend who probably did the same thing to some other friend or acquaintance the next Christmas tide. My surprise was so evident that she said, "Don't you ever do this?" Whereupon I said, "O, no, I always not only want all the things I receive, but most generally want those I buy for others, so you see I never have any travelers."

Now I had heard of people doing this with wedding presents, but never Christmas gifts. And yet, come to think of it, I remember once hearing a bride of a few weeks who had just received an invitation to a friend's marriage, remark in a disgusted tone, "Wedding presents are gifts loaned because before you sort yours out and remove the cards you find yourself getting ready to give a present," and so she solved her problem by saying, "Well, as I have so many duplicates I'll just leave the cards in them, and when I have to send a present out of town, I'll start a traveler on the way."

NOW all this leads up to my travelers who are real travelers, however, going on sure 'nuf journeys, and some of them on quite extensive ones, too. So before you can catch your breath good and say "Whatever is Peggy talking about, Christmas time with the Fourth of July sitting on the doorstep, she must be getting her celebrations mixed up a bit—" I will proceed to tell you where some folks are going to spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hamilton and two sons, Martin and William, are anticipating a very happy summer in Colorado at the lovely Conejos Recreation camp near Antonito, and are leaving Saturday afternoon to remain until cooler weather. This camp is owned by Wichita Falls people and is said by all who have spent vacations there, to be one of the most delightful spots in cool Colorado.

And then the W. R. Ferguson family are leaving today to spend the remainder of the summer on their ranch in New Mexico, and will also visit in Denver before returning home in time for the children to start to school. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Sallie Childs, Mrs. Ferguson's mother, of Teague, Texas, who arrived here Friday.

The C. W. Hanleys and their children, accompanied by Mrs. C. F. Jones, left Thursday to spend three weeks in New Mexico and Colorado, and Mrs. J. M. Adams and little daughter, Ruth Maurine, have already sailed from Galveston to New York City and will go from there to Toronto, Canada, and spend the month of July. They will return home via Chicago where Mrs. Adams will study in the American Conservatory of Music.

Both Mrs. Adams and her daughter are musicians of exceptional ability, and will be featured on programs over radio stations in New York City, Toronto and Chicago. Little Miss Adams recently won recognition as a child pianist in Fort Worth where they lived previous to moving here.

TRULY this is an age of travel. It is estimated that four hundred thousand Americans are going abroad this year. Millions are touring the country and the same authority estimates that the increase in the number of visitors to our national parks, alone, amounts to about 2,000,000 in a single year.

And while many are leaving, this seems to be particularly a summer for visitors, and I believe that I can say with truth, that more charming girls from other cities and towns have been guests in Wichita Falls the past two months, than ever before. This week, two especially lovely girls from Austin, Julia Matthews and Louise Millican are guests of Anabel and Elizabeth Couper, and the days are filled with one continual round of merriment, ending at night with moonlight picnics and swimming parties. Elizabeth entertained for them at the Country club Wednesday with a pretty bridge luncheon, and another event of note was the picnic and swimming party at Cedar park on Thursday evening.

I AM sure the C. W. Snider home must be one of the happiest spots in Wichita Falls, for it has been filled with boys and girls since the very day school was out, when Helen, the daughter of the house, came home for her vacation. And now with the departure of several girls who added charm to many informal parties, another one, Esther Moore of Kansas City, a cousin of Helen has come to spend a few weeks and her presence has started the social ball rolling all over again. Elizabeth Carrigan, also has a visitor, Valda Thomas from Throckmorton, who came Thursday night, and who was a schoolmate of the Wichita Falls girls who were students at Ward-Belmont.

So you see everybody is not traveling away from us. A few are still coming our way, and among these are also Fay and Thelma Fisher, Frances Boyd and Gene Nelson who have had one grand time visiting friends and schoolmates in Amarillo. These girls came home Friday.

Clippings from the society news in the Amarillo paper tell of the many social events given for them, and one especially interesting describes a lovely bridge party honoring Gene Nelson at the Amarillo Country club when Marjorie Neely, her hostess, entertained. Another was a dance at the Country club given by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hardin with Gene Nelson sharing honors with Margaret Hardin of Los Angeles, Cal.

And still another was an Al Fresco party at the Masterson home, complimenting out-of-town girls, which included Fay and Thelma Fisher and Frances Boyd among the honorees. And these are not half of the delightful affairs the girls enjoyed during the stay there.

THE leaf from the June calendar has already been torn off, and all of June's roses have faded, yet I have not ceased to talk about the weddings which have made this month of brides and roses one of particular interest, and one was that of Estellyn Allday and Walter Achning which took place in Dallas Wednesday of the past week, when numerous Wichita Falls relatives and friends attended. Three bridesmaids were chosen from childhood friends here, Alva Ruth Walker, Dorothy Shamburger and Mary Ferguson, and even the minister who read the ceremony, the Rev. Walter J. Johnson, belonged to the bride's home town. The announcement and pre-nuptial parties were given here, and with the exception of the ceremony being read in Dallas, it was indeed a Wichita Falls wedding.

And another one of interest is taking place today when Vera Cain, second charming daughter of Mrs. V. W. Cain, will be married to Russell Barnes Kerbow.

With these last words said about June weddings and visitors, I sign myself—

Games and dancing furnished diversion, also an informal program which included a Spanish dance; readings by Mrs. Sterling Crumpler and fortune telling by Mrs. James P. Bowen.

A feature of the evening proving especially attractive was the arrangement of a huge wedding bell made of white crepe paper over a table which when drawn up revealed Misses Anabel Womack and Dorothy Van Deventer, who played "Love Ship" on their violins. Mrs. L. T. Francis sang, "I Love You Truly."

At the close of the evening, little Miss Vollie Jean Cain, sister of the bride-elect, appeared dressed in a costume of red hearts drawing a red wagon in which rested a lovely casserole, a gift to Mr. Kerbow and Miss Cain from members of the club.

Wichita Falls Girl Home For Visit After Scoring Hit Behind Footlights

Once a Wichitan, always one, and though our young folk afflicted with the wanderlust may heed the call, "Go east or west young man and woman," like Leona Maricle did, still when they do something really worth while, as did this Wichita Falls girl, why then they think of home, and everybody at home thinks of them.

Miss Maricle, who has made a signal success in the tart, scintillating satire, "Gentlemen Prefer Blonds," the stage version of Anita Loos' popular story, in the part of Gloria Atwell, rival of the blond Lorelei, for the hand—and fortune—of Henry Spofford, is here for three weeks visiting her mother, Mrs. Emma Maricle, her sister, Mrs. Faye Hardeman and numerous aunts, uncles, cousins and friends. For Wichita Falls is her childhood home—where she entered school and finished the high school and where she had day dreams of the time when she would some day go to New York City—the mecca for all who plan to do big things.

School at C. I. A.

Since leaving Wichita Falls a few years ago, the young actress went to school at C. I. A. in Denton where she specialized in dramatic art, and it is said that her unusual talent was very marked in school activities. Through the encouragement of one of the teachers, she afterwards went to New York City and with very little financial help, worked her way upwards beginning with extra parts in the movies. She was finally given better parts which tided her over until her ability and striking type of beauty were recognized by Edgar Selwyn, producer of "Gentlemen Prefer Blonds," who selected her to take one of the four leading parts in his splendid cast of 21 people.

Like the story from which it takes title, the play, "Gentlemen Prefer Blonds," is smartly written and in much of its humor there is the tang of humanity, at its follies and hypocrisies, sharply observed and the types portrayed are all etched in with unfailing skill and are caricatures that stress essential traits. In selecting the cast, Selwyn included players who rise brilliantly to the demands in the way of characterization, made by the keen-minded playwright, according to reviews of the play. While the part of the vamp, Gloria Atwell, is not the leading role in the production, it was selected for Miss Maricle because of her special fitness for that type of character.

Successful Season.

With a Juno-like figure, Miss Maricle has large expressive dark eyes and lovely luxuriant black hair, and a complexion that will rival any description given in beauty cream advertisements. Her figure is particularly well suited to wearing handsome gowns, which play an important part in the role of the vivacious vamp who came so near being the successful rival of the baby-face blond, Lorelei. And the play among other things is described as a fashion show in which women members of the cast wear many handsome costumes.

The play has had a most successful season in Chicago, New York City, Cleveland and other eastern cities, as well as in Canada and on the Pacific coast, and during the month of November, was the attraction on the opening night of the gorgeous new Belasco theater at Los Angeles.

In this audience, according to press notices, were gathered more celebreties in the movie and theatrical world than ever before assembled at one time at a performance.

Preceeding the rising of the curtain, an opening address was made by Bert Lytell, famous cinema star and talks were also made by John Emerson and Anita Loos.

After a brief vacation here with relatives, Miss Maricle will return to New York City to begin rehearsals in a new comedy, "Easy Speaking" in which she will appear next season.

Wedding of Miss Vera Cain Takes Place Today Noon

Friends of the young people will be interested in the marriage of Miss Vera Cain, daughter of Mrs. V. W. Cain to Russell Brown Kerbow of Lubbock which will take place today at high noon at the home of her mother, 1009 Monroe.

The ring ceremony will be read before an improvised altar arranged with cut flowers, and the pre-nuptial solo, "I Love You Truly" will be sung by Miss Josephine Fisk, with Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr., at the piano. Mrs. Akins will also play the Lohengrin wedding march while the couple enter unattended. The ceremony will be read in the presence of relatives and few intimate friends.

The bride will wear a satin periwinkle crepe gown with trimmings of hand-made flowers in orchid and pink georgette, with slippers and hose to harmonize and will carry a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Kerbow will leave for Colorado for a wedding trip and will be at home in Lubbock after July 15, where the bridegroom is connected with the Gulf Oil company.

Mrs. Kerbow will wear for travel a tailored gown in two tones of blue with blue hat, slippers and hose to match.

The bride is the second daughter of Mrs. V. W. Cain and has been reared in Wichita Falls, and is popular in business and social circles. Mr. Kerbow is a graduate of Texas University in engineering and geology.

Music And Musicians

BY COBINA WRIGHT
(Copyright 1927, By Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, July 2.—A few days ago I had tea with a modest, gentle person with a huge shock of white hair above a pair of penetrating and intelligent brown eyes. The reserve strength of the man, his poise, his dignity, were those of one who has "found himself," who had seen the vision of his life-work and unfettered by fear or misgivings had seen it through. His name is—Edwin Franko Goldman—a name which by dint of hard work, perseverance and courage has brought music, good music, into the lives of thousands of people in these United States, giving an opportunity to hear good music free of charge in the open air to the world at large, and providing indeed a veritable musical education to those to whom the expenditure of even 25 cents would mean havoc in the weekly budget.

Ten years ago, this young man who had considerable acclaim as a cornettist, decided New York should have a band playing good music, that the long summer evenings should be utilized in some way for the presentation of the classics for the people. He was told not once but a hundred times "It can't be done," not only by his friends and conferees but by almost every one with whom he came into contact, musical and otherwise.

Picks His Start.

But he settled upon the green of Columbia University as the most auspicious spot to begin his new career. Not blessed with a fortune of his own to aid him, he also took upon himself the gigantic task of raising funds to support the enterprise. The records do not show how many letters he wrote. It was a Herculean task, and there was a living to earn besides.

The first five years, Mr. Goldman tells me, were a terrific struggle but by no means a discouraging one, for his concerts increased in number and the interest shown by the public was tremendous. They flocked to hear the band each evening three times a week, and in view of the fact that Goldman had been informed that only "jazz" would attract the crowds it was amusing as well as gratifying to see the great response evoked by Wagner, Bach, Beethoven and Brahms programs.

His Sincerity Impresses.

The Guggenheims, Mr. and Mrs. Murry, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel, viewed the success of the young man with interest, and a few years ago, so impressed were they with his sincerity and ability that they undertook to relieve him of all financial anxiety providing the whole capital with which not only to give his summer concerts but to give them every evening either in Central Park or on the grounds of the New York University where they are alternately held, thus not only taking a huge weight off the mind of the enterprising young man but providing pleasure and instruction to thousands of music lovers.

I asked Mr. Goldman how he managed such a huge undertaking.

"To begin with," says Mr. Goldman, "while the obstacles were tremendous the growth was gradual, and I worked on the plan for two years before the orchestra ever played a note. The set-backs in the beginning were too numerous to relate, but I fought them out myself. I kept my own books, my own schedules. I still do. The knowledge I accumulated during those early years is invaluable to me; I never have to look into records for facts. I have them all stored away in my mind.

Prepares Programs.

"I know every detail connected with every phase of this work. I prepare the programs, the explanatory data which goes with them. Sometimes I think when I am recalling those early days, that if I had to do it over again, I could not go through with it, and yet I know I would.

"It was a hard matter to raise money in the beginning though now that the Guggenheims have so generously underwritten the concerts that anxiety is a thing of the past. But I was turned down again and again by those from whom I sought money, which of course was only to be expected. I remember I wrote again and again to John D. Rockefeller, but never received an answer. Then one day by chance the band was engaged to play for him. I drove with him to his country place, and during the course of the journey he remarked to my utter astonishment:

"I am one of your subscribers and I admire the work you are doing."

I was dumbfounded and hastened to assure him of his error but he insisted.

I had made up my mind not to discuss the matter with him, but I couldn't let this pass. Finally he admitted, "Well, I subscribe to some concert."

I assured him it was not mine, though I had tried hard enough to gain his interest.

He questioned me about our work, the response, our difficulties, and the result of it was the following season he became one of the most generous and constant supporters of the band and his annual subscription never ceased till the Guggenheims underwrote the entire expenses of the concerts.

Patriotic Theme.

Mr. Goldman begins each concert with the Star-Spangled Banner, and it is most inspiring to see the vast audience, many of whom are foreigners learning to know this great land of ours, stand as one man as the national anthem is spiritedly rendered, and it is remarkable, too, to note that despite the huge crowd which assembles each evening no policemen are in view to keep the gathering in order. This is a serious audience, courteous and kindly, eager to learn and appreciate something good which is brought within their reach by the thought and generosity of others, and they are considerate of the other fellow's rights to enjoy the evening likewise, any one of them would resent the slightest noise or disturbance.

At the end of each season a memory contest is held. Dozens of arias are played and it is the audience's task to guess the name of the composition and the composer. One gentleman last season received a rating of one hundred per cent. Questioned afterwards, he said he had learned all he knew about music from his nightly visits to these public concerts, as they were the only form of musical diversion he could afford.

Talking to my friend, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim some time ago, she told me that not only was she delighted that the public showed such enthusiasm, but that the letters they received from "shut-ins" all over the country who "listen in" at the broadcasting sessions three times a week were a source of constant inspiration to them. Many people have asked why it is that no other conductor has ever been at the helm of these concerts and in turn I put the question to Mrs. Guggenheim.

Spirit of Program.

"For the simple reason," she replied, "that without Mr. Goldman there would be no concerts. It is his organization, his ingenuity, and hard work that are responsible for them, and it is through his efforts alone that these concerts are given today."

Nor are they a mere summer avocation with him. They are a life-work to which he devotes himself for the whole year with a tireless, relentless energy, and during the years that the Goldman band has been in existence, Goldman has never failed to take the baton each evening.

HOW TO KEEP MOTHS AWAY

Expert Gives Tips For The Housewives

By HILDA HUNT

Springtime is clothespress time. We have not had much spring so far this year, so perhaps you have put away your winter clothes and prepared the clothespress for summer. It should, of course, be given a thorough cleaning before your winter clothing is hung back again. I doubt if any closet can be made absolutely moth proof. I have even known moths to get into cedar chests. But they can be made as near moth proof as possible by thoroughly washing the walls and shelves with a solution of alum with a few drops of carbolic.

After the closet is thoroughly dried, it is a good idea to cover the walls and shelves with gingham. You can get it all the way from 12 to 50 cents a yard, according to the quality you want, and the cheaper grades will answer quite as well for this purpose, though, of course, you will want to follow out the color scheme of your room and maybe you are using gingham curtains. In that case the inside of the closet should match. The gingham is applied like paper, and then shellacked. The shelves may be given a fresh coat of paint and covered with separate pieces of gingham that can be laundered, or treated in the same way as the walls.

You will now have a closet antimoth, treated, and with the walls covered with a fabric that will not come off your clothing. Shellacking the gingham will give it the appearance of glazed chintz, and the entire closet can be washed with soap and water, walls and all, as frequently as you please. I think this is about as near moth proof as anyone can get.

You can further carry out the gingham interior by having wardrobe hangers of the same fabric, as well as the shoe bag on the door, and you will always have a fresh crispness about your closet that will make it an inviting place to hang your clothing. The gingham will never lose its color, either the shellacked covering on the walls, or the lose shelf covers and wardrobe hangers and shoe bag that must necessarily be launderied again and again.

A linen closet treated with gingam in the same way is quite as inviting for household linen. It would not be necessary to make this moth proof, but a wash with the same solution before applying the gingham would insure a greater cleanliness. The drawers of the linen closet can be treated with a loose gingham lining in the bottom of each.

And while you are using gingham for your clothes and your linen closets, why not go a step further and use up the left over pieces for ruffling to give a bit of fresh crisp color to your kitchen shelves, or as an edging to the shelves of your dish closet? Several methods of shelf trimming are shown in the sketch. Until you have tried it out you have no idea what a bit of vivant color, such as one finds in gingham, will do to brighten up the kitchen. And while you are thinking about your kitchen shelves, don't forget the windows. They, too, would look charming with colorful curtains.

BILL - By Montague

When we learned Bill's true character we decided to withhold the favors we had been showering so lavishly upon him. We were hurt by the deception he had been practicing—hurt, and a little ashamed to think our judgment had gone so far astray. Also we resolved upon certain disciplinary measures to employ the next time he abused the privileges accorded him. His appearance was so decorative, and he attracted so much admiration from visitors that it seemed wise to keep him around the place, if he could be taught to behave himself. But inasmuch as he never acted unethically between sunrise and six o'clock a. m., it was hard to catch him at it. And discipline, unless it follows immediately upon the offense, is useless. Only milkmen are astir at this time of day, and we knew it would be useless to persuade them to act in the capacity of disciplinarians, because to do so would interrupt the bottle rattling with which they delight to wake up the neighborhood.

Each Time They Passed or Repassed They Made a Lunge at Him

Fortunately the business of administering retributive justice was taken out of our hands. Bill's conduct is exemplary now. He went a little too far one morning, picked the wrong victim for his pranks, and thereby inadvertently effected his own reformation. It was the kingbird who attended to him—how, I shall now proceed to relate.

We first became aware that Bill was not the squirrel he should be when for four or five mornings in succession the robins, whose nest was on the capital of one of the porch columns, set up a terrific racket. In an effort to learn what was the cause of this outbreak, I would put my head out of the window, and always I would see Bill scurrying up the elm tree either with a bulging cheek, or with yellow stains on his countenance and breast. It was not difficult to tell what had been going on. Our Bill, whom we fed with walnuts, nicely shelled, from our own hands, was an egg thief. One could never suspect, as he ambled confidently up to us, elevated his tail behind him and sat up on his haunches to nibble the food from our fingers, that he could be anything but the personification of innocence. Throughout the day he occupied the same tree with the birds, and appeared to be answering their chirps with his chatter. We often remarked on the fact that they were all happy up there together, and that a sort of camaraderie existed among them. We did not note any discord in the sounds which came from them, and we could not know that they were probably abusing each other bitterly.

When guests came to the house we would take them out into the yard and whistle, and presently Bill's pointed gray nose would glance out of the leaves on a branch overhead. If we held up a nut he would scramble down and lope over the lawn to receive it. Sometimes he would eat the nut greedily.

Again he would snatch it swiftly and take it away some little distance. Then he would dig out a little hole with his paws, insert his nose into it to make it rounder, and deposit the nut, trampling the earth down firmly over it. We knew from watching him that he would never remember where he had put this future repast, and that he would dig up holes all over the garden looking for it, the next time he grew hungry, but it was interesting to watch him engaged in what he believed to be acts of conservation, and it always pleased the people who helped us watch him. So we set great store by his presence, and I seldom came home at night that I did not bring peanuts and walnuts and almonds by which to keep him firmly attached to our establishment.

The discovery that he stole eggs was disquieting. Much as we liked him, we couldn't have that sort of piracy going on about the premises. The wrens, who never build save indoors, and behind a door that will admit nothing larger than another wren, were secure from him. So were the orioles, who hang their nest on a twig so slender that no squirrel will entrust his weight to it. But the robins were an easy prey. And we began to consider measures for their protection, which included driving Bill from the place if this should be necessary.

But it wasn't necessary. A pair of kingbirds, creatures who usually rear their young outside the town boundaries, determined to build a nest in one of the maples in the back yard. The nest was in a low and easily accessible branch, and Bill apparently looked on while it was being built, with anticipatory and evil thoughts in his head. I was awakened one morning by a terrific commotion, and put my head out of the window just in time to see Bill hastily descend the maple tree, leap across the grass and climb up an electric light wire pole in front of the house. Directly behind him during the journey was a gray chested, black capped pursuer, who was using language which, if translated, would probably not be printable.

And behind the father kingbird came the mother. Then I witnessed a manoeuvre which put out of my head all notions that animals do not reason. The mother bird, instead of following her husband, flew to the next pole, and perched there while Bill was driven out on the wire. In a few minutes two other kingbirds came along. One of them took up his position on the first pole. The other joined the father of the eggs Bill had evidently been trying to steal, and began making tacks back and forth across the line which sagged unde the weight of the thief. Each time they passed or repassed they made a lunge at him, and a little puff of gray fur came out of his back.

This continued for a half an hour, during which time Bill was fairly stripped of his clothing, and I discovered to my astonishment that half clad he seemed only about a quarter as big as I had supposed he was. All the time this was going on he was putting up loud supplications for help, but there is apparently no tribe loyalty among squirrels, for none of his people came to help him. At last, able no longer to endure the stinging stabs from the sharp beaks of his tormentors, he dropped off the wire 30 feet from the ground, and managed to limp to cover under the front porch before he could be assailed any more.

His coat is pretty well grown again, and he still comes to be fed. But he gets along on nuts which we give him and on other food which he sometimes finds in the garbage can. His appetite for eggs has utterly vanished, and any bird can build in any tree in the yard without fear that he will pay them an unwelcome visit.

Many Women Own Their Own Motor Cars

That the ranks of the army of women who own automobiles constantly are being augmented is nowhere better reflected than in the fact that the rosters of motor clubs throughout the nation are showing a proportionately larger number of women's names than ever before, says J. Wilkie Talbert, vice-president of the Wichita Valley Auto club.

Analysis of the 1926 membership enrollment, not only of the Wichita Valley Auto club, but of the 890 others also affiliated with the A. A. A., releals that all previous records in this respect were eclipsed, Mr. Talbert points out. At the current rate of increase, however, 1927 will be the biggest year in motor club history in the enrollment of women members, he says.

Naturally the most appealing form of club service to the woman car owner is that which assures her prompt and efficient emergency service from women to our club, it is clear that she wants to know such aid is available if the need arises. As a result, she safe-guards her motoring experience by A. A. A. membership.

Diamonds mined in South Africa last year had a total weight of 3,217,966 carats.

L'AUTOMNE

NOW that the Anniversary Sale is over, P. B. M. Company turns attention to the fall mode. Already autumn fashion forecasts have been reported by P. B. M.'s Paris scouts and will be gladly given to all who ask for information on what will be "good" this fall and what will be the smartest way to wear it.

Fall merchandise, too, has made its appearance here—footwear, millinery and new fall dresses in black satin. These black satins (and this most luxurious of silks in black is to lead in smartness next season) are quite different from those seen in previous years — the material is handled in unusual ways which do it justice as never before. Translate the feeling of the modern sculptor for the virtue of his medium from the plastic field to that of a dress designer, substituting love of soft, clinging, shiny satin for love of balanced volumes of repose ful, enduring stone, and you will understand a little of the beautiful artistry of these creations. P. B. M.'s advanced showing is small as yet, exclusive, and interesting.

PICNICING time is here and it is such fun to spend a day at Lake Wichita or to have lunch in the open with a jolly crowd. The aftermath is usually a grease spot or watermelon stain on your clothes — this year that needn't worry you. Have a good time on the picnic and send your things to the De Luxe Cleaners —they could remove a leopard's spot! Dial 7174.

Photographs Live Forever

HAVEN'T you seen photographs of really attractive people that made the subject look prosaic and provincial? You really can't expect friends to cherrish a poorly executed picture and now, that Merrill Ellis' new downtown studio, in the Kahn building, makes such reasonable rates, it is unnecessary to put up with portraits which are a mere record of features minus personal charm. Merrill Ellis' Studio is the one for people of good taste. Individualistic portraits which will give pleasure to family, friends and yourself, will be the result of a sitting here. Call 8005 for appointment.

SMILE, it pays! But how can you when your eyes are aching? You cannot keep your mind off them. You had better have them examined and get relief. It doesn't cost much. Rimless glasses are the vogue.

Consult Geo. W. L. Spencer, O. D., 705 Ohio. Phone 5645.

THERE is one thing that "tops off" the picnic lunch—Colvert's ice cream. Delicious fresh peach sherbert and peach ice cream are the treats offered for the Fourth of July. When clubs and groups plan a picnic or open air supper of any sort, Colvert's usually heads the list of good things. There is no reason why the family outing shouldn't be an equal success — this wonderful food is healthful for both children and adults and it is hard to say which is the fonder of it. Place your order today for the dessert everyone loves, which costs no more and is no trouble.

Get peach ice cream or peach sherbert from Colvert's for a Glorious Fourth! These are real holiday treats for holiday makers.

A PARAMOUNT dress sale is on at Miller-Ferguson's! This store is featuring a sensational clean-up of several hundred of the finest dresses at $13.75, including a most extraordinary assortment of the latest summer styles.

Wonderful values will be found in the basement also — drastic reductions on dresses make the sale price on very attractive frocks only $5.00.

Pay All Your Bills Before You Take Your Vacation Trip

The Unexpected Expenses of Your Vacation May Upset Your Payment Plans and Force You to Impair Your Good Credit Rating

¶Before you leave on your vacation trip, the wise thing to do is to settle every bill you owe.

¶When you get away beside a sea or up in the mountains, you easily forget that time is going along just the same back in Wichita Falls, You won't be able to realize when you get back that those bills had run so long.

¶There are always expenses to meet on every vacation trip, and they eat into that surplus that you intended to use for payment of accounts.

¶So the best thing for the man or woman who values a good credit rating to do is to be sure that every outstanding bill has been paid in full before vacation comes.

¶Think what it would mean if you let a bill slip here and there, if you could not meet all you bills when you come back! A good credit rating impaired, a record you have been proud of tarnished by neglect.

¶Don't take a chance. Too many people before you have let a vacation trip them up on prompt settlement and lived to regret it.

¶Do the wise thing—Pay every bill due now and those that will become due BEFORE you take your vacation. Your good credit rating is valuable. Keep it good.

ALMA RUBENS MISSION STAR

Cast as Spy in "The Heart of Salome"

Alma Reubens, Fox Films actress, who appears in the role of La Belle Helene, in their production of "The Heart of Salome," showing at the Mission theater Sunday and Monday reaches the high point of her dramatic career up to the present time in her characerization of the role of the beautiful spy.

This is a part that calls for acting of the highest order as Miss Rubens is called upon not only to interpret the part of a daring and alluring siren but also that of a simple country maid.

The story in which the beautiful actress appears was written by Allen Raymond and deals with the the intrigues of a master blackmailer, Count Zanko, played by Holmes Herbert, and his beautiful spy, known to Paris as Le Belle Helene., Men are helpless before her wiles and jewels and a palatial home are hers until she revolts against her sinister profession.

Then she meets a young American engineer, played by Walter Pigeon, with whom she falls in love. He, too is in love with her, but since he meets her at her aunt's peasant home where she is resting from her Parisian adventures, he does not suspect her of being the notorious La Belle Helene.

The story moves swiftly from one gripping situation to the next until Helene demands the life of her lover because he scorns her when he discovers who she is. A sword battle in a dungeon and a smashing climax bring to a happy end a very fine entertainment.

Janet Kennedy, who is with Pete Pate's Musical Show, Radio Stars and Syncopated Steppers, playing at the Mission theater.

Babe Ruth Comes Home at Olympic

We expect Babe Ruth to knock home runs but to find him a really good screen actor is like discovering a pearl in an appetizing oyster.

The sensational slugger proves his celluloid worth in "Babe Comes Home" at the Olympic theater starting today, in which he has the stellar role, suported by Anna Q. Nilsson and Louise Fazenda featured artists.

Fine Love tSory

A really fine baseball comedy-drama results from Ruth's good work in a part originally extended, we are told, for an experienced actor. The fact that a refreshingly novel love story and bubbling comedy are even more important than baseball in the picture will no doubt interest feminine patrons. Ruth scores as a comedian, as a screen lover, and—naturally—as a provider of thrills in baseball sequences. Miss Nilsson was never better nor more appealing, and Miss Fazenda never funnier.

Ethel Shannon, Lou Archer and Arthur Stone are among the supporting players, all with intriguing characterizations. The story, based on Geral Beaumont's magazine serial, "Said With Soap," begins with the heroine as a laundry girl, and soiled baseball uniforms link the laundry with the diamond. The girl goes to investigate, sees the hero play and receives a foul tip in the eye as an introduction.

Humorous Difficulties

Then comes their romance, with baseball incidental to an excellent and very human plot idea wherein the heroine trys to reform the hero, and promptly gets into some very humorous difficulties.

"Babe Comes Home" is, in short, a photoplay offering that the whole family should enjoy and which will interest women as well as the men and boys. Wid Gunning produced the picture for First National, and Ted Wilde, who directed Harold Lloyd's most recent success, presided at the megaphone.

Babe Ruth swatting with his usual vigor. See him at the Olympic theater this week in "Babe Comes Home," with Anna Q. Nilsson.

DON JUAN ON MAJESTIC BILL

Great Love Drama Will Be Shown Here

"Don Juean" has become known as the lovers' picture, as is fitting for the greatest lover of all ages. But it is also an artists' picture, and the backgrounds against which John Barrymore moves in a network of amorous intrigue are in in themselves excellent excuses for seeing this big production, now on view at the Majestic theater.

The Warner Brothers, striving with every effort to surpass their previous Barrymore picture, "Beau Brummel" and "The Sea Beast," have succeeded in making a bid for undying screen fame.

The story, founded upon the legend of the greatest lover of all the ages, has back of it a three-hundred year tradition that has inspired poets, dramatists, musicians and artists. From this wealth of story material, Bess Meredyth, the scenarist, has built a tale that brims with the splendor of the Rome of the Borgias, and is alive with flashing action.

Barrymore, who is acknowledged the greatest romantic actor of his day, fairly revels in the silken fascinations of the role of the great romantic lover. Amid scenes that range from an old Moorish castle in Spain to the glorious pageantry of Rome, the character finds the beautiful ladies of his heart's desire, and loves them exquisitely.

Among the beautiful ladies who appear with Barrymore are Mary Astor, Estelle Taylor, Helen Costello, Jane Winton, Helene D'Algy, Phylliss Haver, June Marlowe, Helen Lee Worthing, Hedda Hopper and Myrna Loy. The men in the memorable cast include Montague Love, Lionel von Seifertitz, Josef Swickard, Gibson Gowland and Warner Oland. The picture was directed by Alan Crosland.

Bambino Becomes A Picture Idol

They've made a movie idol of husky, rough-hewn, tough and manly "Babe" Ruth.

The famous slugger, adored by the men and boys of the land, had escaped the attenton of the feminine public with far success until he went to Hollywood and filmed "Babe Comes Home" for First National Pictures.

Now, while he's no less popular with his masculine "fans," the ladies are on his trail, too. After the picture, "Babe Comes Home," which shows Bambino making love as well as playing baseball makes its rounds, the fair sex will doubtless swell the attendance records of the baseball parks in which he plays.

"Babe Comes Home" is now showing at the Olympic theater.

35 Years in Making Toy

After 35 years' effort, Charles W. Aldridge, of Battersea, England, has just completed a doll's house in a match box. The house contains four rooms, and is perfect in every detail even to shelves, pictures on the walls and coverings for the tables. A tiny doll is mistress of the diminutive home.

China Has Caught The Spirit

MUSSOLINI broke the backbone of the labor unions of Italy. He proclaims himself to be the friend of the people and his father was a blacksmith. Now the aristocrats of England, who control the government, are going to put over laws which will lead to the destruction of the labor unions of England. These Tories of England make no secret of their purpose or their plans.

General Chiang Kai Shek is called a moderate nationalist leader and warrior of China. General Chiang has watched the movements of Mussolini. He must be in touch with the Tory leaders of England. He has issued an ultimatum. He demands among other things disbandment of all labor unions in China and the dismissal of Russian advisors and Chinese Communists.

Not so long ago the supreme court of the United States handed down a decision that union labor workers would be guilty of a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law if they refused to handle material manufactured by non-union labor. American labor is getting to be sleek and self-contained. Organization brought high wages and then the immigration act shut out the pauper labor of foreign countries.

Gompers is dead and Green is a Quaker. Gompers battled 40 years for the organization of workers and the exclusion of aliens. He won in the end. Of course the coming of the world war made it possible for the enactment of the immigration act.

A Paradise For the Moist Ones

MONTANA must be a paradise for the thirsty. W. R. Montgomery is president of the Montana Pharmaceutical association. He is for government dispensaries for the handling of liquor. He says moonshine is getting so good and distillery whiskey is getting so poor that the people of Montana are enjoying the reputation of being bootleggers without having the business.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh is a political idol of Montana. His state is wet. Walsh is as dry as a bat's cave. He is for prohibition for the wide wide world. His admiring fellow citizens held a referendum last year. They voted for the repeal of the state pro enforcement act.

Senator Walsh said it didn't matter. He wouldn't change his course. He was born a dry, he has lived a dry and he will die a dry. Regardless of his dry views his wet constituents return him to the senate whenever he comes up for re-election.

Walsh of Montana and Borah of Idaho never bow to popular sentiment. Borah voted against the eighteenth and nineteenth amendments and yet he is as dry as Walsh.

There will be an interesting battle for the control of the Montana delegation next year. If he runs true to form Walsh will head the delegation, and he will vote the delegation. He is built that way.

A Twentieth Century Miracles

THIS is the age of miracles. If you do not believe it read this New York dispatch, "Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was the luncheon guest of James P. Morgan Monday, in the private dining room of Morgan & Company Wall Street offices."

Kipling was right when he said, "He travels fastest who travels alone." Less than three months ago Charles A. Lindbergh would have been thrown out by a gaudily uniformed watchman if he had invaded the sacred precincts of the Morgan private dining room.

Yes, the bouncer would have made short work of him. Now he walks with kings and dines with emperors of finance who make messenger boys out of kings.

An age of miracles? Just that. And there are greater miracles on the way.

A Tool of the G. O. P.

SENATOR Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, in a published statement, brands the Anti-Saloon League of America as the tool of the republican party. Now Wayne B. Wheeler will let loose a statement in which he will brand Senator Edwards as a wet and a menace.

Senator Edwards is a democrat. He is a churchman. He is a banker. He has been governor of New Jersey and he moved on from Trenton to the capital city of the Republic. If Wayne B. Wheeler threatens to organize a third party next year if certain democrats are not eliminated from the presidential free-for-all.

Third parties are side shows. We have them every four years. Robert M. LaFallette organized a third party. See what happened to LaFallette. LaFallette is dead. His third party is dead, and an anti-Lafallett republican is governor of Wisconsin.

Ther are millions of independent voters in the nothern and eastern states. They landed in the Harding camp in 1920; they landed in the Coolidge camp in 1924. Under which flag will they fight in 1928.

Justice Founded On Fees

LEADING experts in political science held a grand conflab in an Iowa city. They discussed the legality of justice meted out in numerous municipal courts. They ascertained that hundreds of municipal courts are operated on a fee basis, the defendant being absolved of costs if acquitted. They declared that this creates a selfish interest for the magistrate and that such courts are in conflict with the guarantee of due process of law, contained in the fourteenth amendment to the constitution.

An expert from Harvard college advanced his view. He declared reforms recorded in recent years look largely to establishment of adequate administrative machinery rather than to prosecution of malefactor.

Why should there be a fee system? Why should the fee system be continued. Conviction places fees in the pockets of the agents of the law. Acquittal keeps the money in the pocket of the person adjudged not guilty. Business is business. More convictions, more fees. More fees the higher the earnings of interested parties.

Now why shouldn't all servants of the people be placed on a salaried basis?

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

THE FEMINIST

George and Jane were graduated from the same co-educational university in the high tide of the feminist movement. George, who has always been anxious to seem fair-minded, modern in ideas, and liberal in thought, conceded to Jane without a struggle that women were the mental equals of men and that women should be given full right to economic independence.

After his graduation George entered a law office and presently his intelligence and diligence was rewarded in an income sufficient for him and Jane to marry. Before he proposed, he had had many talks with Jane on the subject of marriage and they had arrived at the satisfactory conclusion that it should be an arrangement where the wife would not be dependent upon her husband for whatever money she needed.

Jane had a job on a radical magazine where she got $25 a week. True, she lived with her parents, but she bought her own clothes out of her salary and even when she lunched with George she insisted upon paying her part of the check.

They were married and after a time Jane had to resign her position on the magazine temporarily while she gave birth to a child. When she was strong again, she employed a nurse at $20 a week to take care of her child, and retained her general housekeeper who also did the cooking at $22 a week.

Jane found that after a day in the office she could not bear the discomforts of the subway or even the bus and got into the habit of taking a taxi home each night. That meant $7.50 a week. Her lunch money came to about $10 a week, and often she called up her husband and suggested that they dine in town.

In fine, it cost her husband about $50 a week for Jane to keep a $25 a week job.

A New York novelist, married and the father of a child, fell in love with another woman, a fact which his wife discovered and, some time after the discovery, she divorced him when she was unable to win her husband back.

The novelist wrote two realistic novels describing this drama. His novels, of course, were presentations of the case from his point of view. Later the other woman wrote a novel presenting the domestic drama as she saw it. And now the wife has written a novel presenting the case from her point of view.

The public has now had ample opportunity to satiate its curiosity about the novelist's private life.

On the day that Colonel Lindbergh lunched at the Astor and went from there to the Times building, an impetuous young woman broke through the police lines and threw her arms about the hero, attempting to kiss him. Lindbergh shied away, blushed, and avoided the kiss. The police grabbed the young woman and pulled her away from him.

Whether or not this episode became the basis of a story that continues to grow, I do not know; but the story is this: that when Lindbergh stepped out of the elevator on one of the floors of the Times building a stenographer threw her arms about his neck and tried to kiss him; and that five minutes later the young lady was fired for "conduct unbecoming a Times employee."

The second time I heard the story, it was not one young woman but two. The third time, the the number of young women who had unsuccessfully tried to kiss Lindbergh and had been fired had grown to three, and now, as I understand, the number has grown to five. All fired five minutes after the episode.

Walter Winchell reports that the night Colonel Lindbergh was entertained at the Long Island home of Clarence Mackaye, he and his mother excused themselves early and went to a party at the Frazee's at which Irvin Berlin and Mrs. Berlin (the former Ellin Mackaye), were guests.

SEEK MUSIC TEACHER TEST

To drive out the musical "quacks" and make the city one of the musical centers of the world, a movement has been started in Sydney, N. S. W., to compel examination of all teachers as to their proficiency. The drive is especially aimed at teachers who train amateurs only sufficiently to perform Mendelssohn's "Songs With Words" at church concerts while giving them ideas regarding technique and interpretation that eventually are ruinous. Vocal teachers are also hit, the supporters of the movement saying that there are only two really capable teachers in the city.

Invents Guard in Prison.

Ivan Novak's invention of an automatic guard for railway crossings, devised while doing 15 years penal servitude at Belgrade for murder, has been recognized by the government. A special commission appointed to examine the device recommended it, and Novak has been sent to the government railway shops to make a model to be tried on the state railway. The apparatus consists of a barrier that falls automatically as a train approaches and rises after it passes. Nails near the rails some distance from the crossing cause the barrier, weighing 600 pounds, to fall and remain down until the engine comes in contact with rails on the other side.

Makers of Men

Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN

A MAN who has accumulated more than a million dollars in various enterprises was in my office not long ago.

* * *

"I understand that Jones is going to leave you to go into business for himself," I said, referring to one of his younger associates. "I hope the venture will be successful."

* * *

"It will be," my friend replied positively. "I wouldn't have let him undertake it unless I was sure he could make it go. It's a point of pride with me to have my boys successful.

* * *

"The biggest satisfaction I get out of business is in picking likely youngsters and helping them up the hill," he continued. "Look at the men who started with me. There's Mason, vice-president of the best concern of its kind in the country; and Emerson, who has made a fortune in Chicago; and Needham, with a snug little business that gives him fifteen thousand dollars a year; and a dozen others. I held on to them in the face of all sorts of offers until just the right thing came along. Then I said: 'Go to it, and I'll help you all I can.'

* * *

"I am prouder of them than I am of my factories," he concluded. "Their success is the best thing in my business life."

* * *

As he spoke, I thought of another millionaire who died not long ago. Of him it was said that he hired brilliant young men, paid them well, sapped their ideas and energies, and tossed them out like squeezed oranges. He left great wealth when he died, but that is all he did leave. There is no single man anywhere who can say: "I owe my good fortune to the interest which that man took in me. His training and encouragement made me what I am."

* * *

About a century ago a certain scientist was startling the world with his researches. One great discovery after another came out of his laboratories; his lectures were thronged by eager listeners. He was the lion of the hour.

* * *

He received a note one day from an unknown, self-educated boy, the son of a blacksmith. The boy confided to the scientist his ambition to give his life to scientific research; he even hoped that some day he might meet and talk with the great man himself.

* * *

The reply to the note was "immediate, kind and favorable." The boy was invited to meet the scientist, and later became an assistant in his laboratory.

* * *

The scientist was Sir Humphrey Davy, to whom the world owes a great debt for his long list of discoveries in physics and chemistry. But an even larger debt is due him for the encouragement offered to the unknown son of a blacksmith, whose later work outshone his own. Sir Humphrey Davy's greatest discovery was that boy—Michael Faraday.

* * *

I sometimes think that successful businesses should add a line to their letterheads after this fashion: "John Jones and Company, Builders of Automobiles—and of Men."

* * *

And that somehow the Government should discriminate, in levying its taxes, between the businesses where men are merely used and those where men are made.

Fable Of Cagey Piker

Once there was a man who wore a Six Hat and had a Bean shaped like an Egg Plant. He had not found time to sit down and absorb Culture. Sometimes he found himself in the Front Room where every one was expected to discuss Literature, Art, Music and the Difficulty of getting good Kitchen Help.

This Man was a Glug in a good many Respects, but he was Wise to his own Short comings, which is the next thing to being a Smart Guy.

This Man was what our Professor of Theology would call a conniving Piker. A Piker is one who gets into the Game on a $1 Bill and Lets On to be holding back a Federal Reserve. A Piker is usually Safe when he sagatiates among the Well-Bred because they are too Polite to call his Hand.

A Piker always has his entire Stock of Goods on the Sidewadk.

When it came to Music, the Piker did not know the difference between a Fugue and a Cantata. Such knowledge of Literature as he could boast was picked up by reading the Posters in front of Book-Stores. The average Katy-Did had about as much Art Education as he could have Spread had it come to a Show-Down. Yet he managed to cut Figure Eights over the Thin Ice and he had the name of being one of the Brainiest Gentlemen that ever accepted an Invitation to the Evening session of the Olympian Circle of Hena.

The Piker Said It Gave Him a Touch of Sadness. Then She Knew He Was a Real Critic All Right.

The Piker knew the aVlue of the Stock Phrase. Annd the way he could raise a Dust and ddodge out of a Tight Place was a little Bit of All Right.

Pike Scores Heavily.

One evening the Piker went to call on Mrs. Hester Kazam, author of many unpublished Poems, and the boss Diana of the Tuft-Hunters. At the Kazam Home, which is rigged up with Red Blankets and Green Lamps so as to be Oriental, he bumped into Henrietta Hunter Haw, who will b eremembered as the Young Lady who poured at the Afternoon Reception to Blasco Ibanez.

Miss Haw reclined at half length in the Turkish Corner and asked the Piker what he thought of Sienkiewicz. The Piker knew that he had heard that name sprung somewhere before, but if he had tried to Pronounce it, he would have gone to the Rug.

However, he was not to be flopped. He knew the kind of Conversational Parsley that is needed to garnish a full-blown Intellectual Vacuum, and he passed some of it to Henrietta.

He said he liked Sienk, so far as the Psychological Analysis was concerned, but it sometimes occurred to him that there was a lack of Insight and Broad Artistic Grasp.

That is the Style of Vapor calculated to keep a Young Woman anchored right in the Turkish Corner and make her believe she has met the Really and Truly Gazip.

The Piker unreeled a little more of the same kind. He said that the Elaboration of Incident showed a certain Modicum of Skill, but there was not enough Plus-Human Sympathy in the coloring of the subtle Motives. When the Piker got rid of this he was always Relieved, for it is an awful Thing to Memorize and carry around with you.

Afterward Miss Haw went out and told her Girl Friends that the Piker was Terrible Deep.

When they brought up Music, that was where the Piker lived. He could get in early and stay late and never Trip himself up. He had attended a couple of Concerts and at one time boarded with a Lady who played the Autoharp.

One Evening when he was out with a few People who were such Thorough Musicians that they seemed Sour about something all the time, a Tall Man with a Low collar asked him if he had heard that latest Thing by Tschalkowsky.

If he had made it Irving Berlin, the Piker might have been with him. But he never turned a Hair.

"Impressive, isn't it!" he said, having learned how to Spar for Wind, without leaving an Opening.

"Yes, but it didn't get into me the way Vogner does," replied the Tall Party.

Sassy Savant Does His Stuff.

He said he preferred Vogner any day in the Week on account of the distinct Appeal to the Intellectual Side and the Atmosphere of Mysticism, whatever that was. He said he couldn't listen to Vogner without going into a Cold Sweat and Chewing the Buttons off his gloves, particularly if the Interpretation was made with a Board and Comprehensive Virtuosity and such Mastery of Technique as to abolish all suggestion of the Intermediary and bring one into direct Communion with the Soul-Moods.

Then the Tall Man would know or she felt and suffered during the Throes of Execution.

So she called in the Piker to size up her Picture of the Little Miami River at Sundown and asked him what Emotion, if any, was stirred up within him as he gazed at the Effort. The Piker said it gave him a touch of Sadness. Then she knew he was a real Critic all right.

The Piker kept it up until after a while he began to think that possibly he was something of a sassy Savant.

He was elected Director of a Museum and was invited to sit on the Platform at Lectures. And at last he departed this Life, with only a few Relatives and Intimate Friends being next.

NO EXCUSE FOR GAME LAW VIOLATION

Observing the game laws is perhaps a subject that doesn't need much stressing in this section, in view of the fact that some rather observing game wardens stay on the job most of the time. Still, it is well to cultivate a sentiment that will result in less need for the activities of the wardens. The game laws were passed for the proper preservation of fish and game, and they have been found to be the best so far devised. The sportsman who knowingly violates these laws lays himself open to the accusation of selfishness. And there is no excuse in this day of general dispensation of knowledge, for a sportsman not knowing the laws regulating the taking of game.—O. C. Harrison, Baylor County Banner.

OCEAN FLIGHTS ARE OF FUTURE VALUE

The popularity of trans-oceanic flights this year is not to be dismissed as a mere bubble of enthusiasm for a spectacular accomplishment. The two successful non-stop flights across the Atlantic and that attempted across the Pacific, which may prove successful even before this appears in print, are of value because they demonstrate a dependability of air transport that will be utilized for more practical ends than flights across the oceans.—R. HUMAN BEINGS GONE TO THE DOGS

Who's out of step? "A rich New York woman, not so long ago, made a will leaving her sizeable fortune to the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. In the will was the stipulation that a bust of herself be placed over the urn which shall contain her ashes, and that the bust bear the words: "The more I saw of human beings, the more I thought of dogs."—R. PONTIAC IN MARINE FIELD

Converted Auto Engine Used in Boat

Though the Pontiac six engine was converted to marine use by the Gray Marine Motor company less than nine months ago, sales of this power plant have already been made in many foreign countries.

In Helsingfors, Finland, where motor boating, both for a living and for pleasure is on such a large scale that marine engines are purchased as discriminatingly as automobiles are in Detroit, the "Gray Six Forty," the trade name of the Pontiac six marine power plant, has found an enthusiastic market. A fleet of eight of these Gray-Pontiac engines was recently installed in boats that are giving a speed of 20 miles an hour.

Testimonials in large numbers have been sent to the Gray Marine Motor company, Detroit, extolling the endurance and speed of these engines. One of the striking testimonials came from the Gulf Cruising company of Fairhope, Ala.,—a glowing letter telling how one of these engines made a 28-hour non-stop run, in riding out a storm.

Herman Jacobs of Rock Hall, Md., who purchased number 2 of the Pontiac-Gray's last fall, states that "from flywheel to clutch it is the finest operating piece of machinery I have ever used and I have been using gasoline engines for 21 years." There are four of these engines operating motor boats from this little town of Maryland.

Chrysler Owner Auto Pioneer

Twenty-nine years ago Alexander Winton, who became famous later as a manufacturer of fine cars shipped the first automobile sold in America from his modest little factory in Cleveland, O. Except motor and chassis, it lacked practically everything the modern motor car possesses.

Yet it was No. 1 of 35,000 or more motor vehicles that have been made since and sold to people in every walk of life.

Just a few days ago, Alexander Winton, still hale, hearty and recently remarried, and still actively interested in the automotive industry, bought himself an automobile.

Walter F. Wright, distributor of Chryslers in the Cleveland territory, rather proudly revealed the fact with Winton's permission.

Winton, called by some, the father of the automobile industry and for years head of a concern that manufactured a high class motor car bearing his name, chose his new car from among the four Chrysler models. His selection was one of the new Imperial "80" four-passenger coupes, a luxurious personal car.

Comparing the new Chrysler with the thin-wheeled, buggy-like vehicles of 29 years ago, one would think there was a century's difference between them, so rapid has been the progress of the automobile world.

Mr. Winton, who even to this day occasionally sends an application for a new patent to Washington, contributed greatly to that rapid development.

Girl Claims Record Climb

Wearing a walking dress and high-heeled shoes, Vera Tomlinson, aged 19, recently climbed a chimney 150 feet high, at Leeds, England, and smoked a cigarette while sitting on the parapet. She claims that her feat is the world's record for girls.

Dodge Six Draws Favorable Talk

Dodge Brothers, Inc., this week announces the second car in its six cylinder line—a cabriolet roadster which is unique among fine motor cars. It is a companion car to the sedan which has been the subject of so much favorable comment since it was introduced early this month. In the opinion of those who have had an opportunity to study this new roadster it is a worthy mate to the strikingly beautiful sedan and everyone who has ridden in it agrees that it surpasses both in appearance and performance other cars in its price class and many which sell for considerably higher prices.

It is a new car in every way. Built with long and graceful lines suggestive of great power and speed ,this promise is amply fulfilled when the car is made to perform either in heavy traffic or on the open road.

"An entirely new feature of this car," says Bob Carnellson of McFall Brothers, local Dodge Brothers dealer, is the way in which the top is constructed. Prior to this time the tops of all cabriolets have been detachable from the windshield pillars and have folded back from this point. In this Dodge Brothers cabriolet this principle is discarded. The front of the top is built integral with the windshield pillars. Only the back quarter can be lowered, the break being made at the pillars at the rear of the doors. This type of construction represents the most advanced ideas in design and has the important advantage of giving unusual rigidity and strength to the top.

"The entire front of the car is distinctively new. It is built like the popular six cylinder sedan—with deep radiator, rather high and surrounded by barely more than a rim of polished shell which is of uniform width save at the top where it widens out to form a background for the new seal of Dodge Brothers Senior.

Chevrolet Test Car Survives Hard Grind

A romance of the General Motors proving ground at Milford, Mich., comes to light today with the announcement that Chevrolet test car No. 112 has been retired from the proving ground service after withstanding the withering strain of 46,150 miles in four and one-half months over various types of roads and a wide range of driving conditions.

No. 112 had a standard light panel body on the standard commercial car chassis and had been taken out of regular production at Flint plant. When, in the course of the usual routine, it was replaced at the Proving Ground by another Chevrolet, it still had in it many miles of unused transportation, engineers declared, despite the gruelling experience of so many miles of terrific test driving.

Forty miles out of Detroit in the hills and vales of Livingston county, where the great outdoor automobile laboratory is located, this Chevrolet, like others there, underwent supreme tests in the cause of improved automotive transportation. In the course of these tests, the car was called upon to go through all the types of service an automobile may be heir to—and more.

It was kept on test for 135 days, "working" on an average of 341.8 miles a day. There were days when it was driven more than 500 miles in order to try its stamnia. In addition to the test work at the Proving Ground, the car carried mail to Detroit and return each day, permitting of a study and check of the car under actual road traffic conditions.

CAL IS HELP TO BLACK HILLS

South Dakota Becomes Mecca to Tourists

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 3.—Without in any way seeking it, President Coolidge really blazed a great motor tourist trail to the Black Hills and sourrounding territory when he selected the State Game Lodge of South Dakota for the summer White House, according to the National Touring Board of the American Automobile association.

Inquiries reaching the touring bureaus of 890 A. A. A. clubs throughout the country indicate that many thousands of automobiles, most of them from eastern states, are already following the Coolidge Trail, although there is no danger of interference with the president's rest and seclusion in these wide open spaces.

Because of the many inquiries for information reaching A. A. A. headquarters, the Mapping Division of the national motoring body has prepared a skeleton map which shows the main roads in this territory, as well as the principle tourist objectives.

Regarding these roads, objectives and facilities available to motor tourists, the A. A. A. national touring board has this to say:

"What will they do, all these people whose radiator caps are now turned westward? The problem seems to be already partly solved for President Coolidge. He and Mrs. Coolidge are to live at the State Game Lodge in one of the most scenic sections of the Black Hills, and each day he will drive 32 miles to his office in Rapid City to transact the nation's business. But he surely will find time to see and enjoy the wonders of his summer home. He will undoubtedly often drive the short distance to the Needles, a group of oddly formed gigantic rocks, slender and towering high above the road, and to Sylvan Lake, 6500 feet above sea level, in whose mirror-like depths are reflected the highest peaks of the Black Hills.

10,000 Girls In Festival.

Ten thousand girl members of the Girls' Life Brigade recently held a three days' festival at London in celebration of the twenty-sixth anniversary of the organization. They were from all parts of Great Britain, and some were not yet old enough to attend school, while others were in their teens. Conspicious on the arms of the girls' tunics are badges gained for swimming, signalling, cookery, needlework, laundry, and many other accomplishments. Many of the girls took part in nursing and first-aid competitions, the successful competitors receiving shields. Demonstrations included infant care, needlework, millinery, photography, raffia and leather work.

New Sahara Being Formed.

That the Argentina will have a Sahara of its own is shown in reports to the Ministry of Agriculture of France. An extensive region north of the province of Neuquen is rapidly drying up, and rivers and springs are disappearing. Great dust storms are sweeping over the country at times and sand dunes form quickly and engulf the few remaining pastoral areas. The territory was once well populated by the Indians, but they have been driven away. A valley, where formerly there were 4000 cattlemen, now contains only a few hundred. The cost of digging canals and of irrigation work to save the region would be too expensive for the government of undertake.

BOY WITH HALF-PANT LOST

Following the disappearance of their son, parents in Calcutta recently inserted the following advertisement in a local newspaper: "A boy of fair complexion, dumb, having a half-pant and banion on —is missing from the evening of Tuesday last. His parents will be grateful if anyone can give information about him at 210-3-2 Cornwalls street."

Pig Travels With Valet.

When Billy, the worlds largest pig, traveled recently to an agricultural show in Johannesburg, he was accompanied by a valet specially appointed to keep him groomed and to arrange special accomodations on trains or boats. Billy weighs more than half a ton, is eight feet three inches long, and his snug-fitting belt measures six feet nine inches. He is insured for $25,000. He recently visited Australia, and has traveled 35,000 miles, although only 28 months old. Billy's daily menu consists of four cases of apples, eight or nine buckets of milk, two bushels of bran, 16 or 18 cabbages, and a few extra dishes. His food costs his owner, J. Gardiner, $10 a day.

15 RELATIVES IN PLAY

When Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson recently gave two matinee performances of "Twelfth Night" in London for the benefit of charity, the veteran actor had 14 other members of the family in the cast. The idea of making the productions a "family affair" was suggested by Lady Forbes Robertson, and the others entered into the plan enthusiastically. Daughters, brothers, nieces and grandnieces of Sir Johnston and Lady Forbes Robertson took part. As Forbes Robertson is 74 it may be his farewell appearance in public.

Traffic Manager Covers Large Territory in Oldsmobile

Automobiles are being used more by traveling men as a means of quick, mobile and comfortable transportation over their territories, regardless of the distance traversed. And now E. H. Kelly Sr., traffic manager of Yelloway, Inc., claims the honor of covering by means of an automobile one of the largest territories of any business traveler.

Kelly today is driving his Oldsmobile two-door sedan somewhere between some two of the following cities: Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Boonville, Columbia, Fulton, Marshall, Tulsa, Omaha, Denver, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

These cities comprise his itinerary as traffic manager of what he terms "the longest bus line in the world." Day after day he speeds his Oldsmobile over the roads connecting the Great Lakes with the Pacific coast, sometimes on pavement and again in sand or gumbo mud. He runs on regular schedule, requiring the use of maximum speed the greater part of the time.

WILLYS-KNIGHT REDUCES PRICE

Increased Sales Are Shown In Quality Cars

The recent price reductions announced by Willys-Overland affecting the Willys-Knight great six line of motor cars are said to be responsible for the renewed interest being exhibited in this group of Knight engined products. Although these quality cars have held a leading position in the sales field among the cars in the $2000 class for the past two years, the unusual demand registered by motor car buyers in the last few weeks has surpassed even the expectations of the company officials.

When this car was first marketed, less than two years ago, it won instant response from the buyers of cars in the higher price range. It continued to win great favor throughout the ensuing months to a point where production of this model was maintained on a larger schedule than was anticipated originally. The demand for these quality cars showed no lessening and the great six speedily reached an outstanding position in the field of high grade motor cars.

Whippet Cars Marked By Unusual Interiors

The unusual roomy interior provided in the Whippet is one of the features in the design of this car that has won for it a distinctive place in the light four field, according to Willys-Overland officials. It is claimed that the Whippet, with a type of design that has been followed this year by many automobile manufacturers, not only has generous leg room but that the space in the compartments is greater than will be found in other cars of its price class and equal to the roominess found in most light six cars.

To provide plenty of room for driver and occupants was one of the most carefully studied problems of the engineers for Willys-Overland when it was decided to produce an automobile of this type. An investigation of the various bodies on the Whippet chassis discloses a spaciousness of interiors heretofore unreached by manufacturers of cars in this price class. This roominess has been provided in the Whippet without sacrificing smartness.

Auto Pole Valuter

Will the "last pedestrian" have to take to the air to dodge traffic? Theron Boyer, Cedar Rapids high school pole vaulter, who holds the Iowa interscholastic championship, demonstrates how it can be done. He was snapped soaring over a Studebaker commander coupe to settle an argument as to whether the feat could be done. He vaulted clear and landed with several feet to spare. The next day he placed second in the University of Chicago's national interscholastic track and field meet.

GEMS BASIS AUTO COLORS

Marmon Turns to Value For New Color

In the day of the high awkard chassis, black was considered the most serviceable and therefore the most natural tone for automobiles. With the development of the modern motor car with its low and sweeping lines, however, black has given way almost entirely to color and the creation of individual and attractive color harmonies has become one of the most important phases of the automobile business.

It is only quite recently, in fact, that the painting of the motor car has turned from an adventure and an experiment into an art, it is pointed out by H. H. Brocks, general sales director of the Marmon Motor Car company, who cites the example of the new Jewel colors now being used on large Marmon Series 75 automobiles.

"Color has been the dominant note of the year in making of the automobile an equipage of distinction and charm", Mr. Brooks said. "There have been previous attempts to give individuality through color, but these attempts have often been marked by the achievement of individuality without beauty or harmony."

A general and impartial survey of automobile owners recently conducted by a great organization, shows that 344,679 owners of other cars intend to change to Buick next time they buy a car.

These owners have compared their cars with Buick—in performance, in economy, in comfort, luxury and dependability. And they have decided that Buick offers greater value.

They have driven Buicks, and know the flexibility, power and efficiency of Buick's famous six-cylinder Valve-in-Head engine, which is vibrationless beyond belief at any speed.

The Best Buy On The American Market

As you well know, Dodge Brothers cars have for years been recognized by the automobile world as the yard stick—the measure cup—the comparative standard by which the value of all cars within or near its price zone have been reckoned. This because the public has so long recognized the dollar for dollar value—the absolute dependable transportation built into every unit of Dodge Brothers entire line.

The Senior Line

Today Dodge Brothers are offering the automobile world another car—the Senior six line—not a sensation—simply all you would expect from Dodge Brothers at the price, the greatest value that money can buy.

This car will just as certainly and surely occupy the same place in the hearts of the automobile public as the four cylinder line and will very, very soon become the standard of value and comparison of all cars selling up to $2500—for it too has built into every unit the same dependable performance, the same dollar for dollar value that has, since the first Dodge Brothers car was built, been placed in every Dodge Brothers car.

May We Demonstrate

A demonstration will convince you at once why we make the foregoing prophecy regarding the Senior line—furthermore, it will answer the statement that has so often been made since the first showing of the car, that is its the best buy on the American market today that is priced under $2500. MAY WE DEMONSTRATE? Thanks.

Announcing the NEW Chrysler "RED-HEAD" Engine

FOR those who seek supreme performance—speed, pick-up, hill-climbing ability, going beyond even the qualities of its standard sixes—Chrysler announces its new "Red-Head" High compression engine.

The new "Red-Head" Engine—always identified by the red color of the engine head—is the latest proved achievement of the great Chrysler engineering organization.

This high compression engine—a Chrysler development—is scientifically designed and ingeniously constructed to take fullest advantage of the greater power element of high compression fuels.

The new Chrysler "Red-Head" is the first engine of regular production to utilize in speed and pick-up the extra measure of power inherent in those high compression motor fuels formerly used only in airplanes and racing cars, and now being given wide public distribution.

The new "Red-Head" engine will be of particular interest to owners of the Chrysler "60", "70" and Imperial "80" who desire even greater power and speed.

Chrysler's new high compression engine characteristics can now be included in these models at a low and reasonable charge.

How Science Has Solved the Secret of the Firefly's Cold Light

Heatless Flashes Emitted by Insects Are Produced by a Process of Digestion.

This Luminous Jellyfish, Found in the Sargasso Sea, Is One of Thousands of Creatures That Illuminate the Ocean. The Beautiful Corona, or Halo, Is Thrown By Its Own "Living Light."

HOW does the firefly produce its heatless light? Until recently science has been unable to give a definite answer to the question. The firefly apparently produces a "cold light." There is no appreciable heat produced in connection with it. Could this process be duplicated by science it is possible that the entire system of artificial illumination would be revolutionized.

The cold light produced by fireflies and other creatures has been split into various colors and its energy measured by Dr. W. W. Coblentz and Dr. C. W. Hughes of the United States Bureau of Standards, who have learned that there is a wide range of colors in the various glowing organisms.

Prof. E. N. Harvey, of Princeton University, has also been making studies along this line. His researches indicate that the light of the firefly is produced, not by combustion, but by a kind of digestive process. Recently he utilized the materials used by fireflies and by fish inhabiting the dark depths of the ocean to produce a heatless light. Prof. Harvey believes that science will soon be able to make these materials artificially.

Experimenters at the Bureau of Standards have shown that firefly light is 200 times as cheap as that of a tungsten incandescent lamp. That is to say, the energy expended by the insect to produce a given amount of illumination is only 1-200 of that used for an equivalent in electric light.

The firefly's lamp produces the ideal light, save in respect to color. To produce light by artificial means of a brightness equal to that of the firefly requires a temperature of at least 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

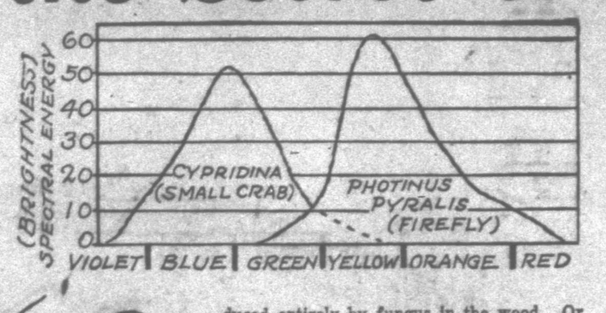

The last three segments of the firefly's abdomen carry three luminous plates which give out the flashes it emits. Cells in the rear of the abdomen secrete a chemical substance which, even brought into contact with oxygen, produces light. The oxygen is supplied from air that passes among the cells through tiny pipes which are part of the breathing apparatus of the insect.

In tropical countries the big fireflies are used for lighting, several being imprisoned in a perforated gourd, which serves as a lantern. Sometimes the lantern is of paper. Natives, going about on a dark night, tie a firefly to each foot, as a means of guarding their steps.

Scientists have found that only two per cent of the wonderful incandescent lamp is visible light, the other ninety-eight per cent of its radiation being heat and is wasted because the heat cannot be separated from the light.

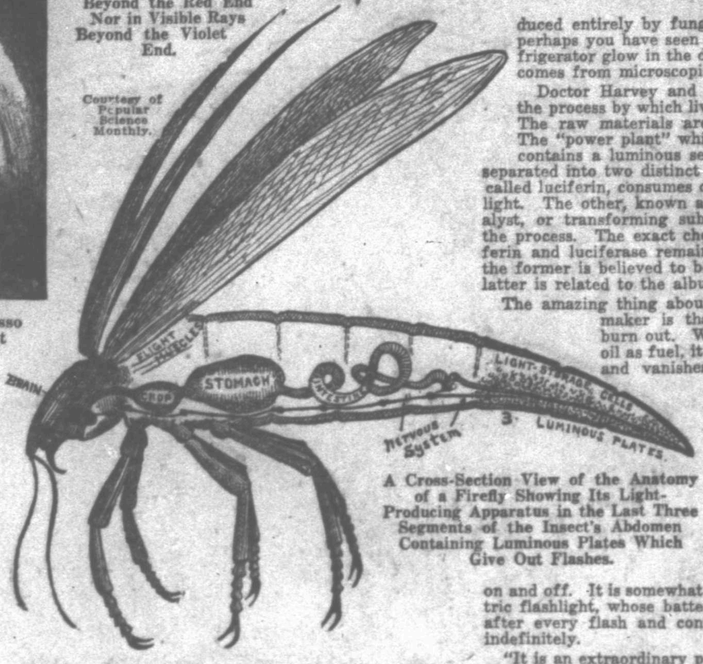

Luminescence, or living light, on the other hand, contains nothing but visible light, as Doctor Coblentz's experiments have proved. The firefly's light is all light and is estimated to be fifty times as efficient in light radiation as the finest incandescent lamp.

The glow of living creatures is only one of several kinds of heatless light produced in various ways, as the following instances indicate: Place your hand under a strong electric lamp and your skin and finger nails will give off a glow. Your hair, teeth, eyes, and, in fact, nearly any part of your body can be made to emit a similar glow. This is not a reflected light, but is actually produced within the bodily part.

This is called fluorescence. As explained in Popular Science Monthly by Ellsworth Bennett, the theory is that the tissues of the body have the mysterious faculty of converting rays of one length into rays of another length.

"Light, as we commonly know it," Mr. Bennett says, "is simply the part of radiant energy visible to our eyes. It consists of vibrations of ether, or waves.

"Usually, in fluorescence, short wave lengths are converted into longer wave lengths. Thus, many substances, including silk, wool, bone, horn and numerous kinds of living matter, have the ability to convert invisible ultra-violet light, which has extremely short wave lengths, into visible fluorescent light."

Dr. R. W. Wood, of Johns Hopkins University, recently gave a spectacular demonstration of this kind of fluorescence. He directed ultra-violet rays from a filter lamp into a vessel containing aesculin, a substance extracted from the bark of the horse-chestnut tree. Immediately the solution shone with brilliant greenish-blue light. So vivid was its illumination that a photographer, by its light, was able to take a picture of Dr. Wood.

In Tropical Countries Giant Fireflies Are Imprisoned in a Perforated Gourd Which Serves as a Lantern.

Sometimes substances will continue to give off fluorescent light after they have been removed from the "exciting" light. In certain cases they continue to glow for hours. This persistent light is called phosphorescence.

A faint cold light may be produced by rubbing two lumps of sugar together so as to crush the sugar crystals. A similar light appears if you shake crystals of uranium nitrate in a tube. Every time the crystals hit each other a little flash of light is produced. This is called triboluminescence. Again, if you take a roll of electrician's adhesive tape and rapidly strip off the tape, a faint glow will appear at the instant the tape breaks away. The light is believed to be caused by the rubbing together of minute crystals on the tape.

Certain chemical mixtures, too, produce heatless light. Thus, if to pyrogallic acid—the familiar "pyro" used by photographers in developing negatives—you add hydrogen peroxide and a small quantity of potato juice or animal blood, the mixture will become luminous. This is known as chemiluminescence.

"But it is in 'living light' produced by animals and plants," Mr. Bennett continues, "that scientists see the greatest possibilities for future usefulness.

"The plant world, too, contains at least two light-making forms. No doubt you have seen damp wood glow at night. This 'fox fire' is produced entirely by fungus in the wood. Or perhaps you have seen meat or fish in a refrigerator glow in the dark. This faint light comes from microscopic luminous bacteria."

Doctor Harvey and others have revealed the process by which living light is produced. The raw materials are oxygen and water. The "power plant" which produces the light contains a luminous secretion which can be separated into two distinct parts. One of these, called luciferin, consumes oxygen to produce the light. The other, known as luciferase, is a catalyst, or transforming substance, which speeds the process. The exact chemical nature of luciferin and luciferase remains a mystery, though the former is believed to be a protein, while the latter is related to the albumins.

The amazing thing about luciferin as a light maker is that it never seems to burn out. When you burn coal or oil as fuel, it combines with oxygen and vanishes as gas. But when luciferin combines with oxygen it becomes a luminous substance, called oxyluciferin, which is not lost, but returns to luciferin when the light goes out. Then it is ready to be lighted again.

This is what happens when the firefly flashes its light on and off. It is somewhat as if you had an electric flashlight, whose battery would renew itself after every flash and continue to renew itself indefinitely.

"It is an extraordinary process," Prof. Harvey says. "The economy of it is evident. It is already possible to devise a lamp in which luciferin is burned continuously over and over again. To be sure, the light is weak, but the principle of operation remains. Perhaps we may look to an application of this principle for development of new means of illumination."

A "Steam" Mask for the Face

FOR use in beauty parlors and barber shops, Adrian K. Morris, of Atlanta, has contrived a mask and cap containing coils of tubing which can be employed to steam the face and scalp. The cap and mask are separable but attachable together. Both are of rubber, double-walled, the tubing being contained between the inner and outer walls.

The tubing for the cap is a single tube arranged spirally within the flexible shell of rubber. The tubing for the mask is a single tube arranged in a series of flattened coils.

In use, wet cloth compresses are first laid over the scalp and face of the customer. Then the tubing in the cap and mask is filled with hot water—the cap having at its top a hole sealable like that of a hot-water bag, and the mask being similarly provided, beneath the chin.

The Rubber Mask Has Double Walls Containing Inner Tubing Which Is Filled with Hot Water.

Cap and mask are then applied to the customer, the two being connected together with snap fasteners. Left on for a while, they have a steaming effect upon the face and scalp, softening the skin in preparation for a massage and facial treatment.

The inventor suggests that his device may be used to advantage on men customers in barber shops, to soften the beard as a preliminary to shaving and to cleanse the skin of impurities.

How the MICROPHONE Was Invented

IN Washington the other day there was a little celebration in honor of the fiftieth birthday of "Mike," on which occasion "Mike's" inventor, Emile Berliner, made a speech telling how he hit upon the idea. "Mike" is the colloquial term for the microphone, which made the telephone a successful and utilizable invention.

Sixty years ago, in 1867, Mr. Berliner was a clerk in a dry goods store. He had come to America not long before as an immigrant boy from Germany. To while away his leisure hours, he took up the study of electricity and the phenomena of sound. When, in 1876, the invention of the telephone became known, it occurred to him that possibly sound vibrations might be carried by electricity.

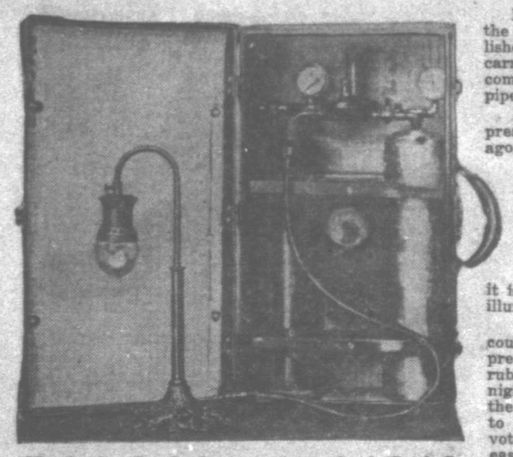

He bought a toy drum, cut it in halves, and used one of the latter for his experiment. From the rim of the drumhead he suspended a little steel ball on the end of a wire, in such fashion that the ball was in loose contact with the point of a sewing needle passed through a disk of wood glued to the centre of the drumhead, inside.

When an electric current was passed through the point of contact, it set up vibrations which were carried along a line wire to a telephone receiver. The arrangement formed a battery transmitter. When Mr. Berliner spoke against the drumhead, his voice was heard at the other end of the line. He had invented the microphone. The original toy drum model is today preserved in the United States National Museum.

The First Microphone, Which Was Made Fifty Years Ago, Consisted of a Toy Drum Cut in Halves with a Small Steel Ball Suspended on a Wire Attached to the Rim of the Drumhead.

How GAS Is BOTTLED for CAMPERS

Illuminating Gas Is Compressed into Steel "Bottles" Which Can Be Packed into a Suitcase for the Convenience of Motor Car Tourists.

A CENTURY ago illuminating gas was a novelty deemed hardly less wonderful than is radio today. Artificial light without a wick had been thought an impossibility; and, when gas for lighting was first introduced, people imagined that living flame passed through the pipes. It was accounted dangerous, and, on the occasion of the initial experiment with it in the House of Commons, in England, fire engines were on hand, with hose pipes laid ready.

Naturally, there were current jokes on the subject. In 1830 a cartoon was published in Berlin, representing a woman carrying through the streets two jugs of compressed gas with an arrangement of pipes with bore a nozzle and flame.

Nobody, however, thought of compressing illuminating gas until, not long ago, Walter O. Snelling, of the United States Bureau of Mines, conceived the notion, and his idea was to use for the purpose not coal-gas, but the waste gas which accumulates in the pipes of oil wells. Chemically purified and stored as a transparent liquid in steel bottles, under a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, it is made available for ready use as an illuminant.

Thus touring motorists and campers could carry with them bottles of this compressed gas, with a standing lamp and rubber pipe, all packed in a suitcase. At nightfall light could be had by connecting the rubber tube and turning a stopcock to open a valve, the liquid thereupon votalizing to furnish gas at a pressure easily regulated.

The inventor claims that this gas yields five times as much light as ordinary illuminating gas, and has four times the heating value, per cubic foot. It costs no more. For cooking in camp it ought to serve admirably.

It should, however, find other important uses, being available for lighting houses in rural districts where there are no gas plants and electricity is not to be had. A forty-pound steel cylinder will hold enough to last an average household a month. It may be kept outside the house, with suitable pipes to connect it with the regulation fixtures inside, the cylinder being readily replaced with a fresh one when empty.

VACUUM Device Aids COTTON Picker

COTTON-PICKING machines usually rely upon suction to remove the cotton from the bolls. A new contrivance, patented by Archie E. Brown, of El Paso, Tex., employs this method, but in a very novel way. A steel frame, supported on a drum-shaped roller that serves in lieu of wheels, is pushed from the rear by a horse whose reins pass to the front of the odd vehicle, where the driver sits on a platform and steers with the help of a small wheel at the forward end.

From the upper part of the frame, over the driver's head, hang two rubber tubes, each of them terminating in a sort of tubular glove, meant to be fastened upon the hand by a couple of finger-loops and a strap.

Tubular Gloves for Picking Cotton Which Is Drawn from the Hand by Suction,

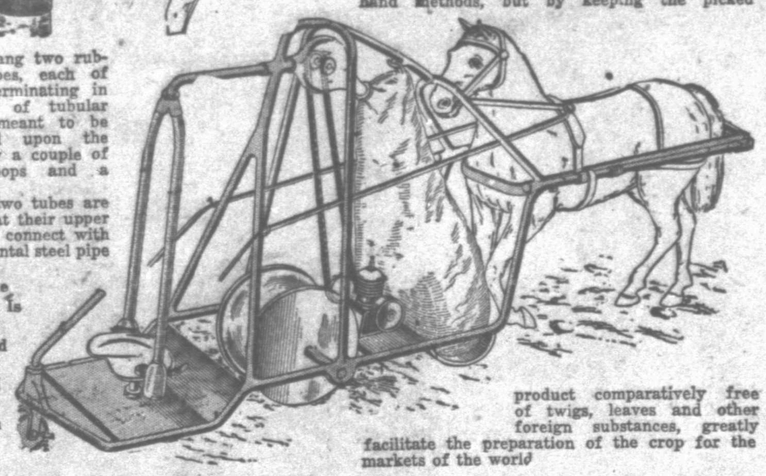

The two tubes are joined at their upper ends to connect with a horizontal steel pipe which carries a housing for the suction fan driven by a motor through the medium of a chain and sprocket-wheel. The rear end of the pipe enters a sack, suspended from a hook, which receives the cotton.

While the machine is driven slowly along a row of cotton, the suction fan being in operation, the driver at the front picks the cotton with his hands in the old-fashioned way. As he does so, the suction draws the cotton, as fast as he picks it, through the tubular gloves, up through the rubber tubes, on through the pipe, and into the sack.

By this means the picking is made much more rapid than ordinary hand-picking, and there is avoidance of the gathering of trash and dirt together with the cotton, which is a source of much trouble.

If desired, the horse may be dispensed with, and an engine geared to the driving-wheel and fan which will further increase the quantity of cotton picked in a day.

The inventor claims that his cotton-gathering machine not only will enable any one picker, once he acquires skill in handling the device, to do the work of many pickers using the old-hand methods, but by keeping the picked product comparatively free of twigs, leaves and other foreign substances, greatly facilitate the preparation of the crop for the markets of the world

As the Cotton Is Picked by Hand It Is Carried by Suction into a Bag.

New Inventions

A WINDSHIELD for the face is made particularly for use by persons of the gentler sex when driving against a cold wind, sleet or snow. The device is a frame made of a bent wire, covered on both sides with stiff buckram, such as is commonly used by milliners, and with an outer cover of thick velvet or fur, the device having somewhat the shape of a palm leaf fan.

A motor car crib can be folded flat against the back of the front seat. In this position, it can be used for holding various articles. The crib can be taken from the car, set up in the home and used as a bassinet. It can also be swung from the railing of a porch. When no bed is provided for the baby, this crib can be hung from the head of a bed after removing the pillows and placing them at the bottom of the bed. In other words, the bed is made up so that the head is at the foot of the bed.

Broke Back INTO Prison to Rescue His Pal

How the Unwritten Code of the Crime Guild Robbed a Daring Clerical Imposter of the Liberty His Friend's Boldness Had Bought and Paid For.

William Evans, Shortly After His Recapture, Bandaged, But Still Wearing the Roman Collar and Surplice of the Disguise that Failed to Fool the Prison Guards.

"Look out! There's 'soup' enough in there to blow us all to Kingdom Come."—Artist Biedermann's Conception of the Warning Shouted by Evans to His Captors as They Prepared to Search His Explosive-Freighted Automobile.

Harry Funk, the Daring "Examiner Bank Robber," For Whose Sake Evans Undertook the Thwarted Jail Delivery That May Send Him Back to a Life Sentence.

TWO men stood silhouetted in the shadowy doorway of a smoke-blackened tenement in the St. Louis "bad lands." Their right hands were clasped in the rough farewell of hardened adventurers. For all their outward appearance, they might have been brothers affectionately parting on the eve of some hazardous undertaking.

"S'long, Harry. I'll never forget it, and I'll do as much for you if you ever need me."

The man's voice was low and muttering. There was no theatricality about his tones or posture as he stood on the lower step of the tenement entryway. Just hard, bluff words born in a hard, bluff courage.

"Fergit it, kid—and I hope to Gawd I never need that kind o' help."

The man on the lower step slipped furtively into the gathering dusk; the other turned back through the arched doorway into the gloomy, soot-lined hallway of his ramshackle quarters.

A little more than a year later a battered, swaying man, his clerical collar and surplice splashed with his own blood, stood before a group of raging officials in the Stateville Prison near Joliet, Ill. He was a sullen and snarling creature, but he held his tongue.

That is, he held his tongue until the severity of his inquisition became firm. Then he talked, grunting out his words in short, grim sentences typical of the confirmed criminal interested only in thwarting his foes.

The "kid" had not forgotten.

It's a simple story of the old, old law of the underworld behind these two scenes, a simple story of the unwritten code of the crime guild, that a pal never forsakes a pal and that a good turn, if it is directed against the common enemy, the law, shall not be forgotten, no matter what dangers it fidelity of observance may involve.

And this simple story explained the priest's garb flecked with blood, the cleric's collar and surplice and shovel hat. It explained the presence of the bleeding William Evans in the office of Stateville Prison's warden and why he will go back to the Missouri Penitentiary to complete a life sentence for murder, from which he was liberated by Harry Funk.

The story begins in 1919. Evans was sent to the Missouri Penitentiary at Jefferson City for life after he had been convicted of first degree murder. He had slain a man and a jury had decided that there was premeditation. He was fortunate to escape the noose and knew it. Once in prison he made the most of his predicament. He was straightforward and energetic and soon impressed the warden as an unfortunate who had become involved in a slaying through circumstances rather than design.

A few years after his incarceration he became a trusty. One day he was dispatched to Jefferson City to obtain repairs for a piece of prison machinery, going alone as he had done many times before. His exemplary behavior, his obvious contrition and the fact that he soon would be eligible for a pardon had reassured the warden.

Several hours passed and Evans did not return, although his mission was to have been a brief one. The guards became agitated and reported his absence to the warden. The warden smiled —Evans would be back. The warden had seen too many criminals to be deceived; he knew his murderers.

But Evans did not come back. Instead, he met Harry Funk in Jefferson City. Funk had a fast automobile, a change of clothes and a plot, all prepared for William Evans' get-away. When the warden finally began to manifest alarm, Evans was miles away, speeding toward St. Louis and the hideaway which Funk had arranged for him.

When the warden was ready to admit that his bird had flown, a great man-hunt was organized and Evans' old haunts ransacked from top to bottom. Even St. Louis was gone over with a fine comb, but no sign of the fleeing murderer.

In the meantime, Evans remained in Funk's apartment in St. Louis, an apartment tucked away in that district between Jefferson and Grand Avenues and Chestnut and Cass Streets, where refuge is virtually impenetrable and thousands lived below ground, or in tiny, out of the way dives unsuspected by the police.

Eventually the time came for full liberty and Evans took his leave. He and Funk had decided that they should see little of each other for a period of years, lest suspicion be excited. So Evans went his way and Funk his—and the way of the latter proved to be the way of crime, a way he knew well and followed advantageously for a time.

It was but a few short weeks later that Funk, with a group of his criminal conferees held up and robbed the bank at Chenoa, Ill., of $108,000. It was one of the most amazing criminal coups ever perpetrated in Illinois and brought the wrath of every officer of the law in the commonwealth down about the wrongdoer's unfortunate ears.

Deputy Warden C. R. Green and Guard Frank Conway, Who Aided in the Thwarting of Evans' Plot and the Capture of the Would-be Deliverer.

The plan was a novel one. Funk and another accomplice entered the bank early one morning and announced to the officials that they were bank examiners and would begin an immediate audit of the bank's accounts. Now this is not an unusual procedure—it is part of the system of bank regulation to conceal the identity of the operatives, and to make examinations without warning—so the officials were caught off their guard.

All day long the "audit" went on. Carefully the pseudo examiners collected the cash in one convenient spot, the better to make away with it. When it had been collected——and there was no hint of irregularity in the process—Funk passed the signal to his cohorts outside and soon the officials found themselves looking into the muzzles of several heavy revolvers.

The bandits made a temporary get-away, but shortly thereafter Funk was arrested, identified, and sentenced to ten years in Stateville Prison. In some manner he communicated with Evans and plans for a jail-delivery were begun. It was Evans who decided upon the clerical disguise, apparently under the impression that priests and rectors are admitted to prisons with no questions asked.

At any rate, he appeared at the main gate in a small automobile and attired in the religious vestments and asked to be permitted to drive his car into the grounds. The guard refused permission, informing him that he would have to consult the warden. Whereupon Evans drove away, telling the guard he would 'phone the warden and ask permission to enter the prison yard.

A few minutes later he appeared at another gate and attempted to prevail upon the guard there to admit him with his automobile. The guard, Thomas Conway, became suspicious and, under guise of asking his superior for advice, summoned Deputy Warden C. R. Green and Guard Captain P. D. Clarkson.

The three men, certain now that there was some plot afoot, since Clarkson had been advised of the appearance before the main gate of the mysterious "cleric," leaped upon Evans and pinioned him to the prison wall. Then Clarkson ran to his car and prepared to search it.

"Look out! There's enough 'soup' in that car to blow us all to kingdom come!" Evans shouted to the guard chief.

Clarkson sprang back with great alacrity and then approached the machine with more caution. After a careful search, he found a four-ounce phial of nitro-glycerin, six bulbs of mustard gas and a .45 automatic pistol. In addition, he turned up three complete outfits of clothing and, upon searching Evans, found a second automatic pistol.

When officials demanded to know what Evans intended to do, he replied laconically:

"Call on some friends."

The questioning then became more drastic. Obdurate at first, the clerical impostor admitted that he had come to liberate Funk.

"What did you propose to do with the remainder of that clothing—didn't you also plan to release others?"

"Absolutely not—just thought they might come in handy," the prisoner replied.

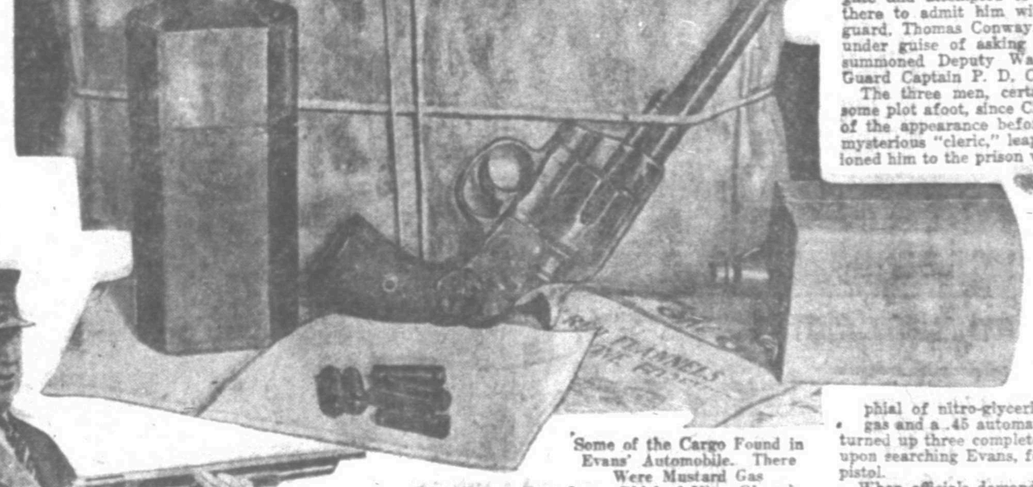

"And the nitro-glycerin—what did you intend to do with that?"

Evans eyed his questioners darkly, a sneer on his face.

"I thought," he replied, "that it might be necessary to blow a side out of the pen to get Harry out."

And Evans looked like a man who might have done just what he said. Even the clerical collar and the flecks of blood about his face and mouth could not mask the grim determination to "die for a pal" written on his sulking features.

Evans was held on charges of carrying concealed weapons and a deadly explosive by Illinois officials, but will be returned to Missouri to resume his life sentence, according to the State prison heads.

Some of the Cargo Found in Evans' Automobile. There Were Mustard Gas Cartridges, a Four-Ounce Phial of Nitro-Glycerin and Three Outfits of Clothing, Among Other Things.

PARIS.

MARRIED at sixteen and again at sixty, with her husband of sixty younger than her mate at sixteen, Aimee Crocker, California heiress and five times wed, came to be known as "the woman whose charm age could not dim."

But NOW, with the disclosure of her divorce from her most recent "catch," Prince Galatzine, there comes a new phase of the courtship of the 26-year-old Russian nobleman and his 60-year-old Yankee bride.

For, according to the cruel words penned at the divorce trial (since legally disproved) Aimee did NOT win the prince by her possession of "it," but by the simple formula of paying him $250 monthly to be her husband with a provision for $125 in case their marriage ended in a divorce—"just as you might buy, or rent, a spaniel."

It all came to light when the Prince, feeling that a bargain is a bargain, no matter how odious, sought to prevent his wife from obtaining a divorce until she had been instructed by the court to pay him the $125 monthly allegedly provided for in their pre-nuptial pact.

The princess, as might have been expected, was highly indignant. She accused the prince of being a he gold-digger, a designing fortune hunter and a number of other things, whereat the prince retaliated by charging her with having hired him to marry her in order to give herself the title of princess.

When the court demanded thac some definite proof of such an agreement be furnished by attorneys for Galatzine, a document answering to that description was produced. In fact, it was produced without the slightest show of scurrying about or embarrassment. The lawyers in the case had it right with them, and when they unfolded it for the court's delectation, that august functionary found that it read:

"I consent to pay you during both our existences $250 a month, but if there is a divorce I will pay you only $125 monthly during your lifetime."

This was in itself a bit snappy, but there was more to come. The attorneys for Galatzine were not through. They had another sensation to add and they mulled over it hungrily as the nervous representatives of the Yankee princess masticated their fingernails and struggled with their mustaches.

"We can prove," counsel said, "that the plaintiff hired a Russian named Lebedeff to find her a prince for a husband. Lebedeff found Prince Galatzine and reported to the plaintiff. She ordered the defendant in this case brought to Paris from Nice. When she had approved of him, she formally asked for his hand in marriage. She stipulated, upon insistence, that he was to be her husband as a companion only."

Shortly after the marriage, the couple went to America where they spent some time, but when the gossip began to drift to their ears and former friends of the princess insisted upon looking the other way when they passed her in public, the newlyweds decided that the atmosphere was too chilly for their noble feelings and sailed back to Paris and the congeniality that marks this gay capital, especially when there's plenty of money to pay the checks with.

Shortly after their return here, the princess began her suit for divorce, charging her husband with infidelity and other irregularities. She stated in her petition that she was fifty-three and Galatzine was twenty-six when they were married, but if she gave her age correctly, she would have been only seven when she married R. Porter Ashe in 1882, a tender age, even for one so addicted to matrimony as Aimee.

Prior to the recent developments in the Galatzine suit, Aimee Crocker had figured prominently in a sequence of similar actions. As before pointed out, she married R. Porter Ashe, a nephew of Admiral Farragut, in 1882 and divorced him a short time later. She then married Henry M. Gillig, but divorced him after a short but stormy married life.

Her third husband was Jackson Gouraud, a big paddock and turf man. Gouraud broke the sequence of divorces, dying a few years after their marriage. Many have said that the butterfly heiress was truly in love with him and that they would have lived happily together indefinitly, had not his death intervened. Mrs. Crocker-Ashe-Gillig-Gouraud went into deep mourning for several months, but emerged from the shadow of her woe to marry Alexander Miskinoff, a supposed prince of the Russian nobility.

This marriage was almost as sensational as the Galatzine union. Things began to happen almost as soon as the ceremony had been performed. It was not long until Aimee learned that her "prince's" title was of an authenticity which had been questioned.

The heiress was then living in France—had been for many years, in fact, and was regarded as a thorough European. She had adopted a young girl, who had taken the name Yvonne Gouraud after Aimee's third husband, and they had become deeply attached to each other.

Then came her divorce action against Miskinoff, fought out in a New York court. In her petition, Aimee charged her husband with having fallen violently in love with a sixteen-year-old girl and with having admitted his infatuation.

Furthermore, she charged, they had agreed to be married as soon as she could be divorced from her "prince." She had insisted upon this marriage, she told the court, at the same time keeping the name of the girl out of the testimony. In the end she was given her divorce.

Then came the shock of the entire proceedings! Miskinoff and Yvonne Gouraud were married—and it dawned upon the world that it was Aimee's adopted daughter that Miskinoff had fallen in love with and protested his love for. Furthermore, it developed that the foster mother had made no objection to her adopted child going through with the marriage.

Shortly after the couple were married, Yvonne also brought suit against Miskinoff and obtained a divorce a few weeks later. She then returned to her foster-mother and they went back to Paris, where the Crocker salon, scene of many brilliant gatherings in other years, was reopened. Almost immediately Aimee's young satellites began to gather round her again and soon she was in the midst of the mad social whirl that had caused her to be given the name of "the Queen of the Pearls."

It was a noticeable feature of Aimee's life in Paris that she surrounded herself with young men—and a few young women. Youth from every European country, and a few Americans, gathered to pay tribute at her shrine. It may have been because "Aimee always paid the check" that she was able to go about Paris and other European pleasure centers with a galaxy of flaming youths trailing in her wake like the tail of a brilliant comet, but for many years this hypothesis was not accepted. Instead, it was whispered, and in awed tone, too:

"It's marvelous—near sixty and still able to attract the young men and gain the admiration of the women in their twenties!"

At one time Aimee became known as the "Python Princess." She had found a very amusing device for her apartment, or studio, from which she got the name. She would insist, upon having one or two huge snakes about the premises and on many occasions, when some suitor with his eyes on the comforts her millions could provide, her enemies said, would become a bit too attentive, she would drape a python or two about her now rather ample shoulders and do a little dance about the room. The attentions promptly ceased.

Aimee had a break once before in the "spell" she had cast over the Paris whirl. She was holding court then in Paris cafes, holding the court of the Queen of Pearls to as illy assorted a group of fortune hunters and lounge lizards as ever was assembled at one time and, as usual, or as always, to be exact, she was paying and paying.

They were a marplot group, these courtiers who fawned on the Queen of Pearls and did her slightest bidding while lesser or greater satellites, as the case may have been, gathered about her to pay tribute and exact their mede of food and tea and liquor and even, if the Crocker purse was bulging with recent dividends, small "loans" to be repaid when times were better.

Among those who held commission in her court was "Count" Ferri Pisano, a young Italian, who claimed noble antecedents. A claim was almost sufficient for Aimee. She seldom troubled to assure herself of her courtiers' claims to nobility. If they looked like princes or counts or dukes and said they were, that was almost enough. They were eligible for the queenly favor, and the queenly largess.

Pisano, it seems, became dissatisfied. What caused his dissatisfaction is not generally known. But it was sufficiently acute to prompt him to bring suit against his "queen" and to cut himself off from the glories of her court thereby. And the suit was highly embarrassing to Queen Aimee. It let a few cats out of the bag and, because of prior mix-ups, things were getting to a point where the Crocker bag was almost catless.

The disgruntled prince, instead of suing his one time benefactor, or meal ticket as a more brusque and direct American called it, in a dignified manner, brought out the fact that he had been hired to pay tribute at her court at the rate of $150 monthly and that his salary was nine months in arrears. This was the signal for more nodding of heads and many whispered exchanges such as "Ah, ha, hires 'em, does she; clever, though, even if it does cost money," and similar remarks. Aimee was desolated and she was extremely wrathy, but in the end she paid, as Aimee always paid.

Later in her career, when Galatzine was making matters uncomfortable for her in the courts, it developed that she had spent some time in a Turkish harem. This DID create a furore, but Aimee quickly explained it. She said she had visited there with one of the wives of the harem's master, but had not been an actual inmate. Galatzine declared she had been an inmate, whereat her attorneys threatened to prove a thing or two to the court and almost caused a riot by suggesting that Aimee would bare her body to the waist to show that she had no snake tattoed about her—a mark of all harem women.

The court, aware of the custom of thus tattooing women of the Turkish seraglios and feeling convinced that the plaintiff was not so tattooed since she was willing to prove it in this definite manner, decided that the exhibition would not be necessary and ordered that part of the prince's evidence stricken out.

After all the glory of her Paris salon, after all the grandeur of her position as an ageless beauty, and all the eminence of her place as the "Queen of Pearls," when even the most envious refused to believe that she bought the favors of youth, came the Galatzine case and its startling revelations.

But the court granted Aimee a divorce and ordered the prince to pay all costs.

From this she may gain a morsel of comfort, for it IS official. But the revelations still are fresh in the minds of those who once could not understand, and from now on when she appears with a new and youthful companion—or even a new and youthful husband, for Aimee may not yet be sick of matrimony—she cannot dodge the half-concealed smirks or fail to be aware of the undertones of:

"Bought and paid for, my dear."

How Can the Race End?

THREE chums, Robert Ulric and Norbert, took part in an athletic contest shortly after their school closed for the Summer vacation by entering the hundred-yard dash. The three boys were evenly matched and their friends were very much in doubt as to which one of the runners would win the race. The problem is, therefore, to figure out in how many different ways, as far as the order is concerned, Robert, Ulric and Norbert can cross the tape.

Fox and Squirrel Is a Lively Game

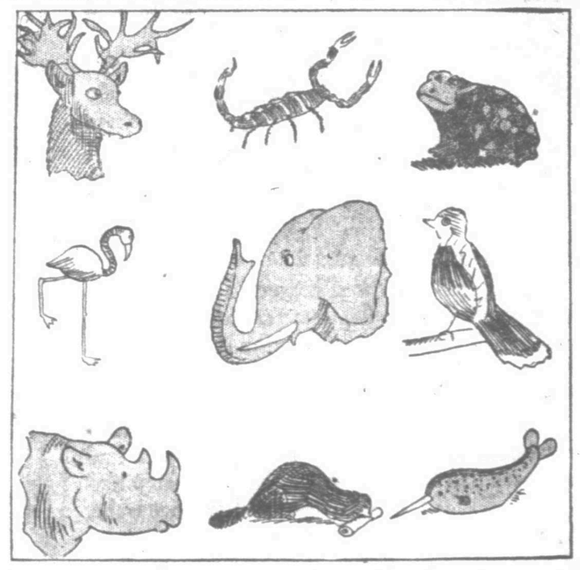

THE game of "squirrel and fox" will provide plenty of exciting fun for any number of boys and girls. Two bean bags, each of a different color, are used to represent the two animals, respectively.

The players form a circle. One player is given the bag representing the squirrel, which he starts going around the circle by passing it from one player to the next. A little later the bag representing the fox is started in the same way.

The chase is now on in earnest and the excitement increases if the fox gains on the squirrel, which is trying to complete the circle and return to the hand of the player who started it before the fox overtakes it.

Whenever the squirrel is caught by the fox or succeeds in evading capture, the game is started all over again, two new players acting as the two animals.

"Magic" Water

THE force which is known to scientists as capillary attraction can be used by the amateur magician to perform a very astonishing trick.

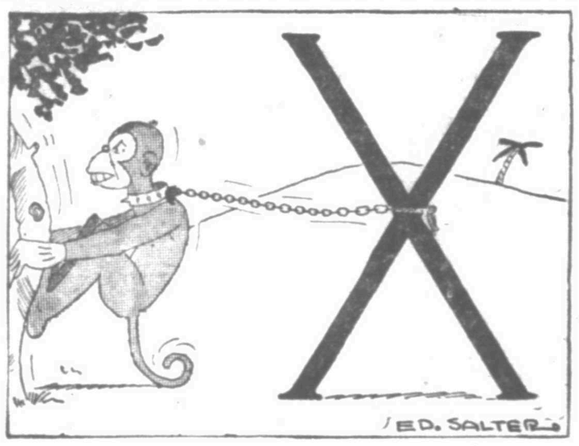

The things needed are most simple and consist of a small piece of tulle or netting, a glass and some water. The tulle or netting must be of a size sufficient to cover the top of the glass and extend over the edge a little.

The conjurer fills the glass to the brim with water which can be colored to heighten the effect. Next he dampens the tulle or netting, covers the top of the glass with it, pressing it down carefully over the sides of the glass.

As the magician holds the cover securely over the glass he quickly inverts the tumbler and with a slow and easy motion immediately slips his hand sideways from the cover.

At this point comes the amazing part of the "trick." The spectators are astonished to see the water remain in the tumbler, securely held there by capillary attraction.

THE OLD HOUSE By FANNIE HURST

Why was it that Maria Agar persisted in living on in the old house in Gary Street? A house out of date, uncomfortable, choked with smoke. A house that thirty years before had been one of the outstanding ones of the neighborhood.

Maria Agar's five children, all happily married and away from home, were never to know why their mother stubbornly persisted in living on in the out-of-date old house in what had become one of the furtive red-light streets of the city.

THE old house in Gary Street was gaunt-looking and smoky, discolored and grotesquely out of date.

Of gray brick, with bulging ells and outlandish-looking verandas elaborately done in mill work jutting here and there without rhyme or reason, long draughty halls, a leaky, inadequate furnace, enormous, out-of-date kitchen, old-style laundry, smoke-choked garden, it was a blot upon even the ugly, busy, business street that crowded around it.

Of course what had happened was obvious. Thirty years before, the Agar mansion had been one of the outstanding ones of the street. A fine brick residence with a mansard roof and a furnace in a day when furnaces were still a novelty.

Old Amos Agar had tended this home with loving care and generosity. His five children had been born and reared in it and the happiest period of his family life had been spent within those walls.

The three Agar girls had been married from its stately parlor, with the then handsome pier glass for background and the wedding bell hanging from the great crystal chandelier.

Simon Agar had received his notification that he had been chosen attorney general while he was still an unmarried son living at home in the heart of the old family residence.

Then the old gentleman died, two of the girls married within the next three years, Simon established his permanent residence in Washington, Phil married, and finally Leslie, the baby of them all, eloped one day with the son of the town's richest banker.

That left Maria Agar, with her husband dead and her five children gone from the nest, alone in the big house.

But not with the consent of her children. Long before Leslie's elopement, eager hands had been stretched out to Maria. Simon wanted her in Washington. Phil's wife wrote monthly letters of invitation from Detroit; and as for the girls, she was equally welcome with any one of them.

Of course Maria clung to the home. Very well and good, but what of the family's feelings in the matter? Gary Street had not only deteriorated in values and residential desirability, but it had become one of the furtive "red light" streets of the city. Many of the old mansions were now boarding houses of the most questionable nature. The shops that had sprung up around the Agar home were petty ones, none too frank of countenance.

Simon insisted that some of the most pernicious bucket shops in town operated behind those murky exteriors of green grocer and small drygoods men.

The Agar home itself seemed to have taken on some of that sinister exterior. Its brown, smoke-caked shutters sagged.

As Leslie said, the old place got on her nerves. Gloomy. Smoky. Somehow sinister.

Maria agreed in the little pussy fashion she had of gently listening and then carrying forward stubbornly her own original ideas. She had handled Amos that way through the thirty-nine years of their married life together. Listening to him with deference, bowing before him when she agreed. Listening to him with that same deference when she did not agree, and then quietly abiding by her own convictions.

The family knew this about Maria. And up to a point respected it in her, even when they twitted about it as a family joke.

But this was different. The girls, all of whom were living in the same town, felt humiliated! What must people think! Why, it was actually dangerous for Maria to insist upon remaining in a part of town long since become questionable as the locale of sub-rosa business concerns and ladies of dreadful finery.

In fact there were two houses on the very block of the old Agar mansion where raids had actually taken place and blonde, frizzed girls in various stages of negligee had been hustled out into the waiting patrol wagons.

It was all too shameful! Marian Agar, who had married a Trollope, made no bones of her displeasure at her mother's tenacity.

"At least Mother might consider us. What must people think!"

It was even said, too, that Maria exchanged visits with some of the new denizens of the neighborhood. This last never reached the ears of the children.

Maria was acting childish, perverse and inconsiderate.

On each of their visits from Washington, Simon and his wife, who stopped at the hotel rather than endure the smokiness of the old menage, had long, serious talks with Maria. Simon, as the eldest, to say nothing of the dignity of his official positions, was supposed to have greatest influence with his mother.

He did after a fashion. Maria adored and admired him and was genuinely fond of the lovely and delicately bred Baltimore girl he had married, but on the subject of her residence, the little old lady remained adamant.

There were compensations for the smokiness, the dirtiness, the run-down, dilapidated neighborhood. Marketing was such a simple matter, with all the shops so near. The street cars passing the house made it less lonely than it might have been otherwise. The lights of the motion-picture theatre across the way made the old street quite gay in the evening. Nothing to be afraid of. Nonsense! Who wanted to bother an old lady going about her business. Besides, Katy, one of the house servants, was a companion of nineteen years' service in the household.

Questionable neighborhood? Poppycock! What did that matter to one who minded her own affairs? Little old garden wasn't what it used to be, what with the soot and grime, and sometimes the tin-pan radio and graphophone noises from one of the "questionable" houses across the street did litter up the sleeping hours pretty badly, but with the children all gone and Maria's duties inordinately lighter, there was time the next day to catch up on lost sleep.

The children had not one inkling of the kind of hold the old house had on Maria. Of course there were the dear memories, but Maria was the sort of woman who could lock her dear memories in her heart and not need a chair, or a pantry-shelf, or a broken, little old crib to remind her of them. Her children were quite right. Maria was not a rank sentimentalist. But the old house gave Maria something more than the gratification of sentimental memories.

The night of the raid in the questionable house across the street—the very day that Leslie had eloped, by the way—one of the girl inmates, distressed, frightened, hysterical, had somehow managed to elude the sordid performance of the patrol wagon and find refuge on Maria's back porch.

Maria, going out to place the cat's dish of milk on the top step, found her there. Took her in. Warmed her. Gave her the remainder of the warm milk in the clean pan where she had heated it for the cat.

The refugee was a blonde girl, sixteen years old. For seven hours, crouched in the cove of Maria's arm, she sobbed out the harrowing, debasing story of the incidents that had led to that huddled hour of refuge on Maria's back porch.

A strange thing happened. This girl, in the guise of a house-maid whom Maria had taken on for extra work, remained in the old house with Maria a month, and due to correspondence undertaken largely by Maria, a father from Keokuk came at the end of that time and took a chastened, grateful and adoring girl back home.

The noise of this got about in the "house". Scarcely a day that one or another of the girls from over there did not creep in for the solace of a talk with Maria.

Some were entirely beyond the range of her redemption, except that there was something she had for them, something that the opportunity to talk with this little beady-eyed woman in the sanctum of a home where she had reared a family into staunch respectability gave them, that seemed to rest and encourage them. Three or four of the girls had succumbed more concretely to that influence, and gone back home or out to redeem their lives in legitimate lines of endeavor.

There were at least six girls who would have kissed the very ground Maria trod.

The family did not know the reason of the hold of the old house in Gary Street upon Maria.

They did not know, either, that Maria's last years there where she was to live up to the end were filled with the finest rewards of her whole helpful lifetime.
