Pampans have hit the streets again, this time to peddle brooms and solicit money for United Way and for multiple sclerosis.

They are all fine causes. Most money to United Way stays in the community for worthwhile causes. Proceeds from the Lions' Club broom sales help finance Lions work with blind and deaf children. Multiple sclerosis donations go to purchase wheel chairs, braces and other equipment which is loaned to MS patients in the area.

Pampans are generous folks - generous with their money and generous with their time. And it shows in the community.

I overheard someone say the other day, "If there is someone in Pampa that needs help, it's just because the civic organizations haven't heard about it."

There is Mrs. Emma Lane who lived at 534 Oklahoma until her house collapsed last winter. She got a new house but now she has to move it onto her lot. And she can't save fast enough from her $94 a month Social Security check.

People with big hearts are helping her move the house and get it functioning. Her minister, L.B. Davis, set up a fund at the First National Bank and he reports that all they need is a few hundred more dollars and Mrs. Lane will have a new home.

Rex McAnelly out at Moody Farms Feedlot said, "There's more beer sold in Pampa than there is beef and the price of it is constantly going up. Yet, in the 18 years I've been here, I've yet to hear one person complain about the price of beer. But I constantly hear people complain about the price of beef."

If the people of the city of McLean want a hospital, they should have a hospital. Gray County could sell them one.

Vice President Rockefeller has a new home.

Uncle Sam has remodeled the house formerly occupied by the chief of Naval Operations for an official vice - presidential residence. The job cost of $750,000 which sounds outlandishly expensive until you remember that $192,000 of our money went to fix up Spiro Agnew's homes.

And look how long he lasted.

The most creative news we've had for a long time is the James Bond - like stories about the CIA stockpiling cobra venom.

It was illegal; it was dirty; it was sneaky. But it sure was creative.

As CIA director William E. Colby explained it, deadly toxins were extracted from cobras and shellfish. Then they were converted into suicide capsules for captured agents and into ammo for lethal electric dart guns which would kill silently at 100 yards.

And that's just a fragment of the exciting news which the Senate subcommittee is extracting from the CIA.

There are chemicals which kill the crops of unfriendly nations. There was a practice run at germ warfare, without real germs, in a New York City subway. There was an "L - pill" which was designed for agents to commit suicide during World War II but was phased out because it "took some time to work and was agonizing."

Then there was a tiny poison needle concealed in a silver dollar which was given to Gary Powers, pilot of the U2 spy plane shot down over the Soviet Union in 1960, in case he wanted to do away with himself.

And there were dart - firing fountain pens and an engine head bolt that released poison when heated.

The whole program cost taxpayers about $3 million.

Now toy companies will probably pounce on the concept around Christmastime and TV shows will grab the idea for next season.

And to think some people believed that Evel Knievel's motorcycling stunts were a bad influence on children.

President Plans Changes in CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former CIA Director Richard Helms said today he issued verbal orders in 1970 to destroy deadly toxin and poison stocks in accordance with a presidential directive, but they were ignored.

Testifying before the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, Helms said, "My recollection was that when the order was issued to destroy bacteriological warfare materials. Mr. Karamessines and I agreed we had no choice but to comply and terminate 'Operation MK NAOMI.'"

Thomas Karamessines, former deputy director for Central Intelligence Agency plans who was sitting by Helms' side as his former boss testified, agreed the orders were given.

They both said the termination order was passed on to Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, then chief of the CIA's technical service division. They said that was the last they knew about it until a secret cache of poisons and exotic weapons was discovered in a CIA vault in May.

Gottlieb, since retired from the CIA, has been subpoenaed to testify later this month.

Helms has been in intelligence work since World War II and was CIA director from 1966 through 1973 when he was appointed to his present post of ambassador to Iran.

The committee, headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, is trying to find out why the poisons—including lethal shellfish toxin and cobra venom—were kept hidden for five years.

Helms said the first he knew that the poisons and an electrically operated poison dart pistol were kept in a CIA vault was when he read it in the newspapers.

On Tuesday, President Ford said he is considering altering some procedures practiced by the CIA.

Richard Helms, U.S. ambassador to Iran and former CIA director, was the leadoff witness today. Helms was in charge of the agency when Richard M. Nixon ordered biological weapons destroyed.

Ford told a new conference Tuesday the administration will make "legislative recommendations" to Congress concerning CIA activities "and will propose some administrative changes."

Asked about CIA's "political activities" abroad, Ford said, "I wouldn't rule out necessary political activities by the United States if it involves our security."

The phrase "political activities" wasn't defined and there was no elaboration as to what kinds of covert action — beyond intelligence-gathering — Ford might permit the CIA to conduct for reasons of national security.

Senators Tuesday heard about tools of the intelligence trade that could permit the most extreme kinds.

Dr. Frank Gordon told the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence he and two colleagues in the CIA chemical branch decided two directives by President Nixon in 1969 and 1970 ordering destruction of germ and chemical weapons did not apply to the CIA.

As a result stocks of a lethal shellfish toxin, cobra venom and other poisonous substances were kept in a CIA vault for five years until they were discovered during an in-house investigation in May.

"I find your testimony astounding," said Sen., Frank Church, D-Idaho, committee chairman. "You and your facility decided to retain this toxin although you knew that it might very well have been a violation of a presidential order."

Gordon was chief of the CIA chemical branch until his retirement Sept. 13, 1972.

Adult Education

Geraldine Rampy, left, vocational counselor, helps Lynda Thomas enroll Tuesday evening at Baker Elementary School. Mrs. Thomas said she was taking the adult basic education class so that she can help her fifth grader. Her husband Charlie, bottom left, said he wanted to enroll last year but couldn't because of his working hours. He wants a G.E.D. high school equivalency diploma because "it is a lot easier to keep a job with an education." Interested persons may still enroll or obtain additional information at the office in Baker Elementary School.

NY Teachers End Strike Unhappy with Contract

By United Press International

New York City's teachers' strike was over today, even if some were unhappy with the settlement. Chicago teachers kept classes closed for an 11th straight day and set up alternative schools to serve some of the 530,000 idled by the walkout.

In New York, a two-year pact was approved as United Federation of Teachers President Albert Shanker told teachers "the boss has no money" and that the union had "gotten the most we can possibly get."

The city's 1.1 million students were to return to classes Thursday.

The contract included a provision under which some 2,400 laid-off teachers would be rehired with $25 million the school board saved by not paying the strikers during the walkout.

Teachers agreed to waive two "preparation periods" a week to keep class sizes at no more than 34. The New York City settlement cut to less than 850,000 the number of students affected by school walkouts and left the Chicago strike as the nation's largest schoolboard-teacher dispute.

Negotiations continued in efforts to end the Chicago impasse. It centered on cost of living raises and class size, while the city school board considered possible court action to force teachers back to their jobs.

The Chicago Teachers Union set up alternate schools for some of the city's children.

In Rhode Island, Superior Court Judge Joseph Weisberger jailed eight leaders of the Pawtucket Teachers Alliance for contempt for defying an order by another judge to end an illegal two-week strike.

Some 24,000 New Jersey children are affected by strikes. Hoboken, N.J., teachers rejected a judge's recommendation to return to work while court-ordered negotiations proceed and the board of education considered firing the strikers. Teachers at Hawthorne, N.J., went on strike Tuesday.

Striking New Bedford, Mass., teachers planned to file an unfair labor practices charge against the school committee.

Judge Nixes Plans For Dallas Busing

DALLAS (UPI) — A Federal judge dismissed the city desegregation plan as unconstitutional and said business leaders must join in a settlement or see the consequences of possible racial disorder.

District Judge William M. Taylor said the city must accept busing of students to achieve racial balance and be fair about it.

Taylor appointed a Rhode Island professor to consult the court and the school district in presenting a new plan. Tuesday he rejected a plan that maintained 46 all-minority schools.

"I can't accept it," he said. "I don't think the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals would accept that. And I don't know if I would want to read their sharp language.

"The school district plan is just patently unconstitutional."

The appeals court said a desegregation plan must go into effect by the middle of the 1975-76 school year, be it submitted by the school district or drawn by the courts.

The DISD on a 5-4 vote submitted a plan to bus 18,000 students, two thirds of them minority students. It would have kept 40,000 students — 29 per cent of the district's total student population — in segregated one-race schools.

"I think the business leaders have defaulted. They have let the district meet the problem alone. Business leaders have their responsibilities to attract new business to the city and they should know that this cannot be done if this city is torn by racial strife.

"It is time for the business leaders to stand up and be counted."

Taylor said Dr. John Finger of Rhode Island College would help the court and school district officials draw a new plan.

"There will be busing of students in the Dallas Independent School District," Taylor said. "Mainly because it is the law and we follow the law. I know our young people can adjust and I would hope their parents can do the same.

"I would wish that the anti-busing advocates would direct their energies to a constructive end. That is a quality education for all students."

Senior Center Contributions Yield $35,000

Approximately $35,000 has been contributed toward a new Senior Citizens Center for Pampa, according to a report presented this morning.

A financial drive is underway to obtain $100,000 to purchase and remodel property at 500 W. Francis.

The advisory board of Pampa Senior Citizens Inc. and a group from the Altrusa Club met today for a "check - in breakfast" in the Terrace Room of the Coronado Inn.

The group said the proposed new center is a community project. Contributions may be given to Jerry Sims at the First National Bank of Pampa or mailed to the Pampa Senior Citizens Inc., Box 475.

Japan Hopes To Boost Its Economy

TOKYO (UPI) — The Japanese government today approved a massive $6.67 billion emergency spending program designed to shore up the country's slumping economy.

The program is expected to be followed later this month by the fourth reduction this year in the discount rate of the Bank of Japan in order to ease credit for businessmen.

The wholesale spending program was approved by the cabinet's council on economic affairs, headed by Vice-Premier Takeo Fukuda.

The government was also expected to reduce the interest paid depositors in banks and Japan's postal savings system in an effort to attract consumers who are not spending in the current recession.

The $6.67 billion package will plunge the Japan deeper into debt, and will be financed through sale of government bonds.

The emergency program was prompted by declining foreign trade, renewed growth of unemployment, and a parade of bankruptcies of well-known Japanese companies.

The Aug. 28 collapse of Kohjin Ltd., a diversified paper pulp, textiles and real estate company was believed to have spurred the government into action.

Kohjin petitioned for bankruptcy, listing unpaid debts of $489 million. It was Japan's largest post-war bankruptcy.

Clear to partly cloudy skies are forecast for today and Thursday with highs today in the mid 90s and the lows tonight near 60. Daytime temperatures will be a little cooler Thursday.

Soviet Agrees To Pay Increase on Freight

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford was told today during a cabinet meeting on grain sales to Russia that the Soviet Union tentatively agreed to pay U.S. shippers $16 a ton—more than a 50 per cent increase over the old rate.

"It looks like we got a $16 rate on the freight," Commerce Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton was heard to say as the meeting was getting underway. Morton said he had just talked with an American official in Moscow and "he got a handshake on the deal."

Negotiators for the two nations have been meeting in Washington and Moscow for the last month on a new freight rate that would be paid to American shippers to handle one-third of the grain shipments.

The previously negotiated rate, which expired early this summer, was $9.50 a ton and the American maritime industry had demanded a higher fee.

A $16 rate would be a victory for U.S. negotiators because industry sources had predicted it probably would not exceed $12 or $13 a ton.

The old rate was negotiated under the 1972 U.S.-Soviet maritime agreement, which expires at the end of this year and stipulates American shippers will carry one-third of all grain the Soviets purchase from this country.

A White House spokesman said today's cabinet meeting also was called to discuss economic and energy matters as well as delayed school openings around the nation. Ford said Tuesday in a news conference that some federal courts are ignoring a law he signed last year directing them to use busing only as a last resort.

"The thing that bothers me about actions of some of the courts ... is that they apparently have not taken into consideration the law that was passed and signed by me on Aug. 12 of 1974, three days after I was sworn in," Ford said.

"... It sets forth seven specific proposals that the courts should follow before they actually use the busing remedy."

Ford did not name the courts or cases he was talking about. Jack Greenberg, head of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, which is active in desegregation cases, said Ford "ought to mention what particular cases he has in mind."

Greenberg said some of the most prominent busing orders, those in Boston and Louisville, Ky., were handed down before the law was passed.

Boston Violence Continues

BOSTON (UPI) — White youths tried to set afire the Charlestown police station and showered it with rocks and bricks Tuesday night, in retaliation for busing of students to integrate schools, police said.

Eighteen station windows were broken, 6 of them in the office of Capt. William MacDonald, who has directed police units implementing the stepped up court ordered busing program at Charlestown High School.

Three youths were arrested. All were from the Bunker Hill housing project, a focal point of antibusing protest in Charlestown. They were charged with four counts of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, attempted arson and malicious destruction of property.

The youths tried to throw a lighted torch or flare through one of the broken windows, said a police spokesman, adding the attack must have been in retaliation for busing.

Earlier some 300 antibusing demonstrators, including many of the women who have been conducting daily "Mothers March" prayer vigils on Bunker Hill, held a peaceful march in Charlestown.

Seven buses carrying white children were stoned by black youths Tuesday.

Attendance citywide was 74.6 per cent, with 63,784 of a projected enrollment of 85,463 students in school. For the first time the figures included kindergarten students who began classes Tuesday. The previous high was Monday's 70 per cent turnout.

Socialism in England

"Britain today offers a textbook case on how to ruin a country," writes Vermont Royster in the Wall Street Journal.

In his column entitled "Britain: A Model Study," Royster paints a gloomy picture of Great Britain and writes that the future looks even worse.

What he had to report is worth repeating here because it seems quite clear that the U.S. is following the same destructive pattern.

He writes that the British pound is not merely declining but plummeting. The industrial output is steadily shrinking and the inflation rate is matched only by some newborn African or Latin American country.

He reports that the physical plant of British industries is decrepit. Its tools are out moded and worn out, and cannot compete with others.

The standard of living of its people is lower than comparable countries in Eruope, vastly lower than the U.S., and that standard is shrinking for all.

"Time is running out," he writes, "even on those in the powerful unions who labor in protected, subsidized industries. It already has run out on the middle - class doctors, accountants, college professors, clerks, journalists civil servants and shopkeepers."

Royster reminds us that Britain is brought to this sorry state not because of defeat in war nor earthquakes, plagues, droughts or any natural disaster. Its undoing has been its own doing by calculated policies of its government and by their resigned acceptance by the people.

"The formula is simple," he continues. "You begin by putting upon a nation an economic burden it cannot bear. In Britain's case it was an all - encompassing welfare program. Its best - known example is the free medical program but there is also subsidized housing, subsidized food, subsidized transportation and an elaborate system of other generous programs."

Obviously the American taxpayer can see the same things going on in the U.S., and it should take little thought to realize that what has happened to Great Britain is on its way to happening right here.

Royster correctly explains that all this "free" service in Britain must be paid for one way or another. This means either higher taxes or turning on the government printing presses to produce more paper money. That causes more inflation which increases the cost of everything which means more printing press money and the vicious circle continues.

In Britain, the ordinary income tax is 50 per cent on an income the equivalent of $15,000. The upper limit of a salaried income after taxes is around $25,000, says Royster.

"Nor is this the end of taxation. There is a value - added tax (a kind of sales tax) levied on what you spend of what's left; it's 8 percent on nearly everything, 25 per cent on many items."

He also advises that property taxes, paid by the renter, have risen 30 to 60 percent in the past year.

To cap it off, there is a confiscatory inheritance tax and more lately a "wealth tax," a capital levy on what you have left, if anything.

Royster has done us a great service in painting this picture of Great Britain. The politicians of this country have adopted just about every welfare program the British have, and the only reason this economy is not yet as decrepit as theirs is that ours was stronger to begin with.

But no economy can withstand the crippling welfare disease for long. Britain is a mirror to our future if we but have eyes to see.

Postmark Returning

The U.S. Postal Service is going to give Americans back their geographical identities.

Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar has announced that as soon as the required cancelling equipment is available and in place, local postmarks will be applied on outgoing first - class mail at processing centers throughout the country.

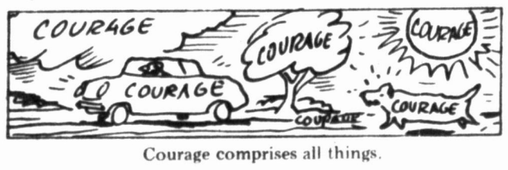

It was thanks to the Postal Service, of course, and in the name of efficiency, that the local postmark was sent into oblivion in the first place. Except for a few large cities, the service dropped most postmarks in 1970 and began cancelling stamps in regional mail processing centers. Envelopes were printed simply with "U.S. Postal Service," plus an abbreviation of the of the zip code where the letter was processed.

Although the news release from Washington gives the impression that the use of local postmarks is a brand - new idea that originated with the Postal Service, the credit goes to the efforts of stamp collectors and postmark afficionados, notably a campaign launched last year by Ray Geiger, owner of the Farmers' Almanac.

We won't be going all the way back to the old system, however. There will only be about 350 mail processing centers with the equipment necessary for handling large state and the first three digits quantities of mail. Residents of Pea Ridge, Ark., for example, will have their letters postmarked Fayetteville, AR 727.

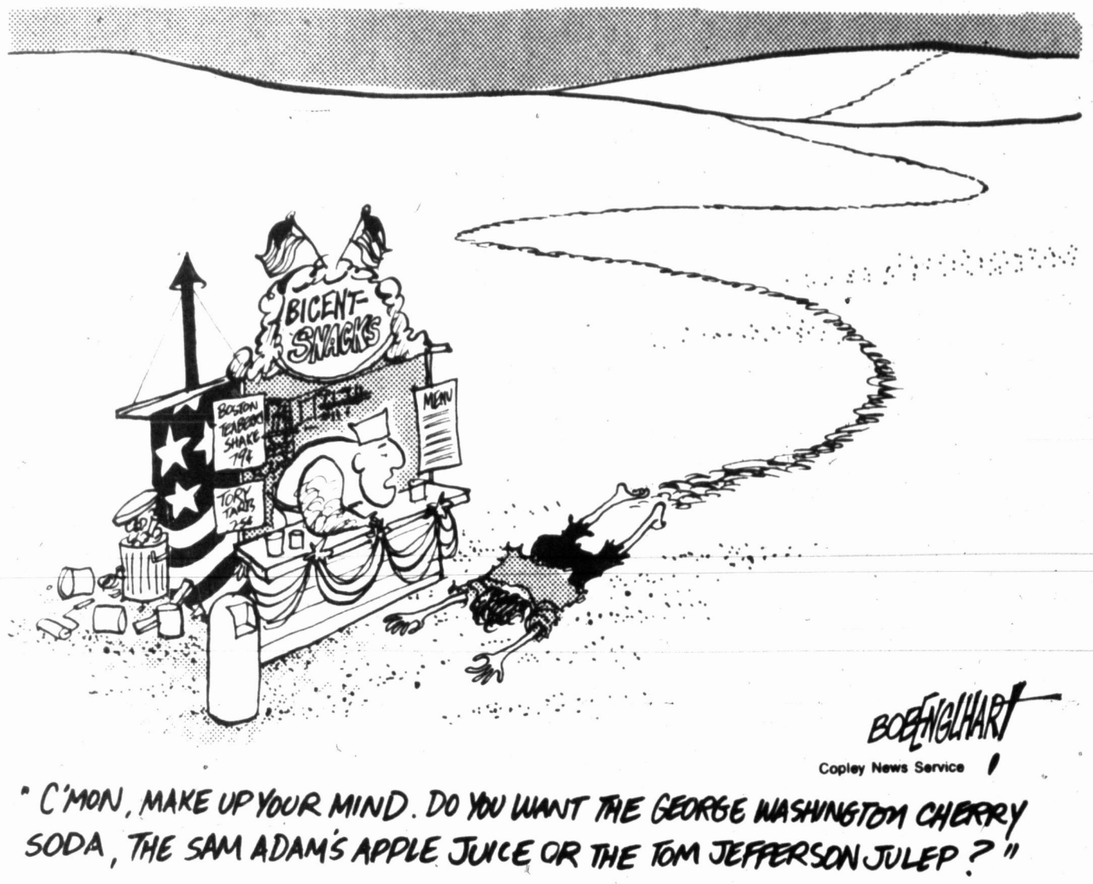

But it has always been possible to have a letter postmarked with the name of a small town by dropping it into a special box in that town's post office, and this practice will continue.

And folks keep saying, "It can't happen here."

Courage comprises all things.

"C'MON, MAKE UP YOUR MIND. DO YOU WANT THE GEORGE WASHINGTON CHERRY SODA, THE SAM ADAM'S APPLE JUICE OR THE TOM JEFFERSON JULEP?"

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: If we must pay city and county taxes based on the assessed valuation of property, why can we not pay federal income taxes based on the annual assessed valuation of money?

ANSWER: We presume the questioner is referring to the effect of inflation which causes the paper dollars which are called money to be less valuable as they buy less. It seems at first glance to be an ingenious idea. But we do not see how it would work, since we contend there is no such thing as a fair tax.

Actually, the payment of income taxes with the same fiat currency that the national government is issuing seems to be less unfair than some other tax levies. After all, the dollars received and the dollars paid for taxes are both less valuable in terms of real buying power. Trouble is, all persons do not receive increases in income to make up for inflation. Those in political government positions and those with escalator clauses in union contracts usually are harmed less by inflation than many others, particularly those on fixed incomes.

There have been proposals to have some sort of protection from inflation for tax payers, but this is the first we've seen relative to income taxes. Most of the proposals have aimed at the property taxes, which go up as assessed valuations jump because inflation has increased the dollar value of taxable property. There's no question that inflation has made it almost impossible for many persons to pay taxes on property which has not increased in real value but is assessed at increasing amounts each time the assessor visits.

We continue to believe that all taxation is unfair, and that the only fair way to pay for government services is on a user - pay basis or for the services to be supported otherwise on a voluntary basis.

We regard taxation as theft, and we have not yet discovered a fair theft.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Why Socialism in Portugal?

By WILLIAM RUSHER

Events in Portugal are moving with such speed that only a very bold man, or a fool, would attempt to predict the final outcome. But, as we watch developments unfold, it will be useful to bear in mind one fact that has tended to get overlooked in many recent discussions of the problem: namely, that there can be no true democracy in Portugal (or anywhere else, for that matter) unless and until the right as well as the left is free to participate in politics.

To hear some commentators talk, you would think that the basic requirements of the democratic process will be met if only Mario Soares and his Socialist party are allowed to run the government — something the country's small Communist minority (well under 20 per cent) has been resisting strenuously with the help of its secret agents in the armed forces. But the Socialists' claim on a major role in the Portuguese government is based solely on their showing in last April's elections, from which all parties right of center were, quite simply, barred. The only party to the right of the Socialists that was allowed to participate was the Popular Democratic party, a "centrist" faction that is not so much centrist (let alone rightist) as merely not doctrinaire Marxist.

Under these highly agreeable circumstances, the Socialist party managed to net 37.8 per cent of the total vote, and the Popular Democratic party 26.4 per cent — unquestionably a resounding combined majority against the Communists and their allies, but hardly proof that the voters of Portugal are wild about socialism.

There are powerful conservative forces in Portuguese society — the Roman Catholic church, to name only the most obvious example — that are willing, able and morally entitled to participate in the democratic political process. On what ground and by what right are they being excluded?

It is perfectly true that the 36-year rule of Antonio Salazar and its six - hear epilogue under Marcello Caetano were, in fact if not in form, a highly authoritarian regime on the fascist model. But the conservative forces and individuals now claiming their rightful place in Portuguese affairs are not compromised by association with that regime. General Antonio de Spinola, in fact, was the leader of the April 1974 coup that overthrew Caetano; and if he is tainted by his army career under Salazar, then so is the Communists' own darling, General Goncalves, as well as the entire top management of the Glorious Revolution.

Really, one wonders where people get the idea that socialism is so popular? The British Labor party (now ruling with less than majority popular support, incidentally) calls itself "socialist" on alternate Tuesdays, but in fact it is not theoretically a Marxist party at all, in the full technical sense of that term. The German Social Democrat party used to be, but prudently dropped its official allegiance to the gospel of Karl Marx a few years back, to improve its chances with the voters. In Italy the Socialist party is the real article — but participates in the government only as the junior partner of the non - socialist Christian Democrats. In both France and Japan the Socialist parties are simply the opposition — on the outside, looking in, while those two nations are run by frankly capitalist parties. In the United States, of course, both major parties oppose socialism and are currently moving to the right with as much dignity as they can muster; if the Socialists run candidates here at all, nobody either knows about it or cares.

Democratic socialism, then, of the true Marxist variety, is simply a failure at the ballot - box in all save a handful of small nations (e.g. Sweden) on the fringes of the Western world both geographically and economically: a few fat little baronies lucky enough to consist almost entirely of a hard - working middle - class that can afford astronomic taxes and enjoys calling the resulting public hospitals, etc., "free." But impoverished little Portugal cannot play such games, and it desperately needs a conservative political movement ready to say so.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

Miracles May Cease

Each month the city officials of New York arrange a "miracle" according to the news media of that economically beleaguered city. They manage to scrape up enough money to hold the city's creditors at bay even as they prepare for another "miracle" on the following month.

The town fathers are on a dead end street. Sooner or later the miracle will not be possible because New York City is not a good credit risk. The city will face a default on its obligations unless it changes its attitude.

As one responsible lender observed, "the price of municipal bonds includes a built - in moral credit of integrity." Should New York default, cities everywhere will feel the vibrations among bond firms, and the pressure would be even greater for all taxpyaers throughout the country to help bail out New York City through the funnel of the federal treasury.

Congress cannot help New York City because this also would be morally wrong. Also, while New York was frantically trying to borrow $960 million for the "miracle of August," the federal government was out borrowing $6 billion for roughly the same reason.

The solution to New York City's problems lies within municipal limits. A recognition of that fact could be the city's first real miracle.

Ranking high among the nuttier aspects of an increasingly screwball society is the current effort to turn little boys into little girls and vice - versa. I held still for unisex, in the course of which adult females strove successfully to look just as scruffy and sloppy as males. I haven't even had much to say about ERA, which would confer upon American women the overwpowering benefits of being drafted into the infantry during World War III and paying alimony to slobbish ex - husbands. But when it comes to shoveling this sort of rancid rot onto little children who are too young to defend themselves, I'm drawing the line and blowing the whistle.

The sick move to castrate Little League is an excellent example of what I'm talking about. A few idiotic parents with unfulfilled ego - projections and abnormally muscular daughters get headlines for themselves by harassing small boys who want to play baseball without having a gaggle of giggling girls hanging around. Somehow a judicial jackass can always be flushed to hold solemnly that the Founding Fathers did indeed have Little League uppermost in their minds when they penned the Constitution, and we are all one step farther along the road to the jimjams.

Then there's the advice being given to today's moms about "toy stereotyping." Give Susie the miniature bulldozers and tommyguns when she's 3, presumably so that she can prepare herself psychologically for a winsomely womanly career working on the Alcan Highway or leading commando raids for the U.S. Marines. Junior, of course, is encouraged to fondle Barbie dolls and to make himself up mincingly with Mom's mascara, and if you think I'm going to tell you what adult pursuits he's going to be following 20 years from now, forget it. This is, after all, a family paper.

Now there's a pontification from somebody named Mary Lynch, a graduate student at Cornell University. Parade Magazine reports that after interviewing 806 school - age children, she has discovered — presumably with horror — "that children's chores are still tied to traditional sexist roles." The girls almost always are asked to make beds, prepare meals and clean the house, while their brothers get to work in the yard or "on cars and other machinery."

Tsk, tsk. What obvious chauvinist piggery. It's crystal clear that Butch and Slug should be working inside with their hair in curlers and with their frilly little aprons on, whipping up frothy souffles and burping the baby, while Debbie and Sandra should be outside chewing tabacco, wearing hard hats and plowing the south 40.

At least, it's obvious to Ms. Lynch. I'll be eternally ding - donged if it's obvious to me. Think what Lewis Carroll would have done with this sort of claptrap if it had surfaced in his day. He'd have had to invent still another looking - glass world of farce and fatuity for characters like Ms. Lynch to cavort in, and even his genius at dealing straightfacedly with silliness would have been rigorously challenged.

Let's repeat a few ancient truths while we try to get the loose nuts back into the booby hatch:

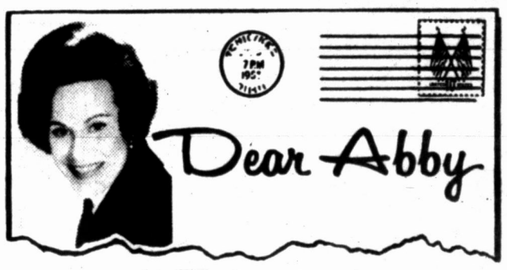

Boys (and men) are bigger than girls (and women). They are also stronger and faster and more violent and dirtier and more speedily sexy and, oh, just lots and lots of other things. They always have been, because that's the way the male animal is, Mary old girl.

Girls (and women) are smaller and weaker and gentler and more emotional and generally nicer than males. And they have been, ever since they crawled out of caves or got kicked out of Eden, whichever you prefer.

Anyone who thinks immemorial sex roles can — or should — be changed by asking kids to do different chores at home or playing different games or by wearing each other's clothes is flirting with chaos and encouraging disaster.

Footnote: Be careful, girls. The male impotence rate is sky - high and going higher. Could there be a connection? And, if so, who will be the ultimate losers?

Don't Play Shrink to Spouse's Sleep-talking

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know anything about dreams? My husband calls out his ex-wife's name in his sleep, so he must be dreaming about her, right?

When I tell him that he was calling her name in his sleep, he says he must have been dreaming—but he never can remember what he has dreamed. (Is this possible?)

Abby, if a person dreams about someone, doesn't it mean that that someone must be on that person's subconscious mind?

My husband swears that he loves me and that he never even thinks about his ex-wife, but if that's true, why is he dreaming about her? And if he's not dreaming about her, why is he calling her name?

He says he can't help what he dreams or what he says in his sleep. I can't believe that, can you?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Yes. And if you're wise, you'll lay off and quit reminding him of his ex-wife while he's awake.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to tell "Philadelphia," whose Jewish cousin passed away, not to worry about whether she goes to heaven or not. As a good person, her goodness will precede her no matter where she goes.

I came across an article by a reverend in which he said: "Adolph Eichmann had a better chance of going to heaven then his millions of victims because he believed in Jesus."

I cannot imagine myself being in heaven with Eichmann and his co-murderers.

If believing in Jesus is the only condition to getting into heaven, I refuse to go there!

CONNECTICUT CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: I wonder where that reverend thinks the millions of Buddhists and Islams go?

DEAR ABBY: I work in a bank where there are 21 employees.

One of the girls was getting married. The hat was passed and I was asked to give a certain amount. I felt I couldn't afford that much, so I gave what I could.

The next day I left on my break, and when I returned, the amount I had contributed was in an envelope on my desk. I had no idea who placed it there. Everyone I asked denied it.

Finally, one of the girls told me who had put it there. It was the office troublemaker.

I asked her what her idea was in returning my money, and she said she did it for "a purpose." What the purpose was she never did tell me.

Was she right in returning my money? Or did she just show her ignorance? And how should I treat her in the future?

HURT

DEAR HURT: She showed not only her ignorance but also her rudeness and meanness. Avoid her.

Jury Hands Caviness 10-years on Probation

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Suspense and drama prevailed in 31st District Court Tuesday as attorneys clashed over whether a 21 - year - old man should be sent to the penitentiary or given a probated sentence.

In the meantime the mother objected loudly the state's arguments aimed at a prison term.

The same jury that convicted Anthony Allan Caviness, formerly of Pampa, for aggravated assault granted a 10 - year probated sentence Tuesday afternoon.

Following the jury's verdict Judge Grainger McIlhany ordered Caviness to reimburse the man he was convicted of assaulting for property damage, medical expenses and physical suffering. The exact amount had not been determined early today. However Stafford was hospitalized for a month as a result of the injury.

The trial stemmed from an incident at the Plainsman Motel here on Jan. 31 in which E.M. Stafford, 77, owner was shot twice.

Caviness allegedly entered the motel saying he was out of gas and allegedly pulled a gun.

Guy Hardin, district attorney, opposed probation and asked the jury members to think back to their children and how they might turn out as adults if they were never punished.

The district attorney described the Caviness episode as "a premediated crime."

As Hardin was making his final arguments amid the quietness of the courtroom where testimony had unfolded for two days, a woman rose quickly and announced almost hysterically:

"I object! My son has been punished a plenty! He's been shot..."

Judge McIlhany instructed the bailiff to remove the woman from the courtroom. Hardin turned to the jury and before continuing his arguments said:

"I feel sorry for the mother."

"I ask you not to consider him (Caviness) for probation," he said.

Gene Storrs, Amarillo attorney who represented Caviness, said the penitentiaries are filling up every day and crime rate keeps climbing.

"There is no deterrent factor in placing someone in the pen," Storrs said.

He added that if a crime is committed by a professional he knows it is part of his cost in doing business. However, Storrs argued that his client did not commit a premeditated crime.

"It was an emotional reaction and no amount of deterrent can keep one from doing this." he added.

"Is Tony such a bad boy that you need to get him off the streets so he won't hurt you and others in the future?" Storrs inquired.

He said that there is a movement to withdraw the right of a jury to set punishment in a criminal case.

"That's saying you are not smart enough to judge your peers," Storrs said. He told the jury that Caviness wants to go home and pick up what he left.

In response to Storrs' statements Hardin said he considered probation one of the best laws the legislature ever passed.

"I also favor juries setting punishment. I don't intend to run again and I've been accused of being a linient prosecutor. I have learned that law officers can be wrong the same as anyone else..."

However, he said he opposed probation for Caviness.

Hardin's term as district attorney will expire Jan. 1, 1977.

He said (outside the courtroom) that during his 21 years of law practice it is the first time he has had an outburst on a case he was trying.

Hardin told jurors that he had never prosecuted anyone that he didn't have feeling for.

"If we get a reputation of turning criminals out or being easy we will have more crimes," he said.

Democrat Wins Rerun Race

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Democrat John A. Durkin won a rerun of history's closest U.S. Senate race by 27,000 votes Tuesday, trouncing Louis C. Wyman, a Republican backed by President Ford.

The victory changed the composition of the Senate to 62 Democrats and 38 Republicans.

It marked the first time since the Republican party was formed that New Hampshire had two Democratic senators.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said Durkin could be sworn in as early as Thursday. "As soon as the name of the winner is sent to us by the secretary of state (of New Hampshire), he'll be sworn in," Mansfield said.

Complete, unofficial returns from all 299 voting districts gave Durkin 140,273 votes, Wyman 113,004, and American Party candidate C. Carmen Chimento, 8,853.

The rerun election was called when seven months of Senate deliberation failed to decide who voters intended to send to Washington. Wyman won by 355 votes on election night last November, Durkin by 10 votes in a recount and Wyman by two votes in a protest to the state Ballot Law Commission.

Durkin replaces 75-year-old Norris Cotton, R-N.H., who served three decades in Congress, retired last year, and returned as interim senator when the new election was called.

Durkin saddled Ford with the loss. "The people of New Hampshire have rejected Gerry Ford's program for the economy," he told a victory party.

Ford staged an unprecedented 136-mile motorcade across southern New Hampshire five days before the election, trying to persuade voters to back Wyman. Ford served five terms in the U.S. House with the 58-year-old, silver-haired lawyer.

US To Supply Israel Arms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says the United States has agreed to supply Israel substantial military arms, possibly including ground-to-ground missiles and F16 fighters.

But the President said the nation is not moving toward a U.S.-Israeli security treaty.

In a White House news conference Tuesday, Ford said that while there are no firm commitments on Pershing missiles or F16s for Israel, "they are on the shopping list, and they will be discussed with representaties of the Israeli government."

Ford made his comments as Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres flew here for arms procurement talks. He is seeking more than $2 billion in military aid this year. The aid package grows out of the Israeli-Egyptian Sinai accord negotiated by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Peres addresses the National Press Club today and confers with Kissinger. He meets Pentagon officials Thursday.

Any Pershing missiles supplied Israel undoubtedly would be tipped with conventional explosives. But such missiles can carry nuclear warheads. Their 460-mile range could put a number of Arab capitals within reach of Israeli launchers.

Asked if the aid agreements meant the United States was moving toward a security treaty with Israel, Ford said, "I wouldn't say a security treaty. I would simply reiterate what I have said before, that historically the United States has supplied Israel with very substantial military weaponry and it is our plan to do so in the future."

He was asked if Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was aware before he initialed the Sinai agreement that the United States would provide substantial arms aid to Israel.

He replied, "I think they were familiar with the fact we anticipated a commitment to Israel for sizeable military hardware. I can't indicate to you whether they knew the precise weapons or not, but they knew, of course, we were going to make a substantial commitment in weapons to Israel."

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., who had considered leading a fight against it, announced Tuesday night he had reached agreement with the State Department on a formula. Under the formula, the missiles would be in fixed positions from which they could not be used as offensive weapons against Israel.

Wife Leads Police To Buried Body

CATHARGE, Tex. (UPI) — The wife of a South Texas police chief Tuesday helped Texas Rangers uncover the decomposed body of a South Texas laborer allegedly murdered by her husband and future son-in-law.

"She led them right to it," said Medina County Sheriff Charles Hitzfelder.

He said the body of Richard Morales was found in a shallow grave in the rolling, pine covered hills near the Louisiana border. He had been shot once under the left arm at close range.

Morales, 26, was allegedly shot Sunday by Castroville, Tex., Police Chief Frank Hayes and Dennis Dunford, 17, a high school student engaged to one of Hayes' daughters. No motive was given for the alleged crime.

Hayes, who is held under $50,000 bond, allegedly shot Morales with a shotgun from his patrol car, then told his wife to drive more than 300 miles from South Texas to East Texas to bury the body.

Hitzfelder said Mrs. Hayes told officers she would lead them to the grave after she was picked up by officers in Llano, Tex., north of Castroville.

Donald C. McCall, Hayes' deputy police chief, said he thought Morales had been murdered.

McCall said he picked up Morales Sunday for theft and was taking him to jail but Hayes ordered him to rlease the prisoner. McCall said Hayes, accompanied by Dunford, marched Morales off into the countryside and ordered him back to town.

Hospital Adds Nurse In Mclean

Miss Patricia Lambert, a recent graduate nurse of West Texas State University, recently joined the staff at McLean General Hospital.

Other recent additions to the staff include Mrs. Jean Ette Gikas, wife of Tim Gikas of Pampa, and Mrs. Estrilita Cabuco who received her training at St. Teresita School of Nursing at Launion, Phillipine.

Miss Lambert is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Lambert of Pampa. She was graduated from Canyon High School in May 1971.

Mrs. Gikas is a graduate of Methodist Hospital School of Nursing in Lubbock.

Mrs. Cabuco was graduated in 1971 and came to Parkview Hospital in Wheeler in December 1973. Her husband, Benjamin Cabuco, is a mechanical engineer.

Locals Attend Workshop On Texas Wildflowers

An Aug. 28, wildflower workshop in Austin, sponsored by the Beautify Texas Council as a Bicentennial event, promoted planting red, white and blue wildflowers across the state. Mrs. Cliff Drake of Phillips, who is wildflower specialist, and Mrs. Thelma Bray, Pampa, attended.

The workshop, in the L.B.J. Library on the University of Texas campus, featured Dr. Evan Roberts, East Texas State University, president of the Texas Wildflower Presrevation Society: Craig Steffens, landscape architect division of the Texas Highway Dept.; Herley Thompson, garden editor of Southern Living Magazine and president of Garden Writers Assocation of America. Dr. Charles Burnett, University of Texas, dean of School of Architecture and Planning; David Riskind, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department; and Carroll Abbott, owner and operator of Green Horizons, a wildflower seed company.

One highlight of the day was the brief appearance of Mrs. Lyndon Johnson to accept a basket of wildflower seeds in red, white and blue which will be planted on two acres near Town Lake in her honor.

Montoya Trial Delayed

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — District Judge Mace B. Thurman today ordered the theft trial of Rep. Greg Montoya, D-Elsa delayed until December 1 because one of the state's key witnesses failed to appear.

District Attorney Robert O. Smith said he could get by without the testimony of Joel Garcia but defense attorneys objected and said they thought a jury should hear the testimony of all five of the legislators' former employes.

Montoya is accused of stealing nearly $4,000 from the state by putting personal employes on his payroll as legislative aides.

Defense attorneys said they will seek a court order to take a deposition from Garcia if he declines to return voluntarily or U.S. Marine officials refuse him leave from basic training at Paris Island, S.C.

"We think he's a material witness. We expected him to be here. We don't want to go to trial without him being here," said Rep. Craig Washington, D - Houston, one of two legislator - lawyers defending Montoya.

Thurman dismissed the jury selected Tuesday telling its members it would be unfair to make them continue serving until the missing witness can be found.

"It's going to take us some time to obtain permission from the Marine Corps for him to come back to testify," said Thurman.

Thd district attorney said Garcia's commanding officer refused to release him without state officials going through a lengthy proceeding to serve a formal subpoena. Military officials also told the district attorney Garcia will be informed he does not have to come if he does not wish to testify.

"I've never run into this particular problem before," Smith said.

Montoya was charged with taking 15 paychecks issued to five individuals placed on his state payroll as aides during 1974.

The defense contends Garcia was paid separately for non-government work he did for Montoya, such as hauling merchandise from Austin for the legislator's auto parts store in Elsa.

Ford Says US Missiles To Be Jordan Defense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford assured Congress today that Jordan would use 14 batteries of U.S.produced Hawk missiles only for defensive purposes, and leading congressional opponents said they would drop efforts to block the arms sale.

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., told a news conference he was satisifed with the assurances and would withdraw his "resolution of opposition" to the sale.

In a letter today to the House speaker and the Senate president, Ford repeated the administration intention to sell Jordan the full complement of 14 batteries requested by King Hussein.

Ford added: "The government of Jordan has informed us that it intends to use the Hawk missiles solely for the defense of the Amman-Zerka complex and other fixed sites—that is, air bases and radar stations located generally to the east and south of Amman.

"The batteries will be permanently installed at these locations as fixed, defensive and nonmobile antiaircraft weapons."

Case, releasing Ford's letter, said he was satisfied the Hawks placed in fixed positions could not be turned against Israel in any new outbreak of Middle East fighting. He could not say what specific assurances the Ford administration had received from Hussein.

Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y., said further attempts to block the sale would be a "futile effort." But Bingham added, "I must confess that I am still very unhappy over this deal."

He said he was disappointed the administration would sell eight more batteries than the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff considered necessary, and he suggested the administration had caved in to King Hussein's threat to purchase equivalent SA6 antiaircraft missiles from the Soviet Union.

The sale could be blocked if both houses of Congress disapproved it.

District Court Panel Waived

A 31st District jury panel was waived this morning in a burglary trial here.

Jerrol H. Keller, 24, of Alanreed is charged with burglarizing a drug store in McLean.

The trial before Judge Grainger McIlhany will begin at 1 p.m.

Keller will be represented by David Holt, a Pampa attorney. Guy Hardin, district attorney, will represent the state.

Police Report Gun Missing

A Pampa woman reported to the Pampa Police Department that she took her car to a station to be serviced, and had put a 22 automatic pistol under the seat.

After she took possession of the car, she checked for the gun and found it gone.

In another report a service station operator reported that someone came in and went to the rest room, took a mirror from the wall, and attempted to leave with it.

Lefors Slates Classes

Registration for adult basic education classes in Lefors will be at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the high school library.

Jesse Baker, director of adult basic education for the Lefors schools, said that classes are open "to all persons over the age of 16 who want to work toward a G.E.D. certificate (equivalent to a high school diploma)."

Classes in the Lefors program will stress math and English, Baker said, "although all phases of the G.E.D. test will be included."

The classes will be offered at no cost to the students.

Persons interested in additional information may contact Baker at 835-2533 in Lefors.

Eloise Smashes Coast

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Hurricane Eloise smashed into the northern Coast of the Dominican Republic today, belting a sparcely populated area of the island with torrential rain and winds of up to 80 miles an hour.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami warned that the storm, which left six persons dead when it swept by Puerto Rico Tuesday, was expected to cause heavy rains and floods in Haiti, the Dominican Republic, and eastern Cuba.

The Bahamas were placed on a hurricane watch, the center said.

Dr. Neil Frank, director of the center, said it was too early to tell whether the storm would reach the U.S. mainland.

"Of course, anytime you get a storm in this location in September there is always a threat to the United States," he said.

Small craft warnings were issued for the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, the Bahamas, as well as the Dominican Republic and Haiti.

The storm was located just inland from the north coast of the Dominican Republic.

Woman President Asked to Resign

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The general faculty at the University of Texas has demanded the immediate regsignation of the school's first woman president appointed in a split vote by regents.

Dr. Lorene Rogers, facing growing unrest over her appointment, refused to resign.

Students called a protest rally for noon today, and members of one student group said they would lead a boycott of classes. About 700 of the 1700 faculty members met Tuesday afternoon, and turned down a request that teachers join in the boycott, but approved a resolution promising there will be no repraisals against striking students.

Mrs. Rogers, appointed in a 5-3 regents vote last week, was not on a list of six candidates recommended by a faculty-student advisory committee but accepted the post. Last year since UT Chancellor Charles Lemaistre fired campus president Stephen Spurr and appointed her interim president.

"I have no intention of resigning. I will be carrying on the university's business."

What makes the heels of my shoes run over?

If one could see the skeleton heel bone of his foot, he would realize it isn't in the center line of his leg bone, the tibia, but slightly to the outside of center. With every stop, as the heel strikes the ground, the force is exerted at the outside - rear corner of the shoe heel or top lift. That's why 9 out of 10 people wear down their heels in that place. In fact, if the primary point of wear is in the center of the heel, or on the inside, you can suspect something is at fault with the foot, or sometimes with the shoe or fit of the shoe.

Many customers see running over of the heels as some fault of the shoe, but wearing down of the heel at the outside - rear corner is norma.

Ruling Gives Boost To Bentsen Campaign

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News'
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's presidential campaign, beset with staffing problems and financial worries lately, received a slight boost when the Federal Election Commission (FEC) ruled this week that he could receive maximum $1,000 individual contributions for both his presidential and senatorial candidacies.

The FEC decision to allow Bentsen, an announced candidate in 1976 for both the Democratic presidential nomination and for reelection to the Senate, to collect up to the $1,000 individual maximum for both campaigns was seen as the key element of the federal commission's three - part ruling.

The FEC also said that, beginning immediately, Bentsen could not spend any more money in his dual candidacy in Texas than any of his prospective senatorial opponents. Further, it ruled that the Houston million - aire and his family could contribute $85,000 to his dual candidacy — the senatorial limit of $35,000 to be used in Texas only and an additional $50,000 to be used in his presidential campaign in the 49 other states.

The effect of the campaign expenditure limit in Texas will theoretically leave Bentsen at a financial disadvantage against other Democratic presidential aspirants. Under the ruling, Bentsen will only be able to spend the senatorial limit of slightly under $650,000 as a dual candidate. His presidential opponents in the Texas primary, thought to be chiefly Alabama Gov. George Wallace, would be entitled to spend twice that amount under the law.

Bentsen's former national campaign director, Benjamin Palumbo, who earlier this month left the Bentsen camp, observed that the decision to allow the senator to receive maximum contributions for both races should help the campaign's fundraising effort, reportedly lagging.

Although Bentsen has raised about $1.53 million for his presidential campaign from late 1973 through July 10, Bentsen's records show a balance of only $386,598. The bulk of the funds raised to date have come from Texas.

The FEC ruling, in effect, will allow Texans and others who have already given $1,000 to Bentsen's presidential campaign to also contribute that amount to his senatorial candidacy. It will also permit those who had been withholding money pending a ruling, to now contribute to Bentsen's presidential campaign without jeopardizing a similar contribution later to his senatorial race.

Palumbo, an aide to Bentsen since late 1973, said he left the senator's camp for "personal reasons." He acknowledged that differences had developed, but declined to elaborate on specifics.

On the political side the Bentsen campaign has been picking up strength, Palumbo said. Financially, it is another story.

"The judgment as to whether he is capable of raising funds outside of Texas," Palumbo added, "is yet to be made."

"There were no differences over strategy," continued Palumbo, 38. "Any campaign constantly reassesses itself to determine if any change is going to be needed in the approach to win the nomination. But up to this point the differences the senator and I have had were not related to that."

Palumbo had been drawing a salary of approximately $43,000 at the time he left the campaign.

National political reporters have speculated that one reason for Palumbo's sudden exit from the Bentsen campaign may be attributed to differences between the senator and his campaign manager over the campaign's direction. One report said that Bentsen, because of fundraising problems in northern industrial states, had hoped to capture the bulk of delegates in the south and be a "second choice" candidate if a deadlock developed at the Democratic convention next July.

"That's not right," replied Bentsen in an interview with the News' Washingotn Bureau.

"I'm gearing my campaign to get as many delegates as I think are findable. I will be in several presidential primaries and part of it will be determined by funds."

Bentsen observed that it was only natural for him to raise money predominatly from Texans. He said that his recognition factor has jumped from three per cent to 39 per cent outside the state as a result of his campaigning.

Since announcing his candidacy, Bentsen has visited 42 states.

Texas Schools Charged With Sex Discrimination

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Civil Liberties Union and Women's Equity Action League filed a complaint today accusing the Texas Education Agency and all 1,100 school districts in Texas of discriminating against female students and teachers.

The complaint was mailed to the San Antonio office of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, said Paula Latimer, a representative of WEAL. She said if the federal government does not act within six months to remedy the sex discrimination, the two groups will file suit in federal court.

She said the Women's Equity Action League had done studies on school districts in Austin, Dallas, Houston and Waco and found discrimination against women and assumed similar situations exist in all other school districts.

"It appears to be a pervasive pattern not only in Texas, but throughout the United States," Ms. Latimer said.

A complaint against the Waco school district was filed with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare more than two years ago. "HEW has had these charges for over two years, has corroborated their validity, and yet has taken no action to enforce the law," she said.

"HEW has a deplorable record in withholding funds under any program where they have found discrimination. We don't have much confidence in HEW enforcing this law."

Ms. Latimer said the WEAL study of Waco schools showed men are given preference over women for promotion to administrative positions. About 80 per cent of the teachers are women, she said, but fewer than 30 per cent of the school administrators are women.

She said Waco schools have more than $1 million in athletic properties for exclusive use of men, while females are supplied only the use of tennis balls.

The complaint asks the federal government to require Texas school districts to establish affirmative action programs for promotion of female teachers, spend comparabvle amounts of money on girls' as well as boys' athletic programs, and end sex stereotyping in counseling girls to take typing and home economics.

'Waiting in Wings To Nationalize Oil'

HOUSTON (UPI) — Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., warned Monday Americans may call for the nationalization of the oil industry if prices continue to rise while shortages of oil and gas remain.

Hollings, speaking at a seminar on national energy policy, said the industry must rid itself of its "unrealistic and intransigent attitude" unless it wants to face forces in Congress and across the nation pushing for nationalization.

"Many are waiting in the wings to nationalize," said Hollings. "There are numerous bills to put it all under the government. I think this would be a terrible mistake. We have a good chance to work together now, but if we don't take it, nationalization will result because America is getting mad."

Hollings, a member of the Senate Commerce Committee, said "The heydey of the major oil companies promulgating the energy policy of the United States is fast drawing to a close."

"There is no doubt that this country has been built on and runs today on the competitive, free enterprise system, but the freedom of the enery market has be stultified by OPEC (Oil Producing and Exporting Countries). There is no way of doing away with American price controls without putting oil under OPEC controls."

Guests Attend HD Bicentennial Day

The Gray County Home Demonstration Clubs, sponsored by the Council, met recently for a Bicentennial History Day with Jane Benton, presiding.

Following the opening song, "God Bless America" and the pledge to the flag, Sue Farris, Amarillo District Home Demonstration Agent was introduced. Gray County Extension Agent, Marilyn Shirley, were also guest.

Old scrapbooks, pictures and year books were displayed and a brief history of each club was presented by: Alanreed, Mary Davis; Blue Bonnett, Lucille Smith; Goodwill, LaVerne Coombes; High Plains, Sis Massengale; Jane Long; Imogene Williams; Mertin, Helen Hopp; Progressive, Helen Hogan; and Top O' Texas, Annette Muncy.

Ruth Spearman told several facts about the Priscilla Home Demonstration Club, organized in the early 1930's by a group of rural women.

Special recognition was given to Donnie Lee Brown, Maggie Smith and May Cude for having been in home demonstration work for more than 35 years. They were presented with Bicentennial Medallions.

Tiny Cole entertained with a medley of piano selections and refreshments were served before the group began work on the bicentennial quilt to be given away Oct. 12 at the Quilt Fair.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Did you know that if you will take the bottom button (better yet, the last two buttons), off that coat dress or coffee coat while the garment is still new, and carefully hand-sew a patch on the garment, NOT THE FACING, where the button will be replaced, that the button will not pull out and tear the garment?

The patch should be as big a square as the diameter of the button, but not less than one-half inch square, and of similar material as the garment.

If this is carefully done with tiny stitches, it will never show on the right side of the garment, and will save many frustrating minutes of trying to patch a garment where the button has torn.

Then replace the button.

I have used this idea for some time, both on my own things as well as my husband's shirts.

Nora Spencer

* * *

You're right, Nora. The material under those bottom buttons, especially on coffee coats, eventually seems to tear if not reinforced.

But instead of sewing on a piece of material, I use a small square of fusible type iron-on interfacing — a real boon for this sort of thing.

Just follow directions carefully when applying this material because it must be put on right. But it's quick, easy and makes a very strong reinforcement.

Dear Heloise:

When I vacuum, (not my favorite chore), I invariably end up hurrying to finish.

Since I start out slowly, doing a more thorough job, I start my vacuuming in a different room each day to make sure each room, in turn, does get a good cleaning job.

You could do this with other chores as well, such as dusting, etc.

Dear Heloise:

Could you please tell me what to soak eaggplant in before frying to keep it from being bitter?

Sometimes, mine is so bitter we can't eat it.

J. R.

Some makes of microwave oven permit the cooking of frozen ~~ready-to-eat~~ foods in metal trays, but uneven cooking of top to bottom may occur.

* * *

I peel and cut the eggplant in slices and soak it in cold salt water, adding three or four teaspoons of salt to a quart of water, and let the eggplant soak for about half an hour.

Then I rinse it thoroughly in clean water to remove all traces of the salt and squeeze out the excess moisture.

After that, I'm ready to fix the eggplant in any way I choose, and it's never bitter. Good luck!

Dear Heloise:

When making that holiday favorite, cranberry-orange relish, or anytime you use your grinder for that matter, you can eliminate a lot of "drips" by placing a plastic sandwich bag around the base of your grinder.

It will collect all the juices which can be later added to the relish.

No sticky floor, or dry relish.

Dear Heloise:

To soften and heat leftover or hard rolls, put them in a brown paper bag moistened with water and wrap the whole thing in aluminum foil.

Put in a 400-degree oven for about 10 minutes.

They will be like fresh rolls. (Works great for breakfast rolls, too.)

Young Woman Shows Courage

By VERNON E. BROWN
Copley News Service

I'd like to introduce you to a very courageous and determined young woman, Miss Kathy Neal.

Miss Neal, 25, will be graduating from the University of Southern California this June. It marks the end of a very difficult and frightening period in her life.

The fact that she did not give up is proof of her determination and her story should be an inspiration not only to young people, but to the rest of us who have been kicked around by life.

Miss Neal grew up in Los Angeles, the daughter of an upper-middle-class black family. Her father was a successful dentist.

Divorce split the Neal family and literally marked the end of Miss Neal's relationship with her father, who later died leaving the family nothing.

Miss Neal's mother started a very successful nursery school and it looked like things were going to be fine. Then her mother became seriously ill and died, leaving a teen-aged Kathy Neal to run the school.

Having no business experience, Miss Neal took over the operation of the school, learning as she went. Not knowing how to collect moneys due and believing people's promises to pay, she was soon in financial trouble.

She dropped out of college before her junior year in order to devote full time to the school, but her problems mounted with every passing month. She was barely able to pay the staff or herself and the long hours meant she had little chance to live a normal young person's life.

The final blow came when a trusted employe quit to go to another nursery school and took with her half of Miss Neal's clients.

She was forced to close the school. Debts had eaten up all of her savings, and she was about to lose the house her mother had left her.

Yet she refused to quit. Through the help of several generous people who heard about her problems Miss Neal was able to re-enroll at USC and continue her studies in international relations. She was even able to meet the mortgage payments and keep her home.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Back in 1952, in the Life Masters Pairs Championship, Bill Hanna, of Los Angeles, made what is probably the most startling bid ever made in national championship play: the first suit bid made by his side was at the grand slam level — and Hanna, who made the bid, had a small singleton in that suit! He played the final grand slam contract in that suit — and he brought home 13 tricks.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

NORTH
♠ 10 4
♥ Q 6 3
♦ 4
♣ A K Q J 6 5 2

WEST
♠ 8 7 6 3 2
♥ 8 4
♦ Q 10 8 5 3
♣ 7

EAST
♠ J
♥ A K 10 9 5
♦ J 7 2
♣ 10 9 8 3

SOUTH
♠ A K Q 9 5
♥ J 7 2
♦ A K 9 6
♣ 4

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
3 NT	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Dbl.	7 ♣	Pass
Pass	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♠.

North's opening three notrump bid was a specialized bid used by many experts in tournament play: it is known as "the gambling three notrump" bid, and shows a solid seven-card minor suit, plus a king or a queen in one of the other suits. It is made in the hope that: (1) partner will provide a couple of winning tricks; (2) even if the contract is beatable, the opponent on lead will not come up with the winning lead, and (3) even if the contract is defeated, the loss will be less than what the opponents could have made if they had the room to bid without interference.

When South bid six notrump, it was with the hope that East would not lead a heart (the suit in which North might well have had absolutely no strength). But when East doubled the six notrump bid, South felt in his bones that East had at least the ace and king of hearts, and would promptly cash his winners. The only hope remaining to South was that North's seven clubs were solid enough, and that West would not find the heart opening lead. So Hanna made the "routine" bid of seven clubs on his singleton four of clubs!

West thought for a long time before actually making his opening lead. Certainly he had no clue in the North - South bidding to guide him. After a while he finally led a spade — and South came home with four spade tricks, two diamonds, and seven clubs.

If there were any moral to this deal, it would be this: when the opponents, on their own power, arrive at a small slam contract which you know you can defeat, don't double for penalties. Actually, had East passed the six notrump bid, he would have scored 50 points, and the best East - West result on the deal.

Sorority Committee Reports

At a recent meeting, in the home of Mrs. Price Smith, Xi Beta Chi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi began its new year. The meeting was called to order by President Barbara Benyshek. Following the opening ritual, officer and committee reports were given.

Carolyn Smith reported that Beta Sigma Phi will again sponsor a New Year's Eve Dance at M.K. Brown Auditorium and announced Xi Beta Chi's duties for this dance.

Plans for rush were announced and names of prospective members were recorded by Vice President Sherry Carlson.

Following the business meeting, Nancy Brogdin introduced the programs for the year and presented the first program.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Brogdin to the following members Mmes. Pat Lee, Ramona Houseman, Janice Schneider, Nita Hill, Monica Leonard, Joyce Barrett, Kay Nash, Carol Carpenter, Barbara Benyshek and Joyce Rascoe.

A Beauty Queen At 90

QUINCY, Ill. (UPI) — "Bring on those girls, girls, girls," the chorus sang, and on came the beauty queens for inspection.

A short time later, the judges made their decision and the new and nervous queen was crowned.

"I'm so happy, I'm so happy," a shaky but smiling Elizabeth Barrett of Silvas, Ill., said as she was named "Ms Nursing Home" of Illinois.

Mrs. Barrett is 90 years old.

She received a diamond wristwatch for her victory over seven other contestants, all of whom won district contests before proceeding to the state finals. She will represent the state in a national "Ms Nursing Home" pageant in November.

Runners-up were Ethel Gatres, 87, Franklin Grove, and Mary Love, 82, Quincy.

The state pageant was sponsored by the Illinois Health Care Association, which represents some 300 nursing homes. Judging was based on chats the contestants had with five judges Friday night and Saturday.

"It's hard to picture, but it was really a cool pageant," said David Gerig, director of education for the association.

"One of the purposes of the pageant is to project an elderly person in a very positive light," he said. "Here is something where an older person — and I mean really old — has a chance to participate in something that is generally considered for younger people."

Gerig said a number of other states are holding similar contests and a national "Ms Nursing Home" will be picked by the National Health Care Association during its convention in Houston.

The contestants will not travel to the convention but will be judged on the basis of promotional materials each state sends in on its winner, he said.

"I think the Illinois candidates did a better job than Miss America candidates," he said. "There was nothing phony about them. Sometimes when you watch these contests that deal with the younger set you get the idea it's a put-on smile, a put-on comment.

"These people are just themselves."

Maxene Andrews Starts New Swing

HOLLYWOOD — Maxene Andrews, one of the famous Andrews Sisters whose songs were a not-so-secret weapon during World War II, is going it alone.

During the late 1930s, the Andrews Sisters brought happiness to the country; during the war, hope which contributed strongly to victory.

As a trio, the girls recorded 1,800 numbers, sold 75 million records and collected 19 gold ones, and starred in 21 movies.

Now, after starring with sister Patty last year in the Broadway musical "Over Here," Maxene is cutting an album alone.

She's also writing two books, one recounting her life to 1937 and the other continuing the story to the present, and she's compiling an Andrews Sisters Scrapbook.

"I'm starting a whole new swing for myself," Maxene declared recently across afternoon coffee. "I've always been part of a group, and now I'm struggling for my own identity.

"I've already cut four sides for an album, and I'm going back to New York to cut eight more sides. It will be middle of the road music including some brand-new material.

"Until recently I've never had much thought of going out on my own, and now that I'm trying it, I find the situation frustrating, because people think of me as one-third-of."

Maxene isn't yet ready to anounce the label for which she's recording, describing negotiations as "very sensitive right now."

However, she doesn't mind identifying the four sides she's cut so far.

"One side is from the show ('Over Here')," she said, "a beautiful ballad called 'Where Did the Good Times Go.'

"One is an old standard, my theme song, 'Show Me the Way To Go Home,' done in modern dress, and the other two are originals."

The Andrews Sisters' first hit record was "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen," a Jewish lullaby brought to their attention by a friend.

"That hit came about by accident," Maxene said. "We'd been given a song to record called 'Nice Work if You Can Get It,' and that was supposed to be the A side of the record.

"In those days you cut an A side and a B side.

"Well, we couldn't find anything for the B side until a young man who later became our manager remembered a song his mother used to sing to him. He said it was a very nice Jewish lullaby which unfortunately had no English lyrics.

"He sang it to us, and we liked the melody, so he taught it to us phonetically in Yiddish.

"We went into Decca and recorded it, and in the middle of the recording session, Jack Kapp, president of Decca Records, came in.

"He asked whether there were any English lyrics, and when we said, 'No,' he asked Sammy Cahn and Saul Chaplin if they could write some.

"They wrote the words overnight, and we came back two days later and recorded the song in English."

Add a tespoon of your favorite herb or spice to either biscuit dough or muffin batter. This can add just the accent you need to set off the dinner entree.

To make a simple, low-fat biscuit, blend 1 carton of your favorite fruit flavored yogurt with 2 cups enriched self-rising flour. If necessary, add 1 to 2 tablespoons of milk. Bake on greased baking sheet in preheated 450 degrees oven 10 to 12 minutes.

Travis Programs Slated

Mrs. James Cross presented the following PTA programs scheduled for the year at the recent meeting of William B. Travis PTA:

Austin PTA Family Nite

Plans for the years activities were presented by Mrs. Ed Brainard, vice president of Stephen F. Austin PTA, when the group met in regular session recently. Mrs. Woody Mitchell, president, presided at the meeting of members of the executive board, committee chairmen and room mothers.

She reminded the group that volunteers are needed for specialized math, health, reading and arts and crafts classes.

Mrs. Dwaine Blakemore presented the membership report which included the announcement that 138 memberships had been secured the first day of school. Mrs. Thomas Ethridege read the proposed budget for the school term.

Thursday, at 7 p.m. Austin PTA will host a family back-to-school night. The meeting will provide an opportunity for parents and teachers to get acquainted and refreshments will be served in the school cafeteria.

Monday, Oct. 27, Austin PTA will sponsor a family night spaghetti supper beginning at 5 p.m. Proceeds from the event will be used for PTA projects during the year.

On Nov. 13, an open meeting from 1:30 to 2:45 p.m. will be held at the school at which time parents will be given an opportunity to express how views on the money should be disbursed for school needs.

Spring events include a March 4 program by the school choir under the direction of Mrs. William Surface.

The programs will conclude April 29 featuring the band in concert under the direction of Sam Waton, prior to the PTA officer installation.

Standardized Testing — Big Business in School

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

During the new school year your child probably will take some standardized tests — an I.Q. test, a reading or math achievement test.

The achievement tests are used as a measuring stick to see how the child or the school rates when compared with standard achievement nationwide.

Much of the testing is drawing criticism. The I.Q. tests, for example, are designed to measure a kid who comes from a somewhat regular family setting — and, say the critics, are unfair to the ghetto boys and girls. The latter can't respond to much of such tests.

By the same token, an I.Q. test couched in language of street kids would be Greek to suburban children.

Last year more than 40 million school children were given the standardized tests. For the taxpayer, the bill was more than $250 million.

In addition to that, there are the bills for the various college admission tests. This runs to millions more.

Are taxpayers, students, schools and parents getting their moneys worth?

A National Education Association Task Force set out to answer this question, and to find what, if anything, is wrong with standardized testing.

Some of the findings:

— There is an overkill in the use of I.Q. and achievement tests. When test scores are given out, often odious and damaging comparisons are made between students, classes and districts, without properly considering what the test scores can mean and whether or not they are accurate. Very few decisions regarding improved programs are made on the basis of these scores.

— Standardized testing operates as a virtual monopoly. Approximately six companies create and control all standardized testing. They receive huge sums of their efforts. "Some companies labeled as nonprofit maintain extremely elegant headquarters which are supported by tax dollars received from innumerable school districts and individuals as payment for services," the Task Force said.

— The companies decided the norm, standard or proper grade level achieved for many school subjects even though such tests do not necessarily measure what teachers teach or what children learn.

— "Many tests are outdated or may be only partially related to present date programs. Test developers are not overly concerned with updating tests since they are able to market their products without revision. However, if too many students get the right answers questions are changed by putting in harder ones that guarantee many students will miss them."

— A single test has not yet been constructed that can measure the potential abilities and capacities of children with different backgrounds, languages and life experiences. "Therefore we should not expect children in the bush area of Alaska and the nation's affluent suburbs to score equally on the same standardized tests. Yet, test companies sell the same tests to all groups and the scores are put forth as reliable information about capability and achievement."

P.S. Some tests are being developed that the Task Force said may hold promise. "If properly made and used, "said the Task Force, "tests will not label or stigmatize children who do not measure up to artificial standards.

"These, called criterion-reference tests, are not meant to compare children to each other, and are not intended to be used in relation to a national norm.

"But they can tell where the individual child is, or whether he or she needs help, in relation to the school program."

Peter Falk will star in "Griffin and Phoenix," a two-hour ABC-TV movie.

Clinic Customer

It's Vaccine Time. . . And Children Know It

By Pampa News Staff

It seems as if young children know what's coming when they are taken to Carver Center on Thursdays.

They seem to know it's time for immunizations for school and most children don't react too favorably to the idea of getting the shots or oral vaccines.

Sponsored by the Texas Department of Health Resources, the immunization clinic is every second Thursday of every month at Carver Center. Two local nurses, Mrs. Elaine Whitsell and Mrs. John Skelly, help two Health Department officials with the clinic.

The two department officials are Jerry DeSha of Amarillo and Bette McInnes of Lubbock. DeSha is the health program specialist, immunization division, Communicable Disease Services, and McInnes is the Regional Nurse for Public Health Region 2.

Dr. Joe Gates is the local doctor who is in charge and on call when the clinics are in process.

"We furnish all material for the clinics," DeSha said. "We go to other counties too — we cover a total of 25 counties."

The immunizations are free of charge.

"Ever so often, we get help from local clubs with the clinic, "DeSha said. "And we average about 125 persons a day."

School law requires that before children can attend public school, they must have the following shots: a series of three diptheria, polio and tetanus shots' with one after the fourth birthday.

"The fourth shot is a booster," he said. "The series is given one month apart."

The basic shots they give at the clinic include diptheria, whooping cough, tetanus (lockjaw), polio, measles and rubella.

"The earliest we can give the shots is two months, after that, there's no limit," DeSha said. "All we ask before giving a shot is that they bring any existing records if they have them and nothing if they don't have any."

The clinic has been here for three years and the next clinic is scheduled for September.

Says US Supplies Missiles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States may supply Israel with sophisticated Pershing Missiles and F16 fighter planes as part of an agreement on the interim Middle East accord, columnist Jack Anderson reported Monday.

The ground-to-ground missiles, which have a range of 460 miles and can be armed with nuclear warheads, would put a number of Arab capitals within range of Israeli launchers, Anderson reported.

But Anderson said in releasing the text of the 16-point, U.S.-Israeli memorandum to the Washington Post that the United States carefully stipulated the missiles would be conventionally armed — if they are supplied.

"The implication, according to our sources, is that the Israelis will be able to attach their own nuclear warheads," Anderson wrote in his column.

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres is expected here Wednesday to discuss his country's military needs with American officials.

Pro Season In Trouble

UPI Sports Writer

Never mind your playoffs and Super Bowl. The National Football League season could be decided today.

With just five days before the regular season begins, three teams were out on strike and several others were to decide today whether to join them. Only three clubs—Miami, Minnesota and Houston — have voted officially not to strike while several others, including the World Champion Pittsburgh Steelers, indicated they probably won't strike.

The strikers' total went to three Tuesday when the New York Jets and the Washington Redskins voted to go out in support of the New England Patriots, who initiated the action last Saturday by refusing to play their final pre-season game against the Jets.

Jet players, hoping to stimulate contract talks by their walkout, voted to strike at a morning meeting and the Redskins followed soon after, hoping to trigger a chain reaction that would either produce a general strike or stir contract talks.

Many of the players involved admitted to confusion and even Ed Garvey, the union's executive director, indicated there was a leadership problem.

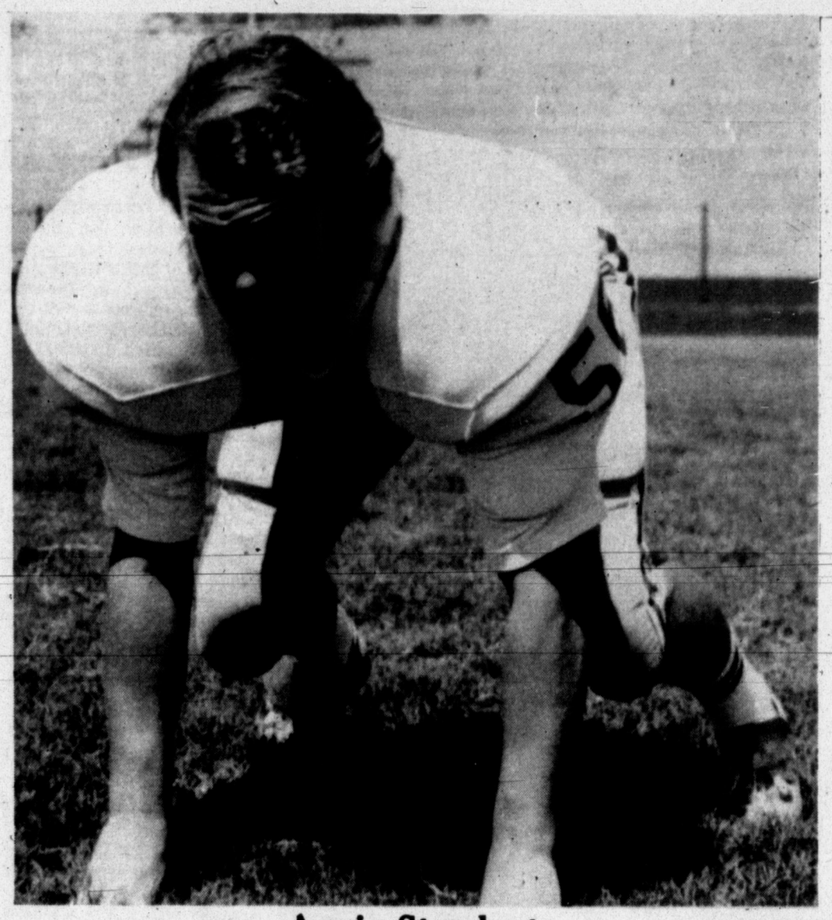

"We want desperately to get this settled because the thing is getting out of hand and we're losing control," Garvey said in Washington. "Essentially, we have 26 locals, all taking action."

The NFL Management Council, which represents the league, presented a six-point proposal which was turned down. The package included among other things reinstating the 1970 contract until Oct. 1 and retaining the 46-player limit until the same date with three of the players to be on a taxi squad.

The Patriots voted to accept the package but when they attempted to return to practice at Foxboro, Mass., they were told that the stadium was locked and they were not allowed in.

Club President Robert L. Marr said the players would have to accept the plan before being allowed to return and so far they have rejected it.

In explaining why the Jets walked out of camp, player representative Richard Neal said: "We didn't want to be wishy-washy. We wanted to show our support. We want the owners to show they're in earnest before we go back. They said they'd give us something by next Thursday. That's too late. We'll have played a game by then and a lot of guys would have cooled off."

Aggie Standout

Pampan Larry Johnson, 215 - pound center, was named Panhandle State's Offensive Lineman of the Week for his blocking efforts against Northeastern Oklahoma Saturday. Johnson, an alternate captain for the Aggies, was graduated from Pampa High in 1973. He was moved from offensive guard to center at the start of the PSU season.

Gold Star for Larry Though Ags Fall 35-0

Panhandle State was bombed 35 - 0 Northeastern Oklahoma State Saturday at Goodwell, Okla., and it's games like that which make it difficult to find bright spots in the loser's play.

However, Coach Harry Walker found at least one bright spot, junior center Larry Johnson of Pampa. Johnson, 5 - 10, 215 blocked well enough in the game to be named Offensive Lineman of the Week.

Johnson, who was switched from left guard to center at the start of the season, is an alternate captian for the Aggies. He is the veteran on a young offensive line.

Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer termed his team's play as "sloppy" after the 62 - 7 win over Oregon Saturday. In spite of Switzer's estimation of the season opener, the Sooners maintained their hold on the No. 1 spot in the United Press International weekly football ratings.

Oklahoma heads the top 10, which includes (in order) Ohio State, Michigan, Southern California, Missouri, Nebraska, Texas, Penn State, Notre Dame and Tennessee.

The second 10 consists of Texas A&M, Florida, UCLA, Arkansas, Pittsburgh, Arizona State, Miami of Ohio, Alabama, West Virginia and San Diego State.

It would be interesting to poll members of the press who cover the Southwest Conference to see how many forecasters still rank Texas A&M ahead of Texas.

Saturday, Texas A&M speaked by Mississippi 7 - 0, while Texas bombed Colorado State 46 - 0. To make things more embarrassing for the Aggies, Rice looked more impressive, whipping tough Houston 24 - 7.

Emory Bellard, Aggie coach, praised his defense but was disappointed in his offense. "I thought we played a helluva game defensively but I was disappointed with our offense. We had no spark. We're going to have to come off the ball quicker on offense. We've got to get our motors humming."

Mississippi had a chance to win. A&M stopped the visiting Rebels on the Aggie 11 with 1:39 left in the game when Jackie Williams batted away a fourth down pass in the end zone.

Ole Miss coach Ken Cooper was proud of his defense, too. "I was certainly proud of our defensive effort as we played against a very physical football team in A&M. It was evident that progress had been made on defense from the game against Baylor.

"And, yes, if we had scored late, we were going for two points."

West Texas State can hardly afford to lose to Tulsa Saturday night in Canyon. The Buffaloes of Gene Mayfield lost to Missouri Valley Conference foe Wichita State 13 - 7 in the season opener, and another conference loss would be disastrous.

The Buffs showed improvement in last week's 10 - 6 win over Lamar.

Tulsa is 0 - 1 after a 16 - 7 loss to Kansas State of the Big Eight. The Golden Hurricane is favored in the Valley.

West Texas never has had much luck against Tulsa — the Buffs have lost all five meetings in the series, which began in 1945. The two teams shared the Valley tri - championship with Drake in 1972.

Pittsburgh Sets Record, Dumps Cubs

Richie Ashburn and Goldie Rapp can rest easy today ... their place in baseball history is still secure.

Not so, however, Bill Madlock, Willie Davis, Dick Groat, Cookie Lavagetto, Frankie Frisch and 19 other guys who made the record book by getting six hits in one game.

On a day when Mike Vail of the New York Mets failed to break the National League's 23-game consecutive hitting streak for rookies, Rennie Stennett of the Pittsburgh Pirates tied a major league record with seven hits in a nine-inning game.

Stennett's eye-popping 7-for-7 performance came during the Pirates' 22-0 romp over the Chicago Cubs which was also a major league record for routs. The seven hits in a nine inning game tied the mark set by legendary Hall of Famer Wilbert Robinson of the old Baltimore Orioles in 1892 and equaled by John Burnett of the Cleveland Indians, who wound up with nine hits in an 18-inning 1932 game.

The previous record for one-sided shutouts was a pair of 21-0 routs by the Detroit Tigers over the Cleveland Indians in 1901 and the New York Yankees over the Philadelphia Athletics in 1939.

"Anyone who gets seven hits in a game not only has to be good, but there's a lot of luck that goes along with it too," said the Panamanian-born Stennett after his feat. "On the seventh hit, I thought Champ Summers had a chance to catch it but somehow the ball eluded his glove and fell in for a lucky triple."

Stennett collected two doubles, four singles and the triple to score five runs in the Pirates' 24-hit barrage off five pitchers. Dave Parker drove in five runs for the Pirates—three via his 24th homer—and Richie Hebner had three RBIs including a two-run homer.

For Vail, who had hoped to surpass Ashburn and Rapp and go on to extend the NL rookie consecutive game hitting streak even farther than 23 games, the failure was especially frustrating since he got eight chances (0-for-7 with one walk) in the Mets' 18-inning 4-3 victory over the Montreal Expos.

"I've had 'oh-fors' before, but nothing like this," said the disappointed Vail. "I'll just have to go back out tomorrow and start another streak."

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia kept pace with Pittsburgh by edging St. Louis 4-3 in 13 innings, Los Angeles downed San Diego 5-3, Houston whipped Cincinnati 5-1 and San Francisco outlasted Atlanta 7-6.

In American League action, it was Minnesota shading California 4-3, Cleveland over Detroit 9-2, Boston blanking Baltimore 2-0, Milwaukee putting away New York 5-2, Chicago atop Kansas City 6-5 and Oakland sweeping Texas 11-5 and 6-4.

Mets 4, Expos 3

Montreal reliever Don DeMola walked Del Unser on four straight pitches with the bases loaded to force home Roy Staiger with the winning Mets' run after two were out in the 18th inning. Unser earlier tied the game at 3-3 in the ninth with a run-scoring single. The game lasted four hours and 29 minutes—longest of the season.

Phillies 4, Cardinals 3

Mike Anderson's 13th inning sacrifice fly drove home pinch-runner Alan Bannister with the winning run as Philadelphia remained six games back of the first place Pirates in the NL East.

Dodgers 5, Padres 2

Davey Lopes stole his 72nd and 73rd bases and scored twice while Jimmy Wynn drove home a pair of runs with a homer and a single in Los Angeles' triumph over San Diego. Rick Rhoden (3-2) was the winner with 2 2-3 innings of relief from Charlie Hough.

Mississippi State Set For NCAA Probation

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Mississippi State officials and the NCAA will confirm a two - year probation penalty assessment against the Bulldogs for football recruiting violations and announce there will be no appeal, it was reported today.

The Commercial Appeal said in today's editions that MSU President William L. Giles and NCAA spokesmen would disclose that the university — a longtime weak sister in the Southeastern Conference until posting last season's 9-3 record — would disclose several recruiting violations.

The violations were expected to include improper recruiting of two sophomore players — defensive back Richard Blackmore of Vicksburg, Miss., and defensive tackle Larry Gillard of Falkner, Miss.

The officials also were expected to state, however, that earlier reports of "major" violations by Bulldog coaches and recruiters proved unfounded, according to the newspaper report.

Hunting, Fishing Day Proclaimed in Texas

By J.D. PEER
I&E Field Officer

LUBBOCK — Each fall, a day promoting hunting and fishing is set aside in Texas and across the nation.

Governor Dolph Briscoe has proclaimed Sept. 27, 1975, as the official Texas hunting and fishing day.

Outdoor groups and clubs across the state will hold seminars, exhibits and discussions on the benefits of hunting and fishing.

This celebration is ideal for persons interested in outdoor sports to meet and possibly join many of the outdoor clubs that are active throughout the high plains.

Organizations such as the ducks unlimited, gun, archery and bass clubs are continually looking for new members interested in hunting, fishing and conservation of our abundant natural resources.

The beneficial partnership betwen the sportsmen and scientifc wildlife management has increased the wildlife populations nationwide.

Using hunter dollars and employing controlled hunting as a tool, the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department has been enormously successful in restoring the once depleted numbers of many species.

Where there were only 500,000 deer in the U.S. in 1900, a conservative estimate shows over 16,000,000 in 1973 with 3.3 million of these whitetails in Texas.

Jury Selection May Take Week in Hunt Heir Trial

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — If the sun shines long and hard today and again Thursday a weathered middle-aged farmer in the community of Lorenzo on Texas' South Plains, may be able to bale 20 acres of alfalfa hay.

If he does that, Bill Hood feels, he could go into the federal wiretapping trial of Herbert and Bunker Hunt with a clear head.

Hood was the third of six prospective jurors qualified Tuesday in the first day of the trial of the sons of the late, legendary oilman H. L. Hunt. Thirty-two must be qualified before lawyers can begin paring the number to the necessary 12 and two alternates.

U. S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward estimates the process will take until Friday. At the present rate a conclusion, or at least the beginning of testimony, will more likely come early next week.

Herbert, 46, and Bunker Hunt, 49, are charged with hiring private detectives to wiretap the telephones of six Hunt aides or relatives. If convicted of all six counts, they could be sentenced to as much as 30 years in prison plus a fine.

Hood told the court plainly Tuesday that he had hay in a field east of Lubbock "and if it turns off pretty I'll need to bale it."

He hesitated on some questions the attorneys put to him in the lengthy session. Some of them were hard for him, but when U. S. Attorney Frank McCown tried to wrap it up with "Mr. Hood, is there any reason that you could not give this case a fair and impartial hearing," Bill Hood knew his mind.

"Nothing other than my hay," he said.

Twenty acres of alfalfa hay is a far cry from sophisticated wiretaps and $50 million embezzlement schemes. But that is what Hood, if finally selected, and others like him, will have to make sense of in this complex trial.

There is no contest that the taps were made. Two private detectives expected to testify in the trial have served time for performing them.

McCown hopes to do this partly with the introduction of tapes made by the detectives of conversations in which the Hunts unknowingly took part. Woodward is unsure if those tapes should be played in court.

Former Hunt employees allege the wiretaps were the result of a feud within the family. The Hunts say, and it appears now that some of what they say will be brought out in court, they hired the detectives to investigate an embezzlement scheme that riddled and weakened the Hunt empire.

Says Oswald Note Destroyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top FBI officials ordered a threatening letter written by Lee Harvey Oswald destroyed shortly after the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy, The New York Times reported today.

The Times said then-FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover "probably" was in on the decision, because the person who relayed the order to destroy the letter was one of his assistants who would not have acted except on Hoover's instructions.

The decision to destroy the letter was made at a meeting of top agency officials in Washington the weekend after Kennedy's death, the Times said, quoting "a source familiar with the meeting." It did not say who attended the high-level meeting or whether Hoover was there.

The existence of the letter was first reported earlier this month by the Dallas Times-Herald.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley, in a statement, confirmed its existence and said there was evidence it had been destroyed. He said the letter, delivered to the FBI's Dallas bureau about 10 days before the President was killed, apparently warned investigators not to make further attempts to interview Oswald's Russian-born wife. It did not threaten the President.

The Times, however, quoted its source today as saying the letter contained a threat to "blow up" the Dallas police department.

The letter was destroyed to avoid potential embarrassment to the FBI and not to hinder the investigation of Kennedy's death, the Times' source said.

He said an assistant to Hoover, who relayed the order to the Dallas FBI bureau, would never have directed the destruction of possible evidence except on Hoover's expressed order.

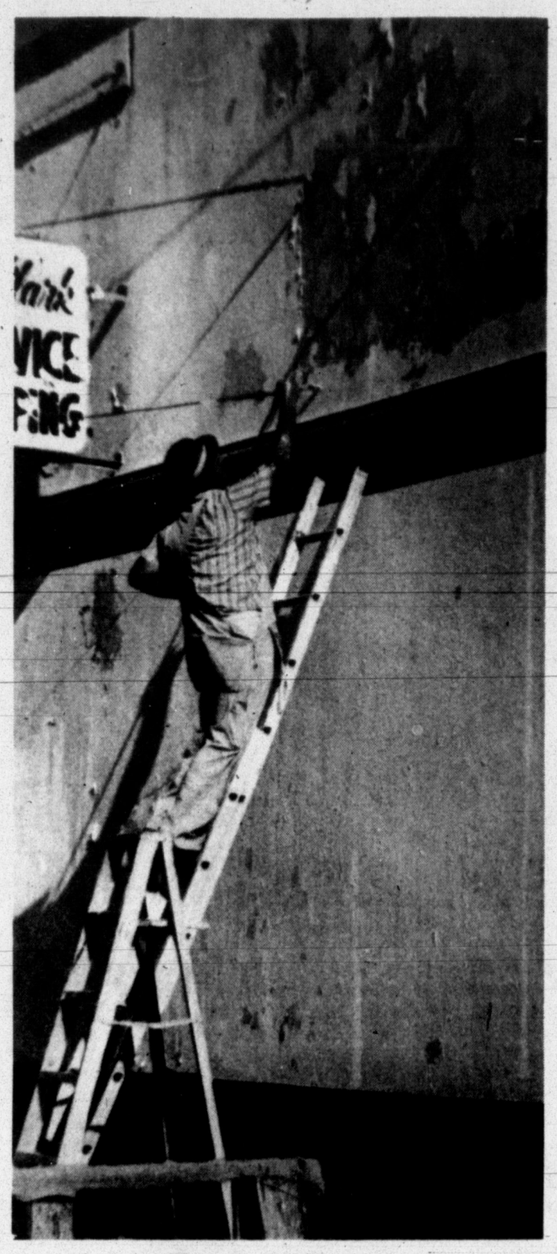

The letter was addressed to agent James P. Hosty Jr., who had been investigating Oswald and his wife. Oswald had been investigated prior to the assassination because of his attempts to defect to the Soviet Union and other pro-communist activities.

On the basis of initial reports about existence of the letter, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., has introduced a resolution asking a Senate panel to look into Kennedy's assassination as part of its probe of alleged illicit activities by the FBI and Central Intelligence Agency.

Whooping Cranes Win

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today that rare whooping cranes that winter on Matagorda Island on the Gulf Coast of Texas have won another round in a battle to keep the military from disturbing their peace.

The Wisconsin Democrat said the Navy abandoned plans to use a part of the island for a practice landing field.

Earlier, he said, the Air Force had refused to stop bombing the island until ordered to do so by the Defense Department after protests by the Interior Department.

The Interior Department plans to turn about 4,000 acres of the island into a refuge for the birds.

Religious Warfare Worsens in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Rival Christian and Moslem militias clashed today on the outskirts of Beirut, violating the latest cease-fire in Lebanon's worsening religious warfare.

Joint Lebanese-Palestinian patrols failed to halt the renewed fighting, which left at least six dead and 13 wounded.

Witnesses said the worst violence appeared centered in the Moslem suburb of Chiah, which adjoins the Christian stronghold of Ain Rummaneh.

Armed groups also fired on a gasoline depot in the suburb of Dora and another battle raged in Sin El Fil.

Internal security forces used armored cars to try and restore order.

President Suleiman Franjieh chaired an emergency cabinet meeting to discuss the latest fighting.

Elsewhere in the capital, news of the fighting heightened tensions for residents, whose lives had begun to return to normal with the appearance of the joint patrols.

An armed gang shot up a fuel delivery truck bringing badly needed gasoline to Beirut from the Zahrani refinery near the southern port of Sidon. The driver was reported wounded in the incident.

Refinery workers, protesting the shooting, refused to fill other trucks, threatening to deepen the country's fuel crisis.

The Lebanese government had announced a new truce went into effect at 10 p.m. Tuesday after day-long mortar and machinegun gun battles claimed the lives of at least 10 persons.

The joint patrols of the mainly Christian-led Lebanese security forces and the generally Moslem-led Palestinian guerrillas were ordered to shoot or seize anyone violating the cease-fire.

About 400 persons have been killed or wounded in the latest round of religious strife in Lebanon, raising to 2,600 the number of casualties since Moslem-Christian clashes erupted last spring.

The gendarmerie, the national police force, joined Palestinian guerrillas in policing the embattled suburbs of Beirut, the Lebanese capital.

Lebanese army troops and Palestinian guerrillas patrolled the cease-fire in battered Tripoli, the nation's second largest city and major port.

"The aim of the patrols in both cities will be to restore order," the spokesman said. "In Beirut, the situation has calmed down immensely."

The Palestinians have generally stayed out of the latest round of fighting, but were included in the truce force in an apparent attempt to gain the support of Moslems distrustful of the army.

Fed Calls for Cars To Be More Efficient

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The automobile will remain the most universally accepted form of transportation in America, but it must be made more efficient and used more responsibly, Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr., said today.

In his first statement on national transportation policy, Coleman also called for more vigorous freight railroads, financially stable airlines and more effective urban transportation systems.

The statement contained no surprises. It was largely a compilation of previously announced administration policy.

Coleman said federal ownership of any transportation system should be avoided and the federal financial role kept to a minimum. He advocated regulatory reform and cooperation between different modes of transportation, including relaxation of government barriers against interindustry ownership, such as railroad ownership of barge lines.

On rail passenger service, Coleman said the government must determine whether Amtrak can compete with other forms of passenger transportation without federal subsidies, and if not, there should be a basic policy decision about keeping up long term federal subsidies.

In terms of freight transportation, Coleman said "in an era of increasing awareness of the need for energy conservation and environmental protection, railroads must play a major role."

Coleman noted he was the first secretary to include the automobile in a national policy statement on transportation.

He called the automobile "the most flexible and responsible" form of transportation for Americans, "but it is also a major contributor to fatalities, injuries, air pollution, high energy consumption and congestion."

Students Watch Heart Demonstration

An estimated 400 students attended the two - day demonstration on cardio pulmonary resuscitation techniques at Sam Houston School recently.

Instructors were Jessie Newberry, Jean Johnson and Margaret Hernandez.

The program was sponsored by the Gray County Heart Division, Texas Affiliate Inc. of the American Heart Association.

Cabot Hires Engineer, Controller

The Cabot Corporation announced the employment of a chief petroleum engineer and an assistant controller.

Both are in the oil and gas division. E. Ralph Green is the chief petroleum engineer and is located in the Pampa office. He reports to Joe M. Daniel Jr., manager of operations.

James R. Blankenship assumed duties as assistant controller and reports to Jerry L. Allen, manager of administration and oil and gas division controller.

Green came to Pampa from Texas Pacific Oil Company in Midland. Blankenship is from Aztec Oil and Gas Co. in Dallas. His wife, Jane, and their daughter live at 2234 Lynn St.

Green, his wife, Sally, and their two sons live at 1912 Lea St.

Announcement of the two new employes was made by H.A. Lilla, group personnel manager.

Simon Says Fed Won't Help NY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William Simon says the country would be better off if New York City went into default than if the federal government came to its rescue.

Simon's statement Tuesday seemed to extinguish whatever flickering hope New York City officials nursed that the federal government would step in if state and city rescue efforts prove insufficient — as now appears possible.

The state legislature has arranged to lend the city $2.3 billion, but that money will run out in December. Unless the city can borrow more from some other source, it will be unable to repay loans that become due — and will be in default and on the verge of financial collapse.

In a letter Tuesday to Congress' Joint Economic Committee, Simon suggested a federal rescue operation would do more harm than allowing the city to collapse fiscally.

He said federal borrowings to guarantee New York securities would cause a credit squeeze, drive up interest rates for all borrowers, squeeze some cities out of credit markets and cause inflationary fears, making investors reluctant to buy any city bonds.

A city default, Simon said, would not "undermine fundamental confidence in our economy" or "cause solvency problems for any major bank."

A "few" small banks which hold suddenly worthless New York securities might have problems, but federal bank regulating agencies could rescue them, he said.

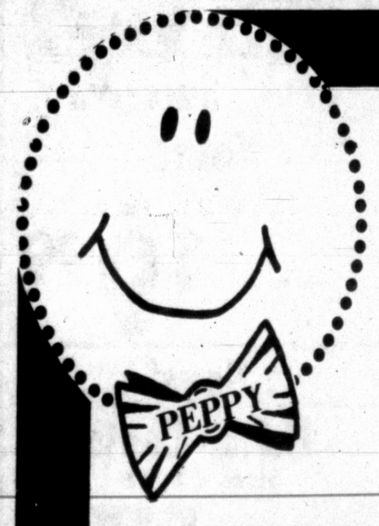

Simon's response is the most forthright "no" to New York from an administration that has been saying "no" all along.

It drew sharp replies from Sens. Jacob Javits, R-N. Y., and Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., chairman of the committee.

"As I read his letter, Secretary Simon has said that the U.S. may be better off if its greatest city defaults, and his admission that he may be wrong only further underlines the risk-taking which his policy clearly represents," Javits said.

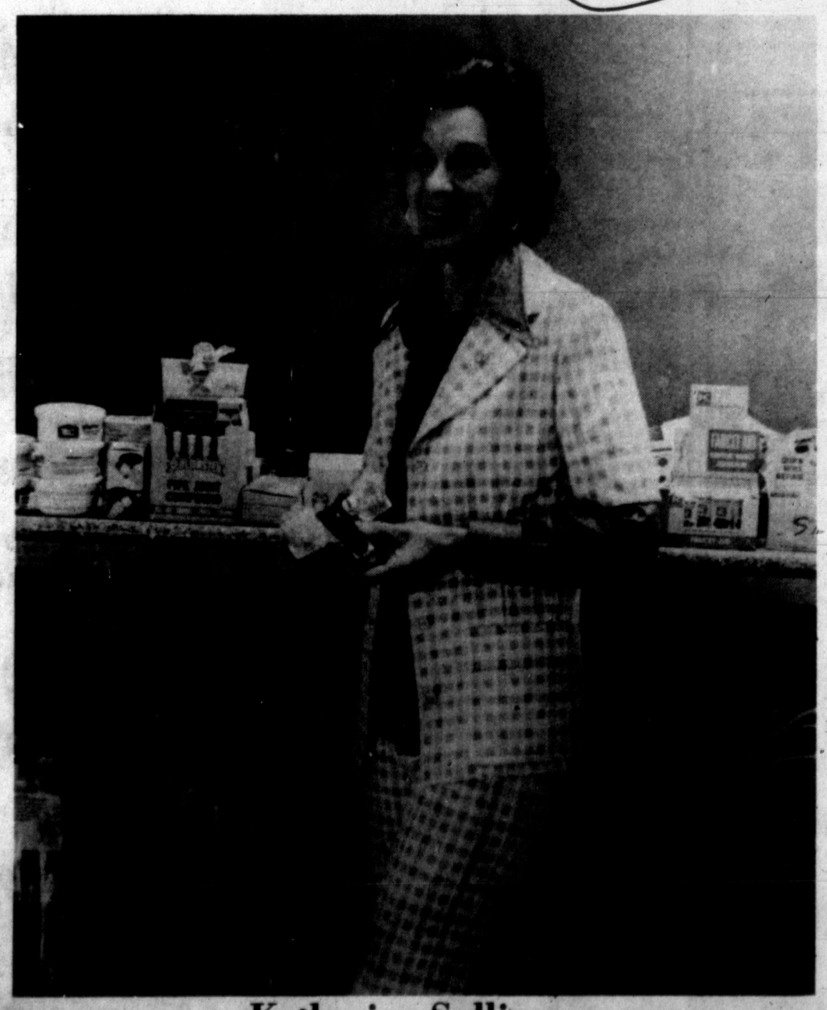

He said, "Our country cannot help but suffer enormous damage" if "the nation's major center of communications, banking, transportation and securities" goes broke.

Humphrey said Simon ignored the impact on other cities which he said would be unable to sell their bonds if New York City defaults and which "are already paying usurious interest rates."

Sullins Plumbing, Heating, Air Conditioning

Katherine Sullins

Sullins Plumbing - Heating and Air Conditioning, 320 W. Kingsmill, has been in Pampa since 1919 when L.H. Sullins Sr. first opened a shop on Cuyler Street.

"Because there was a need for pipe and plumbing supplies," he gave the reason.

He came to Pampa in 1914 to help build the first electric plant. When he found the need for his work, he stayed.

He recalled one of the first bathtubs in this city. It was setdown at floor level in front of a woodburning stove. Hot water could be poured into the tub and the floor section could be put back into place when the tub was not in use.

Sullin's son and his wife, Dick and Katherine Sullins, now own the company. They say Pampa has been a steady town in comparison to a lot of "boom" towns.

Dick helped out around his father's shop during high school and college summers. In 1956, he was managing the operations and in 1964 he and his wife purchased the business and the building.

"Our biggest problem today is trying to keep our prices down, they said.

The Sullins say the plumbing business sells comfort and convenience.

"Keeping people warm or cool, keeping hot and cold water are part of the comforts the public expects," Mrs. Sullins said.

The Sullins say they are thankful for all the friends they have made through the years. Many old timers drop in to pass the time.

They add that Pampa has been good to them.

"The economy, cost of living and unemployment here is on a better level than in most areas," they add.

Stop Achievement Decline

Federal Funds Granted To School Service

HOUSTON (UPI) — Fifth-grader John Huggins received special help in reading for two years and is still a year behind his class, but this year his parents' income isn't low enough to qualify him for federal funding assistance.

John, like thousands of other youngsters, needs the hour-a-day special in-school tutoring but meets only half of the requirements — educational.

School Superintendent Billy R. Reagan hopes that problem is solved at least temporarily through an experimental program this year.

"Guidelines in the past have been based on economic factors and not on educational needs of the youngsters," Reagan said. "An example is when one year a family has an income that qualifies this youngster, but next year they make more money and the child doesn't qualify. But the child still needs help."

The school district will receive $10 million in federal and state funds to support the district as a demonstration center for the National Institute of Education to determine how the support services funds can be better spent.

Reagan said the new programs have not been determined but a major aspect will be counseling parents to provide more encouragement in the home.

He said his main objective is to stop a rapid decline in educational achievement in the nation's sixth largest school district.

"In the last eight years we have dropped one to one and a half years in achievement levels," he said. "Our average sixth grade youngster today is achieving one year and two months below grade level."

In that same eight years, nearly $75 million in federal funds has been allocated to providing special services to poor children who are underachievers. Reagan said the money has had little effect in stopping the decline.

Some of the services include the special resource teachers in 56 schools to help students with learning problems, free clothing, counselors, transportation to special events, and additional materials for teachers.

"Still as hard as we've tried we haven't come up anywhere near the answers it's going to take if our youngsters are going to be achieving at a survival level when they leave high school," he said.

Reagan said one main problem is the two-fold qualification. One, the parents' income must be at a very low level, and, two, the child must be one-and-a-half years behind his grade level in reading or math.

"We're talking about 40,000 to 50,000 youngsters in the district who have serious deficiencies in academic progress which must be overcome," he said. "The restrictive guidelines which might pull a child out of the program because of economics are bad.

"You might have him right to the point of a breakthrough in the educational process and then have to pull the support services away from him."

Man Power To Meet Thursday Evening

The Pampa Area Man Power Association (PAMPA) will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Fellowship Hall of the First Presbyterian Church, 525 N. Gray.

"Our main goal is to develop adequate manpower to support in every way possible the suppression of drug abuse," said Bert Arney, chairman.

He said that "funds have been requested from the Pampa Area Drug Abuse Commission (PADAC) for the publication of a new resource directory. We will begin work on this project as soon as we know financial assistance is forthcoming."

According to Arney, the public relations committee of PAMPA has completed a program format for presentation to area civic clubs and other groups.

"Several organizations have been contacted and have scheduled PAMPA representatives to present this program," he said.

Carr Joins NY Staff

John R. Carr has joined the New York City headquarters staff of Celanese Chemical Company as a manufacturing planning engineer. He had been a process engineer at the company's Pampa, Texas, plant.

J.C. Scott, the company's supervisor of manufacturing planning said Carr will be responsible for developing and refining economic and supply — demand analysis for operational and facilities planning.

New Mexico Records 10th Plague Victim

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Health officials said they expected confirmation of the state's 10th case of plague, which has already killed two persons this year.

The latest suspected victim is a 28-year-old Santa Fe woman five-months pregnant with her third child. Her name was not disclosed.

Dr. Jonathan Mann, state epidemiologist, said he was "99 per cent sure" tests being performed at the State Scientific Laboratory in Albuquerque would show the woman, being treated in St. Vincent's Hospital, has the disease.

However, he said the woman had consulted a doctor quickly and the physician gave an early diagnosis. As a result, Mann said, the disease was caught at an early stage. Time is a critical factor in successfully treating the illness.

Hospital spokesmen said she was in isolation at St. Vincent's and her husband and two small children were being treated with antibiotics at their home, located in the Canyon Road area on the eastern side of Santa Fe.

State Environmental Improvement Agency officials inspected the area for fleas, which attach themselves to rodents and spread the disease.

A spokesman said the family recently moved into a new home where the woman suffered about 12 flea bites on each leg a week ago.

Plague organisms were found by EIA specialists in sick rock squirrels in the Canyon Road area of Santa Fe last month and earlier this month.

The EIA said the woman complained of high fever, headache, chills and a severe pain in the right groin when she was admitted to the hospital.

A state police unit Monday carried a sample from a lymph node in the woman's groin to the scientific lab in Albuquerque for a "flourescent antibody test," Mann said.

If diagnosed early enough, the disease can be treated successfully with antibiotics. However, a late diagnosis could allow the disease to develop into the highly contagious pneumonic stage.

One of the two persons who died from the disease, William R. Handley, 14, San Rafael, Calif., was a victim of the pneumonic plague. He had been living with grandparents in the Tijeras Canyon area east of Albuquerque during the summer.

The other victim of the disease was a 3-year-old Navajo Indian girl, Charlene Brown of Rehoboth. She died of bubonic plague, which is what the disease is called in its primary stage.

Visitors to Sandia Crest, in the Sandia Mountains just west of Albuquerque, can see 11,000 square miles in all directions from the 10,678-foot summit. The crest is reached by the world's longest aerial tramway, which doubles as a ski lift in the winter.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, SEPT. 18

Your birthday today: This is your year for consolidating everything and using it to establish a definite base for future development. Additional skills are desirable although you'll have only limited and repeatedly interrupted periods for study and practice. Relationships remain sensitive despite your continuous concern and broadmindedness. Today's natives go in for writing, philosophy and related pursuits.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Your emotions affect almost any transaction. Legal issues become complex. Avoid any deal that requires secrecy. Focus on commonplace subjects, and get rid of yesterday's accumulation.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: The day starts out in a state of total confusion, but straightens out and rolls along fairly well after midday. Financial moves made now have a lasting impact but are unlikely to go as planned.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Finish what you started and don't engage in new enterprises now. Anything you do is incredibly difficult to explain to friends or family. Omit the details and you'll get by.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Stick to budgets despite whims or temptation. Formal actions encounter delay and misunderstandings, and should be postponed until a later date. Review the past to reconcile discrepancies.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Money matters continue to be delicately balanced. Upsets occur where you least expect them. Set distant goals and arouse enthusiasm and pledges of cooperation.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept 22]: Events you've been waiting for begin to take shape, but be careful not to jump the gun. Take the trouble to check signals with those who'll be participating.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: News is good and educational but covers only part of the story. Examine each item carefully. Decisions come easier as the day advances. Review your progress this evening.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You may be involved in happenings outside your regular milieu or speciality and find yourself at a disadvantage. Avoid speculation.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: A sales pitch gets to you and you're off on a tangent, at the expense of your schedules. It doesn't pay to bring in others. Be direct, specific, and truthful.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Business activities demand extra effort. Complications arise from yesterday's errors and negligence. Sort them out while they're fresh in your mind.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You're ready to state your case too sharply. Hold on! Keep the peace between loved ones but make sure you aren't sandwiched between everyone's bickering and haggling.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Decision-making follows a kaleidoscopic pattern. One view follows another with no guidance beyond sheer intuition in picking the appropriate action. Make choices this evening.
