

Munday-Seymour Game Highlight For Friday

Moguls Are Hosts To Panthers; Squads Evenly Matched

The Munday Moguls and Seymour Panthers will hold the spotlight in this district next Friday night in what will be the one of the most interesting games of the entire season.

The Moguls will be hosts to the Panthers on Scruggs Field. The game will start at 7:30 p. m.

Although both teams have dropped conference games, they still will hold the spotlight as being the most evenly matched teams in the conference play. Seymour has lost only to Anson, while the Moguls have dropped tilts with both Anson and Stamford. A comparison of the strength of the two teams is shown in the scores with Anson. The Panthers lost to Anson last Friday night by a score of 26-0, while the Moguls dropped their game earlier in the season to Anson by a score of 27-0.

The Moguls are boasting a strong line, which is believed to be able to hold the Panthers on the ground, while Seymour has a strong and tricky aerial offense that will be a threat all during the game.

The game is expected to draw an unusually large crowd of fans.

Knox Farmer Makes Progress In Conservation

S. D. Jones in the East Knox City Conservation group, cooperating in the Wichita-Bazos Soil Conservation District, is making good progress in applying a coordinated Conservation Program this year.

Mr. Jones was interested in making approximately 10 acres of new pasture and decided to try weeping love grass. With the help of the Soil Conservation Service technicians, the grass was planted late in June after heavy rains had destroyed his first planting. A very good stand was secured, but it failed to make seed however and this will be used in plantings this coming spring.

Mr. Jones is planting rye as a cover crop on his cotton land. He finds that rye will control wind erosion in the spring and furnish a green manure crop. His land does not require terraces due to the sandy nature of the soil.

Mr. Jones is also going to plant several acres of Austrian Winter Peas as a soil building crop. Under approximately 2 acres Mr. Jones is going to apply 100 lbs. per acre of Superphosphate. This is expected to give the Austrian Winter Peas a boost in growth and by doing this nitrogen and organic matter will be added to the soil. If this practice proves successful, more phosphate will be applied next year. It is believed that is commercial fertilizers are used they should be used under winter soil improving crops rather than on cash crops.

This is a new practice in this locality and everyone is interested in how this trial planting is going to come out. Several other farmers are trying this practice on a small scale until results are obtained.

Locals Topple Hamlin, 33-0 On Thursday Night

Playing on Thursday night so their game would not conflict with other important games of the district, the Munday Moguls ran rough shod over the Hamlin Pipers, 33-0, last Thursday night on Piper Field.

Fullback John Spann, Jr., strutted his stuff in this game and ran wild to lead the Moguls to their one-sided victory. Johnnie accounted for all five of the Moguls' touchdowns and tabbed the three extra points on plunges. His longest scoring was 50 yards, when he intercepted a Hamlin pass.

Two of the Moguls' counters came in the second quarter, one in the third and two in the last stanza.

Following closely on the heels of his twin brother as an outstanding performer was Joe Spann at end, while Guard Kelton Tidwell shared honors with them.

Standouts for Hamlin were back Gray and end, Bobby Crowley.

U. S. S. Texas May Become Property of State

Shown riding at anchor is the battleship U. S. S. Texas, one of the Navy's oldest men-o'-war. Her age did not prevent her from piling up one of the war's most enviable combat records. The Texas was the only American battleship that fought off three continents—Europe, Africa and Asia.

In retiring the famous battleship, proposals have been made to award her to the State of Texas. One Washington legislator has proposed that she be given a permanent home on the San Jacinto battlegrounds. — Official U. S. Navy Photo.

Knox Gets Off To Slow Start In Victory Loan

Reports coming from the headquarters, Fort Worth region, War Finance Committee of Texas, show that Knox County has gotten off to a slow start in the Victory Loan drive. The county ranked as 37th in the region, with only 1.176 per cent of her quota sold.

Leading region were Sutton and Sterling counties, who topped their quotas during the first day of the drive. Sutton sold 119.696 per cent of E Bond quota, while Sterling went over by 102.224 per cent.

What purchases have been made in Knox so far have been on voluntary basis, as most everyone is busy with fall gathering, and no solicitation has been made. Leaders in the drive feel, however, that the county will go over the top in this, as in all other War Bond drives.

The Victory Loan has been deemed the most important of all War Loans, since its purpose is to help pay the costs of war, bring our fighting men home, care for the wounded, rehabilitate the veterans and clear the decks for the way of peace.

Following are the Knox County Community quotas, as announced last week:

	E Bond	O'all
Benjamin	$ 9,720	$16,000
Truscott	9,720	16,200
Gilliland	7,440	14,000
Vera	9,720	16,200
Goree-Hefner	18,600	35,000
Munday	56,544	106,400
Knox City	42,780	80,500
Rhineland	7,440	14,000
Total	$161,964	$298,500

Mrs. Sam Hampton of Goree had the surprise and also the scare of her life on Halloween evening when she heard a group of girls calling for help near her home.

Mrs. Hampton rushed out to the front steps and found a rattlesnake resting there. She looked around for something to kill the reptile with, while the girls continued to call for help with no one paying attention to them, thinking this was a Halloween trick.

Mrs. Hampton killed the snake, and found that it had eight rattles and was using all of them when she put an end to his rattling. And all was quiet in the Hampton household again!

Munday Child Dies In Wreck At Luther, Okla.

Virginia Fay Stevens Is Buried Here On Last Monday

Virginia Fay Stevens, 4-year-old daughter of Sgt. Joe (Frog) Stevens, died in a Chandler, Okla., hospital at three o'clock Friday morning from injuries received in an auto accident near Luther, Okla. Oklahoma Highway Patrol Tooper Bill Parks charged that theft of a highway warning flare set out near a truck wreck directly resulted in the death of the little Munday girl.

Sgt. Stevens, accompanied by his brother, Clovis Stevens of Palestine, had gone to Big Piney, Mo., after Virginia Fay, and the accident occurred on their return trip.

Clovis Stevens received critical injuries in the accident and is in a Chandler, Okla., hospital. His condition remained serious, according to Tuesday's reports, and little hope was held for his recovery.

The car in which the three were riding crashed into a truckload of race horses which had been parked after a previous accident on the highway. Sgt. Stevens, on convalescent leave from Brooke General Hospital, San Antonio, suffered only cuts and bruises.

Funeral services for Virginia Fay were held from the First Baptist Church in Munday at 10:30 last Monday morning, conducted by Rev. W. H. Albertson of Munday and Stewart Currie of Haskell. Burial was in the Gillespie cemetery by the Mahan Funeral Home.

PREVENT INFLATION

Do you know the facts about inflation? Shall we keep down the costs of living and the costs of doing business? Shall we protect the future of our earnings, our savings, and our markets?

Inflation destroys earnings, markets and living standards. Inflation makes it impossible to lay definite personal or business plans for the future.

Until peace time supply again equals demands, the impulses of people and big purchasing power for limited supply will make inflationary pressures stronger than ever.

So far, we have held down living costs and business cost much better than during the last war. Remember what happened? During the last war prices had already risen twice as much as they have this time. For a few minutes after the Armistice they started down a little. But then the rush to buy inventories began. In the 20 months following the Armistice prices rose twice as fast as during the war. And almost half of the inflation during the whole war period came after the Armistice.

Then came the day of reckoning. In 1921 prices collapsed, leaving merchants with big inventories worth a fraction of what they had cost.

Prices have been held down. But the job is far from finished. By working together intelligently, we can help America come through the critical transition period with the foundation laid for prosperous post-war America.

Our men are returning from the battle fronts, wearing their signs of hard fighting and victory, let's show them that we have been doing and still are doing everything in our power to win in the end.

BRUTAL STATISTICS

Fire Prevention Week is over, but the awful drama of fire destruction and how it can be avoided which was paraded before the eyes of the public within the space of seven days, should not be forgotten.

It is hard to conceive of a home being destroyed by fire every four minutes. And yet that was one of the brutal facts that received banner publicity during Fire Prevention Week—every four minutes, somewhere in the United States a family loses its most precious possessions. It is lucky if some of its members, too, are not lost. Thousands of persons are burned to death every year. Why can't these fires be prevented? What causes them?

They could be prevented. The reasons for most of them are tragically simple. Smoking and matches are the first cause of fire. Faulty electric wiring runs a close second. Sparks on combustible roofs rank third. After that come defective chimneys, defective heating equipment, rubbish and spontaneous combustion; lightning and inflammable liquids are also among the prominent cause of fire.

No fire department can protect us completely against these hazards. When a cigarette or a match is discarded, a fire prevention expert cannot be there to see that fire does not ensue. No, such simple precautions are up to the individual. And until millions of individuals decide to do something about the menace of fire, the horror of an annual fire loss in life and property will continue to be with us.

Even as these words are being written, fire is destroying a home somewhere in these forty-eight states.

OUR ANNUAL BONFIRE

Even in normal times, uncontrolled fire takes a heavy toll of our human and physical resources. During the war, fire menaced the security of our armed forces. In peace it menaces the security of the worker. Individual responsibility and the united effort of all fire fighting agencies are necessary to control this ever present danger.

There have already been many disastrous post-war fires in industrial plants. Everyone is concerned with this because fires deprive workers of jobs, and the primary objective of the American people in days ahead will be employment and production.

The record of vital statistics shows that on an average, 10,000 persons lose their lives each year in fires. And many times that number suffer incapacitating or painful burns and injuries. Seven thousand of these deaths occur in homes where more than 400,000 fires were reported last year. The victims of these home fires are largely women and children.

During the last 12 months, America burned $444,225,000 worth of property—the highest fire loss in 12 years. This huge accumulation of buildings and goods was wasted at a time when the world is crying for all kinds of food, clothing, building materials and commodities of every kind. While striving to conserve resources to produce and supply the products for our own as well as other nations, our annual bonfire consumed nearly half a billion dollars in property.

A LUCKY NATION

A striking fact of the tumultuous war years through which we have just lived, a fact which no one can truthfully deny, is that the people of the United States wanted for nothing. They kept more than twenty million autos running. Their homes remained brightly lighted and well heated. Their diet, in spite of griping, was nothing less than abundant. They had plenty of clothes and plenty of luxuries. The families of men in service were, by and large, the only ones who had the vaguest notion of the horrible sacrifice and destruction being endured elsewhere. This is not a criticism of the home front. It is merely stating facts. It was because of continuing high living standards that we were able to turn in a war production miracle.

It is worth reflecting upon the reasons for the maintenance of such living standards. Of course, there was rationing and price control to insure stability. There were also hundreds of thousands of miles of paved highways, railways, countless fleets of trucks, trains, planes, ships; there were countless business organizations, manufacturing plants, and millions of individual producers topped by a mass distributing system of hundreds of thousands of retailers. All of this vast activity functioned with clock-like precision. Temporary stresses and strains were absorbed without hitch.

Now that the war is over, we can begin to appreciate this intricate machine. What it did in war it can do on an even greater scale in peace, providing we don't underestimate its ability and turn to paternalistic government in a futile search for perfection.

ON DANGEROUS GROUND

A cardinal principle of the American republic is the jealous protection of minority rights. The constitution, the courts, the whole fabric of government is designed to guard the numerically weak against oppression. The leaders of organized labor who today revel in the strength of the mob, are treading on dangerous grounds. For all of their organized strength the unions are still a minority of the whole people. In their persistent abuse of other minorities—men who want to work without joining a union, and destructive attacks on individual concerns—they are preparing the way for a public reaction which, in turn, may overrun the minority rights of unions.

Disregard of the basic principles of American justice is a practice that the unions should be compelled to stop at once, for their sake as well as that of the nation.

JUSTICE INEVITABLY ASSERTS ITSELF

Louis Bromfield, well known author and playwright, long identified with "liberal" viewpoints, and a friend of organized labor, says:

"The clash between the minority interest of organized labor and the rest of the nation becomes more evident . . .

"Organized labor has chosen not to wait but to get what it can quickly at the expense of the rest of the nation . . .

"There are countless thousands of honest rank and file workers disgusted with the whole spectacle and oppressed by heavy dues and assessments, who would gladly be out of the whole demoralizing mess.

"Added to all this is the almost untenable position of many honest and devoted labor leaders who find themselves forced to compromise, to condone and even to accept doubtful action in order to keep in power. They are forced to play politics within the union in order to be re-elected to office.

"The issue is one of morality, decency of contract, moral obligations to . . . democracy and government.

"There is a grim and immutable justice in the affairs of men which inevitably asserts itself. The issue is ceasing to be one between organized labor and management. It is becoming an issue between organized labor and the rest of the American people. No minority, however well organized, has ever succeeded for long in imposing its will on the American people."

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Dr. Geo. W. Cox
M. D., State Health Officer of Texas

Austin.—There is no other communicable disease as dangerous as whooping cough to the very young, and there is no other disease causing an equal amount of suffering of which parents show such an unaccountable disregard not only for the safety of their own little ones, but also for the lives of the neighbors' children," said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. There is no natural immunity against this disease during the first six months of life as there is against measles. It is at this age that whooping cough strikes its hardest blow and over 80 per cent of the deaths occurring in children are under one year of age. The disease is usually transmitted by direct contact with secretions of the mouth or nose, and only a very short exposure is required to contract the infection. Handkerchiefs, drinking cups and toys also may transmit the infection.

"The infection is communicable from the appearance of the first symptoms and is most contagious at this early period when the nature of the affection can only be suspected. The incubation period is commonly seven days. A slight fever, running of the nose and a cough make their appearance so gradually and insidiously that a diagnosis is practically impossible unless a history of exposure is obtained. When the "whoop" appears there is no mistaking the disease. If there is whooping cough in community keep your children away from your little children and keep your children at home. Call your physician early. Isolation of all cases for at least two weeks from the development of the characteristic cough should be rigidly enforced.

LT. COL. PAT HEARD IS HOME FROM PACIFIC

Lieut. Col. Pat Heard has recently returned from more than 28 months of overseas duty with the evacuation hospital on the islands of the Pacific.

To these advance units and the doctors and nurses of the evacuation hospitals go a great part of the fine work done by these men and women who worked under serious handicaps and through their sacrifices saved thousands of our men in service. To these doctors who gave themselves to long, gruelling hours of their best work, we pay tribute. America is deeply grateful for the part they have taken in bringing home our sons and in winning the war.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germs, loosen phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. THE WORLD NEEDS MORE COTTONSEED & COTTON PRODUCTS

People in war-devastated or isolated countries are in desperate need of Cotton and Cottonseed Products for Food, Clothing and Shelter. Add to this America's own pent-up demand for essential Cotton or Cottonseed goods, and they total up to a vast demand and market for the South's Cotton and Cottonseed.

It will take more cotton production in 1946 to supply the demand and hold this world market.

Plan increased cotton production in 1946, NOW!

Jeanne Davis Is Member of Kitchen Service Club

One of the ideals of Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas, is that the democratic way is the best way of any of the world systems. In accord with this view, all young men and women enrolled in the college are given jobs to defray a part or all their college expenses if they so desire. Of the 672 students enrolled in the college, nearly fifty per cent of them hold some kind of job on the campus.

A recent organization among one of these working groups on the Abilene Christian College Campus is the Kitchen Service Club, composed of young men and young women who work in the college cafeteria. One of the members of the group is Jeanne Davis, daughter of Mrs. Jo Mae Davis, Munday, Texas. A 1945 graduate of Munday high school, Jeanne is majoring in Elementary Education in Abilene Christian College.

AEROSOL BOMBS ARE MADE AVAILABLE FOR CIVILIAN USE

Civilians have heard a lot recently about aerosol bombs used in all parts of the world by service men to rid their quarters of flies, mosquitoes and other flying insects. With peace here, aerosol bombs are being made available for civilian use.

Like any other weapon, says Cameron Siddall, entomologist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, aerosols have a proper use for best results. The term "bomb" really refers to the container—it looks like a bomb, but it doesn't explode. The aerosol itself consists of an insecticide, which disperses in the air like a fog or mist, when released from the container by opening of a valve. Small particles of the insecticide scatter through the air and hit flies and mosquitoes and moths flying about.

The aerosol bombs used by the armed forces and most of these on the market today contain a mixture of DDT and purified pyrethrum.

The bombs are most effective against insects in their flying stage, says Mr. Siddall. That means such as flies, sandflies, mosquitoes and moths. Don't expect aerosol to get rid of crawling insects such as bedbugs, roaches and dog ticks or the egg or larval stages of clothes moths. Don't expect aerosols to act as fumigants, either. Other methods of control are more effective and less expensive for these purposes, Siddall states.

Miss Cammie Beaty, who has been serving in the W.A.C., came in the first of this week from Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, where she received her honorable discharge from the service.

Washington News Letter

By Congressman Ed Gossett

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—The House this week passed a resolution recommended by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and other top naval commanders fixing the size of our peacetime Navy at a minimum of 1,082 ships, exclusive of auxiliaries. With replacements, and modern vessels to be added from time to time, this will give us by far the most powerful Navy in the world. The Navy is now planning to test the atomic bomb on surface vessels. Tests will be made by exploding atomic bombs above water and underneath water to determine its destructiveness as applied to naval craft. The remainder of the Jap fleet will probably be used in these experiments.

Another bill passed by the House this week appropriates 550 million dollars for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration (UNRRA). All of the United Nations are a party to this organization and agreement. The nations obligated themselves to appropriate one per cent of their national incomes for this relief. Under such arrangement we furnish the great bulk of money, approximately 72 per cent. Some time ago we appropriated 800 million dollars for UNRRA and this appropriation of 550 millions adds up to a billion 350 million dollars. We have appropriated for the prevention of starvation, suffering, and disease in foreign countries. None of this money is to be used in either Germany or Japan. Unfortunately we did not reserve voting power in proportion to our contribution, and some of this money has not been expended in accordance with our desires.

An executive of the Office of Surplus Property addressed the Texas delegation this week on the disposal of surplus real property. In accordance with a bill offered by me some two years ago, and with an amendment offered by me to the Surplus Property Act, former owners of agricultural land will be given the first opportunity to buy it back when land is declared surplus. Such re-sales will be handled through the Federal Land Bank at prices not exceeding those paid by the government when the land was purchased. After former owners, tenants and veterans are given priority, to purchase such land.

A bill introduced by me last week, if passed, will provide veterans a first opportunity to buy personnel property up to $2500 in amount which is surplus. Such purchases could be made from the Army or Navy before the property is declared surplus, or after it reaches the disposal agency. About the only persons making any real sacrifices during the war have been those in the armed forces and their families. Any preferences now afforded through government should be given to those who suffered most because of the war.

Among new developments brought about during the war is a weedicide called 2-4-D, a compound which is said to kill a wide variety of weeds, affecting them in much the same way as DDT operates on insects. It is supposed to rid turf of such weeds as broadleaf plantain, knot weed, clover, dock, buckhorn, dandelion, honeysuckle, ragweed, etc. We are told the department of Agriculture is perfecting this product and will soon make it available to the public in numerous forms. Those of us who can still vividly remember calloused hands and polished hoe handles are greatly interested in this development.

Mr. Clarence Cannon, who is serving his 23rd year in Congress and who is Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, this week made an "economy" speech in the House, referring particularly to the airport bill which was passed a few days ago. In part, Chairman Cannon said, "I hope no one will overlook the list of 82 men on page 9964 of this morning's Record. It is a notable list of notable men. They not only preach economy but, extraordinary as it may seem, they actually vote for economy."

"That list of names ought to be printed in every newspaper in the country. I do not know just how interested in economy the newspapers are, but there have been so few votes for economy lately that it ought to be in the same class with the story of 'man bites dog.' We have all kinds of blocs here—the farm bloc, the railroad bloc; at last, we have the economy bloc."

Everybody is against pork barrels unless they share in the gravy. Sad to say, nearly every one seems to be for a pork barrel if they are going to receive a spoonful of pap. Even the leading citizens of our best communities will urge their Congressmen to vote for a billion dollar appropriation if their community is to get a $2,000 project out of the proceeds, even though this $2,000 will eventually cost the community $4,000 in taxation. It's like being for taxes on the other fellow.

Sat. Doyle Baker, who is stationed at Moody Field, Ga., came in last week to spend several days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Baker, and with other relatives.

Mrs. Erin McGraw was a business visitor in Wichita Falls last Monday.

Club People, Future Farmers, To Dallas Show

Dallas will be host Saturday to the biggest crowd of 4-H Club boys and girls and Future Farmers of America ever assembled at the State Fair Grounds.

They will be in Dallas for Junior Cattleman's Day at the Greater Pan-American Hereford Exposition, Nov. 9-18. Between three and five thousand from every section of Texas are expected, according to Exposition officials. They will be kept busy every minute of the time they are in Dallas.

All of them, plus a group of students from Mexico's National School of Agriculture, will be guests of Swift & Co. at a luncheon to be held at the Exposition Grounds at noon.

The day will start early for the young farmers and ranchers when they witness the judging at nine o'clock Saturday morning of the 200 entries in the Junior Cattleman's Baby Beef Show. Capt. Robert B. Tate is the judge. These calves will be disposed of at an auction sale Monday, Nov. 13, with many of Dallas' leading business firms expected to engage in some spirited bidding.

Saturday evening, youngsters having calves entered in the show, will be guests, along with the Mexican students, at a banquet in the Baker Hotel. Their host will be the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

At night many of the 4-H Club members and Future Farmers will join thousands of grown-ups in attendance at the International Championship Rodeo. Features of the rodeo, according to Alex Mickle, executive director of the Exposition, will include performance by Louis Brooks of Sweetwater, International Champion Cowboy for 1944 and Champion all-Around Cowboy for 1944 and 1945, and some of the most spectacular special rodeo attractions in the nation.

"Rough-riding cowboys from all over the country will compete in the bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping, and bulldogging divisions," Mickle said. "Prizes total $10,000, plus entry fees, which will amount to approximately $10,000 more."

The Exposition, biggest single breed cattle show in the world this year, has a premium list of $20,000 for fine Hereford cattle. Breeding classes will be judged Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 12-13, by D. Burns, general manager of the Pitchfork Land & Cattle Co.

Dallas Legionnaire Named As Candidate For National Award

Qualifies As 'Man Of The Year' For $1000 Rosenstiel Legion Prize

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Ernest L. Tutt, manager of the Dallas field office of the Social Security Board, has been selected by the Texas Department of the American Legion as its "Man of the Year" candidate for the $1,000 Lewis S. Rosenstiel national award which goes to the Legionnaire who has performed the most useful community service for the past 12 months.

The award, which has been conferred annually by Rosenstiel, chairman of the board of Schenley Distillers Corporation, for the past three years, is made in behalf of the Dorothy H. and Lewis Rosenstiel Foundation. A board of judges, composed of national officers of the Legion will select the award at the service organization's convention in Chicago Nov. 18-21, according to R. Worth Shumaker, acting director of the Legion's National Americanism Commission. Last year's winner was Horace H. Shelton, Austin attorney.

A member of Memorial Grove Post No. 384 at Dallas, Tutt is chairman of the Legion's Foreign Affairs committee for the Department of Texas. Widely known as a speaker and writer on world security topics, he has made principal addresses in Dallas, Waco, Denison, Fort Worth, Austin, Teague, Terrell, Garland, Sherman, Plano, Meridian and Hewitt and has participated in Southern Methodist University's radio forum.

AN IMPORTANT DATE FOR THOUSANDS OF ARMY VETERANS NOW IN CIVILIAN LIFE

Between now and November 21, thousands of Army veterans will reenlist in Uncle Sam's new volunteer peacetime Army. Because—men who have been discharged between May 12 and November 1 of this year and reenlist on or before November 21 will be able to return to the Army with the same grade as they held when discharged.

Men with six months of satisfactory service discharged as privates will, on reenlistment before November 21, be given the grade of private first class.

Men now in the Army who apply for discharge after NOVEMBER 1 for the purpose of reenlisting in the Regular Army will also retain their present grades, if they enlist within 30 days after discharge and before FEBRUARY 1, 1946.

These special privileges are typical of the new law recently passed by Congress. Few opportunities for a lifetime career offer as many attractive advantages.

Can you think of any other job that would give you good pay, your food, clothing, quarters, free medical and dental care, world-wide travel, 30 days' furlough every year, education and training in any of nearly 200 skills or trades, and enable you to retire with a life income anytime after 20 years' service?

There isn't any! That's why a job in the Regular Army has been called "The Best Job in the World."

Texas And Her Annexation

By Dr. E. C. Barker, Professor of American History, The University of Texas

THE TEXAS PROPOSAL IS PRESENTED

While William H. Wharton was still in Washington fretting over delay in the recognition of Texas, president Houston sent General Memucan Hunt to assist him. He succeeded Wharton in the post at Washington, and in August, 1837, made the first and only proffer of Texas to the United States.

He was handicapped by circumstances. Mexico was threatening invasion to reconquer its traitor province and the new republic, whatever its latent resources, was ill-prepared to maintain a national government and wage a war of defense; yet Hunt chose to present the subject in the light of a favor to the United States.

He began with a lengthy summary of the history of Mexico since its independence, emphasizing the frequent revolutions and political instability. Then he reviewed the history of Texas during 1821-1836, showing its impressive development in the face of Mexican neglect and distrust. Arriving at the heart of his discourse, he declared in the grandiloquent language of which his generation was a master on occasion that Texas desired an "amalgamation of flags" on terms consistent with the honor of Texas. Annexation, he said, would give the United States the great natural resources of Texas, would assure it a growing market for American manufacturers from the North, would enable it to avoid competition with Texas cotton and sugar in Europe, and would strengthen American control of Gulf of Mexico. The United States would need to act promptly, he added, because Texas was already negotiating commercial treaties with European countries and, when they were completed, it would be difficult for Texas to withdraw and accept annexation to the United States.

The United States Declines

After a delay of three weeks, the American secretary of state replied. He, too, indulged in a little bombast. In recognizing Texan independence, he said, his government had not overlooked the possibility of rivalry with certain Texas products in Europe, but it had believed that gratitude would restrain the Texans from injuring the United States.

He then stated two reasons which prevented President Van Buren from accepting the Texas offer. The first was constitutional, the second was the desire to avoid offense to Mexico. The United States, he said, had never annexed a foreign independent territory, the President, under the Constitution, to do so. True enough, the United States had annexed Louisiana and Florida without the consent of their inhabitants, but President Van Buren did not consider those acquisitions a precedent for incorporating the territory of an independent nation with the consent of its citizens. Nor did the President wish to reserve the question for future consideration. As to the Mexican aspect of the subject, the President declared that, since Texas was still nominally at war with Mexico, annexation would make the United States a party to the war. Back of this thought was the possibility that England might enter the war as an ally of Mexico. The constitutional scruple seems absurd and insincere, but it was urged ably by spokesmen of the "nullifiers" and, in extenuation, we know that law and diplomacy make use of their technicalities. Hunt had the last word. He replied as best he could, but it was obvious that Van Buren would have none of Texas, and he would be President until 1841.

Seven hundred and eighty six Knox County farmers have suffered a loss of $92,100.00 on account of Cotton Root Rot this year. These figures are estimates of the wide spread damage that is common in most communities of the county, and especially those on the South side of the river, according to R. O. Dinkie, County Agent.

Cotton Root Rot Causing Heavy Losses To Farmers of Knox County

Root Rot concerns not only those engaged in agriculture, but also persons living in the cities and towns, since all people living in Knox County are dependent upon agriculture as their source of livelihood.

Root Rot is caused by a fungus which attacks the roots of the cotton plant and causes them to decay. This fungus spreads from plant to plant chiefly along the roots rather than by independent growth for long distances through the soil. The root rot fungus over winters in an active condition on the living infected roots of the cotton plant, and continues to spread along these roots during winter even after the tops of the plant have been killed by frost.

The first step that shows some degrees of the control on the Texas Experiment Stations of cotton Root Rot is that of turning under the cotton stalks immediately after picking while they are still green. The difference in yield under experimental tests by this practice alone has given an increase of from 305 pounds of seed cotton per acre to 493 pounds of seed cotton. The second and the most important in the control of Root Rot is that of crop rotation in which Hubam Clover or Root Rot resistant varieties of field peas are planted in the rotation. This practice of rotation includes that of turning under the sweet clover and field peas as green manure crops. This practice has reduced root rot from 54 per cent down to 2 per cent, and has increased cotton yields from 540 pounds to 1015 pounds of seed cotton per acre. This method of turning under green manure crops and stalks turned under immediately after picking, seems to be the most practical for Knox County.

Let's tear your electric bill to pieces

GO AHEAD, lady—tear your electric bill apart and see what it's made up of.

This little piece lights all your lamps. This one plays your radios. This cools and keeps your food. This washes your clothes. This takes care of the cooking and ironing and cleaning. And so on.

That's a lot of different jobs to be covered by one small bill. And—hold on! You've paid for more than just electricity. About 25c of every dollar you pay for electric service goes in turn for taxes which benefit your community and help carry our heavy federal government expenditures.

Taxes UP...General cost of living UP...You'd think the cost of electric service would be up, too. But it isn't. The overall rate has even come down a little since the war began. Actually—

The average family gets about twice as much electricity for its money today as it did fifteen years ago!

This welcome fact comes from the careful planning and progressive spirit of America's business-managed, self-supporting, tax-paying electric companies.

Memories Of Past Years Return With Visit Here of Rev. and Mrs. Wallace

Activities of past years returned to the memory of many Knox County old timers with the visit of Rev. and Mrs. Ed R. Wallace of Shamrock and their daughter over the week end. Rev. Wallace filled the pulpit at the local Methodist Church at the Sunday morning service, and a large congregation, many of whom were old friends of years past, attended the service.

Rev. Wallace was pastor at Munday in the early 1900's—some 43 years ago. He helped to build the first Methodist Church here and worked with the local committee in securing the railroad for Munday. He referred briefly to these two activities in his sermon, and as he did the minds of those old timers who knew him in the early days of our town were carried back to many other events in which Ed R. Wallace was active.

They recalled, for instance, that Ed R. Wallace was largely instrumental in uniting East Munday and West Munday into the little town of Munday, Texas, when strife and rivalry existed between the two settlements.

They recalled, for instance, that and his wife braved the hardships of pioneer days to bring Methodism into the wide expanse of western Texas—of how he pastored circuits which included five or six counties—of how Rev. and Mrs. Wallace traveled by horse and buggy from near Fort Worth to his new Pastorate at Silverton, taking several months to make the trip, of being caught in a snowstorm and spending the night at a sheep herder's dugout between here and Benjamin. Upon reaching Benjamin, they spent two or three weeks with a pastor there until travel was again possible.

Rev. Wallace, who is 79 years of age, has pastored churches from Arlington to the great plains—at Munday, Haskell, Wellington and various other points, and was instrumental in building many Methodist churches in the now Northwest Texas Conference. He retired about 14 years ago and he and Mrs. Wallace have made their home in Shamrock since that time.

"I have lived a happy life," Rev. Wallace said in his sermon. "I've enjoyed my stay on this earth, and I want to stay a while longer. If I should have a message for you, it is that a 'joy-full life is a power-full life', and this can be obtained through service of God and your fellowman."

While here, Rev. and Mrs. Wallace visited with several whom they knew lived at Munday—the W. A. Bakers, the J. A. Caughtrons, the Lee Haymes, Mrs. Ethel P. Pool and Miss Shelly Lee and others.

Bigger Market Indicated For Peanut Crop

NEW YORK.—New markets for Texas peanut crop, estimated at 398,000,000 pounds this year, are forecast with an announcement from James A. Stewart, vice president in charge of American Can Company's research and development division, that new canned peanut products are being tested.

Mr. Stewart said that his company's research department has canned experimentally peanut scrapple, peanut succotash, baked peanuts and soy beans in tomato sauce, peanut soup and chocolate pudding with peanuts. He added that results of this experimental canning indicate these products can be commercially packaged.

The high nutritive value of peanuts, one of the best sources of vitamin B1, together with the nut's widely popular flavor, should create an excellent market for such items, the can company official continued. As an indication of the importance of peanuts in the diet of the American soldier, he said that more than 62,000,000 cans of the nuts were supplied the government during the first six months of 1945. During the war the military forces used 100,000,000 cans of peanuts annually.

The can company is continuing its research on canning the peanut in various forms, he said further.
