Ford still considering entering GOP contest

WASHINGTON (AP) — As four active candidates for the Republican presidential nomination ready for tonight's GOP debate in Chicago, the "phantom candidate," Gerald Ford, is carrying the party's attack on President Carter and talking like he wants to run.

The former president, who delivered a biting attack on Carter's policies Wednesday night, accepted an invitation to meet today with the president at the White House.

"I don't know what he wants to discuss," Ford told reporters. "He asked me to come over, and I assume we'll talk about what he wants to talk about."

The former president received a rousing reception when he told a GOP congressional fund-raising dinner that "this country is in deep, deep trouble," and that he is determined to drive Carter, the man who defeated him in 1976, from office.

"Carter must go," he said. "My soul, single purpose, politically or otherwise, is to get President Carter out of the White House and to replace him with a Republican president."

"The nation is in peril," he said. "The Carter policies are the villain. His economic program has been a disaster. His energy policies have been misguided and ineffective. His foreign policies have been contradictory, erratic and dangerous."

Ford earlier Wednesday conferred privately with his closest political advisers and said he will decide after next Tuesday's Illinois primary whether to challenge frontrunner Ronald Reagan for the nomination.

The four GOP contenders in tonight's debate are expected to have something to say about a potential Ford candidacy. They are Reagan, George Bush, John B. Anderson and Philip Crane.

Carter's chief Democratic rival, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, was also in Illinois today campaigning in Peoria and Chicago.

Ford told reporters he felt he had the best chance of beating Carter in November. But he said the need to defeat Carter was so great that he would back any Republican nominee, including Reagan.

Just last week Ford, who has held a grudge against Reagan since their bitter primary battles in 1976, said he thought the former California governor was too conservative to beat Carter.

Reagan, who grabbed a strong lead in the Republican race with lopsided primary victories in Alabama, Georgia and Florida on Tuesday, said Wednesday that if Ford entered, it would draw votes from all GOP candidates.

"I think I understand the strategy of those advising Ford to enter the primaries," Reagan said. "Then no one will have the delegates for a first-round victory."

He discounted a recent ABC-Harris Poll that showed Ford as a stronger Republican candidate.

After Ma Bell paid double

Tax board to audit itself

By STEVE HERSHBERGER
Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal Board voted unanimously Wednesday to audit its operations after several board members expressed being perplexed about several accounts in its bookkeeping.

The board learned that the communications expense account had debits totaling $1,022.07. The board found out that bills under this account had been double paid and the tax appraisal unit had a sizeable telephone credit.

"I look at communications, basically telephone," board member Jack Watkins said. "I am confused and the city is confused."

Until the end of February, the city had been handling the bookkeeping for the tax board. The telephone bill of the city and the tax board had been combined, and separate documents rosters were not kept.

Watkins told the board, "I am going to call Bell's Commercial Office and get a breakdown of these calls."

The communications account was not the only one in question. Members did not know what the account longevity was. The board also learned that several tax appraisal employees had been paid erroneously for vacations earned.

Board member Don McKinney said, "I think we should have an audit and send it out to all (taxing entities) who are participating."

The board will take the steps to hire an auditing firm at its April meeting.

In another fiscal move, the board voted to have all bills approved by the body at each regular meeting. The board also instructed tax appraisal staff to have each bill attached to the check.

Zirah Bednor, County Tax Assessor and Collector, appeared before the board to present two contracts the tax board requested for use of the county's computer.

One contract had a life of two years and provided for programming to meet the provisions of Senate Bill 621.

The second contract will provide for additional functions above Senate Bill 621 specifications which Chief Tax Appraiser Earl Dean has requested. The life of this contract will run for three years.

The proposed cost of each contract will be $1,000 monthly.

The reason for the different terms, Bednor said, was that the county could recover the cost of the additional programming over Senate Bill 621 requisites in three years.

In final action, the board amended its assessment for the Howard County Water Conservation District, No. 1 to join the tax appraisal operation.

Originally the water district was assessed $3,000 for joining the board.

Water District President Oscar Cagle appeared before the tax board offering a compromise to the $3,000 assessment. He proposed the water district pay $700 for its share in the cost of mapping and the tax appraisal office's furniture and supplies.

Cagle added that the water district would pay $1 to the tax board for each property card adjusted or for each new card.

Cagle told the board at one time the water district belonged to the tax appraisal board, but in time membership proved to be too expensive.

After hearing Cagle, board member Roy Watkins said, "From what you have said it has been an unfair imposition on them."

The board agreed unanimously to accept the compromise water district assessment.

'Whenever he got to drinking, you know, he got real rude'

Murder weapon not produced, defense claims

By DON WOODS
Defense attorney Pete McKinney is presenting evidence in the murder trial of Mary Tillis today in 118th District Courtroom. District Attorney Rick Hamby tentatively closed the state's case Tuesday around 2 p.m.

McKinney introduced a motion stating that Hamby had failed to enter a murder weapon into evidence or prove that one exists. McKinney said one of the other 50 people in Dickie's Barn Jan. 12 "could have shot the deceased (Gene Vanderbilt)."

His first witness was Betty Faye Gee, Ms. Tillis's daughter. Ms. Gee testified that Elmer Green told Ms. Tillis to go home and get his gun. "Whenever he got to drinking, you know, he got real rude," she said. She said Ms. Tillis was afraid he would "jump" on her in the public bar. Green had struck Ms. Tillis on numerous occasions, she said.

Ms. Gee went with Ms. Tillis to her home in the projects in the 1000 block of Main. Ms. Tillis put the pistol in her purse and returned to Dickie's Lounge.

An hour after Ms. Gee and Ms. Tillis returned, the trouble started, said Ms. Gee. She said she sat down with Gene and Gwen Vanderbilt at a separate table from that of her mother and step-father, Elmer Green.

"I heard Gene tell Gwen to give him his piece," said Ms. Gee. She said she went back to her parents' table where there was a "tussle" over Ms. Tillis's purse.

Green got the gun away from them and Ms. Gee and Ms. Tillis ran to a bar across the street, the T-Club.

Ms. Gee said she had tried to get her stepfather of 19 years to go home but that he had replied that he was afraid of what people would think of them.

Hamby asked Ms. Gee why they didn't take the gun somewhere else other than the club. She said her mother would have been injured by Green if she had. "My mother knew that's what would happen if she didn't come back," said Ms. Gee.

She didn't hear Ms. Tillis say anything about wanting Vanderbilts shot. Ken Turner had testified Wednesday that she had made a statement to that effect.

"Don't you think if you had been using your reason you wouldn't have come back to the bar with that gun?" asked Hamby. "Yes, sir," said Ms. Gee.

Both attorneys established that she didn't know Vanderbilt had a gun before letting her leave the witness stand.

McKinney called Gwen Vanderbilt to the stand. "What did he (Gene) look like? Can you describe him to us?" asked McKinney. She said he was 36 years old when he was killed. He weighed 198 pounds and was 6-feet, 4-inches tall. He had a beard, she said.

She said he owned a .380 caliber pistol but didn't have it with him on the night in question. "It was in my purse," she said. She had brought it with her that night.

Hamby had no questions for Ms. Vanderbilt.

James (Bubba) Hayes was put on the stand. He testified he was in the bar Jan. 12 and that he had been talking with Ms. Tillis. McKinney understood him to say during testimony that he hadn't seen anything that night. McKinney and Hamby approached the bench and the jury recessed to the jury room.

McKinney claimed that Hayes had changed his testimony and that he was a hostile witness. He said he had talked to Hayes Jan. 23 and taped their conversation. He said that Hayes has been indicted for a felony since the murder. McKinney asked him why he had changed his testimony.

"You're talking about the shooting?"

Man, I didn't have no choice. You didn't let me get to it," said Hayes.

The jury was brought back in and testimony resumed. Hayes saw Green get the gun from Ms. Tillis's purse and heard him tell Ms. Gee and Ms. Tillis to get out of the way.

He said he didn't hear Ms. Tillis tell Green to shoot Vanderbilt, but that he saw Vanderbilt and Green shoot each other.

Juan P. Palacios, identification and records officer for Big Spring Police Department, was called to take the stand.

He testified that four guns were found in the bar: a .380 caliber automatic pistol, a .22 revolver, a .38 caliber revolver and a .22 pistol. Both attorneys stipulated that a .38 pistol was found near Green and a .22 pistol found near Vanderbilt.

Mary Tillis testified she had had an altercation with Ms. Vanderbilt in the ladies restroom early in the evening.

"Me and Gwen got into it," she said. When Ms. Tillis returned to the table Ms. Vanderbilt was "calling names," said Ms. Tillis. She said the Vanderbilts had gone out to their car. She thought they were going to get a gun.

At that point, Green told her to get his gun from their home, said Ms. Tillis. When she returned with the gun the shooting started. "They started walking toward one another," she said. She said she went to a club across the street before the shooting started.

Hamby cross-examined the defendant asking her why she went home to get the gun. She explained again that she was afraid of what Green would do to her.

Defense closed after Ms. Tillis's testimony. The charge will be prepared and final arguments given at 2 p.m.

Gasohol makes its way to Big Spring Friday

Gasohol comes to Big Spring at 10 a.m. Friday when the Swiftly station at 1915 Gregg begins selling the mixture of gas and alcohol.

Arthur Wiley, President of Swiftly Distributors, Inc., said this station will begin selling gasohol at seven cents above the price of unleaded gas. The gasohol will be sold from an unleaded pump.

Wiley said gasohol aids the performance of an automobile.

"It makes a car run cooler," Wiley said, "and gives a little better mileage."

He added, "Another reason for using gasohol is that the government doesn't want the fuel to add any pollutants to the air." The president of Swiftly said gasohol is a cleaner burning fuel.

Wiley will be on hand for the opening. A test automobile, a Chevrolet Citation, also will be at the gasohol inauguration.

Budget cutters reach agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Br'er Rabbit could have told congressional budget cutters about the frustrations of wrestling with tar babies.

But after days of becoming increasingly entangled in issues as sticky as the baby fashioned of tar that gave the rabbit in the folk tale such problems, it looks like they're figuring it out themselves.

Some congressional sources say the budget cutters have reached tentative agreements on some $17 billion in cuts and a $4 billion increase in tax revenues for the upcoming fiscal year. But others say the decisions aren't that solid and that the final mixture — and the overall savings — could change.

There is no guarantee, of course, that any of the estimated 40 or so proposals under consideration will be adopted. The panel of administration economists and congressional leaders is only trying to decide which are most feasible.

Murmurs of unrest already are being heard.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Cars are first

Q. Americans spend more money on their home than on any other item during their lifetime. What is the second most expensive thing for them?

A. You're wrong. The average American spends more money buying and servicing cars than for any other thing. We spend more than $30 billion a year on new cars, and an equal amount on car repairs. Traffic fatalities cost the nation $43 billion a year.

Windfall profits tax Exemption fades for independents

WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said Wednesday there is little hope his amendment to exempt independent oil dealers from the pending windfall profits tax will be reinstated in the bill currently under consideration by congress.

Even as the House Wednesday began final deliberations on the $227 billion bill that taxes oil revenues, Bentsen, at his monthly news conference, said he would back any effort to return the proposal to committee.

"But the odds are against recommitting the bill and getting my full proposal back into the bill," said Bentsen.

Hundreds of Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana oil men have been in Washington this week as part of a formal protest of the bill that they say will put many independent dealers out of business.

William Watts, an independent oil dealer from Woodsboro, Texas, said the protest group's goal is to change the minds of at least eight senators who would vote to get the bill sent back to committee.

Watts said the Bentsen amendment, if it could be reinstated in the bill, would satisfy the protest group, which built a portable oil derrick along Pennsylvania Avenue near the Capitol.

Bentsen's original proposal would exempt oil companies from paying taxes on the first 1,000 barrels of oil a day.

"I don't think the senators' minds will be changed," said Bentsen. "They've been through the fight and they want to dispose of it."

Bentsen said he would fight to send the bill back to committee because it is a "very bad economic measure."

And Bentsen said reports that President Carter would reimpose controls on the oil industry if the bill does not pass would not deter him from voting to stop the bill.

ONE OF SEVERAL — Roberta Ross, right, and Elsie Merrell straighten one of their paintings currently on display at Citizens Federal Credit Union.

Art members select paintings for display

Roberta Ross and Elsie Merrell have been selected by fellow members of the Big Spring Art Association to exhibit their current works at Citizens Federal Credit Union. The exhibit, which will be open to the general public from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, will be on display through March 31.

Roberta Ross, in addition to being a member of the local art association, is also a member of the Texas Fine Arts Association and the International Society of Artists. This well-accepted artist, who enjoys painting wildlife and outdoor landscapes and settings, uses the media of oil, watercolor, pastel, graphics, and mixed media.

She is the winner of numerous awards, and was recently selected as the Sweepstakes winner in the Snyder show.

Talking about her work, Ross said "I also experiment with painting on wood and leather — and cloth. Painting is one of the best ways to experience and enjoy creativity — and bring pleasure to the artist and hopefully to the viewer."

Elsie Merrell shares some of the same views of art as Ross, but feel that being an artist is "an old dictum that no one should try to become a fine artist unless he has to, when the inner drive is too strong to override."

Merrell said she has stopped painting two or three times, but always started again. She has also received numerous awards and was accepted in the Benedictine World Wide show in 1976.

Her view of art and its place in the Southwest is rather straightforward. She says the "so-called 'Southwest Artist' have been making all the otowns of any size practically giving their art away. They sell a painting cheaper than most individuals can buy a canvas (or other support) to paint on. But I still keep painting," she continued.

The recent efforts of both Merrell and Ross are both on display this month at Citizens Credit Union. Individuals wishing to view or purchase paintings should come by the credit union during regular business hours.

'Door still open' for U.N. efforts in Iran

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance says "the door is still open" for U.N. efforts to help free the American hostages in Tehran. And two members of the U.N. investigating commission express optimism despite their failure to see the captives in the U.S. Embassy.

"The door is still open and I will be keeping in touch with the secretary-general," Vance said as he left for Washington Wednesday night after meeting at U.N. headquarters in New York with Kurt Waldheim and the five members of the investigating panel.

Another official of the Carter administration said earlier: "We have no false expectations about the chances the commission can do something positive. But we have no very desirable options either."

Vance said he felt the work of the commission — which spent 17 days in Tehran investigating the revolutionary regime's charges against the ousted shah and trying in vain to see the hostages — was useful, but he declined to say what it might do next.

"I am counseling patience," he declared. "I believe that this is the best course to follow. As I indicated, the door is not closed, and I think we should continue to pursue this option."

The commission's co-chairman, Algerian U.N. Ambassador Mohamed Bedjaoui, said, "I am optimistic, and we have some reasons," but he declined to elaborate. Another member, Louis-Edmond Pettiti of France said, "We are full of hope."

Today was the 131st day of captivity for the approximately 50 Americans held by young Moslem militants in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Waldheim and the U.S. government hoped that in return for listening to the Iranian regime's recital of evidence of the shah's alleged crimes, the commission would at least be allowed to see all the hostages and that the publication of the panel's report would be followed speedily by the release of the captives.

These hopes were torpedoed on Monday by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolution, who endorsed the refusal of the young militants to permit the meeting except on terms rejected by the U.N. commission. The commission left Tehran and with Waldheim said it would issue no report until it was allowed to return and see the captives.

Meanwhile, Khomeini had said the new Iranian parliament being elected Friday and on April 4 would decide the fate of the hostages, and President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr and other leading officials said the legislators would not be organized to take up the matter before mid-May.

The doctor pronounced the hostages "satisfactory taking into account the psychological state of those detained for almost five months."

Grand jury deliberating

Howard County Jury investigations are expected to be completed today, according to Assistant District Attorney Don Richard.

He said case presentations will not be completed until after lunch and that deliberations will begin then.

The jurors are considering 36 cases and three murders including a voluntary manslaughter in which one man died from a wound allegedly caused by a blow from a pool cue.

After their release, the students stood bewildered outside the city court building but raised their fists and began chanting when television cameras arrived.

"It's obvious this whole episode was contrived and planned to use the judicial system to gain national publicity for their cause," said Powell.

Bail by mail frees 44 Iranian students

MONROE, La. (AP) — Forty-four Iranian students, arrested last week after they hooded down the shah's former ambassador to the United Nations, were released today on bail posted anonymously by mail.

"I received the amount of the bond today. I don't remember how much," said William Armstrong, assistant city attorney. "The 44 left. I can't tell you who paid the bond."

"I can tell you I received it through the mail and it was marked, 'For the Iranian Students.'"

Bail ranged up to $100 for the students, all of whom were charged with trespass.

Most also were charged with resisting an officer because they refused to identify themselves.

Mayor Bob Powell said the students probably would stand trial as scheduled Friday in municipal court, despite their surprise release at mid-morning today.

After their release, the students stood bewildered outside the city court building but raised their fists and began chanting when television cameras arrived.

"It's obvious this whole episode was contrived and planned to use the judicial system to gain national publicity for their cause," said Powell.

Fire disrupts service

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A grease fire beneath a Broad Street subway train disrupted service on a 22-block stretch of the line and filled a passenger car with thick, acrid smoke.

Transit officials said the fire broke out shortly before noon Wednesday as the five-car train pulled into Olney station.

"Power on the subway line was shut off for 45 minutes," said officials of Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority. Some passengers were momentarily trapped inside the cars because of malfunctioning doors, but there were no injuries.

Sale gimmick bombs

DETROIT (AP) — Less than 1 percent of Chrysler Corp.'s cars and trucks sold with a unique 30-day, money-back guarantee are being returned, the No. 3 automaker says.

Only 84 cars were turned in for a refund or an exchange in the first 30 calendar days of the offer when 70,735 cars and trucks were sold, sales officials said.

Chrysler expected about 1 percent of the vehicles to be returned. The guarantee, meant as a long-term confidence-builder, has not boosted Chrysler's sales, which in February were 34 percent below those of the same month last year.

Two surviving alone

CHICAGO (AP) — Two of the three surviving Moeller quintuplets born Feb. 9 are now off respirators at Northwestern Memorial Hospital.

Spokeswoman Jane O'Brien said Allen Jake and David Thomas were in good condition Wednesday. Elizabeth Rose was in fair condition, still on a respirator.

Two of the babies died soon after they were born by Caesarean section, nine weeks premature. Their parents are Patricia and Allen Moeller, who also have a three-year-old daughter.

Man not fit for trial

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — A 64-year-old man who said he started a fire in his Skid Row hotel room to keep warm is incompetent to stand trial for aggravated arson and manslaughter, a district judge has ruled.

Two persons died in the December 1979 fire at the Reid Hotel, and seven other hotel residents died later.

Second District Judge Calvin Gould on Wednesday committed Robert Leatherman to an indefinite stay in the Utah State Hospital, saying that chronic brain damage prevented him from aiding in his defense. Leatherman had admitted starting a fire under his sink in his unheated hotel room to keep warm, officials said.

Wants to grow with Big Spring Growth of Lantex traced

Lantex Hydraulics, Inc. is a growing company and wants also to grow with Big Spring, its personnel director told the Downtown Lions Wednesday.

Don Welch of Lancaster, where the headquarters and main plant of the Big Spring's newest industry are located, traced the steady growth of the concern to a $17,000,000 volume in cylinders for hydraulic lifts of all types, an employee total of some 250 drawing over $3,000,000 a year. The company has a backlog of $16,000,000 in orders, hence its second facility here.

Officials have been looking over possible sites for two years and chose Big Spring, thanks to a cooperative spirit and some 94,000 square feet of available industrial space and equipment at the Industrial Park with its adjacent airport facilities.

Welch has been interviewing prospective employees and said he was impressed by the number of trainable prospects. He stressed that virtually all of the employees for the new plant, which is scheduled for a start-up in July, will be hired locally.

Development of the work force of unskilled, semi-skilled and highly-skilled employees will come at a deliberate pace because "we have to crawl before we can walk and run," but eventually the work force may approach that of the home plant in number.

Lantex makes hydraulic cylinders for agricultural and commercial mobile units, and these range from 6-inch to 20-inch long cylinders, and one (for compacting old car frames) has an 8-inch bore. Some of the biggest companies in the country are Lantex customers. One coincidence: One company manufacturing cotton compactors at Big Spring's Industrial Park is a customer.

Police beat Suspected gas thieves seized

Burglars, thieves and vandals were back in action Wednesday.

A box full of welding tools was stolen from a truck belonging to Gary Plew, 905 Rummels, sometime between 10 and 11 a.m. Wednesday. The tools were valued at $600.

Officer Joe Diliberto arrested a man and a boy who were in the process of siphoning gas from a truck parked at Brown's Service Station, 1629 E. 3rd, 12:15 a.m. today. The two were hiding behind the service station, loading a five-gallon gas can into the trunk of their car.

They had, however, left a green hose hanging from the tank of the truck.

Officer Roy Osborne found a broken pane of glass at the West Third Exxon Station, 500 W. 3rd, while on patrol, 1 a.m., today. Damage was estimated at $100.

Two custom hubcaps were stolen from a car belonging to Carroll Faught, Holiday Inn, sometime Tuesday night. Loss was estimated at $50.

A box spring and mattress were stolen from a rent house at 1514 B. Wood belonging to the Ventura Company, 1200 W. 3rd. Burglars broke a glass pane in the rear door to gain entry. Loss was estimated at $200.

One mishap was reported Wednesday. Vehicles driven by Royce Johnson, 1413 Wood, and Richard Hanson, 205 E. 22nd, collided on the 1300 block of Sycamore, 11:10 a.m.

Joseph Kraft added to Herald editorial page

Joseph Kraft, a new editorial page columnist for The Herald, has emerged in the past decade as one of the foremost commentators on national and international affairs.

He is the only columnist to serve as a questioner on the 1976 presidential debate panels, the only columnist to be wiretapped in the Watergate affair, one of only two columnists to accompany President Nixon to China in 1972, and the only columnist chosen to return again to China with Henry Kissinger in 1979.

British journalist Henry Fairlie once singled out Kraft as the only visible successor to Walter Lippmann and Lippmann, himself, commented, "Kraft is the most promising commentator of his generation."

Kraft entered journalism at the age of 14 as a high school sports reporter for The New York World Telegram. He worked for the Washington Post as an editorial writer, for the New York Times on the Sunday section and for Harper's Magazine as Washington correspondent. He served as a speech writer for John Kennedy in the 1960 presidential campaign. He has written for most of the major magazines in the country and is a regular contributor to New Yorker. He is the author of four books: The Struggle for Algeria, 1961; The Grand Design, 1966; Profiles in Power, 1966; and The Chinese Difference, 1973.

"Kraft refers to himself as a 'nouveau vague' columnist who refuses to be classified either left or right. He feels the role of the journalist is '...simply to surface the issues. We journalists have got to be more modest in our conclusions.'"

Born in South Orange, N.J., Kraft was educated at the Fieldston School, Columbia, the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton and the Sorbonne. He served as a Japanese language officer in World War II.

Kraft's column appears three times a week in 170 newspapers in this country and 50 abroad.

Weather Cold front sweeps across state today

By the Associated Press

A cold front moved southward across southern and southeastern sections of Texas today, accompanied by brisk northerly winds.

The front was located before dawn along a line from near San Antonio and College Station northeastward into southern Arkansas.

Northerly winds 15-20 mph were reported behind the front, but the blowing dust that clouded skies over north central and western portions of the state Wednesday dissipated during the night.

Highs today were to range from the low 50s in the Panhandle to the low to middle 80s in South Texas. Most areas were to have highs in the 60s and 70s.

Fog was reported early today in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 30s in the Panhandle to the 60s in the Hill Country of South Central Texas. Extremes ranged from 27 at Dalhart to 69 at San Antonio.

Not many anniversary clocks have the precision of this one by Howard Miller.

Its quartz movement is accurate to within 5 seconds a month.

Again unlike most, it counts on the hour and strikes on the half. A single battery supplies power for a year.

Etched glass panels and a mirrored back panel complete a very lovely picture.

American surgeon may perform shah's surgery

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Famed American surgeon Michael DeBakey will fly to Panama to examine Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and will remove his spleen if he decides the operation is necessary, a spokesman for the doctor says.

Although the shah's personal physician had said the operation was needed, DeBakey's spokesman said Wednesday in Houston,

Texas, that "no one is committed to surgery. They first will have to examine the shah."

The shah's New York physician, Dr. Benjamin Kean, said earlier that he examined the deposed monarch last week in Panama and that his spleen was inflamed, enlarged and probably associated with a tumor. He said the shah would soon undergo "hazardous" surgery to have it removed.

Commission hardly threat to America

The Trilateral Commission has suddenly become very big in the presidential race. Certain forces behind this candidate and that have insisted on making the commission a rallying cry for Campaign '80.

They have already tied George Bush to it, and Jimmy Carter is beginning to take his lumps for having been involved in it. It is as if the commission were a conspiracy rather than a concept.

Let's pick up on the story in Scene One, Act One. The Trilateral Commission is the brainchild of David Rockefeller. Its detractors never tire of pointing out that fact. It is as if there exists an intrigue that can result only in the death of a nation.

There is, however, little sinister about the relationship or the creation of the commission.

THE GROUP WAS created in 1973 to study assorted issues confronting this great continent, along with Western Europe and Japan. The membership assembles once a year to talk over reports prepared by various task forces.

The membership constitutes a veritable Who's Who of the American Establishment. In addition to alumni like Jimmy Carter and George Bush, its ranks include National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski (who, prior to joining the Carter administration was the commission's executive director), Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, Vice President Walter Mondale and U.S. Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, among others.

These are the people that the John Birch Society and the U.S. Labor Party would have you believe are bent on nothing less than subverting the existing order, overthrowing the Constitution, doing away with the concept of statehood, establishing one-world government and carrying out other sinister tasks that diminish the individual rights of man.

THERE IS JUST one fatal flaw to this rather bizarre assumption:

The fact that Jimmy Carter, George Bush, Zbigniew Brzezinski and all the others have a far greater stake in the existing order than do most of the rest of us.

It is perhaps belaboring the obvious to point out that these gentlemen constitute a privileged, well entrenched elite who enjoy the first and best fruits of all that the American political and economic system produces. One can argue about whether there should be such an elite; but to insist that this group is hard at work undermining the system which supports it in such lavish style is to succumb to sheer mindless paranoia.

The Trilateral Commission may not be the good thing its founders hoped it would be, but it is no menace to the American way of life.

There is hope

Around the rim

Don Woods

Maybe there is hope for the future of our country. I had begun to have a few doubts.

Last Saturday a White House Conference on Families was held in Lubbock. Delegates were given a tremendous opportunity to take a shot at an administration that is considered by most to be inaccessible.

This in itself leaves room for encouragement. Maybe it signals a return to government by the governed, as our constitution specifies.

Delegates spoke on problems facing the family and solutions for the problems.

THIS BRINGS UP the second encouraging thing about the conference; the obvious unity of the delegates. There was a single-minded concern for morals, reasonableness and sound thinking.

Many expressed the thinking that the whole problem with the nation can be traced back to a weak family. National failings are because of family failings, they said.

Many (including myself) expressed the view that the return of citizens to faith in God, a muscular Christianity, is imperative for strong families and a subsequent strong nation. Nice stories about devotion and positive thinking from the pulpit detract. Churchgoers need to leave church doors on Sunday with more than a challenge to be nicer people. They need the Biblical definition of what people should be like. They need the Bible's doctrine for the strength to be the people God wants them to be.

Otherwise, without the proper motivation and power source for subsequent action, churchgoers will go home and live like anyone else. No wonder society in general has written off the church as a bad time investment.

Panels that heard the five-minute statements each included state representatives or senators. These men and women were inundated with viewpoints from ordinary businessmen and homemakers who felt that the government does not need to do anything about the family but protect it from blatant departure from conventionality. Representative Mike Ezell was on the panel reviewing my talk as well as three other Big Spring people. Quite a few locals showed up.

IN FACT, LUBBOCK was the biggest White House Conference in the state. The conference there entertained 300 speakers while the ones in Houston and Dallas each had around 250, according to conference director Dr. Douglas Chatfield. He said viewpoints considered "liberal" were very scarce in Texas. The viewpoints expressed most often at the conference will be chosen for discussion at the White House Conference in July in Los Angeles.

Texas will send 78 conferees to the conference. Gov. Clements will choose 53 and the remainder will be chosen by drawing March 31. Delegates' transportation and accommodation expenses will be paid by the White House. Sure, there were a few whackers there. One lady advocated her league of parents that didn't believe in having children. She supported abortion. I don't know how many there were in her club, but I'm sure if they prospered too much they could advocate themselves out of existence.

It almost looks like national government is striving to act in accordance with the needs of its constituency. But this is the place for clichés like, "The proof is in the pudding," and "I'll believe it when I see it."

One thing I appreciate about the government is sponsorship of a conference encouraging exercise of the privilege of free speech. Like I said, maybe we'll make it yet.

Whittling down

Joseph Kraft

God may be in the details. But there is such a thing as making molehills out of mountains — whittling everything down to less than size. The trivialization of issues now characterizes Washington, and that condition says a good deal about the mind of the president, the nature of his majority and the temper of the country as a whole.

Inflation, the country's No. 1 problem, provides the most telling example. Staggering figures from the Producer and Consumer Price indexes for January combined with a lax budget for 1981 to induce an atmosphere of crisis in the markets of this country and the world. Interest rates went almost out of sight, and talk of runaway inflation and national bankruptcy flowed from sober-sided businessmen.

To avert panic, the president has ordered a revision of the budget with an eye toward erasing the deficit programmed for 1981. A reduction of some $15 billion is in prospect. But the consultations now going forward inside the administration and with the Congress aim at finding a multitude of tiny cuts that nobody can feel or even perceive — the budgetary equivalent of hairline fractures. Far from being an impressive move that gets out front of the problem, the budget-balancing act already shapes up as a mere Band-Aid certain to foster, after a brief lapse, another crisis of confidence.

ENERGY, THE COUNTRY'S second most pressing problem, affords a similar case. Practically everybody acknowledges that considerable conservation of scarce resources can be achieved by backing utilities out of gas and oil and into coal for the generation of electric power. The president has been formally on board for such a program since mid-July.

But a bill providing incentives to the utilities is stuck inside the administration. There is no agreement about how to limit the acid rain caused by the burning of more coal.

In foreign policy, the president announced less than two months ago a major new commitment to defense of the Persian Gulf area. But the challenge set up by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan is becoming progressively less clear. In the process every step proposed by Mr. Carter has dwindled into virtual nothingness.

A new thrust in military manpower has been hung up around the question of the role of women in the armed services. Retaliation against the Soviet Union has come to center around the question of how to hold a counter-Olympics.

The chance of guiding Israel into a more accommodating position towards the Palestinian Arabs was drowned in a squabble over the wording of a United Nations resolution. Leaks caused Saudi Arabia to pull back from cooperation in both defense and oil pricing. Pakistan, seeing the U.S. in a dither, now wants no part of an offer of military assistance.

Behind all these mini-events lie genuine dilemmas. Circumstances require an address by the president to the issues of inflation, energy and foreign policy. But Carter does not have a solid base in the country. Rather his constituency is a diverse collection of minorities, environmentalists, consumer advocates and others interested in the quality of life. Instead of stepping up squarely to the big issues, the president takes tiny steps at the margin, fits bits and pieces of programs together and thus holds together his constituency.

Why not reduce sensibility

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You and your predecessor writers have one thing in common. You all denounce popular reducing plans for one reason or another. While I can agree with most of the objections you raise, I wonder what you and other doctors suggest as a reasonable way for a person to shed a few extra pounds. I mean short of crashing or getting into one of the special plans? — Mrs. T.J.

Most of the "miracle" diets contain flaws that defy basic rules of nutrition. There's no need to go into that.

I have noted that getting thin and staying that way requires a relearning of everyday eating habits. If you follow a few simple common sense rules you will accomplish significant weight loss. If it means loss of only an ounce a day that can mean 20 pounds in a year.

1. Don't kid yourself. Don't use excuses such as, "Everything I eat turns to fat," or "It runs in the family" or "It's my glands."
2. Exercise. Walk. Bowl. Ride a bike. Learn to move briskly habitually.
3. No nibbling between meals.
4. Don't forget calories in liquids. Coffee without cream and sugar adds no calories. Alcoholic drinks are high in calories. Drink water at meals.
5. Keep a record of your weight. Remember that once a day and how it adds up significantly. Don't get discouraged.
6. Learn how much to eat. Get over the habit of taking an extra portion or returning to the refrigerator 15 minutes after eating and considering that as part of a single meal.
7. Use drugs briefly if at all, and only under direct supervision by your doctor. Drugs are a needless crutch.
8. Remember that eating is governed by habit — and habits can be changed.
9. Learn the "calorie traps." Don't blame the potato so much as the butter and the gravy. Memorize a list of low-calorie snacks.
10. Don't skip meals. It isn't a good way to reduce.

Clip these rules out and tape them to your refrigerator door. Reread them daily. You will find yourself eating sensibly and probably enjoying it more — and you will lose the weight you want to lose. Guaranteed. When your body reaches a healthful weight it will know, and your new eating habits will keep it that way. This is all a reasonable person needs. If you need 36 pages of technical reasons why it works you'll find that in "Lost Secrets of Reducing." It is still available by sending 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 55, a female. I had an operation in which about half of my stomach was removed. Now I have nausea and pain. The doctor said this was "dumping syndrome," and said there's no cure. My neighborhood doc says there's an operation to correct things. True? Explain. — E.V.M.

I'll answer the surgery question last. There are two kinds of dumping syndrome. The "early" kind comes on 20 to 30 minutes after eating. Food, quite simply, is unceremoniously "dumped" from the stomach into the small intestine before it has had a chance to be digested properly. This causes a sensation of warmth, bloating, palpitations and diarrhea. The "late" dumping syndrome occurs two to three hours after a meal. The cause of this is thought to be low blood sugar from overproduction of insulin in the pancreas. Insulin burns blood sugar. This is treated by the hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) is — with high protein, low carbohydrate feedings of six small meals a day.

In a small number of cases, reoperation is necessary. The surgeon snips out a loop of the small intestine, turns it end for end, then stitches it back in place. This helps slow down digestion. The movement of the intestine wall that normally forces food downward from the stomach is now working in reverse (in that section), slowing things up. It's a neat trick, tried only after other methods fail — diet modification, or drugs to slow stomach emptying. A gastroenterologist can guide you.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it true that prostate gland removal has the same effect on a man as when a woman's ovaries are removed? I mean menopause and hot flashes, etc.? — Curious.

No. To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: How long should a woman use a Lippos loop type of IUD before having it removed? My family doctor has been vague about this. I am 26 and do not wish to have children at this time. I have no difficulty with the loop except cramps, which last a half a day a month. Enjoy your column. — E.E.

Supposedly, the Lippos loop can be left in place as long as you wish, so long as you are not having trouble with it. Some gynecologists remove them at intervals, like every five years. I can't say if your cramping is due to the device. A way to find out is to have it removed for a month and use another contraceptive method during that time. I would consider the experiment worth it.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I don't understand what you mean when you tell people to give their lives to Christ. After all, isn't living by the Golden Rule the really important thing in the Christian faith? — C.G.

DEAR C. G.: A believer in Christ will certainly seek to live the way God wants him to live. He will no longer want to live for himself, but live "for him who died for them and was raised again" (II Corinthians 5:15). He will want to act in a loving way toward those around him, because he knows Christ loves him and the Holy Spirit has given him a new ability to love.

But doing good — living by the Golden Rule, as you put it — is not the heart of the Christian faith. In fact, just trying to live by the Golden Rule (or some similar standard) may actually be the opposite of the Christian faith. The reason is this: The Bible teaches that we are sinners in the eyes of God. The Bible says, "There is not a righteous man on earth who does what is right and never sins... God made mankind upright, but men have gone in search of many schemes" (Ecclesiastes 7:20, 29). Look at your own life. Can you honestly say you have never committed a sin? Have your motives always been pure, and your thoughts honorable?

Furthermore, the Bible says it takes only one sin to condemn us in the eyes of God, because God is perfect, holy, and completely pure. The only thing we deserve from God is judgment. No matter how good we may try to be — no matter how often we may think we keep the Golden Rule — the fact remains: "No one will be declared righteous in his sight by observing the law; rather, through the law we become conscious of sin" (Romans 3:20).

No, you cannot be saved by your own good works. But that is why Christ came — to save us! He did for us what we could not do for ourselves. By dying on the cross He took away our sins. And by faith and trust in Him (and not yourself) you can be saved.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: I am a 32-year-old resident of the Federal Prison Camp in Big Spring, transferred here to serve the remainder of a six-year sentence and this is my attempt to satisfy a need I have recognized that needs to be rectified. The lack of knowledge and accurate information by the Big Spring Community regarding the concept of this Camp is powerfully disturbing to me and perhaps an effective presentation from an experienced Camp resident can say it more plainly. Of utmost importance is to understand that "rehabilitation" is currently defined as a man helping himself; self-development; cause your own success or failure. "Punishment" is termed as removal from society. With this terminology in proper perspective, let us deal with the situation more effectively.

The Bureau of Prisons is a Federal Agency confining those who have violated Federal law. There are no rapists, murderers, or residence burglars at Big Spring Camp. They are in state prisons like Santa Fe. Violent and escape-prone Federal prisoners are in Leavenworth and you, the reader, must distinguish the difference between State or Federal prisons. There are no violence-oriented residents in this Camp. Those of us transferred here from other Federal institutions have been thoroughly screened and tested prior to arrival and again after arriving. Our actions, statements, and thoughts are documented and indicate what we are likely to do, say, and think under given circumstances. This Administration does not tolerate disciplinary misbehavior. Should our behavior be deemed negative or a social, subsequent Administrative actions dictate a logical consequence of events: loss of good time and a swift transfer to a prison far removed from society's eye — to one of the Bureau's 30 more-secure institutions than we live at here. We are a population composed of inmates close to a release date that we will not jeopardize! This aspect of failure, while a constant threat, is the greatest incentive to positive behavior yet conceived by those of us of mature mind and rehabilitative nature.

The process of rehabilitation is largely one of overcoming, but environment is shown to have a shaping influence. Mismanagement of a human being by another results in rejection, most noticeably the recent destruction by inmates at the State prison in Santa Fe, N.M. The props of confinement employed at this Camp have a direct relationship on how we conduct ourselves in your community. It is my opinion that this setting has become so significant to our behavior that it virtually becomes an active participant in influencing us. It governs our lives and actions.

Adverse publicity has us pictured lolling around the swimming pool before retiring to the sauna. When one compares the problem of appearances as opposed to reality a reasoned evaluation is determined. The swimming pool is inoperative as is the sauna with its rotting wood and plumbing. Necessary to determine a factual conclusion you must consider: What would be different if the swimming pool and sauna did not exist? Not a thing! Is the Bureau to justify repairs when there are many problems of a much higher priority to deal with? No sir! Our life here is not physically limited to what is constructed but to what is operable.

Federal Prison Industries or Unico is designed to fulfill a number of goals. Primarily, it is a self-sustaining agency created to provide not only a meaningful existence while serving our sentence, but on-the-job training to raise employment standards for those who lack marketable skills. The operational purpose behind Unico is to supply various governmental agencies, as consumers, a quality, serviceable, and necessary product. The industry at this Camp produces electrical cable equipment for our Armed Forces. Technically, it entails a conscientious, dedicated attitude on our part because final inspection and acceptance of the finished product is closely scrutinized by Uncle Sam's godfather, General Services Administration, GSA. (Note: for Defense Contracts) The different Federal institutions produce a variety of products. Some make new furniture, some refinish old wood and metal furniture as well as do upholstery, while still others make blankets, shoes, clothing, mops, brooms, brushes, and lithography. These items are requisitioned by Federal agencies such as the Social Security Administration, Health, Education and Welfare, Drug Enforcement Agency, Army, Navy, Air Force, and yes, even the Bureau of Prisons and the U.S. Parole Commission. A second industry is scheduled to open soon, a canvas factory to make bedding for our military and their dependents in base housing. A third industry is projected and will make leather products such as the pouches your mailman delivers your mail from.

Appropriate to your conclusion is our motivation to be accepted. There is a select, carefully screened group that is working with the State Hospital in providing recreational activities. Having spent over 55 hours there myself, I can share with you my reasoned evaluation: We are just locked up. Those men and women are ill and respond to empathetic attention. I gave them my time at Christmas and New Year's in an attempt to make their holidays more enjoyable. I am rewarded each time I return by patients shaking my hand and hugs of recognition. I am not effective rhetorically to write of the joy I experienced nor the warm feeling we shared with patients and staff alike. One of the Volunteer Workers there has over 20,000 hours devoted to patient benefit over the years.

Community programs, such as AA, Religious activities, and Study Release, operate efficiently only because you, the Community, have the compassion to make them be that way. I hope that the time it has taken to write this and for you to read it has been of some benefit and I'll take my own liberty to thank you for your hospitality and friendliness. Big Spring, I'll give you my respect by not disappointing you.

Dancing the night away

ELMORE CITY, Okla. (AP) — It'll only be stereo music and a makeshift dance floor in Elmore City High's cafeteria, but this school prom is something special. It's the first ever in a town where dancing has been taboo since early in the century.

The ordinance banning public dancing still is in effect, but officials have agreed to look the other way on April 18.

In the past, high school students held a banquet and then rented a bowling alley for two hours.

Although he personally opposes the idea of a prom, Mayor Chester Patterson says "it's not right, kicking the kids out after the banquet to supposedly go bowling."

Tex Kennedy, junior class president, proposed the prom, and the school board, which had vetoed such requests 10 times, agreed this time.

"This is a pretty conservative town," said Principal Dean Worsham. "But we're ready to give the kids a chance."

Big bucks in break-in TAMA, Iowa (AP) — Whoever stole the toilet seat that was bolted to the wall in the Thomas Co. display room may be sitting on a lot of money now.

Molded into the clear Lucite seat were valuable coins, including some uncirculated silver ones dating from before 1964, police said.

The seat was purchased about five years ago for $50, said investigating police officer, Sgt. William Stees. Its value is now about $400.

The seat was the only item discovered missing Monday morning after a break-in at the plumbing and heating supply and appliance company in downtown Tama.

What goes up comes down

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — After David Lockhart spent 100 hours and $100 putting up a treehouse with a rope ladder, along came a city inspector who said it had to come down.

The 15-year-old's handiwork ran afoul of city building code, inspector Leroy Wilson said.

"When you look at the ladder that some kid would climb up and possibly get hurt, or the closeness to the sidewalk that involves city liability, I really didn't have much choice," said Wilson.

The code prohibits structures that could attract children and endanger them.

The Lockharts are appealing the order to tear down the treehouse, and the teen-ager's mother, Patricia Lockhart, says "I'd really welcome some public debate on this matter."

A secondary welcome

NEW YORK (AP) — A crowd of children stood outside the senior citizens center where Vice President Walter Mondale was speaking. They carried a sign reading, "Welcome, Doug Greenspan."

Doug Greenspan?

"That's the police officer who patrols outside school and told us the vice president was coming," Verne Vicrofsky, a sixth-grade teacher at PS 32, explained Wednesday.

"We came over to see the vice president and Officer Greenspan. But we knew there would be vice president for the vice president."

Greenspan, standing nearby, took the adulation in stride.

"I'm not running yet," the policeman said.

Suit a mistake, Clements feels

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he thinks it's a mistake for the oil drilling company he founded to seek to recover damages from Mexican firms operating the runaway oil well in the Bay of Campeche.

SEDCO, who rented the drilling rig the Mexican national oil company, Pemex, has asked a federal judge for permission to sue that company and Pemargo, the drilling contractor on the Ixtoc I well.

"I think that is a mistake," Clements said Wednesday. "SEDCO should not have sued them — any more than Attorney General Mark White should have sued."

Clements' office issued a news release after the governor, who is due to meet Friday with Mexican President Lopez Portillo in Monterrey, Mexico, read about the motion in a newspaper.

U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor has taken no action on the SEDCO motion filed March 3.

The Ixtoc I well blew out June 3. Oil washed ashore along about 140 miles of South Texas beaches last summer. However, Pemex says it has cut the flow from the well and reduced the chances that the Texas coast could receive a new coating of oil this summer.

At the time of the blowout, a SEDCO drilling rig was being used under lease by Pemargo, the drilling subsidiary of Pemex.

The Dallas firm is asking permission to seek to recover damages from Pemex and Pemargo should SEDCO be determined to be liable for Ixtoc I's damages.

SEDCO initiated the matter in O'Connor's court in July by asking that it be released of any liability or that liability be limited to $300,000, the estimated value of the drilling rig.

O'Connor then set an Oct. 20 deadline for the filing of lawsuits in the matter. By that deadline, damage claims against SEDCO, Pemex, and Pemargo exceeded $300 million. Claims were filed by the State of Texas and by South Texas tax jurisdictions, fishermen, and business firms and groups.

White filed the Texas action Oct. 19 seeking more than $10 million and contending SEDCO should be liable for up to $50 million in cleanup costs.

Policy needs changing, state senator claims

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas (AP) — Blue and white highway signs for "Hospital" point out the small Willacy County Hospital along U.S. 77 in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

However, the taxpayer-funded facility does not accept walk-in cases, including emergencies, unless the patient has a local doctor.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said Wednesday that policy needs to change, especially after the death of a heart attack victim referred to a second hospital 25 miles away.

"I do not think it is fair to the taxpayers that the doctors are here only for the benefit of their private patients," Truan said after meeting with Hospital Administrator Chester Oaks.

The senator said Oaks assured him he would cooperate in an investigation of the death of Donald Wayne Floyd of Houston.

The former Houston Oiler complained of chest pains during a drive to Houston. His fiancée drove him to the hospital and a nurse told them to go to Valley Baptist Medical Center in Harlingen after asking if he had a local doctor.

Oaks said the nurse was following routine procedure by asking if Floyd had a local doctor. He still would have been referred to Harlingen if he had a local doctor, the administrator said. The only difference would be that a local physician would have been told his patient was on the way to Harlingen, he added.

The Willacy County facility has no emergency room or equipment for cardiac patients, he said.

Truan has asked the Department of Health, the Board of Medical Examiners, the Board of Nursing Examiners and the Department of Public Safety to look into the hospital policy and the behavior of a nurse and doctor present when Floyd arrived.

Three investigators for the State Health Department arrived late Wednesday and began questioning hospital authorities.

Oaks said the hospital's limited manpower and funds are reason for the "local patient only" policy.

"If the four doctors on our staff had to come up here for every common cold and sore toe...they would be here 18 to 20 hours a day," he said.

The seven-year-old hospital operates on a $90,000 annual budget. The Willacy County Hospital District raises the money with a tax rate of 4 cents per $100 valuation.

Truan sponsored a bill in the 1979 Legislature that would have given Willacy County a chance to double taxes. The bill also would have lowered the vote margin required to approve an increase from two-thirds to a simple majority.

Oaks said the additional $90,000 expected for such a tax boost would have purchased some emergency equipment. He said the hospital received no state or federal grants, including Hill-Burton funds.

Gov. Bill Clements vetoed Truan's bill, saying local residents had objected to the simple majority vote provision.

"The bill vetoed had nothing whatever to do with emergency room equipment but instead provided for a tax rate increase for that hospital district if approved by voters," Clements' Press Secretary Jon Ford said Wednesday.

"The governor must bear a responsibility," Truan said. "There were indeed influential people who seemed to be more interested in taking care of their own pocketbooks than this."

Truan's district includes Willacy County.

Names in the news

ELIZABETH TAYLOR JACKIE GLEASON

Liz Taylor will be back

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Soon after her sixth marriage, she said she wouldn't go back to film-making, but "The Mirror Crack'd" was so tempting that Liz Taylor signed on for her 51st movie.

Miss Taylor, 48, will play an actress who becomes embroiled in a murder mystery while filming in England. Based on the novel by Agatha Christie, the movie will be filmed this spring at "a Kentish village" in England, its producers said Wednesday.

The cast includes Rock Hudson, Kim Novak and Angela Lansbury as the legendary Christie sleuth Miss Marple.

Producers John Brabourne and Richard Goodwin have made two previous all-star Christie films, "Murder on the Orient Express" and "Death on the Nile."

Hitchcock leaves hospital

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sir Alfred Hitchcock, 80-year-old master of suspense movies, has left Cedars-Sinai Medical Center after several days of diagnostic tests.

The director of such classics as "Spellbound," "Lifeboat," "Shadow of a Doubt" and "Psycho" was admitted to the hospital Friday, said hospital spokeswoman Tess Griffin.

"He comes in and out frequently," she said. "He just didn't feel good. It was not serious. He was listed in fair condition the whole time he was here."

Hitchcock, a native of England, was knighted by Queen Elizabeth on Dec. 31, 1979.

Gleason gets check up

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jackie Gleason is in the hospital for a physical checkup and treatment of a sore foot.

The 64-year-old entertainer was admitted to Mount Sinai Medical Center on Monday, said Hank Meyer, his public relations adviser.

"Jackie's in excellent shape, but he's had tremendous pains in his right foot, and he felt it was time to get a physical checkup, too," Meyer said.

Dr. Jack Greenberg said preliminary evaluation didn't indicate a need for surgery.

Gleason appeared last week at his Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Golf Classic, an annual Professional Golfers' Association tournament held at Lauderdale, Fla., where Gleason has a home.

Gleason underwent extensive heart bypass surgery in 1978.

Jack Frost, Ideal sugar is recalled

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Certain packages of Jack Frost and Ideal brands of sugar may contain pieces of stainless steel wire, and the National Sugar Refining Co. has urged consumers in five states to return them.

Sugar sold between Feb. 26 and March 6 might contain pieces of .011-inch-wide stainless steel wire measuring 1/4 inch by 1 1/2 inches, a company spokesman said Wednesday.

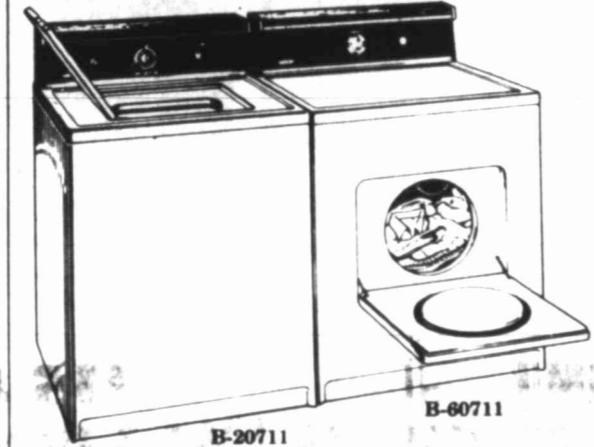

Some cookies made by an unnamed National Sugar customer also may be affected, he said. The cookie company will issue its own recall, he added.

A total of about 1,452 five-pound bags of sugar are affected, marked with codes including 2A26, 2A27, 2A28 and 2A29, the spokesman said. People who bought sugar with those codes from the following stores should return them to the same stores for refunds:

— Ideal brand sugar at Acme supermarkets in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

— Jack Frost sugar at Fulmer Market, Springfield, Ohio; Bartram's Market, Ironton, Ohio; Shoemaker's Super Valu, South Vienna, Ohio; Strieber's Markets, New Vienna, Ohio; Swallen's Red Bank Road, Cincinnati, Ohio; Ken's Super Valu, Cynthiana, Ky.; and Musselers Super Valu, Flatwoods, Ky.

The saga of Dear Abby

KANSAS CITY — Abigail Van Buren, known as "Dear Abby" to her 65 million daily readers, writes her column for over 1,000 newspapers in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Europe, Asia, South America and Africa. It has been "pirated" by some countries behind the Iron Curtain.

"Abigail Van Buren has done more for healthy interpersonal relations than any person in the country. She is an extraordinary, sensitive and powerful woman," said Jim Andrews, chairman and editor of Universal Press Syndicate.

The saga of "Dear Abby" is an acknowledged phenomenon of modern-day journalism. It began in January, 1956, when Pauline Friedman Phillips, a 37-year-old newcomer to the San Francisco area, impulsively phoned the editor of the Chronicle and told him she could write a much better advice column than he had been reading in his newspaper. To her surprise, he challenged her to come in on an interview.

Pauline introduced herself as an average, middle-aged Hillsborough housewife who had been happily married to the same man for 17 years and had raised two relatively normal teen-age youngsters." She told the editor she had taken journalism in college, but had never written professionally. She knew, however, she could write an advice column because all of her life she had been an "amateur" Wailing Wall without portfolio.

The editor later learned the "average, middle-aged housewife" had arrived in a chauffeured limousine, which she had stashed around the corner. As the wife of Morton Phillips, who headed the National Presto Cooker Co., Mrs. Phillips had been a local "celebrity" in Eau Claire, Wis., where she had been an effective and energetic volunteer in community affairs. In addition to training Gary Ladies for the American Red Cross for 10 years, she had been active in the Mental Health Association, PTA, Crippled Children's Society, League of Women Voters, and B'nai B'rith.

The busy and unimpressed editor, wanting only to get this self-styled journalist out of his office, suggested she write some sample replies to previously published advice columns. She did, and her samples launched her impressive career in journalism. After being hired by the Chronicle, Mrs. Phillips named herself "Abigail Van Buren" and her column "Dear Abby."

"Dear Abby's" success was instant. Because of her wit, wisdom and commonsense approach, she became syndicated in less than two months. Within a year, "Dear Abby" was being read in major newspapers all over the nation. Time magazine said "Dear Abby" had revolutionized the advice business, naming her the fastest-rising star in the business.

In addition to her six-day-a-week newspaper column, Abby has written three best sellers: "Dear Abby" (1957), "Dear Teen-Ager" (1959), and "Dear Abby on Marriage" (1962). She has continued to champion the cause of mental health in her column and has remained active in community service organizations.

She is also a full-time wife, mother and grandmother, and lives in Beverly Hills with Morton Phillips, the man she married in 1939.

Universal Press Syndicate was founded in 1970 and has become the largest independent syndicate in the world. It handles comic strips and columnists, including: Doonesbury, Ziggy, Cathy Herman, the Mini Page, Pat Oliphant, William Buckley, James Kilpatrick, Garry Wills and Richard Reeves.

Carrying Out 'Living Will'

DEAR ABBY: Recently you ran a letter from a woman who had signed a "Living Will," and was relieved to know that she should ever fall victim to an incurable illness, she would be allowed to die in dignity. I think you should warn your readers that merely signing a Living Will is no guarantee that one's wishes will be carried out. It will also take perseverance on the part of the family.

Last May, my husband died of lung cancer after a very short illness. He had a history of heart disease, and the previous year had suffered a severe stroke that left him partially paralyzed. I feared that, should he suffer heart failure, "heroic measures" might be taken, so he would be "saved" only to suffer more from the cancer. The doctors who had treated him previously were aware that he had signed a Living Will. However, one specialist seemed to view my husband more as a pair of diseased lungs than a whole man, and was determined to save him should heart failure occur. It took days of arguing and button-holing every responsible person I could reach for the instructions of "No Code" to be included on his chart. (The "No Code" signified that no resuscitation team would be summoned.)

If your spouse (or family member) has signed a Living Will, my advice would include:

- 1) Talk the situation over thoroughly with your family so that there is no doubt in anyone's mind as to your intentions.
- 2) Discuss this philosophy at length with your family doctor, who will be the admitting doctor and responsible for any instructions to be included on the patient's chart regardless of any specialists who might be called in. Doctors are trained to save lives, and some are unable to make the mental adjustment to a passive course of no action. If the doctor seems reticent or unwilling to follow your wishes, CHANGE DOCTORS!
- 3) Once the patient is admitted to the hospital, make sure the instructions on the chart are in accord with your wishes; keep pestering the doctor until they are.
- 4) If treatment is being prescribed that is offensive to the patient and family, the family can check the patient out of the hospital without the doctor's release.

Abby, we can die with dignity, but it might take great perseverance on the part of our spouses and family to make sure we are given the opportunity.

Cancer screening aids in early detection

By ROBBIE CROW
Family News Editor

The most common form of cancer, colon-rectal cancer, afflicts 101,000 individuals annually and claims the lives of 52,000.

In an effort to create awareness and early detection of the disease, the American Cancer Society, in conjunction with the Medicine Shoppe, will conduct its first colon-rectal cancer screening this week.

Personnel from the Big Spring Prison Camp Hospital will be administering this free program to local residents at The Medicine Shoppe Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"An Ounce of Early Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure" is the billing for this screening program. High risk groups include those between the ages of 35 and 65.

Symptoms of the cancer may include rectal bleeding, loss of appetite and weight loss, unexplained weakness, change in bowel habits and persistent abdominal pain.

"Fortunately, with early detection and prompt treatment, 75 percent of the patients who have cancer of the colon and rectum can be saved," Medicine Shoppe pharmacist Clint Holloman explains. "Because it often goes undetected, the actual survival rate is only 40 percent. We are doing our best to see that these statistics improve."

The screening, officially known as the Free Hemocult Test, is simple and painless and is done in the privacy of one's own home.

Test kits and instructions will be distributed at The Medicine Shoppe with the help of the American Cancer Society volunteers who will provide educational information, as well as information for the preparation for the triple-slide test.

Individuals will take the test kits home to be prepared in the privacy of their own bathroom. After completion of the test, it will be mailed to a designated laboratory for reading of the results.

Hidden blood, which cannot visually be seen, can be detected by the test and would produce a positive result. In addition to being symptomatic of cancer, hidden blood can be indicative of other intestinal problems, including hemorrhoids, colitis and ulcers.

All individuals with a positive response will be notified and encouraged to visit their family physician.

All individuals participating should be aware of the fact that this is only a screening, not a diagnosis.

"People should depend on their physicians for diagnosis," says Holloman. Prior to taking the test, each individual will be required to follow a 24-hour diet and remain on the diet for the following three days.

The high roughage and meatless diet includes fresh vegetables such as lettuce, spinach and corn as well as fruits, prunes, plums, grapes and apples.

"Moderate amounts of peanuts and popcorn are also helpful as are some types of bran such as cereal and bread," adds Holloman.

While on the diet, persons should avoid preparations containing iron, aspirin or vitamin C.

Research shows the positive rate from this screening when no symptoms are present is about 3-7 percent, according to the pharmacist.

This screening is one of several free health services The Medicine Shoppe offers regularly. Others include screenings for high blood pressure, oral cancer, diabetes and glaucoma.

Also at The Medicine Shoppe, a film on early detection and treatment of cancer will be shown on the pharmacy's Health Care Cinema continuously all three days.

Other films are also available for public viewing including those of hypertension, bronchitis, coronary heart disease, diabetes treatment, glaucoma, weight control, pap test and self-breast examination, how to stop dental disease and acne.

"These films are available at any time free to the public for viewing and may be shown on our Health Care Cinema," concludes Holloman.

As a joint sponsor of the colon-rectal screening, the American Cancer Society is continuing its attempt in educating people on the early detection and diagnosis of cancer.

The local ACS organization is sponsoring the screening.

JERRY FORESYTH

is known as the Howard-Glasscock Unit which consists of Big Spring, Garden City, Forsan and the St. Lawrence Community.

Current President Wayne Henry has been an ACS member for four years.

Other officers include Jerry Foresyth, crusade chairman; Mickie Fletcher, secretary; Mrs. Billy Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Jane Thomas, out-patient care chairman; Sue Bailos, educational chairman; and Mrs. Merle Stewart, memorial chairman.

Also serving in the local unit are Grady Cunningham, crusade business chairman; Jan Foresyth, residential crusade chairman; Sherry Bordofoke, special events chairman; and Jan Morgan, special gifts chairman.

The group meets the third Tuesday of each month at the Spanish Inn.

"We're always needing more volunteers," stresses Henry. "Anyone interested in joining can contact Mike McCracken at the YMCA, 7-8234."

This year's annual residential crusade will get under way April 15.

As a special money-making project this year, the Howard-Glasscock Unit will sponsor a basketball game between the Hawk Queens and the business men of the community and another game between the HC Hawks and women of the community.

The games will be played at the old Hawk Gym. The public is invited to attend the 7 p.m. event for $1.25, adults; and 75 cents, students; preschool children may attend free.

"All proceeds will go to the local chapter," says Henry. Anyone wishing to contribute memorial donations to ACS can mail them to Box 2121, Big Spring.

Through continuing donations and research, further public education and frequent cancer screening tests, such as the one available this week at the Medicine Shoppe, maybe cancer can be "wiped out in your lifetime."

FREE SCREENING — The American Cancer Society, in conjunction with the Medicine Shoppe, will sponsor a free colon-rectal cancer screening from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. today, tomorrow and Saturday at the pharmacy. Information concerning the screening, which is done in the privacy of your own home, will be given by personnel from the Big Spring Prison Camp Hospital. Here, David Huff, hospital administrator, shows Clint Holloman, Medicine Shoppe pharmacist, one of many pamphlets which will be distributed on the subject.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAR. 14, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A time not to resent slights or make sudden changes, or you could fail to gain your objectives. Accept conditions as they are and don't become irritated with others at this time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to please your friends today instead of talking about personal worries. Show more consideration for the one you love.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't irritate a higher-up or you could have more trouble than you can handle. Show increased devotion to family members.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be alert to opportunities but don't jump into anything hastily. Studying old situations that need clarification brings right answers.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use care and tact in attending to promises and gain the respect of others. A new outlet can be profitable.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have to be tactful with an associate and prevent some action that could be detrimental to you both. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Quietly straighten out any errors at work and avoid getting panicky. A co-worker could be distraught so give words of encouragement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have to be more sensible where practical matters are concerned to gain your aims at this time. Be poised.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Any situations that arise today should be considered from a standpoint of how they will affect you and family members.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Attend to duties that must be done early in the day so you'll have time for social activities later. Be cheerful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You need to apply yourself more now to gain your cherished wishes. Sidestep one who likes to impose on you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use good sense today, especially in the face of a possible emergency. Also, be sure to show thoughtfulness for others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Carry through with original plans even though you may be limited in some way. Use diplomacy in your business dealings.

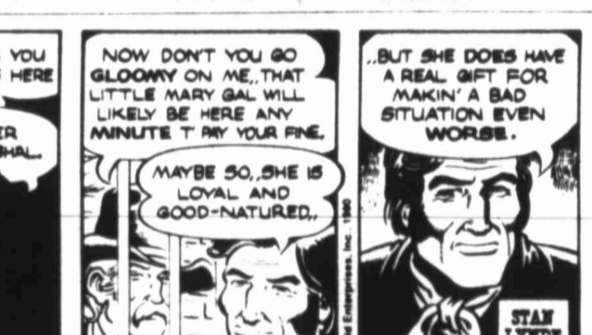

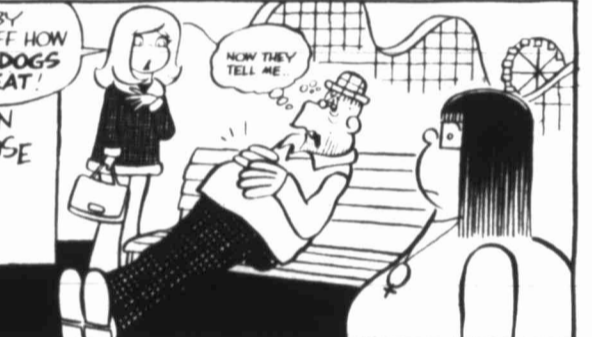

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who has to be taught to seek sensible solutions for whatever is puzzling and thereby avoid trouble. Direct education along lines of entertainment since there is talent in this chart. Don't neglect ethical training. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Verdict in Ford trial doubtful, jurors say

WINAMAC, Ind. (AP) — Jurors in the landmark criminal trial of Ford Motor Co. were resuming deliberations today after telling the judge it was doubtful they would be able to reach a verdict.

As the deliberations went into the fourth day, chief prosecutor Michael Cosentino refused to discuss whether he would pursue the case if the jurors deadlocked.

The automaker was charged with three counts of reckless homicide in the 1978 deaths of three teen-age women whose 1973 Pinto exploded when struck from behind by a van. It was the first criminal prosecution of a manufacturer for an alleged product defect.

Prosecutors argued Ford knew the Pinto's fuel system was likely to leak in rear-end collisions but sold the cars anyway.

Ford argued during the trial the Pinto was as safe as other subcompacts of the time. Although it faced a maximum penalty of $30,000 if convicted, Ford reportedly spent $1 million to mount its defense.

Jurors were sent home for a break shortly after 3 a.m. EST today after returning to the courtroom to tell Pulaski Circuit Judge Harold Staffeldt they doubted it would help to continue deliberations.

New home being self-built open for public inspection Sunday

The new home being self-built by Robert Allen, located at 504 Circle Drive, will be open for public inspection Sunday. Hours will be from 1 to 5 p.m.

The home is a 2-story style, one of many designs available through Miles Homes, one of the nation's pioneer pre-cut, do-it-yourself home marketers.

Michael Lewaren, Miles Homes representative in this area, stated that the home is being shown before actual completion so that visitors may examine the quality of materials which go into the home. "Many of the quality features of the home are not visible once the inner walls are finished, so it is our policy to show the public exactly what goes into our homes from the inside out, so to speak," Lewaren said.

In addition to inspecting the home, visitors will be able to gain first hand information from the owner-builder, Robert Allen, who will be present to answer questions.

Lewaren said Miles pre-cuts and bundles many of the difficult parts of the home to speed up construction and reduce on-the-job material waste. In addition to materials, Miles Homes supplies blueprints and step-by-step instructions, he added.

Miles Homes, a Division of Insilco, a Fortune 500 Diversified Corporation, makes available construction financing for the 50 models of homes it markets in 42 states.

In order to reach the site of the open house, visitors should take Highway 87 South for approximately 6 miles to Jeffrey Rd. Turn left and proceed 1 1/2 miles. Follow Open House signs.

Social Security benefits Answer in immigration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A pension expert says Americans need not worry about how to pay Social Security benefits for the "baby boom" generation 30 years from now.

If there are too few people of working age then to support the elderly, the answers lies in immigration, Merton C. Bernstein says.

"We can solve that problem whenever we want in whatever numbers we want," Bernstein said in testimony prepared for a hearing today by the President's Commission on Pension Policy.

"Mexican immigration, almost singlehandedly, could do the job," said Bernstein, a law professor from Washington University in St. Louis and former counsel to a Senate labor subcommittee. "We could draw any given number of people of whatever ages we specify with whatever skills we desire from just about any area of the globe."

"If we need young Asians to support older Americans, the odds are that even bigger will see them in a new and favorable light."

There currently are five persons age 20 to 64 for every one 65 or older. Within 50 years, Social Security's trustees expect the ratio to slip to 3-to-1.

Bernstein denied that Social Security faces a fiscal crunch. He said society will be supporting fewer unemployed youths in the decades to come, so the total number of dependents will stay about the same.

He also predicted U.S. productivity will improve and the nation will be able to tap the sea bed as a new source of tax revenues.

"Given the utter unreliability of pension plans and the scarcity of private savings... Social Security is America's best bet," he said.

The pension commission was holding the hearing on Social Security as part of its two-year examination of all U.S. retirement systems, including private pensions and personal savings. It is headed by C. Peter McCoolough, chairman of Xerox Corp.

Detroit can't run without Pistons

By the Associated Press

It's always nice to have a strong bench. The Detroit Pistons would probably like to have a few more players to sit on it.

They started Wednesday night's game with the National Basketball Association's legal minimum of eight players, then lost one when forward John Long departed at halftime due to the flu. He joined injured teammates Gregory Kessler, Steve Malovic, Leon Douglas, Kent Benson and Bob McAdoo.

By that time, though, New Jersey had things well in hand, owning a 69-50 lead.

Things got worse after that for the Pistons. Phil Hubbard and Ron Lee fouled out in the closing minutes, leaving Detroit with the absolute minimum available players.

And with Winford Boyne scoring 23 points and rookie Cliff Robinson adding 22, the Nets breezed past the Pistons 137-119. Hubbard had 29 for Detroit.

In the rest of the NBA, Philadelphia whipped Washington 105-98, Boston beat Houston 121-105, Los Angeles downed Portland 102-94, Phoenix beat Golden State 122-113 and Milwaukee defeated Seattle 112-103.

76ers 105, Bullets 98.

Julius Erving scored 40 points as the 76ers wiped out Washington's 15-point second-period lead and beat the Bullets to remain within one game of first-place Boston in the Atlantic Division.

Greg Ballard scored 32 points to pace Washington, Celtics 121, Rockets 105. The Celtics, playing without injured Nate Archibald and flu-bound Chris Ford, their starting guards, got a balanced attack (seven players in double figures) topped by Larry Bird's 29 points to turn back Houston.

Boston led by as many as 24 points before the Rockets trimmed the margin to eight in the late going. Bird also had 13 rebounds and eight assists. Rick Robey added 22 points for the Celtics while Robert Reid topped Houston with 26 and Moses Malone had 23.

Midland football program in possible trouble

MIDLAND — The Midland High School football program is facing a possible probation charge, which if found guilty, could prohibit the Bulldogs from competing for the District 5-AAAA football championship.

The charge directed at the MHS program concerned anonymous letters stating that the Bulldog gridders had been using contact equipment, working out and showing films on Saturday, holding off-season workouts for more than one hour, doing teamwork in excess of five-man mechanics, all during their off-season program.

The letter is charged at new MHS Coach Pat Culpepper. Culpepper took over the Midland High job in early February. He is the former head coach at Northern Illinois University and was a standout griddier at the University of Texas.

The District 5-AAAA Executive Committee has tentatively set a March 24 date in Big Spring High School at 10:00 a.m. to discuss the allegations.

Lamar hoping for another upset

By the Associated Press

If Billy Tubbs is thinkin' about dustin' off his dancin' shoes, he's gonna have to hoofoot it past Clemson tonight.

"We sure would like to go to the prom," Tubbs, Lamar University's coach, says. That, of course, is the Final Four, the next-to-last step to the NCAA basketball championship.

Lamar, one of this year's "outsiders" in what began as a 48-team field, is looking to beat Clemson in a West semifinal, thereby pulling off a third straight upset and moving into the Final Eight, the showdown which determines the four teams to reach the March 22 national semifinals in Indianapolis.

In tonight's other West Regional at Tucson, Ariz., Ohio State faces UCLA. Also tonight it's Purdue vs. Indiana and Duke vs. Kentucky in the Midwest at Lexington, Ky.

Friday night's third rounders are Iowa vs. Syracuse and Maryland vs. Georgetown in the East at Philadelphia and Louisville vs. Texas A&M and Missouri vs. Louisiana State in the Midwest at Houston.

Lamar has a student body of less than 13,000. Some of the schools in this NCAA tournament have more seats than that in their fieldhouses. Which is why Tubbs and Lamar aren't exactly nationally known, even after victories over 17th-ranked Weber State and fifth-ranked Oregon State earlier in this tournament.

But when you come right down to it, that doesn't seem to bother the 45-year-old coach of the Cardinals.

"Isn't that the great thing about college basketball?" Tubbs muses. "You can have yourself a grand season. Jacksonville can make it to the Final Four, or Charlotte can make it, or Nevada-Las Vegas — though now I consider them a powerhouse. You just don't get that in football. In our game, everybody's got some hope."

"People keep asking me if I'm surprised," Tubbs says when the talk turns to Lamar's position as a giant-killer in the tourney. "Ain't this what you're supposed to plan for? Don't everybody want to go to the prom?"

Astros support baseball strike

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — After meeting two hours with player representative Marvin Miller, the Houston Astros voted unanimously to support the Major League Baseball Players Association if a strike is called.

The unanimous voting brings the total to 276-1 in favor of a strike. Miller said Wednesday, adding he thought "players are more united this year than ever before."

Seven teams have voted thus far on the strike.

Stanton, Seagraves highlight All-District

District 5-A champion Seagraves and runner-up Stanton dominated the league's All-District squad that was announced this morning.

The Stanton Buffaloes placed three boys on the squad, as did Seagraves. Two of Stanton's All-District performers were juniors.

Representing Stanton was senior Derrick Looney and juniors Craig Elland and Lewis Henry. Henry was one of three unanimous selections to the squad.

Seagraves was represented by junior Scottie Middleton, a unanimous choice, and seniors Dale Welch and Shayne Langenhennig.

The Forsan Buffaloes placed one performer on the All-District 5-A squad in senior Dale Earnest.

Rounding out the squad were Marc Moore of Ropes, Mike Reed of O'Donnell, Wayne Davis of Plains and Ricky Richardson of Whiteface. Richardson, a junior, was also a unanimous choice.

Aggies have home court edge in Midwest Regionals

THE TEXAS AGGIES will definitely have the home court advantage tomorrow night when they take the floor in Houston's Summit to play the highly touted Louisville Cardinals.

Both the University of Houston and Rice University have in most cases felt like the visitors when they take the floor in Houston, so large is the Aggie alumni in that metropolis. So that has to give the A&M team some advantage over the others, although there's no doubt that those wild and crazy LSU fans will also make their presence known.

That Aggie zone defense was impressive against North Carolina, but some people, including this writer, can't see A&M in the Final Four of the NCAA.

Casey Wilder, former All-District at BSHS and a Howard College Hawk, who is now a student A&M, disagrees. Case, who has seen most of the Aggies games this year, feels that A&M has "as good a chance as anyone of making the Final Four."

Incidentally, that Aggie-Louisville game will be telecast on Cable Channel 6, with the contest beginning at 7:00 p.m.

Englert still in record book

Speaking of A&M, their Sports Information Department has sent out their respective programs for the spring sports, and as usual, it is apparent that money was not a problem.

GLANCING THROUGH THE A&M BASEBALL RECORD BOOK, former Big Spring star R.J. Englert still has his place. R.J., a two-time consensus All-Southwest Conference performer, still holds the Aggie records for career batting average and for Southwest Conference batting average.

ENGLERT hit for a career average of .394 from 1970-72, and also compiled an SWC career mark of .370. He also has the second highest batting average for a season in Aggie history, as Englert connected for an average of .420 in 1972.

Guy Lewis impressed with WTC

THERE IS SOME DEBATE about the quality of the Western Texas College team that will take unblemished 33-0 record into National Juco Tournament next week.

There's no doubt that the WTC team of Coach Nolan Richardson, who is leaving to take over the head coaching job at Tulsa University immediately after the national tourney, is one of the best juco teams that one could ever hope to see.

The argument usually heard regards if WTC is good enough to play on a major college level. University of Houston Coach Guy Lewis, who is no doubt hoping to land some of the Western players, thinks so.

Lewis saw WTC play in the Region V Tourney in Midland College's Chaparral Center last week, and was so impressed that he reportedly told UT Coach Abe Lemons that he thought WTC could be competitive on a major college level. Lemons reportedly did a double take, but Lewis wouldn't back down from his theory.

Martin ready to ride the wagon

MUCH OF BILLY MARTIN'S TROUBLES in his previous managing stints had reportedly come after the fiery Martin had been to happy hour. But Martin, who took over the Oakland A's job for the controversial owner Charlie Finley, said earlier this week that he had stopped drinking, and that people really shouldn't be making a big fuss over it.

"The decision to stop drinking is nothing new," explained Martin. "I stopped drinking for six months once when I was a player with Detroit. I've stopped drinking many times for two or three days. It has stopped any time I want."

Lamar coach adds spice to games

AS THE LAMAR CARDINALS GAINED POPULARITY by knocking off two favored teams in last week's NCAA West Regionals, so did the way that Lamar coach Billy Tubbs explained his Cinderella crew.

Lamar held a 76-54 lead with 4:50 remaining against 16th ranked Weber State in the NCAA opener, but had to hold on to escape with an 87-86 triumph. Explained Tubbs: "One of our plans tonight was to get up 22 points with five or six minutes left, then hold on for dear life."

Weber State caught up by scoring in a hurry and then fouling Lamar in hopes that the Cardinals would miss their free throws. Tubbs facetiously blamed the zebras for his team's near disastrous ending: "The officials were killing us. They kept calling fouls on Weber and we kept missing."

Earlier in the season, the interesting Tubbs and his team embarked on a long road trip through an extremely mountainous area. Asked if he thought that any of the members of his team would injure themselves skiing, Tubbs quipped: "Sure somebody might get hurt, but it doesn't make any difference. Only our white guys will go skiing. And they're not going to play anyway."

Playoffs don't seem fair

THERE ARE ALL TYPES OF BASKETBALL PLAYOFFS happening on the college level at this time of the year, and I'll be the first to admit that I enjoy watching them as much as anyone.

There's no doubt that by the NCAA and NIT increasing their fields, it creates more interest nationwide, as there are more games with more teams than had been in the past.

But even with the excitement that a post-season tournament creates, it still doesn't always seem fair. Take DePaul. They go nearly the entire season undefeated, with every team they play gunning for them. They end the regular season with one loss, but are knocked off by UCLA, a team that went 17-9 in the regular season, in their first playoff contest.

I mean, I'm a die-hard UCLA fan, but it just doesn't seem entirely fair.

The same could be said for what happened last Saturday in the Region V Women's finals at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The Howard College Hawks Queens, who won the Western Conference championship and defeated Odessa College twice in the process, were upset by the same Lady Wrangler team.

While the HC feds had proven their superiority during the regular season, a team that they proven it to come back and seemed to take away in one afternoon. As a result, the WJC champion Queens are sitting at home tonight, while regular season second place finisher Odessa College is in the NJCAA playoffs.

Incidentally, the OC women are playing Henderson JC at Weatherford tonight at 7:30 p.m.

SOCCER STAR, TEXAS STYLE — West German soccer star Klaus Toppmoller tries on a cowboy hat presented to him at a Wednesday afternoon press conference in Dallas, Texas. The Dallas Tornado Soccer Club signed the 28-year-old scoring sensation to a three-year contract worth more than $1 million.

SMU loses Billy Allen

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University sophomore guard Billy Allen, whose father resigned as Mustangs basketball coach two weeks ago, says he also will leave the Southwest Conference school at the end of the year.

Allen, a key playmaker with the Mustang round-baller, told KDFW-TV he has been contacted by "a number of schools" and is considering "two or three" of them.

Allen's father, Sonny Allen, resigned two weeks ago as Mustang coach after a disappointing and pressure-filled season. One year after SMU Athletic Director Russ Potts told Allen he wanted a winning season, the Mustangs finished sixth in the SWC with a 7-9 season.

The station said the elder Allen is being seriously considered for the coaching job at Nevada-Reno and that his son might follow him there.

"I've been contacted by a number of schools and right now a lot of them still are participating in the playoffs, so I'm going to have to wait until their season ends to visit those schools," the younger Allen said.

"I've got it down to about two or three (schools)," Sonny Allen is divorced and Billy is the only one of his children who lives with him.

"I've thought about it a lot for the last two to three weeks, and I think I need to do something that was best for me right now," the younger Allen said. "There's a couple of opportunities that have come up and I'm going to take some time now that I've decided to leave SMU and think about these."

7'4" Sampson the man for Virginia

By the Associated Press Virginia Coach Terry Holland is concerned about losing Ralph Sampson on the court tonight when the Cavaliers play host to Michigan in the third round of the National Invitation Tournament.

How's that again? Lose a 7-foot-4 center? Explain yourself, Terry. "We have to make sure we don't leave a player like Ralph Sampson completely out of the offense," he said. "A good deal of the time we'll have to wait for him to get down the court and get set up close to the basket." Michigan is one of three Big Ten Conference teams in the NIT, ALTHOUGH ALL THREE HAVE AT LEAST 1% LOSSES.

In other third-round NIT games tonight, Murray State is at Illinois, Southwestern Louisiana travels to Minnesota and St. Peter's is at Nevada-Las Vegas in the only game without a Big Ten team.

Michigan is a very fine basketball team and has one of the truly fine players in the nation in (Mike) McGee," said Holland. "They have talent at every spot."

Michigan beat Nebraska and Texas-El Paso to reach this point and Virginia defeated Lafayette and Boston College.

St. Peter's-Nevada Las Vegas is a classic matchup of defense vs. offense. UNLV, nicknamed the Runnin' Rebels because of a pressing, run-and-gun style that helped them to nation's best 91-point average for the previous 10 seasons, reached the NIT's third round by scoring 93 points against Washington and 90 against Long Beach State.

Meanwhile, St. Peter's led the nation in fewest points allowed this season with 49 per game and earned the trip to Las Vegas for tonight's game with a 71-56 victory over Connecticut and a 34-33 defeat of Duquesne.

"The key for us will be creating a faster-tempo game," said Dominic Clark, UNLV sports information director. "In the past, when teams have tried to slow it down on us, we've been able to run them out of it by pressing."

Murray State, 23-7, has a gaudier record than Illinois, 20-12, but the Illini have the advantage of coming out of the Big Ten wars, plus the home court with more than 16,000 fans. But Murray State already has stopped Jacksonville and Alabama on the road, while Illinois was beating home-state rivals Loyola-Chicago and Illinois State at home.

Two honorable mention All-Americans, center Kevin McHale of Minnesota and guard Andrew Toney of Southwestern Louisiana, will tangle at Minnesota. USL defeated Alabama-Birmingham by two points and Texas by one on the road, and Minnesota stopped Bowling Green and Mississippi.

Red Sox holding baseball tryouts. The Big Spring Red Sox baseball team has started practicing for the 1980 season, but will have openings for anyone else that wishes to play on their team.

The Red Sox practices are held every day at six o'clock in the afternoon on the corner of 5th and San Antonio. Manager David Cruz and Coach Bill Diaz urge anyone that wishes to tryout to stop by the practice sessions.

The Red Sox will open the season at Sonora on April 13, before beginning the home portion of their schedule on April 20. The Sox will be trying to improve on last year's 27-7 record when the season girls underway.

Alabama State proving rating in NAIA Tourney

By the Associated Press KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Is Alabama State really the team to beat in the 43rd annual NAIA basketball tournament?

As far as some observers are concerned, you might as well ask whether the ball is round.

Don Dyer, whose unseeded Central Arkansas team meets the Hornets tonight in a quarterfinal game, has no doubt about the quality of his opponent.

"They've got their and a lot of other people's share of good athletes," says Dyer.

Then there's Larry Wall, his South Carolina-Aiken squad the victim of a 103-78 mauling by Alabama State Wednesday in a second-round contest.

"Alabama State is a fine team. They were better than we were," said Wall. "They had more depth than we did and more talent as well...they are deserving of their No. 1 ranking."

While upsets have steadily thinned the ranks of seeded teams in this year's tournament, Coach James Oliver's top-ranked team from Montgomery has exploded for 103 points in each of its first two games.

The biggest gun has been 6-foot-6 forward Kevin Loder, who's hit for 34 and 29 points in the two outings, but the entire team has often left opponents in a daze.

"We feel like our opponents fear us," said Oliver, whose 30-1 team roared to a 58-49 halftime lead over South Carolina-Aiken.

"They know what's coming, the aggressive, swarming defense, but if you're not mentally tough, that's a tough thing to handle."

The Hornets, making their first appearance in the NAIA tourney, are one of just four seeded teams to survive the opening two rounds.

In other quarterfinal games tonight, third-seeded Cameron, Okla., meets unranked LeMoyne-Owen, Tenn., No. 2 Wisconsin-Eau Claire takes on seventh-seeded Central Washington, and Huron, S.D., plays Clarion State, Pa., in a battle of unseeded teams.

Upsets marked two of Wednesday's eight games. Elwayne Campbell hit a pair of free throws with 17 seconds left to lift LeMoyne-Owen past No. 6 Abiene Christian, 66-55, and Wally Love popped in a charity with 47 seconds remaining as Central Arkansas eliminated No. 9 and hometown favorite Rockhurst of Kansas City 54-53.

Cameron, now 33-3, had no trouble with No. 14 St. Augustine's, N.C., as Jeff Wilson scored 26 points to fuel a 120-86 romp. Dennis Johnson had 21 points to spark Central Washington past Biola, Calif., 66-64.

CLOSING FOR RETOOLING — Chrysler Corp. Friday will close its Jefferson Avenue plant in Detroit, shown in an aerial view, for the rest of the model year to retool for the

Carter wants businesses to boycott Olympics, too

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, saying what is right for athletes is right for business, wants to add American products from soft drinks to souvenirs to the Olympic boycott list.

The Commerce Department asked U.S. companies Wednesday to voluntarily embargo the export of an estimated $20 million in Olympic-related goods to protest the Soviet military occupation of Afghanistan and said it is considering making the ban mandatory.

In Britain, the government announced a series of moves designed to make life as difficult as possible for athletes ignoring Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's call for an Olympic boycott.

The government said public servants selected for the Games will be denied the usual special leave, and the Defense Ministry banned servicemen from competing in team events. The Foreign Office withdrew an embassy first secretary assigned to Moscow as the British Olympic team's liaison officer.

The action in Britain came at a time the Carter administration is calling for more tangible support from Western Europe and Japan.

President Carter already has said U.S. athletes will not participate in the Summer Olympics at Moscow because of the continued Soviet presence in Afghanistan.

The administration has blocked exports of grain and high-technology items, such as computers, to the Soviet Union, and sales of commemorative Olympic stamps and postcards were suspended Tuesday.

"Since U.S. athletes will not be attending the Games, it is appropriate for the American business community to demonstrate its own support for this position by limiting its own participation in the Moscow Games," the Commerce Department said in a statement.

At least one company quickly promised its cooperation.

"We want to comply with foreign policy, so naturally we would comply with this request," said Mary Ann Easley, spokeswoman for Levi Strauss & Co. of San Francisco, which had planned to supply T-shirts and jeans for about 23,000 Soviet workers at the Games.

In Washington, Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, charged that the Soviet policy on Afghanistan is "one of fighting and talking — fighting in order to create fait accompli, and talking in order to divert public opinion, to dilute the condemnation of the Third World and the advanced world of the Soviet aggression."

Dog's best friend has to relocate

BUCKLAND, Mass. (AP) — An old man who has sheltered thousands of stray animals says complaining neighbors have forced him to sell his home of 25 years and seek new quarters for his 35 dogs.

Joe Schneider, 75, said Wednesday that the more he sees of man, the more he prefers man's best friend.

"The people I've lived with for all these years have kicked me in the pants," he said of his neighbors in this rural Berkshire hilltown.

And he accused town selectmen, who told him to stop keeping dogs in a kennel in his yard, of "setting down rules I couldn't live by."

"We did make some noise," admits Schneider, referring to his dogs. "I had planned to build a noise-proof shelter, but they jumped the gun on me. Now, I'm tired of fighting."

Schneider has been searching for a new location for his Hilltown Animal Shelter for almost two years. But several possibilities dried up when neighbors learned about his hobby.

Meanwhile, Schneider has placed his charges in cages in his house and garage, a situation which he described as "horrible."

"I'm usually alone here after 7 p.m.," said Schneider, whose wife died five years ago. "I'm working until midnight putting them out and cleaning cages. It's a hell of a way to live."

Next week, Schneider leaves his yellow, eight-room wood frame house and moves to nearby Greenfield — the largest nearby town — where he has promised neighbors he will keep only two dogs.

He said he would place his strays in various shelters while continuing to search for a new site for the Hilltown Shelter.

In the 15 years since the former television repairman began taking in stray dogs, his property has shrunk from 100 to 20 acres as he sold land to pay bills. Today, he said, the 80 acres would be worth $40,000.

Schneider's shelter is distinguished from most others by his refusal to kill an animal unless it is old or very sick.

"I just can't see putting a healthy dog to sleep."

Jury convicts Gacy of 33 deaths, more than any in nation's history

CHICAGO (AP) — The clerk read the roll of the dead — the names of 22 youths and numbers for 11 others. "Guilty," was the verdict each time. "Guilty... guilty..."

When the clerk finished, John W. Gacy Jr. stood convicted of more murders than anyone in the nation's history. All but one of his victims were strangled. The first was stabbed.

Today, the jurors who convicted Gacy on 33 counts of murder were to return to the court for a hearing on whether the death penalty would be imposed as punishment for the sex murders.

"None of us will be satisfied until he is put to death," said Kenneth Piest, brother of Gacy's last victim.

"I'll go down and pull the switch if I have to," added Harold Piest, the boy's father.

Relatives of the young men and boys whose bodies were found under Gacy's home and in area rivers wept when the verdict was read. The jury deliberated less than two hours Wednesday before rejecting defense arguments that Gacy was innocent by reason of insanity.

The 37-year-old remodeling contractor, who celebrates a birthday on Monday, also was convicted of taking indecent liberties with a minor and deviate sexual assault in connection with 15-year-old Robert Piest.

"Nothing less than the electric chair will satisfy some of the relatives," said the boy's brother. "For the first time in 15 months, I am happy."

"We paid with our sons' lives — not just me — all of us," said Eugenia Godzik, whose 17-year-old son Gregory disappeared in December 1976. "I don't think we should give him a chance to appeal."

The prosecution is demanding that Gacy die in the electric chair.

Illinois' capital punishment statute covers crimes committed after June 21, 1977, the date it was signed into law. Twelve of the murders for which Gacy was convicted were committed after that date. Indecent liberties with a minor and deviate sexual assault also can mean a death penalty if they are committed during the course of a murder.

Gacy, characterized by prosecutors as a "predator" and "the worst of all murderers," sat expressionless, staring straight ahead, as the verdicts were read. He had confessed to committing all the murders between January 1972 and December 1978.

The remains of 29 victims were recovered from his property, most in the crawl space under his home. Four were found in rivers.

The verdicts came after chief prosecutor William J. Kunkle Jr. ended his summation by flinging pictures of the 22 identified victims to the trap door that once led to the crawl space and that had been brought in as evidence.

"Show the same sympathy and pity this man showed when he put them there," Kunkle told the jury, which heard five weeks of testimony.

A total of 79 persons testified for the prosecution and 22 for the defense during the trial, much of which centered on the question of Gacy's sanity. Arimate said Gacy was "truly the personification of Jekyll and Hyde."

Confiscated gun proved responsible

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Ballistics tests show the revolver taken from the car of Jean Struven Harris was the gun used to kill the doctor who developed the popular Scarsdale Diet, police say.

Mrs. Harris, headmistress of the exclusive Madeira private girls school in Greenway, Va., was freed on $40,000 bail Wednesday to await a Harrison Town Court hearing today on murder charges in the death of 69-year-old Dr. Herman Tarnower.

Mrs. Harris, a 57-year-old divorcee, was arrested Monday as she was backing her car down the driveway of Tarnower's estate in nearby Purchase. The doctor's pajama-clad body, shot four times, was found in an upstairs bedroom of the modern $500,000 house.

A .32-caliber revolver was found in the glove compartment of Mrs. Harris' car. Westchester County Police Commissioner Thomas A. Delaney said "ballistics tests positively identified the gun as the one used in the killing."

Police said there were signs of a struggle in Tarnower's bedroom. Mrs. Harris appeared at her arraignment Tuesday with a bruised upper lip and her attorney, Joel Arnou, said she received the bruise at the house.

At the bail hearing, Arnou said she also had a bruise on her upper left arm and that he would seek medical treatment for her. He said she was in shock. Mrs. Harris did not attend the hearing.

Assistant District Attorney Joseph Rakacky said self-defense was not a motive in the case.

"The fact that the doctor was shot four times negates any question of self-defense," he said. "The dispute perhaps rose out of the personal relationship between the two."

Mrs. Harris was said to have been a close friend of Tarnower's for 14 years and a frequent visitor to the cardiologist's estate.

In his book, "The Complete Scarsdale Diet: Plus Dr. Tarnower's Lifetime Keep Slim Program," he thanks Mrs. Harris for her "splendid assistance" in preparing the best-seller, which reportedly has grossed some $11 million.

Tarnower lately had been seen in the company of a nurse, according to published reports.

Farm

Aquaculture far below its potential in U.S.

By LLOYD BENTSEN

The word "Aquaculture" may sound like Greek, but someday it's going to be a household word.

Aquaculture — or aquiculture — actually has a Latin, not Greek root. It means, literally, farming the produce of the oceans.

The Chinese have harvested the sea's bounty for at least 4,500 years; we've practiced the ancient art for a century in this country.

Commercial aquaculture production, though, began making waves here around 1960; since then, production has grown from some two million pounds of fish to over 100 million pounds.

Production of rainbow trout by private growers increased from just over a million pounds in 1964 to over 30 million pounds in 1972. Almost all the trout we eat in this country are produced by aquaculture, as well as 40 percent of our oysters and half of our catfish and crawfish.

Yet aquaculture farming is far below its potential in the United States, supplying only about three percent of our domestic fish consumption needs. Worldwide, aquaculture accounts for almost 10 percent of fish production. And in some countries, aquaculture supplies as much as 40 percent of domestic needs.

The U.S. today imports more than half of the fish we consume, adding substantially to this country's foreign trade deficit. Fishery product imports cost our economy $2.6 billion in 1979 alone.

Clearly, it's high time we spur aquaculture's growth. We need more projects like the one at Texas A&M University, where researchers successfully breed shrimp in captivity using the thermal effluent from a power plant in Corpus Christi. And the ideal growing conditions of the Laguna Madre, along the coast of south Texas, could supplement the commercial shrimp catch through the Gulf of Mexico.

Since 1976, I've been promoting comprehensive aquaculture legislation. I was the first member of Congress to propose such legislation, in fact. Recently, the Senate Agriculture Committee approved a bill that I am co-sponsoring. The Senate will vote on it sometime during the next few weeks, and I expect it to get the President's signature within a few months.

The measure will help coordinate various federal agencies and departments involved in aquaculture. That's very important, since several government departments — Agriculture, Commerce, and Interior — are now dabbling in aquaculture and each goes its own way with no central guidance or coordination.

This bill will allow aquaculture farmers a firm base for future efforts to develop the sea's resources.

With this legislation, we'll be ready to tap the potential this exciting field offers. If we can breed better cattle, we can use aquaculture techniques to breed tastier, larger super-species of fish. And we won't have to worry about whether we have a growing market for this improved crop.

PER CAPITA U.S. CONSUMPTION of fish, for example, has increased by some two pounds since 1969 — after almost no change since 1969. The world commercial fish harvest has gone from some 21 million tons in 1950 to approximately 70 million in 1970.

Aquaculture methods produce large amounts of materials — the element in shortest supply to the diets of people all over the world. Just imagine what aquaculture farming could do for our balance of trade. It could turn us from an importer to an exporter of seafood.

Besides being profitable, aquaculture is a sound ecological policy as well. Since 1970, the world commercial fish harvest has remained constant; there is great concern that some fish are caught at or above the level of their maximum sustainable yield.

Controlled aquaculture farming will take some of the pressure off of the over-fished regions of the sea.

Limited resource farmers eligible for FHA loans

Limited resource farm operators who cannot pay the regular interest rate because of low income are eligible for low-interest farm ownership and farm operating loans from the Farmers Home Administration, Don Richardson, Howard County Agent, said Monday.

The Agricultural Credit Act of 1978 provides for loans for farm ownership and farm improvements at 3 percent interest, Richardson said. He added that after three years the rate increases to 5 percent and is reviewed every two years to determine the repayment ability of the farmer.

Other benefits of the agriculture credit act are farm operating loans may be made to qualified small farmers at 5 percent interest for an initial period of three years. Then, the interest rate will be reviewed by the Farmers Home Adminis-

Energy prices may be driving cows to zoos

LUBBOCK — Rising energy prices may be driving the dairy cow to the zoo where she can be adored by future generations, unless research can help reduce milk processing costs.

A Texas Tech University dairy expert is concerned that the dairy business may be gradually pricing itself out of the fluid milk market.

The industry itself shares a similar concern and while the cow is not ready for the zoo in the immediate future, she may be headed that way.

"Milk production is a highly energy-intensive process, simply because the product is perishable," said Dr. J. Mark Hellman of the Texas Tech Department of Animal Science.

"The milk that comes from the cow is at 100 F. It has to be cooled immediately to 35 or 40 F. and stored in the dairy until it is picked up by the processors. At the processing plant it is maintained at 35 to 40 F. and then processed and pasteurized by heating it to more than 160 F. After that it has to be cooled back to 35 F., packaged and transported to the grocery store where it is stored on the cold shelf," Hellman said.

"But milk contains 87 percent water, which means the dairy industry spends large sums of money collecting, cooling, heating, cooling again and storing a lot of water," Hellman added.

An eligible farmer may consolidate or reschedule payment for a period of seven years. Where justified, farm ownership or operating loans may be partially deferred to three years.

Reps being told how to bag goods

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans are being encouraged to spend a day as grocery-store baggers in hopes of getting a better feel for the pinch of inflation.

But those promoting the election-year project, Republicans themselves, want to ensure that the businessmen don't both the mind and lose potential votes.

So, the representatives, no more $60,700 a year, are being told to keep the butter away from the onions lest the latter smell.

Simple perhaps, but as Rep. Robert Walker, who's partly responsible for the idea, says, "Congressmen could do themselves a lot of political damage if they put the bread on the bottom."

Walker, from Pennsylvania, and Mississippi Rep. Trent Lott said the plan would let participants conduct a personal oversight activity on the effectiveness of the food stamp program and talk with your constituents about the impact of rising food prices.

A statement prepared by Walker concluded the "Food-store Workday" project "is a part of an effort to convince the American public that the Republican Party ought to be a majority party."

He said Wednesday that about 30 House members and several GOP congressional candidates would spend one of the next two Saturdays bagging groceries at supermarkets in their districts.

Walker, who worked as a supermarket checker while in college, said a staff member of the House Republican Research Committee, who also had worked as a checker compiled the guidelines.

Among them:

- "Don't pop the bag open. Double bag when asked.
- "Don't put glass next to glass.
- "Before bagging the eggs, open them and check to make sure they have not cracked.
- "Keep fruits, vegetables and bakery goods free of pressure.
- "Square the bag by placing bulky items at the bottom.

New textbooks will carry price tag of $45.5 million

The State Board of Education will call for new textbooks in three elementary and eight high school subjects for use in Texas public schools beginning Sept. 1, 1981.

The 1980 textbook proclamation approved by the Board will carry a price tag of $29.7 million.

Additional costs, including readoption of current textbooks in 24 elementary and secondary subjects, additional purchases of books now in use, Braille and large-type books, and freight will boost the estimated 1981-82 costs to $45,505,961 or $15.13 per student.

The new text materials will include basal readers through grade 8, bilingual (Spanish) readers through grade 3, and earth science in the elementary grades.

High school subjects to receive the new textbooks include psychology, sociology, business management and ownership, business communication, business law, drafting trades, graphic arts trades and electrical trades.

Materials to be submitted by national publishers will be reviewed by the new State Textbook Committee throughout the summer. The 15-member committee, all professional educators now serving in the public schools, will be appointed by the Board at its May 10 meeting in Austin.

All books submitted for the Texas adoption will be reviewed by members of the State Textbook Committee and their advisors from a number of school districts throughout the state. At the same time, sample copies will be available for review by parents and other citizens at each of the state's 20 regional education service centers.

Alton O. Bowen, Texas Commissioner of Education, and the State Textbook Committee will hold a joint public hearing on the proposed materials Aug. 11-15 in Austin.

The State Textbook Committee will meet Sept. 8 in Austin to select the books it will recommend for adoption. This balloting process may last several days.

Bowen may remove materials from this State Textbook Committee list before sending his final recommendation to the State Board of Education. The Board may also remove titles from the list. However, no books may be added once the State Textbook Committee has made its selection.

The State Board of Education will hold a final public hearing on the 1980 adoption Nov. 6 in Austin. The Board will adopt books at its regular meeting on Nov. 8.

Texas Tech music professor will present organ recital

Dr. Judson Maynard, professor of music, Texas Tech University, will present an organ recital at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 1001 Goliad, Tuesday, March 18, 7:30 p.m. A brief reception follows the recital.

The recital includes works by Henri Mulet, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Johann Sebastian Bach, Cesar Franck, and Olivier Messiaen.

Maynard received his Bachelor and Master Degrees from the University of Montana, and Ph.D. from the University of Indiana. He has been an associate of the American Guild of Organists since 1955.

Performing recitals, concertos, and other performances throughout Texas, Dr. Maynard was honored in 1979 with a Faculty Development Leave from Texas Tech to spend six months in Amersfoort, Holland, where he studied the carillon, viola da gamba, and organ. He chose the Dutch school because it was the one location where he could obtain excellent instruction on all three instruments.

Upon completion of his studies, Dr. Maynard was awarded the Final Diploma of Carillon Playing, which is the equivalent to an advanced performance degree. Approximately seven Americans have been awarded such a degree from this school.

The public is invited to attend this recital, one of several Dr. Maynard is giving while on tour.

FBI Brilab informant a master

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — As a federal grand jury today resumed its Brilab bribery investigation, a New Orleans newspaper reported a master of fraud supplied FBI undercover agents with much of their information.

The Times-Picayune in today's editions said a congressional investigation once described FBI informant Joseph Hauser as one of the most successful insurance fraud operators in the country.

Hauser was serving time in prison in Texas for insurance fraud when the FBI reportedly recruited him in 1977 for its Brilab inquiry.

In the Brilab operation, FBI agents posing as insurance agents offered money to politicians in return for help in obtaining lucrative state contracts in Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

The congressional committee inquiry found Hauser netted more than $11 million from union insurance premiums in seven years, The Times-Picayune said.

Hauser set up Old Security Life Insurance Co. and bid successfully in 1976 to take over the Teamsters Fund, one of the largest group insurance policies of its kind in the country, which eventually lost some $7 million under Hauser, the report said.

The congressional report said Hauser, using the corporate title of National Pacific Corp., purchased National American Life Insurance Co. of Louisiana from Roger J. LeBlanc of Baton Rouge with a down payment of $2 million obtained through the Teamster Fund ripoff, The Times-Picayune said.

Working undercover in the Brilab inquiry, he made repeated offers last year to obtain Louisiana's state employees insurance contract.

The board will adopt textbooks for the 1980-81 school year and consider personnel contracts for teachers, aides and ancillary personnel.

A representative from the senior class will address the board and discussion of a proposed high school band trip will take place.

Cognac drinkers

NEW YORK (AP) — The United Kingdom leads the United States as the top overseas customer of cognac, according to the Cognac Information Bureau here.

While Americans imported a record 20.3 million bottles of cognac from France, the United Kingdom retained its traditional first place — but by only a 230,000 bottle lead.
