Market ahead

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market forged ahead again Friday in buying that carried the Dow Jones industrial average briefly to the 3,000 level for the first time.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed at 2,980.20, for a net gain of 10.40 points on the day and a 75.25-point rise for the week.

The average, the oldest and best known measure of trends in stock prices, crossed 3,000 just after 1:30 p.m., then turned back a few moments later.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 3 to 2 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks.

Neil's adviser

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Thomas L. Ashley said Friday he has been regularly advising Neil Bush on his savings and loan troubles as a longtime family friend — but not at President Bush's request.

Ashley confirmed in a telephone interview he has talked to the president about Neil Bush but said he contacted the son on his own after reading of his troubles in the newspaper. He said President Bush was well aware of his activity.

Gas dealings

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox alleged Friday in a lawsuit that several Plainview-area gasoline dealers schemed to fix gasoline prices, and threatened retailers and other wholesalers who refused to participate in the conspiracy.

The lawsuit, which was filed in state district court in Hale County, seeks $1 million from each corporate defendant and $100,000 from each individual defendant.

Sexiest man

Cruise

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Cruise stole the thunder of his Hollywood peers by getting People magazine's annual sexiest man alive award Friday.

Cruise's role in the movie "Days of Thunder" made him an all-American "hot-rod hero," said the magazine, announcing its sixth annual determination of the world's most desirable male.

Previous sexiest men alive winners are: Sean Connery, John F. Kennedy Jr., Harry Hamlin, Mark Harmon and Mel Gibson.

Cruise was nominated for an Academy Award for his role in "Born on the Fourth of July."

Hance fears OPEC break up

■ In a meeting with TIPRO and PBPA officials, Texas Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance outlines strife in the ranks of the oil cartel and its possible solution.

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

Texas Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance told oil industry representatives this week he is fearful that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries may come apart, creating a new oil crash.

In an Austin meeting with Julian Martin of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO) and Harry Spannaus of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, Hance said he thinks there is about a 30 percent chance that the organization could disband because of internal strife.

Hance said the break up of OPEC would result in an instant rush to gain market share, causing a flood of oil in the world and price crash similar to 1986.

Bickering over production quotas and quota violations has been a persistent problem within the cartel, weighing down oil prices for months. Some OPEC members want greater market share while others want higher prices. Crude prices retreated 10 cents Friday to $18.36, after a sharp upward turn Thursday when Permian Basin crude buyers increased their posted price $1.

The price increase came following news that Saudi Arabia had agreed to a lower production quota and that the United Arab Emirates had agreed to a quota of 1.5 million barrels daily.

Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aqazadeh furnished another indication Friday that OPEC may soon take steps to reduce the oil glut.

Production cutbacks by two OPEC members should restore oil prices to the $18-a-barrel benchmark within days, he said.

Speaking to reporters at the end of a two-day visit to the United Arab Emirates, Aqazadeh said output cuts by the UAE and Kuwait will drive the prices up before the next OPEC meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, on July 25.

Still Hance warned it is crucial that the 13 members of OPEC heal their internal strife at their late July meeting in order that they might be an effective monitor of world oil prices. Iraq recently came close to threats of hostility against Kuwait if it did not stop cheating on its production quota.

Hance said he will be an on-sire observer at the July 25 Geneva meeting on behalf of the state and that Midland will be his first stop after his return to report on the OPEC meeting.

Spannaus said he has great confidence in Hance's knowledge of the inner workings of OPEC, and does not take the

Though she's ill, 'rabid fan' cheered by racers' letters

By David Morris
Staff Writer

ODESSA — It was Thursday afternoon, and Kathy York had just taken a phone call from race-car driver Mario Andretti's secretary in Pennsylvania.

"I'm so excited," Mrs. York said. "She said she would be calling me again. She said the Andrettis could tell that I was a very sincere fan. I said that was good, because I am. I told her I never miss a race."

She said the attention from the Andretti camp was something she never dreamed of when she first became enamored of that racing family several years ago.

"The Andrettis have a special magnetic appeal, the way they talk and act and look," she said with schoolgirl wistfulness. "To me, they represent racing and they also represent what a family is."

Mrs. York, the mother of two elementary-school-age boys, said racing has been a family affair for her. She learned about racing from her husband Steve and now her children and their friends are becoming "hooked."

On race days, Steve said, he cultivates a friendly rivalry with his wife.

"I usually root for little Al Unser (Jr.) just to keep things competitive around here," he said.

On non-race days, the Yorks' video cassette recorder is likely to be playing taped race coverage. And house guests had better be prepared to join in the fun.

"They don't have a choice," Mrs. York said. "They've got to watch the races or leave the room."

Mrs. York, 37, said her fascination with racing and her affection for the Andrettis has grown as she has become progressively more ill with systemic

Nine-year-old killed in accidental shooting

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

A 9-year-old Midland boy died Friday night after apparently accidentally shooting himself while playing with a handgun, Justice of the Peace Robert Pine ruled.

Cpl. Jim White said the dispatcher received the call at 3:48 p.m.

The boy apparently was watching television in his bedroom with another child when the shooting happened, Johnson said.

He said the other child ran out of the bedroom and told Troy's grandmother, who was in another room, that the boy had shot himself.

"He supposedly was playing with a gun with one of his friends, passing it from hand to hand, when he shot himself in the head," Pine said.

The grandmother then called paramedics, Johnson said. Johnson said he did not know if anyone else was in the

Casa de Amigos settles in at spacious eastside facility

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

In the 900 block of North Dallas Street, you can see the beginnings of Casa de Amigos — a couple of houses and a grocery store. One house still has Casa de Ninos faintly stenciled on its wall.

From Dallas, you can turn onto East Garden Lane and witness the 26-year-old community center's newest facility, the Mabee Eastside Community Center.

"A two-bedroom house is where we began and look where we've come," said Pat Garcia, Casa de Amigos' community relations coordinator.

The 12,000 square foot blue and rust-colored post-modern structure at the corner of East Garden Lane and Lamesa Road is vaguely ecclesiastical, the effect heightened by a stained-glass window featuring the Casa's "little man" logo.

"People ask, what's that new church?" Ms. Garcia said.

When the old Casa building next door is renovated by the end of the summer, the combined facilities will comprise 20,000 square feet.

Lael Cordes-Pitts, Casa de Amigos' executive director, said all the space will be put to good use immediately. She's proud that Casa has outgrown every building it's been in.

"People were on top of each other at the old building and you could only have one activity going on at a time," Ms.

Islamic group claims responsibility for blast

■ Although the Islamic Liberation Front claims its agent engineered the July 5 explosion at an ARCO plant in Texas, officials investigating the blast say they've found no signs of sabotage.

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — An extremist Islamic group claimed responsibility Friday for the July 5 explosion at a Texas chemical plant that killed 17 people, but U.S. officials and a company spokesman dismissed the claim.

A spokesman for the Islamic Liberation Front told The Associated Press that the Arco Chemical Co. Plant in Channelview, Texas, was attacked because the United States supports Israel despite "its killings and terrorism against our Palestinian families" in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

He refused to give any details of the alleged operation for "security reasons."

Arco Chemical Co. of North America said from its headquarters in Newtown Square, Pa., they were surprised by the claim because federal investigators say they've found no signs of sabotage in the explosion.

In Washington, State Department deputy spokesman Richard Boucher said there was no reason to believe the explosion at the chemical plant was the result of terrorists.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration, which is investigating the blast, said in a statement released in Washington that "there is absolutely no information to substantiate this reputed claim."

The Arco plant, 15 miles east of Houston, was wrecked by the explosions and fire, which leveled an area the size of a city block.

Arco spokeswoman Sallie Anderson said Friday from the company's headquarters that the cause of the explosion had not been determined. She also said she was unaware of any recent threats against the company and that the company had no dealings with Israel.

An Islamic Liberation Front spokesman, who identified himself as Bassam Walid said: "One of our unit commanders, operating in the United States of America, informed our headquarters in the occupied territories last Friday that our comrades had set ablaze a Texas chemical factory and that the mission was successfully accomplished."

In a telephone call several hours after he appeared in the AP office, Walid said: "Many more attacks will be launched against U.S. targets ... inside America and around the world."

He said attacks would also be made against the U.S. military, but no attacks would be carried out against civilians.

The Front is a relatively large group based in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. It has followers in Jordan and several other Arab countries.

Lamar Smith meets local constituents

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

Congressman Lamar Smith faced a courtroom full of malcontent constituents when he hosted a town meeting at the Midland County courthouse Friday.

They wanted to know why he voted for a congressional pay raise, what he thought about limiting congressional terms of office and how he felt about the deficit and obscene art.

One woman summed up the mood of the crowd when she asked, "Do you realize how disillusioned the American people are with Congress?"

Smith defended his vote in favor of the pay raise, explaining that he had voted against it three times.

When President Bush asked him to sponsor a congressional ethics bill, Smith said he was "honored." He backed that bill and opposed the pay raise bill on their travels through Congress until the very end, when the two were fused into a single piece of legislation. Then Smith voted in favor of it.

"If you're going to pay Congress, isn't it better that the taxpayers pay them than the special interests?" he asked.

"No," the crowd responded in a low roar.

Smith said he does not favor a bill limiting congressional service to six terms for members of the House of Representatives and two terms for senators.

"I want to try something else first," he said.

"The problem is how to make congress more responsible and how to promote turnover."

He said he is skeptical of limits because they wouldn't affect many members of Congress. Two-thirds of House and Senate members have held their seats for fewer than 12 years, he said. Smith has held office since 1986.

"I'm hesitant to tamper with the American citizen's right to vote," he said. "Voters deserve their representatives."

However, Smith said he is introducing a bill that would limit the amount of money special interests could contribute to campaigns.

The bill would prevent incumbents from becoming entrenched by allowing only one-third of campaign funds to come from political action committees. He said PAC funding amounts to 50 percent of the average congressperson's campaign funding and committee chairs receive two-thirds of their campaign chests from PACs.

"This would force individuals to campaign harder in their own districts," he said.

Smith said he supports the balanced budget constitutional amendment is due to be considered in the House Tuesday.

"I have no other solution to rein in the free-spending ways of Congress except from the outside," he said.

"Gramm-Rudman forces us to reduce the deficit by increments until the budget is balanced in 1995 or 1996, but there's no mechanism to keep us on track afterwards."

The amendment could be overridden in times of war or economic emergency by a two-thirds vote in both houses, Smith said. It has already passed out of judiciary committees in the House and Senate and Smith said it has a simple majority in the House.

The amendment needs a two-thirds vote in each house to become law.

In response to an audience question, Smith said he opposes using Social Security funds to offset the national deficit. He agreed with a member of the audience who called it fraud.

He also took a hard line with the National Endowment for the Arts, saying that 75 percent of his constituents are against using public funds to subsidize "obscene" art.

"I don't believe in censorship, but we're not talking censorship here," he said. "Any artist can do whatever he wants, but not with taxpayers' money."

Smith said there is an effort in Congress to restrict NEA funding for "obscenity," but no plans are afoot to de-fund the NEA altogether.

According to his staffers' mail count, constituents' anti-NEA letters run second only to anti-gun control letters in frequency.

Smith said he opposes gun control language in a crime bill moving through Congress because it bans all semi-automatic weapons not used for sport.

"It doesn't say anything about protecting homes against intruders," he said. "The .22 semi I own would be outlawed under this bill."

Smith also raised the crowd's hopes by mentioning that next week the energy subcommittee on which he serves may provide funds for research and development for enhanced oil field recovery in the Permian Basin.

"I'm hoping Midland and West Texas will be the premier display area for new technology," he said.

Vandals disturb 49 tombstones

Staff Report

Unidentified vandals toppled 49 tombstones in Fairview Cemetery on Parker Street Thursday night, according to a report by the Midland County Sheriff's Office.

The report said the incident occured some time after dark that night.

Several tombstones were severely damaged in their fall and total damage is estimated at $2,500, the report said.

The sheriff's office has no evidence or suspects in the case, the report said.

Cordes-Pitts said.

"Filling this space won't be any problem."

In addition to the education, social service, health and dental service and senior citizens activities Casa provides, the new building will host night court, a legal clinic, day care, a Spanish-speaking Alcoholics Anonymous group and additional daytime General Equivalency Diploma classes.

The 12 full-time and 10 part-time staffers and 500 volunteers moved into the center July 2. They're still in the process of rearranging furniture and untangling phone lines, but programs including the senior citizens activities are already in full swing.

"We provide lunch five days a week and they can do ceramics, rock polishing, crafts. We do health screening and today we're taking them to the mall," said Isabel Gonzales, the senior program activities director.

She likes the extra space and facility improvements in the new building. A kiln that was a liability in the old building has its own room here, away from inquisitive children.

Not all of Gonzales' clients are as convinced of the new building's value.

"I liked it better over there (in the old building)," said Eliza Lee Grant.

"It's huge here but we like little better. There are too many halls and doors and we get lost," Ms. Grant said. "it's nice but..."

Ms. Gonzales said the senior citizens will move back to renovated rooms in the old building in the fall.

The Mabee Eastside Community Center is named for the Mabee Foundation, which provided a $888,300 grant for the building.

"We were really fortunate to get it," said Ms. Cordes-Pitts. "Due to the economic climate here, we knew it would be hard to hold a capital campaign or even a matching campaign."

Alton Yowell designed the facility and Campbell Construction was the general contractor. Construction began in December 1989 and finished a month ahead of schedule at the end of June.

Casa de Amigos receives 25 percent of its $500,000 budget from United Way, 35 percent from foundations and the remainder from churches, businesses and special events.

lupus erythmatosus — a debilitating disease that has left her confined to a wheelchair.

"There's no cure for it," she said during an interview this week. "Everybody who has it differs and they can have it to differing degrees. I have one of the worst cases, the doctors say."

She suffers from seizures and headaches, impaired vision, early symptoms of kidney failure, and a sensitivity to sunlight which keeps her mostly housebound.

"It's gotten to where I'm not even supposed to do housework or anything like that," she said. "That's why racing has really become my main activity."

So when Mrs. York heard in April that Mario Andretti and his son Michael were coming to Midland to attend a reception honoring engine builder Franz Weis, naturally she was excited.

The reception, however, was an invitation-only affair. So her husband of 14 years, Steve York, wrote a letter to Midland Chevrolet dealer Jack Sherman asking if his wife could attend.

Sherman said he was happy to pencil Mrs. York's name onto the guest list.

"I felt, after all, that it was a good thing to do," he said. "I had gotten a nice letter from her husband and one of the local TV personalities called ... and said that Mrs. York was a rabid race fan and would I mind inviting her to it."

When Mrs. York arrived at the reception, however, she learned that the Andrettis had been forced to cancel their appearance due to bad weather.

Four-time Indianapolis 500 winner A.J. Foyt was there, though, and Mrs. York said she spent 20 minutes talking racing with him. He told her how to correspond with the Andrettis, to whom she promptly wrote.

"Four days before Indy (in May), we got a package from the Newman-Haas racing team" for whom Mario and Michael drive, she said. It contained hats, T-shirts and a letter from a team representative saying that the Andrettis hoped the gifts would make up for the reception no-show.

A couple of days later, a personal letter from Mario arrived at the York house, accompanied by a pin commemorating Andretti's 25th Indy appearance.

"I wasn't expecting any of this," Mrs. York said. "When I got his pin, I was up in the clouds. A few days after that, Michael Andretti sent me a picture of him and his dad. He had signed it to me on the back."

Celebrities "correspond" with fans all the time, of course. But for Mrs. York, the attention from the Andretti racing camp has been especially gratifying.

"It didn't improve my health but it did lift my spirits," said Mrs. York, who added that her prognosis at this point is poor. "This just really has taken my mind off everything. It just makes me feel special. It just shows what caring people they are to take the time to do something like this. I never dreamed in all my life that something like this would happen.

"My dream would be to meet Michael and Mario. If I had one wish, that's what I'd wish for."

warnings lightly.

"If OPEC disbands and there is an oil price crash it would be disastrous for the Permian Basin," he said.

Spannaus said the only remedy for such a crash would be letting it run its course to the point of diminishing return, where increased sales at depressed prices are not profitable.

"There is one other event that could correct an oil price crash and send prices higher, but we don't want to think about it — that would be a war in the Middle East that would totally disrupt oil supplies."

Conoco plant approved

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Conoco won state approval Friday evening to immediately begin construction of a planned $140 million petroleum coke and sulfur plant at its existing refinery in Billings.

The two-year project is expected to provide construction jobs for up to 500 workers at its peak and result in 40-50 permanent jobs to operate the new plant, company officials said.

The Montana Board of Health, at the conclusion of a public hearing in Helena, voted unanimously to approve the Houston-based petroleum company's plans.

Attorney general candidate proposes Drug Strike Force

By David Morris
Staff Writer

J.E. "Buster" Brown, the Republican nominee for attorney general, doesn't want any Texas counties to become known as safe havens for drug traffickers.

"(Our goal) is to bring every county up to the highest level of prosecution," Brown told reporters at a Petroleum Club news conference Friday. "We don't want to have any county to be in the position where investigations are not fulfilled."

Brown said that if elected he plans to form a Drug Strike Force to help rural law enforcement agencies and prosecutors bring drug runners to justice.

The strike force, which probably would consist of three teams of two attorneys each along with support staff, would be available on request to assist with drug investigations and prosecutions, Brown said.

He said the strike force probably would not assist with arrests, but would help local prosecutors gather evidence to present to grand juries.

Many counties, he said, lack the financial and manpower resources to effectively investigate and prosecute drug cases. Unlike Midland and Ector counties, they cannot afford to create their own task forces to fight the "war on drugs."

"I am confident that the counties will welcome it," Brown said. "I've made it very clear there's no desire on my part to interfere with those local prosecutors. The strike force would only come in at the request of the local prosecuting attorney."

Randy Fluke, a Midland County assistant district attorney, said he thought the strike force would be well-used by Texas' smaller counties. Even counties Midland's size might benefit from the force's existence when big caseloads loom, he said.

"It would be good to be able to pick up the phone and call the AG's office and say that with this particular round of drug busts, we could use some assistance," Fluke said.

"I think it would be just another shot in the arm for law enforcement."

Brown, in town for a Republican fund-raising luncheon, said the strike force could be paid for with money already in the Attorney General's Office budget. He said the force could be staffed by people in existing positions.

A spokesperson for Dan Morales, Brown's Democratic opponent, said Morales supports the idea of providing assistance to local prosecutors in drug cases.

"In some counties there are so many cases coming up that they are overwhelmed," said Robin Rorapaugh, Morales' campaign manager.

She said that Morales, rather than creating a special strike force, hopes to use the existing Attorney General's Office Criminal Justice Division to bolster local drug prosecution efforts.

Meanwhile, she said Brown may be deceiving voters by concentrating on the drug war at the expense of other issues.

"The AG's office has very limited jurisdiction in that," she said. "There are many substantive issues that are equally important to the AG's office" including judicial reform and school finance reform.

"Dan hopes to prevent the state being dragged into court in another major lawsuit during his...tenure," she said.

Brown also said he would lobby for passage of a law that would require top priority on court dockets for drug asset forfeiture cases.

"(Assets) confiscated in a drug bust may remain in a warehouse for as long as two years before the case reaches the top of the docket," he said.

Law enforcement agencies should be able to sell the assets as soon as possible and put the proceeds to work in tracking down more drug dealers, he said.

Mattox sues Plainview-area gasoline dealers

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox alleged Friday in a lawsuit that several Plainview-area gasoline dealers schemed to fix gasoline prices, and threatened retailers and other wholesalers who refused to participate in the conspiracy.

The lawsuit, which was filed in state district court in Hale County, seeks $1 million from each corporate defendant and $100,000 from each individual defendant.

Named as defendants, according to Mattox, were: Atex Gas Inc. of Plainview; ATB Realty Co. of Plainview, previously known as Atex Gas; National Stations Inc. of Plainview; Ray Bell Oil Co. of Roswell, N.M.; Douglass Oil Co. of Plainview; Fred Garrison Oil Co. Inc. of Plainview; West Texas Gas Inc. of Midland.

Executives with West Texas Gas Inc. were unavailable for comment on the lawsuit late Friday, according to a spokeswoman for the company.

Also, Harold Carney of Amarillo, employed by Ray Bell Oil; Kenneth E. Douglass of Plainview, vice president of Douglass Oil; Fred Garrison of Plainview, vice president of Fred Garrison Oil; Gary Garrison of Plainview, president of Fred Garrison Oil; and Glen Walkup of Amarillo, formerly employed by Atex Gas, a registered agent of ATB Realty and National Stations, and an employee of Ray Bell Oil.

Mattox said in the lawsuit that the defendants are "jobbers" who purchase gasoline from refiners for resale, and supply gasoline to most of the retail gasoline outlets in the Plainview area.

The defendants, according to a statement from Mattox's office, agreed beginning in 1982 that unbranded gasoline would be sold at one cent per gallon less than gasoline sold under widely recognized brand names.

The Atex defendants operated at what Mattox called the price leader and enforcer of the pricing agreement.

They signaled the minimum retail gasoline price for the Plainview area by posting the unbranded price at a convenience store in Plainview, the lawsuit alleges.

Following the posting, all retail gas prices in the Plainview area were adjusted to the agreed price, usually within a few hours, Mattox said.

The lawsuit alleged that retail stores and other "jobbers" who resisted the price-fixing scheme were threatened and harassed by the defendants.

Mattox said those who deviated from minimum prices set by Atex were subjected to price wars in which competitors supplied by Atex were able to sell gas at prices near or below cost.

As part of the lawsuit for civil penalties, Mattox asked the court to prohibit the defendants from violating the Texas Free Enterprise and Antitrust Act.

Neither Atex nor ATB Realty had a listed telephone number in Plainview. Walkup said, "My attorney will be handling that. I have no comment."

Farm bureau backs Williams

WACO (AP) — The Texas Farm Bureau Friday endorsed Republican Clayton Williams for governor, saying Williams "understands our problems and can help us as governor."

"Clayton Williams has strong ties to agriculture," said Farm Bureau president S.M. True. "We like his sense of values, his strong beliefs about family and community."

Williams is challenging Democrat Ann Richards in the November election.

Leaning man dead

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — For two days thousands of motorists passed by a man who appeared to be just leaning against a highway railing but actually was dead, authorities said.

The unidentified man, between age 35 and 40, was sitting with his head slumped to the right with a full can of beer within reach, police said.

Officers discovered the man was dead Thursday after a woman decided something wasn't right. She had seen him in the same position for two days on the busy interstate highway near downtown.

"She had passed by him a day earlier and said she had seen him before," police Patrolman Richard Smith said. The woman did not want to give her name, Smith said.

The man carried no identification papers.

Men electrocuted

CISCO (AP) — A television antenna being erected by three Cisco men fell on a power line, electrocuting two of the men, authorities said.

Cisco police officer Darrell Shipman identified the victims as Lawrence Ingram, 56, and Billy Steelman, 50.

A third man working on the antenna, Robert Haley, who lived at the address, escaped injury Thursday when he let go of a wire attached to the antenna as it started falling.

A wire fence around the home's yard also was electrified when the antenna or a wire touched it, Shipman said.

Several homes in the area were without power for a time following the accident.

Couple weds on 13th

WOLFFORTH (AP) — Friday the 13th is a day that some believe is just the ultimate in bad luck. But a West Texas couple with a love of black cats brushed superstition aside and got married.

"At first, I kind of hesitated about getting married on Friday the 13th," said Michael Gonzales, shortly after marrying Genea Garry Friday. "But then I thought, 'I have black cats, so why not on the 13th?'"

The South Plains couple planned to be married July 7, but pushed the date back to attend a family reunion. The new Mrs. Gonzales said the new date didn't bother her.

"I have broken mirrors and I have opened umbrellas inside the house to see if they worked," said Mrs. Gonzales. "I also have black cats, so I never gave it a second thought."

As the ceremony drew to a close, the justice of the peace conducting the wedding mistakenly asked Mrs. Gonzales "if she would take Michael to be her lawfully wedded wife."

"I don't know if it had to do with Friday the 13th," Mrs. Gonzales said. "But if it did, I am glad it happened because it made me not quite so nervous. We all kind of laughed at it."

Comanche Peak plant reaches full generating power

■ TU Electric contends rate increase needed to pay for Comanche Peak nuclear reactor.

By James Cullen
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — TU Electric Co. ratepayers could see a 10.2-percent rate increase in their bills within the next month, since Unit 1 of the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant reached its full generating capacity for the first time Friday morning, company officials said.

The nuclear reactor, which has been undergoing testing since it received its full-power operating license from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission on April 17, reached 100 percent of capacity at 6:19 a.m. Friday, TU Electric announced from its Dallas office.

The company plans to operate the unit at 95 to 100 percent power for about one week, during which time it will conduct additional tests, the company said in a news release.

After confirmation of test results, the unit will return to full power and will continue to provide power to TU Electric's customers in 87 counties of West, North Central and East Texas, the company said.

Meanwhile in Austin, TU Electric Co. Chairman Erle Nye on Friday continued to defend the company's request for the rate increase in the second day of hearings before a Texas Public Utility Commission examiner on the prudence of building the nuclear plant.

THE HEARING is expected to last several months before the examiner makes a recommendation to the three-member PUC on how much of the nuclear plant costs, estimated at more than $10 million, should be charged to ratepayers.

Nye said TU Electric needs the rate increase to generate $442 million a year and start paying the $5.9-billion cost of the first unit through June 1989.

The company plans to seek another 10-percent increase to pay for the rest of the plant after the second reactor is finished in 1992 or 1993.

City councils in 70 cities, including Midland and Odessa, have voted to deny the rate increase, ruling that TU shareholders should pay for approximately one-half the cost of the plant.

The PUC's staff has recommended that the commission disallow $1.1 billion in imprudent costs from the Comanche Peak total that would be charged to ratepayers.

The Office of Public Utility Counsel, a separate agency that represents residential and small-business ratepayers, has recommended a $5 billion disallowance from the total for the two reactors.

UNIT 1 has been supplying electricity to customers since April 24.

TU Electric has notified the PUC that it has met the requirements to put the first reactor in commercial operation, since it has operated at 95-percent power or above for 100 consecutive hours.

The company also has filed an application with the PUC to implement the rates on an interim basis under bond, subject to refund if the PUC awards less than the 10.2-percent increase.

Rates for the average residential ratepayer, who uses 1,000 kilowatt-hours, would increase by approximately $6.60 a month, to $72.61, under TU's plan.

Kathi Miller, a TU spokeswoman, said April 21 is the earliest the interim rates could go in effect, but no decision has been reached on when to implement the bonded rates.

Comanche Peak, located near Glen Rose, has the ability to generate 1,150 megawatts of electricity from the first unit, enough to supply 40 percent of the needs of a city the size of Dallas.

AP Laserphoto

CHINA SPRING, Texas (AP) — For Carrie Wenzel, it is a dream come true.

After three years of corresponding by letter and postcard, 15-year-old Carrie, of China Spring, and 15-year-old Anke Weckbecker of Lehman, Germany, are sharing experiences first hand as the German teen-ager visits Texas.

About three years ago, Carrie's seventh-grade English teacher gave her information about the International Youth Service, which arranges pen pals from foreign countries.

Around the same time, Anke's classmate brought a letter to school from a pen pal in New York City.

"We were all very impressed," she said.

Anke also applied for a pen pal, and she and Carrie were matched.

Anke wrote the first letter, a short note telling Carrie about her family and her small wine-producing village of about 1,250 people.

"It was hard because I was only learning English for two and one-half or three years," she said. Carrie does not speak or write German.

The correspondence soon became a habit.

"Every day I would get off the bus and look in the mailbox," said Carrie. "I always wanted to get a letter from her. Sometimes I would get one and I would run in the house, drop my books and read my letter."

After writing to each other for so long, Carrie wanted to meet her far-away friend.

"I thought about it last summer and said, 'Wouldn't it be neat if I got to see her?' So I asked my parents," she said.

"It was the country of oil and 'Dallas'. We see 'Dallas' on televison so it was all I knew about Texas. It was so exciting," she said.

Though her parents were worried — it would be only Anke's second airplane flight — they allowed Anke to travel to America during the six-week vacation she has from school each year. She flew to Dallas from Frankfurt on June 24. When Anke walked to the gate, she immediately found her friend.

"There was a family with a very tall man, and then I saw Carrie and I knew it was them," Anke said.

Leaving the airport gave Anke her first real encounter with Texas heat.

"The plane and the airport was air conditioned," Anke said. "And then you walk outside and it was shock. It was so hot. I couldn't breathe. The first impression I had of Texas was the heat."

The lack of scenery while traveling on the interstate from Dallas to Waco also raised some doubt in her mind about the state's fabled beauty.

Volunteers build scow sloop for Texas Maritime Museum

ROCKPORT, Texas (AP) — Miguel Garza Sr. has been building boats most of his life.

When he was younger he built them with his father and uncle. Their specialty was the Texas scow sloop — a craft not seen on the Texas Coast since 1935.

Garza may be the only person in the Coastal Bend who still knows how to build the boat.

"It's not written down, it's in my head," Garza said. "So I have to build this one or there won't be anymore."

For the next six months, Garza and other volunteers plan to donate their free time on weekends to build the Texas scow sloop, a boxy, flat-bottomed boat once used for shrimping.

Since April 1, about 25 volunteers have started building the boat on the Texas Maritime Museum grounds under Garza's direction.

Building the sloop is the Texas Maritime Museum's first major project since opening at its present location on Navigation Circle on July 1, 1989, said Jerry Moore, executive director of the museum.

"What's really neat about this project is that Texas waters haven't seen one of these boats for 35 years," Moore said. "We're doing this the traditional way, using hand tools and the old construction techniques."

'What's really neat about this project is that Texas waters haven't seen one of these boats for 35 years. We're doing this the traditional way, using hand tools and the old construction techniques.'

— Jerry Moore, museum executive director

Although volunteer Wally Keil said modern-day machinery would speed the process along, Keil did not seem to mind giving up his weekends to build the boat.

"A lot of the volunteers are retired and are looking for things to do," Keil said. "Some are real handymen."

Moore said the 27-foot boats were developed to be used for shrimping in the shallow waters of the Laguna Madre, and were once common in South Texas.

A net was strung between two of the boats and they "literally swept the bay," Moore said.

"It was very efficient, but it was too efficient," he said, and the method was outlawed in Texas bays.

The stricter fishing regulations forced the abandonment of the sloop in the 1950s. The boats are still used in Mexico where the regulations are not as stringent.

"The design is the same and it hasn't changed in 100 years," Moore said. "But evidently the Mexican government is about to enforce (new regulations), and once they (scow sloops) are gone, that's it. There's no more."

Garza, a boatbuilder from Corpus Christi who works primarily in Aransas Pass, first began working on these craft in the 1930s.

Materials for the project have been provided through grants from the Southwestern Bell Foundation and H.E.B. Grocery Co.

The Texas Maritime Museum began in 1975 as a privately sponsored display of nautical antiques at Rockport's annual Seafair. Interest in establishing a permanent museum grew, and in 1980 the Texas Maritime Museum Association was incorporated.

Asteroid named for 'Star Date' originator

AUSTIN (AP) — An asteroid has been named for Deborah Byrd, who originated the Star Date astronomy radio show that claims 5 million daily listeners.

The show took root about a dozen years ago, when an Austin radio station began broadcasting short messages on astronomy by Ms. Byrd. She was a staff writer at the University of Texas astronomy department.

Star Date now is on more than 200 public and commercial radio stations in the United States and Canada, according to the university.

Ms. Byrd's devotion to amateur astronomy led to the designation of "3505 Byrd." The asteroid was discovered Jan. 9, 1983, by B.A. Skiff of the Lowell Observatory near Flagstaff, Ariz.

In addition to serving as writer and producer of Star Date, Ms. Byrd writes for the monthly "Eye on the Sky" column in Astronomy magazine.

She is special assistant to the director of UT Austin's McDonald Observatory.

Ms. Byrd in 1979 organized the first Texas Star Party, an annual weeklong gathering of amateur astronomers from throughout the nation.

Clean air bill time running out

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — With fewer than 40 working days left in the 101st Congress, environmentalists are worried that time is running out on the clean air bill.

Although the bill was passed in different versions by the House and Senate, a conference committee has never met to iron out the differences.

"I think there is a possibility, or even a probability, that the clean air bill is in jeopardy at this point," said Richard Ayres, chairman of the National Clean Air Coalition.

Ayres said that when the House-Senate conference holds its first meeting this week, it will have only about 35 days on which to meet before the targeted congressional adjournment in October.

Although the House passed its version of the bill on May 23, House members of the conference committee were not appointed until June 28. The delay reportedly resulted from a dispute between House Energy and Commerce Committee Chairman John Dingell, D-Mich., and Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif.

Four months of activities honor Britain's popular granny

AP Laserphoto

Britain's Queen Mother Elizabeth, shown at the London Coliseum in February, will observe her 90th birthday on Aug. 4.

EDITOR'S NOTE: On Aug. 4, the Grenadier Guards will march past the London home of Her Majesty the Queen Mum playing "Happy Birthday," culminating four months of festivities in honor of Britain's favorite granny. Queen Mother Elizabeth is turning 90, but she shows no signs of slackening her crowded schedule of public appearances.

LONDON (AP) — She likes fast cars, cricket and betting on horses. She always wears pearls, even when salmon fishing in Scotland, and her saintly smile is so popular that she uses a see-through umbrella.

She's Queen Mother Elizabeth, diminutive matriarch of the royal family, favorite granny of the nation, turning 90 this year with a four-month birthday party.

Festivities kicked off April 25 with a reception at Cardiff Castle where Viscount Tonypandy, former speaker of the House of Commons, predicted "a tremendous wave of public affection around the whole country."

Well-wishers waited five deep on the streets outside the castle, including 91-year-old Tryphena Price who walked a mile to see the queen mother.

"She certainly does not look 90," enthused Mrs. Price, "and I should know."

They were rewarded by a sight as familiar as Big Ben or the White Cliffs of Dover — Her Majesty the Queen Mum in trademark hat, three strings of pearls and frothy, pastel dress.

As she bestowed graceful waves and smiles on her loyal fans, it was hard to imagine that the mother of Queen Elizabeth II is as old as the century. But she shows no signs of slackening her crowded schedule of public appearances.

This year is especially busy with receptions, dinners and garden parties, and a gala performance in her honor featuring opera stars Dame Kiri Te Kanawa and Placido Domingo, the Royal Ballet, Sir John Gielgud, Dame Peggy Ashcroft and Dame Vera Lynn.

The 27 military units and the 300 organizations over which she presides will mass on London's Horse Guards Parade for a spectacular ceremonial tribute. Commemorative coins and stamps will feature the royal nonagenarian, along with the inevitable slew of unauthorized queen mother mugs and tea towels for the tourists.

On Aug. 1, she will pay a poignant visit to London's East End where she and her late husband, King George VI, brought comfort during the dark days of the blitz. During the war the East End was a working class neighborhood that included the London Docks on the Thames River, vital to shipping at the time.

The party culminates on her birthday three days later with the Grenadier Guards marching past her London home playing "Happy Birthday."

The queen mother is the oldest member of the royal family ever to hold the title conferred on a king's widow.

She was born Lady Elizabeth Angela Marguerite Bowes-Lyon on Aug. 4, 1900, the ninth child of the Earl and Countess of Strathmore, whose family home was Glamis Castle, legendary home of Shakespeare's Macbeth, in northeast Scotland.

Her family periodically entertained King George V and Queen Mary and their children. When Elizabeth married their second son, Albert, in 1923, after twice refusing, she was the first non-royal bride in centuries to marry so close to the throne.

No one then dreamed that King Edward VIII would abdicate in 1936 to marry American divorcee Wallis Simpson, and that his younger brother, bashful, stuttering Albert, would become King George VI.

It was a reign neither Albert nor Elizabeth had sought.

"When finally it was known that her husband was to become king, and she queen, she was in bed with the flu," says Tom Corby, author of a new book about the queen mother. "She said to a member of the household, 'Well, we've just got to make the best of it,' and make the best of it she did."

She is credited with restoring stability to the royal family, badly shaken by the abdication, and transforming her shy husband into a people's king.

Harold Brooks-Baker of Burke's Peerage, a guide to the aristocracy, says he doubts the royal family would have permitted Albert's marriage to a commoner, had it guessed he might become King George VI.

Brooks-Baker said in an interview that the queen mother's enduring popularity is rooted in the way she and her husband rose to the task of reigning, and made themselves so visible in London during World War II.

"They never flinched," he said.

Elizabeth rejected Winston Churchill's advice to move to Canada, and after bombs hit Buckingham Palace, the monarchs' London residence, in September 1940, she said, "I'm glad we've been bombed. It makes me feel I can look the East End in the face."

George died of lung cancer in 1952, leaving her a widow at age 51, and she went into seclusion until Churchill cajoled her into returning to public life.

Sununu keeps clout in Northeast

By Adolphe V. Bernotas

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — John Sununu wields his clout in Washington these days but his influence still is felt in the state he governed for six years before being tapped as George Bush's chief of staff.

New Hampshire's immediate past governor is seen as a smooth operator who does favors for his adopted home state but leaves few political fingerprints.

Some state Republicans express concern that Sununu is meddling in local politics, but most consider his presence in the White House to be an asset for the state.

"Sununu makes certain New Hampshire's place on the political map is not forgotten," said GOP strategist Tom Rath.

"It was not an accident that the first place outside of Washington that the president visited was New Hampshire," Rath said, referring to a Bush stopover in Manchester not long after he became president.

As New Hampshire's governor, Sununu sided early with Bush in the 1988 presidential race. He helped engineer a Bush victory in the state's earliest-in-the-nation primary and continued the national campaign with attacks against Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis, governor of neighboring Massachusetts.

Sununu's political work continues even now. He had a guiding role in easing the White House's hands-off policy toward party primaries, putting the Oval Office behind candidates such as Rep. Bob Smith, R-N.H., who hopes to replace retiring GOP Sen. Gordon Humphrey.

State GOP chairwoman Rhona Charbonneau wishes Sununu had stayed out of the primary race between Smith and Rye lawyer Tom Christo.

"It's good to have a friend in the White House rather than a foe," she said. "But I truly wish they had kept out of the primary. I don't believe anybody, not even the White House, should be involved."

Sununu, whose influence also can be seen in some state races, brushes off the criticism.

"We're not trying to pick candidates," he says. "We're trying to help the process."

His wife, Nancy, hasn't kept silent either. She said she considered challenging U.S. Rep. Chuck Douglas for the GOP nomination in New Hampshire's 2nd congressional district because she "never appreciated his values and his morals."

Sununu and his successor in the governor's mansion, Republican Judd Gregg, have what insiders consider a civil relationship at best. At a recent New Hampshire business dinner, Sununu sat next to Senate President William Bartlett, who was considering challenging Gregg.

Sununu, 50, is described as Bush's right-hand man, part of a White House troika with Secretary of State James Baker and budget director Richard Darman.

Many doubted the abrasive Sununu would last long in the White House job after an admittedly rocky start. But now even his critics have had to admit he appears to be effective and may wield more power than any other recent chief of staff.

Most Republican politicians believe it is to New Hampshire's advantage to have Sununu in the White House.

"We may not get everything from the White House, but people at the White House have the ear of New Hampshire," said Bill Zeliff, a Sununu ally who is seeking the GOP nomination for Smith's congressional seat.

Sununu is seen as helping to place New Hampshire operatives in federal positions, promoting the Seabrook nuclear power plant and ensuring that important promises are fulfilled.

When the Navy threatened 1,000 jobs by canceling a $128 million submarine overhaul at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, Maine and New Hampshire governors and congressional delegations won a pledge by the Navy to find replacement work.

Humphrey credits Sununu with making the Navy deliver.

"When those promises started to filter down, the Navy bureaucracy was sidestepping it, so I called Sununu and he got them to do what they said they would do," Humphrey recalls.

Humphrey said Sununu is clearing similar hurdles for a proposal the senator is championing to make a wildlife refuge out of some of the land to be abandoned when Pease Air Force Base closes.

A string of people with New Hampshire connections have been appointed to federal posts since Sununu moved to Washington. Most recently, Wally Stickney, a Sununu friend and associate, was selected to head the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Wall Street responds to retail sales rally with one of its own

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose a modest 0.2 percent in June as declines in food and energy costs helped offset large increases for autos and tobacco, the government said Friday.

Meanwhile, retail sales rebounded a strong 0.5 percent, the first gain in five months.

The overall increase in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for goods one stop short of the retail level was about what economists expected.

However, prices for items outside the volatile food and energy sectors jumped 0.6 percent in June, the steepest increase in a year and about double the anticipated rise.

Analysts consider this so-called "core" rate a better indicator of underlying inflationary pressures in the economy.

Normally, a combination of stronger consumer spending and an upturn in core inflation would spook financial markets by discouraging any hope that the Federal Reserve would lower interest rates.

This time, the market shrugged off the statistical reports. Both stock and bond prices rose in the hours after the reports' release. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks touched 3,000 briefly before falling back to 2,980.20, still a record high.

Traders' optimism was buoyed by Thursday's comments from Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, who suggested the central bank was on the verge of cutting interest rates slightly to offset the economic effects of an apparent pullback in bank lending to businesses.

According to traders, the central bank followed through on Friday by pushing down the federal funds rate, the interest charged among banks for overnight loans, from 8¼ percent to 8 percent.

The rate cut comes at an opportune time for the Bush administration, which needs continued economic growth to bolster Republican chances in the November congressional elections.

Most analysts agree a rate cut would be needed to counter the economic effects of any White House-Congress budget agreement including higher taxes and reduced spending.

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater welcomed Greenspan's comments and said the administration was pleased with the reports on retail sales and wholesale prices.

"This is excellent news for the economy," he said. "Declining inflation should continue to relieve pressure on interest rates."

The 0.2 percent increase in wholesale prices followed a moderate gain of 0.3 percent in May and declines in April and March.

Last month's increase brought wholesale inflation for the first half of 1990 to an annual rate of 3.7 percent, compared with 4.8 percent for all of 1989.

Prices rose 3.2 percent for tobacco and 2.3 percent for cars. They were also up for women's clothing, furniture, jewelry, newspapers and over-the-counter drugs.

Tobacco prices are now 13.9 percent higher than a year ago. Automobile costs are rebounding as dealers scale back buyer-incentive programs.

Energy prices, which skyrocketed 13.7 percent in January because of a severe cold snap, have declined every month since. They were down 0.9 percent in June after dropping 1 percent in May.

Fuel oil prices fell 10.5 percent. Gasoline costs were down 1.3 percent. Natural gas prices rose 0.4 percent.

Neil Bush receiving S&L counsel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Thomas L. Ashley said Friday he has been regularly advising Neil Bush on his savings and loan troubles as a longtime family friend — but not at President Bush's request.

Neil Bush told federal regulators last December that Ashley, a banking industry official who was a college classmate of the president's, "apparently, you know, called my father, and then so at Dad's request he called me."

Ashley confirmed in a telephone interview he has talked to the president about Neil Bush but said he contacted the son on his own after reading of his troubles in the newspaper. He said President Bush was well aware of his activity.

Meanwhile Friday, Democrats got the 12th signature needed to petition the Justice Department for a special prosecutor to look into the collapse of a Denver savings and loan where the younger Bush had been a director.

And Democratic House Speaker Thomas S. Foley lashed back at a Republican official's accusation that the Democrats were to blame for a national S&L crisis expected to cost taxpayers hundreds of billions of dollars.

Ed Rollins, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, said the Democrats had sold out "for a few million dollars in campaign contributions." But the normally mild-mannered Foley, D-Wash., angrily dismissed Rollins as "in a panic ... an out of control person" making an "unrestrained and totally raw partisan accusation."

Tempers on all sides have risen as more attention has been given to Neil Bush, who faces a public disciplinary hearing before federal regulators in September on his role as a director of the bankrupt Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan.

He has been accused of conflict of interest but has said he has done nothing wrong. His father, the president, has twice defended his "honor and integrity" during news conferences but has promised to stay out of the investigation.

Neil Bush's statement to federal regulators is contained in a deposition included in documents released by the Office of Thrift Supervision. It was first reported Friday in The Denver Post.

Asked by the regulators whether he had ever discussed operations of the S&L with his father, the younger Bush replied:

"I didn't discuss details with him. And if he inquired about Silverado, it would have been very rare, I mean if at all, and I don't know if I ever voluntarily disclosed to him when I was a member of the board anything about the goings on of Silverado."

He added, "I never, I can state this with great clarity, that I never intentionally brought him into, you know, I mean I never asked him for assistance or advice on Silverado matters."

In response to the regulators' questions, Neil Bush said no one had suggested to him what his testimony on any matter should be.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., one of 12 petition signers representing a majority of Democrats on the Judiciary Committee, said their request to Attorney General Dick Thornburgh for a special prosecutor was made because "the people have a right to feel we're doing everything to get impartial justice done."

Thornburgh has 15 days to decide whether to open a preliminary inquiry to determine if a special prosecutor should be appointed, then another 15 days to tell Congress how he acted on its request. He has 90 days from start of the preliminary inquiry to determine whether to appoint an independent counsel.

Ashley, a former Democratic congressman from Ohio, said Friday, "I've talked to the president (about his son's situation) on a couple of social occasions, when we're alone. ... I talk about the kids. Neil's one of the kids."

Agents risk hazardous exposures during raids

By Dan Freedman
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Drug dealers with guns are not the only hazards facing narcotics agents conducting raids on clandestine laboratories. Increasingly, agents are bursting in on gallons of industrial-strength chemicals, potentially as lethal as bullets.

Cooking their way from metal drums through tubes to glass beakers, chemicals such as benzene and cyanide are essential to the production of manmade methamphetamines and PCP, also known as "angel dust."

Drug agents say that since violators rarely run these operations in an environmentally conscious manner, leaky or improperly disposed chemical drums threaten drinking water, as well the health of police and anyone else who happens onto the premises.

The problem is particularly acute in the Western states of California, Oregon, Washington and Texas, which in 1988 accounted for 78 percent of all illegal drug labs seized by the Drug Enforcement Administration. Nationwide, seizures have more than doubled since 1985, according to DEA figures.

To combat the pollution front of the drug war, the DEA and the Environmental Protection Administration have formulated guidelines for local and state police on how to handle hazardous chemicals. Also, Washington soon will distribute about $1.75 million in grants to states in order to perfect ways of cleaning up hazardous drug waste.

But even as governmental agencies focus on the drug-environment connection, the Bush administration may be on the verge of creating a pollution issue of its own: Aerial spraying of illegally cultivated marijuana in Western wilderness areas.

Most states shun aerial spraying, viewing it as a hard sell to environmentally attuned voters. But it has drawn support from William J. Bennett, Bush's drug policy director.

"We support environmentally sound aerial eradication," said Stanley E. Morris, Bennett's deputy director in charge of law enforcement policy. "People are skittish about this, but eradication is less destructive of the environment than the destruction done by growers."

While acknowledging that a spraying effort would face significant legal challenges from environmental groups, Morris hinted a program may begin soon. He declined to give specific details.

Environmental organizations remain unalterably opposed.

"What else would you be spraying?" said Jim Price, Southeast regional representative for The Sierra Club. "Crops, vegetables, people?" The club's legal defense fund in 1983 reached a court settlement with DEA barring use of the pesticide paraquat on marijuana growing on federal lands.

Law enforcement officials in California say the joint state, local and federal effort to manually remove marijuana has worked well without aerial spraying.

Clandestine growers themselves use chemicals that run off into mountain streams, killing fish and other wildlife, Stowell said.

Clandestine drug labs, by contrast, pose the most immediate threat to law enforcement officers conducting raids, as well as the unsuspecting lab operators themselves.

In years past, drug agents note, landlords rented out trailers that had been occupied by clandestine lab operators, little suspecting that dealers had left behind hidden quantities of toxic chemicals.

Officials said agents in the past had reported feeling dizzy after raids, and the DEA now routinely outfits agents in protective gear when they move in on labs and sends in chemists to do damage assessments.

Most chemical removals are done by contractor. Larger loads are handled by EPA.

DEA offers agents a course in chemical handling at its training facility in Quantico, Va., and invites state and local police to attend.

NATION IN BRIEF

Barry anxious to take stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marion Barry is "champing at the bit" to testify in his own defense, but no decision has been made on whether he will do so, the mayor's lawyer said Friday at Barry's cocaine and perjury trial.

The comment by defense attorney R. Kenneth Mundy came as the prosecution neared the end of its case. The trial will resume Tuesday, and assistant U.S. attorney Richard Roberts said the government planned to call just three more witnesses.

The defense plans to call 10 to 15 witnesses and it's "going to be full of thrills and surprises," said Mundy.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson said he expected the defense case to continue into the last full week of July. The prosecution may put on rebuttal witnesses, said Roberts.

Asked about the defense case after the day's court session, Mundy said he has not made up his mind whether to put Barry on the witness stand.

The mayor himself "is champing at the bit" to testify, said Mundy.

Earlier Friday, a prosecution witness said he was testifying under "intense pressure" from the government and his recollections of the timing of cocaine use with the mayor were heavily influenced by the FBI and prosecutors.

Quayle speaks to GOP

CHICAGO (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle on Friday tried to calm GOP fears about the political impact of President Bush's reversal on taxes and demanded that Democrats make the next move by proposing sensitive spending cuts.

Quayle told the Republican National Committee that Bush put taxes on the negotiating table to spur deficit reduction talks but would not accept any deal that would hurt the economy — or the Republican Party.

Many of the Republicans gathered in Chicago for the party's two-day meeting believe that Bush's decision to abandon his campaign pledge of "no new taxes" will hurt GOP candidates this fall.

Quayle's speech led a GOP effort to paint Bush's tax switch as a sign of bold leadership. Democrats have tried to paint a different picture, saying Bush is abandoning his no-tax pledge only because of the soaring costs of an S&L debacle they blame on the Reagan and Bush administrations.

Friday's focus on taxes and the budget talks came one day after GOP leaders counterpunched the Democratic attacks on the savings and loan crisis. Ed Rollins, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, tried to place blame for the S&L bailout on the Democrats, charging they had "sold out the taxpayers."

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., on Friday called the remarks "Mr. Rollins' emotional ravings" and added, "It sounded like he was in a panic. ... It was sort of a running doggerel of political invective."

Eastern faces charges

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. government has notified Eastern Airlines that it will be charged with criminal violations for allegedly altering maintenance and safety records before last year's strike, NBC News reported Friday.

Quoting unidentified sources close to Eastern, NBC reported that the airline is considering whether to plead guilty or no contest.

A federal grand jury conducted a 10-month investigation into charges that Eastern altered the records at New York's Kennedy and La Guardia airports and at the Hartsfield Airport in Atlanta, Eastern's major hub.

Eastern managers at Kennedy and LaGuardia allegedly ordered mechanics to disregard safety guidelines and then falsified logbooks to show that proper checks had been made, the report said.

If criminal charges are filed, it will be the first time an airline has faced such charges over maintenance practices.

Shuttle leaks differ

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The hydrogen leaks crippling space shuttles Atlantis and Columbia appear to be in different places, ruling out the possibility that the problems are related, NASA said Friday.

"The things that we know leak on one we know aren't leaking on the other," said William Lenoir, head of NASA's space flight program.

A common problem with the shuttles' fuel system would have been much more difficult to deal with, said shuttle director Robert Crippen.

Early indications following an elaborate test of Atlantis' fuel system Friday are that hydrogen escaped from a flange on the external tank side of a 17-inch-diameter valve, Lenoir said.

No leaks were found in that area on the plumbing from Columbia that was sent for laboratory testing to shuttle builder Rockwell International Corp. in Downey, Calif., Lenoir said.

Rockwell engineers believe Columbia's problem lies in a small, Teflon shaft seal on the orbiter side of the valve, Lenoir said.

NASA wants to launch at least one shuttle before Discovery's scheduled flight with the sun-exploring Ulysses satellite in October, Crippen said.

Discovery has until Oct. 23 to lift off with Ulysses because of the alignment of Earth, the sun and Jupiter. Otherwise, the flight must be delayed for 13 months.

SDI funding cut back

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee Friday approved development of the V-22 tilt-rotor aircraft next year. But they don't want to buy it yet.

The committee authorized spending $238 million for more research on the tilt-rotor, nicknamed the Osprey. Capitol Hill backers of the tilt-rotor have asked for another $165 million to purchase some V-22s next year.

The decision is one of several steps Congress must make to save thousands of jobs at Bell Textron Helicopter's plant in Fort Worth. Workers there and at Boeing Helicopters in Philadelphia jointly produce the V-22. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney recommended cutting the aircraft program.

The committee authorized military spending of $289 billion in fiscal 1991, making cuts in troop levels, some big-dollar items like the Strategic Defense Initiative and some Texas-made military hardware.

But the committee raised Cheney's spending request for the B-2 bomber to $4.4 billion. About 4,000 LTV Corp. workers in Grand Prairie are involved in the stealth bomber project.

The hardest Texas cut may be to General Dynamics in Fort Worth, which has produced 150 F-16 fighters annually for several years. The Senate panel authorized production of only 108 next year, officials said.

Noriega to miss show

SEATTLE (AP) — One successful military invasion deserves another, or so say officials planning a second "attack" on Panama to celebrate McChord Air Force Base's 50th anniversary.

The highlight of Saturday's day-long show of military might is a re-enactment of the December invasion. The event is billed as a "joint services air power demonstration," complete with explosions and strafing runs, paratroopers dropping from the sky and planes zooming in from overhead.

"We in this office never intended to call it the Panama re-enactment, but a lot of the planes and (some troops) that are jumping did actually participate in the real invasion," said Maj. Art Dearing.

"It's the same general attack scenario we used in World War II, in Vietnam, in Panama and in Grenada," Dearing said Friday.

Still, an earlier press release promised "the most spectacular event" of anniversary celebrations would be a "re-enactment of the invasion of Panama, with the actual aircraft, aircrews and soldiers who were there participating!"

But there will be some major differences between "Panama II" and the original. No one will be standing in for Gen. Manuel Noriega, who as a result of the real attack is in custody in Florida on drug-smuggling charges.

Los Angeles begins a long-term effort to wean itself from its smog-producing automobiles with the inauguration this weekend of the $10 billion Metro Blue Line train and subway system.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This smoggy, traffic-choked city inaugurates a $10 billion effort to wean itself off the automobile Saturday when passengers are welcomed aboard new Metro Blue Line trains between downtown and Long Beach.

The 22-mile system, financed by a half-cent Los Angeles County sales tax approved by voters in 1980, actually is a reinvention of the old Pacific Electric Red Cars that covered the exact same route 90 years ago.

But those trolleys — seen in the movie "Who Framed Roger Rabbit" — were derailed in 1961 by a city that had become hopelessly hooked on cars.

Although sleeker and faster than its predecessor, the Blue Line could be sidetracked by a 1990s problem. Many neighborhoods along the 22-stop route are now among the most gang-infested in the city, prompting some critics to dub it "a streetcar named disaster."

The $877 million line is the first part of a $10 billion, 150-mile rail grid planned into the next century for Los Angeles, a city of 3,046,000 people which is ribboned by freeways so jammed that the simplest commute can take an hour or more. Because of the traffic, the area generates some of the worst air pollution in the country.

Included in that system is the $1.3 billion Metro Rail subway, which suffered a setback Friday when fire ravaged a maintenance tunnel under construction. The first 4-mile segment was scheduled to open in 1993.

In order to spur public interest, the Blue Line will offer free introductory rides over the weekend. The regular fare will be $1.10 one way.

While bus riders are sure to prefer the air-conditioned electric trains, which will glide on rubber tires over nearly seamless rails at up to 55 mph, getting Southern Californians out of their automobiles is the real challenge.

"The key to success is how well we do in attracting the rider who has alternatives, who has some other way to get around other than public transit," said Edward McSpedon of the Los Angeles County Transportation Commission.

Ridership is projected at 5,000 to 7,000 a day.

"As far as organized gang activity, there hasn't been any. We have not had any of that kind of intelligence coming to us. Maybe they don't even know about it," said Los Angeles County Sheriff's Capt. Frank Vadurro.

Vadurro is in charge of the 118-deputy force contracted to guard the Blue Line. Deputies will ride trains in uniform and undercover, but not every train will have a deputy.

An estimated 15,000 gang members live in a 2-mile-wide strip along the rail line, 22 percent of all gangsters in the county, Vadurro said. Since November, 300 arrests have already been made by the transit force for crimes such as narcotics, vandalism and theft.

"We have made an overinvestment in security," McSpedon said. "We want to make sure that security is not even a factor in the rider's mind."

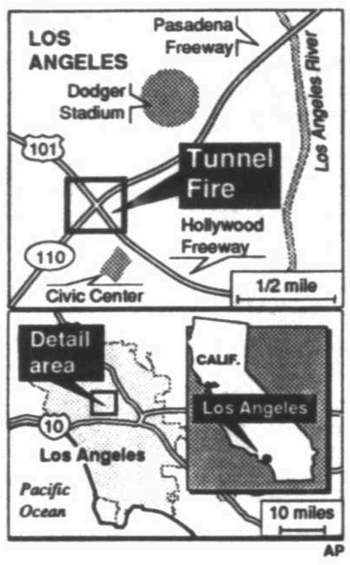
But Greg Carter, 31, waiting for a bus in Compton, said he was convinced gang members would shun the train. Troublemakers pick buses because they can hop off at the frequent stops, he said. But the train only stops every mile or so. "They'd have to jump off the train to get away," he said.

A computerized control room, dubbed the USS Enterprise after the bridge of the "Star Trek" vessel, includes an arc of color screens showing the progress of each train, and 64 television monitors keep on eye on the 22 stations.

Some merchants are delighted but others are suffering, cut off from customers by 6-foot-high steel fences along the tracks.

"Many citizens are very upset about it," said Compton City Councilwoman Patricia Moore.

Metro Rail fire threatens freeway, snarls commute



AP

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fire raged through a subway tunnel under construction near downtown Friday, collapsing a section of road near the Hollywood Freeway and snarling traffic when that busy thoroughfare was closed.

An opening over the collapsed section of the tunnel grew to a gaping hole of 80 feet by 20 feet, within 10 feet of the freeway.

"We're quite concerned about the integrity of the freeway," said Deputy Fire Chief Craig Drummond.

The blaze was reported at 1:40 a.m. and still burned out of control nearly 12 hours later when four firefighters tried to enter the tunnel to estimate damage. They quickly left, saying it was too hot.

The hole opened by the tunnel's collapse allowed fresh air to pour in, fanning the fire that fed on oil-soaked support timbers and plastic sheeting covering the tunnel's dirt sides.

The tunnel, a maintenance spur off the main subway line near Union Station, is designed to hold unused trains and equipment. The fire did not threaten the adjacent concrete-lined passenger train tunnel.

The $1.3 billion, 4-mile subway project was scheduled to open sometime in 1993. Officials of the Southern California Rapid Transit District weren't sure how the fire would affect the timetable.

Smoke poured out of tunnel vents and the odor permeated downtown.

"It started getting to me, it was just disgusting," said Jeff Singer, who got to work at the district attorney's office after being stuck in traffic almost an hour. "It was just starting to make me nauseous."

Firefighters poured water into the tunnel during the first hours and then began considering whether to smother it with foam or pump in an inert gas such as nitrogen to displace the oxygen that allowed the fire to burn.

Two minor injuries to firefighters were reported. Six cleanup crew workers in one of two underground tubes smelled smoke in the adjacent tunnel and escaped unharmed.

The top of the tunnel is 18 feet underground. The tunnel is 19 feet in diameter.

The Hollywood Freeway, U.S. 101, is a main artery linking downtown to Hollywood and the San Fernando Valley suburbs. Traffic from the valley was suprisingly light, some commuters reported, but freeways such as the Santa Ana, San Bernardino and Glendale were snarled as they tied into the downtown grid. Surface streets also backed up.

"It was a mess," said Elizabeth Munnerlyn, a court secretary who got to work two hours late.

"Some mail will not be delivered today. They could not get into some areas because of safety reasons," said Larry Dozier of the Postal Service. The downtown post office on Los Angeles Street is just blocks from the fire.

'Declaration of Independence' for disabled soon to become law

'It will change the way we live forever.'
— Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, on approval of the Americans with Disabilities Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation hailed as an "Emancipation Proclamation" for 43 million disabled Americans cleared its final congressional hurdle Friday, and President Bush was expected to sign it into law as early as next week.

"It will change the way we live forever," Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said after the Senate voted 91-6 to approve the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the bill would allow millions of people to "look forward to the day when they will be judged by the strength of their abilities, not misconceptions about their disabilities."

The bill defines as disabled anyone who has a mental or physical impairment limiting "some major life function." It protects the disabled from discrimination in employment, public accommodations, transportation and telecommunications.

"This legislation will serve as a declaration of independence for millions of persons with disabilities in this country," Bush said Friday.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president would sign the bill into law as soon as a ceremony could be arranged — probably as early as next week.

Throughout the more than nine months of debate, various lawmakers spoke of disabled friends and relatives. Just before the final Senate vote Friday, Harkin gave a dramatic tribute to his brother Frank, who is deaf.

Harkin, chief Senate sponsor of the bill he termed a "20th century Emancipation Proclamation," addressed his colleagues in sign language: "I wanted to say to my brother Frank that today was my proudest day in 16 years in Congress."

Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah, a principal Republican co-sponsor, became misty-eyed when he spoke of the travails and accomplishments of a brother-in-law who has polio.

The disabilities bill, like other major civil rights legislation, includes a variety of sanctions for violators, including those found to have been engaged in job discrimination. It follows current civil rights law by allowing victims of employment discrimination to seek back pay, reinstatement and attorneys' fees.

Bush voiced agreement "in principle" with such legislation early in his term, but the measure that ultimately emerged from Congress was most vocally supported by Democrats.

Not voting were Sens. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va.; James A. McClure, R-Idaho, and Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo.

Congress also is trying to enact the Civil Rights Act of 1990 — a bill aimed at eliminating the effects of recent Supreme Court decisions reining in affirmative action programs.

Riker's brawl leaves 39 officers injured

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of jail inmates bent on avenging the knifing of their Muslim religious leader stormed a cellblock at a maximum security city jail Friday, and 39 officers were injured trying to stop the fighting.

At least 19 of the 60 inmates involved in the brawl at Riker's Island also were injured, said Correction Department spokeswoman Ruby Ryles. Seventeen weapons were recovered in the cellblock hallway after the fight, she said.

Rikers Island is located on an island in the East River off the borough of Queens.

According to Ryles, the fight stemmed from Thursday night's stabbing by inmate Rolando Gonzalez of Andrew Jackson, the elected imam, or spiritual leader, of the jail's Muslim population. Authorities said they didn't know what prompted the stabbing.

Warrant for Bailey

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Former Texas A&I star running back Johnny Bailey faces prosecution for violating terms of his probation on a cocaine-possession charge.

Harris County Assistant District Attorney Bob Stabe said Thursday an arrest warrant has been issued for Bailey, 23, who is attending the Chicago Bears training camp.

Bailey, a ninth-round draft pick by the Bears last April, is accused of failing to pay about $1,300 in probation fines and fees during the last four years and not reporting to his probation officer several times.

John Bostrom, assistant public relations director for the Bears, said if nothing more serious than the probation violations named in the motion surfaces, Bailey's standing with the Bears will not be jeopardized.

Geddes leads watery Open

■ Round two of the LPGA U.S. Open was suspended at 8:30 p.m. Friday with 84 players still on the course.

Associated Press

DULUTH, Ga. — Jane Geddes took the clubhouse lead at the U.S. Women's Open on Friday, but it took her 12 hours to do it.

Geddes shot a 2-over-par 74 in a soggy second round that was interrupted three times by rain delays totaling 6 hours, 11 minutes.

"I feel like I'm on a golf marathon," she said. "I've never been at the golf course for 12 hours."

The round was suspended by darkness at 8:30 p.m., with 84 of the 156 players still out on the course and another 18 golfers still waiting to tee off. They will try to complete their second round on Saturday morning, when play is scheduled to start at 7:15 a.m.

The U.S. Golf Association said it planned to start the third round at 1 p.m., with threesomes beginning play on the first and 10th tees.

"I'm thrilled I finished," Geddes said. "I was getting really aggravated today. Two of my bogeys were three-putts after a break. I just didn't know how fast the greens were."

Geddes, the 1986 Open champion, had shared the first-round lead with Patty Sheehan at 66 — the best opening score in the history of the event.

Sheehan, a three-time winner this season and the leading money winner on the LPGA Tour, didn't even start her second round until 7:30 p.m.

Sheehan birdied the first hole to go to 7-under on the 6,298-yard Riverside Course at the Atlanta Athletic Club. But she and playing partners Nancy Lopez and Colleen Walker completed only three holes before the round was suspended by darkness.

Walker, who shot an opening-round 69, birdied the first three holes Friday to go 6-under for the tournament. Lopez, who opened with a 68, fell to 3-under when she bogeyed the first hole Friday.

"I get to rest tomorrow, and they don't," Geddes said. "It'll be a long day for a lot of people."

Among those completing the second round were defending champion Betsy King with and Pat Bradley. King shot a 71 for a 143 total, while Bradley was at 144 after shooting a 70.

Rosie Jones had a 70 and Meg Mallon 71 for 142 totals. Debbie Massey shot a 73 and was tied with King at 143. Mary Murphy had a 74 for a 144 total.

Two weather delays on Thursday forced 27 players to return to the couse Friday to complete the opening round. Six of those had to endure a 2-hour, 11-minute rain delay.

There was a 3-hour, 4-minute delay less than an hour after the first round finally ended.

The field began again at 4:15 p.m. and got in an hour of action before another thunderstorm caused a 56-minute suspension.

"We'll play as much as we can today," Judy Bell, a member of the USGA executive committee, said between the second and third delay. "The rest of the field will start first thing in the morning."

Bell said the third round would begin as soon as possible on Saturday after the 36-hole cut is made.

"We'll just keep playing until we have a champion."

Angels like how other half lives

■ After a 10-3 win over Shreveport, the Midland Angels are beginning to find the win column and liking it.

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

After spending much of the season unsuccessfully playing catch-up, the Midland Angels are seeing how the other half lives — and liking what they see.

The Angels jumped on Shreveport starter Mike Remlinger for six runs in the first two innings en route to a 10-3 win in Texas League action on an unseasonably cool Friday night at Angels Stadium.

Not only was Friday's win the Haloes' second straight, but Midland had a chance to climb out of last place in the TL Western Division for only the second time this season before El Paso kept pace in third with a 3-2 win over Jackson.

The Angels will try to extend their win streak to a season-high three games with a win tonight in the third of a five-game series with the Captains.

Midland starter Glenn Carter, 3-8, belied poor numbers coming into Friday's game with six shutout innings before faltering in the seventh and yielding to Mike Butcher in the eighth. Carter had allowed 113 hits in 83⅓ innings before Friday, but the Captains solved the young righthander for only four hits in his first six innings.

Carter said the Angels' early batting splurge helped him relax in the middle innings. "The team's producing runs early, so I just went out there and threw strikes."

The third-year pro walked only two batters in his seven-inning stint.

The Angels had scored only 10 runs in Carter's previous four losses, but Halo hitters hit Remlinger hard almost from the start.

Midland plated its first run on a one-out triple by Reed Peters and an RBI double by Mark Howie in the first. Howie later scored on John Skurla's RBI single.

Remlinger got two quick outs in the second, but Mark Davis then bashed his first home run in more than a month to open the gates. Peters reached on a fielding error by Captain third baseman Dave Patterson, but Patterson robbed Howie of possible extra bases with a backhanded stop on the next play, though the latter was awarded an infield single.

No matter. Howard Nichols walked to load the bases for Skurla's two-run single that all but finished Remlinger, though the Shreveport starter lasted another inning before yielding to Bryan Hickerson, who stopped the Angels on three innings of two-hit relief.

The Angels roughed up reliever Joel Estes for four runs in the seventh, after Shreveport ruined Carter's shutout bid

Softball games kick off

Staff Report

Over 90 girls softball teams invaded Midland Friday to begin play in 10 tournaments being held at Ulmer and Hogan parks.

The United Girls Softball Association is holding its national tournament at Ulmer Park while the ASA Division II state tournaments for 18-under and 16-under are being held at the Bill Williams Softball Complex in Hogan Park.

All of the tournaments are fast pitch.

UGSA AAA & AA National Tournaments

At Ulmer Park Friday night, the UGSA's Division AAA and AA began its quest to name eight national title holders with around 130 games scheduled to take place through Tuesday. Midland has seven teams entered in the AAA Division.

Friday's action started pool age group play with the top two teams in each pool gaining a chance to play for national titles in a best two-of-three format Tuesday. Pool action continues today at 7:30 a.m. and runs through 11:15 p.m. games.

Cubs lose again

Associated Press

Stan Javier singled in the go-ahead run in the ninth inning and Kirk Gibson followed with a two-run double Friday as the Los Angeles Dodgers handed the Chicago Cubs their fifth straight loss, 5-2.

With the score tied 2-2, Mike Scioscia doubled off Shawn Boskie (3-5) to lead off the ninth. Javier, hitting for Ramon Martinez (10-4), singled to score pinch-runner Jose Vizcaino.

Mitch Williams, making his first appearance since going on the the disabled list June 12, gave up a single to Lenny Harris. Gibson, who earlier this week asked to be traded, followed with his second double and third hit. It was his fifth multihit performance in his last 11 games.

Cubs rookie Shawn Boskie held a 2-0 lead until one out in the sixth. Kal Daniels doubled, Eddie Murray walked and Hubie Brooks followed with an RBI double. Murray scored when right fielder Andre Dawson threw the ball away for an error.

Brooks, who moved to third on the play, tried to score one pitch later on a squeeze, but Mike Sciossia missed the bunt and Brooks was tagged out.

Martinez, who pitched one scoreless inning in Tuesday's All-Star game, retired 11 consecutive batters before Joe Girardi singled to start the eighth.

Phillies 4, Astros 2

Dickie Thon hit two home runs off his former club and Jose DeJesus earned his first major league victory, leading Philadelphia Phillies past Houston.

DeJesus (1-2) allowed two runs and four hits in eight-plus innings. Roger McDowell got one out in the ninth and Darrel Akerfelds finished for his second save.

Thon, who played for the Astros from 1981-87, hit a two-run homer in the second and a solo shot in the seventh. The shortstop entered the game with two homers in 275 at-bats this season. It was the fourth time Thon has hit two homers in a game in his career.

Rickey Jordan singled to start the second inning off loser Mike Scott (6-9) and one out later, Thon hit his third homer of the season.

Reds 4, Mets 2

Tom Browning allowed two runs in 7⅓ innings and Mariano Duncan had two hits and scored twice as the Cincinnati Reds beat the New York Mets 4-2 Friday night.

Browning (9-5) retired the first 12 batters before Darryl Strawberry led off the fifth with a single off the top of the right-field wall. Strawberry also ended Browning's shutout bid with a solo homer to center field in the seventh, his 23rd of the season and sixth in his last nine games.

Before the game, the Mets announced they had temporarily ended contract talks with Strawberry, who says he'll file for free agency after the season. Strawberry, in the final season of a six-year, $7.2 million contract, said he'll listen to offers from other clubs and from the Mets at the end of the season.

The Mets moved within 4-2 and chased Browning in the eighth when Kevin Elster doubled and scored on Dave Magadan's pinch double. Randy Myers relieved and finished for his 19th save, allowing one hit.

Browning allowed six hits, walked none and struck out three.

Pirates 4, Padres 1

Pittsburgh turned a suicide squeeze bunt and a hit-and-run single into two runs to back Doug Drabek's strong pitching as the Pirates beat San Diego for their ninth victory in 11 games.

The Pirates have won 12 of 16 games to improve to 51-32, the first time they have been 19 games over .500 since they were 98-64 in 1979, the last time they won the World Series.

The Padres have lost nine of 10 games to Pittsburgh this season and 12 of their last 14 overall, and are 0-2 under new Manager Greg Riddoch.

The victory gave the Pirates a two-game lead over the second-place New York Mets, who lost to Cincinnati.

Drabek (10-4) retired the first 11 batters in outdueling Dennis Rasmussen (7-6) for the second time this season. Drabek gave up seven hits, struck out seven and walked one in seven-plus innings and has allowed the Padres two runs in 13 innings in two 1990 starts.

Giants 6, Cardinals 1

Don Robinson allowed one run in seven innings and had a run-scoring double to snap a fifth-inning tie as San Francisco beat St. Louis, extending the Giants' winning streak to five games.

It was also San Francisco's fifth straight victory this season over St. Louis, which failed for the 34th time in 85 games to score as many as three runs.

Inky lifts Texas to sixth straight

Associated Press

Pete Incaviglia's three-run double keyed a four-run Texas seventh as the Rangers won their sixth straight game with a 7-6 victory over the Detroit Tigers on Friday night.

Bobby Witt (6-8), who is 4-1 in his last eight starts for Texas, gave up five runs on seven hits. He struck out eight and walked three in 6⅔ innings.

Kenny Rogers came on in the ninth and struck out Cecil Feilder and Gary Ward with runners on first and third to get his eighth save.

Fielder's hit his major league leading 29th home run in the sixth to give the Tigers a 4-3 lead. But his throwing error opened the door for the Texas rally in the seventh.

Cecil Espy led off with a walk. He was picked off first by Gleaton, but Fielder's throw to second sailed into the outfield and Espy moved to third.

Rafael Palmeiro singled Espy home and went to third on Julio Franco's double. After an intentional walk to Ruben Sierra loaded the bases, Incaviglia hit his second double to drive in the three runs, giving Texas a 7-4 lead.

Jerry Don Gleaton (1-2), who worked 2-3 of an inning in relief of Detroit starter Frank Tanana, gave up four runs on three hits. Tanana has an 0-2 record and a 10.53 ERA in his last five starts.

The Rangers scored three times in the fourth inning. Palmeiro and Franco singled to start the rally. Sierra singled Palmiero across, Jack Daughterty had an RBI grounder that drove in Franco and Mike Stanley doubled Sierra home.

Fielder doubled, moved up on a wild pitch and scored on Larry Sheets' sacrifice fly in the Detroit second. The Tigers tied it 3-3 in the fifth when Mike Heath singled and scored on Lou Whitaker's 12th home run.

Alan Trammell drove in Detroit's final two runs. His RBI single in the seventh scored Whitaker and his ninth-inning hit brought in John Shelby.

Orioles 8, Twins 5
Twins 3, Orioles 1

Phil Bradley, batting for the first time since June 16, pinch-hit a grand slam in the eighth inning as Baltimore beat Minnesota in the first game of Friday's night's doubleheader.

Kent Hrbek and John Moses homered as Minnesota won the second game and ended Baltimore's four-game winning streak.

Minnesota had five home runs in the doubleheader. Gary Gaetti and Paul Sorrento hit two-run homers in the opener and Hrbek added a solo shot.

Randy Milligan hit two solo homers for the Orioles in the first game, his third multihomer game of the season.

Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken set a major league record for most consecutive games at one position with 1,308, one more than Everett Scott.

White Sox 3, Yankees 2

The White Sox, who beat the Yankees 8-0 Thursday night on Melido Perez's six-inning, rain-shortened no-hitter, took a 2-0 lead in the fourth but the Yankees tied the score in the bottom of the inning.

Fletcher then singled to lead off the fifth and he took third on second baseman Steve Sax's error. Sax attempted to catch Fletcher rounding the first-base bag but threw wildly into the Yankees dugout. Johnson followed with a fly to medium center.

Royals 5, Red Sox 3

Mike Macfarlane, who had struck out twice, broke a sixth-inning tie with a two-run single as the Kansas City Royals beat the Red Sox 5-3 Friday night and extended Boston's losing streak to five games.

Macfarlane's two-out single to left-center field came off Mike Boddicker (11-5), who has lost two straight after winning 10 in a row.

Tom Gordon (6-6) allowed seven hits and two runs in six innings, walked five and struck out three. Steve Farr followed with two innings of one-hit relief and Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his ninth save.

Royals center fielder Bo Jackson missed the game because of a death in the family. He was not expected back for Saturday's day-night doubleheader but may return for Sunday's game.

California 2, Toronto 0

Jim Abbott (6-7) pitched four-hitter to win his first home game in nearly a year.

He struck out three and walked none in his third career shutout, his first since last Aug. 30 against Boston.

Lance Parrish hit a two-run homer in the second off Todd Stottlemyre (9-9), his 17th home run of the season. Stottlemyre also pitched a four-hitter.

Midland Mid-Cities wins dramatically — again

Staff Report

BIG SPRING — For the second time in three days, never-say-die Midland Mid-Cities came from behind in dramatic fashion and defeated Midland North Central 6-5 to advance to the championship game of the District 3 Little League tournament in Big Spring.

With the game tied 5-5, Mid-Cities scored the go-ahead run in the bottom of the sixth to notch the victory.

Just three days before, Mid-Cities, down 2-0 to Big Spring International, scored all three runs in the sixth for a 3-2 win.

Mid-Cities will have a three-day break now, awaiting the losers' bracket finalist for the championship match-up next Tuesday.

Lamesa and Big Spring International play today at 7:30 p.m. in losers' bracket action. Lamesa defeated Salinas 3-2, and BSI downed Odessa Sherwood 5-2 to set up the game. Midland North Central will play the winner of the Lamesa-BSI contest Monday. The winner of that game will face Mid-Cities for the championship.

Big League: With a 9-0 win over Midland American Friday, El Paso's 16-18 year-old-team advanced to the championship round. Gabriel Salazar was the losing pitcher for Midland American.

The Big, Senior and Junior League tournaments are being played at Hogan Park's Simon and Redfern Fields.

El Paso has scored a total of 44 runs in winning each of its three games in the tournament.

El Paso will take on the winner of Saturday's Midland American-Lamesa game. The Midland-Lamesa game begins at 8 p.m.

Lamesa's advance to the losers' bracket finals with a 4-2 win over Big Spring. Robert Lara tripled and Mike Lozano doubled for Lamesa.

Senior League: Midland American advanced to the 14-15 championship game with a 5-3 win over Midland National Friday. Mike Melzer doubled for the Americans while Noel Romero picked up the win. National out-hit American 6-5, but the three runs scored by American in the bottom of the fifth proved the decisive factor.

After being no-hit in the first game of the tournament, Lamesa scored 11 runs for the second straight game, defeating El Paso 11-3 to advance to the losers' bracket finals against Midland National. Jonathan Contreras had a grand slam homer for Lamesa. Wesley Diaz was the winning pitcher.

Junior League: Midland American remained in the hunt for the Junior League championship with a 13-2 win over Big Spring American. Dedrick Adams was the winning pitcher for Midland American and connected for a double and a triple.

Lamesa defeated Odessa Floyd Gwinn 16-6 to advance to a 5 p.m. meeting today with Midland American. Lamesa had three doubles in the game and had a big 10-run fifth to ice the victory.

Both games were in the losers' bracket.

TOURNEYS: State and national events invade Midland

From 1B

In early AAA action, Midland Blue suffered a 16-7 setback at the hands of Abilene North Blue in the 7-9 age group play. Midland White (ages 13-15) was to play in a late game against Abilene North Blue Friday night.

In other 7-9 age group AAA contests, Odessa Green ran past Odessa Pink by a 28-4 margin while Abilene North Red defeated Abilene South 17-7 in a pair of city rival contests.

In AA 7-9 age group action, Big Spring rolled over Andrews by an 11-4 margin and Brownwood nipped San Angelo by a 10-7 score. Fort Stockton beat Sweetwater in a 7-5 contest that took only an hour to play.

Forty-four games are scheduled to be played today on Ulmer's six fields. Games are limited to 1½ hours.

ASA Div. II State Tournament

In the ASA state tournament's opening round Friday at the Bill Williams Softball Complex, Midland's 18-and-under Blue Diamonds opened with a strong showing by downing DeLeon 19-0 in a five inning, run-rule win. Tecka Dent threw four hitless innings with 10 strikeouts, while Nikki Heath paced the offense by going 3-for-3 with a three-run home run, a pair of doubles and five RBI.

In other 18-and-under games, the El Paso Classic's dropped Corpus Christi's South Texas Jays by an 8-2 score and the Groves Hammers drubbed the Express from Ranger, 25-3. Five late games were to be played Friday.

In the 16-and-under bracket, Wichita Falls Boss beat Galveston Dominator's 7-5, while El Paso's Slassic's defeated the Corsicana Raiders by the same score. Two late 16-and-under games were still to be played Friday at press time.

Action today starts in both brackets at 9 a.m. A total of 32 games are scheduled.

LeMond readies for last ten days

Tour de Fance

VILLARD DE LANS, France (AP) — With the Alps now at their backs the 170 cyclists still left in the Tour de France enjoyed an off day Friday as two-time winner Greg LeMond remained confident he can make a decisive run.

"The race is far from over," said LeMond, who is in fourth place, more than 7 minutes behind leader Claudio Chiapucci of Italy. "There are still another 10 days to go. Seven minutes are easily lost in the mountains."

Two relative unknowns, Chiappucci and Ronan Pensec of France, head the standings followed by the favorites — Eric Breukink of the Netherlands, LeMond and 1988 winner Pedro Delgado of Spain.

"The Tour is always decided in the third week," said LeMond, who should know. He has gone into the lead twice in that period and last year waited until the last seconds of last year's Tour in the thrilling final day time trial to edge Laurent Fignon.

Right now, Chiappucci has a lead of 1 minute, 17 seconds over Pensec, 6:55 over Breukink and 7:27 on LeMond.

The Italian was 81st last year in the Tour de France. But in 1990 he was named the best climber in the Tour of Italy, although he finished lowin the standings.

Pensec was best known as LeMond's teammate on the French 'Z' team.

Two flat stages and then the Pyrenees come at the start of the final week.

Fignon is gone now, having exited in the fifth stage as he succumbed to a variety of problems, both physical and emotional.

LeMond, too, had his physical woes as he was slow to get into shape as publicity demands over the winter and a virus in the spring limited his training. In the Tour of Italy, he was almost three hours behind.

Now he is leaving behind nearly all those who left him behind.

Chiappucci and Pensec were part of a group of four that broke away from the pack in the first stage and gained a 10-minute gap on the field.

Bauer held the top spot for the first nine days until the race entered the mountains. Then he quickly dropped out of sight, losing 21 minutes in the l'Alpe d'Huez stage after giving up the lead.

Pensac took over on his 27th birthday. At 27 and two days, he was in second place, grateful for an off day.

Lemieux free of pain

PITTSBURGH (AP) — He scored four goals in the All-Star Game last January when he was hurting, so Mario Lemieux said Friday he fully expects to have his best season ever now that he's feeling healthy.

That kind of news that would ruin any NHL goaltender's summer vacation.

Free of the pain in his lower back, buttocks and legs that forced him to miss two months of the 1989-90 season, Lemieux is optimistic following surgery to partially remove a herniated disk and trim a mildly cracked vertebra.

"I think I'll be a better player now that I'm going to be 100 percent," Lemieux said. "I want to get back, have my best season, get the team going."

At a 15-minute news conference prior to his discharge from Montefiore-University Hospital, the two-time NHL scoring champion said he has been pain-free since Wednesday's 90-minute operation relieved the pressure from a pinched nerve resulting from the lumbar disk and bone problems.

The debilitating pain forced him to miss all but one of the Pittsburgh Penguins' final 22 games — and led to the Penguins missing the playoffs for the seventh time in eight season.

"I've felt pretty good, the doctors are happy there's been no pain and I can move around pretty good," Lemieux said. "I haven't had any problems the last couple of days. I'll be ready for the start of camp ... I don't know about taking any hits right away, but I'll be able to skate."

Since he has ample time to rehabilitate himself before training camp opens in September and the season starts in early October, Lemieux doesn't regret not having the surgery earlier. Four months of therapy briefly alleviated the pain, but the discomfort returned last month when he played in a charity golf tournament.

Jones held for battery

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinois basketball player Rodney Jones was arrested Friday after a fight at a fast-food restaurant in which police said a security guard was beaten.

The 6-foot-8 senior center was arrested and charged with aggravated battery about 30 minutes after the incident.

The police said the beating of the 31-year-old guard, who sustained cuts and bruises on his head and face, apparently followed an argument between rival teams in town for the Prairie State Games.

Police said about 30 people were involved in the fight at Hardee's restaurant on West Bradley Avenue.

Officers said four witnesses identified Jones as the person who was hitting the guard with a nightstick. The guard was treated at a hospital and released.

The guard told police he separated some people inside the restaurant, then went outside to keep the crowd moving. He said about 25 men and some women then jumped on him, took his nightstick and beat him.

Jones was the only person arrested.

Football tickets go on sale at high schools

Staff Report

Season football tickets for both Midland Lee and Midland High will go on sale to current option holders Monday at the Memorial Stadium ticket office, located at the northeast corner of the stadium.

The office will be open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., including the lunch hour.

Option holders will have until Friday, Aug. 10, to renew their options. Beginning Monday, Aug. 13, all remaining tickets will be sold to the general public on a first come basis. Season ticket sales will close Friday, Aug. 31.

A season ticket for Lee games (book of five tickets) cost $20. A season ticket for MHS (book of four tickets) cost $16. Since MHS is the visitor this year in the Lee-MHS contest, Bulldog fans will be given the opportunity to purchase that ticket also for $5 extra, or a total package of $21.

Pre-game tickets will be sold each week during the season from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and until 1 p.m. each Friday. Adult tickets are $5, but will be $6 at the gate on game nights. Student pre-game tickets are $1 and the price at the gate is $3.

Midland High opens the season at home, Sept. 7, against Lubbock Monterey while Lee has its home opener, Sept. 14, against Del Rio. The two teams meet each other in the District 4-5A opener on Sept. 28.

Palmer on final St. Andrews approach

Associated Press

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland — The Old Course at St. Andrews is a shrine; the birthplace of golf and cradle of the game.

Its history is counted in centuries. A visit to The Old Course, on the windswept coast of Fife north of Edinburgh, is a walk with the ghosts of golf.

Arnold Palmer first took that walk 30 years ago. This year he will take his last as a player in the British Open.

He is a part of the history that surrounds this course.

There's the great stone pile of the Royal and Ancient clubhouse behind the first tee and the 18th green. Over there, in the row of bleak old buildings facing the course, is Tom Morris' golf shop. Auchterlonie's is just around the corner. The Niblik, a favorite watering hole, is a niblik shot away.

There's the course, originally nine holes reaching along the coast to a little hook of land; nine holes until someone centuries ago decided to play back in — rather than walk. That accounts for the eight double greens and the fact golf is now an 18-hole game.

And, the marvelous names given to the features of what English golf historian Bernard Darwin called "a vast, flat plain." There's the Swilkin Burn and the Beardies, the Valley of Sin and Hell Bunker.

Palmer is making a final pilgrimage this week in the 119th British Open. It will be, he said, his last competitive appearance in the oldest of all the world's golf tournaments.

"Unless something happens that I don't know of, this will be my swan song.

"It will be a sentimental journey back to St. Andrews; 30 years to the day that I went to my first British Open Championship," Palmer said.

Verplank fashions lead

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Scott Verplank, a former U.S. Amateur and NCAA champion at Oklahoma State, methodically fashioned a second subpar round on Friday for a one-stroke lead over Larry Rinker at the halfway mark of the $900,000 Bank of Boston Classic.

Verplank, who had a 4-under-par 67 in a downpour Thursday, added a bogey-free 68 in perfect weather for a 135 total, seven strokes under regulation at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

A diabetic who changed medications and his lifestyle after hospital tests last March, Verplank, 26, took the lead after starting the second round two strokes back.

Rinker, winless in 10 years on the PGA Tour, shot a 65 over Pleasant Valley's 7,110-yard layout for a 36-hole score of 136.

As the skies cleared and the sun returned, scores improved on the second day of the 72-hole tournament. Yet Mike Smith, the first-round leader with a 65, slipped to 72. That left Smith at 137 with Brian Watts, Steve Pate, John Mahaffey, Bill Glasson and D.A. Weibring.

Pate rebounded from a first-round 72 with a 65. Mahaffey, the 1978 Pleasant Valley champion, had a 68 on Friday, Weibring a 69 and Glasson a 70.

There were traffic jams at 138 and 139, while two-time U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange was in a bunch at 140 after improving from a 72 in the rain to 68 in the sunshine.

Mark Calcavecchia, the 1988 winner who is preparing for the defense of his British Open title next week, also improved with a 69 for a 141 score.

The best round in the second day was Dave Eichelberger's 64, which left him at 139.

The field of 136 was trimmed to 73 players for the final two rounds. The cut was made at 144.

Verplank said he felt "kind of tentative" at the the start of the second round.

"I didn't do anything spectacular, but I didn't make any bogeys, either," he said.

ITF approves drug-testing

LONDON (AP) — The International Tennis Federation approved a comprehensive drug-testing program Friday at its annual general meeting in Athens.

The new rules will apply to all events under ITF jurisdiction, including men's and women's world team championships, the Davis Cup and Federation Cup.

"Because tennis is now an Olympic sport we have to be compliant with the International Olympic Committee's rules," said ITF spokesman Ian Barnes.

"One of those is that sports should have a drug-testing program. It has been under discussion for a long time."

Tennis had no problems with drug taking, he added.

The ITF's program allows for random testing to be carried out under Olympic Games procedures and analysis to be made at Olympic-accredited laboratories.

Any player found guilty of using a banned substance — one that is illegal in the country where it is used or intended to help training or performance — will face up nine months' suspension for a first offense, two years for a second and a life ban for a third.

The ITF is continuing discussions with the Association of Tennis Professionals Tour and the Women's Tennis Association to bring the three bodies' drug-testing programs into agreement.

"Talks have been going on so that the ATP's and WTA's programs would be the same," Barnes said. "There are a couple of minor things to be sorted out and we expect to reach agreement within the next few weeks."

The group also agreed to a reorganization of the Davis Cup to include a third tier of qualifying matches, beginning in 1992. The main event will be played as a round robin at one center during one week.

Wyche ventures into Cleveland

Associated Press

Football

CLEVELAND — With another NFL season about to unfold, a charitable Sam Wyche decided to score some points Friday with football fans in rival Cleveland, where he is generally not thought of fondly.

"I lost a bet, so here I am," the Cincinnati Bengals coach said to the local media, tongue-in-cheek. "There are one or two people who seem to be upset with Cincinnati in general, so this is their chance."

Wyche, who devotes considerable time assisting charities which help the homeless in Cincinnati, said he thought it might be a good idea to offer himself as bait to raise money for the Salvation Army's homeless and hunger programs in Cleveland.

And Browns fans took the bait, paying to toss footballs or plastic dog bones at a carnival-style water dunker, with Wyche aboard. Some managed to prove Wyche is all wet.

The first contestant was a celebrity, Browns quarterback Bernie Kosar, who dunked Wyche by hitting a target with a football on his fifth throw.

"Today we're here for a good cause, to hopefully dunk coach Wyche in the water," Kosar told an approving crowd.

"It takes an awfully big man to come into town and raise money for a worthwhile charity," the millionaire quarterback said. "It says a lot for his character. I have a lot of respect for him."

The Browns and Bengals have been heated rivals ever since Paul Brown, who initially formed the Browns, went downstate to create the Bengals.

Last year, Wyche was critical of bleacher fans in Cleveland Stadium who disrupted a Denver vs. Cleveland game by throwing dog biscuits on the field.

Then, when Cincinnati fans threw snowballs at Seattle players in a game at Riverfront Stadium Dec. 10, Wyche grabbed a microphone and said on the stadium's public address system: "You don't live in Cleveland. You live in Cincinnati!"

That comment stands to haunt him when he brings his Bengals to Cleveland in a nationally televised game Monday night, Oct. 22.

"I only had a few seconds to tell our fans not to throw anything else on that field," Wyche said as he prepared to be dunked Friday. "And that's all I was saying. I wasn't ever saying anything about Cleveland, the people or 99.9 percent of the fans in Cleveland. Throwing things on the field is not part of the game. Let the action stay on the field.

"Boom. In one short sentence everyone knew what I was saying. What I regret is everyone being sensitive to that and taking it the wrong way."

He called his Cleveland visit an exercise in community relations.

Trevino in Kroger tie

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Lee Trevino strung together four consecutive birdies on the back nine to complete a 6-under-par 65 that was worth a share of the first-round lead with Dave Hill in the $600,000 Kroger Senior Classic on Friday.

"I made a couple of mistakes today, and that's about it," Trevino said. After three straight birdies, Trevino bogeyed No. 7 — "misclubbed that one" — and No. 8 — "pulled a four iron off the edge of the green."

But he rallied with a birdie at No. 9 and steadily made up ground from there on over the 6,628-yard Grizzly Course at the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center.

"I kept looking at the board, and I didn't want to get too far behind," said Trevino, who saw that Hill had birdied the final two holes ahead of him to go six under.

Trevino just missed a 12-footer on 18 that would have given him the outright lead.

Two consecutive days of heavy rain had washed out the pro-am event and had threatened Friday's opening round. Trevino said that worked to his advantage, since he has been driving well and could afford to shoot for the pins on the soft greens.

"I don't mind the mud. All the major championships I won in this country have been in the mud," he said.

Trevino said he's changed his strategy a little to accommodate the 54-hole Senior tournaments, compared with the 72-hole events on the PGA Tour.

"It's very important to shoot a good score on Friday. Now you can go out tomorrow and get aggressive — not too aggressive — and shoot in the 60s," Trevino said.

"In a four-day tournament, the first round is not so important as it is in a three-day tournament."

Hill liked the effect the rain had on the course. It made the greens "about my speed — not real fast, not real slow."

"I did something today I haven't done in a long time; I got eight birdies," Hill said. "I've never been a very good mudder. I'm surprised I played as well as I did today."

O'Neil tops junior women

AUSTIN (AP) — Erin O'Neil hit a 30-foot chip shot for a birdie in defeating Kathryn Weber on Friday for the championship of the Women's Western Golf Association Junior Invitational.

Lisa Balch, a University of Texas recruit from San Angelo, won the championship consolation bracket with a 5-3 victory over Michelle Uher of Omaha, Neb., meaning she had a five hole lead with three holes remaining.

O'Neil, of Zephyrhills, Fla., took her first lead with the chip shot on the 12th hole in the match play, hole-by-hole final.

She had hit two putts of better than 10 feet on the 10th and 11th holes to stay even with Weber.

Weber, of Derby, Kan., led through most of the first round by one stroke before O'Neil evened it on the ninth with a six-foot putt for par.

O'Neil, who earlier this year reached the quarterfinals of the WWGA amateur tournament, finished the match with an eight-foot putt for par on 16 which gave her a three-hole lead with two remaining for the title.

"I was just going to try to stay steady on the back nine," O'Neil said of the 6,098-yard, par 74 Live Oak Golf Course. "I just got a good feel for the greens all of a sudden."

She said the 12th hole was the turning point, because it saved her from trying to play the green.

"That green is probably the worst green on the golf course," O'Neil said.

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 682-0861;enter your access code which is 78625*

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticket symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticket guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticket symbol, press the (*) star key and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticket symbol. You now have 2 options:
* You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
* You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key (*). Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticket code.
* You may enter up to 10 ticket symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

No-hitters now commonplace

Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — No-hitters are coming in all shapes and sizes this season.

There's been a combo no-hitter; an eight-inning no-hitter by a pitcher who lost the game; a six-inning no-hitter; two no-hitters on the same day, a no-hitter by a 6-foot-10 pitcher and a Nolan Ryan no-hitter.

The seventh no-hitter of 1990, tying the one-season major league record, came Thursday night when Melido Perez of the Chicago White Sox beat the New York Yankees 8-0 in a game shortened to six innings by rain. That's one inning longer than the rain-shortened no-hitter pitched in 1988 by Melido's brother Pascual, who watched from the Yankees bench.

For the latest no-hitter, there also seemed to be no interest — even Pascual Perez seemed to be nodding off and after play was halted with one out in the top of the seventh, the few fans at Yankee Stadium headed for the exits.

Are no-hitters getting boring or is it just that they'll probably see another no-hitter next week.

"It bothers me a little, because I think I could have gone all the way," Perez said of the rain. "But still, it's a no-hitter."

The no-hitter came 11 days after the Yankees' Andy Hawkins pitched a no-hitter against Chicago at Comiskey Park and lost when the White Sox scored four runs in the eighth inning on two walks and three errors. It was only the second time a pitcher tossed a complete-game no-hitter and lost.

Who else but Hawkins was on the mound again Thursday night. The Yankees haven't scored a run for him in 31 innings — on July 6 against Minnesota, he pitched 11 shutout innings but lost, 2-0, in 12.

The no-hitter by Perez, who sometimes shares his gold chains with his brother, marked only the second time brothers have pitched no-hitters in the majors. Ken Forsch pitched one on April 7, 1979, for Houston against Atlanta and Bob Forsch threw two for St. Louis — April 16, 1978, and Sept. 26, 1983.

"I didn't think about it at first, but then I remembered when my brother threw a no-hitter in the rain," Melido said. "I started to think, 'That might happen to me, too.'"

On Sept. 24, 1988, Pascual Perez threw a five-inning no-hitter for Montreal against Philadelphia at Veterans Stadium.

"I wanted him to pitch well, but I wanted us to win," Pascual said. "Maybe it would have been better if he had pitched a no-hitter and lost."

Sorry Pascual, that's already been done this year.

"It's strange, all these no-hitters," Hawkins said. "But just because I was on the mound having one thrown against us doesn't make any difference to me. I just wasn't very good tonight. The guy across the field was better."

True enough. In fact, a pitcher just doesn't cut it this season unless he pitches a no-hitter.

California's Mark Langston and Mike Witt started the no-hit parade on April 11, beating Seattle. Witt has since been traded to — who else? — the Yankees.

Randy Johnson of the Mariners, at 6-10 baseball's tallest player, pitched the first of a record five no-hitters in June against Detroit. He was followed by Ryan, who threw the record sixth no-hitter of his career. Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles and Dave Stewart Oakland each pitched no-hitters on June 29, two days before Hawkins' flawed gem.

Perez's no-hitter matched the record seven in one season set in 1908 and tied in 1917, and was the record sixth in the American League this year.

It was the also the first no-hitter by an opponent at Yankee Stadium since Detroit's Virgil Trucks beat New York 1-0 on Aug. 25, 1952.

"You have to be lucky to pitch a no-hitter," Pascual said. "I've seen a lot of bad bounces take them away. But I guess a lot of pitchers have been lucky this year."

Pascual, 33, isn't one of them. He has missed most of the season with a sore right shoulder.

Melido, a 24-year-old right-hander in his third major league season, struck out nine and walked four.

"I'm the big brother and everybody has looked up to me," Pascual said. "Now Melido is making a name, too."

The closest the Yankees came to a hit was with two outs in the fifth, when Alvaro Espinoza hit a drive to right-center. Center fielder Lance Johnson made a long run and a nice one-handed catch.

"I had a chaw of tobacco and I almost swallowed it when Espinoza hit that ball," Pascual said. "I was kind of nervous watching him. I kept getting up and going over to the water cooler."

It was the first no-hitter against the Yankees since Hoyt Wilhelm of the Orioles did it on Sept. 20, 1958. It was the first no-hitter for the White Sox since Joe Cowley's against California on Sept. 19, 1986.

"When they called the game my teammates all came over and congratulated me," Melido said. "I saw my brother before the game and he wished me good luck. We both have no-hitters now."

Doesn't everybody?

State Type II hunting permit sales on the decline

AUSTIN (AP) — Sales of $35 Type II hunting permits declined slightly in 1989-90, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife, but there still were 31,000 participants in the low-cost hunting program.

Type II permits allow holders unlimited access to more than 727,000 acres of land leased by the department, mostly in East Texas but also in the Panhandle and North Texas. Users may pursue any legal hunting or fishing activity, as well as camping, hiking and picnicking.

Deer hunting was the most popular activity among Type II permit holders, with 20,000 hunters spending 150,000 days in the field. More than 2,000 of those hunters were successful in taking at least one deer, a success rate of 14.2 percent.

ANGELS: Making move

(From 1B)

with three runs in the top of the inning on RBI singles by Andres Santana and Jamie Cooper.

Even though the Angels, 9-11, are still under .500 for the second half, Manager Eddie Rodriguez likes the way things seem to be trending for his team, especially on the mound.

"Carter put us in a position to win," Rodriguez said. "You have good pitching, you win. That's the name of the game."

Pitching aside, Rodriguez said the Angels are anxious to atone for a horrid first-half. And, he thinks he has the mix of veterans and youth to contend for a playoff berth.

"With every move, we've tried to better ourselves. I'm not taking away from the guys who have gone up or down, but I feel like we have a good group right now."

Only 11 of the 23 Angels available for action Friday were with Midland at the start of the season.

Dickerson may still be lured

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The continuing saga of All-Pro running back Eric Dickerson, the NFL's seventh-leading career rusher, has taken on a new twist as his Indianapolis Colts prepare to open training camp.

Earlier this year Dickerson said that no amount of money would make him return to the Colts. He has also said at various times that he planned on retiring rather than play the final year of his contract and also demanded a trade.

But, his agent — Daryl Henry, is now indicating a raise over the $1.45 million Dickerson is scheduled to earn this year might bring him to Anderson University for training camp.

"If they don't trade Eric, he won't play under this contract," Henry told The Indianapolis News.

Henry declined to reveal a dollar figure that would Dickerson would accept to leave his luxurious California home for training camp. But, he said it would take a contract placing "Eric in the top five of the league, including quarterbacks." In other words, more than $2 million per year.

Meanwhile, General Manager Jim Irsay has taken a wait-and-see attitude on Dickerson and plans on concentrating on signing 13 of the club's draft choices and its eight unsigned veterans.

Rookies, free agent signees and quarterbacks are scheduled to report for training camp at Anderson University camp on Thursday. Veterans are due one week later.

That's when the Dickerson drama will unfold.

"It's unchanged and it has been for months," Irsay said of the stalemate. "It really is very simple. It's either he reports, or he doesn't. That's what it's boiled down to, and that's all you can really say.

"If he does not report, then obviously we have to look at our options, and if does report and he's ready to play hard, then obviously that's something we expect and look forward to."

Coach Ron Meyer is planning on having Dickerson in camp.

"We expect him to fulfill his contract. If he decides he doesn't want to do that, we'll have to go on without him."

Irsay said there haven't been any serious trade offers for Dickerson.

Steroid use stirs animal activists

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Animal rights supporters plan to challenge a state decision allowing use of a powerful class of steroids on racehorses, saying the drugs pose a danger to both horse and jockey.

The Southeastern office of the Humane Society of the United States in Tallahassee said it plans to contest the rule issued by the Florida Division of Pari-Mutuel Wagering.

Under pressure from the racing industry, state officials last month reversed an earlier ban on corticosteroids, used to temporarily relieve pain and swelling in injured joints.

"I personally think it's a little cruel," said Dr. Larry Gore, executive vice president of the Florida Veterinary Medical Association.

Some veterinarians agree with animal rights activists that the rule is potentially dangerous.

WASHINGTON (AP) — What is believed to be the last hand-cranked, magneto-operated telephone party line in the United States is hanging it up after six decades, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

The 20-party, single line system runs for 40 miles, strung on trees, fence posts and treacherous cliffs high above the Salmon River in an isolated section of east-central Idaho in the Salmon River National Forest.

The line, operated by the non-profit North Fork Telephone Corp., was installed by the U.S. Forest Service in 1931 and sold to users for $1 in 1952.

In its place will be a $250,000, state-of-art digital system operated by the Rural Telephone Co. of Glenns Ferry, Idaho, said the department's Rural Electrification Administration, which provided financing for the new system.

John Booker of Panther Creek, Idaho, turns the crank on his antiquated telephone. The magneto-operated telephone party line, which is the last of its kind in the nation, was replaced Thursday.

One of the old system's last customers, Garry Pedrow, said he hated to see the change, because of the system's historical value, but "as far as being in business, it's hard to communicate on this line."

His wife, Peggy, agreed.

"Once it's gone, it's gone forever. But ... I guess I'm ready because I can't hear anything" on the 40-mile party line.

The size of the system will almost triple immediately to a total of 37 subscribers, the REA said.

A buried cable is the heart of the new system, most of it along a narrow, dead-end roadbed, the only way — other than the river — in and out of the 40-mile canyon.

The first call, scheduled for early Friday, is to be made from Shoup's Country Store and post office, run by the Pedrows in the canyon's only town, population 2.

Joe Miller, president of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, was scheduled to make the ceremonial call to Gary C. Byrne, REA administrator, who will be attending a rural development conference in Denver.

Berkeley scientist finds world's oldest mushroom

By Robert P. Studer
Copley News Service

BERKELEY, Calif. — It was there — preserved down to the last delicate, fanned-out gills, encased in the amber — just at it had thrived 40 million years ago on a tree trunk in that part of the world now known as the Dominican Republic.

George O. Poinar Jr., lecturer and insect pathologist at the University of California at Berkeley, had found the world's oldest and best-preserved ancient mushroom yet discovered by men of science.

The identification was made by Rolf Singer, a botanist at the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, who was able to identify the find down to its family, and who concluded that it represent a genus not know before. It was given the new scientific name of Coprinites dominicana.

The ancient mushroom was found after Poinar had polished a sample of amber drawn from a commercial amber mine in the northern mountains of the Dominican Republic. It wasn't a casual search. The UC Berkeley scientist regularly orders amber from the mine, in search of clues to the ancient Caribbean environment.

Previously he has found insects, tufts of animal hair and frogs entombed in the 40-million-year-old amber, which is nature's best preservative. A fly he discovered eight years ago, he said, "still retains its intricate subcellular structures."

His latest find, the only known fossil mushroom to be found in the tropics so far, is one more piece in a picture Poinar is compiling of life on the ancient Caribbean island.

From what he has gathered so far, he said, "it appears that the climate then was hotter and more moist than it is today. The mushroom almost surely grew on a tree trunk, and the resin from the tree covered the fungus before it decayed. A tiny mite was strapped along with the mushroom and is still encased in the [illegible]

Quake-related queries are up in Arkansas

Associated Press

The Arkansas National Guard has scheduled earthquake exercises for northeast Arkansas during the time period that a major earthquake is projected along the New Madrid Fault, which extends into Arkansas.

The projection by climatologist Iben Browning, who predicted last fall's San Francisco earthquake within a day, also has resulted in a planned closing of a school district and a flurry of sales of earthquake insurance.

Browning, who declined a telephone interview, has gathered data that indicates a high likelihood of an earthquake on Dec. 2 or Dec. 3. along the fault line, which extends roughly from Marked Tree, Ark., through New Madrid, Mo., to Cairo, Ill.

Browning objected to use of the word prediction, saying he had presented all his data to the Center for Earthquake Studies at Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Linda Dillman, program specialist at the Center for Earthquake Studies at Southeast Missouri, said Browning preferred use of the word projection to describe his analysis. She said Browning's data indicates that the chance of an earthquake is better in early December than at other times.

Insurance sales began picking up after the Oct. 17 earthquake that rocked San Francisco, agents said. Then, it made a bigger move when Browning's projection became public.

Eddie Bigger, mayor of Marion and an insurance salesman, said 50 to 60 people have called to inquire about coverage.

"The publicity has definitely made an impact," said Bill Geeslin of Pollard-Geeslin Insurance Agency in Blytheville. He said inquiries are up 10 percent to 20 percent over last year. At least half of his customers already have the coverage. "People are definitely asking about it," he said.

Agent Bill Kenner of Blytheville said he was reminding his customers about earthquake coverage primarily because his wife believes the prediction. "(She) hasn't been wrong but one time and that was in 1967 when she married me," he said.

They've already got plans for Dec. 2, he said: "She's going to Fayetteville. I'm going to stay here and take care of my people."

Kenner said publicity about the projection and the vulnerability of northeast Arkansas have made selling easy. He said about 90 percent of his customers buy earthquake coverage after he mentions it.

Kenner said the cost of earthquake insurance is comparatively inexpensive, running about 50 cent to 80 cents per $1,000 of coverage. Deductibles run 5 percent of the total coverage, he said.

Maj. Cissy Lashbrook, spokeswoman for the Arkansas National Guard, said exercises have been scheduled for Dec. 1-5 "because of the increased public awareness" resulting from the projection of the quake in northeast Arkansas.

She said the earthquake exercises scheduled for December will give the Arkansas Guard an opportunity to test its earthquake contingency plan. "We've been preparing this contingency plan for some time," Ms. Lashbrook said. "If something does happen, we'll be there. If nothing happens, people will see we're prepared for this type of emergency."

Elephant seems to miss old keeper

She doesn't want to be chained up inside at night anymore and she won't let anyone clip her toenails.

"When an elephant wants to go somewhere, I usually don't get in the way," said Lea Hutchinson, the zoo administrator and veterinarian.

At thirtysomething, Mona is the zoo's senior resident, and she's always been headstrong. But she's become particularly obstinate in recent weeks.

Hutchinson wants to bring Mona's old keeper, Rudy Romero, out of retirement to work with her and retrain her. Hutchinson asked City Council to set aside $5,400 to pay Romero.

"He's the one she grew up with," Hutchinson said. "She's had other keepers, but never developed the kind of rapport she had with him. He walks in the gate of the zoo, and she knows he's here — it's instant recognition."

Romero said that when he dropped by the zoo two weeks ago, Mona became excited and began trumpeting as soon as he was on the grounds.

The Understanding Chair

When we are young, rocking is a game. When we are old, it can become a way of life. And in between, there are countless occasions when rocking fulfills a human need . . . to think . . . to relax . . . to reminisce . . . to dream.

It's almost as though the rocking chair understands people, turning their restlessness into calm and contemplation.

But there are deeper human needs that find no comfort in the rhythm of the rocking chair—intense spiritual needs met only by communion with God.

God's House really understands people. Its worship, its teaching, its community service, all provide expression for our spiritual needs. The soul's restlessness is turned into conviction and commitment. Visit there this week.

RELIGION

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Church marking 30th anniversary

Wilshire Park Baptist Church, 801 S. Bentwood St., is celebrating its 30th anniversary Sunday. Guest speaker will be the Rev. William Penn.

Wilshire Park was formed July 10, 1960, with 375 members, including its first pastor, the Rev. Travis LaDuke. The church dates its inception to Sept. 13, 1959 and the formation of Wilshire Park Baptist Chapel, a mission of the Permian Basin Baptist Association and Bellview Baptist Church.

All former members of the church have been invited to help celebrate, especially those who might have been charter members. Special invitations have been sent to all former staff members.

Following Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. and worship services at 11 a.m, followed by a catered noon meal at the church when old friends will gather.

A display of historical photos and other church memorabilia will also be featured at the church.

Wilshire Park Baptist Chapel had been conducting services since its beginning in David Bowie Elementary. The church's present location was inaugurated with a worship service in its new building on Oct. 23, 1960.

The first revival services were conducted in November, 1960, with Lubbock evangelist Boyce Evans, formerly of Bellview Baptist Church, leading the services.

Church convening

The Church of God of Prophecy of West Texas is holding its annual State Convention through Sunday in the Midland Hilton ballroom.

Special guest for the event is Bishop Verlin Thornton, the general evangelism secretary for the Church of God of Prophecy. Thornton has served as pastor, general music secretary, general evangelism and home mission director.

Events planned for the event include a Youth Explosion today and the state overseer's annual address tonight. The message for Sunday's worship service will be given by Mike Tomlinson and Thornton. In addition, the appointment of state workers and pastors will be made.

Children's church is being provided for all sessions. The public is invited to attend.

Church to hold barbecue

St. Mark's United Methodist Church is celebrating its 40th birthday with a catered indoor barbecue in the church's Fellowship hall, 1701 North Main Street, at 6:45 p.m. today.

A musical presentation of Broadway show tunes by Patty Loftis, Andy Salcedo, Gayle Koeniger, Karen Weidmann and Paula Shipp, all Midland Community Theatre Singers, will follow the meal.

Former pastors and associate pastors will be recognized at a 10:45 a.m. special worship service on Sunday. St. Mark's minister, the Rev. Earl E. Ball, will conduct the Communion service and give the meditation. Music will include solos by church music director Danny Barrett and former St. Mark's member Mrs. David Harris.

Clergymen to play golf

The Texas Clergy Golf Tournament is set for Aug 6-7 at Woodcrest Country Club, Grand Prairie.

Three trophies will be awarded per flight. A new Oldsmobile will be awarded for a hole in one. Prizes will be awarded for close to pins and long rides.

A shotgun start is planned for each day. An awards banquet will be held as well.

Cost to enter is $65.

Don Dendy of Park Cities Baptist Church, Dallas, is chairman of the Texas Clergy Golf Association. For a brochure or more information call 1-214-369-8211 or 1-214-241-8351. The event is limited to 120 players.

Special services planned

Old Camp Meeting Days are coming to the Westside Free Will Baptist Church, 4031 W. Illinois Ave.

Services will be held Friday through July 21 at 7:30 p.m. and July 22 at 10 a.m.

Members of the Southeastern Free Will College Quartet from Wendell, N.C., will be singing and testifying about what God has done in their lives.

The Rev. Randy Sawyer, a graduate of Free Will Baptist College in Nashville, will be the evangelist.

The public is invited to enjoy this time of "Old Fashion Singing and Preaching." A nursery will be provided.

Church plans VBS

"Sonseeker Safari: Searching to Know God" is the theme of vacation Bible school at Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church. VBS begins Sunday and runs through Thursday.

Grace's VBS is for the whole family. Hours are 6 to 8 p.m.

"Through Bible stories, games, crafts, songs and the Grace Puppets, the Lord's Prayer will be studied and God made known," according to the church.

Classes will be held for all ages, including adults. To register in advance, call the church office, 697-3221, or stop by the church, 3000 W. Gold Course Road.

Bible school scheduled

Alamo Heights Baptist Church, 1305 N. Midland Drive, is holding Bible school Monday through Friday.

Those attending must be at least 4 years old by Sept. 1 and not out of the sixth grade. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to noon.

Pre-registration is today from 10 a.m. to noon. The church's pastor, the Rev. John S. Rasco, invites all youngsters to attend.

Midlanders at convention

The 55th session of the General Conference of Seventh Day Adventist closes today at the Hoosier Dome Convention Center in Indianapolis.

The 11 divisions of the world field are represented by participants in national costumes in colorful parade and pageantry and booths.

From this area, SDA members attending the conference are John and Donna Barroso, Ruben Uniat, all of Midland, and Romeo and Marilyn Pugao of Andrews.

Church to honor woman

Macdeonia Baptist Church, 201 S. Carver St., is hosting its annual Woman of the Year Day at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The Woman of the Year selected will represent Macedonia at the Lovely Sunset District Sunday School and Baptist Training Union women's event later this year.

The public is invited to attend Sunday's event.

Singles event planned

Single adults are invited to a Singles Celebration at 7 p.m. July 28 at Crestview Baptist Church Recreation Center on Midkiff Road, a block south of Illinois Avenue.

No admission will be charged. Child care vouchers will be given. For more information call 694-7701.

Choir to celebrate

Mount Rose Baptist Church Sanctuary Choir is celebrating its choir anniversary Sunday.

The public is invited to attend the 3 p.m. celebration.

First Christian will have guest preacher

Staff Report

First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave., celebrates its commitment to world outreach this month with a special pulpit guest Sunday.

The Rev. Charlotte Nabors, associate minister at Central Christian Church in Dallas and a former missionary to Thailand, will preach at both the 8:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. worship services. A luncheon will be served after the 10:45 a.m. service.

The focus of this month's centennial activities is global ministries, formerly referred to as world outreach. Tom Jones is coordinator for the events.

Ms. Nabors has been associated with Central Christian Church for seven years. She and her husband, Oran, who is co-minister at First Christian Church in Richardson, worked together as Disciples of Christ missionaries in Thailand. She taught Christian education and early childhood education at Thailand Theological Seminary.

The couple has also led many seminars and workshops in Thailand, Burma, Japan, Singapore and throughout the United States. They share in the areas of leadership education, mission interpretation, marriage enrichment and spiritual growth.

A native of Charleston, W.Va., Ms. Nabors holds a bachelor's degree from Furman University and a master's degree in religious education, begun at Perkins School of Theology and completed at the University of St. Thomas. She is pursuing her doctorate at Brite Divinity School, Texas Christian University.

Her background includes service as a Christian educator on the staff of Northway Christian Church, as founder-director of an early childhood program at Memorial Drive Christian Church in Houston and as organizing pastor for a Laotian congregation in Houston.

Ms. Nabors has served as president of the Dallas Pastors Association and now serves on the boards of the Greater Dallas Community of Churches, the North Texas Area Association of Christian Churches, the United Way, the East Dallas Health Coalition and on various committees in regional and area work of the Christian Church, Disciples of Christ.

Parishioners building new church

By Ann Kate

ORANGE, Texas (AP) — The Rev. Timothy Deeter of St. Helen's Catholic Church in Orangefield knew his parishioners could not come up with the money needed to build a new church.

He also knew they could build it for a lot less if they furnished their own labor.

But the bishop of the Beaumont diocese, the Most Rev. Bernard Ganter, was adamantly opposed to them building it themselves, instructing them to use a construction company instead. So, Deeter resorted to using a little subterfuge to get the job done his way.

They used Orange developer Tony Dal Sasso's construction company name and equipment, hired one of the company's former employees, Leo Bland, a member of the parish, and went right ahead with building the structure themselves.

According to Deeter, when the bishop came to check on progress he was so impressed with their work he relented and said, "You made a believer out of me."

Demographic studies determined the fate of St. Helen's, which serves this unincorporated community about 10 miles west of Orange and 15 miles east of Beaumont in Southeast Texas.

With another Catholic church only three miles away in Bridge City, and families moving out to find land in the rural areas to the west of both Bridge City and Orangefield, the bishop asked church members to move to another location.

Deeter designed the basic layout, and a subcommittee of 35 people came up with the final plans.

With the labor contributed by volunteers from the church, the cost will only be $275,000 for the 12,000 square feet in the first phase. The second phase, which they will begin in August, will be another 12,000 square feet, and will cost around $200,000.

Deeter said area companies also gave them breaks. They managed to buy $2,000 worth of steel for $65. And, they were able to buy a secondhand refrigerator and sinks for the kitchen. Bland is a professional builder and knows others in the building trade, so his expertise has been valuable and saved a lot on expenses also.

The free labor has made up most of the difference in cost, however. Bland laughingly refers to his retired workers as the "Medicaid group," and those under 65 the "Ben Gay group."

The youth and women of the church are involved also. Recently they worked on and made the duct work, shaping the box-like structures for the air conditioning-heating system. The 45 or so teen-agers in the youth group mix mortar, sweep and perform all types of tasks, sometimes with a little bribing from Deeter.

"Outsiders" poured the slab, did three-fourths of the sheetrocking and put in the glass, Deeter said. But everything else is being done by volunteers from the church.

Deeter said, "We don't have a lot of control over how many come" to join the work crews. The average is 10-12 a day. About 75 are involved, but Deeter wants everyone in the church to come out and work at least once so they will be able to say they helped build their church.

All the extra work has meant a "lot of sacrifices," Deeter said. There are bricklayers who work five or six days a week on their own jobs, and then work at the church weekends. But it has also given church members working on the project a sense of camaraderie.

"The people cannot believe they're building something so large and nice," he said.

Financing for the undertaking has come from contributions, fundraisers and donations.

WWII hero considered for medal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has asked President Bush to consider a Texas World War II veteran for the nation's highest military honor.

Combat pilot W.B. "Spider" Webb of North Richland Hills didn't get the recognition he deserved for shooting down six Japanese planes near Guam in 1944, Bentsen said in a recent letter to Bush.

He asked Bush to consider bestowing the Medal of Honor on Webb.

"This is beyond my wildest imagination," Webb told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "It would mean so much to my family."

Webb, flying off the carrier Hornet, was assisting in the recovery of a downed pilot when he spotted 40 Japanese planes approaching Guam.

"Webb's first action was to radio a long-remembered call: 'Any American fighter near Orote Peninsula ... I have 40 Jap planes surrounded and need a little help,'" Bentsen wrote the president.

Bentsen said Webb shot down six planes before returning to the Hornet.

"Surely anyone who single-handedly took on 40 enemy aircraft deserves a thorough and careful review of his heroic conduct," Bentsen said.

Webb received 27 awards for his bravery in the Pacific. An admiral recommended him for the Medal of Honor. But a mix-up occurred and he never got it, Bentsen said.

Albanian refugees 'joyous'

BRINDISI, Italy (AP) — Thousands of weary Albanians trudged from ferry boats onto Italian shores Friday, realizing a dream that had led them to besiege foreign embassies in Europe's last citadel of hard-line Communism.

"We shall win!" refugees on one ferry chanted in Italian as they approached the port of Brindisi.

The four ships, chartered by the West German and Italian governments, picked up about 4,500 Albanians in the port of Durres early Friday under an agreement worked out with United Nations mediation.

After journeys of about seven hours, the ferries disgorged crowds of ragged, sweaty Albanians onto the Brindisi docks, where they were met by Red Cross workers and soldiers serving warm milk and cold soda.

"I am very, very happy to come here," said Artano Harizai, 25, as he and three friends examined plastic relief bags filled with new socks and shirts.

"Here and in Europe there's freedom. In Albania there's not."

His friends, one without shoes and another shirtless, nodded vigorously and gave thumbs-down signs for the Albanian police.

Fifteen Albanians were admitted to Brindisi's hospital, including two women expected to give birth soon, said Red Cross spokesman Ricardo Moro. Several other people were suffering from wounds they suffered when Albanian police fired at people trying to scamble into the Western embassies.

About 3,200 of the refugees were from West Germany's Embassy, and they boarded trains at the dock to continue to that country.

About 800 Albanians from Italy's embassy were taken by bus to a temporary camp outside Brindisi, and 29 refugees who had been in Greece's embassy took a plane from Brindisi to Athens, said Clara Minerva, the assistant director of the local Interior Ministry office.

The embassy evacuation eased a crisis that had prompted several dismissals from the Albanian government and damaged its efforts to soften its isolationist foreign policy.

Albanian leader Ramiz Alia introduced limited reforms this year, including some religious freedom and travel abroad, which Albanians have not been permitted for 45 years.

But that was not enough for the thousands of Albanians who sought refuge in foreign embassies in Tirana.

Many of the refugees predicted Albania's Communist government would fall, just as the East German government did last year after thousands of its citizens crowded foreign embassies to flee to the West.

"Many people are unhappy in Albania. They are with us," said a mining engineer who identified himself as Muharrem.

Many people said they hoped to eventually make it to the United States, where, as 21-year-old Voltan Rexhepi said: "Life is good."

Gorbachev demands aid without political strings

WORLD

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev closed the Communist Party's 28th congress Friday by saying he would welcome Western aid without political strings, and warning of a "gap" between the party and the people.

The congress elected a new 412-member Central Committee that appeared to be packed with moderate reformers of the Gorbachev mold. And Gorbachev ousted hard-liner Yegor K. Ligachev from the Central Committee and the Politburo.

The nearly 4,700 delegates to the congress closed their tumultuous two-week session by giving themselves a standing ovation and singing "The Internationale," the socialist anthem.

The congress was the stormiest in the Kremlin since 1921, when Bolshevik revolutionaries faced violent uprisings among workers and sailors.

It also marked a major political victory for Gorbachev, and cemented his hold over the party. It will be a different party, however, with the exodus of maverick Boris N. Yeltsin and other reformers.

The congress opened July 2 with a demand from a miner that Gorbachev and the entire leadership resign. The meeting hit its emotional peak on Thursday when Yeltsin announced his resignation from the 18-million member organization.

At the close of the congress, delegates applauded Gorbachev's statement that "this is the end of the Cold War" and that doors were opening to the West.

The decision of leaders of seven industrialized nations to consider offering the Soviet Union economic aid, he said, showed the success of his government's effort "to overcome self-isolation and become an integral part of the world economy."

Western leaders, meeting this week in Houston, Texas, resolved to study giving economic aid to Moscow, as advocated by West Germany and France.

President Bush said Wednesday he would look more favorably on helping the Soviet government if it would cut defense spending.

Gorbachev told delegates: "We are ready to cooperate and will be grateful for assistance being not just seekers but partners who are not going to take anything free."

"I want to emphasize that I exclude all attempts to stipulate any political conditions for such cooperation," Gorbachev said. "It can and it must develop on an equal and mutually beneficial grounds."

His comments were the highest-level Soviet response to the Houston summit.

In a surprise development, the largely traditionalist party congress approved Gorbachev's plan to nearly double the size of the Politburo to 23 members and give seats to the party leaders of the 15 Soviet republics.

The Central Committee met late Friday night to choose Politburo members, but no decision was made by early Saturday. The Politburo, the party's highest body, was redesigned to ensure a moderate cast and help reduce the ethnic tension that is ripping the country apart.

Restructuring the Politburo also marked a triumph in Gorbachev's drive to shift power from the party to the government, which he also heads. The Politburo appeared unlikely to meet frequently or to seek control matters not dealing directly with the party.

Gorbachev, smiling, relaxed and very much in control, warned the delegates in his six-minute closing remarks of a "gap between the party committees and workers, peasants, and intellectuals."

Support for Chamorro's plan limited

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Violeta Barrios de Chamorro received only limited support Friday following her appeal for a national dialogue to avoid a repeat of the Sandinista-inspired labor unrest that crippled the country.

Five splinter centrist parties and a non-Sandinista labor federation declared they would take part in such a national dialogue after meeting with Mrs. Chamorro.

But both the leftist Sandinistas, now the country's largest opposition group, and the 14-party coalition that backed Mrs. Chamorro when she mounted her presidential campaign did not immediately indicate whether they would support her call for negotiations.

In announcing the strike settlement Thursday, Mrs. Chamorro called for wide-ranging negotiations aimed at reaching a social accord involving the new U.S.-backed government, the private sector and the Sandinistas that ruled from 1979 until they left office on April 25.

The 10-day Sandinista-led strike was settled with an accord that grants hefty wage hikes to government workers, pledges no mass firings of public sector workers, and puts some key elements of the new administration's plan to return Nicaragua to a free-market economy on hold.

The accord also calls for suspension of a decree to return land confiscated in the 1979 Sandinista revolution to the original owners.

Mrs. Chamorro and her aides have said the settlement prevented more bloodshed and unrest, and made it possible for Nicaragua to get back down to business.

But the business community and some leaders of the governing coalition have complained the settlement resulted in concessions that were a victory for the Sandinistas and a defeat for the administration's plan to restore a free-market economy.

In a joint statement Friday, the leaders of the five small centrist parties declared their readiness to participate in the dialogue. The five parties — the Popular Social Christian, Social Christian, Revolutionary Unity Movement, Liberal for National Unification and Conservative Democratic — support Mrs. Chamorro but are not members of the governing coalition.

The Permanent Labor Congress, a federation of unions linked to Mrs. Chamorro's coalition, also announced it would support her call for dialogue.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JULY 14, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Hard work will put you on firmer financial footing. Expect to take several important business trips this summer. Romance will be at its best in October and during the winter holidays. Parents find special joy in their children's accomplishments between January and March 1991. You will be able to surmount obstacles that have left others shaking their heads in despair. Put together a new business alliance next spring. A potential backer offers sage advice. Consult experts.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: newsman John Chancellor, filmmaker Ingmar Bergman, President Gerald Ford, actor Dale Robertson.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take a chance on someone who needs your help. Love is a powerful influence as you make plans for the future. Short trips prove very enjoyable. Choose companions who share your interests.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Circumstances conspire to bring greater balance into your life. Harmony marks domestic affairs. Joint financial matters come up for discussion. Mate confides a secret tonight. Be a sympathetic listener.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Postpone travel and take the time to tend to a health matter. Romance could hit a snag this evening. Your friends may be more cheerful company than a loved one. Curb your impatience.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Go easy on spending, regardless of how great the store sales are. Observe all safety rules if taking to the open road. Time spent in the sun is fun. Protect yourself against sunburn.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): When loved ones go out of their way to help you, show your appreciation in a tangible way. Let a romance develop slowly. You may be more comfortable with people your own age.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Handle routine matters with special care. Joint financial ventures are best avoided. A backyard picnic appeals to those who spend little time at home. Invite the neighbors.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The work week ends on a happy note. Home life should be especially satisfying. Keep expenses to a minimum. Friends are willing to oblige you but may want a special favor in return.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take advantage of this quiet day to catch up on routine chores. Financial worries are due to cease. Romance with an older person enjoys favorable influences. Contentment makes for a happy evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Resentment could give way to real anger. Find a healthy outlet for your emotions. Engage in sports or build something special for your home. A conversation with a youngster could be misleading.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Iron out any wrinkles in a project involving a younger person. Stability and clarity are your strongest allies. Tend to an older person's needs with good grace. Be gentle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Change your routine in a major way or inertia will set in. Listen to your intuition in situations that require other people's cooperation. Make no final decisions without first consulting mate.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your generosity will not go unnoticed. Romance deepens. If you encounter a stumbling block, back away — the problem will resolve itself. Read the real estate ads. You could move in the near future.

TODAY'S CHILDREN draw comfort from the continual presence and support of those they love. They want to do things their own way but are reluctant to leave the nest. Left to their own devices, these Cancerians will brood or complain of boredom. Busy parents can occupy these lively youngsters with a paint box and pad. Keen observers of human nature, they make talented writers and journalists. Family celebrations mean a lot to these sentimental children. They enjoy playing host to a large crowd.

Bowie defends 2 Live Crew

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — British rock star David Bowie stopped his concert to take up the cause of the rap group 2 Live Crew and its right to produce and perform its music.

Bowie

"I've been listening to the album by 2 Live Crew," he said Thursday night after stopping in the middle of the song, "Young Americans."

"It's not the best album that's ever been made, but when I heard they banned it, I went out and bought it," Bowie said.

"Freedom of thought, freedom of speech — it's one of the most important things we have," he said to cheers from the capacity crowd at the Spectrum.

"What's happening is the thin end of a very fat wedge," he said.

In an incredulous voice, he referred to the banning of certain books by some U.S. libraries.

"I mean there are libraries in this country where you can't read (the novelist) Ray Bradbury or (Ernest) Hemingway," said the flamboyant 42-year-old singer.

"That's the end of my speech," he said, before finishing "Young Americans," during the third of four concerts here.

Turner

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cable chieftain Ted Turner says the United States should make friends with Fidel Castro. When it comes to Turner's own relationship with actress Jane Fonda, it's pleasure, not business.

Commenting about a recent interview he conducted with the Cuban leader, Turner said he never intended for the piece to be hard-hitting journalism.

"Maybe Sam Donaldson would have done a better job, but he didn't get him," Turner said. Since Castro didn't do any other interviews, Turner said, "it's better than nothing."

Turner's typically saucy remarks came Thursday during a question-and-answer session with reporters at an annual television network media tour, sponsored by the networks.

The Cable News Network owner responded to media critics' conclusions that his Castro interview televised last month on CNN was a fluff piece.

"I just asked the questions. I didn't grill him. I've been trying to build bridges all over the world," Turner said. "I think we could really be friends with the Cubans and Castro."

Diana

Many of the 2,000 delegates to the 16th International Congress for the Family, which the princess opened, jeered and shouted "shame" as the four women and one man marched across the stage on Thursday.

The princess blushed but sat calmly, looking composed.

"The delegates to this congress are trying to make people believe that lesbian mothers and gay men looking after children are not real families but are pretend family groups," said protest leader Danielle Ahrens, 21.

"We are not pretending and we have no lesser values than any other family," Ahrens said.

The princess' decision to open the four-day congress, which strongly opposes abortion, was criticized by family planning groups. Sharing the platform with the princess at the Brighton Center in this south England seaport resort was Cardinal Basil Hume, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Westminster.

In her speech, the princess cautioned delegates.

"In all your deliberations you should remember that the very idea of the human family has many different definitions, and perhaps those who depend on it most — the young, the old, the sick and the lonely — can really claim to know its meaning," she said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Cheers" co-star Kelsey Grammer was ordered to stand trial on a cocaine possession charge after failing to enter a drug treatment program.

Grammer, 35, made no comment Thursday as Van Nuys Superior Court Judge James Coleman rejected a defense request to give the actor another chance to complete the drug program, said Deputy District Attorney Teri Hutchison. The drug charge could have been dropped after the program.

He is accused of possessing about a quarter-gram of cocaine which police said they found in the back seat of a patrol car after bringing the actor in on a warrant for an outstanding speeding ticket.

Grammer was pulled over April 14, 1988, because his license plate registration tags were expired.
