The Permian Basin rig count rose for the fifth straight week and inched closer to 400 rig territory, not seen since February 2015.

On Friday, the Permian recorded 386 rigs, an increase of six, according to data from Baker Hughes.

Reeves County added a rig for a basin-leading 63. Midland County gave up a rig, falling to 42. Other counties with double-digit rig counts were Lea, New Mexico (38); Loving (38); Eddy, New Mexico (30); Martin (30); Howard (18); Reagan (17); Upton (14); Glasscock (13); Pecos (13); Andrews (11); and Ward (10).

Hail to Texans who helped liberate Nazi concentration camps

KEN HERMAN
Austin American-Statesman

Editor's Note: The following column was originally published earlier this week. Edits were made to reflect the event referenced already took place.

I cringed last week when comedian Larry David, hosting "Saturday Night Live," told a concentration camp joke. Those last three words are a phrase I never thought I'd type.

It will always be too soon for concentration camp jokes. Just as it will never be too late to honor those who liberated the camps.

That's why I call your attention to an event last Thursday in the Senate chamber in the state Capitol when the Texas Holocaust and Genocide Commission will honor Texas liberators of Nazi concentration camps.

So far, the commission has identified about 350 Texans who served in units that liberated the camps. Several were scheduled to be on hand, including Birney T. "Chick" Havey of Seabrook and Herb Stern of Austin, both of whom told their stories in 2012 to the Baylor University Institute for Oral History. Those oral histories were used

Today's mental health needs echo soldiers' suffering after World War I.

Houston Chronicle

■ COMMENTARY

Veterans Day is a time for "smug-faced crowds with kindling eye" to "cheer when soldier lads march by," as noted by Siegfried Sassoon in a World War I-era poem.

But after publicly applauding vets, most people simply, "Sneak home and pray (they)'ll never know. The hell where youth and laughter go."

More than 100 years have passed and little much has changed. Vets are still garnering glib tributes from politicians, airlines, professional sports teams and citizens, yet too often people aren't truly interested in vets' problems and experiences. This indifference leads to chilling results.

Case in point: It took more than a decade after troops first entered Afghanistan, and more than five years since the war in Iraq formally ended, for the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs to release state-by-state statistics that reflect the grueling toll that military life takes on our troops.

A review of more than 55 million records from 1979 to 2014 shows that veterans have a much higher rate of death by suicide than the non-veteran population. In Texas, 554 veterans killed themselves in 2014, the latest year for which the statistics were available. Nationally, 20 vets per day succumbed to this tragic death.

Sassoon's soldier who once "whistled early with the lark" chose to end his life with a bullet to his brain. The poet attributes the soldier's decision not only to "shell shock" but also to the simple hardships that every frontline soldier experienced, including lice and lack of liquor. The triggers of a fictional soldier mirror those of today.

Most suicides could be deterred with the right help, yet today's vets aren't necessarily getting it. Seventy percent of veterans who took their own lives were not regular users of VA services. Surely, lives have been lost to problems that could have been remedied with effective medical intervention.

Why are so many suicide victims not receiving care from the VA? Is it lack of outreach by the VA? Lack of access to timely care? Or are vets reluctant to ask for help because of the stigma associated with mental illness? Are these vets receiving care elsewhere? While the solutions are complicated, there's no question that the U.S. Department of Veteran Affairs should be doing more.

President Donald J. Trump promised in a July 18, 2015, tweet, "I will fix the VA quickly."

Veterans are still waiting for the fix, but the Trump Administration has taken some positive steps to care for veterans struggling with mental health issues. In August, Trump announced a telemedicine program that will help address a long standing problem: getting crucial mental health services to veterans in sparsely populated rural areas.

The VA has also expanded access to mental health services for veterans with other than honorable discharges, many of whom were wrongfully separated due to mental health issues. The Clay Hunt Suicide Prevention Act, passed in 2015, not only took steps to increase access to mental health counseling but keeps the spotlight on the issue by mandating reports to Congress on suicide prevention efforts.

For soldiers in the trenches during World War I, a yard or even a foot of territory gained sometimes meant progress. While the VA still has much room for improvement, the progress in miles for our servicemen and women won't come until all of us — friends, family, neighbors, employers, coworkers — recognize that mental illness is an illness. That there's no more shame in seeking mental health treatment than in accepting treatment for heart problems. That a vet or anyone else who requests needed mental health care is not weak.

"No one spoke of him again," Sassoon's poem concludes. Today, while we honor veterans for their service to our country, it's important to openly speak about the scourge of suicide, and to recommit ourselves and our nation to providing veterans, who are struggling, with the compassion and help they sorely need for a successful transition to civilian life.

From 1A

to help create the Texas Liberators Project, a great effort put together at Texas Tech University as an educational tool for high school students.

Havey, now 95, grew up in St. Louis where his dad was a traveling salesman and his family did OK at a time when many families did not. As a kid, Havey cut lawns for a quarter.

"And that's trim, too, with a hand trimmer and a hand push (mower)," he said in the oral history interview. "Or in the winter I shoveled snow and built fires for people."

In 1942, Havey enlisted and sealed his place in the Greatest Generation. In November 1944, aboard a troop carrier captured from the Germans in World War I, he shipped out to France.

"It was crowded," he recalled, "but we kind of enjoyed it. I didn't get too sick and we enjoyed the ocean."

He remembered big things, including frigid nights, and little things, like a brandy and 7-Up at a village saloon in France. And he remembers horrible things that cannot and should not be forgotten. Or joked about.

"The town of Dachau was a small country town," he said of his first memory of the German city indelibly linked to the depths of human cruelty.

Some senses create stronger memories than others.

"Well," Havey said when asked what he remembered, "the stink. It's a stench. But that wasn't from the gas ovens. Just human stench. Death stench."

"There were 300 rail cars full of dead," he said in the oral history, "and they all looked the same. They had striped suits on and they just died in there, starved to death."

And what about the surviving prisoners?

"Well," Havey said, "those that could walk, they were like walking skeletons. You can't believe that a person can walk that thin. It's just amazing."

"There were four ovens that I recall. I guess if you put 10 bodies on a roller, four ovens, that's 40," he said. "And it took an hour to do it, to burn it. I try to think of how many — going 24 hours a day — how many people that could die, that'd burn in there. That's a lot. They had a lot stacked, ready to go," he said.

After the war, Havey returned to St. Louis and later moved to Galveston in 1986, opening a successful business. He later moved to nearby Seabrook, about 35 miles southeast of Houston on Trinity Bay. His war memories never faded.

"It always makes you wonder how could human beings do that to human beings," Havey said. "But worse than killing is the deprivation that he inflicted upon those people by starving them to death. The misery over years and years and years. I haven't ever come to grips with... The privation that he inflicted, or they inflicted — not he, they. Because there were plenty of people to blame. Because you could, you know, a blind man would see what was going on."

Herb Stern also has memories of liberating a camp. He's a German-born Jew who came to the U.S. at age 16. He's 98 now.

"Because, had I stayed there, the inevitable would have been, just as has happened to many of my family and close friends, that we would have ended up either in Auschwitz or somewhere else," he said in the oral history, adding, "Almost everybody that I grew up with was gone."

His mother committed suicide in Germany, a victim he said, of the notion that there "was no way out to anywhere to do anything."

It was in mid-April 1945 that Stern was with U.S. troops who entered a concentration camp in Nordhausen, Germany.

"Here, the living and the dead were lying side by side," he recalled. "The living were too emaciated to move their limbs. The dead were unburied or half-buried. SS troops had stacked bodies in ditches. The stench was unbelievable. Many of us threw up.

"We learned that one group, which could not walk, had been chained in the mountain tunnel for three months without seeing daylight. I also spotted a bank of very large ovens on the premises. There was no doubt that camp personnel burned the dead in these ovens. On the grates, you could see bones."

None of this is news. Despite the twisted evil nonsense of Holocaust deniers, the world knows what happened. We've heard this all before. It's important to hear it again to remind us the proper time for jokes about it will never come.

Searingly painful though it always is, it's necessary that we hear it to keep alive the memory of those who perished and to honor the liberators whose lives were forever changed by what they saw.

A grateful nation thanks these liberators for what they did. So does a grateful human race.

On Veterans Day, honor a vet by sitting a spell for a talk

The Dallas Morning News

■ COMMENTARY

This Veterans Day, here's an idea for showing appreciation for the men and women who have served past and present:

If you meet a veteran or if you have veterans in your family, talk to them about their experiences. Actually engage them about that time. We can more deeply honor them by listening and truly understanding their sacrifices for this country.

And building connections can help bind us and remind us of our shared humanity. This country could use some of that right now. These personal stories — whether from decades ago or today — should matter to us all.

Duncanville teen Andy Fancher gets that. He's the 18-year-old who's recording the testimonies of veterans, mostly from World War II, to ensure their histories are preserved. In his free time, he's interviewed more than 50 so far for his YouTube documentary series and received well-deserved national attention.

Wise beyond his years, Fancher is keenly aware that time is running out to hear directly from these veterans. He's grown close to some of these aging heroes; some have died since he interviewed them.

"I'm preserving their stories," he says. "In 10 years, we may not have these guys to tell their stories anymore."

It's part of a broader effort across the country to make sure the opportunities to honor their sacrifices are not lost.

Since 2000, the Veterans History Project has collected and made available personal accounts of American war veterans. The oral history project depends on individuals and organizations throughout the nation to contribute stories.

And then there's NPR's heartwarming StoryCorps series, whose mission for the last 14 years has been to encourage the value of listening and sharing to "create a more just and compassionate world." People have shared emotional stories about veterans' love, friendship and strength.

So do yourself a favor and strike up a meaningful conversation with a veteran or two this Veterans Day. They deserve it, and so do you.

Three great questions to start the conversation

1. What drove you to enlist?
2. What are your strongest memories from your time in the military?
3. During your service, can you recall times when you were afraid?

Parishioners: Gunman acted oddly week before church attack

By Emily Schmall
Associated Press

SUTHERLAND SPRINGS — Less than a week before the Texas church massacre, the gunman who slaughtered more than two dozen people showed up at a festival dressed in black and acted so strangely that people kept a close eye on him, two longtime parishioners said Friday.

Devin Patrick Kelley "was completely distant and way out in thought," recalled Judy Green. She and her husband said Kelley often exhibited troubling behavior.

At the fall festival held on Halloween night at the First Baptist Church, Kelley "didn't even blink — he just stared," she said.

Rod Green, a former law enforcement officer in Montana, said when he saw Kelley arrive in all black, he examined him closely to make sure he was not carrying a gun. The Greens both have licenses to carry handguns, and they are friends with Kelley's in-laws.

If Kelley had been carrying a weapon, Green said, he would have escorted him away because of all the children there. Judy Green said she positioned herself to keep an eye on Kelley at all times.

"There was something wrong with the picture," she said. "I was thinking forward, and that was what was scaring me."

At a Christmas dinner one year, Kelley had "bragged about being armed," Rod Green said.

Wilson County Sheriff Joe Tackitt has said the church pastor saw Kelley in the crowd at the festival but that the pastor did not witness any behavior that raised alarms.

Investigators have said Sunday's shooting appeared to stem from a domestic dispute involving Kelley and his mother-in-law, and that he had sent threatening messages to her. The mother-in-law sometimes attended services at the church but was not present on Sunday. Kelley died of what appeared to be a self-inflicted gunshot wound after the massacre.

The Greens run a food pantry that offered this stricken Texas community another chance to mourn Friday as the charity resumed its weekly operations five days after the massacre at the church next door. People crowded inside the By His Grace pantry, tearfully hugging and filling bags with donated bakery goods, groceries and used clothing.

The pantry's director, Lula White, was among those killed. White was also the 71-year-old grandmother of the gunman's wife.

Something new to spot: Jaguar cubs make debut at Zoo

There's something new to spot at the Houston Zoo: two jaguar cubs.

The nearly 4-month-old male and female cats made their first public appearances on Thursday. Named Fitz and Emma, the cubs are the first jaguars born at the Houston Zoo in more than a decade.

The Houston Zoo says the jaguar siblings were born on July 20 and have spent the past few months behind-the-scenes bonding with their mother, Maya. The cubs' father, Tesoro, also is housed at the zoo.

Jaguars are known for having dark spots on their light-color coats.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

Note: Bigar's Stars is based on the degree of your sun at birth. The sign name is simply a label astrologers put on a set of degrees for convenience. For best results, readers should refer to the dates following each sign.*

A baby born today has a Sun in Scorpio and a Moon in Leo if born before 11:41 a.m. Afterward, the Moon will be in Virgo.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Nov. 11, 2017:

This year you begin a new 12-year luck cycle. It is wish-upon-a-star time. Though not every wish will be granted, many of them will be. You might want to spend more time alone sorting through various options before committing to a particular direction. If you are single, you will discover the importance of timing and remaining open-minded. You have a strong possibility of meeting Mr. or Ms. Right. If you are attached, the two of you connect tightly. Use this powerful connection to enhance both of your lives. VIRGO can be very calm and supportive.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Enjoy the company of a loved one in the morning. This person encourages the child within you to emerge. By the afternoon, you might find that you want to take off or indulge in some adventurous activity. Can you do both? Try to make it happen! Tonight: Only with loved ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ You might feel stuck or as though you want to spend time close to home, especially in the morning. Indulge that whim, and others will be extremely responsive. A friend or loved one can't help but smile when you re-emerge. Tonight: The fun and games continue till the wee hours.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Make calls and return emails early in the day. You'll be delighted when you reach out to someone you care a lot about. This person's reaction will please you. A partner might not openly express his or her feelings. Don't try to change this person. Tonight: Accept others as they are.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You will want to make a difference, but you might find it difficult. Make an effort to open up conversations and be as authentic as possible. In the afternoon, you could be surprised by what a boss or associate shares. Tonight: Chat away and visit with a loved one you rarely see.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Use the morning for anything important. You will want to enjoy a close friend later in the day. Agree to pursue a mutually enjoyable pastime. Some of you might drop in on an art show or a jam session. Others likely will opt to do something outdoors. Tonight: Indulge a loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Use the morning just for you. You might want some personal time away from others. When you reappear later in the day, you seem rejuvenated and more upbeat than you have been in a while. Your magnetism soars and draws others toward you. Tonight: Head to the gym.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ A friend might delight you with a proposition. Be willing to adjust your plans accordingly. You will be quite pleased with how special your day ends up being. A conversation with a neighbor could have a strange effect on you. Tonight: Hang out with a loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You might need to visit with an older relative in the morning. Once you have fulfilled your obligation, you can do what you want. Expect to surprise a friend or loved one. An unexpected responsibility drops on your lap. Tonight: Let a friend try to change your mind. Play hard to get.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ Use the morning to get some feedback on an important project. You might want to find an expert with whom you can share your ideas. You want strong feedback, as it will help guide you. A new friend adds a dimension of excitement to your day. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ A loved one points you toward a new path. You might feel as if your bond with this person continues to strengthen. As a result, you will experience more intimacy. You could opt to try a new type of experience later in the day. Tonight: Work closely with a loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ Remain open and receptive to someone else's suggestion. This person might be trying to share a deeper sense of compassion with you. You could find communication to be full of surprises. Try not to overcomplicate situations. Tonight: Respond to a friend's overture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ If possible, defer to a partner when dealing with an older loved one. You pull the wild card financially. You might opt to change your plans in order to add more variety to your day. Be careful with your funds, as unpredictability seems to be a theme. Tonight: Accept an offer.

Three-year age difference complicates teenage crush

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl and a junior in high school. I have a crush on a guy who's 14 and a freshman. I know age gaps don't matter as much later on, but the difference between 17 and 14 can be drastic. "Jake" is really sweet, and he's as interested in me as I am in him (unlike the boys in my grade).

I'm friends with Jake's sister "Julie," who's a year older than me and a senior. Julie has made it clear she doesn't like the idea of a romantic relationship between Jake and me because Jake is only 14.

What can I do? Should I ignore this crush? I have judged people who have dated despite age gaps. (For example, a senior boy dating a sophomore girl.) But now I understand it. If the girl is older, does that complicate things? I don't want to be seen as creepy or gross, but, to be honest, I'm not that experienced romantically or socially myself. (I have never even been to a real party.) Must I forget my feelings and move on, or do I talk to Julie and try to pursue this? — TEEN CRUSH

DEAR TEEN CRUSH: Julie has already given you her answer. As you have pointed out, there is a bias against dating someone so much younger, and it could cause you problems not only with your peers, but also with the law if your relationship were to become sexual when you turn 18. That's why I'm suggesting you turn your romantic interests elsewhere. When you're BOTH adults, if you're still interested, you can pursue a romantic relationship then.

Climate activists stage protest at German coal-fired plant

By Frank Jordans and Dorothee Thiesing
Associated Press

BONN, Germany — Environmental activists protested at a German coal-fired power plant on Friday — the same day that Italy became the latest country to announce a deadline for ending its use of the heavily polluting fossil fuel.

Protesters projected images of Pacific islanders threatened by climate change onto the cooling tower of the lignite-fuelled power station in Neurath, in western Germany, along with the words "coal destroys our future."

The visual display, organized by representatives of Pacific island nations and the environmental group Greenpeace, took place as diplomats from around the world are meeting in nearby Bonn to discuss implementing the 2015 Paris climate accord.

The German government claims to be a leader in the fight against climate change but has refused to set a date for phasing out the use of coal, which emits large amounts of the greenhouse gas carbon dioxide when burned. Coal accounts for about 40 percent of Germany's energy mix.

Several other countries, however, have set a cutoff date for coal, including Italy, which announced it will stop using coal for its national electricity needs by 2025.

Italy's plan calls for investments of 175 billion euros ($203.5 billion) through 2030 in infrastructure, renewable energy and energy efficiency development. According to government statistics, coal provided 16 percent of Italy's national electricity in 2015.

Italy's new energy strategy calls for carbon emissions from energy use to decrease 39 percent by 2030 and 63 percent by 2050.

Coal has become a key issue at the Bonn climate talks. Former U.S. Vice President Al Gore told delegates there

Crude price enjoys fifth-straight week of gains

By Trevor Hawes
thawes@mrt.com

The price of oil reached a new year high this week and closed the week higher.

West Texas Intermediate contracts for December delivery closed Friday at $56.74 per barrel, down 43 cents (0.75 percent) on the day but up $1.10 (1.98 percent) for the week. Friday's settlement marked the fifth straight week of gains, but it wasn't the highest price this week. That came Monday, when a close of $57.35 set a new year high.

WTI is up $4.41 (8.43 percent) after 218 trading days this year. The average price is $49.84 per barrel. WTI's year low is $42.53.

Commercial crude oil stock were higher this week by 2.2 million barrels to 457.1 million barrels. The Strategic Petroleum Reserve saw a 700,000 barrel drawdown, leaving 669.9 million barrels in inventory.

Total motor gasoline supplies fell by 3.3 million barrels to 209.5 million barrels. Kerosene-type jet fuel inventories were down by 1.1 million barrels to 40.1 million barrels. Distillates were down by 3.4 million barrels to 125.6 million barrels. Domestic crude oil production was up slightly by 67,000 barrels per day to 9.62 million barrels per day. Imports fell by 194,000 barrels per day to 7.377 barrels per day. Exports plunged by 1.264 million barrels per day to 869,000 barrels per day.

Plains Marketing posted prices were higher this week. The Reporter-Telegram tracks WTI "all other areas" and West Texas sour. Both were up $1 this week.

WTI posted was priced at $53.25 per barrel Friday, up 25 cents (0.47 percent) on the day. Sour was up a quarter (0.5 percent) to $49.90.

The spread between the two crude grades has held at $3.35 for eight trading days. The spread between WTI futures and WTI posted was $3.49 on Friday.

Sour is up $6.70 (15.51 percent) since the start of 2017. The year high is $50.40 and the low is $35.60. Sour reached the $50s for the first time Monday. It's been priced in that range three times this year. The average price is $42.47 per barrel.

WTI has an average price of $46.42 per barrel. It has been priced as high as $53.75 and as low as $39. It's up $4.50 (9.23 percent) this year.

In other futures trading Friday, January contracts fell by 41 cents to $56.98 per barrel. February was down by 40 cents $57.16 and March dropped by 37 cents to $57.28.

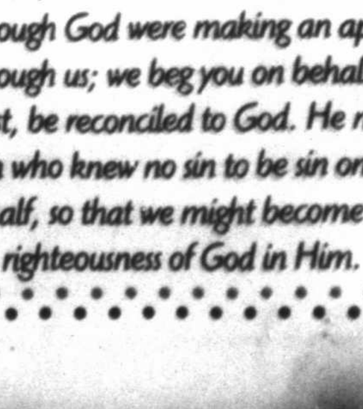
DAILY PROMISE BROUGHT TO YOU BY



2 Corinthians 5:20-21
Therefore, we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God were making an appeal through us; we beg you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God. He made Him who knew no sin to be sin on our behalf, so that we might become the righteousness of God in Him.

COAL

From 6A

Friday that making the switch away from fossil fuels won't be easy given the industry's political clout, but that it makes both environmental and financial sense.

"It is insane to force taxpayers to subsidize the destruction of our civilization, and of course, the coal and gas and oil lobbies have a lot of political power," Gore said. "They built it up over a hundred years, and they have the influence with politicians, not only in my country, but also in China, also in Japan."

U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres told reporters Friday in New York that he will urge participants at Bonn conference to respond to the latest alarming data by further cutting emissions, helping countries respond to climate shocks and mobilizing the $100 billion promised to help developing countries.

He said recent reports send two messages: "accelerate climate action — and raise ambition."

The 2015 Paris climate accord set a target of limiting global warming to 1.5 degrees Celsius (2.7 degrees Fahrenheit) — or 2 degrees at the most — by the end of the century.

Guterres pointed to new worrying data: The World Meteorological Organization reported that carbon dioxide in the atmosphere reached new highs in 2016. A U.N. Environment Program report showed that greenhouse gas levels are likely to be so elevated in 2020 that reaching Paris targets for 2030 will be very hard to meet.

Moore denies sexual misconduct, but GOP fears election risk

By Steve Peoples and Kimberly Chandler
Associated Press

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — His party suddenly and bitingly divided, Alabama Republican Roy Moore emphatically rejected increasing pressure to abandon his Senate bid on Friday as fears grew among GOP leaders that a once-safe Senate seat was in jeopardy just a month before a special election.

Moore, an outspoken Christian conservative and former state Supreme Court judge, attacked a Washington Post report that he had sexual contact with a 14-year-old girl and pursued three other teenagers decades earlier as "completely false and misleading."

In an interview with conservative radio host Sean Hannity, he did not wholly rule out dating teenage girls when he was in his early 30s.

Asked if that would have been usual for him, Moore said, "Not generally, no." He added: "I don't remember ever dating any girl without the permission of her mother." As for the encounter with 14-year-old Leigh Corfman, as described by Corfman in Thursday's Post article, he said, "It never happened."

The story has produced a wave of concern among anxious GOP officials in Washington, but little more than a collective shrug from many Republicans in Alabama, which holds a special election on Dec. 12 to fill the seat previously held by Attorney General Jeff Sessions.

"Humphrey Bogart started dating Lauren Bacall when she was a teenager," said state Auditor Jim Ziegler, referring to the then-19-year-old actress.

"I'll always vote for him," said 28-year-old Erica Richard, of Altoona, Alabama, adding that she wouldn't change her mind even if the allegations of sexual misconduct are proven true. "He's a good man. I love him and his family, and they are all good people."

Paul Reynolds, Alabama's Republican National Committeeman, called it "a firestorm designed to shipwreck a campaign in Alabama. I think it's sinister."

Despite such support, experienced Republican operatives believe the Alabama Senate seat, held by the GOP for the last 20 years, is now at risk.

They fear the controversy could exacerbate the party's broader Trump-era challenge in appealing to college-educated suburban voters — the same group that fueled a big Democratic victory in the Virginia governor's race this week.

Those familiar with recent polling of the Alabama race suggest it was always going to be close despite the state's strong Republican leanings — largely because of Moore's controversial past.

In the immediate aftermath of the Post report Thursday, a wave of national Republican leaders called for Moore to drop out of the race if the allegations are true. They included the White House, the head of the House Freedom Caucus Mark Meadows, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell and Sen. Ted Cruz.

It got worse Friday.

The Senate GOP's campaign arm formally ended its fundraising agreement with Moore.

The GOP's 2012 presidential nominee Mitt Romney condemned his colleagues' caveat — only if the allegations are true.

"Innocent until proven guilty is for criminal convictions, not elections. I believe Leigh Corfman," he said of the Alabama woman who said Moore molested her when she was 14. "Her account is too serious to ignore. Moore is unfit for office and should step aside."

Facing a tough re-election, Rep. Barbara Comstock, R-Va., likened Moore to Hollywood producer Harvey Weinstein, former Rep. Anthony Weiner and former Fox News executive Roger Ailes, all men accused of sexual misconduct.

"The defense from some of his supporters is beyond disgusting," Comstock wrote. "Moore should not serve in the U.S. Senate."

Sens. Mike Lee, R-Utah, and Steve Daines, R-Mont., withdrew their endorsements.

Yet there is no sign Moore is going away quietly. And the Alabama secretary of state's office reported that it's too late to remove his name from the ballot.

The Republican Party's options, including the possibility of a write-in campaign, "are all being researched," said Steven Law, who leads the pro-Republican Senate Leadership Fund.

Those who think Moore should be replaced have little hope of that happening.

"I don't think anyone expects Roy Moore to drop out of this race," Law said. "I think he enjoys being an object of intense controversy. The fact that this has happened may make him even more committed."

Moore was twice removed from his state Supreme Court position, once for disobeying a federal court order to remove a 5,200-pound granite Ten Commandments monument from the lobby of the state judicial building, and later for urging state probate judges to defy the U.S. Supreme Court decision that legalized gay marriage.

He also previously said homosexuality should be illegal, and last week he refused to back off comments that Rep. Keith Ellison, D-Minn., should not be allowed to serve in Congress because he's a Muslim.

Virtually the entire Republican establishment — including President Donald Trump — opposed Moore's primary bid in September.

In Friday's radio interview, Moore cast the Post story as an effort by Democrats — "and maybe even establishment Republicans" — to undermine his campaign. He also mentioned an effort to investigate his accusers.

"We're also doing an investigation and we have some evidence of some collusion here, but we're not ready to put that to the public just yet," he said without elaboration.

Democrats, meanwhile, were quietly stepping up their mobilization efforts in Alabama, though being careful not to publicly ignite partisan backlash by attempting to capitalize on the troubling allegations.

Democratic candidate Doug Jones stood to capitalize in places where Moore had shown weakness in past statewide elections. Some Republicans conceded that Moore would likely suffer in the state's reliably, mainstream-Republican suburbs.

In Shelby and Baldwin counties — suburban Birmingham and Mobile — Moore ran more than a dozen percentage points behind Romney in his 2012 bid for the Alabama Supreme Court.

"It's a bad situation," said Henry Barbour, a Republican National Committeeman from neighboring Mississippi. "Do people find it believable? If they do, he will lose."

Talking tough on trade, Trump pushes 'America first' in Asia

By Jill Colvin and Jonathan Lemire
Associated Press

DANANG, Vietnam — President Donald Trump stood before a summit of Asian leaders keen on regional trade pacts and delivered a roaring "America first" message Friday, denouncing China for unfair trade practices just a day after he had heaped praise on President Xi Jinping in Beijing.

"We are not going to let the United States be taken advantage of anymore," Trump told CEOs on the sidelines of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation conference. "I am always going to put America first, the same way that I expect all of you in this room to put your countries first."

The president — who pulled the United States out of the Pacific Rim trade pact known as the Trans-Pacific Partnership — said the U.S. would no longer join "large agreements that tie our hands, surrender our sovereignty and make meaningful enforcement practically impossible."

Instead, he said, the U.S. will pursue one-on-one trade deals with other nations that pledge fair and reciprocal trade.

As for China, Trump said he'd spoken "openly and directly" with Xi about the nation's abusive trade practices and "the enormous trade deficits they have produces with the United States."

It was a stark change in tone from the day before, when Trump was Xi's guest of honor during a state visit in Beijing. There, Trump opted for flattering Xi and blaming past U.S. presidents for the trade deficit.

Trump said China's trade surplus, which stood at $223 billion for the first 10 months of the year, was unacceptable. He repeated his language from Thursday, when he said he did "not blame China" or any other country "for taking advantage of the United States on trade."

But Trump added forceful complaints about "the audacious theft of intellectual property," "massive subsidizing of industries through colossal state-owned enterprises," and American companies being targeted by "state-affiliated actors for economic gain."

U.S. officials have raised similar concerns in the past about China, especially with regard to intellectual property.

Behind the scenes, White House officials quietly negotiated with the Kremlin over whether Trump and Russian President Vladimir Putin would hold a formal meeting on the sidelines in Danang, with the Russians raising expectations for such a session.

As speculation built, the two sides tried to craft the framework of a deal that Trump and Putin could announce in a formal bilateral meeting, according to two administration officials not authorized to speak publicly about private discussions.

Though North Korea and the Ukraine had been discussed, the two sides focused on trying to strike an agreement about a path to resolve Syria's civil war once the Islamic State group is defeated, according to officials. But the talks stalled and, just minutes before Air Force One touched down in Vietnam, White House Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders told reporters that the meeting was off.

When asked about the outcome, Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov later snapped at reporters: "Why are you asking me? Ask the Americans."

Playing in one of the most anticipated games against Odessa Permian in over 15 years, it was a very encouraging first 10 minutes of play for the Lee football team Friday night.

The Rebels stonewalled an 11-play Panther drive to open the contest and went on to take a 7-0 lead on a 1-yard touchdown run by quarterback Colby Standard with 2:16 to play in the first quarter.

But a vaunted Panther defense would have no more of it.

Permian stymied the Rebel offense for the next three quarters and reeled off six unanswered touchdowns in a 42-7 District 2-6A rout of Lee at Grande Communications Stadium.

Permian held Lee to just 176 total yards of offense, a new season low by a wide margin. In the second half, the Panthers sacked Standard three times and limited the Rebels to just 1 yard on 19 carries.

Standard led the way for Lee with 69 yards and the lone score on 16 carries, while passing 7-for-11 for 71 yards and an interception. He topped the 1,000-yard mark on the season with the effort.

Panthers quarterback and counterpart Steve Steen was brilliant, rushing 16 times for 122 yards and a touchdown. He also completed 4 of his 5 passes for 70 yards and three more scores, helping his team go a remarkable 7-for-11 combined on third and fourth downs.

"We came out as a team and played a great football game," Steen said. "Defensively, we played phenomenal. Offensively, we got to move the ball a lot. It was just a solid win tonight."

With the victory, Permian (8-1, 5-1) claimed a Division I No. 1 seed in the Class 6A playoffs and will host El Paso Coronado in the bi-district round at Ratliff Stadium next week. Lee (8-2, 4-2) settled for the No. 2 seed and will travel to El Paso to face El Paso El Dorado (7-3) in bi-district, at a date and time to be determined.

Lee head coach Clint Hartman took the blame squarely for the loss.

"(Permian) did a good job, but we just didn't play very well," Hartman said. "As the head coach, I let us down and I let our kids down. Point the finger at me first. All I know is that now, we have to get focused on playing El Paso El Dorado."

Following Standard's score to give Lee the early lead, Permian answered with a 3-yard touchdown run by Ed Williams to tie the game with 8:52 left in the first half. The Panther defense forced a Rebel three-and-out and then jumped ahead 14-7 on a 10-yard pass from Steen to Justin Hammond.

On its first possession of the second half, Permian stretched its advantage to 21-7 on a 50-yard strike from Steen to receiver Brother Miller.

Standard was intercepted by Seth Higdon on Lee's next drive, before Steen found Zach Jaquez for a 6-yard scoring pass and a 28-7 Panther lead.

Williams finished the night with 102 yards and a score on 19 carries, as Permian outgained Lee 410-176 for the game.

Midland Christian commits 7 turnovers, falls to FW Christian

Cardinals 42

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Midland Christian's Randall Blanscett goes up to make the catch over Fort Worth Christian's Elliott Neal for a reception near the goal line Friday at Gordon Awtry Field.

Midland Christian coach Greg McClendon knows that even the good teams will have bad days every now and then.

The Mustangs didn't have a very enjoyable Friday night against Fort Worth Christian.

Midland Christian turned the ball over seven times, and Cardinals quarterback Tyler Knoop threw for 398 yards and three touchdowns in a 42-7 rout by Fort Worth Christian at Gordon Awtry Field.

The Cardinals (9-1, 4-0) clinched the TAPPS Division II District 1 title, while Midland Christian (7-3, 3-1) will be the No. 2 seed in the playoffs. Both teams will host a first round game, and McClendon said his team will probably play Tyler Grace Prep but the time and day still need to be determined.

McClendon hopes his team has a better showing than it did on Friday as it not only couldn't hold on to the ball and gave up a lot big plays but had two touchdowns negated because of holding penalties.

"In every phase of the game, I did a poor job of getting my team ready to play this week," McClendon said. "We had a few bounces go the wrong way. We'll go back and offensively, defensively and on special teams we'll come back, get it fixed and get it going.

"It doesn't happen very often but sometimes you get your tail kicked and they kicked our tail tonight."

Fort Worth Christian coach Scott Smiley said he never expected to come into Midland Christian's home field and win like this but was proud of his team's effort.

"We have nothing but respect for Midland Christian and we knew it was going to be a tough game," Smiley said. "We're banged up because of it. We're just grateful to have played well. Once Midland Christian gets fully healthy they're going to back at the top and they're going to be the team to beat."

The Mustangs could have very well made it a closer game in the first half, but on four straight series right before halftime they came up empty. They had a fumble, interception and a fumble into the back of the end zone. The only time they didn't turn the ball over during that span was when time

Dawgs buck the Bronchos, make playoffs for 4th straight year

Bulldogs 31
Bronchos 28

By Christopher Hadorn

ODESSA — Five weeks ago, the Midland High football team was at a crossroads with an 0-5 record and a postseason run seemed distant.

But the Bulldogs went on a second half run, winning two of their next four games to put themselves in position for a must-win scenario to reach the playoffs Friday night.

Winning the turnover battle 3-0, MHS edged Odessa High, 31-28, to claim District 2-6A's fourth and final playoff spot at Ratliff Stadium.

The Bulldogs (3-7, 3-3 in District 2-6A) reached the postseason for the fourth straight year, the first time that's occurred in program history.

MHS will represent District 2-6A as the No. 2 seed in the Class 6A Division II bracket and visit District 1-6A champion El Paso Montwood (9-1, 6-1) in the bi-district round of the playoffs. MHS head coach Tim Anuszkiewicz said the game is tentatively set for 8 p.m. (CST) on Friday night.

"I feel very fortunate right now that our players especially have stayed the course," Anuszkiewicz said. "Our coaches have stayed the course. There was a time in the middle of the year when you have to sit down as a coaching staff, and we have to continue to believe in what we're doing and we have to continue to work on what we're doing. I think that's why we made progress."

The Bronchos (3-7, 1-5) kept coming at the Bulldogs on Friday, even after MHS seemed to separate with swings in momentum.

Leading 17-14 at halftime, the Bulldogs appeared to create some distance when they vaulted to a 31-14 advantage following DQ Harris' 1-yard run with 8:27 to play in the

FROM WIRE REPORTS

BUCKS 94 SPURS 87

SAN ANTONIO — Giannis Antetokounmpo had 28 points and 12 rebounds, and Milwaukee snapped a four-game skid with a 94-87 victory over San Antonio on Friday night in Eric Bledsoe's debut with the Bucks.

Bledsoe started in his first game with Milwaukee three days after being acquired in a trade with Phoenix. Bledsoe made his first attempt, a runner from 13 feet, and he finished with 13 points and seven assists on 6-for-15 shooting.

The Bucks won for the first time in November and snapped the Spurs' three-game winning streak.

Antetokounmpo and San Antonio forward LaMarcus Aldridge played to an early stalemate in a battle of the teams' star big men.

Aldridge muscled his way to the basket and scored 20 points on 8-for-14 shooting. Antetokounmpo elevated to the rim for a series of layups and dunks in shooting 12-for-24.

PACERS 105 BULLS 87

CHICAGO — Victor Oladipo scored 25 points, and the Indiana Pacers snapped a four-game losing streak with a 105-87 victory over the Chicago Bulls on Friday night.

After giving up an average of 115 points during its losing streak, Indiana held the Bulls to 39.8 percent shooting in one of its stingiest defensive performance of the season. Bojan Bogdanovic made six 3-pointers and scored 22 points for the Pacers, and Thaddeus Young finished with 13 points and eight rebounds.

Bobby Portis led Chicago with 20 points and 11 rebounds in his second game of the season. Kris Dunn scored 16 points on 8-for-14 shooting, and rookie Lauri Markkanen had 12 points and 10 boards.

CELTICS 90 HORNETS 87

BOSTON — Jayson Tatum had 16 points, Shane Larkin added 16 off the bench and the Boston Celtics overcame an injury to Kyrie Irving and a 12-point, fourth-quarter deficit to beat the Charlotte Hornets 90-87 on Friday night.

Terry Rozier finished with 15 points, seven rebounds and four assists, playing an increased role after Irving left the game in the first quarter after taking an elbow to the face. Jaylen Brown added 10 points and 13 rebounds.

The Celtics extended their win streak to 11 games. Charlotte has lost four straight.

Celtics center Aron Baynes' elbow inadvertently struck Irving when Baynes was landing after a rebound attempt. Irving fell to the floor and was bleeding from the nose as he was escorted back to the locker room. Irving was ruled out for the rest of the game while he was monitored for possible concussion symptoms.

PISTONS 11 HAWKS 104

DETROIT — Andre Drummond had 16 points, 20 rebounds and a career-high seven assists, and Reggie Jackson made a pair of 3-pointers in the final minute to lift the Detroit Pistons to a 111-104 victory over the Atlanta Hawks on Friday night.

The Central Division-leading Pistons won for the seventh time in eight games. Detroit (9-3) is off to its best start since 2005-06, when the Pistons went 10-2 to begin the season and ended up winning 64 games.

The Pistons outscored Atlanta 31-19 in the second quarter and led 57-41 at halftime, but couldn't shake the Hawks. Atlanta kept it close and finally tied it at 94 when Kent Bazemore made back-to-back 3-pointers.

MAGIC 128 SUNS 112

PHOENIX — Aaron Gordon scored 22 points and Nikola Vucevic added 19 to help the balanced Orlando Magic beat the Phoenix Suns 128-112 on Friday night.

Terrence Ross and reserve Jonathon Simmons scored 17 points apiece and Evan Fournier had 14 for the Magic. They have won two straight to reach 8-5, their best start in five seasons.

TJ Warren had 20 points and rookie forward Josh Jackson had a career-high 18 points for the Suns. They have lost five straight to drop to 4-9.

Suns scoring leader Devin Booker, covered most of the game by Ross, scored nine points on 3-of-10 shooting, tying a season low in scoring. He was averaging 22.3 points.

Alex Len had 21 points and 13 rebounds, and Michael James scored 18 points for Phoenix.

HEAT 84 JAZZ 74

SALT LAKE CITY — Dion Waiters scored 21 points, and the Miami Heat rallied to beat the Utah Jazz 84-74 on Friday.

Goran Dragic had 18 points for Miami, and Tyler Johnson finished with 11 on an ugly night for each team on the offensive end.

The Heat outscored the Jazz 20-8 in the third quarter after trailing by 12 at halftime. Miami put together runs of 11-0 and 7-0 during the period, and the Jazz had just one field goal in the 12 minutes.

Then Waiters took over down the stretch, scoring 10 points during a 13-0 run that made it 84-74 with 31.6 seconds remaining.

THUNDER 120 CLIPPERS 111

OKLAHOMA CITY — Paul George scored 42 points and the Oklahoma City Thunder beat the Los Angeles Clippers 120-111 on Friday night to snap a four-game losing streak.

It was George's highest points total since joining the Thunder in an offseason trade. He made 13 of 22 shots and had nine rebounds and seven assists.

Russell Westbrook had 22 points and eight assists and Carmelo Anthony and Alex Abrines each scored 14 points in the Thunder's highest-scoring game of the season.

Lou Williams scored 35 points for the Clippers, and Blake Griffin had 17 points on 5-for-19 shooting. Los Angeles has lost four straight.

The Thunder led 63-55 at halftime behind 21 points by George and 17 by Westbrook. The Clippers shot 54 percent before the break, but they turned it over 11 times and were outscored 17-12 at the free throw line.

Midland High's Tim Gates (5) runs past Odessa High defenders to score the Bulldogs second touchdown during their district football game Friday at Ratliff Stadium.

But Odessa High responded as it rode the legs of sophomore running back Sejun McGarity to the tune of 159 rushing yards and two TDs on 29 carries, which spearheaded their second-half charge.

OHS scored the final 14 points of the game, including a 1-yard touchdown run by McGarity with 2:06 left. McGarity followed with a 2-point run, bringing Odessa High within three points.

The Bronchos' onside kick attempt failed, and Suddin Sapien powered MHS into the postseason with a 13-yard run on second-and-13.

Although OHS made a valiant comeback attempt, the Bulldogs' defense was able to thwart promising drives with big plays in the second half.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, Bronchos quarterback Chase Webster was stopped for no gain by MHS defenders Isaiah Hernandez and Logan Simmons on a fourth-and-1 situation at the Bulldogs' 5-yard line.

In addition, MHS safety Aiden Brown got an interception that set up Harris' touchdown, and cornerback Josh Acrey had an interception in the end zone to stop a Bronchos' drive in the fourth quarter.

"The defense made some big plays in the red zone," Anuszkiewicz said. "We had a couple of interceptions tonight. I thought the turnovers in the second half were probably the difference in the game and then we had the fourth down stop down here on the goal line. That's really three opportunities right there. That was probably the difference in the game tonight."

Leading 3-0 in the first quarter, Bulldogs linebacker Ross Marker recovered a Bronchos' fumble on a rush play and returned it 49 yards for a touchdown.

"It's huge when momentum changes," Marker said. "Getting turnovers and three-and-outs really helped the offense tonight."

MHS took a commanding 17-0 lead when Timothy Gates broke away on a 42-yard touchdown run with 10:24 left in the second quarter.

Despite being down by 17 points, OHS clawed its way back and closed the gap to three points when Charles McClure scored on a 63-yard punt return with only 44 seconds left in the first half.

Just when the Bronchos appeared to be inching closer, MHS got the ball after halftime and scored on its first play from scrimmage when Sapien completed a 47-yard TD pass to Jalen Terhune.

"You got to give a lot of credit to Midland," Bronchos head coach Danny Servance said. "Coach Anuszkiewicz did a great job and their team did a great job. Their kids played extremely hard. They made great strides to where they were at the beginning of the season. We talked before the game and how hard it is from being 0-5 at one time and how much they've improved. We've got a lot of respect for them."

LEE

From 1B

Rebels' explosive skill players had the full attention of the Permian staff coming into the game.

"Going into the game, we were scared to death of the weapons that (Lee) has on offense," Feldt said. "Their offensive line is really good. To hold them to seven points, that's outstanding."

Hartman said he is confident his players will rebound from Friday's disheartening result and play to its capabilities in the playoffs.

"We'll be resilient," Hartman said. "Our kids will come to work. Like I told them, when things like this happen, all I know is how to get my butt up, get out of bed and go to work. That's what I know how to do."

Tyler Madrid paced Rebel receivers with 28 yards on two catches.

Late in the third, Lee senior receiver Grant Brown had a 100-yard kickoff return called back by a holding penalty.

"I think we had more turnovers tonight than we had all year combined," McClendon said. "You can't beat a good team when that happens. We made some mistakes and that's my fault. That's my responsibility. We'll come back, watch film, figure out what we need to do and get better from it."

Added Smiley about the turnovers: "They were crucial. The game could have been totally different had (the Mustangs scored) two or three times on us in the first half. Those were really big stops for us. Had they scored right before the half, we knew we would have had our hands full."

When the Mustangs weren't turning it over, Knoop and his wide receivers were making things miserable for the MCS secondary.

On FWC's first possession of the second half, Gavin Samson took a short pass from Knoop and then raced 70 yards for a touchdown. Samson helped Knoop have a big night with seven catches for 188 yards and three TDs.

"(Knoop) is a good player," said Smiley about his quarterback, who added 70 yards rushing and a TD. "He's a good runner and good passer and he makes our offense go. We're real proud of Tyler."

Silas Crews had 102 yards rushing and a TD to go with 144 yards passing to lead Midland Christian.

Jerry Jones: Objection to Goodell deal not about Ezekiel Elliott ban

In 2014, NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell, left, and Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones talk at the game between the Jacksonville Jaguars and the Cowboys at Wembley Stadium in London. Jones has threatened to sue the NFL over a proposed contract extension for Goodell, a dispute apparently sparked by star running back Ezekiel Elliott's six-game suspension over alleged domestic violence, a person with knowledge of the situation told The Associated Press on Wednesday.

FRISCO — Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones says his objection to a contract extension for NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell is not because of star running back Ezekiel Elliott's six-game suspension over alleged domestic violence.

Jones said on his radio show Friday he wants all 32 owners to have a chance to approve the deal being negotiated between Goodell and the compensation committee that includes six owners. Jones is not on the committee.

The NFL has said owners already voted unanimously to extend Goodell's contract and authorize the committee to work out the deal. Jones said circumstances have changed since that May vote, including the escalation of the protests over social injustice that have involved the national anthem.

Jones also said "behavioral policies" have been an issue since May. Goodell suspended Elliott in August.

Jones, who was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in August, didn't dispute that he had threatened to sue the NFL if Goodell's contract was extended.

He suggested he was at odds with the compensation committee chairman, Atlanta Falcons owner Arthur Blank. Jones said he disagrees with Blank's assertion that the compensation committee can complete the deal without another vote of all owners.

Jones spoke a day after a federal appeals court on Thursday denied bid by Elliott to keep his six-game ban on hold, making him ineligible to play against Atlanta on Sunday.

"I really fervently disagree that we shouldn't have him on the playing field," Jones said. "But a lot of people are trying to tie it in frankly with the issue regarding my stance as to the chairman and renewing the commissioner. That's really not right."

The 75-year-old Jones said the compensation committee could appease him by agreeing to let the remaining owners review and approve the final contract with Goodell.

"I think just since the period of time that we first addressed extending Roger, I think we've had several material adverse conditions happen," Jones said. "We should basically honor those conditions, such things as the anthem, such things as behavioral policies.

"It's a well-known, an accepted principle that in a negotiation if you have material consequences occur, that you revisit the situation. Certainly we've got things that we need to discuss that weren't on the table last spring."

Goodell suspended Elliott following a yearlong investigation by the league after prosecutors in Ohio declined to pursue the domestic violence case, citing conflicting evidence.

During his NFL appeal of the punishment, Elliott denied under oath that he had any physical altercations in the summer of 2016 with Tiffany Thompson, his girlfriend at the time. The NFL said there were three incidents over five days.

Jones said his relationship with Goodell, and issues related to his compensation, are deeper than his recent concern over the league's handling of Elliott's case.

"I've been dealing with this commissioner for almost 28 years, as an employee of the NFL," Jones said. "Zeke's been involved here a year, a year and a half. The policy that we have that has impacted Zeke is more of my issue with the commissioner, more so than Zeke's particular circumstance."

Cowboys' Morris ready to replace suspended Elliott

By Schuyler Dixon
Associated Press

FRISCO — Alfred Morris struck the same defiant tone from the last time the Dallas running back was preparing to replace suspended star Ezekiel Elliott.

Roughly the same answer, too, heading into Sunday's game at Atlanta.

"I've treated every single day like I have the past six years," Morris said Friday, a day after a court rejected Elliott's latest bid to delay a six-game suspension over alleged domestic violence. "Nothing changes for me. It's just, 'OK, it's another start. OK. It's fine.' The ups and downs, they really didn't matter to me."

Early last week, Morris thought he would get his first start since 2015 in place of Elliott before a judge granted an emergency request to put the suspension on hold.

So Morris was the backup who got one carry while the NFL's second-leading rusher had 93 yards and the go-ahead touchdown in a 28-17 win over Kansas City.

Early this week, Morris was behind Elliott again until the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York ended Elliott's last hope to avoid missing games.

So Morris showed up Friday as the apparent starter, although the Cowboys (5-3) haven't officially declared him as such against the Falcons. Dallas plays four games before Elliott's next hearing Dec. 1.

"I never know when I'm going to touch the field," said Morris, who had 70 of his 116 yards rushing this season on one carry in a loss to the Los Angeles Rams. "Sunday, I have a better idea at least how it's going to start the game off. We'll see how everything plays out. Of course I'm excited to get more snaps and more carries, get more opportunities to help my team win."

Morris ran for 1,613 yards as a rookie with Washington in 2012. He was no longer the featured back for the Redskins when he chose the Cowboys in free agency last year, about two months before Elliott was drafted fourth overall and went on to lead the NFL in rushing as a rookie.

The 28-year-old Morris was a somewhat surprising choice as the backup when the season started because Darren McFadden led Dallas in rushing in 2015. That was a year after the Cowboys let 2014 rushing leader DeMarco Murray go in free agency.

McFadden was inactive the first eight games — a first for the 10th-year back who was the fourth overall pick by Oakland eight years before Elliott.

Ex-track coach's lawyers to question ex-top UT officials

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press

AUSTIN — A former University of Texas president, former athletic director and former football coach Mack Brown all are scheduled to be questioned under oath next week in a sex and race discrimination lawsuit filed by former women's track coach Bev Kearney, who was forced out after the school learned she had a romantic relationship with one of her athletes a decade earlier.

Kearney's attorneys have identified former President Bill Powers and former athletic director DeLoss Dodds and Brown as key figures in how the school reacted to Kearney's relationship and how its disciplinary response differed from actions taken against former football assistant Major Applewhite, who was allowed to stay on the job and later promoted despite a relationship with a student trainer on a team bowl game trip after the 2008 season.

Kearney, who is black, was forced to resign in 2013 under threat of being fired. Applewhite, who is white, was ordered to undergo counseling, but was allowed to keep his job. He was later promoted and stayed on Brown's staff until Brown was forced out after the 2013 season. Applewhite, who also played quarterback at Texas, is now the head coach at Houston .

Kearney's lawyers have questioned why the school publicly announced Kearney's discipline, but Applewhite's incident, which school officials have called consensual, didn't surface until nearly five years later when the Daily Texan student newspaper filed a public records request for his personnel file. University regents said they didn't know about the Applewhite incident until 2013.

"Why did Texas sweep the misconduct of Applewhite, a white male, under the rug, but publicly punish Kearney, an African-American female? It's time for the decision makers to explain themselves," Kearney attorney Jody Mask told The Associated Press.

Dodds and Powers are scheduled to be deposed Monday and possibly into Tuesday. Brown's deposition is scheduled for Tuesday. All three are still on the Texas payroll and have been represented by school attorneys.

School officials have said Kearney "crossed the line" as a coach with her relationship with a student athlete.

"All actions taken by Texas were lawful and appropriate" the school said in a statement Friday. "We are continuing to respond to this lawsuit through the proper legal channels and will not discuss it through the media."

Ryan Blaney holds the pole award Friday after winning the starting position for a NASCAR Cup Series auto race at Phoenix International Raceway in Avondale, Ariz.

Blaney wins pole in playoff race at Phoenix

By Jenna Fryer
Associated Press

AVONDALE, Ariz. — Ryan Blaney probably needs to win at Phoenix Raceway to earn a shot at NASCAR's championship.

He'll at least start up front Sunday in his bid to put The Wood Brothers in the final four contenders next weekend at Homestead-Miami Speedway. Blaney won the pole in his final chance to qualify for NASCAR's championship race with a lap at 137.942 mph around Phoenix in a Ford.

It gave Blaney the top starting spot for Sunday's penultimate race of the playoffs. There is one slot available in the field of four that will race for the championship next week, and Blaney is one of five drivers chasing that spot.

"Our mindset coming into this weekend was really trying to win the race and sitting on the pole. My mindset doesn't change," Blaney said. "I still want to go try to win the race, so that's the mindset we've had all week and hopefully we can keep that and I think that's our goal."

Blaney bested Denny Hamlin in Friday qualifying. Both playoff drivers need to win to grab the final spot in the finale, and Hamlin waited until the third and final round to cut a corner on the track in an attempt to better his time.

Hamlin's lap at 137.936 briefly put his Toyota on top of the leaderboard, but Blaney bumped him moments later.

Kyle Busch, Kevin Harvick and Martin Truex Jr. have already locked up spots in the finale. Busch and Truex are in Toyotas, while Harvick drives a Ford. Seven-time champion Jimmie Johnson and Hendrick Motorsports teammate Chase Elliott are the only two Chevrolet drivers with a shot to make the finale.

Kyle Larson, who has been eliminated from the playoffs, qualified third.

He was followed in qualifying by playoff drivers Elliott, Truex and Harvick.

With Elliott due to start behind Hamlin, there was brief speculation that Elliott could seek revenge from an incident two weeks ago at Martinsville. Elliott was on his way to a victory that would have clinched his spot in the finale when Hamlin wrecked him out of the lead.

Hamlin said the two raced professionally last weekend at Texas and he had no concern for Sunday.

"Was I worried last weekend? No and I'm not worried this weekend," he said. "Everyone up front is professionals and we all have one job to do and that's to win. Our objective is the same objective as his — it's to go out there and win on Sunday. You really can't worry about other guys. If you've got that in front of you and you're thinking about that, your chances of winning are slim to none."

Busch was eighth and Johnson qualified 12th, but felt his Chevy was far faster.

"We made it to the third round and I just got really aggressive in that round trying to run a flat," he said. "Just got in the corner too hard on both ends and I kind of pushed up. So, could have been better but I don't know if we could have had the pole. I think we would have only been about fifth or sixth if I had got it right."

Brad Keselowski was the lowest-qualifying playoff driver at 16th. He starts Sunday's race with an advantage in the point standings over the other four drivers trying to make it into the championship, but he has very little breathing room and a victory is his only sure bet to make the finale.

For NBA, Chicago is slam dunk for 2020 All-Star festivities

By Andrew Seligman
Associated Press

CHICAGO — For the NBA, Chicago was a slam dunk to host the 2020 All-Star game

The city will host the showcase event for the first time since 1988, when Michael Jordan took off from the foul line in an epic dunk contest and delivered an MVP performance in the game.

Commissioner Adam Silver, Mayor Rahm Emanuel and Bulls executives Michael Reinsdorf and John Paxson were on hand Friday for the announcement on the United Center floor.

Silver said Chicago faced "a lot of competition" to bring it back and the city's plan put it "over the top."

Renovations in and around the arena, a new 10,000-seat facility on the Near South Side and Emanuel's desire helped bring in this one. So did a change of heart by the Bulls.

For years, chairman Jerry Reinsdorf opposed hosting the game because of concerns about displacing season ticketholders. But with son Michael — the president and chief operating officer — assuming more authority and grandson Joey in favor, he relented.

"We've been going for so many years," Michael Reinsdorf said. "At the end of the day, I tried to explain it to my dad. I don't think he's been to an (NBA) All-Star game since 1988. I tried to explain to him the difference now than what it was like when we hosted last. It's just such a great impact to the city."

There was some thought that the 2019, 2020 and 2021 All-Star games would go to teams with new arenas. Golden State, Sacramento, Milwaukee and Detroit have all either recently constructed new homes or have one being built.

But the schedule also got thrown off a bit after North Carolina passed a law restricting the rights of LGBT people. The league moved the 2017 All-Star game from Charlotte to New Orleans in response.

After North Carolina passed a compromise bill limiting anti-discrimination protections for lesbians, gays, bisexual and transgender people, the NBA gave Charlotte the 2019 game.

As for 2020?

"There were several other cities that were interested," Silver said. "We try over time to take care of all the cities that do want to have an All-Star game. I think it becomes a function of timing. I think for some of the other cities that were building, some of the refurbishments that are planned had not been completed yet, had not been finalized in terms of financing so the timing just didn't work out. It's really more a function of scheduling."

The United Center opened in August 1994. But it has been undergoing a bit of a transformation in recent years.

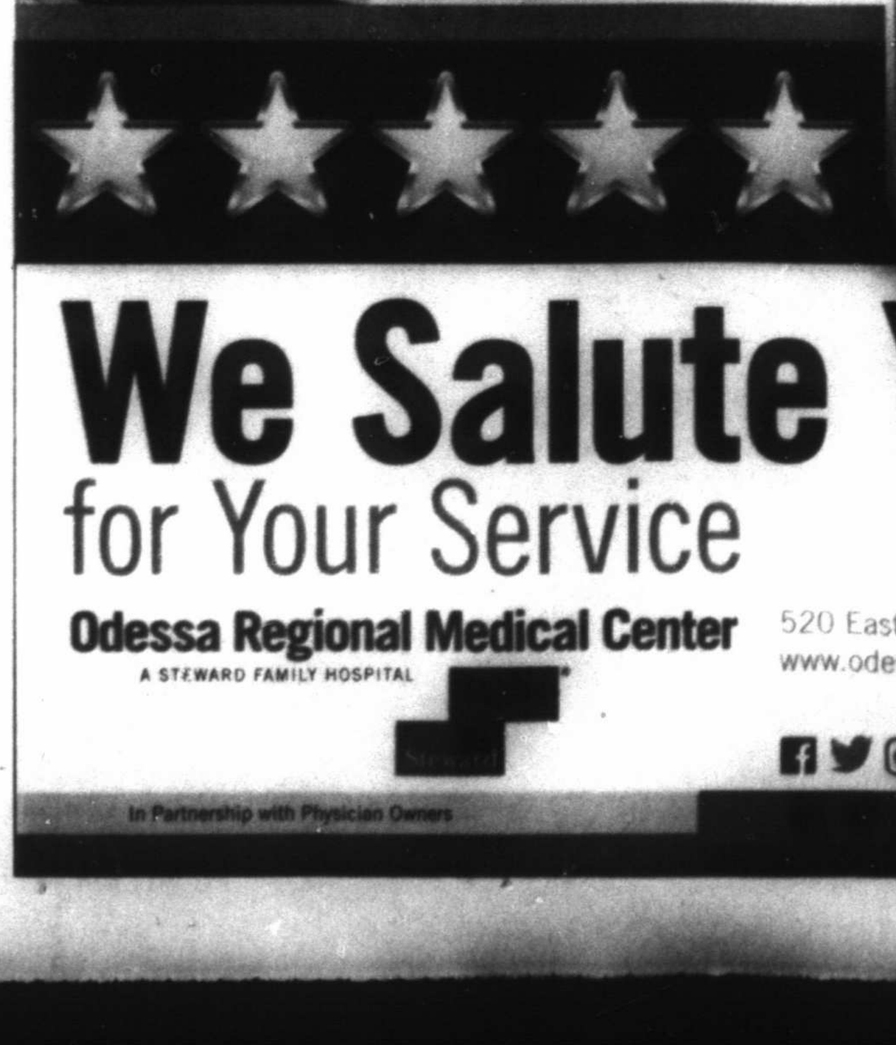
HONORING OUR VETERANS

HARRY A. SPANNAUS



Forty-three. That is the number of medals Harry Spannaus was awarded by the US Air Force for his heroic contributions during the Korean and Vietnam Wars. He is the most highly decorated veteran in Midland. When he arrived for his interview, he was proudly wearing his uniform. At 87, he still looks as good in it as he ever did. I was absolutely in awe of this amazing man and what he did for our country. Harry is the type of man you read stories about or see in a movie, and every once in a while, if you're lucky, you get the honor of meeting.

Harry was born on September 1, 1930 in Hutchinson, Minnesota to Walter and Leetha (Hostetter) Spannaus. He had one brother, Walter. His father was a pharmacist and owned his own drugstore. He also served in the US Army. His mother was a housewife. Tragically, he lost his entire family very early in his life. His father was killed in a deer hunting accident in 1938, when he was only 8 years old. After his father's death, his mother remarried. His stepfather's name was Carl Thompson. Sadly, his mother died of heart failure when he was only 13 years old and he was raised by his stepfather. Tragedy struck once again when Harry was 32 years old. His only brother was killed in a plane accident.

After graduating from Hutchinson High School, Harry enrolled at the University of Minnesota, where he studied from 1948-1951. His major was Physical Education. His stepfather was head of the draft board at the time. Since Harry had never received a draft notice, people were starting to gossip that he was getting preferential treatment, so his stepfather told him he needed to volunteer. He decided he wanted to learn to fly and enlisted in the US Air Force shortly after turning 21. He had to leave for the service before finishing his degree. He was sent immediately to flight school at Bartow Air Base in Bartow, Florida. Next, he attended jet training at Craig Air Force Base in Selma, Alabama. From there, he went to Perrin Air Force Base in Sherman-Denison, Texas for additional flight training. Harry loved to fly and was a fearless pilot. He found himself in hot water more than once for his daredevil acrobatics in his aircraft. He laughs and says, "I was just a wreckless jet pilot!"

After he completed flight training, he was sent to Korea for 13 months to fight in the war. He flew just about every aircraft the Air Force had there at the time, including the P-51 Mustang & F-86 Sabre. His F-86 Sabre, America's first swept-wing fighter, was outfitted with (6) .50 caliber M3 Browning machine guns that could fire 1,200 rounds per minute. When the Vietnam War erupted, Harry was deployed, leaving a wife and three children at home. He laughed and said, "I left the wife with two teenage girls in Kansas. Hannaek sent She had to put up with that for over a year. Poor woman!" He spent 13 months there as Commander of a squadron of F-4 Phantoms. He said that Vietnam was by far the toughest war he fought in. Sadly, five men from his squad perished during combat missions. The Vietnamese had surface-to-air missiles (SAM's) that were 30' long, bright white and armed with 500 lb. explosive warheads. They could reach up to 40,000 feet. US Air Force aircraft were equipped with special electronic equipment that notified the pilot when the enemy launched a missile and when the enemy's radar locked onto the aircraft. Harry said, "And then you knew that you were in trouble!" The pilots were trained in special tactics to combat the missile attacks. He said, "A lot of my friends didn't fare very well. They got hit with those missiles and ended up dying." He said, "After one mission, I had 257 holes in my airplane. That airplane was a wreck after that."

In his 21-year career, Harry logged 14,000 flying hours and flew 239 combat missions. He especially loved getting to fly an F-106, which flies almost 1,800mph. Harry holds an unofficial record for successfully landing a "dead stick" aircraft on 11 occasions. He continued his education at the Air War College in Montgomery, Alabama. He earned a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science and a Master's Degree in International Relations concurrently. He was promoted to a full-third Colonel after only 12 years, which is a remarkable accomplishment. Because of it, he was nicknamed a "fast burner". He was awarded the following medals: (2) Legion of Merit Medals, (3) Distinguished Flying Crosses, several Bronze Stars, (16) Air Medals, Air Force Commendation Medal, Army Commendation Medal, Combat Readiness Medal, ROK War Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, UN Korean Service Medal, RVN Gall Cross Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Korean Service Medal, and National Defense Medal. He was honored by the Commemorative Air Force (CAF) as Combat Airman of the Year and is in their American Combat Airman Hall of Fame. He was honored with a medal from the Daughters of the American Revolution. He has also participated in the Permian Basin Honor Flight.

Harry and Mary McKee were childhood sweethearts for 7 years before they got married. They were wed in April 1953 at the Nellis Air Force Base Chapel in Las Vegas, Nevada shortly before he was sent to Korea. They had been married for 41 years at the time of her death in 1995. He said, "She was a very pretty girl. She was runner up in the Miss Minnesota beauty contest." They had three children, all of whom currently reside in Midland. They are: Terri Dunn and husband Tim, Kathi Prescott and husband Glenn, and Mark Spannaus and wife Jill. They have 10 grandchildren and 21 great grandchildren. He is thrilled to see them every Sunday for a big family lunch. He said, "There's kids everywhere!"

Harry loved his career in the US Air Force, especially traveling the world. They lived in Thailand, Japan, Germany, Turkey, Europe and Spain just to mention a few. They made 26 moves in 22 years. It was hard on the kids because they could never finish school anywhere, but they made the best of it, and despite it all, got a good education. The most difficult part for him was when he had to be away from his family. At the time, Harry was stationed in Spain and his son, Mark, was in junior high overseas. He said his Commander told him when his son does something wrong, "Don't come to me," he said. "To hell with that! I wear a uniform and I really don't like it on, but when I'm off base, I'm a dad and I'm gonna whip Harry is extremely patriotic and loves to fly his flag and he loves to honor the flag and their country. His advice to you if you are considering a military career is, "Join the Air Force!". He said, "It's the cleanest service and you don't have to go in combat much when you're in the Air Force today. It's probably the safest military service. It wasn't for me, but that's all in the past."

His last assignment, before retiring from the military in 1975, was as Wing Commander at Webb Air Force Base in Big Spring, Texas. He spent 8 years there. It is the highlight of Harry's career, but was a trying time because he was there when the Air Force decided to close the base. There were 2,600 people on that base. The base closing had a drastic impact on the small town of Big Spring and people blamed him, even though he had nothing to do with the decision. He said, "My boss was a Four-Star Star General and when he said we had to close the base, that's what we had to do."

After retiring and moving to Midland, Harry worked / flew corporate aviation for Hilliard Oil & Gas. In 1985, he was elected President of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association and served in that role for 10 years. He was hired at Discovery Operating and worked there for 3 years, before going back to the Permian Basin Petroleum Association for another 6 months. In 2002, he decided to retire for good. He has worked with the "oil & gas folks" in Midland for a long time. He said, "They are good people. They are big chance takers." His son-in-law, Tim Dunn, is a principal owner at Crownquest Oil & Gas. Harry has met several presidents over the years, including President George H.W. Bush, President Nixon and President Eisenhower. He said, "They are all nice guys."

In 2002, Harry built his own plane in his garage. It was a kit plane called the Challenger. He enjoyed it for several years, but eventually sold it. He was always an avid deer hunter and recently went hunting with his son. He laughed and said, "I don't even hunt anymore. I'm not gonna get down on my hands and knees and clean the damn thing!" Nowadays, he just enjoys going along with the guys.

Harry's greatest achievement in life is being a fighter pilot and combat pilot. He said, "Not many people get to do that!" He is the type of man that sets his sights on something and accomplishes it to the best of his ability. In his life, the sky truly was the limit. He is a real life "Top Gun". He is what a true hero looks like. No need for a cape, maybe a parachute, but no cape! He has looked death in the eye many times and lived to tell us about it. The bravery he has shown in his life is something that should be admired, honored and remembered by all. Thank you for your service, Harry!

HIGH-STAKES MATCHUP

In this Oct. 7 file photo, Oklahoma quarterback Baker Mayfield (6) leaps over Iowa State defensive back De'Monte Ruth, bottom, in the second quarter in Norman, Okla. The outright lead in the Big 12 Conference is on the line when No. 5 Oklahoma hosts No. 8 TCU tonight.

Oklahoma, TCU to face off for Big 12 lead

By Cliff Brunt
Associated Press

NORMAN, Okla. — A week after Oklahoma held on for an emotional win over arch-rival Oklahoma State, the Sooners are set to play another high-stakes game.

No. 5 Oklahoma hosts No. 8 TCU tonight for sole possession of first place in the Big 12. Even with all the energy the Sooners spent on Oklahoma State, Oklahoma quarterback Baker Mayfield said his teammates are focused.

"We're built for November and this run right here," Mayfield said. "I think we're ready for it. We've been talking about it all year, that we're going to have to play well late in the year. Right now, we're doing just that. On to the next one for us. It's going to be a good challenge for us."

In a game loaded with interesting matchups, the best might be Oklahoma's offense against TCU's defense. The Sooners lead the nation in total offense and passing yards per game and rank third in scoring offense. TCU ranks sixth nationally in total defense and points allowed per game.

TCU looks forward to the chance to add legitimacy to its numbers against Oklahoma.

"As a defense, we like that," TCU defensive end Mat Boesen said. "We like coming into hostile environments like that and just competing with them and giving them our all and getting after it. So I think as a team we like that, we like that pressure, we like being under pressure, being the underdog, and just coming after it."

If the past is an indicator, tonight's game will be entertaining and tense. The past five games have been decided by a combined 21 points. The Sooners have won four of those matchups. Oklahoma won a 52-46 shootout last season , holding on after nearly blowing a 49-24 fourth-quarter lead. Mayfield passed for two touchdowns and ran for two more while TCU quarterback Kenny Hill passed for 449 yards and five touchdowns.

TCU might need even more to pull this one out.

"We have a lot of work to do," TCU coach Gary Patterson said. "I'm excited about it, and I think our kids are excited about it."

Here are some things to watch as the Sooners face a critical roadblock in their quest for a third consecutive Big 12 title:

Hill's moment?

Hill has had a good season, yet he hasn't received the same level of attention as Mayfield or Oklahoma State quarterback Mason Rudolph. He already beat Rudolph head to head earlier in the season and has a chance to put himself in the running for major awards with a win and a strong performance.

Strength vs. strength

Oklahoma running back Rodney Anderson has rushed for at least 100 yards in three straight games. Mayfield relies heavily on his running game late in the season, then hurts opponents with deep passes down the field. Anderson's ability to get established against the nation's No 1 run defense will be critical.

Fading Texas Tech can stop the bleeding with win vs. Baylor

The Texas Tech football team needs a win to not only keep its bowl hopes alive but to at least temporarily quell speculation about head coach Kliff Kingsbury's future with the program.

The Red Raiders (4-5, 1-5 in Big 12) face Baylor (1-8, 1-5) in an 11 a.m. game at Arlington's AT&T Stadium that will be televised on Fox Sports Southwest.

One more win will get Texas Tech one step closer to being bowl eligible, but as we all know, nothing has been certain with this team, especially during its current four-game losing streak.

The Red Raiders will tell you that their goal is go 1-0 this week, but they need this win to have any chance to keep this season from spiralling further out of control. Their remaining two games – at home against TCU next Saturday and at Texas on Nov. 24 – the Red Raiders will be the underdogs. It's not like they're incapable of winning those games, but with the way they've been playing, they've proven they could lose the remaining three games as well.

"We know that everything's in front of us," Tech junior safety Jah'Shawn Johnson said. "We've had some games that we know we should have won, could have won, whatever. But that's in the past. Like I said, we just want to go 1-0 every week. Everyone's still in great spirits because we know we have three opportunities to show what we're capable of."

In order for the Red Raiders to show what they're capable of over the next three weeks they need to step up in all three phases of the game. The offense needs to stop fading in the second half, the defense needs to make key stops, and the kickers need to connect on makeable field goals. All three have been contributing factors to the Red Raiders' current skid, so just making a quarterback change won't solve the rest of their issues.

"I wouldn't say there is necessarily any more pressure," said junior offensive lineman Paul Stawarz. "(We) kind of just have to attack the week, week by week, got to focus on this week now, which is Baylor. (We) can't look two games ahead or else you could let one slip by. Obviously, we're in a position where we're trying to make a bowl game, so we can't let that happen."

The Red Raiders will find a way this one, although it won't be easy against the pesky Bears. My pick: Texas Tech 44, Baylor 35.

Here are my latest Big 12 power rankings:

1. Oklahoma (8-1, 5-1) — The Sooners are back at the top after outlasting Oklahoma State for a 62-52 road victory. The Sooners now host TCU in a 7 p.m. game on Fox and a solid win could get them into the top four of the College Football Playoff poll.

2. TCU (8-1, 5-1) — The Horned Frogs bounced back from their only loss of the season with a 24-7 win over Texas. If anybody can slow down OU and quarterback Baker Mayfield, it is TCU's defense, but that may be a tall order in Norman.

3. Oklahoma State (7-2, 4-2) — The Cowboys may be out of the CFP conversation, but this team is capable of coming back and getting into the Big 12 championship game, especially if they can beat Iowa State at 11 a.m. on ABC/ESPN2.

4. West Virginia (6-3, 4-2) — I'm not surprised that the Mountaineers were able to cool off Iowa State in a 20-16 win last week. WVU can make it two in a row when it travels to Kansas State for a 3:30 game on ESPN2.

5. Iowa State (6-3, 4-2) — The Cyclones came back down to earth a little bit after their loss to WVU. ISU

Baylor after 1st win plays sliding Texas Tech in AT&T stadium

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Charlie Brewer won a Texas Class 6A high school state championship game the last time he played at the home of the NFL's Dallas Cowboys. That was less than 11 months ago.

Brewer will be back at AT&T Stadium tonight, making his second start as Baylor's quarterback a week after their first victory under coach Matt Rhule.

"It was a ton of fun. Those guys have worked so hard and we've had to put things in perspective so many times in the locker room," Rhule said. "We still had to put things in perspective after the game, because great teams ask what's next and move forward."

A week after that win at Kansas, Baylor (1-8, 1-5 Big 12) plays its annual neutral-site game against Texas Tech (4-5, 1-5).

The Red Raiders can still get bowl eligible by winning two of their last three games. But their four-game losing streak has again raised questions about the future of coach Kliff Kingsbury.

"Oh, that's a tough one. I don't know if I'm the Texas A&M head coach Kevin Sumlin looks during the second quarter of an NCAA football game Oct. 28 against Mississippi State in College Station, Florida became the first Power Five program this season to make a coaching, but several more enter the last month of the season faced with what could be a hard choice. Texas A&M has a record of 5-3.

Texas A&M hosts New Mexico with Sumlin's future in question

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Instead of talking about Texas A&M's upcoming game against New Mexico when he met with the media this week, coach Kevin Sumlin spent a big chunk of his time discussing his future as rumors continue to swirl that his days at the school are numbered.

After this season, the 53-year-old Sumlin has two years and $10 million remaining on his contract, but another disappointing season for the Aggies has many thinking that this year will be his last in College Station.

He insists that he isn't worried about his future.

"What I do is focus on what we have to do this week to win games, and the big picture will take care of itself," he said. "What we can do, is the best we can do. From that standpoint it keeps you focused on what's going on right now ... that's how I'm going to continue to approach it, and that's not going to change."

A win today will make Texas A&M (5-4, 3-3 Southeastern Conference) bowl eligible for the ninth straight season. But after dropping consecutive home games to Mississippi State and Auburn, the best the Aggies could finish with is eight wins. If they do, it would be the fourth straight year where they've had eight wins, raising questions about why they haven't been able to take the next step under Sumlin.

"You understand what this is about from day one," Sumlin said when pressed on his job security. "You know what you signed up for."

When they host New Mexico on Saturday the Aggies will try to get back on track with Nick Starkel at quarterback. Starkel opened the season as the starter before breaking his ankle in the opener. He's played the last two weeks after recovering from the injury but freshman Kellen Mond, who filled in while he was injured, has started those two games.

Sumlin said that Starkel earned the job back after throwing for 184 yards and two touchdowns after Sumlin benched Mond in the second quarter against Auburn after he went 5 of 11 for just 16 yards.

Some things to know about the New Mexico-Texas A&M game.

Texas ties

The New Mexico staff is full of coaches who spent time at Texas A&M, led by coach Bob Davie, who spent nine seasons with the Aggies as a linebackers coach and defensive coordinator under Jackie Sherrill and later R.C. Slocum.

"I owe a lot to Texas A&M, I owe a lot to R.C. Slocum," Davie said. "College Station made me a better coach and a better person. A lot of memories there, it's a great place, and they are a heck of a football team."

Offensive coordinator Bob DeBesse coached A&M's receivers from 2006-07, defensive line coach Stan Eggen coached the defensive line from 2003-07, safeties coach Jordan Peterson played for the Aggies from 2006-09 and was a graduate assistant at the school and graduate assistant coach Ben Sherman is the son of Mike Sherman, who coached the Aggies from 2008-11.

"Quality people (who) have been around football a long time," Sumlin said. "(They're) a well-coached football team with guys that know what they're doing, and who are probably going to be pretty excited about being back at Kyle Field."

Non-conference success

Texas A&M has won 27 straight games at home against non-conference foes. The Aggies' last loss at home against an opponent out of their conference came in a 41-23 loss to Miami in 2008.

Turnover woes

The Lobos have the third-most turnovers in the nation with 25 this season. Fifteen of those are fumbles, which is second in the nation behind San Jose State which has 19. The problem been particularly bad in this four-game losing streak where they've had 14 turnovers, including four fumbles in a 24-10 loss to Utah State last week and five interceptions in a defeat by Wyoming two weeks ago.

"Not that that is our only issue, but particularly the last two weeks, you just have no chance to win," Davie said.

Blocks on blocks

The Aggies are tied for the Football Bowl Subdivision lead with five blocked kicks this season. They've blocked three punts and two field goals this season. But Texas A&M had some trouble of its own in that area last week when Auburn blocked a punt by the Aggies and returned it for a touchdown.

Kansas heads to Texas looking to repeat shock win of 2016

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press

AUSTIN — The list of Big 12 victories for Kansas over the past seven years is short. Painfully short.

West Virginia, Iowa State and ... Texas.

Last season's shocking win over the Longhorns effectively ended Texas coach Charlie Strong's tenure, dooming him to be fired barely a week later. The program turned to Tom Herman, who is now having his own struggles this season.

The Jayhawks have played better at times this season, but have just one victory since upsetting Texas and are still at the bottom of the Big 12. The Longhorns (4-5, 3-3 Big 12) and Jayhawks (1-8, 0-6) meet again today. Texas is fighting to get bowl-eligible and Kansas would love to drive a stake into another Texas season.

"I miss that feeling that we had" after beating Texas last season, said Kansas defensive end Dorance Armstrong Jr. "I'm looking forward to getting that feeling again soon."

Beating Texas was certainly the high point so for second-year Kansas coach David Beaty.

"It's an opportunity to see if that was real. I mean, you do it once, how about we do it twice? I think that's the approach, as I hear our guys talking," Beaty said. "You want to prove something, you have to go do it more than one time."

A year ago, Texas players rallied around Strong after the Kansas loss but it wasn't enough to save his job. Under Herman, the Longhorns still find themselves in a late-season struggle just to reach a bowl. Texas hasn't played in a bowl since the 2014 season and hasn't missed a bowl game for three straight years since 1991-1993.

"I haven't made a bowl game in my college career and it's important that we get the seniors out to get a bowl game," Longhorns junior linebacker Malik Jefferson said. "The expectation is a lot different than we expected it to be this year, so very frustrating, but you can't give up."

Herman said just getting to a bowl game would be big step for the program.

BAYLOR

one to talk about that," said junior center Paul Stawarz, when asked if the team is playing for Kingsbury's job. "At least I can speak for the O-line again. We're going to come after it and attack it every week. Try to go 1-0. But I personally don't look into things like that."

Texas Tech started 4-1 in Kingsbury's fifth season, but is coming off an overtime home loss to Kansas State, which overcame an 11-point deficit in the fourth quarter. The Red Raiders won their first seven games in 2013 but are 21-31 since under their former quarterback-turned-coach.

A difficult Baylor debut was expected for Rhule, with a roster full of freshmen and first-time starters in the aftermath of a sexual assault scandal. The Bears were within a touchdown margin in the fourth quarter of six losses before finally winning.

With Zach Smith hampered by a shoulder injury, and likely still only available in an emergency situation, Brewer is now Baylor's starter. The freshman, who enrolled at Baylor last spring after leading Austin's Lake Travis High to a championship in Texas' highest classification, was 23-of-29 passing for 315 yards and three touchdowns against Kansas in his starting debut.

"We had a good plan to keep it simple for him, but he threw the ball down the field a good bit," Rhule said. "We knew Charlie is a good player and he can run around and make some plays."

Some other things for the tiebreaker of a series that is all even at 37-37-1:

Big numbers

Red Raiders junior WR Keke Coutee is tied for the Big 12 lead with 69 catches (7.7 per game) and is second in the league with 114 yards receiving a game. He also has nine TDs.

Both teams have scored at least 30 points in each of the last seven games in the series.

In Kingsbury's four previous meetings against Baylor, the Red Raiders have averaged 618 total yards a game.

Son of a Cowboy

Texas Tech defensive back Jah'Shawn Johnson used to go to most of the Dallas Cowboys home games when his dad, Keith Davis, played for them from 2002-08. Those were the last seven seasons the Cowboys played in old Texas Stadium.

"I've been a Cowboys fan my whole life," Johnson said. "Watched my dad play in the old stadium. I was dreaming of playing in there."

More attentive this time

Rhule got a bit distracted the first time he was at AT&T Stadium, in the coaches box in 2012 while on staff with the NFL's New York Giants.

"They gave me like Kobe beef sliders and sashimi. In the first quarter, I kind of found myself, like it was almost surreal," Rhule said. "I'm watching the big screen, and I'm eating instead of being locked in to doing my job."

At least one more time

This will be the eighth time Texas Tech and Baylor play at AT&T Stadium, where the series is scheduled to be played through 2018.

LEROY

has a good chance to bounce back if it can knock off Oklahoma State at home today.

6. Kansas State (5-4, 3-3) — Only a Bill Snyder-coached team can go on the road as the underdog and pull out a 42-35 overtime victory over Texas Tech with a third string quarterback in Skylar Thompson. But then again, if a team plays defense and is solid in special teams, it has a chance to win some games.

7. Texas (4-5, 3-3) — Sorry Longhorns fans but, Texas still has a way to go. But hey, at least Kansas comes to town for a 5 p.m. game on LHN.

8. Texas Tech (4-5, 1-5) — Will the Red Raiders' slide end anytime soon?

9. Baylor (1-8, 1-5) —Beating the Red Raiders in Arlington would be the Bears' bowl game in a season to forget.

10. Kansas (1-8, 0-6) —The Jayhawks are coming off a 38-9 loss at home to Baylor. Now they go to Texas and the road hasn't been kind to KU. It's been outscored 88-0 in Big 12 road games.

caught nine passes for a school-record 265 yards last Saturday against Oklahoma State and was named Big 12 Newcomer of the Week. The junior college transfer has emerged as one of the nation's most explosive players after a slow start and now leads the team in yards receiving.

Multiple options

Hill spreads the ball around. Desmon White and KaVontae Turpin are tied for the most catches with 27, John Diarse has the most yards with 404 and Jalen Reagor has the most touchdowns at four. The Horned Frogs also have two strong running backs in Darius Anderson and Kyle Hicks.

Get loud

Oklahoma's home crowd against Texas Tech in 2008 set the bar. Not after Saturday, if Mayfield has his way.

"Being that it's one of the last home games we're going to have and it's important to our college football playoff run, I'm going to call out our fans," Mayfield said this week.

"It's going to be an important one for us. Seven o'clock game, night game. I don't want to hear any talk about the 2008 Texas Tech game.

"This needs to be the new talk for the future. This crowd needs to be going. We give it our all week-in, week-out, I expect the fans to do the same for me on Saturday."
