Fast-Moving Cold Front Dumps Inch Rain On Area

By Ted Norman

A storm dumped an official one-inch of rain on the area and caused some power loss in Rockport Thursday morning as a fast-moving cold front swept the Coastal Bend area.

At 11 a.m. Thursday, the U.S. weather bureau and radio station KHB 41 in Corpus Christi issued a special marine weather watch for the area between Aransas Pass and Rockport because of the front that was accompanied by heavy rains and thunderstorms.

The weather watch remained in effect for two hours as heavy rains, high winds and thunderstorms moved rapidly across the area at 20 miles per hour.

At 11:45 Thursday afternoon heavy thunderstorms shut off power to some people in the watch area for a brief period.

Heavy rain and flood conditions were being predicted for the area for Thursday and Friday.

The Coast Guard group, Port Aransas, reported going to the aid of the 20-foot sailboat Miss Sylvia out of Seabrook. Coast Guard spokesmen said the Miss Sylvia lost her rudder in eight foot seas from the Port Aransas jetties and had to be towed to safety in Tuttle Cove at Port Aransas.

The sailboat is owned by Mr. R.T. Jones of Houston. Two passengers were on board the vessel at the time the Coast Guard gave assistance.

Drivers reported rain so heavy they couldn't see to drive across the Copano Causeway bridge. These conditions remained until early Thursday afternoon.

During the height of the storm there were reports of a barge sinking near Cove Harbor south of Rockport but the reports could not be confirmed.

At noon Thursday rain was heavy at the Port Aransas Jetties with some light fog reducing visibility to one and

H.E.B. To Exercise Land Buy Option

By Pat Blair

With the closing of Mimosa Street apparently assured, H.E.B. officials are exercising contract options to by the land on which the Rockport store is located.

The company will also exercise options to purchase the site of the closed-down service station at the corner of Austin and Highway 35, according to Charles Blackburn who is in charge of the company's real estate acquisition.

He added the company previously purchased two parcels of property between the H.E.B. parking lot and the service station lot.

The street closing and land purchases are to clear the way for a proposed future expansion of the Rockport H.E.B. store.

In Monday's meeting of the Rockport city council, Blackburn said H.E.B. was proposing to construct a "larger more modern superstore" to serve area residents.

Blackburn told the

Property Owners Request Hearing On Refinery

By Pat Blair

At least two property owners, one of them writing in behalf of City-By-The-Sea property holders, have requested public hearing on proposed construction of a refinery in Aransas County.

Members of the Texas Air Control Board in Austin are considering the requests, according to James Braddock, a TACB attorney, but no decision had been made as of the Pilot's deadline Thursday.

Public hearings have been requested by Mrs. Lois J. Ince "on behalf of the property owners of City-By-The-Sea" according to Braddock, and by W.H. Mullins who owns property in City-By-The-Sea.

Mrs. Ince and Mullins were among the City-By-The-Sea and Palm Harbor property owners who appeared before representatives of the TACB in a public meeting in Rockport on April 10 to protest construction of the refinery.

Richard McClendon, president of the Rocking R Refinery, said the proposed facility is a "small" refinery that will have a production capacity of 1100 barrels a day.

He said the refinery, which will occupy a total area of approximately 110 by 200 feet, will handle only the first step in the refining process, turning out naphtha, diesel fuel and No. 6 fuel oil.

"The main reason for this refinery," McClendon said, "is the need in this area for diesel fuel" — also known as tool oil.

The refinery will be located in the south end of the county on property presently owned by Aransas Warehouses. The refinery will lease the land and also use the Aransas Warehouse storage tanks on the property.

Property owners at the April 10 public meeting voiced concern over air pollution and possible damage to the area's ecology if the refinery is allowed to locate here.

Braddock said a public hearing is more formal than the April 10 public meeting

Bay Shrimpers' Catch Limit Is Dropped

A two-hour argument between bay shrimpers and Gulf shrimpers during a Senate committee hearing on Wednesday, April 22, ended with the committee approving a bill that, if passed, will do away with the 300 pound per day catch limit that bay shrimpers have worked under since the 1960s during their summer season.

The bill, which will be reported to the full Senate at a later time, is sponsored by Senator Lindon Williams (D-Houston) and will, in addition to taking off the pounds-per-day limit, cut the hours allowed for shrimping in major bays from all day to approximately half a day — from 30 minutes prior to sunrise until 2 p.m., from May 15 until July 15.

Leslie Casterline was among the number of area shrimpers present in Austin for the hearing. Casterline, in opposition to the bill, said Thursday morning, "The reason we're opposed to it is because there is no biological evidence that says they (bay shrimpers) can take all they want without hurting the Gulf people.

CHANGING TIMES

With the annual spring time change taking place when everyone must move their clocks ahead one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday morning, Mrs. John W. Pritchett of 29 Live Oak in Rockport inspects her sundial in an effort to try to figure out how to change that instrument to conform to the daylight savings time schedule. Mrs. Pritchett knows that the sundial need not be changed but thought it would be interesting to ponder the thought for a moment.

'Little Lamar Cemetery'

Historical Marker Sought For Cemetery

Mrs. Jackie Shaw, Chairman of the Aransas County Historical Committee announced today that the Historical group has applied for a Texas Historical Marker for the Old Lamar Cemetery located ten miles north of Rockport off Highway 35 in Lamar.

The Old Lamar Cemetery covers about one acre of wooded land and is located on Hagy Street next to the Lamar Voluntary Fire Department building.

The Old Lamar Cemetery is the kind of place you discover when you are enjoying a long distance bike ride or looking for a place to have a picnic. Its the kind of place your drive past, in fact may walk past and not notice.

The old fence is rusting, and the trees are thick with leaves and cast long protective shadows across the area as if holding it from those who pass by.

For those who decide to spend a few quite moments walking through the one acre site you will be greeted by an overweight, aged old tom cat who will spend as much time as you like escorting you from headstone to headstone. And a handout after the tour is not rejected.

The cemetery dates back to 1854, the earliest headstone date to be found and that is over the grave of Patrick O'Connor who was a direct decendent of the last king of Ireland.

O'Conner was a bookkeeper for James Byrne's New Orleans business and the husband of Mr. Byrne's niece. O'Conner's health was deteriorating and his doctor advised him to go west and relax. O'Conner set out for Lamar but fell ill aboard the ship and soon after his arrival in Lamar Mr. O'Conner died. And the Little Lamar Cemetery began.

Between 1862 and 1869 John M. Brundrett acquired the land around the cemetery. Sometime later Kate Edwards became the owner, but without her knowledge that the cemetery lay within the middle of her 1,000 acres.

The dates on the grave markers appear one or two every year or so indicating that the people of Lamar seemed to be pretty healthy. There are three markers in 1872, all three dying from a fever.

By 1900 Lamar just about folded up and the only burials were for old timers wishing to be taken back to the place they loved.

In 1915 the Lamar Post Office closed and the little cemetery became a 'Lost Lamar Cemetery.'

The Kroeger family played an important part in the early history of Lamar and in 1943 John Henry Kroeger, Jr. wanted to be buried with his family in the Lamar Cemetery. Kroeger had been the operator of a hotel and the mail carrier from Lamar to Refugio for several years.

In 1943 no one knew where the cemetery was located and Mr. Henry Traylor, a historian, oilman and realtor knew of an old map that showed just about where the cemetery was located.

With Mr. Traylor's help a quit claim deed was secured from the Edwards estate and John Henry Kroeger, Jr. was buried in the family plot on January 25, 1944.

Shortly after this the Lamar Cemetery Association was formed and with the help of Mae Delisle Kroeger, kinswoman of John Henry Kroeger, Jr., funds were raised to get the cemetery cleaned up and restored.

In 1862 Samuel Colt, inventor of the Colt revolver, was buried in the Little Lamar Cemetery.

Mr. T.E. Griffith, the present Aransas County Surveyor said he was present when the Aransas County road crew put the heavy wire fence around the Lamar Cemetery. Griffith said at that time cattle were grazing amoung the graves and the area had grown over with weeds and brambles.

In 1966 the Lamar Woman's Club was organized and one of their first projects was to sponsor the reorganization of the Lamar Cemetery Association.

Thanks to the efforts of these groups we now have a Cemetery Day once a month and slowly flower gardens are being placed around the many historical monuments standing in the Lamar Cemetery.

Perhaps one of the most interesting gravesites in the cemetery is that of John and Mary Fagan who died in 1860. John Fagan was a soldier in the Texas War of Independence at Goliad, (1835-1836). John Fagan's gravesite has been marked with an official Texas Historical Marker. However the marker erroneously places the Lamar Cemetery in Goose Island State Park.

The latest grave in the cemetery is that of Mabel Wallace Sasse, January 30, 1981. She was born September, 21, 1884 on one of the John Brundrett ranches. Her father, Charles Meser, played the violin for the dances at Blackjack and Lamar.

JOHN HENRY KROEGER

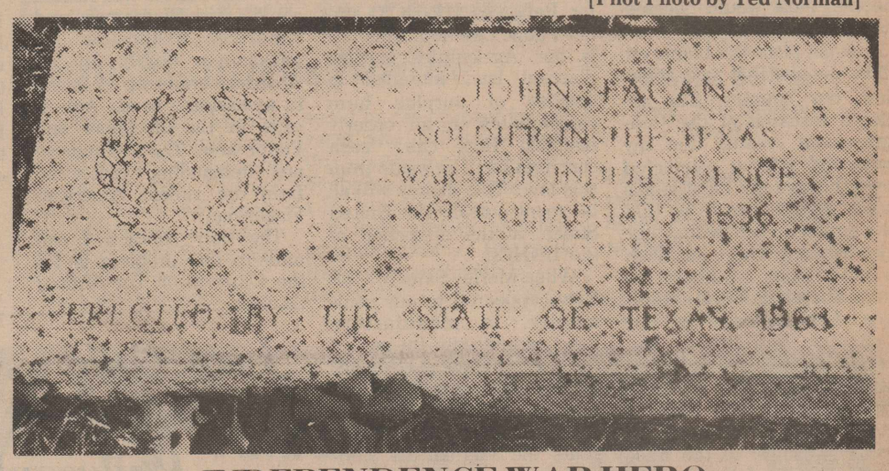

The headstone of John Henry Kroeger is one of the headstones in the large Kroeger plot at the cemetery. Kroeger was once an owner of the cemetery property.

Pass The — Uh — Diet Sugar

It's that time of year again, when hundreds of us put on last year's swimsuit and, after the immediate reaction (Yuck!) pledge ourselves to diet.

Dieting seems to be one of the great national pastimes. Pick up one of those "women's" magazines in any store and what's the most likely thing you're going to see? An article with a title like, "Slim Down to a Great New Shape for the Summer."

Frequently this article is touted on the cover of the magazine along with a cover photo of a seven-layer chocolate cake that goes with another article called, "101 Sinfully Delicious Things to Make With Chocolate."

Usually I never get past the chocolate recipes (that start on page 48) to read about the diet recipes on page 100.

Speaking of magazines, I was reading somewhere not too long ago that the familiar saying, "I can gain five pounds just by looking at pictures of food," may not be such an exaggeration.

According to this article, due to some quirk in body chemistry, some people really can gain weight by looking at pictures of food.

I got so depressed, I went out and bought a magazine to cheer myself up — and put on five pounds because it was just chock full of recipes, complete with illustrations...

Thanks to my circle of friends, most of whom have been dieting about as long as I have (all my life, give or take a few months here and there...), I'm familiar with a lot of the good "gimmick" diets.

For instance, there's the grapefruit diet where you eat enough grapefruit in one week to last the rest of your life...

And the carbohydrate diet where you count carbohydrates instead of calories...

And the really extreme diet where you give up everything...

My problem with these kind of diets is, I like food too well. For instance, one of my friends has a felt pig on the door of her refrigerator with the words, "What? Eating again?" scrawled across its middle.

This is supposed to shame you into realizing how little willpower you're showing by going to that refrigerator again and again and again...

The only thing it does for me is remind me how long it's been since I had sweet and sour pork...

But all this talk about food has made me hungry, so if you'll excuse me, I'm going to lunch. I know it's only 9:30 in the morning, but...hey... I'll get back on the diet later.

Maybe tomorrow...

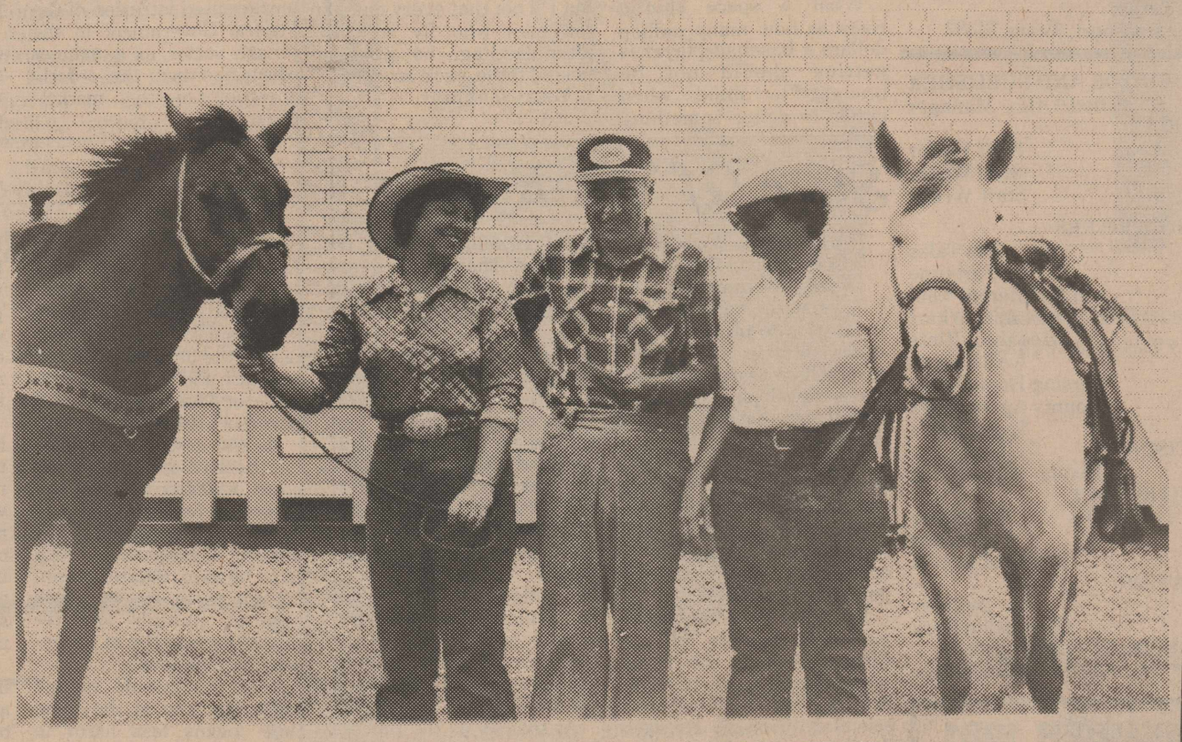

Industrial District Considered

ARANSAS PASS — A workshop for the purpose of exploring the formation of an industrial district corporation has been tentatively scheduled by the Aransas Pass City Council for Monday, April 27.

The decision was made at a city council meeting held last week.

Such a district would aid the Aransas Pass shrimping and fishing industry. A non-profit corporation structure would be able to issue tax-exempt bonds to pump money into the weakened industry.

Aransas Pass City Manager Al Holguin was quoted as saying, "The corporation would not be formed to bring in industry but to keep what we already have."

This was an especially interesting week for junk mail.

I know what you're thinking. No week is a good week for junk mail, right? Of course you are right, but it wasn't as good as it was bizarre.

Everyone with a mailing address including businesses receive numerous pieces of unwanted mail every week. Most of these take the "pitch" form. That is, trying to sell some product or service.

In The Pilot's stash of mail we will receive as many as a dozen or more pieces in our post office box as well as the mail delivered to our address downtown.

Letters from numerous state and federal officials, columns, and news releases from every advertising or public relations agency with a typewriter and phone.

Now back to this week. The list of unique communications included a letter from the "Association for Voluntary Sterilization, Inc. (a non-profit organization), an article about a new superintendent of a Houston drilling company and a letter to the editor asking for our help to get volunteers for the Peace Corps and VISTA.

One of the items which surprised us was a package of information concerning the SWAPO Terrorists.

This package was sent to The Pilot by the "U.S.-South West Africa/Namibia Trade & Cultural Council, Inc." of Washington D.C.
It contained several different pieces of information about the Marxist-led terrorist force based in Communist-oriented Angola which systematically cross the Namibia northern border for conducting terrorist activities which have slaughtered over 1000 civilians with Russian-made land mines.

I do find such information interesting and try to read as much of it as time will allow. This item probably should not be considered weird junk mail but certainly not the normal fare.

Last I want to relate the receipt of a letter (not junk mail as the aforementioned) from John Bishop of the University of Wisconsin. John works for that university in the "Institute For Research On Poverty".

John has requested us to "cancel our subscription to your newspaper immediately".

The institute had subscribed to the Pilot last September for what purpose we can only wonder.

The research on poverty has lived up to John's determination to study poverty at the only level to have any practical impact on the program.

John is now in possession of first hand information about his pet subject. The poverty program has requested a refund of the subscription price "due to a termination of our research funds".

Some of my employees and I had smiled before the letter was opened, agreeing with each other that we could help contribute facts for his study. Smiling is not descriptive of the uproar following the reading of the letter.

Poverty is big business throughout this nation and our subscriber in Madison, Wisconsin, is living proof of how one side of the business got theirs.

Murphy's Law on Research: "Enough research will tend to support your theory."

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor:

There have been a number of people ask why my wife and I have shown so much interest in the Vietnamese problem in our community. If any American Citizen would take an in-depth look at the over-all "political-refugee" situation, the cost to the American taxpayer and the economic impact upon the American industries which have been invaded by these people, most would become as irate as we are.

I do not place the blame on these peoples that have come into our country. The in-depth research of the Congressional records that my wife and I have conducted over the past six months has made it very clear to us that the problem lies within our Government. There has been a progression of liberal to ultra-liberal Political Refugee Acts passed by our Congress from 1948 to the present date. The culmination of these acts was the Refugee Act of 1980. This act is so broad in granting of usurping power to the Executive branch of our Government, it makes one wonder if there is any hope of our Country ever returning to the representative form of Government we all believed in, trusted in, and many have fought to preserve. This act even usurps our local "independent" school district. We have been committed by this Act to fund, by local taxation, $645,000,000 to provide elementary and secondary education for the children of these "guests" in our Land. This is just one of hundreds of commitments the Refugee Act of 1980 has placed upon the American Citizen to support. If we refuse to support these commitments, we will have our property confiscated and ourselves incarcerated, while the political refugee enjoys the fruits of our labors.

A further look into the usurping of legislative process by the Executive and appointive branch of Government finds the State Department has authorized a $45,000,000 (million) "contribution" to the United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) under Public Law 480. This law is our Agriculture surplus disposal law, intended to dispose of surplus farm commodities in an orderly manner. How can "cash contributions" be made from this law? This money will all be spent outside the United States, at the discretion of the UNHCR.

When Morley Safer of CBS News appeared in our community, to manufacture news, admittedly by one of the CBS personnel to be a lie, I became aware the Vietnamese problem was far greater than the twelve new boats the Vietnamese were adding to our fishing fleet.

Yes, our fishing industry, our schools, our community, even the prices we are paying in the grocery store have been affected by these "guests" we have been forced to accept in Rockport and Fulton. Our Government has not sent a "Task Force" to appraise the economic, social or ethnic impact this influx of "political-refugees" are having and will have on the American Citizens of Rockport and Fulton. Our Government Task Force that has visited us several times, is headed by Dr. Nugen Van Chau.

The Vietnamese are being protected by our federal law enforcement, at our expense, to prevent the "angry" Americans from hurting them or destroying their boats. Now Americans are being sued, by the Vietnamese, to prevent violence by the Americans being inflicted upon them. One American is DEAD, killed at the hands of a Vietnamese "guest". Two Americans are DEAD of "undetermined cause" in an area where there was heated conflict with Vietnamese and American fishermen. An assassin's bomb on an American crab-trap. A threat to assassinate seven Americans in the Rockport and Fulton area. The Vietnamese are demanding protection from the violent American Fisherman?

The only solution I can offer to this problem is for the Citizens of The United States of American to become informed of the total impact the political refugees that have been admitted and are still being admitted at the rate of 500 per day, and apply pressure upon our Legislators to alter the present policy and to cast votes for future candidates that will stop ignoring the "will of the majority".

Democracy can only exist so long as the "will of the Majority" is the dominant factor. I do not wish to live under a form of Government that has the power to decide for me, what is best for me. Is that not what these political-refugees have come to our Land to escape from?

Sincerely,

s/John D. Hyatt

Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassburr ranch has a few incidental remarks on the flight of the space shuttle.

Dear editor:

I don't want to be like the people who told Queen Isabella she was wasting her money sending Columbus off on that boat trip, and I watched the take-off and the dramatic landing of the space shuttle with the same awe as everybody else, but I don't guess it'll hurt to ask a few questions.

For example, shouldn't somebody at NASA tell the official who was radioing the men aloft in the shuttle how they were doing to watch his language? He kept saying "You're right on the money, Columbia, you're right on the money."

That struck me as a little indelicate, a bad choice of words, in view of the fact the venture has cost over 8 billion tax dollars.

What a space shuttle costs or how many million dollars a baseball player is getting should not be brought to mind when either is doing something dramatic.

However, we should look on the bright side. Backers of the shuttle say it's going to help us operate in space. Sounds like a good idea. Maybe we'll have better luck operating out there; as we sure haven't learned how to operate here on earth.

Also, I understand it takes four or five years of rigorous, dedicated training to get a man ready to fly into space. If we used the same system to get a person ready to drive a car — especially an 18-wheeler truck or a souped-up hot — think of the benefits.

It takes even longer than that to get a person ready to practice medicine, and even then it doesn't always work. To be a Congressman, it doesn't take any training at all.

As I understand it, the Columbia space shuttle should be good for 100 trips aloft, if they can get those bathroom tiles to stay on, but I'll bet that every one of the men who fly it will, after landing, be mighty tickled to be back on earth.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

ORANGE DUMPING POLICY A 'LEMON'

Representative George Miller (Calif.)"...I am introducing legislation (H.R. 3022) to reform the agriculture marketing order program.

"A program intended to support small farmers in many cases now protects large agricultural domination of the food market.

"A system designed to benefit the public now excludes the public from the major decisions which affect our pocketbook and our health.

"So, now we have growers who are using subsidized water — paid for by taxpayers — which is delivered through irrigation systems — paid for by taxpayers — to grow crops which are destroyed (oranges) — in order to inflate food prices — which are paid by taxpayers.

"And this is justified as preserving the free enterprise system?

"My legislation will reform the marketing program, as recommended by many experts who have studied its misguided impacts.

"My bill will require that at least half the marketing boards be composed of consumers, and that members of the boards can require that public hearings be conducted before we again witness the purposeful destruction of hundreds of thousands of tons of food as we are seeing this year in California.

"My bill will also increase the voice of the small farmer in the decision-making process.

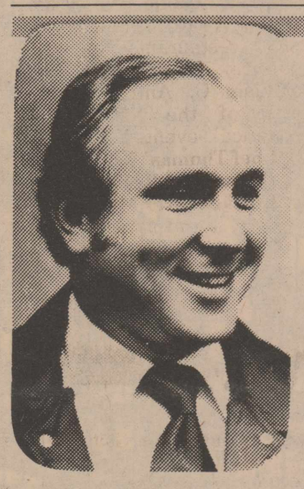

"I am very pleased that the chairman of the Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing, Consumer Relations and Nutrition, Congressman Fred Richmond (N.Y.) has joined me in introducing this legislation.

"This bill is in the consumer's best interest, it is in the farmer's best interest and it would end the unwarranted intrusion of the Federal Government in the private sector in a manner which obstructs the orderly operation of the marketplace."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Many charities would welcome the opportunity to take the surplus food off the market. At the supermarket the checkout personnel get the complaints of high food prices that should be directed to outdated Federal Government imposed marketing programs.

Television news broadcasts show tons of oranges being dumped. But the Congressional Record can report that someone is trying to change the practice.

How To Tell When To Water — A Real Mystery

It's safe to say that successful gardening in this area generally depends upon a good source of water. Although gardens can be grown "dry land," your chance of success with vegetable gardening is greatly increased if a water faucet is nearby.

To many of us one of the most enjoyable aspects of home gardening is watering. It can be quite enjoyable to see garden vegetables respond to a "drink" during the heat of mid-summer.

Despite the fact that watering can be a great deal of fun, it is often associated with many problems. Many of the things which can plague us each year — such as bitter fruit, sunscald, disease problems, poor fertility, poor quality, poor yields and a dozen other things — can be related to poor and improper watering.

Many of us enjoy watering our garden after a hard day's work or just as a form of relaxation. So it is not at all unusual that many gardens get watered two, three or more times a week.

Unfortunately, in most cases this is one of the worst things you can do since it can result in poor root development.

Light, frequent waterings have a tendency to cause a concentration of roots in the top inch or two of soil. This type of "limited" root system does not pose any real serious problem early in the season when plants are young and sufficient moisture is generally available.

However, as the season progresses and moisture becomes less and less available, you may be forced to water the garden several times a week just to keep plants from wilting severly.

This practice results in unsufficient nutrient uptake, poor growth and disease problems.

Water the garden not by looking at plants but rather by examining your soil. Look at the soil surface. If it appears dry, then scratch to a depth of one to two inches to determine if moisture is present.

If soil is relatively dry beneath the surface, then watering is necessary. If sufficient moisture is available, wait a couple of days before applying additional water.

Another point to consider is your garden soil. Obviously a sandy soil that drains well will require more frequent watering than a heavy soil which holds water.

How much water to apply is another mystery that confronts us. The amount of water to apply must be determined for each and every garden in the county.

Apply enough water until you feel your garden is well-watered. Then, take a sharpshooter or shovel and dig down and see if the soil is wet to a depth of at least six inches. If the soil is wet at that depth you've watered enough. If it's relatively dry, then water some more.

After doing this a couple of times, experience will tell you when you have watered enough.

How you water the garden is important, but adequate watering at the right time and in the right amount is more important than the method used.

Most gardeners prefer the furrow or floor system as a means of applying water. Others prefer to use a sprinkler.

There are advantages and disadvantages to each method. The primary advantage of flood or furrow watering is that individual rows can be watered while this is not generally possible with a sprinkler.

The main advantage with a sprinkler is that large areas of your garden can be watered without moving the hose from row to row or from area to area.

One disadvantage of the sprinkler system is that wet foliage can lead to disease problems. If you prefer to use a sprinkler, then water in the morning to allow foliage to dry off before cooler evening temperatures set in.

Another method gaining in popularity is drip or trickle irrigation. This system is an effective and efficient means of watering your vegetable plants but its initial cost is high.

Proper use of water in the garden will be reflected in the amount of produce that you take from the gardem to the kitchen.

A computer model is ready to be used to provide a new dimension in cotton research. Two years have been spent developing the biological data necessary for a computer model.

Entomologists and computer programmers have worked together under an Environmental Protection Administration grant to a consortium for integrated pest management.

Dr. John Benedict, working with farmers of the Coastal Bend at the Texas Agricultural Experimental Station, is one of the scientists involved. He says they have arrived at a point where they can simulate conditions under which cotton is grown here.

They can determine what the theoretical results would be if certain variables are adjusted. Their most promising findings can then be tried out in the fields for verification.

This may cut generations and years off of developing varieties with longer, stronger fibre, more pest resistance, with shorter seasons and with seed which are not toxic and can be put to more uses at less cost.

Without the computer, it takes about 10 years to test a variety. Cotton has a long generation time. You have to go through 10 to 15 generations in the field and only one crop can be grown a year, usually requiring 140 days to mature.

As tedious as the process has been, genetic engineering has already produced some remarkable results in our fields. Dr. Benedict, an entomologist, has been working with a number of breeders, among them Dr. Luther Bird at A&M.

Selectively, they have developed cotton which fruits more rapidly, taking advantage of the best period of soil moisture and cutting out two, three or four generations of pests such as the boll weevil.

As the cost of insecticide has risen, along with other costs or outstripping them, there has been intense concentration on reducing the amount of insecticide which must be used. Shorter season cotton gives insects less time to multiply and reduces the number of necessary applications.

Less insecticide means lower cost and at the same time means less harm to beneficial insects, leaving more of them to feed upon the damaging pests.

Plants which are less attractive to insects and more selective insecticides have been developed. Viruses and bacteria are being used which strike at a specific pest, resulting in fatal epidemics. As the cost of conventional insecticides has risen, the biologicals have become cost effective.

Cottonseed development have been equally spectacular and important economically. Seed were once a waste, a by-product nuisance. They had a toxic component which made them inedible to any but ruminant animals such as cows — and suitable for cattle feed only in limited amounts.

A glandless cottonseed has been developed which does not have the toxicity. It can be eaten as a snack much like nuts. It is being used in peanut butter and in bread. The processing is much less expensive, without the cost of removing the toxic component.

Farmers receive five cents a pound for seed. Even if this were increased to 10 cents a pound, this would be less than is paid for soy beans and the cotton seed is a better protein.

A farmer in the Coastal Bend, on an average, has a fixed cost of $250 an acre and from $50 to $150 an acre "take home pay." Receiving 10 cents a pound for seed would increase that profit by $40 an acre, giving him almost two year's profit out of one year's cost.

The glandless cotton is not a variety yet. The decision as to when to introduce it as a variety is up to private industry. If glandless cotton is planted and the seeds are made available, how far can this go in supplying the tremendous protein requirements of hungry populations?

Salads Move Center Stage In Summer Season

ATLANTA — Traditionally, we think of salads in terms of lettuce and tomatoes, as a good, sturdy, supporting actor to the stars of the meal, chicken and steak. But today salads have moved center stage and become stars in their own right. With their multitude of possible dressings and sauces, they have become a meal unto themselves. And what a meal: tasty, inexpensive, nutritious, and, above all, versatile.

More than 50 types of pourable dressings, all favorites, are available now in many brands to turn an ''ordinary'' salad into something of which a gourmet would be proud. A head would spin and eyes would glitter as he or she pondered the possibilities brought by the delightful alchemy of many dressings — many of which can also be used as sauces and seasonings — and the almost unlimited range of foods now being used in scrumptious salads, like the Riviera Salad Platter pictured here.

Salads are a proven budget-stretcher, not an inconsiderable factor in their popularity in these inflationary days. After all, a zesty salad will cost much less than an equivalent ''standard'' main course meal. And salads are also nutritious, containing a variety of foods — everything from yogurt to meat to you-name-it — which add up to an interesting and complete meal with an abundance of protein sources. Furthermore, these concoctions are as caloric as you want them to be, and a dieter can choose from a varitable cornucopia of low-calorie salad dressings.

Salads are also highly functional. They are quickly and easily prepared and lend themselves to all kinds of creative ideas. Have you ever tried Thousand Island dressing on a baked potato or used a dressing as a marinade, sandwich spread, dip or seasoning?

Salads also offer a particularly valuable use of leftovers. Some chunks of lettuce plus leftovers right from the plastic storage bowl will make a tasty meal for one and all: mom, dad, kids, not to mention the guests. You can add refrigerated pieces of cold cuts, cheese slices, and fruits and vegetables and have a salad fit for a king or queen.

But — and here's another surprise — you don't need lettuce to make a winning salad combination nowadays. The Riviera Salad Platter picture includes lettuce, but also potato slices, frozen cut beans, chopped onion, Italian dressing, tomatoes, an egg, and olives. In fact, a wide variety of greens are now used as the salad base. Fresh vegetables — everything from baby corn to sesame seeds to mushrooms — are more popular than ever today, and in many salads they steal the spotlight from the lettuce. In other salads, they replace the lettuce after being dipped or marinated in salad dressing.

Let's not forget that salads have yet one more advantage — they taste good, thanks to one of those many brands of salad dressings now available. There is creamy garlic, Russian, green goddess, and many other kinds of dressings. Not to mention barbecue sauces, pourable yogurt, and sour cream-based products. Humdrum indeed! These dressings can turn a ''routine'' salad into a mouth-watering treat.

It's no surprise then that the traditional salad bar one finds at some restaurants has been copied by many persons in their homes, where the salad is the main course for family dinners, barbecues, lunches and buffets.

A delicious dressing and a scrumptious salad. They go together in the 1980's like Tracy and Hepburn in the 1940's. And a new book entitled ''Salad Dressings and Sauces — 'Plain Facts and Fancy Fare'' is now available to tell you how to integrate salads and dressings into the lifestyle of the 1980's. It contains everything from a history of salad dressings and sauces, to consumer tips on handling and storage, to serving suggestions. The recipes feature party foods, main course specialties, international fare, and ideas for leftovers.

If readers are interested in receiving a copy, they should send their name and address, including zip code with $1 (includes postage and handling) to: Barbara Preston, Association for Dressings and Sauces, P.O. Box 720299, Atlanta, Georgia 30328.

Pyramid Selected For "Taste Of America"

The Dallas Fairmont Hotel's Pyramid restaurant, located in the elegant lobby of the Fairmont Hotel, was selected as one of 50 award winning restaurants to participate in the ''Taste of America'' reception during the 1981 Presidential Inaugural Week festivities.

Each of the Fairmont Hotel Company's gourmet restaurants was chosen to participate in the event.

Attending the Taste of America event as representatives of the Dallas Fairmont Hotel and the Pyramid Restaurant were Julian Abio, general manager of the hotel and two of the restaurant's renowned chefs.

Chef Remy Thomas, a French-trained chef who has worked at such establishments as Maxim's of Paris before moving to the U.S. was assisted in Washington by Chef Bernard Malfait.

To represent the Pyramid, Chef Thomas prepared a Chicken Liver Mousse, made with livers and apple brandy. In addition, he also helped prepare smoked trout and an escargot dish representative of other Fairmont Hotel restaurants — the Marquis in Denver, the Sazerac in New Orleans and the Squire in San Francisco.

During the ''Taste of America'' famous restauranteurs from across America served their house specialty in hors d'oeuvre size portions to more than 40,000 invited inaugural guests. Fourteen of America's greatest wineries also participated by serving their finest wines.

The Pyramid, which holds the coveted Travel/Holiday Guide to Fine Dining Award, is one of the best restaurants in the country, according to William C. Anton, chairman of the ''Taste of America'' event.

1 whole onion, diced
4 ounces fat back
Salt

Imitation of Mama

The most exciting thing about having Mama put up your hair isn't the curls you're going to have.

No! It's looking in the mirror and seeing you look just like Mama with her hair up.

Maybe only the most conceited couples look on themselves as model parents. But that's what being parents involves. Whether we intend to or not we become models to our children. Their strongest impulse is to imitate grown-ups — especially those they love.

Bringing the family to worship every week provides rich opportunity in religious training for our youngsters. Equally important is the growing impact of faith and worship on the Mama and Daddy those youngsters daily imitate.

A.B.C. Prepares Youngsters To Like School

By Pat Blair

All Children Beginning learning in a Christian environment.

That's what the initials stand for in Rockport's A.B.C. Learning Center, a preschool for three, four and five-year-olds.

A "very broad curriculum" is designed "to develop the total child," says Mary Lou Tiner, coordinator-director of the Learning Center located at 409 North Magnolia. "This is the little history thrown in," Mary Lou said. "The curriculum introduces them to a little of everything."

This year, A.B.C. has an enrollment of about 60 students in three classes — but all of the students don't come every day, Mary Lou added.

Youngsters can be enrolled to attend "classes" every day, three days a week (Monday, Wednesday and Friday) or two days a week (Tuesday and Thursday). Hours are from 8:15 to 11:15 a.m.

Because of this, the attendance at the school is about 40 youngsters per day — which is the maximum for which the Learning Center is currently licensed, Mary Lou said.

However, the school has had "a long waiting list all year," and because of this increase in demand, the school board would like to open the upstairs portion of the building for classes. Classes are currently held only on the first floor.

The Learning Center was on Monday night's city council agenda with a request for city permission to begin using the upstairs area of the building.

That request was tabled pending presentation to the city council of specific plans by the Learning Center for two fire escapes.

If the upstairs is opened for classes, mary Lou said, the center can be licensed for 60 students per day.

Licensing is through the Texas Department of Human Resources which recently approved a regular two-year license for the school to operate.

Prior to the issuance of the two-year license, the Center was operating on a six-month temporary license granted after the school moved into the Magnolia Street location last summer.

The school is governed by a board of directors consisting of 13 members — two from each of the six area churches that sponsor the school and one chosen "at large."

The sponsoring churches include Sacred Heart Catholic Church, Peace Lutheran, St. Peter's Episcopal, First Baptist, First Presbyterian and First United Methodist.

Funds for operating come from the sponsoring churches as well as donations from organizations such as the Castaways and Lions' Club, Mary Lou said.

In addition, a monthly tuition is charged, ranging from $22 if the child only attends the Center two days a week to $55 for five days per week. A registration and supply fee of $15 is also charged when the child is registered.

Mary Lou added that pre-registration for the 1981-82 school year will begin next month.

Scholarships are made available to some youngsters attending the preschool, with the number of scholarships depending on the amount of money in the Center's scholarship fund. Donations may be made to the fund, Mary Lou said, "and we have several people who contribute every month."

In addition to Mary Lou, the Center's staff includes three teachers, Kay Barnebey, Frances Naquin and Margie Boone.

The goai at A.B.C. Learning Center is basically to prepare the child for kindergarten.

For that reason, Mary Lou said, "We try not to push too hard on things the children will get in kindergarten.

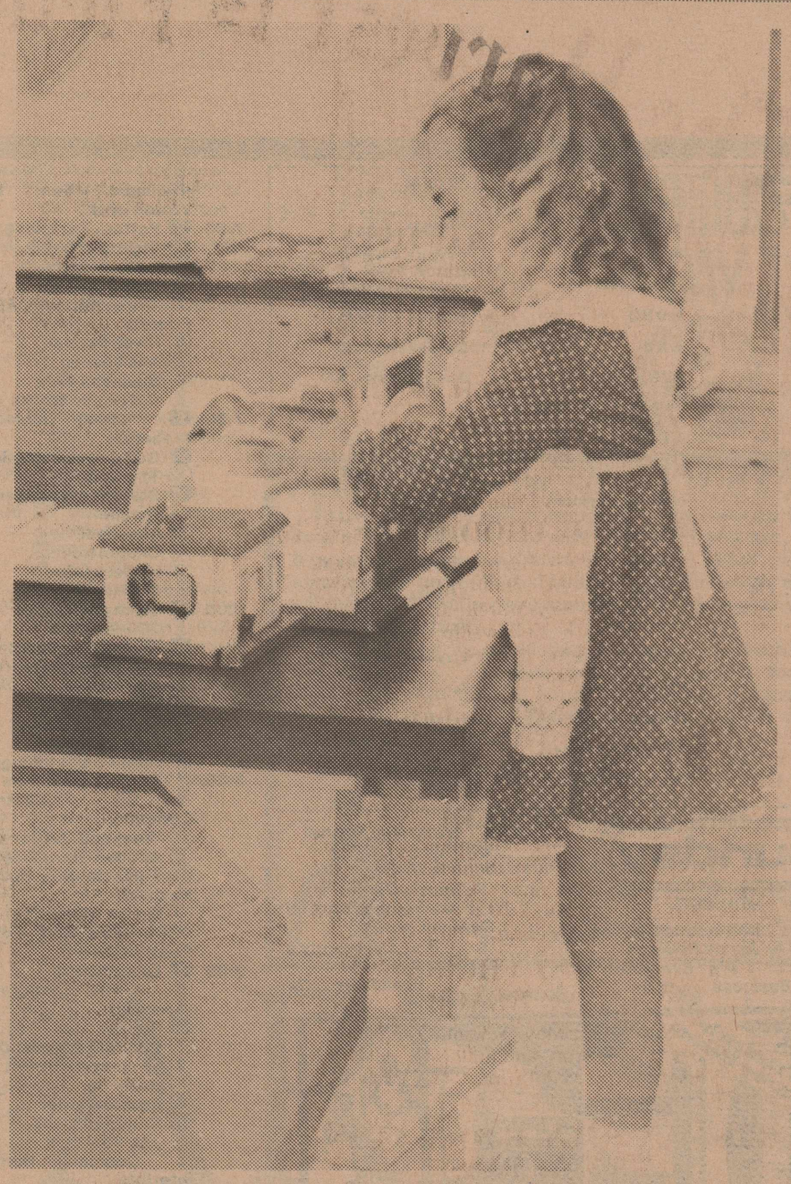

"We want them to be prepared for school but not bored by it."

LOW VISION CARE

Dear Dr. Pettey: I am a low vision case and have read all your columns. The one on low vision really helped me. I finally found a doctor who fitted me with a low vision aid that let me get a job again.

Thank you, and since you live in Texas, perhaps this will be of interest to you. Statistics show there are about 390,000 low vision (vision not correctable by ordinary means) cases in Texas. Of that number, there may be as many as some 70,000 who, for one reason or another, could not be helped with a special low vision aid.

Some of these reasons are: advanced age, shaky hands and head, short attention span, impatience in learning to use the aid, chronic illness, cost, or lack of motivation. The remainder likely could receive varying degrees of usable improvement in their vision.

Some people have special-use aids. I know one person who uses his aid only for signing checks and reading his company's financial summary every week. Another uses his aid to play a game he especially enjoys. Another uses his aid while watching performers in a play or speakers at civic clubs or political rallies, as well as watching television ball games. Others can even drive their cars with a telescopic aid.

You have received the most valuable benefit of all, a job. Being occupied productively, being of value to others, and receiving an income is most gratifying, especially to a low vision patient.

SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA—Joy and I arrived in the city with lots of written — and mental — notes of what we wanted to do and to see.

This is a cosmopolitan city and the food possibilities are truly varied although Joy had a hard time finding a breakfast favorite, croissants, until we came across an excellent bakery - with a German name! There was only one restaurant which we had heard of in a San Jose suburb ... and we found that it had closed permanently before we arrived.

The closing had been so recent, as a matter of fact, that one of the cab drivers near our hotel that we used from time to time not only didn't know it was closed but recommended it highly still. At lease a phone call had prevented an unnecessary trip.

One of the foodstuffs we were interested in trying (which Karl and Kurt said we'd find in the public market) was almendra — not the almond with which we are familiar but the flesh of the fruit which surrounds the single nutmeat.

I wouldn't say they were any particular bargain (about 35 cents for one) nor that it was anything I would become particularly fond of (it had a slight astringency to it), but at least we can say we did try it.

This small country's main exports are coffee, bananas and beef and as a beef country it also had leather, of course. Both of us had been attracted to the custom-made, tooled-leather place mats at Casa Mar. While these were special, and expensive even here, they presented possibilities.

Karl and Kurt, who had spent time in the city before going to Casa Mar, had shown us the natural-colored smooth-out duffles and camara bags they had bought in the public market. The prices were relatively so small for good quality (rivets and double stitching) that they didn't even bother dickering, something more or less expected in this market if not the more "elegant" stores of the city.

I admit to being a coffee lover and, naturally, wanted to bring home some of the excellent beans. A kilo, 2.2 pounds, cost about $1.75 U.S. either in the bean or ground. (It makes sense to know where you're going to grind it when you get home, don't forget.) The beans were more expensive than some that were available, but even so the price was clearly a bargain.

By the way, Costa Rica has high import duties on almost anything brought in and — in the shops around the central city — items brought in from other Latin American countries are generally higher in price than in New York, for instance.

Some Power Loss Reported In City

Coast Guard and the weather bureau urged fishermen and boaters to return to shore and seek a safe harbor during the storm period.

A spokesman for the Sea Gun Club in Lamar said that during the storm a man walked in with 50 fish. When asked if he had been out in the storm in a boat the reply was, "I don't know but he was wet."

Sea Gun had some charter boats out but indicated they were probably anchored and would just ride the storm out.

Fishermen abandoned their efforts on the Copano Causeway pier when heavy thunderstorms, rain and high winds estimated at 40 knots hit the area. Visibility on the causeway was reduced to about one-half mile for several hours.

Shortly after noon a distress call came in to the Coast Guard from a 38-foot boat in trouble in Aransas Bay and the Coast Guard reported they were so busy they would have to ask assistance from the Texas Park and Wildlife Department in helping in the rescue requests.

In the middle of the storm the Rockport Police dispatcher reported a power loss and said that the Rockport Police Station was using emergency generators. The Rockport Courthouse also had to shift to emergency generators.

The Rockport EMS reported frequent loss of power but said they did not have to resort to emergency generators. And with the exception of a heart attack call that was unrelated to the storm they didn't make any emergency calls because of the weather.

The official rainfall report from Rockport City Hall was reported at one inch after the storm cleared the area.

It was reported that one man on Copano Ridge in Rockport measured two and a half inches of rain in his rain gauge.

In mid-afternoon the heavy clouds and rains moved out of the area with some clearing occurring. Light rains and drizzle continued throughout the afternoon with the strong winds continuing until early evening.

At 2:30 p.m. the barometric pressure was reported at 29.84 and rising and the predictions were for winds to continue from the northnortheast at 15 to 20 miles per hour through Friday with scattered thunderstorms continuing until Friday afternoon.

H.E.B. Looks At Future

council that this proposed new facility would include a bakery, delicatessen, horticultural department and more checkout stands.

Blackburn emphasized, during a telephone interview with the Pilot Thursday, that store officials "don't have a final plan in mind" and that "construction is not going to start right away" on a new Rockport facility.

But in requesting the closing of Mimosa Street Monday night, H.E.B. officials pledged that if construction has not started on the proposed larger facility by July 31, 1985, the closed portion of Mimosa, between Austin and Magnolia streets, will be rededicated to the city.

What Rockport's city council actually voted on Monday night was the intent to close Mimosa Street. This was in keeping with state law which now requires that the land be appraised and all abutting proprety owners be given the opportunity to purchase the land at the appraised value.

However, city officials pointed out Thursday, H.E.B is the only abutting property owner.

The appraisal will be based on a survey of the property which is to be conducted at the expense of H.E.B.

Blackburn said H.E.B. is hopeful of constructing a new store in Rockport that will include "upwards of 40,000 square feet" as compared to 29,000 square feet in the present store.

Catch Set At 300 Pounds

The biggest argument was that everyone is breaking the law now and there really needs to be a limit."

Presently, the proposed bill calls for violators of the 2 p.m. limit to pay a $200 fine and turn over their catch. Corpus Christi Democrat Carlos Truan and John Wilson, Democrat from La Grange, both protested that such a penalty was too light, a view that Casterline agrees with:

"If those people were sincere about this thing, they would have put a bigger fine on it. I don't think they showed good faith in what they were saying. I think it's a good idea to limit it to half a day — there has to be some kind of limit, but there has to be a fine to keep people from breaking the limit. Anyone could sneak out at night and if they just managed one good night a week without getting caught, they could pay for their fines for the rest of the week — $200 is just not that much."

Danny Adams, owner of "D&T Seafood" of Fulton was also at the hearing and supports the bill. Said Adams upon his return from Austin, "It will probably pass but whether they put amendments on it remains to be seen. I'm in favor of it. I have testified and will continue to testify that the same amount of tonnage will be crossing the docks. It's a totally enforceable law. Anyone out after 2 will be in violation.

In regard as to whether the $200 fine was truly punitive, Adams said, "I would be in favor of a higher penalty but would not necessarily vote for it."

Responding to the charge that the bill would allow bay shrimpers to get "the first shot" at the young shrimp, thus cutting the size of the Gulf shrimpers catch, Adams said, "I don't think it would really affect them. It would probably help them — the tonnage won't increase."

Adams doubted that the proposed change would seriously hurt the bait stands in the area. "There are plenty of bait bays like St. Charles and Copano that won't be affected by this law."

When the bill will be decided upon is as yet uncertain. Both Adams and Casterline agree that the bill will "have to go through a lot of people" before a final decision is made. According to Adams, however, there will be an effort to get the decision through by May 15, the opening of the summer season.

Hearing Decision Pending

here, describing it as a "trial type procedure" in which witnesses will be called to give testimony and may be cross-examined.

TACB Executive Director Bill Stewart will make the decision on whether to call a public hearing. If he calls a public hearing, Braddock said, then the entire TACB board will decide, following the hearing, on whether a permit is to be issued.

Braddock said under state law the TACB does not have discretionary powers. If the Rocking R Refinery meets state requirements governing air quality, a permit must be issued.

Property owners in City-By-The-Sea are closest to the proposed facility.

Property owners in Palm Harbor, farther north of the refinery location, are "concerned," according to R.L. Kaiser, president of the Palm Harbor Property Owners Association, but he emphasized that he could not speak for the property owners.

"I haven't made a canvass of the neighborhood," he said.

School officials emphasize that pre-registration is necessary in order for the school district to provide adequate teachers and text books for kindergarten and first grade classes next fall.

Little League Rebirth In County

By Ted Norman

Although the 1981 Little League season has already begun the word from two of the league officials is that there is plenty of good baseball and softball to come.

Aransas County Little League president Duke Eaton has lived in Rockport for 30 years and after playing Little League baseball for 22 of those years Eaton says that Rockport is having a fantastic turnout to the little league games.

According to Eaton the Aransas County Little League Association has 26 teams in seven divisions that include minor league baseball, little league baseball, senior league baseball and big league baseball.

Also included in the league divisions are little league softball, senior league softball and big league softball.

About 90 percent of the teams have sponsors according to Eaton.

League officials say there is a small problem with working the playing schedule around the remaining school year and until school is out the league will only have games on six nights a week.

Eaton says that since the league has begun play it is to late to join a league unless there are very extenuating circumstances.

In order to be eligible for Little League play a boy must be at least eight years old before August 1, and not over 19 by August 1. Girls must be nine years old before August 1, and not over 18 on August 1.

Eaton says that the new rule put into effect this season that says each player must get a chance to play will be followed. And at the end of the season every player will be awarded a participation award.

According to Eaton the Aransas County Little League Association has had three district champions and two State champions in the last three years. 'We've had a total community effort, sort of a rebirth of Little League," says Eaton.

Elmer Redden is the Aransas County Little League vice president and has been playing little league baseball since 1948. Redden moved to Rockport in 1969 has been a player, team manager or player agent ever since.

Little League president Eaton invites everyone to come out to the games and support the teams. "We've got the best facilities of any little league in Texas," says Eaton.

Pirates Dump Tuloso-Midway 5-2

By Ted Norman

While sitting on a delicate fourth inning 3-2 lead over the Tuloso-Midway Warriors, Rockport-Fulton pitcher Abelardo Solis slammed a hard hit two-run homer over the left field fence to drive in Aaron Commander to capture a 5-2 win over the Warriors and win their first district game in the second half of the season.

The Rockport-Fulton boys took an early 1-0 lead over T-M in the bottom of the second inning when Solis hit a hard drive over the head of the T-M third baseman and turned an easy single into a standup double on a bad throw to first.

Pete Nichols came in as designated runner for Solis and in an attempt to pick off Nichols the T-M catcher threw a bad throw over the head of the second baseman but Nichols was unable to advance. Then on a 1-0 pitch Scott Russ hit a hard line drive over the pitcher's head into short center field to score Nichols and give Rockport-Fulton a lead over T-M.

The two teams went scoreless in the third inning when T-M had two men picked off stealing and Rockport went three up, three down.

Tuloso-Midway put a run on the board in the top of the fourth when Pokie Villalon hit a sharp drive to right center field for a double and advanced to third on a bunt by Robert Quirez, who was thrown out at first.

Then in an attempt to pick off Villalon a bad throw went over the head of third base to allow Villalon to score and tie the game at 1-1.

The next two T-M batters were put down swinging and on an attempted bunt to retire the side.

In the bottom of the fourth Tim Redden, facing a full count hit hard to center field for a double as the ball bounced over the fence. Mark Corey came in to run for Redden with Bill Jennings at bat.

After hitting a foul over the left field fence Jennings took a 3-1 count, then hit a line drive past second into center field for a single and the Pirates had men on first and third.

Then with Solis at the plate T-M tried to throw to first in a pick-off attempt, the throw was bad and Corey scored from third. Then with the T-M team trying to save the error they made another bad throw past third, over the fence and Jennings scored and the Pirates took a 3-1 lead.

Solis, on a 3-1 pitch, popped out to left field followed by Dennis Hull who was out hitting to left. Steve Berley hit a foul, took a called strike then swung at a bad pitch to retire the Pirates.

The teams went scoreless in the fifth inning as the worried Pirates tried to protect their small lead.

In the top of the sixth the Warriors scored a run to close the score to 3-2 and the Pirates worries grew.

But in the bottom of the sixth, after Travis Jennings struck out on a 3-2 pitch, Redden hit a hard line drive past the pitcher into center field for a single. Again, Commander came in to run for Redden.

Rockport shortstop Bill Jennings hit a hard fly to the center field fence but the ball was caught and the Pirates had two out, with one man on.

Then on a 1-1 pitch R-F batter Solis pounded a homer over the left field fence to drive in Commander and take a 5-2 lead over the Warriors.

The Warriors went three up, three down in the top of the seventh as the first batter hit to third on a 3-1 pitch followed by the T-M first baseman who was called out looking at a 3-2 pitch. The game was over when T-M Villalon watched a 2-2 strike to by him. The Pirates didn't need to come to bat in the bottom of the inning and they sent the Warriors home with 5-2 loss to their credit.

The Pirates stand 4-5 in district and 6-7 for the season.

Free Snake Leaflet Offered By TP&WD

AUSTIN—There are four good reasons to be careful when tramping through the woods and fields of Texas: the diamondback rattlesnake, cottonmouth moccasin, coral snake and copperhead.

These are the poisonous snakes found in many areas of the state.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department distributes a free leaflet dealing with the life histories of these snakes and treatment for their bites.

The non-illustrated publication is entitled "Four Good Reasons to Watch Your Step." The section on rattlesnakes and cottonmouths was written by the late Dr. Clarence Cottam of the Welder Wildlife Foundation and the copperhead and coral snake section is authored by William K. Davis of Southwest Texas State University.

To obtain the leaflet write Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744, or call toll-free 1-800-252-9327.

Sailing Club Has Big Turnout For Race

More than 40 members of the Rockport Sailing Club participated in an offshore cruise/race to Port Isabel over the Easter weekend. Nine boats cruised south in the gulf while a tenth remained in the Intracoastal.

John and Kelly Bunton in Chiriga took honors as first arrivals. Southbound and returning sailors enjoyed generally favorable breezes. In Port Isabel RSC was met by co-commodores of the Laguna Madre Yacht Club, Nelson and Sharon Pittman and Bob and Lynn Murphy, vice commodores. The latter were in charge of a Bloody Mary breakfast and dinner Saturday night.

Expressing appreciation, Tony Thorne, RSC commodore, said the Rockport sailors look forward to a visit from LMYC over the Memorial Day weekend. This will mark the second year for exchange visits between the two clubs.

SunDay In The Park Set For May 3

AUSTIN — The second annual SunDay in the Park, celebration has been set for May 3 at McKinney Falls State Park near Austin.

The all-day program features a wide variety of outdoor activities including music, camping demonstrations, nature walks and lectures.

All activities are free, but the standard $2 per vehicle park entry fee will be charged.

Activities include: demonstrations on tent, backpack and other camping gear use; camp cooking demonstrations; nature photography; native plant landscaping; guided nature, wildflower and bird walks through the park; children's mural; music by local bluegrass, jazz and country groups; and information on wildlife rescue.

Also youngsters 6-12 may earn a Parks and Wildlife Department helmet by picking up litter.

Taylor sausage, chopped beef sandwiches, nachos and soft drinks will be for sale, and free screening of SunDay logos on visitors' T-shirts will be available.

Thousands participated in the initial SunDay in 1980, and officials are expecting another big turnout this year.

The easiest way to reach McKinney Falls State park is to take U.S. Highway 183 south from Austin and turn right on Scenic Loop Road at the McKinney Falls State Park sign, approximately 10 miles south of the intersection of U.S. Highway 183 and State Highway 71. Another route is to take Interstate Highway 35 from Austin south to the William Cannon exit, and turn east on William Cannon (which becomes North Bluff Road at that point). At the first stop sign, continue straight ahead on Nuckles Crossing Road. Turn left at the next "Y" intersection, which is Bluff Springs Road, then left at Scenic Loop Road and proceed three miles to the park entrance. For more information call Lisa Martin at (512) 243-2177.

Fishing Report

Key Allegro—Activity is picking up at the rigs. Catching lots of fish in the canals and bays and back in Harbor Oaks. The water temperature is 74 degrees and fishing is improving daily.

Kleine's — Anglers caught 18 trout, 4 red and 2 drum. The only bait available is dead bait. The water is clear and fishing activities are picking up.

Copano Causeway—Catching gaftop catfish. The water is clear and warming and plenty of live bait is available including shrimp, squid and crab. There is a lot of activity at night under the lights on the pier and trout fishing is good. The water is clear.

St. Charles Bay—Fishing is not very good, a few fish are being caught. Live bait will probably be available in a couple of weeks. The water is a little murkey but calm.

Sea Gun—There are not a lot of fishermen out but several of the charter boats went out earlier in the week and did fairly good. They were catching gaftop and trout. The water is murkey but calm and live bait is available.

Palm Harbor—Pretty good fishing with angler taking trout, sheephead and gaftop. Live bait will be available for the weekend. The water is clear and calm. There are a lot of anglers trying their luck.

Pirates Not New To Winning

By Ted Norman

The left field home run Tuesday night by Rockport-Fulton pitcher Abelardo Solis that put the game on ice for the Pirates was like a shot of Penicillin to a dying man.

In my previous position as a sports writer I had the very difficult job of covering a high school that hadn't won a football game in three years, won only 12 games in the basketball season and was in the cellar in their baseball district.

A hit was seldom seen and homeruns were not even dreamt of when watching games there. The bleachers were empty except for a few who kept coming to games and hoping.

Each morning the pain set in as I tried once again to write a piece about a team who just couldn't get a handle on their problems without the piece offending someone.

If the team lost by a wide margin, as most likely they did, the coaches would call and scream if I used such key words in the head of the story as dumped or buried or other descriptive words that would tell how badly the team lost.

Students would refuse to speak to me if the story made it sound as if they lost by more than a few points.

And the school superintendent would call or come by my desk and argue that a 73-45 loss wasn't really newsworthy.

The boys and girls at the school weren't losers, as I said in so many of my columns, they were just losing. And they had become so conditioned to losing that winning seemed impossible.

The kids probably practiced enough, probably had good coaches and good equipment but it seemed as though they just couldn't get a handle on their sports program. They couldn't come out from under the long shadow of losing for so long. I wish them well.

The image is still clear of their action, or lack of action, when they did win a basketball game just after the first of the year.

The game was close almost every minute of the game with the lead changing so quickly the scorekeeper was struggling to keep up.

But I knew that the boys had been down this road many times before only to blow the game somewhere near the midway point of the final period.

But this time they didn't blow it; they fought and hung on and when the horn sounded the scoreboard said they had won. I rushed down on the floor to get pictures of winning team, our team, to spread all over the paper the next day. I waited with the SLR camera at the ready next to my eye and my trained index finger pressing so delicately on the trigger.

come; I waited for someone to shake someone's hand, someone to pat someone on the back. I waited and I waited and the boys, the winners, just stood with blank expressions, not knowing what to do. Not knowing if they should do anything, afraid they would look foolish if they celebrated the win after so many loses.

The Pirates knew what to do when the home run ball sailed over the fence. They began doing it before the ball got to the fence. The Pirates yelled, they jumped up and down and they patted each other on the back. They know how to be winners. It is going to be fun writing about the Pirates.

Coppernose Bluegills Brought To Texas

AUSTIN — Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials are hopeful that a strain of bluegill sunfish imported from Florida will do for light-tackle fishing what the Florida strain largemouth bass has done for the state's bass fishing.

Biologist Bill Provine of San Angelo obtained about 60 adult and 20,000 fry coppernose bluegills in Florida and flew with them to the department's San Marcos hatchery.

The bluegills are expected to spawn in the hatchery ponds, and the fry will be experimentally stocked in several new Texas reservoirs.

This importation of coppernose bluegills actually was not the first appearance of the species in Texas. Some of the fish were obtained from a private individual in East Texas several years ago and experimentally stocked into some small lakes.

However, this is the first time the department has gone directly to the source to obtain the pure coppernose strain for propagation and stocking in public lakes.

Florida bass introductions already have stimulated a boom period for trophy bass fishing in Texas. The state record which had been unbeatable for over 30 years has been broken three times in the space of 13 months. The current record bass weighed 15 pounds, eight ounces and was a first-generation cross between a Florida and native largemouth bass.

Coppernose bluegills, like Florida bass, grow larger than the native Texas strain. Individuals exceeding one to one and a half pounds are not uncommon in Florida, Provine said.

Provine said some of the coppernose fry will be stocked in nursery ponds at Lake Fork near Quitman and at the Choke Canyon Reservoir site near Three Rivers. A portion of this year's fry production will be retained at the hatchery to be reared as future brooders.

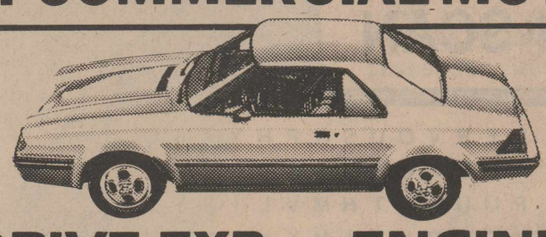

"Coppernose bluegills should do well in new lakes such as Choke Canyon, and once we have adequate numbers of brooders we will introduce them into some lakes with standing populations of native bluegills to establish the genetics for a larger bluegill," said Provine.

As an added bonus to his Florida trip, Provine said he also brought back six adult redear sunfish — a species which commonly attains weights of three to four pounds in Florida. "We don't really know if they are a separate strain from redears found in Texas,"

SOLAR FACTS

INDIRECT-GAIN
PASSIVE HEATING

This week's column will focus on passive solar heating by indirect-gain methods. To better understand how indirect gain works, it is useful to briefly review direct-gain passive heating.

With direct-gain systems, solar radiation enters the building directly through south-facing glass. This heat is then absorbed and stored in thick masonry walls and/or floors used in the interior space.

With indirect-gain systems, however, there is an intermediate surface between the exterior glass and the space to be heated. It is known as a thermal mass.

The most common indirect-gain heating system employs a south-facing exterior wall of double-paned glass, behind which is a solid wall of heavy masonry (concrete, stone, brick, etc.). This thermal mass wall is usually painted black or another dark color to absorb as much heat as possible.

As sunshine enters through the glass, it is absorbed and stored as heat in the thermal wall. In addition, the air between the thermal wall and exterior glass is also heated. As the heat builds up, it is conducted through the wall and radiated into the interior living space on the other side.

Because heat moves slowly through the masonry used in the thermal wall, heat will still be radiated into the interior area long after the sun goes down. In fact, properly constructed thermal storage walls can often store enough heat for use throughout a 48- or 72-hour time period.

A thermal storage wall for indirect-gain heating can also be made of water. Here, containers or barrels of water are stacked into a wall-like formation to serve the same purpose. With thermal water walls, the heating process is very similar to that of a thermal masonry wall. While water walls are highly efficient, Americans have shown a decided preference for masonry thermal walls because they can easily be integrated with most interior design styles.

Whether an individual chooses an indirect-gain heating system that uses a masonry or water wall, significant energy-bill savings can be realized, since the structure of the building itself produces its own heat without the aid of mechanical equipment.

To learn more about indirect-gain heating systems, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Robert E. Lewis (#9-A) P.O. Box 3680, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Ever heard of a picuda?

Nope, of course you haven't. I couldn't even spell the name six months ago, and Al McClane doesn't list the species in his excellent Fishing Encyclopedia. But, I'm here to tell you that the picuda is one of the greatest gamefish in the world, and that you're going to be hearing a lot more about it in the future.

The picuda, first of all, is a beautiful piscatorial critter. It has a body conformity like an Atlantic salmon, and, depending on the water it is taken from, may have a golden sheen to its scales and plated gill covers. If this isn't enough, the picuda also has a tail and fins tipped with crimson. All of this is topped off with a well muscled jaw armed with sharp teeth and eyes more savage than a barracuda's or northern pike's. The picuda is "purty" all right, but it also looks mean as hell.

The picuda's strike might be compared to a bolt of lightning striking a keg of black powder. When it feels the hooks it erupts from the water at the apex of the resulting explosion. Yeah, I know I may be guilty of over-writing at this point, and if I were referring to a largemouth bass or muskie, I'd feel a little shamefaced at the use of such superlatives. But, when you describe this fish no one or several adjectives seem sufficient. By comparison, a bass is "soggy," and a muskellunge is "listless." Honest, guys, the picuda is a helluva fish.

Figure on a half dozen spray-flinging jumps from each fish hooked and ten-to-one odds that you won't put this gamester into the boat. This fish throws lures with ease, and its powerful jaws are capable of crushing a treble hook into a harmless ball. If you can land one out of ten consider yourself a good fisherman or having a run of luck.

The picuda isn't a heavyweight. It averages four or five pounds, frequently reaches ten pounds, frequently reaches ten pounds, and probably has a top size range of less than 20 pounds. I wouldn't know for sure. The largest picuda I've boated weighed 12 pounds and the only man I know who claims to have bested this record is a used car salesman from west Texas.

Bass tackle is therefore recommended for the species. I use a casting rod with plenty of backbone and my trusty Ambassadeur loaded with 20-pound test line. Favorite lures are Dardevle spoons, Meps spinners and the saltwater Mirro-lure jerk bait. A short wire leader is essential.

Picuda inhabit the same type of water that trout do. They prefer swift flowing, clear streams and commonly take up residence at the head of the riffle, behind big boulders, or in the eddy below the fast water. And in this habitat they're a tougher antagonist than any trout.

Picuda country is the Andes jungle of South America. They are also in the La Raya river system in northern Colombia, and I have caught them as far south as the Rio Appaporis in the Amazonas region of this country. The species may actually be even more widespread, but at this point no one really knows for sure.

If you'd like to catch (or try to catch) a picuda, the best source for information on the subject is Braniff International. This airline publishes a book with several packages featuring picuda, and it's available for all who are interested. Title of the book is "Outdoor Adventures."
