Court Rejects Patty's Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court refused today to review Patricia Hearst's 1976 bank robbery conviction. The young newspaper heiress, free the past two years on $1 million bond, soon may have to go to prison.

The justices rejected Miss Hearst's appeal with no explanation.

Only Justice William J. Brennan Jr. voted to review her case, and he said he would have limited the court's study to the admissibility into trial evidence of recordings of Miss Hearst's jailhouse conversations.

Now lawyers for Miss Hearst have 25 days in which to ask the high court to reconsider.

Attorney J. Albert Johnson said such a request definitely would be filed. However, the court almost never grants reconsideration.

Miss Hearst conceivably could be ordered to prison in the interim.

Her immediate fate appears to rest with U.S. District Judge William H. Orrick Jr. in San Francisco. He could allow Miss Hearst to remain free until her lawyers exhaust all legal manuevers.

Those could include a request that Orrick reduce Miss Hearst's seven-year prison term to a period of probation, as was done last year for state charges of assault and robbery against her.

Under Supreme Court procedure, Orrick officially will learn of the court's action when receiving notice of it by mail within a few days.

If imprisoned, Miss Hearst would have to serve 14 months before becoming eligible for parole, She served 14 months before, during and after her eight-week trial.

She was convicted of participating in the 1974 armed robbery of a Hibernia Bank branch in San Francisco - two months after her kidnapping by a group calling itself the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Hanna Sentenced

WASHINGTON (AP)-Former Rep. Richard T. Hanna, the first congressional figure charged in the Korean influence-buying scandal, today was sentenced to serve six months to 30 months in a federal prison.

Hanna, who was a Democrat from California, appeared stunned as Chief District Judge William Bryant tersely handed down the sentence after lengthy appeals from both the congressman and his attorney for mercy.

In a quivering voice, Hanna had told Bryant: "I apologized to the court, I apologized to the people who elected me to public office. I hope in the years that I have left I can do something to atone for what I have done."

New Ultimatum

ROME (AP)-A new ultimatum purporting to come from the Red Brigades demanded the immediate release of 13 jailed terrorists in exchange for kidnaped former Premier Aldo Moro.

Newspapers in Rome, Genoa and Milan received the message today.

It threatened to execute the 61-year-old president of the Christian Democratic Party unless the terrorists were freed.

Plane Not Warned

TOKYO (AP)-The crew of a Korean Air Lines jet shot down over Russia received no warning from the Soviet fighter plane that fired on it, the KAL plane's co-pilot says.

The Soviets say the attack, in which two passengers were killed and 10 others were wounded when a Soviet MIG interceptor opened fire. came after the KAL Boeing 707, ignored repeated orders to follow the MIG to a landing field.

The 95 surviving passengers and 11 of the 13 crew members were brought from Murmansk to Helsinki, Finland, on Sunday on a Pan American mercy flight.

Birds' Writers Strike

NEW YORK (AP)-Big Bird's squawks could be silenced by a walkout of the writers for TV's "Sesame Street," a strike which completes the transformation of the Children's Television Workshop from a self-sacrificing band of pioneers into a hard-nose corporate entity.

Big Bird, Oscar the Grouch, Ernie and Kermit the Frog are still on the air, but the six writers who should now be putting words in their mouths for the coming television season have been on strike since March 13.

Farm Credit Bill Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP)-The House is considering a special $4 billion credit program aimed at aiding the most heavily indebted farmers.

The legislation, up for consideration today, would establish a special 20-month program under which farmers could refinance up to $400,000 worth of farm-related debts incurred after Jan. 1, 1973.

The measure has received the Carter administration's support. It also would open Agriculture Department farm-credit programs to family corporations and partnerships and cooperatives, as well as the individual farmers presently covered.

Berkowitz Trial Set

NEW YORK (AP)-A judge ruled today that David R. Berkowitz is mentally competent to stand trial for the murder of Stacy Moskowitz, the last of six homicide victims of the Son of Sam. The judge ordered the trial to begin May 8.

The ruling might not lead to a trial, however, since Berkowitz has said he wants to plead guilty. His lawyers still want to plead him innocent by reason of insanity, but since he has been ruled competent, Berkowitz is free to make his own choice, providing the judge finds the plea legally acceptable.

Climbers Celebrate

ZION NATIONAL PARK, Utah (AP)-Their hands bloody, their bodies exhausted, mountain climbers George Willig and Steve Matous celebrated their conquest of Angels Landing with meals to order.

Safely down from the almost vertical climb up the 1,500-foot peak in southern Utah, Willig asked for two cheeseburgers and iced tea. Matour dined on chicken and a glass of milk.

Grandpa Walton Dead

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Will Geer, dead at 76, was known to millions as the spry, sage patriarch of television's "The Waltons." But he was also a citizen crusader who was blacklisted during the McCarthy era.

The veteran stage, movie and television actor died Saturday evening of respiratory arrest at Midway Hospital.

For UIL State Contests...

SHS Group To Austin

Snyder High School will have a number of students involved in the state contests of the University Interscholastic League in Austin on May 5 and 6.

Winning trips to Austin in individual competition at the regional meet in Odessa were three students. Brian Lewallen will compete in the state meet in poetry interpretation, Sherilyn Campbell in prose reading and typewriting, and Chris Chamblee in science.

In addition, the cast and crew of the Snyder High one-act play will be going to Austin for the fourth year in a row to defend its title in Class 3-A. The Snyder High one-act play has won the state contest the past two years.

In the regional contest at Odessa, the Snyder cast not only was named one of the region's winners, but also took 11 of 21 individual awards which were presented.

Officer Defends Gun Rules

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The nation's top firearms enforcement officer denied today that proposed Treasury Department regulations represent a form of gun registration, as claimed by some critics.

Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Director Rex D. Davis said the pending rules "are designed to prevent the criminal misuse of firearms and are not in any way intended to interfere with the lawful possession or use of guns."

His remarks were made in a speech prepared for delivery at the 6th annual convention of Narcotic Law Enforcement Executives.

The regulations, effective next year at the earliest, would require that:

-All new firearms carry a special serial number.

-Gun manufacturers, importers and dealers report the theft or loss of firearms to ATF within 24 hours. In addition, quarterly reports of all sales would be necessary, but the names and addresses of individual purchasers would not be reported.

Nine Are Dead...

Plane Crash Being Probed

ARLINGTON, Ind. (AP)-Authorities today began sifting through the debris of a twin-engine plane that crashed and exploded in flames 25 miles southeast of Indianapolis, killing nine persons, including seven top U.S. Auto Club officials and a member of USAC's medical staff.

USAC confirmed that the victims included Frank DelRoy, long-time chairman of USAC technical committee, and Ray Marquett, USAC vice president in charge of public affairs.

The other victims were identified as:

-Shim Malone, head of USAC's midget car division and chief starter at many races throughout the country.

-Stan Worley, USAC registrar.

-Don Peabody, head of the USAC sprint car division.

-Judy Phillips, artist and typist who helped direct the publication of USAC's newsletter.

-Russ Teegarden, assistant USAC technical chairman.

-Dr. Bruce White, a member of USAC's medical staff.

-Don Mullendore, pilot of the plane.

Rush County Coroner John Todd said the bodies of the victims would be taken to his funeral home in Rushville, the county seat. The USAC officials were returning to Indianapolis from Sunday's race at Trenton, N.J.

The aircraft went down in a 30-acre cornfield after passing near the farmhouse of Gene Gardner, about one-half mile east of the crash site. The plane crashed Sunday, shortly before 10 p.m. EST.

"I knew the plane was in trouble," said Gardner, a World War II Air Force veteran. "The engines were wide open like it was in a power dive.

"It was really screaming. There was a large thud and then a boom," he added. "When we looked out, there was fireball."

Gardner said he telephoned the Rush County sheriff's office, then he and his 19-year-old son, J.B., rushed to the scene, where the plane's impact left a crater 5-8 feet deep and at least 10 feet in diameter.

Recovery efforts were hampered by muddiness in the freshly plowed field. Vechicles, including those with four-wheel drive, were not able to get nearer the site than one-quarter mile.

Ceremony In College Hts. Set Tuesday

There will be a ribbon-cutting ceremony at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the College Heights Shopping Center.

The new retail center, which now has businesses open in all of its building space, is located on College Avenue just south of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Snyder Gold Coaters and local officials are scheduled to be on hand for the ribbon-cutting event. Firms in College Heights include Snyder Athletic Center, Bar-H-Bar Western Wear, The Cuttery, The Haberdashery and Raun's.

SET RECORDS - Randy Courtney, Snyder High School high jumper, left above, is congratulated by Mark Ross of Brownfield after Courtney cleared a 6-10 to set a new district record Saturday in the District 3-AAA track and field meet. Ross was second with a leap of 6-4, and both will go to the regional meet in Odessa. At right, Dale Jenkins of Snyder High pushes up and over 13-6 to break the district pole vault record. Jenkins, a freshman, later cleared an unofficial 13-9. The district's previous pole vault record was 13-3. The two Snyderites set the only meet. See sports pages, 6 and 7 for more details. small solar steps

Solar energy is environmentally clean, in inexhaustible supply and potentially the answer to the world's energy crisis.

It is also presently a novelty rather than a practical energy source, prohibitively expensive for large-scale use and no substitute for the traditional fossil fuels in generating the quantities of power required by a modern industrial society.

This has been the rough balance between the appeal and the practicability of solar energy for quite some time. It may, however, be beginning to tip.

This at least is the belief of the supporters of Sun Day, the May 3 observance dedicated to raising the public's solar consciousness.

An there are a number of reasons for cautious optimism on that point.

The Council on Environmental Quality, a White House advisory body, has just issued a report which finds solar energy's prospects "brighter than most imagine" and predicts that by the year 2000 solar technology could be capable of supplying a quarter of U.S. energy requirements. By 2020, the solar share could reach 50 per cent.

The report, the product of an eight-month survey of available information and research on the subject, concluded glowingly that "for the period beyond the turn of the century it is now possible to speak realistically of the United States becoming a solar society."

It is the most optimistic evaluation of solar potential to come from an official source in some time, but there's even more to the developing solar story.

Industry also is beginning to warm to sun power, possibly signaling a reversal of which economist Walt Rostow not so long ago described as "a real failure of private enterprise to be enterprising."

Aerospace firms are pressing for stepped-up research on solar-power satellites, in particular a bill now in Congress which would allocate $25 million to such work during the coming fiscal year. This would be a very small start toward what could develop, according to some power visionaries, into a system of 50 giant satellites orbiting the earth and beaming power collected by power cells to ground stations via microwave. Total cost by some estimates could reach $500 billion.

Back down to earth, numerous other firms are showing interest in the market for solar power systems for private use. An estimated 30,000 homes in the United States are now equipped with solar water heating, and some 5,000 have solar space heating. Not many, but five years ago the number of solar-heated homes stood at about 30.

Solar energy may not be an idea whose time has come quite yet, but it could be getting a lot closer to that point than has generally been realized.

fewer on the farm

The migration from the farm is an old story.

There's a new version, however, with an interesting variation. According to Census Bureau and Agriculture Department tabulations, there was a slowing of the movement last year.

In 1977, the farm population was approximately 7.8 million, a decline of 450,000--5.4 per cent--from 1976, considerably less than the previous year's decline of 6.9 per cent.

The 1977 farm population represented 3.6 per cent of the U.S. population of 215.9 million. Compare that with only 20 years earlier, when 10.4 per cent of the Americans were still on the farm.

What's it like to grow up with a mother (or father) who is also a schoolteacher?

Janet, a 23-year-old reader from Glendale, Ariz., contends it's less than a religious experience. She writes, "I went past puberty thinking all mothers put candles on birthday cakes with a 'tens' and a 'ones' column. I always got pencils in my Christmas stocking saying, 'Greetings From Your Teacher', and once for Christmas, I got a six-inch plastic ruler with the name of some kid who moved away.

"I told myself teaching was the last thing I wanted to, but somehow I find myself not only teaching school, but saving empty Pringles cans and little scraps of felt. I label margarine tubs using wide-tipped magic marker and color code things in my junk drawer.

"I even caught myself putting a frowning face on a letter to the gas company about an over-billing."

Now you know, Janet. Teaching is contagious. I married a teacher 28 years ago. Together, we spawned three children. The kids took a vow of silence at the end of each grading period. They sat through 21 commencement exercises. They never sent a letter from camp that wasn't corrected in the margins, graded, and returned.

It isn't easy living with a parent who can interpret your ACT scores...who is never convinced the library has no books on Trotsky...who can snap you awake with a piece of chalk at 60 paces.

Who knows when a holiday isn't...how many juniors REALLY drive to school...and who, when the chips are down, always sides with the administration.

When it came time for our first son to make a decision on his career, I asked him, "Do you want to spend the rest of your weekends for the rest of your life grading papers? Do you want to see everyone else's kids in the daylight--except your own? Do you want to go on a honeymoon and have a pair of little square scissors fall out of your pocket?

"Do you want to build your social life around the football, basketball and track schedules? Do you want to sit through the 8th grade doing 'The Mikado' 12 years in a row? Do you want to stand around at proms going deaf?

He handed me his paper, "True, True, True, False, True, True."

He inherited the disease all right.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell's decision to prosecute the big fish and let the little ones go will not please everyone, but in an imperfect world an imperfect solution probably is the best that can be achieved.

Ever since Bell took office, he has been haunted by the question of how to deal with the illegal break-ins and wiretaps conducted by FBI agents in New York in the early 1970s in the pursuit of fugitive Weather Underground radicals.

The Justice Department investigation Bell inherited from the Ford administration left much to be desired; just how much has only recently become evident. And the early mistakes were compounded by the indictment a year ago of John J. Kearney, a former FBI supervisor in New York.

It was not the decision to prosecute Kearney that created an uproar both within the FBI and in the general public, but the fact that for one solid year Kearney remained the only FBI official under the gun - the apparent "scapegoat" for higher-ups.

Now Bell has dismissed the case against Kearney, on grounds that he was only following orders, and moved against those who headed the FBI at the time of the illegal activities-former acting director L. Patrick Gray III; W. Mark Felt, former No. 2 man in the Bureau, and Edward S. Miller, former head of the domestic intelligence division.

It is hard to quarrel with Bell's decision to prosecute the hapless Gray, last seen "twisting slowly, slowly in the wind" in the Watergate era. He was indisputably the acting head of the FBI at the time of the alleged illegal entries which he is now charged with authorizing.

Yet it is difficult to feel much satisfaction at his present legal jeopardy, for anyone familiar with the FBI which Gray so briefly and ignominiously directed knows he was swimming in polluted waters, pulled along by currents not of his own creation.

Surreptitious entries and other "black bag" tricks were part and parcel of J. Edgar Hoover's FBI arsenal at least until the late 1960s. And indeed, there is grand jury testimony in the current case from the late William C. Sullivan, former No. 3 man at the FBI, that in 1979 he "personally" conveyed to Kearney the wishes of Hoover that the Weather Underground radicals be pursued by "any means necessary."

But Griffin Bell cannot prosecute a dead man. J. Edgar Hoover, who functioned so long "above" the law, is now beyond its reach. And those like Pat Gray who failed to cleanse the poisons of the Hoover era from the FBI bloodstream must accept responsibility for their actions and omissions.

There is, of course, a second troubling aspect to the attorney general's latest move in this case - the decision to drop the charges against Kearny and to forego prosecution of any other underlings as well.

At first blush, it smacks of an unhealthy acceptance of the old Nuremburg defense - they were only following orders and hence cannot be held responsible. By that reasoning, one could ask why the Watergate burglars went to jail while Richard M. Nixon went to San Clemente.

But Bell faced an almost insurmountable practical difficulty in this case. Of the 68 FBI agents now facing administrative discipline, all but one or two had been given immunity from criminal prosecution by the Justice Department team investigating the case before Bell took office.

The agents, as it turned out, provided no useful information in exchange for their immunity. They had none to offer on the original source of the orders they followed. But with so many excused from prosecution, what point would there be to indicting the few remaining?

Bell appears to have made the best of a bad situation. The reverberations and recriminations will continue for a long while, but what is essential now is that Bell and the new FBI director, William Webster, get on with rebuilding the bureau and setting forth clear guidelines for its conduct.

john cunniff

secretary defined

NEW YORK (AP)-This is National Secretaries Week, all week long, and don't you forget it, Jack Lemmon, particularly after the assessment delivered by your secretary, Connie McCauley.

Miss McCauley, president of the National Secretaries Association International, believes her boss is "absolutely super," a "marvelously gifted person" and a "fine man to work for."

She commented as the association's board met in Thousand Oaks, a long commute from Hollywood and Jalem Productions, where she minds the store while Lemmon appears in a new play, "Tribute," in Boston.

A large responsibility perhaps, but in keeping with the association's definition of a secretary - as distinquished from a stenographer, typist, clerk, receptionist or the like - to wit:

"An executive assistant who possesses a mastery of office skills, demonstrates the ability to assume responsibility without direct supervision, exercises initiative and judgment, and makes decisions within the scope of assigned authority."

About 3 million Americans call themselves secretaries, but the association believes the number included a lot of presumptuous aspirants who don't come near to fitting the definition.

To be an association member, a person must have served two consecutive years as a secretary. The association has 38,000 members in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico, and an untabulated number abroad.

Their duties vary. "By its nature, secretarial work is highly diversified and rarely are any two jobs exactly alike," Miss McCauley said.

The prototype descriptions begins: "A secretary relieves executive of various administrative details) coordinates and maintains effective office procedures and efficient work flows."

The secretary also "implements policies and procedures set by employer; establishes and maintains harmonious working relationships with superiors, co-workers, subordinates, customers or clients...."

Just the beginning, but one quickly notes the absence of personal pronouns. Equality's male secretaries, number unknown, and the association wants them. It has only 29.

The reason for lack of male membership isn't precisely known, but one personnel professional suggested men might prefer the title "executive assistant," even though the work might not differ.

"It isn't unusual for secretary to handle junior or middle management chores," said Miss McCauley. A modest claim. It has been observed elsewhere that some handle the work for vice presidents.

Opening lead: ♠ 4

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Alan: "It is so easy to complain about bad luck when your troubles really come from bad play."

Oswald: "South's ace of spades took East's king at trick one. South promptly led a club to dummy. East won with his ace and led another spade. South's ten lost to West's jack and West continued spades."

Alan: "As South pointed out after the defense had collected their red aces, plus three spades, he would have made the hand if he had attacked diamonds since West held that ace. After all it had taken a 4-1 club break to defeat him."

Oswald: "South's analysis was incomplete. He should have attacked diamonds first and would have been sure of his contract that way."

Alan: "He should have led a heart to dummy at trick two and led a diamond from dummy. If East held the diamond ace and rose with it South would be sure of three diamond tricks. If East ducked South would shift to clubs and be sure of two clubs and one diamond. In any event the game would have been safe."

A Michigan reader wants to know why we bid from one to seven instead of from seven to 13.

It goes back to whist where you scored one point for each trick over six (the seventh trick being known as the odd trick).

SEATTLE (AP)-They would make an unlikely duo, but body-building king Arnold Schwarzenegger has a rival as top attraction at the J.K. Gill book store.

"We haven't had a crowd like this since Lawrence Welk was here a few years ago," said Jean Faltys, a spokeswoman for the store.

Tigers Break 3-3A Records; Trio Qualifies For Regional

LUBBOCK--Snyder varsity track team managed only a fifth place showing at the district meet here Saturday but that shouldn't disappoint too many of its fans.

Despite a lack of depth, the Tigers managed to shoot holes in three former 3-AAA records and send an equal number of individuals to the upcoming regional meet.

One of the highlights of the annual event, held at Coronado High School, occurred when veteran high jumper Randy Courtney cleared the bar at 6-10, shattering the old district mark - and his own personal best, of 6-8. The senior basketball star from Snyder attempted 7-0, but failed to clear the extra height.

The Tigers ripped another standard as Dale Jenkins, only a freshman, found daylight over a 13-6 pole vault marker, breaking the old 3-AAA record of 13-3. Jenkins cleared 13-9 to win first place over Brownfield's Randy Newsom, but the effort was after both athletes had attempted 14-0, and thus was not eligible for a new record.

While not at record time or distance, Snyder also qualified in the 120 high hurdles as Jeff Terry ran a second-place time of 14.8. Teammate Keith McClain grabbed top honors in the freshman 120 yard hurdles however, searing the track with a record-snapping effort of 15.2. The previous mark in the freshman division was 15.0.

McClain, one of several promising athletes coming up through the Snyder school system, also won the 330 intermediate hurdles with a time 41.6. Another freshman, Tracy Loyola, took first in the 9th grade long jump with a leap of 19-3. In other action in the freshman division, Barry Blackman grabbed second in the high jump and Glenn Parham, a seventh grader, took third place ribbons in the 440 dash and long jump.

Finally, Snyder's Lloyd Benson, sophomore, narrowly missed going to regionals with a third place time of 49.8 in the 440 dash. The regional tournament, not held for those competing in the freshman division, will be run-off Saturday in Odessa.

BURNING - "Burning" out of the blocks is 440 relay-man Johnny Velasquez., Snyder failed to place in the top two finishers in the event, but did manage to qualify a trio of individuals for regional competition during Saturday's District 3-AAA finals. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Golf Team Takes Second In District

BROWNFIELD - Snyder High School golf team placed third here Saturday but managed a low enough score to take second in the district and qualify for upcoming regional competition.

The Tigers, who fired a 327, took third at the final district meet of the season behind Sweetwater I, 313, and Sweetwater II, 323. Snyder II came in sixth place with a mark of 360.

Clint Baack of Snyder joined Paul Layfield and Wilks of Sweetwater as medalists with 77 each. Baack also copped second over-all district medalist honors behind Layfield. Layfield posted a season total of 311, while Baack went 314.

Baack made the all-district team, as did teammates Lance McMillan and Walt Williams. Sweetwater named six to the team, and Brownfield and Lamesa noted one each.

Individually for Snyder I, Baack's 77 led followed by McMillan with an 82 and Williams with an 84. Randy Chambers shot an 84 and Benny Parnell shot a 90. For Snyder II, Randy McCown fired an 87, followed by Randy Wolf 89, Devin Donelson 90, Kip Wadleigh 94 and Cris Raines 102. Kris Seale scored 96.

The regional tournament will be held Wednesday and Thursday at the Golden Acres Country Club in Odessa. The top two teams and individuals will advance to the state meet in Austin.

Final District standings - 1. Sweetwater I, 1261; 2. Snyder I, 1293; 3. Sweetwater II, 1326; Brownfield, 1346; 5. Snyder II, 1393; 6. Lamesa, 1405.

Rangers Snap Out Of Losing Slump

DETROIT (AP) - The Texas Rangers and the Detroit Tigers have both come to the end of their streaks. But only the Rangers are smiling about it today.

After dropping a 9-6 baseball decision to the Tigers in the opening game of the double-header Sunday, the Rangers bounced back for an 11-inning 2-1 victory in nightcap.

The triumph, sparked by home runs off the bats of Bump Wills and Richie Zisk, halted a Texas losing skid at eight games and ended Detroit's five-game winning string.

"Winning this game, I think, will give us momentum," Zisk said afterward. "That's one you're not supposed to win, so maybe it'll turn us around."

In the first game, Detroit designated hitter Rusty Staub had a pair of singles, drove in three runs and scored twice to pace the Tigers.

The victory in the opener went to Jim Slaton, 1-1, with Steve Foucault getting credit for his third save. Jon Matlack, 1-3, took the defeat.

The winner in the nightcap was Rangers' reliever Len Barker, 1-1, who took over after starter Jim Umbarger worked the first nine innings. Detroit's Jim Crawford, 1-1, was the loser in relief of Dave Rozema, who also went nine full innings.

Dodgers 7, Astros 3

The Dodgers took a 6-2 lead over the Astros after three innings. Reggie Smith had a scoring fly ball and Ron Cey and Dusty Baker smashed run-scoring singles in the first inning as the Dodgers jumped to a 3-0 lead against loser Joe Niekro. Watson homered leading off the second. Los Angeles added an unearned run in the second, Bill Russell's double scoring Dave Lopes who was aboard on an error.

Royals 6, Orioles 5

Hal McRae drove in three runs with a home run and a two-run double, and a quintet of Kansas City relievers held off the Orioles.

"Every guy I brought in did the job on the first hitter he faced," said Royals Manager Whitey Herzog of relievers Larry Gura, Steve Mingori, Doug Bird, Al Hrabosky and Mary Pattin. "But Marty was the only guy who didn't mess up later."

Brewers 3, Yankees 2

Larry Sorensen pitched eight innings of five-hit ball and Bob McClure retired New Yorkers in order in the ninth. The Brewers are 4-1 against the Yankees this year.

Ben Oglivie's homer and a two-run single by Sal Bando provided the Milwaukee runs while Reggie Jackson clouted his third homer for New York.

Player Wins Again; Takes Houston Open

HOUSTON (AP) - One of Gary Player's standard comments, almost a code with the South African globe-trotter, is:

"Golf is a very humbling, very strange game."

In the last three weeks he's turned it into a truism.

His victories have been among the more unusual in American golf history and the game has, indeed, been a very humbling one - to his competitors.

In the final rounds of the last three events he's made up an incredible 17 shots and won all three - the Masters, Tournament of Champions and now the Houston Open.

And there's no let-up in sight.

He'll try the New Orleans Open this week for a fourth consecutive title, which was last accomplished by Jack Burke in 1952.

"Oh, no. You don't dare let yourself start thinking you can't be beaten. You never think that," he said, and repeated, "Golf is a very humbling game."

Player came from 7 shots off the pace in the last rounds of the Masters and Tournament of Champions.

Womack Wins Regional Title

ODESSA - Margaret Womack grabbed the Regional tennis championship in girls singles play here Saturday, chopping Borger's Kim Clark 6-2, 6-1.

Both Miss Clark and Miss Womack - the 3-AAA champion - will advance to the state meet next month in Austin.

In girls doubles finals, Susie Adams and Joanie Russell of Andrews defeated Diane Walters and Kelly O'Banion of Fort Stockton 6-4, 6-3.

The boys regional meet, which will feature Snyder's doubles team of Jay Wesson and Zane Sterling, will be held here Friday and Saturday.

"Margaret proved that consistency is the 'name of the game' in tennis," commented Snyder tennis Coach Bill Boles. "She hit only three 'winners' in the (final) match, along with seven others in prior matches, letting her opponents make the mistakes and beat themselves. Margaret will be the first girl representative in the state meet from Snyder, at least during the 11 years I've been here," added the coach.

Felines Find 3A Regional Too Tough

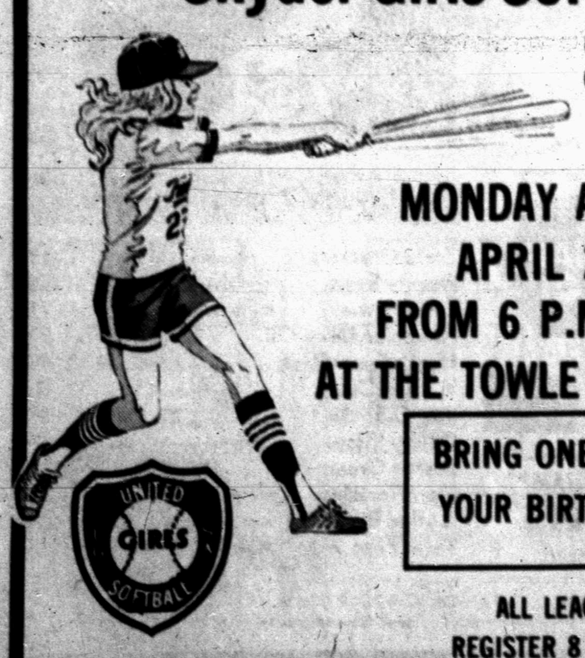

ODESSA - Snyder girls managed two fourth places and two fifths at the Regional track and field meet here Saturday.

The mile relay team of Dana Elrod, Karen Littlepage, Carrie Taylor and Glenda Vaughn turned in a time of 4:15.2, while in the individual events Miss Elrod leaded 15-1 in the long jump for the fourth place ribbons.

Sarah Fagin took fifth in the 80-yard hurdles with a time of 12.2, while Lesa Sterling--the district 3-AAA long lump champion--managed fifth place in her event.

Black Garners 2nd At State Gym Meet

SAN ANGELO - Snyder's Rita Black took second place in balance beam competition at the state gymnastics meet held here Saturday.

Miss Black scored 24.70, while Crockett won the event with a 25.55. Teammates Pam Blankenship, Teri McCarty and Sarah Youngkin attended the meet, but did not place.

"That's super good," commented Coach Doug Fitzjarrell of Miss Black's effort. "That's what we've been working for all year."

76ers Defeat NY Knicks; Advance

NEW YORK (AP) - George McGinnis says he feels like the world's largest yoyo, and he doesn't like the way Billy Cunningham is pulling the string.

"I'm in the lineup one minute and out the next," said the 6-foot-3, 235-pound forward of the Philadelphia 76ers, a starter and former National Basketball Association all-star. "If I gotta be in that system, I don't want to be here."

McGinnis' discontent was the lone sour note for the Sixers Sunday as they completed a four-game sweep of the New York Knicks in the playoff quarter-finals with a 112-107 victory. They now await the winner of the Washington-San Antonio series for the Eastern Conference crown.

Washington took a 3-1 lead in that best-of-seven set by beating San Antonio 98-95 and can wrap it up Tuesday night.

In Western Conference action Sunday, the Seattle SuperSonics beat the Portland Trail Blazers 99-84 to take a 2-1 lead in that series, and the Milwaukee Bucks routed the Denver Nuggets 143-112 to trim Denver's series lead to 2-1.

McGinnis played just 21 minutes Sunday, scoring 10 points. While his teammates celebrated in the Sixers' locker room, he dressed hurriedly and avoided most questions from newsmen.

New York led 50-37 midway through the second period before the Sixers got rolling, cutting the deficit to 2 by halftime. The second half was close all the way, the Sixers taking the lead to stay 98-97 with 3:13 to play on a free throw by Julius Erving following a technical four against New York's Lonnie Shelton. Mix hit a bank shot and Doug Collins converted an offensive rebound to give Philadelphia a comfortable 5-point spread.

Collins led the Sixers with 24 points, Erving scored 23 and Lloyd Free 17. Bob McAdoo topped New York with 24.

"The turning point was the way we played defense in the second half," said Cunningham.

trial of an $11-million suit against NBC and a San Francisco television station on behalf of a girl assaulted sexually four days after a TV show depicted a similar crime.

Granted a request by Henry A. Kissinger that the court hold in abeyance a federal judge's order allowing government employees to begin processing secret notes of telephone conversations he had while secretary of state.

Voted 6-3 to let stand a lower court's decision that prisoners being considered for parole have few rights in trying to increase their chances of success.

Let stand a ruling that local governments may restrict the heights of citizen band and ham radio antennas.

Miss Hearst, daughter of newspaper publisher Randolph Hearst and his wife Catherine, was 18 when SLA members abducted her from a Berkeley apartment Feb. 4, 1974.

The kidnapping, reports of her alleged subsequent conversion to the SLA movement and months of police frustration in efforts to capture Miss Hearst and her abductors was international news.

Miss Hearst, 24, has lived with her parents and under constant private guard since the federal conviction. Her father posted a $1-million bond supported by a $100,000 cash deposit to secure her freedom.

The conviction was upheld last November by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which ruled that her appeal presented "no novel issues."

Miss Hearst's lawyers then appealed to the nation's highest court, essentially using the same legal arguments.

They contended that the late U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter, who presided at Miss Hearst's trial, committed numerous errors that denied her a fair trial.

Among other things, the lawyers objected to testimony admitted into evidence by Carter of Miss Hearst's activities, after the April 15, 1974, bank robbery.

School Is Accredited

ATLANTA (AP) - Morehouse College announced today that its proposed medical school has been accredited and that 24 students will be enrolled in the first class in September. Dr. Louis Sullivan, dean and director, said the school is "the first effort in this century to start a medical school for minority students."

But white students will be accepted, Sullivan said, and "if a white student comes from a rural area and expresses a desire to return to that area in the practice of medicine, then he would be given preference over a black student from a metropolitan area."

DID YOU LIKE THE WAY YOUR TAXES WENT UP LAST YEAR?

The "Drys" tell you that things are good in Snyder the way they are. The "Drys" say our taxes are low, that unemployment is low.

We agree wholeheartedly! Things have been good here in Snyder.

BUT.....

The "Drys" conveniently neglect to point out that, through the grace of God, we sit on top of one of the best oilfields in the United States.

They overlooked telling you that the Oil Companys pay over 80 per cent of the taxes in Scurry Co.

They failed to tell you that most of the employment in Snyder is created by the economy generated by that oilfield.

AND.....

They forgot to point out that that oilfield is declining at an alarming rate.

As oil production diminishes, the amount of taxes we pay will increase.

The increased amount of money you paid last year is only the beginning, the tip of the iceberg.

We must do everything we can to make our economy self-sustaining and independent.

One of the best and quickest of the solutions is to keep our money at home, and to attract outside consumer dollars.

Vote "FOR" keeping Snyder money in Snyder.

Vote "FOR" Legal Sale on May 8th.

If you might not be able to vote on May 8th, vote "Absentee" at the County Clerk's office.

We need every vote "FOR".

Jackie Says Rumors To Dump LBJ Unfounded

AUSTIN (AP)-Media speculation and rumors circulating at Washington social bashes in 1963 that President John Kennedy was going to dump Vice President Lyndon Johnson were unfounded; according to Jackie Onassis.

"The only thing I know about that is the fact it would be brought up every now and then and was rather annoying," said the former First Lady. "I don't think he (President Kennedy) had any intention of dropping Vice President Johnson.

However, Mrs. Onassis revealed to a University of Texas history professor that she didn't vote for Johnson for president in 1964. Kennedy had not yet been dead a year. He was assassinated in Dallas in November 1963.

In fact, she told Prof. Joe Frantz she didn't vote in the presidential race at all that year. Portions of the taped interview were carried Sunday by the Austin American-Statesman.

"You see, I'd never voted until I was married to Jack," she said during the 1974 interview. "I guess my first vote was probably for him for senator, wasn't it."

Speaking in somewhat halting tones, Mrs. Onasis added, "Then, this vote in 1964, would have been - he would have been alive for that vote. And I thought, 'I'm not going to vote for any other person because this vote would have been his.'"

She said Kennedy made a special point to include Johnson at all official White House functions. Such was apparently not the case with Kennedy's predecessor.

"One thing Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of England had said to jack about President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon, that Eisenhower never let Nixon on the place, impressed Jack a lot," she said.

"Every time there was a state dinner, he (Kennedy) wanted the vice president in the Oval Room and then walk down with the color guard, so that we would receive the state guests as a foursome, the president and the vice president and their wives."

Mrs. Onassis said the president "really got upset" about warnings from his brother, then-U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy, Sen. William Fulbright of Arkansas and Adlai Stevenson not to go to Texas.

"Vice President Johnson came to our hotel room in Houston the night before we went to Fort Worth," she said. "There was all this about people not wanting to ride in the car or Sen. Ralph Yarborough wouldn't.

"I remember we had dinner in our room alone, Jack and I. Then, Vice President Johnson came by, and they had a long talk. I know that was the point of the trip, to heal everything (between the Johnson and Yarborough forces). It was a long talk."

Neither Johnson nor Yarborough accompanied the Kennedys in the presidential convertible as it cruised through Dallas that fateful Nov. 22 morning.

After Kennedy's death, his widow said she asked Johnson to use his new presidential powers to rename Cape Canaveral in Florida to Cape Kennedy and approve a Washington renovation commission.

Johnson did both.

"The reason I asked was, I can remember this first speech Jack made in Texas was that there would be a rocket one day that would go to the moon," she said. "I had this terrible fear that he'd be forgotten, and I thought, 'Well, maybe they'll remember some day that this man did dream that."

Three-Man Swap May Release Scharansky

By Michael J. Sniffen
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-A three-way prisoner exchange among the United States, East Germany and Mozambique is spawning discussions of deals to free Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky from the Soviet Union and a U.S. CIA employee from Cuba.

An aide to Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., said Sunday that East German lawyer Wolfgang Vogel - a key go-between in previous East-West prisoner exchanges-will arrive here this week with "some options for the possible release of Shcharansky."

Vogel helped arrange the three-man deal that began Sunday. He also played a key role in the 1962 swap of U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for Soviet spy Rudolf Abel.

A knowledgeable State Department source cautioned, however, "Any speculation on Shcharansky is very iffy. Vogel has indicated a readiness to talk about it, but he's just a middleman.

"I don't think the Soviets are interested in a trade on Shcharansky now. I don't think they've decided what to do with him yet," said the source, who asked not to be identified.

Shcharansky, a 29-year-old computer programmer who was refused permission to emigrate to Israel, is awaiting trial on charges of belonging to a dissident group that collected military and industrial secrets for the CIA.

The United States has denied that Shcharansky worked for the CIA.

Sunday's release of an Israeli citizen, Miron Marcus, on the Mozambique-Swaziland border was the first of the three releases to be completed by April 30. The United States is releasing Robert G. Thompson, a former Air Force intelligence clerk convicted of passing secrets to the Soviets. Vogel will take him to East Germany.

The East Germans, in turn, will release Alan Van Norman of Windom, Minn. Van Norman, a college student, was arrested Feb. 8, 1977, in East Germany while trying to smuggle a German doctor, his wife and son to the West.

There was no official explanation of Mozambique's involvement in the exchange, but authorities noted that country has close ties with East Germany, which has hundreds of technicians and advisers working there.

Marcus, 24, walked across the border Sunday into Swaziland, where his wife awaited him. He had been a prisoner since September 1976, when his light plane made an emergency landing while on a flight from Rhodesia to South Africa.

Discussions about this three-way deal had included unsuccessful talks about freeing Shcharansky and Lawrence Lunt, a contract employee of the CIA serving a 30-year sentence for espionage in Cuba, participants said.

Lunt's name entered the picture when his Washington lawyer, John Wainwright, read news accounts of a State Department official discussing a possible swap of Thompson.

"COME NOW, AND LET US REASON TOGETHER" ISAIAH 1:18

On Sunday, the Snyder Upward Committee ran and ad advising us to be "Reasonable," and "Sensible." We agree. If everyone will only be reasonable and sensible, we will never have a problem with liquor in Snyder, such as wet towns are experiencing all around us. With the facts in hand, you can make your own decisions as to what is "Sensible."

The wets say legal sales will:

"...help keep local money at home while bringing in new trade to be shared by all Snyder merchants."

Fact: Snyder's tax rebate (The best indication of money staying at home) is running some 40 per cent higher than wet Sweetwater, which has a larger population and sits squarely on I-20 (the heaviest travelled highway in West Texas).

Fact: The alleged "new trade," what little there ever is in wet areas, is not added trade, but instead of trade people buy more liquor and less of everything else, such as groceries, clothing, houses, businesses and services of all kinds.

The wets say legal sales will:

"...Reduce needless and dangerous driving to Big Spring, Sweetwater, Post and Lubbock."

Fact: No one is so lacking in common sense as to drive to Lubbock or Big Spring, just to buy liquor...One would have to drive through Post and 40 miles farther to get what they could get in Post, or Sweetwater, which is even closer.

Fact: Some Snyderites do drive to other towns, particularly to Lubbock (and dry Abilene) to shop for some items, and would continue to do so, even if Snyder did go wet.

Fact: The biggest danger in driving is due to drinking drivers. Deaths and injuries on the highways run from 50-600 per cent higher in wet areas than in dry areas.

The wets say legal sales will:

"Increase tax revenue to the city..."

Fact: State Law prohibits Snyder or any other city from collecting any tax other than the 1 per cent sales tax, on the liquor.

Fact: The 1 per cent sales tax collected on liquor sales will be collected on the sale of other goods if liquor is not available. Most of us have to spend virtually all of our paychecks on something, every month.

Fact: In order to pay for just one extra policeman (three shifts) Snyder would have to sell some FIVE MILLION DOLLARS worth of liquor each year! If other wet towns are any indication, Snyder would have to put on several new policemen to handle the increases in crime which result from going wet.

Fact: The American Business Men's Research Foundation has discovered that for EVERY DOLLAR collected in tax revenue from the sale of liquor, the city will hae to spend FOUR DOLLARS in measurable costs of enforcement, clean-up and repair.

Fact: The legal sale of liquor is a losing proposition for any town. Voting wet will cost you and me a great deal of money each month.

The wets say legal sales will:

"help reduce the rate of tax increase..."

Fact: When a city has to spend four dollars for every one it brings in, taxes are going to skyrocket--and have in many towns which have gone wet.

Fact: Snyder's tax rate is now much lower than surrounding wet West Texas towns such as Sweetwater, Big Spring and Post. Big Spring, which has been wet the longest, has the highest tax rate of all...

The wets say legal sales will:

"provide jobs and create a better atmosphere for additional business and industry..."

Fact: Snyder has only recently attracted a very desirable major industry, winning out over many wet towns which would love to have had it.

Fact: Government statistics indicate that Snyder is growing faster, and will continue to grow faster through the year 2000, than any city of comparable size in West Texas--provided Snyder stays dry.

Fact: A Physician in Terrell sold the town on going wet "in the interest of the business community." The Doctor now owns a liquor store. But Terrell has experienced a decrease in its growth rate and an almost unbelievable 365 per cent increase in police costs!

Fact: Irving is Texas' fastest growing city--and Irving is DRY!

Fact: Garland has attracted more industry faster than any city its size in the Nation--you guessed it, Garland is DRY!

The wets say legal sales will:

"Allow beverages to be sold by local, licensed, taxpaying merchants under strict local and state control...while ridding us of dangerous "Bootleg Sales."

Fact: Under "strict local and state control," wet towns have more bootlegging than dry ones! Surprising? It shouldn't be, for sensible people. Think for a minute. In wet areas, there is a greater demand for liquor by minors, convicted felons and others who for some reason cannot buy it legally. And in wet towns, bootleggers do not have to transport it long distances, enabling them to charge less, store smaller caches and more easily elude detection and conviction. Bootleggers are less noticeable in wet towns and can operate more freely.

Fact: A five year study comparing wet and dry areas of East Texas (1971-1975) revealed that in wet areas there were 100 per cent more liquor law violations than in dry areas! "Strict local and state control" obviously is much worse than being dry...

THAT COVERS THE AD. NOW HERE ARE SOME LIQUOR INDUSTRY "FACTS" WHICH WERE NOT COVERED. LET'S GET THEM OUT OF THE WAY, TOO:

"Old Age Assistance payments are made from liquor taxes, and the elderly in wet areas might get more money from the state."

Fact: The Commissioner of the Texas State Department of Public Welfare has stated in a letter, "the wet or dry status of an area has nothing to do with the assistance payments one way or the other...the payments follow State guidelines which are in no way connected with the sale of alcohol in any area."

"People are going to drink anyway, so what harm is there in making it easier and more convenient?"

Fact: After San Antonio removed the restrictions on the sale of liquor, their driving-while-intoxicated arrests went up 400 per cent IN ONLY SIX MONTHS!

Fact: A five year study comparing wet and dry towns in East Texas (adjusted for population) revealed the following:

- 169 per cent more Drunkenness arrests
- 100 per cent more liquor law violations
- 50 per cent more people killed in traffic accidents
- 43 per cent more people injured in accidents
- 32 per cent more drunk driving and drunk-in-car arrests
- 23 per cent more homicides

Fact: After going wet, Post, Texas, experienced the following:

Drunkennes	up 483 per cent
Disturbing the Peace	up 566 per cent
Driving-While-Intoxicated	up1000 per cent
Murders	up 300 per cent
Death on highways	up 600 per cent

"Once a town goes wet, it almost always stays wet, indicating satisfaction with the results."

Fact: Oak Cliff was wet until 1964, when it went dry. After going dry, moving traffic violations (arrests) dropped 229 per cent. Accidents dropped 75 per cent, and total police incidents dropped 30 per cent. Later attempts to vote Oak Cliff wet were defeated by 53 per cent, 58 per cent and most recently by 65 per cent of the population. Five other attempts at petitioning for an election have failed to get enough signatures. OAK CLIFF RESIDENTS HAVE LEARNED THEIR LESSON.

Fact: Several thousand Snyder residents are determined to keep our great town the All-American, Sparkle City which it now is. We will not simply give up if Snyder should ever go wet. Not being "satisfied" with the crime, taxation, welfare burden, loss of human life and human suffering which legalized liquor would bring, we would go on working until the city was dry once more.

One Final Fact: The only ones who stand to gain by Snyder going wet are the liquor interests themselves. For a few months, at least, some developers, contractors, and liquor outlets would reap a profit. But the rest of us would pay the price.

No wonder drinkers and non-drinkers alike are joining together to vote dry on May the 8th. In the cold light of non-emotional, statistical facts, it's the only sensible thing to do.

FOR ALL OUR SAKES— PLEASE VOTE DRY!

Comptroller's Agent Due Here

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has announced that he is sending a representative from his Abilene office to Snyder on Wednesday to assist local taxpayers and answer questions about state taxes.

Bullock said Jerry Franklin, enforcement officer, will meet with local taxpayers on the third floor of the courthouse from 9 a.m. to noon. If area merchants, or anyone else, have questions about state taxes, or need help in preparing tax forms, Franklin will assist them, said Bullock.

Defection Raises Loyalty Question

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - The recent defection of Arkady N. Shevchenko, a top Soviet U.N. employee, has brought to the surface a question that has troubled the world organization since its inception: Can members of the international civil service conduct themselves independently of their governments?

Shevchenko, the undersecretary-general for political and Security Council affairs, refused a Soviet order to return home and took an indefinite leave of absence. He cited "differences" with his government.

Both Shevchenko's statement and the subsequent Soviet demand for his dismissal indicate that neither paid much attention to the neutral character of the U.N. Secretariat as laid down in the U.N. Charter.

Article 100 states that the U.N. staff "shall not seek or receive instructions from any government" or from any other outside authority.

It also requires each member state "to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the secretary-general and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities."

Although the charter principle applies to all U.N. civil servants, the question of whether U.N. employees can subordinate the special interests of their countries has primarily concerned top-echelon officials, especially the 77 men and women who are above the rank of assistant secretary-general.

These top jobs, paying $76,000 to $120,000 a year, are parceled out according to national and political quotas. Shevchenko's post traditionally has been reserved for a Soviet diplomat chosen by Moscow.

U.N. contracts can be renewed, and there are high-ranking officials who have kept their jobs for more than 20 years. But in order to keep a sensitive U.N. job, the official needs his government's blessing.

Some officials make no secret of their close association with their governments. For example, China's Tang Mingchao, undersecretary-general for political affairs and decolonization, lives in the Chinese Mission building where all Chinese diplomats stay in New York.

Shevchenko also called frequently at the Soviet Mission on his way to and from work and followed the Moscow policy line strictly.

An undersecretary-general from Western Europe, who prefers to remain anonymous, says there should be "some flexibility" in upholding the concept of an independent civil service for the 149-nation community.

"Given the diverse political situations in member countries, I don't think we can apply any hard-and-fast rule. We should try to deal with glaring violations only - like attempts by some government leaders to place relatives and friends in U.N. posts or the substitution of political favoritism for merit in promotions."

Leaflets Here On Conservation Act

A new leaflet explaining the Resources Conservation Act of 1977 and the public's role in its implementation is now available at offices of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service.

Under the new law, SCS will appraise the nation's soil, water, and related resources; develop a comprehensive 5-year strategy to guide conservation efforts; and evaluate the effectiveness of ongoing conservation programs. SCS will carry out the work in cooperation with appropriate citizen groups; conservation districts; and other federal, state, and local agencies. The appraisal and program will be completed by the end of 1979 and updated every 5 years.

Copies of the leaflet "Your Role in Conservation's Future" may be obtained by calling 573-0171 or coming by the Soil Conservation Service Office, located in the Agriculture Service Center, 3423, Avenue T in Snyder.

"The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service will cosponsor a workshop or open meeting about this legislation in the future, "Erwin A. Pavlik, SCS district conservationist, said, "and it would be helpful to read the leaflet before the meeting."

Pavlik said that public participation is a built-in feature of the Resources Conservati Act, and suggestio m interested gro individuals are w at any time.

Little Change In Rig Count

There was little change in drilling activity in Permian Basin oilfields last week, according to Reed Drilling Equipment's weekly survey.

The survey showed 286 rigs running in the Basin, compared to 285 the previous week. There were 289 rigs running during the corresponding week last year. Eddy County, N.M., was the leader, with 2 rigs making hole, while Pecos County had 25.

There were three rigs operating in Scurry County, the same number as the week before. Figures for other area counties, with last week and the week before, in order: Borden 4 and 4; Dawson 2 and 3; Garza 3 and 3; Howard 2 and 2; Kent 1 and 0; Mitchell 1 and 1; Nolan 3 and 4; Stonewall 2 and 4.

Cow Chip Tossers Crowned

BEAVER, Okla. (AP) - Bob Fleming, of Taylorville, Ill., has won the highest honor in the sport of cowhands. In recognition of his 139-foot toss of a piece of dried cattle manure, he has been crowned the winner of the World Championship Cow Chip Throwing Contest.

About 1,500 spectators turned out to watch the contest of athletic skill here over the weekend. It was the ninth annual world championship competition.

Patty Bruce of Beaver was the top woman among the tossers, managing to throw a chip 85 feet.

Cow chip tossers endured the agony of defeat when they attempted to set a new distance mark.

Stiff northwesterly winds blew the cow chips around the outdoor arena in this Panhandle town. As a result of the winds, cow chip tossers turned in their poorest showing since 1974, failing to top 140 feet with any toss.

Last year, Art Koster of Winona, Kan., threw a chip 190 feet en route to his championship title.

Student Protests Less Violent

By G.G LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer

Mark Rudd spoke at Columbia and the demonstration followed. But the year is 1978, not 1968, and today's student movement - against South Africa - is a far chant from the days when a fiery, young Rudd led radical youths across the nation's campuses, parks and politics.

The growing movement is more sophisticated in its goals, more quiet, less violent and sometimes even polite.

An example: "We don't want to inconvenience him any more than we have to," said a Wesleyan University student explaining why protesters sitting in at the president's office took off their shoes so as not to harm the carpet and spread papers to protect furniture.

This time the students do not seem so alone, either. Churches and civil rights groups are protesting South Africa's racism. Some banks are refusing to lend to the country. The Portland, Ore., City Council has passed a resolution condemning ads for South African gold coins.

The target of the protests is apartheid - government-mandated racial separation-and the complaint is that American corporations doing business in South Africa help perpetuate it as a way of life.

The students' chant is "Get out of South Africa," but it is not as ambitious as "Get out of Vietnam." They are not trying to move an entire government, just their schools. They want colleges to pull out investments in companies doing business in South Africa.

It is estimated that $1.7 billion in American capital is invested in South Africa and that U.S. banks hold $2.2 billion in loans to the country. A Senate subcommittee report lists 260 American businesses involved in South Africa. Among the largest are Mobil Oil, Exxon, Standard Oil of California, General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, IBM, Control Data Corp. and NCR Corp., the old National Cash Register.

In turn, colleges and universities have large investments in these companies.

Brown University in Rhode Island has $23 million invested in 44 firms that operate in South Africa. Indiana University has 20 percent of its endowments in such companies. The University of California's $793 million in common stocks include $449 million in these companies.

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — When my husband leaves the house, I have a persistent urge to look through his things.

If I don't go out or find something interesting to do, I eventually give into the temptation and begin searching methodically through every drawer and closet. I even go through the pockets in his suits.

Once I found a suspicious looking draft for a $500 bank note. I finally asked him about it (even though it meant exposing the fact that I'm so suspicious) and he said it was part of a business transaction with a man from work.

I felt stupid and he was very upset to find that I don't trust him.

I also felt frightened. Since that incident, I have been even more suspicious and now search about twice a week. I also am beginning to give him a hard time when he comes home late.

I love him so much. I would just die if he came in one night and said he was leaving. And yet, I know my crazy behavior is making that almost inevitable.

I'm so tired of all this. What shall I do?

DEAR READER — You must be exhausted. You are expending tremendous mental energies to prevent the unlikely occurrence of a traumatic bolt-from-the-blue announcement from your husband.

Is it worth it? Or are you giving up too much of the potential pleasure your marriage has to offer?

You remind me of the main character in Colette's short story, "The Dead End." He missed out on the joys of his relationship with his lover because he was so obsessed with fear of rejection. Nothing else mattered — not even her death.

One day, as he walked in the country near their house, a servant ran up to him, looking strangely upset.

"She stopped, breathlessly, a few paces away from him. 'Oh, Monsieur. . . Madame. . . .' 'Madame?' he called out in a loud, artifical voice. 'Yes? She's just left, hasn't she?'

"The servant opened her mouth, closed it, could say nothing for a moment, then uttered a few words from which the man understood that an accident. . . a fall on the marble steps. . . a fractured skull. . . instant death. . . death.

"Feeling relaxed, he sat down on the grass. 'Oh,' he sighed, 'I was afraid. . . .'"

Would you be relieved if your husband died? Loneliness would be a big price to pay for peace of mind.

Why not seek professional help? Your fears probably reflect feelings of inferiority. Feeling undeserving of your husband's love, you may feel you are only preparing yourself for the inevitable rejection.

But you are, in effect, bringing that rejection about. Your self-fulfilling prophecy will then reinforce your low self-esteem.

A counselor will help you live for the present. Only in that way can you make your future secure.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

One Injured In Mishap

A 51-year-old Snyder man was treated and released from Cogdell Memorial Hospital following a one-vehicle accident Saturday afternoon.

Police reports identify the man as Hilario H. Fuentez, the driver of a 1968 Chevrolet pickup truck. Reports show that Fuentez's pickup ran off an access road and into a culvert near the intersection of Ave. E and U.S. Highway 84.

The mishap occurred about 1:40 p.m. Saturday and resulted in moderate damage to the vehicle.

During a quiet weekend, only one other traffic mishap was reported to Snyder police.

That mishap took place Saturday at 3:39 p.m. in the 2800 block of College Ave.

Involved in it were a 1966 Dodge pickup driven by Marshall Allen Gleghorn and a 1972 Ford driven by Rod Lane McCulloch. Only minor damages were reported.

Farmers Will Convert To Metrics In Future

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-It may seem a bit confusing to farmers now, but Agriculture Department experts say that at some point in the future they will speak easily about hectares instead of acres and kilograms instead of bushels.

The prediction is in a recent issue of "Agriculture, the Third Century" which is published by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperative Service.

"With metrication, farmers will trade in meters, kilograms and liters rather than in feet, pound and gallons," the report said.

Congress in 1975 authorized a federal board to coordinate voluntary conversion of weights and measures to metric units.

"The law does not specify any deadline or proclaim a goal for an eventual national conversion, but it appears that metrication is inevitable," the report said. "The United States is the only major industrial country that has not gone metric. Britain, Canada and Australia are among the last nations converting to the metric system."

Currently, grain and many other commodities normally are measured in bushels. A bushel is defined as 2,150.42 cubic inches in volume but its weight ranges from 60 pounds for wheat to 56 pounds for corn, 32 pounds for oats and "anywhere from 32 to 60 pounds for barley, depending on state laws," the report said.

Under the metric system, a kilogram is about 2.2 pounds, a hectare 2.47 acres, a metric ton 2,205 pounds or 1,000 kilograms, and a kilometer about six-tenths of a mile.

"There may be some confusion at first, but the new jargon will soon become familiar as we work with it," the report said. "It's just a question of adjustment."

The USDA has been using some metric units for some time in its crop production reports in supplemental tables accompanying traditional units showing yields in bushels an acre.

Also, since other countries use the metric scales, exports of grain and other commodities are reported routinely in metric tons.

Free single copies of he issue of "Agriculture, the Third Century," which includes tables showing how to convert traditional units into metric units and lists of both measurements for various commodities are available from:

Leroy Quance, ESCS, USDA, Room 248, 500 12th St. SW, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Patience helps dieter

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it true that excess weight gained during childhood causes the fat cells to increase, thus making it difficult to lose weight as an adult? If so what can I do? I'm 40 and have been on a 1000 calorie diet which has not helped much.

DEAR READER — It is true that victims of childhood obesity have more trouble as adults — but there are exceptions. Whether this is a carry over of learned bad eating habits or some other factor is not clear. Lack of exercise as a child seems to be a very important factor in childhood and later in adult obesity.

I'm not convinced that it makes a lot of difference whether the excess fat is stored in 100 fat cells or 1000 fat cells. A fat cell is capable of enormous expansion, somewhat like a balloon, and what counts is the total amount of excess fat stored — in small balloons or large balloons. And the fat goes off just as readily out of a lot or a few fat cells.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, which includes my recommendations for a program to help people lose weight. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. If a person sticks with such a program he or she will lose weight. But it does require patience. The usual diet gimmicks that promise large weight reductions in short periods of time are often harmful and may induce only temporary effects. You need a plan like this, that also provides the basis for a well-balanced diet after you have lost your excess fat. That is how you avoid putting it back on.

When people tell me they have been on a 1000 calorie diet and have not lost weight I know that in most cases they have not counted their calories correctly or they are very inactive. A good physical activity program does wonders to improve any dieting program. Get out and walk every minute you can to help maintain your muscles and burn off fat. If you are able, add additional exercise programs to your plan.

The other problem is lack of patience. A person may spend a year putting on weight and want it all off in a week. That is ridiculous and dangerous. People often lose weight in plateaus, going weeks without any appreciable loss of weight, then suddenly losing four or five pounds. Then another period of time passes before there is any more apparent weight loss.

What causes this? The food you consume and the fat you use from your body for energy is all broken down to carbon dioxide and water. The carbon dioxide is eliminated at once from your lungs but the water may stay in your system. You can pick up five extra pounds of water and hardly notice it. But you will notice it when you start flushing it out all at once. The next day you may feel a little weak until your salt balance, which includes potassium, readjusts itself.

Even simple table sugar — which you should not be using on your diet — reacts with oxygen to release water. You wouldn't think there was any water in sugar and there isn't — until it is broken down by your cells to yield its energy. So don't get discouraged but stick with the program. A pound, or even a half pound a week average loss is fine and if continued will eventually produce good results.
