CISD teacher contracts OK'd

Colorado Independent School District board of trustees approved teacher contracts during a special meeting Monday night.

In approving the contracts, the board froze the salaries for the 1987-88 school year, but in doing so saved the school district about $120,000 in local tax dollars next year.

Supt. Charlie Uselton explained that teachers are due a $114 monthly pay raise from the state for the coming year which will amount to $1,140 for the 10-month contract period. The district will deduct the $1,140 from the local increment, thereby decreasing the local increment from $1,500 to $360 for teachers with a bachelor's degree and from $1,800 to $660 for teachers with a master's degree. Local increment is what school districts pay above state salary schedules with each school district determining what, if any, the local increment will be.

Personnel who had their contracts renewed include Mary Petty, Al Sheldon, Allie Beth Beauchamp, Billie Colaw, Leah Ann Daves, Juan Espinoza, June Kimmel, Barbara Girvin, Betty Gorham, Barbara Hammond, Cheryl Hines, Brenda Johnson, Rita Latimer, Teresa

Also, Larry Blair, Ronald Conner, Karan Johns, Linda Mathis, Christine Jane Burtner, Clifford Wilson, Leslie Perkins, Chuck Claxton, Melna Conner, Deborah Denson, Bruce Evans, Gail Evans, Deborah Goforth, Anita Graham, Sonja Hanks, Jane Horton, Jennifer Jenkins, Tom Kelly, Kathy Marshall, Kimberly Merket, Mark Merrell, Patti Monroe, Bob Newman, Patricia Pharis, John Richardson, David

The play has a cast of 15 and a crew of four.

Don D. Hurt plays Antipholus of Syracuse while James Woods plays Antipholus of Ephesus. Patel plays Dromio of Syracuse and Dwight Upton plays Dromio of Ephesus.

Letters to the editor

To the editor:

Our Mitchell County Library is a good one. Its service directly improves the quality of life here, for boys and girls and adults of all ages. I'm grateful to all those who have made and continue to make our library service possible—our library staff, the commissioners, Friends of the Library, and the taxpayers.

It's time now for us to do a favor for our library and others like it in the State of Texas. What favor? This one: Write Dick Burnett, State Representative, and call on him and his fellow legislators to put enough money in the Library Fund so as not to lose four million dollars in Federal money for libraries. We need at least ten million dollars allocated to public libraries to hold the Federal four million. That's a good deal, don't you think?

If you do, write today. State Representative Dick Burnett, P.O. Box 2910, Austin, 78769-2910.

Roy Byrd, Member
Mitchell County Library Board

To the editor:

I want to express our appreciation to you for the coverage which you provided us in preparation for our early childhood screening. The service which you provided did assist in developing more of a public awareness of the screening which was done.

For the West Central Texas

Education Cooperative staff, Colorado ISD, Hermleigh ISD, Lorraine ISD, Westbrook ISD, and Ira ISD, I want to say thank you.

Sincerely yours,
Al Coburn, Director WCTEC

RE-ELECT EDDIE GREGORY CISD SCHOOL BOARD SATURDAY, APRIL 4, 1987

Eddie and his wife Ann have four daughters. Three, which have graduated from Colorado High School and Darla Kaye the youngest is presently a sophomore.

The Gregorys have resided in Colorado City since June 1962. Eddie is employed by Lone Wolf Elect. As Line Superintendent. He has been employed by them 24 years. He is a member of Church of Christ.

He is past president of the Noon Lions Club (1982-83). He also served three years on statewide job, training and safety committee. Planning meetings for all Elect. Co-op in the state of Texas. He helped organize the Girls Softball League & served as vice president the first year. He also coached for four years.

I am completing my first year as a member of C.I.S.D. Board of Trustees. I have completed 19 of 20 hours, State School Board Standards, required by the state. In this past year I have come to realize how much our school district are mandated by the state.

I believe our school system is very fortunate to have a qualified staff, that not only educate our children, but also care for them as individuals. I am please to see parents showing more concern toward their children's education and other school activities. The combination of parents, faculty, administration, school board functioning together can make for a much better school system for all our children. This is what I am striving to achieve as a member of the C.I.S.D. Board of Trustees, with you the voters help.

I am also ready for suggestions, complaints, compliments or criticisms. I will be a fair impartial, unprejudice and open minded as possible, to any given situation concerning our school system and children.

I would greatly appreciate your vote and support in the upcoming School Trustee Election.

Health care crisis is developing along border

By Lloyd Bentsen
United States Senator

As neighbors, the United States and Mexico have cause to be concerned about the health care crisis developing along our border.

Both nations are affected by problems with communicable disease control, immunization and sanitation. Many families do not have access to health care services, an unacceptable number of women and young children are at nutritional risk, and professionally trained health care personnel are in short supply.

The health care network along the Texas-Mexico border, especially, has been overwhelmed in recent years by rapid and profound changes—such as drastic devaluations of the peso, decreased state resources due to falling oil prices, unprecedented illegal immigration, and severe unemployment.

In the Lower Rio Grande Valley there is only one doctor for every 1,151 patients—compared to 606 patients per physician in the rest of the state. Prospects for improving that ratio are not bright since the eight Valley counties are the third fastest growing area in the nation, with the population expected to double by the year 2000.

The problems of providing adequate health care along the U.S.-Mexico border were studied during a 1985 conference, sponsored by the University of Texas and Carnegie Corporation, which brought together government officials and health professionals from both nations.

These experts unanimously agreed that research and strategy for resolving border health problems would be more effective if approached cooperatively by skilled professionals from both sides of the border.

We know it can be done. The University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston had a very successful small scale program in the 1970s that increased the number of health professionals available in South Texas. UTMB worked closely with South Texas colleges and health care providers to allow physicians to spend part of their residency there. Some 1,600 South Texas students were recruited for training in nursing, dental and allied health careers—and some 83 percent of them remained to practice in the region.

I recently introduced legislation—similar to a bill I proposed in the 99th Congress—to establish a health education and training program on the U.S.-Mexico border that would be a cooperative effort of both nations.

The U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services would be authorized to make $60 million in grants during 1988-90 to border state medical schools. The schools, in cooperation with community groups and health professionals, would create health education training programs to evaluate health manpower needs, train students to meet those needs, and support educational opportunities for border students interested in health-related careers.

The Mexican government has agreed to promote similar initiatives in its border states. No U.S. funding would be diverted to the Mexican programs.

As the conference experts said, any successful effort to address border health care problems must "transcend geopolitical boundaries."

It is in the best interests of both nations to work together to improve health care along our border.

Wildflower symposium

SNYDER—Zoe Kirkpatrick of Post and Burr Williams of Midland will be the featured speakers at the Scurry County Wildflower Day symposium on Saturday, April 11, at Western Texas College.

The symposium will begin at 1

The Wildflower Day observance will open at 10 a.m. with guided tours of a wildflower trail on the WTC prairie.

By Dorcas R. Hardy Commissioner of Social Security

Since assuming the position of Commissioner of Social Security on July 17, 1986, I have been looking very closely at how the Social Security Administration delivers its services to the American public. Social Security managers have been challenged to seek out new, innovative methods of administering this program, methods which encourage employees to work smarter and more productively, and to be more responsive to the needs of the people.

Already many changes have taken place for the better at Social Security, changes that translate into better service. Many more are on the horizon. In particular, Social Security now has two convenient services available nationwide that should make it easier for you to handle your Social Security business without waiting in line—increased telephone service ("teleservice") and the use of an appointment system.

Most people don't realize it, but almost all Social Security business—from applying for monthly benefits to reporting a lost or stolen check—can be handled by telephone. With teleservice, your Social Security office is only seconds away when you pick up your phone and dial our number. Not only can you save valuable time, but you also save gasoline or other travel expenses, such as bus or taxi fare.

Teleservice operates Monday through Friday during regular business hours and, in some cases, during special hours advertised locally. However, like most major businesses, Social Security offices have certain periods when they are particularly busy. Since Social Security checks are delivered in the first week of each month, it is not unusual for our phone lines to be busy during this period. To avoid the frustration of busy signals or delays, unless you have an urgent problem or question or want to apply for benefits, call after the middle of the month. And always have your Social Security or Medicare card and any other pertinent information in front of you so that we can handle your call quickly and conveniently.

Of course, if you prefer to transact your Social Security affairs in person, we welcome you to visit any one of our nearly 1,400 offices across the United States. And for those who desire to avoid waiting in lines and complete your business with the least amount of delay, we now offer the option of scheduling an appointment with a Social Security representative in advance of your visit.

Appointments benefit everyone, the individual as well as Social Security. For the individual, you can be assured of prompt attention at a particular time known well in advance, eliminating excessive waiting, and making it easier for you to plan other activities for the same day. For Social Security, the scheduling of appointments allows us to manage office workloads more effectively. In addition, by advising you what you need to bring with you and what will be discussed, we make the interview more efficient. This means there is less chance you will need to return with more information.

The establishment of an appointment system and greater use of the telephone to transact Social Security business should significantly improve the quality of service the Social Security Administration can provide to everyone. It is my intention that Social Security services should be just a telephone call away—whether it's to set up an appointment, apply for benefits, or request information.

Lester Richburg, from Hart, Texas, visited in the home of Mrs. Effie Wheeler on Sunday.

Those visiting in the home of Mrs. Mary Coffey for a few days were her son-in-law, George Nichies of Dallas and his grandson Noman Dodson, also of Dallas.

Giggs and Jo McAdams were here for a week's visit in the home of Mrs. Teance Hays and with Mrs. Mae McAdams and other relatives. They are from Spearman.

Visiting in the home of Rev. and Mrs. William Stanley were Mr. and Mrs. John Lighthall of Bloomington, Ill. The Stanleys and Lighthalls visited in Lubbock with the Stanley's daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Guzman and daughter Bonnie. They were on hand to help Bonnie celebrate her second birthday on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Harris of El Paso spent the weekend with his aunt Mrs. Nannie Hallmark.

Mrs. Willie Rose had the welcome mat out for her daughter and granddaughter, Lillie and Raquel Wedeman of San Antonio. They were here a week visiting their mother and grandmother and other family members.

Bennett continues study of Asia

The study "Spirit and Struggle in Southeast Asia" was continued at the Loraine Methodist Church on Monday, March 30 at 3:45 p.m. Mrs. Lola Faye Bennett continues to lead the study. Nepal was the country studied. The people there have written their own history. Isolation from the rest of the world was their practice until about 1959. Through political and economic changes since then, the country is considered a "lump of clay in the Potter's hand". It has opened its borders and now many hands have unique developments underway.

The United Mission in Nepal is made up of several religious groups. To name some are the Islamic, Bhuddist, Hinduism and Christianity. The mission gives free medical care, financial aid, and other aid.

Mrs. Bennett read a story of a Nepalese woman who was divorced by her husband when she became a leper. The woman became a Christian and had been healed of her leprosy. This woman was among the 350 who had attended a three-day meeting and only a few non-Nepalese were present. Most were from Nepal.

Next week's study will pertain to Bangladesh.

Those present were Lola Faye Bennett, Reta Richards, Ruth Richburg, Eldie Bryant, Syble Walker and Effie Wheeler.

Brenna Petty

Petty wins first place

Brenna Petty, daughter of Don and Orinea Fay Feaster Petty of Waco, former Colorado City residents, was first place winner in the B. A. Collano Post 8564 Veterans of Foreign Wars speech contest on "The Challenge of American Citizenship." Requirements were original five minutes, and recorded at a television studio. Her composition won first place in Waco Christian High School, city, district and regional. The $1,400 prize will be applied on expenses at Texas A&M where she plans to major in biology.

During Brenna's high school years, she has participated in many curricular and extra activities: year book editor, class president three years, student council officer four years and class favorite.

As a sophomore, Brenna entered the VFW sponsored contest, "Voice of Democracy" with her original "My Pledge to America" essay. She won thorough regional at that time.

Both her parents and maternal grandparents, Fanny Fay Feaster and the late Orin Feaster, were Colorado High School graduates.

Paternal grandparents are Lowell and Jerry Petty, former Colorado City residents, now of Waco.

TEXAS GARDENER TIPS

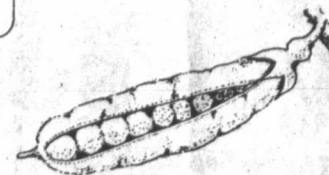

Have you always wanted to grow peas but were unsure of the correct procedure? Or, have you grown peas and found the job extremely difficult? Even though peas, a cool season crop, are not easy to grow in Texas, with the right environment they can become an anchor to your garden.

The pea belongs to the leguminosae family and is one of the most nourishing of all vegetables. True peas are closely related to southern peas as both are classified, legumes. But in actuality, southern peas, black-eye, crowder and purple hull, are beans and here we will discuss the true peas from the scientific family Pisum sativum.

The peas from Pisum sativum are divided into three categories: seed type, smooth or wrinkled; growth habit, meaning dwarf, semi-dwarf or vine; and how they are consumed.

The English, garden or shelled pea is grown for the seed and recom-heavy soils will produce higher yields and those grown in sand will produce earlier yields.

To ensure a successful crop of peas in Texas, plant in the late fall, winter and if you live in the southern part of the state, early spring. Plant the peas eight to 10 weeks before your particular freeze date.

Peas can be grown for late spring harvest, but are a poor risk. Planting must occur at a time to ensure that the peas mature and develop a good crop before maximum daytime temperatures are expected to exceed 75 degrees. Planting should take place as soon as the soil can be worked in the late winter or early spring. So take the summer to study up and get ready for fall planting.

mended varieties for Texas are Wando, Alaska and Progress No. 9. Edible-podded peas such as snow and Chinese peas are just what the name implies. The entire pod is eaten when it is full-size, but before the seeds enlarge. Texas varieties for the edible-podded pea are Dwarf Gray Sugar and Melting Sugar.

The newest type pea is the snap pea. Pods and seeds can be consumed until the pods become tough and the pea then is shelled for the large, tender and sweet seeds. Sugar Snap, Sugar Ann and Sugar Bon are the All-Texas Selections for snap peas.

For some reason, peas do not seem to care one way or the other about the soil they grow in. Peas grown in

Third party leasing a problem

By Jim Mattox
Attorney General

In January, I wrote a column warning about the pitfalls of third party leasing. But my Consumer Protection attorneys tell me it's a growing problem and that the column needs to be run again.

If you have leased a car and are now having trouble making the payments, you may be considering finding someone to sublease the car from you. But subleasing can be a BIG mistake.

On one side are those who would like to get out from under their monthly car lease payments. On the other side are those whose poor credit ratings prevent them from contracting for an automobile themselves. In between are brokers who bring them together.

Brokers offer to find someone to take over the car-and-the payments. Payments are usually sent by the sublessee to the broker, who is supposed to forward them to the leasing company. Sometimes a broker will even offer to guarantee the payments, promising to make the payments even if the sublessee is late or misses one.

Relying on a third party to make payments you have contracted for has many potential problems.

Subleasing may be a violation of your contract. Most large leasing companies prohibit third party leasing without prior written permission. The reason is that the car is collateral and the company needs to know where it is and who is responsible.

Another is that the payments might not be made, no matter what the broker guaranteed when the contract was signed. And if you deal through a broker, you probably won't know anything about the whereabouts, character, or financial capabilities of who is supposed to be fulfilling your legal obligations.

If something goes wrong, the car can be repossessed, your credit rating can be hurt, and you can be faced with a lawsuit.

Subleasing has many potential problems for third parties too. Brokers charge substantial down payments, usually $1500 or more and add $30 or $40 dollars to the monthly payments.

Being a third party in a subleasing arrangement is an expensive way to get a car and puts you at the broker's mercy. If the broker doesn't make the payment, the car can be repossessed even though you have fulfilled all obligations.

Help Your Heart

American Heart Association

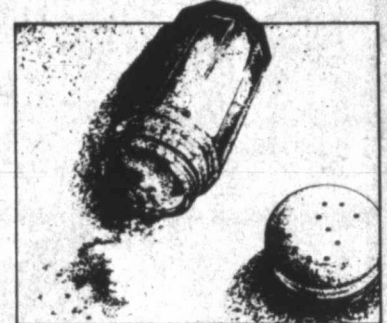

Where's the Salt?

Americans consume far more sodium than their bodies need. Sodium is a mineral essential for good health, but too much sodium can increase blood pressure in some people. Consequently, many people diagnosed as having high blood pressure are placed on restricted sodium diets by their doctor.

It's important for people on a sodium restricted diet to understand the salt/sodium relationship. Table salt is 40 percent sodium and 60 percent chloride. Salt added to our diets through cooking or at the table is the greatest source of sodium in the American diet. One basic rule the American Heart Association suggests people follow to reduce their sodium intake is to take the salt shaker off the table. In addition, salt consumption can be reduced if, during food preparation at home, only one-half of the amount of salt called for in a recipe is used.

But in selecting and preparing foods for a controlled-sodium eating style, it's critical to be aware of sodium naturally contained in foods. When purchasing prepared and prepackaged foods, read the labels. Watch for the words "soda," "sodium" and the symbol "Na." on labels. These identify products that contain added sodium compounds.

Food labels will usually describe the sodium content of the product in milligrams (mg). One-half teaspoon of table salt contains 1000 mg of sodium. The average American consumes roughly one to two teaspoons of salt daily. The body actually requires only about one quarter teaspoon of salt, (or 20 gram of sodium) each day. The AHA recommends that people gradually work toward a goal of limiting their sodium intake to 1000 mg of sodium per 1000 calories of food per day, not to exceed 3000 mg sodium daily.

The good news is that good taste will not have to be sacrificed for good health. It's really a matter of choice.

Careful menu planning can help maintain proper sodium intake. For example, being aware of things like the fact that 4 ounces of baked ham contains 1027 mg sodium and the same amount of broiled halibut contains only 152 mg sodium, can make those choices easier. That does not always mean giving up the favorite baked ham. But to prepare scalloped potatoes containing 400 mg sodium to accompany the ham, you would need heavy sodium intake for one meal. Boiled potatoes with parsley, containing 4 mg sodium, would better fit into a reduced-sodium intake menu that includes ham.

A reduced-sodium diet will mean only occasionally eating salty foods, cutting down on the amount of salt you use in cooking and at the table, and reading package labels regularly to learn about the sodium content of prepared foods. Experimenting with herbs and spices as seasonings will help produce deliciously flavorful meals. It could mean controlling high blood pressure, and that could save your life.

Wolves second at Bearcat Relays

Two weeks ago a strong showing in the field events carried the Colorado City boys track team to a third place finish at the Sonora Relays. Saturday at Ballinger the Wolves amassed almost 100 points in the running events to take second at Ballinger's Bearcat Relays.

Some late arrivals to the Colorado High school track program were competing for the first time and gave the Wolves some added punch.

The 400 meter relay team of Pat Tillis, Beau Rees, Michael Swann and Larry Mayes gave the Wolves a victory worth 20 points by beating the field in a time of 45.06.

The Wolves scored 18 points with a 1-3-5 finish in the 100 meter dash. Tillis won the event in 11.36, Mayes took third in 11.38 and in fifth was Dennis Smith in 11.97.

Another running title came in the 300 meter intermediate hurdles. Swann took first with a 41.95 and in sixth at 44.49 was Guy Compton.

Compton gave the Wolves their only field event win by taking the high jump at 6'2". In fourth was Darwin Jackson at 5'6". Distance runner Ismael Silva alone contributed 18 points with runner-up finishes in the 1600 and 3200 meter runs. Silva won second in the 3200 with a season's best of 10:18.36 and came back with a 4:51.88 to take second in the 1600.

Picon of Ballinger won both races—edging Silva by a second in the 3200 and by four seconds in the 1600.

Darvin Jackson also continued a strong season by winning second in the 400 meter dash. Jackson ran a 53.8 and running a 55.78 for fourth was Bubba Bailey.

Yet another top finish for the Wolves came in the 200 meter dash. Mark Russell was runner-up in the sprint at 23.05 and in fifth was Smith in 23.81.

Smith, Russell and Bailey just last week joined the track team and teamed up with Jackson for a third place finish in the 1600 meter relay. The foursome ran a 3:42.34.

That gave the Wolves 99 points in the running events and with 32 from the field events, Colorado City scored 131 for second behind host Ballinger with 166.

Rees, Derek Ramsey and Corey Flanagan scored 11 points in the discus. Rees won third with a throw of 136'9", Ramsey fourth with 131'4" and Flanagan sixth with 117'10".

The Wolves got a fourth and a fifth in the shot where Edwardo Melendez put 43'1/4" and Rees heaved 42'3".

Mayes placed fifth in the long jump with a leap of 18'9".

The Wolves scored in all but three events—the 110 meter high hurdles, the 800 meter run and the pole vault.

Team totals: Ballinger 166, Colorado City 131, Sonora 92, Robert Lee 64, Hamlin 29, Marble Falls 23, Brownwood JV 20.

Girls team totals: Wall 170, Wylie 71 and one-third, Ballinger 71, Brady 66, Floydada 42, Coahoma 35, Brownwood 31 and one third, Reagan County 28, Sonora 24, Hamlin 15 and one third, Robert Lee 9, Winters 1, Colorado City 0.

SOME BIG bass were being caught recently on Lake Champion. Rodney McDonald of Odessa caught these two black bass before the recent cold spell. The fish weighed 7 and 6 pounds. Local experts expect fishing to slack off until it warms up again.

On-The-Job Injury

Don't let it
keep you off the job a day longer than necessary

"I want to get rid of the pain and get back to work." We hear this a lot.

Temporary pain killers may be okay for temporary pain. But when the pain stays . . . or keeps coming back . . . it's time to try something else. The chiropractic approach to pain is to locate the CAUSE of the pain and correct it. When the cause is corrected, the pain usually goes away in short order. Why not try chiropractic FIRST for on-the-job injuries?

A consultation and preliminary examination can help determine whether chiropractic might help. If treatment, x-rays or other lab tests are indicated, they are covered by most Workers' Compensation insurance plans. CALL US TODAY.

Tourism, diversity seen as alternatives

LUBBOCK—Attracting tourists and diversified businesses and industries are the two most liked alternatives among the state's residents for improving the Texas economy.

And while Texans by a three-to-one margin also support attracting out-of-state investments in the Lone Star economy, they are reluctant to seek foreign investments.

Those "Texas Views" are the findings of a survey conducted by the Institute for Communications Research (ICR) at Texas Tech University. The mail and telephone survey of 387 Texas residents asked what steps should be taken to improve the state economy.

Survey options included attracting foreign investments, exploring overseas markets for agricultural products, attracting out-of-state investments, diversifying the state economy more, levying an oil import fee and increasing tourism. Participants were asked how strongly they agreed or disagreed with those options.

Though all options — except attracting foreign investments — received a nod of approval from a majority of the participants, increasing tourism was supported by 90.3 percent.

Diversifying the state economy — the second most liked option — drew a positive response from 82.5 percent of the respondents.

While 76.9 percent of those surveyed agreed the state should attract out-of-state investments, the desire for outside investments in the state stops at the U.S. border. Only 37.7 percent of the respondents agreed the state should attract foreign investments.

Though reluctant to have foreign capital invested in the state, survey participants favored selling the state's agricultural products to foreign countries.

Of the participants, 74.5 percent thought the state should explore overseas markets for its agricultural products.

Finally, 62 percent of the participants favored the imposition of an oil import fee to help the state economy.

Attracting tourism was favorably viewed by nine out of 10 respondents, though males were more likely than females by a 94 percent to 87.8 percent difference to favor the tourism option. Support of tourism generally increased with education as 80.1 percent of those with some high school favored it, compared with 97.5 percent of those with college degrees.

Whites were generally more supportive than blacks or Hispanics of increasing tourism. Some 92 percent of the whites favored the option, compared with 87 percent of the Hispanics and 69 percent of the blacks.

The need to diversify the state economy, which has long relied on oil and agriculture, was equally recognized by participants regardless of their length of residence in Texas. The diversification option was favored by 81 percent of those calling Texas home for less than 10 years and by 83 percent of those who had lived in Texas more than 50 years. That closely followed the 82.5 percent total favoring diversification.

Support for diversification generally rose with income, 72.1 percent of those making less than $10,000 supporting it, compared with 91.7 percent of those earning more than $50,000 annually.

The issue of outside investments in the state was polarized between the source of that capital. Out-of-state investment in Texas was favored by 76.9 percent and disfavored by 9.8 percent of the respondents with 13.3 percent unsure. Conversely, only 37.7 percent agreed with attracting foreign investments, compared with 38.6 percent who disagreed and 23.7 percent who were unsure.

While 74.5 percent of the respondents agreed the state should seek more overseas markets for agricultural products, males were more likely than females to favor this option. Some 86.8 percent of the men, but only 66.9 percent of the women favored exploring overseas markets.

Though it would have to be imposed by the federal government, an oil import fee was favored by the respondents, though not as much as other options. Some 62 percent of the respondents favored such a fee, compared with 15.1 percent who were opposed and 23 percent who were unsure.

The survey results for "Texas Views" were announced by ICR Director H. J. Hsia. The survey, conducted in the last quarter of 1986, has a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percent.

Helpful Hints For The Home

Button up your home

Many parts of the country recently experienced record winter snowfalls. And while the white crystals have been pretty to look at, the colder temperatures associated with them forced many homeowners to spend more than they'd like to on their heating bills.

If you're interested in increasing your home's energy efficiency and improving overall comfort in warm weather and cold, but simply do not have the time to do the work yourself or don't want to go up into the attic, experts recommend considering installing blown-in insulation. Installed by professional insulation contractors, this type of insulation is becoming more and more popular among busy homeowners.

Blown-in insulations are available in three types: fiber glass, rock wool and cellulose. The one thing they all have in common is that they are conditioned by a blowing machine and blown under high pressure through a long flexible hose into attics and walls.

These materials offer several inherent benefits. The major one is that they provide a more complete or uniform coverage in hard-to-reach areas such as parts of attics. Because coverage is so complete, they become an excellent thermal blanket for the life of a home.

Once you have decided on a blown-in insulation, the next questions are who should do the work and what is the best material for the job? The key to the former question is to find a professional insulation contractor with good credentials and references who will provide written estimates of the work to be done. Look in the Yellow Pages of the telephone directory under "Insulation Contractors" or "Insulation Materials" and ask friends and neighbors for leads.

As for the type of blown-in insulation to use, look for a superior quality material like CertainTeed's pure white Insul-Safe III Fiber Glass Insulation. It is highly thermally efficient, noncombustible, noncorrosive, and contains no chemicals to promote odor.

Installing blown-in insulation into the attic is a relatively easy procedure. First, the contractor will run the insulation hose into the attic through any available opening. Next, he will blow the material so it falls approximately four to 10 feet in front of the nozzle completely covering the attic floor.

If you have a semi-finished attic, the insulation contractor will remove some of the floor boards exposing a joist section. He will then blow insulation into the cavity. After the material has been installed, he will put the floor boards back into place and move to the next joist section until the job is done.

Insulating sidewalls requires a few more steps. Typically, a contractor will begin the job by carefully removing some of your home's outside siding. Next he will drill small openings the size of a half-dollar. Once all holes have been drilled, the contractor will begin blowing insulation into the wall cavities. Once the cavities are filled, the holes are plugged with circular pieces of wood, and the siding is replaced.

Air cleaners help housekeeping

It's that time again. Time for spring cleaning.

We all dread it, but we know it has to be done. No matter how immaculate your home is kept, the onset of spring prompts us all to take a long lean look at our home and its furnishings.

Somewhat it never quite recovered from the New Year's Eve Party, better known as the Grand Smoke-In. Or remember when Uncle Harry and his dog stayed with you for the month of February? They may be gone but their memory lives on in your home.

In addition to stale smoke and pet dander, other indoor pollutants wreak havoc on your home and home furnishings. Aerosol sprays, cooking odors, grease particles, and dust also linger in your home making drapes and furniture look dull and worn-out.

Along with these indoor pollutants, many outdoor pollutants (such as construction debris and industrial particles) enter your home every time you open the door. They find their way into your home only to make your household cleaning more taxing and time consuming.

But there is a way to spend less time cleaning and less money redecorating. With a non-electronic air cleaner.

Installing an air cleaner on your forced air furnace will noticeably reduce smoke, dust, dirt and other airborne pollutants that cause stale, musty air, greasy buildup on windows, and smoke stains on walls, draperies, and furniture.

By reducing these particles in the air you'll be reducing wear and tear on your home.
