Bush forms new drug task force

■ Newly formed West Texas Narcotics Enforcement Task Force to initially be headed up by DPS.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Gov. George Bush has formed the West Texas Narcotics Enforcement Task Force to succeed the defunct Permian Basin Drug Task Force.

The Permian Basin task force was beset by "serious criminal allegations" that are being investigated by FBI, the Texas Attorney General's Office and the Texas Rangers.

The Texas Department of Public Safety initially will head up the new drug task force.

"I appreciate the willingness of the DPS to quickly step in and help during this time of transition," Bush said in a press release Friday. "This task force will help area law enforcement fight illegal drugs."

On June 1, the Governor's Office's Criminal Justice Division announced that it was suspending the basin task force's federal funding because of the allegations.

The 15-county agency was the only one of 47 multi-jurisdictional drug task forces to be denied funding.

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter, a former DPS trooper and chairman of the basin task force board of directors, said that the governor's option was a compromise situation.

"This is the governor's decision to bring in someone from the outside to run the task force until the investigation is complete and until they can get everything back on track," Painter said. "And that is certainly a decision I have to respect."

Tom Finley, 48, commander of the disbanded task force and a former DPS narcotics agent, said Friday that the agency's demise was "caused by a lot of infighting in law enforcement itself ... to some extent.

"It's a sad day for law enforcement when it comes down to this," Finley said.

He has denied any wrongdoing as commander of the 10-year-old agency which, he said, has seized illicit drugs totaling a street value of $27.7 million and assisted in drug seizures totaling $7 million in possible street sales. The agency's arrests totaled 4,968 and assisted arrests were 926. Seized drug money totaled $2.46 million in that 10-year period.

Ector County had administered the task force's $1.8 million budget, which included $1.3 million in federal funds and $500,000 in forfeited drug money.

Under the governor's plan, police chiefs, sheriffs, and district and county attorneys in the 15 counties "are invited to participate in the new task force (and are) invited" to share in personnel, assets, and law-enforcement resources, according to the governor's news

GM strike

Though GM profits total billions of dollars, it still lags behind Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. and the foreign "transplant" automakers in factory productivity. GM has reduced its U.S. work force by 39,000 jobs, but still needs to cut an additional 50,000 jobs to become competitive, analysts say. To the United Auto Workers, which has seen its membership decline sharply over the past two decades, that's unacceptable.

Midland police officer resigns following trial

■ After a mistrial, Richard Lee McKee is to be retried for allegedly assaulting his wife.

By Rick López
Staff Writer

A Midland Police Department officer accused of assaulting his wife resigned from the force this week, police officials confirmed Friday.

Richard Lee McKee, 28, submitted a letter of resignation to Police Chief John Urby on Tuesday, Internal Affairs Lt. Dusty Land said.

Urby accepted the resignation and McKee has returned his badge and other police property, Land said.

It was unknown how much the city of Midland paid the officer for the benefits he had accumulated over his five years with the police force, Land said. The city's Administrative Services director, David Hunter, could not be reached Friday afternoon.

McKee quit his job less than a week after he was tried on Class A misdemeanor charges of family violence assault.

The charge stems from an Aug. 31, 1997, incident that occurred at his wife's north Midland apartment.

According to the trial's testimony, McKee struck his wife after she had grabbed him by the groin during a heated argument. The victim, Jennifer McKee, sustained a black eye and other minor injuries in the incident.

McKee said he acted in self-defense.

Commissioners ban aerial fireworks

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The drought that turns rangeland into kindling wood suited for wildfires has prompted the Midland County Commissioners' Court to ban "certain aerial fireworks" during duration of the drought.

The ban will be in effect until the Texas Forest Service determines that "drought conditions no longer exists," according to the order issued this week in a 4-0 vote of the Commissioners' Court.

"We (in law enforcement) will be out in force (on July 4) to enforce the litter and aerial fireworks laws," Midland County Fire Marshal Dale Little said Friday. "As it (the drought) keeps going, it is going to dry out more (vegetation). We just need a lot more rain."

The Commissioners' Court's order, in following the Texas Local Government Code, expressly prohibits the use of aerial fireworks, which are classified as "skyrockets with sticks and other pyrotechnic devices that have fins or rudders for the purpose of achieving aerodynamics flight, including devices that would be considered a missile or a rocket."

The prohibition, however, does not apply to firecrackers, such as Roman candles, sparkler and aerial fountain-effect fireworks.

"The law only allows counties to prohibit the use of aerial fireworks," said Commissioner Guy McCrary. "And I think that's unfortunate because clearly, as dry as the rangelands are in our area, all fireworks should be banned. But the laws only allow us to prohibit the use of aerial fireworks."

McCrary said that the Legislature ought to "make this (fireworks ban) decision entirely a local one.

Odessa attorney indicted in connection with drug smuggling operation

By Rick López
Staff Writer

PECOS — Dozens of defendants, including an Odessa attorney and his private investigator, made appearances in federal court Friday in connection with a drug smuggling operation in the Big Bend area.

Tony Chavez, 54, and his private investigator, Boyd Hernandez, were both named in the multi-count indictment, court officials said.

The defendants made an appearance Friday before U.S. Magistrate Judge Stuart Platt at the federal courthouse in Pecos. A grand jury had returned indictments against them on Thursday.

That afternoon, Chavez and Hernandez voluntarily reported to the FBI and Drug Enforcement Administration office in Midland, officials said. On Friday, they were allowed to leave the courthouse on personal recognizance bonds.

Some of the other defendants also named in the indictment were already in custody, or released from jail on bond in connection with other charges. A few others remained at large, officials said.

According to an FBI report, the indictment stems from investigation by the Alpine Multi-Agency Task Force since the agency's inception in June 1996. After the investigation, the panel issued charges for engaging in a continuing criminal enterprise, conspiracy, obstruction of justice and money laundering.

The defendants allegedly smuggled "tons of marijuana into the United States for several years," the FBI report states.

Chavez and his two sons, Adrian Chavez and Brian Chavez, all work at the same law firm at 121 E. Fourth St. in Odessa. The defendant was a former police officer in El Paso and a former Ector County prosecutor.

Adrian Chavez, 29, said Friday that his father plans to fight all the charges that have been brought upon him.

"He'll fight these charges vigorously. They're not true. He'll eventually be vindicated," he said. "I'm not representing my father, but I say this as his son. I'm a lawyer, thanks to my dad's guidance."

His father has not hired an attorney to represent him, Adrian Chavez said. He added that the defendant plans on continuing his practice despite the allegations that are made against him.

"He'll continue to defend his clients who have been accused of wrongdoing," he said. "He's obviously upset about the charges, but he'll continue to practice while he fights them."

The son claims that his father was implicated in the task force's investigation because a disgruntled client made false allegations to authorities. Tony Chavez had represented the woman in a drug case and she was convicted.

The woman is named as one of the witnesses in the indictment, he said.

"She only made that claim after she was convicted. She was bitter and

Nigeria's latest government dispels demonstrators with show of force

By Tim Sullivan
Associated Press

LAGOS, Nigeria — Firing into the air, unleashing tear gas and arresting a leading dissident, security forces of Nigeria's latest military boss sent a clear signal Friday to the nation's pro-democracy forces: Muscle still rules this junta-weary country.

Opposition activists demanding an end to military rule took to the streets in a planned mass protest, but they were quickly confronted by a wall of police and soldiers in Lagos, Nigeria's commercial hub.

Throughout the city, convoys of heavily armed troops and riot police roared through the streets, firing weapons and clashing with protesters, dragging some of the demonstrators away.

Faced with his first major test — the prospect of defiant opposition — Gen. Abdulsalam Abubakar responded with enough might to quell hopes that his 5-day-old regime would differ from that of the 5-year-long military dictatorship of his predecessor, Gen. Sani Abacha.

"We want the world to know that Nigerians want an end to military rule," said one protester, University of Lagos student Dele Alabai.

"This is not about Abacha or about Abubakar. It is a struggle for democracy," the student said.

As opposition leader Gani Fawehinmi arrived at the scene of one of the protests, three men lifted him onto their shoulders, witnesses said. Police, enraged when the crowd began to cheer support for him, quickly arrested Fawehinmi, along with the men carrying him.

They also arrested Dupe Abiola, one of the wives of imprisoned businessman Moshood Abiola, the presumed winner of canceled 1993 elections.

Fawehinmi has been detained before and released, but his arrest Friday hit hard at an opposition already weakened by the imprisonment or exile of most of its main leaders.

"We are very bitter about what has happened," said Fawehinmi's son and aide, Mohammed Fawehinmi.

With Abacha's death Monday from a heart attack, Nigerians had been hopeful that the country's next leader might see the transition as an opportunity for democratic reform. But the crackdown Friday suggested the new regime is picking up where the old left off.

"Soldiers are all the same," said Joseph Ahmed, a Lagos resident watching police haul away a few protesters from the scene of one confrontation. "If anyone wants to criticize them, they go and use force."

In the Yaba district on the city's north side, vehicles filled with riot police sped into position Friday to block 300 protesters from marching toward the area's main bus terminal. Police fired bullets and tear gas, sending demonstrators scurrying for cover. Other police closed off some streets and directed traffic.

Another group of 500 to 600 activists also were dispersed with tear gas, witnesses said.

A man dressed in a coat and tie was held by one policeman while another kicked and slapped him from behind. Behind him, another well-dressed man was pulled by the arm into the station.

Friday's protests were organized months ago to mark the five-year anniversary of the annulment of Nigeria's last presidential elections on June 12, 1993, and to call for freedom for Abiola, the imprisoned billionaire businessmen believed to have won the vote.

But the demonstrations took on added significance, coming only days after Abubakar was appointed leader of this oil-rich but impoverished West African country.

"The Struggle Continues. The Military Must Go. Abiola For President," read a large banner carried by youths who marched through one Lagos neighborhood Friday and handed out pro-democracy leaflets.

About 10 miles west of the city, students from the Lagos State College of Education clashed briefly with police after running into the streets and setting tires on fire, witnesses said. They were subdued with tear gas, and 10 were arrested.

Many people stayed home Friday after the government refused opposition requests for protest permits and issued ominous warnings, leaving the normally congested streets of Lagos just half full.

But most stayed at home out of fear, not out of any support for the succession of military regimes that have run the country into the ground.

Abubakar already has infuriated the opposition by offering only a vague pledge to move forward with democratic reforms and a transition to civilian rule by Oct. 1.

India, Pakistan agree to disagree

Associated Press

NEW DELHI, India — Crushing short-lived hopes of a breakthrough, Pakistan denied India's claim Friday that it had agreed to top-level talks to try to cool hostilities between the two neighbors and nuclear rivals.

Pakistani Foreign Minister Gohar Ayub Khan said India was "trying to pull a fast one" by announcing the talks without Pakistan's agreement.

The dispute came as the foreign ministers of eight leading industrial nations stepped up sanctions against India and Pakistan, deciding at a meeting in London to deny all loans except those earmarked for humanitarian projects.

The conflicting statements highlighted the tension between India and Pakistan and the difficulties of finding a common language. The two have both suggested talks in the wake of their nuclear tests last month, but disagree on the venue and agenda for such negotiations.

India said in a statement Friday that it had received Pakistan's response to proposals submitted in January for resuming negotiations — suspended since September — over the disputed state of Kashmir.

"Our view that the bilateral dialogue process should proceed ahead for mutual benefit is finding acceptance in Pakistan," it said. "We invite an official delegation led by the Foreign Secretary of Pakistan to visit New Delhi on June 22, 1998."

But Khan said his country had accepted no such invitation. Besides, if talks were held, he said, they would be in Islamabad, not India's capital.

Asked why India would make such a statement, he told The Associated Press: "I don't know ... You wouldn't even give a tea party like that." In a separate interview with the British Broadcasting Corp., Khan accused India of "trying to pull a fast one."

Any meeting would be the first direct contact between senior diplomats since a Hindu nationalist government took power in New Delhi in March, adopting a harsher tone toward Islamic Pakistan.

Tensions have been rising since May 11 when India conducted a series of nuclear tests and proclaimed itself a nuclear weapons state. Pakistan followed suit two weeks later, despite international pressure for restraint. Both later declared a moratorium on further tests.

A statement released in Islamabad invited India's foreign secretary to the Pakistani capital June 20, and said the Indian proposal was "totally unrealistic."

Khan said Pakistan's message to India on Thursday was a proposal for a two-item agenda: confidence-building measures to reduce tensions, and the territorial dispute over Kashmir.

The Indian statement cited a broader agenda, including drug trafficking and economic cooperation.

Disarmament was not an agenda item in either country's proposal.

Both sides have pledged to continue developing missile systems mounted with nuclear warheads capable of reaching each other's largest cities.

Kashmir, site of two wars between India and Pakistan, is the key sticking point. Pakistan says all efforts to resolve Kashmir are doomed without international mediation. India says Kashmir is a problem for the two countries to sort out alone.

Kashmir was split between India and Pakistan after the Asian subcontinent gained independence from Britain in 1947. Indian-controlled Jammu-Kashmir is India's only Muslim-dominated state.

Also Friday, Pakistan introduced a budget that increases defense spending to $3.2 billion — its largest expenditure after debt servicing. That is up 9 percent from last year.

Lubbock teachers use Vietnam War archives instead of textbooks

LUBBOCK (AP) — For long moments after showing her class a video about Vietnam prisoners of war, high school history teacher Anita Phillips pretended to search for papers in her desk to give her tearful students time to compose themselves.

It was then that she realized she couldn't possibly deal with the emotionally volatile issues of the Vietnam War, given a textbook with scant few paragraphs about the subject and only two weeks to teach it in.

"Right now, many teachers just don't have the tools to answer the tough questions and look at the issues the way they need to be examined," said Mrs. Phillips, who teaches in Lubbock.

"The danger is that teachers will settle for a superficial curriculum and the truth will be lost."

Mrs. Phillips' frustrations were shared by several of the 120 high school history teachers from across the country who gathered Friday at the Texas Tech University Vietnam Archive to learn better ways to teach about the war, which took about 57,000 American lives and divided the country politically.

The center, the nation's second-largest Vietnam archive outside of Washington D.C., has held seminars before for historians, but this weekend's session is the first for educators of teen-agers.

Among the speakers is retired Col. Roger Donlon, the first Vietnam Medal of Honor winner.

"Outside of religion, I'm not sure there are many other things you could teach that would be more emotional to young people than the Vietnam War," said Donlon, 64, of Leavenworth, Kan.

"Programs like this ensure that a sense of pride and respect can be rekindled in our young people for those who have given their all to make sure that our flag can still fly."

Vietnam veteran Harry Lientz of Chicago said that teachers who find themselves in situations like Mrs. Phillips should try inviting Vietnam veterans into class to tell their stories.

"Veterans always get emotional," Lientz said. "Having actual veterans there increases teen-agers security in being emotional. Vets will be the first to say it's okay to cry."

Karen Jones, a high school history teacher from Pittsburgh, said she was drawn to the seminar after years of being disappointed in high school history books.

"My problem is that I can't find a textbook that really gives any definitive information ... they all just gloss over the issue," Ms. Jones said.

Bush headlines Friday's general session at Texas GOP convention

By Juan B. Elizondo Jr.
Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Republican officeholders joined forces Friday to rally party faithful as the Texas GOP convention opened.

Gov. George W. Bush was among those scheduled to speak, along with U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, Republican lieutenant governor candidate Rick Perry and state Sen. J.E. Buster Brown, of Lake Jackson.

Mrs. Hutchison said party members need to remember and spread the Republican message.

"We stand for strong families, for small business owners ... for a strong national defense and for leaders we can respect in this country," she said.

Bush is seeking to become the first Texas governor re-elected to back-to-back, four-year terms. Recent opinion polls have shown the governor with a big lead over Democratic challenger, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro.

But the governor has said he will not take for granted his apparent popularity with voters. He also said he believes the more than 10,000 delegates to the convention will not get bogged down in contentious debate.

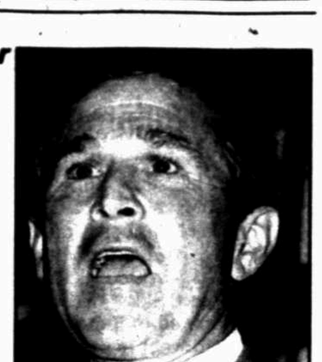
"I think the focus is on ... the best slate of candidates we've ever had. And this is a year in which I think Republicans understand that by getting together and by turning out the vote we have a chance to elect some really, really decent good strong people," the governor said.

GOP Chairwoman Susan Weddington, who was expected to be re-elected Saturday, announced to the delegates a special party committee aimed at maintaining the GOP Senate majority and taking control of the state House in November.

"Republicans must gain a majority now," she said.

'The reason for our party's growth is both simple and profound. We are the party of the ideas that are based on principle and conservative values. We are the party that insists on performance and results. We are the party that respects individuals and we're the party that knows that the most important job parents will ever have is to love and nurture their children..'

— Gov. George W. Bush



BAN: Offenders risk being liable for damage, fine

(From 1A)

"Unfortunately, the way the law is structured, it is very restrictive as to what the commissioners' court of a given county can do by way of trying to protect rangelands," he said.

McCrary said that the commissioners' action and public awareness of the dangers of wildfires during the drought "will call some attention to the need for extreme caution with the use of all fireworks."

Midland County Attorney Russell Malm said, "People can still use any fireworks that are not classified as 'aerial fireworks.' We are not prohibiting at all what people are selling or buying," Malm said. "They can buy aerial fireworks" but cannot legally ignite them in Midland County.

But people who buy those aerial fireworks and ignite them run the risk of being fined up to $500 for a Class C misdemeanor and possibly being liable for any damage they might cause, he said.

City laws prohibit the possession, sale and igniting of any fireworks within the city limits and 5,000 feet, or almost a mile, beyond those limits.

"You cannot possess or pop or transport fireworks within the city limits," said Assistant Midland Fire Marshal Lon Dominguez.

Even outside the city limits, "It is illegal to shoot them off of roads and highways," Dominguez said. "You can shoot them on private property as long as you have permission of the owners."

Dominguez said that celebrators should be cognizant of the dangers of fireworks possibly causing fires damage to property and injury to people, including firefighters.

Dealers in fireworks legally can sell their merchandise in Texas "10 days prior the Fourth of July and 10 days prior to New Year's Day," Dominguez said.

In addition to the aerial-fireworks ban, the Midland County Commissioners' Court has ordered a ban on outdoor burning. Both bans are similarly the action which the court took during the 1996 drought.

The Martin County Commissioners' Court in Stanton on Friday ordered a ban on the use of aerial fireworks and reinstituted a ban on outdoor burning.

"We're hoping by doing this and by my washing my car, surely we will get a rain, maybe a shower," said Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport.

FORCE: Criminal allegations have not been specified release.

The 15 counties are Andrews, Borden, Crane, Culberson, Ector, Jeff Davis, Loving, Midland, Presidio, Reagan, Reeves, Terrell, Upton, Ward, and Winkler.

"I feel that this cooperative effort involving all aspects of law enforcement — local, state, and federal — is the best approach for fighting drugs in our state," Bush said.

County officials are to respond within 30 days to the governor's invitation to participate in the West Texas task force. The federal grant in the drug-war effort requires a 25 percent local match.

Texas Ranger Capt. Barry Caver of Midland and other DPS officers are to meet in Midland Monday with representatives of the Texas Attorney General's Office and with Capt. Floyd Goodwin of the DPS Narcotics Service in Austin.

"We are going to do our job regardless of who gets bent out of shape as a result and then report what we find," said Caver, who directed law enforcement's efforts during the Fort Davis standoff last year. "It is just part of the job. We're up to the challenge, though."

Linda Edwards, deputy director of communications for Bush, said that Goodwin would be in West Texas next week to audit the contraband evidence gathered by the basin task force that is in an Ector County vault.

Last week in an effort to salvage the task force, the board and the Ector County Commissioners' Court opted for retired DPS captain, Arvin Kilpatrick of Midland, to be temporary commander.

Finley and his assistant commander, Jack Brewer, voluntarily withdrew from the task force until the investigation was completed.

Since then, however, Brewer has taken the job of warden of the privately operated jail in Odessa, Finley said.

On June 5, Painter and Ector Commissioner Mike Patton went to Austin to appeal to the governor's staff to renew task force funding while the allegations were being investigated.

Painter, noting that the allegations included those from a disgruntled former investigator, said that the task force board had commissioned an investigation by a team headed up by Deputy Clayton McKinney. The team didn't found anything amiss.

The Governor's Office has not been specific about the serious criminal allegations.

"As long as these allegations are still under investigation, the Governor's Office's comments about them will be limited," Ms. Edwards said. "And the governor recognizes that and wanted to be able to act quickly to respond to what has occurred with the task force."

Ms. Edwards said that it was "certainly conceivable" that the yet unnamed-DPS commander of the new task force would hire ex-agents from the defunct task force.

"The new commander from the Department of Public Safety should be able to begin the hiring process soon, and many of those individuals may choose to apply."

Mark Greenhaw, a 42-year-old former basin task force agent who cited his "love (for) working narcotics" cases, indicated that he would apply for a job with the new task force. "I feel it's badly needed."

Finley said that if his former agents "want to apply for this other task force, that's fine. I can't blame them. We all have families to feed and expenses" to be met.

Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre, who said that the basin task force has "done a lot of good work," is concerned about the 70 cases he has yet to prosecute and the availability of ex-agents to testify. "These officers will take other jobs and be scattered.

"We do need a (drug) task force in this area," Schorre said.

Finley, who said that he and the DPS' Goodwin were at the DPS Academy in 1973, said that the implication of the federal-state investigations "doesn't set very well with me.

"I have always stood up for the task force and local control of the task force," Finley said. "And that hasn't always set real well with Austin. They've got a little ax to grind, and I guess they're grinding it, doing a helluva job."

Finley said that the state's drug task forces are "all controlled by the (regional) boards of sheriffs and chiefs of police." In some cases, Finley said that the boards have "decided to let somebody with the DPS be the commander."

Finley thinks that the political powers in Austin "are just upset with me because I don't play their silly little game. I stand up for the task force and the sheriffs and the chiefs (of police) in the task force, and that's where the control should be. That's the way this was set up 10 years ago. The (federal-grant) money would come to the Governor's Office and then to local law enforcement."

CHARGES: Son emphasizes father's innocence angry," Adrian Chavez said. "That's going to come out when we challenge this."

He said that the term "conspiracy" is a broad and generic term used in the federal court system. That's probably why his father and Hernandez, a long-time family friend, are under investigation, he said.

"I'd like to make it clear that my father's not charged with drug dealing. He's not involved with drugs and he's never touched them," Adrian Chavez said. "He's charged with conspiracy, not distribution or selling ... but he's innocent."

Continental Airlines pilots agree to five-year deal

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines pilots Friday approved a five-year contract that both sides say will bring paychecks and benefits up to industry standards while offering job security in the wake of an alliance with Northwest Airlines.

"Of the 3,129 pilots who voted on the agreement, 2,063 supported the contract, or 66 percent. Voting against the February deal were 1,066 pilots. About 4,000 pilots are covered under the contract.

Union officials lauded the pact as one that protects job security, improves salaries, vacation time and profit sharing and gives pilots one of the best pension programs in the industry.

"It is significant that our negotiating team, backed up by the solidarity of our members, was able to achieve so much so fast," said Len Nikolai, president of the Independent Association of Continental Pilots. "We reached our goal in less than 15 months in an industry where contract negotiations often drag on for years."

The Houston-based carrier shared mutual admiration for the union.

"It was a tough set of negotiations. Both sides went in looking for a win-win and that's what we achieved," said Mike Campbell, Continental's vice president of labor relations. "This contract is good for the pilots and good for Continental."

RESIGNS: Former SWAT officer reassigned to airport said. A subsequent trial date was set for June 22.

In September, former Police Chief Richard Czech recommended that McKee be terminated from the department. However, City Manager Mike McGregor reduced the punishment to a five-day suspension after McKee appealed Czech's recommendation.

McKee, a former SWAT officer, was reassigned from patrol to the airport operation.

He was also the subject of an Internal Affairs investigation stemming from an off-duty run-in with a Midessa Auto Theft Task Force officer.

McKee was pulled over near his Greenwood residence for driving without a current inspection sticker and for not having a driver's license.

Though a criminal citation was not issued, the task force officer filed a complaint regarding McKee's alleged misconduct, police officials said.

President: Mexico committed to Chiapas talks

LAS MARGARITAS, Mexico (AP) — With fears of renewed war between Zapatista rebels and the government, Mexico's president flew to Chiapas on Friday for the fourth time in just over a month to defend his administration's stated desire for dialogue and pledge money for towns where rebel support runs high.

Some analysts say a police and army raid on an Indian village this week is the latest indication that the government has chosen military might over the negotiating table.

But President Ernesto Zedillo told residents in Las Margaritas, 85 miles southeast of the state capital, Tuxtla Gutierrez, that the government's goal is negotiation.

"We want dialogue. We don't want to defeat anyone. The government will not abandon this position," he said.

As he spoke, about a dozen people unfurled banners demanding a halt to violence. "Senor Zedillo, we do not want more war," one said.

Guadalupe Gonzalez, 33, who held up a sign reading "Senor Zedillo, we want respect for our human rights," said she is not sure she believes the government still wants to negotiate. "There is much reflexion. There is not much freedom of expression," she said.

On Wednesday, government forces clashed with apparent Zapatista rebels in the municipality of El Bosque as they tried to evict a parallel town council that supported the Zapatistas, who took up arms in 1994 to demand greater democracy and Indian rights.

The clash, which killed nine people, was the first direct skirmish between the government and the Zapatistas since peace talks broke down nearly two years ago.

Some analysts said the government's tactics signaled that officials have given up the idea of restarting talks, and are focusing instead on isolating the rebels from their civilian supporters.

"They have decided not to continue with negotiations, but they can't say that because public opinion is in favor of resolving the Chiapas problem through negotiations," Lorenzo Meyer, a political historian in Mexico City, said.

Meyer said the government over past months has been eliminating the barriers to its plan — expelling foreign human rights observers from Chiapas, forcing the collapse of independent groups mediating the peace talks and strengthening ruling party support groups in Chiapas, including paramiltary groups.

In a speech Friday, Chiapas Gov. Roberto Albores Guillen took a harder line than Zedillo, vowing to continue using force to achieve what he called the rule of law.

"The return to legality is not negotiable in Chiapas. We are going to make the law prevail in Chiapas," he said.

Zedillo's trip to Chiapas had been planned in advance and did not include stops near this week's clashes. All of his stops were in towns dominated by supporters of his Institutional Revolutionary Party.

In Las Margaritas, a low-land town where many government supporters have fled after being driven from their villages by Zapatista supporters, the president signed an accord for "political stability, community reconciliation, social development and economic growth."

The accord is designed to provide special aid to 42 municipalities "that need special attention," he said. The list included all the rebel supporting towns the government has raided in recent months — including El Bosque, the site of Wednesday's raid.

The 42 municipalities will receive $290 million this year for schools, health clinics, water purification plants and roads.

Zedillo said the towns were chosen for their extreme poverty, high population growth, lack of jobs, and need for social development.

Albanian militants kill Serb policemen in Kosovo

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Boldly striking just outside the capital, Kosovo's ethnic Albanian militants killed two Serb policemen in one of a series of attacks around the secessionist province, they said. Militants claimed Friday to have mustered a 15,000-strong fighting force for the escalating battle against Serb rule.

Thursday's attacks by separatists were followed by new fighting Friday in the Decani region in western Kosovo. Ethnic Albanian sources said seven villages were under Serb attack, pummeled by artillery and grenade launchers.

One ethnic Albanian was killed, they said; there was no independent confirmation of their report.

Last week's latest Serb offensive in western Kosovo prompted NATO to announce Thursday it would stage a show of air power to persuade Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic to halt the assaults.

Ethnic Albanians outnumber Serbs by 9-to-1 in Kosovo. Most want independence from Serbia, which in 1989 stripped the province of broad autonomy and has governed through military and police rule ever since. More than 250 people have been killed since March, when Serb forces started a crackdown aimed at Albanian militants.

An estimated 60,000 villagers fled their homes in Kosovo during the latest Serb offensive, the U.N. refugee agency said. Thousands have crossed rugged mountains into Albania and Macedonia. The nations border Serbia, the dominant of two republics remaining in the former Yugoslavia.

A U.N. war crimes tribunal said Friday it was sending investigators on a U.S.-backed mission to Kosovo to check out allegations of atrocities in the Serb offensive.

Militants have gained much more popular support since March, and young Kosovo Albanians who live in western Europe have flocked to Albania to organize or fight.

The Kosovo Liberation Army, a shadowy group which first emerged in 1996, said it now commanded 15,000 fighters and named Jakup Krasniqi, a teacher from the Drenica region, as its spokesman.

Financial disclosures give insight into lawmakers' lives, affairs

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — From London to Rome, from Greece to Uzbekistan, members of Congress moved restlessly around the globe last year, with interest groups footing the bill. Back home, they found time to invest in the stock market, participate in private businesses and work on their own real estate holdings.

Along with making trips and laws — and in many cases, money — they also did good works.

At 95, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., sits on a regional advisory council for the Boy Scouts. Democratic Sen. Patrick Leahy of Vermont is a trustee for two nonprofit hunger groups, Bread for the World and World Hunger Year.

These, and thousands of other insights into how lawmakers lead their public and private lives emerge from financial disclosure statements released on Friday.

It's a limited exercise in self-revelation. Under the law that Congress imposed on itself, lawmakers are required only to list assets and liabilities within ranges, say $1 to $1,000, or over $50 million.

Most of them earned the same salary: $133,600 for the rank-and-file in 1997 and a little more for the leaders. They are not required to disclose the value of their homes.

As a group, the lawmakers range from the very wealthy — men like Sens. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia and Herb Kohl of Wisconsin who listed stock in the professional basketball Milwaukee Bucks as worth more than $50 million — to others of far more limited means.

Count Majority Leader Dick Armey of Texas in that category. One of the most powerful men in Congress, Armey reported an account at the Congressional Federal Credit Union, valued at $15,000 or less, as his only asset. He reported a pension of $2,100 from his former job as economics professor. He listed a line of credit at a Texas bank as a liability — between $15,001 to $50,000.

So, too, the top Democrat in the House, Rep. Dick Gephardt of Missouri. He sold assets during 1997 — a year in which one daughter got married, a second was in college and a son was finishing business school. Gephardt and his wife, Jane, also listed as liabilities two student loans and a loan on a life insurance policy.

The two most powerful men in Congress are better off, financially.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich reported investment funds worth between $197,000 and $606,000. He also made $156.60 in residuals for his appearance in a rerun of the "Murphy Brown" television comedy. He donated it to charity.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., listed assets of between $191,000 and $569,000, including rental property and undeveloped land in Hattiesburg and Carroll County, Miss. He also holds individual retirement accounts in the form of mutual funds, and is a member of an investment club.

If there's a bipartisan trend, it's in the propensity to travel on someone else's nickel.

Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and means Committee, traveled to Uzbekistan, courtesy of the Asia Pacific Exchange Foundation. Emdee Productions sent Kennedy and his wife to Ireland, the senator's ancestral home, for the taping of a documentary.

Gingrich took a widely publicized trip to London, paid for by Arco.

The Aspen Institute, a nonprofit organization, sent Rep. James Oberstar, D-Minn., to Dresden in Germany. The Congressional Economic Leadership Institute sent Rep. Bob Livingston, R-La., to Frankfurt and Paris. The American Israel Education Foundation sent Reps. Bobby Etheridge, D-N.C. and Mark Neumann, R-Wis., and others, to Israel.

Rep. Thomas E. Petri flew to Tokyo, courtesy of the Japan Society. Rep. Henry Hyde visited Rome, on the tab of the Aelle Parliamentary Observatory.

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., made two trips to Greece paid for by others.

Back home, members of Congress reported varied business interests.

Rep. Bob Stump, R-Ariz., list assets in a cotton farm valued at between $500,000 and $1 million. Rep. Bill Goodling, R-Pa., and his wife invest in horses.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., holds shares in Brent & Sam's Cookies, located in Little Rock, valued at between $100,001 to $250,000.

And Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., listed investments that include limited partnerships that produce oil and real estate in Texas.

Numerous lawmakers invest in the stock market. Sen. Don Nickles of Oklahoma, second-ranking Republican in the Senate, made several purchases during the year, including Microsoft, the database software company Oracle Corp., the food company PepsiCo, pharmaceutical giant Merck & Co. and some real estate companies. He bought, then sold, stock in Comcast Corp.

While gifts are generally banned to members of Congress, some lawmakers appealed successfully to the ethics committees of their two houses for waivers.

Thus, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan was able to keep a dictionary that the writer, William F. Buckley, a longtime friend, gave him.

And Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, will be allowed to keep the wedding china, the goblets, the silver coffee and tea service and the professional kitchen knives that he and Karen Waldbilling received when they married last year.

Judge orders new trial in child molestation case

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The judge in one of the most lurid mass child-molestation cases of the 1980s ordered a new trial for one of the defendants Friday, and ruled that the youngsters cannot testify because they have been hopelessly tainted by investigators' leading questions.

The ruling gutted the case against Cheryl Amirault LeFave, who was convicted along with her mother and brother of molesting children at the Fells Acres day care center that the family ran.

Citing new research on children's courtroom behavior, Superior Court Judge Isaac A. Borenstein said that because of prosecutors' suggestive and leading interview techniques, it is impossible to tell if the accusers, now teen-agers, were telling the truth.

"Their testimony has been forever rendered unreliable," Borenstein said.

Prosecutors immediately appealed the ruling.

"Without the children, there is no case, and that is what is outrageous about this ruling," prosecutor Lynn Rooney said.

Ms. LeFave, 39, her late mother Violet Amirault, and her brother Gerald "Tooky" Amirault were all convicted in 1987 of molesting about 40 children, ages 3 to 6, at the day care center in Malden. None of the youngsters has publicly recanted any of the allegations.

On Friday, Borenstein dismissed all the charges against Mrs. Amirault, who died at age 74 last September. Gerald Amirault, who was tried and convicted separately in 1986, remains in prison.

Their convictions came during a wave of mass child-molestation cases in the 1980s. Several other convictions from that period have been overturned.

Borenstein said the Fells Acres case has two tragedies: "the inability to ever know accurately and reliably whether these children were ever abused and secondly sacrificing the rights" of the accused.

As the judge read his decision, Ms. LeFave raised one trembling hand to her mouth, grasped her attorney's hand with the other, and began to cry. Several family members also wept.

"I felt humanized by a judge for the first time," Ms. LeFave said. "Everything that I've tried to prove is there on paper, and it has set me free."

In his ruling, Borenstein read aloud testimony in which a child denied at least 10 times that Ms. LeFave had ever photographed her nude. Only after several interviews by police, her parents and social workers did the girl say that Ms. LeFave had abused her, the judge said.

In an April hearing, Ms. Rooney conceded that prosecution expert Susan Kelley used flawed techniques to question children. But she argued it didn't discredit the children's testimony against Ms. LeFave.

GM, workers battle over company's future

DETROIT (AP) — Worried that the progress in streamlining its operations hasn't been enough, General Motors Corp. is in an all-out war with its workers to make itself a leaner, more competitive global automaker.

Though GM profits total billions of dollars thanks to a healthy U.S. economy, it still lags behind Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. and the foreign "transplant" automakers in factory productivity.

GM has reduced its U.S. work force by 39,000 hourly jobs in the past five years, but still needs to cut an additional 50,000 jobs to become competitive, analysts say. To the United Auto Workers, which has seen its membership decline sharply over the past two decades, that's unacceptable.

The war over GM's future is being fought in Flint, the birthplace of the company and the UAW.

GM's North American production, already crippled by a UAW strike that began June 5 at a Flint stamping plant where sheet-metal parts are made, could come to a virtual standstill by the end of next week because of a strike that began Thursday at the Delphi Flint East parts plant.

Talks resumed at both plants Friday. There was no word on any progress.

By Friday, about 50,900 workers had been laid off at 13 assembly plants and 60 parts plants in the United States, Mexico and Canada because of a shortage of parts from the stamping plant. That is in addition to the nearly 9,200 workers on strike at both plants.

The main issue in dispute is jobs.

The UAW has portrayed the strike as a fight to keep U.S. jobs from being exported to Mexico, Thailand and South America. Its leaders accuse GM of breaking its "social contract" with Americans to provide good-paying, secure jobs.

GM maintains it needs to make its plants more efficient to compete with nonunion plants operated by the Japanese and European "transplants" and foreign suppliers. One of GM's complaints is a practice, denied by the union, that allows the metal stamping workers to get paid for a full shift even if the day's quota is met in less than eight hours.

The union says GM reneged on a promise to upgrade the Flint metal stamping plant.

The No. 1 automaker lags behind its U.S. competitors, Ford and Chrysler, in the trend toward buying more parts from lower-cost outside suppliers. GM gets less than 40 percent of its parts from outsiders, compared with as much as 75 percent at Chrysler.

That fact is a source of fear for the workers at Delphi Flint East. The spark plugs, air filters and other low-tech parts they assemble could be much less expensively made in Mexico, where wages are a fraction of those paid to union workers in the United States and Canada.

Adding to that fear are recent news reports that GM is planning to double its production in Mexico in the next decade and is considering moving production of its next generation of small cars overseas as well.

GM executives have been talking for some time about the need to become a more global automaker. Last month's announcement of Chrysler's plans to merge with Germany's Daimler-Benz simply made that need clearer, said David Littmann, an economist with Comerica Bank in Detroit.

"GM understood two years ago that it had to move quickly," Littmann said. "Chrysler is just another justification for the accelerated pace of change that the union finds so loathsome."

Though it has made major efficiency gains by modernizing plants and designing new models that are less labor-intensive to build, GM still is considered overstaffed by most measures of plant productivity.

While GM wants to cut about 50,000 more jobs to catch up with its competitors, it plans to make the reductions gradually through attrition at the rate of about 10,000 to 12,000 jobs a year.

"That's the course that they're on," said David Cole, an industry expert at the University of Michigan. "They're not going to deviate a whole lot from that. The trick is, how do you get labor to work with them on that?"

Littmann said Wall Street is taking the long view in endorsing GM's hard line against the UAW. The hope is that GM will become as efficient as its competitors by the middle of the next decade. GM's stock has fallen $5.56 since before the first strike started last week to close Friday at $69.87 1/2.

Woodham: Heartbreak, occult to blame for shootings

By Jay Hughes
Associated Press

HATTIESBURG, Miss. — Luke Woodham testified Friday that heartbreak over losing a girlfriend and fascination with occult rituals led to his mother's stabbing and his "reign of terror" over classmates.

"I'm so sorry. I'm so sorry," Woodham sobbed as he tried to explain why he opened fire with a hunting rifle at Pearl High School, the first of several high-profile shootings at schools around the country.

The 17-year-old boy told jurors that after his breakup with Christina Menefee, 16, he fell under the influence of Grant Boyette, 19, a friend he described as both a mentor and a tormentor who introduced him to the occult.

"He told me I had to kill my mom," Woodham said. "He told me I had to get the gun and the car and go to school and get my revenge on Christy and cause a reign of terror."

Menefee and Lydia Dew, 17, died in the Oct. 1 shooting attack at Pearl High School hours after Woodham killed his mother, 50-year-old Mary Woodham. Seven others were wounded during the rampage.

Woodham, who is pursuing an insanity defense, testified against the advice of his defense team.

If convicted, he faces up to two life sentences for the slayings plus additional time on seven counts of aggravated assault.

"It's not justified," he said. "It shouldn't have happened. There's nothing on Earth to justify the taking of three lives, wounding of seven people and giving all those kids nightmares."

Woodham had relied on the same insanity defense last week when he was found guilty of killing his mother and sentenced to life in prison.

Two prosecution experts testified Friday that Woodham understood what he was doing when he opened fire with a hunting rifle inside the school.

"In my opinion, Mr. Woodham does have a personality disorder, but he does not have any major mental disorder," psychiatrist Dr. Reb McMichael said.

Woodham said he did not want to kill, but Boyette had told him he would be "spineless and gutless" if he failed to act.

Boyette and several other alleged members of the cult-like group known as "the Kroth" have been charged with conspiracy in the school shootings.

Attorneys promise zealous defense of suspected race killers

JASPER (AP) — Mayor R.C. Horn said Friday he's been asked whether the brutal slaying of James Byrd Jr. will bring the East Texas timber town back together.

Horn says his answer is: "We have not been apart."

The mayor was among speakers in a memorial service for Byrd held at the Greater New Bethel Baptist Church. A basket of yellow ribbons was placed by the door so those attending could wear a symbol of Byrd's death.

"I know Jasper, Texas, has done a lot of praying," said the Rev. Walter Diggles.

The preacher related how his brother was murdered in Dallas in 1968 and the killers later released. Diggles said he found it in his heart to forgive those reponsible.

"I realized that hate engenders more hate," he said.

About 100 Jasper residents attended an earlier viewing at Robinson Community Funeral home.

Funeral director Billye Robinson said Byrd's family is trying hard to forgive Byrd's assailants.

Many people attending the viewing said that vengeance was not something they were seeking.

"God will handle that," Robinson said. "The Bible says all things go for the good."

Byrd's gray and silver casket was surrounded by dozens of flower arrangements. A framed picture of Byrd was placed on the casket.

Oleather Cooper, 39, knew Byrd his whole life and recalled how he was always singing.

Ms. Cooper said she is against the death penalty even for such a brutal crime.

"Death is too easy," she said. "I am against the death penalty."

Another of Byrd's friends, Gwen Tudmon, 36, said love is the answer.

"I say love your enemies," she said. Asked whether that was still possible in this case, she replied, "I can."

Byrd's burial was scheduled Saturday. Relatives said they haven't changed the simple plans they made before the killing became an international story.

"We think, basically, enough is enough," Byrd's sister, Clara Taylor, said of the spotlight on her family. "What we really want is for everybody to leave us alone Saturday."

U.S. Rep. Jim Turner, who represents the Jasper area, called on all Americans to drive with their headlights on Saturday as a memorial to Byrd.

Meanwhile at least one of the three suspects, John William King, has denied taking part, attorney Randy Walker said.

"Basically, he tells me he had no involvement in this murder, so we intend to plead not guilty and we intend to go to trial," Walker said.

Lawrence Russell Brewer, 31, Shawn Allen Berry and King, both 23, are charged with murder in the slaying of James Byrd Jr., who authorities believe was dragged to death behind Berry's pickup truck simply because he was black.

Juvenile crime statistics down, despite high-profile attacks

By Kelley Shannon
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO — A 15-year-old boy in Burnet is accused of shooting and wounding his mother with an AK-47 rifle.

A fourth-grader in Dallas beats and sexually assaults a 3-year-old girl. Two brothers, ages 7 and 8, confess to helping attack the child.

The stories are chilling, and because the alleged offenders are so young they make big headlines. But despite several recent high-profile incidents, juvenile crime in Texas is on the decline, state officials say.

A total of 181,625 juvenile arrests were made in 1997, down 2.4 percent from 186,103 in 1996, according to statistics compiled by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

"It's the first time in ten years that juvenile crime has gone down," said Tony Fabelo, executive director of the Criminal Justice Policy Council, an Austin-based state agency that studies crime trends.

Juvenile justice reforms passed by the Texas Legislature in 1995 are playing a role in the decline, Fabelo said.

"We are definitely locking up more kids that were violent and recidivist," he said. "So we don't have these kids running around if they get in trouble."

Though the public's perception may be that juvenile crime is getting worse, it may be out of fear that youth crimes are becoming "more lethal and more random," Fabelo said.

Youths arrested are finding that juvenile authorities are intervening more during probation periods and that the time of incarceration in the Texas Youth Commission has increased, Fabelo said.

More local police, community and school programs also are aimed at curbing youth crime, he said.

In San Antonio, for instance, drive-by shootings — crimes committed largely by youth gangs — have dropped significantly. In 1996, there were 445 drive-by shootings. It fell to 244 last year. There were only 74 through the end of May this year.

The San Antonio Police Department attributes the drop partly to more community policing and to a youth anti-crime initiative.

"Some of these youth gangs are starting to get the message that we're out there," said Officer Al Ballew, a police spokesman.

Gangs also are operating more covertly now, rather than through attention-grabbing crimes like drive-by shootings, Ballew said.

Because the state's youth commission has added bed space, juvenile offenders are serving more of their sentences before being released, said Judy Briscoe, TYC chief of staff.

Approximately 4,000 beds are now available, up from about 2,500 four years ago, Ms. Briscoe said.

The number of new youths entering the TYC system has steadily risen from 1,564 in fiscal year 1993 to 2,881 in fiscal 1997. Currently there are about 3,880 youths overseen by the commission, whether in lockups or halfway houses or through parole.

Among the newcomers are more children with mental illness and brain damage from drug abuse, Ms. Briscoe said.

"We are seeing a dramatic increase in the numbers of kids who have serious emotional disturbances and mental illnesses," she said. "That points up the need for more services in the community."

McGwire's blasts

PHOENIX — He's halfway there.
Mark McGwire hit his 31st home run Friday night, a grand slam that left the St. Louis slugger 31 homers shy of breaking Roger Maris' record.
McGwire, who in batting practice became the first player to hit a ball completely out of the new Bank One Ballpark, connected in the third inning off Arizona's Andy Benes.
The Cardinals were playing their 65th game Friday night, of which McGwire has played in 59. Maris had 26 homers in the New York Yankees' first 65 games while setting the mark in 1961.
McGwire leads the majors in home runs and RBIs (80).
It was McGwire's 11th career slam. He has now homered in his last 11 series, having missed last week's three-game set at Los Angeles because of back spasms.
McGwire has hit 15 home runs in his last 20 games. After striking out in the first inning against Benes, he hit a 438-foot drive during the Cardinals' eight-run third.
The distance of McGwire's drive in batting practice was given on the scoreboard as 560 feet, but stadium construction manager John Wasson estimated the distance at 510 feet.
It was the sixth of seven homers McGwire hit in 21 swings during batting practice. The ball landed on a ledge above the American flag in left center and bounced through a window onto Jefferson Street.
The 20-foot-wide ledge — 483 feet from home plate and 89 feet above the field — helps support a huge advertising panel that was opened to allow wind to circulate in the roofed ballpark. The roof also was open.
Thousands of fans jammed the left-field grandstand and balconies left and right of the scoreboard to watch McGwire's batting show before the game.

De La Hoya continues mission to save sport

■ Even boxing's "Golden Boy" is surprised that the largest crowd in 20 years is expected to look on today.

By Tim Dahlberg
AP Sports Writer

EL PASO — Oscar De La Hoya won four championships and became a multimillionaire before he was 25. Now he has a more lofty goal — resurrecting the sport of boxing.

If the fans of El Paso are any indication, he's well on his way.

Some 50,000 people are expected Saturday night to watch De La Hoya defend the WBC welterweight championship against France's Patrick Charpentier — one of the biggest crowds to watch a fight in the United States since Muhammad Ali fought Leon Spinks before 63,350 20 years ago at New Orleans.

It's an impressive display of drawing power for what figures to be little more than a good workout for De La Hoya before he moves on to bigger fights against Julio Cesar Chavez and Felix Trinidad.

"It goes to show you that boxing is revived because of my presence," De La Hoya said. "I've done a lot for boxing and have a good image. But I'm a bit surprised that 50,000 people will be there."

With Mike Tyson sidelined, De La Hoya is the premier attraction in boxing, a welterweight who makes heavyweight dollars.

He'll make $4 million of them against Charpentier, adding to a bank account that swelled by about $33 million last year when he fought

Utah comes to life with Game 5 win; Bulls must capture title in Salt Lake

By Richie Whitt
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

CHICAGO — Postpone the coronation. Suddenly we've got a competition.

With the table set last night for the Chicago Bulls' sixth championship and Michael Jordan's fond farewell, Karl Malone and the Utah Jazz crashed the party with a stunning, dramatic, 83-81 victory before a shocked crowd at United Center.

"We're still in the hunt, still kicking," Jazz point guard John Stockton said. "Now we can go back home, where we've fought so hard to be all season."

The win, made possible via surprising production from Utah's Antoine Carr (12 points) and a dismal night from Chicago's Scottie Pippen (2-of-16 shooting), pushes the best-of-seven Finals back to Salt Lake City for Game 6 tomorrow night. The Jazz, which got a breakout, 39-point performance from Malone, trails 3-2 but has the final two games, if necessary, at the Delta Center.

Four of the five games have been decided in the final 40 seconds by five points or less.

"I went riding with Todd the state trooper and we went out and weighed some 18-wheelers at the weigh station," said Malone, who hit 17 of 27 shots after a below-par first four games. "You guys can laugh if you want, but I got totally out of the city, totally away from basketball, and it cleared my mind."

No team has rallied from a 3-1 deficit to win the Finals, but the Jazz has a chance because the Mailman finally delivered. Malone, who averaged 20 points before last night, was so dominant with turnaround jumpers and drives to the paint from the post that the Jazz didn't have to use the pick-and-roll play.

"It was one of those nights for him," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said. "Everything he shot went down."

Nursing a four-point lead in waning seconds, Malone fouled Chicago's Toni Kukoc on a 3-point attempt. But Kukoc, who scored 30 points on remarkable 11-of-13 shooting, missed the third free throw to leave Utah leading by two. Carr, who started the second half after not playing much at all in the series, knocked down two free throws with 10.4 seconds left for an 82-78 lead. After Kukoc drilled another 3-pointer and Jeff Hornacek hit one of two free throws, Chicago had a final shot to win or tie. But with 0.8 seconds left, Michael Jordan took an inbound pass and lofted a desperation 3-pointer that failed to hit the rim.

"It's the most exciting thing in sports to see who will fight, and tonight we fought," Jazz coach Jerry Sloan said. "Our backs are still to the wall, but we've earned a chance to play at home again, and that's all we can ask for."

Whether Utah's victory is a major travel inconvenience or a permanent roadblock to Chicago's shot at history

Where's the Bulls' Defense? Not in Chicago

By Nancy Armour
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO — With Jeff Hornacek streaking down the court, Scottie Pippen launched himself forward, barely getting a hand on Hornacek to draw the oh-so-crucial foul.

It was one of those nights.

No matter what Chicago did, it just couldn't catch the Utah Jazz. That punishing defense, so dominating in the last three games of the NBA Finals, was nowhere to be found Friday night. Instead, it was Utah getting tough and ugly, pushing the five-time champions around and disrupting an entire city's party.

Needing only one game to win its sixth title, Chicago couldn't get it done as Utah won 83-81. Game 6 is Sunday at the Delta Center.

"There were a lot of distractions, to some degree," Pippen said. "We didn't come out and have the same intensity we had the last couple of games. We just weren't the aggressor tonight. We were sort of back on our heels."

Impressive all night, Utah's defense was at its best in the closing seconds. After Toni Kukoc, the only hot Chicago player, hit his fourth 3-pointer of the night to bring Chicago within 82-81 with 5.5 seconds left, Pippen picked up his fifth foul.

After inbounding the ball, Stockton ran around, evading a herd of Bulls before finally whipping a long pass to Hornacek. Pippen, the only Bull near Hornacek, had to dive to foul him.

Hornacek missed his first free throw but made the second. After three timeouts, the Jazz planted 7-foot-2 Greg Ostertag in front of the 6-foot-6 Ron Harper. Harper inbounded the ball to Steve Kerr, but it

Host France makes '98 debut with win in first World Cup in 12 years

PARIS — Bomb threats, ticket scandals and Marseille Mania marked the third day of the World Cup, when host France made its tournament debut with a 3-0 rout of South Africa.

The French, in their first World Cup game in 12 years, were led by substitute Christophe Dugarry, who scored seven minutes after entering the game and also set up a goal before a celebratory gathering in Marseille.

"We knew we could count on the Marseille crowd," coach Aime Jacquet said.

But the day was not nearly all celebration.

World Cup organizers received two bomb threats before the match in Montpellier between Bulgaria and Paraguay, but dismissed them as "not serious."

Eric Champel, a member of the organizing committee, said two threatening phone calls were received about 2 1/2 hrs before the match.

"We briefly evacuated the press stands and brought in the sniffing dogs, but that's our usual procedure before every game at the World Cup," he said.

The press area also was evacuated for 15 minutes after the match when another threat was received.

The game ended 0-0, the first scoreless tie of the tournament.

Angels beat Rangers, 5-1

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — The Anaheim Angels dominated the Texas Rangers last year and showed they haven't forgotten how to do it.

Jim Edmonds, Garret Anderson, and Tim Salmon homered and Omar Olivares pitched into the seventh inning as the Angels won for the 12th time in 14 games Friday night, beating the Texas Rangers 5-1.

"It's a great way to start our season series," said coach Joe Maddon, the interim manager while Terry Collins serves his eight-game suspension. "Olivares did a wonderful job."

Olivares (4-2) gave up one run and six hits in 6 2-3 innings. He struck out five and walked five. Greg Cadaret pitched 2 1-3 innings for his first save since Aug. 2, 1994, when he was with Detroit.

The Angels were 8-4 against Texas last season.

Texas starter John Burkett's wildness got him in trouble in the sixth inning when the Angels scored three runs to make it 4-1.

Burkett (4-6) hit Dave Hollins and walked Edmonds before Tim Salmon hit an RBI single. After Cecil Fielder grounded into a double play, Anderson hit his seventh homer.

Salmon's eighth homer of the year in the eighth put the Angels up 5-1.

Baltimore 9, Toronto 5

TORONTO — Joe Carter drove in three RBIs in his first game back at the Sky Dome and Mike Mussina won for the first time since his nose was broken by a line drive as Baltimore beat Toronto.

Carter, who left as a free agent after seven seasons with the Blue Jays, drove in two runs in the third on a triple that left fielder Jose Canseco allowed to roll to the wall. Carter added an RBI double in the eighth.

Red Sox 5, Devil Rays 1

BOSTON — Reggie Jefferson hit a two-run homer and Troy O'Leary got two hits for the fifth straight game, leading Boston over Rolando Arrojo and Tampa Bay.

Arrojo (8-4) lost for just the second time in nine starts despite tying a season-high with nine strikeouts. He allowed two runs on five hits in seven innings and walked four.

Arrojo was making his first start since learning Saturday that his mother and brother, along with his brother's wife and two children, had escaped Cuba on a boat. Arrojo defected in 1996.

Indians-Yankees, ppd., rain

NEW YORK — The Cleveland-New York game was postponed because of rain. No makeup date was immediately announced.

Orlando Hernandez, the Cuban defector who sparkled in his first two starts in the majors, was promoted to the No. 5 spot in the New York Yankees' rotation.

Twins 8, White Sox 7

MINNEAPOLIS — Pinch-hitter Todd Walker's double scored Matt Lawton from first in the ninth, pushing Minnesota past Chicago.

The Twins took a 7-2 lead into the eighth, but the White Sox tied it on Robin Ventura's two-out, two-run homer.

In the ninth, Lawton singled with one out off Bill Simas (2-1), and Walker doubled to right. Rick Aguilera (3-3) worked the ninth for the win.

Royals 7, Tigers 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jeff King had three hits and drove in four runs, leading Kansas City past Detroit.

King had a two-run single in a four-run third, and added another two-run single in the fourth as Kansas City took a 7-1 lead. He extended his hitting streak to a season-high seven games and has 14 RBIs in his last 14 games.

Jose Rosado (2-5) went eight innings for the victory, giving up nine hits with six strikeouts and one walk. Bryce Florie (4-2) took the loss.

Pitching carries Klein to 5A title

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Pitching wins championships, and Klein had plenty of it.

Mark Davis, who has lingered in the shadow of star pitcher Chris George for much of the season, threw a two-hitter as Klein won the Class 5A state title Friday with a 2-0 victory over Sugar Land Elkins.

Klein, which finished the year 35-2 after making its second trip to the state tournament, scored two runs in the third and then relied on Davis, who improved to 7-0 for the season while striking out 11 and walking five.

Elkins, the 1995 5A state champion, finished the year 31-6. The Knights' threatened to score in the bottom of the seventh as Brook McClain reached first on an error by Klein second baseman Gary Jackson, who dropped a pop fly near first base.

Davis' performance came on the heels of George's five-hitter in a 10-1 victory over Austin Westlake in Thursday's semifinals.

George (15-0), a lefthander who was taken by the Kansas City Royals with the 31st pick in last week's amateur draft, struck out 15 in that game while giving up two walks.

Class 4A Championship
Highland Park 5, Corpus Christi Calallen 2

AUSTIN — Chris Young gave up five hits in a complete game Friday as Highland Park claimed the Class 4A state baseball championship with a 5-2 victory over Corpus Christi Calallen.

The 6-foot-10 Young, also a star member of the Scots' 4A state runner-up basketball team this year, showed excellent control while mixing fast balls with curves and improving to 8-3 this season.

Highland Park, which finished as 4A baseball runner-up last year to Fort Worth Boswell, scored two in the third — both on a Calallen error — one in the fifth and two in the seventh to finish the year 28-8.

Class 3A Championship
Atlanta 7, Dripping Springs 4

AUSTIN — Keith Whatley and Matt Endsley each scored two runs and Joey Barnes pitched six strong innings as Atlanta won the Class 3A state championship Friday with a 7-4 victory over Dripping Springs.

Atlanta (25-7), making its first state tournament appearance, scored three runs in the first, two in the second, one in the fourth and one in the sixth and held on behind the pitching of Barnes.

Class 2A Championship
Gunter 7, Rosebud-Lott 0

AUSTIN — John Joiner finished the year unbeaten by giving up just two hits in a complete game as Gunter won its second state title in five years with a 7-0 victory over Rosebud-Lott in the 2A championship game.

Joiner, who finished the season 9-0 and also had a two-run triple in the second inning, repeatedly confused Rosebud-Lott batters by mixing up curves and sinkers with an occasional fast ball.

He gave up a hit to Rosebud-Lott's Matt Luedke to lead off the game and then retired seven of the next 10 batters he faced, not giving up another hit until the sixth, when Gunter had built a 5-0 lead.

Gunter, which won the 1A title in 1994 and was 1A runner-up in 1991, scored three in the second, one in the third, one in the fifth and two in the sixth as the Tigers improved to 29-1 for the year.

Class 1A Championship
Thrall 10, Collinsville 3

AUSTIN — Troy Kaatz gave up two hits over four innings and Anthony Abrameit provided solid relief as Thrall defeated Collinsville 10-3 to claim the Class 1A championship in its first trip to the state tournament.

Thrall (23-3) scored three runs in the second inning, including a two-run home run by Lucas Mikulencak, and added runs in the third, sixth and five in the seventh innings as Kaatz provided strong pitching and the Tigers played solid defense.

Abrameit, who pitched a complete game four-hitter in a 7-0 semifinal victory over Corsicana Mildred, came on in the fifth with a 4-1 lead. The strong junior lefthander gave up just one run on four hits with a walk and a strikeout in three innings for the save.

Larkin has big game, leads Reds over Houston

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Barry Larkin spent two hours in the front office talking about his trade request, then showed Cincinnati Reds fans what they're eventually going to miss.

Larkin singled during a four-run first inning and added a solo homer and a sacrifice fly Friday night, leading the Reds to an 8-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

With a banner in left field pleading "Say It Ain't So Barry," the team captain and last remaining link with the 1990 World Series championship team helped Cincinnati snap out of a five-game losing streak.

"It was a case of me not (playing poorly) today, which is what I've done every other day this year," said Larkin, who raised his average to .274. "It felt good, by the way."

The Reds' offense finally got to feel good about itself. Cincinnati hit five singles in a four-run first off Jose Lima (7-3) to set up only its second victory in 10 games. Larkin had the second of the singles and scored a run.

Larkin also led off the third inning with his fifth homer and his first since May 29.

It was Larkin's first home game since general manager Jim Bowden announced that the player's agent had requested a trade because the Reds are rebuilding. Larkin and Bowden met for about two hours before the game Friday, and Bowden said the trade talk is a "dead issue" for now.

Phillies 4, Cubs 0

PHILADELPHIA — Curt Schilling matched a season-high with 13 strikeouts in seven innings and Rico Brogna hit a two-run homer, leading the Philadelphia Phillies to a victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Schilling (6-7) allowed four hits in his first victory in six starts. The right-hander raised his major league-leading strikeout total to 156.

Expos 7, Braves 5

ATLANTA — Montreal's Darond Stovall hit a grand slam in the ninth inning and the Atlanta bullpen faltered again, blowing a three-run lead as the Expos rallied for the victory.

Greg Maddux worked seven strong innings in his bid to become the majors' first 10-game winner, but it was wasted by Mark Wohlers and Mike Cather.

Brewers 4, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH — Jose Valentin hit his first two home runs since April 27 to back Scott Karl's effective pitching as Milwaukee beat Pittsburgh.

Karl (6-3) allowed two runs and five hits over 6 1-3 innings.

Marlins 4, Mets 3

MIAMI — Todd Dunwoody drove in the winning run with a two-out infield single in the ninth as Florida beat New York.

Gregg Zaun drew a one-out walk and Craig Counsell reached on a forceout, hitting a grounder that glanced off the pitching hand of Brian Bohanon (2-3).

Angels come up short in last game of 1st half

Staff Report

WICHITA, Kan. — It was fitting that the Midland Angels ended the first half of their Texas League season by coming up just short Friday night.

The Angels closed out their first half of the season by finishing two games under .500, leaving 14 runners on base in a 10-5 loss to the Wichita Wranglers. Quite simply, with all the opportunities the Angels had in the early innings, the ones they missed caught up with them.

Wichita's Sean McNally did the Angels in with a pair of two-run home runs, the first of which gave the Wranglers a 3-2 lead which they never relinquished. McNally's second two-run shot came during a four-run seventh which stretched the lead to 7-2 and ultimately decided the game.

It didn't start out as an unproductive night for the Angels, who quickly got on the board in the bottom of the first. Chuck Abbott led off the game with a single, then Keith Luuloa hit a one-out homer off Jason Gooding to give the Angels a 2-0 lead.

That lead held up until the bottom of the sixth when McNally hit a two-run homer to right field off Midland's Matt Beaumont (3-5) which gave Wichita the lead for good. Things only got worse in the next inning for the Angels with reliever Josh Deakman on the hill, as McNally's second homer capped a four-run surge which put the game away. The homers tripled McNally's output for the season to three.

The Angels climbed closer in the top of the eighth on a single by Abbott and a sacrifice fly by Luuloa which made it 7-4, but the Wranglers regained the cushion in the bottom of the inning on a two-run homer by Carlos Febles off Jason Brosnan. The Angels' Jason Herrick hit a solo homer in the top of the ninth to finish the scoring.

ANGELS NOTES: Jed Dalton went 3-for-5 on the evening and extended his hitting streak to 16 games. He is hitting .417 in that span... The Angels open the second half of their schedule on the road at El Paso. Matt Wise (4-3, 4.42 ERA) will take the hill for the Angels against Daron Kirkreit in a game slated to start at 8 p.m. CDT.

BULLS: Jordan shoots 9-of-26

bounced out of bounds off a Utah hand.

Chicago got one more chance, but Jordan's long jumper wasn't even close.

"You guys have to remember this is a two-point win for the Jazz. You don't throw the baby out with the bath water," Chicago coach Phil Jackson said. "It was just a matter of sequences. It's not a dramatic thing to say we lost a close game."

Chicago had a rough time from the start as the Jazz stole a page out of the Bulls' defensive play book. Instead of Hornacek, who can't be considered quick even when he's not hobbled by a sore hamstring, the faster and more athletic Bryon Russell was put on Jordan. The quick and nimble Stockton was on Pippen.

Just like Pippen has been doing all series, Utah was shifting all over the floor. It sent double and triple teams at Jordan, with Stockton running back to Pippen to close off the outlet, and Karl Malone manhandled Luc Longley inside.

Jordan finished with 28 points on a dismal 9-of-26 shooting and had an uncharacteristic four fouls. Pippen only had six points on 2-of-16 shooting and fouled out, and the Bulls bench managed just eight points.

Jordan was clearly flustered by Utah's new aggressiveness. After just seven fouls over the first four games, he had two with 5:02 left in the first quarter of Game 5. And with Greg Foster and Russell in his face, he bobbled the ball, dropping it off his foot and giving it to the Jazz.

He didn't score until there was 3:20 left in the first quarter, and then he missed the first of two free throws. He finally scored a field goal on a fadeaway jumper with 12 seconds left in the first quarter.

"We wanted to win, we wanted to put forth the effort. Sometimes the body doesn't react to what the mind's trying to tell you, and tonight was one of those nights," Jordan said. "You just have to let it go and forget about it."

While the Jazz were locking down the Bulls, they had free rein on Chicago's homecourt. After three games of being utterly confused by Chicago's shifts and switches, Utah finally figured it out, running the fast break and getting easy transition baskets.

And Longley's inability to guard Malone finally caught up with him. Malone, who had yet to have a breakout game in the finals, served notice from the start, hitting a jumper 30 seconds into the game while Longley stood back helpless.

He went anywhere he wanted, knocking down jumpers from outside and driving inside at will, backing Longley up and out. Not even Dennis Rodman, who's been effective against Malone this year, could help. Rodman picked up his fourth foul before the third quarter was over, and when Longley subbed for him, he quickly got whistled for his fourth, too.

Malone scored 39 points, just five off his career playoff high.

"Everybody has a bad game. Luc is still our center. We won with Luc, he just had a bad night," Jordan said. "Now he just has to go out and get drunk and forget about it."

JAZZ: Malone scores 39

(From 1B)

remains to be seen, but for certain the Jazz was successful in scrapping a planned celebration at Grant Park in Chicago.

"It's going to be hard. Nobody wanted to make this trip," Pippen said. "We had our chance, but now we've got to win one on their home court."

Jordan scored 28 points, but made only one of seven shots in the fourth quarter.

"Would have loved to have won it here, it would have been a great scenario," Jordan said. "But when we get on that plane, we've got to be very positive."

Down 76-71, Jordan missed two shots and Pippen missed a tip. After grabbing the rebound, Carr hit a crucial 18-foot jumper that just beat the shot clock and pushed the lead to seven. A Kukoc 3-pointer and two free throws by Jordan edged Chicago within two, but Malone drilled an 18-foot baseline jumper over Rodman to make it 80-76 with 53 seconds remaining.

During the timeout, a commercial urging Chicagoans to "Celebrate with Dignity" was met with almost deaf silence.

In the third quarter, the Finals finally began with easily the series' most intense 12 minutes. Trading two double-technical fouls with the Bulls, the Jazz pounded the ball to Malone on the low left block with positive results. He abused Luc Longley and began to find a rhythm against Dennis Rodman with 17 points as Utah rode its slow, physical style to a 59-55 lead in the fourth quarter. After a lousy 30-point first half, the Jazz produced their highest-scoring quarter of the series with 29 in the third.

Chicago scratched out a 36-30 lead after the lowest-scoring first half in Finals history. The ugly 24 minutes, featuring 28 combined baskets and 24 turnovers, broke the mark of 69 set by Syracuse and Fort Wayne in 1955. At one point in the second quarter, they combined for bad passes or violations on seven consecutive possessions. After Malone dunked to tie the game at 26, he elbowed Rodman for a technical foul that sparked a 6-0 Bulls run.

The Jazz had its chance to build a lead early, but somehow trailed 18-16 after the first quarter. Tight and tentative, Bulls other than Kukoc missed their first 12 shots and didn't produce a basket in the first 10 minutes. Utah, however, missed wide-open jumpers, failed to convert two fast-break opportunities and committed five late turnovers. Kukoc's 13 points kept the Bulls within one, and Jordan's first jumper with 12 seconds left gave them a two-point lead.

Bulls' Kukoc comes through

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Toni Kukoc finally brought his offensive game to the NBA Finals on Friday night, even if the rest of the Chicago Bulls didn't.

Kukoc hit his first seven shots, finished 11-of-13 from the field and scored 30 points. That was not enough, however, to keep the Utah Jazz from ruining the Bulls' celebration by winning Game 5 83-81 and sending the best-of-7 series back to Salt Lake City.

"Toni kept us in the game. He got us off to a great start," Michael Jordan said after the Bulls' lead in the finals shrunk to 3-2.

"He shot the ball well for us, just look at his stats. He was the bright spot of the night. Somehow we've got to raise our level to Toni's level. He played well."

Jordan was only 9-of-26 from the field and Scottie Pippen was just 2-of-16 as the Bulls shot 38 percent. Other than Kukoc, Chicago's other four starters were a combined 15-of-56.

Kukoc had scored a total of 46 points and was 20-for-49 in the first four games of the series.

Jordan's last-second 3-point attempt for the win Friday night was short. With 1.1 seconds to go, the Bulls were going to set it up the last shot for Kukoc before an inbounds pass got knocked away, leaving less than a second.

"Toni played a lot of minutes. We felt we wanted him to take the last shot but it didn't come his direction and he didn't have that final opportunity," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said.

Diamondbacks defeat Rangers

The Mid City Diamondbacks defeated the Mid City Rangers 6-3 Friday night to reach today's semi-final game of the National League Little League City Tournament.

Josh Wilson threw a complete game three-hitter while striking out 14 to lead the Diamondbacks to victory. J.W. Wilson was 3-for-4 for the Diamondbacks while Travis Gordon was 2-for-2 with a double. Tim Ennis was 2-or-3 for the Rangers.

The Diamondbacks will meet the Northern Astros today at 10 a.m. in the semifinals. The winner of that game will meet the Northern Rockies in the championship game this evening at 6 p.m. Both games will be played at John P. Butler Park.

Lindgren wins golf tournament

Midland's Jason Lindgren won the 14-15 age division of the NTPGA golf tournament held at Rising Star Golf Club. Lindgren shot a 73 which qualified him for the West Texas Area Championship scheduled for Lubbock in July.

Another Midlander, Blake Braun, placed fourth in the same age group with a 76.

Welborn wins police tourney

DALLAS — Bobby Welborn of the Midland Police Department was the low medalist out of a field of about 300 golfers at the World Police Games.

Welborn played three rounds at L.B. Houston, Texas Star and Tour 18 courses. He won gold medals in his age group for team gross and team handicap totals while he won a silver medal in singles handicap. Welborn's partner, Rick Silva of the Dallas Police Department, won the gold in the latter category.

MCC foursome takes Gaines Co.

SEMINOLE — The foursome of Scotty Neiman, Karen King, Sandy Hall and Cristi Branum won the Gaines County Pro-Lady with a score of 113. The tournament was a "shamble" format, combining a low ball gross and low ball net score.

Neiman, King, Hall and Branam won $150 each for their efforts. Randall Strickland won the individual low gross with a 66 to take home $350.

Burton captures Miller Lite 400 pole

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

BROOKLYN, Mich. — Ward Burton ignored history and won the pole position Friday for the Miller Lite 400 after never before qualifying better than 15th at Michigan Speedway.

Burton's Bill Davis Pontiac got around the 2-mile, high-banked oval at 181.561 mph, relegating the Ford of Dale Jarrett to the outside of the front row at 181.210.

"Our motor department has done a really good job," Burton said after wrapping up his fourth career pole and first of the season. "This particular motor has got a first, a second, two thirds and an eighth."

Burton, whose best finish this season has been eighth at Talladega, had his No. 1 fan with him as he talked about his pole-winning run. Five-year-old Jeb Burton sat at the podium, next to his father, holding his own microphone, happily jabbering and sometimes humming.

"My dad is the best," the youngster said as his father glanced over and chuckled.

"The biggest thing about qualifying is the (aerodynamic) rule change ... has made the cars looser," the elder Burton said of the specs that call for a five-inch-high spoiler and opening to the front air dam. "I've been able to compensate for that.

"The car feels like it's still under me out there. Some of these other guys can't say that."

Rusty Wallace, who bumped Jeff Gordon into the wall as they fought for the lead late in the race last Saturday night at Richmond, Va., will start next to Gordon on the second row.

Wallace's Ford qualified at 181.082, while the Chevrolet of Gordon bobbled slightly in the third turn and wound up fourth at 180.918.

Rookie Kevin Lepage was next at 180.900, followed by Bill Elliott at 180.764, Mark Martin at 180.727, Wally Dallenbach Jr. — making his first start in injured Ricky Craven's Chevy — at 180.682, and Ricky Rudd at 180.578.

Jeff Burton, Ward's younger brother, rounded out the top 10 at 180.546.

Terry Labonte, who nudged aside Jarrett on the way to victory at Richmond, will start 11th on Sunday after qualifying at 180.456 — just ahead of three-time Winston Cup champion Darrell Waltrip's 180.383.

Jeremy Mayfield, Wallace's teammate and the series points leader, was 15th at 180.176.

Dale Earnhardt, who switched crew chiefs with teammate Mike Skinner earlier this week, qualified in the first round for only the third time all season. His lap of 179.158 was good for 25th.

"We haven't had any luck," the seven-time series champion said. "I think this is a turn in the right direction."

Earnhardt Jr. to continue to drive for dad

MOORESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt has locked up one of the hottest drivers in stock car racing: his son.

Dale Earnhardt Inc. said Friday it has reached an agreement that calls for Dale Earnhardt Jr. to drive for the company for five years, with an option for an additional five.

The 23-year-old Earnhardt has already won twice in his first full year of competition on NASCAR's Busch Grand National circuit, but he has been driving for his father with what amounts to a handshake agreement. The elder Earnhardt was paying his son $500 per week plus a percentage of race winnings.

"It feels good to finally have a formal contract signed with Dale Jr., but our blood contract has been good for 23 years, and that will always be the most important contract I have with him," the seven-time Winston Cup champion said.

Financial details of the contract were not released, but it calls for Earnhardt Jr. to finish the 1998 season on the Grand National circuit and to stay with the series next year as well. DEI also is to put the younger Earnhardt in a Winston Cup car for several races in 1999, and the company will decide which circuit he competes on in the 2000 season and beyond.

BOX: Bout to start at 10 p.m.

(From 1B)

five title fights in two weight divisions.

"He's the biggest star in boxing by far, and that's almost unheard of outside of heavyweights," promoter Bob Arum said.

De La Hoya will fight for the first time in six months when he meets Charpentier, the No. 1 challenger, in a scheduled 12-round fight in the Sun Bowl. The bout will begin about 11 p.m. EDT and be televised by HBO.

The champion weighed in at the class limit of 147 pounds Friday, while Charpentier weighed 146.

Charpentier, who has fought only once outside of France, wasn't De La Hoya's first pick for the fight. But he is the top-ranked challenger, and the WBC mandated the bout if De La Hoya wanted to retain the title.

"You've got to fight these guys," De La Hoya said. "Even when I fight these guys, there's always people that want to see somebody on top lose."

The fans who have screamed De La Hoya's name since he arrived in this border city on Tuesday aren't among those. And few in boxing give the little-known Charpentier much of a chance to pull an upset.

A 20-1 underdog, Charpentier is a straight-ahead fighter, a style that De La Hoya loves.

"Charpentier will come out for me and go for the knockout," De La Hoya said. "He's a short, stocky fighter. He can be dangerous if I stay in front of him, so I have to pick and move."

Charpentier (27-4-1, 23 knockouts) hasn't lost in four years but never has fought for a title and never fought anyone the caliber of De La Hoya. He originally was scheduled to fight De La Hoya Feb. 28, but the fight was postponed twice after the champion hurt his left wrist in training.

If De La Hoya (27-0, 22 knockouts) wins as expected, he plans to go back to the frantic fight pace that saw him beat Miguel Angel Gonzalez, Pernell Whitaker and Hector Camacho in the past year.

A Sept. 18 rematch against Chavez already is set for Las Vegas, while a December fight could feature a unification fight with Trinidad, the IBF welterweight champion.

De La Hoya, who won his first title at 130 pounds only four years ago, won three more while moving up in weight to his current 147 pounds. The weight is comfortable for De La Hoya, who plans to stay there for a year or two before resuming his quest for seven titles and eventual retirement by age 30.

"Two or three years ago I said I would be the best fighter and call myself the best pound for pound fighter," he said. "I haven't been there yet, but I'm getting closer. I feel the change is about to happen."

CUP: France, Denmark pull out wins

(From 1B)

Marc Repier's header in the 68th minute.

FIFA and World Cup organizers will investigate two soccer federations and a branch of FIFA's own marketing arm concerning ticket scams. They also are ready to sue agents who sold tickets illegally.

Ticket shortages have been reported in Japan, the Netherlands, Belgium, Germany, England and Brazil. The problem, officials claimed, lay with unscrupulous businesses.

"There's some confusion here, and that is creating excuses for the operators," said Isabelle Delaye, the organizing committee's ticket chief. "We should criticize them. They found the ideal way of making money, by deceiving people."

The president of the Cameroon soccer federation, Vincent Onana, was detained as he tried to leave his country with the national team. He was placed under investigation for embezzlement of public funds, accused of supplying an English agency with 3,000 tickets worth $660,000.

Michael Zen-Ruffinen, FIFA's acting general secretary, refused to give any details of a ticket problem in South America, saying the federation had not been formally advised. French reports later identified the country as Colombia, although Alvaro Fina, head of the Colombian federation, said FIFA assured him his country was not involved.

The French certainly got involved in the soccer in Marseille. Despite whipping winds, the host team whipped up on the South Africans, making their World Cup debut — they'd never qualified when eligible and were barred for 28 years until 1992 because of apartheid.

Dugarry back-headed a corner kick by good friend and French star Zinedine Zidane into the net to open the scoring. Dugarry also laid off a ball for Youri Djorkaeff, who hit a falling, slow roller that goalkeeper Hans Vonk appeared to have. But a sliding attempt to clear the ball by defender Pierre Issa caused it to bounce over Vonk and land softly in the net.

Thierry Henry closed it out in injury time.

"We will savor this win, but we won't rest on our laurels," Henry said.

The closest Paraguay came to a goal against Bulgaria was in the 78th minute on a free kick. Goalkeeper Jose Luis Chilavert came upfield to take it and curled a left-footed shot over the wall, only to have Bulgarian counterpart Zdravko Zdravkov punch away the shot as it approached the crossbar.

"I already saw the ball in the net," Chilavert said. "Too bad I did not score, I could have made history."

There wasn't much for the history books at Lens, although Danish star Michael Laudrup appeared in his 100th game for the national team. He didn't figure in the goal, on which defender Repier was wide open for a strong header.

"I was very happy with the way we played and I am delighted to score a goal for Denmark," Rieper said. "We created a lot of chances, so we should have won by a bigger margin."

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl expects victories by all kinds of margins in the first round, saying Friday his team will sweep the United States (3-1), Yugoslavia (2-1) and Iran (3-0).

Kohl's prognostications came one day after U.S. coach Steve Sampson claimed the Germans did not respect his team. But Germany captain Juergen Klinsmann said that is not true.

"They've grown as a team. They've made progress since the 1994 World Cup, they are self-confident, which is typical of their mentality, and we have a lot of respect for them," Klinsmann said.

A Scottish soccer fan accused of injuring a French policeman was banned from attending World Cup matches. Stephen Stapley, 30, is accused of throwing a beer bottle at a policeman during violent street clashes Tuesday night. The policeman suffered cuts.

A French court on Thursday sentenced a Scottish soccer fan to a two-month suspended sentence for throwing beer cans at a policeman.

Cup Recap

France 3, South Africa 0

MARSEILLE, France — Christophe Dugarry, whom many think only made the team because of his friendship with French star Zinedine Zidane, scored one goal and caused trouble for South Africa for the final 63 minutes.

Before a wildly cheering crowd that erupted every time the hosts threatened, Dugarry came on in the 27th minute after starting forward Stephane Guivarc'h hurt his leg. Just seven minutes later, he backheaded a corner kick from Zidane into the net.

Dugarry also was involved in the second goal, laying off a ball for a Youri Djorkaeff, who hit a falling, slow roller at Vonk from inside the penalty area.

Bulgaria 0, Paraguay 0

MONTPELLIER, France — No goals, but a near score by a goalie and the first player expulsion of the World Cup marked Paraguay's 0-0 tie with Bulgaria Friday.

Bulgarian goalkeeper Zdravko Zdravkov leaped high to his right to knock away a second-half free kick from 25 yards by Paraguayan goalie Jose Luis Chilavert.

Chilavert, who often comes out of the net on set plays and as an extra attacker, curled a left-footed blast over the wall in the 78th minute, only to have Zdravkov punch away the shot as it approached the crossbar.

Denmark 1, Saudi Arabia 0

LENS, France — Defender Marc Rieper showed his teammates up front the way to the goal, heading Denmark to the victory in Group C.

Rieper rose unmarked in the penalty area in the 68th minute to put home the only goal.

Brian Laudrup crossed a pass from the right wing to Rieper in the center and he headed the ball past goalie Mohammed Al Deayea.

The chance was a bit of a gift to the Danes, thanks to sloppy Saudi defending.

Maradona receives suspended sentence

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Diego Maradona received a two-year suspended sentence for a 1994 shooting incident involving four journalists, a local news agency said Friday.

Maradona was found guilty of assault with a weapon, Hugo Wortman, Maradona's lawyer, told the independent Diarios y Noticias.

The case involved a February 1994 incident when he fired an air rifle at photographers and journalists outside his country home.

Prosecutors had sought a four-year sentence and rejected an offer by the soccer star to do community service.

The judge's ruling clears the way for the former Argentine national team captain to travel to France for the World Cup. Maradona is expected to be a color commentator for several television networks covering the month-long competition.

USA Hockey to keep pros on its roster

Associated Press

DENVER — USA Hockey, still stinging from a lamentable Olympic performance by American NHL players on and off the ice, will not hear a proposal calling for amateurs to return to the rink.

The proposal had been on the agenda for Saturday's USA Hockey board of directors meeting in Colorado Springs but was removed Friday after informal discussions throughout the week, USA Hockey executive director David Ogrean said Friday.

"When we first hit town here, we had intentionally scheduled an open forum so that people could discuss it," Ogrean said.

"There was a lot of frustration about it, and people had to just get stuff off their chest. That has happened. It has calmed down."

Team USA drew heavy criticism in February for its disappointing Olympic performance on the ice in Nagano, Japan, and a few players' behavior in the Olympic Village afterward.

Sampras beaten in Wimbledon tuneup

LONDON (AP) — Just 10 days before the start of Wimbledon, Mark Woodforde detects a lack of motivation in Pete Sampras' game.

But Sampras, beaten by the Australian 6-3, 6-2 in a third-round match Friday on grass at the Queen's Club, begs to differ.

"This tournament has always been a bit of a wake-up call for me," Sampras said. "I'm disappointed but the main goal is Wimbledon. You never like losing, but if you take a step back and look at how I've done at Wimbledon, I've always seemed to put what happened here behind me.

"When Wimbledon comes around and I'm on Center Court, I think guys know I play well there. I feel I'm going to be tough to beat."

Friday's defeat was the latest surprising loss for the four-time and defending Wimbledon champion. He has struggled most of the year and was ousted in the second round of the French Open by little-known Ramon Delgado of Paraguay.

Sampras had beaten the 66th-ranked Woodforde in all of their previous 10 matches.

But this time, Woodforde mixed up his shots, returned well and often caught Sampras with lobs whenever he ventured to the net. But his most effective tactic was to hit a succession of drop volleys which fell just over the net and left Sampras stranded.

Woodforde also served far better than Sampras, hitting three aces in the opening game to set the tone of the match.

In contrast, Sampras produced four double-faults, the last of which gave Woodforde a break for 3-2 in the second set. A netted backhand volley then gave Woodforde a second break for 5-2.

Meanwhile, No. 2 seed Greg Rusedski of Britain injured an an ankle during his third-round match against Italian qualifier Laurence Tieleman.

Graf makes DFS semis

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Steffi Graf, improving with each match in her latest comeback, moved into the semifinals of the DFS Classic with a 6-4, 6-4 victory over Spain's Maria Luisa Serna on Friday.

The seven-time Wimbledon champion took 68 minutes to dispose of Serna and set up a semifinal match with defending champion Nathalie Tauziat of France.

Graf, playing only her third tournament since a knee operation last June, dropped just one service game to the left-hander from Barcelona.

Graf said her comeback was progressing better than she had expected.

"I hoped I would have two matches here and now I'm going to have four, which I'm delighted to have," she said.

Graf, who has a 19-0 record against Tauziat, said she was physically fit and keen as ever to win.

Earlier, the third-seeded Tauziat ousted unseeded Australian Kerry-Anne Guse 6-2, 6-3.

The other semifinal will be between Elena Likhovtseva, the seventh seed from Russia, and Indonesia's Yayuk Basuki, the No. 6 seed and losing finalist last year.

Aoki fires 62 for opening round lead in Nashville

Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Isao Aoki fixed his putting problems and tied the course record Friday with a 10-under-par 62 that gave him a two-stroke lead after the first round of the BellSouth Senior Classic.

Aoki had 10 birdies at the Springhouse Golf Club to match record set by Dave Stockton at the inaugural tournament here in 1994.

Defending champion Gil Morgan finished with a 64, while John Jacobs, last week's winner, bogeyed No. 18 to finished with a 65. Hale Irwin and Tom Jenkins each shot a 66.

Aoki wasn't happy with himself and his putter following last weekend's Nationwide Championship where he tied for 17th and didn't break 70 in three straight rounds.

He came into Nashville early and spent Tuesday and Wednesday practicing his putting. Asked what his problem was, Aoki pointed at his head.

Aoki also drove the ball well, starting quickly with five birdies over the first six holes. His 3-wood on the par-5 opening hole landed within five feet to set up his first birdie, and he left himself with putts of four feet and less on five other holes.

But he also made 20-footers on Nos. 4 and 13 and a 15-footer on No. 8. He used a pitching wedge to chip in from 18-feet on the par-4 18th.

Rain washes out most of Buick Classic play Friday

HARRISON, N.Y. — A drenching, wind-whipped rain washed out most of the second round of the Buick Classic.

The round will be completed early Saturday, followed by the start of the third round.

Only 18 golfers finished Friday's round before the rain and casual water at the Westchester Country Club forced the suspension of play. Forty-eight players were on the course and 73 others, including first-round leader Kevin Sutherland and most of the rest of Thursday's top finishers, hadn't started their rounds.

Not having to play Friday could be a "huge break," said Sutherland, a non-winner in five years on the PGA tour.

The best round among those who finished was Brad Faxon's 2-under-par 69, which put him at 1-under 141 after two rounds. Joe Ozaki shot a 70 for 140.

Among golfers on the course when play was stopped, Stewart Cink was 3 under for the round and even par overall through 15 holes. Nick Faldo was on the 15th at 3-under for the day when play was suspended. He also was at par.

Andrews holds lead after second round

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Donna Andrews survived a double-bogey, a double hit and a 2 1/2-hour rain delay to shoot a 4-under-par 68 Friday and remain in the lead after the second round of the LPGA Oldsmobile Classic.

Andrews, who is the tour's leading money winner this season, is at 12-under 132 midway through the $650,000 tournament. leading Canadian Lisa Walters by two strokes with Meg Mallon another stroke back.

Shafer ahead at Showboat

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Ryan Shafer won his first four games of match play Friday and moved in front of fifth-round leader Mike Edwards entering the final round of match play in the PBA Showboat Invitational.

Shafer, the 1987 PBA Rookie of the Year, had an overall record of 9-6-1 in taking a 66-pin lead over Edwards, who was 8-8 overall.

Shafer, who has yet to win on tour, had high scores of 299, 247 and 244 in improving his pinfall total to 11,484.

Following were Lenny Boresch, who jumped from ninth place, with 11,362, while Jason Couch had 11,360.

The top four bowlers after Friday night's final round of match play advanced to Saturday's championship round.

Houstonian interested in NFL Vikings

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Houston businessman Bob McNair, who has been trying to return pro football to the nation's fourth-largest city, is discussing purchasing a piece of the Minnesota Vikings, a Houston television station is reporting.

McNair has held preliminary talks with Vikings president Roger Headrick, who heads one of two groups trying to buy the team, Houston station KRIV said Thursday, citing unidentified sources in Minneapolis.

The team officially went back on the sales block May 25 after novelist Tom Clancy's $200 million offer fell through. Vikings co-owner Jay Dyer has said he hopes to complete a sale of the team by late July and receive NFL approval to finalize a deal at the league's meeting then.

McNair has discussed the sales prospects at least twice with Headrick, the station reported.

Contemporary Christian artist doesn't fit the norm

By Cheril Vernon
Associated Press

PALESTINE — Christian artist Ray LeFevra, who has been touring internationally as a speaker and recording artist for 20 years — including a prison ministry in Texas — doesn't exactly fit a preconceived image.

For one thing, he's not perfect. And he's the first one to admit it.

His fifth and latest CD, "It Ain't Always Easy," reflects upon the idea that the walk with Christ isn't meant to be easy and can be a daily struggle. It took several years before LeFevra even came to that point as a Christian.

"I was led to Christ when I was 15 at a point in my life when I was bored stiff with church — I had no real concept of God," LeFevra said from his home in Fort Wayne, Ind.

In the early '70s, in what Lefevra refers to as the "Jesus Movement," a friend invited him to a coffee house in his hometown to hear a band play.

"It was a light for me — that I could even have a personal relationship with God. As this rock band talked about Christ on my level, it showed me that he was real," LeFevra said.

Two weeks passed and LeFevra was debating what to do. He was contemplating a commitment to turn his life over to Jesus.

"The message just kept going over and over in my head," LeFevra said. "Two weeks later I knelt beside my bed — just because that's how I thought I was supposed to pray — and gave my heart to Christ."

While the rock band episode played a major factor in LeFevra's decision to commit to Christ, he said he also was moved by the accidental death of a school

Mission work in Mexico challenges attitudes regarding poverty and calls Christians to spread the Good News through actions and words.

"Many of the kids think that poverty is caused by laziness until they go and see the horrific poverty caused by conditions beyond the people's control," said the Rev. Jim Houston-Hencken, associate pastor of First Presbyterian Church. "And so it's a real eye-opening experience for youth."

First Presbyterian Church for the past three years has taken youth and adult mission trips to Mexico, working through an agency in El Paso. Amor Ministries has Protestant pastors in the slums who select the families with the greatest need, said Houston-Hencken. "They assign youth groups to build homes for the families that have been listed by the Mexican pastors.

"Their goal is to get the people in the slums to respond to the churches in Mexico. The people work with the local pastors, and we just come and serve the local pastors by helping them build these homes."

Houston-Hencken has been on three such trips to Juarez. "As soon as we drove back across the border (after the first mission trip), one of the things the kids said was: 'What do we do with all the space in our homes?'

"There was a lot of talk about the fact that we have people who pick up our garbage for us and how lucky we are that we don't have to live in it."

Robert E. Poer, parish administrator for the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, also spoke of the building construction missions to Mexico.

"It's not without danger," Poer said, noting that youth from Holy Trinity and other Episcopalian churches, including St. Nicholas, have also been involved in mission work in Juarez and Reynosa. "The kids go down there at some risk. Given that they are teen-agers, they tend to think it's like home, and it isn't. When they went to Juarez, they slept on the concrete floor in the very building they were putting WOODBRIDGE, N.J. — When they called a staff meeting to announce that Gannett Co. had bought the local newspaper, the Home News Tribune, Michael Riley broke the tension.

"I'll be holding a prayer vigil at my desk," he announced.

There was much laughter. Because while Riley is a feature writer and columnist for the central New Jersey daily, he has a second calling: He is minister at the Stelton Baptist Church in Edison., N.J.

On weekdays, he juggles story assignments and pastoral responsibilities. On Sundays, he's in the pulpit.

The two worlds are not always in sync. A half-dozen families have left his congregation because they disapproved of things he had written at the paper. And at least at first, his fellow reporters and editors did not know quite what to make of this man of the cloth in their midst.

"It is different having an ordained clergyman in the newsroom," says religion writer Monique Parsons.

But then, the 40-year-old Riley is no clerical stereotype. His conversation is not without expletives. He writes frankly and intimately about sex and about his own weaknesses.

Even his path to the pulpit

Overcoming 'Spiritual Buffaloes' not always easy

Have you ever felt like running to the mountains just to escape an overwhelming situation or experience? Or wish the earth could be merciful, open up and just swallow you? The experience could be emotional, physical, spiritual or broken dreams and relationship as a result of natural (sickness, death of loved ones) or manmade causes (loss of job or unfaithfulness in relationship).

Kituku

You are not alone. King David cried, "And I said, Oh that I had wings like a dove! For then would I fly away, and be at rest. Lo, then would I wonder far off, and remain in the wilderness. I would hasten my escape from the windy storm and tempest" (Psalm 57: 6-8). He cited his enemies as the sources of his fearfulness, trembling and horror to the point where his heart was "sore pained" and "the terrors of death had fallen upon" him. David wanted out and as soon as "yesterday."

David — and all of us, in most cases — have no control as to when and what emotional, physical and spiritual problems will affect us. Such a condition could be compared to life with water buffaloes in an African village. They invaded villages without warning, devastating social structures, uprooting the harmonious livelihood of villagers and left them feeling insecure and stressed out. Running away or climbing trees were not long term solutions. The buffaloes were still there and buffaloes at large could torment and haunt the villagers.

Likewise, "Spiritual Buffaloes" can not be overcome by physical escape. They do follow wherever one escapes to. Spiritual peace, the only lasting form of peace, could be experienced during the most stormy time of one's life. And it could be lacking during the times we consider "calm."

As human beings, it is assured that we will have stormy times. Isaiah 43: 2, says "WHEN thou passest through the waters, I WILL be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: WHEN thou walkest through the fire, thou shall not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee." The word WHEN (not "in case" or "if") translates to the fact that adversities in life are inevitable. It removes any element of doubt. The word WILL (not "might") affirmatively indicates God's promise of His presence during the tough times.

There is one to whom we can escape to: Jesus. He says, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Matthew 11: 28). This is irrespective of the nature of our "buffaloes" or social-economic/biological background. That rest is available for all and at all times if we are willing to seek Him.

Remember God's telephone number (Jeremiah 33: 3): "Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not" is an assurance that God will be there when we seek Him.

Traditional knowledge has it that in some communities, when a buffalo was sighted, people with spears would form a circle as they approached it. One person would spear the buffalo and then take-off. A buffalo, it is said, only pursued the one who speared it. (Spiritual Buffaloes mayb e experienced individually although a person could be surrounded by a multitude). As it was running after the first spear thrower, another person would spear it from another side. The buffalo would change direction and

Trappist Monks: 900-year-old traditions alive in Oregon

By JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press Writer

LAFAYETTE, Ore. (AP) — When Father Richard Layton struggles to live the 900-year-old Trappist ideal of silence, prayer and obedience, he finds inspiration outside the chapel in 12 graves marked by simple white crosses.

"These are the ones who stuck it out," says Layton, one of 35 monks of Our Lady of Guadalupe Trappist Monastery secluded in the rolling hills of Oregon's wine country.

Still living by the Rule of Benedict, a way of monastic life set in the Middle Ages, the monks rise before 4 a.m., dress in white robes with black scapulars, sing Psalms five times each day, and live a simple life apart from the cares of the outside world.

"If you want to pray, if you want to move into a special kind of sense of the divine," says Brother Patrick Corkrean, "this is it."

They are formally known as the Cistercians of the Strict Observance, a that group split from the Benedictines and founded an abbey in 1098 in Citeaux, France. Their popular name, the Trappists, comes from the abbey in La Trappe, France, where 17th century Abbot Armond-Jean Le Bouthillier de Rance restored rules of silence, prayer, manual labor and seclusion.

For all the staying power of the order, few feel called to this life nowadays, and each monk regularly wrestles with the question of whether this is the life God wants for him.

There are 4,000 monks at 96 monasteries around the world. Unlike other orders, the Trappists also have nuns: 3,000 of them at 66 monasteries.

Times are far different from the boom after World War II when thousands of veterans inspired by Thomas Merton's best-selling autobiography, "The Seven Storey Mountain," began looking for more from life by following him into the monastery.

To make more room, 16 monks left a monastery in Rhode Island and on April 22, 1948, opened Our Lady of Guadalupe on a dude ranch in Pecos, N.M. They had grown to 60 by 1955 when they headed to in search of better farmland.

Now there are just 35, with an average age of 70. Some, including a former abbot who married and raised a family, followed their spiritual journeys outside the cloister. Only two novices are working toward final vows, one of them 64 years old.

"They're not committed anymore," says Father Dismass Gannon, who entered just out of high school and has stayed 55 years. "There are too many options out there. They can't make up their mind."

"What is helping me to stay is this interest in contemplative prayer," says Corkrean, who entered the order 17 years ago with a master's degree in economics and now runs the monastery's fruitcake mail-order business. "There's a rhythm that agrees with me. The abbot said to me, 'It is not why you came that counts. It is why you are staying.' The life suits us. Jesus has got to be the focus."

Fewer veterans entered the order after the Korean War, and fewer yet after Vietnam.

"There are bells instead of whistles, but it is still very much, 'Fall in, keep your mouth shut, soldier, peel the potatoes,'" says Brother Mark Filut, an Army veteran who joined the Maryknolls before the Trappists.

The monks need $370,000 a year to keep everyone fed, so they had to give up farming. They now bake fruitcake, warehouse wine for neighboring nearby vintners, manage 900 acres of forest and bind periodicals for colleges, law schools and the Oregon Supreme Court.

Sitting at a computer in the bindery, Father Casey Bailey recalls an admonishment from the novice director when he left the Jesuits to join the Trappists.

"I told him I liked philosophy," he says, a beatific smile lighting his blond beard. "He said, 'There is more here than sitting and saying prayers. There is work to be done.'"

Turning work into prayer is a challenge in the noise of the bindery.

"I know I've lost the contemplative thing when I get angry at people for not producing enough," says Layton. "We have to get so many books out a week. How to make that contemplative is a real chore."

The outside world also intrudes with visitors who stay in simple guest rooms to relax, escape and pray.

Jane Wilson, a retired welfare supervisor from Vancouver, Wash., visits to feel the power of so much prayer and the comfort of routine. "I'm not even Catholic," she says. "I just love to be there with the monks.

"It's like a soap opera. You come back months later and the same things are going on. People say, 'What do they do, what are they for?' It is just that that they are here, taking care of this for the rest of us."

But life inside the cloister has seen upheavals since the late 1960s, when the Roman Catholic Church remade itself under Vatican II.

In the old days, monks communicated in sign language to maintain silence for contemplation. Now they speak, though silence is still highly valued.

The chapel grill separating the public from the monks has come down. In the refectory, monks eat in a cafeteria rather than being served at the table.

Mail once was delivered just four times a year and reading was restricted to religious works. Now monks can check out Business Week from the periodical room, watch occasional movies on a TV in the lower scriptorium or listen to CDs on headphones in the music room.

Rather than drawing more monks, these liberalizations have driven some out. But leaders of the Trappists don't worry about the future, says Abbot Peter McCarthy.

"We will be 900 years old this year," he says. "During those 900 years, there have been thin seasons and fat seasons. I'm a believer that we have gone through a thin season and are coming out the other side."

ARTIST: LeFevra takes his message to prisons, schools

(From 1C)

friend around the same time.

"I thought, maybe I shouldn't think about this much longer," LeFevra said jokingly.

Calling himself an "extremist," LeFevra said he felt if he was committing to Christ he was going to do it "all the way."

Since the rock band was instrumental in revealing Christ to him, "I picked up the guitar and started writing songs about my personal experience with Jesus," he said.

Getting a following, LeFevra began performing for youth groups and at age 18 made his first professional recording, "Little Brother," with a small Nashville company, Holy Kiss Records.

"It was a road of ultra highs and ultra lows. I was shocked at the negative responses from some churches," LeFevra said.

He remembers a time his sister arranged for him to perform at her northern Indiana church.

"After the first three chords, three-fourths of the church walked out, leaving only a handful of youths who moved up to the front. And some of the older, more upset members called the police. It was a small town that probably only has like, two squad cars with a total of four policemen and they came in and shut down the concert and turned off all my equipment. It was really distressing."

He didn't give up. With 10-15 kids still left in the crowd, LeFevra gave an acoustic performance and talked to them on a personal level.

After that episode, LeFevra said he was sick and depressed, and wanted a sign from God on whether he was on the right path.

Two weeks later, he received a letter from a woman who claimed she was a drug dealer in that town. The woman wrote him that she was impressed with how he handled himself in spite of all the ruckus. She said his actions caught her attention. After the performance she flushed all of her drugs down the toilet, knelt down and gave her heart to Christ.

Then came a time when LeFevra faced his dark side.

LeFevra and his wife divorced in 1991 after three years of marriage. Their son Kaleb was 2 years old.

"I fell into a deep depression. I couldn't hide it. I felt like a failure because my marriage was over," he said. "Everything was gone."

LeFevra began drinking, doing drugs, and entering into bad relationships.

He began to see a counselor and spilled out his whole life. He confessed that he had had sex at a young age — but actually he was molested and was blaming himself.

"For me, I looked at it through my eyes and felt like I had made the choice and I was shameful," he said. "And I think that was the basis of all of my weakness. I felt shameful and I felt like I was bad and that God couldn't love me as much as he loved others."

In a final counseling session that lasted four hours, LeFevra finally disclosed that he had been molested.

"I think it was important to let every single, ugly detail of my life out and for the first time someone knew about it," he said.

His counselor leaned across the table and told LeFevra the words that he had been needing to hear all of his life:

"I love you as a brother and I respect you as a man."

The two then prayed together. LeFevra calls that the day "he was set free."

"I realized that if I can be loved and respected by him as a man, then certainly God could love me as I am," he said.

The event, which he said took away the shame, led him down a new road in his ministry — a more honest look at himself.

"When I was 15 and I trusted God to be my savior," he continued. "But when I was 30-something I really began to understand that God loves me unconditionally."

LeFevra then decided to make his Christian music more real.

"Jesus is great but life is hard. Whether you are a Christian or not, the Bible says life is going to be tough. I just didn't want to do the sappy, Christian feel-good music anymore. For me, that wasn't being truthful. I wanted to write songs that showed the hurt, the struggles, the questions and the failings, but how God is a big God and no matter when I do, God is bigger."

As LeFevra began performing and talking more from his heart, people in the crowd would break down and cry, he said.

"People would be coming up to me afterward and confessing," he said. "As my counselor did for me, I would pray with them and tell them 'I love you and I respect you.'"

"I found out that hidden sin owns you. It takes you down in shame away from the light, where only the dark can be. It only owns you where you hide it," LeFevra said.

And that is where the title of his newest CD, "It Ain't Always Easy," comes from.

"I had always tried to be a great man for God and it was totally stressing me out. Now I try to be a man with a great God," he said.

Today, LeFevra's son is now 7 years old and spends most of his time with his father. His ex-wife has remarried and they now have a comfortable relationship with each other.

"Now I am really satisfied with life. Kaleb is the joy of my life," LeFevra said. "I really believe that my marriage really wasn't God's will, but then we have this son that I do believe is God's will. There's more to God's will than what we see. God's plan goes beyond what we see."

LeFevra has been touring the United States and Europe.

He also has given concerts to death row inmates in Texas. And for inmates, he has the same message.

"Men and women in prisons are already beating themselves up. They are paying their price to society. Many feel ashamed and guilty and they need to release that guilt and know that they are loved unconditionally," he said.

"When I tell people how I felt that God couldn't possibly love me as much as someone else, the tears would just start coming down. Some would give up their accountability and others would walk away shedding tears, still carrying the burden," he said.

While he was performing at a Texas Department of Criminal Justice Institutional Division unit in Palestine in 1994, he met Charles Jett of Palestine, who was there as a volunteer. LeFevra said at the time, Jett didn't know what to think about him and was even turned off. But as he watched how the crowd took to him and listened, Jett later wrote LeFevra saying he had to re-evaluate how he felt and now respects him.

Now Jett and his wife, Lisa, are responsible for LeFevra's trek into mission work, thanks to churches and individuals who support him financially. He now can do more free events for groups that can't afford to pay.

LeFevra also takes his message to schools, talking about anger, drugs, respect, peer pressure and responsibility.

"I just go in and love the kids. I show the practical ways to quit substance abuse. I try to help their self-image and tell them that they are not mistakes. And that it is not their fault that their parents are getting a divorce.

"Even if I can't preach to them, I can love them real good and help kids so that Christ can touch them," he said.

✔ Award

Julie Kaup, daughter of Chester and Susan Kaup, recently received the Young Womanhood Recognition Award, the highest award a young woman can earn in the youth program of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

To receive the award, which is a gold medallion, Miss Kaup completed 60 projects with at least 40 hours spent on community service, including working with ACT IX at Midland Community Theatre and Christmas in April with Texaco. She and her father designed and built a cedar chest that took about 40 hours to complete.

Miss Kaup, a 1998 honor graduate of Lee High School, is a member of the National Honor Society and a Texas Scholar. She was vice president of Future Homemakers of America, a member of Home Economic Related Occupations, and was a kindergarten aide at Greathouse Elementary.

As a member of the Third Ward of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Miss Kaup also completed the requirements for graduation from the four-year seminary program of the church, a structured Scripture study class that begins when students are 14.

Miss Kaup plans to attend Angelo State University and major in early childhood development.

EASY: Throwing spiritual spear helps others go to the source of the new pain. A third person and a fourth and so forth would spear the buffalo from different directions, deflecting it from pursuing one person. After a while, it was overpowered.

The battle against "Spiritual Buffaloes" sometimes needs concerted efforts. Throwing a "Spiritual Spear" to help others overcome their "buffaloes," Israel's (led by Joshua) victory against the Amalek depended on Moses's lifting up the rod of God. If the rod was down, Israel was defeated and if it was up, Israel won. Aaron and Hur helped keep Moses's hands up so that Israel could win. Another example. When Peter was arrested by Herod, the Bible says, "... but prayer was made without ceasing of the church to God for Him" (Acts 12:5). Praying for others whether we know them or just read/hear about them helps in lightening their burdens. There are times when those who are afflicted may not be in a position to pray for themselves.

When the buffaloes are overcome, the storm is gone and the victory is won, we are better positioned to face the next one.

MISSION: Members build houses, teach Bible classes

(From 1C)

up."

Poer said it was "an awakening" experience. "If they (youth) ever get involved in this kind of stuff — get their hands dirty — they'll have a purpose."

Mission work has long been a Christian outreach regardless of denomination. Other local churches — Methodist, Catholic, Baptist and non-denominational — as well as individuals, through such agencies as Youth with a Mission (in Lindale), have elected to spend mission time serving Texas' nearest neighbor.

While some have preferred to carry the message in actions, others have done so in words. For instance, Christian Life Center is sending a group of teen-agers into Mexico in July.

Christian Life Center member Lloyd Horrell said the purpose of the mission is "To take the Gospel to villages in southern Mexico that have not heard the Gospel."

This year's mission trip is primarily a preaching-and-teaching trip; however, mission members have helped build a church in past years. The center, 2901 Kansas Ave., is conducting a garage sale and a bake sale from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. today to raise money for the mission trip.

An envelope, bearing the name of the Rev. Wayman Swopes, left at Greenwood Baptist Church last year, led Swopes and the church to pursue mission work in Mexico.

ABOVE: The minister of First Baptist Church in Juarez, Mexico, leads the Ascension congregation and members of Greenwood Baptist Church during a revival service. West Texans on the front row include, fourth from left, Julie Johnson, Kristin Harrell and Vivian Restrepo, and in the second row, fifth from left, Maria and Jesus "Chuy" Avila. RIGHT: Willis Price, from left, Susie Foy, Robert Rendall and Ashlee Winkler, with First Presbyterian Church's youth mission, built homes in Juarez, Mexico, during spring break.

"There was a check inside with a note, and the note said for us to use it in missions and to take the people with me," recalled Swopes. "So I interpreted that to mean that the donor wanted church members to go as well."

Swopes asked Midlander and former resident of Mexico, Jesus "Chuy" Avila, to contact churches in Mexico.

"The church was so small they didn't have any place for us to stay, so we slept outside, and we took tarps with us and put them up to be underneath to get out of the sun," said Swopes, adding that they cooked their own food. "In one class we had 82 kids one day. I've been to about 10 different countries. I saw the same thing there (Mexico) that I saw in a lot of the other countries — and that is they're hungry for the Gospel.

"They will come and sit in the heat outside — we had to have our services outside — and listen and be there for two hours or more without complaining."

Although Greenwood Baptist Church's first trip in 1997 included primarily adults, the roster for this year's mission July 19-25 has around as many teen-agers as adults signed up to return to Ascension for another week of Vacation Bible School, revival services and door-to-door walks.

"I went there thinking I was going to give, and I got so much more than I ever thought of giving them," said Julie Johnson, who taught 3-to-6-year-old children in VBS. "They were so eager to hear and learn everything we had to teach them. It really put my own relationship with the Lord into perspective. And I've said this 100 times: I got to experience the mountaintop, and that's why I'm going back."

Regarding mission trips, Houston-Hencken said, "I think that every American ought to go on a mission trip every couple of years because it helps you see the need and meet the people God calls us to serve, and it also helps us to recognize how blessed we are to live in this country."

The Presbyterian minister has found that the adults have many of the same experiences as the youth who go on a mission trip to Mexico. "It really challenges our comfort zone, and it helps put into perspective our personal life situations whether we are adults or children."

The most recent First Presbyterian youth mission held during spring break included 16 teen-agers and 13 adults. Such trips "change the whole attitude of the youth.

"They get to see one that they can make a different in someone's life, and it helps them know how fortunate they are in life. It also gives them an opportunity to respond to Christ's call to serve others, and that is a huge self-esteem builder for kids.

"And, last of all, there's something magical that happens in mission trips where a group really comes together as a group because they face seemingly insurmountable odds and overcome them together, whether it's harsh living conditions, bad drinking water or destitute poverty. Those things really bond a group."

REPORTER: Minister helps newsroom colleagues overcome religious biases was unusual. "I was pretty much a 16-year-old atheist," he recalls. But then there was a girl in history class — a "really, really, really good-looking girl" — who happened to be religious.

Love sent him back to the church but did not necessarily lead him to good conduct. He says he was "foul-mouthed and drunk at most of the meetings." Still, his minister told him he would make a good preacher.

His high school yearbook noted that he wanted to be "a minister and write dirty books."

When he had accomplished the former, and was pastor at a small church in Massachusetts, he took a stab at writing. He offered to do a column for the local newspaper. The answer: Yes.

He showed his work to other editors, including Dick Hughes, at the Home News, forerunner of the Home News Tribune. If you ever come to New Jersey, Hughes said, we may be interested.

In 1990, Riley moved to Edison and brought his column to New Jersey.

It appears weekly in the Ethics section, and Hughes says it may soon find its way into many other Gannett newspapers. It is often humorous, with a smart-aleck edge, and Riley often draws readers to an unexpected religious point.

He has written about his mother — how she was not a good mother, and how he has grappled with it. He has written about how he delivered emotional torture with tales of crashing jets just before his eldest son took his first plane trip.

He has written about how, despite the flu, he had to get milk from the grocery store — only to be caught in the checkout line from hell.

"People annoy me," he wrote. "Milk guzzlers, non-English speakers, friends, enemies, and club-footed women. The whole sorry lot of them. But sometimes ... they annoy the hell out of me. Literally.

"I thank God for them, because they remind me to be nicer and more gentle as I make my way in the world."

Hughes says Riley's column draws more response than any other in a newspaper that is proud of its array of columnists. When Riley offered readers a chance to give his youngest son a middle name, more than 80 replied. (The winning name was Kenan.)

"It's the kind of column that they either love it or hate it," Hughes says. The response of Riley's flock has been similarly mixed.

"It's about 50-50," said Mike Hamilton, a physical therapist who joined the church of 150 families shortly after Riley's arrival.

"Some think it's a good thing. Some think it's a negative. ... He wrote about his vasectomy, and oh my goodness, you would have thought that he did something horrendous."

The vasectomy column, actually, was about the unpleasant experience of giving a semen sample after the operation. Among those who have left the church: the chairman of the committee that hired Riley in the first place.

More than a year ago, Riley scaled back to 20 hours a week at the church so he could become a full-time feature writer. He has since done stories on dealing with bone-headed bosses, on the American search for contentment, on Civil War re-enactors.

He has, on occasion, found himself torn between his two jobs — like the time he encountered a homeless couple when he was sent out to do a story on spring fever. Objectivity dictated that he just write about them, but then "Jesus shows up in my head, all sad-eyed and merciful."

So Riley took them to an automated teller machine and gave them $15. Christ, he wrote in a column, "just wanted to see how I'd handle myself in a pinch. That Jesus is such a kidder sometimes."

Parsons, the religion writer, says Riley is liked and respected by his colleagues. "He's such a talented writer, and I think it's helped a lot of people in the newsroom get over religious biases."

Riley, for his part, says he has found his fellow journalists to be "spiritually healthy, with a real sense of curiosity.

"Lord knows, I hate hanging around with ministers. They're not my cup of tea. There's a lot of depth and a lot of humanity in my colleagues here."

Comfortable midsize sedan that features a split bench seat

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

Traditionally Modern:
'98 Buick Century Custom sedan

If you are looking for a comfortable midsize sedan that features a split bench seat instead of the individual seating found in many models of late, consider the Buick Century. After a successful fifteen year run as one of the last two "A" body sedans that debuted in 1982 (the other was the Oldsmobile Cutlass Ciera), GM was set to kill off both model and name. But common sense prevailed and consumers was introduced to an all new Century last year. I recently spent a week with this conservative Buick sedan and was pleasantly surprised.

Midsize Comfort

Built exclusively at General Motor's Oshawa, Ontario, Canada assembly plant, the new midsize Buick sits on a wheelbase that is just over four inches longer and three and a half inches wider than the previous model, with a floorpan that is shared with the Buick Regal, Pontiac Grand Prix and Oldsmobile Intrique. The two door hardtop and station wagon models of the previous Century are no longer offered. Buick decided to keep it simple delivering a stylish four door that appeals to budget minded families desiring a solid, well made sedan. Offered in Custom and Limited trim levels, its handsome sheetmetal yields a modern but substantial look that flows from front to back. In typical Buick fashion, the marque allows buyers to choose between six levels of equipment: SA, SB, SC, (Custom) and SD, SE, SF (Limited). Power is delivered to the ground via proven GM's 3100 V6 engine and a smooth shifting electronically controlled four speed automatic transmission with overdrive. I had the opportunity to test drive a Century Custom. The 3100 six cylinder engine generates 160 horses at 5,200 rpm and 185 ft-lbs of torque at 4,000 rpm. Mated to a 4T60-E four speed automatic transmission, the Century is very smooth and quiet when underway. This sedan feels sure and substantial at speed. Inside the cabin, the front sixty/forty cloth bench seat is very comfortable. The driver has a excellent view of the road. Displays and controls were easy to read and use although I preferred more information than the basic fuel, speedo and water temperature gauges. The front center armrest also does duty as a large storage area and double cupholder. Buick says that the built-in change holder can accommodate up to twelve dollars in change. This sedan comes very well equipped, with many thoughtful touches that most consumers will appreciate. The back seating area was roomy and chairlike with decent leg room. Both the engine hood and truck lid open out of the way and are self-supported — no prop rods needed! Underhood fluids are easy to reach and are clearly marked. While this Buick is no sports sedan, drivers will not have any trouble covering great amounts of real estate behind the wheel.

Standard safety equipment includes dual airbags, four wheel anti-lock brakes, low speed traction control, side impact door beams, daytime running lights, remote keyless entry and PASS-key II theft deterrent system. EPA fuel economy is 20 city/29 highway. Retail sticker prices begin at $18,215 for the Custom and $19,575 for the Limited. Destination charge adds $550. Dealers report that sales of the Century are brisk so you may need to do some careful searching to find yours. ■

Ford F-350 Super Duty truck works hard to tackle tough tasks

By Bob Plunkett
Special to Midland Reporter-Telegram

SOLVANG, Calif. — Sandy tracks on a cattle ranch along the Solvang River turned into rutted chutes of tire-sucking mud due to flooding from recent gully-washers, and passage to the cow pens required a big vehicle rigged not only with tall chassis and 4-wheel traction but husky power to plow a path through all that goo.

For this task no namby-pamby pickup would do. It took a super truck.

The vehicle that conquered that oozing mire of mud amounted to Ford's new F-350 Super Duty pickup truck trimmed in plush Lariat edition and outfitted with dual rear wheels, 4x4 traction mode and the power of 275 horses as harnessed by a new 6.8-liter V10 engine.

Super Duty?

That's Ford's descriptive for super-size F-Series work trucks with gross vehicle weight exceeding 8,500 pounds. New designs for 1999 issues ride on longer chassis which accommodate larger cabs, and these trucks pack more power from a new series of big Ford engines.

There's only vague resemblance between new Super Duty trucks and the light-duty F-150 and F-250 pickups revamped last year, as both types carry a bed in back. The super trucks measure bigger in all dimensions, however, and they sport a squarish macho face with chrome grille set below a muscular hood with bulging power dome.

They look like F-150 only after the steroids kick in.

Ford plans to construct as many as 350,000 of these work trucks each year, a jump of 100,000 units over the previous heavy-duty truck series, to meet what has become an explosive demand for serious haulers.

To sate this demand, Ford builds Super Duty trucks in a dizzy array of sizes with varying wheelbases, chassis and bed lengths, cab styles, trim and powertrain choices — the lot tallies to 44 different 4x2 and 4x4 configurations.

The series begins in sizewise sequence with the F-250 Super Duty truck, which differs from the light-duty F-250 (essentially a beefed up variation of F-150) because it rides on the new Super Duty chassis and pulls from one of the three new engines designated for Super Duty trucks.

Base F-250 Super Duty uses the shortest wheelbase of the series — 137 inches. It installs a regular-size 2-door cab and offers the choice in back of either a pickup's box that's eight feet long or no box (called Chassis Cab) so you can customize for specific tasks like snowplow or hoist.

Both 4x2 and 4x4 traction modes apply to F-250, but for this smallest Super Duty truck there's no option for dual rear wheels as available on larger F-350 trucks.

Cab stretchers include SuperCab and Crew Cab, each with four doors and more room for riders or gear.

Rear doors for SuperCab use rear hinges. They close by tucking behind front doors and open in the absence of B pillars to provide a wide unencumbered space for entry. On the Crew Cab variation, conventional front-hinged doors work in an arrangement resembling a 4-door sedan.

With SuperCab and Crew Cab modes, choices extend to size of the back bed — either a short 6.75 foot box or 8 foot length, or no box.

Chassis for these trucks differ from the F-250 Regular Cab because of the need for a longer wheelbase to accommodate longer cabs. SuperCab wheelbases run to 142 and 156 inches, with Crew Cab wheelbases to 156 and 172 inches, depending on short or long box length.

Next step up in size sequence leads to the F-350, which serves as the core of Ford's Super Duty series.

Gross vehicle weight rating of all F-250 Super Duty trucks comes to 8,800 pounds, but the F-350 series begins at 9,900 pounds and ranges through options of Chassis Cab and dual rear wheels and diesel engine to 12,500 pounds.

Beyond F-350, the F-450 dual-rear-wheel Chassis Cab reaches 15,000 pounds, and behemoth F-550 6-wheel models (Chassis and Regular Cab) cap the line at 19,000 pounds.

To trim these trucks for comfort and convenience, Super Duty F-250 and F-350 models use three tiers — standard XL, XLT with more features, and Lariat with luxury fittings. Chassis Cab for F-350/450/550 does not offer the Lariat.

New engines for Super Duty trucks consist of gasoline V8 and V10 and a direct-injection diesel V8. Each brings increases in power and fuel efficiency, plus more usable muscle at lower engine speeds.

Ford's Triton 5.4-liter V8 with single overhead cam and sequential multiple port fuel injection serves as base plant for F-250 and F-350 trucks, producing 255 hp at 4250 rpm and a torque measure of 335 lbs/ft at 3000 rpm.

The new Triton V10, displacing 6.8 liters, tops the Super Duty power curve at 275 hp with torque to 410 lbs/ft at 2750 rpm.

And the Power Stroke diesel at 7.3 liters musters 235 hp and massive torque of 500 lbs/ft at only 1600 rpm.

Manual transmissions contain five forward gears for gasoline engines and six for diesel.

A new automatic 4-speed shifter runs across the board for all models and engine.

In addition, with the automatic transmission an optional power takeoff provision for V10 or diesel supplies auxiliary power to drive add-on work devices such as a snowplow, tow lift or dump bed.

Traction confidence from the application of a 4-wheel-drive system also extends to all Super Duty sizes.

The standard unit incorporates a manual shifter and manual locking of front hubs, but for F-250 and F-350 a new optional electronic shift-on-the-fly device with electro-pneumatic pulse vacuum hublock front axle represents the first part-time 4x4 transfer case available for big trucks in the over 8,500-pound GVW class.

Despite the intimidating size of Super Duty trucks, they're quite mannerly and surprisingly easy to drive, thanks to the balance between strong suspensions and power controls for steering and braking, plus smart layouts for cabs with easy-reach controls and easy-read gauges. Interior comforts include conveniences like fold-down armrests and a console with compartments to hold work tools such as a laptop computer.

Super Duty scores as a superior design from Ford, and the price structure seems extremely fair, beginning at $19,160 for F-250 and around $22,500 for F-350.

Fleetwood Introduces 4x4 RV

At the 1998 Recreation Vehicle Industry Association's annual show Fleetwood threw other RV manufacturers a curve by introducing a four-wheel-drive motorhome. Fleetwood spokespeople were quick to point out that the twenty three foot Tioga Class C mini motorhome isn't intended for off-road use. The primary purpose of the 4x4 motorhome is to make RVing easier in bad weather. While RVers in the Southern US may not be interested in the 4x4, the "snowbirds"; RVers from the northern US. and Canada will find the rig a heaven sent package.

A Factory Rig

The Tioga 23B Mini Motorhome is straight from the factory from the floor up. Below the Ford E30 chassis is running gear equipped with the company's high/low four-wheel-drive system with manual locking hubs. According to John Weiss, vice president of Fleetwood's Motor Home Group, "There are numerous RV owners who don't want to get out of their vehicles to put chains on in the middle of a snow storm. Now all they have to do is lock the hubs." The switch from two wheel to four-wheel drive can be accomplished from the cab. If the weather is really bad the front hubs can be locked to give even better traction. That requires the driver to get out and lock each front hub; a simple operation that requires turning a knob in the center of each front wheel. Fleetwood officials say that the 4x4 system won't be limited to the Tioga model. The four wheel drive system can also be applied to the company's line of Jamboree mini motor homes and its Class A motor homes. The drive system adds four inches of height to the Tioga motorhomes. The new Ford E40 chassis, combined with the four-wheel-drive system will significantly increase the Tioga's cargo capacity as well as improving its winter driving manners.

Not Just for Summer Anymore

Originally a summer activity, the number of owners increased and people began to use their RVs more and more during the "off" season. Manufacturers responded by making rigs more "cold proof" with enclosed or heated holding tanks and water lines routed through heated areas. That allowed RVers to use their rigs in sub-freezing weather. However, winter driving also requires improved traction for driving on snowy or icy roads and highways. The 4x4 system helps address the traction problem. With a two-speed transfer case the driver can select high range for highway driving and low range for extreme conditions that require maximum power to the wheels. With the four-wheel-drive system northern RVers who want to head south in bad weather, or southern RVers who have a masochistic streak and want to head north, will find life easier. Bad weather traction is dependent on the weight on each tire. Obviously there's no lack of weight on any wheel of an RV but asking just the rear tires to drive move the vehicle on snowy pavement is asking too much. Even with the best of tires wheel spin will occur. By spreading the engine's power to all six tires (two front and four rear) each tire has less work to do and is less likely to slip. Added to that is supplying power to the front (steering) tires will give the driver more control under poor traction conditions. Currently six of the 4x4 Tioga motorhomes are being tested in Alaska, the ultimate snowbird country.

Katie Couric talks about husband's death

NEW YORK — Katie Couric says her husband's death was a "crushing blow," but she has forged ahead for the sake of her daughters.

A tearful Ms. Couric spoke for the first time Thursday about coping with the death of her husband, Jay Monahan, a lawyer and legal expert for NBC. He died of colon cancer Jan. 24 at age 42.

"The last year of my life is still too difficult to grasp and too painful to recount," the 41-year-old co-host of NBC's "Today" show told more than 1,300 people at an awards luncheon for businesswomen.

"Now I know the sheer terror of living with a life-threatening illness and being a part of that life every single day."

The couple's daughters are 2 and 6.

Katie Couric says her husband's death was a 'crushing blow.'

"How do you go on when fate delivers such a crushing blow that it causes permanent damage to your heart? I've often wondered," Ms. Couric said.

"People ask how and why do you go on and do what you have to do. I do it because I have two girls who are depending on me ... to show them what you have to do when life throws you a major curve ball."

LAS VEGAS — It won't be an illusion when Siegfried & Roy hit the big screen in mid-1999.

Filming is set to begin soon on a new IMAX 3D film on the lives of the Las Vegas illusionists.

There are more than 160 megascreen IMAX theaters in 22 countries, with 80 more scheduled to open during the next few years.

LONDON — Margaret Thatcher has authorized a biography of herself to be published only after her death.

The 72-year-old former prime minister will give Charles Moore, editor of the Daily Telegraph, access to her personal and political papers.

The biography is expected to be published in two or three volumes by Penguin Press.

Mrs. Thatcher was Britain's first female prime minister, serving from 1979 to 1990. Her autobiography, "The Path to Power," came out in 1995.

ROME — Sophia Loren and director Michelangelo Antonioni are planning a movie together.

"It's an extraordinary role written especially for me," the Italian actress told the ANSA news agency.

Ms. Loren said the project, her first with Antonioni, has a working title of "Verna." Further details were unavailable.

The 85-year-old Antonioni, who directed "Blow Up," has been hampered by the effects of a stroke in recent years. He last directed a movie in 1994, and won a lifetime achievement Oscar in 1995.

Quentin Tarantino may get up to a year in jail for assault.

NEW YORK — "Pulp Fiction" director Quentin Tarantino is charged with assault for allegedly punching a woman in the face while taking a swing at another man.

Tarantino, 35, was ordered Thursday to appear in court next week for arraignment. He could get up to a year in jail.

Fashion stylist Leila Mwangi, 25, told police that Tarantino tried to slug her boyfriend at a restaurant May 1. She said she took the punch instead and was cut on the forehead.

The boyfriend, Barron Claiborne, said Tarantino took a swing at him in an argument over how Hollywood portrays blacks.

BOSTON — A jury Friday ordered "Cheers" actor Woody Harrelson to pay almost $5,000 for a scuffle with two tabloid photographers he says were stalking his family during a visit to Martha's Vineyard.

The federal jury awarded Star magazine photographer Steven Connolly $4,826.30 for the 1995 incident in which Harrelson wrestled away Connolly's film.

Paul Adao, a free-lance cameraman who captured the incident on video, won only $2. After getting Connolly's film, Harrelson chased Adao.

"I couldn't be much happier," Harrelson said. "I felt from the beginning it was a matter of principle. It was about protecting my daughter's privacy."

Harrelson's wife, Laura Louie, testified that Connolly and Adao took pictures of the couple and their 2-year-old daughter, Deni, despite Harrelson's request not to film his family.

"In my mind, they're no different from the French paparazzi in the case of Princess Di," Harrelson said.
