Balloonists Eye World

PARIS (AP)-Flushed with their conquest, the three Americans who made the first crossing of the Atlantic by balloon said today they want to balloon around the world in 30 days.

Ben Abruzzo told a news conference that a round-the-world balloon trip would be expensive, but it would be cheaper than climbing Mount Everest.

"With the right balloon, we could get to higher altitudes and go round the world in 30 days," he said.

Abruzzo, 48, Maxie Anderson 44, and Larry Newman, 31, all of Albuquerque, N.M., dropped down to a tumultuous welcome in a wheat field 60 miles west of Paris Thursday evening, then celebrated late into the night in the French capital at a party given by Count de Saint Sauveur, secretary of the French balloon federation.

Find Oil In Atlantic

NEW YORK (AP)-Texaco Inc. said today it had found a small amount of oil in its exploratory well in the Atlantic Ocean 100 miles off New Jersey.

The company also said it had located an additional source of natural gas in the well, which produced the first natural gas strike off the East Coast Sunday.

The company said the oil found in the well was not of a very high quality, but a spokesman said, "It's an indication there may be something else."

"It's a bonus actually," he said. "We weren't expecting it."

The discovery was made just before midnight Thursday at a depth of 13,000 feet in the 15,000-foot deep well. The natural gas flowed at a rate of 9.4 million cubic feet per day. The earlier find is flowing at 7.5 million cubic feet per day.

Smoke Not Signal

VATICAN CITY (AP)-A plume of white smoke curled from the roof of the Sistine Chapel at 9:12 a.m. today, signifying nothing except that the Vatican stove and smokestack are in good working order for the election of a successor to Pope Paul VI.

A lady tourist ran over to the Rev. Patrick Clancy, a Chicago Dominican, shouting, "Is it a new pope?"

He assured her that workmen arranging the household details of the conclave were only testing the Vatican smoke signals.

Walter Buckel of the Lamesa Press-Reporter says he hears of good showers here and there which give a big boost to crops.

"But it's hard to pinpoint rainfall when it rains on one quarter of a section and bypasses the three other quarters. That has been the pattern in the past few weeks."

Buckel says he believes Dawson County is leading the league in good-looking cloud formations.

"If clouds counted, we'd have a bumper crop in the fields," Buckel concluded.

We might challenge him on the cloud situation by going back to the week when floods hit the Hill Country, Albany, etc. We got .18 of an inch the day Central Texas got more than 20 inches.

Carolyn Klaus of the Lynn County (Tahoka) News says the great depression of the 1930s made Americans even more conservative than they had been in the past because nearly everyone "had to be careful to made ends meet and the depression only intensified those practices."

Generations later, those blessed with plenty and inexperienced in such hardships never could understand the older generation and their penny-pinching.

"But now, it seems the gap is narrowing. Since inflation has swept our nation, those same people that made fun of the conservation practices of the older group are now ready to learn."

Soviets Drop Suit On US Reporters

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP)-A Soviet judge dropped the civil slander suit against two American reporters today, saying the widespread publicity given the case made the retraction their papers refused to print unnecessary.

However, Judge Lev Almazov said he would inform the Foreign Ministry that Craig R. Whitney of The New York Times and Harold D. Piper of The Baltimore Sun had not attended any of the legal proceedings and that he considered their behavior disrespectful to the court.

During earlier court sessions, a prosecutor asked that the Foreign Ministry remove the correspondents' press accreditation, in effect expelling them from the country.

Whitney and Piper were found guilty July 18 of slandering Soviet television because they reported relatives of Georgian dissident Zviad Gamsakhurdia said his videotaped confession appeared to have been fabricated.

Gamsakhurdia was brought to Moscow for the hearing and testified his confession was authentic. The judge ordered Whitney and Piper to retract their stories and pay court costs totalling $3,424.

After they and their papers refused to publish retractions, the two men were fined $73 each on Aug. 3 and were warned they faced further fines or "different measures" if their newspapers did not publish the retractions. The fines and the costs were paid, but the papers still refused to print the retractions.

Almazov said he was discontinuing the case because the plaintiff, the Soviet Committee on Radio and Television, wrote him it was no longer demanding the retraction. The letter said:

"As you are aware the case has been widely publicized by the Soviet and American press, including The New York Times and Baltimore Sun. The world public has had an opportunity to see for itself that the articles of Piper and Whitney were libelous and that Gamsakhurdia's confession was genuine and voluntary."

Piper told other Western reporters he doubted similar action would be taken against other correspondents "too often."

Two Strikes In Memphis Ended

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - some 1,100 striking Memphis policemen voted today to return to work this afternoon under terms of a two-year contract that would end a walkout which kept the city clamped under a curfew for a week.

About 1,400 striking firemen were to vote later this morning on the agreement, reached early today in negotiations between the AFL-CIO and Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber represented the city in the talks.

City officials declined any comment on the proposal until both police and firemen had voted, but a police union spokesman said the city had accepted the terms.

Union leaders said the contract guaranteed no penalties for the strikers.

Tommy Powell, president of the 60,000-member Memphis AFL-CIO Labor Council, and James McGehee, president of the Chamber of Commerce, had given first word of the tentative pact.

It was confirmed by David Baker, president of the Memphis Police Association and Kuhron Huddleston, leader of Local 1784 of the International Association of Firefighters.

A federal mediator, Ed McMahon of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, was involved in the negotiations that had continued uninterrupted through the night.

One of the last stumbling blocks that had to be resolved apparently was the length of the contract. Mayor Wyeth Chandler said earlier the city had made three separate offers to the unions, but he said any settlement would involve a two-year contract. Both union presidents have insisted on one-year pacts, saying they did not want to be locked into a wage package where inflation could erode their members' gains.

The non-stop meetings marked the seventh night of the police walkout. Some 1,100 patrolmen and sergeants struck the night of Aug. 10 after rejecting the city's wage package.

The firefighters joined picket lines Monday morning resuming a strike that was interupted by a court's back-to-work order July 4.

Both unions are under court orders to end the strikes, but neither order has worked. The city has asked Chancery Court to cite the unions and their leaders for contempt.

UIL Panel Sets Spring Meet Dates

The executive committee of District 3-AAA, University Interscholastic League, set dates for spring contests and discussed routine items associated with the opening of a new school term at a meeting here Thursday.

The district's literary contests were tentatively set for April 6-7 at Western Texas College, subject to confirmation by WTC officials. The debate contests are listed for April 6 with the remainder of the literary events to be completed the following day.

The one-act play contest will return to Snyder High School next spring, with the date set for April 3.

The district track meet for both boys and girls will be held on April 7 at San Angelo.

Administrators and coaches from San Angelo Lake View, Sweetwater, Lamesa, Brownfield and Snyder attended the session. Supt. Neal Chastain of Lamesa took over as chairman, succeeding Dr. Joe Starnes, Sweetwater superintendent.

Merchants Announce 3 Winners

With 14 shopping days remaining before the first day of school, Snyder merchants report back-to-school sales to be going well.

In an effort to urge residents to shop at home, several merchants participated in a promotion to give $100 in merchandise to three lucky people this week.

From hundreds of registrations, the merchants drew the names of three people to win the prizes. First place and a $50 gift certificate was won by Debbie Myers of Rt. 1, Snyder. A second place prize of $25 in gift certificates went to Von Dale Henry of Hermleigh and third place and $25 in gift certificates went to Brenda Lee, Arah Rt., Snyder.

The winners may pick-up their gift certificates at the Snyder Daily News.

Breakthrough Is Scored On Stalled Energy Plan

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter has scored a breakthrough that has gotten his long-stalled energy plan moving in Congress again, Vice President Walter F. Mondale said today.

Carter and congressional leaders made a series of personal appeals to House members and senators Thursday in an attempt to get a natural gas compromise out of a conference committee for final consideration by the Senate and House.

They worked against the start of a 20-day Labor Day recess which complicates potential progress on the energy package, first sent to Congress by Carter 16 months ago.

The president met late Thursday night with two House Democratic energy conferees, Charles Rangel of New York and James Corman of California, in an attempt to obtain their signatures on the compromise gas report.

Appearing on NBC's Today Show, Mondale said, "We had a breakthrough last night on the long overdue gas conference report."

The Vice president predicted that the breakthrough would give momentum to the longstalled energy program.

While Carter appeared to have obtained the necessary House and Senate signatures on the natural gas conference report, the bill must still get through the Senate where a filibuster has been threatened by liberal opponents, who say it is too costly to consumers.

To get the natural gas conference report to the Senate floor, Carter had to obtain the signatures of 13 House members and nine conferees. The last of the three Senate conferees signed on Thursday.

Ten House members were known to have signed by late Thursday, with Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, counted No. 11. By Mondale's account, Carter found the final two House members late Thursday after his intensive day of lobbying.

CHERYL TERRY

The compromise, the product of several months of delicate negotiations, would lift price controls by 1985 with gradual increases for residential and industrial users of natural gas in the meantime.

Both chambers had approved versions of the natural gas bill and congressional conferees announced last May that they had reached agreement on a compromise.

Farabee Named To NCSL Committees

State Senator Ray Farabee has been appointed to serve as Vice Chairman of the Criminal Justice Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures for the 1978-79 Conference year. The primary responsibility of the Committee is the development of Conference policy on State-Federal matters in criminal justice and the encouragement of innovative state legislation in this area. He represents the 30th District, which includes Scurry County, in the Texas Senate.

The National Conference of State Legislatures is a non-partisan public interest group dedicated to improving the quality and effectiveness of state legislatures, assuring states a strong voice in the federal decision-making process, and fostering interstate communication and cooperation.

Sen. Farabee has also been appointed to serve on the Steering Committee of NCSL's State-Federal Assembly, which is the policy making body for the Conference.

In commenting on these appointments, Sen. Farabee said, "I look forward to the opportunity to work with both of these committees to help fashion and have an input on Federal legislation which effects all of us well as on State laws. It is important for all levels of government to work together to be responsive to the needs of people, and the National Conference of Stae Legislatures plays an important role in bringing about this cooperation."

speculating on 1980

It seems a trifle early for predictions on how the presidential race will look when the votes are counted during the night hours following the Tuesday following the first Monday in November of the year one thousand nine hundred eighty.

But that is precisely what is being done by more courageous among journalists who record events and predict the future course of the country's political history. Many have already nominated Jimmy Carter for the questionable distinction of being a one-term President. There have been very few one-termers in the little more than 200 years we have been electing Presidents. Herbert Hoover was most recent.

That was in 1932. The country was gripped by the worst economic depression in history. Not even the most vocal critic of the Carter Administration expects conditions to come within striking distance of those which existed in 1932. Consensus on this point rules out likelihood of repetition of the depression of the late '20s and early '30s.

That one element of doubt along with predictions that Carter will be free to return to Georgia and his peanut business immediately following January 20, 1981, is sufficient reason for being in no hurry to place bets that it will happen.

This prediction concerning outcome of the 1980 Presidential race is further conditioned by the belief that there is still time for Carter to salvage enough of the program he outlined in his first message to Congress to insure renomination and have at least a fifty-fifty chance of being elected for a second term.

It seems even more plausible as its author foresees a Carter defeat, if it indeed takes place, coming in the general election and not in the Democratic National Convention in the summer of 1980. Only a completely discredited incumbent President could fail to get his party's nomination. Party leaders would have to be desperate for that to happen.

Besides, our early forecaster inquires, who is there in the Democratic Party with enough popular support to mount a successful effort to repudiate Carter?"

If defeat comes, according to this point of view, it will be in the general election, and again who is there among Republican hopefuls who looks better than Ford did in 1976?

'Joe, I know what ya'll are thinking, but it means jobs!'

run for the money

Running is good business, so business thinks.

As masses of exercise-and recreation-minded individuals have taken a fancy to footwork, so have business firms. But for a different reason.

For a relatively minor expenditure, notes The Physician and Sportsmedicine, a McGraw-Hill publication, companies can sponsor marathons and other events which attract considerable public participation and attention, yielding the firms considerable beneficial publicity.

It also works to the advantage of runners, who a few years ago ran for nothing more than love but today can find bankable rewards at the finish line.

There are drawbacks, however. Outside investment also means some outside control over events. This can involve selecting locations and times, such as in the midday sun, to the advantage of media exposure but not necessarily to that of the runners.

There's also the question of questionable sponsorship. Sporting goods and health-oriented business are naturals. Cosmetics and even beer are into the act and considered acceptable. But, according to the Road Runners Club of America, the runners themselves draw the line at liquor and cigarettes.

That, it is considered, would represent a conflict of interest.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

In cleaning out one of the boys' closets the other day I was knocked senseless by a coconut with an Indian face painted on it.

This was followed by an avalanche which included an alligator dressed up like a grand parade marshall, a human skull with a raven perched on top that said, "Have a Good Day," a snow and water paperweight showing the New York skyline in which the water had evaporated, a beer stein that played "White Christmas" when you lifted the lid, and a funky light that flickered on and off and said, "Lite Up Las Vegas,"

As I sifted through the rest - backscratchers, totem poles, key rings and a blowfish (that brought me into my first contact with acupuncture) - I tried to imagine how many man hours went into acquiring, transporting, and maintaining all of these souvenirs. Then I saw it: the Robin Hood hat with a feather from the Ionia State Fair.

It was 10 years ago. The family was en route to a camping trip when we were attracted by the Ionia State Fair. As we started to leave the grounds, my son said, "Could I buy this hat where they sew your name on it?"

I shrugged, "Why not?" My husband said, "You don't need it."

I said it was only $1.39. My husband said it was logic like mine that drove the European nations into bankruptcy and besides the kid would forget about the dumb hat in 10 minutes.

The kid cried all night long keeping everyone awake.

I awoke the next morning with enough wrinkles to plant crops. The kids were surly and my husband had a flat tire. (I told him he'd be punished for his cheapness.)

Finally, he gave in and said, "Okay, we'll go back and get the hat."

The first officer cited us for an illegal left turn into the Fairgrounds. The next officer at the gate said the fair wasn't open until noon and suggested we turn around and go out the same way we had come in. In turning the trailer, my husband scraped a tree that punctured our water tank in the trailer and eventually cost $53 to weld.

We were forced to go into a nearby trailer camp, pay the fees, wait until 11, pay admittance for the family to the grounds, have lunch and get the hat. The other kids complained that since he got the hat, they should get the cane with the bird on the end that chirped when you waved it around the car.

The $1.39 hat cost a total of $112.

They misspelled his name.

Letter To Editor

To The Daily News:

Since its inception, my wife and I have been enjoying your new item, "Ask Us." We have found that we usually look first to read the topic of the day in "Ask Us" and then look at the remainder of the paper. We have found many of the column's topics to be very beneficial, and probably, we would not have received the information by any other means.

Evidently many other people give attention to the column, too. When the information was published that the city could mow unkempt lawns and then charge the delinquent home-owners for the task, we noticed that quite a few yards suddenly had a more-than-usual manicured look. We laughingly figured that everyone in town who had an unmowed lawn thought that his neighbor with the cut lawn had written the letter.

There is one subject that has been discussed from two different questioners to which I think the city has not paid enough attention. I think that the city itself, and unjustifiably so, is at least partly responsible for some of the dangerous intersections. The city has stated that it has placed the dumpsters in the most advantageous locations and that it tries to keep tabs on intersections that are dangerously blocked. The trash cans between Avondale, Dalton, and Highland Streets are the cause of the visual block and by my calculation are probably not used enough to justify the danger of their location.

Seven households use the dumpster that sits in front of my house. By contrast, I don't think that more than three households use the cans on 37th Street. If the city were to place the cans in front of the 3700 numbered houses on Avondale, Dalton, and Highland, the cans would be off 37th Street where they block traffic views and in locations that will be more convenient to more people. Probably my suggestion will not please the owners of the proposed locations, and to them I apologize, but the intersections are dangerous, and we must retain the cans somewhere. That the intersections have not seen more accidents is not due to the care of the city but to the extreme caution with which motorists approach 37th Street.

When Ira School opens Monday, Jimmy Byars will have going for him what other senior boys can only dream about. He will be the only male in his class.

Being the only boy amid a pack of girls is nothing new to Jimmy. The youngest member and only son of the J.L. Byars family has four older sisters. He also did a male solo his 7th, 8th and sophomore school years. He seems destined to be surrounded by women. I can think of a worse fate.

Being the only man in the class will have advantages other than the obvious. He is a natural for the highest ranking male, for example. And without an election, he will win the honor of representing the senior class in the Halloween Carnival. Every year each class elects a couple to represent it during carnival ceremonies. The couple from the class making the most money at its carnival booth are crowned Carnival King and Queen.

But I'll bet I know one person who is not pleased with the "Class of 79." Football coach, Gary Fox, can probably think of nicer things that could have happened to him. And to make matters worse Jimmy can't play football this year due to a back ailment. He will be competing for the Bulldogs in golf, basketball, tennis and track. Last year he took second place at the district track meet in the high hurdles.

JIMMY BYARS
...Ira's only senior boy.

A class full of girls must also be intellectually stimulating. Jimmy won first place at the 1978 district interscholastic league meet in number sense, debate, headline writing and fourth place in slide rule. Not bad for a country boy.

It looks as if half the girls in the senior class will complete the 12 year journey with Jimmy. Cindy Huddleston, Max Ann Preston, Donna Layne and Gloria Sanchez have been his classmates since the first grade. Brenda and Linda Cooley, Sheila Kellner and Barbara Rhodes joined him in high school and complete the class roll. A grand total of nine.

A few miles further west, in Gail, the situation is reversed. The 921 square mile Borden County School District expects 10 boys in the kindergarten class. The only female will be the teacher, Mrs. Beverly Copeland. The principal, Ben Jarrett says, everyone is afraid that being the only girl in the room she is going to be fearfully spoiled.

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - If television has become the dominant mode of mass communication in our society, why shouldn't the public have the opportunity to use that medium to exchange information, debate ideas and share experiences?

Public participation in television programming is hardly a revolutionary notion. In fact, federal regulations require such "public access' in the approximately 4,000 communities throughout the country now served by cable television systems.

Yet the concept is being implemented only in a relatively few communities (precise figures are elusive but the best available estimates range from 200 to 400) because of public indifference, governmental ignorance and hostility on the part of operators of cable systems..

Under rules issued by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in 1972, every community cable system is supposed to include a public access channel, available to all individuals and groups on a first-come, first-served non-discriminatory basis.

The only prohibitions apply to material promoting the sale of commercial goods or services, obscene or indecent matter or advertising on behalf of condidates for public office.

In scores of communities across the nation, public access programs have gained the respect and attention of the citizenry. Producers have ranged from artists and religious groups to the League of Women Voters and the Gray Panthers, a senior citizens' organization.

Volunteer coordination has been provided by equally disparate groups - the public library in Rome, Ga.; a church in Knoxville, Tenn.; the public school system in Irvine, Calif.; and the municipal government in Madison, Wis.

Some of the most successful public access operations are located in communities able to draw on the resources of major universities - East Lansing and Ann Arbor, Mich.; Palo Alto, Calif.; and Amherst, Mass.

Others have captured the public interest in York and Reading, Pa.; San Diego and San Rafael, Calif.; Worcester, Mass.; and Derby, Conn.

The Reading operation has gained national acclaim for its programs serving senior citizens. In York, there are special programs for the deaf and for Spanish-speaking citizens as well as classes in parenting skills.

Several public access operations have successfully experimented with a format in which senior citizens and young people appear on the same program, with the older residents reminiscing about life in the community in earlier years.

Public access supporters are organizing for the first time. At a meeting last month in Madison, Wis., they formed the National Federation of Local Cable Programmers. Later this month, San Diego's Community Video Center will act as host for a National Conference on Public Access Cable Television.

But there also are problems. Many communities with cable systems don't enjoy the benefits of public access because the city council failed to insist that language implementing the FCC regulations be included in the contract it signed with the system's commercial operators.

Those operators frequently are unwilling to give away a channel that could produce additional revenue if used commercially, notes David Korte of the Cable Television Information Center, affiliated with The Urban Institute in Washington.

Finally, a subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee is considering a complete revision of the Federal Communications Act that would eliminate all FCC jurisdiction over cable systems - including the weak regulations requiring public access.

"If we lose the federal minimum standards, we lose valuable leverage," argues Marta Peck, a leader of the York, Pa. public access project.

If those difficulties can be surmounted, however, public access holds the promise of turning a nation of passive viewers into active participants, communicating with each other in a continuing community dialogue.

gm optimistic

NEW YORK (AP) - After three good years in a row for the auto industry, there is no shortage of optimism emanating from General Motors Corp. headquarters.

GM Chairman Thomas A. Murphy, who is known for his upbeat business forecasts, stayed right in character this week in his assessment of the outlook for the 1979 model year.

Combined deliveries of cars and trucks in the United States, including imports, will reach a record total of almost 15.4 million units for the 1978 model year, Murphy estimated. In the year that begins next month, he projected a further gain to better than 15.5 million.

Murphy based these figures on an equally bright forecast for the general business outlook.

His script calls for the Gross National Product to grow at a 4 percent annual rate, after adjustment for inflation, through the rest of 1978 and into next year.

"The consumer sector is likely to be a sustaining force deriving continued support from rising real incomes and further increases in employment," he said. "Moreover, despite record increases in consumer installment debt, consumer debt repayments have remained in line with rising income."

GM's projections naturally command attention. It is, after all, the nation's largest industrial company, as measured by sales, and the second largest in terms of assets and employment, with nearly 800,000 workers on the payroll at last count.

But attention is one thing and agreement another. Many current economic projections call for a substantial slowing in business activity soon, and the auto industry is normally expected to follow the trend of the over-all economy closely.

By traditional Wall Street measures, investors are maintaining a cautious approach to GM's stock. The yield on the shares, based on dividends paid over the last 12 months, is a lofty 10 percent, and the price-earnings ratio is a modest six to one.

Analysts who follow the auto industry also noted that Murphy's earlier projection that 11.75 million cars would be sold in the 1978 model year has proved to have been too high.

GM's capital spending plans suggest that the company is backing up its view with a strong commitment of dollars to new plant and equipment - to the tune of $5 billion in calendar 1979.

Observers hasten to note, however, that those plans are not solely a matter of GM's judgement. They are dictated to a considerable extent by laws setting future safety and fuel-efficiency requirements for the industry.

With those large capital needs, auto executives like Murphy would seem to have extra reason to hope his optimistic sales projections are on target.

Don't do-it-yourself

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have read articles by Dr. Linus Pauling which extol the value of massive doses of vitamin C to prevent many diseases including cancer by building up the body's immune system.

I realize there is a controversy about the value of this but I would like to know if there is any danger in taking such large doses of vitamin C — on the order of 10 grams per day.

DEAR READER — Reputable scientists have evaluated the use of vitamin C in preventing colds and viral diseases and have not been able to demonstrate that it is effective in any way. Certainly large doses of vitamin C do not prevent cancer.

There have been some studies which suggest there may be some improvement in the immune system's function, but we don't really understand yet whether such improved function has any real biological benefits or not. At this writing, it's fair to say that there is no really good evidence that excess doses of vitamin C are helpful.

Yes, large doses of vitamin C can be harmful. Large amounts in some people irritate the bowel and cause diarrhea. That's not too comfortable.

Besides that, vitamin C is converted to oxalate which is eliminated through the kidneys. Oxalate is the main problem in causing calcium oxalate kidney stones, so very large doses of vitamin C may increase your tendency to kidney stone formation. You should know that old vitamin C often has a larger amount of oxalate in it and is more likely to cause this problem than fresh vitamin C.

Also a woman who takes large doses of vitamin C during pregnancy may cause some problems for her newborn baby. During the developmental phase the baby will develop a mechanism to destroy that excess amount of vitamin C that's presented to it.

When the baby is born this machinery to destroy large amounts of vitamin C is still there, and as a result, when the baby gets a normal amount of vitamin C and destroys it he will have rebound vitamin C deficiency or rebound scurvy.

There is some tendency for this in adults as well. That's why if you've been taking large doses of vitamin C, it would probably be better to taper off gradually rather than quit suddenly.

In summary, I don't think anyone should be taking huge doses of vitamin C on his own. If you have a specific medical problem that your doctor feels will benefit from such therapy and you're treated under supervision, that's one thing. But the individual do-it-yourself use of large amounts of vitamin C does have the potential of creating some harm and there's no evidence that such self medication in large amounts is of benefit.

To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-3, Vitamin C, Ascorbic Acid. Other readers who want this issue to learn more about what vitamin C does for the body can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Kids Run Wild When Grandma 'Sits'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am married with three children whose ages are 2, 4 and 6. I work because of necessity not choice.

My problem began last year when my father-in-law died. "Mom" wanted to keep busy, so she asked if she could be our daytime baby-sitter.

We thought it was a great idea to have "Grammy" looking after our children instead of some stranger. What a mistake!

We learned too late that Grammy is hypnotized by television! She turns it on the minute she walks into our house, and it stays on until I return from work. Meanwhile, the kids tear the house apart and it's apparent that they have no supervision whatsoever from Grammy. She lets them do anything they please, just so they don't bother her while she's watching television.

My husband and I would like to get someone else to look after our children, but we don't know how to break the news to Grammy. We hate to hurt her feelings. How do we do it?

NO WAY OUT

DEAR NO WAY: Be honest. Tell Grammy in a very kind and gentle way that your children need more supervision and attention than she has been giving them, so you've decided to make a change.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is addressed to my new mother-in-law:

I just want to say thanks for treating your son like a baby all his life.

I really enjoy picking up after him. You see, according to him, his mother has done it for him all his life.

I am the only one who can make the bed, because his mother always did it for him.

I have to mow the lawn, because he never had to do it at home; his father always did it.

I have to make sure I fix what he likes for dinner or he won't eat it, because when he was at home if he didn't like something, his mother would always fix him something else to eat.

Mom, maybe you thought you were being a perfect mother, but you have created a lazy son, and you certainly haven't made my marriage any easier.

Thanks for nothing.

YOUR DAUGHTER IN-LAW

DEAR DAUGHTER-IN-LAW: Your complaints about a spoiled son may be justified, but be fair. Your mother-in-law must have done something right to have raised the man you chose to marry.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

West bid up to five hearts and then retired from the auction. He had two good reasons to stop at that point. The first reason was that he might well have pushed his opponents one too high. The second reason was that for all he knew, it might turn out that a further push would get them to a makeable slam.

West opened his king of hearts and continued with the ace after his partner played the eight spot. When that held he looked around for new worlds to conquer. He had to shift to a minor suit. Which one?

It appeared to be a guess. At least West did guess and guessed wrong. He led a diamond and South had no trouble romping home with the rest of the tricks.

We aren't going into the merits of West's diamond lead except to point out one thing. It would be hard to visualize a holding where a club play would cost the contract. We do criticize West for his lead at trick two, however.

He should have led a low heart. His partner had raised him, had played the eight and almost surely held the queen. Put East in and he would have had no problem at trick three.

Ask the Experts

A Florida reader wants to know the origin of the expression, "Rubber bridge."

It goes back to whist where you would play the best out of three games. In case each side won one, then the third game would be called the "rubber" game.

Still 5½ Away From KC...

Rangers Robbed Again

ARLINGTON (AP)-Steve Comer has won a spot in the pitching rotation of the Texas Rangers because of his relief work in the final game of the home stand with the Chicago White Sox.

He allowed four hits, struck out five and walked one in the 5 2-3 innings he worked Thursday night. Unfortunately for Texas, he was four runs behind when he started, and the White Sox held on for a 4-2 victory.

"Comer looked super, he certainly did," Texas Manager Billy Hunter said after the loss. He said Comer will start Tuesday night in Toronto against the Blue Jays. Paul Mirabella, a rookie who was stunned for four runs and six hits by Chicago and left in the fourth inning, will go into the bullpen.

Ralph Garr led the 10-hit Chicago attack, picking up two doubles and a single and figuring in on two of the White Sox runs.

The victory went to Ken Kravec, 9-11, who allowed the Rangers only three hits before giving way to Lerrin Lagrow with one out in the eighth. But Kravec walked eight, which allowed the Rangers some scoring opportunities.

Richie Zisk got one of Kravec's walks in the sixth, and Toby Harrah followed with a towering home run to left field, his fifth round tripper of the season, to account for the two Texas runs.

Harrah's blast was one of only four hits the Rangers got. Several other hard shots - two by Al Oliver and one by Zisk - were made into outs by outstanding White Sox fielding plays.

The loss was Texas' 11th in its 15 games with Chicago this season and split the current four-game series.

College To Host Basketball Camp

Western Texas College will stage a day camp for boy's basketball enthusiasts beginning 9 a.m. Monday.

The week-long camp is designed, according to director Coach Nolan Richardson, to teach fundamentals and coordination drills to boys 8-15 years of age.

Reservations may be secured by calling Richardson at 573-7216 or WTC (573-8511) at extension 284. Cost is $40 per student.

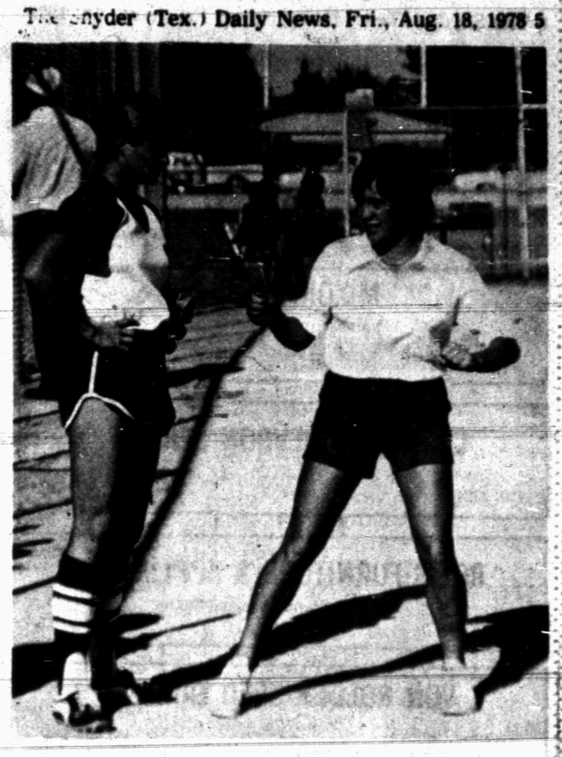
Richardson, named Texas Junior College Basketball Coach of the Year after leading his Westerners to an 11th in the nation finish last year, will be aided by All-American Paul Pressey and new WTC Dusters coach, Joe Cushing.

The camp, which concludes with a series of tournament games on Friday, will be held each day from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

A number of awards will be presented during the camp, including those for most improved, outstanding camper, and most valuable player in the tournament.

Parents are invited at any time during the camp, which will be held at the WTC Gym.

Shorts, tennis shoes and a T-shirt are the only items required by the camper.



DO IT THIS WAY - Coach Cathy Weber, right, explains a play to outfielder Karen Littlepage. Earlier in the game, Karen had been called out for stepping out of the batter's box. Cathy gives an explanation of what the call was all about and how to avoid it again. (SDN Staff Photo)

Babes Beaten In Meet Play

MIDLAND - The Bad News Babes, Snyder's Division IV entry into the first annual United Girl's Softball Association Championship Tournament, lost to Denison 3-1 here yesterday afternoon.

The Babes were to face Midland, 9-5 losers to Hobbs, N.M., at 11 this morning.

Snyder got into trouble early in yesteray's game at Lancaster Park. Denison's Pokie Braxton reached first base on a bunt and pitcher Kelly Carter replied with a all's-safe error. Sissy Luper then walked to load the bases and Juanita Campbell doubled in two Denison runs.

A heads-up Snyder defense turned the Denison gold into a double play however, catching Luper at home plate and firing back to second to nab Campbell.

Denison added another run in the second inning with back-to-back singles.

Snyder managed only two hits - a double by pitcher Connie Weber and a single by centerfielder Eva Rich - throughout the game. Both came in the top of the seventh inning, accounting for the Babes' lone score.

Weber fanned six batters during the contest, and walked one.

With a victory over Midland this morning, Snyder would have qualified to face the Hobbs-Denison loser at 5:30 this afternoon in the double-elimination tournament. Hobbs and Denison were also to play today at 11 a.m.

In Division III play, though no exact scores were available, Midland defeated Hobbs, N.M.; Odessa lost to Richmond, Va. but came back to knock Hobbs out of the tournament in evening play; and Midland whipped Abilene South.

This mornings fare was to have scheduled Virginia against Midland and Odessa versus Abilene South.

Paterno 'Top' College Coach

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - Pen State's Joe Paterno has the best record among the nation's major college football coaches, while Alabama's Bear Bryant, who tops the victory list with 273, ranks only third in winning percentage.

The figures were released today by Elmore Hudgins, public relations director of the Southeastern Conference, who originated the "Top Twenty Coaches" list in 1958.

In 12 seasons at Penn State, Paterno has a record of 112-24-1 for a winning percentage of .821. He is followed by Michigan's Bo Schembechler (126-30-6, .796) and Bryant (273-76-16, .770).

The list is based on the following formula: The records of the NCAA Division I-A head coaches are researched for the 20 who have won the most games at four-year colleges, with at least five years on the major-college level.

The coaches then are listed in order of winning percentage, with ties counting as a half-game won and a half-game lost. To qualify for the 1978 list a coach must have 68 or more victories for his career.

Smiths Fall At Sectional

DALLAS - Donna and Jon Alan Smith of Snyder were defeated in the first round of play in the Gulf State Sectional Equitable Family Tennis Challenge.

The mother-son duo was eliminated by Marguerite and Ken Strong of New Orleans, 6-3, 6-4.

A win in the sectional, played at Northwood Country Club here, would have meant a trip to the U.S. Open to compete in the nationals of the Family Tennis Challenge. The Smith's previously won local and district tournaments to advance to the sectional play.

Title Fight Brewing

DALLAS (AP)-The Dallas Cowboys did not capture every trophy under the National Football League sun last year.

The World Champions failed miserably in an August showing against the Houston Oilers thereby losing the Governor's Cup, known to some as the Ralph Neely Memorial Trophy, 23-14 in the Astrodome.

The Oilers could claim all year they were the best team in Texas. While that claim takes a stretch of the imagination, it's no secret that Saturday's Oiler-Cowboy preseason clash in Texas Stadium ranks several notches above your ordinary run-of-the-mill exhibition.

First of all, both Coach Bum Phillips of Houston and Coach Tom Landry of Dallas are hurrying to mold their teams for the Sept. 3-4 NFL openers as the season expands to 16 league games.

Secondly, the Cowboy and Oiler front offices still remember the squabble over the now-retired offensive tackle Neely, who signed with both clubs and eventually stayed with the Cowboys. Dallas had to pay compensation to Houston which included the promise to visit the Astrodome for annual exhibitions.

The games, which Dallas leads 8-3, have always been heated. The Cowboys are 2-0 in the regular season against the Oilers.

The "Texas Professional Championship" usually draws a sellout crowd and Saturday's 8 p.m. game is no exception. The 65,000 seats were soldout earlier this week.

Homegrown Earl Campbell, the Texas Heisman Trophy winner, is a big draw for the Oilers while the Cowboys have two Heisman winners, quarterback Roger Staubach and halfback Tony Dorsett.

Phillips and Landry plan to play their regulars at least three quarters.

Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini, who suffered a thigh muscle pull last week, has made a rapid recovery and will play most of the game.

Phillips said he will make a check with doctors on Saturday, adding "I'm glad Dan feels better and I' for whatever gets him well."

The original cost of the New York Yankee franchise in 1903 was only $18,000.

LA Coliseum Confers With Minnesota Vikes

By The Associated Press

Minnesota Vikings President Max Winter says he has been approached by officials from the Los Angeles Coliseum about the possibility of moving the Vikings there when the Rams leave for Anaheim in 1980.

But Winter said Thursday he does not wish to move and that the chances are slim unless the Twin Cities area does not come up with a "suitable stadium."

Winter was angered when one member of the stadium commission charged with selecting the type and site of a new facility for the area said he favored a no-frills, "New England-type stadium."

"It troubles you when a member of the stadium commission announces that he will vote only for a certain type stadium," said Winter. "The people who are expected to be the primary tenants for a new stadium - the Minnesota Twins, the Minnesota Kicks, the University of Minnesota and the Vikings - have never been consulted as to their preferences."

Los Angeles Coliseum Commission President William Robertson said four owners of National Football League teams have expressed interest in moving to Los Angeles. He confirmed that he talked to Winter, but would not idientify the other three teams.

Panel Keys In On Ray

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Assassinations Committee sought to tighten its interrogation of James Earl Ray today by keying on the central lingering doubt evoked by the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King: Was there a conspiracy and was Ray involved?

Ray faced the panel for the third day, still clinging to this claim of innocence and his story about his travels with "Raoul," despite repeated assertions by his questioners that he really was stalking King from one coast to the other.

Today's proceedings, scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. EDT, were delayed once again by Ray's attorney, who asked extra time to prepare his client after having battled the committee over charges of trickery in the first two sessions.

Committee member Walter Fauntroy focused questioning on the people Ray saw and his dealings with them during more than a year of travel before and after King was shot in Memphis, Tenn.

UP Files For Intrastate Service

AUSTIN (AP)-United Parcel Service said Thursday it has applied to the Texas Railroad Commission for permission to provide intrastate service.

The company now serves Texas points with interstate deliveries as well as the Dallas-Fort Worth and Houston commercial zones, which are exempt from regulation.

"We sincerely hope the Texas Railroad Commission is convinced that the public and business communities should be able to use UPS throughout Texas," said Joseph W. Dobransky, southwest regional manager for United.

Your Birthday

Aug. 19, 1978

This coming year you could find yourself involved in a very rewarding joint venture. There's a strong likelihood that another relative or friend of the family will be in it as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't take chances today with things you're managing for others. Treat their concerns just as prudently as if they were your own. Find out more of what lies ahead for you by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're better off acting quickly than you're likely to give yourself credit for today. When making snap decisions, don't let self-doubts enter in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Occasionally we find ourselves in situations calling for a calculated risk. If you think you know the answers today, act on them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you feel lucky today (and you will be, in most instances), it's not likely to extend to gambling, especially if large stakes are involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today your sins are likely to be those of omission rather than commision. Your intentions are noble, but your follow-through is nil.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be forthright today where friends are concerned. If there's something important you would like to discuss, don't skirt the issue.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your material prospects look interesting today, so be alert for something unusual that could spell gain for you. It appears and goes in a flash.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The only things required to make today a success are clear-cut objectives. Decide where you want to go and you'll figure out how to get there.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A profitable opportunity might pop up today requiring tactics beneath your standards. If you have to choose between honor or gain, choose honor.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Normally you're generous with friends, but today you may pretend you can't do something for another. You'll collect guilt later.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't try to divide your time equally today between fun and serious matters. Get the job done first. Play later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do something physically active today even though you may feel a trifle lazy. Once you're out of the hammock you'll be glad you got the blood circulating.

ON HOLIDAY - These Senior Citizens paused briefly for a picture before boarding vans for a trip to Palo Duro Canyon to see "Texas" Thursday. They were due to be back in Snyder about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Senior Citizens On Palo Duro Trip

Twenty-seven Senior Citizens visited Palo Duro Canyon to see the musical "Texas" Thursday night on a trip arranged by the Senior Center at Western Texas College.

Traveling by van, the group left the Senior Center at 10 a.m. and had lunch in Lubbock before checking into a motel in Amarillo for the night. After dinner at the Big Texas Steak House in Amarillo, the group went to Palo Duro Canyon for a brief period of sightseeing before curtain time.

More sightseeing in the Canyon was scheduled for this morning, along with a tour of the Panhandle-Plains Museum on the campus of West Texas State University.

Making the trip were Ruby Reeves, Lloyd Reeves, Verdi Kimbro, Wayne Williams, Opal Williams, Laura Holladay, Lovilla Holladay, Blanche Murry, Lizzie Freeman, Ruth Davis, Edith Blair, Ann Asher, Mozelle Lee, Zada Townsend, Alvin Townsend, Mable Duck, Lorene Henderson, Frances Thomason, Stanley White, Naida White, Madge Derryberry, Amanda Garner, Kathryn Holder, C.O. Holder, Faye Robbins, Mary Hollen and Mary Devenport. Mrs. Gloria Shaw, Senior Center director, her husband, Ron Shaw, and Duane Smith, WTC instructor, drove the vans.

Theft, Mishaps Reported In City

Reports of a theft and four minor traffic accidents have been investigated by city police.

C.H. Wylie told officers that abut $350 worth of tools were removed from the back of a pickup truck parked at his 1311 23rd St. home sometime between Aug. 4 and Aug. 17.

In followup investigations, officers reported they took one suspect in custody in connection with the reported theft of two earrings from the home of Mrs. David Ratliff. One set of earrings, they said, was recovered.

The city's first mishap took place at the post office at 10:53 a.m., records show. It involved a 1972 Oldsmobile driven by Earl Fleet Wilson and a 1978 Ford Pickup driven by Leslie Riggins.

The second mishap resulted in the death of a horse. That mishap involved a 1977 Buick driven by Barbara Lipsey and a horse owned by Tammy Bruns.

The horse sustained a broken leg in the accident and was later destroyed. The collision occurred on West 23rd St. about 1:30 p.m.

A hit and run was reported at 2:47 p.m. at the Snyder Daily News. Reports show that a 1964 Ford Falcon pickup owned by Essie Cole was struck by a vehicle which apparently fled the scene.

The final mishap was at the parking lot of the Varsity Square shopping center.

It involved a 1966 Chevrolet driven by Janet Perry Chapman and a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Roevella Belinda Baker. It took place about 7:15 p.m.

More Records Sold

NEW YORK (AP)-The recording industry in the United States experienced an increase in 1977 over the previous year by 28 percent in dollar sales, according to the Recording Industry Association of America.

The greatest percentage increase was registered by pre-recorded tape cassettes which rose to 36.9 million in unit sales in 1977 from 21.8 million in 1976, an increase of 69.3 percent.

The only phase of the business which didn't jump was 45 rpm records, called singles, which remained even with 1976, at 190 million units.

Changes On Tax Forms Weighed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal says the Carter administration will consider limiting itemized income tax deductions in an effort to simplify the nation's tax system.

Such a change, if approved by Congress, could result in higher taxes for many couples and individuals who itemize deductions. It also might entice millions away from itemizing.

That is precisely what Sen. Russell B. Long, who asked Blumenthal to consider the idea, is trying to do. Massive switches away from itemizing would result in fewer taxpayer errors and less work for the Internal Revenue Service.

Blumenthal agreed Thursday to have his staff consider changes in itemized deductions as he testified for Carter's tax proposals before the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Long, a Louisiana Democrat.

Blumenthal appeared ready to compromise with the Senate on various provisions in the tax bill.

That stance contrasted sharply with the administration's position in earlier dealings with the House. After Carter's advisers appeared unwilling to compromise on key points, almost all the president's proposals were junked in the House.

Despite Blumenthal's conciliatory attitude with the Finance Committee, Carter told a news conference later in the day he will not hesitate to veto the bill if it is unacceptable to him.

Blumenthal found two major faults with the $16.3 billion bill passed by the House:

-The $10.4 billion package of individual tax cuts is tilted too much toward high-income taxpayers, he said. He asked the Senate to rewrite the bill to make it more like the president proposed last January.

-While the Carter administration is now willing to accept some reduction in the tax on capital gains, the House provisions are inequitable because they would virtually destroy the "minimum tax," Blumenthal said. That tax is aimed at ensuring that wealthy investors pay some federal tax no matter how many deductions they claim.

Blumenthal said the minimum tax should be retained and that a costly inflation adjustment on capital gains - the profits from the sale of stocks, real estate and other property - should be eliminated from the House bill.

Party Set At Hermleigh Gym

HERMLEIGH-A dance and annual signing party is set for 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Hermleigh High School Gym Monday.

The Hermleigh drill team is sponsoring the party.

Oscar Wilde identified a cynic as a man who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing.

The member-owners of the rural electric cooperative know both price and value. They know price is higher largely because of higher fuel costs. But they also recognize that it is still a real value. When you weigh the price against the value of rural electricity, value tips the scales.
