QUEISSER ASKS COUNCIL FOR MORE POLICEMEN TO ASSURE ADEQUATE PROTECTION OF CITY

Commissioner Makes Plea for Additional Help to Put Check on Crime; to Confer With The Mayor on Program.

An assertion that the present police department was inadequate to supply the police protection needed in Wichita Falls, that the public was demanding and was entitled to have greater security and that the grand jury now in recess would soon ask that provision be made for a larger police force was made to the city council Monday night by Police and Fire Commissioner Frank Queisser, who, at the same time, requested permission to immediately add five men to his department.

Paying for It.

"Taxpayers here are paying for it one way or the other now," Commissioner ueisser said. "It is simply a question of whether we want to pay officers for protection, or let the public pay in stolen watches, jewels and cash. We have had too many burglaries and robberies here lately —and they have come simply because we haven't enough men or adequate facilities to patrol a city of the size of Wichita Falls. I want permission to put on five additional men at once and maybe I'll call for more later on."

Didn't Get 'Em.

He did not get the men last night. Mayor Shepherd and the other commissioners opined they were needed, but the ever present bugaboo question of "how can you pay them?" bobbed up at once, of course. The police department budget this year will not permit the added expense without creating an overdraft.

The whole thing was dropped for the evening but Mayor Shepherd called for a conference in the next few days in which the situation will be discussed.

NO SESSION OF LEGISLATURE NEEDED, CLAIM

AUSTIN, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Round table conferences instead of a special session of the legislature to consider the highway department situation, was urged today by State Senator J. D. Parnell of Wichita Falls.

Several state senators were in the capital today, and most of them indicated that they opposed a special session.

Senator Parnell said he could see no necessity for a special session as called by Representative A. H. King of Throckmorton, as it would cost between $250,000 and $500,000 for the legislature to consider awarding of highway contracts. A round table conference could go into the matter thoroughly, he explained.

Declaring that the members of the legislature to whom he had spoken had approved the conference plan as well as the members of the highway commission, Senator Parnell said he would invite the attorney general to attend the meeting, which would be public. He said he did not approve Representative King's action in calling the special session.

Senator Parnell said that if he is a member of the Fortieth Legislature, he will submit a constitutional amendment creating a state board of managers, with the governor as chairman, to look after affairs of the state, thus eliminating many boards of the state.

Park Donor Has New Plans

JURY PROSPECT IN SWAYZEE CASE QUIZZED ABOUT POSSIBLE TROUBLE OVER STRAY CATTLE

Controversy Which Is Said to Have Led to Homicide Is Hinted as Defense Begins Fight For Liberty

J. L. Marshall went back to farm life of years gone by when he started his battle yesterday to escape the penalty the state of Texas seeks to make him pay for the alleged slaying on July 26 of J. E. Swayzee.

With jury selection started before Judge H. R. Wilson of the 30th district court, Marshall and his attorneys went in detail into the occupations, past and present, of the venire brought before them. Especially did they inquire as to whether or not the prospective jurors had ever been involved with neighbors over disputes of straying and wayward cattle. If the veniremen reported ever having lived on a farm, Attorneys John Davenport and Robert K. Crain, representing Marshall, inquire very specifically on this cattle dispute question, for the shooting of Swayzee near the city incinerator last July is reported to have come as a result of a long-standing controversy between the two men over damages said to have been done by Swayzee's cattle in Marshall's cotton patch.

Ten Jurors Picked.

Ten jurors had been elected when court adjourned at 5:15 o'clock Monday afternoon and it was the belief of court officials the remaining two would be accepted by 10 o'clock this morning. The 10 accepted are B. D. Boyd, J. S. Taylor, Roy Willard, W. C. Morris, J. A. Deakin, J .E. Seright, J. H. Enderli, G. C. Biggs, C. V. Herrin and M. Lewis.

Some of the jurors are farmers—but all of them disclaimed serious trouble of any kind or at any time over straying cattle from a neighbor's fields.

Aside from its queries as to cattle arguments, the defense questioned each venrieman closely on his attitude toward the law of self-defense. This was taken to mean that this plea will be advanced by the defendant.

May Ask Death Penalty.

The state has indicated it will ask for infliction of the death penalty. The question "do you have concientious scruples against infliction of a death penalty as punishment for crime?" was put to each man as he entered the witness box. As usual, 50 per cent of the veniremen were challenged for cause and excused when they expressed abhorrence of capital punishment in any case. One man late in the afternoon said he would inflict a death penalty in a rape case but not in a murder case, no matter how atrocious the crime might have been.

When court adjourned each side had used 11 of its 15 peremptory challenges.

The case will be resumed at 9 o'clock this morning.

District Attorney Ben Allred, Assistant District Attorney George Anderson and Special Prosecutor James V. Allred, former district attorney, are handling the trial for the state.

CITY URGED TO LAY NEW PLANS ON MUNY PARK

W. F. Weeks Offers to Help Pay for "Real City Boulevard."

A radical revision of plans for development of the new municipal park and golf course was advocated before the city council Monday night by W. F. Weeks, donor of 260 acres of land comprising the park, who is asking the city and county to co-operate with him in a beautification and improvement scheme commensurate with what he believes to be the future value of that part of town. His proposition, which the council admitted was certainly a fair and reasonable one, involves a doubling of the width of the proposed Holliday-Park-Lake road inside the park; boulevarding and beautifying the road; cutting its level to grade and changing the type from concrete to asphalt. As he expressed it he wants to "put in a real city boulevard there instead of a narrow country road."

As an alternative proposition in case the city and county could not accept his new suggestions, Mr. Weeks asked that he be allowed to reimburse them for all they have expended in improving the park; pay for the Municipal golf club clubhouse; pay a $5000 bonus for the city's trouble and get his land back.

Gave Land to City.

Some two years ago when the city was casting about for a site for its municipal golf course, Mr. Weeks offered a tract of 160 acres of land on condition that the city put a paved road through it. He later increased this offer to 260 acres when it was found the additional land was needed; and still later he gave without cost two or three additional acres on which the clubhouse, built by the city for the Municipal golf club, now stands.

A contract was dully entered into between Mr. Weeks and the city calling for an 18-foot concrete road through the park.

Through subsequent negotiations the county commissioners agreed to build the roadway for the city, this being the first step in the important Holliday-Park-Lake project which is now under construction. The city is paving Holliday street from Elevent to the city limits, where the county picks up the work, carries it on to and through the park and out to a connection with the present lake road at a point near the asylum grounds.

Plans Beautification.

With recent development of the whole south side of the city and especially that territory lying around the new park, Mr. Weeks has conceived the idea of an elaborate beautification plan which will be of benefit to property in the neighborhood, still owned by him and at the same time be of great value to the city park.

His new proposition calls for a street of perhaps 60 feet in width, starting at a point near the entrance to the park and continuing on to a

Father To Spend 7 Years In Prison Rather Than Tell Daughter's Hiding Place

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Grimy with stoking the Wyandotte county jail furnace, James A. Hall, brakeman, reiterated his determination today to remain in jail seven years rather than to reveal the whereabouts of his nine-year-old daughter, Grace Angela.

"I feel it my duty to remain here for seven years until Grace reaches the age of decision between her mother and me," said Hall. "After that there will be no more contempt of court."

Hall was committed to jail for contempt of court a week ago by Judge F. D. Hutchings when he refused to reveal the whereabouts of the little girl. Hall had been arrested in Fresno, Calif., on a charge of abducting the child ,who had been given into the mother's custody when her mother, Clara Hall divorced Hall here last September.

Hall has asserted that if the little girl were given into the mother's custody she would be prejudiced against him.

HOW THE CITY'S TAX DOLLAR IS TO BE SPENT

HOW IT IS AND WAS

Revised total valuation of city, 1925, $39,910,820.

Revised total valuation of city, 1924, $34,097,170.

Taxes due October 1, 1925, at $1.30 rate, $518,804.66.

Taxes due October 1, 1924, at $1.50 rate, $511,457.55.

The above table shows at a glance how every tax dollar paid in to the city of Wichita Falls will be divided this year. This division was worked out Monday by City Clerk W. E. McBroom and Tax Assessor and Collector W. R. Hyer and affords some interesting comparisons with last year's division as well as revealing about what Wichita Falls as a municipality needs for 12 months in the way of funds to run itself.

It is seen, for instance, that more money is required this year for the principal operating fund, the general, than for interest and sinking funds. Last year 46 and a fraction cents were required from each tax dollar to meet interest payments and provide the necessary sinking funds. At the same time the general fund received only about 32 and one-half cents—32.67, to be exact. This year, however, interest and sinking funds get only $ .38.84, while the general fund receives 40 cents even. This is the first year since a $1,625,000 bond issue was floated in 1920 that an operating fund has received more than interest and sinking funds. It has been brought about by retirement of some of the bonds and by the fact that the city water department, the only revenue producer of the municipality, is able to finance its own interest and sinking fund requirements

HIGHWAY BOARD IS SPURRED TO ACTION AS CITIZENS, OFFICIALS AND ENGINEERS MAKE PROTESTS

Residents of Nine Counties Charge Unfairness in Contracts; Commission Bares Cancellation Of Old Deals

AUSTIN, Oct. 12.—Frank V. Lanham, chairman of the state highway commission whose contracts for road building in certain sections of Texas have attracted statewide comment because of charges that the deals were let unfairly, today announced that highway maintenance contracts in nine counties had been cancelled. Late today the Camp couty maintenance contract, held by Cocke and Turner of Marshall at $24,000, was cancelled, running the number of counties to nine, and the amount involved to $121,398.80.

Recommendations of county officials and other citizens, as well as of district engineers, were followed by the highway commission in cancelling the contracts, Mr. Lanham said.

It was learned today that contracts for LaSalle, Frio, Webb and Zapata counties were canceled some time ago; but first announcement was made today by the commission.

The contracts were canceled, it was explained, because interested citizens, officials and highway employes convinced the commission that this action was necessary to protect the interests of the people of these nine counties, Chairman Lanham said.

Board in Limelight.

Activities of the highway department recently attracted much attention when a Harris county court granted a temporary injunction restraining the state from issuing vouchers in payment for certain road work in that county because of charges that the work was let at a price higher than that bid by another concern.

Contracts were cancelled today for Hardeman, Valverde, Foard, Knox and Camp.

Chairman Lanham said an injunction in Knox county against the contractor having the Knox county maintenance work relieved the commission of the necessity of cancelling the contract for Knox, though in effect, the contract is cancelled, since it has been taken out of the hands of the contractors. "We are glad the injunction took care of the situation, for we, otherwise, would have cancelled the Knox county contract," he said.

New Plan Invoked.

Provision has been made in each county to carry on maintenance under direction of district superintendents. These superintendents will place the highways in good condition, and bond holders for the various contractors will be called on to meet any cost above the figure named for each county in the cancelled contracts, the chairman declared.

In addition to Cocke and Turner, the following firms held contracts that have been cancelled: Neyland Smith company of San Antonio, Valverde county, $24,440; M. M. Robinson company of Laredo, Webb county, $24,720; Zapata, $4,000; Frio, $9,588.88; and LaSalle, $7,200; R. B. Stronp of Wichita Falls, Hardeman county, $6,000; Knox, $12,300; and Foard, $8,150.

Other Business.

Other items transacted by the commission follow:

McClung Construction company of Fort Worth and L. B. Evert of McKinney, each awarded an Ellis county project contract for approximately $35,000; agreed to top 17 miles in Lee county, subject to specifications maintenance engineer work to begin next year; agreed to top 12 miles in Smith county on Troup to Tyler road, and eight miles on Henderson to Tyler road, county to do work and be reimbursed in April, 1926, by the commission; agreed to receive bids on concrete road on highway 34 in Kaufman county; road to Kenedy to Karnes City by way of Nordheim and Runge designated state highway and road from San Marcos to Wimberley re-designated.

Shelby county applied for $17,905 in state aid to grade and gravel five miles from Teneha to Timpson. The application was not acted on today.

THE WEATHER

"I would of been named John, but my uncle that's named John hadn't got rich yet when I was born."

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH.

Night Thoughts.

Night thoughts, night shadows, when the day is done
Around the house, around the heart as one,
And though the weary body cries for sleep,
Night thoughts, night shadows, their attendance keep,
Filling the garden with fantastic dreams,
Filling the mind with more fantastic schemes.

For now a tree becomes a fearful thing,
A wall a precipice, the children's swing
A gibbet in the gloom. And so our cares
Are with us even as we climb the stairs.
Some little loss, perhaps some sentence rude,
Becomes a shadow of much magnitude.

Let not the things of day the night distress,
Whom God has given you forgetfulness
Now close the curtains, close the weary mind,
For not at night the answer you will find.
Yes, close your eyes and put your cares away,
And think them out in the clear light of day.

THE PLAY'S THE THING HENCEFORTH

Local Art Club To Study Shakespeare's Plays

"We go at night to see the play,
When little dramas every day
Are all about us. Much sublime
I know there is in Shakespeare's rhyme.
But all his characters he found him,
I have no doubt, in folks around him."

THE verse taken from Douglas Malloch's "Lyrics of Life" suggests to us that there is a newly organized group of women who call themselves, the Dramatic Art club, who are intending to make a study of Shakespeare's plays along with that of the modern drama. his club is composed of the expression pupils of Mrs. Lloyd Young and will meet at her home every Wednesday evening. it is announced.

Mrs. Thelma Scott Clark, one of the best known dramatic readers in the city, who has taken important parts in several local productions, will direct the outlines for the Shakespeare plays which will be a part of the study course, and Odra Lee Jenkins was selected to direct the gymnasium exercises which will also be an important feature of the work. At the meeting to be held this week, the club will study Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," and Hamlet will be the Shakespeare play discussed.

At the meeting held last week Lucille Ballard gave for readings, "Camera Clicks" and "Last Request."

The officers of the club are Mrs. Lloyd Young, director; Mrs. Fay M. Yauger, president; Mrs. E. S. Marshall, vice president; Mrs. E. J. Stump, treasurer; Miss Estelle Stanfield, secretary.

We are convinced that Wichita Falls' women are in earnest about the study of art drama and literature. Never in the history of the city's existence have they thought so much about this genuine culture. Women in Wichita Falls no longer go to concerts merely to spend time pleasurably, but to deepen their knowledge of music. They no longer go to any form of entertainment merely to be entertained, but go to be genuinely advanced and deepened in culture.

Monday afternoon, the Penwomen's club heard a lecture which proved not only entertaining but instructive. It was given by Dan Folen, who is here directing the Elks Revue. Mr. Folan is not only a director of much ability, he is also a collector of rare volumes and manuscripts. At this lecture on "Art and Literature" Mr. Folan showed several specimens of his collection which proved especially interesting.

And speaking of rare volumes, Mr. Folan also assists people in selecting and collecting libraries only having recenely finished the selection of a library for a woman in Orange, Texas, which includes rare books from all over Europe. In fact it is said to be one of the best libraries in the world contained in a private residence.

And we are also interested in "Health" as well as in art and literature, realizing that nothing is of much importance if we do not enjoy good health. Today at 3 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. Dr. A. P. Terrell will talk to the Forum members on this important subject. And Mrs. H. J. Tracey will talk on "Upbuilding." The prospects for a physical culture class for this department of the Forum will also be discussed. Mrs. P. L. Myers, is chairman of the health department.

Directs Study

Mrs. Thelma Scott Clark, pupil of Mrs. Lloyd Young, will direct the outlines for the Shakespeare plays that the Dramatic Art club will study at the weekly meetings to be held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Young. Mrs. Clark is a talented dramatic reader and will be remembered as the star in several high school productions.

Millions Die Of Indigestion

Most Common, Yet Insidious of Fatal Diseases, Strikes Like Lightning and When Least Expected.

Protect yourself by strengthening your digestive organs with Ferraline—then eat what you please without trouble.

Nature, with her infinite wisdom, has provided in Ferraline a quick and sure relief for the millions who are living in constant fear of that dreaded disease—Indigestion. Ferraline is not a concoction made by man but is a strictly natural product, and contains the essential elements which Nature has provided to strengthen and tone up the weakened organs of digestion.

Indigestion and weak blood march hand-in-hand. No dyspeptic can have pure rich blood until his digestion is made perfect again. Stomach disorders always weaken the blood and weak blood causes anaema, weakness and nervousness.

If you have had warnings of Indigestion do not delay another day to accept the positive guarantee that your money will be promptly and cheerfully refunded if the very first bottle of Ferraline does not give you relief. Don't be misled into believing that heart-burn, gas, bloating, constipation, biliousness, sick stomach, heart and kidney pains will gradually go away. These are danger signals warning you that the dread disease Indigestion, is gradually sapping your very life. Regenerate your digestive organs at once with Ferraline, then you can eat three good meals every day without discomfort. A 10 day's treatment of Ferraline will cost you only One Dollar at your druggists. The Ferraline Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

SOCIETY

"BOOKS today are not a luxury, they are a necessity, and there is a distinction between a book agent and a book man. The latter person represents an ethical firm such as Harpers, Scribners and other worthy book concerns and are worthy of a hearing," Dan Folan told members of the Penwoman's club and their guests Monday afternoon when he talked to them on the subject, "Art and Literature."

Mr. Folan, who is here directing the Elks Revue, has with him a rare collection of old manuscripts and volumns collected from all parts of the United States and Europe. Among those shown the penwomen were manuscripts and autographs of George Washington, Marion Crawford, Alexander Dumas and Samuel Clements. He values his collection at $60,000 and it will be on display at the library under the auspices of the local penwomen if a suitable case can be found for it.

During a brief business session, which preceded the talk, Miss Lucile Sherrod lead the lesson on original work and read her chapter for the composite novel the members are writing. Mrs. H. E. Wilcox also brought her chapter and read it.

Several guests were present and the members were Mesdames J. T. Bowen, Claude Williamson, H. F. Weldon, M. E. Johnson, E. A. Skalinder, W. H. Sanford, Sam Kruger, H. E. Wilcox, Freida Van Emden, W. A. Hindman, Wayne Somerville and Miss Lucile Sherrod.

SUB ROSA BY MIMI

By MIMI
Reckless Truth.

Ruth, at first, created a tremendous amount of talk.

When the boys first met her you hear their startled, half admiring comments about this madly reckless young person who dares to do the most amazing things and who risks her life daily by hair-raising exploits.

The boys like that—they call her a good sport and encourage the other girls to emulate her example.

But the other girls, if they are wise, refuse to imitate their courageous sister.

For they have seen the effects of Ruth's recklessness on the boys who have known her for a long while, and they know she is playing a losing game.

Ruth loves sports—she adores swimming at least a mile out of sight of the rest of the crowd. On several occasions, though, she's had to be rescued, and that has been such ardous labor for her male companions that they've rather given up praising her aquatic feats.

Then she's fond of riding—and refuses to mount just a plain ordinary horse, but always insists on a spirited animal known to be dangerous.

Everyone was rather enthusiastic about Ruth's courage in the matter of riding, when one day she was thrown and rather badly hurt.

The effect of her fall was to cast a gloom over the whole house party which she was attending—and many of the younger members of the crowd were heard to remark bitterly that if Ruth would only take care of her silly neck, she'd create far less trouble.

She drives a car like a speed demon which was all very well in its way—only the two accidents she had suffered have resulted in injuries to the unfortunate people who happened to be driving with her.

Starting out for a dance one night, she exclaimed gaily, "Do you see that flight of stairs? I'm going to jump the last ten steps," and fortwith did so at the cost of a sprained ankle, which of course prevented her going on to the dance, and entirely broke up the party.

People have wearied so of Ruth's recklessness that they're really getting rather bitter about it.

The boys who have known her long enough to be unenthusiastic about her gay courage, complain that you're never comfortable with her because you can't tell what new attempt at suicide she'll be making next.

Ruth's sort of courage isn't really admirable after all.

It's rather a form of self-exploitation. Ruth says to herself with a complacent grin, "This will make them gasp," and she rushes headlong into some foolhardy escapade with no regard for her friends or companions.

Nowadays the boys who once called her a good sport are wont to remark, "Ruth's not a good sport—she is just a plain darn fool."

ORDE REVERYWHERE.

It is easy to believe that the universe is not a disorderly, disconnected heap, but a beautiful whole, stamped throughout with unity.

Nothing stands alone.

All things are knit together, each existing for all and all for each.

The humblest object has infinite connections.

The vegetable which you saw on your table today, came to you from the first plant which grew on the earth, and was the product of the rains and sunshine of 600,000,000 years (or whatever is the latest estimate of the age of the earth).

Such a universe demands thought to be understood; and it must be that we were placed in it to think, to put forth the power within, to look beneath the surface of things, to look beyond particular facts and events to their causes and effects.

Their reasons and ends.

Their mutual influences.

Their diversities and resemblances.

Their proportions and harmonies.

And the general laws which bind them together.

Yet how many persons do think about these things? Amazingly few, judging from the extent to which superstition dominates the majority of mankind.

William Ellery Channing observed that the child who casts an inquiring eye on a new toy, and breaks it to pieces that he may discover the mysterious cause of its movements, has begun to be a philosopher, has begun to penetrate the unknown, to seek harmony and consistency of thought.

"Let him go on as he has begun, and make it one great business of life to inquire into the elements, connections and reasons of whatever he witnesses in his own breast, or in society, or in outward nature, and, be his condition what it may, he will rise by degrees to a freedom and force of thought, to a breadth of unity of views, which will be to him an inward revelation."

It was Channing, you may know, who said that "Thought, intelligence, is the dignity of man, and no man is rising but in proportion as he is learning to think clearly and forcibly, or in directing the mind to the acquisition of truth."

THE TREE OF WISDOM.

Truly great books are more than mines to those who can understand them.

They are the breathings of the great souls of past times; mirrors of the best minds of the ages.

Genius is not embalmed in them, as is sometimes said, but lives in them, as Channing observed.

We need not many books to answer the great ends of reading.

A few are better than many, and a little time given to a faithful study of the few will be enough to quicken thought and enrich the mind.

After all, the learning commonly gathered from books is of less worth than the truths we gain from experience and reflection.

In these days of "outlines" and condensed culture, most of the knowledge from reading, being acquired with little mental action, and seldom reflected on and turned to use, is very much a vain show.

Events stirring the mind to earnest thought and vigorous application of its recourses, do vastly more to elevate the mind than our professors.

And few of the books the public reads today deserve to be read.

This autumn the lists of the publishers are longer than ever before, but the number of worthy ones is no longer. Not five per cent of the huge number of works of all classes that will engulf the reading public this season will be deserving of the full attention of intelligent persons.

Most books have no principle of life, as proved by the fact that they die the year of their birth.

They do not come from thinkers, and how can they waken thought?

No man need starve for good books.

Every human being is a volume worthy to be studied.

How much more improving is the original, if only we know how to read it.

TOM MARSHALL'S CREED.

It is no new religion we need. Our creed should be: One Lord, one faith, one baptism—the Lord of justice who was with Washington at Valley Forge, Grant and Lee at Appomattox, Pershing on the fields of France; the faith that under a republican form of government alone democracy permanently can endure; the baptism of the spirit which will not be content until no man is above the penalties and no man beyond the protection of our laws.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Don't Worry About Your Brain.

An English psychologist finds it worth while to reassure people who have been worrying about brain fag.

He tells them that if they will keep their general health in condition, their brains will take care of themselves.

It will be remembered that in Lewis Carrol's song, Father William, when asked why he continually stands on his head replies:

"In my youth—my son
I feared it would injure the brain
But now I am perfectly sure I have none
I do it again and again."

Most of the people who are alarmed lest they wear out their brains with overwork have very few brains to wear out, or they would not suffer from this feeling.

People who have brains, and who use them never stop to think about brain fag or brain exhaustion. If they did they would never get very much accomplished.

When James Russell Lowell was writing "The Vision of Sir Launfall" he locked himself in his study and remained there until the poem was completed. It required several days, most of which were spent in intensive effort.

Nearly all great work has to be done in the same way. No important accomplishment is possible without an amount of brain work of which the ordinary person is incapable—not because his brain will break down under the strain, but because it has never been schooled to keep at a big job until it is done.

The mental wrecks who have to leave their business to rest for six months or a year are sometimes made mental wrecks by worry, oftener by some physical trouble.

Usually when the brain stalls like a balky horse and refuses to go on any further it is because some trouble with the digestion or the nerves distracts the attention from the work in hand.

The anaconda, who set the fashion of eating heavily, is not very alert when he is digesting his dinner, and that is the time that collectors for zoos and museums select to capture him.

Nor is the business man who eats a huge meal in the middle of the day in very good shape to cope with the brighter business man who takes just enough to keep him going.

Insane asylums would have few patients if they only housed the brilliant and intelligent people who overwork. Most of the patients are mediocre men and women, or people who have never learned how to take care of their general health, and who have been broken down by the inroads of disease.

The brain is capable of doing far more work than any of its owners are willing to make it do.

IMPULSIVE MEN AND ENERGETIC MEN.

"It is not because mens desires are strong that they act ill," we are taught; "it is because their consciences are weak."

To say that one person's desires and feelings are stronger than those of another, is merely to say that he has more of the raw material of human nature, and is therefore capable, perhaps of more evil, but certainly of more good.

When people speak of a man as "impulsive," they usually do so deprecatingly.

Energy may be turned into bad uses; but more good may always be made of an energetic nature, than of an indolent and impassive one.

Those who have most natural feeling, are always those whose cultivated feelings may be made the strongest, psychologists tell us.

The same strong susceptibilities which make the personal impulses vivid and powerful, are also the source from whence are generated the most passionate love of virtue, and the sternest self-control, John Stuart Mill observed.

"It is through the cultivation of these, that society both does its duty and protects its interests; not by rejecting the stuff of which heroes are made, because it knows not how to make them."

A person whose desires and impulses are not his own, has no character, no more than a steam engine has character.

But one whose impulses and desires are his own—are the expression of his own culture—has a character.

If, in addition to being his own, his impulses are strong, and are under the government of a strong will, he has an energetic character.

"Whoever thinks that individuality of desires and impulses should not be encouraged to unfold itself, must maintain that society has no need of strong natures—is not the better for containing many persons who have not much character," Mill concluded.

THE LAW OF LIFE.

Nothing is so constant and sure in this existence of ours as change.

Change is universal and inevitable.

Yet a great body of mankind is ever battling it.

At least half the laws on the statute books were put there to stay the inexorable onrush of time and change. As futile as attempting to stay the tides or waves of the ocean!

The true venerator of the past sorrows not over its departure, as one utterly bereaved.

The best of the past does not depart.

It was written long ago, "No truth of goodness realized by man ever dies, or can die; but is still here, and recognized or not, lives and works through endless changes."

Time itself reposes on eternity: the truly great has its basis and substance in eternity.

Thus in all poetry, worship, art, society, as one form passes into another, nothing that is good is really lost.

Carlyle's conclusion is inevitable: The present is the living sum total of the past.

In change, after all, there is nothing terrible, nothing supernatural; on the contrary, it lies in the very essence of our lot and life in this world.

If life has any law, then it is change.

Today is not yesterday: we ourselves change; how can our works and thoughts, if they are always to be the fittest, be the same?

Change is painful, yes; but needful; and if memory has its force and worth, so has hope.

Pastor's Accuser and Accused

Detroit conference of the Methodist Episcopal church is investigating charges of heresy brought against Lynn Harold Hough (left) pastor of Central Methodist church, Detroit, and former president of Northwestern University. "Through a private wire to God, a divine wire in my heart, I have been told that Dr. Hough was heretical," says Dr. Levi Bird (right) of Port Saulac, Mich., the accuser.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Libra.

Today's planetary aspects maintain the adverse character, that they assumed yesterday evening, until noon. They then undergo a somewhat precititate change, and become quite benign, with pronounced stimulating vibrations. They continue in this form until sometime after sunset, when they again revert to an unfavorable atage. Only during the period between noon and sundown would it be advisable to affect any change, or take any steps that may have an important bearing on either your career or your frame of mind. For the balance of the day, it will be necessary to exercise more than ordinary care, and, above all, to refrain from anything and everything that savors of impulse and haste. Stick to routine as much as possible.

Children born today will be subject to more than their share of infantile ailments. These, however, if proper nutrition be given and wholesome environment provided, will have no serious consequences and they afford every promise of attaining a healthy and vigorous maturity. In disposition, they are more liable to be pugnacious, than amiable, and will always hold very strict ideas as to what is their due, and, in addition, will see that they get it. They will possess forceful characters, and enjoy very decided, and, at times, extreme opinions. No problem of life will scare them as they will be endowed with both physical and mental courage, combined with a love for work and study.

If today is your birthday, your dominating qualities are apparent to all those brought into association with you and most of your intimates recognize you as a leader. Your quick wit and keen perception enable you to grasp the salient points of a situation very promptly and your exceptional facility of expressing yourself in terse, convincing language, immediately focuses attention on you and commands respectful attention. Your mood is generally combative and you rarely express, for the sake of harmony, agreement with ideas that do not coincide with your own. Rather do you take pains, in season and out of season, to convince others of what, from your point of view, is the error of their ways. Your memory is, being retentive of great aid to you. When this, however, fails you, or accurate knowledge is lacking, you do not hesitate to call on your imagination, which is quite vivid.

You love appreciation by others and are disposed to accept as your due what sometimes appears to others as unadulterated flattery.

Your strong nature demands strong love, and, regardless of your sex, in your home you are never a partner, but always the controlling and dominating genius.

POEMS THAT LIVE

TO CELIA.

Drink to me only with thine eyes,
And I will pledge with mine;
Or leave a kiss in the cup
And I'll not look for wine.
The thirst that from the soul doth rise
Doth ask a drink divine;
But might I of Jove's nectar sup,
I would not change for thine.

I sent thee late a rose wreath,
Not so much honoring thee
As giving it a hope that there
It could not withered be;
But thou thereon didst only breathe
And sent'st it back to me;
Since when it grows and smells, I swear,
Not of itself—but thee!

HOW IT STARTED

BRITANNIA

We are all familiar with "Britannia," the majestic female who personifies Great Britain. Seated on a globe or on an island rock, she has one arm on a shield and with the other hand she grasps a spear or trident. It is history that Britannia had her origin on a copper coin. It is history, too, but of the kind that this column reveals from under the dust of time and circumstances, that Britannia took her form from the likeness of a celebrated actress who lived almost three hundred years ago.

In the story of Britannia's beginning the authorative antiquarian cannot omit the fact that the first example of this personfication appeared on a Roman coin of the time of Hadrian. The first reappearance of the figure, however, and the origin of the Britannia that we know today took place on the copper coinage of England in the reign of Charles II.

It was in 1665, to be exact, that a figure was wanted for the new coinage which would immortalize the spirit of Great Britain. The beautiful and dignified Miss Steward, a celebrated actress who subsequently became the Duchess of Richmond, was chosen to serve as a model for the engraver, Philip Roettier.

And so in the representations of Britannia that we see today and the scores that during the war looked down upon us from bill posters and other advertisements, we have the perpetuation of a beauty and a personality that has long since passed away.

It doesn't really matter

There's always Pasteur treatment
When a cur bites a child.

Lose your temper and you will lose a sale.

He sleeps not who takes his office home.

Scandal is only the devil tuning somebody's vocal cords.

A host of fellows fret a lot
About the weather when it's hot;
But when the weather's four below
These same fellows curse the snow.

They often slouch and have a grouch who have a torpid liver.

It's always those who make the most who say the least while others yawl.

BERLIN HAS MODERN OPERA.

Boast Best and Most Up-to-date House in All Germany.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—Berlin now boasts the most modern opera house in Germany. The Deutsches Operhaus in the Borough of Charlottenburg, which last spring went into receivership, has been taken over by the city and so renovated as to make it the equal in mechanical appointments of any similar building in the world. It was opened recently with a performance of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," attended by the mayor and the city council, mayors from other cities and representatives of the reich and state governments. Bruno Walter, well known in America as an orchestral conductor, is general musical director.

The lighting arrangements of the made-over theatre are especially noteworthy. From a battery of 120 searchlights any color of the rainbow can be thrown on the stage. Eight men are required to handle the lights alone while another battery of lights directly above the curtain illuminates the stage so that no shadows are visible to the spectators. The stage floor is constructed in four parallel removable sections which enable stage hands to set scenes in advance.

As a democratic measure flow decorations and other adornments are equally distributed through the galleries and the orchestra.

The Berlin municipal opera promises to be a worthy sister to the state opera and the Kroll opera, both operated by the Prussian government. Public approval of the new city enterprise is shown by the fact that all season tickets, reserving 60 per cent of the capacity of the house, have been subscribed for.

"RUBBER NECKS" SEE CONSUL.

Insist on Getting Glimpse of American Ambassador at Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Must the American ambassador or the American consul general receive callers from the home country who have no other business than that they want to brag when returning home of having met our diplomatic representatives abroad?

This question is giving serious concern to officials of the American consulate general in Berlin. Every day American travelers drop in who demand to see the consul general or even the ambassador. When asked to state their business they say they have none besides curiosity. When told that these two highest officials of the United States in Germany are busy with important matters many travelers insist nevertheless that they be received. Others calmly camp in the waiting rooms for hours or even days, determined somehow to get a glimpse of the men who to them represent the incarnation of America abroad. They feel that going to Berlin and not seeing the ambassador or consul general is as bad as going to Washington and not seeing the president.

The Storm CenteR

By BURTON L. STEVENSON

But for an instant, as she turned her heart stood still, for she thought it was Ahmed entering; and then she saw it was Delage, with Ahmed's gold embroidered tunic and scarlet burnoose.

"I think this will save us," he said, and drew the hood of the burnoose over his head so that his face was in the shadow. "At least we must try it for its our only chance. You still have your pistol?"

"Yes," and she tapped her pocket.

"Then we must go."

He held back the curtain at the doorway and they stepped through into the darkness of the corridor outside.

"Take my hand," he said in a low voice. "I am not altogether sure of the way, but I think I can find it. My sister is expecting me; she will be very anxious."

It seemed to Pat that the corridor twisted and turned like a labyrinth, and she soon lost all sense of direction. Delage pressed her hand reassuringly.

"I cannot be much farther," he whispered, and then Pat felt him lurch forward, his hand was torn from hers and the next instant she too was falling through space.

It was only extreme alertness on Delage's part which saved his skull from being crushed by the heavy bar in O'Neill's hands for at the vision of Ahmed stepping out of the dungeon he had swung it up ready to strike.

"No, no, it is I, Delage," he had cried, and O'Neill stopped, petrified.

Of all the astonishing moments of this astonishing night, this was the most amazing. That Delage should be here—with Pat—in Ahmed's clothes! He lowered the bar slowly, still staring, and Delage stepped forward laughing and patted him on the arm.

"There, there!" he said; "I am not a ghost—I will explain when I have more time. How did you get there?"

"By the same route you did, I suppose," O'Neill answered. "That infernal Sidi Yada dropped me through a trap."

"Sidi Yada?" Delage repeated, and his face grew dark. "Then we must not stay here. What have you found?" he added, turning to his sister.

"Nothing," she answered, and held out her open hands.

"But the chests?"

"They are empty—at least as far as I have gone. This Ahmed is a great farceur."

"Show me," said Delage, and the little party hurried back to the treasure chamber.

"Perhaps this is the treasure Ahmed meant," cried Pat, suddenly. "It was lavished on that bower on the Circassian princess."

"This is a tough one," said O'Neill. "The lid is caught on something. Perhaps I can break it."

O'Neill brought the bar crashing against the lock. A second time—a third time.

One more blow and it flew open.

Inside the chest was a smaller one, very strongly made. It was all Delage could do to lift it out to the floor. He tried the lid, then bent above it with the torch.

"It is locked, too," he said, "and the lock is too small for my keys. We shall have to leave it."

O'Neill lifted one end of the chest and let it fall.

"What a shame," he groaned. "What a shame."

"No matter," said Delage, sharply. "We must think of ourselves. We have been here too long. Now listen to me: We will go out the door and upstairs together. There will be a guard in the court and another guard at the outer gate. Souffi is waiting at the foot of the hill near the highway. Your man is in the court?" he added, looking at O'Neill.

"Yes," said O'Neill; "at least, I suppose so."

"Good, but we will use the camels if we can get to them. I shall try to deceive the guards, but if they suspect and an alarm is given, I will take care of Mademoiselle Landon and you, Monsieur O'Neill, will charge yourself with my sister. If you reach the camels first, do not wait for us, but mount and be off along the road to the south. Take Souffi with you; I do not need him; I know the way. Tell him simply that the route is by the hill road and the rendezvous is Mechounech. He will guide you. And you can trust him. Do you understand?"

"Yes," said O'Neill.

"Send your man with the horses back along the road to the north. Tell him to press on to Batna."

"I understand," O'Neill nodded.

"Very well, then," said Delage, and turned toward the door. But Pat stopped him.

"What of my father?" she asked.

"I have not forgotten your father, mademoiselle," said the Frenchman gravely. "I think I shall find him still lying on the cushions in the banquet hall. You will wait for me ten minutes," he added to O'Neill. "Now let us go!"

But as he raised his hand to push open the great door, it was pulled open from without.

There, peering in at them by the light of a smoking torch of resin stood four of Ahmed's guards.

CHAPTER XXII.
The Chest.

The four men were blinking on the threshold, for Delage's torch was shining full in their eyes and blinded them for an instant. The thought flashed through O'Neill's head that this was the end of everything, and he stepped to Nada's side and snatched out his pistol. But Delage, in a voice quivering with rage, shouted something in Arabic at the newcomers, and O'Neill was astounded to see them drop to their knees and bow their heads.

Then he laughed to himself. In the dim light, Delage's impersonation was succeeding—for the moment, at least!

"What do you here, you dogs?" Delage demanded.

"We heard a noise, O Mullah, as we passed on our round," one of the men replied without raising his head. "The door was open . . ."

"Enough!" broke in Delage. "I was about to summon you. Pick up that small chest yonder and follow me."

And O'Neill who, of course, understood nothing of all this, was more and more astounded to see two of the men, at a word from their leader, spring to their feet, run to the chest and lift it between them.

They went slowly along the corridor, nearly suffocated by the fumes from the torch, then up a narrow stone stair and through a doorway on the corridor above.

"We go to Teniet," he said to the four guards. "Two of you will carry the chest to the outer court; two of you will get horses from the stables, with an ass to carry the chest. Wait," he added, as they turned to go. "Know you what has become of the servant of this man?"

"He waits in the court, O Mullah!"

"With the horses?"

"With three of them, O Mullah."

"Where is the other?"

"The white haired roumi mounted it and rode away with Sidi Yada, O Mullah."

"So!" said Delage, and he translated this information to O'Neill. "It seems we shall really have to go to Teniet," he added.

"Yes," said Delage with a shrug, and turned back to the goumiers. "We shall need two horses and an ass," he added to their leader. "Hasten!"

"I thought we were going to use the camels," objected O'Neill.

"The guards would certainly suspect something if they saw us ride away on camels which they know very well do not belong to me. We will start on the horses and change to the camels at Teniet. You will send your man down to Souffi with orders to precede us and wait beside the road at Teniet. He will give him this ring for a sign," and he slipped a signet from his finger. "Is everything understood?"

Delage led the way along the corridor in the direction taken by the four natives, and in a moment came out upon the colonnade bounding the court. Belayed could be seen there, drowsing on a stone, the bridles of his three horses over one arm.

"Go," said Delage to O'Neill. "I will stay here in the shadow."

Belayed started wide away at O'Neill's touch.

"Listen carefully, Belayed," said O'Neill and he repeated Delage's instructions and gave him the ring. "You understand," he said at last.

"Yes, monsieur," Belayed answered, slipped the ring upon his finger and sprang into the saddle.

Ahmed's men, meanwhile, had roused some sleepy stable boys, who presently led two horses and an ass into the court. The horses were quickly saddled, but to secure the chest to the back of the ass was a difficult task. It was done at last, but it was evident that the beast could not proceed faster than a walk with so awkward da burden. He was protesting against it violently, in a voice which aroused all the echoes of the court, and brought the chief of the goum out to see what was going on.

Everything was ready, and Delage, drawing his hood a little closer, stepped out into the moonlight, leading Pat by the hand.

It was a curious cortege, and the chief of the goum regarded it attentively. He scratched his head in perplexity, but the figure which Delage made was so impressive and the nod he gave him as he passed so forbidding that he dared ask no question.

He did, however, venture to come forward to hold his master's stirrup.

A moment later, they were riding out through the gate. As it swung shut behind them, O'Neill drew a long breath of relief. The donkey had proved unexpectedly tractable.

"But I can't drive him all the way to Teniet," he said. "We'd never get there."

"We shall have to turn him loose at the foot of the hill," said Delage.

"And abandon the chest?"

"Yes: there is nothing else to do."

A brilliant idea occurred to O'Neill.

"I could bury it in the ruins," he said. "Nobody would find it under all that debris."

"Very well, then, Souffi will await you at Teniet, if we find it necessary to ride on."

"I'll soon join you!" cried O'Neill jubilantly. "Au revoir!"

"I shall be very worried till I see you again," said Pat.

"I also," said Nada, her eyes on his, and she waved her hand to him in a gesture which was almost like throwing a kiss.

He watched them for a moment as they rode away in the moonlight. Then, with a blow of the stick, he turned the donkey's head northward and started him off along the road. He reached the camp at last, tied his horse to the tent rope, and pausing at Belayed's quarters to get a shovel, flogged the ass up the steep side of the bluff. To the foot of a wall, O'Neill drove the donkey, untied the chest and let it fall crashing to the ground. Relieved of its burden, the donkey cantered joyously away in the direction of its home.

With his shovel, O'Neill dug a hole at the bottom of the excavation, pushed the chest into it and covered it quickly with debris and loose stone. He must let it go at that.

With a last look around, he turned away and hastened down the hillside, pausing only to restore the shovel to the place where he had found it. Then he untied his horse and sprang into the saddle. It would be fair going now all the way to Teniet.

And at that instant, a gun-shot from the hill above stabbed through the night.

He knew what had happened; the trick had been discovered.

Delage and the two women had started off briskly along the road to Teniet, but before long their pace slackened. The same thought was in all their minds. It was Pat who finally voiced it.

"I feel very mean and selfish," she said, "riding off in this way and leaving Mr. O'Neill to his fate."

"So do I," agreed Nada. "One of us should have gone with him."

"But that would have been foolish," protested Delage in a voice which showed that he himself was not leaving him to his fate. He will soon catch up with us. He could not endure it to abandon that old chest."

"It seemed very heavy," said his sister.

"A chest like that is always heavy."

"Perhaps it is where Ahmed kept his jewels," Pat suggested. "Unfortunately he had taken many of them out tonight—perhaps all of them. I should have told you."

Delake laughed quietly.

"You mean the ones in the little boxes on the table?" he asked. "Do not worry. I am not blind!"

"You have them?"

"Yes."

They rode slowly on again with heavy hearts, and came at last to the foot of the hill below Teniet. There they found Souffli and the camels waiting in the shadow of a row of olives. The camels were kneeling, ready to be mounted.

Souffli came quickly forward.

"Where is the other man?" Delage inquired.

"He rode on to the south, sir," Souffi answered. "If there is danger of a pursuit, it would perhaps be better that we do not take this road. There is another over the hills that I know—it is a very difficult one but it would be more safe."

ANSWERS POUR IN BY SCORES IN BIG CONTEST

Little and Big, Old And Young, Seek Share In $1,000 Prize

"Say, Mister, I sure did add these figures up and down and sideways. I guess I'll win that elephant contest all right and now I'm going to start thinking how to spend the money." A little shaver, knee high to a grasshopper came into the Record-News office yesterday and delivered himself of the above address. In one hand he clutched his answer to how much the elephant weighs. The contest manager wished him the best of luck as he does everyone who is working on the puzzle.

From east to the west and from the north to the south of Texas, and also Oklahoma, the contest answers are arriving in Wichita Falls proving that the entire Record-News territory is agog over the elephant and the $1,000 purse which he offers. Even one enterprising business house in Wichita Falls placed on sale yesterday some ties with the elephant design.

Little fellows and big fellows, housewives and their daughters are all invited to join in the contest. In some families rivalry is pretty keen right now to see whether dad knows his arithmetic as well as little Joe and whether mama, who always adds the grocery bills, can total the elephant as quickly as little Mayme who's in the eighth grade.

Remember the Record-News will close this great contest on the evening of Nov. 14 and the following day the announcement of contest winners will be made. There are 25 prizes offered, with the first at $500. Follow the rules printed each day in the elephant ad and maybe you will be the lucky one to get first prize or will at least be among the other 24.

DELAY GABERT CASE.

ALLENDALE RURAL SCHOOL STARTS TERM

New Two-Room Addition Is Put in Use First Time

Allendale school, one of the larger rural schools of the county, opened its 1925-26 scholastic term Monday morning with a special program and with 73 scholastics enrolled. The two-room addition constructed during the summer vacation was put in use, giving the school three rooms for use at all times. Two teachers are now employed but it is planned to engage three next year.

County Superintendent Burl Bryant and Mayor R. E. Shepherd of Wichita Falls were on hand for the opening hour and each made a short address. Mayor Shepherd also sang several songs for the youngsters and a number of parents who were present.

Mr. Bryant later went to the Deep Creek school, which also opened for work yesterday, and spent a short time there.

Opening of these two schools leaves only the Cooper school not in operation now.

INDIGESTION SPELLS— COULD HARDLY EAT

"I suffered with indigestion for six years," says Mr. H. C. Bove, of Chester, S. C., telling of the disorders from which he finally found relief through the use of Thedford's Black-Draught. "I had gotten to the place where I could hardly eat a thing. Everything hurt. I had smothering spells and fell off twenty pounds. I was in a bad fix. "I read of Black-Draught, and decided to try it. I took a big dose daily and in three months' time I saw a big change. "I had gotten to where I only ate milk and crackers, but, after I began on Black-Draught, I began to eat and gradually got my appetite back. I gained in weight and I felt better. I have not had a bad spell of indigestion in ten months. "I believe Black-Draught is the best liver medicine made. I can not say enough for what it has done for me. I have used it in large doses and have taken small doses after meals and find both ways very satisfactory. I am glad to tell others what it did for me. I feel so grateful for what Black-Draught did for me that I want others to know, for it may help them as it helped me.

One of the first things to do in an attack of indigestion is to clear the system of all undigested particles of food. Thedford's Black-Draught will do this very thoroughly and will also stimulate the digestive organs to carry on their normal work, and help in eliminating poisons and impurities from the system.

Black-Draught is composed entirely of pure, medicinal roots and herbs of natural, harmless action. It contains no mineral or other harmful drugs and no sugar syrup, which sometimes disorders the stomach.

The vegetable ingredients of Black-Draught are carefully combined in clean, up-to-date laboratories, in just the proportions that scientific experience has shown to be the best for the purpose.

"The Open Water Ditch"

Editor's Note: Because publication in Wichita Falls has been made of the charge that arguments for closing the open water ditch from Lake Wichita to the city water plant is nothing but propaganda, the Record News is printing a series of articles setting forth the conditions surrounding this ditch that readers may determine for themselves whether or not the ditch should be closed. Following is the last of the series.

UPON heating or boiling hard water much of the mineral in it settles out and is deposited on the sides and bottom of the vessel. You have no doubt noticed how a tea kettle will form a deposit of scale. This scale is simply mineral in the water which caused it to be hard and which settled out when the water was heated.

Such a deposit of scale in a household water heater forms an insulating coating between the metal and the water and causes a greater amount of gas to be used to cause the water to heat. One authority estimates that this extra gas consumed on account of scale in the heaters at about 20 cents per family per month or on the basis of 12,000 families is the neat sum of $29,000 per year. In five years this would more than pay for a pipe line.

The life of ordinary plumbing is shortened about one-half by using hard water. Pipes choke up, heater tanks burn out, and rust attacks with great avidity. Five years is the estimated life of most plumbing with hard water. There are about 7,000 homes with modern plumbing in this city. The increase in depreciation on their plumbing figured at $30 per year is costing these citizens about $210,000 per year. It is still quite an invisible tax but already beginning to be felt.

Some have proposed that a pumping plant be located right at the lake. The water purified there and forced into the upper end of our present system. Such a plan would do away with the necessity of constructing the proposed pipe line. It also would give us soft water at all times.

Theoretically it has many advantages, but from the standpoint of cost it is out of all reason. The big feeder lines of 14, 16 and 20-inch diameter are already installed in the downtown section. The lines get smaller and smaller as they are extended south and west toward the lake.

A pumping plant at the lake hooked into the present system at the west end would not be able to supply the town as the present pipes are too small. Of course, a big cast iron pressure main could be built from such a plant and connected with the present system down in the business section but it would cost in excess of $600,000, which is four times the cost of the proposed line.

The ditch running from the lake to the water plant is now altogether too small to take care of both city and irrigation water. This year culverts had to be taken out, banks raised and other things done so as to get enough water through, and on hot days the water did not get through fast enough.

Next year it is estimated that from 600 to 1,000 acres more land will be irrigated from the present ditch. If this is the case, it will have to be enlarged or else a very pronounced water shortage will certainly occur.

We have been talking about pollution, bacteria and disease germs and the menace to health caused by the open ditch. We have showed what an enormous tax is levied on our citizens each year by hard water and because we do not have a pipe line. We have told how this can all be done away with and at a very small cost compared to the present expense.

Perhaps some may feel that the death dealing germs can be tolerated, that the more or less invisible tax of hard water is not visible enough for them to see, and feel that they must have more proof that the pipe line will pay if installed.

On this account we will consider another phase of the question.

When hard water is used in a boiler such as on a locomotive, or in condensors such as are found at the big refineries, it causes a deposit of mineral to form on the metal called scale. In a locomotive boiler this scale is very troublesome, as much more coal is required to get steam than where all scale is absent. Boilers sometimes explode on account of scale encrustation. Condensor pipes at the refineries are not nearly so efficient when scale accumulates on them. The railroads and refineries do not like hard water and spend thousands of dollars each year in softening it.

So when the water began to get hard in Lake Wichita a year ago last spring, the big users of water found that if they had to use hard water anyway it would be cheaper to take it direct from the irrigation ditches.

They soon practically ceased to use city water. This meant a loss in revenue to the city of about $50,000 per year. With the assurance that there will be a continual supply of soft water these big users will return. They can hardly afford to do otherwise.

If it takes an investment of $135,000 to secure a yearly return of $50,000, will it pay?

RESUME STREET WORK.

Grading Begun After Delay Caused by Inclement Weather.

Grading work on city streets was resumed at one point Monday, this being the first improving possible since a period of heavy rains set in over a week ago. Grading crews started at Ardath and Brook streets where some needed excavating is under way.

On the two major paving projects now being pushed—the Ninth street and Holliday street jobs, the ground was still too soft to permit work Monday. It is expected, however, the crews can get back at work today or Wednesday at the latest.

10,000 ON STRIKE.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Ten thousand Chinese cotton mill workers struck today as a protest against the judicial inquiry being conducted by the powers into the cause of the Shanghai riots several months ago.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creasote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

WOMEN BORN 1873 TO 1881

Now Is the Critical Time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will Help You Safely Through

Convoy, Ohio.—"During the Change of Life I was weak and run-down and could hardly do my work. By reading your advertisements I found out about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has straightened me right out and made me feel like a new woman. By the time I had taken eight bottles I was well and could do my housework on the farm without trouble. I recommended it to my daughter-in-law after her second baby was born and it did her a wonderful lot of good. I told her to try it and if it didn't help her I would pay for it, and before she had taken one bottle she said to me, 'You won't have to pay for it! It is helping me wonderfully!' And she took three bottles of it. You can use my testimonial if you wish." — Mrs. ELSIE ACKERMAN, Convoy, Ohio.

Consider carefully Mrs. Ackerman's letter. Her experience ought to help you. She tells of the trials of middle age and the wonderful results she obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Texas To Have Good Feed Crop This Year, Says U.S. Forecast

GOOD RAINS IN SEPTEMBER BIG AID TO FARMERS

Yield to be Great if Frost Does Not Come Too Early

HOUSTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Hope for a good feed crop again perches on the doorstep of the Texas farmer. September rains have come in time to save the hard pressed soil tiller from disaster and if the other enemy, frost, does not come too early a large addition will be made to the expected feed crops, H. S. Schultz, government agricultural statistician announced here today.

The Oct. 1, crop report indicates, Mr. Schultz said, that it should be possible to cut the feed bill to a minimum this fall and winter.

"Farmers and stockmen are again hopeful after a year of very hard conditions," said the report. "Some of the corn is turning out better than expected and the late planted has been helped by rains. An average of only nine bushels an acre is indicated, which makes the estimated production 35,604,000 bushels in Texas this year. For the United States a total of 2,917,836,000 bushels is indicated, compared with 2,437,000,000 last year."

Tame hay also has shown a similar improvement under the late rains. Sudan, millet, alfalfa, cow peas, soybeans, velvet beans, peanuts and sorghum have felt the reviving influence of September moisture."

It is estimated that the Texas production of grain sorghums will total 43,735,000 bushels, about 2,000,000 bushels below last year.

The peanut crop is estimated to be about 1,000,000 bushels above last year.

The pecan crop is reported very poor, though the rains have improved conditions slightly.

While rains have been benefiting other crops, they have been delaying the harvest of rice. The outlook is for a crop of 5,76,000 bushels, almost 200,000 bushels over last year.

Livestock

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 12.—An unusually small Monday run of cattle and calves reached the Fort Worth yards. Including calves to the number of 1,200 head, total receipts amounted to only 4,900 head. Mixed shipments were here in more liberal numbers than straight loads and general quality average was low. A week ago 6,803 head of cattle and calves were on offer. On the corresponding day a year ago 9,314 head were here.

Cattle trading was active. Buyers had a place for everything, and the short supply did not last long. Salesmen asked for strong to higher rates, but the market did not develop any quotable advance. Calves proved an exception to the rule, consignments moving scaleward slowly. Sales, however, were not far from steady with last week's low time.

A range of $5.75@8.40 applied to most steer sales on the early rounds. A few small lots ranged above $8.50 and some plain cattle sold under $5.50.

Choice cows were not available, 6dd lots excepted. Carloads of a desirable type went at $4. Most deals were from $2.50@3.50. A few sales of heifers and yearlings ranged from $6.50@8. One load of bulls brought $4.10.

Small stocker receipts cleared at unchanged rates. A good call prevailed for everything at all available.

Hog receipts reached only 500, and the market supply of the carlot division consisted of two cars, both loads going at $12.40. Prices were not as high as the uneven Saturday market, controlled by shippers, but values were well in line with last Friday's levels. Choice hogs which were not available were probably worth $12.50. The best hogs available in the truck house went at $12.25. Packing sows were scarce, the best here clearing around $10@10.50.

Plenty of strength was observed in the sheep trade, but the market was not quotably higher, most of the difference in prices being attributed to improvement in quality. The best shorn wethers have been stopping at $8.10 but two double deck consignments, containing a fair sprinkling of twos, sold at $8.20. Another double deck made $8.10. A double of yearlings was purchased at $11.60. Buyers were out working at an early hour, and the yards experienced another seasonable and thorough clearance. Receipts were placed at 2,000 head, but that number included about 560 head that were on direct or through billing.

"CONSCIENTIOUS PRICES."

French Restaurant Serves Banquet for Fifty Cents.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—"Conscientious prices" is a sign displayed in the windows or a large cafe on the Boulevard Des Italiens which halts many smiling Americans and Britishers and induces them to scan the bill of fare, which guarantees service of a full dinner in five minutes.

The waiters in this restaurant are unceremonious and matter of fact. They are chiefly Swiss and serve with a speed which precludes all that artistic trimming and flourish which enable French waiters to impart the air of a banquet to a ten franc (fifty cent) luncheon.

How Much Does the Elephant Weigh?

The sum total of the figures is not known to any one.

The drawer and maker of the cut knew the total as he drew it, and no one else. When the cut was received by The Record News several figures were clipped out. No Record News employe knows the drawer's solution and the drawer does not know what numbers were cut out by The Record News, and will not know until after the closing date, November 14th, 1925. No one knows any more about what the correct answer is than the contestants themselves.

$1000 IN CASH PRIZES

TWENTY-FIVE PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED. YOU CAN WIN $500 IN CASH.

THE PROBLEM: The problem is to find the sum total of the figures shown on the Elephant in the picture. There are no marks, lines or characters on the body of the Elephant except figures. These figures are from 2 to 9, each one standing alone. There are no "ones" or "cipers" in the animal. There are no groups of figures—that is, the figure "0" is the highest figure shown; there are no "22's," "42's," "86's," or like groups. Where there a "2" and "3" are written so closely together that they look like "28," it means that the "2" and "3" are to be added just as you would if they were an inch apart. The tops of the SIXES are distinctly curved, and the bottoms of the NINES are straight, or nearly so. There is no trick or illusion in the chart.

General Rules of the Contest

This competition is open to all residents of the states of Texas and Oklahoma, except employes of The Record News and members of their families.

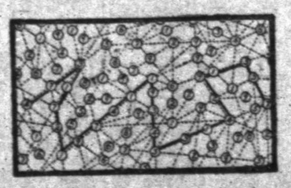

Contestants may submit as many different solutions as they desire provided a payment of one of the amounts designated in the prize list shall accompany each solution. NO SOLUTION UNACCOMPANIED BY A SUBSCRIPTION PAYMENT WILL BE REGISTERED.

The Record News offers these prizes for individual effort. While it is proper for members of one household to work together or several friends, it is not permissible for more than one of those working in unison to send a solution of the puzzle. When in the judgment of the contest manager more than one member of the same family, or more than one of any number of persons he believes have worked together send in a solution of the puzzle, he reserves the right to refund subscriptions and return the solutions he believes have been submitted contrary to the foregoing rule. The Record News reserves the right to reject any solutions it believes have not been submitted under proper conditions. The Record News also reserves the right to finally decide any other questions or points which may arise and those entering the contest agree to abide by such decisions.

In the event of ties on this puzzle, as many prizes will be reserved as there are contestants tied, before any prizes are awarded for a less correct solution. For instance, if five people were tied on the best solution, the first five prizes will be reserved for them, and they would be awarded the prizes in accordance with the standing of their solutions of the second puzzle. That is, the one submitting the best solution of the second puzzle would receive the first prize; the one submitting the next best, the second, and so on.

Subscriptions may be NEW or RENEWALS. Both count the same.

DECIDING TIES

In case of ties those tied for any prize will be presented with a second puzzle, which will consist of drawing a line across the face of a chart of figures, like the accompanying chart, only larger, so that the figures thus connected when added together will total the greatest sum. If necessary this chart will be used four times, after which, should any ties remain, each contestant will receive full value of any prize tied for.

In case there are no ties on counting the Elephant no other puzzle, of course, will be presented.

More Truth Than Poetry

ONE CAN'T BE TOO CAREFUL

When Dempsey was only a low-brow
  Upstanding and husky and strong,
His chiefest delight was to sail in and fight
  Whomever might happen along.
He never waited a challenge,
  A punch in the nose was enough,
And when thus attacked no terms he'd exact—
  But oh—on the instant—his stuff.

He needed no mammoth arena,
  He never wouldhaughtily wait
For a sure guarantee of the cash there would be—
  To employ his own words—"in the gate."
No managers made the arrangements,
  He was able to make them himself—
And a good zippy punch to the other boy's lunch
  Delighted him far more than pelf.

Today he's a different Dempsey,
  A man of meticulous mien,
Befitting his fame and the glorious name
  He has made on the photoplay screen.
And with him it is real condensation
  To risk being knocked for a row,
And to rashly expose his new made over nose
  To the blows Mr. Wills may bestow.

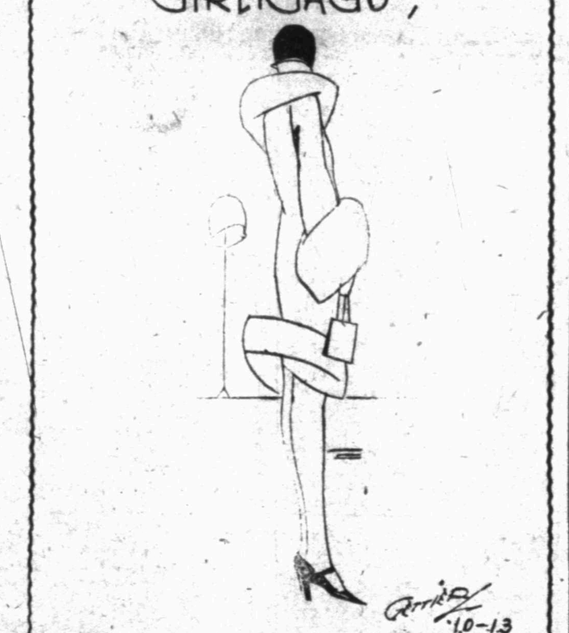

Say not he's high-hat and top lofty,
  Say not the applause he's been fed
For ever so long from the clamoring throng
  Has gone to an osseous head.
He's not be the great Mr. Dempsey
  If his laurels should suddenly fall,
He isn't possessed of a what's known as "chest"—
  He merely is prudent—that's all.

IF MURMURINGS OF THE WEATHER PROPHETS PAN OUT TRUE, IT BEGINS TO APPEAR THE BIG TRAIN WILL WIN THE WORLD'S SERIES YET!

That is, if—

* * *

The National leaguers were highly elated last night following their victory in the fifth set-to because they had "got rid of Walter Johnson and Stan Coveleskie."

NOT YET

But if Jupe Pluvius forces postponement of today's mill, as has been forecasted, more than likely will occur, the veteran Johnson no doubt will take another fling at the Pirates Wednesday.

* * *

Should the game be rained out today, Buck Harris use either Kremer or Reuther Wednesday, and the Pirates grab the apples, mighty Walter will take his turn Thursday with a full four-day, or rather, call it four-night rest.

* * *

There could be no more picturesque nor popular finish to the 1925 series than for Walter Johnson to win the deciding contest which would be the same as winning the series almost single-handed, he having already returned victor in two starts.

* * *

Any way you figure it, the deciding game will be pitched by Johnson. Should they play today, Johnson no doubt will be sent to the hurling eminence Wednesday. Can the Big Train arise to the occasion and come through? The chances are he will, just as he did in the 1924 series. Thousands are willing to wager that way, anyhow.

COYOTES FAVORITES?

Wichita Falls' Coyotes swing into the conference title scramble this week-end here with Jim Reese's Electra Tigers. The Coyotes are the favorites, taken on a mathematical comparative basis of games played to date. Therein lies a pitfall for McCallum's youngsters. McCallum has a faster, though somewhat lighter team than Reese, and the Wichita Falls mentor has developed a more versatile and smoother working machine with the material he has at hand than could be accomplished with the Tiger squad. But the Coyotes, psycholigally speaking, should not be rated the favorites.

PACK COCKY

The Wichita Falls team, or rather a goodly numbeg of the personnel, witnessed the game Saturday at Burkburnett in which the Burk Bulldogs battled the Tigers to a 6-6 tie. The result of this conflict and the subsequent showing (it was somewhat poor) of the Tigers has caused a cockiness in the Coyote camp.

* * *

Man for man, we believe the Tigers have just as good a defensive line as Wichita Falls. The Coyotes have the edge on offense. Man for man in the backfield, unless Reese improves his backs miraculously this week, the Coyotes are better. There isn't a player on the Electra squad who can cope with Rowdy Curtin, who, by the way, has been declared eligible for the game, and Buck Steed as broken field runners. Big Dell Cooledge, Tiger plunger, has nothing on Dempsey Moore, husky Coyote fullback. Tramill of Electra may outkick the Wichita Falls punters, and if he does there is a big Electra advantage.

* * *

Wichita Falls may have the better team and all that, but Wichita Falls is NOT so good that it can step onto the field confident of victory and then romp lightly through the Electra team for the victor's spoils. There's a fighting spirit that will be with the Electra squad, a back-to-the-wall determination to overcome the Coyotes in the face of all Wichita Falls' advantage. This fire of attack and defense, this fury of the under dog scrapping to down a vaunted opponent who is confident of victory may prove the master of the McCallum eleven.

* * *

It is not always the best team that wins. Very often its the club that fights the hardest, the club that takes advantage of the breaks. Wichita Falls, cocky and confident, cannot be expected to display the same fight that will be brought to the Spudder gridiron by the Electra team. The breaks will be a question of luck and gridiron acumen.

COYOTES WORK AT FAST CLIP IN PREPARATION FOR CONTEST HERE SATURDAY WITH TIGERS

Junior College Squad in Great Shape for Struggle With Cameron Aggies Friday Afternoon

While Jim Reese Monday afternoon was working over the mistakes shown by his Electra Tigers Saturday in the game with Burkburnett, Bud McCallum was drilling his Wichita Falls squad at a fast clip to take advantage of these same miscues should they crop up in the annual Electra-Wichia Falls embroglio slated for Spudder park this week-end.

The Tigers came away from the Burk encounter in fairly good condition and were enable to put in a stiff workout yesterday. Reese's team is much the wiser and far more experienced for the 6-6 tie foisted on it by the Bulldogs. This club will no doubt present a much more formidable front Saturday to the Coyotes.

McCallum sent his squad through one of the toughest workouts of the season. The boys were rushed through signal practice at a fast gait, worked on punts, passes and did quite a bit of sprinting. The entire gang seems to be in good condition, and buckled down to the work displaying plenty of fight.

Ray Mitchell continued to show that he is going to be a mighty hard man to keep from earning a regular backfield berth. He is beginning to cover the ground well, and may prove one of the club's best pigskin packers. Dempsey Moore, tank-like fullback, is developing more punch to his drives at the line. Mitchell and Moore, newcomers, have been working well with the seasoned backs, Curtin and Powell. This quartet probably will start the game. Powell is displaying a steadiness and cool headedness that in itself may prove the turning point in the contest should the affair be close.

Thurman and Deems Show Shiftiness

The Junior college Indians went through a brisk workout, and are looking forward to a victory over the Cameron Aggies Friday at Spudder park. Like the Coyotes, the Indians were idle the past week and are snapping into form rapidly, unhampered by serious injuries or soreness.

Mosley chased the squad through signal practice most of the afternoon, after which he gave each individual the ball and let him attempt to run through a field broken with tacklers.

Evan Harris, wingman, was back in the moleskins after a short absence fram practice. Orion Daniels also showed up after being out a period.

During the tackling practice Ed Luecke, John Clary and Chink Whitelaw made it hard on the ball carriers. This trio allowed but few runners to evade their lunges.

Jack Thurman and Dummy Deems displayed surprising adroitness in dodging tacklers, and showed to the best advantage of the lot a tpacking the oval. Skinny Crites got away for a couple of runs.

Coyote Pups May Postpone Game

The Coyote Pups ran signals and scrimmaged in an effort to smooth over the rough edges brought out in the game last Friday with the Bowie club.

Coach Montgomery made an attempt to strengthen his line by moving O. L. Beach from the backfield. Roy Brackett is showing up great in the after defense, and at the present time is about as hard a line hitter as Captain "Hunky" Farris.

Spencer Delaney is playing a great game on the defense with his shoe string tackles. Delaney was the outstanding star of the Bowie game with his tackles.

Haskell Giles has been shifted to the first string line and is making a good showing on grabbing passes from the end position. Leroy Herndon, Hugh Hannon, Fat Tandy, Bill Stevens and "Professor" Cossey were absent from the workout.

SOCK 'EM PAUL SLAMS IT ON KING SOLOMON IN NINTH ROUND TO WIN OUT BY TECHNICAL K.O.

Joe Celmars Kicks Dope Bucket in Slats By Holding Herman to Draw—Fans Think He Wins

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Giving away 19 pounds to a game and courageous foe, Paul Berlenbach, world's light heavyweight champion, this afternoon made an auspicious start in his attempt to qualify for a fight with Jack Dempsey. Berlenbach scored a technical knockout over King Solomon of Panama in the ninth round of a 10-round match at the New York National league baseball park.

Weighing only 172 pounds against 191 for the Central American heavyweight Berlenbach battered Solomon into submission after chasing him around the ring with a blinding barrage of blows to body and head. The light heavyweight champion was credited with winning every round by newspaper men at the ring side.

Solomon kept his feet with difficulty until the eighth, when he was floored three times. After 31 seconds of the ninth round, Referee Jack O'Sullivan stepped between them and sent Solomon to his corner, ending the fight.

Solomon's defeat was the second surprise of the day, for a crowd of about six thousand previously had seen Babe Herman of California, the outstanding featherweight challengers, held to a draw by Joe Celmars of New York, a comparative unknown.

It marked the first time since he came to this country several months ago that Solomon had failed to answer to the gong for the final round.

Celmars entered the ring for his match with Herman on only a few hours' notice as a substitute for the retired featherweight champion, Johnny Dundee, who failed to appear for the weighing-in at the offices of the New York boxing commission. Celmars appeared to be slightly overweight at 132 1-2 against 126 for Herman but soon proved that he would make trouble for the Californian by flooring him with a terrific left hook soon after the opening of the first round.

During the next three rounds, of the ten-round contest, Celmars nonplused the man who only recently held the champion, Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., to a draw. He dazzled Herman with his speed and a sharp left jab to the head. Displaying nimble footwork, he made Herman miss with both hands and it was not until the fifth round that the latter finally found the range.

Herman rallied in the latter rounds and brought the fight to even terms in the opinion of the judges, by terrific right handers to the chin which found Celmars always willing to mix. The draw verdict of the judges was received with disapproval, a chorus of boos and hisses indicating that many believed Celmars was entitled to the honors.

The third of three ten-rounders, which featured the show, conducted as a benefit for the national sports alliance, brought together a pair of fleet-footed lightweights, Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, N. Y., and Sid Terris of New York.

It was their second meeting, and Terris, who had won one bout, took the judge's decision again this afternoon.

CUBS BEAT TED LYONS, 3 TO 1

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—While his team were bunching hits off Ted Lyons, Tony Kaufmann held the White Sox to five hits today and the Cubs added another victory in the city series. The score was 3 to 1. The Cubs now have won three games and the Sox one.

Up to the eighth inning the White Sox got only one man past second base, Sheely reaching that station in the seventh on a single and an infield out.

Kaufmann seemed to lose control in the eighth and was on the verge of being taken out, but insisted on remaining. After two men were out, he walked Lyons and then hit Mostil. Hooper followed with a single, scoring Lyons. Barrett followed Hooper's hit with a drive close to the left field wall which Jahn pulled down after a remarkable run and leaping catch Kaufmann's support was perfect, two lightning double plays pulling him out of danger in the last inning.

Boston College Noses Haskell

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A successful placement kick for point after touchdown gave Boston college a slim margin of victory of the Haskell Indians here today. The score was 7 to 6.

Both teams scored in the third a period, Boston college obtaining the first advantage when McKenney took a pass from Cronin on the 15-yard line and crossed the Indians' line. McManus kicked for the extra point. Toward the close of the period McLain, after three of tackle plunges scored a touchdown for Haskell, but Norton failed on the ensuing kick. A crowd of 26,000 witnessed the game.

The PASSING HOUR

PERENNIAL

I watch them struggle on the green-capped sward—
And think as they stepped at end and line,
They do not measure up to gridiron class,
With teams that played in college days of mine!
My thoughts drift back through memory's golden haze,
To a team that was a team—those were the days!

But in those halcyon hours I dream of, sat
Some old alumnus from a distant day—
Who watched the teams I cheered in action fight,
And to himself, I hear him softly say;
"They don't play football as they played when I was a soph—there were real players then!"

McKinney is about to hold a pistol and gun shooting contest. If the ladies aren't barred, San Antonio ought to be a good bet.

Texas Tech teams will be known as the Matadors. A matador is a bull fighter and a bull fighter—well, you know the rest.

The Lucy Stone league has no standing in athletics—score one victory for Glenna Collett over Alexa Stirling Fraser.

Needles and pins! Needles and pins!
When a champ's married, her trouble begins!

Not So Worse.

MR. FRANK MENKE has wasted a good deal of print space trying to figure out the right and the wrong of the big Dempsey-Kearns split. And through the lines, one gathers that he has about decided that the fault is with the champion and that Kearns got the raw edge. This may be true. Managers are usually smarter gentlemen than the fighters—or they would not be managers—and when they write contracts, the documents are usually the kind that require considerable rough stuff on the party of the second part to shatter.

But as W. S. Gilbert once lyricized—dry the starting tear for they are heavily insured.

Mr. Kearns does not seem to have gotten a bad cut out of the division of the community property. Mr. Kearns does not seem to have ever suffered very much when it came to salting away the bank roll.

Look back over 30 years of fistic history. You read a lot of one-time champions acting as night watchmen in their old age. The quondam managers usually have money in the banks that are being night-watched.

Pittsburgh banks won't pay on certified checks torn up by fans who got their money back and no series tickets. In baseball it is always the fan who pays—and pays—and pays.

And the same guy who says—and says—and says.

The Quarterback.

UPON one man beside the coach falls anathema when the strategy fails. The same is the quarterback who is entrusted with the field generalship. He picks the plays and when they go wrong, he gets the abuse—he who called them and the coach who taught them.

Assuming that the plays were correctly executed, not so much sympathy need be settled on the coach. After all, that is his business—he is paid for it. And he is a mature man who has studied these things.

But the quarterback is as much the goat of football as the doughboy is of war. He is young—he has had little school and college training—yet he is expected to direct eleven men against eleven rivalers with an intuitive genius rivaling a captain of industry.

Any young man who plays quarterback is one of two things. He is a genius or else he is a derned fool.

LONGHORNS WILL UNLEASH ON AUBURN THREE-WAY OFFENSIVE

AUSTIN, Oct. 12.—North Texas grid fans who have seen in the Texas eleven at its Dallas games of the past two years principally a power play offense will unquestionably be surprised when they watch the attack of this year's team, in the clash with Auburn at Fair Park stadium in Dallas next Saturday, Oct. 17. If the plays of which the offense have made use in the past three games are any criterion, Texas will unleash against Auburn a running, passing, and plunging attack.

Oddly enough, this is not due to the extreme versatility of the Longhorn eleven but on the contrary to the lack of it. Stewart as his Texas teams of 1923 and 1924 have proved, is sold on the power play, although it must be reckoned in, too, that he has had slow and powerful teams best adapted to this style. This year, the offensive line has not shown at least so far this season enough drive to carry through the power offense and as a result both coaches have been forced to turn to the natutal facilities lent their team by its speed and the passing and punting ability of Wright.

That Stewart intended to rely a good deal on the air this year was shown by the first game when against Southwestern the overhead was stressed far more than is usual in an early game and in both the Mississippi and Vanderbilt contests, the forward pass was used a great deal.

If by the end of this week, the forward wall has indicated any potential strength, Rufus King may be the star of the Auburn tilt as the former Austin high star certainly hits as hard as or harder than any player in the conference but is a fine example of the fact that no matter how good the back may be, he can not carry a smashing attack without a line in front of him.

If that hoped for condition does not exist, it will be the speed of Saxon, Stallter and Estes and the passing of Wright that will be expected to carry the Longhorns through.

EXPORT LESS GRAIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The grain exports last week from the United States were 3,849,000 bushels as compared with 4,376,000 the previous week.

In Wake Of The Corsair Massacre

(By Associated Press.)

Stanley Harris is trying to pick a pitcher for tomorrow's game while en route tonight to Pittsburgh. He has only Ferguson and the southpaw Dutch Ruether to shoot at the Pirates and the Buccaneers are deadly against left handers. They peppered Zachary hard today. McKechnie has Kremer primed for the next game and is sitting pretty riding west tonight.

Joe Harris is the hitting fool of the series. Nothing stops him, fast balls, hooks, knuckle balls, all go flying back to the fences from Joe's bat. The Pirates camp against the fences but fences were made for Joe to hit home runs over. He collected his third circuit smash of the series today, tying Babe Ruth's record of 1923.

Stan Wasn't Right.

Coveleskie was not the pitcher today that he was in the second contest. He seemed a worn and tired man out there on the hurling hill with his moist flings and half speed curves. The Pirates pecked away at him for four innings, then held up their attack for two frames and finally drove him to cover in the seventh.

Wright's play around the short field sparkled with irridescent brilliance. He knocked down hits to right and left and took the heart out of the Senators with fast throws from every position.

The Pittsburgh rooters came into their own with today's victory and organized a snake dance down Pennsylvania Avenue on the way to the railroad station. They were still at it when the train pulled out.

Stuffy McInnis, appearing at first base in his sixth world's series, was one of the hardest fighters on the field. Constantly guiding Aldridge, steadying the infield and urging the batsmen to super deeds, Stuffy kept himself busy throughout. He fielded his position perfectly and shot forth a single in the eighth which scored Wright. And when Earl Smith wandered from his post in the ninth Stuffy was the man to call him back.

Hundreds of balls went out of the game before today's contest started. Most of them had the names of Senators and Pirates all over them, but some of the bleacherites were satisfied to keep them without insignia.

Both teams left for Pittsburgh immediately after the game, expecting to arrive at midnight and gain a full night's sleep on solid beds.

Reporters and the just plain fans who are following the teams departed at the earliest opportunity.

Mrs. Coolidge, sitting behind the Washington dugout, kept a score throughout.

coaches and players scouted the Sewanee-Aggies tilt here, each man giving particular attention to the play in his own position. The coaches scouted the tactics of the Aggies. The red and blue machine functioned better in the Washington game last week than in any other pre-season contest.

HORNED FROGS RESUME GRID RELATIONS WITH BEARS TODAY AT DALLAS IN LEAGUE OPENER

Baylor in for Sure Licking At Hands of Christians, That Is, if You Would Believe Waco

DALLAS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The first game of the Southwest Conference gridiron season will be played here Tuesday afternoon when the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian university and Bears of Baylor university meet at Fair Park stadium.

The Golden Bears won the 1924 conference title, but they have not been as successful in the pres-season contests this year as the Frogs, who are the only team in the conference who has not been scored on.

WACO, Oct. 12.—Waco and Central Texas will swarm toward Dallas tomorrow by automobile, interurban and steam to the renewal of the traditional battle for gridiron supremacy between Baylor and T. C. U.

Last season when the Baylor Bears won from the Arkansas Razorbacks for the second consecutive year in a row, although they had been doped to lose on both occasions, Coach Frank Bridges frankly stated to Coach Francis Schmidt that he was not going to make another trip to Arkansas for a game at the early October date for several years at least, as the Bears did not care for such a difficult engagement at the additional handicap of the long trip, when no other conference team was taking on such rigorous championship competition at that time. Bridges did not say so, but he inferred that Baylor had made its share of football trips to Arkansas, and that other prominent conference contenders might be prevailed upon to make the trip at that date.

Christians Confident of Victory

Then the Baylor mentor went out and matched a game with T. C. U. even earlier than the usual date with Arkansas. At the time the game was matched the Baylor coach figured that it would be a great drawing card as it was arranged for Dallas day of the Dallas fair, but he hardly figured that T. C. U. would offer a real stumbling block to Baylor's championship hopes. The Bruin mentor, however, merely jumped from the proverbial frying-pan into the fire. Tomorrow afternoon the Baylor team will meet the T. C. U. club on the Fair park gridiron at 3 o'clock in a contest around which revolves much doubt as to the winner. T. C. U. today looms as a much more dangerous opponent than Arkansas would have been. The Bears in their initial Southwest conference game of the season will be forced to battle a team, which has been pointed for this game since September 30, the date of the opening of the training season.

There should be nothing the matter with Baylor from tackle to tackle with Hartzog and Coates at the tackles, Riley and Taylor at the guards, and Captain Walker at center. The two guards will be playing their first conference game. The tackles and center are veterans. Walker weighs about 175 pounds. Coates and Hartzog weigh around 190, while Riley and Taylor come close to the 200 mark. Yet these stars will be outweighed tomorrow. Levy, four-year veteran and a 190-pounder, will be at one guard for T. C. U., while Scarborough, a 207-pound lad, will play the other. Brewster, a 210-pound man, with experience, will be at one tackle. Wolfe, who weighs about 190, will play the other tackle. Washmon, one of the outstanding stars of the club, weighing about 180 pounds, will be at center for the Horned Frogs, and there is apt to be a beautiful battle waged in the center of the line.

Baylor will have nothing but green men at the wings. Jimmy Green, Itasca high product, will make his debut at one wing. He is a husky youth. Louis Slade of Waco high fame, or Shelton will be at the other.

Bridges will have lots of speed in starting backfield, which will probably be composed of Nash at quarter; Morris at one-half, Strickland at another and Jones at full. There is still a probability that Nash will start at end and Fall at quarterback, Johnson and Kelley probably being sent into the game as offensive threats whenever the Bears get within driving distance of the T. C. U. goal.

Frogs Worse Opponent Than Porkers

FORT WORTH, Oct. 12.—"Just 24 more long hours!"

That was the cry here this afternoon as Coaches Matty Bell and Edwin Kubale put the 1925 Texas Christian university Horned Frogs through an exceedingly light drill before their jaunt to Dallas tomorrow to engage Frank Bridges' Baylor Bears in the opening conference battle of the season on the Fairpark stadium gridiron. That 24 hours seemed a long way off for those husky young gentlemen who will carry the purple into the more important fray of the year for the local collegians—a space of time that cannot be measured in mere hours.

If believing that they will win has anything to do with the outcome of tomorrow's battle, the Frogs are already over the line. Every man on the squad is only waiting until the few remaining hours roll by and he has his opportunity of stepping out there and knocking the crown off those cocky Bruins, defending champions of the southwest.

Butt he Bruins are most dangerous. Not a Frog but realizes that to the fullest extent—yet all are confident that the oldest enemy of the Christians, once again on the schedule of the Frogs, will fall before the furious charge of the lads from the hilltop.

Bell rounded out ten days' training with a little placement kicking, a few signals and a lengthy talk on what he expected of the men against the Bruins.

Many former letter men, fellows who carried the Purple against the Green and Gold of Baylor back in the days when both schools were located at Waco, will be sitting in the stands in Dallas tomorrow afternoon when Referee Ramp sends these two fighting ball clubs out on the field to battle for some two hours to a decision that will mean more than a little bit to both of them in the race for the title this season.

The Dallas alumni chapter of T. C. U. is planning a banquet for all the old letter men, the coaching staff and the present team immediately following the game, on the roof of the Adolphus hotel. But those old fellows, now staid business and professional men, who carried the Purple so honorably on the gridiron many years ago, will get their greatest enjoyment out of the game, should the Purple stand out as it has always done, so gloriously, if not victoriously.

Rain Forecasted For Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh forecaster tonight gave baseball fans little encouragement for the sixth game of the world's series, scheduled to be played here tomorrow.

A drizzling rain fell all day and the weather observer said his maps indicated that the downfall would continue until late tomorrow to be followed by fair and cooler weather Wednesday.

NATS USE FOUR HURLERS IN VAIN EFFORT TO STEM FURY OF PIRATE SLUGGING ATTACK

Veteran Coveleskie Knocked from Hill As Vic Aldridge Pitches Buccos to 6 to 3 Victory

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The fury of the Pirate attack, hitherto somewhat of a fable, became a reality today for the first time in the world's series.

On crest of it the National league champions came back when their hopes seemed lost, knocked out Stanley Coveleskie out of the box and captured the fifth game of the championship struggle by a margin of 6 to 3, while the strong-armed and staut-hearted Vic Aldridge hurled his second triumph over the Senators in brilliant fashion.

It was a sensational comeback on the part of the Buccaneers who had seemed headed for quick defeat after their third setback and shutout yesterday at the hands of Walter Johnson. Tonight, as the warring forces departed for Pittsburgh and the sixth game there tomorrow, there was a rosier hue to the Pirate cause.

Bill McKechnie and his young stalwarts still must take two straight games to gain the world's championship heights, the club last held in 1909, for the count still gives the Senators the edge at three games to two, but their batting rampage today has brought about a startling revival of Pittsburgh hopes.

These hopes were further brightened by the wreckageg that this savage Pirate attack left in the pitching ranks of the Senators. Four Washington moundsmen altogether felt the reckless blows of their young rivals, Zachary as well as Coveleskie being knocked out of the box while Win Ballou and Fred Marberry were rusned out in an attempt to check the sweeping advance of the invaders in the last three innings.

Bucky Harris lost the play with his big ace, Coveleskie, and now faces high fight for one more victory with a badly battered hurling staff. For tomorrow he must use either Alex Ferguson, who was credited with the third game victory after being walloped a bit, or Dutch Ruether, veteran southpaw and the only regular who has not gone to the firing line where the Pirates are supposed to be fatal to portsiders.

With this prospect it may be that the issue will go to the limit of seven games with the final hopes of the Senators resting again on their great veteran, Walter Johnson, who finished his second victory yesterday with an injured right leg—in baseball parlance a "charley horse"—and would be taxing even his great strength and heart to win again with only two days' rest.

Today before a big crowd of close to 36,000 that again included President and Mrs. Coolidge, Pirate bats that had been silenced for the most part thus far, broke through the barriers in the knowledge that defeat meant final elimination.

Probably the major share of the throng came out to see Washington put the finishing touches to a second successive world's championship, which seemed in the capital's grasp once more after a brilliant attack and defense had all but overwhelmed the national league champions. But instead, they saw an aroused young Pirate crew, with the glint of determination in their eyes, smash all before them in a succession of fiery drives.

The first fan of the land, President Coolidge, did not stay to see the whirlwind finish of the Pirates but even when he was called away by a diplomatic engagement in the third inning he had seen enough to convince him that it was Pittsburgh's day.

For it was the third inning that first saw the onslaught in full swing, producing two runs that put the Pirates in the lead after Washington had gotten away to a one-run advantage in the first inning.

Buccos Wallop 13 Safe Blows

From that point on, it was only a question of how long the Pirates could be kept in check. There was a revival of Washington hopes in the fourth when Joe Harris, slamming out his third home run of the series into the left field stands, tied the score, but the National leaguers broke through in the seventh and were never headed after that.

Through the last three innings the Pirates turned a close battle into a rout with an attack which found weapons long silent finally breaking down all barriers.

Cuyler, Barnhart and Wright—three men whose hitting prowess loomed large in the season pennant triumphs—found the range with consistent abandon for the first time in the series and the Senators, reserves and all, could not hold them in check.

Moore, Traynor, Carey and McInnis—taking Grantham's place at first base, and playing regularly for the first time in his sixth world's series—also figured in various stages of the scoring fray. In fact, every member of the Pirate crew except Aldridge contributed at least one safe blow toward the total of 13 gathered off the quartet of Washington twirlers.

Aldridge's bat was not needed, however, and the big right hander carried his full share of the laurels in the steady confidence and skilluiness with which he checked most of the threats of his formidable foes.

Barnhart was perhaps the biggest gun in the Buccaneer battery, for it was the hitherto unobstrusive left fielder who lit the match to the attacking conflagration in the third inning, when he drove in the first Pittsburgh run; lashed out the decisive stroke when he scored Carey in the seventh with what proved to be the winning run; then completed his job by bringing in the sixth and final tally himself in the ninth on the wings of Knight's drive off Marberry's pitching and Bluege's glove.

While he finally retired under this barrage, Coveleskie paved the way for his own downfall by his unsteadiness and lack of control. It was passes to Carey and Cuyler that started the fireworks in the third inning, permitting these two speed merchants to dash over on Barnhart's hit and Traynor's sacrifice fly. It was an other walk to Moore in the seventh that opened the second Pirate drive in which successive hits by Carey, Cuyler and Barnhart sent Coveleskie from the hill.

At this juncture young Win Ballou stepped in to check the rally by fanning Traynor while Cuyler was trapped off third when an attempted double steal with Barnhart went awry.

Veteran Zachary Fails to Halt Advance

Ballou, removed for a pinch hitter, gave way to Tom Zachary, in the eighth, but the hero of two world's series victories last fall was an easy target. He escaped with only one run being scored off him in the eighth, due to Wright's double and a single by McInnis, but was knocked out in the ninth after Barnhart walked and Traynor slashed a single to left. Marberry coming to the rescue was found for a run-producing hit by Wright, scoring Barnhart but McInnis foisted to Goslin for the third out.

But for a lucky escape by Coveleskie in the first inning when the Pirates failed to score after filling the bases, and a sensational stop by Joe Judge in the fourth, the damage by the invaders might have been even greater.

Stanley Harris, making a clever play to retire Wright on a ball deflected by Coveleskie's glove, cut off the first inning sortie while Judge, in the most startling defensive play of the game, plunged and grabbed Carey's liner in the fourth on the first base line, then touched the bag for the third out, with runners winging their way from first and third. The stop cut off what looked like a certain double and brought a terrific ovation from the crowd.

Washington had its full strength back in the game with Ossie Bluege at third base for the first time since he was "beaned" by Aldridge in the second game of the series. His fielding was a help to the champions while at bat he showed he had no fear of the Pirate flinger by slamming out a double but this assistance was not enough to turn the tide.

The Senators, spreading their three runs over as many innings, missed as many good chances to score as did the Pirates but they found Aldridge at his best when the danger was greatest.

In the fourth, for instance, after Joe Harris had squared the county with his homer, Ruel's single and Bluege's double followed in quick succession. It looked like a rout for the moment but the big Pirate hurler steadied, fanned Coveleskie and got the dangerous Rice on a grounder to McInnis.

Mustangs Get Set For Aggie Contest

DALLAS, Oct. 12.—With the last of their pre-season games under their belt, S. M. U.s gridiron warriors and coaches are giving their undivided attention to the crusade on College Station, where next Friday they will engage the "Fightin' Farmers" in the second game of the southwest conference season. Both teams are generally hailed as leaders in the coming season, and both squads have recently proved invading gridsters that they possess no mean strength. S. M. U. last week defeated Washington university of St. Louis, 20 to 6, while the Aggies held Sewanee to a 6 to 6 tie last Saturday.

It should be a classic struggle, this Matsuda-Brown match tonight on the Wichita Falls wrestling association card. Jim Brown, the Chicago Greek, pictured above applying a body scissors to an opponent in a practice match, is reclared by the critics to be the toughest grappler in the welterweight class with the possible exception of Matsuda, the champion, and that exception hasn't been proved yet.

MATSUDA AND BROWN HOOK IN TITULAR MATCH TONIGHT IN WRESTLING ASS'N ARENA

All principals in tonight's wrestling card is to be staged under the direction of the Wichita Falls Wrestling association were on hand Monday and ready for action. Each athlete declared himself in fit condition for the competition. The program will be held in the Eleventh and Indiana arena if the weather is good, according to Matchmaker Ross. If it be cold or a bit rainy the matches be said. First bout is to go on at 8:30.

Matty Matsuda, defending welterweight champion, declares himself in great condition for his match with Jim Brown, the tough Chicagoan who is wrestling for nothing in order to get a chance at Matsuda. This will be the feature bout of the program. It will be recalled this pair grappled three hours and 45 minutes to a draw last January in Chicago.

Young Gotch of Dallas says he's all set for his tiff with Scotty McKay of Winnipeg in the opening preliminary of the lightweight championship tournament which is to be sponsored by the association. This is the first match of the title tourney.

Cliff Holcomb and Harland Ross, Wichita Falls lightweights, meet in the curtain raiser, a one-fall, 15-minute limit match.

BUCCOS COCKY AFTER TAKING NATS IN FIFTH

McKechnie Sends Kremer To Mound in Game Today

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Confidence oozed from the Pirates' clubhouse after their victory over the Senators in the fifth game of the world's series.

"Wouldn't be surprised if we'd take them," Manager Bill McKechnie said as he rushed into his clothes in preparation for an immediate train journey back to the home town. "We've got Johnson and Coveleskie out of the way for a while.

Like School Kids.

"Tomorrow I'm going to send Kremer back and he is in good shape to go. He's worked hard for us all year and is one who can get back into the box with a comparatively short rest.

"We started to hit and that explains why we won and we're going to keep on hitting from now. Yes, I think we'll take them."

The Pirates were like a primary school let loose for recess, thumping each other on the back, smiles brightening every face as they piled into taxicabs and dashed for the train awaiting them. McKechnie himself hurled off the worried look that has been his for several days and laughed and joked with the crowd which swarmed to the door to congratulate him.

Harris Tired.

Stanley Harris, youthful manager of the Senators took defeat calmly.

"Those things will happen," he said, "and they're a part of baseball. Covey wasn't right, anybody could see that. He wanted to go in and get back that game he lost in Pittsburgh, but he wasn't there today.

"I may start either Reuther or Ferguson tomorrow; I haven't decided.

"I wish we had ended it today and didn't have to go back out there, I'm almost tired of the whole thing."

Walter Johnson said that if the Pirates win tomorrow he probably will be out there in the last game.

CONTRACT LET FOR 10 BLOCKS OF PAVING HERE

Public Hearings Held By Council in Other Projects.

Public hearings closed on seven blocks; contracts let for paving 10 blocks; acceptance of two new completed blocks and calling for bids for paving four other blocks made up the paving matters attended to Monday night by the city council. The following public hearings were held, protests received and paving ordered in:

Worford street from Seventh to Eighth, one block; Travis streets, from Fourth to Sixth, two blocks; Bluff street from Eighth to Ninth, one block; Eighteenth street from Burnett to Broad, two blocks.

Three property owners protested on the Travis project, one on the Bluff street poject and several on the Eighteenth street proposition. The protest on this was led by T. P. Duncan and Joe Kell, representing the Wichita Mill and Elevator company, which holds that the paving would be of no benefit to them whatever. Two other property owners protested, but several other appeared to strongly urge the paving go in and after some deliberation the council passed it.

Proposed paving of Second street between Scott and Indiana was knocked out when half the property owners objected.

Contracts for paving new projects were awarded as follows: Avenue M, Grant to Fairview, four blocks, to L. E. Whitham company; Avenue D, Monroe to Bell, one block; Brown street, Avenues L to M, one block; Hayes street, Ozark to Kenesaw, two blocks; Taft street, Avenues L to M, one block; Bell street, Avenue D to Clarence, one block, all the Plains Paving company. New paving was accepted as follows: Fourth street, Austin to Burnett, one block, Plains Paving company; Arthur street, Seymour road to Avenue K, one block, L. E. Whitham company.

Bids were called for for paving the following streets: Avenue J, Jones to Taft; Jones street, Avenues J to M.

TELEPHONE

on service extensions and a new exchange here.

To Extend Service.

The expenditure includes erection of a three-story annex, 35 by 50 feet, to the present building of the company located at Ninth and Scott, the extension of service to all sections, new additions and outlying areas of the municipality, the installation of 3,000 lines of underground cable for a distance of approximately 6,000 feet and the modernization of the old system and the replacing of old equipment with new.

Local telephone service is to be extended to Iowa Park Junction on the Iowa Park road. Westmoreland addition, Indian heights, Country club estates, and other new additions are to be served under the new system.

Increase Facilities.

Application now on file at the company office for 52 telephones cannot be supplied under the present system, it was said, but these are to be installed under the new system.

A second branch exchange is being installed in the telephone building now. The new numbers of this exchange are to be put in use after Jan. 1. This work is being carried on at a cost of $32,000, it was said.

The annex is expected to cose more than $40,000. It will give the company a two-exchange telephone system.

PARK DONOR

point about even with the clubhouse. He proposes that the county pay for the original 18 feet it has already contracted to do; that he be allowed to pay for a similar or greater width, that the city pay for curbing and gutters on the county side of the job and that he bear the expense of providing suitable trees and shrubs for the proposed boulevard in between.

Agrees to Pay Cost.

In other words, instead of an 18-foot concrete road through the park as now planned, he would have at least 36 feet of paving split down the middle by a 20-foot parkway. He asked that the street be widened on the county side to 20 feet, he agreeing to pay the cost of a similar width on the other side of the boulevard. He also offers to pay the cost of the curb and gutter on the side he will pave and, in addition, pays for beautification of the boulevard. He has already purchased shrubbery and trees for this, he said.

The proposed change would extend for about 5,000 feet or a little less than a mile and would involve an expense to the city of about $10,000, it was figured. The change also would require that the road level be lowered to that of the usual city street instead of being allowed to stand at the higher level which county roads are set at.

Prefers Asphalt.

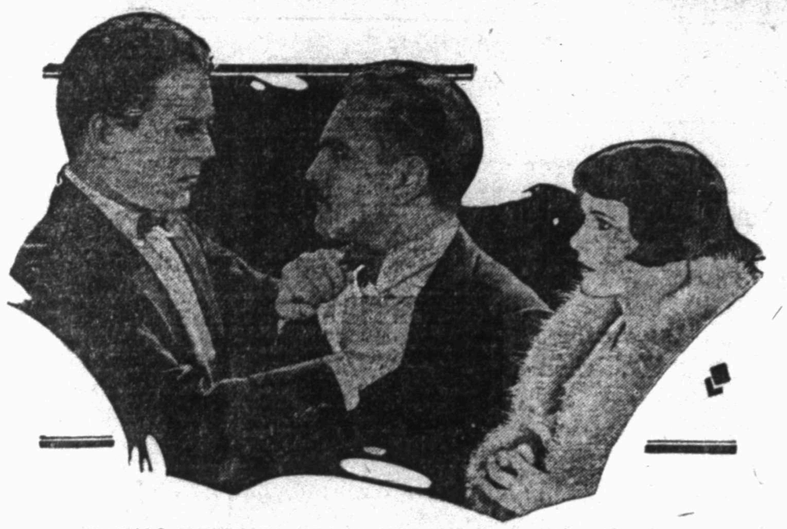

On top of all this, Mr. Weeks indicated that instead of a concrete road he would prefer an asphaltic highway, saying he deemed it more suitable for city streets. He said he thought concrete was the best for country roads.

In winding up his talk Weeks told the commissioners frankly he would not be interested in further co-operation with the city in an effort to improve that part of town if they rejected his new offer. He then submitted his alternative proposition and asked that if his proposal were not accepted, the city take his latter offer.

This would mean that the park, Shepherd Asks Time.

golf course, clubhouse and all improvements would go back to Mr. Weeks and the city would be forced to find another park somewhere else and start development all over.

County Commissioner J. P. Jackson of Precinct 1 was at the meeting and said the county would stand pat on the work it has already contracted for. Mayor Shepherd, speaking for the city, asked that Mr. Weeks allow them a little time to think and discuss the matter and to this he agreed.

THOMAS MEIGHAN, FRANK MORGAN AND VIRGINIA VALLI IN A SCENE FROM THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE "THE MAN WHO FOUND HIMSELF"

About five years ago Booth Tarkington, world-famous novelist, was induced by Paramount to have one of his books transferred to the screen. The result of that experiment was one of the season's finest pictures, "The Conquest of Canaan."

The star of the picture was Thomas Meighan who is playing at the Strand in another story by the same author, "The Man Who Found Himself," another prison tale written especially for the "good luck" star by Mr. Tarkington. Alfred E. Green, who directed Meighan in "The Bachelor Daddy," "Back Home and Broke," Pied "Piper Malone," and other just as successful pictures, made this one. Tom Geraghty, who supervises all of the stars' production, wrote the screen play. Virginia Valli, Frank Morgan, John Harrington, Norman Trevor, Charles Stevenson, Julia Hoyt and Lynn Fontanne are but a few of the big names which appear in the strong supporting cast.

"The Man Who Found Himself" is a semi-serious tale of a happy-go-lucky son of a small town banker who shoulders the blame when his younger brother loses heavily in Wall Street and then borrows bank funds to "cover up." The result is a sojourn in Sing Sing.

When he once more faces the light of freedom, Tom's outlook on life has been completely changed. His father is dead. Everyone turns his back on him. Even the girl who said she would wait, has married his business rival. He's dead set against everything and everybody.

Thinks look black. He falters from the straight an narrow path Then—he becomes a relaity—"Th Man Who Found Himself."

CITY TAX DOLLAR

which amount to about $26,000 per annum.

It will be noted that in the operating funds, the park department has been given a substantial increase this year, Whereas it received only $ .2.76 of each dollar last year, it will now get $ .7.30. This has been made necessary by the vast amount of improvement done in the department—improvement called for by insistent public demand for more park facilities. The street and library departments, too, have been given an increase, although in less pronounced degree.

Turning to the city's valuation, it is found that a gain of nearly $6,000,000 was made during the present fiscal year. The figure of $39,910,820 is final and official and takes precedence over all other figures heretofore announced. For the 1924 fiscal year the official valuation was $34,097,170, giving a gain this year of $5,813,650.

Revenues from taxation increased only $7,383.11 through application of a 20-cent cut in rates. Last year it was $1.50 and thi syear $1.30.

MARTIN ASKS NEW TRIAL.

DALLAS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Formal motion for a new trial was filed late today for W. A. Martin, convicted here on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Deputy Sheriff R. B. Parsons of Denton county. The jury returned a verdict recommending a sentence of 99 years.

John Q. Humphrey, assistant county attorney, returned to work Monday, after a week's absence in which he recovered from the effects of a tonsil operation.

MOODY SAYS HE GOT 'EM TOLD IN HIGHWAY CASE

Gave Commission "Plenty Of Advise," Says Attorney General.

AUSTIN, Oct. 12.—Secrecy shrouds the two-hour conference between Attorney General Dan Moody and the members of the highway commission, which terminated at 6 o'clock tonight. None of the participants would talk. From the tension which pervaded the highway commissioner's office, the breach between Moody, who is conducting an investigation into the department, and the commissioners, has not been bridged.

While Chairman Frank V. Lanham and Commissioner Joe Burkett maintained a stolid silence, Commissioner Juan Bickett said: "You can tell the world, the moon has not set. The state is not ruined; it'll last a few more years."

"I Didn't Miss It."

Moody, who has cloaked his inquiry into the department, was equally reticent. But when he was asked if he "gave them plenty of advice," he replied, "I didn't miss it."

Moody said he would not talk because he was asked to appear by the commission. It had been agreed by the commissioners that Moody should appear before them, inasmuch as he was inquiring into their activities.

To Audit Road Books.

The attorney general sent his assistant, Ernest May, to Eastland to meet an auditor from Dallas. They are to inspect the books of the Hoffman Construction company, which holds several highway contracts. Moody denied that he has received a final report on the audit he ordered of the American Road company books in Dallas. This company has a number of highway contracts, which the attorney general has been investigating.

Two marriage licenses were issued Monday by the county clerk. They went to Andrew Webster and Miss Josephine Thorne, both of Wichita Falls; Ted Pitts of Henrietta and Miss Mary Kiser of Wichita Falls.

Reasonable Restrictions

You are protected against shacks and unattractive construction. The buyer may build modestly, but he must build for comfort and permanence. No stores or filling stations will be permitted, nor will anything be permitted that will affect Kempfair Park's attractiveness as a residence addition.

Conveniences Of City Life

A large sewer main runs through the addition. Electric light, water and gas connections are already at its very edge, and will be readily available for your home. The car line is within easy distance of all lots. No lot is over two blocks from paving. Every city convenience will be accessible to your home.
