(By Associated Press)

TEXARKANA, Ark., May 22.—Four bandits who robbed the Miller County Bank and Trust Co here of $29,536.28 in cash and securities were sought by strongly armed posses in two states tonight. First announcements said that between $7,000 and $8,000 had been taken, but a later check showed that $21,000 in negotiable securities were included in the loot.

Walking into the bank during a morning lull the robbers forced five officers and two customers into a vault, snatched up two sacks of currency and fled before pedestrians on the crowded sidewalk had learned of the robbery.

All Were Unmasked

Only three of the men, all of whom were unmasked, entered the building. The fourth waited in an automobile. After marching President T. F. Booker and four other employes into the vault, they grabbed the money and sped away.

The imprisoned employes and customers found, after a moment, that the vault door had not been locked, pushed it open and spread the alarm. Posses were formed by Miller County, Ark., and Bowie County, Texas, officers, but no trace of the robbers had been found early tonight.

Green Car Sought

The search was especially hot in the vicinity of Fouke, Ark., where a green touring car, thought to be the one used by the bandits, had been seen. Earlier in the day a suspect

Plan Curtailment

Governors Of Texas, Oklahoma And California Already Willing To Meet In Settling Oil Problem

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 22.—President Hoover today invited the governors of the principal oil producing states to meet at Colorado Springs on June 10 with a representative of the federal government, probably Secretary Wilbur, to promulgate an interstate compact to eliminate waste and over-production in the oil industry.

The president's invitation was extended on the recommendation of the federal oil conservation board, which recently proposed to the American Petroleum Institute that the best method of dealing with over-production and waste would be through a compact to which the federal government would be a party through legislation.

Project Illegal

The board's plan was submitted to the institute after that organization had asked the board to approve a plan of voluntary curtailment. Such approval was withheld after Attorney General Mitchell ruled that the project probably would be in violation of the anti-trust laws and that he board had no right to approve or disapprove the plan.

The governors of Texas, Oklahoma, and California already have expressed willingness to participate in a conference looking to a compact of the nature recommended by the oil board. Dr. George Otis Smith, head of the geological survey, representing the board, has visited the governors of Texas and California and received promises of support for the plan from them, and Mark L. Requa, mining engineer and oil administrator during the world war has received the promise of co-operation from the governor of Oklahoma as well as from the governors of Texas and California.

Kelly Field Flier Sets New Flight Record With Hop From Santone To Ft. Sill; Ocean Flight Delayed

(By Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, May 22.—Reg. L. Robbins and James Kelly had been in the air three and one-half days at 11:33 o'clock tonight in their effort to set a new refueling endurance record for airplanes.

Refueling operations, made about sunrise and sundown each day have resulted in 710 gallons of gasoline being transferred to the "Fort Worth." The plane carried approximately 250 gallons on the take off at 11:33 a. m. Sunday.

After Army Record.

Their single-motored monoplane swept tunefully along toward the record of the army plane, Question Mark, which remained aloft 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds.

Robbins and Kelley belittled the danger from fire as they flew. Once they asked for parachutes, but when pilots of the refueling plane offered the chutes on a rope, the endurance fliers refused to take them. The parachutes are not to be taken up again unless the fliers ask for them.

Tells of Refueling

In a note dropped Robbins told how the plane is refueled, the operation during which danger from fire and collision is greatest.

He dismissed the fire hazard with a nonchalant "the ground wire is connected." The ground wire is a wire helping to insulate the ship against danger of an explosion from electricity generalted by the propellor.

"Weary River" Has Barthelmess At His Greatest

As Jerry Larabee, gangster, "framed" by the leader of another gang and sent to prison, Richard Barthelmess, starring in "Weary River" the current movie offering at the Lindsey theater, gives one of the finest performances of his long career upon the silversheet.

Betty Compson, the ganster's lover, has a role in this picture that gives her opportunity to display the histrionic ability which made her a star in "The Miracle Man," more than any picture she has appeared in during the past several years.

There is a splendid performance by the Warden of the prison, where Larabee sings his way to freedom with the song, "Weary River", and a number of speeches filled with powerful pull, yet not preachy, offered by this venerable character.

With the feature picture there are two Vitaphone acts that are luxuriously pleasing.

Are You Run Down, Weak, Nervous?

To have plenty of firm flesh and the ability to do a big day's work and feel "like a two-year old" at night, you must eat three good meals a day, relish your food and properly digest it. If you can't eat, can't sleep, can't work, just take a teaspoonful of Tanlac before meals.

Mr. Joseph A. Culver, of 812 S. Main St., Muskogee, Okla., says: "I was a nervous wreck and forced myself to work and eat. I felt like quitting work before the day was up. On taking Tanlac, my appetite picked up so I could eat anything, soon slept well and gained 10 lbs."

Tanlac is wonderful for indigestion and constipation—gas, pains, nausea, dizziness and headaches. It brings back lost appetite, helps you digest your food, and gain strength and weight. It contains no mineral drugs; it is made of roots, barks and herbs, nature's own medicines for the sick. The cost is less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist. Your money back if it doesn't help.

Suicide Discovered In Man's Death

DALLAS, May 22. (AP)—When City Detective Bob Jones reached down into a small creek in Oak Cliff yesterday and brought up a small pistol, he blasted William B. McLean's hopes for what was planned to be a "perfect suicide."

McLean, 23, was found dead on a bridge over the creek yesterday. It first was thought he had been slain by a robber, but officers, after obtaining a statement from McLean's room mate, W. L. Holder, said they were convinced he had shot himself.

Holder, in a signed statement, told officers McLean planned to shoot himself Sunday, but was dissuaded. He quoted McLean as having said: "I'm going to commit suicide in such a way that no one will know it was suicide."

McLean, oficfers say, stood on the edge of the bridge, shot himself and then dropped his pistol into the creek before he fell.

An inquest verdict of suicide was returned today.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT
WITH ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche Sports Editor

Dave Bancroft and Max Carey have been mentioned as possible successors to Uncle Wilbert Robinson, for 16 years pilot of the Brooklyn Robins. Internal dissention has been a problem to the Brooklyn ball club for several years. As president and manager of the club, Uncle Robbie, for whom the team was named has been at odds with Judge McKeever, half owner of the club.

Recently Robinson announced he would surrender the management of the club if harmony could be produced. There is a question as to whether he will last through the season. It is a case of a paying baseball organization wanting a new deal. They wanted Robbie to quit last year but he hung on, hoping for a change for the better. But the opening of the current campaign found his club shot to pieces, with Glenn Wright, his main hope, suffering with a sore throwing arm. Even the unmistable Dazzy Vance has been unable to win consistently with the ragged support he has been afforded by the hapless Dodgers.

UNCERTAIN LIES THE HEAD

At no time in the history of the Texas League have the rosters of the various clubs in the circuit undergone so complete a change as during the past winter season. Practically every entry in the loop started the season with a lineup that the home fans could scarcely recognize as their pride and joy. The uncertainty of a career on the baseball diamond is reflected in the fate of the members of Dallas 1928 Dixie Champions. Of those who played under Manager Snipe Connally in his drive to the pennant, only Hap Morse, still is with the club. Only five are in the Texas League this season.

Taken as a whole, the numerous changes made in the lineups has served to inject a rare spirit into the 1929 battle for league supremacy. The majority of the clubs are carrying more youngsters than in former years and the brand of baseball is much faster. Jake Atz, the venerable Fort Worth pilot, has the youngest aggregation that has represented the Cowtown entry in years. Gone are the grizzled veterans who bore the Panther cause to the pennant for year after year. In their place, Atz has gathered a crew of promising ball players with worlds of hustle who are destined to make the sledding tough for their opposition.

In Chicago on June 7 and 8, two great sprint stars of the Southwest Conference will be pitted against the nation's best at the national collegiate meet. While Claude Bracey carried off honors in the 100 and 220 yard dashes at this meet last year, he is destined to meet another speedy gent from Texas who has already shown him his heels in one meet this year. Cy Leland will be among the half-dozen or more speedsters who have approached or unofficially excelled world spring records. Leland, well known in Lubbock, has commanded national attention with his feats in conference meets during this season. Simpson of Ohio State is also likely to give the Rice Flyer a stiff race in both dashes.

If Bracey repeats this year it will be a moral victory for Ernie Hjertberg, the Rice coach who discovered Bracey as a sprinter. It was Hjertberg who persuaded Claude to give up football in the hope that he would eventually set a new world record in the century.

Coen's Play Is Match Sensation

Youthful Kansas City Netter Shows Tremendous Improvement In Second Visit To France

PARIS, May 22 (AP)—Young Wilbur Coen in defeat today displayed the best tennis shown by any American player appearing in the third day of the international hard court championships which saw the advance of Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter, and of Helen Wills and Edith Cross, into the quarter-finals in men's and women's doubles respectively.

Coen showed tremendous improvement since his appearance last year in these same championships.

The Kansas City boy's tennis king in the set which he and Edouard Borotra, younger brother of the "Bounding Basque" of France, took from Tilden and Hunter was of real championship calibre.

Bill and his partner finally won from the youngsters of 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, but only after they had been forced to drop their playful policy of centering their fire on Coen.

Miss Wills and Miss Cross went into the women's double quarter-finals without undue exertion, eliminating the Angelo-French team of Miss Lucy Johnstone and Mme. Rene Fourcade, 6-4, 6-4.

Paired with Miss Cross, the youthful Coen came through the first round of mixed doubles, winning from Germany's recognized best team consisting of Frau Friedleben and Karl Wetzel, 6-4, 6-4.

Horton Smith Takes International Golf Championship On 21st Birthday

Unprecedented 273 Wins Title For Missoruian

ST. CLOUD, France, May 22. (AP) Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., celebrated his 21st birthday today by winning the international golf championship for professionals with an unprecedented score of 273 strokes for 72 holes. A big cake pierced by 21 candles awaited him on the home green where a cosmopolitan gallery of 3,000 cheered in half a dozen languages.

He scored his triumph by shooting two rounds of 66, one of 70 and another of 71 on a 6,507 yard course with par of 71. Smith was five strokes ahead of the home professional, Aubrey Boomer, who wrote an immortal page during the third round this morning when he shot a round of 61, 10 strokes under par and the lowest medal round recorded on a championship golf course of the length of St. Cloud.

No one else in the field of 70 competitors was anywhere near Smith's total. Gene Sarazen finished third with 285 and Johnny Farrell fourth with 290. Andre Boyer's 292 placed him fifth while Walter Hagen and Henry Cotton tied for sixth with 293's.

Smith was cool as a cucumber in the burning sun that seemed to bring out his best golf, went along with steady nerves all the way, his smile broke out at every hole, and when he found trouble, a rare experience, he recovered without a frown.

After taking his only six of the competition at the 14th hole this afternoon, he drove the 301 yard 15th green and ran down a 30-foot putt for an eagle two.

Tradesmen Annex 9-3 Victory Over Terry Ball Team

Waller Effective In Pinches With Deceptive Change Of Pace; Santa Fe In Action Today

Carpenter-Painters of the city league bunched their hits and took advantage of the opposition's miscues Wednesday afternoon to hand the Hardware Dealers a sound trouncing, 9 to 3.

Getting off to a big start in the first inning, the Tradesmen scored four runs off the delivery of Delaney before the side was retired. Hopper, who relieved Delaney, held the victors well in check during the remainder of the seven-inning tussle, but additional runs were scored on errors.

Waller, on the mound for the winners, turned back the Hardware threat in the first and second innings but in the third the pupils of Red Terry got their long range guns into action and counted three times. Curtis, Jackson, Anderson and Hopper delivered safe blows, Jackson's double against the right field fence scoring two.

Waller's change of pace held the Hardware outfit scoreless through the remainder of the tilt. Manager Terry made a desperate effort to rally in the seventh when he sent in two pinch batsmen including himself. He was left stranded on second base after he had poked a single past third for the seventh hit off Waller.

The winners counted four in the first, two in the third and three in the fifth, the entire 9 runs being scored with but five hits.

Today the Carpenter-Painters meet the Santa Fe nine in a regular seven-inning contest.

Turkey Enjoying Bright Prospects Of Big Crop Year

Six Inches Of Rain Received In Past Week To Give Optimism To Area; Buildins Is Active

(Special To The Avalanche)

TURKEY, May 22.—With some six inches of rainfall this month, and like amount last month covering the entire area of Turkey and its trade territory, which thoroughly soaked the earth to an extent that farmers believe a bountiful crop is now assured. The soil holds moisture well, and much of the crop has been planted, growers, merchants and business men are elated over the present prospects, one of the best this section has seen at this time of the year.

On account of so much new land being placed in cultivation, which was broke out last fall and winter, estimates give at least a thirty per cent increase in acreage planted to cotton in this immediate territory.

Watermelon Men Organize

The Turkey Watermelon Growers Association, composed of progressive farmers of the rural district has listed a large membership who will grow melons on from two to five acre tracts this year to thoroughly test out the productive powers of the soil along this line.

Inspired by the encouraging conditions, investors are erecting new business houses, new homes, and plans are being made for a great number of new mercantile buildings during the summer. Among which will be a $20,000 brick building for the Ford agency, recently acquired by Roy Russell. A new brick office building for the State Telephone company, and the $85,000 new high school building. Also, the Farmers and Merchants State Bank are making plans for a new building. New homes are springing up every week in all the residential sections. Plans are under way for the paving of 22 miles, giving Turkey three paved roads leading into town. Some two and one-half miles of water extension are being made as well as considerable sewer extensions. Conditions are excellent for the best year ever known in this section.

Vagrancy Fines Close Probe Of Slavery Charges

A planned investigation of what Lubbock county officers believed Wednesday morning was a white slavery traffic ring was abandoned late yesterday afternoon when two women and one man, held on charges of vagrancy, were released after they had paid fines in justice court.

The two women, after being released following payment of fines, were re-arrested by officers yesterday in an effort to get information which would lead to the arrest of another man, whom the officers believed was aligned with the group here.

Investigation was started here when officers expressed the belief that the women were brought to Texas from Oklahoma, but the quizzing of the trio did not bring forth enough information to substantiate white slavery charges.

The sudden popularity of Bibles in several Chicago hotels was attributed to the ingenuity of bootleggers in inscribing their names and phone numbers within their pages.

LET'S CLEAN UP A BIT!

ALLEYS in the downtown section of Lubbock are rapidly being paved.

This is a forward move, seemingly unimportant to some people, perhaps, but, never-the-less one of the best municipal acts accomplished here in some time.

The city's paving of the alleys leaves the solution of their care up to us, who have business houses abutting them. What are we going to do about it?

Although the average citizen probably doesn't realize it, our downtown alleys are not kept as they should be. Trash cans, garbage cans and piles of refuse are kept uncovered, literal breeding places of disease. At one certain location an enterprising restaurant proprietor is using the alley back of his eat-shop as a slaughtering place for chickens and other fowls. Certainly there is no reason for permitting a breach of public ettiquette such as this.

Now that we have gotten the mud out of most of our downtown alleys let's get the filth out of them too. Summer time, with flies and insects and insects abounding, will be on us before we know it. In the name of health and public decency let's clean up a bit!

WHITHER ARE WE DRIFTING?

Since first the special interests in the United States—using the term in no derogatory sense, but as meaning the steel interests, the wool interests, the copper interests, and others, chiefly pertaining to business—sent special agents to Washington for the purpose of influencing legislation, the term "lobbyist" has had an ungrateful sound in the public ear.

Therefore the lobbyist has passed away. In his place we have in Washington the bureau, the special representatives, the National Association of This and That. And all these things are nothing more nor less than the old lobbyist, raised from squalor to luxury, with his clerks, his experts, his statisticians, often with his magnificent suite of offices, sometimes with a whole building. But he is still the lobbyist, whose duty it is to watch the introduction of bills, to prevent the passage of those his special interest deems harmful, to assist the enactment of those his special interest advocates.

The old lobbyist has, in fact, undergone a sinister transformation. He no longer moves in shabby secrecy. He is in the open, opulent and dignified, thoroughly respectable, a person of weight and authority, whose opinion is sought by congressional committees. He can furnish almost at a moment's notice, voluminous statistics, and he can interpret them—either he or his experts—in the light most favorable to the interest he serves. Of course, the government usually has statistics of its own, but seldom anything as fresh, as detailed, as interesting, as those which the special representative, the bureau head, the association secretary, can bring forward.

And so the various interests that have their own game to play are commodiously, virtuously, respectably and efficiently represented at Washington. But what of the people? How are they represented?

Well, they are represented by congress, of course. But a member of congress is human. He does not possess first-hand accurate information about everything. In fact, he knows very little about anything of which he has not made a special and detailed study. Therefore he thirsts for knowledge, and he is willing to take it from any plausible source. And who so plausible as the polite gentleman employed by the Association, the Bureau, the Chamber or the League, with his beautiful statistics, his staff of experts and his winning personality?

The citizen who thinks about things must sooner or later ask himself the question: Is this republican government? Is this the sort of government whose foundations were laid in the Constitution? Or is there, threatening our form of government and gradually supplanting it, a government of special interests, growing in power, and having as its object not the good of all the people, but the good of particular groups of the people at the expense of the rest?

The very fact that the lobbyist has become respectable, that he enjoys consideration, that he is invited before congressional committees, indicates the progress he has made not only in popular esteem, but in the minds of members of congress and in the influence that he wields. But is he any the less a menace to republication government? Can we have at once a government of the people, by the people, for the people, and an organized, highly-paid, skillfully-conducted lobby for all the particular interests in the country?

SALES RESISTANCE

If the salesmen of the country were placed end to end, and if the hours that salesmen spend tryng to sell you something you do not want were added together, the result would be a tremendous sum in time, space and matter.

Economists say that if the overhead is to be met factories must work full time, and if factories are to work full time there must be orders to fill, and if there are orders to fill, there must be some one to create demand, in other words, salesmen.

Therefore, the reason for salesmen is perfectly clear and the reason they try to break down your sales resistance is perfectly clear. Strangely enough, there are occasions when one wants something. There is no sales resistance to break down. There is no need to create a demand. The demand already exists. It may be a bond, or nsurance, or an automobile of a certain make and model, or a house or a pound of grass seed. It seems the irony of fate that on such occasions the salesmen vanish into thin air.

The answer perhaps lies in the fact that the perfect prospect is almost too good to be true. Like most good things, he is colorless. He does not have to be begged, flattered or played upon. In fact he demonstrates to what extent the talents of a salesman are superfluous. So the perfect prospect must wait to be waited on.

Another fine old fiction character one rarely meets up with now-a-days is the hero who signified great self-restraint every 25 pages by clenching his fists until the palms bled.

EQUALIZING TARIFF BENEFITS ABSURD, STATES CONGRESSMAN

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 22.—"The notion of equalizing tariff benefits is absurd," says Representative Cordell Hull, of Tennessee.

Congress is trying to do it, nevertheless—for agriculture's benefit.

The prime purpose of the extra session, now on in Washington, is to help agriculture—by means of the widely-advertised but not so well understood farm bill, backed up by higher tariffs on all sorts of farm products.

The farm bill already is involved in a bad jam, due to the senate's addition to it of the recently-invented debenture feature, despite President Hoover's protest.

The bill embodying the tariff part of the program made its appearance a few days ago in the house of representatives, where all such legislation must start—and the objection immediately is raised that, for every nickel of advantage that it gives to the farmer, it gives a dollar's worth of advantage to somebody else at the farmer's expense.

Representative Hull expresses no surprise that this is so. "A tariff," he comments, "is the most inequitable of all taxes."

• • •

A Jeffersonian of the old school, 1921-24 national Democratic chairman and prominently-mentioned candidate for his party's presidential nomination at Houston, the Tennessee representative is one of the pending tariff bill's half dozen of leading opponents at the present extra session of congress.

A few "minor farm specialties" may profit from protection, he agrees. So far, good. The existing system being what it is, he indorses it for them, too.

As for "agriculture as a whole"—by which the congressman says he means nearly 90 per cent—"it suffers far more than it benefits from general high tariffs." This, adds the Tennesseean, is not guesswork; it was demonstrated under the farm tariffs of 1921 and 1922.

• • •

Against the proposal to broaden the president's "flexible tariff" authority—enabling him to alter rates without congressional sanction—the representative registers a still more vigorous protest.

"The president," he points out, "would thus be empowered to change the whole purpose of a tariff law enacted by congress.

"As already administered, the 'flexible provision' fairly, to revise tariffs upward in most instances. It has been utterly disappointing. It has been used unhas been productive of national scandal. It is unsound, unwise, impractical, subversive of congress' functions.

"It ought to be repealed."

• • •

"Not only," continues the Tennessee lawmaker, "is the tariff inequitable; it never can be made equitable.

"We may see an interest discriminated against, and even place it in a privileged position, but it will invariably be done to some other interet's corresponding disadvantage.

"The essence of the system is privilege. If all are privileged, none is privileged, and the system has defeated itself."

• • •

"The tendency," concluded the representative, "always is upward.

"After the Civil war, high rates were provided—to meet peculiar needs of the time. Presently those rates were made the basis for an increase. Following the World war an increase was made from that basis—to meet peculiar post-war conditions. Today the post-World war level is made the basis for a fresh increase—to meet peculiar conditions again.

"Our tariffs prevent collection of our foreign debts. They injure agriculture. They obstruct our exports. They hamper our trade."

And if we continue to boost them:

"They will lead us to socialism," said the congressman.

EXTREMISTS

The radical and reactionary are both wrong.

Any man is wrong who allows himself to be carried away by logic, or conviction, or principle, or obstinacy, or any other force which he will not criticize by his intelligence and adjust to facts by his common sense.

Life is not one thing nor another. It is a little of both. The most successful life, the most dependable mind, is the one which has the most poise.

Man is the only animal that walks upright on his feet, and to do that requires a constant sense of balance.

The reactionar yhates change; he wants things kept as they are, or if there is change at all, he wants to go back to the old things that were.

The revolutionary worships change. To him whatever is, is wrong. He would like to smash all existing institutions and make them over to his ideas.

Strangely enough, it is from both these sources that we get the belief in force. Both are intolerant.

But the progress of mankind is not by force. It is by continuous adjustment, trial, compromise, give and take.

KISSING CAN CAUSE TROUBLE, BUT IT CAN'T CAUSE COLD SORES

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The common cold sore is a blister that usually appears on the lips or near the angle of the mouth, usually at the point where the skin joins the mucous membrane, the red lining of the mouth cavity.

Sometimes they appear also at the junction of the skin of the nose with the lining, and they have appeared at other openings of the body. The scientific name for cold sores is herpes simplex, which distinguishes these from the kind of blisters that are known as shingles. Scientifically, shingles are known as herpes zoster. Herpes simplex are also called fever sores.

It is quite generally understood that shingles appear along the course of sensory nerves and that there is for them a nervous basis, although infections may be the stimulating factor to the nerves.

Fever sores, cold sores, or fever blisters usually begin with a sensation of itching, followed by the development of small blisters which eventually dry up forming thin crusts. The crusts fall off and disappear in from 10 to 14 days.

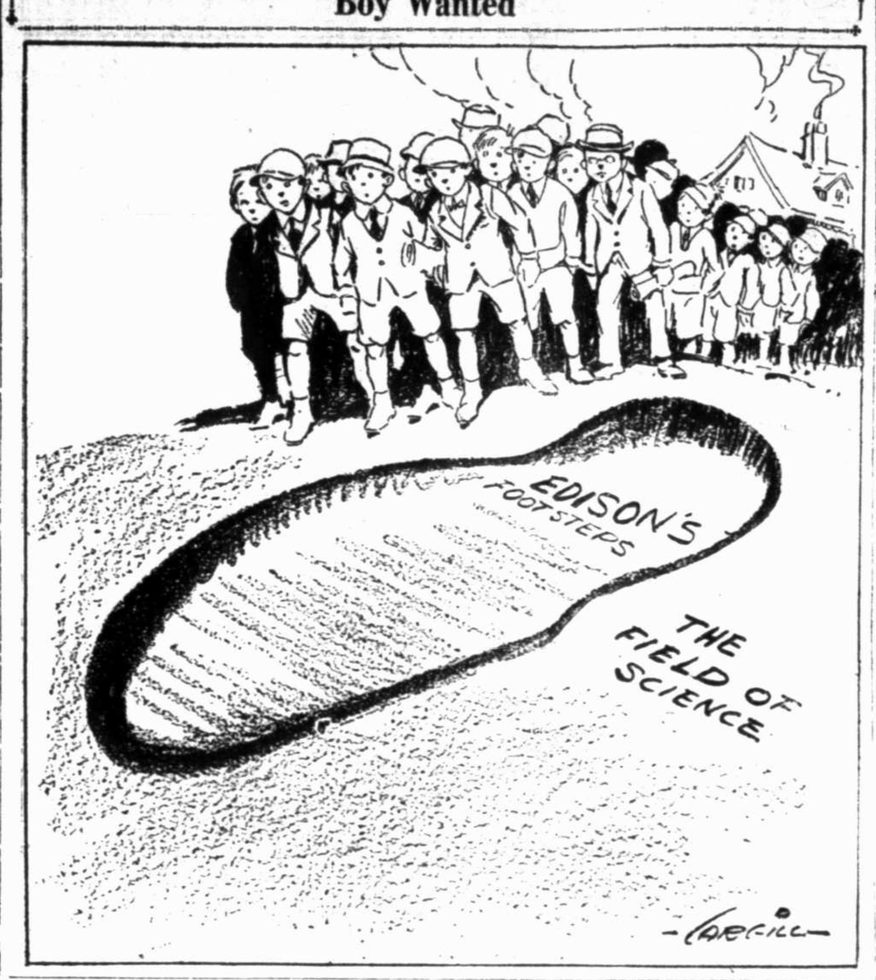

The cause of fever sores is unknown. Some insist that there is a bacterial basis, others postulate a nervous origin and the public are likely to insist that indigestion, exposure to sunlight, colds, pneumonia and osculation—that's kissing—are the real basis.

The fact that fever sores appear in about 40 per cent of cases of pneumonia is a possible indication of some infectious origin. There is a superstition among physicians that when fever sores appear in pneumonia, this is to be considered a favorable sign.

When confronted with such a condition as multiple cold sores the attempts at treatment constitute two varieties: 1, getting the body into the best possible hygienic state generally; 2, attempting in some manner to relieve the local disturbance. For the latter purpose, almost everyone has his favorite remedy. The camphor stick, witch hazel, alcohol, cologne water with alum, and numerous other skin remedies have been tried with varying degrees of success.

Scientific statistics are not available as to the exact number of instances in which fever blisters have occurred with and without preceding osculation. The latter performance is so widespread and so varied in its technic that the accumulation of scientific data would seem to be well nigh impossible.

Palmela insists on Stephen attending a dinner that night in honor of their engagement.

Harold confesses enough to Mildred to reveal to her that Stephen is in danger of Huck's scheming. In desperation she decides to make an effort to save him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

Mildred was still without a position. She was free to seek for our vacation this summer."

Huck Connor at any time but household duties kept her at home throughout the morning. And by afternoon, when she went to the Judson and asked for him, it was too late. He was out of town, she was told. No, he had not said when he would return.

Huck had gone to a town a few miles up the Hudson river where a retired gangster kept a convenient hideaway camoflouged as a chicken farm. He had business with the proprietor, one Ras Poberlin.

On her way from the hotel Mildred passed the Mettle Agency, and though she would not allow her steps to slow she could not keep from glancing through the plate-glass window, hoping for a glimpse of Stephen.

Naturally she did not see him as he was even then headed for J. B.'s place under Lefty Flint's malign direction.

Mildred told herself it was beter not to see him, but as she hurried on she was conscious of a keen disappointment. Her heart ached for sight of Stephen and even her pride, great as it was, could not moderate the desire.

There were other things besides thoughts of Stephen to occupy her mind, however, and Mildred was too conscientious to neglect them. She must make a few calls where it was possible she might obtain a position.

The outlook at home was becoming gloomy. The small income derived from a cautious investment of the insurance money her father had left was insufficient to meet the bills.

"I must have a job," Mildred told herself worriedly. "If we fall behind with the rent and get into debt there won't be even so much as a trip to Coney Island on Sundays

She could not help feeling bitter toward Pamela at that moment. Once on a hot, humid day, she had been sent to the Judson boat where it was anchored in the breeze-swept Sound to do some work for the owner. It had been Paradise to her luxury-starved senses.

The unexpected warmth of the present day brought it back to her mind. Well, Stephen had tasted of that luxury. She didn't blame him so much . . . but, of course, he was in love with Pamela, in spite of her brutal selfishness.

Mildred could picture her curled up on her lacy pillows, commanding that even her slightest whim be satisfied. "While I walk the streets looking for work," was Mildred's bitter reflection. The injustice of it still smarted. She was efficient capable, but on a parasitic creature's wish she had been treated as though her worth in the world were of no more account than a fly's.

Her resentment clung as the day wore away and she was still numbered among the unemployed. She knew that it might be weeks yet before she found a position. Chance was such a large element in this matter in New York. People missed big opportunities by a hair's breath, others stumbled upon them when they were not wanted.

Mildred was genuinely worried. Her mother noted her downcast expression when she returned home and made her lie down a few minutes before dinner.

Mildred had to tell her mother that she'd lost her position at the Judson Hotel but she did not reveal her concern for the immediate future.

It was not just his alone that troubled her, her mother knew, for Connie had told her of Stephen's engagement to Pamela.

Mildred came out to the kitchen in time to broil the hamburger cakes and fix the salad. Connie was cutting up some cold boiled potatoes. "How much butter?" she asked, when she went to the cupboard for a frying pan.

"Butter!" her mother exclaimed. "Use the fat drippings. And you needn't have peeled the potatoes. The skin is healthful when it's nice and clean."

Connie groaned. "You can bet I'm going to marry a big butter-and-egg man," she said determinedly. "I hate fat drippings."

Ordinarily Mildred would have given her a little sisterly advice after such a remark, but tonight the older girl was preoccupied and silent.

Connie decided not to pester her, but before she fell asleep that night she was aware that Mildred was crying soundlessly, and it was all she could do to keep from blurting out her contempt for Stephen.

For Stephen it was a night of pleasure, unshadowed by any omen of what awaited him on the morrow.

It was daybreak when he unlocked his door and let himself into his room.

He hurried to undress and get some sleep before going to the office, but sleep would not come to him. Now that he was alone his troubles returned like a flock of vultures to pick at his peace.

Pam in a flat! Pam in a kitchen apron. Pam in the balcony at the theater. Pam in the subway. He couldn't see it. But hang it all, she knew he'd make good with her to work for. He'd have to. He couldn't expect her to go on living in what would to her, be abject poverty.

What a girls she was! She certainly could put life into a party. Not that her friends were dull, but Pam led them all. She'd been as sparkling and as gay when he took her home as when they first reached Margola's party.

He dozed off finally, and with the thought in his mind that he was a lucky devil to be loved by a girl like Pam.

• • •

It seemed only a moment before his alarm clock woke him with its inconsiderate summons.

He hurried to be at the office early. He could get off some letters to certain of his prospects who needed a reminder of their promise to come in and inspect the new models.

Mr. Mettle came in late. He greeted Stephen with a sour face and a skimpy nod.

Stephen worked like a Trojan that morning, using his utmost selling powers on all potential buyers who came within sound of his voice.

He saw Carl Short come in some time after 11 and go directly to Mr. Mettle's private office. The investigator was closeted there with the manager for about 15 minutes before Stephen was sent for.

Fresh trouble was in the air. Stephen knew as soon as he opened the door and faced the two.

On the desk between them lay a .32 caliber revolver, a large roll of bills and a bunch of keys in a leather key holder.

Stephen did not at first see the keys or the money. His eyes were fastened upon the gun.

"Ever see it before?" Short asked dryly. Mr. Mettle said nothing. His mouth was like a crack of ice, drawn sharply across his face as it was.

Stephen shook his head. "No," he said.

"Or this?" Short picked up the roll of bills.

Stephen looked puzzled. Again he shook his head.

"And I suppose you never set your eyes on these before, either?" Short rasped, taking the keys from the table and holding them out on the palm of his hand under Stephen's astonished gaze.

"Why, they look like my keys?" he exclaimed unhesitatingly.

"H'm." Mr. Mettle muttered. "I guess you couldn't deny it, because I saw you when you snapped on the keys to the car you stole."

Stephen whirled upon him. "Stole?" he repeated blankly.

"That's right, Armitage," Short interjected crisply, "we've got the goods on you."

"Like hell you have," Stephen retorted, losing control of his temper. "What kind of a setup is this? I never saw that gun or that roll before in my life. I don't know where you got the keys, unless you've caught the guy who stole . . ."

"We have," Short assured him. "The keys were found in your room this morning. The gun and the money, too. That's enough to hold you."

Stephen stared at him, pop-eyed. Short cut him off again.

"Not in my room," he began but

"There's no argument," he said curtly. "The hotel manager made the search with us. I guess you're through helping crooks to rob your firm. Better come along quietly before the men outside get wise."

• • •

A shiver ran over Stephen's body as it was borne in upon him that he was under arrest. Under arrest! He, Stephen Armitage. He couldn't get it.

Turning for aid to Mr. Mettle, he saw his employer wave his hand with an outward, finishing gesture that did not need words to convey its meaning. Nevertheless Mr. Mettle barked out an order to Short to "take him away. Get him out of here."

And Stephen was "taken away."

Later he found himself booked at the nearest police station on a double charge of possessing a firearm without a license and grand larceny.

Being unable to provide bail, he was locked up. The help of professional bondsmen was not available; neither would he wire to his family in Indiana for aid.

But a lawyer; he'd have to have a lawyer. Someone had to get him out of there. He paced up and down his cell, vainly figuring how and where he could raise the money for a lawyer's fee.

And Pamela! God, how was he going to let her know about this.

That was Stephen's darkest moment. The disgrace of his position swept over him like a crushing weight. He dropped to the cot and buried his face in his hands.

It was some time before he was able to think rationally. Then it came to him that he could communicate with Harold, ask his brother to send Pamela to him.

He'd have to see her, have know that she'd believe in his innocence.

He got up, pressed his face to the bars and called out loudly for the turnkey.

Influenza Menace Said To Be Great As Fevers In Past

Colorado Medic Declares 'Flu Problem Is Challenge To Profession; Waco And Mineral Wells Seek Meet

(By Associated Press)

BROWNSVILLE, May 22.—The menace from influenza today is greater and presents a more serious problem than did malaria, typhoid and yellow fever a generation ago, J. W. Amesse, member of the medical faculty of the university of Colorado, Denver, said in an address here today before the Texas medical association convention.

"For more than 1,000 years the deadly disease known as influenza has been taking its toll of human life," Dr. Amesse said, "and we must confess that it is only during the last two years that we have learned anything definite about its cause and prevention. It is a challenge to our profession."

Waco and Mineral Wells continue campaigns among the 1,000 doctors registered for the 1930 convention.

Benefits Of Operation Told By Dr. Mann

BROWNSVILLE, May 22 (AP)—Benefit is known to be derived from the removal of the tonsils to certain cases of arthritis, although it has not been the custom to perform such an operation during the ...terish attacks of the disease," Dr. H. T. Mann, F. A. C. S., of Texarkana, told doctors in the section on eye, ear, nose and throat of the Texas State Medical association convention here this morning.

Dr. Mann said that he could fully justify the procedure of an operation at such time, having had sufficient clinical experience in this ...s of cases. "When properly carried out it cuts short a disease which too often causes the patient much inconvenience and suffering as well as deformity," he explained. "Where patients have acute arthritis (or inflammation of the joints) following attacks of tonsilitis, giving a clear history of the arthritis having been caused by the tonsillitis, the tonsils should then be removed just as soon as the acute symptoms of the tonsillitis have subsided. This is true even though the acute inflammatory symptoms of the arthritis remain, while the high temperature continues.

"The acute arthritis quickly disappears after such an operation if there are no unusual complications following." was one of Dr. Mann's assertions.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., May 22. (AP)—The monoplane Three Musketeers took off at 7:48:30 Eastern daylight tonight in a second attempt to break the refueling endurance flight record established by the army plane Question Mark.

Lieutenant H. B. Clarke, army flier on an indefinite leave of absence, was at the ship's controls.

Accompanying him was Martin Jensen, holder of the unofficial solo endurance flight record, and William Uibrich, assistant to Clarke when Clarke was manager of the Roosevelt field flying school.

SAN ANTONIO, May 22. (AP)—Flying 2,087 miles from San Antonio to El Paso, to Port Sill, to Galveston, to Brownsville, and back to San Antonio in 15 hours and 55 minutes, Lieut. Y. H. Taylor, instructor of the air corps advanced flying school at Kelly Field, is believed to have established a new record Wednesday for a day's flight in a fully equipped, regular army service type plane.

While flying from El Paso to Fort Sill, Okla., Lieut. Taylor passed through considerable rain and clouds. On the rest of the long trip the weather conditions were favorable.

The flight was made in a single passenger Curtiss pursuit plane, powered by a D-12, 400 horsepower, water-cooled motor. The plane was not tuned up for the trip and was used in instruction work Tuesday. Lieut. Taylor reported upon his return that the motor was working as good as when he started. The equipment included a machine gun and regulation gas tanks.

Cotton Market Is Lower Wednesday Under Liquidation

NEW YORK, May 22. (AP)—The cotton market was lower today under liquidation and selling by local or commission house interests influence by relatively easy Liverpool cables and more favorable weather reports.

July contracts declined from 18.53@18.62 and closed at the lowest with the general market closing barely steady at declines of 19 to 23 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 1 point, with near months relatively firm on covering by trade and speculative shorts.

May Contracts Active.

Liquidation of May contracts was a little more in evidence during the day. Trading in the current May position will end at noon on Friday and some buying to fix prices on call cotton was reported in early trading.

Private cables reported Bombay selling in a quiet market at Liverpool.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 22. (AP) — In a lively somersault, the wheat market today landed well above yesterday's finish, but only after out-doing every former low price record of the season. The brisk upturn appeared due chiefly to Canadian reports of drought and hot winds threatening to impair the new Canadian crop. All rye and corn values likewise cut under the bottom most level heretofore reached this season except for May delivery of corn.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1-8c to 7-8c net higher. With corn 1-8c off to 1-8c up, oats unchanged to 1-4c down, and provisions varying from 2c decline to 5c advance.

MID-WESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, May 22. (AP) — Comparatively light receipts of cattle stimulated demand for fed steers and yearlings at most points around the 11-market circuit. Prices generally steady to 25c higher but at some markets yearlings felt further price decline. Chicago scored $14.75 on choice medium weight steers and secured $14.65 for choice 1,389 lb. beeves. Choice 1,200 lb. steers in Omaha reached $14.35 while the feature of trade at Jansas City was the sale of two loads of strictly choice 1,844 Kansas fed steers at $14.25.

Trade on hogs was moderately active at generally fully steady prices. The day's top of $111.10 was realized in Chicago.

The supply of sheep approximated 46,500, a shortage of 15,000 from a week ago. Fat lambs were unevenly steady to 25c clower.

While fed wooled lambs and clippers in Chicago made $15.00 and $13.50 respectively.

Cotton Works Off $1 Per Bale Due To Weather Report

NEW ORLEANS, May 22. (AP)—Cotton worked off about $1 a bale today under selling attributed to failure of the weekly crop and weather summary to meet bullish expectations and weakness in grain and stocks. The market opened steady but started declining soon after the start and reached the lows of the day in final trading when July sold at 18.62. The option closed at that figure for a net decline of 24 points. The general market closed steady at net losses of 21 to 24 points.

Liverpool cables were relatively easier but expectations of a bullish weekly weather report off-set the influence exerted by the cables and the local market opened steady.

After fluctuating narrowly for a time the market encountered another wave of selling attributed to the weakness in stocks and grains and to the reported refusal of Germany to accept the reperations agreement. All active months made new lows right at the end, October closing at 18.44 and December 18.54, or 21 points net down.

Board's Advisory Recommendation Causes Big Crash

Most Disasterous Crash In Recent Years Is Felt In Wall Street Wednesday; Sales Total Reasonable

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER.
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, May 22. (AP)—The federal reserve broke the back of the stock market today. Publication of the reserve board's advisory council's recommendation for higher rediscount rates brought a flood of selling that swept stock prices ver the falls into the most disastrous crash experienced in recent years.

Although bankers and money brokers pointed out that raising rediscount rates from 5 to 6 per cent probably would have little effect on call and time money rates averaging for months between 8 and 9 per cent, the fact that higher rates seemed assured belied rumors that federal reserve authorities might have a change of heart, and precluded any possibility for some time to come of money cheap enough to sustain a prolonged bull market.

Thousands of traders hoding on in the hope that the thunder clouds gathering since early February might blow over, were discouraged by publication of the council's recommendation and let go for what they could get though an exceptionally large short interest has grown up. Selling was of such a decisive character that shorts generally did not rush in to cover, even in the closing transactions, so the drop was unchecked, even to the closing gong.

The only bright side was that selling was kept within reasonable bounds, the total day's transactions reaching but 4,844,130 shares. The Associated Press index of 56 industrials was swept down 8.7 points to 207.2, compared to the years high of 225.4. Despite the fact that the St. Louis and O'Fallon decision regarded as the best news for the rails in years, was but 2 days old the index of 20 rails was depressed 3 points to within 2 1-2 points of the years low.

There was almost nothing in the day's industrial and business news to depress the market. Steel trade reviews reported that mill operations were being held near capacity.

New 'Racket' Here

ManTakes Chickens For Magazines

Latest among the 'rackets" in Lubbock county, in which the farmer is the victim, is that of a magazine solicitor who accepts chickens in payment for subscriptions, which in time are discovered worthless.

This fraudulent practice was reported Tuesday to county officers.

After representing himself as a bonafide solicitor, showing some forged credentials, the racketeer tells the farmer that he will accept chickens in payment, if the prospect doesn't have the cash to spare. Communication with the magazine company which the faker pretends to represent reveals the fraud.

Heirs To Movies' Millions Separate

Mr. And Mrs. Arthur Loew Agree To Live Apart Due To Family Difficulties; Incompatibility Cause

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 22.—The New York American said today that Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Loew, heirs to motion picture millions had agreed to separate.

Mrs. Loew is the daughter of Adolph Zukor, head of the Paramount Famous Lasky Motion Picture company. Loew is the son of the late Marcus Loew, theatre magnate.

Pre-Nuptian Promise

The separation agreement, the American said, was in pursuance of a pre-nuptian promise "to lay their cards on the table and decide what was best" in the event domestic conditions became unhappy.

Loew, who inherited more than $10,000,000 is abroad representing foreign interests of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company.

The American quotes Mrs. Loew as saying rumors they were to be divorced were untrue.

"We are not even to be separated in the legal sense of the word," she said.

She said incompatibility was the trouble between them.

Nine Tablets Made Me a New Man, Says Smelter Worker

"I've Suffered For 10 Years But Orgatone Has Relieved Me," Says Amarillo Man

"One day, my sister in law, left me nine Orgatone tablbets, and insisted that I take them, because I had been feeling so badly, but I thought that all patent medicines were alike and refused to take them. Finally I decided to give them a trial, and they have given me wonderful results," said Richard Ray Gotts, of 24400 N. W. 5th Amarillo, Texas, a well known smelter worker.

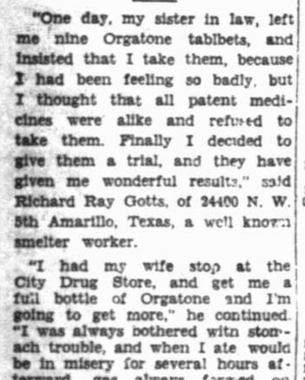

"I had my wife stop at the City Drug Store, and get me a full bottle of Orgatone and I'm going to get more," he continued. "I was always bothered with stomach trouble, and when I ate would be in misery for several hours afterward, gas always formed on my stomach. I had heartburn, and was nervous and worn-out all the time. I was in a very general run-down condition. I was constipated, and took strong laxatives most all the time.

"Since taking those few tablets, they have given me more direct relief than all th medicine put together, I have taken in my ten years of suffering. Orgatone has helped me so much, I feel, like shouting it from the house tops. I am a new man entirely. Food does not sour on my stomach anymore, I sleep and rest fine every night. In fact, I am just in fine condition, in spite of all my troubles. Orgatone has certainly my endorsement. Yes, Sir, when nine tablets can make a man feel as good as I do, after so many years suffering, I could not say enough for what t has done for me. It is indeed, a very meritious preparation."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scentific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and may be obtained in Lubbock, Texas, at the Bowens Drug Store under the personal direction of the special Orgatone representative. Adv.

City's Port Book Cited In Hearing

Arizona Man Declares Galveston Admits Panama Canal Is Great Asset To City's Shipping Lines

(By Associated Press)

GALVESTON, May 22.—Statements and figures in the 1928 "Galveston Port Book" issued by the Galveston chamber of commerce, were under fire here today at an interstate commerce commission hearing before Examiner W. A. Disque on a fourth section application of the Southern Pacific lines for lower rail-water rates between Pacific and Atlantic ports via Galveston.

Amos F. Betz, Phoenix, Ariz., of the Arizona railroad commission introduced the book as an exhibit during the cross examination of E. H. Thornton, traffic manager of the Galveston chamber of commerce. In reading excerpts from the book, Betz attempted to show that Galveston admitted the Panama Canal was a great asset and that no less than two coastwise lines utilized it to the benefit of Galveston. Thornton admitted it was his belief the figures and information in the book were correct, adding that statements relative to the canal applied prior to 1922 and that since that time conditions had changed.
