Hart attacked as front runner

By The Associated Press

Four Democratic presidential candidates foraged for votes in the South today after a debate in which the new front-runner, Gary Hart, was attacked as naive and inexperienced by rivals desperate to blunt his drive for the nomination.

Hart changed his schedule to spend an extra day campaigning in the South, and a poll taken Sunday showed him drawing even with Walter Mondale in Georgia. Hart canceled plans to fly to Massachusetts, where polls say he has a strong lead going into Tuesday's presidential primary.

Alabama, Florida and Georgia also hold primaries on Tuesday, and they were where Mondale, John Glenn and the Rev. Jesse Jackson were spending today.

After the 60-minute debate Sunday sponsored by the League of Women Voters in the Fox Theater in Atlanta, Hart, Mondale, Glenn and Jackson all said they were pleased.

"It should help," said Mondale.

"I thought it went exceptionally well," said Glenn. "I was very pleased with it."

"We did very well," said Jackson. "I'm impressed."

Hart brushed off suggestions that other four ganged up on him. "I thought it was a good exchange," he said.

Hart has won four straight delegate contests entering "Super Tuesday," when nine states hold primaries or caucuses. His winning streak began with an upset victory in the New Hampshire primary and continued through Maine, Vermont and Wyoming. The Atlanta debate was the first candidate forum since the Colorado senator forged to the front of the Democratic field.

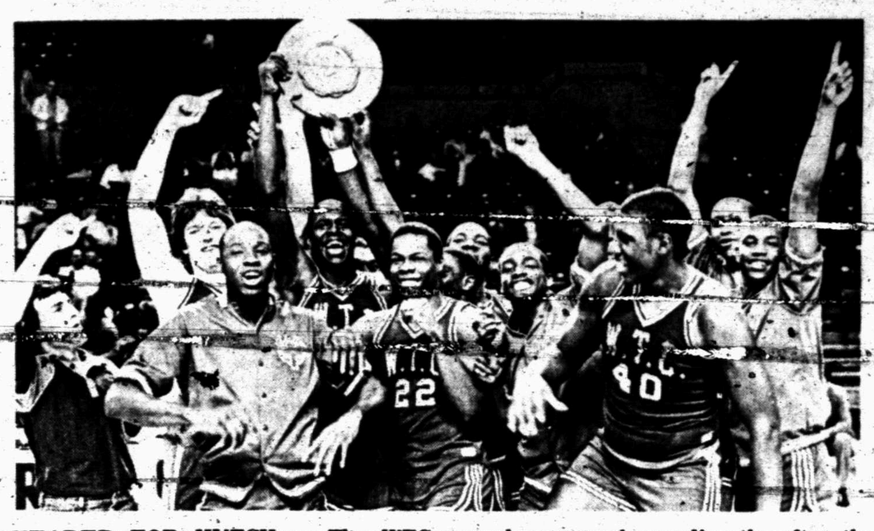

In Atlanta, a poll taken of 350 likely Georgia voters on Saturday and Sunday showed Mondale with 35 percent and Hart with 34 percent; with a margin of error rate of plus or minus 5 percent, the result was a virtual dead heat. Glenn had 19 percent and Jackson had 9 percent.

The poll was conducted by Atlanta-based Darden Research Corp for WXIA-TV in Atlanta. Half of those questioned were polled on Saturday, and the result from that day alone gave Mondale 37 percent and Hart 31 percent, with a plus or minus 7 percent margin of error.

"What we obviously see is that it's closed right up between Hart and Mondale," said pollster Claibourne Darden Jr.

Former front-runner Mondale, who still leads in the number of delegates he can claim, questioned during the debate whether there was any substance behind Hart's "new ideas" campaign.

"We don't elect momentum," said Mondale.

Televised execution scrubbed

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Texas Board of Corrections today refused to allow the execution of James David Autry to be televised, rejecting arguments that the public should have the right to watch a convict die.

The board voted 8-0 against changing state guidelines to allow cameras into the death chamber to record Autry's execution by lethal injection, scheduled before sunrise Wednesday.

"I have many concerns about this. Not just the propriety and decency of it, but the potential that it could have an effect on the death penalty itself," said board chairman Robert Guhn, who will be one of two witnesses to the execution if it is not stopped on court appeals.

Board member Pete Cortez, who attended the 1982 execution of Charlie Brooks, said "after witnessing that execution, I'm not at all ready to favor putting it on television."

Autry, 29, a convicted murderer who goes by the nickname "Cowboy," had asked that his execution be televised and the state attorney general called the idea "logical."

The inmate, who escaped execution in October when he was granted a stay with 30 minutes to spare, has maintained his innocence in the 1980 slaying of Shirley Drouet, a mother of five. But he argued that if the punishment is to be carried out, the public should be allowed to watch to learn what executions are like.

The debate heated up when Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said he did not oppose the idea. "If executions serve as a deterrent, then there's a very logical argument that they should be done publicly," Mattox said.

"If they think it acts as a deterrent, then why do they want to hide it?" said Billy Hughes, a Death Row inmate and registered lobbyist working to abolish the death penalty. "They're just trying to cover up their own premeditated murder. They don't want to show the public what they're doing to a man."

Texas Gov. Mark White and law enforcement officials, however, disagreed.

"Executions used to be public, but you had to go down to the courthouse to see it," White said. "Today, TV is in the home, business, just about everywhere. Televising executions would be invading the home atmosphere."

Lenora Taylor, one of Mrs. Drouet's children, said televised executions would not have a dramatic impact to do any good.

"If they were standing up before a firing squad and all the blood and the guts were showing, then maybe. But all they do is fall asleep," she said.

Collision sends one to hospital

A Hermleigh woman was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for treatment of possible injuries sustained Sunday in a two-vehicle traffic accident about 1.2 miles south of Snyder.

The accident occurred on the Brick Plant Road around 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

According to Department of Public Safety accident reports, Melinda Marie Castillo of Hermleigh was driving a 1981 Buick southbound on the county road. It collided with a 1984 Ford driven by Steven Jay Dillaha of Snyder, who was attempting to turn off the road.

Castillo was taken to the local hospital by private vehicle.

CRMWD considers project to clear in-flow at Spence

A project to improve water quality of flows going into Lake E.V. Spence will be considered Tuesday at the March meeting of the Colorado River Municipal Water District in Big Spring.

The board will discuss the Beals Creek diversion project to the southeast of Big Spring. Specifically, they will consider the employment of a fiscal agent and attorney for issuing bonds to finance the project.

The Beals Creek project is designed to intercept low-quality normal low flow which would otherwise enter Lake Spence.

Spence is one of two major reservoirs which provide water to member cities of the district, to include Snyder.

Also scheduled Tuesday, the board will consider additional requirements relative to the environmental permit for the Stacy reservoir.

New apartments, PE renovation...

WTC projects discussion set

The March meeting of the Western Texas College board of trustees features several items for discussion — including the possibility of new construction on campus.

Listed for discussion only are items related to both the renovation of the WTC physical education building and the possible construction of more student apartment units.

The meeting is to begin at 5:45 p.m. in the administration building.

Other discussion items included on the March agenda are:

—A further study regarding the college-owned Houston Natural Gas Stock, which was contributed to WTC by a donor who chose to remain anonymous.

—Landscaping around the college dormitories.

—A report on the sale of surplus and obsolete items.

—Board approval for fertilizer bids received over the telephone March 19.

—The monthly president's report from Dr. Don Newbury, which will include a presentation of a slide program devised to promote WTC; a report on the Spring Opportunity Session enrollment; and a discussion of an energy study which addresses ways energy might be conserved on campus.

In addition Monday, the board will consider bid items for three equipment purchases at the college. These include cost estimates for a microcomputer, a cafeteria range and copy paper supplies.

In Brief

Divers find 12 more bodies

HOUSTON (AP) — Divers continuing a grisly search in the wreck of an American drilling ship have found 24 bodies of crewmembers inside the rig, an official with the vessel's owner says.

The searchers, who moved into their fifth day of work in the Glomar Java Sea today, were "progressively going further and further down into the rig," Dick Vermeer, a vice president of Houston-based Global Marine Inc., said Sunday.

Vermeer said he did not know specifically where the bodies were found, but said that by Sunday divers had begun searching the crew's quarters on the Glomar Java Sea.

The discovery of 12 bodies in the ship Friday morning marked the first time the fate of any crewmembers has been known.

The ship, which had a crew of 81, sank during Typhoon Lex Oct. 25. The wreck is 60 miles south of China's Hainan Island and 200 miles east of Vietnam.

'Good news' forthcoming?

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Leaders of Lebanon's rival factions conferred privately today in their heavily guarded luxury hotel while delaying the formal start of national reconciliation talks until Syria's representative arrives.

Disagreements surfacing Sunday within the Syrian-backed opposition underscored the difficulties facing this second round of talks on political reforms that would give Moslems a greater share of the power now held by Christians.

Nevertheless, Lebanon's beleaguered president, Amin Gemeyal, said he hoped to announce "good news" about progress toward ending the civil war that has torn his country for nine years.

Protected by sand-bagged checkpoints, bullet-proof screens, rolls of barbed wire and hundreds of police, the nine conference delegates and two observers, from Syria and Saudi Arabia, were to begin meeting at the Beau Rivage Hotel in this Lake Geneva resort.

Political changes due to campaign?

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Vendors who hawk chewing gum and cheap toys to passing motorists also are peddling a "tell-all" book about corruption in Mexico.

The public exposure of corruption is atop the reader interest list these days in Mexico.

Newspapers run stories on it with banner headlines. Magazines feature photographs of luxurious homes built by former leaders while in office.

Corruption is such a tradition in Mexico that people express surprise when they don't have to pay a "mordida" — a bribe. Its existence comes as no surprise to Mexicans — although there is glee in learning the juicy details of specific cases.

President Miguel de la Madrid took office in December 1982 promising a campaign of "moral renewal" to rid Mexico's government and society of corruption.

But the question whether de la Madrid's campaign is designed to distract attention from the country's economic crisis or whether it actually is having some effect has become a major issue here.

"It's a publicity campaign," Abel Vicencio Tovar, a leader of the National Action Party, maintained in an interview. "Corruption can't be persecuted at its roots. It's a substance that glues together the members of the system." His party represents a conservative minority.

In Washington recently, Gen. Paul F. Gorman, head of the U.S. Southern Command in Panama, charged that Mexico had "the most corrupt government and society" in the region. Gorman is responsible for U.S. military interests in Central America.

A Latin American diplomat here, however, said he believes "moral renewal" may be having some effects by setting an example.

The most prominent examples so far have been Jorge Diaz Serrano, who directed the state oil monopoly PEMEX during the oil boom years from 1976 to 1981, and Arturo Durazo Moreno, who was Mexico City police chief from 1976 to 1982.

Paul Harvey

For years before the medical profession acknowledged a relationship between emotional stress and physical distress you and I watched circumstantial evidence accumulate.

A public official would suffer some traumatic public disgrace and within days or weeks he would be hospitalized with some acute illness.

Then there were the incontrovertible "healings" which appeared to result from a quiet heart.

A quiet heart may result from prayerful faith in divine healing — or from the unquenchable optimism of a Norman Cousins who "laughed his way" back to vigorous health following two potentially fatal illnesses.

Now, at long lasts, the profession of medicine has acquiesced. Now there is abundant literature on the therapeutic value of an affirmative attitude.

Medicine presently is overhwelmed by the challenge of AIDS. This mysterious ailment tends to negate a person's immunity to disease so that hs is helplessly vulnerable to any bug that comes along.

Now the American Psychological Association hears evidence that the onset and progression of AIDS — among homosexuals — is traceable to emotional factors, "to stress."

If I mention the therapeutic value of prayer, it is not to deny the opportunity for the divine healing but rather to acknowledge that the Lord indeed works "In wondrous way..."

Recent articles and editorials in the Journal of American Medical Association and in the New England Journal of Medicine affirm that "patients tend to move in the direction of their expectations."

The biochemistry of the emotions is now regarded as a tangible and classifiable process.

Previous generations assumed that illness was something that came into us from outside. Now we know most doesn't.

In his remarkable book, "The Healing Heart," Norman Cousins calls positive emotions "the bullet-proof vest that protects us against the effects of emotional assaults."

Positive emotions? Confidence, deep purpose, joyousness, laughter and the will to live. At the very least they increase the value of whatever medical treatment we receive.

Mr. Cousins knows; his heart made its own bypass.

Jealous mate shoots wife

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — A jealous, estranged husband lurked in the dark and waited for his wife and another East Texas State University student to come out of an apartment before shooting them both and then turning the gun on himself, police say.

The bodies of Michael Wayne Mauldin, 28; Lisa Rene Mauldin, 20; and Jerry Julian Vollrath Jr., 20, were found lying in a parking lot about 2:40 a.m. Sunday after neighbors heard five to six gunshots, said police chief Jim Peek.

All three were on the dean's list at East Texas State, a university with a 7,500 enrollment. Vollrath was a cheerleader at the school.

Peek said the deaths will probably be ruled a double homicide and suicide.

"Something was in his (Mauldin's) mind that he thought his wife was running around on him and she wasn't running around on him," Peek said. "It wasn't a love triangle or anything like that."

Peek said the preliminary autopsy report showed Mrs. Mauldin had two wounds, one on the head and one in the abdomen. He said Vollrath was shot in the head and chest. Mauldin was found holding a .45 caliber semi-automatic pistol and had a single gunshot wound in his forehead.

All were dead on arrival at Commerce Medical and Surgical Hospital.

Peeks said that from conversations with the couple's friends, investigators found Mrs. Mauldin had been depressed. The couple had not filed for divorce and had only briefly been separated, Peek said.

Ex-lawman feted at dinner before serving jail term

ROCKWALL, Texas (AP) — Not everyone who turned out for an appreciation dinner for former Rockwall County Sheriff John Vance was in an appreciative mood. A handful of protestors thought a high school was no place to honor the former lawman.

But more than 1,000 residents turned out for Vance's farewell Saturday night, three days before he was to begin serving a one-year sentence for whipping a 15-year-old auto theft suspect.

The $5-a plate dinner was held inside the Rockwall High School cafeteria. It was a western-theme dinner and Vance was honored as a hero.

Among the handful of protestors walking silently outside the cafeteria were the guardians of Richard V. Williams, Neil and Martha Glenn of Rowlett.

Williams was allegedly beaten when he was taken into custody on suspicion of stealing a car. The car turned out to be Mrs. Glenn's.

Mrs. Glenn said she felt that it was in bad taste to hold the dinner where Williams was once a student.

The Glenns wore signs that said "Not all people appreciate you, John Vance," and "Schools are no place to honor criminals."

Vance also was fined $1,000 for the misdemeanor civil rights violation after U.S. District Judge Joe Fish said the ex-sheriff had acted "as judge and jury" in whipping the youth, who had been suspected of auto theft.

He was convicted last month in Dallas federal court. He is scheduled to begin serving the one-year sentence at the federal prison at Big Spring, Texas, on March 14.

Although Vance did not speak to the crowd, he said he would "tell them thank you and I appreciate your friendship and your love."

Before the dinner began, Mrs. Glenn said she expected anywhere from two to 200 protesters.

Indian cuisine interesting

By JIM HOGE
AP Wine & Food Writer

India's cuisine has always intrigued me, and I learned some interesting facts about it recently. My informant was a young woman from New Delhi who had originally studied to be an architect, then switched to food.

Marinating plays a key role in India's cuisine, I was told by Julie Sahni during lunch at New York's Nirvana Restaurant, where she is executive chef.

"In chicken tandoor where the bird is cooked in a clay oven, it must first be marinated overnight in a mixture of yogurt and herbs," said Miss Sahni, who has written a book about her native cuisine. ("Classic Indian Cooking." William Morrow. 105 Madison Ave. N.Y. N.Y.10016).

"You must know how to use our spices and herbs properly," added Miss Sahni, who also teaches classes about her country's cooking. Indian seasonings cover a wide range from garlic to ginger root. Some spices are used as aromatics, others tenderize the food.

Indian tastes differ somewhat from ours. For instance, goat meat, rarely served in New York where I live, is India's most popular meat, I am told.

Lamb is a close second and beef trails behind. Pork is rarely eaten because of India's religious restrictions.

The price of food also plays a prominent role. In the poorer homes, the main course often consists of vegetables, which cost about one fifth as much as meat.

Indians love sweets, said Miss Sahni, and cakes and cookies are available any time of day in snack shops. At home, ice cream is popular.

Soup is also an Indian favorite, like this fragrant lime soup.

1 thin cinnamon stick, 3 inches long, broken into 3 pieces
6 whole cloves
3 green cardamom pods
1 teaspoon black peppercorns
4 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 medium onions, peeled and chopped
5 medium potatoes, peeled and cut into 1-inch cubes
¼ teaspoon turmeric
6 cups chicken broth
¼ cup fresh coriander leaves
Salt, to taste
2-3rds cup coconut milk, or whole cow's milk
1-3rd cup heavy cream
Juice 1 small lime

Place pieces of cheesecloth 6 inches square on chopping board. Put cinnamon, cloves, cardamom and peppercorns in center of cloth. Tie spices into a bag by bringing four corners of cheesecloth up and tying. Bang it lightly with wooden mallet to crush spices. Heat vegetable oil in pan. Add onions and potatoes and cook over medium heat, stirring until onions are wilted and begin to brown (about 10 minutes). Add turmeric, broth and spice bag and bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, until vegetables are thoroughly cooked and tender (about 35 minutes). Turn off heat and stir in coriander leaves and salt. When soup is cool, remove spice bag, squeezing out juice, and discard. Puree soup in blender. Soup may be refrigerated up to 3 days or frozen. Defrost puree if frozen and add coconut or whole milk and heavy cream. Simmer till soup is heated through. Serve hot, sprinkled with lime juice. Serves 8.

Disease cause

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A possible new form of life — called a prion — may be the cause of Alzheimer's disease and other degenerative neurological illnesses.

A research project, headed by Dr. Stanley B. Prusiner at the University of California-San Francisco supported by R.J. Reynolds indicates prions show similarities to formations of abnormal compounds found in the brains of victims of Alzheimer's disease. The illness leads to degeneration of the nervous system and mental deterioration.

Prusiner says if further research establishes that prions — composed of protein and infectious material — cause the disease then it is important to realize the disease is not contagious by contact.

Oswald: "One of the most important principles of bridge is that when you have spades, you should try to bid them."

Jim: "Here is a hand that I defended as West. South must have been a no-trumpomaniac because he didn't bother to show his spades. Probably he was afraid that a two-spade bid would get his partner to bid no-trump. So South just jumped to three no-trump. I didn't choose the best lead. I simply opened my fourth-best club. Declarer hopped up with dummy's queen, led a spade to his ace and led his queen of diamonds for a finesse. My partner, who also happened to be my father, followed with his lowest diamond."

Oswald: "That was an automatic play. It just could not lose. In fact if I had held only two diamonds, I would have ducked and gambled. Anyway, declarer repeated the finesse. I was in with my king and had no problem leading a second club. Now South cashed his king of spades to try to drop the queen. When that play failed, he led his king of hearts."

Jim: "Naturally enough, I took my ace and my clubs to set declarer two tricks."

Oswald: "As I said at the start, don't ever overlook the spade suit."

Zoo officials not easy job

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Finding a mate for a 7-foot tall gaur ox isn't easy.

So zoo officials have set up a computerized mating service, according to "Enter," the Children's Television Workshop's new computer magazine.

The service is located at the Minnesota Zoo. Its computer lists the numbers of male and female animals at member zoos and gives information about species, age and availability.

4-H program at B&PW meeting

The Business and Professional Women's group met at the Martha Ann Woman's Club March 6 for their monthly meeting. The president, Fay McCollum presided. Plans for a book sale were discussed and announcements of Martha Ann Woman's Club upcoming activities were presented.

Elizabeth Beavers, program chairman presented Miss Ruby Butts who introduced four 4-H girls and their mothers. The girls gave illustrated talks they are preparing for the 4-H Round-Up.

Janet Tankersley and Shaunna Ilyas had as their subjects "Hard Facts About Soft Drinks." They discussed the effects of soft drinks in the American diet, showing how they crowd more nutritious foods out of the diets and that they actually contain some harmful substances.

Huma Ilyas and Shauna Jenkins in a talk entitled "How Do You Do?" showed how one's actions affect people, either by helping you make friends or causing people to avoid you.

Mrs. Beavers presented large packages of shelled pecans to the two mothers for providing transportation for the 4-Hers. Refreshments concluded the meeting.

Other members of the B&PW group in attendance were Mrs. Clemy Andress, Mrs. Frances Brown, Mrs. Jimmie Cooper, Mrs. Nellie Smith, Miss Ethel Mae Sturdivant and Mrs. Lee Weaver.

Dear Abby

Philosophy of Living Will Has Approval of the Pope

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I sent for the Living Will from the Society for the Right to Die, because if I should ever get to the point in my life where I am terminally ill and there is positively no hope for my recovery, I do not want to be hooked to any machines that will keep my old heart beating for another miserable six months or so. What is the Catholic Church's position on this?

DEVOUT IN WINONA, WIS.

DEAR DEVOUT: "When inevitable death is imminent in spite of the means used, it is permitted in conscience to make the decision to refuse forms of treatment that would only secure a precarious and burdensome prolongation of life, so long as the normal care due to the sick person in similar cases is not interrupted. In such circumstances the doctor has no reason to reproach himself with failing to help the person in danger.

"Life is a gift of God, and on the other hand death is unavoidable; it is necessary, therefore, that we, without in any way hastening the hour of death, should be able to accept it with full responsibility and dignity.

"It is true that death marks the end of our earthly existence, but at the same time, it opens the door to immortal life."

Pope John Paul II approved this declaration in Rome on May 5, 1980.

Those who are interested in obtaining a Living Will should write to: The Society for the Right to Die, 250 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019. It is a non-profit organization, so please send a donation to cover the cost of the document and mailing.

I sent $10 for five Living Wills. (It is deductible.) And it's the best $10 I ever spent. I've given one to my physician, clergyman, lawyer and members of my family.

DEAR ABBY: What if a man (over 21) has sexual intercourse with a girl who is legally underage? (She is 15, but could pass for 20 easily.) OK, let us say that the man was no stranger to the girl, they had gone on several dates and she willingly agreed to have sex with him. He didn't ask her how old she was because he thought she was of legal age, and remember, he didn't have to talk her into having sex with him.

Is the man guilty of statutory rape?

NO NAMES

DEAR NO NAMES: Whether or not the girl cooperated willingly makes no difference. Neither does whether or not the man knew the girl's age. A man who has sexual intercourse with a girl who is not of legal age is guilty of statutory rape.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: What if tomorrow, as the prayer says, you should die before you wake? Will people near and dear to you find something in your drawer (at the office, perhaps?) that will shatter their illusions; fill their hearts with sorrow; tarnish their memories? Make a bonfire of the past. Toss in those letters and pictures, and be done with it. What was, was. Give your survivors a break.

Americans clip more coupons

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans are clipping coupons faster than ever, trimming their grocery bills by more than a billion dollars a year.

The A.C. Nielsen Co., which handles redemption programs for many coupon distributors, says consumers redeemed 5.56 billion manufacturers' coupons in 1983, up 24 percent from 1982. That compared with an increase of 17 percent the previous year, and it meant that total redemptions over the last four years have risen by 62 percent.

The coupons are steadily gaining in value. In 1982, the coupons redeemed were worth $1.2 billion, with an average value of 21.7 cents each. In 1983, the coupons were worth almost $1.7 billion, with an average face value of 30.5 cents each.

While the number and value of coupons increases, however, the redemption rate remains relatively low. In 1983, manufacturers distributed about 142.9 billion coupons, meaning that only 4 percent were cashed in by shoppers.

Note: These figures represent manufacturers' coupons only. They do not include the coupons issued by the stores themselves on a local basis.

You can get more out of coupons if you take a little time to plan your strategy. Among the ways to save the most:

—Combine coupon and refund offers. Look for coupons for products that also offer a refund for a proof-of-purchase seal. And keep an eye out for stores giving double and triple value for coupons. Here's how it works: Suppose you have a 30-cent coupon for paper plates normally costing $1.29. Grocery store "A" gives triple value for coupons this week. When you get to the store, you find a form offering a $1 refund if you buy two packages of paper plates.

GERALD CRAWFORD

GREG CRAWFORD

Two Snyder men now appraisers

The National Association of Master Appraisers has announced that Gerald and Greg Crawford of Snyder has been designated as Master Farm and Land Appraisers (MFLA), according to its national president Dr. Marvin T. Deane.

The designation Master Farm and Land Appraiser was conferred after successful completion of all the qualifying procedures of the organization. Requirements include intense educational courses in farm and land appraisal and the preparation of appropriate demonstration appraisals.

The president Dr. Deane said "Each member of the National Association of Master Appraisers has agreed to subscribe to the highest professional standards of conduct as required by the organization's code of ethics." Advanced professional training with adherence to the code of ethics by each member, assures the public of outstanding professional appraisal services, said Dr. Deane.

The National Association of Master Appraisers designates only those members of the real estate profession who have attained a high degree of excellence in the art and science of real estate appraisal. It also encourages specialized education in real estate appraisal through cooperating schools, to provide the industry with fundamentals courses, educational seminars and workshops. Such educational courses are designed to insure the public will have qualified professional real estate appraisal services when buying or selling farm and land property.

Battle brewing over gas vapors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of America's largest industries, big cars and big oil, are squaring off behind the scenes at the Environmental Protection Agency in a battle that could add a new anti-pollution gizmo to your next new car.

The question is relatively simple: Should gasoline vapors be more closely controlled, and if so, how.

Each industry says: If you have to do it, make the other guy do it.

It could be a question of whether drivers will pay $30 to $40 more for a new car, or slightly more for gasoline. One calculation puts the extra cost at 2.7 cents per gallon more at an average station; EPA says any cost increase should be less than a penny a gallon.

If the auto industry carries the issue, gasoline stations might be required to use the two-hose vapor recovery system now used in the District of Columbia and much of California. If oil wins, automakers could be required to make tank fill pipes that form a vapor-proof seal when the filling nozzle is inserted.

In the two-hose system, one pumps liquid gasoline into the car and the other draws vapor back into the pump. A rubber hood fits over the fill pipe opening to channel vapor to the second hose.

The fill-pipe system would use a hard rubber ring which would grip the nozzle when it was inserted to form a tight seal. A spring-loaded one-way valve below the ring would be pushed open by the nozzle and would close behind it when the nozzle was withdrawn. This would require a slightly larger recovery canister than the one now on cars. The canister, simply a black can with two hoses attached to it, contains activated charcoal that absorbs gasoline fumes.

EPA has not decided to do anything yet. In a few weeks, the agency plans to invite comment on its studies of the question.

"The oil industry fears we feel we owe something to the auto industry and the auto industry fears we're in bed with the oil companies," said one EPA official involved in the decision who asked that his name not be used.

It's not just a question of smog prevention in below-standard areas, which is why the two-nozzle system is used in California and Washington. It's also a question of possible causes of cancer in gasoline vapor — something more and more people are exposed to with the growth of self-service gasoline stations.

EPA insiders say the agency probably would not raise the issue if only one of those concerns was on its agenda.

A 1983 study by the American Petroleum Institute said heavy exposure to fully evaporated gasoline led to cancer in male rats.

Gasoline is a mixture of hundreds of compounds, some of them known or suspected carcinogens.

McGovern sees his redemption in politial area

BOSTON (AP) — George McGovern's presidential campaign hangs by a thread that Massachusetts voters may snip Tuesday, but it's not defeat he sees, it's political redemption.

"There's no question that I have elevated my own stature. I'm just told that constantly by party leaders ... I've restored myself as a nationally respected figure in the country," says the man who was buried beneath Richard Nixon's landslide in 1972 and then lost his own Senate seat eight years later.

"I think a lot of people decided after I was defeated ... that I was probably through as an effective public voice. And now I have the feeling for many many years I'll be consulted on public issues. Not only consulted, but listened to," McGovern said.

"That means a lot to me."

McGovern utters these words in the middle of an exhausting campaign day, one in a long string of tiring days as he drives for a first or second place finish in the Massachusetts primary next week.

"I expect right down in my soul I'm going to" make it, he says, even though public opinion polls show him far behind Sen. Gary Hart and Walter F. Mondale in the state.

If he fails, McGovern says he'll make a "graceful exit" from the campaign.

"If I can't make it in Massachusetts, I can't make it anywhere," he says.

He finished a surprising third in the lead-off Iowa caucuses, a low-budget showing that many attribute to his appeal to voters not to "throw away your consciences."

His hopes for a breakthrough in the New Hampshire primary fell victim to Hart's surge — and he concedes that Hart's continuing momentum makes it difficult for him to meet his goal in Massachusetts.

But he makes his stand in the state where he won the presidential primary in 1972, and won, as well, against Nixon in the fall.

His primary campaign is a mixture of nostalgia and liberalism laced with McGovern's own brand of deadpan humor and biting sarcasm.

The nostalgia comes clear in a five-minute paid television commercial, in which he addresses voters "that I love in such a special way."

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Break 30-year habit

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 46-year-old woman and as skinny as I am tall.

I started smoking when I was 14 and still smoke today. Now I have emphysema, but I'm physiologically hooked on tobacco. I hate to admit defeat, but I can't beat it.

I started smoking so young that my body never had a chance to develop. My legs are thin and my bottom is as flat as the floor. I can't even fill out a bathing suit or blue jeans.

Are there any exercises or surgery that would round out my behind and build up my legs?

DEAR READER — I can't say it was the smoking that prevented you from having normal muscular development. A certain amount of body fat is essential, particularly in women, from a physiological point of view.

But you have a more serious problem than just being thin. Your lung disease will get progressively worse unless you stop smoking.

Cigarette smoking ages people before their time. One study showed that facial wrinkling, particularly around the eyes, occurs 10 years earlier in people who smoke.

Exercises help develop muscles, but you must have the proper nutritional support for results. And you must have good health, particularly good circulation and oxygen delivery — another reason to kick the cigarette habit.

Check with your nearest American Cancer Society or American Heart Association for a program that can help you stop smoking. You also may consider a health club to use equipment for strength training.

I've discussed the main health problems associated with tobacco in the Health Letter 19-6, The Tobacco Problem, which I'm sending you. I hope it will motivate you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Does an electrocardiogram show angina pectoris? If the electrocardiogram is normal, should one be taking cardiac medications such as calcium or beta blockers?

DEAR READER — An electrocardiogram merely shows the electrical impulse passing through the heart. It can be perfectly normal in patients who have coronary artery disease. During an actual attack of heart pain, such as angina, it may show alterations, but between such attacks it may be normal.

Since calcium blockers and beta blockers are used for high blood pressure and control of heart irregularities, and since electrocardiograms can be normal between attacks of angina, it's not uncommon for patients who have normal electrocardiograms, and heart problems, to take calcium or beta blockers.

KATHLEEN EIDLHUBER-KAUN

BARBARA PERKINS

Ex-resident to perform

The Fine Arts Association at Western Texas College invites members and the public to enjoy an evening of music starting at 8 o'clock Friday in the Fine Arts Theatre on campus.

Guest artist for the program will be Kathleen Eidlhuber-Kaun, nee Kathleen mott, who will be making a return appearance for the Fine Arts group. The informal manner of her presentation, including brief notes about the selections to be sung, adds a special touch to her recital.

Pianist for the evening will be Barbara Perkins, choral music director at Snyder Junior High School.

Mrs. Eidlhuber-Kaun, the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Virgil Mott of Snyder, was graduated from Indiana University with the bachelor of arts degree and later earned the master of arts degree from the University of Texas at Austin. She performed for 12 years with opera companies in Linz and Salisburg, Austria and in Augsburg, Germany.

She has returned to the United States to make her permanent home and is currently Assistant Professor of Voice at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. She has recently been presented in concert in Evanston and in Cincinnati, Ohio, and directed a workshop at Cottey College in Nevada, Mo.

Selections for the Friday concert include arias by Puccini, Lehar and Strauss. Chosen from Greig are Lauf der Welt, Pimulba Veris, Wasserlilie and Rosenzeit, Schlechtes Wetter, Sert dem dein Aug and Standchem.

Seven songs by Ives are also on the program: "Cannon," "Ann Street," "Tom Sails Away," "The Waiting Soul," "Spring Song," "Two Little Flowers," and "Waltz."

Tickets for the program will be available at the door and are $6 for adults and $3 for students. Members of the Fine Arts Association will be admitted upon presentation of membership cards and may purchase additional tickets for guests. Tickets may be reserved by calling the Fine Arts Office at WTC, 573-8511, ext. 234.

Two programs are planned by the Fine Arts Association in April. The Shoppe, a country-western showband, is to perform on April 20. The WTC drama department will present "The Deathtrap" on April 26-28. Both programs are open to the public and ticket information may be obtained by calling the Fine Arts Office.

Candidates set expectations

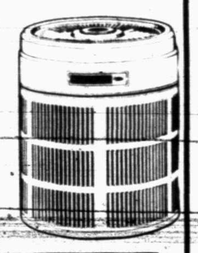

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is enough action on "Super Tuesday" for both Gary Hart and Walter F. Mondale to claim victory, although neither is likely to land a knockout punch in the Democratic presidential race.

The prospects are less hopeful for the three dark horses, John Glenn, George McGovern and Jesse Jackson.

Hart, riding a crest of four straight state triumphs, will proclaim himself a winner if he wins a single primary, and he is heavily favored in Massachusetts.

City councilman must give up 1 of his jobs

AUSTIN (AP) — A Galveston city councilman also serving as county auditor must give up one of his jobs, Attorney General Jim Mattox said today.

In an opinion sought by Rep. Lloyd Criss, D-Texas City, Mattox said the "doctrine of incompatibility" prevents Phil Lohec from holding both jobs.

Lohec draws a $46,000 annual salary from Galveston County, but is not paid for his Galveston city council duties. Nevertheless, Mattox said there are potential conflicts between the jobs.

"There are many instances in which the duties of the auditor are likely to conflict with the performance of city council duties, particularly when the transfer of funds or property between the city and county is involved," said Mattox.

Lohec took his city council seat in April 1983. In October, he was appointed to the county auditor post. The auditor-councilman said the conflicts are few and avoidable.

"I doubt very seriously whether the county and city will ever work hand-in-hand," he said.

Lohec said he plans no immediate action.

Windshield said broken

Snyder police detectives are investigating a reported bike theft and a criminal mischief report involving a broken windshield filed during the weekend.

Wayne Kennedy of 2611 37th St. called city police at 5:20 p.m. Saturday and reported the theft of his son's bicycle. The bike, valued at $160, was taken from the residence sometime between Friday evening and 5 p.m. Saturday.

Allen Daves of 1407 31st St. filed the criminal mischief report with local officers at 12:53 p.m. Saturday.

He told investigators that the windshield of his 1975 Chevrolet welding truck had been broken out sometime between 6 p.m. Friday and the time of the report. The truck had been parked at his residence.

No value was estimated for damage to the truck.

In other action, city officers jailed two men for public intoxication and two others on out-of-county warrants during the weekend. The warrant arrests were prompted by misdemeanor warrants issued in Odessa and Abilene.

Win Region V Tournament...

Western bound for NJCAA nationals

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

SCURRY -- Billy Chambers' pressure freethrows provided the winning margin as Western Texas defeated favorite Howard College 56-55 in a drama packed championship game of the Region V Tournament here Saturday.

The victory sends Western to the March 20-26 NJCAA National Tournament in Hutchinson, Kansas - a tall step for a team which was 10-21 just a year ago and hadn't even reached the regionals for the past three seasons.

If that didn't add enough excitment, the game brought together two Western Texas College coaches - present Western coach Barry Davis, and Mike Mitchell, who now heads up the Hawks' program. For Davis, it was also reunion time.

"It feels real nice," said Davis. "You know, this isn't my first trip to the regionals. I was here in 1974."

It was just 10 years ago that Davis played in the Region V Tournament and led Hill Junior College to a championship over the Howard Hawks. Davis, who went on to star for Texas A&M University, was chosen Most Valuable Player of the tournament that year.

But aside from mentioning the past and receiving congratulations from fans Davis was subdued after the game.

"It really hasn't taken complete effect yet. Right no all I can think about is going up there to Hutchinson and representing ourselves and Western Texas and our community," he said.

Saturday's championship was hard fought, and not without controversy.

Western had led 54-47 late in the game but Jerry Stroman countered with three-consecutive baskets for Howard, the last one coming with just 20 seconds left in the game. Howard then grabbed WTC's inbound pass and Fred Johnson fouled the Hawks' Anthony Snooks in an attempt to retrieve the ball. When Snooks fell to the floor and stayed there, it brought Coach Davis to his feet in protest. He thought Howard might try to substitute another shooter for Snooks at the foul line, and he wasn't going for it. The incident led to some angry exchanges between the coaches, who later shook hands.

"We had already decided that if it came down to where we had to foul, we were going to foul Snooks and send him to the line. He hadn't been making his freethrows very well," Davis explained. "It was out of respect to Coach Mitchell that I went down there. It looked like they were holding Snooks down, not letting him get up. I thought Mitchell was going to try to say he was injured and substitute a better freethrow shooter for him.

If that were the case, the referees weren't buying it either.

Stroman went to the line with 16 seconds left and true to Davis' hopes, he didn't convert. His shot bounded from the rim and WTC's Larry Banks came away with the ball. He passed it to Chambers, who the Hawks quickly fouled. Somehow amidst the pressure of the moment and the roar of the crowd, the freshman guard put in both shots, giving Western a three-point lead with eight seconds to play. Stroman got the final bucket for Howard but Western didn't even have to inbound the ball again as time ran out.

The game had gone through seven lead changes and four ties in the first half, with Western taking a 31-29 advantage into intermission. The Westerners got the first two buckets of the second half as well, but Howard retaliated with eight unanswered points to grab a 37-35 lead. The teams traded off until Richie Pells scored a single freethrow with 14:06 left and Western never trailed again.

The Westerners began going inside to 6-7 sophomore Melroy Butler late in the game and the big man responded with 10 second-half points. He, Banks and Eugene Lewis completely shut down any thoughts of an inside game by Howard.

"It was a situation we thought we could take advantage of," said Davis of the pass into Butler. "We did a real good job of getting the ball into him and they weren't able to stop it."

As a result, Butler led the Westerners with 14 points and 5 rebounds. Fred Johnson scored 12 -all in the first half - while Fells popped for 11 points. Banks, voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player, had 7 of his 9 points and all 6 of his rebounds in the second half. Lewis scored 4 points and pulled down 7 boards while Chambers had 6 points and 8 assists. Fells, Chambers and Lewis were also all-tournament choices.

Stroman, named the conference's MVP this year, scored 23 points and had 7 rebounds and 5 assists. Michael Porter scored 10 points and was the only other Hawk player in double figures.

Lady Tigers win meet

FLOYDADA -- Snyder's girls ran up 99 points to win first place in the Whirlwind Relays here Saturday.

The Lady Tigers took several blue ribbons, but it was a total team effort that earned the trophy.

"The girls did real well. It was a pretty big field and Crosbyton and Idalou were pretty tough competition. All the girls contributed to winning the first place trophy. The girls gave up their spring break for the meet but it did pay off," said Patty Grimmett.

Fourteen teams entered the two-day meet. Snyder's 99 edged Idalou by eight points while Crosbyton had 79 for third and Tulia had 75 for fourth.

The girls will attend the Mustang Relays in Andrews this Saturday.

Karlene Thompson, the meet's high-point girl, won first in the 400 meters, took second in the long jump and was fourth in the triple jump. She also anchored Snyder's winning 800 meter relay team which included Anderina Kitchens, Katrina Reed and Donna Anderson.

Anderson won first in the 100 meters and placed fourth in the shot put while Kitchens was second and Reed fourth in the 200 meters.

Snyder's 1600 relay of Kitchens, Reed, Dora Hernandez and Thompson was second in the 1600 relay and its sprint relay of Kim Koening, Hernandez, Stephanie McKnight and Anderson was fourth.

In other results, Dora Hernandez and Hope Hernandez placed fifth and sixth respectively in the shot and Hope Hernandez was fourth in the discus.

Boys take 4th place at West Texas Relays

ODESSA -- Snyder's Tigers added 28 points to Friday's 36, polling 64 points to finish fourth in the West Texas Relays here Saturday.

Lubbock Estacado won the meet with 137, followed by Lubbock Dunbar with 100 and Andrews with 70. Also participating were Fort Stockton, which had 34, and Artesia N.M., 31.

The Tigers will participate in the Mustang Relays in Andrews next Saturday.

Chad Peterson ran a 10.82 to cop second place in the 100 meters and a 22.79 to take third in the 200. The Snyder senior had won the long jump on Friday with a leap of 22-2.

In other outcomes Saturday, Snyder's 400 meter relay team of Darren Greenway, Tommy Holladay, Willie Greathouse and Peterson finished fourth with a 44.45. Also, Joe Boudreau took fifth in the intermediate hurdles and Earl Ware placed sixth; the 1600 relay squad took sixth; and in Saturday's only field event, Marcus McGlouthin was sixth in the high jump.

"It was miserable. It was cold and that didn't help us any," said Coach Robert Crawford of Saturday's weather. "I thought our 400 relay team did a real good job, especially considering I shortened the handoffs because I didn't want anybody taking off too fast (because of the cold) and we had one bad handoff. I think we'll do better in that in the future.

"I also thought Joe Boudreau and Earl Ware did well in the intermediate hurdles and under the conditions, Marcus did a good job in the high jump," said the coach. "Chad (Peterson) ran the final leg of the 400 and he passed three other teams. He was just worn out for the 100 meters. He led about 80 meters but couldn't hold it. It was the same in the 200."

Friday, Norman Malone was fourth in the long jump with a 21-1¾ while Greathouse placed fifth with a 20-11½.

In other results from Friday, Ricky Vaughn stormed the competition by winning the discus with a throw of 151-9. Kyle Freeman was fifth in both the discus and shot with distances of 137-11 and 47-5¾ respectively.

"Ricky won the discus on his last throw. It was important that he get in a meet and defeat the guy from Monahans (Lin Sanford) and gain some confidence," said the coach.

North Carolina upset

by The Associated Press

Although top-ranked North Carolina takes one of the favorites' roles into the NCAA playoffs, it was Atlantic Coast Conference rival Maryland that won the league's tournament and ended a long postseason losing streak for Lefty Driesell.

Driesell, in his 15th year as Maryland coach, had lost in all five of his previous appearances in the ACC tournament finals. But the 14th-ranked Terrapins knocked off No. 16 Duke 74-62 for the title Sunday as Len Bias hit 12 of 17 field goal attempts and scored 26 points.

In Sunday's other games involving ranked teams, No. 5 Houston edged No. 8 Arkansas 57-56 in the Southwest Conference tournament final and No. 11 Purdue trimmed Minnesota 63-62 in the Big Ten regular-season finale.

Duke, which upset North Carolina 77-75 in Saturday's semifinals when Dave Henderson hit four free throws in the final 42 seconds, led Maryland 30-27 at halftime. But Johnny Dawkins, who hit 7 of 11 shots in the first half, missed his first seven attempts after intermission and the Terrapins outscored the Blue Devils 31-15 for a 58-45 lead.

"We just seemed to run out of gas in the second half," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "Our jump shots were more like set shots and the fatigue factor had a lot to do with that."

North Carolina, despite its second loss of the season in the ACC semifinals, was made the No. 1 seed in the East Regional. Second-ranked Georgetown, an 82-71 overtime winner over Syracuse in the Big East Conference final, has to travel cross-country to be the top seed in the national tournament's West Regional.

The other top seeds in the regionals are No. 3 Kentucky in the Mideast and No. 4 DePaul in the Midwest. Kentucky tripped Auburn 51-49 in the Southeastern Conference tournament final and DePaul, in the final regular-season game for retiring Coach Ray Meyer, bombed Marquette 64-49.

The final Associated Press poll will be announced Tuesday.

Truck brings bill

BEDFORD, N.Y. (AP) — When a telephone company representative interrupted a call by Jane Landenberger to tell her that her $109,504.86 phone bill was "excessive" she kept her cool.

After all, it was a mistake, right?

But when she heard it would take a truck to deliver the 2,578-page tab, her composure began to disintergrate.

"That's what made me think, 'Holy Catfish, I really have got a big bill!'" she recalled Sunday night.

The Westchester County woman said she knew something was amiss in the huge bill listing calls to and from places all over the world, all charged to her telephone credit card.

"They were from all over, to all over," she said Sunday, "Libya, England, Japan — you name it."

Just who had made the calls was not clear, but New York Telephone Co. accepted Mrs. Landenberger's word that it wasn't her. The company agreed to take off $109,457.83 worth of illicit calls, leaving her with a February telephone bill of a more modest $47.03.

New York Telephone said it was investigating the calls to determine who had made them. The culprits, apparently a number of them, could have ranged from college pranksters to big-time drug dealers, The New York Times said in today's editions.

It started in January, when she began getting strange calls at all hours of the day and night from operators asking her authorization for third-party calls to and from distant cities. She always denied authorization, Mrs. Landenberger said. The calls were frequently from Miami and environs.

When her January telephone bill arrived, it was for $300. The telephone company agreed to delete the excess charges from her bill.

OPENS THIS WEEK — Snyder's new credit-card activated, self-service fuel center is to open this week. 'Card' fuel center to open this week

Installation of Snyder's new credit-card activated, self-service fuel center is now complete and the facility is due to open this week.

A spokesman for Pride Refining, Inc. of Abilene, operators of the new FleetFuel location, said it will offer high-quality gasolines and diesel fuels 24 hours a day.

Credit card applications can be obtained by calling a toll-free number — (800) 592-4751.

Access to fuel is gained by passing a Pride credit card into a "reader" which activates both the pump and a computer. The computer then records the place, date and time in addition to the purchase price, number of gallons and type of fuel.

It will also announce the miles or hours per gallon since the last purchase, Pride officials say.

The Snyder location is the first Pride facility featuring this new concept. A similar location is to open the following week in Big Lake.

Pride spokesman Mike Walker said that other FleetFuel centers are now planned. The company's intent is to cover most of West Texas, so that card holders will be within driving range of a FleetFuel location throughout the area.

In addition, a second fuel center at Snyder's south side is planned within one year, Walker said.

Customers will receive a detailed statement each month along with their bill.

Walker pointed out that ranchers and farmers and other off-road users can apply for tax exemptions for such off-the-road use and then be billed without state or federal tax. This is an alternative to paying taxes and then waiting for rebates at the end of the tax year.

Child soldiers fighting wars

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — He is young and seemingly fearless in the face of murderous enemy fire power. Death, he is told, is the supreme reward because it opens the door to paradise.

And thousands like him are believed to have perished fighting, or just clearing the path for advancing regulars as human mine detectors.

That picture of Iran's child soldier "martyrs" emerges from testimony by people who have talked to teen-agers in an Iraqi prisoner of war camp, from official United Nations documents and from correspondents covering the 3½-year-old war between Iran and Iraq.

Only Iran, saying its statements have been misquoted by the U.N., insists the child soldiers do not exist. It contends that the Iranian children held by Iraq were among thousands of Iranian civilians deported by Iraqi authorities in the early stage of the war.

There is no binding international law forbidding the use of child soldiers. Iran is a signatory but has not yet ratified a U.N. Human Rights Pact committing parties to "take all feasible measures in order that children who have not attained the age of 15 years do not take a direct part in hostilities."

No estimates are available on the number of children who are part of Iran's armed forces. But Hojjatoleslam Hashemi Rafsanjani, president of the Iranian parliament and heir apparent to the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, said in 1982 that Iran's armed forces were joined by 400,000 volunteers. An exile source said that since military service is compulsory starting from the age of 18, most of these "volunteers" were likely to be younger.

Some 300 surviving "kid soldiers," most of them believed to be 15 years and younger, are held by Iraq in a special, separated compound at Al-Ramadi, about 60 miles west of Baghdad, where they are regularly visited by delegates of the all-Swiss International Committee of the Red Cross. ICRC president Alexandre Hay said they were "well-treated" but declined further comment in accordance with the neutral agency's policy of strict confidentiality.

But grim accounts were supplied to The Associated Press by representatives of two groups who were allowed by Iraq to visit the Al-Ramadi camp in December. "It was saddening," said Michel Rod of Terre des Hommes, a privately funded charity and humanitarian organization based in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Mayor, 8 sons run community

DAVY, W.Va. (AP) — "Lulu and the Good Ol' Boys" have taken civic matters into their own hands and shaken up this ramshackle town as much as the chains of black coal cars that rumble through it daily.

Mayor Mary Hale and her eight sons ride herd on this community of 980 in the rugged hills of southern West Virginia. One of her sons is the town's sole policeman and doubles as the fire chief. The others drive ambulances, fix leaky sewer pipes and repair roads.

Mrs. Hale isn't in it for the money — she's paid just $50 a month — and much of the labor her "boys" perform for the McDowell County town is on a volunteer basis.

Still, not everyone is happy with the Hale dynasty. And perhaps it's not surprising that Davy is being called "Dodge City" by at least one Hale detractor, an anonymous letterwriter to the Welch Daily News who dubbed the family "Lulu and the Good Ol' Boys."

After all, this is a county where recently the sheriff and his chief deputy admitted running a protection racket and a county commissioner pleaded guilty to distributing marijuana. Suspicion of public officials runs high these days.
