

Ford Signs; Rebate To Begin in May

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford reluctantly signed the $24.8 billion tax cut bill Saturday, guaranteeing taxpayers a shot of extra spending money... soon but warning Congress "I am drawing the line right here" on federal spending.

Ford signed what he called a flawed and potentially inflationary bill in a nationally televised speech, saying Congress had left him in a hopeless "take it or leave it" situation of urgent economic necessity.

"The people of this country need to know, right now, how to plan their financial affairs for the rest of this year," Ford said. "Our economy needs the stimulus and support of a tax cut and needs it now."

"I have therefore decided to sign this bill so that its economic benefits can begin to work," he said.

Biggest immediate benefit to the ordinary taxpayer will be tax rebate checks which the Internal Revenue Service said will start going into the mails May 12. But the bill also contains many temporary tax break provisions for various categories of taxpayer, and these angered Ford.

So low was his opinion of the bill and its excessive federal spending features, he said, that he would have voted against it were he still a member of the House of Representatives.

"The tax cuts in the bill I have just signed and other changes will bring the estimated fiscal year 1979 (federal) deficit up to approximately $80 billion," he said.

Stepping up to a chart set up in the Oval Office, Ford said Congress was contemplating still more spending that could drive the deficit to the "enormous total of $100 billion," Ford pointed at the $80 billion line on the chart.

"I am drawing the line right here," he said. "This is as far as we dare to go."

"I will resist every attempt by the Congress to add another dollar..."

Ford originally requested a tax cut bill worth $16 billion. The $24.8 billion signed was scaled down from a $33 billion Senate bill.

Internal Revenue Service said Saturday the first rebate checks on 1974 income taxes will be mailed out May 12 under the tax bill signed by President Ford Saturday.

"The computers were already geared" to mail out the first checks 4 days after the President signed the bill, the spokesman said. The mailings will continue for six weeks.

"If the taxpayer has not yet filed a return and is due for a refund," he added, "the rebate will probably be included in the refund check." Those who have already filed and have refunds coming will get two checks.

Reward Offered for Vandals Who Tore Up High School

Vandals broke into Pampa High School Friday night and caused close to $5,000 in damages.

The Pampa Independent School District is offering a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the vandals, according to Dr. Dan Long, superintendent of the Pampa schools.

Pampa police are investigating but had made no arrests Saturday night.

A preliminary estimate of damage done on all four floors of the main building and in the wood shop was set at about $5,000.

"We intend to prosecute to the full limit of the law," said Long. "Our offering of the reward indicates the seriousness of the offense as is viewed by the administration and the board of trustees."

The damage was first discovered at 8 a.m. Saturday by Claude Williams, a janitor at the school.

Windows were broken, food and glass were scattered over the cafeteria, and a soft drink dispenser was broken into and overturned in the teachers' lounge.

"To our knowledge the only money missing was from the soft drink machine," Long said.

"And there couldn't have been much there since the machine was emptied Thursday."

Long said that no money is kept overnight in any of the Pampa schools; it is deposited daily.

The school's administrative offices were not damaged.

"The places they seemed to have inflicted damage are places where some light was afforded them but places where there was no great chance of exposure," Long said.

Persons with information about the incident may contact the Pampa Police Department or Paul Payne, principal of Pampa High School.

"The sheriff of Gray County, Pampa's police chief, and the president of the Pampa board of trustees will serve as a committee to determine the granting of the reward," Long said.

Three Prison Escapees Still Being Sought

TYLER, Tex. (UPI) — Police issued all points bulletins across Texas, Louisiana and into Alabama and Florida Saturday for one of the five men who escaped Smith County jail. Two others were still being sought in the Dallas area.

Thomas Walter Shaw, 38, Edward Elton Corey, Jimmy Wayne Nanny, 26, Tony Leroy Petty, 39, and Thomas Milton Wilson, 35, sawed their way out to the jail Friday.

Nanny was caught soon after the escape and Corey, charged with the shotgun slaying of four persons, was arrested trying to break into a house. But the others remained free. Shaw was believed headed east.

Officers said Petty and Wilson took a taxi to Dallas, about 100 miles to the west.

Corey was believed the most dangerous of the five and officers were relieved to recapture him without resistance.

Ford Sends Refugee Rescue

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Navy transport ships steamed for Da Nang Saturday to rescue hundreds of thousands of panicking refugees caught between the Communist onslaught and the ravages of renegade government troops in South Vietnam's second largest city.

Da Nang's fall seemed imminent.

The horror of mass panic, looting, killing and fighting among refugees and government troops to get aboard the last evacuation flight from the city led President Ford to order in a fleet of large LST transport-landing craft of World War II fame.

Ford, in a statement issued by the White House, also called on other area nations to provide transportation for the mass evacuation.

"A severe emergency exists in the coastal communities of South Vietnam which are swollen with helpless refugees and who have fled the North Vietnamese offensive," the White House statement said.

The statement did not say how many American ships were involved but other administration sources said there were four.

Da Nang — abandoned by South Vietnamese military commanders and U.S. consular staff — fell into chaos as leaderless soldiers looted and killed for food and fought civilians for transportation from the port city.

More than one million people are still believed stranded in the city, 370 miles north of Saigon.

Nearly 300 renegade soldiers of the Saigon government's elite "Black Panther" division stormed the only civilian refugee plane to land at Da Nang Saturday, kicking helpless women and children aside to fight their way aboard.

In Washington, officials said the landing craft, of the same type which have been ferrying up to 5,000 people each along the South Vietnamese coast, were based at the U.S. naval base at Subic Bay in the Philippines, but apparently set out from some location closer to South Vietnam.

They said the vessels should arrive sometime Sunday, and were under orders to anchor offshore and keep out of the hostilities, acting strictly as vessels of mercy and not ships of war.

It was also learned in Washington that Army Chief of Staff Gen. Frederick Weyand, currently on a fact-finding mission in Saigon, had asked for an emergency medical airlift by aircraft from the U.S. air base at Clark in the Philippines.

Communist troops fought into Da Nang Saturday and the capture of the city appeared imminent. Renegade South Vietnamese government soldiers looted and killed, mobs of refugees fought to get out and angry residents sacked the abandoned U.S. consulate.

municipal ballot by H. Clovis Shipp, a Cabot Corp. employe and leader of a movement for establishment of a Christian Junior College in Pampa.

The other contest to be decided will be between Ray Thorapson, running for re-election to a second term as commissioner in Ward 1. His opponent is Robert J. Thompson, a Skelly Oil Co. employe.

Leo Braswell, incumbent in the Ward 3 city commission post, is unopposed on the ballot. He is asking re-election to a fourth term.

Voting on all candidates will be city-wide. The voting places are:

Ward 1 — City Hall, Ward 2 — North Fire Station, 321 E. 17th, Ward 3 — Optimist Boys Club, 601 E. Craven, and Ward 4 — South Fire Station, 1010 S. Barnes.

Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

In 1973, the last mayoralty election, 45 absentee ballots were cast and 1,300 of the city's estimated 8,000 voters went to the polls.

One year ago, in 1974 when there were two uncontested races for city commissioner, only 127 voters bothered to cast ballots.

City election officials called attention to the fact Tuesday's municipal election should not be confused with the Independent School District election Saturday.

Police Arrest Brewer Pair

Troy Brewer, 33, and Mrs. Dorothy Loudell Brewer 39, both of 1400 Alcock, are free on bond of $1,500 each following their arrest Friday.

Charged with possession of controlled drug, the two were arrested following a warranted search of T and D auto, where officers of the Pampa Police Department reportedly found a quantity of suspected controlled drug.

A spokesman at the Police Department reported that the suspected drug had been sent to a laboratory in Lubbock for analysis.

Weather Slows Clean-up Following Tornado

By THOM MARSHALL
LEFORS — Recent cold weather and snow slowed the massive clean-up job which followed the tornado that struck here early Thursday.

"People are still gathering up any personal belongings they can find," said V. E. Wagner, a red Cross volunteer from Pampa who has been working in Lefors since the disaster.

"We have an extensive clean-up program going on," Wagner said, "but until all the smaller personal possessions have been dug out, the heavy equipment can't really start working at full speed."

The Post Office here which lost a wall to the tornado, has been replaced by a mobile Post Office in an adjacent lot, officials said full postal service will be restored Monday.

Wagner said tornado victims can use more lunch meat, cheese, bacon, canned food (vegetables and fruit of all kinds), canned meat, macaroni, canned tomatoes, canned milk, Pamper's, bread, paper plates, napkins, hot or cold paper cups and paper towels.

Persons wishing to donate quantities of these items may take take to the Lefors High School cafeteria, Wagner said.

Ben White, Lefors constable, said that he expected the utility companies to complete their restoration work today. "It will help if the sightseers hold off a little longer," he added.

"The main reason we've had the town blocked off during the day is to keep people out of the way so these men with the utilities could have room to get their work done," White said.

Only one case of looting has been reported in the town, according to Wagner. He credited the security measures set up by the Department of Public Safety.

White said that some lots have been cleared of debris and heavy equipment will soon begin working in earnest.

Cabot and Celanese both have allowed employes to live in Lefors off and have made offers of additional help.

A Red Cross official said about 1,000 people a day have been fed by that service.

"We now have a Red Cross business office in the Methodist Church for the purpose of giving financial assistance and taking Depositions," Wagner said.

"People say, 'I don't need it so bad; others need it worse,' when we tell them of the help available, he said. "They are hesitant to accept aid, because they haven't fully realized that they need help."

At one table in the school cafeteria, tornado victims may obtain food stamps.

The gymnasium is filled with piles of shoes, bedding and clothing.

Government representatives were again in Lefors Saturday, working toward getting a presidential declaration that Lefors is a disaster area, which will result in considerable financial aid.

State Representative Phil Cates said "Many of the people whose homes were completely destroyed are on Social Security," Cates said. "They worked hard to raise their families here, their homes were paid for but they have no insurance to rebuild them. I want these people to know that we're going to do everything we can to help."

He Died Laughing

KING'S LYNN, England (UPI) — Alexander Mitchell found a television show featuring a Scotsman fighting his bagpipes so hilarious he laughed until he died.

His wife Nessie said Friday she would write and thank the creators of the comedy program "for making Alex's last minutes so happy."

Mitchell, a 50-year-old bricklayer, ate a heavy dinner before watching his favorite program, "The Goodies." After laughing nonstop for 25 minutes he collapsed and died.

Doctors said the strain of the laughter as he was digesting killed him.

"The Goodies" program featured a Scotsman fighting his bagpipes in a take-off on the martial art of kung fu.

Babies Die

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia (UPI) — A hospital infants ward had been left unattended when a fire set off by faulty wiring swept through the rooms, killing 25 of 28 babies, authorities said Saturday.

After a preliminary investigation, Judge Vladimir Palic said the ward at Dr. Zdravko Kucic Hospital was not patrolled by the sister on duty, Jadranka Bolf, at the time of the fire early Friday.

A statement by Palic said that soon after the tragedy the sister went into a trauma and had since been held in a local psychiatric hospital where she was unable to answer questions.

Fixing Date For Easter

Fixing a date for Easter has caused problems for centuries. It too the efforts of a great church council, a Pope, and an astronomer to devise a standard method of determining the day for the festival. But even today the Orthodox Church celebrates Easter on a different Sunday from other faiths.

Secular groups have repeatedly urged churches to celebrate Easter on the same date each year, or at least keep it within a narrower time span. Easter may fall any time within a 35-day period running from March 22 to April 25.

The variation affects school and university schedules, law terms, department store shopping, and the fashion industry. Churchmen indicate they have no fundamental objection to a fixed date — the second Sunday in April is often mentioned — but interfaith agreement is still not in sight.

In the second century, Christians of Jewish origin wanted Easter celebrated in conjunction with the Jewish Passover. Christians of non-Jewish origin preferred a Sunday, regardless of the day of the month.

The Council of Nicaea decided in A.D. 325 that Easter must be celebrated by all Christians on the Sunday following the 14th day of the full moon after the spring equinox (occurring March 20 in 1968).

To simplify calculations, the Council declared that for ecclesiastical purposes, March 21 should be regarded as the vernal equinox, though in fact the date may vary by a day or two.

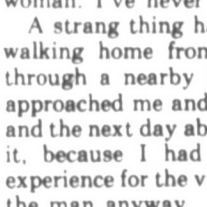

Despite the Council's effort, Easter became an increasing problem as the calendar year gradually advanced ahead of the solar year. This means that Easter might eventually be celebrated in mid-winter. To remedy the situation, Pope Gregory XIII reformed the calendar in 1582, and the astronomer Clavius prepared tables for determining Easter.

By following Clavius's tables, Easter may be calculated as far ahead as A.D. 8499. The tables are given in such standard works as the Book of Common Prayer.

Do it - yourself enthusiasts can use this table of Golden Numbers to calculate when Easter will fall: 1-April 14, 2-April 3, 3-March 23, 4-April 11, 5-March 31, 6-April 18, 7-April 8, 8-March 28, 9-April 16, 10-April 5, 11-March 25, 12-April 23, 13-April 12, 14-March 30, 15-April 17, 16-April 7, 17-March 27.

Directions: Add 1 to the year in question. Divide the total by 19. The remainder — not the quotient — is the Golden Number. The Sunday following the date given by the Golden Number is Easter.

Hence, 1975 plus 1 equals 1976. 1976 divided by 19 equals 104, the golden number for March 29. The calendar shows March 29 falls on Saturday. So the following Sunday today is Easter and March 30.

Dear Abby

It's no joke to be in love with a rapist

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old, attractive and well-built woman. I've never had any problem getting dates. A strange thing happened to me last month one evening, walking home from my job. I have a habit of cutting through a nearby back yard. One night, a young man approached me and raped me! I debated that whole night and the next day about going to the police. I decided against it, because I had heard that it is a very humiliating experience for the victim, and the police never seem to catch the man anyway.

Well, the next night, the same thing happened! Abby, to be honest, this was the best sexual experience I have ever had. Well, this has become a habit to meet him just about every night. Although we never talk, I think I am going crazy. He hasn't shown up for four nights now and I am going crazy. I'm afraid he's found somebody else. What should I do?

HOPELESSLY HOOKED

DEAR HOOKED: You and the rest of the boys at that fraternity house in Palo Alto should consider creative writing classes. And of all the situations to make jokes about—rape is the least funny, to which thousands of women can attest.

DEAR ABBY: I have just finished consoling my very heartbroken little eight-year-old son who came home from school today, very, very upset.

It seems that one of the boys in his class passed out written invitations to his birthday party next Saturday, and my son and three other children were not invited. (The other 41 children in the class were invited.)

My son told me that the children who had been invited taunted those who were not invited.

I've always insisted that my children invite the whole class when they have a large party, so that nobody is left out. Am I wrong?

WISCONSIN MOM

DEAR MOM: No, you're right. It's terribly humiliating for a youngster to be excluded from a party to which most of his classmates had been invited. At party-giving time, mothers should urge their children to be kind and generous, and allow no child to be hurt by such a cruel omission.

DEAR ABBY: "Made My Plans" insists that she wants to donate her body to medical science, and have the rest cremated. Her daughter, on learning this, said: "No way, Mother. I will not have you cut up and cremated!" And you, Dear Abby, agreed that the mother's wishes should be carried out—"as soon as she was."

I am in sympathy with the daughter. May I ask "Made My Plans" if she has considered the fact that her daughter is the one who has to continue living with the thought, abhorrent to many, that her mother's body was mutilated, then destroyed?

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

DEAR ST. P.: "Made My Plans" had made provisions to donate her eyes, kidneys (and any other usable parts of her body) to give sight and possibly life to another. The "mutilation" you imagine is no more extensive than some surgery which the living survive. It is because "Made My Plans" has a genuine concern for the living that she made the plans she did. Her daughter should understand and accept this.

You are entitled to your opinion, but I'm with "Made My Plans." (P.S. I've made mine, too.)

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

IT IS EASTER

The Most Beautiful Sentence

By TOM ANDERSON

"I love you" is possibly the second most beautiful sentence ever uttered. Second? Yes, for the most beautiful sentence ever uttered is: "He is risen!"

He is risen — that we may have eternal life.

He was born in an obscure town, grew up in a tiny village, worked in a carpenter shop, was an itinerant preacher. He slept in borrowed beds. He died on a borrowed cross, and He was buried in a borrowed tomb. He never made a business, professional, or "social" success. He never went to school, owned a house, held an office, had a family. He never traveled more than two hundred miles from the place where He was born. Yet, the world's calendar is dated backward and forward from His birth.

The only thing He ever wrote was a sentence in the sand. Yet more books, songs, and poems have been written about Him than about all the other men who ever lived. And His teachings have influenced the world more than anyone else who ever lived. His is the most masculine, compelling, fascinating, and perfect Soul in history.

He was so gentle that little children climbed on His knee, and so strong that powerful men ran from the temple when He accused them of making it a den of thieves. Officers sent to arrest Him returned empty-handed, saying: "Never man spoke like this man."

The night before His execution, His Roman captors took turns lashing His back with a whip made of leather straps weighted with pieces of metal. They knelt before Him in mock homage and then arose to spit in His face. About eight a.m. they took Him to Calvary, stripped off His clothing and set Him astride a wooden peg which jutted from the upright pole of a cross. Then they nailed Him to that cross, between two thieves. Many victims of crucifixion became raving madmen before they expired, and often their tongues were cut out to stop their screams and curses. But as this silent Victim looked down upon His jeering tormentors, He said: "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

Christ challenged the slavery system and declared that man is the creation of God and responsible to God. Christ preached the freedom and dignity of the individual and one's God-given right to come and go freely, to enjoy the fruits of his own labor, to work for himself or to sell his labor for pay.

He reminded us that the best way to reduce the exploitation of man by man is to embrace Christianity. Christianity, not handouts, is the hope of the world. Christ was no socialist. He believed in the profit motive. He recognized that free men will have different talents, and abilities in varying degrees. Some, He said, would gain more with what they had, and these were rewarded with more. He even took away the "talent" of the man who did nothing, and gave it to the man who had ten "talents," as a lesson. He congratulated those who profited, and urged His followers to learn by their example.

And, He knew that charity is not charity unless it is voluntary. In Luke 12:13-14, the Christ was talking to a large crowd when a man approached him, saying: "Master, speak to my brother that he share his inheritance with me."

And Jesus replied: "Man, who is it that would make me a divider among men?" True Christian charity, He knew, comes from within and cannot be imposed by authority.

And, Jesus Christ was not a "moderate." He was, in fact, an "extremist." The "moderates" today proclaim that there is no black nor white, that sin is imaginary, non-existent, that we are to be "moderate" and "tolerant" in all things, including evil. That is unbiblical and ridiculous.

An agnostic is a moderate. Moderation is no virtue when one is moderately wrong or moderately sinful. Christ had this to say about these moderates — a religious type He denounced in extreme terms: "I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot. I would thou were cold or hot. So because thou art neither cold nor hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth."

The Bible is not tolerant; it's "narrowminded." And so is the compass, the multiplication table, the boiling and freezing points of water, all nature, and the Kingdom of Heaven. The Gates of Hell, on the other hand, are broadminded — open to situational ethics. God, the Bible, sin, and Jesus Christ are not. They are rigid and unchanging. Just as the Ten Commandments are forever the same, a true Christian has a standard beyond change. Hebrews 13:8 says: "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and tomorrow."

Loss of faith in God is our nation's — and the world's — most serious problem. When men lose God, they turn to the State. When men lose God, they compromise, appease, lie, steal, and make war. The collectivists, anarchists, and atheists must destroy our faith in God to take over the world. Unless we can recapture our Christian spirit and re-establish our Christian values, we will soon lose our freedom of choice with respect to all of life's values. The time could be approaching when the question will not be whether America can be saved, but whether America is worth saving. Sodom and Gomorrah were not! Only the moral deserve to be free. As the Apostle Paul said: "Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is Liberty."

We cannot oppose evil by compromising with evil. We cannot go forth into all the world and spread the Gospel of Jesus Christ if we deny Jesus Christ in the United Nations, in our schools, and in our daily lives. We become part of what we condone.

It is not enough to do good. It is not enough to be good. Heaven is not for do-gooders. Heaven is for sinners; sinners who have accepted Jesus Christ as their Savior. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him will not have eternal life."

He is risen!

Golden Road Nearing End For Nation?

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

The world's perception of America has undoubtedly changed in recent years. Earlier in our history, America was regarded as a land of fabulous prosperity. To the immigrants, this was a country where "streets were paved with gold." And the immigrants of the 19th and early 20th centuries knew that the great wealth of the United States stemmed from the hard work of its people. Indeed Americans were regarded as the hardest working people in the world.

Today, however, the world recognizes that our wealth as a nation, is threatened by our terrible load of debt. Foreigners observe that taxation in America has become an enormous burden for productive citizens. People abroad question America's future as a land of opportunity. They suspect that the phenomenal worker productivity, which gained the nation the highest standard of living in the world, is waning rapidly.

These doubts and concerns were candidly stated by Kenneth Fleet, a British writer, in a report from America published recently in The Daily Telegraph in London.

Three developments are taking place in the United States," he said, "which may herald the end of the golden road. They are: 1.) The growing strength and overt political ambitions of American trade unions; 2.) The rapid development of service industries where productivity is at best an elusive concept; and 3.) The vast and sprawling overhead of government."

Mr. Fleet correctly pinpointed the principal threats to the future well-being of the American people. He rightly noted that government spending is not only advancing more rapidly than America's real wealth, but with so many Americans employed in government, the true wealth-creating capacity of American industry is progressively limited.

We need not move toward the great American disaster. But the American people will have to recognize the real threats to their prosperity. At this point, there is little evidence of recognition.

In late December, President Ford signed a bill strengthening the nation's antitrust laws, but the law did nothing about the worst monopoly situation — the union monopoly. By exercising monopoly power over labor in certain industries, union leaders can apply tremendous political and economic power in ways contrary to the national interest and the rights of citizens and communities.

Sen. Paul Fanin (R-Ariz.) noted not long ago, for example, that "the people of Hawaii are almost totally dependent on imports of most of their goods and they live in great fear of the power which lies in the hands of the labor unions to cut off the availability of these goods."

Aside from the problem of monopolistic union practices, we have come to rely unduly, as Mr. Fleet, service industries. These are important, but the basic strength of the nation is derived from manufacturing, mining and energy development. These industries provide the foundation for the economy.

Yet recent years environmental crusaders have sought to shut down existing heavy industry and prevent construction of badly needed new facilities. America must have heavy industries at home. It cannot rely on facilities overseas. These are being nationalized. In recent weeks, for example, Saudi Arabia began the final take over the Arabian American Oil Co. Venezuela nationalized the Orinoco Mining Co. Everywhere, Third World countries are seizing what American enterprise has built.

As for the cost of government — it continues to soar. Dominant liberal forces propose that the nation spend its way out of recession. Hobart Rowen, economic columnist for the Washington Post, writes that President Ford "has no choice" but to "spend more money in an effort to stem the slide" — a dated notion straight out of the New Deal of 40 years ago.

Truly, the American people will have to undergo a severe shock of recognition of reality if they are not to reach "the end of the golden road" as forecast by Mr. Fleet.

Editor of the News

AMONG OUR lawmakers down at Austin there still are some inclined to harass people and prevent newspapers from getting public information.

We have in mind three bills just introduced — one in the House and two in the Senate. If enacted, they would seriously impair the news function of newspapers.

House Bill 1389, sponsored by Rep. Hamp Atkinson of New Boston and Rep. Richard Geiger of Dallas, proposes the removal of records of the state chairman and county chairman of political parties from the effect of the Open Records Act.

These records now are covered by the act under the provision covering records of any organization supported by public funds. Introduction of the bill arouses suspicion that either or both political parties have something in their record they don't want to share with the news media.

Senate Bill 560, introduced by Senator Schwartz of Galveston and Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, would remove from the Open Records Act all records covered by the so-called "criminal intelligence investigation" provisions of the law.

It specifies that authority would be given to law enforcement officials to investigate an individual or individuals "in anticipation that such individual or individuals may commit a criminal act" and that the records of such investigations would not be open to the news media.

How's that for "big brotherism?" SB 560 would destroy the basic American concept of law that a person is presumed innocent until found guilty. It would give new police powers without any resulting benefit to the public.

NOW, LET'S look at the third bill — Senate Bill 785, sponsored by Sen. Ike Harris of Dallas. This one would amend the Open Records Act in two vital areas. First, it would remove from the access provisions of the act the "confidential financial statements of employees of a political subdivision, required to be filed by the governing body, unless a formal charge of conflict of interest or wrongdoing is made by affidavit."

Additionally, and most important, state agencies would be authorized to "charge the requestor (of information) for ACCESS to the information sought."

The charge could include "the expense to the governmental body of compensating its personnel for time spent gathering the information sought." It would further permit a governmental body to require an "initial deposit equal to one-half the estimated cost of providing access."

That is a bill clearly designed to harass people and prevent news media from getting information that belongs to the public.

THE PAMPA News is opposed to those three bills on grounds that they would prevent the newspaper from keeping its readers informed and that all three bills definitely infringe upon the public's right to know.

It is to be hoped State Rep. Phil Cates, State Rep. Ben Bynum and State Sen. Max Sherman will look after the interests of their constituents by moving to the forefront among those opposing all three measures.

WE DEVOTED more space than intended on those fellows down at Austin and their three bills, but we thought you had a right to know.

And, believe it or not, it leads right into a related subject here on the local scene.

For the first time in a long newspaper career there has come to these ears a statement from a public official that you don't expect to hear from a public official.

Nice thing about this particular statement is that it was made by one of our own — a local official — a Gray County official, to be more specific.

He said something that one hopes will spread among public officials everywhere. It is a statement for all public employees to think about. This Gray County official said: "I think a newspaperman has a right to be suspicious of public officials. Anybody holding a public office needs to be ready for healthy criticism."

Almost forgot — in case you are interested — the local public official who spoke the words, during a discussion far afield from that subject, was Judge Don Cain of the Gray County Commissioners Court.

AFTER THOUGHTS — Two elections coming up this week. City election on Tuesday and school board election next Saturday. Voting expected to be light in both. Still working on the county school superintendent follow up. Storm victims at Lefors still need our help.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

Kindergarteners Think About Easter Eggs

News photos by Jane Marshall
Interviews by Bobby Combs

To get a kids' eye view of what's happening at Easter, The Pampa News went to Travis elementary school and visited with the afternoon kindergarten class where Linda Alred is the teacher.

The children were asked about their ideas of Easter, how they make Easter eggs and about the Easter bunny whose coming most seem to be eagerly anticipating.

Missy Ray, when asked how she makes Easter eggs, pointed in the air. "You start right here and go around this way," she explained drawing an invisible oval in front of her.

Lori Fellingham explained that "See, we got a little paint brush and colored them."

"You don't make em, you paint 'em," Sheri Richardson clarified.

Roger Miller "paints that white stuff."

Several had specific ideas about the Easter bunny.

"He lives in a hole," Clint Allen explained.

Kelly Hickman thought perhaps he lives at the South Pole.

Stephen Winton pointed out the window. "Over there, I don't know, just over there," he explained.

Chuck Green finds his Easter bunny in a rabbit hole.

They also knew right where to find the bunny's warms.

"I find some in bushes and some buried," said Jeff Munden.

Chris McClory finds his Easter eggs "in your backyard, corners and tree stumps."

"In the grass and in the house" is where Norman Howard finds Easter eggs.

When she thinks of Easter Donna Hoggatt thinks of hiding

Easter eggs. Trudy Patton thinks of the Easter bunny bringing Easter eggs. Mike Yono thinks of eggs and bunnies.

Several of the young ladies proudly talked about their new Easter dresses.

"Mother made it and it's blue and white and has a jacket," reported Brandi Michaels.

"A new one that's never been used," Kari Childress said about her dress.

Beth Chase's dress is "blue with a zipper in back and buttons and stuff in front."

Clint Allen is all ready for the Sunday holiday. "I've been practicing with plastic eggs. The Easter bunny's not gonna fool me," he declared.

Easter Bunnies Can Be Housetrained Says Vet

By THOM MARSHALL

Many people will observe the Easter Holiday with a living gift for their children. But it isn't always a wise or kind thing to do, according to experts.

"People many times buy chicks or ducklings because they are cute and seem appropriate," said Dr. Ron Hendrick, D.V.M. of Pampa, "but people often aren't prepared to care for the young birds."

The veterinarian said that ducklings and chicks need warmth, from 80 to 85 degrees and they need room to move around, plenty of water to drink, and special - formulated food to eat.

Live chicks and ducks not make very good pets for another reason - they can give humans salmonella poisoning, which causes diarrhea among other things. Salmonella bugs are in fecal matter excreted by infected fowl. The bugs are airborne and holding an infected bird close to the face, as children are apt to do, can cause the children to inhale the bacteria.

It is cruel to give baby chicks or ducklings for pets if you don't know how to care for them, according to P. Brooke Rummel, an executive with the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

In a United Press International interview, Ms. Rummel said, "children handle these young fowl the way they would a toy. They squeeze them and fondle them and drop them. They handle or fondle them to death. It's no easy death for the chicks and ducklings. It is very painful."

Dr. Hendrick said that rabbits make pretty good pets.

"They can be housebroken and they can learn to come when called by name," he said. "They seem to respond to affection, similar to the way a dog or a cat responds."

The veterinarian said that the baby rabbits also need plenty of warmth - like from a light bulb - and water.

And for food, "commercial rabbit food is best," he said, "because it has all the proper vitamins. Don't feed a baby rabbit to many greens."

Domestic rabbits make good pets, but wild rabbits don't. Dr. Hendrick said that it is very difficult to raise a wild baby rabbit in captivity.

"They just can't adjust," he said. "I had one that I bottle fed and cared for but after a couple of weeks, he died."

If a vet can't save a wild baby bunny, a child - even with adult supervision and help - would have little chance at success.

The problem with chicks and ducks and even baby rabbits sometimes, if they survive to grow into big chickens and ducks and rabbits, is that children often grow tired of them.

"Then what do you do with them?" Dr. Hendrick asked. "Few people are going to eat a family pet, even if they are tired of it. Often they will simply set it free, but the pet is unable to fend for itself and that action is a cruel answer to the problem."

their deaths in the sea because even desperation could no longer keep their fingers welded to the undercarriage.

It was a flight out of hell and only a good tough American pilot and a lot of prayers got us back to Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase alive—with the Boeing 727's flaps jammed and the wheels fully extended.

It all started simply enough. I asked World Airways Vice President Charles Patterson if he had anything going to Da Nang. He said, "Get on that truck and you've got yourself a ride."

It was a ride I'll never forget. World Airways President Ed Daley was aboard. He was angry and tired. Daley said he had been up all night arguing with American and Vietnamese officials for permission to fly into besieged Da Nang to get more refugees out.

Daley finally said to hell with paperwork, clearances and caution and we were on our way. It seemed peaceful enough as we touched down at the airport, 370 miles northeast of Saigon.

More than a thousand people had been waiting around a Quonset hut several hundred yards away from where we touched down.

Suddenly it was a mob in motion—they roared across the tarmac on motorbikes, jeeps, scooters and on legs speeded by sheer desperation and panic.

Daley and I stood near the bottom of the 727's tail ramp. Daley held out his arms while I shouted in Vietnamese, "One at a time—one at a time. There's room for everybody."

There wasn't room for everybody and everybody knew damn well there wasn't.

Daley and I were knocked aside and backward. If Daley thought he'd get some women and children out of Da Nang he was wrong. The plane was jammed in an instant with troops of the 1st Division's nearest unit, the Hac Bao (Black Panthers).

They literally ripped the clothes right off Daley along with some of his skin. A British television cameraman who flew up with us made the mistake of getting off the plane when we landed to shoot the loading. He could not get back aboard in the pandemonium so he threw his camera through its precious film into the closing door and stood there and watched us take off.

We heard later that an Air America helicopter picked him up and carried him to safety. As we started rolling, insanity gripped those who had missed their chance. Government troops opened fire on us. Somebody lobbed a hand grenade toward the wing. The explosion jammed the flaps full open and the undercarriage in full extension.

Communist rockets began exploding at a distance.

Our pilot, Ken Healy, 52, of Oakland, Calif., slammed the throttles wide open and lurched into the air from the taxiway. There was no way we could have survived the gunfire and got onto the main runway.

A backup 727 had flown behind us but had been ordered not to land when the panic broke out. The pilot radioed he could see the legs of people hanging down from the undercarriage of our plane. UPI photographer Lien Huang, who was in the cockpit of that backup plane, saw at least one person lose his grip on life and plummet into the South China Sea below.

There were 268 or more people jammed into the cabin of the little 727 limping down the coast.

Only two women and one baby among them. The rest were soldiers, toughest of the toughest, meanest of the mean. They proved it Saturday. They didn't talk to each other or us. They looked at the floor.

I saw one of them had a clip of ammunition and asked him to give it to me. He handed it over. As I walked up the aisle other soldiers started loading my arms with clips of ammunition, pistols, hand grenades. They didn't need them anymore.

There was no more fight left in the Black Panthers this day. They had gone from humans to animals and now they were vegetables.

In the cockpit we wrapped the weapons and ammo in electric tape.

We flew down the coast, the backup plane behind us all the way. Healy circled Phan Rang airbase 165 miles northeast of Saigon, hoping to put down for an emergency landing.

Lien Huang served as interpreter on the backup plane, radioing Phan Rang control tower that our 727 had to land there in an emergency. The reply came back that there was no firefighting equipment at Phan Rang so Healy aimed the plane for Tan Son Nhut.

I heard Healy on the radio telling Tan Son Nhut, "I've got control problems." The backup plane was shepherding us in.

Huang told me later when we touched down safe the pilot and cabin crew on his plane pulled off their headphones, some of them crossed themselves, and all thanked God for a small miracle delivered this Easter weekend.

When we touched down the troops who had stormed us were offloaded and put under arrest. They deserved it. The mangled body of one soldier, M16 rifle still strapped to his shoulder, was retrieved from the undercarriage. He got his ride to Saigon but being dead in Saigon is just the same as being dead in Da Nang.

Over a score of others came out of the baggage compartment, cold but alive. Somebody told me that four others crawled out of the wheel wells alive. One died.

Killer Tornado Shakes Arkansas

WARREN Ark. (UPI) — A Good Friday tornado "took the city and shook it," ripping into houses, stores and the town's only hospital and largest industry, leaving seven dead and 64 injured.

The seventh victim died Saturday from injuries received in the twister that spun out of a heavy spring thunderstorm.

Gov. David H. Pryor surveyed the damage with Mayor John Frazer and P. W. Whitaker from the office of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., by helicopter and car and estimated damage could amount to $10 million.

Pryor also sent a telegram to President Ford requesting he designate Bradley County a major disaster area, qualifying it for federal disaster assistance. Pryor said his survey showed 200 houses destroyed and 400 damaged, including extensive damage to Potlatch Forest Inc.'s Bradley Mill, which employed more than 600 persons.

"Frankly, the damage could range from $6 million to $10 million with $6 million being a minimal figure," Pryor said. Meanwhile in Texas, remnants of winter, ousted on the calendar more than a week earlier, Saturday chilled Texans with snow showers. The annual pilgrimage of 50,000 young persons to the surf of the Texas Gulf coast left the 25,000 who braved this year's unseasonal conditions subdued and hovering for warmth under overcast skies which dumped cold drizzle on the Padre Island fun-seekers.

Red Cross News

A second telephone has been installed at the Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross, due to the increased number of incoming calls resulting from Thursday's early morning tornado in Lefors.

A Red Cross spokesman said the new number now in service is 669-7911.

The Red Cross also may be contacted at the number listed in the Pampa telephone directory, 669-7121, the spokesman said.

County Commissioners Slate Tuesday Meeting

The agenda will include payment of salaries and bills as approved by the auditor, consideration of order designating First National Bank in Pampa the county depository for two years and that contract be filed by county clerk.

Other items will be to consider time deposits and transfers of funds as may be recommended by the auditor, to consider the approval of a public weigher's bond for William L. Groves, and to consider a proposal of J. W. Dolly Co. for plat repair and plat cabinet for county clerk's office, complete with labor, materials and freight FOB Pampa, $1,710 from general fund.

The commission also will consider approval of plat of Mesilla Park No. 2 to the City of Pampa; will discuss Burger highway improvements with a Chamber of Commerce committee; consider requested resolution of drug task force; and consider the tornado damage in Lefors.

Lefors Cable To Be Restored

An official of Lefors Cable TV company said that service to the west portion of Lefors should be restored "by the end of next week."

He said that equipment has been ordered from Phoenix, Ariz., and plans are to begin installation and repairs Monday or Tuesday.

Damage to the company's equipment was estimated at $20,000.

We Have To Be As Fussy As Our Customers, So We Suggest:

Epiphone guitars

We've got a lot of tough customers. If a guitar doesn't play and sound good, they won't buy it. Or if it warps in a few months, they'll return it. So we've shopped around and seen some great guitars. And Epiphone's one of the best, and it's priced so anyone can afford it. Our customers agree with us too. They buy our Epiphones. And they don't bring them back.

If you can't afford an expensive guitar, get a great one.

Your Horoscope

SUNDAY, MARCH 30

Your birthday today: Spiritual values determine your whole life-style and prospects throughout the coming year. Getting rid of everything that has lost its purpose and leaving unconstructive views behind become essential to your freedom to move ahead. Relationships in all levels contain moral support, but the material means are up to you. Today's natives have both courage and the propensity for harsh actions.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Review your situation promptly and thoroughly. Push every opportunity while you can, collect all that's due you and ignore the public remarks that you attract by doing so.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Be especially careful; trivial differences can blow up into quarrels. Family life is unified by outside pressure. Give partners time to think through what's happening.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Put in your bid for a higher position, more money and fringe benefits. Your healthy self-interest stirs rivalry and criticism. Don't be surprised; forgive the jealousy.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Friends deserve your respect. Don't meddle or act on their behalf unless asked to do so first. Back away from controversial topics; seek better information.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Formal or legal decisions seem favorable, but involve definite responsibility on your part from start to finish. Circumstances are shifting rapidly, so keep weekend plans tentative.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Substitution of personnel and switches in the everyone's roles are highly probable. Suspend judgment until you've seen more results. Travel proves disappointing.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Ambition stirs anew; friends and rivals are helpful to your career. Avoid gambling of any sort, but note the results of novel procedures that others try.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You're a trifle sensitive to comments today. Go on producing good work unruffled and ask a higher reward for it. Add a little to your savings wherever possible.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Even minor, short-term moves generate side effects and endless hickering. Don't overdo any phase of your daily living. Quit as early as feasible; get extra rest.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Concentrate on bringing work conditions into an even balance. Get ready for an intensely interesting evening, but expect it to stop short at a fairly early hour.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: What seems dull to you is actually only preparation for important enterprises yet to be devised. You'll use all the skills you learn now. You're in a mood for mild celebration this evening.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Hard work is more directly related to prosperity than ever. It's as difficult to release past reserves for current use as it is to earn new funds, but it's well worth the effort!

MONDAY, MARCH 31
Your birthday today: Make a fine distinction between healthy self-interest and vanity. Your sense of values improves as you see non-material factors at work in important events. Relationships are troubled until you recognize and adjust to the circumstances in which others find themselves. Today's natives are impulsive and led by intense feelings into a variety of difficult causes.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You face a dilemma: Pursue material gain at the expense of personal satisfaction or vice versa. Since neither goal is actually reached today, don't force any issues.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: People say "yes" without realizing what's involved. Explanations are muddled until you ask questions tonight. Avoid unessential or long-term financial moves.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: You're not the only one glamorizing people. Others misjudge you as well; forgive them. Don't hesitate to accept a benefit that's volunteered.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Concentrate on routine that requires no close cooperation. Be explicit in what you say or abstain from voicing your opinion. The facts will eventually surface.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]:

That idea you're kicking around in the back of your head isn't worked out well enough for presentation. Wait a while and clear the way for it before announcing your program.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Enthusiasm is dampened a bit in today's crosscurrents. Tidy up the loose ends on long, drawn-out enterprises that are up for critical review.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Friends are full of schemes that are either incomplete or not in your best interest. Give them a chance to declare themselves, then follow your own choices.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Resist suggestions to simply settle for the existing situation. Wait to learn more details and sound out other people. You have surprising news in later hours.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Confusing information is the normal order of the day. Your patience inspires others to help sort matters out. It isn't wise to push negotiations to an early close.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: You're criticized if you do and criticized if you don't! It's hard to refrain from impulses to correct the local problems, but your attention should be on larger matters now.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Instead of complaining about interruptions, regard them as chances to update your thinking or readjust your approach. Some chores must be done over again.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: The less you exert yourself, the better. You've got too many preparations to think about before getting any major project underway. You experience a quick mental somersault late today.

NM Indian Gov Arrested

ALBUQUERQUE (UPI) — The first woman elected as governor of one of New Mexico's 19 Indian pueblos has been charged with stealing $20,000 from the pueblo.

Betty Duran, 38, who was governor of the Pojoaque Pueblo in 1974, surrendered to the U.S. marshal in Albuquerque Thursday after a warrant was issued for her arrest.

Computers in Oil Field May Save Time, Money

LUBBOCK — Computers are moving into the oil fields to provide on the spot drilling analysis and a little "instant hindsight" which can mean savings in time and money for oil producers.

An Automated Logging Service (ALS) has been developed which allows one operator to make an immediate record of several variables during drilling and to rapidly make predictions for continued drilling.

Ken O. Taylor, engineering coordinator, Baroid Division of N.L. Industries Inc., Houston, will describe the ALS April 17 during the 22nd annual Southwestern Petroleum Short Course (April 17-18) at Texas Tech University.

The ALS utilizes special instruments to monitor several drilling parameters. A general purpose mini-computer system records that information, produces a printed record and draws logs of the drilling operation.

Basic to the system is a software package which includes a drilling model designed to predict pore pressure and porosity from surface measured data. The model includes the capability for an on-site regression analysis.

At the completion of a bit run, the operator can activate a program which allows him figuratively to "re-drill" that bit run using different constants. The instant hindsight provided by the "re-drilling" feature of the ALS allows the operator to experiment with various constants until a desired correlation with an off-set log is achieved.

Taylor's presentation is one of 44 technical and general interest topics scheduled for the short course sponsored by Texas Tech's Department of Petroleum Engineering.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Marc of Dimes has named Maria Karnilova and Vincent Gardenia as 1975 Stars of the Season for their roles in Neil Simon's current Broadway hit, "God's Favorite."

Varietas Speaker Tells Of Texas Pioneer Personalities

Mrs. J.E. Gibson presented the program for Varietas Federated Study Club on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sherman White. Mrs. Aubrey Sprawls, club president, presided.

Mrs. Sprawls gave a preview of the District Conference of Federated Clubs to be held in Amarillo on April 4-5.

The afternoon's topic was "Texas." And Mrs. Gibson's talk was entitled, "Texas Pioneer Personalities." She prefaced her biographical sketches with the statement that the most famous ones, such as the heroes of the Alamo and the Astronauts, are so well known that audiences are usually familiar with their lives and activities. She stated that she had planned her speech around lesser-known pioneers who helped to shape the destiny of the state.

She discussed the early image, some of which still remains, of Texans as imagined by people of other regions — and she discussed the true Texan as he lives and achieves. She told of the 24 ethnic groups who settled Texas, working together, living together, and fighting together.

She then sketched several pioneer Texans, stating "John W. Gates, known as 'Bet-a-Million' Gates, figured out his own workable way to sell his barbed wire. The Seventh Earl of Aylesford bought a town and set up his various enterprises, including his ranching. An early minister, Reverend Cannon, raised $20,000 and made an airplane that was a fair success before the Kitty Hawk flight. An Aztec woman known as 'Indian Emily' saved Fort Davis from destruction. Many other early-day people molded the Texas we now enjoy," she concluded.

Following the program, club members added sketches of additional Texas pioneers.

Present at the meeting were Miss Anna Pierce and Mmes. W.A. Bohot, H. Price Dosier, J.E. Gibson, Lee Harrah, Rue Hestand, J.E. Kirchner, R.W. Lane, Otis Nace, L.B. Penick, Aubrey Sprawls, Ralph Thomas, and Sherman White.

Consumers Rules For Frozen Food

COLLEGE STATION — Consumers should be aware of the safety of frozen food from the time they first look into the display case in the store, one foods and nutrition specialist advised this week.

"Be careful to buy frozen foods stored in commercial freezer cabinets only if they are stored under the line marked for safety level," Mrs. Mary Sweeten, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said. Buy frozen or refrigerated foods last, then take them directly home to the freezer. Home freezer temperature should be kept at 0 degrees F, she reminded.

"Labels on many frozen foods tell whether the product can be refrozen. It's not a good idea to refreeze unless the label says this won't harm the food."

"When using frozen foods, plan ahead so they can be defrosted in the refrigerator. Thawing foods at room temperature for long periods can permit bacteria to grow, producing illness."

But when food is thawed in the refrigerator, the warmth necessary for bacteria growth is lacking, she said.

COUNTRY COTTONS — Country-style bedroom has relaxed Americana style, decorated with pure cotton muslin from AMERICAN BLEACHED GOODS. Quilted bedspread, tablecloth, and curtains by Croscill Curtain Co. have crease resistant finish.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

Janet, a bride of several months, said to me the other night, "You had your children during the awkward age, didn't you?"

"What age is that?" I asked. "Too late for prudence and too early for the pill."

"Look Janet, if I've said it once, I've said it a thousand times. The pill is grossly overrated. Statistics will show there are some situations where the pill is totally ineffective and there is nothing in this world that will change it. A woman is flirting with imminent motherhood if she:

1. Lets her Blue Cross lapse
2. Buys one water ski
3. Converts her maternity clothes into a camper
4. Is named executive director of Zero Population
5. Reaches her insurance chart weight
6. Buys a cement mixer

"Hold it," said Janet. "What does a cement mixer have to do with conceiving a child?"

"You little naive fool," I said. "I got a letter just last week from a woman in Scandia, Minn., who had been childless for several years when they decided to buy some land and build their own home. They acquired a cement mixer from a bachelor uncle and started to lay the blocks. The footers weren't even finished when she delivered her first child."

"Their next project was a barn. Again she grabbed the shovel and started to run the mixer when another child arrived. Tempting the gods once more, she resumed her mixing to pour the floor when once again she bore a child."

"They began to suspect the mixer was just that but had to be sure. They loaned it to neighbors, childless for seven years, who needed a sidewalk around their house. She became pregnant before the concrete dried. In fact, the neighbor on the next farm also became pregnant with her eighth child which they blamed on southerly winds."

"The following January when their garage burned to the ground, they again got out the cement mixer and she again became an expectant mother."

"Then you are telling me that the pill is useless against something like a cement mixer?"

"I am telling you after six children they did what they had to do."

"Got rid of the cement mixer?" said Janet excitedly.

"No, had its electrical cord tied. Doesn't your generation know anything?"

Book Review Highlights Culture Club Guest Tea

The twentieth century culture Club held their annual Guest Tea Tuesday at Lovett Memorial Library, hosted by Mmes. B.R. Nunn, Doyle Osborne, Fred Brook, Ross Buzzard and Paul Turner. The president, Mrs. J.R. Donaldson introduced the members who in turn introduced their guests.

The program, a book review "The Day Christ Died," was presented by Mrs. Wayne McMurtry of Silverton. She was introduced by Mrs. Fred Brook, the program chairman.

"The Day Christ Died" is a historical account by Jim Bishop of Christ's last day on earth. Eleven men gathered around Him to listen to words that often perplexed them though they believed Him sent to lead them. He spoke of what they should do and believe when He no longer would be with them. They had expected Him to free and avenge His people, but instead He spoke of the power of love, while the powerful of the land schemed, she reported.

They knew one of their company had left the Passover supper suddenly. Later they would all know Judas had gone to betray their Lord. The powerful Annas and the high priest Caiaphas feared the growing popularity of the gentle Galilean who had driven the money changers from their Temple, she told.

CHILD ABUSE

During 1974, approximately 4000 cases of child abuse were reported — these cases were only a fraction of the total incidents of child abuse that actually occurred throughout the state, according to Mrs. Hene Miller, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

A Ms. By Any Other Name Isn't Happy

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Janet Bly still receives mail addressed to Mr. and Mrs. James Rosenberg. She is not and never has been Mrs. Rosenberg.

Ms. Bly, 26, of Philadelphia, is one of the increasing number of women who are retaining their birth-given names after marriage. And like most, she has faced fewer problems with the banks and credit companies than with her family.

"Neither family has really recognized it," she said. "Sometimes when we are with our family my husband or I have jokingly said something about the way the mail was addressed. But it's never heard by anyone."

Gina McQuinn, 26, Cherry Hill, N.J., who kept her name following her marriage to W.R. McClellan, said she, too, faced problems with her family.

"We haven't had any problems except for family. Family members seem to think that there was some kind of peer group pressure that made me do this," she said. "They think it's totally insensible and if I were an intelligent woman making my own decisions, I wouldn't be doing this."

"They finally said, 'Fine, but we're going to call you Mrs. McClellan anyway.'"

Ms. McQuinn advises women at the Women's Law Project here who are interested in retaining their own names or returning to them after using their husbands'. Legally, a woman is not bound to take her husband's name.

Pennsylvania Attorney General Israel Packer said in an opinion Oct. 25, 1973, that a married woman may register to vote under her birthname or revert to her birthname from her married name on her registration as long as she consistently uses that name for purposes of identification.

"It's a matter of custom, not law, that women take their husbands' names upon marriage," Ms. McQuinn said. "The Equal Rights Amendment requires that there be no different law regarding names for married women than there is for married men."

According to Ms. McQuinn, if a woman chooses to revert to her birth-given name after having used her husband's, she simply notifies banks, schools, everyone she deals with professionally and socially. In Pennsylvania, as in most states, no legal action is required.

Barbara Rosenberg, 28, Philadelphia, an attorney in the Camden, N.J., Public Defender's office, said being a lawyer gave her an advantage in dealing with businesses and banks when she retained her name after marriage.

"The bank was a little surprised when we got a newlyweds' account. The reaction of a lot of people was that they never heard of doing it and therefore, you couldn't. But I was a law student at the time, and I knew I could."

"There are advantages to retaining your name," she said. "I felt very good in using my own name and being an individual. People tend to view my husband and me much more as individuals rather than one entity."

Barbara Brown, 28, Philadelphia, who is managing attorney of the Women's Law Project, said upon marriage, she and her husband faced problems with banks and creditors.

"The bank lending us money for a mortgage made a big stink that they couldn't have different names for a husband and wife. So they got an opinion from their legal department, which was staffed by a woman, and it was straightened out."

Her charge cards, however, read: "Mrs. Alex Capron" despite her repeated requests.

"Some people are nervous. That's the way they identify all women: by their husband because they assume that's where the money is coming from."

Ms. Bly said a few department stores have complied and have issued credit cards in two different names for accounts she shares with her husband. When businesses have refused and have listed only her husband's name, she's found a solution. She signs: "Janet Bly, wife."

BENEVOLENCE
NEW YORK (UPI) — The Lutheran Church in America has announced that benevolence giving in the 3.1 million member denomination totaled nearly $23 million in 1974, an increase of two per cent over 1973.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?
A. Pork Loin Butterfly Chops.

Q. Where do they come from? How are they identified?

These chops are cut from the boneless top pork loin muscle and resemble a butterfly in shape. They are actually two chops in one as they are first cut from the loin approximately 2 inches thick, then sliced in half almost through and spread open to form the butterfly shape. If desired, they can be cut double-thick with pockets for stuffing.

LIBRARY LINES

By Mary Fatheree

Friends of the Pampa Library are collecting Gunn Brothers stamp books to be applied toward the purchase of decorative artificial plants for the library's auditorium. If you have any spare books to donate, won't you please call the library or a member of the Friends?

Your co-operation in this project can help to provide the esthetic touches that make the library a more pleasant place to gather for meetings and programs.

"Nostalgia" seems to be the password in the world of entertainment these days, so the Friends and the Pampa Fine Arts Association have pooled their resources to bring you a silent movie presentation on Friday, April 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the library auditorium.

Admission is free, and there'll be refreshments, too. Bring the family, settle back and enjoy a trip to the past when actors were "STARS" and nobody had to worry about X-ratings.

Several members of the library staff and the Friends attended a public relations workshop last week at the Amarillo Public Library and came back brimming with new ideas for extending the library's services to the whole community.

Sue Fontaine, information officer for the Tulsa, Okla. library system, directed the all-day session which included small group discussions, "how to" demonstrations on publicity and displays, and slides on library activities throughout the United States.

At a recent Friends meeting, the executive board welcomed new member, Mrs. Victor Raymond, who will serve with Mrs. Frances Walls as co-chairman of the children's committee.

Mrs. Raymond has been a regular volunteer this year in the Friends pre-kindergarten story hours program.

It's time for all previous members of the Friends to renew their memberships for the coming year — and time for all prospective members to make plans to join during the annual drive, April 13-19.

For only $1 yearly, you can help your library to realize its potential as Pampa's leading information center.

CONSUMERS AND FAD DIETS

Use of fad diets increases during spring as consumers try to "shape up" for summer activities. But in spite of rapid weight loss on a fad diet, whenever the dieter returns to his former eating pattern, weight returns too.

All fad diets follow a typical pattern of early enthusiasm but are soon forgotten when they fail to produce miraculous results.

One popular diet — high fat, high protein and low carbohydrate diet — does lead to fast weight loss at first. But that is due to water loss. This diet could be dangerous for people with atherosclerosis, diabetes and kidney disease, or for pregnant women.

The best way to get in shape for spring and summer is to begin now with daily exercising, cutting the quantity meals down and eating more lower calorie foods from the Basic Four Food Groups.

Choose two - three servings from the Milk Group. Select skim, buttermilk or non-fat dry milk instead of whole milk. Try cheeses made with skim milk, such as low fat mozzarella cheese and dry curd cottage cheese.

Four servings of low calorie fruits and vegetables could include fresh or frozen fruits and vegetables, unsweetened canned pie fruit or dietetic fruits.

Fresh vegetables can be seasoned with vinegar, tomato juice, lemon juice, herbs, mint chopped parsley and mustard. Bouillon or tomato juice enhances the flavor of cooked vegetables.

Some of the better choices for four servings from the Bread and Cereal Group would include whole wheat or enriched breads or cereals. Don't add sugar to cereals or purchase sugar-coated ones. Serve nutritious cookies — oatmeal, molasses, peanut butter or raisin — or plain cakes.

From the Meat Group, include two or more 2 1/2 ounce servings of lean meat — beef, pork, poultry or fish. Baking and broiling are two cooking methods that don't add fat and calories.

A safe weight loss each week is one - two pounds. Weight didn't get put on overnight — and it won't disappear that way either.

FASHIONETTES

United Press International The accessory report for spring, as seen by Mildred Sullivan of the New York Couture Business Council, includes the following:

Accessories that really make it are those that really belong in the total picture. The sure spring thing things are scarves tied in new ways, definite hats, wider belts, real jewelry and trimmed-down feminine footwear.

Hats to keep your chin up under: huge brimmed garden party looks, the big printed brim, the tailored trim brim. Get them in straw, the last word now. Straw panamas, straw rollers, thin light straws. A few berets, little knit caps. The army fatigue hat and versions of the tennis hat — for fun.

Scarves can be anything on the fashion front. They tie like a good scout or fair middy. They're babushkas or Arab headdresses. They're chockers, belts, shawls or wrap skirts. They go from tiny cotton neckerchiefs to huge silk squares and long oblongs in stripes and geometrics.

Belts pull in the big new shapes. Soft cinch belts, braided straws, canvas and leather looks.

Brown, With Top-Flight Coach, May Reach Goal

By PAUL SIMS

Doug Russell has been so unbeatable a swimmer and a coach it just seems natural his young protégé, a Pampa High School junior, is destined for good things.

Good things like swimming in the American Athletic Union's national championships, reserved for only the country's best. That's the goal Pampa's Ted Brown has set and it's likely he will accomplish that end.

His coach things so. "I think Ted has the ability to be as good as he wants to be," said Russell, who has acquired an enormous list of credentials, including two Olympic Gold medals, in the span of his long aquatics career.

Kids in competitive swimming think about going to the national championship, making the finals and making the Olympic team. Three are probably very real goals to Ted right now — becoming a finalist in the high school state meet next year, making high school All-American and a college career.

Russell himself had goals and most of those were attained. The 29-year-old Amarillo Aquatic Club age-group coach won nine collegiate championships, was an AAU All-American twice, held four world and eight American records, and won two gold medals at the 1967 Pan American Games, two gold and a silver at the 1967 World Student Games in Tokyo, Japan and two golds in the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City.

In the '68 Olympics, Russell was the last swimmer to beat Mark Spitz, 55.9 to 56.4 for the gold medal in the 100 butterfly.

As a collegiate coach at the University of Texas, Arlington, Russell was 33-11 in four years and had 27 swimmers qualify for the national meet. In AAU coaching, Russell, in four years, has had 32 team championships, 23 national qualifiers, 18 state champions and three national finalists.

Brown, to say the least, could not be in better hands. "He's just a good coach all around," Brown said. "He looks at everybody's strokes and tells you what's wrong with the strokes. He tells me if I'm doing something wrong."

Brown didn't do wrong often. He holds the West Texas AAU record in the 1650 freestyle and was a qualifier in the 500 free at the high school meet at Austin. He is also the State AAU champion in both the 400- and 1500-meter freestyles.

The reason he hasn't done more, Russell says, is the fault of the state high school program, which is amazingly deficient. "I'm not real fond of the high school program, as such. Take a kid like Ted. It doesn't offer him an event that is best suited to the swimmer and it hurts him as far as college coaches are concerned."

Brown's strong suit is the 1650 free, not recognized by the University Interscholastic League. In fact, only the shorter events have been set up by the UIL.

If it was that way in high school track, the 880 runners and miler wouldn't stand a chance; only sprinter would be given the chance to display his wares.

Meanwhile, Brown and other distance swimmers, must compete in AAU meets besides the high school meets to get the recognition they deserve. That's where Russell comes in.

"His primary concern with me is through the Amarillo Aquatic Club. He makes the drive from Pampa about three times a week, on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday."

In the summer, Ted and his mother, Mrs. Thurman Brown, rent an apartment in Amarillo to give the swimmer more time to spend with the coach, who has worked with the club for nearly a year.

"I enjoy the age-group program more than I did the college program. I like working with the younger kids more than I do the 'other generation.'"

It's kids like Brown that give Russell the most gratification. Russell calls Brown a typical "Panhandle kid."

Says the coach, "The Panhandle kid is a lot different from the kids I had in Arlington. Some of those kids were from Dallas, some from California and I had one from Nashville, Tenn."

"The Panhandle kid is for some reason a little bit more dedicated as far as hard work as part of the recipe of what it takes. The difference is like night and day. Maybe it's the culture of West Texas. The kids are not quite as involved as they are in the Dallas area. Those kids are involved in all kinds of entertainment — distractions."

Brown's only "distraction" is really an attraction — swimming. He's been involved with it competitively since he was nine and, according to the Pampa youngster, "I've had good coaches in all my career."

His present coach wants the best for Brown and, for that matter, all his students. Russell hopes someday swimming will be accepted as a major sport, both on the spectator end and by the UIL.

"I feel like Ted did not have the type of winter or high school season that he could have had because of competition," Russell said. "There was no competition. Ted went into the competition knowing that he was the class of the competition, that he was going to win."

"For so long, he went in without emotion or without getting psyched up. In the regional meet, all of a sudden pressure was thrust upon him."

"I feel like my attitude as far as the high school program is I try to coexist with them and run my age-group program. The UIL is a very strong organization and to a certain extent, they violate the civil rights of high school athletes."

"Our high school swimmers are not allowed to travel out of state, so instead of going 240 miles to Oklahoma City for high school competition, we have to go 360 to get to Dallas-Fort Worth."

Russell has encountered obstacles since he left college coaching to teach swimming on the younger level. But he has also found something else — the kid just starting out, the kid who wants to take swimming seriously and become the next Doug Russell.

And he's found another kind of youngster. The one who's been swimming for a while and is close to an ultimate goal. The one who needs a man like Russell to make sure the goal is reached. Like Ted Brown.

CHAMPS, FUTURE AND PAST — Pampa High School junior Ted Brown, one of the state's fastest 500 and 1650 freestylers, couldn't have a better coach than Doug Russell of Amarillo, two-time gold medalist in the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City. Russell, former swim instructor at the University of Texas, Arlington, works out with Brown three times a week at the Amarillo Aquatic Club, where he is in charge of the age-group swim program. Brown has three coaches — Russell, Pampa Harvester coach Bonnie Grantham and Dolphin Swim Team mentor Malcolm Douglass — and says, "I've had good coaches all my career." About Russell, the Pampa swimmer says, "He's just a good coach all around. He can understand each swimmer's problems." (Pampa News Photos by Jim Williams, Paul Sims)

Nicklaus Lead Vanishes After Heritage Round

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus ran into back nine bogey trouble Saturday and saw his once-commanding six stroke lead over former Ohio State teammate Tom Weiskopf completely evaporate as the two wound up in a tie at the end of the third round of the Heritage Golf Classic.

Nicklaus appeared to have turned this $200,000 tournament into a runaway at the end of the second round Friday, and he still was riding a five-stroke lead midway through the third. But the "Golden Bear" went into the water at the 10th hole Saturday and took a double bogey that cut his lead to just three strokes. Back-to-back bogeys at 13 and 14 had the lead down to one.

Nicklaus maintained that lead over Weiskopf at 16 when he matched Tom's birdie, but golf's all-time top money winner bogeyed again on the final hole.

Both Nicklaus and Weiskopf were at 10-under-par 203 after three rounds of play. But Nicklaus, who had burned up the Harbortown course, he helped design with rounds of 66 and 63 the first two days, skied to a 74 Saturday while Weiskopf, who was 70-65 the first two days, came in with a 68 that enabled him to make up that six-stroke deficit.

Young Texan Tom Kite moved up from eight strokes back to just three Saturday when he moved into third place with a 69-206. Don January, back on the tour after a two-year layoff, also had a 69 Saturday and took over fourth at five under 208.

Hale Irwin, reigning U.S.

Open champ and a two-time Heritage winner, was one over par Saturday, but his 209 had him only six strokes behind the leaders.

Nicklaus, winner in his last previous tournament outing in the Doral Open at Miami, broke the course record Friday with his eight-under-par 63 and just about everyone conceded him this tournament as well.

But Nicklaus proved a good prophet when he said, "This tournament is still far from over. There is still a lot of golf to be played. This course is the sort that you can shoot a great score one day and a poor one the next."

That's exactly what happened.

Nicklaus started the round with a bogey, then recovered with a couple of birdies to make his turn in one under for the day. Then came that double bogey and those three other bogies.

Meanwhile, Weiskopf, playing in the threesome just ahead of Nicklaus, turned the front nine in two under to pick up one of those six strokes and gained four more with a string of pars. He just missed a long birdie putt at the 54th hole and went off the course figuring he'd go into Sunday's final round trailing Nicklaus by a stroke. "I didn't think a 68 would do it," said Weiskopf. "I played steady, this is that type of course. I won't change my style tomorrow."

John Mahaffey and Bruce Crampton were seven strokes back at 210. South African Gary Player, playing in the United States for the first time in more than six months and in his first tournament anywhere in about two months, had his second straight 70 for 211 to tie with John Schlee who had a 68. Arnold Palmer matched par 71 for the first time this week and was at 220.

Stottlemire Waived Following 11 Years

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Pitcher Mel Stottlemire said, "I'm not surprised, but I am disappointed." Saturday when he was informed that the New York Yankees put him on waivers for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

He only regret, the 33-year-old righthander added, is that he bothered coming to spring training. If he knew it was going to end like this, he wouldn't have come. If he had known this, perhaps he would have pushed harder to find out sooner. "I'm not convinced either way whether I can pitch or not."

At the moment, I am in a state of shock and would not like to discuss this too much. I want to talk to my wife, Jan, before saying anything more. I have a couple of things in view (Grand View Wash.) back home and I'll see what comes out of that. I will make a couple of calls to other clubs to see if anyone is interested."

Asked if he thinks that a different administration—meaning Ralph Houk and Lee MacPhail, who preceded current manager Bill Virdon—would have handled things differently, and if one of the clubs he will call is Detroit, Stottlemire replied, "It could just be that."

Stottlemire, 33, was the senior member of the club. He came up in August, 1964 and his 9-3 record that year was instrumental in helping the Yankees to win the pennant.

In the 1964 World Series, Stottlemire started three games for the Yankees against St. Louis and split two decisions.

SECOND CHANCE — There won't be a second chance for Second Chance should the Brittany spaniel, a field champion owned by Jerry Watkins of Fort Worth, falter in today's Open Gun Dog Stake of the Top O' Texas Brittany Spaniel Club's annual spring field trials. UCLA Nudges Cards On Washington Basket

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Richard Washington sank a 10-footer from the side with three seconds left in overtime Saturday to give the UCLA Bruins a thrilling, come from behind 75-74 victory over Louisville and a spot against Kentucky Monday night for the NCAA basketball championship.

Deep and talented Kentucky, with freshman Jack Givens coming off the bench to score 24 points, used its bulk and muscle to turn back stubborn Syracuse, 95-79, in Saturday's other semifinal game.

Washington's winning basket came after Louisville's Terry Howard, who had not missed a free throw all season, missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw opportunity with 20 seconds to go and Louisville ahead 74-73.

UCLA, which played the five minute overtime session without starting guard Pete Trgovich and 7-1 Ralph Drollinger, trailed 74-71 after a follow shot by Wesley Cox with 1:18 to go.

All America forward Dave Meyers got the Bruins to within one when he made two free throws with 57 seconds remaining. After the game, UCLA Coach John Wooden announced he will retire after Monday night's title game. Wooden, who is 64, has led UCLA to nine national titles in the last 11 seasons.

I have asked UCLA athletic director J.D. Morgan to relieve me of my duties for a variety of reasons which I will not go into at this time," Wooden said in his resignation statement. "I told my players I was quitting after the game." The UCLA victory, Wooden's second in four years in an NCAA semifinal game over Louisville coach Denny Crum, a former UCLA player and assistant coach, came despite a brilliant 33-point performance by Allen Murphy. Murphy scored seven of his team's nine points in the overtime period.

Louisville had four nine-point leads in the first half, taking a 17-8 advantage with 5:09 gone.

WFL Boss To Name Teams

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — World Football League President Chris Hemminger said Saturday he would announce the WFL franchises on April 16, underscoring his belief the WFL will exist in 1975.

Hemminger, here in an effort to clear up controversy over the city's WFL franchise, said he had attended meetings in Chicago where "representatives of nine clubs were present and two were not, at my request, because they had things to tighten up in their own cities."

"Those things were tightened up and it is looking good," he said.

At an afternoon news conference, Hemminger said as far as the WFL was concerned, at this time there was only one possible franchise in Birmingham, "the Birmingham Vulcans." He said he has never been contacted by William Putnam of Atlanta or Taft Epstein of Birmingham, both of whom had indicated they would try to save the Birmingham Americans, the 1974 franchise held by Putnam.

Fred F. Weil, president of the group attempting to establish the Birmingham Vulcans, said neither he nor any of the other members of the corporation had been contacted by "anyone, and especially not Mr. Putnam" about the possible conflict between the two teams.

Hemminger and Weil said the Vulcans had no obligation to clear the debts of the Americans "because the Vulcans are a totally new corporation."

Weil said he had been contacted by "very few of the Americans' creditors and I have told them it is not my responsibility or the Vulcans'."

Hemminger said he delayed the deadline for potential franchisees to meet financial obligations to April 16 "to avoid conflict with the Masters Golf Tournament." He said franchisees would be announced at a meeting in New York.

"Birmingham will be a part of the WFL," Hemminger said, "and there are several alternatives possible" if the Vulcans do not meet their financial obligation by the deadline.

"Birmingham was the league's best franchise last year despite their financial problems," Hemminger said, "and they will be the top in the league with the potential they have this year. But there are still some problems to clear up."

Representatives of First Birmingham Securities, the firm handling a public stock sale to finance the Birmingham Vulcans, said the stock sale was off to a "slow start" but they hoped to have some of the 5,000 prospectuses returned with checks for stock purchases next week.

"If not, we'll be very disappointed," one of the firm's representatives said.

Hemminger said much effort was put into saving the 1974 WFL World Bowl champion Americans as a team, but "it came down to a matter of not having football in Birmingham or having it without the Americans."

Hemminger did not name all the cities that may have a franchise this year but did say "at least one new city will be included and a heavy majority of the players from the Orlando franchise will go to that new team."

"We will take players from Orlando, Houston and Detroit and divide them among two teams," Hemminger said.

Six Steps To Safety

Drowning? Keep Your Head Down

AUSTIN — "Drownproofing" could save your life, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department water safety officials.

Development by Georgia Tech, drownproofing is a technique of staying afloat and conserving energy.

According to a leaflet from the department describing the technique, 60 volunteers at Georgia Tech tried the method for as long as eight hours without stopping. Twenty had their hands tied behind their backs and 20 more had their legs tied in a half-bend position to make them useless.

The average quitting time was four hours and 40 minutes in the water, and many made it the entire eight hours of testing.

The Key, according to officials, is to avoid trying to support your head out of water.

Coast Guardsmen in basic training are taught this method:

- (1) With lungs full, float face-down with the back of the neck just breaking the surface of the water. In fresh water, you may not break the surface of the water. In fresh salt water, you may not break the surface much, but in salt water the body has more buoyancy and will float higher. Your full lungs will provide more than enough flotation, even for a natural "sinker." The above position is basically the "jelly-fish float" taught to youngsters. Arms and legs should hang freely, exerting no energy.
- (2) Prepare for a downward thrust, using the arms or legs, a combination of one arm and one leg or all four limbs. Many people prepare for a variation of the breast stroke here, which is good if comfortable. Your legs should slowly move apart, preparing for either a scissors kick or a "froglegs" kick. At the same time, raise the arms forward or to the sides, whichever suits you. They will be used to thrust downward, similar to treading water, horizontally.

In both motions, move s-l-o-w-l-y! If it helps, pretend that a shark is near that will attack anything that moves. Some drownproofers find they can use natural wave action to help move the arms. Remember, the object is using the least amount of energy. The movements should take 13 - 20 seconds.

- (3) Exhale through the nose while lifting your head. At the same time.
- (4) slowly thrust your arms downward or horizontally and bring your legs together.

No much movement is needed to raise the mouth above the water. Don't try to raise the shoulders or neck above the water. Some can even keep the chin in the water and still get a mouthful of air, but this can also get you a mouthful of waves.

Be sure to exhale in the water, on the way up. If you exhale too soon, you lose the buoyancy of your lungs. If you exhale too late,

Wildcats Whip Syracuse

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Deep and talented Kentucky, with freshman Jack Givens coming off the bench to score 24 points, used its bulk and muscle Saturday to turn back stubborn Syracuse, 95-79, and move into Monday night's NCAA basketball Championship game.

UCLA, which has won nine national titles in the last 11 years, faced Louisville in the second semifinal game before a national television crowd and a sellout in the San Diego Sports Arena.

The big and bulky Wildcats from Lexington, fighting to bring the school its first national basketball title since Adolph Rupp led them to their fourth crown in 1958, were physically just too much for the undermanned Orangemen, who didn't even figure to be here.

The 6-4 Givens led a parade of 10 scorers for the Wildcats, the team that knocked off No.

1-ranked Indiana last weekend to reach the NCAA final round of four.

Givens, a high school All-America from Lexington who averaged 9.0 points a game this season, got 10 of his points in the first half as nine Wildcats scored to help Kentucky build a 44-32 halftime advantage.

The Southeastern Conference power reeled off 10 points to

Glance at Texas, National News

Ft. Hood grows

KILLEEN, Tex. (UPI) — Army officials have revealed Congress will spend $35-$38 million to buy 60,000 acres of land for a proposed expansion of Ft. Hood, a purchase protested by 170 landowners who would have to sell to accommodate the Army.

Roy Smith, an aide to the secretary of the Army, quoted the figure to 100 Chamber of Commerce members as one Congress is using as an estimate for the cost of the land.

Chamber members unanimously endorsed the planned acquisition of land by the Army, pledging the city's support.

The opposing landowners, who formed a group called "Our Land, Our Lives," have refused to meet with Army officials.

They have demanded the Army answer questions about the need for the expansion and its effects.

After the endorsement for the expansion by the members, Smith asked them to write Washington to counter the hundreds of letters of protest against the land purchase.

Army officials contend westward acquisition of land for the Ft. Hood expansion is necessary because areas in other directions are too built up to move into. The additional land is needed to train troops in case of future emergencies, they say.

"It's the quality of our training that leads to the readiness of our forces," Lt. Gen. Robert M. Shoemaker, Ft. Hood commander, told the chamber.

"The goods — the better quality quality Army — outweigh the inconvenience to the individual I wish we could leave everyone on their land but the Ft. Hood maneuvering area, the nonfiring area, is saturated."

Opens Suez

CAIRO (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat said Saturday Egypt would reopen the Suez

Canal to shipping on June 24. Addressing Parliament, Sadat also said Egypt would renew the mandate of the United Nations Emergency Force in the Sinai for three months after the current term expires April 24.

RR Trustee

CHICAGO (UPI) — The man named Friday as trustee for the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad has years of experience in corporate, bankruptcy and real estate law.

William M. Gibbons, 55, was appointed trustee by U.S. District Court Judge Frank McGarr, who is handling the Rock Island bankruptcy proceedings.

Gibbons generally is unknown to railroad men. However, Rock Island President John Ingram said after a chance meeting with Gibbons Friday, "I'm sure the fellow has his heart in the right place."

The two met by chance for the first time in the lobby of the federal building, shortly after Gibbons' appointment was announced. They agreed to get together today to begin discussions on the future of the Rock Island line.

The appointment of Gibbons must be submitted for approval to the Interstate Commerce Commission, but Rock Island officials said they do not believe there will be any problem.

Kennedy-CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate intelligence committee will investigate allegations the Central Intelligence Agency was in some way involved in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

In its final report, the committee will have to speak to those recurring allegations of CIA involvement in the Kennedy assassination, and it could not do that without looking into it, one well informed source said.

The official source added, however, that "it's off to one side of the main investigation."

The reports of CIA involvement in the Kennedy assassination have persisted despite the conclusion of the Warren Commission that Lee Harvey Oswald was solely responsible for Kennedy's death.

One official said that the allegation seems to live on among students and some of the critics of the Warren report.

Informed sources reported that the Senate committee has divided its staff into four major areas of investigation. They are foreign intelligence activities, domestic intelligence, command and control mechanisms, and military and technological fields.

The committee is to report its findings and recommendations to the Senate at the end of the year. Both the Senate and House formed committees to investigate intelligence activities after reports of widespread CIA domestic spying.

Sniper Fires

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (UPI) — A sniper shooting for three hours from an attic bedroom killed two policemen and critically injured a third Friday night. Police finally stormed the house and overpowered him.

Officers pumped nearly 1,000 rounds of ammunition into the three-story frame house then lobbed tear gas canisters to cover the charge by nearly 100 officers.

The officers scrambled to the second floor, and four officers rushed up the ladder to the attic and arrested 23-year-old Jimmy Carhart.

The sniper fired about 25 shots through the attic door when the four officers ran up, said officer Nicholas Abate. "I heard a lot of hollering and he (Carhart) was hollering too. And then the shooting stopped."

Carhart, wrapped in a blanket to ward off the smoke, was hospitalized in serious condition with bullet wounds in the hip.

"He had 20 different rifles and helmets inside the bedroom from where he was shooting," Abate said. "But no gas masks. The house was very smoky. I don't know how he survived without a mask."

Six persons, including Carhart's parents and two brothers, were rescued before the gunfight began.

Carhart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carhart, were rescued from the first floor along with his brother Robert, 26, and an invalid brother, Louis, 39, who is confined to a wheelchair. Diane Bogarth and her 5-month-old infant, Richard, were rescued from their second floor residence.

During the rescue, Carhart's 62-year-old father was bitten by police dogs sent into the home. The elder Carhart later told police his son had come home that afternoon "despondent and complaining about things, religion in general."

He then apparently climbed to the attic and began firing at random.

HOW'S The Electric Company DOING?

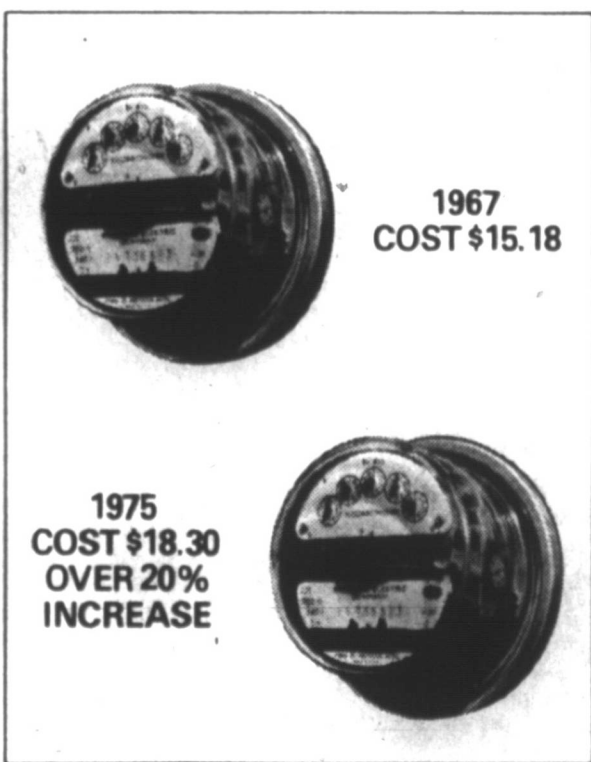

Let's ask Sharon McDuffee, meter reader . . .

"Sharon, that looks like a complex piece of equipment there..."

"Yes, it is. It's accurate and dependable, but it costs money."

"Seven years ago, it cost $15.18 and now it costs $18.30, over 20% more. And that meter is just one of the things we use to serve a home."

That's part of the reason your electric bill may be higher these days . . . our equipment costs more, and to give you good service, we have to buy new things to replace the old . . . to keep your electric service dependable.

The Future IS Electric!

Ambassador Tells Of His Kidnapping

PARIS (UPI) — French Ambassador to Somalia Jean Gueury Saturday thanked the press for its discretion during his six days of captivity by Somali nationalists and said he was looking forward to a rest in the country with his family.

The ambassador, who was kidnapped last Sunday by three Somali guerrillas in Mogadishu and released in exchange for two jailed terrorists and $100,000, stood outside his home and told UPI in an interview.

"Naturally, I am very pleased to be back. And I am now looking forward to a rest in the country with my family."

"Unfortunately, I cannot make any official declarations concerning my experience and I am sorry that I cannot answer questions of a political or personal nature. I am afraid that will have to wait."

Gueury, wearing a brown suit with a Legion of Honor ribbon on his left lapel, looked slightly tired but in good health. Flanked by his two sons, Frederic and Jerome, he smiled and chatted amiably.

Gueury's release was delayed by the South Yemen government's initial refusal to allow that country to be used as an exchange site.

Haldeman Opines on 'Deep Throat'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon during his first presidential term considered using the 25th Amendment to replace Spiro Agnew, who was frustrated as vice president and wanted to get into television, former Nixon aide H.R. Haldeman said in an interview made public Saturday.

Haldeman said Nixon thought Agnew might resign and even went so far as to discuss the possibility with former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr. He said Nixon believed Connally would be a better vice president than Agnew and a "superb President."

In a wide-ranging interview with CBS reporter Mike Wallace, to be televised Sunday on "Sixty Minutes," Haldeman also:

— Said he thought "Deep Throat," the Washington Post's mystery source for Watergate coverup information, had been Mark Felt, former associate director of the FBI.

— Portrayed Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger as a highly temperamental man who often threatened to quit over both major and minor issues.

— Agreed with Wallace that Kissinger was "as hawkish as could be" in private but appeared anguished over foreign policy decisions in public.

Haldeman said Nixon admired Connally as "an astute politician and a very effective leader" who was "willing to get in and fight."

He said Nixon started talking about replacing Agnew "long before the start of the second term ... with the thought that John Connally had the capability and the characteristics to be a superb vice president and to be a superb President."

Asked if Nixon considered Connally a better vice presidential candidate than Agnew, Haldeman replied: "On an overall basis, candidly, yes."

Connally goes on trial Tuesday for allegedly accepting bribes of $10,000 in milk-producer funds while a member of the Nixon cabinet.

Haldeman said he, Nixon and Connally discussed the possibility of Agnew resigning long before there was any hint the vice president would be forced to resign in return for a "no contest" plea on charges of income tax evasion.

The Pampa News

Tim Hoiles, 22, publisher of The Pampa Daily News, came to the city in September 1974.

"An opening in McAllen was accepted by the former publisher of The News, A.W. Bassett," Hoiles said. "Then Freedom Newspapers management selected me for the Pampa opening thus created."

Hoiles said that he was pleased at the opportunity afforded him. "Pampa impressed me as being very friendly and outgoing," he said, "and yet having many definite advantages not often found in a small city."

The young publisher commented that Pampa's qualities have attracted major industries to locate here.

The Pampa News has been serving the area for 68 years. It has been under the direction and ownership of the Freedom News Partnership since 1936.

"In the community the size of ours," Hoiles said, "the newspaper must give the best coverage possible to local events. More so than in a larger city because things are closer knit, people seem to be more concerned about community activities."

The Pampa News has a staff of 36 full-time employees, 62 carriers on three motor route carriers.

"I feel that our purpose as a newspaper is to serve the community not only as a bulletin board," Hoiles said, "but to report on everything of interest that is taking place within it."

He described the Pampa Economy Prosper (Peppy) program as an "attempt to involve the various businesses and news media in a program of benefit to the entire city."

Hoiles said that "the Peppy program is a great thing for Pampa in that we do have a solid economy made possible by diversification. Of course there are problems, but Pampa has a lot of good things going for it."
