The rash of presidential primaries has created some early interest in the political conventions this year, but they represent a new field of politics for this country. There are those, no doubt, who think that the popular vote for president is something that founders of the country introduced, but that is not the case.

The framers of the U.S. Constitution set up the electoral college for selecting a President, and even that institution was somewhat different in the beginning from its present form. They stated simply that each state "shall appoint a number of electors equal to the combined number of its Senators and Representatives to choose a president. There was no mention of the electors being pledged to any certain candidate. As the years passed, the political parties began to select proposed electors and run them in competition with slates from other parties. That is the situation today, with the electors of each party pledged to support the nominee of the party they represent.

Apparently, any type of popular vote for president was never even discussed in those early days. As for a popular vote to determine party nominees, they probably never even dreamed of such a thing.

★ ★ ★

Anyway, with all of the primaries this spring, the conventions coming up in the summer, followed by the actual campaigns in the fall, Americans are destined to get their fill of politics this year. And more and more television reruns are likely to be preempted as the campaigns move along.

★ ★ ★

A lot of Americans are expected to have something besides politics on their minds this summer, however. Agencies who are involved in the tourist industry are expecting an upsurge in vacation travel during the Bicentennial summer. In fact, it probably began early, according to reports from Six Flags Over Texas, the big theme park at Arlington, which just launched its full-time season. Its spring season, which kept the amusement center open only on weekends in April and May, set a record this year, with a total of more than 399,000 persons. That was a nine per cent gain over last year.—WACIL McNAIR.

SIX NATIONS TO JOIN US IN PUERTO RICO

Economic Summit Is Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced today that six major industrialized nations will join the United States in an economic summit conference June 27-28 in Puerto Rico "to chart a course to keep the recovery moving forward."

Ford said that Canada, France, West Germany, Italy, Japan and the United Kingdom will participate in the session, which is a followup to a conference last November in Rambouillet, France.

He said it is necessary to meet again to chart a course that will keep the economic recovery moving forward at a healthy and sustained rate.

"The issue at the heart of the discussions is to determine what our nations can do, working together, to create a more prosperous and secure future for all our citizens," the President said.

Ford said it is vital to continue the process of "close consultation and cooperation" in all fields of common interest.

"In the past," he said, "world leaders have met to deal with crisis. But today's complex problems require that leaders meet to avoid them."

Ford's official announcement of the upcoming conference comes two days after White House officials said that "discussions are well along" for an economic summit.

Some critics have questioned Ford's scheduling of a summit meeting less than two months before the Republican presidential convention and while he is in a close contest with Ronald Reagan.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Tuesday that Ford is determined to pursue foreign and economic policies without regard to domestic politics. "The President feels that this is the appropriate time to have a follow-up economic meeting," Nessen said.

Hays Steps Down Today

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays stepped down today as chairman of the House Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee until the investigation of his role in a payroll-sex scandal is completed.

Hays said he was relinquishing control of the committee to avoid putting "an unnecessary and unwarranted burden on my fellow Democratic candidates."

The congressman said he is confident he will be vindicated.

But the Ohio Democrat said he did not want "to have my name on a check which might be used as a campaign issue against any Democratic candidate." The committee distributes campaign funds to Democratic congressional candidates around the country.

Stepping down marks the first serious blow to Hays' leadership position since a woman charged that he put her on his House Administration Committee payroll to be his mistress.

In making his announcement, Hays also said, "I have also decided to call a meeting of the Committee on House Administration to discuss with them any questions concerning my role as chairman of the House Administration Committee."

He said he will call a meeting of the campaign committee next Wednesday for the election of a temporary chairman to replace him.

"Although the charge against me has yet to be substantiated by credible evidence, I am confident that when all the facts are presented at the proper time and in the proper forum, it will be obvious that the charge against me will be shown to be false," Hays said.

He accepted no questions from reporters.

As Hays prepared his statement, the House ethics committee went into closed session to decide how to proceed with its investigtion of the charge.

Chairman John J. Flynt, D-Ga., said it was necessary to close the proceedings because names in addition to those of Hays and Elizabeth Ray would be used and disclosing them could be damaging.

Flynt added: "There are some things and some words I don't want to use publicly."

But Rep. Charles F. Bennett, D-Fla., a member of the committee, said: "We're not really confronted with filthy, dirty, four-letter words. We're confronted with acts that can be described delicately."

House Majority Leader Thomas O'Neill urged Hays on Wednesday to temporarily relinquish his chairmanship of the House Administration Committee as well. O'Neill said if Hays refuses to step down voluntarily, he believes the House Democratic Caucus will strip him of the post when it meets June 16.

Meanwhile, the woman who made the charge against Hays, Elizabeth Ray, denied a Chicago Tribune report that says she told federal agents she tape recorded bedroom intimacies with 13 congressmen and two senators, and that she dated official White House photographer David Kennerly.

"I did not make any accusation like that at any time," Miss Ray told CBS News.

The Tribune, in a copyrighted story, said the recordings included:

—"A well-known senator whose pillow talk in Miss Ray's apartment revolved around the adventures of his grandchildren....

—"A congressman whose name is a household word who talked compulsively while he was with her....

—"One House committee chairman who asked the 33-year-old woman to submit to bondage during his liaison."

Asked what she would say to "the men in this town who are shaking in their boots" because of her revelations, Miss Ray replied: "Have no fear, gentleman, I will not do anything to hurt you."

Kennerly said he dated Miss Ray on one occasion two years ago. He said, "I'm probably the only single guy she ever went out with."

Jacobsen Barred 7 Years

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — District Court Judge Herman Jones today barred former milk industry lobbyist Jake Jacobsen from practicing law in Texas for seven years.

The suspension was assessed after Jacobsen was sentenced in May to a seven-year probated sentence in connection with a theft charge.

He pleaded no contest to a state charge involving the misapplication of funds of a San Angelo savings and loan association.

Jones' order stated that Jacobsen cannot maintain an office, collect legal fees, perform legal services or practice law.

The complaint against Jacobsen was filed by the Texas State Bar.

Magna Carta Unveiled In Rotunda Of Capitol Today

By EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An original copy of the Magna Carta, the 761-year-old document that marked an early triumph for individual liberty over big government, was presented to the American people today by robed and bewigged leaders of the British Parliament.

A detachment of red-coated British guardsmen unveiled the Latin-inscribed charter in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol. It will remain on display for one year as a loan in honor of the Bicentennial and then be returned to the British Library.

"As streams join and make a mighty river, so have our Magna Carta and Bill of Rights and your Declaration of Independence and Constitution mingled to form a common heritage and tradition which has served as an inspiration to both our countries," said Lord Chancellor Elwyn-Jones, speaker of the House of Lords, at presentation ceremonies.

House Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma accepted the charter, saying it symbolizes the bonds of friendship between the United States and Great Britain. He described the charter as "the most important single political document in the long history of the English-speaking nations."

Albert, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and 17 other congressmen journeyed to London for a previous Magna Carta ceremony in Westminster Hall May 26.

The vellum document is one of four surviving original copies of the pact that rebellious barons forced King John of England to sign at Runnymede in 1215.

It is being displayed in the Capitol in a gold-lined case built especially for the presentation. The case will remain in the United States as a permanent gift to the American people and will house a gold-leaf reproduction of the charter after the original is returned to Great Britain.

The bedrock of England's constitutional history, the Magna Carta limited King John's royal authority and insured his subjects certain rights, including trial by a jury of peers. The barons felt John had abused his feudal rights with exorbitant taxes and levies. The king also angered them by expanding his royal courts at the expense of the baronial courts.

The noblemen took up arms and seized the city of London in May 1215, forcing King John to come to terms in the historic meeting at Runnymede on June 15, 1215.

Mrs. Johnson Receives Award

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson received the Golden Mercury Award today in recognition of her leadership in beautification throughout the world.

The award was made by Interflora, a world organization of florists, in ceremonies at the Lyndon B. Johnson Library.

Bernard J. Hillen, Austin, a vice president of Interflora, cited the effect of the national beautification program led by Mrs. Johnson.

"We see similar consequences in Europe and throughout the world in conservation and beautification that spring from Lady Bird Johnson's inspiration," he said. "Her efforts have had a very wide echo. Beautification has grown into an international movement of major proportions."

Aeroflot Jet Is Missing

MOSCOW (AP) — An Aeroflot jetliner has been missing for two days on a flight from Luanda, Angola, to Moscow, a Soviet aviation official said today.

The TU154 failed to arrive Tuesday at Malabo, Equatorial Guinea, the official said. He refused to say how many persons were aboard or what countries they were from.

A TU154 can carry 128 to 167 passengers.

Slip-Up Delays Flu Vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is being forced to delay its mass swine flu vaccination program for four to six weeks because a pharmaceutical company made two million doses of the wrong vaccine.

The slip-up occurred at Parke Davis & Co., the U.S. Public Health Service said Wednesday.

It will push back the government's plans to provide the first shots to high-risk elderly and chronically-ill persons starting in late July.

"The company has since changed strains and has significantly increased its production," said Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. But he added, "we will probably not have enough to begin innoculations of the high-risk group in late July."

The high-risk group will receive a combination vaccine against the swine-type influenza and A-Victoria influenza.

The government hopes to innoculate most Americans by fall against the rare but potentially deadly swine flu, which broke out at Ft. Dix, N.J., in February.

Parke-Davis was one of four drug companies producing the experimental vaccine for the government. The others have been making the right vacine, officials said.

The mistake was discovered last week during routine government tests.

Reagan Might Send Troops To White-Ruled Rhodesia

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Reagan says if he is elected president he might send American troops to white-ruled Rhodesia if the government there asked for help to preserve peace.

Reagan also said that as chief executive he would propose legislation to prevent forced busing of students.

The former California governor, challenging President Ford for the Republican presidential nomination, responded to questions about Rhodesia at an appearance Wednesday before the Sacramento Press Club.

Later, at a fund-raising party in the San Francisco suburb of Cupertino, Reagan told supporters, "It isn't true. I'm not going to declare war on Rhodesia. I made the mistake of speaking to the press club over in Sacramento. You have to be careful about what you say."

Reagan has spent the last several days campaigning in his home state, which offers 167 nominating delegates in next Tuesday's winner-take-all GOP primary election.

Ford, meantime, was in Washington where he said he expects to win the Republican nomination on the first ballot. He forecast victories in the Ohio and New Jersey primaries. He did not comment on his loss of the Montana and South Dakota primaries to Reagan on Tuesday.

The President now has 805 of the 1,130 delegates needed for the nomination. Reagan has won 654.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, the front-runner in the race for the Democratic nomination, left California Wednesday for Ohio after two days of campaigning. His departure was only a couple of hours before California's governor, Edmund G. Brown Jr., returned to his home state after a campaign swing through New Jersey.

Carter leads in delegates with 898 of the needed 1,505. Brown, whose campaign started late, has only 22½ delegates, but he claimed the biggest share of delegates elected Tuesday in Rhode Island.

Idaho Sen. Frank Church, another of the Democratic candidates, fell ill in Los Angeles with strep throat and a fever and canceled or delayed appearances in Northern California.

Arizona Rep. Morris Udall, who trails Carter in delegates with 305½, campaigned in Ohio.

Reagan, in Sacramento, said he didn't think an actual commitment of American troops to Rhodesia would be necessary to preserve the peace during a transition of power to the black majority.

Typhoon Disrupts Life On Guam

AGANA, Guam (AP) — Typhoon Pamela's 160-miles-per-hour winds caused few injuries and no deaths but its after-effects have disrupted the lives of virtually all of Guam's 85,000 residents.

The typhoon passed over the island May 21, snapping trees, tearing away roofs, cutting off power, water and communications. Damage estimates run as high as $500 million.

About 85 per cent of homes and businesses are still without power, and officials say electric service may not be normal for three months or more.

VIEWPOINT

The Primary Lesson

Many Texas Democrats expressed concern following the May 1 primary election when it dawned on them that they had nominated an obscure attorney who faced litigation himself as a candidate for the Texas Supreme Court. The situation appeared even more shocking because the Republican Party did not have a candidate on its ballot for that particular office, which means that the Democratic Party nominee will be unopposed on the general election ballot next November, which, in turn, means that he may expect to be elected with ease.

It was a clear-cut confirmation that most voters cast their ballots on the basis of personalities rather than qualifications for office. The Donald Yarbrough who won the Supreme Court nomination happened to have a surname that is well known in Texas political circles. Consequently, voters who had not looked into qualifications undoubtedly were victims of name association. They thought they were voting for someone they knew, at least vaguely.

It will be interesting now to see whether this shocker peps up in the electorate enough to do its duty this coming Saturday. Yes, in case you had forgotten, there is another election this Saturday, June 5. There are only a couple of state offices at stake. Do you know what they are and the names of the candidates? And do you plan to vote on Saturday, June 5?

Justice By Ignorance

The law's idea of what makes for a fair trial has degenerated to the point where only those who are totally ignorant of what is going on in the world are considered qualified to serve as jurors. Fortunately for the operation of the legal system, there seem to be plenty of people like that.

The National Observer reports the case of two members of the American Nazi Party facing trial in Milwaukee for allegedly threatening the occupants of a car driven by a local Jewish leader and breaking the car's windshield. It was expected that as many as 100 people would have to be questioned to find enough jurors and alternates without obvious anti-Nazi prejudices.

Surprisingly, only three of the first 23 prospective jurors were dismissed, and only two of them for cause. The others seemed to know almost nothing about Nazis, past or present, in Milwaukee or anywhere else. As one woman remarked, "I've heard of Nazis, but I don't listen to the news that much."

Nazis certainly have the right to a fair trial, just like anyone else. What is disturbing in this instance, especially because it no longer seems to be the exception but the rule, was the presumption—shared by judge, prosecutor and defense attorney alike—that no intelligent, well-informed person could be trusted to render them a fair judgment based solely on the facts of the offense they were charged with.

Letter To Editor

To The Daily News:

I would like to take time to express my deep appreciation to many people in your wonderful city.

Snyder has more nice people than any town I have lived in. The friendships which I acquired will always be foremost in my memory.

From the time I first arrived in Snyder and met the Joe Williamsons I knew I was really going to like Snyder. The Williamsons really took us under their wing and today I consider myself as close to them as if they were my parents as well as the best friends I've ever had. Snyder must be extremely proud to have such wonderful people as residents.

Right after the Williamsons I think of my professors at WTC. The one-to-one relationships which they offer their students leaves me in awe of such a situation. It is hard to believe that a small college can be filled with the quality professionalism that WTC boasts. While in attendance at WTC, I received more encouragement and learning from the professors than I thought was possible from any school. Particular mention should be made to Dr. Palmer and Mr. Pruitt, both of whom I will never forget. They care. Teachers such as these never receive the recognition that they justly deserve for what they accomplish. I would like for them to know that they have played a very big part in gearing my ambition for the future. I hope that some day I can be only a fraction of the men that they are. All my other professors were equally encouraging but there are so many to name that I felt there should be a couple that really stood out. WTC is truly blessed, and I will always consider it the finest institution of higher learning that I will ever or could ever attend. I really learned more in the last year than I ever thought I could as a result of the unified efforts of all my professors at WTC.

I wish to thank Snyder in general for a wonderful year.

Jerry N. Shurley Jr.

Ruling To Affect Cards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Odd-shaped greeting cards could fade from the drug store counters, a victim of a plan to make the Postal Service more efficient.

The Postal Service announced on Wednesday it plans to restrict the size of envelopes, effective April 15, 1978. Envelopes smaller than the specifications will be banned and a surcharge, of an amount to be determined later, will be levied for any envelopes larger than the specifications. Specifications will be set later by the Postal Rate Commission.

Most envelopes now in use will meet the specifications, but greeting cards, which come in a wide variety of shapes and sizes, will be heavily affected, postal officials said.

The delay until April 15, 1978, is to allow all envelope manufacturers to conform to the specifications.

Envelopes can be sorted more efficiently by machine if they all conform to size specifications, a Postal Service spokesman said. He said the size rules are expected to save money for the financially ailing agency.

The envelope measure was one of a series of money-saving rules approved by the Postal Service's board of governors.

Another innovation is a discount, effective July 6, for large business mailers who sort their own first-class letters before mailing.

These mailers will pay 12 cents per letter, instead of the regular 13-cent rate. This is the first discount ever offered on first-class mail. To qualify, mailers of at least 500 first-class letters must bundle their mail according to the zip code of the destination.

Postal officials say they hope the discount will bring back some patrons who have begun delivering their own mail.

Two Mishaps Are Reported

City police recorded two minor traffic accidents yesterday.

A 1968 Cherolet driven by Clara W. Jones was involved in a collision with a parked 1970 Chevrolet owned by Herman L. Stokes yesterday in the 2500 block of College Avenue. The mishap occurred at 5:22 p.m.

Involved in another minor accident yesterday at 10:47 p.m. in Towle Park was a 1967 Chevrolet driven by Sammy Simmons and a parked 1971 Ford owned by Mario Ramirez.

Hay Damaged In Afternoon Fire

A mid afternoon fire yesterday resulted in moderate damage to a hay shed belonging to Jess Campbell.

City firemen said the fire occurred yesterday about 2:55 p.m., approximately four miles south of the Ezell-Key feedlot on the China Grove Road.

An estimated eight bales of hay were destroyed in the blaze. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Juveniles Face Marijuana Count

During a routine check of a vehicle, city police arrested an 18-year-old man and two juveniles shortly after 1 a.m. today at the intersection of the East Highway and Avenue A.

The 18-year-old was charged with public intoxication, and the two juveniles were charged with possession of marijuana.

The 18-year-old man was released from city jail this morning after posting bond. The two juveniles, a boy and a girl, were released to the custody of their parents this morning.

Man Fights To Build Log Cabin

DARRINGTON, Wash. (AP) — O. C. Helton simply wanted to build a log cabin.

It took a fight in court against the Snohomish County Building Department to build it. But since he won, Helton said Tuesday, he hasn't had much time for work.

Fame won in the nationally publicized dispute has attracted too many visitors, Helton said.

"I got 6,000 letters and that's just about how many people I had through here after the trial," said the 6-foot-5 Helton. "I'd just get up to go to work," he said, pointing to the unfinished home, "then some folks would drive up and I'd have to come down and visit with them."

Standard Insurance Revamped

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gene O. Elder, new chief operating officer of Standard Life and Accident Insurance Co., said Wednesday the revamped company will be selling policies again within six months.

Elder, who will operate Standard as a subsidiary of American National Life Insurance Co. of Galveston, Tex., also said the firm probably will add some new insurance products to its lines.

The selling of policies was halted last year when Oklahoma County District Court Judge Homer Smith ordered state Insurance Commissioner Gerald Grimes to assume control of the financially ailing firm as a conservator.

The conservatorship led to an offer last December from American National to buy Standard for about $20 million.

Elder, who completed his first full day on the job Wednesday, said Standard will begin brokering some insurance through existing American National offices in Oklahoma to "get things started back up again."

He said the firm will be contacting former Standard agents about selling for the firm again.

"We will also be evaluating some of our products and won't just be directed at one market," Elder said. "There's no reason Standard can't be back in its rightful place in a very short time."

Standard will remain in Oklahoma City as an Oklahoma company, retaining nearly all employees, facilities and other operations.

Elder will work out of Galveston.

The firm Elder will head is a newly chartered corporate body formed by American National for which the assets of "old" Standard Life were transferred.

The "old" Standard Life was officially designated last Friday as Oklahoma City Life and Accident Insurance Co.

Oklahoma City Life will operate under the direction of a conservator, Jeffrey Hartman, and still faces about $13.5 million in unresolved claims against it.

Labor To Support Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany is promising the labor federation's "total all-out support" for a consumer boycott to be waged by the newly merged clothing workers union against J.P. Stevens & Co.

"J. P. Stevens took on the entire labor movement ... when it chose its lawless path to labor relations," he declared in a speech prepared for the merger today of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and the Textile Workers Union of America.

The merger of the two unions, representing a combined strength of more than 500,000 workers in the textile and men's apparel industries, consummated a year of negotiations.

Formal approval of the merger was voted earlier this week at separate conventions of each organization. At the same time, their leaders prepared plans for a new drive to organize clothing and textile workers in the South and Southwest.

The initial target will be J. P. Stevens, a firm Meany labeled "the No. 1 lawbreaker in the country."

For 13 years, the textile workers have attempted with little success to organize Stevens' 45,000 workers. In resisting the union's efforts, the company has been found guilty of labor law violations in 15 cases.

Meany noted that the AFL-CIO executive council voted last month "to take whatever action is necessary" to support the merged union in its organizing campaign at Stevens, including a nationwide consumer boycott expected to begin late this summer.

The new union will be known as the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union.

Lebanon Shops Closed In Protest

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies blockaded the streets of Beirut's Moslem quarters and closed all shops today to protest the Syrian invasion.

Two MIG17 Syrian jets streaked over the city, apparently on a reconnaissance mission. Witnesses said the planes flew at low altitude, and some gunmen dived for cover.

It was the first appearance of Syrian jets over Beirut since Syrian troops and tanks rolled across the eastern and northern Lebanese borders Tuesday to force peace on the warring Lebanese and preserve a Christian-Moslem balance of power.

The Syrian troops will be withdrawn from Lebanon when security is restored, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam said in Paris. Khaddam met with French officials to discuss the Syrian intervention.

Khaddam said Syrian troops were sent into Lebanon "only with the aim of reestablishing peace and order in the country."

Baghdad radio reported that Iraq has notified the Arab League that it opposes the invasion.

In Algiers, cabinet ministers from 17 nonaligned countries issued a communique upholding independence and territorial integrity for Lebanon.

In Cairo, a group of Palestinian and other Arab students occupied the Syrian Embassy to protest the intervention. Arab students in Moscow gathered in front of the Syrian Embassy carrying a poster reading "Hands Off Lebanon."

The invading force halted the 14-month-old civil war in northern and eastern Lebanon. Advance units at a mountain pass 20 miles east of Beirut were reported moving north in an apparent attempt to stop leftist Moslem forces shelling the fringes of the Christian enclave north of the capital.

Meanwhile, the Lebanese Moslems and Christians kept up sporadic street battles and artillery exchanges in Beirut during the night and in the nearby hill resorts. Security officials and hospitals estimated about 50 persons were killed and 80 were wounded.

Kamal Jumblatt, leader of leftist Lebanese forces, called a 24-hour general strike to protest the invasion. His troops set up street barricades of burning tires that halted traffic and most other activity on the streets of the Moslem quarters.

Palestinian guerrillas with Soviet AK47 assault rifles and hand grenades helped man the roadblocks. They turned back housewives, and bakeries, groceries and pharmacies were shuttered. Sidewalk vendors disappeared as the militiamen and guerrillas fired machine-gun volleys into the air.

The Independent newspaper An Nahar said Christian political leaders, who welcomed the Syrian invaders, were going to ask France to send troops to "balance and complement" the Syrian military intervention. The newspaper said President Suleiman Franjieh, a Christian, scheduled a meeting with French Ambassador Hubert Argod to make the request.

Beirut was without electric power for the second day. The last of 12 high-tension lines supplying the capital and its suburbs was knocked out Wednesday, a government spokesman said.

"Unless a cease-fire is arranged to allow repair teams to put the line in order, Beirut will remain without power indefinitely," the spokesman said. "Of course, this also raises the specter of hunger because bakeries, refrigerators and many other facilities are not working."

UN Urged To Aid Vietnams

BY SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A United Nations mission recommends that U.N. members give $432 million to help South Vietnam's new government move nearly half the country's 21 million people from the teeming cities to the countryside.

The mission recently returned from a 3½-week tour of North and South Vietnam. It reported that the new Saigon regime plans to resettle nearly 10 million people to alleviate the burden on the cities, reduce unemployment and restore agricultural production wrecked by the war.

Saigon recently reported that more than 400,000 "volunteers" had moved from the cities to the country in the year since the Communists took over. In Cambodia, the Communists marched 4 million people out of Phnom Penh and other towns and drove them into rural communes. The U.S. State Department estimates that 250,000 died.

The four-member U.N. group, headed by Dr. Victor Umbricht of Switzerland, said in its report to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim that the South Vietnamese government is giving top priority to reducing the urban population.

The mission's recommendation of foreign aid for the program was questioned by some Western diplomats at U.N. headquarters. They said the mission was endorsing a forcible transfer of people that may run counter to the principles of human rights recognized by the world organization.

But a U.N. official said the organization "routinely" helps resettlement programs.

The principal crops in Algeria are wheat, barley and oats.

WITH SOME VOLUNTEER HELP

Mastectomees Get On With Living

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The worst is over. The surgeon has removed the breast and, in many cases, cancerous lymph glands in the armpit and under the breastbone.

Now, the woman picks herself up, goes out and buys artificial breast and gets back to the business of living.

Surely, her doctor helps. Surely, he supports her through the trauma, explains about exercises and a breast substitute or prosthesis.

Yes and no. For all those who do, say many mastectomy patients, there are those who don't.

See my secretary, she'll tell you what to do," is often the doctor's advice. Or even, just fill your bra with cotton or a stocking, was the helpful word some patients reported getting.

In 1952, a mastectomee named Terese Lasser founded Reach to Recovery, a program designed to do what often isn't done for the patient. Adopted by the American Cancer Society in 1969, it's simple enough.

A former mastectomy patient visits a new mastectomy patient in the hospital, with the doctor's consent.

She brings an exercise kit (the patient needs to regain the mobility in the arm and shoulder affected by the operation), a Reach to Recovery manual, and a temporary, weightless breast prosthesis that can be pinned inside the patient's nightgown.

She also brings empathy, encouragement and stand-up proof that a woman who has lost one or both breasts can function like any other woman.

Later, when the patient is ready for permanent prosthesis, the volunteer will shop with her if she likes.

Most of the Society's 3,000 local, autonomous offices have product samples on hand for comparison, and all of them provide a list of manufacturers, their products, prices and local outlets.

"We have 10,000 volunteers who are helping to see a potential of 75,000 new mastectomees every year get the psychological assistance they need," says Virginia B. Sinon, spokeswoman for the Society's national office in New York City.

SELECTING MASTECTOMY BRA—With mastectomy the "secret to feeling good is in your head, not in your bosom." An example may be selection of a Caprolan nylon mastectomy bra (bottom), whose only difference is a sewn-in pocket to hold the prosthesis. Tank-top bathing suit provides coverage for incisions and also contains pockets for bra. This is only one of many bathing suits available. If she wishes, mastectomee can convert her own bras and bathing suits to suit her needs.

"One volunteer sees approximately seven women a year and last year, 50,000 women received that kind of treatment."

The "treatment" is short. Two or three visits at most.

"We want these women to get back to their normal living as soon as possible, so we don't encourage long friendships, nor do we encourage clubs. We don't want them to dwell on their surgery."

Thirty years ago, Fanny Rosenau underwent a radical mastectomy. In 1953, she ran into Teresa Lasser in a New York corset shop, learned of Mrs. Lasser's then fledgling Reach to Recovery program and moved in to help build it.

A woman who spontaneously links arms with people, she's a robust 79-year-old who knows all there is to know about breast prostheses.

"When I was operated on 30 years ago," she says, "the only thing I could buy was foam rubber and, of course, I was delighted to have anything. To fill the shoulder depression, I used cotton and handkerchieves which never stayed in place."

The prosthesis didn't stay in place, either, when she raised her arm. "Every time my husband scratched his left ear, it meant pull down your bra. The left breast had risen and stayed there.

"After five years, a weighted plastic prosthesis filled with a viscous fluid that takes on body temperature came out. I though it was gorgeous, but after a year it dried up and there was nothing left put powder. So every spring when I did my closets and drawers, I bought a new breast form because I wasn't 'even' anymore."

Finally, "these silicone ones came out. In my opinion, they're the best, but they're also the most expensive. My size 40 costs $110, but it lasts for years."

Still, she says, each woman's needs are different. There are dozens of products on the market ranging from inexpensive polyester or air-filled forms, to the silicone prostheses which try to simulate the feel and movement of real flesh. The important point is to restore the weight of the breast to the body for balance and posture. After that, it's up to the individual: what she's comfortable with, what she can afford, and what suits her needs because no two operations are alike.

"When a mastectomy patient comes in to the New York office of the American Cancer Society, I show her samples an she says, that's too heavy, I can't wear it. What she doesn't understand is that it's not heavy on the chest wall. So I slip one in her bra, we schmooze (talk) about her mother-in-law, and she forgets she has it on.

"There's no problem for the healthy woman who isn't so hung up on her chest," she concludes. "The secret to feeling good is in your head, not in your bosom."

CREAMED TURNIP GREENS

Two 10-ounce packages frozen chopped turnip greens
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2 egg yolks slightly beaten with ¼ cup milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook turnip greens according to package directions but increase boiling time to about one hour if you want them really tender; drain. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and 1 cup milk; gradually stir in the egg-yolk mixture; stir constantly over low heat to allow to thicken slightly — do not boil. Stir in turnip greens, lemon juice and salt and pepper. Reheat without boiling. Makes 6 servings.

We are indebted to H. W. Kelsey and his "Bridge Logic" for another hand. You have reached three notrump without showing your club suit and West opens the eight of clubs. One entry is gone from dummy, but you don't worry — or maybe you do.

Anyway, you lead a heart to your queen which holds. You cash your ace of hearts and East drops a club. How can you establish your hearts?

The simple way is to lead a diamond and play dummy's 10. If it holds you will make a lot of tricks. If it loses and a spade comes back, your contract may disappear into thin air.

Do you need four diamond tricks? No, two will be enough.

You lead your queen of diamonds to dummy's king! Now you lead the jack of hearts. West wins but he can't lead that deadly spade. He leads a second club. You take your king and lead a low diamond to dummy's 10 and nine. You are sure of your contract in spite of all your misfortunes.

VIEWPOINT

The Primary Lesson

Many Texas Democrats expressed concern following the May 1 primary election when it dawned on them that they had nominated an obscure attorney who faced litigation himself as a candidate for the Texas Supreme Court. The situation appeared even more shocking because the Republican Party did not have a candidate on its ballot for that particular office, which means that the Democratic Party nominee will be unopposed on the general election ballot next November, which, in turn, means that he may expect to be elected with ease.

It was a clear-cut confirmation that most voters cast their ballots on the basis of personalities rather than qualifications for office. The Donald Yarbrough who won the Supreme Court nomination happened to have a surname that is well known in Texas political circles. Consequently, voters who had not looked into qualifications undoubtedly were victims of name association. They thought they were voting for someone they knew, at least vaguely.

It will be interesting now to see whether this shocker peps up in the electorate enough to do its duty this coming Saturday. Yes, in case you had forgotten, there is another election this Saturday, June 5. There are only a couple of state offices at stake. Do you know what they are and the names of the candidates? And do you plan to vote on Saturday, June 5?

Justice By Ignorance

The law's idea of what makes for a fair trial has degenerated to the point where only those who are totally ignorant of what is going on in the world are considered qualified to serve as jurors. Fortunately for the operation of the legal system, there seem to be plenty of people like that.

The National Observer reports the case of two members of the American Nazi Party facing trial in Milwaukee for allegedly threatening the occupants of a car driven by a local Jewish leader and breaking the car's windshield. It was expected that as many as 100 people would have to be questioned to find enough jurors and alternates without obvious anti-Nazi prejudices.

Surprisingly, only three of the first 23 prospective jurors were dismissed, and only two of them for cause. The others seemed to know almost nothing about Nazis, past or present, in Milwaukee or anywhere else. As one woman remarked, "I've heard of Nazis, but I don't listen to the news that much."

Nazis certainly have the right to a fair trial, just like anyone else. What is disturbing in this instance, especially because it no longer seems to be the exception but the rule, was the presumption—shared by judge, prosecutor and defense attorney alike—that no intelligent, well-informed person could be trusted to render them a fair judgment based solely on the facts of the offense they were charged with.

Letter To Editor

To The Daily News:

I would like to take time to express my deep appreciation to many people in your wonderful city.

Snyder has more nice people than any town I have lived in. The friendships which I acquired will always be foremost in my memory.

From the time I first arrived in Snyder and met the Joe Williamsons I knew I was really going to like Snyder. The Williamsons really took us under their wing and today I consider myself as close to them as if they were my parents as well as the best friends I've ever had. Snyder must be extremely proud to have such wonderful people as residents.

Right after the Williamsons I think of my professors at WTC. The one-to-one relationships which they offer their students leaves me in awe of such a situation. It is hard to believe that a small college can be filled with the quality professionalism that WTC boasts. While in attendance at WTC, I received more encouragement and learning from the professors than I thought was possible from any school. Particular mention should be made to Dr. Palmer and Mr. Pruitt, both of whom I will never forget. They care. Teachers such as these never receive the recognition that they justly deserve for what they accomplish. I would like for them to know that they have played a very big part in gearing my ambition for the future. I hope that some day I can be only a fraction of the men that they are. All my other professors were equally encouraging but there are so many to name that I felt there should be a couple that really stood out. WTC is truly blessed, and I will always consider it the finest institution of higher learning that I will ever or could ever attend. I really learned more in the last year than I ever thought I could as a result of the unified efforts of all my professors at WTC.

I wish to thank Snyder in general for a wonderful year.

Ruling To Affect Cards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Odd-shaped greeting cards could fade from the drug store counters, a victim of a plan to make the Postal Service more efficient.

The Postal Service announced on Wednesday it plans to restrict the size of envelopes, effective April 15, 1978. Envelopes smaller than the specifications will be banned and a surcharge, of an amount to be determined later, will be levied for any envelopes larger than the specifications. Specifications will be set later by the Postal Rate Commission.

Most envelopes now in use will meet the specifications, but greeting cards, which come in a wide variety of shapes and sizes, will be heavily affected, postal officials said.

The delay until April 15, 1978, is to allow all envelope manufacturers to conform to the specifications.

Envelopes can be sorted more efficiently by machine if they all conform to size specifications, a Postal Service spokesman said. He said the size rules are expected to save money for the financially ailing agency.

The envelope measure was one of a series of money-saving rules approved by the Postal Service's board of governors.

Another innovation is a discount, effective July 6, for large business mailers who sort their own first-class letters before mailing.

These mailers will pay 12 cents per letter, instead of the regular 13-cent rate. This is the first discount ever offered on first-class mail. To qualify, mailers of at least 500 first-class letters must bundle their mail according to the zip code of the destination.

Postal officials say they hope the discount will bring back some patrons who have begun delivering their own mail.

Two Mishaps Are Reported

City police recorded two minor traffic accidents yesterday.

A 1968 Cherolet driven by Clara W. Jones was involved in a collision with a parked 1970 Chevrolet owned by Herman L. Stokes yesterday in the 2500 block of College Avenue. The mishap occurred at 5:22 p.m.

Involved in another minor accident yesterday at 10:47 p.m. in Towle Park was a 1967 Chevrolet driven by Sammy Simmons and a parked 1971 Ford owned by Mario Ramirez.

Hay Damaged In Afternoon Fire

A mid afternoon fire yesterday resulted in moderate damage to a hay shed belonging to Jess Campbell.

City firemen said the fire occurred yesterday about 2:55 p.m., approximately four miles south of the Ezell-Key feedlot on the China Grove Road.

An estimated eight bales of hay were destroyed in the blaze. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Juveniles Face Marijuana Count

During a routine check of a vehicle, city police arrested an 18-year-old man and two juveniles shortly after 1 a.m. today at the intersection of the East Highway and Avenue A.

The 18-year-old was charged with public intoxication, and the two juveniles were charged with possession of marijuana.

The 18-year-old man was released from city jail this morning after posting bond. The two juveniles, a boy and a girl, were released to the custody of their parents this morning.

Man Fights To Build Log Cabin

DARRINGTON, Wash. (AP) — O. C. Helton simply wanted to build a log cabin.

It took a fight in court against the Snohomish County Building Department to build it. But since he won, Helton said Tuesday, he hasn't had much time for work.

Fame won in the nationally publicized dispute has attracted too many visitors, Helton said.

"I got 6,000 letters and that's just about how many people I had through here after the trial," said the 6-foot-5 Helton. "I'd just get up to go to work," he said, pointing to the unfinished home, "then some folks would drive up and I'd have to come down and visit with them."

Standard Insurance Revamped

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gene O. Elder, new chief operating officer of Standard Life and Accident Insurance Co., said Wednesday the revamped company will be selling policies again within six months.

Elder, who will operate Standard as a subsidiary of American National Life Insurance Co. of Galveston, Tex., also said the firm probably will add some new insurance products to its lines.

The selling of policies was halted last year when Oklahoma County District Court Judge Homer Smith ordered state Insurance Commissioner Gerald Grimes to assume control of the financially ailing firm as a conservator.

The conservatorship led to an offer last December from American National to buy Standard for about $20 million.

Elder, who completed his first full day on the job Wednesday, said Standard will begin brokering some insurance through existing American National offices in Oklahoma to "get things started back up again."

He said the firm will be contacting former Standard agents about selling for the firm again.

"We will also be evaluating some of our products and won't just be directed at one market," Elder said. "There's no reason Standard can't be back in its rightful place in a very short time."

Standard will remain in Oklahoma City as an Oklahoma company, retaining nearly all employees, facilities and other operations.

Elder will work out of Galveston.

The firm Elder will head is a newly chartered corporate body formed by American National for which the assets of "old" Standard Life were transferred.

The "old" Standard Life was officially designated last Friday as Oklahoma City Life and Accident Insurance Co.

Oklahoma City Life will operate under the direction of a conservator, Jeffrey Hartman, and still faces about $13.5 million in unresolved claims against it.

Labor To Support Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany is promising the labor federation's "total all-out support" for a consumer boycott to be waged by the newly merged clothing workers union against J.P. Stevens & Co.

"J. P. Stevens took on the entire labor movement ... when it chose its lawless path to labor relations," he declared in a speech prepared for the merger today of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and the Textile Workers Union of America.

The merger of the two unions, representing a combined strength of more than 500,000 workers in the textile and men's apparel industries, consummated a year of negotiations.

Formal approval of the merger was voted earlier this week at separate conventions of each organization. At the same time, their leaders prepared plans for a new drive to organize clothing and textile workers in the South and Southwest.

The initial target will be J. P. Stevens, a firm Meany labeled "the No. 1 lawbreaker in the country."

For 13 years, the textile workers have attempted with little success to organize Stevens' 45,000 workers. In resisting the union's efforts, the company has been found guilty of labor law violations in 15 cases.

Meany noted that the AFL-CIO executive council voted last month "to take whatever action is necessary" to support the merged union in its organizing campaign at Stevens, including a nationwide consumer boycott expected to begin late this summer.

The new union will be known as the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union.

Lebanon Shops Closed In Protest

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies blockaded the streets of Beirut's Moslem quarters and closed all shops today to protest the Syrian invasion.

Two MIG17 Syrian jets streaked over the city, apparently on a reconnaissance mission. Witnesses said the planes flew at low altitude, and some gunmen dived for cover.

It was the first appearance of Syrian jets over Beirut since Syrian troops and tanks rolled across the eastern and northern Lebanese borders Tuesday to force peace on the warring Lebanese and preserve a Christian-Moslem balance of power.

The Syrian troops will be withdrawn from Lebanon when security is restored, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam said in Paris. Khaddam met with French officials to discuss the Syrian intervention.

Khaddam said Syrian troops were sent into Lebanon "only with the aim of reestablishing peace and order in the country."

Baghdad radio reported that Iraq has notified the Arab League that it opposes the invasion.

In Algiers, cabinet ministers from 17 nonaligned countries issued a communique upholding independence and territorial integrity for Lebanon.

In Cairo, a group of Palestinian and other Arab students occupied the Syrian Embassy to protest the intervention. Arab students in Moscow gathered in front of the Syrian Embassy carrying a poster reading "Hands Off Lebanon."

The invading force halted the 14-month-old civil war in northern and eastern Lebanon. Advance units at a mountain pass 20 miles east of Beirut were reported moving north in an apparent attempt to stop leftist Moslem forces shelling the fringes of the Christian enclave north of the capital.

Meanwhile, the Lebanese Moslems and Christians kept up sporadic street battles and artillery exchanges in Beirut during the night and in the nearby hill resorts. Security officials and hospitals estimated about 50 persons were killed and 80 were wounded.

Kamal Jumblatt, leader of leftist Lebanese forces, called a 24-hour general strike to protest the invasion. His troops set up street barricades of burning tires that halted traffic and most other activity on the streets of the Moslem quarters.

Palestinian guerrillas with Soviet AK47 assault rifles and hand grenades helped man the roadblocks. They turned back housewives, and bakeries, groceries and pharmacies were shuttered. Sidewalk vendors disappeared as the militiamen and guerrillas fired machine-gun volleys into the air.

The Independent newspaper An Nahar said Christian political leaders, who welcomed the Syrian invaders, were going to ask France to send troops to "balance and complement" the Syrian military intervention. The newspaper said President Suleiman Franjieh, a Christian, scheduled a meeting with French Ambassador Hubert Argod to make the request.

Beirut was without electric power for the second day. The last of 12 high-tension lines supplying the capital and its suburbs was knocked out Wednesday, a government spokesman said.

"Unless a cease-fire is arranged to allow repair teams to put the line in order, Beirut will remain without power indefinitely," the spokesman said. "Of course, this also raises the specter of hunger because bakeries, refrigerators and many other facilities are not working."

UN Urged To Aid Vietnams

BY SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A United Nations mission recommends that U.N. members give $432 million to help South Vietnam's new government move nearly half the country's 21 million people from the teeming cities to the countryside.

The mission recently returned from a 3½-week tour of North and South Vietnam. It reported that the new Saigon regime plans to resettle nearly 10 million people to alleviate the burden on the cities, reduce unemployment and restore agricultural production wrecked by the war.

Saigon recently reported that more than 400,000 "volunteers" had moved from the cities to the country in the year since the Communists took over. In Cambodia, the Communists marched 4 million people out of Phnom Penh and other towns and drove them into rural communes. The U.S. State Department estimates that 250,000 died.

The four-member U.N. group, headed by Dr. Victor Umbricht of Switzerland, said in its report to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim that the South Vietnamese government is giving top priority to reducing the urban population.

The mission's recommendation of foreign aid for the program was questioned by some Western diplomats at U.N. headquarters. They said the mission was endorsing a forcible transfer of people that may run counter to the principles of human rights recognized by the world organization.

But a U.N. official said the organization "routinely" helps resettlement programs.

The principal crops in Algeria are wheat, barley and oats.

WITH SOME VOLUNTEER HELP

Mastectomees Get On With Living

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The worst is over. The surgeon has removed the breast and, in many cases, cancerous lymph glands in the armpit and under the breastbone.

Now, the woman picks herself up, goes out and buys artificial breast and gets back to the business of living.

Surely, her doctor helps. Surely, he supports her through the trauma, explains about exercises and a breast substitute or prosthesis.

Yes and no. For all those who do, say many mastectomy patients, there are those who don't.

See my secretary, she'll tell you what to do, is often the doctor's advice. Or even, just fill your bra with cotton or a stocking, was the helpful word some patients reported getting.

In 1952, a mastectomee named Terese Lasser founded Reach to Recovery, a program designed to do what often isn't done for the patient. Adopted by the American Cancer Society in 1969, it's simple enough.

A former mastectomy patient visits a new mastectomy patient in the hospital, with the doctor's consent.

She brings an exercise kit (the patient needs to regain the mobility in the arm and shoulder affected by the operation), a Reach to Recovery manual, and a temporary, weightless breast prosthesis that can be pinned inside the patient's nightgown.

She also brings empathy, encouragement and stand-up proof that a woman who has lost one or both breasts can function like any other woman.

Later, when the patient is ready for permanent prosthesis, the volunteer will shop with her if she likes.

Most of the Society's 3,000 local, autonomous offices have product samples on hand for comparison, and all of them provide a list of manufacturers, their products, prices and local outlets.

"We have 10,000 volunteers who are helping to see a potential of 75,000 new mastectomees every year get the psychological assistance they need," says Virginia B. Sinon, spokeswoman for the Society's national office in New York City.

SELECTING MASTECTOMY BRA—With mastectomy the "secret to feeling good is in your head, not in your bosom." An example may be selection of a Caprolan nylon mastectomy bra (bottom), whose only difference is a sewn-in pocket to hold the prosthesis. Tank-top bathing suit provides coverage for incisions and also contains pockets for bra. This is only one of many bathing suits available. If she wishes, mastectomee can convert her own bras and bathing suits to suit her needs.

"One volunteer sees approximately seven women a year and last year, 50,000 women received that kind of treatment."

The "treatment" is short. Two or three visits at most.

"We want these women to get back to their normal living as soon as possible, so we don't encourage long friendships, nor do we encourage clubs. We don't want them to dwell on their surgery."

Thirty years ago, Fanny Rosenau underwent a radical mastectomy. In 1953, she ran into Teresa Lasser in a New York corset shop, learned of Mrs. Lasser's then fledgling Reach to Recovery program and moved in to help build it.

A woman who spontaneously links arms with people, she's a robust 79-year-old who knows all there is to know about breast prostheses.

"When I was operated on 30 years ago," she says, "the only thing I could buy was foam rubber and, of course, I was delighted to have anything. To fill the shoulder depression, I used cotton and handkerchieves which never stayed in place."

The prosthesis didn't stay in place, either, when she raised her arm. "Every time my husband scratched his left ear, it meant pull down your bra. The left breast had risen and stayed there.

"After five years, a weighted plastic prosthesis filled with a viscous fluid that takes on body temperature came out. I though it was gorgeous, but after a year it dried up and there was nothing left put powder. So every spring when I did my closets and drawers, I bought a new breast form because I wasn't 'even' anymore."

Finally, "these silicone ones came out. In my opinion, they're the best, but they're also the most expensive. My size 40 costs $110, but it lasts for years."

Still, she says, each woman's needs are different. There are dozens of products on the market ranging from inexpensive polyester or air-filled forms, to the silicone prostheses which try to simulate the feel and movement of real flesh. The important point is to restore the weight of the breast to the body for balance and posture. After that, it's up to the individual: what she's comfortable with, what she can afford, and what suits her needs because no two operations are alike.

"When a mastectomy patient comes in to the New York office of the American Cancer Society, I show her samples an she says, that's too heavy, I can't wear it. What she doesn't understand is that it's not heavy on the chest wall. So I slip one in her bra, we schmooze (talk) about her mother-in-law, and she forgets she has it on.

"There's no problem for the healthy woman who isn't so hung up on her chest," she concludes. "The secret to feeling good is in your head, not in your bosom."

Opening lead — 8 ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

We are indebted to H. W. Kelsey and his "Bridge Logic" for another hand. You have reached three notrump without showing your club suit and West opens the eight of clubs. One entry is gone from dummy, but you don't worry — or maybe you do.

Anyway, you lead a heart to your queen which holds. You cash your ace of hearts and East drops a club. How can you establish your hearts?

The simple way is to lead a diamond and play dummy's 10. If it holds you will make a lot of tricks. If it loses and a spade comes back, your contract may disappear into thin air.

Do you need four diamond tricks? No, two will be enough.

You lead your queen of diamonds to dummy's king! Now you lead the jack of hearts. West wins but he can't lead that deadly spade. He leads a second club. You take your king and lead a low diamond to dummy's 10 and nine. You are sure of your contract in spite of all your misfortunes.

Ask the Jacobys

A Michigan reader wants to know what you respond to partner's one-spade opening with:

♠ — ♥ A 10 8 7 2 ♦ A 9 7 6 4 ♣ 10 8 3

This is one of those problems with no answer. In standard American you are supposed to respond one notrump, but everyone hates to bid notrump with your distribution. So we tend to take a chance, respond two hearts and hope for the best.

British Pound Losing Weight

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Britain's pound continued its slide today, dropping another two cents to a new low of $1.7010.

Political commentators predicted that the Labor government would ride out the crisis for at least two more weeks to insure union approval of the 4½ per cent ceiling on wage increases.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey declared in two television appearances Wednesday night that it would be foolish "to take measures which ... would bust the relationship between the government and the unions."

This in effect rejected growing demands from the business community and the Conservative opposition for sizable cuts in government spending to reduce government borrowing and help restore foreign confidence in the pound.

The British currency fell to a new low of $1.716 Wednesday, then recovered slightly to close at $1.7213.

The commentators said the government believes that if it reduced spending on welfare, schools, the medical service and other government programs, the 10-million-member Trades Union Congress, would not ratify the wage restraint ceiling when it meets June 16.

Union leaders agreed to the deal several weeks ago, but it needs TUC approval. Many unions have accepted the deal reluctantly, and there are strong indications that the 260,000 coal miners will reject it in a vote now being taken.

Healey in his television appearances appealed for calm.

"The important thing is to keep our nerve and not panic because panic action now would do infinitely more damage than good," he declared in broadcasts at home and abroad.

In an interview with NBC Radio broadcast in the United States, he said the Wesi German and Dutch central banks as well as the U.S. Federal Reserve agree with him that "there's absolutely no economic justification for the present rate" of the pound.

"The depreciation has gone much lower than is justified by economic factors, and I think the market will come to terms with these realities in the coming weeks and we shall see the rate moving up again."

TOO MUCH TIME FIGHTING FEDS

Attorney General Offices Have Been Transformed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The U.S. Department of Justice should make a greater effort to negotiate settlements before filing lawsuits against the states, says the president of the National Associaton of Attorneys General (NAAG).

Mississippi Atty. Gen. A.F. Summer says the modern attorney general is spending an inordinate amount of time battling the federal government.

"The office of the state attorney general has been transformed over the past few years from an agency handling the state's legal affairs into the storm center of federal-state litigation," he said.

Summer spoke in an interview as attorneys general from the states and U.S. territories gathered for their annual convention which begins here today.

From being just a state's lawyer, he said, the attorney general is now the state's "troubleshooter, defender and advocate in practically all matters that affect state government."

"We sometimes are fighting just to maintain our status as states, it appears," said Summer. "And we're trying to get the idea across in Washington that we are one country and that we are brothers and that it's not necessary for the multitudinous amount of litigation and orders and decrees."

One of the topics to be discussed at the convention is joint state action "to stop the federal intervention into the affairs of our states and the personal lives of our citizens," he said.

The Mississippi Democrat said the federal government is "preempting and taking control of the state's prerogatives to pass and administer its own laws and spend its own money as it sees fit without direction from the federal government or the federal courts."

He said the suits against the states are largely the result of an explosion of bureaucratic rules and regulations which are often misunderstood or misinterpreted by the states.

Summer said this "states' rights" viewpoint is shared by most of the state attorneys general and is not just a regional, Southern stand.

He cited federal lawsuits against states concerning pollution, welfare, prison reform, mental health treatment, education and tax structures.

The attorneys general at the convention will discuss problems common to their states, advise and consult each other on pending lawsuits and discuss how to improve their effectiveness in office, Summer said.

"We are all concerned about the rising crime rate and how we can help bring it to a halt," he said.

U.S. Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi will be the featured guest at a reception tonight. Business sessions and committee meetings begin Friday and continue through the end of the convention Sunday.

About 350 persons are expected to attend the meeting, hosted this year by Texas Atty. Gen. John L. Hill.

Cheating Incident Regrettable

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) — The Coast Guard commandant says a cheating incident at the service's academy was regrettable "but there are always a few" and "six out of 1,100 cadets is not a great percentage."

Graduation ceremonies for the 242-member senior class took place Wednesday as the lowest ranked cadet in the group was forced to resign after being found guilty of cheating. Five underclassmen have also been found guilty of cheating and asked to leave the academy.

"I'm happy it was a small number," the commandant, Adm. Owen Siler said Wednesday.

Steven K. Barker, of El Paso, Tex., the cadet who was asked to resign from the academy, did not attend the ceremonies as scheduled. He will receive a diploma but is no longer obliged to give the Coast Guard five years of duty. An academy spokesman said Barker will be listed as an inactive reservist who would be called up only in the event of a national emergency.

Barker has said he deliberately cheated on a test so he would be forced out of the service.

"The Coast Guard is not my life," he said, adding he now plans to get a degree in physical therapy.

Capt. Wayne Caldwell, whose commission at the academy as assistant superintendent ended at the commencement, said cadets found cheating "will have to live in those certain circles that will accept such activity" once they leave the academy.

One of five underclassmen found guilty of cheating has agreed to leave the institution. The others have not yet responded to the order from academy officials.

Drug Increases Uterine Cancer

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The drug estrogen, which emerged in the 1960s as a common cure for the miseries of menopause, probably is responsible for a dramatic increase in uterine cancer among middle-age women, say two research studies published today.

The studies show uterine cancer increased markedly in the 1970s and is closely linked with women who took estrogen during menopause.

The reports were published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

One of the studies, a statistical report, showed uterine cancer increased at least 40 per cent and as much as 150 per cent among middle-age women between 1969 and 1973. The rate of increase varied among sections of the country.

The researchers said the findings "give evidence for a rapid increase of a magnitude that has rarely been paralleled in the history of cancer reporting in this country."

Dr. Noel S. Weiss, who directed the statistical study at the University of Washington, said the use of estrogen has increased rapidly to treat the hot flashes, depression and irritability of menopause. Across the United States, the dollar value of the drug prescribed in 1973 was almost four times more than 10 years earlier, he said.

"The important point is that it makes it unlikely that the assertion can be made that the disease is due to some characteristic of the women rather than the medicine they are taking," he said in an interview.

The other study was directed by Dr. Thomas M. Mack of the University of Southern California. It concluded that there is "a high level of statistical significance" to the theory that estrogen causes uterine cancer.

The disease appeared from four to eight years after the women stopped using the drug, Mack said. Generally, the greatest risk of getting cancer was among those who took the largest doses over the longest periods, he said.

Longet Hearing To Be Closed

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — A judge has shut the door to reporters and the public for a June 10 preliminary hearing for singer-actress Claudine Longet, accused of manslaughter in the death of a professional skier.

Miss Longet, 34, faces trial in the shooting death of Vladimir "Spider" Sabich, with whom she had been living for two years.

On Wednesday, District Court Judge George Lohr granted a defense motion asking that the hearing be closed to prevent prejudicial news coverage.

He also issued a gag order prohibiting participants in the hearing from discussing it outside the courtroom and ordered transcripts sealed until the proceedings are over.

Lohr called news coverage of the case "massive, pervasive and geographically widespread," and said he feared Miss Longet would be unable to get a fair trial in any area in which the case might be tried.

He said "sensitive" evidence, including a diary kept by Miss Longet and results of blood and urine tests, would be discussed at next week's hearing and might be inadmissible at the trial. The hearing was scheduled to argue a defense motion that the diary, considered an important piece of evidence in the case, be suppressed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are a little slow starting today, till someone waves a dollar sign in front of you. Then stand back, for the sparks will fly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, expensive diversions won't equal something you put together on the spur of the moment with a few friends for some laughs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In making any decorative changes around home today, be sure they're not merely decorative. If choice is necessary, favor utility.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Go out of your way to pay compliments if they're deserved. However, don't be lavish with your praise if it isn't really earned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take advantage of your ability today to develop situations that can spell personal gain or advancement. You are extra clever in this area.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your motivation today should be the right thing to do. Don't move on the possibility of praise or blame by your peers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Looking out for the other guy will be far more profitable today than promoting narrow self-interests. Unselfishness pays.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you have friends who can help you businesswise today, resist imposing on them. If you want to call them for a friendly chat, OK.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You can attain important goals today if you involve only those who have a specific role in the situation. Don't bring along outsiders just for the ride.

'CHOICE OF TWO BIRCHERS'

Close Race Is Seen For Office Of Late Patman

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

MARSHALL, Tex. (AP) — One political observer said recently, "It's a choice of two John Birchers."

He referred to the runoff Saturday for the Democratic nominee in Texas' 1st Congressional District.

The contest marks the first time in almost half a century that there is a question as to the nominee.

Rep. Wright Patman of Texarkana was often challenged but never beaten in those years and became a political way of life in this East Texas district.

Patman died earlier this year after announcing his retirement from Congress, and 10 Democrats jumped into the race. Several of them had been beaten by Patman in previous contests.

Now there are two.

They are Sam B. Hall Jr., 52, a Marshall lawyer once beaten by Patman, and Glen Jones, 35, a college professor and Methodist minister from Jacksonville, who also failed in an effort to unseat the veteran lawmaker.

Both have waved the conservative banner in the runoff campaign as they toured the sprawling 23-county district that stretches from Texarkana south to San Augustine and west to Athens.

Political observers told The Associated Press the June 5 runoff contest was too close to call. Hall apparently had the early lead, but Jones has surged in the past few weeks.

The winner of the runoff will have Republican opposition in November but a GOP victory in these parts would be close to a miracle.

There is another twist to this voter search for a Patman replacement.

A special election is scheduled June 19 to fill the unexpired term and both Hall and Jones are entered.

The possibility exists that one could win the Democratic nomination, the other the special election, and the incumbent couldn't get on the ballot in November as the party nominee.

During a recent debate in Marshall, supporters of both candidates were whispering that the opponent was receiving financial backing from the John Birch Society.

Conservatism long has been the by-word in this mostly rural area, where the largest cities range from some 35,000 residents in Texarkana to 28,000 at Marshall and 25,000 at Paris.

In the Marshall debate, both Hall and Jones criticized big government, excessive spending, foreign aid and a declining military posture.

These were the things the voters wanted to hear.

Jones said the federal government "has taken away the rights of the people. As an ordained minister, I would like to restore a balance in government and have someone to speak for the people."

Hall repeated the theme, saying, "We have excessive government spending, too much centralization of government in Washington, and we have spent money in foreign fields when it should not have been wasted. We also must realize we no longer are the strongest military nation in the world."

Hall led the ticket in the first primary by about 2,500 votes over Jones. Eliminated was the third-place man, Gilmer Dist. Atty. Welby Parish, who had the support of organized labor.

Where those 23,000 votes go Saturday is the answer to the runoff election.

There also is a geographical consideration. Texarkana, the largest city in the district, voted for Jones the first go-round. Marshall, the second largest, supported its hometown candidate.

The key now apparently is Paris and possibly Bonham.

Jones, who lives in the southern tip of the district, is expected to carry his area, Hall is certain to win big in the central part of the district. Up in the northern fringe, along the Arkansas and Oklahoma borders, the decision will be made.

If endorsements mean anything, Hall has the edge.

Most of the larger newspapers in the area have come out in support of Hall.

Connor Patman of Texarkana, son of the late congressman, recently issued a statement saying, "My father devoted his life to the people of the 1st Congressional District, serving them faithfully in the House for nearly 48 years. It should come as no surprise that I have an active interest in the qualifications of his successor ... I believe he should be a Democrat, a person with a demonstrated record of public service, a well-balanced individual of intelligence and common sense.

"Sam B. Hall of Marshall is the man I shall support in the Democratic runoff election."

Earlier, Baron Shacklette, longtime aid to Patman, said he couldn't continue to work in that position if Jones is elected.

Shacklette had said he would stay on until the new congressman was established in the job.

GUEST ARTISTS—Pat Garren of Abilene (left) and T.S. Gilbreath of Clyde will be honored at a reception from 1-5 p.m. Sunday in the Scurry County Museum. Works of both artists are being featured in the museum from Sunday through June 27. The public is invited to meet the artists at the reception and to see the show on its opening day. The museum is located on the south side of the Western Texas College campus.

Stock Market Caught In The Horse Latitudes

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market is caught in the horse latitudes.

It might be confusing to introduce the name of another animal into the stock market menagerie, in which bulls and bears are the senior citizens, but it is entirely appropriate in view of the market's lack of action.

For 3½ months the averages haven't changed very much, and the stock market reports sound the same each day: "Stocks drifted today in another dull and inconclusive session...."

Every so often a flurry develops, but it seems to lead nowhere after a day or so.

The master of an old Spanish sailing ship might understand and sympathize with the investor caught in such a situation, especially if he, the master, had once been becalmed in the horse latitudes.

Those latitudes, your dusty geography text might inform you, are two regions, one about 30 degrees north and the other 30 degrees south, marked by high pressure, heat, frequent calms, day to day sameness, and light and baffling winds.

Caught in these latitudes, with water running low, sailors were said sometimes to dispatch their live cargo, often horses for the West Indies, into the briney depths.

There is another characteristic of the horses - descending air, which might be appropriate also in describing stock market conditions. A lot of confidence seems to have gone out of the market.

Several months ago it wasn't uncommon to see some very inflated forecasts, such as 1,200 points on the Dow Jones industrial average. It remains near 970 or 980 points, however, and those puffed up forecasts are much rarer.

The chief deflator seems to be the probability that interest rates will continue to rise perhaps producing a 7.75 per cent prime lending rate late this year, compared with 6.75 last week and 7 per cent this week.

Rising interest rates generally mean trouble for business and for the market, drawing away funds into fixed-income securities, and raising the cost of doing business. They usually mean the swiftest part of a recovery is over.

There are also disconcerting reports that some insiders have been selling, that institutional funds are pretty much used up, and also that future institutional commitments might be more heavily in the bond markets.

Various other explanations are drawn in day to day, but they are as ephemeral as the light, baffling winds — incapable of moving prices for long in any one direction.

Meanwhile, the crew of stock market investors is growing lethargic. On Tuesday, volume fell to 13.88 million shares, the lowest in about four months. The most active stock, Texaco, was unchanged in price.

Eventually, of course, you may expect movement, but even that forecast is rather pathetic when you look back at the record: It is the very same forecast made two months ago, when some investors already were growing bored.

Now, as the same sameness persist, with no direction sustainable for more than a few days, some of the crew are thinking of tossing some of the livestock overboard.

Study Finds Texas Bank Examiners Fall Short

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The State Banking Department's examiners aren't looking in on banks as often as the law requires and are skipping some important aspects of bank operations, a management study has disclosed.

The banking section of the State Finance Commission immediately set up a committee to put into effect the recommendations made by the Houston accounting firm of Haskins and Sells. It will report back in 45 days.

A total reorganization of the State Banking Department, better pay and more careful recruiting of examiners and major changes in bank examination procedures were recommended.

"The department is currently experiencing problems that frustrate efforts to effectively regulate state banks as required by the (State Banking) Code. The problems . . . appear to have become more serious recently at a time when the importance of the regulatory function has increased due to economic factors affecting Texas state banks," the report said.

While the department is required by law to examine each state bank three times every two years, more than 100 of the 750 state banks were not examined during the eight months that ended April 30, it said.

As of that date, one bank had not been examined in 14 months.

"Some important aspects of bank operations are virtually ignored by the examination force. The examiners have not been trained in electronic data processing or trust operations, and no effective examination procedures are currently being applied in these areas," the report said.

It cited an experienced work force, paid salaries that are not competitive with industry and the federal government, poor working conditions that include frequent moves and a rapid turnover (38 per cent in 10 months) as contributing to the bank examination problem.

Recommendations included:

—Creation of three regional offices, headquartered in Dallas, Houston and Austin, to provide better coordination. This concept has met with some resistance and might be modified.

—Provide one full examination in each two-year cycle, with limited examinations on the other two visits, consisting of a review of assets and of problem areas detected previously. This would enable examiners to concentrate efforts on problem banks, the report said.

—Follow-up reviews of problem banks at least every three months.

—Reorganize the department, with line and staff reporting to separate deputy or assistant commissioners.

—A $600-a-year pay raise for examiners, closer attention to recruiting and creation of two new job classifications to provide a long-term career pattern. Examiners now start at about $15,000 a year, with the highest paid reaching about $22,000.

Houston Channel Improving

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas Water Quality Board biologist says he is impressed by the trends that indicate the water quality in the Houston Ship Channel is improving.

Bert Bates Jr. said marine life continues to return to the channel, once branded as one of the nation's dirtiest bodies of water.

He said Wednesday there has been "dramatic improvement" in samplings taken in the Deer Park area about 11½ miles upstream from the channel's entrance to Galveston Bay.

He said 67,000 individual organisms were counted at that sampling station the first five months of this year compared with 68,000 all of last year and 33,000 in 1974.

He said croaker, sand trout, crabs and shrimp make up the major portion of the individual swimming organisms being found.

"We have a long way to go but the numbers give us some hope," Bates said.

Aliens Airlift Plan Discussed

HOUSTON (AP) — An immigration official says negotiations are still going on between the United States and Mexico in an effort to start a plan to airlift illegal aliens back to the interior of Mexico.

The $2 million pilot program, slated to run 20 weeks, was designed to relocate illegal aliens closer to their homes in the country's interior rather than border towns but the Mexican government refuses to grant landing rights to American airlines.

"As far as I know we are still negotiating," said R.W. Heston, district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. "The money is there but it can't be used for anything else."

Currently aliens bused to border towns on the Texas border are able to reenter this country quite rapidly, Heston said.

He said as much as 60 per cent of the 6,700 illegal aliens seized here last year were from interior towns such as Guadalajara, Mexico City and Merida.

He said the program was a test to see if fewer illegal aliens would return to this country if returned to interior towns.

"We were hoping if they got back near their homes they would stay or at least take longer to come back," Heston said.

He said the federal government offered two charter airlines $2 million to make daily runs into Mexico returning illegal aliens but the Mexican government so far has refused to grant landing rights.

He said Mexico earlier turned down Pan American Airlines in a similar program in which illegal aliens in Miami, Fla., would be airlifted back to Mexico.

Mexican Ambassador Gonzalez De Leon, director of special foreign affairs and studies, said his government "cannot provide any facilities, nor collaborate, in this type of activity."

Heston said the airlift, with departing points in El Paso, Brownsville, San Diego and El Centro, Calif., would have affected about 17,000 aliens.

Presently, immigration officials here bus illegal aliens at $15 a head to border towns. But Heston said problems arise there when they arrive with little money and no jobs. Frequently, he said, they re-enter the United States.

Folsom For Move To Love Field

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mayor Robert Folsom said Wednesday that he agrees Southwest Airlines should be made to move its operations from Dallas Love Field to the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, but the city won't take further legal action in the matter.

The D-FW Airport Board adopted a resolution calling for Southwest to move to the big airport midway between Dallas and Fort Worth. Love Field is located near the downtown Dallas area.

Folsom said he voted for the resolution. "That is and has been the city's position since it entered into the contract agreement with Fort Worth to build this (D-FW) airport.

"However, we are under a federal district court order which has been upheld in appellate court to allow Southwest to continue to operate at Love Field," Folsom said. "The people of Dallas seem to like to have Southwest there, from the way they are supporting the service. And I don't think we would be justified in spending more of the taxpayers' money in litigation," the mayor said.

Fort Worth Mayor Clif Overcash introduced the resolution and said a private consulting firm has estimated seven-figure revenue loss to the big airport resulting from Southwest operations at Love Field.

Pardon Is Recommended

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A presidential pardon for a woman convicted of treason for her work as "Tokyo Rose" during World War II has been recommended by a committee of the California Assembly.

The Criminal Procedure Committee passed a resolution Wednesday asking for a full pardon for Iva Toguri d'Aquino to restore her American citizenship and clear her name.

Mrs. d'Aquino was convicted of making propaganda broadcasts to American servicemen in the Pacific. She served 8½ years of a 10-year sentence and paid a $10,000 fine.

David Ushio, national executive director of the Japanese American Citizens League, told the committee Mrs. d'Aquino, who runs a store in Chicago, was one of 14 English-speaking women announcers employed by Radio Tokyo but was the only one charged. He said that, unlike most of the others, she refused to renounce her American citizenship during the war.

Tanker Plan Halted

HOUSTON (AP) — Complaints by bayshore residents have temporarily halted a plan to bring 150,000-ton supertankers into Bayport, in upper Galveston Bay.

The Army Corps of Engineers in Washington said it was "holding in abeyance" a permit application by Atlantic Richfield Co. to build a terminal to unload the big tankers.

An Arco lawyer said the oil company now is looking for other sites but still is trying to reach an agreement with the protesting citizens and is not giving up on Bayport.

Corps headquarters made the decision to halt the action when protesters' lawyers telephoned to inform it of possible court action.

The lawyers said the corps had failed to consider the full impact of the supertanker project on the Galveston Bay environment and on other shipping using the Houston Ship Channel.

The lower Houston Ship Channel would have to be made one-way while in use by the supertankers. He said this would cause delays of several hours to other ships.

"I'm not sure the pilots would bring them up," Waggett said.

The largest vessel to use the ship channel so far, he said, is an 80,000-ton tanker which goes only as far as the Exxon refinery at Baytown.

Substitute Rural Carrier Exam Set

Applications are now being accepted and an examination will be given to establish a register of eligibles from which future substitute rural carriers of record vacancies in the Snyder Post Office will be filed, Postmaster Jack Tilson has announced.

Applicants must take a written test which consists of vocabulary and reading comprehension questions and computations. Sample questions will be sent when applicants are notified to the date, time and place of the examination. The test requires about 3¼ hours.

Applicants must be physically qualified to perform efficiently the arduous duties of the position, said the postmaster. An eligible person selected for appointment must have a valid state driver's license and a safe driving record, and he must pass the Post Service Road Test to show he can safely drive a vehicle of the type used on the job.

All substitute rural carriers of record must furnish and maintain at their own expense vehicle equipment necessary for the prompt handling of the mails, but they are given an equipment maintenance allowance based on the daily mileage scheduled or a minimum allowance per day, whichever is greater. Applicants must have reached their 18th birthday on the date of filing application.

All applications must be citizens of the United States of America, owe allegiance to the United States of America, or be non-citizens who have been accorded permanent resident alien status in the United States of America.

Substitute carriers' starting salaries vary from $41.82 per day to $40.96 per day, depending on the length and character of the route.

Applicattions must be submitted before June 12.

Dr. Lamb

Society neglects men's cancer

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am in a state of shock. My husband has cancer of the prostate. They didn't operate on the cancer because the doctor said it was too late for that. Instead he was castrated and placed on female hormones. He is very depressed. Can he be cured by taking the hormones? He is only 55 and it all happened so suddenly. Isn't there any way that these problems can be prevented?

DEAR READER—Yes these problems could be prevented. The shocking truth is that cancer in men has been grossly neglected. More men die from cancer than women. The 1973 U.S. Vital Statistics show that 191,320 men and 159,735 women died from cancer.

That is not all - cancer of the prostate is more common than cancer of the uterus (cervix and body of the uterus, excluding the superficial non-invasive variety called carcinoma in situ). In 1973 for those 55 and older there were 18,493 deaths from cancer of the prostate and 8,658 deaths from cancer of the uterus.

Things are not getting any better. The National Cancer Institute estimates there will be 47,000 new cases of cancer of the uterus in 1976 compared to 56,000 new cases of cancer of the prostate. There will be 11,000 deaths in women of all ages from cancer of the uterus and a whopping 19,300 deaths from cancer of the prostate.

Cancer of the prostate is the third most common cause of death from cancer in males and the fourth most common in the general population of males and females, immediately following third ranked cancer of the breast.

Can we prevent these deaths? Yes! The same thing can be done for men as has been done for women. The answer is in early detection. Of course there needs to be a public education effort to match that done for women. Men need to learn that if the cancer is found early enough they can be cured. If it is not, the usual treatment after the cancer has spread is to relieve the pain and often to remove the testicles and give female hormones. These measures are used only to control pain and do not cure the cancer. By contrast - early treatment - surgery and radiation - that removes the actual cancer or destroys it can result in cure.

To give you more information about the prostate gland I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-6. Others can get this information by forwarding 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The telltale statistics are that the cure rate at Walter Reed Army hospital for cancer of the prostate is about 50 per cent and only a shocking five per cent in civilian medicine. Why? Because the army requires annual physical examinations after 40 years of age. These result in early detection.

A cancer of the prostate is found by feeling a lump just as you feel a lump during a breast examination. The procedure isn't pleasant as it is done by feeling the back of the prostate with a finger in the rectum. It is not painful or dangerous.

Considering how simple it would be to have an early detection program the question remains, why is there so little public awareness about what can be done for men? It could save many men the problems your husband is experiencing. All men older than 40 should have an examination at least once a year that includes a rectal examination of their prostate. It can save them from castration, female hormones and death.

Bayh Doing Well Following Surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., is in satisfactory condition after undergoing surgery to remove a small, non-malignant nodule from his right lung, his aides report.

Newton Says His Record Is Better

AUSTIN—Rep. Jon Newton of Beeville says the central issue in his Democratic race for the Texas Railroad Commission this Saturday is which of the two candidates is better qualified to cope with modern energy and transportation problems.

"If the voters compare my public record with the record of Jerry Sadler I have no doubt that I will win Saturday," declared the 34-year-old attorney, who is a member of the Governor's Energy Advisory Council and the Interstate Oil Compact Commission.

Newton and Sadler, 68, emerged as runoff opponents from an eight-candidate field in the first primary. Sadler has been in retirement since his defeat for State Land Commissioner in 1970.

"My public record is one of accessibility to the press, an open door policy for the public, full disclosure of personal financial information, and policies to strengthen confidence in government," Newton said. "My opponent's record is just the opposite. When he was Land Commissioner in the 1960's he pulled down the shades of the General Land Office and excluded the press and the public. He made a mockery of the people's right to know what goes on in government."

Newton pointed out that Sadler's defeat six years ago followed an official reprimand by the House of Representatives for refusing to cooperate in an investigation of his handling of Spanish treasure discovered off the coast.

Newton said that Sadler had the worst absentee record of any state official. "He was drawing a full-time salary, spending a few hours a week on the job, and apparently spending the rest of his time running his private motor hotel in Palestine," Newton added.

"Sadler was missing in action in the 1960's and he will be missing in action in the 1970's if he goes on the Railroad Commission.

Ford Weighs Legislative Plan To Avoid Busing

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford may ask Congress to create a national council that would negotiate local school desegregation plans in an effort to avoid court-ordered busing.

The proposed legislation also would place new restrictions on federal judges and could rule out city-wide integration plans in some cases.

Ford expects to decide "as soon as possible" on deails of the legislative proposal he has promised to send Congress, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Wednesday.

The President, his key aides and three Cabinet members discussed the legislative plan in a 90-minute session Wednesday. "There were no decisions made at the meeting," Nessen said.

Nessen said Ford plans to talk with civil rights and congressional leaders before reaching a final decision.

The Wednesday meeting focused on draft legislation prepared by Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi and the Justice Department and other proposals offered by David Mathews, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Labor Secretary W.J. Usery also attended the session.

The legislation would establish a national council to mediate desegregation disputes in local communities, a Justice Department official said. The make-up of sueh a council was not learned but at least some members would be appointed by the president.

"The proposal is designed to help community leaders reach voluntary desegregation plans before a federal court imposes a mandatory plan.

Without disclosing details, Nessen said Mathews outlined for Ford several approaches to help local school districts "avoid reaching the point at which the court steps in and orders massive busing."

The other major feature of the proposed legislation is the new restriction on federal judges.

The plan would require the courts to determine how much segregation was caused by official government acts, such as maintaining separate schools for black students or drawing district boundaries in a way that guarantees segregated schools.

Official government acts of discrimination are clearly illegal.

The courts would be free to use whatever remedies they considered necessary to correct any segregation caused by official acts. This would include busing, which the Supreme Court listed as a "permissible tool" of desegregation in a landmark 1971 decision.

The plan would allow a court to impose desegregation remedies, including widespread busing, throughout a city and its suburbs only if the court concluded that illegal government discrimination caused area-wide segregation.

Navy Specialist Urges Discipline For Rickover

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy's top civilian cost specialist says Adm. Hyman G. Rickover is openly defying the secretary of defense and should be disciplined for "working to torpedo" a Pentagon plan to settle about $1.5 billion in claims by major shipbuilders.

"Adm. Rickover has so arrogantly abused the power ... that has been reposed in his high office that he has forfeited the right to hold that office," said Gordon Rule, director of Navy procurement control. He accused Rickover of "harassment of private nuclear shipyard management."

Like Rickover, Rule has been something of a gadfly, criticizing some Navy shipbuilding programs in the past. This time, however, Rule said he supports decisions of the Pentagon brass on the claims issue.

Rickover's office said the admiral would have no comment on Rule's blast, delivered Wednesday before the Shipbuilders Council.

Rickover's latest conflict with the Pentagon leadership grows out of the Defense Department's plan to dispose of claims filed by three major companies on contracts to build some 70 ships for the Navy.

Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements has said the backlog developed because contracts signed before 1970 did not adequately protect contractors against the abnormal inflation that set in later.

Other officials have said the shipbuilders have indicated "they would be disinterested" in further Navy ship construction work unless their claims were settled.

In mid-May, Clements urged Congress to approve the Pentagon's settlement plan, which officials said would avert contractor losses of $467 million and yield the firms a profit of at least $74 million. The plan had the blessing of Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld.

However, Rickover wrote Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., opposing the Pentagon proposal. Rickover said the shipbuilding firms should be required to comply with their original contracts with the Navy rather than being allowed settlement of what he called their "inflated" claims.

Rule indicated it was this letter to Aspin that prompted his call for disciplinary action against Rickover. He said the extent of such discipline should be determined after an investigation by the Navy's inspector general, who would make recommendations to Navy Secretary J. William Middendorf and to Adm. James L. Holloway, chief of Naval Operations.

IN NATIONAL TOURNAMENT—Members of the Western Texas College Golf Team display some of the trophies they won during the 1975-76 season as they prepare to depart for Galveston to compete in the National Junior College Golf Tournament. About 230 golfers representing 21 regions of the country are expected for the tournament. From left are Ross Wortham of Iraan, Grant Collyns of San Angelo, Bryan Hargrove of Snyder, Donnie Loerwald of Amarillo and Arnold Madril of Roswell, N.M.

WTC Golfers Head For National Meet

A five-man golf team from Western Texas College will be in Galveston June 8-11 for the National Junior College Golf Tournament at the Galveston Country Club, WTC Golf Coach Bob O'Day said.

Making up the Westerner team will be sophomores Grant Collyns of San Angelo, Bryan Hargrove of Snyder, Arnold Madril of Roswell, N.M., and Ross Wortham of Iraan, and freshman Donnie Loerwald of Amarillo.

WTC qualified for the national tournament by winning the Region V championship tournament played at Roswell. WTC golfers shot 23 over par on the 54 holes, a total of 875. McLennan College, which finished second in the national meet last year, was second in the region and will be playing at the national tournament again.

The Westerners won five out of 10 conference tourneys during the 1975-76 season and took the Western Conference title with a total of 89½ points. Odessa College finished second with 83 points and Midland College was third with 81½ points.

Four out of 10 WTC golfers were selected on the All-Conference Team in the Western Conference and four were selected on the All Region V team.

WTC won three intercollegiate tournaments played last fall. These were the New Mexico Junior Intercollegiate Tournament at Hobbs, the Jimmy Demaret Intercollegiate Tournament at Brownsville and the Great Plains Intercollegiate at Borger.

WTC placed fifth out of 17 teams entered in the 25th annual Border Olympics tournament at Laredo, competing against 13 universities, two colleges and four junior colleges.

The Westerners averaged 295, 9.9 over par or 73.7 per player for 40 rounds of competition during the 1975-76 season. They averaged 295.6, 10.4 over par or 73.9 per player for 10 Western Conference tournaments during the season.

Co-captains of the Westerners are Collyns and Hargrove, two-year lettermen. Collyns averaged 75.6 for 32 rounds of competition during the season, with his best score 69, one under par. He was named to the All-Region team, placing eighth out of 81 golfers in the regional tourney with a 73.7 average. He was also named to the All-Conference team, finishing tenth out of 77 players with a 73.8 average.

Hargrove's best score in competition this year was a seven-under par 65 at the conference tournament at Hobbs. This score is the lowest score shot by a WTC golfer in competition. Hargrove was an All-Region Team member, finishing fourth with a 73.3 average. He was named to the All-Conference team for the second year, taking medalist honors out of a field of 77 players with a 71.5 average.

Madril, also a two-year letterman, placed eighth in the regional tournament to gain a place on the All-Region team. His average was 73.7. He was runner-up medalist in the conference with a 71.5 average and was selected for the All-Conference team for the second year. He shot two under par three times in tournament play during the year.

Wortham led the WTC team with a 73.8 average for 39 rounds of competition during the 1975-76 campaign. His best score in competition was 67, five under par in the New Mexico Intercollegiate Tournament. He placed 11th in the regional tournament with a 74 average for three rounds. He was named to the All-Conference team, placing fourth with a 72.3 average. He is a two-year letterman.

Loerwald, who will be co-captain of next year's team, was selected for the All-Region team with a 73.3 average for 54 holes. He placed fourth in the tourney. He averaged 75.5 in conference meets during the year and 75.4 for 35 rounds of competition during the season. His best score in competition was a six under par 66 in the New Mexico Intercollegiate.

Twenty-one regions will have teams at the Galveston tourney with 231 players participating. Team championship will be decided by the four low scores each day on a total of 72 holes. The top 24 players with the best averages for 72 holes are selected for the National Junior College Athletic Association All-American Team.

Bold Forbes Tops Field At Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Bold Forbes, fast and lucky, is set to close out the tough Triple Crown series as the favorite to win the Belmont Stakes Saturday.

"In this kind of racing you have to have luck to keep your horses sound," said trainer Laz Barerra, who saddled Bold Forbes for the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

The only other Belmont probable who is a veteran of the first two Triple Crown races was Play The Red, a disappointing eighth in the Derby but a solid second in the Preakness.

Others expected to be entered today for the 1½-mile classic at Belmont Park were Howard P. Wilson's Great Contractor, Ogden Mills Phipps' Majestic Light, Mrs. Douglas Carver's McKenzie Bridge and Christiana Stable's Best Laid Plans.

Among the missing will be Honest Pleasure, the beaten favorite in the 1¼-mile Derby and the 13-16-mile Preakness, and Elocutionist, third in the Derby and the winner of the Preakness. Honest Pleasure is being rested while Elocutionist, who was pointed for the Belmont, suffered a wrenched ankle.

Johnny Campo, who trains Play The Red for Max Gluck, felt that Elocutionist, not Bold Forbes, would have been the horse to beat and that the Preakness winner's injury boosts his colt's chances of making the $150,000-added Belmont the first stakes win of a 15-race career.

Bold Forbes, a small colt at 15.2 hands, has survived the rigors of the Triple Crown well, said Barrera, who admitted he is worn out by the experience.

'Demands' Drive Girl Jockey Out

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP) — Donna Hillman says she is quitting her career as a thoroughbred jockey because if women riders don't cooperate sexually, they wind up riding "impossible horses no one else would touch."

The 27-year-old told the Sun-Sentinel she is returning to California to train and possibly breed horses and write a book exposing tracks as "a hooker's paradise."

"I came into the game with a great attitude," she said. "But slowly, it's turned into a bitter one. If you don't cooperate sexually, you don't get the mounts. It's that simple.

"I'm not saying they (trainers) are all that way," said Miss Hillman, who has combined her six-year riding career with TV commercials and modeling. "But there's enough that they're ruining the sport.

"There are more women coming on the track today who have made a lot of wrong moves to obtain their mounts. In return, they've made it tougher on the others.

"Many times a trainer will say, 'Sure, I'll ride you on one of my horses. I've got a lot of horses you can ride, if you'll have dinner with me tonight.' It was well understood by everyone what he meant."

Miss Hillman was the leading percentage rider at Delaware Park in 1972 and at Atlantic City in 1973 and claims if she were a man, "I'd be a leading rider today. I would have had all the shots in the world. I'd never have run into the problem."

She said, "Ninety per cent of racing is a good mount. It's the good mounts that make a name for a rider. You wouldn't believe the bums I've ridden. Impossible horses no one else would touch. Very seldom did I get a chance to ride a horse that belonged in the field he ran in."

Eliza Chase, 26, now racing at Calder, agreed with Miss Hillman.

"It's there from the day you want onto the track," she said. "There are trainers who made it clear they wouldn't talk to me unless I talked to them the way they wanted to talk. You just laugh at it, ignore it and go on."

Hargrove Leads At El Paso

EL PASO—Mark Hargrove of Snyder fired a 66 Wednesday to take a one-shot lead into today's second round of the 58th Southwestern Amateur Golf Championship at the El Paso Country Club.

Hargrove, a former Snyder High School and Western Texas College golf star, who now plays for Texas Tech, rode an eagle to his one-stroke advantage over Wake Forrest's Jay Haas ad Dan Croonquist of McClennan Community College of Waco, who had 67s. Haas is the current National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) champion and one of the favorites in the amateur tourney.

The opening field of 216 will be pared to the top 90 after today's round.

Arizona State's Art Diaz, with 68, and Wake Forest's Tim Saylor, with 69, were also within quick striking distance of the leader.

Collegians dominated the entries Wednesday. Matt Sugarman of New Mexico State had 70, along with Bob Byman of Wake Forest, Brad Bryant of the Univerity of New Mexico at Albuquerque, Bill Chapman of Wake Forest, Mike Booker from the University of Houston, Mark Rhode and Steve Martin from Oral Roberts,Mick Soli of Northern Illinois and Tucson high school player Dave Davis.

Craig Stadler, the 1975 champion, has joined the pro tour and is not defending his title here.

Tommy Davis Has Sudden Comeback

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Maybe Tommy Davis can't roll out of bed on Christmas morning and swing a mean bat, but he wasn't too bad on the evening of June 2 after two months of idleness.

The 16-year major league veteran, released by the New York Yankees just before the season started, signed on Wednesday with California. A few hours later he made his 1976 debut with a tie-breaking two-run pinch single in the eighth inning that sparked the Angels to a 5-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

"I hadn't worked out since spring training until this weekend after they called me about the possibility of coming back," the 37-year-old Davis said after collecting the 2,059th hit of his career. "I figure my days are numbered, but I thought I could do the job for four months."

In other American League action, the New York Yankees whipped the Boston Red Sox 7-2, the Baltimore Orioles outlasted the Cleveland Indians 2-0 in 14 innings, the Chicago White Sox nipped the Texas Rangers 1-0 in 11, the Kansas City Royals edged the Oakland A's 4-3 in 12 and the Detroit Tigers downed the Milwaukee Brewers 6-4.

Davis was supposed to start work with a record promotion company in Los Angeles this week. However, he received a call from Angels general manager Harry Dalton last Friday and decided to resume his playing career.

"It wasn't tough coming back to baseball," he said after delivering his clutch hit on a 2-2 curve from Minnesota relief ace Bll Campbell.

Dave Chalk drove in the other three California runs with a two-run single in the second inning and a sacrifice fly following Davis' hit.

Yankees 7, Red Sox 2

Ed Figueroa hurled a four-hitter and the Yankees chased Boston starter Dick Pole in piling up a 6-0 second-inning lead. The Yankees scored five times in the second on four walks, a hit batter, a run-scoring wild pitch and only two hits, one of them Chris Chambliss' two-run single. Cecil Cooper accounted for Boston's runs with a sixth-inning homer.

Orioles 2, Indians 0

Lee May crashed a two-run homer in the 14th inning off Cleveland reliever Tom Buskey following a single by Reggie Jackson. Jim Palmer and Wayne Garland combined for an eight-hit shutout, the first against the Indians this season. The drive by May negated a two-hit pitching performance by Cleveland's Jackie Brown, Dave LaRoche and Buskey through the first 13 innings.

White Sox 1, Rangers 0

Jorge Orta's single with the bases loaded in the bottom of the 11th produced the game's only run and ended a string of 24 consecutive scoreless innings by loser Jim Umbarger. The White Sox loaded the bases on Jim Essian's double, a sacrifice and a pair of intentional walks. Chicago starter Bart Johnson gave up just three hits in nine innings.

Royals 4, A's 3

John Mayberry's sacrifice fly in the 12th inning scored Amos Otis with the winning run. Otis opened the 12th by drawing a walk off Rollie Fingers and George Brett singled for his fourth hit of the game, moving Otis to third. Mayberry then hit a long fly to score the run.

Kansas City had tied the game in the ninth on a walk to Fred Patek, a sacrifice by Frank White and a long sacrifice fly by Tony Solaita that scored Patek all the way from second base. The A's had taken a 3-2 lead in the seventh inning on Sal Bando's two-run homer.

Tigers 6, Brewers 4

Willie Horton drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly and Ben Oglivie hit a two-run inside-the-park pinch homer as Detroit posted its fourth consecutive victory over Milwaukee in the five-game series. Oglivie's home run came in the eighth inning and provided Detroit's winning margin. Brewers starter Jim Colborn, 2-7, lost his sixth straight game while Detroit starter Vern Ruhle raised his record to 4-1.

Suns Depend On 'Other Rookie'

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

PHOENIX (AP) — Ricky Sobers, Phoenix' "other" rookie, played like number one in Game Four of the National Basketball Association championship series.

And because of his performance, the underdog Suns, the longest shot in the 10-team field that began the NBA playoffs this season, beat the Boston Celtics 109-107 Wednesday night and tied the best-of-seven series 2-2.

Surprisingly, Sobers credited Boston's John Havlicek with helping him perform well ... not because of anything the Celtics' captain did in the game, but becasue of something he remembered the 36-year-old star saying on television.

The incident occurred during a telecast of a Boston game that Sobers was watching while he was at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

"I remember Havlicek saying that defense is the key to the game of basketball," said the 23-year-old Sobers, a defensive specialist. "He said the best way to get into the NBA was to know how to play defense, and ever since then I've been stressing defense."

Sobers took charge in the third period of Game Four. With Boston leading 71-70 midway through the quarter, the Suns reeled off 12 consecutive points, eight of them by the embattled rookie. Sobers also fed Keith Erickson for another basket during this spree.

The streak put the Suns ahead 82-71 — and they never trailed after that.

However, they did experience some scares. Eight times in the last period, Boston drew within two points — but each time, the inexperienced Suns, the team expected to crack under the intense pressure of a championship series, repulsed the threats.

"Pressure is a thing you put only upon yourself and you have to be oblivious to it," said the fiery Sobers, who has been involved in one fight in each of Phoenix' three playoff series this year. "I love pressure."

Sobers finished with 14 points, while Paul Westphal led the Suns with 28, Alvan Adams — the NBA's Rookie of the Year — scored 20 and Garfield Heard had 19 points and 15 rebounds.

Clyde Golfer 3rd To Sign At WTC

Miller Scott of Clyde has become the third new golfer to sign a golf scholarship and letter of intent with Western Texas College.

A four-year golf letterman at Clyde High School Scott also lettered in football two years and in basketball three years. He was named to the All-District 9AA basketball team in his junior and senior years.

Miller was the AA State Medalist this spring shooting 85 and 71 in the state tournament played on the Morris Williams Golf Course in Austin. He trailed by seven strokes at the end of play on the first day then came back to win the championship by one stroke. His one under par 71 was the only round under par on the second day by players in all classifications.

Miller qualified by the state tournament by taking medalist honors in the regional meet played at the Andrews Country Club. There he shot 74 and 69. He was also district medalist. He averaged 73.9 in competition during his senior year

He has qualified for this year's Texas State Amateur Tournament to be played at Woodhaven Country Club in Fort Worth. He has won 11 Junior PGA tournaments during the past three summers.

Young Miller was named Most Representative Boy in his senior class a selection made by the high school faculty. He also received the senior class Most Outstanding Boy award made by the Kiwanis Club. He was graduated with honors with a 92.8 average and was a member of the Beta Club. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Blanton Scott.

WTC Golf Coach Bob O'Day said he was pleased to sign Scott and feels he is one of he best golf prospects in West Texas. "He was an outstanding athlete in all sports in high school," O'Day commented "and his golf game should improve even more now since he will devote full time to this sport. He has a good swing and is dedicated to golf. I am looking forward to working with him."

Western Texas College won the Western Conference Region V golf tournament to qualify for the NJCAA National tournament this year. Other new golfers slated to join the Westerners this fall are Chris Brown of Midland and Tommy Taylor of Corpus Christi.

AP Poll Finds Reagan Has Made Strong Impression

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ronald Reagan has made a strong impression during this campaign year with his advocacy of higher military spending and a overhaul of the welfare system, an Associated Press poll shows.

Reagan's stands provide the two clearest links between a candidate and an issue in the otherwise blurred picture of presidential contenders and positions that Americans now see after four months of intensive primary campaigning.

In the poll designed to probe Americans' views on the issues, the only other clear link of a candidate and an issues comes from supporters of Rep. Morris Udall with their accurate perception of his views and their concern about pollution, civil rights and solving energy problems.

The survey, conducted for The AP by the Roper Organization of New York between May 8 and May 15, found that an average of more than half of the potential voters didn't know where their favorite candidate stands on five major issues.

The other major findings of the poll were:

—Economic issues head the list of Americans' concerns during this election year, with 59 per cent of those questioned naming inflation, unemployment or holding down government spending as their main worry.

—Crime was the second biggest concern for Americans. Lawlessness in general, drug abuse and criminal acts by public officials were all in the top five issues.

—About 57 per cent of all Americans are choosing a candidate to support for his personal qualities, not for his stands on the issues. More than 58 per cent of Jimmy Carter's supporters, for example, said personal factors were the basis for their decision, compared to only 20 per cent who cited issues.

—In addition to more than half of the people not knowing where the candidates stand, many supporters were wrong in naming where their favorite candidate stood on five major issues. Carters' backers were the most likely to name the wrong stand for their contender, missing four out of five issues picked to differentiate among the candidates.

During the second week in May when the poll was conducted, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Sen. Frank Church scored their initial primary victories. Because the national perceptions of Brown and Church had not then taken shape, the poll did not test their supporters' perceptions.

By the date of the interviewing, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace had stopped campaigning and was running fourth in delegates. Thus, his supporters' perceptions were also not tested.

Reagan's supporters stand out in the poll above those of other candidates for their precision in pegging his stands on military spending and welfare.

By a 65-9 margin, his backers correctly linked him with pushing for more money for national defense. But even then 26 per cent of his supporters could not say where he stood.

Reagan's supporters are the main reservoir of concern about U.S.-U.S.S.R. relations and military spending found by the poll. About 22 per cent of his backers named these two issues as the most important ones, close to double the figure for any other candidate.

Looking at the poll another way, concern over detente is centered with self-identified conservatives. About 14 per cent of the conservatives named it the major issue, compared with only 9 per cent of moderates and 10 per cent of liberals.

The former California governor's supporters also correctly linked him by a 51-8 edge with proposals to tun the welfare system back to state control.

Even for Reagan, however, his supporters' view of his stand on issues blurs when they move away from the two top positions.

They incorrectly said by a 25-16 margin that he supports dismantling the oil companies. But 59 per cent of his backers didn't know where he stood on this issue.

By narrow margins, they correctly said he favors a constitutional amendment to end abortions and opposes the goverment guarantee of a job to everyone. But the percentages of those who didn't know his stand on the issues was far higher than on the military and welfare questions.

Reflecting this precision in their views, Reagan's supporters were the lowest of any candidates' in saying personal factors were the basis for their decision. But 48 per cent of his backers still cited personality over issues.

About 29 per cent of those who said Reagan is their favorite candidate cited issues as the reason for their decision, the same percentage of Udall's backers who cited issues as their reason. About 57 per cent of his supporters say personal factors were the basis for their decision.

Udall's supporters correctly gauged his stand on all five issues examined in the poll, the best showing of any candidate. Here are the issues and the margins by which his supporters named his stand correctly:

—For government guaranteed jobs, 47-19;

—For breaking up major oil companies, 46-10;

—Against anti-abortion amendment, 41-9;

—Against spending more on military, 53-20;

—Against turning welfare back to state, 25-20.

It is no surprise that Udall has the greatest percentage of supporters who identify themselves as liberals, since he has said he is the liberals' candidate. The poll found 61 per cent of his support came from people who identify themselves as liberals.

Udall's supporters also named issues long identified as liberal as their main concerns far more than any other candidates'.

For example, solving energy problems and insuring equal rights for Americans of all races were each major issues for 23 per cent of Udall's supporters, ranking right behind inflation and unemployment. Next was air and water pollution with 20 per cent.

No other candidate's supporters cited those issues with nearly that frequency.

Only on one of five issues did Carter's supporters pick his position correctly — government guaranteed jobs — which they pegged by a 42 per cent to 14 per cent margin.

But most of the supporters of all the candidates listed in the survey correctly identified the positions of their favorite candidate on this issue that has been a prime focus of Democratic legislative efforts this year in Congress.

President Ford's supporters correctly identified his positions on three issues, missed on one and split evenly on the other.

Reagan's influence with the GOP partisans was most clearly seen in the responses of Ford's supporters on the welfare issue.

Ford's backers said he supports turning welfare over to the states by a 40 per cent to 17 per cent margin. Ford has said he favors welfare reform, but has opposed placing the financial burden of welfare solely on the states.

Just over 56 per cent of Ford's supporters say personal factors were the crucial factor in their decision to support him, against 20 per cent who cited his stands on the issues.

About 18 per cent said both factors were crucial.

Non-candidate Sen. Hubert Humphrey was the choice of some of those interviewed. Their explanation of their reasons for picking the Minnesota Democrat broke down this way:

—Personal factors, 66 per cent;

—Issues, 17 per cent;

—Both, 16 per cent; and

—Don't know, 5 per cent.

Supporters of Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who has halted active campaigning, gave the following explanation of their support for the Washington democrat:

—Personal factors, 65 per cent;

—Issues, 11 per cent;

—Both 13 per cent; and

—Don't know, 9 per cent.

Secrecy Cloaks Martha's Funeral

By JOHN HAMMARLEY
Associated Press Writer

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — The secrecy Martha Mitchell fought as one of President Richard M. Nixon's most outspoken critics enveloped her in death today at the request of her estranged husband, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Services were planned for today for Mrs. Mitchell, who won the nation's attention as a colorful, sometimes caustic critic of Nixon's administration.

She lay in state in a covered casket, but hundreds of residents of this Arkansas River community were kept outside locked doors of the funeral home at Mitchell's orders.

"Martha wouldn't have wanted it that way," said one disappointed woman Wednesday after she was turned away from the funeral home.

Entrance apparently was restricted to the family and at least one close friend.

Mitchell set down strict instructions that reporters covering the funeral remain in the back pews of the colonial-style Presbyterian Church during today's services.

The former attorney general, the couple's daughter and Mrs. Mitchell's son by a previous marriage were given front-row pews.

When asked about the tight security, funeral director Adam Robinson said: "That's what he (Mitchell) asked for, and that's what I'm going to honor."

Mitchell refused to talk with reporters.

Mrs. Mitchell, 57, died Monday of a rare and painful form of bone cancer. She is the ninth person to be buried in the family plot and a spot was picked for her at the foot of her mother's grave beneath massive oak trees.

After the initial news of her death, this city began preparing for the homecoming of "their Martha."

The Pine Bluff Commercial characterized Mrs. Mitchell as having an "iron hand under a velvet glove."

Many townspeople interviewed said they were proud of Martha Mitchell.

"The image she presented in Washington was one of a very dedicated American," said Ray West Sr. of Pine Bluff, a distant relative and long-time friend. "She has lots of friends here."

Administrators Trim Dallas School Budget

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas school administrators submitted a budget Wednesday that trims $8 million from an earlier proposal and eliminates almost 600 staff positions.

The group also recommended a nine cent increase in local property taxes.

The new budget was unveiled during a special school board meeting. It calls for an operating budget of $172 million, including $6.5 million for desegregation-related expenses.

School Superintendent Nolan Estes said the proposed budget would require a 12 cent increase in the district's maintenance and operations tax rate, but that three cents of that increase could be offset by decreasing the interest and sinking fund rate.

If the school board approves the budget as presented, the district would have to levy a total property tax of $1.60 next year compared to the current $1.51, Estes said.

NO MORE PREDAWN WAKEUPS

Barbara Walters Switches To New Lifestyle On ABC

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Walters, who starts working at ABC Sept. 20 as the first and best-paid female coanchor of a nightly network news show, made her last live appearance on NBC's "Today" program today.

On Friday, she'll appear only on tape in a salute to her native Massachusetts. By then, she'll be savoring the luxury of no more predawn wakeups for a while and getting set for her new life at her new network at a reported pay of $1 million a year for five years.

While declining to reveal the total amount of loot ABC will pay her, Miss Walters, an on-air member of "Today" since 1963, has said the money NBC offered her to stay was the same as that offered by ABC.

So she was asked in an interview this week if the primary reason she decided last April to join ABC was the immediate and historic prospect of becoming the first woman to regularly anchor network news.

"I think that really had a great deal to do with it," said Miss Walters, 44. "If you had to say that was the major reason, yes, it was."

She also predicted that within the next two years CBS and NBC also will have female coanchors when the networks expand their evening news shows from the current half-hour each night to 45 minutes or an hour.

"And I hope they will get only good publicity," she said, alluding to the oft-severe criticism within and outside the industry that has attended her multimillion-dollar shift of networks.

She said she thinks much of the criticism is due to a misunderstanding, to an erroneous impression she's getting a cool million a year simply to coanchor the "ABC Evening News" with Harry Reasoner.

"So may I point out," she said, and not sarcastically, "what has not been publicized — that I'll be earning approximately the same money as my fellow anchormen" for coanchoring a weeknight news show.

The same money is believed in the $450,000-$500,000 range.

"The extra money," she said, referring to the balance of her yearly salary, "comes from the extra assignments I have that they do not have — four one-hour specials, 12 half-hour Sunday shows and documentaries, plus other contributions to the evening news program."

She said she didn't demand the money, "it was offered me. It's the American way not to turn down a raise. Indeed, I doubt if any of my fellow newsmen will turn down raises in the future."

"If anything, I think they will ask for and receive more money. It just won't be publicized."

Miss Walters, who said she can't debate why television journalists get more money than print types, said despite what she'll earn "my integrity and dedication to my work remains the same."

They'll Fight Daughter For Child's Custody

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 19, pregnant and unmarried. It's too late for her to have a safe abortion, so she has decided to put up the baby for adoption. She says she doesn't want to know who adopts it, and she doesn't want them to know who or where she is—ever.

Abby, my husband and I want this child. We would adopt it and give it a good home. It is our flesh and blood, and we feel that we have the right to raise this child. This will be our first grandchild, and perhaps our only one, as our daughter is an only child. She says she wants to put that entire episode out of her life and if we adopt it, that won't be possible.

Abby, don't grandparents have some rights? We don't want to fight her in court, but we will if we have to.

Please tell us what your feelings are in this matter.

BROKENHEARTED

DEAR BROKENHEARTED: A lawyer must tell you what your legal rights are. I sympathize with you, but your daughter's feelings take precedence over yours. If I were you, I wouldn't fight it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are the proud parents of a newly adopted baby.

A friend (?) asked, "Is the baby illegitimate?"

My husband spoke up and said, "Of course not. We've been married for years."

Thought maybe you'd like to share this with your readers.

NEW MAMA

DEAR MAMA: Beautiful! Consider it shared.

DEAR ABBY: May I enter an opinion on your recent columns on "Euthanasia and Living Wills"? You called upon three distinguished representatives of our major faiths to give their "official" views on these important topics.

The "majority" position of Traditional Judaism on these subjects is reflected by the chief rabbi of the British Commonwealth, Dr. Immanuel Jakobovits, in his revised book: "Jewish Medical Ethics."

On "Euthanasia: "...some authorities sanction the removal from a dying patient of medications or machines which only serve to prolong his agony, so long as no NATURAL means of subsistance (such as food, blood and oxygen) are withdrawn...however, some add that once artificial aids are utilized they also should not be removed..."

On Kidney Transplants: "The generally prevailing view is to permit such donations as acts of supreme charity, but not as an obligation..."

On "Eye-banks:"... the donor should stipulate in his bequest that his eyes be used only for patients suffering from, or threatened by, complete blindness. There must be prior consent of the donor or his family, and the disused part of the eye after the cornea has been removed should not be disposed of except by burial..."

With blessings on your work,
