Debra Dyer, six year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Dyer, suffered a broken nose and mouth injuries Thursday when her bicycle was struck by a car.

Miss Dyer, who live at 624 N. Christy, was taken to Highland General Hospital. Police said the young Pampa girl turned her bike into the path of Galloway's car. The accident was not reported until 5:10 p.m.

MOM, 3 KIDS ALL SAFE

'Hammering' Mother Helps Subdue Ex-Con Kidnapper

By CARLO SALZANO
United Press International

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A plucky, hammer - swinging mother told Thursday night how she helped in the capture of an ex-convict who had kidnaped and held hostage her and her three children to barter them for the life of a prison enemy.

Mrs. Elma Baldwin attacked her kidnaper, Richard A. Payne, with a hammer during the nearly 24 hours he kept her in his car but failed to subdue him. She finally grabbed the wheel as Payne turned to fire at pursuing police, swinging the car off the road where her captor surrendered meekly.

Neither Mrs. Baldwin nor her three children, aged 5 to 10, was harmed.

Gives Himself Up

As the police surrounded the stalled car, Payne threw down his pistol and gave himself up. He said he didn't want to hurt the children.

Payne was scheduled for a hearing today before Kanawha County Prosecutor Charles Walker. Officials also said Payne would be given a sanity hearing.

Mrs. Baldwin, reunited with her relieved husband, John, told newsmen "it was like sitting on a volcano that might erupt at any time."

She and her children, Danny, 7, Kenneth, 10, and Susan, 5, returned to their home accompanied by a state trooper to ward off curiosity-seekers. The nightmarish incident, which took less than 24 hours, apparently cost Mrs. Baldwin and her children little more than lost sleep.

Tired And Hungry

"The children were tired and hungry. So was the mother, but they were all okay," said state police Cpl. M. S. Hofstetter, who helped run down Payne as he passed the Logan, W. Va. barracks late Thursday afternoon.

The capture came at 5:15 p.m. e.s.t. when the ex-convict's stolen auto passed within 100 yards of the station. Hofstetter and two fellow officers gave chase, sirens wailing.

Payne invaded the Baldwin home in South Charleston Wednesday night on the pretext of making a phone call. He tied up John H. Baldwin, 30, and fled in the family car with Mrs. Baldwin and the children as hostages.

He left behind a note addressed the Baldwins. The enemy was to Gov. Cecil H. Underwood de- identified as his former cell-mate manding the "head of my worst at Moundsville, W. Va. Penitenenemy" in return for release of tiary, Burton (Junior) Post.

He Bled, And His Head Hurt All Day

EDITOR'S NOTE: For nearly 24 hours, Mrs. Elma Baldwin, a 29-year-old South Charleston, W. Va. housewife, and her three children were held as hostages by an enraged, vengeance-bent ex-convict who was willing to gamble their lives in exchange for that of his worst enemy. The following dispatch is her account of the ordeal.

By MRS. ELMA BALDWIN
As Told To UPI

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—After we got in the car last night (Wednesday), I remembered there was a hammer under the front seat. I reached down and got it and hit him (ex-convict Richard A. Payne) twice—once on the back of the head and once on the forehead.

It didn't knock him out. I don't know why. He bled considerably and he complained all day how his head hurt him.

He just told me not to try anything like that again or he would hurt one of the children.

I stayed awake all night for fear that he might wreck the car. He drove awful nervously and reckless.

Kids Never Scared

The kids slept a little, but not much. The way he drove, they were shaken up so much they couldn't sleep.

The kids were never scared. He actually was very nice to us. He was very considerate and, before we left the house last (Wednesday) night, he told me to take two pillows and two blankets.

He was very nervous all the time and kept the car heater turned up awfully high. I kept covering the children's faces with the blankets.

He never lost his temper. If he had been insane he surely would have jumped on me for the bad time I gave him. But he was extremely nice.

He talked a lot. Mostly about how it was in prison. Everytime he talked about this man Post (Burton Junior Post) he would pull out his gun.

Puts Away Gun

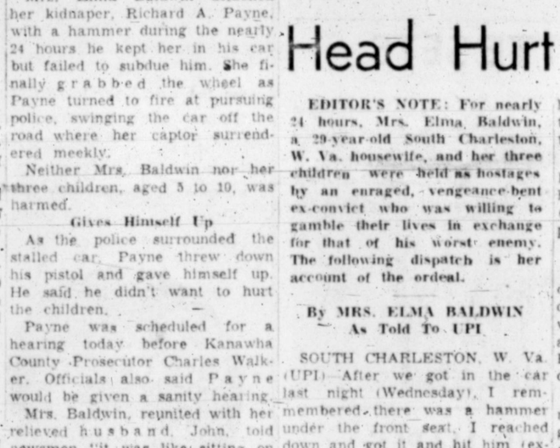

I told him not to do that because he might hurt one of the children. I said "I've kept my word by not causing any trouble and you ought to keep yours." He agreed not to harm us if we didn't make trouble.

He agreed to let us go free tonight (Thursday) and planned to get other hostages. We were just about out of money and gas. He said he would leave the car with me.

He said if the police tried to get him he would use the little girl (Susan, aged 5) as a shield.

When the state police car started chasing us, he let go of the steering wheel and pulled her closer to him.

I managed to grab the wheel and put on the brakes and pulled the car over to the curb.

KIDNAPPER NABBED

Summer Play, Swimming Programs Set

The Pampa Red Cross and the City of Pampa have again joined forces to promote a summer recreational and swimming program, according to John Koontz, City manager.

Clifton McNeely will be the coordinator for the two groups, Koontz said this morning. Swimming classes will begin June 22 and last through July 31. There will be three two week instruction classes with summer recretajonal classes being held at the same time.

Children who live near the Harvester Fieldhouse will attend Summer Recreation during the first two week session and children from the south side of town will go to the City pool for swim classes.

The plan will be alternated the next two weeks with summer recreation being held in Baker School for South side residents. There will be four teachers working in the Summer Recreation program and ten instructors in the Water Safety part.

Registration will be held May 25-29 in the Chamber of Commerce conference room. A minimum charge of $1 will be made for pool admittance and maintenance expenditure for the program. Parents are urged to wait until the registration period to enroll their children as the classes will not be set up before that time.

West Happy With 'Change Of Heart'

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev's news conference statements have somewhat eased the pressure on the Berlin question, diplomatic circles said today.

Khrushchev Thursday agreed to a May 11 foreign ministers' meeting to discuss the problem and denied there was any deadline for changing the status of Berlin.

The diplomatic circles speculated that Khrushchev had a change of heart for these reasons:

—A feeling of self-confidence. Khrushchev feels he is in control of the situation.

An easing of the Western position, exemplified by British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's visit to Moscow and President Eisenhower's television broadcast agreeing to a summit meeting.

Khrushchev's desire to smooth any obvious rifts between East and West on the question.

Second News Conference

The news conference, only the second Khrushchev has ever held in Moscow, was vastly different from the first one last Nov. 27. At that time, the Soviet Premier outlined plans for the unilateral ending of the Potsdam agreement and handing over controls of West Berlin's routes through East Germany to the East German government at the end of six months.

But Thursday, Khrushchev appeared to have softened. He presented no picture of doom.

Smiling and waving his arms to emphasize points, he seemed like a gentle father soothing excited children. He said he had arbitrarily selected the six-month limit for solving the Berlin question by "looking at the ceiling," and implied there would be no showdown at its end, May 27.

Ad Libs Comments

Flashing his gold teeth and quoting Russian proverbs, Khrushchev answered questions from the 300 correspondents for nearly two hours. He also added his own ad lib comments on world personalities:

—United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser: "A young man, rather hot-headed."

—U.S. Adm. Arleigh Burke and Gen. Maxwell Taylor: "Deprived of reason."

—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who is 83: "Behaving like a young fighting cock."

—President Eisenhower's television speech: "Contained seeds of health and reason."

Cowtown Looks Into Dirty Linen

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Police Chief Hightower suspended a detective and a police sergeant today while he investigated suspicions that they set up jobs for a burglary ring.

"They have cast a reflection on 530 honest officers and we intend to clean up our dirty linen," Hightower said. "They are suspended indefinitely."

The detective is H. L. Stevenson and the police sergeant is Phil Coker. They both denied the charges, but Hightower said the evidence pointing to their complicity was so great it demanded an all-out investigation.

There were indications that the investigation might go deeper than involvement with a burglary ring. The burglary ring was smashed last night with a series of arrests.

Two of the key figures in the ring were said to be Charlie Long and Harry Kirk, husband of a woman recently accused of passing counterfeit bills in a nationwide ring.

A ranger and sheriff's deputies helped in smashing the ring. Detective Chief Andre Fournier and Sgt. Oliver Ball of the vice squad got a tip Thursday night that a west side supermarket was set up for burglars Thursday night.

They posted lookouts around the grocery (Chicotsky's) and surrounded two men and two women who arrived with the apparent intentions of breaking in.

These four, according to Hightower, implicated Long and Kirk. He questioned Long and Kirk and then suspended Stevenson and Coker.

One of the trademarks of the burglary gang, Hightower said, was the use of walkie-talkies between members and lookouts on jobs.

Hightower said suspicion that Stevenson might be involved in crookedness was aroused last summer when he insisted that a body found in a shallow grave near lake Worth was that of George Kean, an underworld figure and gambler.

A body easily identified as that of Kean later turned up in a grave near Pontiac, Mich.

This is Police Appreciation Day in Fort Worth and a banquet is scheduled tonight in the police department's honor.

Oklahoma Boy Murders Two, Injures Three

WYNONA, Okla. (UPI)—A light flickering in pre - dawn darkness today led to the arrest of teen-aged slayer Jerry Miller, in a barn near where he murdered two persons and wounded three others Thursday night.

Miller, 19, emerged from the barn with his hands up when Osage County Sheriff Dick Streetman and a volunteer deputy, Henry Stephenson, demanded that he surrender or face their gunfire.

Streetman said Miller had thrown into a nearby pasture the 22 caliber target pistol with which he sprayed bullets into the family who gave him lodging.

Joe Moreland, 37, Miller's brother - in - law, and Moreland's baby daughter, Paula, about 2, were killed instantly in the outburst, which came for no apparent reason.

Mrs. Freda Moreland, 33, Miller's sister, was critically wounded with bullet wounds in the back and head. Her two sons, Jerry Wayne, 4, and Charles, 8, were hit in the neck.

The younger boy is seriously injured, but the hospital reported that Charles is in satisfactory condition.

The capture ended an all-night dragnet which stretched all over Oklahoma and into neighboring states after Miller tried to slaughter the family. Officers said he burst out of a bedroom, pistol in hand, and fired shot after shot into the helpless family.

Jerry is one of 11 children. Several live with their father in Wynona. Jerry went to live with his sister after he was released from the Army at Ft. Sill, Okla., where rape charges were brought against him last year.

The boy's father said he could give no reason for the shootings. "They took him into their family and treated him just like one of them," the elder Miller said.

WIND CLAIMS ANOTHER ROOF

Debris littered the farmyard of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Underwood this morning after a freak gust of wind tore the roof of a feed shed behind their home. The Underwood home is on the Miami highway about one-half mile east of the city limits. Mrs. Underwood said this morning the roof must have came off about 10:30 Thursday night. The colt (at left) was near the shed but unharmed. No other signs of damage were reported east of Pampa. (Daily News Photo)

BEFORE CAMP DAVID TALKS

Ike, Macmillan Confer With Dulles In Hospital

By STEWART HENSLEY
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan held a hospital-room conference with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today before departing for their across-the-table talks at secluded Camp David.

The two free world leaders stopped at Walter Reed Army Hospital to consult with Dulles, who has been under treatment for cancer.

Their visit was more than a courtesy call. There was no question but that they discussed with Dulles the main points of the thorny cold war problems to be dealt with during their three-day conference at Camp David. British Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd accompanied them to the hospital.

During his stay at the hospital, Dulles has been keeping abreast of all developments centering around the Berlin crisis and the possibility of a Big Four summit conference later this year.

Macmillan was reported hopeful of persuading the President to negotiate with Russia on a limited pull-back of troops in Europe as a means of easing tension.

(Paris diplomatic reports said one of the main purposes of Macmillan's visit was to try to persuade Eisenhower to drop his decision to attend a summit conference only if the foreign ministers conference is successful. The French diplomatic reports said other Western powers feel this condition is likely to hamper the west in talks with the Russians.)

British sources said Macmillan favored talks on some form of troop withdrawal on both sides of the Iron Curtain and a reduction of armaments there as a means of lessening East-West tension.

LOCAL FIRM BURGLARIZED

A burglar stole a pair of binoculars and a fishing reel from the Hall and Pinson Tire Co. No. 2 sometime overnight, Police Lt. Denny Ruan reported this morning.

Dale Pinson, the company owner, discovered the break in at 8:40 a.m. The company, located at 415 E. Frederic, was entered by breaking a rear window.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm so ashamed of my problem I don't even know how to say it. Well, my husband is one of those stubborn kind. You can't tell him anything. He isn't a drinker. He doesn't chase. He goes to church and maybe I shouldn't complain but here it is: He thinks it's foolish to take a bath in the winter. Abby, I have hinted, made suggestions, opened windows and burned incense, but nothing helps. He says a man doesn't have to smell like a "lily of the valley." Outside of that he is dandy. Can you please help me get him into a tub before Easter?

OVERCOME

Dear Overcome: A man doesn't have to smell like a lily of the valley — neither does he have to smell like a mountain goat. Quit hinting, opening windows and burning incense. Tell him plainly, "If you want Me next to You, get next to yourself, Honey, and take a tub, Bub!" (And use plenty of soft soap if you have to.)

DEAR ABBY: What is a girl suppose to do when she wants to be popular? I try to be friendly with a boy but I don't want to get the reputation of being fast. I kiss them good night, but they aren't satisfied to stop there. They want more. How does a girl act towards a fellow who, when she gives him an inch wants the whole hand?

THELMA

Dear Thelma: Compromise. Give him the Back of your hand.

DEAR ABBY: I think you were wrong when you told that party that people should call on the phone before coming over. I think that is one of the reasons why families and friends are drifting apart. Far as I'm concerned, any time a friend of ours thinks enough of us to come and visit us, we welcome them. Please print this as I know a lot of people will agree that you are wrong and I am right. Also, tell Andrea for me that we bought a "welcome mat" for our front door before we had a telephone.

A STEADY READER

Dear Reader: Sorry, I can't agree with you. Most people are not prepared for company, "any time." A telephone call in advance is not too big a price to pay for a warm welcome.

DEAR ABBY: My husband thinks we should take our children to church from the time they are two months old. They cry and wiggle and nearly drive my crazy. I don't get a thing out of the services. We have a nursery but he won't let me leave the children there. He has the idea that a baby must learn to sit quietly in church. Says he had to do it when he was small. What can I do? I might as well stay home.

STUMPED

Dear Stumped: I agree that children should be taught to sit quietly in church, but if they are too young to understand what's going on and spoil the services for others, they should be left elsewhere.

Are you parents square? Get ABBY'S booklet "What Every Teenager Wants to Know." Send 25 cents and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY in care of this newspaper.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

The first thing to do when you get a new dress home is to remove from it paste buttons, buckles or artificial flowers. These only cheapen the appearance of the dress. Once they're stripped off, you can add your own jewelry or replace the buttons with new ones from your button box. The dress will look far more expensive.

Play Equipment Ordered For Park

LEFORS (Spl) — The 20-30 Club met in the home of Mrs. John Welton recently.

Discussion of the city park was the major topic for the business meeting, directed by Mrs. Calvin Lacy, president. Mrs. Joe Archer reported on a swing frame, which had been donated by John Prichard. It was decided to order three baby swings, three medium swings, and three large swings. A slide was also ordered, and plans made for a wading pool.

A committee was appointed to investigate the merry-go-around in the Pampa Park and secure information for similar play equipment in the Lefors Park.

Mrs. Joe Watson was accepted as a new member and pinned.

Refreshments of Cokes, Dr. Pepper, and cookies were served by the hostess.

One guest, Mrs. Paschal Crutcher, was present, and the following members, Mmes. Jimmy Pennington, Calvin Lacy, Joe Archer, Joe Watson, Ray Dickerson, R. E. McDonald, Bill Wilson, Billy Cox, Wayne Sims, and the hostess.

Robertson Speaks For Crippled Kids

Frank Robertson of Kerrville is a man with a true story to tell. Robertson is executive director of the Texas Lions Camp for Crippled Children and was its president in 1952 when the first bunkhouses were built.

By governor's proclamation, this is Texas Lions Camp for Crippled Children Week. Robertson told his story Thursday at meetings of Pampa's two Lions Clubs. Both clubs help support the Texas Camp. The Noon Lions send part of the proceeds from their annual Minstrel to Kerville. The Evening Club this year sent all the money it made in a light bulb sale.

"Your club has done an excellent job," said Robertson, as he presented Evening Boss Lion Robert Hamilton with a 100 per cent participating certificate. The 20 member club raised $708.30 for the Camp. This contribution amounts to more than $10 a member. The remainder was given in the memory of the late Frank Lard.

Robertson, however, is more interested in new campers than in donations. He advocated the "prompt placing of applications for crippled kids to come to camp this summer." But there is no dearth of campers. The Camp can accomodate 720 children. Last summer it had 741.

"There are so many handicapped boys and girls in the State that we are urging clubs to submit applications for new campers," said Robertson. "Every year we select 20 per cent as outstanding campers and invite them back." He explained that this group acts as a liaison between new campers and the staff. "But we don't want 40 per cent. Twenty, yes. It helps progress a great deal."

In 1957, a Rehabilitation Center for the Blind was opened for winter use. Robertson told several inspring stories of blind men and women who came to the Center for help.

The center offers "training in adult life to make a person feel that the rug hasn't been pulled out from under him completely," said Robertson. In many cases, he advises blind persons to go back to their jobs, when they have adjusted to their blindness.

Every night during the summer, crippled children form a friendship circle before going to bed. "It's a close circle," Robertson said, "but they're always willing to expand it and let another in." And this is what they say:

Green trees all about us,
Blue skies above,
Friends all around us
In a World full of love.

Robertson passed around the braille watch that he had been holding in his hand. For several years, he has been legally blind.

College Prexy Will Preach Here Sunday

Dr. A. Hope Owen, president of Wayland Baptist College, Plainview, will be guest speaker at the First Baptist Church, Pampa, at both services next Sunday. During the past five years since he became president, Wayland Baptist College has almost completed a Five Year Program of Progress. At the midwinter meeting of the Board of Trustees, they approved Dr. Owen's recommendation for a trustee - administration - faculty study leading toward the adoption of a Design for a Decade Program for the 1958-68 period.

Two residence halls for young women, Hattie Mays Ferguson and Bessie Fleming, Brotherhood Hall for young men, and the Van Howeling Memorial Library have been added to the plant since 1953. Wayland has purchased or constructed four brick duplexes for married students, seven faculty residences, a modern bookstore and much new classroom area in these five years.

In keeping with the spiritual standards for which Wayland has long been known, the academic standards have been raised so that the college is now fully accredited for the granting of the B.A. and B.S. degrees by the Southern Association of Colleges and the Association of Texas Colleges.

Dr. Owen went to the presidency of Wayland from 30 years in pastorates at such areas as Plainview; Shawnee, Okla.; Santa Fe and Albuquerque, N.M.; Quanah, and Clinton, Okla. He is a graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University, which conferred on him an honorary degree, Southwestern and Southern Baptist Seminaries.

The Training Union will meet for its monthly officer's council, Sunday afternoon at 5. The various departments will meet to plan the programs for the month of April.

Dr. Douglas Carver, pastor, will return from a revival meeting in San Saba, and will speak Wednesday evening at 7:45 for the mid-week service.

The graded choirs will meet Thursday at 3:45 for rehearsals.

Monday through Thursday, the Church will cooperate with the Palo Duro Association in an Elementary Workshop. Three leaders from the state offices will be present to lead the conferences each evening at 7. They are: Mrs. W. H. Souther, primary; Mrs. Minnie Wells Josey, beginner; and Mrs. Bert Reed, nursery. Morning conferences will be held in Borger Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at 9. All Baptist Churches in this area are cooperating in this workshop.

Plenty of Pensions

In the United States, 3,519,000 people receive old age pensions approximating a pension expenditure of $3,762,000,000, greatest amount in the world.

'MATTER' WILL BE SUNDAY'S LESSON TOPIC

The effectiveness of prayer in healing the sick will be stressed at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Matter."

From the Gospel according to St. Mark will be read the healing by Christ Jesus of the young lad who had "a dumb spirit." The account ends with Jesus' comment to his disciples, ". . . This kind can come forth by nothing, but by prayer and fasting" (Mark 9:29).

Also emphasizing the power of prayer are passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, including the following (15:9): "To enter into the heart of prayer, the door of the erring senses must be closed. Lips must be mute and materialism silent, that man may have audience with Spirit, the divine Principle, Love, which destroys all error."

A cordial invitation from First Church of Christ, Scientist, Pampa, is open to all of you at the church services on Sunday morning at 11, and Wednesday evening at 8. The King James Version of the Bible, and authorized Christian Science literature may be read, borrowed, or purchased at the Christian Science Reading Room located in the church building at 901 N. Frost.

Come to Church

The Weekly Message

Of Inspiration

DARRELL C. FRYMAN
CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN

"And they brought the colt to Jesus, and cast their garments on him; and he sat upon him. And many spread their garments in the way: and others cut down branches off the trees, and strawed them in the way. And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

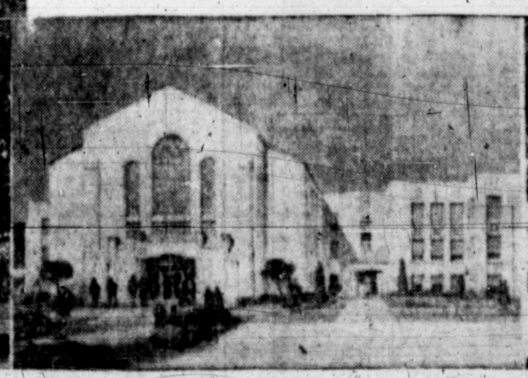

Palm Sunday gets its name from the waving of palm branches by those who went to meet the Savior and his disciples on that Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem. All the city was stirred saying, "Who is this?" The crowds said, "This is a prophet from Nazareth." "Hosanna to the son of David." They were looking for a king – someone to help them – to save them.

But as Jesus came and saw the city, and that the temple was anything but a house of prayer, he wept saying, "Would that even today you knew the things that make for peace, for the days shall come when you and your enemies shall come upon you, and dash you to the ground because you did not know the time of your visitation."

Jesus was a different kind of King. He rode on a quiet animal. When he died His crown was a crown of thorns; a reed was His scepter, but He rules the world today in triumph. We sing, "Crown him with many crowns, the Lamb upon his throne." His kingdom is spiritual, not political. He rules as the light of the world bringing beauty and an abundant life to all who will accept and obey Him.

Have we become His disciples in earnest? If so, we will be in His house all the Sundays of the year. We will not need to be asked to work or to give or to pray. We will do it because we love Him and want to serve Him.

Golf ,Track Squads in Odessa

GOLFERS SMILE, TOO — The Pampa Women's Golf Association held its first meeting of the year Thursday, and most of the ladies seemed happy to get another season underway. About 50 members and new members attended the coffee meeting at the Pampa Country Club. Officers of the association are, from left, Vice-President Ellen Campaign, Panhandle delegate Lil Hall, tournament chairman Barbara Dobbin, and President Betty Garren.

For Gigantic Westex Meet

ODESSA (Spl) — Pampa golf and track teams are competing in the Odessa Relays, which began this afternoon, and will continue through Saturday.

The four man Pampa track team entered includes weight man Paul Brown, hurdlers Rex Williams and Charles Warren, and miler John Gross.

Larry Tarvin, Paul Machowicz, Don Fox, and Eugene Yeary compose the probable Pampa golf team.

The Harvester track squad is being split this weekend, with most of the cinder men (11) going to the Clayton, N.M., Relays.

Competing at Clayton are pole vaulter Cooper; hurdler Roy Don Stephens, weight man Rowland Stone; mile relay man Steve Dobbin; Charles Giese, shot put, 880 relay, and 440 relay.

Tommy Locke, mile and 440 relays 220 or 440 dash; Buddy Rawls 880 and mile relays and broad jump; Dwain Urbanczyk, 880 and mile relays and 440 yard dash; Dickie Watkins, shot put, discus, and 440 and 880 relays; Harold Stokes, 440 relay and shot put.

Teams Records

The track team has entered three meets this year, and scored a total of 15 points. The cindermen scored one point at Fort Stockton, 10 at Graham for a fifth place finish, and 4 last week in Snyder.

Coach Dwain Lyon said that despite their low point total, they showed improvement in the Snyder meet. He named miler Gross as the most improved runner on the squad.

Most of Pampa's points this year have been made in the high and low hurdles.

For the golfers, the picture has been brighter. Weldon (Bird Dog) Trice's linksters finished fifth among 45 teams in last week's Southwest Recreation Meet, then came within six strokes of Borger in a quadrangular match at Wichita Falls.

Pampa finished third in the Wichita Falls meet, but the second place Borger squad was state runnerup last year, and the Bulldogs had finished 45 strokes ahead of Pampa earlier on Pampa's home course.

Trice and other observers pointed out that the golfers had shown great improvement, and Trice reported that he was well pleased with their showing last weekend.

Feature Race

Sixty-four teams are entered in the mammoth high school track division of the Odessa Relays. State champion Andrews is favored, but Midland and Borger are rated as top challengers.

High school preliminaries are being run this afternoon, and semi-finals are set for Saturday morning. Finals in all events are scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Feature of the Relays' University division will be two special racers between the three top sprinters in the country — Bobby Morrow of ACC, Dame Sime of Duke, and Glenn Davis of Ohio State. All three will be entered in a 100 and 220-yard dash Saturday afternoon.

The largest crowd ever to see a track meet in West Texas is expected for Saturday's events. Some 17,500 people will probably watch the star studded 100 and 220 dashes.

AA-TOURNAMENT — These three all tournament players lead Pampa High's volleyball team into the Lamesa tournament this afternoon and Saturday. They are, from left, Kaye Layne, Phyllis Burress, and Sherry Thygerson. All three made the all-tournament team last week in Plainview, and Kaye also made the Big Spring all-star team.

Vernon Game Scheduled

Red Griggs ★ the pipeline

Pampa's athletic teams are making like the Globe Trotters this weekend, and meandering around all over the Southwest.

Dwain Lyon's tracksters and Bird Dog Trice's golfers are down in Odessa, competing in the gigantic Odessa Relays. Deck Woldt's Harvester baseball team will be in Vernon Saturday for game, and Barbara Daugherty's volleyball girls are competing in a Lamesa tournament.

As if that wasn't enough, though, there are still three things going for the stay-at-homes. The baseball team is having an intra-squad game this afternoon, and the Lee Rebels are ending their spring training today with an intra-squad scrimmage.

Then tonight, the pee wee basketball tournament moves into its second round, in Harvester Field House. The little fellows in the Kiwanis-Optimist league are capping a great season with this meet. Finals will be played Saturday night, also in Harvester Field House.

Volleyball Team Winning

Most of the boys' teams seem to get at least a little recognition for their work but somehow the girls' squads are seldom heard from.

Yet Barbara Daugherty's Pampa High volleyball squad has one of the winningest records of any team in town. They've won all five of their dual matches, and finished third in one tournament and fourth in another.

The volleyball thumpers have beaten Phillips twice, Dumas twice, and Borger once in individual games; and they finished fourth in the Big Spring tournament and third in the Plainview meet.

Pampa finished second in the state last year, losing in the finals of the state tournament to Big Spring. The Big Spring girls have been their big stumbling block this year, too. Two of Pampa's three losses have been to those six formidable fems.

Miss Daugherty's volleyballers lost to Big Spring in both the Plainview and Big Spring's tourneys. Looks as if Pampa may have to settle for a runnerup spot again, unless they have a lot of luck.

However, three girls who can give any team, including Big Spring, plenty of trouble, are Sherry Thygerson, Phyllis Burress, and Kaye Layne. All three made the all-tournament team at Plainview, and Kaye made it at Big Spring, too.

Traveling 'Round the Track

Bill Brashears, one of last year's Harvester tracksters, is going great for the Baylor freshman squad. He won first place last week for the Cubs in the 440-yard dash at the Southwest Recreation meet in Fort Worth.

Brashears, one of the top tracksters in the district last year, is the son of Mrs. Floyd Padgett, 1085 Vernon Drive.

Speaking of last year's tracksters, Dwain Lyon could use some of them now. Lyon is building for the future, with a squad made up mostly of sophomores.

Lyon chose to split his squad this week, rather than send the entire team on the back-breaking task of trying to win something at the Odessa Relays.

Most of the squad is entering the Clayton Relays in Clayton, N.M., and only four men made the trip to Odessa.

Pampa fans will get their first look at tracksters from Robert E. Lee Junior High, in competition, two weeks from now.

Pampa will have an invitational junior high meet here April 4. Coaches Norman Phillips of Lee and Gene Chance of Pampa Junior High have already sent out a number of invitations to area schools.

The Reapers and Rebels will, naturally, both be entered. Since Lee is a brand new school, this will be the first official track meet in its history.

Yager Will Start on Mound For Pampa in Saturday Tilt

By RED GRIGGS
Daily News Sports Editor

Pampa's baseball Harvesters are playing an intra-squad game this afternaoon, in preparation for Saturday's 2 p.m. game at Vernon.

The Vernon game was originally scheduled as a doubleheader, but was changed to a single game. The contest may go nine innings.

The intra-squad game began at 4 p.m., in Harvester Park. Coach Deck Woldt said that he would leave his varsity team almost intact for the game, but that he would try to bolster the B team by putting first line reserves in their lineup.

Mack Taylor and Buddy Rawls are the hurlers for the intra-squad game.

Probable starting pitcher for the Vernon game will be Keith Yager. Jimmy Walker and Kippy Williams are also slated to see mound action.

"If the game goes nine innings," said Woldt, "all three boys will pitch three innings. If it goes just seven innings, Yager will pitch four, Williams three, and we'll save Walker for relief work."

"We're going to have our pitchers throw four innings as soon as possible," the Harvester coach added. (No pitcher has gone more than three innings so far).

Yager pitched three hitless innings in Tuesday's season-opening 6-4 win over Borger, and also got a pair of singles. Williams was touched for six hits and all four of Broger's runs, but batted in a run at the plate. Walker has seen no game action.

Wendell Rigway will start at shortstop and lead off for Pampa Saturday. Bobby Stephens, who made a couple of great fielding plays Tuesday, will play left field and bat second.

Larry Stroud, who made two hits in two trips to the plate Tuesday, will bat third and play first base. Cleanup man and centerfielder will be DeWayne Glover, and Gary Wills will bat fifth and play in right field. Second baseman Ruben Strickland will bat sixth.

Wills was the seige gun of the Harvester attack Tuesday, as he blasted a double and drove in three of Pampa's six runs.

Terry Haralson, who drove in a run Tuesday with a sacrifice fly, will catch and bat seventh, and Gregory will bat eighth and play third base. The pitchers will hit ninth.

Lefors Relay Meet Slated

LEFORS (Spl) — Lefors High School will host 19 class AA, A, and B schools here Saturday, in the Lefors Relays.

Entered will be Spearman, Groom, Price College, Perryton, White Deer, Panhandle, Lefors, Canadian, Wheeler, Miami, Kelton, Darrouzett, Friona, Shamrock, Clarendon, Stinnett, Sunray, Booker, and Briscoe.

A total of approximately 450 boys are expected to enter the meet.

Trophies will be awarded to the winning team, and a trophy will also be given to the winning 440 relay and mile relay teams. Medals will be presented to first, second, third, and fourth place winners in all events.

Points will be added on the basis of five for a winner, three for a runnerup, two for a third place finish, and one for fourth. Bill Cross will be the official starter.

NCAA Finals Start Tonite

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Cincinnati made it a year late and Louisville a year early, but they ruled as co-favorites today in the NCAA basketball finals which open tonight before a sellout 19,000 fans at Freedom Hall.

Both teams, held at about 8-5 locally to win the tournament, have something extra going for them as Louisville opens the two-day struggle for Kentucky's vacated title by meeting West Virginia in the eastern semi-final and Cincinnati goes against California in the western semi-final. The winners meet Saturday night for college basketball's greatest prize.

Morrow, Sime, Davis Meet In Odessa Relays Saturday

By ED FITE
United Press International

ODESSA, Tex. (UPI) — Bobby Morrow, Dave Sime and Glenn Davis, the big three among the nation's track royalty, match strides here Saturday as Davis gets his first crack at his other two rivals for the title of "world's fastest human."

They are scheduled to meet each other twice in "open" 10 and 220-yard dashes to feature the 15th annual West Texas Relays before what looms as a capacity crowd of 17,500 in Barrett Stadium.

It won't be the first clash between Morrow, the Texas tornado who swept to three Olympic gold medals at Melbourne, and Sime, the ramblin' redhead from Duke who lost his 1956 Olymmpic chances to kinky muscles.

Sime holds a 2-1 edge in their three previous encounters at the century distance. They've never met, either, at the 220 furlong.

Davis, the Buckeye bullet from Ohio State, earned his track peerage at the quarter-mile level where he owns the world 440-yard dash mark of 45.7 seconds and the 400-meter hurdles, march of 49.5 seconds.

But, he's been known to rip off a 9.7 century dash and a 21-flat in the 220—good enough to play in the same league with Morrow and Sime.

Morrow and Sime share the world's 100-yard record with five others at 9.3 seconds, while Sime is sole owner of the 220-yard mark of 20.0.

Bradley, SJ In NIT Final

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bradley and St. John's, a couple of "old hands" at winning tourneys, are all set for a showdown re-match in the final round of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament now that the "Cinderella teams" have been sent packing with their pumpkins, glass slippers, and hook shots.

And the title in Saturday's nationally-televised (NBC, 4 p.m. e.s.t.) battle hinges on one question—can Bradley repeat its 71-66 regular season win over the New York Redmen?

Top - seeded Bradley, anxious for its second NIT crown in three years, reached the finals as expected with a 59-57 thriller over New York U. Thursday night on Mike Owens' late layup basket.

And St. John's, seeking to become the first team to win the NIT three times, advanced with a 76-55 romp over a Providence College team that had become the "upset darlings" of the tourney by first-round and quarter-final round upsets.

Coaches Chuck Osborn of Bradley and Joe Lapchick of St. John's made it clear at once that they both were mighty worried men.

"I thought NYU was the best team in the tourney—until I saw St. John's beat St. Bonaventure in the quarter-finals," said Osborn.

"The Braves look like Giants to me," said Lapchick, whose Redmen were unseeded but game time favorites in each round so far. "Bradly is as grat team and very properly seeded No. 1 in this tournament."

New Land Policy

For two years now, a group of prominent New Mexicans have been conducting a study which may result in something closer to reality respecting ownership of federal lands.

As most of us are rather painfully aware, the federal government is the largest holder of real estate in the 11 western states. If we include Alaska, to round it out to a full dozen, the number of acres held by Uncle Sam in comparison to what is privately owned, is even larger.

It is the purpose of this group, headed up by Clarence E. Hinkle, of Roswell, New Mexico, to present sound arguments which will encourage a basic change in land policy on the part of the federal government, with the end in view of getting these federally - owned acres out of moth - balls and into private and productive usage.

It's a major objective, and to its credit the New Mexico Land Resources Association, itself entirely a private and voluntary affair, has done its research well and is striving to marshall as much weight as possible behind its movement, before it raises the curtains on the drama.

At stake, in what may develop into quite a hassle, are some 200 million acres outside of Alaska. If the association ever gets to playing around with our newest state, the numbers of acres involved may jump to 400 million.

The proposal being readied by the association consists of two steps. Step number one provides that the federal government will make available to the separate states, huge tracts of land which the states can purchase on a long-termm purchase plan. Step two occurs as the states themselves put these acres up for private purchase on equally favorable and long-term purchasing agreements.

Intrinsically a part of the proposal is the admitted aim of securing greater mineral rights for the separate states and for private owners. Under present policies, 52½ per cent of oil and mineral royalties goes into the federal reclamation fund for western water and power projects. If the proposal is adopted, about 90 per cent of such royalties will go to the separate states and to the individual purchasers.

In the main, the lands being considered by the New Mexico group are those lands already being rented by private persons where title remains with the federal government, principally in the U. S. Forest Service. Exmpeted specifically would be Forest Service lands which are timbered, which protect high - altitude watersheds, national parks and national monuments, lands set aside for defense purposes, federal fish and wildlife lands and Indian lands.

So far as we're concerned the list of exemptions is a little too large, but even so, the aim of transferring some 200 million acres into the hands of private users is a most constructive move.

It should be borne in mind that all taxes are paid by the earnings of private individuals. And much of our ability to earn is related to what we are able to own privately. For far too long a time the federal government has had a policy which adversely affects our ability, particularly here in the West, to own lands privately. The New Mexico group claims, and we agree with its claim, that the development of this great territory will be aided tremendously if the federal government will permit private owners to step in where right now the bureaucracy holds sway.

It is true that one of the reasons the Forest Service and other federal agencies cost the taxpayers so much money each year relates to the fact that federally-owned lands produce no tax revenue, and thus, taxpayers are compelled to provide larger sums from their privately - owned acres to support the government in its ownership of public lands. The small sums taken in by the federal government in the form of rents do not begin to offset the huge sums of taxes which are paid in by the taxpayers who own other tracts of land.

From the overall principles which should be consulted in an issue of this kind, it behooves the federal government to divest itself of its holdings as rapidly as possible. The government is not supposed to be in competition with its own people. It is a regulating, not a productive agency. The sooner it assays its proper role, the better for all concerned.

Money And Ability

There's a curious bit of reasoning going the rounds these days. It is to the effect that if we sish better teachers in our schools, we must pay the ones we have more money.

It would seem, almost, that the advocates of higher taxes have it in mind that teachers are paid on a commission basis in relationship to the end product they produce, which is simply not so.

And since there is no movement under foot to fire all existing teachers so that they can be replaced by men and women of competence who demand higher pay, we marvel at the syllogism which seems so logical in the minds of so many:

It goes like this: 1. If you want the best, you must pay a high price. 2. What you are paying now, however high, is not high enough. 3. Therfor, to improve the teaching of our government professionals, we must pay them more.

Is this not a tacit admission that those who are presently so employed are only doing a half-hearted job? Isn't this move a bland admission that untapped resources for excellence lie buried in the libidos of our professionals which excellence can only be stimulated by the sight of larger sums of money?

This entirely fallacious syllogism is comparable in very way to the manner in which many of our uninformed populace conduct their shopping expeditions. Since they have no means of determining true merit, taste and discrimination, never having been taught them, they judge the excellence of a product by the price tag and by nothing else.

Two sacks of sugar, side by side on the shelf, one priced at $1.00 the other at a $1.10, will almost inevitable bring the reaction: "I wanted the best; therefore, I bought the sack that cost $1.10." As tho that had anything to do with it, necessarily.

The supposition is that price creates quality, rather than that quality assists in determining price. Having put the cart before the horse, the shopper is fair game for any exploiter who simply has to raise his prices and flank the raise with a fast sales talk and the purchaser finds himself buying "quality" merchandise, marked "down" from $1.98 to $2.37.

If we apply this same exposure to the teaching profession we come up with the same result. Money does not produce excellence; rather, it is excellence that tends toward creating an adequate monetary reward.

Thus, if we examine our schools we should begin by seeking excellence in the service provided, and then discovering if ways and means exist for rewarding on the basis of excellence.

The problem immediately becomes acute. If teaching were operative in the free market, the excellent teacher would be well on his way toward making both a name and a sizable financial return for himself. The laws of supply and demand, which are not subject to political control and regulation, would automatically stimulate the finest professional preformance in each of these categories.

It is entirely possible, given a free market in which to ply their abilities, the superior instructor could command real rewards in his pay envelope. Instead of being held at a fixed fee, the fee determined both by political caprice and by the plunder of the innocents, the professional could command twice, three times, what he is presently getting.

Nor would such a reward have to await a certain number of years in service, which is the union device for determining excellence whereas, in fact, it simply serves to determine the extent of a man's lack of ambition. Rather, the man or woman of ability would find ample opportunities for demonstrating ability, having that ability recognized and thus advancing rapidly in direct ratio as he delivered the goods.

There is no way within the political structure to permit the laws of the free market to act. Therefore, if our professionals fancy that they are being underpaid, they have a clear course of action before them. They have only to resign and enter some field of endeavor in the free market where ability is rewarded with comparable pay. The matter can never be decided by the force of tax collections. For under government control, the worthy and unworthy will always be rewarded equally. And a raise in pay will produce no excellence at all.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

Employer Answers 15-Year Union Member's Questions On Economic And Moral Subjects

No. 7

Editor's note: We continue today with the transcript of questions and answers on economic and moral issues between R. C. Hoiles, president of Freedom Newspapers, and Frank Buck of Westminster, Calif., who for 15 years was a member of the Carpenters Union.

B: But there aren't jobs for everybody. That's our problem. There aren't jobs for everybody. We've got a problem and we're trying to solve it. We're not talking about an ideal system. We're talking about the system that we have, and what we're trying to do about it.

H: We don't want to keep the system we've got. We want to correct it.

B: I know, but we must find out how to correct it, and we're talking about taking the necessary steps, starting with ABC, to try to find a means of correcting it. If we can see the steps — the natural law that follows from disobeying the rules of economics, then we know what to do to correct the thing. Now, if we buy less milk for consumption. . .

H: We? You mean everybody?

B: If everybody or anybody buys less milk for their children, there is that much less demand for milk. The dairymen must cut production. The point I'm trying to make is this: When people consume less there is bound to be less demand — hence less production. Do you agree?

H: If all people consumed less there would be less production. But I know of no one who does not want more for himself or others. So they will produce to satisfy these insatiable wants.

B: We know that if children are undernourished and need food and are not consuming food they create no demand for the production of food. But if food is made available through purchasing power this consumption creates a vacuum for more goods to be produced.

H: Increased purchasing power only comes from producing what other persons want.

B: There is a natural law that if we do not consume, there is no demand for production, and if we do consume, production must start to fill the vacuum of goods and services that have been consumed. Isn't that right?

H: It's produced before it's consumed, of course. It has to be produced, and you have to guess what people are going to want. Of course, if nobody consumed anything, if we could live on air and water, we'd have all the time to do something else. We'd have more time to study, to learn, to enjoy music or whatever we enjoy.

B: We don't have that kind of a situation, though. We must consume in order to live. And the more we consume, the more employment there is for everybody, right?

H: If we consumed everything, we'd starve to death. There'd be no tools. We'd have eaten them up.

B: Well, then, we should quit consuming. Is that the point, to quit consuming?

H: Every man consumes as he pleases what he produces or trades for. And I have no right to tell another man, with force how much he can consume of what he produces. Freedom will take care of the proper kind of production if we respect creative energy. And if we tried to consume everything that's produced and didn't replenish or add to the tools, our standard of living would go down. We've got to have more tools as population increases to increase our standard of living.

B: But what would be the purpose of creating new tools if we don't consume anything?

H: I don't know anybody who doesn't want to consume more.

B: Then the more we consume, the more we create a vacuum for more production. Isn't more production what we want, to solve our unemployment problems?

H: We don't want to consume the seed corn. We do not want to consume the chicken that's laying the egg. And under your theory, if we just increase consumption and dry up capital, in the long run we'd be worse off. For the moment we'd live better, but not in the long run.

B: I'm not contending that we eat the seed corn.

H: Well, but the more we consume, the more employment doesn't follow, because you can consume too much.

B: Well, I'll grant you that there is an extreme that you can go to in anything. You can go to the extreme, getting things out of balance. But won't you grant that in 1929 and immediately after 1929 that we consumed less after that period, when the depression set in, than we did before?

H: Yes, less than we did before. Less people working. Eight or ten million people less working. Less production.

B: Yes.

H: But production comes before consumption. Must.

B: Production must come before consumption. Yes, that's true.

H: Don't worry about its being consumed. If it's on a free market and things are produced that those who have surplus buying ability want, it will be consumed. If the government pays a man for producing something that people can't eat, why then we're in a lot of trouble. One man could consume all that all the people in the world could produce if they all worked 10 hours a day producing what he fancied he wanted. So there is no need of discussing lack of consumption. It, of course, would be a different kind of consumption than if everybody consumed.

B: Which illustrates, I think, the folly of accumulating capital at the expense of wages. We know that unemployment was mounting daily during this period and never declined until purchasing power was made available to the workers (consumers).

Robert Allen Reports:

Sinister Berlin Crisis Headed For UN

WASHINGTON — The sinister Berlin crisis is headed for the United Nations.

That will be done BEFORE the proposed conference of East and West foreign ministers in Geneva in May.

This dramatic strategy to seize the initiative from Russia on the war-threatening Berlin situation is the crux of the impending discussions between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan.

Acting Secretary of State Christian Herter is the principal author of this plan.

It has been discussed with and approved by ailing Secretary Dulles.

Under Herter's proposal, the United Nations would be asked to vote a resolution reaffirming the right of the Western allies to unhampered access to West Berlin — as provided in the Potsdam Treaty, which Russia signed.

This resolution would first be offered in the Security Council. Should it be blocked there by a Soviet veto, the measure would then be taken to the General Assembly.

President Eisenhower may personally lay this matter before the UN.

That is still under deliberation, and Macmillan's views will be sought on it. If the President does now go to the UN with the proposed Berlin resolution, Acting Secretary Herter definitely will do so.

One important reason for his doing it would be to strikingly focus world attention on him as Dulles' successor.

That is now certain.

Administration and congressional leaders have been told this by the President himself. He has informed them in the past week ther Herter has been designated to take over the State Department in the near future, and that Dulles will be named special White House adviser on foreign affairs.

WHAT'S BEHIND IT — President De Gaulle and Chancellor Adenauer are being sounded out on flying to Washington for talks on the ominous Berlin crisis.

That is strongly favored by Secretaries Dulles and Herter.

These discussions would be similar to those with Prime Minister Macmillan; to formulate diplomatic and military measures and, above all, to impress on Russia the firm unity of the West in this grave situation.

The importance of the latter has been particularly stressed by Herter in meetings with congressional leaders.

"We must do everything possible," he told a bipartisan group, "to array world opinion on our side as regards the right to free access to West Berlin, and to avert incidents which could lead to armed clashes and war. I feel very strongly that both these goals can be accomplished by our proposed UN resolutions."

"Have Britain, France and West Germany approved going to the UN?"

"There is no indication they are not in favor of it," replied Herter. "We have every reason to believe they welcome this plan and will support it to the utmost. We also have every confidence the General Assembly will overhwelmingly vote such a resolution, if the Soviet should veto it in the Security Council."

One of the greatest Berlin dangers was characterized by Herter as "local messy situations."

As an illustration, he cited the blowing up of bridges by the Russians or East Germans to block rail, motor and canal transportation to West Berlin. These communication routes are essential to supply the city, including 11,000 allied troops, of which 4,200 are American.

"No shooting would be necessary to disrupt these vital communication lines," pointed out Herter. "And they could be repaired and reopened. But that could be an endless job with prolonged delays, which could lead to armed clashes and war. Everything possible should be done to avert such situations.

"Placing this issue before the United Nations would act as a powerful deterrent on the Soviet to prevent such incidents. With a big majority on the UN members voting against obstructing allied access to West Berlin, the Kremlin will think twice about defying such a world-supported declaration."

"At least you hope so," remarked a senator.

"I go further than that," said Herter. "I believe it."

At the conference with the bipartisan leaders of Congress, President Eisenhower used the toughest language he has so far voiced in expressing determination to resist Communist encroachment on West Berlin.

"I will never let those East German Reds stamp the documents of our military convoys," declared the President. "That will never be done as long as I am in the White House. The last thing we want is to fight over Berlin. But if there is war, it will be nuclear war and it won't be limited to German territory. It will be taken directly and devastatingly to those who start this conflict."

The President also told the congressional leaders that consideration is being given to raising the Berlin issue in the World Court.

"That would not in any way affect or delay our seeking United Nations support," he explained. "We could take both steps consecutively. That is now under study in the State Department."

BERLIN FLASHES — A special House Armed Services Subcommittee is being sent to West Berlin, and other key European centers, to make a first-hand check of U.S. forces. Representative Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), veteran Committee chairman, is having this on-the-ground study made to determine whether reinforcements should be sent to these areas; also, whether U.S. civilians should be brought home. Vinson decided on this unannounced survey after conferring with Pentagon leaders . . . Another congressional group, consisting of reserve officers, will make a similar trip to Air Force bases abroad during the Easter holiday. Leaders of this group are Senator Joseph Clark (D., Pa.) and Representative Charles Porter (D., Ore.).

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — MANHATTAN AFTERNOON: It turned out warm and balmy the other noon and it seemed a good time to walk and ride around New York before the customary late March or early April blizzard came along to blight everything in sight . . . The first cab that came along was being driven by an old man who drove with care and courtesy and he seemed just right for the afternoon . . . I got in and told him just to meander around on the cross streets and we'd wind up near Central Park sooner or later . . . I glanced at his personal hack license, the one with the picture, and it said: "Morris Weitzman. Commended For Public Service." . . . He looked too old to be the daring kind of fellow like the cabbie who, some years ago, jumped the Esposito brothers when they were gunning down a policeman in front of the Empire State Building . . . So I asked him: "Mr. Weitzman, what is the commendation for?" . . . "A little thing," he said modestly. "An accident, really. It was 33 years ago. I just happened to be driving by a Harlem tenement at 2 o'clock in the morning and saw it was on fire — real good. I stopped right in the middle of the street, jumped out, pulled an alarm box and ran to the basement because a door was open. I found two children down there, alone. I took them out. Just happened to be passing. That's all." . . . "Did the police and fire people deem it a brave thing, a perilous thing?" . . . "The fire chief, he said, well, he said it was a brave thing. I got burned a little. What's brave? Two children would have been killed. For children, you do things. Suddenly. No thought. And that was 33 years ago. Today, who knows. I am 72 years old. I don't think I would today."

One more of the eight million of New York, a 72-year-old careful hackman who dashed into a burning building 33 years ago, saved two children and to this day has on his license the rare, coveted citation from the Police Department: "Commended For Public Service." . . . I asked him if having that on his license helped him out in small police matters, like a traffic violation... "I can't say," he said. "I never have any. I drive carefully." . . . You get out of Weitzman's cab in front of The Plaza and run straightway into a novelist you know and he says: "You want a four-star free vacation in Mexico? I got it for

As a senior member of the Beat Generation, I find that it's all that I can do to keep up with the passage of time. A few months ago in a Chicago coffee house, a Beatnik philosopher explained to me that we were living in "The Age of the White Rhinoceros". (I'm not so sure that he explained it; I'm just sure that's what he told me.) And in a Los Angeles expresso bar the other night, a Beatnik poet explained, just as positively, that we know are living in "The Age of Fried Shoes".

The world loves a guy who can laugh at himself. At a dinner celebrating his recent knighthood, Sir Alec Guinness described the color of his thinning hair as "moonlit drab".

Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Co. has signed a gas purchase agreement with Midwestern Gas Transmission Co. for the purchase of 158 million cubic feet of Canadian gas daily. The gas will be imported into the U.S. from Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd.

Copper prices slipped in world markets. In London spot copper fell the equivalent of ⅞-cent a pound. U.S. custom smelters cut their buying price ½-cent a pound reflecting "quite a good-sized increase" in offerings. But major copper producers said demand continued to exceed supply.

The House Banking Committee approved the administration's request for increased U.S. subscriptions for the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund. The measure gives the Treasury immediate authority to put up an additional $1,300,000,000 for the World Bank.

Ford Motor Co. said its Ford division's retail sales for the first third of March were up 58 per cent over the similar 1958 period. Ford said its share of the total market amounted to nearly 28 per cent of all U.S.-built cars sold — highest in post-war history.

Newly imposed mandatory import curbs brought a sharp decline in overall oil imports last week, according to the American Petroleum Institute. Total imports fell to 1,737,900 barrels daily in the week ended March 13 from the all-time high of 2,629,000 barrels the week before. Stocks of gasoline rose more than 3,000,000 barrels in preparation for the summer motoring season.

MATTEI OUT TO UPSET BIG OIL COMPANIES OF WORLD

Foreign News Commentary
By PHIL NESWOM
UPI Foreign News Editor

ROME (UPI) — An international mystery man is the spark behind one of Italy's most dramatic post-war economic developments.

He is Enrico Mattei, 52-year-old head of the Italian oil monopoly. And he is a mystery man only in the sense that he is regarded with a certain disquiet both by governments, including the Italian government, and international business.

The U. S. government keeps an eye on his activities out of a fear that his steadily pyramiding activities might prove to be a two billion dollar bubble which could blow Italian prosperity to smithereens.

International industry watches him because he has not hesitated to under-cut world markets in order to force his own entry. In any event, he is one of the most powerful men in Italy.

Self-Made Man

Here is the story.

Mattei is an intense, forceful self-made man who has acquired the art of wearing his clothes well and being at ease in any company.

At 14, he went to work as a painter in a bed factory in his native northern Italy. At the age of 19, he was a director of the company, in charge of 150 men. His father was a relatively low-placed member of the Italian police.

At the age of 30, Enrico Mattei was ready to found his own chemical factory.

Then the war intervened. Toward its end, Mattei fought as a Christian Partisan against the Germans, commanding 8,000 men. Those forces later added their peacetime strength to Italy's Christian Democratic Party, the post-war governing force.

Utilized Holdings

With this political and economic background, Mattei was called upon later to eliminate the old oil monopoly set up under Mussolini.

It was then a collection of buildings with no oil and physical assets worth about a million dollars. It was Mattei's job to liquidate those holdings.

But he reversed his field. Instead of liquidating the holdings, he utilized them to begin intensive explorations.

He found extensive deposits of methane natural gas and began building an empire.

So far, he has been fantastically successful.

Holdings originally valued at one million dollars now have been expanded to an estimated two billion.

And whatever disquietude Mattei causes, as one critic said:

"You can't quarrel with Santa Claus."

Cuts Down Imports

In Italy, methane has been developed as a cheap, widespread industrial and heating fuel, thus cutting down on Italian imports of coal. Related industries have resulted in reduced rubber imports.

The fertilizer industry which has come as a by-product helps to revitalize the exhausted land of poverty-stricken southern Italy.

Besides these have resulted synthetics and chemical industries, service stations, motels, and a petroleum fleet of some 200,000 tons.

Mattei is frankly out to upset the big world oil companies. His deal to explore Iran oil on a basis of 25 per cent return to his monopoly and 75 per cent to Iran is unique to governments and industry alike. There also is a complaint that not enough return is made to the Italian government. But here in Italy, like the man said, you can't quarrel with Santa Claus.

ASKS WAGE EXEMPTION

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—State Rep. Richard Metcalf asked that caddies be exempted from a $1 hourly minimum wage bill during hearings on the measure.

"It would ruin the game of golf by speeding it up," he explained.

REDUCE BY ACTIVITY

CHICAGO (UPI)—Marilyn Monroe, here to promote her latest film, said dieting isn't necessary to maintain her 37½-23½-36½ vital statistics.

"Activity takes care of the poundage," she said.
