Hospital board backs formation of district

By JUDY EWALD

Midland Memorial Hospital board of governors Tuesday afternoon voted unanimously to support the formation of a hospital district within the county.

The endorsement was in response to a request by the hospital board of trustees, represented by president Mitchell A. "Mickie" Cappadonna.

A bill which would enable Midland County residents to vote on the creation of the hospital district and issuance of bonds for the project has passed both the Texas House and Senate and has gone to Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Cappadonna said he understands that Briscoe takes 10 days to two weeks to sign legislation and that he expects Briscoe to sign the bill soon.

When the governor signs the bill, either the board of trustees or the five men named in the bill as hospital district directors may call for the election, he said.

The next step by the board of trustees, Cappadonna said, will be to begin an educational-promotional campaign in advance of the election.

Jim Allison Jr., publisher of The Midland Reporter-Telegram, will be in charge of the promotional campaign, Cappadonna said. Allison said his first step would be to form a steering committee from a broad spectrum of the community.

Allison noted that one important aspect of the proposed hospital district is that it would be similar in control and funding to the Midland College district rather than to the Odessa Medical Center. The hospital district would have a nonpolitical board of directors and would not be run by the county commissioners, he explained.

Funding for the initial estimated $10 million remodeling and expansion work would be raised by the issuance of bonds. However, Cappadonna said, it might not be necessary to sell all the $10 million in bonds.

The district could sell the bonds in $3 million increments and not commit the entire amount, he said.

After further investigation, though, the board of trustees may find that the estimated $10 million may not be sufficient, Cappadonna said. Noting that they would need a more accurate assessment of the total cost of proposed improvements, Cappadonna said that Frank Cowden was working to determine the total cost of the project.

In addition to the initial funding, the proposed hospital bill will provide for continued operation of the hospital, Martin Allday said.

According to the bill, the district directors will have the power to levy an annual tax not to exceed 75 cents per $100 valuation, which is the maximum amount rate set by law.

However, the district's financial advisors, Rauscher-Pierce Securities Corp., has determined that only 32 cents per $100 valuation would be sufficient to retire the $10 million bonds at 5.5 per cent in 20 years, Allday said.

Such a tax rate would work out to about $1 per $1,000 valuation, so that

Oilmen may get help

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $30 million tax break for independent oilmen for the 1977 tax year is almost certain to become law since Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and Russell Long have overcome opposition from House members and the White House.

Once enacted, the measure will allow unincorporated independent oilmen to again avoid income taxes on the "intangible drilling costs" of their producing wells, which were made subject to a minimum tax by a 1976 tax reform law.

Bentsen, D-Tex., said that it was vital to allow the oilmen to know their tax situation for this year so that they could plan their drilling activities.

Intangible drilling costs include everything associated with a well but the hardware, including labor, fuel, etc.

Until 1976, oil drillers were allowed to deduct them immediately from gross income, a tax privilege accorded to no other form of investment. The provision became a tax shelter for doctors, lawyers and other wealthy professionals who were seeking to avoid personal income taxes.

In 1976, Congress decided that regardless of any deductions, individuals would have to pay a tax of 15 per cent of the intangible expenses associated with producing wells. The provision did not apply to corporations, since it was intended to close a loophole used by individual taxpayers.

The independent oilmen cried "foul," saying it put them at a disadvantage against the majors. Their lobbying effort took them to the White House, where they won President Carter's endorsement.

Bentsen seized on that. Without waiting for Carter's energy tax package, he introduced an amendment to the tax bill while it was in the Senate. Bentsen's amendment allows individuals to deduct their oil and gas income from their intangible drilling costs when they figure their minimum tax. Therefore, he said, it excludes those who are looking for a quick tax break.

Senator breaks record in vain

By GREG THOMPSON

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Bill Meier set a world filibuster record of 43 hours today in a futile effort to block S[illegible]e passage of a bill closing state r[illegible]rds on injured workers' claims to commercial use.

The bill was sent to the House on a 23-7 vote after Meier sat down to a standing ovation from his colleagues and several hundred spectators. "Bravo," shouted spectators in the balcony.

Further debate was cut off on a 17-12 vote.

"I appreciate the hand I got, but I sure would appreciate some votes," said Meier, after given his two-day delaying fight at 10:20 a.m.

Senators filed by when the record was announced by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and also after he rested to shake Meier's hand.

Meier passed the record of 42 hours 33 minutes at 9:54 a.m.

By that time, he was swaying on his feet. He made his third and final trip to the restroom at 9:13 a.m.

The bill Meier protested prohibits organizations from compiling computer lists of workers who file injury claims.

The record, which snaps the standard recognized in the Guiness Book of World Records, came after Texas senators forced him to continue his talkathon at midnight.

Meier began his numbing talkathon at 3:20 p.m. Monday and edged past the mark established in June 1972 by former Sen. Mike McKool of Dallas at 9:54 a.m. today.

This morning, Meier, D-Euless, said that he was "a little tired, but feeling fine." Senate rules prohibit him from ever sitting down and he acknowledged that his legs were "a little stiff."

House members showed little interest in Meier's exhausting overnight efforts, as they entered the seventh day of debate on a $15.7 billion budget bill.

In an unusual midnight session, the Senate went through some parliamentary maneuvering that forced Meier, 36, to continue his filibuster, the first extended one since McKool's performance.

British wade into Protestants

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops and police charged groups of Protestant militants in a three-hour battle in East Belfast today as the Protestant general strike shut down a few factories and cut the work force at others to 50 and 60 per cent.

Wielding batons, soldiers and police waded into gangs from the Ulster Defense Association's street army who stole dozens of trucks and cars to barricade the streets of East Belfast.

The troops and police pushed aside the roadblocks.

The clash, the first since the strike began at midnight Monday, started just after dawn when UDA leaders claimed 4,000 British troops moved into the predominantly Protestant sector. When the fighting died down, UDA sources warned: "We're only regrouping."

The Belfast Chamber of Trade said several factories, including a major cigarette plant, were closed by absenteeism, but most factories were producing with 50 to 60 per cent of their staffs on hand. The Harland and Wolff shipyard, the province's biggest single employer, reported half the day shift at work.

Some shops that were closed Tuesday reopened today.

Strike leaders of the Rev. Ian Paisley's United Unionist Action Council promised "more intense" picketing and said they hoped to bring commerical life to a standstill by Monday.

Six bus drivers were reported injured by mobs attacking their vehicles. The drivers' union warned it would pull its men in later today, which would leave the province without public transit and would be a major boost for the strikers.

Police reported 400 known cases of intimidation on Tuesday. But despite increased police patrols and government talk of decisive action, only seven arrests were reported.

U.S. to drop veto on Vietnam

PARIS (AP) — The United States has agreed to drop its opposition to Vietnam's admission to the United Nations, a joint communique issued by the United States and Vietnam said today.

The communique was read to newsmen by Vietnam's Deputy Foreign Minister Phan Hien at the end of two days talks with the U.S. delegation led by Asst. Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke. The announcement came after four hours of talks on the second day of the conference expected to lead to establishment of diplomatic relations between the two governments.

The United States had previously vetoed Vietnam's application to the United Nations on three occasions. The last veto was in November 1976.

Hien said the two delegations would resume their talks in Paris within two weeks "to seek a rapid normalization of relations" between the two countries.

The communique said Hien and Holbrooke conferred for a total of seven hours Tuesday and Wednesday in the Vietnamese embassy in Paris to discuss "matters left behind by the war" and a normalization of relations.

The United States delegation "expressed its appreciation" of Vietnamese efforts to find the bodies of American missing in action in the Vietnam war, the communique read.

It added that the Vietnamese government would intensify its efforts to resolve the MIA problem and would provide additional information to the United States on missing American servicemen.

Indictment says editor made bribe

ODESSA, (AP) — An indictment accusing John Sliney, city editor of the Odessa American newspaper, of attempted bribery has been returned by an Ector County grand jury.

In the indictment returned Tuesday, Sliney was accused of attempting to bribe Jimmy Edwards, a candidate for county attorney, last year. It alleged that Sliney agreed to confer a benefit on Edwards, a public servant, with the intent to influence him. Edwards did run for the office, but was defeated in a runoff election.

The indictment specifically claimed Sliney attempted to persuade Edwards to withdraw himself as a candidate for county attorney.

District Court Judge R. L. McKim set bond on Sliney, who was to be arrested today, at $5,000. The charge against Sliney is a third degree felony, punishable by a maximum of 10 years in prison and a fine.

The grand jury also issued a report saying that Sliney had contacted a member of the grand jury commission and made an effort to have certain people named to the Ector County grand jury. The report claimed that Olin Ashley, editor of the newspaper, was aware that Sliney had made the contacts.

Also in the report was a statement from the grand jury saying they had evidence that there has been "considerable illegal gambling" involving an unnamed Odessa American reporter.

The grand jury report also said that Ashley was notified Tuesday

Cattlemen eat high off hog at breakfast

Cattlemen and other beef-eaters came together for breakfast.

They ate pork.

They also partook of a plan to promote beef sales — their common cause.

The beef cattle industry hereabouts "always" has made a "tremendous" impact "on the economic welfare and stability of our community," Bill Collyns, emcee for the gathering, said.

Only minutes earlier, the 38 cattle barons, ranchers, a dairy man and some on the sidelines of the beef business had just finished eating a hearty "country breakfast" of Canadian bacon, scrambled eggs, biscuits and gravy, hash-brown potatoes, fried eggplant, strawberries, orange juice and coffee.

There was no beef on the tables at the Midland Hilton Inn for the cattlemen.

But the men, just like the beef industry itself, would survive and possibly even flourish without breakfast beef.

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

And while their food was turning into nourishment, Collyns was extolling the virtues of promoting beef sales.

". . . And what's good for you (cattlemen) is certainly good for the community, the county, the state and the nation," he said.

Collyns is president of the Texas State Chamber of Commerce and is editor of The Reporter-Telegram, which he described as "the only

Nixon to make it perfectly clear . . .

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Watergate controversy back in the news, former President Richard M. Nixon is ending his silence on the scandal that drove him in disgrace from the nation's highest office 33 months ago.

Nixon's first post-resignation interview will be broadcast over 155 television and 730 radio stations tonight at 6:30 CST in most areas.

The 64-year-old Nixon, who resigned exactly 1,000 days ago, reportedly is receiving a minimum of $600,000 and a share of the show's profits, giving him more than $1 million for answering the questions posed by British interviewer David Frost.

If the anxious producers of tonight's 90-minute interview are to be believed, the broadcast still holds some Watergate surprises despite advance disclosures.

Nixon was asked about White House tape transcripts that he did not expect to be questioned about, the producers say.

"In the early part of the program, (Nixon's) Watergate defense was shattered and the interesting part follows from there," James Reston Jr. said Tuesday.

Reston, who researched the initial Watergate program for Frost, said despite publication of some details, substantial portions "have not been revealed."

In the buildup to the Watergate interview, both Time and Newsweek ran cover stories that included a few details of the interview and previously undisclosed White House tapes.

The New York Times and Washington Post also ran stories Sunday on new White House transcripts, whose disclosure was prompted, if not or-

DEATHS

Ex-principal Alma Thomas dies at 92

AUSTIN — Mrs. Alma Thomas, 92, pioneer West Texas ranchwoman and former teacher and principal of the former North Elementary School at Midland, died Tuesday in her home here.

She was a generous benefactor to Southwestern University at Georgetown, a world traveler and contributor to many church and civic organizations throughout Texas.

Memorial services were held at 9:30 a.m. today in Tarrytown Methodist Church here. Graveside services will be conducted Thursday at Duncan, Okla.

Mrs. Thomas was well-known to many long-time Midland residents and had visited there frequently in the home of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bennie Sue Thomas.

Mrs. Thomas was born Oct. 1, 1884 at Troup. With her husband, Eben Rexford Thomas, and two small sons, Thalbert and Louis, she moved to Midland in 1915. Mr.and Mrs. Thomas purchased nine sections of homesteaded land in Ector County, and their grazing land included 18 additional sections owned by Texas & Pacific Railroad.

After her husband was killed in a fall from a windmill tower in 1923, Mrs. Thomas often recalled that she was left with two young sons to raise, a range full of cattle bought with borrowed money and the beginning of the worst drought the country had ever known. Her neighbors, the Waddell brothers, took over management of the ranch. The two Thomas boys went to work with them that summer while Mrs. Thomas went to Sul Ross College at Alpine. In the fall, she began substitute teaching in Midland public schools at $75 a month. She later became principal of North Elementary School, serving a number of years in that capacity.

The Ector County ranch was to become oil-producing property by 1945. But before that Mrs. Thomas and her two sons had earned degrees from The University of Texas at Austin. Mrs. Thomas continued her education, receiving her master's degree in Economics in 1931. She continued to live in Midland until 1949 when she moved to Austin.

Her love of travel, her response to the needs of her church, and her interest in fine arts education became important forces in her life.

The Alma Thomas Fine Arts Building on the campus of Southwestern University was her gift to the Methodist school.

With the late Mrs. Phil Scharbauer of Midland, Mrs. Thomas responded to the need of the Methodist Home at Waco by adding a cottage for girls. These two women also funded a Methodist parsonage at Midland. A Methodist parsonage at Austin was a gift from Mrs. Thomas, as was the chapel at the Methodist Assembly ground at Kerrville.

The Green Room in the Municipal Auditorium here was furnished by Mrs. Thomas. She maintained five annual scholarships at Southwestern University, three annual campusships for Girl Scouts, and had helped numerous beginning churches.

She served 17 years as a member of the executive committee and the board of trustees of Southwestern University. The university, in 1953, conferred an honorary doctorate on Mrs. Thomas and in later years made her an honorary member of the board.

She was active in numerous organizations here, serving on the boards of the Salvation Army, Austin Women's Club, Ballet Society, Little Theater and Austin Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Thomas' older son, Thalbert, died in 1975, and J. Louis Thomas died in 1949.

Survivors include two sisters, Alice Barnes of San Marcos and Golda Brown of Duncan, Okla.; one brother, Roy Langham of Temple; four grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren; two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Lela Thomas of Austin and Mrs. Bennie Sue Thomas of Midland.

The family requests memorials be sent to Tarrytown United Methodist Church, the Austin Symphony Orchestra, the Methodist Home in Waco, Southwestern University in Georgetown or the Salvation Army.

Texans worried about energy scan fine print

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration does not want the power to take intrastate gas — the industrial backbone of Texas and other producing states — and send it to heat Northern homes, according to Administration energy adviser James R. Schlesinger.

But, several Texans who have been reading the fine print of the president's energy proposal may tend to disagree with Schlesinger.

The fine print is important because practically all Texas industries and utilities rely on natural gas for fuel. Under federal allocation rules, industries and utilities take a backseat to homeowners and small businesses.

If the federal allocation system were extended to intrastate gas supplies, there could be widespread winter layoffs in Texas as gas to fuel Texas boilers is diverted to Northern furnaces.

Interstate gas is produced in one state and shipped to another; it has been under federal control for more than 20 years. Intrastate gas is produced and used in the same state. It is not controlled, it sells for a higher price, and it is more plentiful.

Concerned about the prospect of federal control of intrastate supplies, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., asked Schlesinger about it during Tuesday's Senate committee hearing on the Carter energy package.

"We have no intention of mandating that gas should go here or there," Schlesinger reassured him.

Meanwhile, Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., was pouring through the bill the White House sent to Congress. His attention was drawn to a few paragraphs in section 416.

That section would extend the federal emergency gas power for another year. When the original emergency bill was passed last February, Krueger worked very hard to make sure that it only allowed the President to allocate gas from "interstate" pipelines.

Looking at the wording that would extend that authority, Krueger discovered the bill would give the President power to allocate gas from all pipelines, intrastate and interstate.

"If Mr. Schlesinger is saying that there is no allocation authority in the bill, then he either is unfamiliar with the language or someone has made a mistake in drafting. If the former, he might wish to correct his testimony. If the latter, then he might wish to amend the bill," Krueger said.

Schlesinger's aides may have left the "interstate" out of the bill and failed to tell him about it, Krueger speculated.

The allocation authority in the bill would only last through next winter, and it would not be usable unless the President declared a natural gas emergency. But the bill contains no firm definition of an emergency.

Phillip Follis services held

ODESSA — Services were at 2 p.m. today in the Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home for Phillip S. Follis, 64, who died Monday in an Odessa hospital after a sudden illness. He was the father of Mrs. Jerry Deaver of Andrews.

Burial was in Sunset Memorial Gardens.

He was born Sept. 12, 1912, in De Kalb, and moved to Odessa in 1945. He was a retired restaurant owner.

Survivors include two daughters, two brothers, two sisters, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Forest fire cause cited by officials

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Many wildfires are caused by faulty or improper exhaust systems for internal combustion engines or on equipment such as chainsaws, motorcycles and generators, forest service officials said.

The requirement for operation of internal combustion equipment on National Forest land includes an inspection by the Forest Service — at any ranger station — to assure that exhaust systems are adequate, Southwestern Regional Forester M. J. Hassell said.

Chainsaws must have a fine mesh (.023 inch) screen in the exhaust system which is durable and heat resistant.

New forest service policy provides for just one annual inspection instead of two as last year, Hassell said.

The certification period is now March 1 of the current year through February 28 of the following year. A current inspections and certification is needed now, even if the equipment was certified last year, Hassell said.

Persons failing to comply with this requirement will be subject to citation, Hassell said.

Nixon interview tonight

The Post story said Nixon was aware of hush money paid in the Watergate cover-up.

The story has opened a dispute similar to those when Nixon was in office and the Post repeatedly reported fresh disclosures about the scandal widening around Nixon and his aides.

"I feel as if I've been there before," said one Post editor Tuesday when told that Nixon's lawyers were accusing the newspaper of refusing to publish a retraction of an inaccurate story.

Nixon's lawyers maintain the transcript containing the hush money references was an early, erroneous version later corrected to eliminate any reference to a payoff of Watergate burglars, thus removing the implication that Nixon lied in later public statements.

Persons connected with the broadcast admit that the late publicity blitz apparently has helped sell advertising for the shows.

Five minutes of national advertising time worth $625,000 has been sold for tonight's broadcast. All but one minute of national advertising for the other three installments has also been purchased by firms as diverse as Greyhound Bus Co., the Hilton Hotels, Alpo dog food, the Gallo wine makers and the hit movie "Black Sunday."

Tonight's interview will focus completely on the Watergate scandals. Three installments on foreign affairs, domestic issues and Nixon's final days in office will be broadcast in succeeding weeks.

Adams guilty

DALLAS (AP) — A district court jury has taken only 22 minutes to set death in the electric chair as punishment for Randall Dale Adams following his conviction on a capital murder charge in the last Thanksgiving weekend slaying of Dallas policeman Robert Wood.

Wood was shot to death early Nov. 28 after stopping an automobile for driving without headlights.

David Harris, 16, of Vidor in Southeast Texas, who said he witnessesed the shooting, said Adams never told him why he shot the officer.

'Hush money' tape recording furor really understandable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two different versions of the same tape recording are the core of a dispute over whether Richard M. Nixon knew about hush money payments to the Watergate burglars in January 1973.

The date assumes importance because the former President has consistently maintained he wasn't told about money-for-silence demands until March 21 that year.

In fact, it is so important to Nixon that his lawyers asked the Washington Post for a retraction of a story focusing on the words "hush money," which appeared in one version of the tape transcript, but not in another.

And it is so important to Nixon that aides in San Clemente, who routinely refuse even to answer reporters' telephone calls, are contacting reporters now to tell the Nixon side.

In this case, however, it isn't quite so simple.

The taping system Nixon had installed in the White House cost less than some home stereos and its quality often resembled that of Thomas Edison's first phonograph.

The Oval Office microphones were imbedded in Nixon's desk and in two wall sconces. They were sound activated, which meant that the clatter of coffee cups, of visitors' coughing, as well as voices could start the tapes rolling. The half-second it took for the reels to gather the proper speed blotted opening sentences.

Invariably, the voice of Nixon, when he was behind his desk, was less distinct than that of the person talking to him. People spoke in half-sentences, interrupted one another and often spoke at the same time.

It often was difficult to identify voices, even one at a time.

To prepare for the cover-up trial of Nixon's aides, the Watergate prosecutors brought in clerks to transcribe the tapes, then went over the transcripts repeatedly to make corrections.

Even these were filled with the parenthesized "unintelligible," but the transcripts were furnished to defense attorneys for their trial preparation.

Thus, one transcript, of a conversation Nixon had with aide Charles Colson on Jan. 8, 1973, was labeled final but noted it was from tapes "of reduced audibility."

It had Nixon saying: "God damn hush money, uh, how are we going to (unintelligible). How do we get this stuff (unintelligible) with Kennedy, when Kennedy said (unintelligible).

Obtaining that transcript, the Washington Post last Sunday concluded that "this and other new transcripts show that Nixon was keenly aware that these payments were central to the coverup ...."

Nixon's lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, protested that a later version of the transcript also produced by the prosecutor's office, "contains no reference whatever to hush money."

Amigos' PACE program helps keep youths enrolled in school

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

If a potential dropout can be given counseling and academic tutoring, often he can be convinced to stay in school.

That is the basis of the Plan Ahead for Careers and Education (PACE) program sponsored by Casa de Amigos, Mel Goffigon, vice chairman for programs, said.

Under the program, 20 seventh and eighth grade students who are potential dropouts are referred to PACE by public school counselors. The PACE director offers counseling to motivate the student to remain in school and tutors give academic help, Goffigon said.

The PACE program originally was begun in late 1972, as an outgrowth of the "Rap on Race" program for high school students which Casa de Amigos sponsored, he said.

The program was discontinued in 1974 and resumed in 1976. During 1976, the program was directed at students from elementary school through high school and was not restricted to minority students, Goffigon said.

But, he said, the program became too large to manage and it was determined that seventh and eighth grade is the most critical time. Further, white students now are being phased out of the program for the same reason.

Students enter the program when they are identified as potential dropouts and are phased out when they become sufficiently motivated to stay in school.

Midland school officials support the program, Goffigon said, because there is no structured program of its kind in the public school system.

Newly hired PACE director Ralph Molina said the potential dropout usually has "a great problem at home," and one of the primary purposes of the program is to give the potential dropout the encouragement other children get at home.

Some of the students have academic problems, but usually they are just beginning to have those problems and they can be corrected.

PACE program member Paul Garcia, right, gets acquainted with Ralph Molina, new project director.

Financial problems play a part in making a student a potential dropout but it is not the major part, Goffigon said. The student usually feels as though nobody cares whether or not he remains in school, he said.

The counselor tries to see each student at least once a week. His goal is to relate to the student on an equal level, gain his confidence and then find ways to motivate the student to stay in school, Goffigon said.

Currently there are about 17 Mexican-American, three black, and one white student in the program.

During 1976, a total of 119 students were served by the program, with 20 as an average at any one time.

Six volunteer tutors provide the academic help. Goffigon said more tutors are needed. The director is paid on a part-time basis.

Molina assumes the duties of director this week. He is a substitute teacher in the Midland school system and is attending The University of Texas of the Permian Basin to get his teacher certification.

He also is a Baptist minister.

The PACE program was funded separately by United Way in 1976 and will become a part of the Casa de Amigos budget for 1978, said Marsha Ingram, executive director. But, the $500 per month expense of the program for the remainder of this year is coming from community donations.

Mrs. Ingram said donations from the Lions Club and The Reporter-Telegram and a promised donation from Kappa Kappa Gamma will take care of expenses through April, but support is needed for this month and the rest of the year.

Midland students garner honors

Valedictorians and salutatorians have been selected at Midland, Lee and Greenwood high schools.

Judy Wornat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard O. Wornat, is Midland High salutatorian. At Midland High, she is a member of the National Honor Society and the Junior Engineering Technical Society. Miss Wornat attended school in New Orleans, La., prior to this year. There, she received the school American literature award and school trigonometry award and the Rensselaer math-science award. She also was a recipient of the presidential physical fitness award.

Selection of the valedictorian and salutatorian at both high schools is based on grades and score on a standardized test, with equal weight given to each element.

At Greenwood, selection of the two honors is based on grade average.

The Greenwood High School valedictorian is Donna Pyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Pyle. She is a member of the basketball and track teams and senior class president. She was selected most likely to succeed and most friendly and tied for Miss Greenwood this year. She also is editor of the school yearbook and placed fourth in regional University Interscholastic League shorthand competition.

Cindy Kimbrow is Greenwood salutatorian. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kimbrow. Miss Kimbrow is a member of the Greenwood track and basketball teams and was selected for an all-state high school girls basketball team. She was selected as most athletic this year and last year and tied for Miss Greenwood this year. She also is senior class secretary.

Hospital board OKs district's formation

the owner of a $30,000 home would pay about $30 per year toward the hospital, Cappadonna said.

The district would have the options of using the evaluation used by the city or county or of establishing their own, Allday said. Which evaluation to be used will be decided after the district is created, Allday added.

In outlining the background to the trustees' decision to support the formation of a hospital district, Cappadonna said they still lacked $1.2 million toward a $5 million remodeling project of the old wing, which was just one phase of a master plan.

A survey by Kethum, Inc. revealed that most of the individuals from whom private funds had been sought believed that the needed $10 million could not be raised from private sources, Cappadonna said.

After looking into alternative means of funding such as religious foundations and and increased county reimbursement for indigent care, Capapadonna said the trustees decided on the idea of a hospital district.

The district was designed to be as independent, self-governing and nonpolitical as possible, Cappadonna said.

The five men named in the bill, he added, have the intention of contracting with the Midland Memorial Hospital Foundation to run the hospital as it is now. The bill allows for such contracting with the foundation.

The men named in the bill as possible directors are Frank Cowden Jr., William P. "Bill" Franklin, Robert Pendleton, Edwin Magruder and L. Decker Dawson.

Speaking in support of the bill were Dr. Ralph Greenlee, representing the Midland County Medical Society and Dr. E. R. Mickle, representing the hospital staff. James Ramsoure said the black community was behind this effort to establish a hospital district.

Board of Governors' chairman John J. Redfern Jr. said he believed the hospital district would be the "most straight forward" route, without causing the hospital to go to the county for help with funding.

Two workers inhale fumes

Two Midland men were under observation at Midland Memorial Hospital today after inhaling hydrogen sulfide fumes following a mishap at Texaco's Mabee gasoline plant 18 miles northwest of Midland early this morning.

The men, Mario Lopez, 27, and Ricardo Baezea, 18, reportedly lost consciousness briefly as what was described as a small amount of gas escaped from a wellhead the men were working at on the Mabee site, officials said.

The men were rushed by fellow workers from Yale E. Key Oil Well Service into Midland and were met by a Midland Fire Department ambulance just inside the city limits.

A fire department rescue specialist administered oxygen to Baezea during the ride to the hospital, officials said. Both men complained of headaches.

Lopez and Baezea reportedly were working on the wellhead flange when the gas escaped. One Texaco offical described the accident as a "routine thing."

Midland gets rain trace; more possible

Midland only received a trace of rain Tuesday, but there's a 30 per cent chance there may be more tonight.

The weatherman predicts partly cloudy skies through Thursday with a 30 per cent chance of thunderstorms tonight.

Temperatures tonight should dip to near 60 and Thursday's high should be in the upper 80s. Winds are expected to be 5 to 10 mph tonight, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

Small amounts of rain were reported Tuesday night in Andrews, Rankin, Big Lake and Crane, and there was a severe thunderstorm warning in Andrews.

This morning cloudy skies and warm temperatures were reported in Andrews, Lamesa, Big Spring, Stanton, Rankin, Big Lake and Crane.

newspaper that gives a damn about Midland."

His early years were spent in West Texas ranching country.

And though Collyns said he was "never much of a cowhand," he did reaffirm his support of the beef promotional plan.

This proposed nationwide program, called the Beef Market Development Plan, would be supported by beef producers paying their "fair share" from cattle sales.

The plan, managed by a 68-member Beef Board, would promote beef through advertising, other promotionals, consumer educational programs, research and by exploring the foreign market.

The plan to "keep beef king" would be carried out on a $30 million to $40 million annual budget, made up of the one-third of 1 per cent of on-the-hoof beef sales.

Collyns told the cattlemen that he favored a plan "to improve the cattle industry, to improve your own situation, . . . your interests in your chosen profession."

Afterward, agricultural economist Gary Condra of Fort Stockton expanded on the proposed plan, which will be submitted to cattlemen in a "beef referendum" this July.

Then, Condra threw the whole shebang open to a question-and-answer period.

Cattleman Clarence Scharbauer Jr. said the plan "is a fine thing . . . if the entire (beef) industry gets behind it."

However, he cited the limping effort of a similar plan engineered by the Texas Beef Council.

"It just stumbled and fumbled and went on . . .," he said.

Scharbauer, nevertheless, was willing to give the new plan a try.

"I'm just jittery about it myself," he said.

Shortly after the breakfast meeting broke up, Charlie Green, the Midland County agricultural extension agent, saw fit to comment on the beef-less meal that was served the cattlemen.

"You know," he said, "the cattle producers help out the pork producers at breakfast, and the pork producers support the cattle producers at dinner and supper."

that the grand jury was in session if he would like to appear. They said Ashley declined to appear.

Ashley, contacted at his home Tuesday night, had no comment on the indictment of Sliney or any portion of the grand jury report.

District Attorney John Green earlier had sent a letter to Lyle DeBolt, publisher of the Odessa American, saying he was conducting an investigation into what he described as "wrongdoings" by the newspaper. The letter also mentioned the claims of "illegal gambling" at the newspaper.

Green said he would likely ask that another prosecutor handle Sliney's trial because of the controversy between his office and the newspaper and the fact that Sliney is a friend of his.

Outraged stepson fighting Medicaid inequities

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Riley Walker is getting tired of state and federal bureaucrats passing the buck with his letters.

His stepfather, Joe Grubbs, is in a nursing home with terminal cancer. When Grubbs turned 87 on April 1, his present from the state government was a notice that his Medicaid payments were being cancelled.

"I haven't said anything to him about it," said Grubbs' stepson, Riley Walker. "It's embarassing to me to have to tell him that after 68 years on the job the state won't help him."

Walker said he is paying what the state now refuses to pay. But he's outraged at the apparent inequities of the system. His anger and frustration have been compounded by a series of fruitless telephone calls and letters to state and federal "buck passers."

"My first letter went to President Carter," he said. "After, all, he said he was going to clean up the welfare mess. But I haven't heard anything yet."

Grubbs and his wife of 33 years, Mary Ellen, entered the nursing home under doctor's orders last January.

Social Security pays Grubbs $423.70 per month. His wife drew $193.93. Their combined income averaged about $80 less than the individual maximum of $390 allowed for Medicaid recipients.

Two months ago, Mary Ellen died. She was 72. Grief-stricken, Grubbs readied himself to join her. The cancer in his lungs had already withered his 6-foot-7, 270-pound frame to a shadowy 160 pounds. Walker said Tuesday the doctors told him his stepfather might live another 60 to 90 days. No more.

According to the Medicaid rules, Grubbs deducts $20 from his Social Security check for incidentals. The rest goes to the nursing home, which in turn, bills the state for the remainder of the monthly medical and housing costs—about $650 in Grubbs' case.

"If my father had been a wino and not worked at all, hell, they would have paid everything and kept him in the finest," he said bitterly.

"My father's ready to die now, but even after he's gone I'm going to continue to fight. Why there must be hundreds of old people out there living in squatter's huts because of this," Walker said.

The next letter went to U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts. Walker said Roberts replied it was a state, not a federal problem.

Undaunted, Walker fired off a third letter to Gov. Dolph Briscoe. By now, the replies sounded like a phonograph record skipping. Briscoe's response, in part, said, "The governor does not have the authority to intervene in the policies and procedures..."

"I guess that means we have a state agency over which we have no control," quipped Walker.

Moreland Johnston, welfare's executive director for medical services, said the department's purse strings are held by the Texas Legislature.

"The income eligibility cap ($390 per month) is set purely and simply as a fiscal control," said Johnston. "The department has to maintain spending within those limits...For every $20 you raise that limit, it lets a few more hundred people into the program."

Johnston said the Texas Welfare Department is funded by a combination of state and federal match money, with 63 per cent of each welfare dollar coming from Washington. He said the federal Medicaid ceiling is $503 per month. However, the state, in an effort to insure local funds were available for the program, felt it had to go with a somewhat lower figure.

"Even if you raised it to $430, that would cost roughly an additional $4 million in state money," said Johnston. "Of course, there's no way you can explain that to an individual and make him understand why he is not eligible for Medicaid."

But there is a ray of hope. State Rep. Eddie Bernice Johnson is heading a movement to raise the nursing care ceiling to $500. She said the amendment to the general appropriations bill has failed once, but is expected to be voted on in the house agian this week.

Meanwhile, Walker said he plans to keep writing "until I get somebody to listen to me."

Briscoe wants utility tax repeal

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has designated as his top tax-relief priority a $210 million measure to eliminate state sales tax on utility bills — a proposal that may have already died in the Senate.

The utility sales tax measure passed the House earlier in the session, but has stalled in a Senate committee.

Senate leaders have all but given the bill its last rites, saying that the state can't afford the proposal and still have enough money left for other things, such as a teacher pay raise.

"I view it as must legislation and I've conveyed that to the Senate side," Briscoe said of the bill Tuesday. "This is what I see as the No. 1 priority."

"I hope that it is not dead and I will use all the efforts that I can to see that it's not," the governor added after signing a bill clearing the way for coal slurry pipelines from Colorado to Texas.

A four per cent state sales tax is now collected on utility bills, while cities take in another one per cent.

The governor also told reporters that he will meet with State Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie, who bitterly opposes a controversial Senate bill that repeals the board's authority to set minimum standards for health insurance policies.

"We have not discussed it personally, but we will do so," assured Briscoe, who recommended such a bill last session.

The insurance board was granted the authority in 1975 to issue standard definitions for terms frequently manipulated in individual policies.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, and Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, is now in the House.

Christie charged Tuesday, "This bill turns back the clock to the days of small print and double talk in health insurance policies."

The governor also signed a bill that would remove tolls from the Dallas-Fort Worth Turnpike by Jan. 1, 1978.

McKool knows filibuster feeling

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former state Sen. Mike McKool of Dallas wouldn't trade places with weary Sen. Bill Meier — not for all the filibuster records in the world.

McKool, now a Dallas lawyer, set the world filibuster mark in 1972 by droning on for 42 hours and 33 minutes.

He subsisted on lemons, water, cough drops and a single package of candy in a losing battle to gain more money for state mental health and retardation facilities.

A red-eyed, unshaven Meier, D-Euless, edged toward McKool's record early today and seemed a cinch to break it with his lengthy protest of a bill prohibiting organizations from compiling computerized lists of workers who file injury claims.

"I imagine right now he's tired and hungry, but probably determined," McKool said from his Dallas home in a telephone interview Tuesday night. "Records are made to be broken. I don't envy him one bit.

"I've only followed it in the papers, but I'm glad that it is a Texas senator doing it."

The 5-foot-4 former senator took the floor against a Senate appropriations bill at 11:40 a.m. during a special session in June 1972.

There was a brief recess for lunch. Then for the next 39 hours 22 minutes McKool talked on, reading and rereading his proposed amendment, statistics, newspaper clippings and notes, letters and telegrams sent him during the marathon.

At 29 hours and 22 minutes, he broke a state record set by Sen. Don Kennard of Fort Worth in 1971. At 38 hours and 22 minutes, the 1968 filibuster of South Carolina state Sen. Ralph Gasque tumbled.

McKool remembers well the dreary hours of talking to an empty chamber. Meier also spent two long nights droning into space, getting only an occasional breather when a friendly senator asked a lengthy and sometimes ridiculous question.

"The first night is the hardest since there's nobody there to talk with you, ask you questions, and there's no one in the gallery to cheer you on," recalled McKool, who was 52 when he set the mark. "That's when you feel the most numb.

"I guess Bill (Meier) made it through the numb stage."

Meier, 36, wore blue house slippers to ease the strain of being forced to stand for nearly two days. He slumped only slightly, unlike many who filibuster, and his resonant voice, aided on occasion by a faulty microphone, remained strong. A bouquet of red roses from his wife was on his desk and a stack of more than 70 law books was at his side.

"I know how he's going to feel when he's through," added McKool, who said he was acquainted with Meier. "My teeth felt like they were about to fall out. I was tired and hungry. I didn't want to do anything but sleep."

Unlike McKool's lunch break, Meier took only five minutes Tuesday afternoon to empty the urine collection bag he wore on his leg. McKool also wore such an apparatus.

McKool ended his filibuster at 7:40 a.m. and said he slept most of the day and into the night. "Then I got up for a few hours and went back to bed again," he added.

Solons clowning to mask misery?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Horseplay comes naturally to Texas legislators, so cow-calls and a mechanical monkey clanging away on a representatives' chair were not surprising.

What might surprise their brother legislators in other states is the misery that the clowning masks in a lawmaking body that enjoys a $1 billion treasury surplus.

Taxes based on soaring oil and gas prices and Sunbelt economic growth built the surplus. It also enabled Comptroller Bob Bullock to predict that 1978-79 revenue will exceed current spending by $2 billion.

The surplus, plus the $2 billion projected tax growth, led to the oft-repeated but false notion that Texas has a $3 billion surplus.

Revenue growth has freed Texans from the bite of new taxes since 1971, and Gov. Dolph Briscoe smilingly told them the tax freeze will continue through 1981 if he is re-elected next year.

Legislators aren't smiling, though, as the May 30 deadline for adjournment draws near.

The House has spent six days trying to cut the $15.7 billion two-year state budget bill so enough money will be left for other things.

A big gamble, indeed

President Carter's policy on nuclear fuel reprocessing and the breeder reactor is grounded in an optimism which we and many others find difficult to share.

For one thing, Mr. Carter is willing to gamble that the United States can afford to abandon development of a commercial breeder reactor for power generation without leaving the nation scrambling for nuclear fuel after the 1990s.

The uranium used to fuel the present generation of nuclear power reactors is as finite as oil and gas. Reprocessing it to provide fuel for breeder reactors offers a way to stretch out the usefulness of uranium resources almost indefinitely.

To justify putting breeder technology on the shelf, one has to subscribe to a theory which sees no gap developing in the nation's energy sources at the end of this century.

This would presume that oil, gas and coal and the kind of nuclear reactors now in use can meet our energy needs until a new technology arrives — probably the harnessing of the fusion process. Given all the uncertainties, we would agree with many energy experts who think that presumption is a dangerous one.

Mr. Carter, of course, is worried about the plutonium which is produced in the reprocessing cycle. So are we. The monopoly on reprocessing technology which the United States once enjoyed has gone by the boards, and with 26 countries now operating nuclear power plants or building them, there is a brisk traffic growing in reprocessing and breeder technology. With it grows the threat that some countries — or even international terrorists — would use plutonium to build atomic bombs. India, for instance, did just that.

It is believed that Mr. Carter again is being too optimistic about what he can accomplish by the example of abandoning plutonium as a U.S. energy source. He hopes that other advanced nuclear nations, such as France and Germany, will agree to join us in halting export of reprocessing technology and plutonium.

We would suggest that he give this matter more serious thought and study. It could be that he would change his mind.

This is not just a question of making an economic sacrifice for the sake of controlling the spread of nuclear weapons. Europeans, and the countries eager to share their nuclear technology, do not have the luxury of many options in meeting their energy needs. Most of them have no gas and oil of their own, are at the mercy of the oil cartel and are more worried than Americans about the eventual exhaustion of the world's fossil fuel resources.

For the United States to bow out of the reprocessing and breeder technology simply would weaken our ability to influence the oil cartel and to challenge its hold on the world price of energy. We would lose one of our trump cards being held as a guarantee of sufficient energy supplies in any future squeeze on the price or availability of fossil fuels.

Control of nuclear proliferation is a serious, urgent problem. President Carter's moves, however, carry an unnecessary risk of future shortcomings in our own energy supplies, and are at best only a speculative first step toward gaining an international commitment to place strict controls on reprocessing technology and plutonium.

The whole business goes back to the earlier statement that the United States no longer has a monopoly in this particular matter and that other countries may not share the feeling of Mr. Carter relative to abandoning plutonium as an energy source.

CUBAN ANTE UP:

Castro wants Navy out of Guantanamo

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

William Giandoni

It is going to be hard for the United States to get along with Communist Cuba.

True, of course, Sen. George McGovern and others who favor normalization of relations with the Caribbean dictatorship make it sound as if mere lifting of the trade embargo would do the trick.

But that is only part of it.

For one thing, Cuba has already raised the ante.

Now the Cuban Communists want the United States to get out of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, on Cuba's south coast.

There is also the matter of the $1.8 billion in claims that U.S. citizens have against the Cuban government for its seizure of their property.

That takes precedence in the eyes of some observers.

For instance, the National Foreign Trade Council declared recently that it "strongly holds that before any resumption of trade relations, agreement is essential as to the amount of settlement and terms of payment of claims of United States nationals against Cuba..."

The council is a private, nonprofit organization of U.S. companies engaged in foreign trade and investment. It has long been on record as insisting that "any resumption of trade relations with Cuba should be consistent with international law and the protection of foreign property."

The council did not have to explain what action it or its members would take were the U.S. government to lift the economic embargo on Cuba without any arrangement on the expropriation debt.

The U.S. Department of Commerce pointed out in 1975 that "as long as these claims are outstanding, normal banking and shipping relationships cannot be restored, since Cuban assets in the United States would be subject to possible attachment."

Commander in Chief Fidel Castro is well aware of the situation. In fact he has said that, if the United States insists on settlement of the $1.8 billion debt, Cuba will demand reparations for the trouble the United States has caused it over the years.

There have been several indications recently that the Cuban Communist government hopes to take further advantage of the Carter administration's anxiety for normalization of relations.

For one thing, Fidel's younger brother, Raul, said in a speech recently that Cuba has no intention of discussing the withdrawal of its troops from Africa with the United States.

However, he went on to say, "if the American government wants to discuss some withdrawal of some troops with us, we are in agreement: their troops which, against the wishes of our people, are illegally occupying the base at Guantanamo."

A few days later, the Cuban government radio reported that Cuban Foreign Minister Isidoro Malmierca had reiterated the position of his government on relations with the United States to the nonalined nations meeting in New Delhi. "Without the absence of all acts of hostility and aggression and the complete elimination of the blockade against Cuba it is not possible for negotiations to be initiated on the theme," the Voice of Cuba reported. Later, Radio Rebelde announced that Malmierca had cited "the continuation of the blockade and the occupation against the will of the Cuban people of the piece of our territory where the North American military base of Guantanamo is stuck" as examples of U.S. aggression.

(The United States has been using Guantanamo Bay and the land around it since the Spanish American war. In 1934 the United States and Cuba signed a treaty giving the United States a perpetual lease on the 45 square mile area. The harbor is big enough to hold 50 large warships and it has served as a year around training center, an antisubmarine base and part of the Panama Canal defense system. Years ago, it was described as "a symbol of U.S. will to resist the spread of Soviet-inspired communism...)

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Consumer agency may rise again

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — During the Republican years, the Big Business barons killed, embalmed and buried the Consumer Protection Agency, which would have become a statutory Ralph Nader to plague them. But the Carter administration has produced new signs of life in the agency.

This has brought business lobbyists swarming over Capitol Hill in great alarm. They have been dispatched to Washington by the Chamber of Commerce, the Business Roundtable and the National Association of Manufacturers. This time they intend to make sure the corpse is dead.

The great corporate plot against the consumer agency has also brought together ex-President Richard Nixon's loyal aide Bryce Harlow and special prosecutor Leon Jaworski in an awkward union. Harlow is now a trouble shooter for Procter and Gamble, the soapmakers. Jaworski, back in private practice, represents the Business Roundtable.

The two men from the opposite sides of the Watergate drama have now joined forces against the consumers. Harlow has resumed his familiar role as the man behind the scenes, pulling the legislative strings from the shadows. Jaworski has written a personal letter to House Government Numerations Chairman Jack Brooks, D.-Tex., a power in the House.

The Consumer Protection Agency, wrote Jaworski, "would be vested with authority so broad that it could easily be turned to the political advantage of those who control it." He warned that "there are no checks sufficient to harness that authority," that the consumer chief "could not be checked by the President" and, indeed, that the proposed agency would have the "potential for disruption of our political system."

If the threat to our political system weren't alarming enough, Jaworski added this telling point: The consumer czar "would have a far greater opportunity to influence public opinion than most members of Congress."

Actually, the consuner agency would have no regulatory power, limited authority and a modest $15 million budget. This is millions less than the combined annual budget of the three Big Business groups now lobbying against the consumers.

The proposed agency would simply be an advocate for the consumers inside the government, with the right to seek judicial review of agency decisions. Ralph Nader's Congress Watch has prepared a letter to congressmen, citing the kind of intervention that could be expected from the consumer agency. Here are excerpts from the letter, which will be put in the mails this week:

— The 1972 Soviet wheat deal cost the American consumers an estimated $1 billion. "The direct cost of unnecessary subsidies was $300 million," the letter charges. "In addition, consumers paid enormous indirect costs including higher prices for bread and flour-based products, increased prices for beef, pork, poultry, eggs and dairy products due to higher costs for feed grains." The Consumer Protection Agency, if it had existed, could have participated in the decision and "perhaps averted the losses suffered by consumers and farmers."

— The Civil Aeronautics Board has turned down an application by a private British airline to fly regular flights between New York and London for a bargain $125 each way. "The consumer advocate could have intervened in the application proceeding and sought judicial review of the agency rejection," the letter suggests.

— In 1974, the Federal Energy Administration set the price of unleaded gas about equal to the price of premium gas. Yet the available evidence indicated that the cost of refining unleaded gas was about the same as regular gas, lower than premium. It took the agency six weeks to discover that its ruling was wrong. This error cost the consumers an estimated $20 million before it was rectified. A Consumer Protection Agency might have prevented the mistake.

— The National Science Foundation spent $54,000 to learn why people fall in love. Three other federal agencies joined together to spend $500,000 to research why monkeys clench their jaws. Meanwhile, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration requested $2.8 million to build housing for 100 pounds of moon rocks. According to the Nader group, a consumer agency could challenge these dubious expenditures.

— In 1970, Congress authorized the Food and Drug Administration to childproof hazardous household substances. Yet it took the FDA two years to prepare an order prescribing aspirin bottle caps that children couldn't open. Meanwhile, some 800 small children were poisoning themselves with aspirin each month. The Nader group claims that over 25,000 aspirin poisonings could have been prevented if a consumer agency had been on the job.

In the showdown over the proposed agency, it will be interesting to see whether the Big Business lobby has more clout with Congress than President Carter.

Footnote: A spokesman for Jaworski said his private letter expressed his own philosophical views and had nothing to do with his payments from the Business Roundtable. Harlow was out of town and unavailable for comment.

INSIDE REPORT:

Dispute over territorial rights in Aegean Sea cited

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans

Novak

ATHENS — The flashpoint is closer in the dispute between Greece and Turkey over territorial rights in the fabled Aegean Sea, a far more dangerous point of contention than Cyprus between the once-allied NATO members, and Greece is sending an urgent SOS to the U.S.

That flashpoint has come hair-trigger close in the past two years. Now, with Turkey preparing another oil exploration in the Aegean and with Greece illegally continuing to strengthen military defenses on its key Aegean islands close to the Turkish mainland, conflict may be unavoidable.

Adding to President Carter's miseries here is the complaint privately voided by top leaders that, apart from the Aegean, the U.S. is failing to assert its role as leader of the Western Alliance just as the Soviet Union is moving into a new phase of expansionism. "What is U.S. policy in Africa?" a political leader asked. "While fundamental changes are taking place under the direction of the Soviets, operating in the open without cover, we don't see the U.S. doing anything."

Both sides in the Ankara and Athens camps have harsh words for the U.S. and Jimmy Carter (the only things they agree on), but the harshest comes from the Greek government of Premier Constantine Caramanlis. Behind the criticism lie seven long years of military dictatorship which poisioned the reputation of the U.S. for all Greeks from the man in the street to the men like Caramanlis, George Rallis, George Mavros and others who brilliantly restored democracy in 1974.

The Nixon-Agnew years still exude a lingering stink here for which Mr. Carter is unfairly paying a heavy price. During the dictatorship the Colonels who ruthlessly ran Greece with torture and other totalitarian trappings were courted by the Nixon administration for what turned into ephemeral military gains — mainly the right to homeport the Sixth Fleet.

Less than three years later, the U.S. is not welcome for any homeporting and Greece is out of NATO's military organization. Worse, continuing ambivalence of the Carter administration over the Cyprus dispute is rehabilitating anti-Americanism.

The latest case in point is Mr. Carter's half-a-loaf gesture in favor of the U.S.-Turkey defense cooperation pact. The gesture failed to mollify Turkey and angered Greece.

"That was not what we thought would happen," a Greek cabinet member told us. "Carter promised this and Carter promised that, but now instead of acting in a moral and principled way he is acting like a technocrat, playing with words."

The anger in that remark conceals a half-fear — fear that after 55 years of quiet, Turkey is becoming expansionist and the U.S. cannot assert its power or its pre-eminence in the Western Alliance to deal with it, just as it did not deal correctly with the Greek dictatorship. "I tell you frankly I am afraid of a new period of Turkish expansion," Defense Minister Evangelos Averoff told us in an interview. "I know our real danger is from the north (Russia) and that collaboration with Turkey is essential for us both, but your government cannot decide what to do."

In September 1975 Greece reacted to a minor Turkish incursion against a tiny Greek isle named Ro two miles off the Turkish coast in a way that might easily have flamed into shooting war. The untold story bears telling now as an example of what may lie ahead.

Ro was temporarily left uninhabited by an illness in the single family living on it. Soon thereafter, the Greek flag flying from the island's one flagstaff was replaced at night by a Turkish flag. A Greek gunboat restored the Greek flag and Athens protested vigorously to Ankara.

When the Turkish flag was again raised several nights later, the Greek government secretly sent officers to hide themselves in a cave on the island with orders to shoot if necessary to prevent a recurrence. The Turkish government was not forewarned. As it turned out, nothing happened. If it had, the two NATO allies would almost certainly have exchanged shots, with quick-tempered escalation a probability.

"How can war come?" the Greek official who revealed that story asked. "That is how."

Just as it is doing in Turkey, the Soviet Union is doing what it can here to exploit the frayed U.S. connection, with a monthly political-operation investment of $2 million or more, partly financed by a rake-off tax on Greek exports to the Soviet Union.

But there is nothing new in that. What is new is the suspicion, at a moment of real crisis here, that the U.S. is on trial for failing in leading the alliance, a suspicion planted during the two previous administrations but one that Jimmy Carter has done nothing to lessen.

Broadcast chief's wife to be charged

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Shawnee County Dist. Atty. Gene Olander was expected to file today a first degree murder charge against Milda J. Sandstrom, wife of Topeka broadcast executive Thad M. Sandstrom, who was shot to death early Tuesday in the estranged couple's home here.

Olander told a news conference late Tuesday he would seek the first-degree murder conviction on the basis of evidence indicating an apparent murder and attempted suicide. Conviction would carry a life sentence with eligibility for parole after 15 years.

Mrs. Sandstrom, 53, a native of Tulsa, Okla., was placed under police guard at Stormont-Vail Hospital here pending her arrest on a murder warrant, expected within two more days.

She was in satisfactory condition after being treated for an overdose of pills, the type and quantity of which Olander said he had not been able to determine.

Meanwhile, funeral services were scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday in Topeka's First Presbyterian Church for Sandstrom, 51. Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery in Kansas City, Kan., where Sandstrom was born Oct. 11, 1925.

Sandstrom had filed for divorce Monday, alleging incompatibility. The couple had been married 24 years and had no children.

Olander said Sandstrom died of two gunshot wounds to the back of his head, apparently as he lay asleep in bed.

A friend and business associate of the Sandstroms, Paul Winders, found the couple after being called to the home by Mrs. Sandstrom, Olander said. A police report quoted Winders as saying Mrs. Sandstrom told him in the telephone conversation, "I won't see you again."

The district attorney said Sandstrom was found in a pool of blood on a bed in a first floor bedroom, with Mrs. Sandstrom lying next to him. He said a .32 caliber revolver was found on the bed, next to her hand.

She was thought at first to be dead also, Olander said, but when an ambulance arrived at the home, she was found to be alive and was rushed to the hospital.

There were no signs of a struggle, Olander said.

Olander said Mrs. Sandstrom was visiting her father in Wynnewood, Okla., Monday when she was notified by a "mutual friend" of her and her husband that the divorce petition had been filed.

The district attorney said Mrs. Sandstrom was notified about 5 p.m. Monday, and apparently drove alone in an automobile to Topeka that night.

He said a window pane on a kitchen door of the Sandstrom home was broken to gain entrance, apparently to unhook a chain safety lock on the inside of the door.

The home was equipped with a modern alarm system furnished by a Topeka company of which Sandstrom was president. The firm's manager, Joe Hornor, would only say that Mrs. Sandstrom was familiar with the alarm system, and that it could be deactivated by anyone reaching the control mechanism inside the house within 30 seconds.

Olander said his office still was attempting to learn when and where the revolver believed to be the murder weapon was purchased. He said it was not thought to have been a family possession.

The district attorney said he had not received a statement from Mrs. Sandstrom, because she was at first incapable of giving a voluntary statement because of the pills she had taken, and she later retained an attorney who advised her against making any statement.

He did take statements from Winders and a hospital employe who he declined to identify, however, Olander said.

Olander said her attorney was Robert D. Hecht, former Shawnee County attorney and now a prominent local defense attorney.

Union reaffiliation try may die

By OWEN ULLMANN

DETROIT (AP) — A proposed reaffiliation between the AFL-CIO and United Auto Workers may fall apart because of "very substantial resistance" within the auto union, says retiring UAW President Leonard Woodcock.

"I'm surprised that some people (UAW leaders) who I predicted would be all for it privately have said they are very much opposed," said Woodcock.

"They like their independence, the feeling of greater recognition by the outside world as a separate entity."

Leonard Woodcock

In a recent interview with The Associated Press, the 66-year-old labor leader also said he:

—Has been "specifically asked not to talk about" reports President Carter will name him chief envoy to Peking, though "it's true a check is being run on me."

—Still has high personal regard for Carter "that's had to put into words," despite substantial differences on domestic policy.

—Believes gas-guzzling cars should be banned outright rather than taxed, as Carter's energy program proposes.

—Favors an increase in the gasoline tax, "but there are very few others who do."

—Expects Congress to reject Carter's plan for one-to-three year delays in tightening of auto exhaust emissions, and adopt a UAW-proposed and industry-backed compromise measure with longer delays.

Woodcock formally retires from the 1.4-million member UAW — the nation's largest industrial union — at its biennial convention, which begins May 15 in Los Angeles. He is ending a 40-year UAW career, the last seven as president, under a mandatory age 65 retirement policy.

UAW Vice President Douglas A. Fraser, 60, the only active candidate for Woodcock's job, is almost certain to succeed him.

Leaders of the UAW will ask convention delegates to set up a special conclave for September to vote on whether to return to the AFL-CIO fold. The auto workers bolted the 14-million member federation in 1968.

Woodcock and Fraser strongly favor reaffiliation, citing the need for a united labor movement in the country. "We have a duty, we owe it. If every union enjoyed the luxury of independence, we would not be nearly as effective as we are," Woodcock said.

He said he had anticipated some opposition within the union. "But it was surprising when Douglas told me — no votes were taken — that he gets the feeling there is very substantial resistance."

A7E fighter plane gets boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee has approved a military procurement bill that authorizes construction of 12 new A7E fighter planes, twice the number authorized by the House in the fiscal 1978 Pentagon procurement bill.

The Carter administration had asked that the A7E program be ended.

The next step toward the A7E's survival would be approval by the full Senate of the procurement authorized by the committee. Then, both the House and Senate would have to appropriate the money for the planes.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said after the approval Tuesday he is confident that the A7E program will continue: "The alternative is to pull old planes out of the Navy inventory."

Tower, a member of the Armed Services Committee and its Tactical Air subcommittee, was one of a number of Texans who have taken steps to continue the A7E program.

The plane is built by the Vought Corp. in Grand Prairie, Tex., between Dallas and Fort Worth. The corporation's aircraft construction employment has declined steadily since the height of the Vietnam War.

It has hopes that a major sale of A7E's to Pakistan will perk up its employment figures. But that sale has not won the approval of the Carter administration, which is concerned about other problems with Pakistan.

Company officials have said they fear that termination of the government A7E program would force it to shut down its assembly line. The officials said starting it up again would add enough to the cost of each plane that the Pakistanis might cancel the deal.

Kennedy death car put to rest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1961 Lincoln Continental in which John F. Kennedy was riding when he was assassinated has been quietly retired from the fleet of presidential limousines.

The limousine has been returned to the Ford Motor Co. for future display in a museum, but you may not be able to see it for a few years.

A Ford spokesman said officials at the Henry Ford museum have not decided whether to exhibit the car as it looked when Kennedy rode through the streets of Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, or to show it in its current remodeled condition.

Museum spokesman Don Adams said in a telephone interview from Dearborn, Mich., that no date has been set for displaying the 21-foot-long black limousine, although there is no question it eventually will be exhibited.

He said the company probably will wait to display it until the late president's two children, Caroline, 19, and John Jr., 16, are both older.

"We've been keeping it rather quiet that we have it," Adams said. "Due to the tragedy associated with the car, we feel it is not a good idea to exhibit it now. We don't want to capitalize on the tragedy of the situation."

Adams said the limousine is now residing in a company warehouse.

The car was a convertible and Kennedy was riding through Dallas with the top down when he was shot. After the assassination the car was remodeled. It was given a new engine, a new interior and a bullet-resistant "bubble top" that provided both visibility and protection to those inside.

Kidnaping suspect arrested

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — An Arizona man was being held here today in lieu of $100,000 bond following his arraignment on federal kidnaping and gun law violation charges.

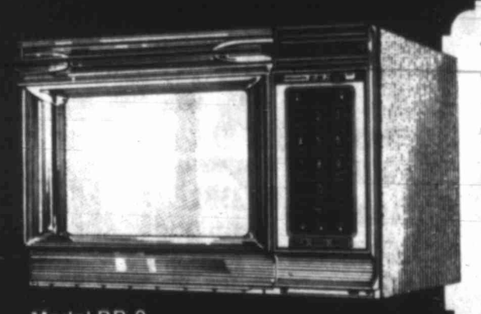

Dennis Oliver Ross, 26, was arrested at Bryan in connection with the kidnaping of a St. Louis woman and her infant son, and was arraigned Tuesday before a federal magistrate here.

Ross was charged with kidnaping and transporting a stolen gun across state lines. Ross, who said he was from Glendale, Ariz., was ordered held in lieu of $100,000 bond.

FBI investigators said Ross was arrested Monday at a bank in Bryan after he tried to get some cash by using Mrs. Ethel McNier's credit card. Ross was held on an old St. Louis charge for attempted robbery and harassment by telephone.

Governor signs law needed for slurry line

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Briscoe signed into law Tuesday the eximent domain authorization needed to bring western state's coal to Texas, although the lack of water stills loom as a serious stumbling block to the slurry pipeline legislation.

Briscoe told reporters shortly after the formal signing the coal sulrry bill by Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo and Rep. Joe Hanna of Brackenridge that eliminating the state sales tax on residential utility bills was now a "number on priority" of his office.

On hand for the bill-signing cermonies were other legislative sponsors who secured passage of the laegislation SB 185, giving the coal pipeline authorization to take private land of its project. Also present were officials of Houston Natural Gas, the prime sponsor of the project to ship coal to Texas generating plants.

Last week, Oklahoma Gov. David Boren signed into law eximent dommin coal slurry pipeling legislation for that state.

Railroads failed in their attempt to defeat the bill, although it is the last of water in Colorado, Wyoming and other coal-rich states which may prohibit actual construction of any pipeline. The coals would be crushed, and shiped to Texas generating plants in a liquid mixture, only if the coal-producing state are willing to release the necessary water.

Briscoe remarked at Tuesday's ceremonies, "I want to congratualte the House and Senate sponsors on passage of the coal slurry pipeline legislation, providing a means for bring into Texas an additional source of energy at a lower transportation cost."

The governor again endorsed HB-1, the bill consting $528 million by elimination the four per cent state sales tax on residential utility bills, and granting higher state exemptions for inheritance taxes for the first time in over 50 years.

"I hope that it is not dead," Briscoe remarked of the Bill's future. The legislation has been pending for months in the Senate Economic Development committee, and no action is expected until after passage of the two-year state spending bill.

Schlesinger says administration will not back off gasoline tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite heavy congressional opposition, White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger says the Carter administration has no plans to back off its proposal for a standby gasoline tax.

"We have no sacrificial part of the (energy) program," Schlesinger said Tuesday. However, he said he wishes members of Congress would worry less about the controversial parts of the energy plan — such as the gasoline tax — and think more about the program as a "complex whole."

Both President Carter and Schlesinger planned to go over the energy proposals today in an informal White House session with members of the new House ad hoc energy committee.

The panel also planned an open hearing later in the day on national security aspects of the energy plan. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Defense Secretary Harold Brown were scheduled to testify before the panel.

Schlesinger testified for three hours Tuesday before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, during which he repeatedly defended the controversial standby gasoline tax proposal.

The tax, which would only be imposed if gasoline consumption exceeded specified levels, could be levied beginning in 1979 in yearly five-centa-gallon increments, up to a maximum of 50 cents a gallon.

The tax proposal has drawn considerable resistance, and many congressional leaders have predicted it will be defeated.

But Schlesinger said the administration views the standby tax as a necessary "mechanism to challenge the American public to conserve gasoline."

He said the tax could easily be avoided, but predicted a "50 per cent to 60 per cent chance" that it will be imposed if approved by Congress.

The tax would be "a reminder to the American people to achieve what we all know we can achieve," Schlesinger said. And, he noted, Americans stand to receive about $25 per person in tax rebates for every nickel the gasoline tax increases, if that portion of the President's plan is approved.

If the standby gasoline tax were to take effect, the tax rebate would be applied as a tax credit for all taxpayers, regardless of their use of gasoline.

But committee members expressed skepticism about the plan. Sen. Dale Bumpers, DArk., told Schlesinger the proposed gasoline tax was "a patently unfair method of trying to conserve energy."

Schlesinger said he is disappointed that discussion of the President's energy package thus far, "mostly negative, has focused on four or five" elements of the plan.

He said the plan, which contains 103 separate legislative proposals, should be viewed as a whole and not picked apart piece by piece.

But Sen. Bennett Johnston, DLa., warned him that "it is going to be very difficult to get a package this size out of Congress."

Carter asks special committee to share public's disapproval

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter asked a special House energy committee today to share some of the disapproval he said would inevitably fall on the supporters of his energy proposals.

"I'm willing to take on my shoulders as much of the blame as you wish," he told members of the special ad hoc energy committee at a White House meeting.

The meeting was set up after the President turned down the committee's request to be the first administration witness to testify on the program.

"I would guess the energy legislation proposal is the most important domestic matter the Congress will address in many years," the President said.

He said that he anticipated that when he meets with European leaders at the economic summit in London later this week their greatest interest will be focused on "the question of energy, without a doubt."

The President leaves for London Thursday morning. He said that his energy proposal had won "almost universal approbation in European countries."

"We've got to work out with the leaders of other industrialized nations some common approach," he said. And, he hoped the members of the committee were willing to take "some of the disapproval that is inevitable."

The special House energy panel planned an open hearing later today on national security aspects of the energy plan. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Defense Secretary Harold Brown were scheduled to testify.

On Tuesday, White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger had said that despite heavy congressional opposition the administration has no plans to back off its proposal for a standby gasoline tax.

"We have no sacrificial part of the (energy) program," Schlesinger said then. However, he said he wishes members of Congress would worry less about the controversial parts of the energy plan — such as the gasoline tax — and think more about the program as a "complex whole."

West Texas sectors gain wildcat projects

American Quasar Petroleum Co., operating from Midland, will drill two Ward County tests as wildcats.

No. 1 Jeannie Crockett is to be reentered and plugged back from 22,228 feet, to 16,800 feet, for tests of the Morrow, 1¼ mile north of the firm's No. 1-27 Dunagan, Morrow discovery, 10 miles north of Barstow.

Originally drilled by Inexco Oil Co., it was plugged and abandoned in July, 1973.

Slated as a 9,250-foot wildcat, it spots 1,640 feet from northeast and 1,320 feet from northwest lines of section 27, block 1, W&NW survey, 12 miles northwest of Barstow.

D. A. Metts, Midland, No. 1-A Lawrence has been scheduled to drill as a Yates wildcat, ¾ mile west of Metts No. 1 McDonald, recent Yates discovery in Pecos, 12 miles northwest of Bakersfield.

Slated to 1,850 feet, it spots 1,650 feet from south and easts lines of section 28, block 144, T&StL survey.

It also is a ½-mile south stepout to Queen gas production in the Girvintex field.

Amoco Production No. No. 2 Edward Dickinson II, stepout to the two-well Devonian gas area of the Pecos Valley, North field of Pecos, spots 2,173 feet from northeast and southeast lines of section 33, block 3, H&TC survey, four miles south of Imperial. The test has a proposed depth of 5,800 feet.

Ellenburger oil production has been extended ½ mile northwest in the Yucca Butte, West field of Pecos County, 12 miles northwest of Sheffield.

The 24-hour flowing potential was for 170 barrels of 41.2-gravity oil, no water, through a 12-64-inch choke and perforations at 10,605-10,765 feet. The pay section had been acidized with 300 gallons and fractured with 4,000 gallons.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 510 feet from east lines of section 67, block A-2, TCRR survey.

Atlantic Richfield Co. has made plans to reenter and plug back to 13,000 feet at No. 21-A June Sanders, former Ellenburger well, for recompletion try as a current third Fusselman oiler and two-mile south extension to that pay in the War-San field of Southwest Midland County.

Operator intends to test through perforations opposite the Fusselman from 12,488-12,518 feet.

The test, using a 6,000-foot water blanket, and 1-inch top choke and ¾-inch bottom choke was open 120 minutes on the first flow period. It surfaced gas in 38 minutes at the rate of 3.9 million cubic feet per day. The tool was open 180 minutes on the second flow period, making gas at the rate of 5.3 million cubic feet per day, decreasing to 4 million cubic feet per day, recovery was 4.7 barrels of water.

Operator was conditioning hole to run logs at the project which is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 44, block 21, ULS, seven miles southwest of Wink townsite.

It is contracted to 8,100 feet.

TRS WELL

Texland, Rector and Schumacher No. 1 Wilson was finaled for a 24-hour pumping potential of 112 barrels of oil and 48 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,296 to 7,439 feet after a 12,000-gallon acid treatment.

Bottomed at 7,850, the well has 5½-inch casing set at that point.

Location is 660 feet from north and east lines of labor 13, league 41, Maverick School Land survey.

Gaines pool gets testers

Mobil Oil Corp. has staked sites for two stepouts to the six-well G-M-K, South (San Andres) oil pool of Gaines County, about 12 miles northeast of Seminole.

Location is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 40, block G, WTRR survey.

No. 18 Tom May, a south offset, spots 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 40. Both tests are slated to 5,410 feet.

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Arthur F. Burns, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, delivered a strong endorsement Tuesday of President Carter's economic policies and praised him for "courageously" resisting pressures to reduce imports and increase the minimum wage to $3 an hour.

Kind words from Arthur Burns, a fiscal and monetary conservative who is revered in business and financial circles, should help the reputation of the Carter Administration within a skeptical business community.

The scrapping of plans for a Tax Rebate, coupled with the President's anti-inflation program, have had a "salutary influence on business sentiment," Burns told the Senate Banking Committee during his semiannual appearance to discuss monetary policy.

The psychology of businessmen is "improving," Burns said.

Carter's "willingness to adjust his fiscal program in light of emerging economic developments has done much to enhance the confidence that our government is moving toward a more responsible financial posture," the Federal Reserve Board chairman said.

Burns' praise for the President was tempered with a reminder of the continuing threat of inflation.

"We cannot afford to backslide once again," Burns said. "Unless we achieve a less inflationary environment there will be little chance of sustaining the expansion that is now in progress or of significantly reducing the high level of unemployment that is blighting the lives of millions of Americans."

Because inflation has accelerated in recent months, Burns announced, the Federal Reserve has reduced the upper limits of its target for growth in the money supply.

The movement toward stable prices is very slow, Burns noted. At the current rate of Federal Reserve action in curbing the excessive expansion of money supply, it would take ten years to achieve an inflation-free economy, he said.

Large budget deficits are a prime cause of inflation, because the government is "putting more money into the pockets of the people than it is taking out," he said.

Under prodding from Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), chairman of the banking committee, Burns offered reluctant predictions of 6 per cent inflation rate this year and a decline in the unemployment rate below 7 per cent by the end of the year. The current jobless rate is 7.3 per cent.

"You have me guessing all over the lot," Burns told Proxmire, advising that his guesses not be taken seriously.

"I take everything you say seriously, Dr. Burns," said Proxmire.

Proxmire drew laughter from the hearing room audience when he said the most effective part of the President's anti-inflation program was a promise to meet monthly with Burns.

Proxmire said Burns was more important "than almost anybody else" in having the $50 tax rebate plan abandoned.

In response to questions, Burns praised the President for acting "courageously" against protectionist efforts. Carter recently rejected an International Trade Commission recommendation of higher tariffs on imported shoes. Instead the President dispatched Robert Strauss, his special trade representative, to Asia to seek voluntary reductions of shipments of shoes from Taiwan and South Korea to the United States.

In the minimum wage field, the labor movement sought an increase to $3 an hour from the current $2.30. The President proposed $2.50, a figure condemned as "shameful" by AFL-CIO President George Meany. Burns said Tuesday that the President's action on the issue was courageous.

More youths living together, report reveals

By ANN BLACKMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twice as many unmarried couples are living together now as were seven years ago in what is a trend among young people who are looking for some housekeeping experience before marriage, the government says.

The Census Bureau reported Tuesday that there were 1.3 million persons sharing 660,000 two-person households with an unrelated adult of the opposite sex.

The report, a population profile of the United States as of 1976, says almost three-quarters of the men and almost half of the women in these homes were under age 45.

"The trend is for more and more young people to set up their own households, usually alone but sometimes with roommates," said Arthur Norton, a population expert who wrote the report. "But they're not necessarily shacking up."

North explained that for years it was common for young people to get married right after leaving their parents' home or after finishing their education.

"But the new phase is for young people to leave the home and gain experience in the various aspects of living before entering their own family situation," he said.

He added that the unmarried couples now living together make up less than 1 per cent of the 73 million households.

One shouldn't draw inferences from the fact that more and more young people are living together, Norton said.

12 Hanafi Muslims indicted by grand jury

By J. Y. SMITH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Twelve Hanafi Muslims were indicted Tuesday for murder, armed kidnaping, assault with intent to kill, conspiracy and related offenses in connection with the takeover March 9 of three Washington buildings and the holding of 139 hostages.

A 32-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury charged that the purposes of the conspiracy were to compel authorities to turn over to Hanafi leader Hamaas Abdul Khaalis the persons convicted of murdering seven members of his family in January 1973, and to have the movie "Mohammad, Messenger of God" removed from this country.

"It was further a part of the said conspiracy that the hostages would be murdered if demands were not met or if law enforcement officials attempted, by force, to rescue the hostages," the indictment said.

Of the 32 counts charged, 29 carry a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

The scope of the indictment indicated that federal prosecutors plan to press the charges to the hilt. Although only one person was killed in the takeovers, all 12 of the defendants are accused of felony murder in the first degree — that is, murder committed during the perpetration of another illegal act in which all took part. The other alleged act in this case is armed kidnaping.

All 12 also are accused of second-degree murder by reason of the law of conspiracy. The indictment asserts that the murder was committed "in the course of and in furtherance of the conspiracy."

Assistant U.S. Attorneys Martin J. Linsky and Mark H. Tuohy III, the prosecutors assigned to the case, said they expected the defendants to be arraigned on the charges within the week. The purpose of an arraignment is to give an accused formal notice of the charges against him, and to give him an opportunity to plead guilty or innocent.

Tuohy and Linsky said they would be prepared to go to trial by the end of this month.

Khaalis, 54, the Hanafi leader, is entitled to go on trial by May 31. This is because he was jailed March 31 without bond on orders from Judge Greene. From March 11, when the sieges at the three buildings ended, until March 31, he had been free without money bond.

Greene had placed him on that status March 11 because it was part of the arrangements worked out by city and federal officials in negotiations with Hamaas for the release of the hostages.

On March 31, U.S. Attorney Earl J. Silbert asked Greene to revoke Khaalis's release on the grounds that he had committed another crime — threatening to do bodily harm — and on the further ground that there was no way to ensure that he would not pose a further danger to the community.

Bryant said promoting 'gay' rights

NEW YORK (AP) — The battle over a homosexual rights ordinance in Florida has moved far beyond Florida, as a former pro football player credited singer Anita Bryant with doing more than anyone to promote 'gay' rights.

Miss Bryant has been crusading for repeal of an ordinance in Dade County, Fla., that provides homosexuals with legal protections in employment and housing.

"I think Anita Bryant has done more to help the cause of homosexual rights in America than any other living human being," David Kopay, a 35-year-old former National Football League player, said at a news conference here Tuesday. He publicly revealed his homosexuality two years ago and has since written a book on the subject.

Meanwhile, Miss Bryant took her campaign to Charlotte, N.C., where she declared homosexuality must be against nature. "If this were not so, then God would have made Adam and Bruce," she said during a television interview on the PTL Club, a religion-oriented talk show distributed nationally.

She said the quip was an effort to divert attention from herself to the homosexuality issue.

"All of a sudden I've become the issue, instead of the issue itself," she said.

Kopay, a former running back for several teams including the San Francisco 49ers and Washington Redskins, said Miss Bryant was helping bring the issues out in the open, and he added, "She has also shown by her misstatements that the fears of homosexuality are grounded in ignorance of the facts of life."

He referred to the singer as "the orange juice queen," a reference to her television commercials on Florida orange juice.

Kopy said the most reckless charge in the campaign for repeal of the ordinance was an allegation that homosexual rights laws would allow gay teachers to recruit young people in schools.

"This again is based on the lie that homosexuality is caused by older people forcing their feelings on younger people," Kopay said.

Nearly all school districts already have large percentages of homosexual teachers, he said. "If they were to flaunt their sexuality they would be dealt with in the same way a heterosexual would be — and nothing in the homosexual rights laws will change that."

Oilmen to get break

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $30 million tax break for independent oilmen for the 1977 tax year is almost certain to become law since Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and Russell Long have overcome opposition from House members and the White House.

Once enacted, the measure will allow unincorporated independent oilmen to again avoid income taxes on the "intangible drilling costs" of their producing wells, which were made subject to a minimum tax by a 1976 tax reform law.

Bentsen, D-Tex., said that it was vital to allow the oilmen to know their tax situation for this year so that they could plan their drilling activities.

Intangible drilling costs include everything associated with a well but the hardware, including labor, fuel etc.

Until 1976, oil drillers were allowed to deduct them immediately from gross income, a tax privilege accorded to no other form of investment. The provision became a tax shelter for doctors, lawyers and other wealthy professionals who were seeking to avoid personal income taxes.

In 1976, Congress decided that regardless of any deductions, individuals would have to pay a tax of 15 per cent of the intangible expenses associated with producing wells. The provision did not apply to corporations, since it was intended to close a loophole used by individual taxpayers.

The independent oilmen cried "foul," saying it put them at a disadvantage against the majors. Their lobbying effort took them to the White House, where they won President Carter's endorsement.

Bentsen seized on that. Without waiting for Carter's energy tax package, he introduced an amendment to the tax bill while it was in the Senate. Bentsen's amendment allows individuals to deduct their oil and gas income from their intangible drilling costs when they figure their minimum tax. Therefore, he said, it excludes those who are looking for a quick tax break.

The Carter administration flipflopped on the issue. Tuesday morning, energy czar James Schlesinger told a Senate committee that he thought the tax break should be provided immediately.

But later Tuesday, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Laurence Woodworth said the administration only wanted the tax break considered later this year as part of the overall energy package.

The conference committee argued over the provision for half an hour Tuesday afternoon before Bentsen and Long, D-La., proposed compromising by enacting the tax break for only a year. That way, it would remain as a "sweetener" for the energy tax package. The House conferees, despite some expressed distaste for the idea, went along.

Bentsen later had to give up on another tax item, the increase in the investment tax credit fr m 10 per cent to 12 per cent. It would have been a major tax break for large corporations, but opposition in the House to that provision was intense.

Hospital board backs formation of district

By JUDY EWALD

Midland Memorial Hospital board of governors Tuesday afternoon voted unanimously to support the formation of a hospital district within the county.

The endorsement was in response to a request by the hospital board of trustees, represented by president Mitchell A. "Mickie" Cappadonna.

A bill which would enable Midland County residents to vote on the creation of the hospital district and issuance of bonds for the project has passed both the Texas House and Senate and has gone to Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Cappadonna said he understands that Briscoe takes 10 days to two weeks to sign legislation and that he expects Briscoe to sign the bill soon.

When the governor signs the bill, either the board of trustees or the five men named in the bill as hospital district directors may call for the election, he said.

The next step by the board of trustees, Cappadonna said, will be to begin an educational-promotional campaign in advance of the election.

Jim Allison Jr., publisher of Midland Reporter-Telegram, will be in charge of the promotional campaign, Cappadonna said. Allison said his first step would be to form a steering committee from a broad spectrum of the community.

Allison noted that one important aspect of the proposed hospital district is that it would be similar in control and funding to the Midland College district rather than to the Odessa Medical Center. The hospital district would have a nonpolitical board of directors and would not be run by the county commissioners, he explained.

Funding for the initial estimated $10 million remodeling and expansion work would be raised by the issuance of bonds. However, Cappadonna said, it might not be necessary to sell all the $10 million in bonds.

The district could sell the bonds in $3 million increments and not commit the entire amount, he said.

After further investigation, though, the board of trustees may find that the estimated $10 million may not be sufficient, Cappadonna said. Noting that they would need a more accurate assessment of the total cost of proposed improvements, Cappadonna said that Frank Cowden was working to determine the total cost of the project.

In addition to the initial funding, the proposed hospital bill will provide for continued operation of the hospital, Martin Allday said.

According to the bill, the district directors will have the power to levy an annual tax not to exceed 75 cents per $100 valuation, which is the maximum amount rate set by law.

However, the district's financial advisors, Rauscher-Pierce Securities Corp., has determined that only 32 cents per $100 valuation would be sufficient to retire the $10 million bonds at 5.5 per cent in 20 years, Allday said.

Such a tax rate would work out to about $1 per $1,000 valuation, so that

'Talking' senator approaches mark

By GREG THOMPSON

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A weary Sen. Bill Meier talked toward a world filibuster record today after fellow Texas senators forced him to continue his protest of a bill prohibiting organizations from listing workers who file injury claims.

Meier, who began his numbing talkathon at 3:20 p.m. Monday, droned on past the 38-hour mark at 5:20 a.m. The world mark recognized by the Guiness Book of World Records was set in 1972 by former state Sen. Mike McKool of Dallas, who rasped 42 hours 33 minutes.

Early today the red-eyed, unshaven Meier, D-Euless, said that he was "a little tired, but feeling fine." Senate rules prohibit him from ever sitting down and he acknowledged that his legs were "a little stiff."

He added that planned to go for the world mark.

House members showed little interest in Meier's exhausting overnight efforts, as they entered the seventh day of debate on a $15.7 billion budget bill.

In an unusual midnight session, the Senate went through some parliamentary maneuvering that forced Meier, 36, to continue his filibuster, the first extended one since McKool's performance.

The midnight deadline carried the Senate into today, which is reserved for debate on House bills. Since Meier is speaking against a Senate measure, senators had to vote 21-2 to continue consideration of Sen. Ray Farabee's bill.

That forced Meier to continue droning on, reading related cases from more than 70 law books stacked at his side and answering lengthy and sometimes ridiculous questions from friendly senators.

He wore blue house slippers to ease the strain of hours on his feet and slumped only slightly, unlike many who filibuster. His resonant voice, aided on occasion by a faulty microphone, remained strong as he spoke to a virtually empty Senate chamber for the second straight night. A bouquet of red roses from his wife was on his desk.

Take-home pay may rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — You may get to take home more of your pay check after June 1 if the House and Senate accept a compromise economic stimulus bill containing tax breaks for most workers.

House and Senate conferees, reconciling the two chambers' separate versions under pressure from the Carter administration and a variety of special interests, agreed Tuesday night on a bill providing breaks for most taxpayers, especially those of modest income who do not itemize their deductions.

If the full House and Senate agree next week, as expected, the withholding bite from paychecks will be adjusted next month.

The biggest single break for individuals is a new standard deduction estimated to save an average of $121 a year for about 47 million couples and individuals, or about $2.30 a week. It would, however, cost an average of $54 more in taxes for an estimated 1.7 million single persons earning more than $13,750 a year.

This provision does not help those who itemize their mortgage interest, charitable contributions, local taxes and other deductions. However, by continuing temporary tax reductions voted last year but due to expire at the end of 1977, the bill does something for nearly everybody.

The new standard deductions would be $2,200 for single persons and $3,200 for a married couple filing jointly. The present deductions range from $1,700 to $2,400 for a single person and $2,100 to $2,800 for a couple.

The bill is a much altered version of the proposals Carter sent Congress to help boost the economy. The $50 rebates that Carter requested and then turned his back on have been eliminated.

Hoestenbach attacks 'fat cats'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — To an outspoken West Texan, it's just wrong to "lump sum" the University of Texas System's deputy chancellor and let him make almost as much as the governor.

He was expected to go after the Texas A&M System's lump sum appropriation today when House debate of the $15.7 billion two-year state budget bill went into its seventh day.

Rep. John Hoestenbach, D-Odessa, pushed through an amendment Tuesday that cuts from $63,000 to $54,000 the salary of E. D. Walker, deputy chancellor of the University of Texas System.

The salary currently is set by UT regents and comes out of a lump sum titled "all other general administrative salaries."

"He's almost up to what the governor's making," Hoestenbach said. Gov. Dolph Briscoe makes $66,800.

Hoestenbach said the salary cut for Walker would make his salary the same as his counterpart at Texas A&M.

"I am tired of these bureaucrats being fat cats . . . yet we have had to cut and scratch to get scholarships for the culturally and educationally disadvantaged," he said.

Rep. Don Rains, D-San Marcos, said Walker, as the UT System's chief operating officer, is responsible for 40,000 employes and 96,000 students, more than A&M has.

Hoestenbach failed in another assault on UT, however. The House voted 80-63 against financing UT-

Indictment says editor made bribe

ODESSA, (AP) — An indictment accusing John Sliney, city editor of the Odessa American newspaper, of attempted bribery has been returned by an Ector County grand jury.

In the indictment returned Tuesday, Sliney was accused of attempting to bribe Jimmy Edwards, a candidate for county attorney, last year. It alleged that Sliney agreed to confer a benefit on Edwards, a public servant, with the intent to influence him. Edwards did run for the office, but was defeated in a runoff election.

The indictment specifically claimed Sliney attempted to persuade Edwards to withdraw himself as a candidate for county attorney.

District Court Judge R. L. McKim set bond on Sliney, who was to be arresed today, at $5,000. The charge against Sliney is a third degree felony, punishable by a maximum of 10 years in prison and a fine.

The grand jury also issued a report saying that Sliney had contacted a member of the grand jury commission and made an effort to have certain people named to the Ector County grand jury. The report claimed that Olin Ashley, editor of the newspaper, was aware that Sliney had made the contacts.

Also in the report was a statement from the grand jury saying they had evidence that there has been "considerable illegal gambling" involving an unnamed Odessa American repopter.

The grand jury report also said that Ashley was notified Tuesday

Cattlemen eat high off hog at breakfast

Cattlemen and other beef-eaters came together for breakfast.

They ate pork.

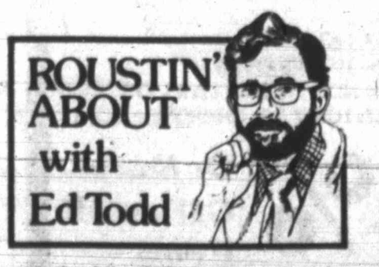

They also partook of a plan to promote beef sales — their common cause.

The beef cattle industry hereabouts "always" has made a "tremendous" impact "on the economic welfare and stability of our community," Bill Collyns, emcee for the gathering, said.

Only minutes earlier, the 38 cattle barons, ranchers, a dairy man and some on the sidelines of the beef business had just finished eating a hearty "country breakfast" of Canadian bacon, scrambled eggs, biscuits and gravy, hash-brown potatoes, fried eggplant, strawberries, orange juice and coffee.

There was no beef on the tables at the Midland Hilton Inn for the cattlemen.

But the men, just like the beef industry itself, would survive and possibly even flourish without breakfast beef.

And while their food was turning into nourishment, Collyns was extolling the virtues of promoting beef sales.

". . . And what's good for you (cattlemen) is certainly good for the community, the county, the state and the nation," he said.

Collyns is president of the Texas State Chamber of Commerce and is editor of The Reporter-Telegram, which he described as "the only

Nixon to make it perfectly clear . . .

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Watergate controversy back in the news, former President Richard M. Nixon is ending his silence on the scandal that drove him in disgrace from the nation's highest office 33 months ago.

Nixon's first post-resignation interview will be broadcast over 155 television and 730 radio stations tonight at 6:30 CST in most areas.

The 64-year-old Nixon, who resigned exactly 1,000 days ago, reportedly is receiving a minimum of $600,000 and a share of the show's profits, giving him more than $1 million for answering the questions posed by British interviewer David Frost.

If the anxious producers of tonight's 90-minute interview are to be believed, the broadcast still holds some Watergate surprises despite advance disclosures.

Nixon was asked about White House tape transcripts that he did not expect to be questioned about, the producers say.

"In the early part of the program, (Nixon's) Watergate defense was shattered and the interesting part follows from there," James Reston Jr. said Tuesday.

Reston, who researched the initial Watergate program for Frost, said despite publication of some details, substantial portions "have not been revealed."

In the buildup to the Watergate interview, both Time and Newsweek ran cover stories that included a few details of the interview and previously undisclosed White House tapes.

The New York Times and Washington Post also ran stories Sunday on new White House transcripts, whose disclosure was prompted, if not or-

DEATHS

Ex-principal Alma Thomas dies at 92

AUSTIN — Mrs. Alma Thomas, 92, pioneer West Texas ranchwoman and former teacher and principal of the former North Elementary School at Midland, died Tuesday in her home here.

She was a generous benefactor to Southwestern University at Georgetown, a world traveler and contributor to many church and civic organizations throughout Texas.

Memorial services were held at 9:30 a.m. today in Tarrytown Methodist Church here. Graveside services will be conducted Thursday at Duncan, Okla.

Mrs. Thomas was well-known to many long-time Midland residents and had visited there frequently in the home of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bennie Sue Thomas.

Mrs. Thomas was born. Oct. 1, 1884 at Troup. With her husband, Eben Rexford Thomas, and two small sons, Thalbert and Louis, she moved to Midland in 1915. Mr.and Mrs. Thomas purchased nine sections of homesteaded land in Ector County, and their grazing land included 18 additional sections owned by Texas & Pacific Railroad.

After her husband was killed in a fall from a windmill tower in 1923, Mrs. Thomas often recalled that she was left with two young sons to raise, a range full of cattle bought with borrowed money and the beginning of the worst drought the country had ever known. Her neighbors, the Waddell brothers, took over management of the ranch. The two Thomas boys went to work with them that summer while Mrs. Thomas went to Sul Ross College at Alpine. In the fall, she began substitute teaching in Midland public schools at $75 a month. She later became principal of North Elementary School, serving a number of years in that capacity.

The Ector County ranch was to become oil-producing property by 1945. But before that Mrs. Thomas and her two sons had earned degrees from The University of Texas at Austin. Mrs. Thomas continued her education, receiving her master's degree in Economics in 1931. She continued to live in Midland until 1949 when she moved to Austin.

Her love of travel, her response to the needs of her church, and her interest in fine arts education became important forces in her life.

The Alma Thomas Fine Arts Building on the campus of Southwestern University was her gift to the Methodist school.

With the late Mrs. Phil Scharbauer of Midland, Mrs. Thomas responded to the need of the Methodist Home at Waco by adding a cottage for girls. These two women also funded a Methodist parsonage at Midland. A Methodist parsonage at Austin was a gift from Mrs. Thomas, as was the chapel at the Methodist Assembly ground at Kerrville.

The Green Room in the Municipal Auditorium here was furnished by Mrs. Thomas. She maintained five annual scholarships at Southwestern University, three annual campusships for Girl Scouts, and had helped numerous beginning churches.

She served 17 years as a member of the executive committee and the board of trustees of Southwestern University. The university, in 1953, conferred an honorary doctorate on Mrs. Thomas and in later years made her an honorary member of the board.

She was active in numerous organizations here, serving on the boards of the Salvation Army, Austin Women's Club, Ballet Society, Little Theater and Austin Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Thomas' older son, Thalbert, died in 1975, and J. Louis Thomas died in 1949.

Survivors include daughters-in-law, Mrs. Lela Thomas of Austin, and Mrs. Bennie Sue Thomas of Midland, four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. A grandson, George A. Thomas, resides at Midland.

Texans worried about energy plan fine print

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration does not want the power to take intrastate gas — the industrial backbone of Texas and other producing states — and send it to heat Northern homes, according to Administration energy adviser James R. Schlesinger.

But, several Texans who have been reading the fine print of the president's energy proposal may tend to disagree with Schlesinger.

The fine print is important because practically all Texas industries and utilities rely on natural gas for fuel. Under federal allocation rules, industries and utilities take a backseat to homeowners and small businesses.

If the federal allocation system were extended to intrastate gas supplies, there could be widespread winter layoffs in Texas as gas to fuel Texas boilers is diverted to Northern furnaces.

Interstate gas is produced in one state and shipped to another; it has been under federal control for more than 20 years. Intrastate gas is produced and used in the same state. It is not controlled, it sells for a higher price, and it is more plentiful.

Concerned about the prospect of federal control of intrastate supplies, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., asked Schlesinger about it during Tuesday's Senate committee hearing on the Carter energy package.

"We have no intention of mandating that gas should go here or there," Schlesinger reassured him.

Meanwhile, Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., was pouring through the bill the White House sent to Congress. His attention was drawn to a few paragraphs in section 416.

That section would extend the federal emergency gas power for another year. When the original emergency bill was passed last February, Krueger worked very hard to make sure that it only allowed the President to allocate gas from "interstate" pipelines.

Looking at the wording that would extend that authority, Krueger discovered the bill would give the President power to allocate gas from all pipelines, intrastate and interstate.

"If Mr. Schlesinger is saying that there is no allocation authority in the bill, then he either is unfamiliar with the language or someone has made a mistake in drafting. If the former, he might wish to correct his testimony. If the latter, then he might wish to amend the bill," Krueger said.

Schlesinger's aides may have left the "interstate" out of the bill and failed to tell him about it, Krueger speculated.

The allocation authority in the bill would only last through next winter, and it would not be usable unless the President declared a natural gas emergency. But the bill contains no firm definition of an emergency.

Outraged stepson fighting Medicaid inequities

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Riley Walker is getting tired of state and federal bureaucrats passing the buck with his letters.

His stepfather, Joe Grubbs, is in a nursing home with terminal cancer. When Grubbs turned 87 on April 1, his present from the state government was a notice that his Medicaid payments were being cancelled.

"I haven't said anything to him about it," said Grubbs' stepson, Riley Walker. "It's embarassing to me to have to tell him that after 6 years on the job the state won't help him."

Walker said he is paying what the state now refuses to pay. But he's outraged at the apparent inequities of the system. His anger and frustra- ave been compounded by a ess telephone calls and federal "buck yet."

Grubbs and his wife of 33 years, Mary Ellen, entered the nursing home under doctor's orders last January.

Social Security pays Grubbs $423.70 per month. His wife drew $193.93. Their combined income averaged about $80 less than the individual maximum of $390 allowed Medicaid recipients.

ths ago, Mary Ellen died. stricken, Grubbs readied himself to join her. The cancer in his lungs had already withered his 6-foot-7, 270-pound frame to a shadowy 160 pounds. Walker said Tuesday the doctors told him his stepfather might live another 60 to 90 days. No more.

According to the Medicaid rules, Grubbs deducts $20 from his Social Security check for incidentals. The rest goes to the nursing home, which in turn, bills the state for the remainder of the monthly medical and housing costs—about $650 in Grubbs' case.

"If my father had been a wino and not worked at all, hell, they would have paid everything and kept him in the finest," he said bitterly.

"My father's ready to die now, but even after he's gone I'm going to continue to fight. Why there must be hundreds of old people out there living in squatter's huts because of this," Walker said.

The next letter went to U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts. Walker said Roberts replied it was a state, not a federal problem.

Undaunted, Walker fired off a third letter to Gov. Dolph Briscoe. By now, the replies sounded like a phonograph record skipping. Briscoe's response, in part, said, "governor does not have the intervene in the policies have a

Johnston said the Texas Welfare Department is funded by a combination of state and federal match money, with 63 per cent of each welfare dollar coming from Washington. He said the federal Medicaid ceiling is $503 per month. However, the state, in an effort to insure local funds were available for the program, felt it had to go with a somewhat lower figure.

"Even if you raised it to $430, that would cost roughly an additional $4 million in state money," said Johnston. "Of course, there's no way you can explain that to an individual and make him understand why he is not eligible for Medicaid."

But there is a ray of hope. State Rep. Eddie Bernice Johnson is heading a movement to raise the sing care ceiling to $500. She said dment to the general ap- has failed once, but ed on in the Solons clowning to mask misery?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Horseplay comes naturally to Texas legislators, so cow-calls and a mechanical monkey clanging away on a representatives' chair were not surprising.

What might surprise their brother legislators in other states is the misery that the clowning masks in a lawmaking body that enjoys a $1 billion treasury surplus.

Taxes based on soaring oil and gas prices and Sunbelt economic growth built the surplus. It also enabled Comptroller Bob Bullock to predict that 1978-79 revenue will exceed current spending by $2 billion.

The surplus, plus the $2 billion projected tax growth, led to the oft-repeated but false notion that Texas has a $3 billion surplus.

Revenue growth has freed Texans from the bite of new taxes since 1971, and Gov. Dolph Briscoe smilingly told them the tax freeze will continue through 1981 if he is re-elected next year.

Legislators aren't smiling, though, as the May 30 deadline for adjournment draws near.

The House has spent six days trying to cut the $15.7 billion two-year state budget bill so enough money will be left for other things.

DEATHS

Ex-principal Alma Thomas dies at 92

AUSTIN — Mrs. Alma Thomas, 92, pioneer West Texas ranchwoman and former teacher and principal of the former North Elementary School at Midland, died Tuesday in her home here.

She was a generous benefactor to Southwestern University at Georgetown, a world traveler and contributor to many church and civic organizations throughout Texas.

Memorial services were held at 9:30 a.m. today in Tarrytown Methodist Church here. Graveside services will be conducted Thursday at Duncan, Okla.

Mrs. Thomas was well-known to many long-time Midland residents and had visited there frequently in the home of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bennie Sue Thomas.

Mrs. Thomas was born Oct. 1, 1884 at Troup. With her husband, Eben Rexford Thomas, and two small sons, Thalbert and Louis, she moved to Midland in 1915. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas purchased nine sections of homesteaded land in Ector County, and their grazing land included 18 additional sections owned by Texas & Pacific Railroad.

After her husband was killed in a fall from a windmill tower in 1923, Mrs. Thomas often recalled that she was left with two young sons to raise, a range full of cattle bought with borrowed money and the beginning of the worst drought the country had ever known. Her neighbors, the Waddell brothers, took over management of the ranch. The two Thomas boys went to work with them that summer while Mrs. Thomas went to Sul Ross College at Alpine. In the fall, she began substitute teaching in Midland public schools at $75 a month. She later became principal of North Elementary School, serving a number of years in that capacity.

The Ector County ranch was to become oil-producing property by 1945. But before that Mrs. Thomas and her two sons had earned degrees from The University of Texas at Austin. Mrs. Thomas continued her education, receiving her master's degree in Economics in 1931. She continued to live in Midland until 1949 when she moved to Austin.

Her love of travel, her response to the needs of her church, and her interest in fine arts education became important forces in her life.

The Alma Thomas Fine Arts Building on the campus of Southwestern University was her gift to the Methodist school.

With the late Mrs. Phil Scharbauer of Midland, Mrs. Thomas responded to the need of the Methodist Home at Waco by adding a cottage for girls. These two women also funded a Methodist parsonage at Midland. A Methodist parsonage at Austin was a gift from Mrs. Thomas, as was the chapel at the Methodist Assembly ground at Kerrville.

The Green Room in the Municipal Auditorium here was furnished by Mrs. Thomas. She maintained five annual scholarships at Southwestern University, three annual campusships for Girl Scouts, and had helped numerous beginning churches.

She served 17 years as a member of the executive committee and the board of trustees of Southwestern University. The university, in 1953, conferred an honorary doctorate on Mrs. Thomas and in later years made her an honorary member of the board.

She was active in numerous organizations here, serving on the boards of the Salvation Army, Austin Women's Club, Ballet Society, Little Theater and Austin Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Thomas' older son, Thalbert, died in 1975, and J. Louis Thomas died in 1949.

Survivors include daughters-in-law, Mrs. Lela Thomas of Austin, and Mrs. Bennie Sue Thomas of Midland, four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. A grandson, George A. Thomas, resides at Midland.

Texans worried about energy plan fine print

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration does not want the power to take intrastate gas — the industrial backbone of Texas and other producing states — and send it to heat Northern homes, according to Administration energy adviser James R. Schlesinger.

But, several Texans who have been reading the fine print of the president's energy proposal may tend to disagree with Schlesinger.

The fine print is important because practically all Texas industries and utilities rely on natural gas for fuel. Under federal allocation rules, industries and utilities take a backseat to homeowners and small businesses.

If the federal allocation system were extended to intrastate gas supplies, there could be widespread winter layoffs in Texas as gas to fuel Texas boilers is diverted to Northern furnaces.

Interstate gas is produced in one state and shipped to another; it has been under federal control for more than 20 years. Intrastate gas is produced and used in the same state. It is not controlled, it sells for a higher price, and it is more plentiful.

Concerned about the prospect of federal control of intrastate supplies, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., asked Schlesinger about it during Tuesday's Senate committee hearing on the Carter energy package.

"We have no intention of mandating that gas should go here or there," Schlesinger reassured him.

Meanwhile, Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., was pouring through the bill the White House sent to Congress. His attention was drawn to a few paragraphs in section 416.

That section would extend the federal emergency gas power for another year. When the original emergency bill was passed last February, Krueger worked very hard to make sure that it only allowed the President to allocate gas from "interstate" pipelines.

Looking at the wording that would extend that authority, Krueger discovered the bill would give the President power to allocate gas from all pipelines, intrastate and interstate.

"If Mr. Schlesinger is saying that there is no allocation authority in the bill, then he either is unfamiliar with the language or someone has made a mistake in drafting. If the former, he might wish to correct his testimony. If the latter, then he might wish to amend the bill," Krueger said.

Schlesinger's aides may have left the "interstate" out of the bill and failed to tell him about it, Krueger speculated.

The allocation authority in the bill would only last through next winter, and it would not be usable unless the President declared a natural gas emergency. But the bill contains no firm definition of an emergency.

Outraged stepson fighting Medicaid inequities

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Riley Walker is getting tired of state and federal bureaucrats passing the buck with his letters.

His stepfather, Joe Grubbs, is in a nursing home with terminal cancer. When Grubbs turned 87 on April 1, his present from the state government was a notice that his Medicaid payments were being cancelled.

"I haven't said anything to him about it," said Grubbs' stepson, Riley Walker. "It's embarassing to me to have to tell him that after 68 years on the job the state won't help him."

Walker said he is paying what the state now refuses to pay. But he's outraged at the apparent inequities of the system. His anger and frustration have been compounded by a series of fruitless telephone calls and letters to state and federal "buck passers."

"My first letter went to President Carter," he said. "After, all, he said he was going to clean up the welfare mess. But I haven't heard anything yet."

Grubbs and his wife of 33 years, Mary Ellen, entered the nursing home under doctor's orders last January.

Social Security pays Grubbs $423.70 per month. His wife drew $193.93. Their combined income averaged about $80 less than the individual maximum of $390 allowed for Medicaid recipients.

Two months ago, Mary Ellen died. She was 72. Grief-stricken, Grubbs readied himself to join her. The cancer in his lungs had already withered his 6-foot-7, 270-pound frame to a shadowy 160 pounds. Walker said Tuesday the doctors told him his stepfather might live another 60 to 90 days. No more.

According to the Medicaid rules, Grubbs deducts $20 from his Social Security check for incidentals. The rest goes to the nursing home, which in turn, bills the state for the remainder of the monthly medical and housing costs—about $650 in Grubbs' case.

"If my father had been a wino and not worked at all, hell, they would have paid everything and kept him in the finest," he said bitterly.

"My father's ready to die now, but even after he's gone I'm going to continue to fight. Why there must be hundreds of old people out there living in squatter's huts because of this," Walker said.

The next letter went to U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts. Walker said Roberts replied it was a state, not a federal problem.

Undaunted, Walker fired off a third letter to Gov. Dolph Briscoe. By now, the replies sounded like a phonograph record skipping. Briscoe's response, in part, said, "The governor does not have the authority to intervene in the policies and procedures..."

"I guess that means we have a state agency over which we have no control," quipped Walker.

Moreland Johnston, welfare's executive director for medical services, said the department's purse strings are held by the Texas Legislature.

"The income eligibility cap ($390 per month) is set purely and simply as a fiscal control," said Johnston. "The department has to maintain spending within those limits...For every $20 you raise that limit, it lets a few more hundred people into the program."

Johnston said the Texas Welfare Department is funded by a combination of state and federal match money, with 63 per cent of each welfare dollar coming from Washington. He said the federal Medicaid ceiling is $503 per month. However, the state, in an effort to insure local funds were available for the program, felt it had to go with a somewhat lower figure.

"Even if you raised it to $430, that would cost roughly an additional $4 million in state money," said Johnston. "Of course, there's no way you can explain that to an individual and make him understand why he is not eligible for Medicaid."

But there is a ray of hope. State Rep. Eddie Bernice Johnson is heading a movement to raise the nursing care ceiling to $500. She said the amendment to the general appropriations bill has failed once, but is expected to be voted on in the house agian this week.

Meanwhile, Walker said he plans to keep writing "until I get somebody to listen to me."

Briscoe wants utility tax repeal

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has designated as his top tax-relief priority a $210 million measure to eliminate state sales tax on utility bills — a proposal that may have already died in the Senate.

The utility sales tax measure passed the House earlier in the session, but has stalled in a Senate committee.

Senate leaders have all but given the bill its last rites, saying that the state can't afford the proposal and still have enough money left for other things, such as a teacher pay raise.

"I view it as must legislation and I've conveyed that to the Senate side," Briscoe said of the bill Tuesday. "This is what I see as the No. 1 priority."

"I hope that it is not dead and I will use all the efforts that I can to see that it's not," the governor added after signing a bill clearing the way for coal slurry pipelines from Colorado to Texas.

A four per cent state sales tax is now collected on utility bills, while cities take in another one per cent.

The governor also told reporters that he will meet with State Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie, who bitterly opposes a controversial Senate bill that repeals the board's authority to set minimum standards for health insurance policies.

"We have not discussed it personally, but we will do so," assured Briscoe, who recommended such a bill last session.

The insurance board was granted the authority in 1975 to issue standard definitions for terms frequently manipulated in individual policies.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, and Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, is now in the House.

Christie charged Tuesday, "This bill turns back the clock to the days of small print and double talk in health insurance policies."

The governor also signed a bill that would remove tolls from the Dallas-Fort Worth Turnpike by Jan. 1, 1978.

McKool knows filibuster feeling

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former state Sen. Mike McKool of Dallas wouldn't trade places with weary Sen. Bill Meier — not for all the filibuster records in the world.

McKool, now a Dallas lawyer, set the world filibuster mark in 1972 by droning on for 42 hours and 33 minutes.

He subsisted on lemons, water, cough drops and a single package of candy in a losing battle to gain more money for state mental health and retardation facilities.

A red-eyed, unshaven Meier, D-Euless, edged toward McKool's record early today and seemed a cinch to break it with his lengthy protest of a bill prohibiting organizations from compiling computerized lists of workers who file injury claims.

"I imagine right now he's tired and hungry, but probably determined," McKool said from his Dallas home in a telephone interview Tuesday night. "Records are made to be broken. I don't envy him one bit.

"I've only followed it in the papers, but I'm glad that it is a Texas senator doing it."

The 5-foot-4 former senator took the floor against a Senate appropriations bill at 11:40 a.m. during a special session in June 1972.

There was a brief recess for lunch. Then for the next 39 hours 22 minutes McKool talked on, reading and re-reading his proposed amendment, statistics, newspaper clippings and notes, letters and telegrams sent him during the marathon.

At 29 hours and 22 minutes, he broke a state record set by Sen. Don Kennard of Fort Worth in 1971. At 38 hours and 22 minutes, the 1968 filibuster of South Carolina state Sen. Ralph Gasque tumbled.

McKool remembers well the dreary hours of talking to an empty chamber. Meier also spent two long nights droning into space, getting only an occasional breather when a friendly senator asked a lengthy and sometimes ridiculous question.

"The first night is the hardest since there's nobody there to talk with you, ask you questions, and there's no one in the gallery to cheer you on," recalled McKool, who was 52 when he set the mark. "That's when you feel the most numb.

"I guess Bill (Meier) made it through the numb stage."

Meier, 36, wore blue house slippers to ease the strain of being forced to stand for nearly two days. He slumped only slightly, unlike many who filibuster, and his resonant voice, aided on occasion by a faulty microphone, remained strong. A bouquet of red roses from his wife was on his desk and a stack of more than 70 law books was at his side.

"I know how he's going to feel when he's through," added McKool, who said he was acquainted with Meier. "My teeth felt like they were about to fall out. I was tired and hungry. I didn't want to do anything but sleep."

Unlike McKool's lunch break, Meier took only five minutes Tuesday afternoon to empty the urine collection bag he wore on his leg. McKool also wore such an apparatus.

McKool ended his filibuster at 7:40 a.m. and said he slept most of the day and into the night. "Then I got up for a few hours and went back to bed again," he added.

Solons clowning to mask misery?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Horseplay comes naturally to Texas legislators, so cow-calls and a mechanical monkey clanging away on a representatives' chair were not surprising.

What might surprise their brother legislators in other states is the misery that the clowning masks in a lawmaking body that enjoys a $1 billion treasury surplus.

Taxes based on soaring oil and gas prices and Sunbelt economic growth built the surplus. It also enabled Comptroller Bob Bullock to predict that 1978-79 revenue will exceed current spending by $2 billion.

The surplus, plus the $2 billion projected tax growth, led to the oft-repeated but false notion that Texas has a $3 billion surplus.

Revenue growth has freed Texans from the bite of new taxes since 1971, and Gov. Dolph Briscoe smilingly told them the tax freeze will continue through 1981 if he is re-elected next year.

Legislators aren't smiling, though, as the May 30 deadline for adjournment draws near.

The House has spent six days trying to cut the $15.7 billion two-year state budget bill so enough money will be left for other things.

A big gamble, indeed

President Carter's policy on nuclear fuel reprocessing and the breeder reactor is grounded in an optimism which we and many others find difficult to share.

For one thing, Mr. Carter is willing to gamble that the United States can afford to abandon development of a commercial breeder reactor for power generation without leaving the nation scrambling for nuclear fuel after the 1990s.

The uranium used to fuel the present generation of nuclear power reactors is as finite as oil and gas. Reprocessing it to provide fuel for breeder reactors offers a way to stretch out the usefulness of uranium resources almost indefinitely.

To justify putting breeder technology on the shelf, one has to subscribe to a theory which sees no gap developing in the nation's energy sources at the end of this century.

This would presume that oil, gas and coal and the kind of nuclear reactors now in use can meet our energy needs until a new technology arrives — probably the harnessing of the fusion process. Given all the uncertainties, we would agree with many energy experts who think that presumption is a dangerous one.

Mr. Carter, of course, is worried about the plutonium which is produced in the reprocessing cycle. So are we. The monopoly on reprocessing technology which the United States once enjoyed has gone by the boards, and with 26 countries now operating nuclear power plants or building them, there is a brisk traffic growing in reprocessing and breeder technology. With it grows the threat that some countries — or even international terrorists — would use plutonium to build atomic bombs. India, for instance, did just that.

It is believed that Mr. Carter again is being too optimistic about what he can accomplish by the example of abandoning plutonium as a U.S. energy source. He hopes that other advanced nuclear nations, such as France and Germany, will agree to join us in halting export of reprocessing technology and plutonium.

We would suggest that he give this matter more serious thought and study. It could be that he would change his mind.

This is not just a question of making an economic sacrifice for the sake of controlling the spread of nuclear weapons. Europeans, and the countries eager to share their nuclear technology, do not have the luxury of many options in meeting their energy needs. Most of them have no gas and oil of their own, are at the mercy of the oil cartel and are more worried than Americans about the eventual exhaustion of the world's fossil fuel resources.

For the United States to bow out of the reprocessing and breeder technology simply would weaken our ability to influence the oil cartel and to challenge its hold on the world price of energy. We would lose one of our trump cards being held as a guarantee of sufficient energy supplies in any future squeeze on the price or availability of fossil fuels.

Control of nuclear proliferation is a serious, urgent problem. President Carter's moves, however, carry an unnecessary risk of future shortcomings in our own energy supplies, and are at best only a speculative first step toward gaining an international commitment to place strict controls on reprocessing technology and plutonium.

The whole business goes back to the earlier statement that the United States no longer has a monopoly in this particular matter and that other countries may not share the feeling of Mr. Carter relative to abandoning plutonium as an energy source.

CUBAN ANTE UP:

Castro Wants Navy out of Guantanamo

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

William Giandoni

It is going to be hard for the United States to get along with Communist Cuba.

True, of course, Sen. George McGovern and others who favor normalization of relations with the Caribbean dictatorship make it sound as if mere lifting of the trade embargo would do the trick.

But that is only part of it.

For one thing, Cuba has already raised the ante.

Now the Cuban Communists want the United States to get out of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, on Cuba's south coast.

There is also the matter of the $1.8 billion in claims that U.S. citizens have against the Cuban government for its seizure of their property.

That takes precedence in the eyes of some observers.

For instance, the National Foreign Trade Council declared recently that it "strongly holds that before any resumption of trade relations, agreement is essential as to the amount of settlement and terms of payment of claims of United States nationals against Cuba..."

The council is a private, nonprofit organization of U.S. companies engaged in foreign trade and investment. It has long been on record as insisting that "any resumption of trade relations with Cuba should be consistent with international law and the protection of foreign property."

The council did not have to explain what action it or its members would take were the U.S. government to lift the economic embargo on Cuba without any arrangement on the expropriation debt.

The U.S. Department of Commerce pointed out in 1975 that "as long as these claims are outstanding, normal banking and shipping relationships cannot be restored, since Cuban assets in the United States would be subject to possible attachment."

Commander in Chief Fidel Castro is well aware of the situation. In fact he has said that, if the United States insists on settlement of the $1.8 billion debt, Cuba will demand reparations for the trouble the United States has caused it over the years.

There have been several indications recently that the Cuban Communist government hopes to take further advantage of the Carter administration's anxiety for normalization of relations.

For one thing, Fidel's younger brother, Raul, said in a speech recently that Cuba has no intention of discussing the withdrawal of its troops from Africa with the United States.

However, he went on to say, "if the American government wants to discuss some withdrawal of some troops with us, we are in agreement: their troops which, against the wishes of our people, are illegally occupying the base at Guantanamo."

A few days later, the Cuban government radio reported that Cuban Foreign Minister Isidoro Malmierca had reiterated the position of his government on relations with the United States to the nonaligned nations meeting in New Delhi. "Without the absence of all acts of hostility and aggression and the complete elimination of the blockade against Cuba it is not possible for negotiations to be initiated on the theme," the Voice of Cuba reported. Later, Radio Rebelde announced that Malmierca had cited "the continuation of the blockade and the occupation against the will of the Cuban people of the piece of our territory where the North American military base of Guantanamo is stuck" as examples of U.S. aggression.

(The United States has been using Guantanamo Bay and the land around it since the Spanish American war. In 1934 the United States and Cuba signed a treaty giving the United States a perpetual lease on the 45 square mile area. The harbor is big enough to hold 50 large warships and it has served as a year around training center, an antisubmarine base and part of the Panama Canal defense system. Years ago, it was described as "a symbol of U.S. will to resist the spread of Soviet-inspired communism...)

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — During the Republican years, the Big Business barons killed, embalmed and buried the Consumer Protection Agency, which would have become a statutory Ralph Nader to plague them. But the Carter administration has produced new signs of life in the agency.

This has brought business lobbyists swarming over Capitol Hill in great alarm. They have been dispatched to Washington by the Chamber of Commerce, the Business Roundtable and the National Association of Manufacturers. This time they intend to make sure the corpse is dead.

The great corporate plot against the consumer agency has also brought together ex-President Richard Nixon's loyal aide Bryce Harlow and special prosecutor Leon Jaworski in an awkward union. Harlow is now a trouble shooter for Procter and Gamble, the soapmakers. Jaworski, back in private practice, represents the Business Roundtable.

The two men from the opposite sides of the Watergate drama have now joined forces against the consumers. Harlow has resumed his familiar role as the man behind the scenes, pulling the legislative strings from the shadows. Jaworski has written a personal letter to House Government Numerations Chairman Jack Brooks, D.-Tex., a power in the House.

The Consumer Protection Agency, wrote Jaworski, "would be vested with authority so broad that it could easily be turned to the political advantage of those who control it." He warned that "there are no checks sufficient to harness that authority," that the consumer chief "could not be checked by the President" and, indeed, that the proposed agency would have the "potential for disruption of our political system."

If the threat to our political system weren't alarming enough, Jaworski added this telling point: The consumer czar "would have a far greater opportunity to influence public opinion than most members of Congress."

Actually, the consuner agency would have no regulatory power, limited authority and a modest $15 million budget. This is millions less than the combined annual budget of the three Big Business groups now lobbying against the consumers.

The proposed agency would simply be an advocate for the consumers inside the government, with the right to seek judicial review of agency decisions. Ralph Nader's Congress Watch has prepared a letter to congressmen, citing the kind of intervention that could be expected from the consumer agency. Here are excerpts from the letter, which will be put in the mails this week:

— The 1972 Soviet wheat deal cost the American consumers an estimated $1 billion. "The direct cost of unnecessary subsidies was $300 million," the letter charges. "In addition, consumers paid enormous indirect costs including higher prices for bread and flour-based products, increased prices for beef, pork, poultry, eggs and dairy products due to higher costs for feed grains." The Consumer Protection Agency, if it had existed, could have participated in the decision and "perhaps averted the losses suffered by consumers and farmers."

— The Civil Aeronautics Board has turned down an application by a private British airline to fly regular flights between New York and London for a bargain $125 each way. "The consumer advocate could have intervened in the application proceeding and sought judicial review of the agency rejection," the letter suggests.

— In 1974, the Federal Energy Administration set the price of unleaded gas about equal to the price of premium gas. Yet the available evidence indicated that the cost of refining unleaded gas was about the same as regular gas, lower than premium. It took the agency six weeks to discover that its ruling was wrong. This error cost the consumers an estimated $20 million before it was rectified. A Consumer Protection Agency might have prevented the mistake.

— The National Science Foundation spent $54,000 to learn why people fall in love. Three other federal agencies joined together to spend $500,000 to research why monkeys clench their jaws. Meanwhile, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration requested $2.8 million to build housing for 100 pounds of moon rocks. According to the Nader group, a consumer agency could challenge these dubious expenditures.

— In 1970, Congress authorized the Food and Drug Administration to childproof hazardous household substances. Yet it took the FDA two years to prepare an order prescribing aspirin bottle caps that children couldn't open. Meanwhile, some 800 small children were poisoning themselves with aspirin each month. The Nader group claims that over 25,000 aspirin poisonings could have been prevented if a consumer agency had been on the job.

In the showdown over the proposed agency, it will be interesting to see whether the Big Business lobby has more clout with Congress than President Carter.

Footnote: A spokesman for Jaworski said his private letter expressed his own philosophical views and had nothing to do with his payments from the Business Roundtable. Harlow was out of town and unavailable for comment.

INSIDE REPORT:

Dispute over territorial rights in Aegean Sea cited

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

ATHENS — The flashpoint is closer in the dispute between Greece and Turkey over territorial rights in the fabled Aegean Sea, a far more dangerous point of contention than Cyprus between the once-allied NATO members, and Greece is sending an urgent SOS to the U.S.

That flashpoint has come hair-trigger close in the past two years. Now, with Turkey preparing another oil exploration in the Aegean and with Greece illegally continuing to strengthen military defenses on its key Aegean islands close to the Turkish mainland, conflict may be unavoidable.

Adding to President Carter's miseries here is the complaint privately voided by top leaders that, apart from the Aegean, the U.S. is failing to assert its role as leader of the Western Alliance just as the Soviet Union is moving into a new phase of expansionism. "What is U.S. policy in Africa?" a political leader asked. "While fundamental changes are taking place under the direction of the Soviets, operating in the open without cover, we don't see the U.S. doing anything."

Both sides in the Ankara and Athens camps have harsh words for the U.S. and Jimmy Carter (the only things they agree on), but the harshest comes from the Greek government of Premier Constantine Caramanlis. Behind the criticism lie seven long years of military dictatorship which poisioned the reputation of the U.S. for all Greeks from the man in the street to the men like Caramanlis, George Rallis, George Mavros and others who brilliantly restored democracy in 1974.

The Nixon-Agnew years still exude a lingering stink here for which Mr. Carter is unfairly paying a heavy price. During the dictatorship the Colonels who ruthlessly ran Greece with torture and other totalitarian trappings were courted by the Nixon administration for what turned into ephemeral military gains — mainly the right to homeport the Sixth Fleet.

Less than three years later, the U.S. is not welcome for any homeporting and Greece is out of NATO's military organization. Worse, continuing ambivalence of the Carter administration over the Cyprus dispute is rehabilitating anti-Americanism.

The latest case in point is Mr. Carter's half-a-loaf gesture in favor of the U.S.-Turkey defense cooperation pact. The gesture failed to mollify Turkey and angered Greece.

"That was not what we thought would happen," a Greek cabinet member told us. "Carter promised this and Carter promised that, but now instead of acting in a moral and principled way he is acting like a technocrat, playing with words."

The anger in that remark conceals a half-fear — fear that after 55 years of quiet, Turkey is becoming expansionist and the U.S. cannot assert its power or its pre-eminence in the Western Alliance to deal with it, just as it did not deal correctly with the Greek dictatorship. "I tell you frankly I am afraid of a new period of Turkish expansion," Defense Minister Evangelos Averoff told us in an interview. "I know our real danger is from the north (Russia) and that collaboration with Turkey is essential for us both, but your government cannot decide what to do."

In September 1975 Greece reacted to a minor Turkish incursion against a tiny Greek isle named Ro two miles off the Turkish coast in a way that might easily have flamed into shooting war. The untold story bears telling now as an example of what may lie ahead.

Ro was temporarily left uninhabited by an illness in the single family living on it. Soon thereafter, the Greek flag flying from the island's one flagstaff was replaced at night by a Turkish flag. A Greek gunboat restored the Greek flag and Athens protested vigorously to Ankara.

When the Turkish flag was again raised several nights later, the Greek government secretly sent officers to hide themselves in a cave on the island with orders to shoot if necessary to prevent a recurrence. The Turkish government was not forewarned. As it turned out, nothing happened. If it had, the two NATO allies would almost certainly have exchanged shots, with quick-tempered escalation a probability.

"How can war come?" the Greek official who revealed that story asked. "That is how."

Just as it is doing in Turkey, the Soviet Union is doing what it can here to exploit the frayed U.S. connection, with a monthly political-operation investment of $2 million or more, partly financed by a rake-off tax on Greek exports to the Soviet Union.

But there is nothing new in that. What is new is the suspicion, at a moment of real crisis here, that the U.S. is on trial for failing in leading the alliance, a suspicion planted during the two previous administrations but one that Jimmy Carter has done nothing to lessen.

Burns endorses President's economic program

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Arthur F. Burns, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, delivered a strong endorsement Tuesday of President Carter's economic policies and praised him for "courageously" resisting pressures to reduce imports and increase the minimum wage to $3 an hour.

Kind words from Arthur Burns, a fiscal and monetary conservative who is revered in business and financial circles, should help the reputation of the Carter Administration within a skeptical business community.

The scrapping of plans for a Tax Rebate, coupled with the President's anti-inflation program, have had a "salutary influence on business sentiment," Burns told the Senate Banking Committee during his semiannual appearance to discuss monetary policy.

The psychology of businessmen is "improving," Burns said.

Carter's "willingness to adjust his fiscal program in light of emerging economic developments has done much to enhance the confidence that our government is moving toward a more responsible financial posture," the Federal Reserve Board chairman said.

Burns' praise for the President was tempered with a reminder of the continuing threat of inflation.

"We cannot afford to backslide once again," Burns said. "Unless we achieve a less inflationary environment there will be little chance of sustaining the expansion that is now in progress or of significantly reducing the high level of unemployment that is blighting the lives of millions of Americans."

Because inflation has accelerated in recent months, Burns announced, the Federal Reserve has reduced the upper limits of its target for growth in the money supply.

The movement toward stable prices is very slow, Burns noted. At the current rate of Federal Reserve action in curbing the excessive expansion of money supply, it would take ten years to achieve an inflation-free economy, he said.

Large budget deficits are a prime cause of inflation, because the government is "putting more money into the pockets of the people than it is taking out," he said.

Under prodding from Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), chairman of the banking committee, Burns offered reluctant predictions of 6 per cent inflation rate this year and a decline in the unemployment rate below 7 per cent by the end of the year. The current jobless rate is 7.3 per cent.

"You have me guessing all over the lot," Burns told Proxmire, advising that his guesses not be taken seriously.

"I take everything you say seriously, Dr. Burns," said Proxmire.

Proxmire drew laughter from the hearing room audience when he said the most effective part of the President's anti-inflation program was a promise to meet monthly with Burns.

Proxmire said Burns was more important "than almost anybody else" in having the $50 tax rebate plan abandoned.

In response to questions, Burns praised the President for acting "courageously" against protectionist efforts. Carter recently rejected an International Trade Commission recommendation of higher tariffs on imported shoes. Instead the President dispatched Robert Strauss, his special trade representative, to Asia to seek voluntary reductions of shipments of shoes from Taiwan and South Korea to the United States.

In the minimum wage field, the labor movement sought an increase to $3 an hour from the current $2.30. The President proposed $2.50, a figure condemned as "shameful" by AFL-CIO President George Meany. Burns said Tuesday that the President's action on the issue was courageous.

More youths living together, report reveals

By ANN BLACKMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twice as many unmarried couples are living together now as were seven years ago in what is a trend among young people who are looking for some housekeeping experience before marriage, the government says.

The Census Bureau reported Tuesday that there were 1.3 million persons sharing 660,000 two-person households with an unrelated adult of the opposite sex.

The report, a population profile of the United States as of 1976, says almost three-quarters of the men and almost half of the women in these homes were under age 45.

"The trend is for more and more young people to set up their own households, usually alone but sometimes with roommates," said Arthur Norton, a population expert who wrote the report. "But they're not necessarily shacking up."

North explained that for years it was common for young people to get married right after leaving their parents' home or after finishing their education.

"But the new phase is for young people to leave the home and gain experience in the various aspects of living before entering their own family situation," he said.

He added that the unmarried couples now living together make up less than 1 per cent of the 73 million households.

One shouldn't draw inferences from the fact that more and more young people are living together, Norton said.

12 Hanafi Muslims indicted by grand jury

By J. Y. SMITH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Twelve Hanafi Muslims were indicted Tuesday for murder, armed kidnaping, assault with intent to kill, conspiracy and related offenses in connection with the takeover March 9 of three Washington buildings and the holding of 139 hostages.

A 32-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury charged that the purposes of the conspiracy were to compel authorities to turn over to Hanafi leader Hamaas Abdul Khaalis the persons convicted of murdering seven members of his family in January 1973, and to have the movie "Mohammad, Messenger of God" removed from this country.

"It was further a part of the said conspiracy that the hostages would be murdered if demands were not met or if law enforcement officials attempted, by force, to rescue the hostages," the indictment said.

Of the 32 counts charged, 29 carry a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

The scope of the indictment indicated that federal prosecutors plan to press the charges to the hilt. Although only one person was killed in the takeovers, all 12 of the defendants are accused of felony murder in the first degree — that is, murder committed during the perpetration of another illegal act in which all took part. The other alleged act in this case is armed kidnaping.

All 12 also are accused of second-degree murder by reason of the law of conspiracy. The indictment asserts that the murder was committed "in the course of and in furtherance of the conspiracy."

Assistant U.S. Attorneys Martin J. Linsky and Mark H. Tuohy III, the prosecutors assigned to the case, said they expected the defendants to be arraigned on the charges within the week. The purpose of an arraignment is to give an accused formal notice of the charges against him, and to give him an opportunity to plead guilty or innocent.

Tuohy and Linsky said they would be prepared to go to trial by the end of this month.

Khaalis, 54, the Hanafi leader, is entitled to go on trial by May 31. This is because he was jailed March 31 without bond on orders from Judge Greene. From March 11, when the sieges at the three buildings ended, until March 31, he had been free without money bond.

Greene had placed him on that status March 11 because it was part of the arrangements worked out by city and federal officials in negotiations with Hamaas for the release of the hostages.

On March 31, U.S. Attorney Earl J. Silbert asked Greene to revoke Khaalis's release on the grounds that he had committed another crime — threatening to do bodily harm — and on the further ground that there was no way to ensure that he would not pose a further danger to the community.

Bryant said promoting 'gay' rights

NEW YORK (AP) — The battle over a homosexual rights ordinance in Florida has moved far beyond Florida, as a former pro football player credited singer Anita Bryant with doing more than anyone to promote 'gay' rights.

Miss Bryant has been crusading for repeal of an ordinance in Dade County, Fla., that provides homosexuals with legal protections in employment and housing.

"I think Anita Bryant has done more to help the cause of homosexual rights in America than any other living human being," David Kopay, a 35-year-old former National Football League player, said at a news conference here Tuesday. He publicly revealed his homosexuality two years ago and has since written a book on the subject.

Meanwhile, Miss Bryant took her campaign to Charlotte, N.C., where she declared homosexuality must be against nature. "If this were not so, then God would have made Adam and Bruce," she said during a television interview on the PTL Club, a religion-oriented talk show distributed nationally.

She said the quip was an effort to divert attention from herself to the homosexuality issue.

"All of a sudden I've become the issue, instead of the issue itself," she said.

Kopay, a former running back for several teams including the San Francisco 49ers and Washington Redskins, said Miss Bryant was helping bring the issues out in the open, and he added, "She has also shown by her misstatements that the fears of homosexuality are grounded in ignorance of the facts of life."

He referred to the singer as "the orange juice queen," a reference to her television commercials on Florida orange juice.

Kopy said the most reckless charge in the campaign for repeal of the ordinance was an allegation that homosexual rights laws would allow gay teachers to recruit young people in schools.

"This again is based on the lie that homosexuality is caused by older people forcing their feelings on younger people," Kopay said.

Nearly all school districts already have large percentages of homosexual teachers, he said. "If they were to flaunt their sexuality they would be dealt with in the same way a heterosexual would be — and nothing in the homosexual rights laws will change that."

Governor signs law needed for slurry line

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Briscoe signed into law Tuesday the eximent domain authorization needed to bring western state's coal to Texas, although the lack of water stills loom as a serious stumbling block to the slurry pipeline legislation.

Briscoe told reporters shortly after the formal signing the coal sulrry bill by Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo and Rep. Joe Hanna of Brackenridge that eliminating the state sales tax on residential utility bills was now a "number on priority" of his office.

On hand for the bill-signing cermonies were other legislative sponsors who secured passage of the laegislation SB 185, giving the coal pipeline authorization to take private land of its project. Also present were officials of Houston Natural Gas, the prime sponsor of the project to ship coal to Texas generating plants.

Last week, Oklahoma Gov. David Boren signed into law eximent dommin coal slurry pipeling legislation for that state.

Railroads failed in their attempt to defeat the bill, although it is the last of water in Colorado, Wyoming and other coal-rich states which may probibit actual construction of any pipeline. The coals would be crushed, and shiped to Texas generating plants in a liquid mixture, only if the coal-producing state are willing to release the necessary water.

Briscoe remarked at Tuesday's ceremonies, "I want to congratualte the House and Senate sponsors on passage of the coal slurry pipeline legislation, providing a means for bring into Texas an additional source of energy at a lower transportation cost."

The governor again endorsed HB-1, the bill consting $528 million by elimination the four per cent state sales tax on residential utility bills, and granting higher state exemptions for inheritance taxes for the first time in over 50 years.

"I hope that it is not dead," Briscoe remarked of the Bill's future. The legislation has been pending for months in the Senate Economic Development committee, and no action is expected until after passage of the two-year state spending bill.

Briscoe indicated he considered the cut in inheritance taxes secondary to relief from state taxes on utility bills.

Schlesinger says administration will not back off gasoline tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite heavy congressional opposition, White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger says the Carter administration has no plans to back off its proposal for a standby gasoline tax.

"We have no sacrificial part of the (energy) program," Schlesinger said Tuesday. However, he said he wishes members of Congress would worry less about the controversial parts of the energy plan — such as the gasoline tax — and think more about the program as a "complex whole."

Both President Carter and Schlesinger planned to go over the energy proposals today in an informal White House session with members of the new House ad hoc energy committee.

The panel also planned an open hearing later in the day on national security aspects of the energy plan. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Defense Secretary Harold Brown were scheduled to testify before the panel.

Schlesinger testified for three hours Tuesday before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, during which he repeatedly defended the controversial standby gasoline tax proposal.

The tax, which would only be imposed if gasoline consumption exceeded specified levels, could be levied beginning in 1979 in yearly five-centa-gallon increments, up to a maximum of 50 cents a gallon.

The tax proposal has drawn considerable resistance, and many congressional leaders have predicted it will be defeated.

But Schlesinger said the administration views the standby tax as a necessary "mechanism to challenge the American public to conserve gasoline."

He said the tax could easily be avoided, but predicted a "50 per cent to 60 per cent chance" that it will be imposed if approved by Congress.

The tax would be "a reminder to the American people to achieve what we all know we can achieve," Schlesinger said. And, he noted, Americans stand to receive about $25 per person in tax rebates for every nickel the gasoline tax increases, if that portion of the President's plan is approved.

If the standby gasoline tax were to take effect, the tax rebate would be applied as a tax credit for all taxpayers, regardless of their use of gasoline.

Reorganization plan for Pogo announced

HOUSTON — The boards of directors of Pennzoil Co. and Pennzoil Offshore Gas Operators, Inc., (Pogo), have announced their agreement on a plan of reorganization which would, in effect, establish Pogo as an independent company.

The proposed plan, subject to approval by Pogo's shareholders at a special meeting which has been scheduled for July calls for the following key elements:

Pennzoil will convert its approximately 40 per cent ownership in Pogo common shares (17,333,333) to the same per cent direct ownership of Pogo's assets and liabilities. This will establish Pogo as an independent company, terminating its affiliate relationship to Pennzoil.

Pogo will be renamed Pogo Producing Co.

Pogo will be restructured with an independent management organization and board of directors.

Existing policy restrictions on Pogo's scope of operations will be eliminated to permit the company to pursue oil and gas and other business opportunities in addition to petroleum operations offshore the United States.

J. Hugh Liedtke, chairman of Pennzoil, said that "the rapid expansion of Pogo in the development of offshore acreage has made the original arrangements for Pogo's management no longer appropriate. Pogo's potential for earnings growth in the future should not be limited to offshore oil and gas activities."

"Under the proposed plan of reorganization," Liedtke said, "the company will be free to direct its significant stream of income and cash flow from presently owned properties into any phase of the oil and gas business or to any other business opportunities deemed advantageous by its management. Pogo would not be subject to any geographical limitations, other than any provided by specific areas of interest agreements, and it will be in a position to compete anywhere with Pennzoil," Liedtke added.

Liedtke indicated that Pennzoil management has considered a merger of Pogo into Pennzoil but, after careful consideration, it was concluded that merger was not practicable because of difficult questions with respect to relative values of the securities of the companies.

Consideration also was given to the potential conflict-of-interest problems inherent in any acquisition between a controlling stockholder and an affiliate. The proposed transaction on the other hand avoids these problems because the division of assets and liabilities follow (with one relatively minor exception) exactly the respective ownership interests.

In our judgement," Liedtke said, "this plan, if approved, will give the public shareholders of Pogo 100 per cent ownership of a business organization with substantial operating assest, a spread of undeveloped acreage in one of the most prolific oil and gas producing areas in the world, a business with a strong financial position, and a uniquely qualified management team."

At the same time, the Pennzoil chairman said, "the new arrangement will give Pennzoil direct ownership of its share of Pogo's earnings and cash flow for reinvestment as Pennzoil may choose."

NAR tests show crude

North American Royalties, Midland, No. 1-4 JK-State, Garza County exploratory test, 1⅛ mile northwest of the Lazy JL (Pennsylvanian) field, was bottomed at 8,600 feet, circulating, after logs were run.

Operator has released results on a series of drillstem tests on which production was indicated.

A one-hour drillstem test from 7,965-7,990 feet, using a ¾-inch bottom choke, surfaced gas in 15 minutes, stabilizing at 140,000 cubic feet per day. Recovery from the test tool was 5,308 feet of gas and 2,620 feet of oil, while the sampler recovered 2.8 cubic feet of gas and 1,280 cubic centimeters of oil.

Another test from 7,990-8,010 feet was misrun. Operator reran a two-hour test over the same interval, during which gas came to the surface in 15 minutes, no gauge reported. It recovered 6,687 feet of gas and 418 feet of 28.9-gravity oil, plus 852 feet of salt water and gas-cut salt water. The sample chamber yielded 1.2 cubic feet of gas, 580 cubic centimeters of oil and 1,220 cubic centimeters of salt water.

The final test from 8,045-8,060 feet, on which the tool was open 60 minutes, using a ¾-inch bottom choke, recovered 90 feet of salt water-cut drilling mud and 1,398 feet of slightly gas-cut salt water. Sampler contained .24 cubic foot of gas and 2,100 cubic centimeters of salt water.

Hytech purchases food firm

Hytech Energy Corp., Midland-based oil and gas exploration and production firm, has purchased management control of Tobin Packing Co., a food manufacturing firm headquartered in Rochester, N.Y.

Hytech plans to merge itself into Tobin by an exchange of stock, in order to give Hytech a public market for its stock and listing on the New York Stock Exchange, according to James W. Lacy, Hytech president.

Lacy said the meat packing operations of Tobin may be sold and the company's assets invested entirely in expansion of Hytech's oil and gas exploration and development business.

Hytech paid about $3.5 million cash for about 25 per cent of Tobin owned by the founding Tobin family and employe trusts. The remaining 600,000 shares are widely held. Several Hytech representatives are expected to be added to the Tobin board of directors to reflect the new ownership and planned changed business of the company.

Hytech is principally owned by J. B. Fuqua of Atlanta, Ga., founder and chairman of the board of Fuqua Industries, Inc. Lacy and other Hytech management personnel also are stockholders in Hytech.

Hytech, with a net income of about $4 million in 1976, has been seeking to acquire control of a public company as a means of creating a public market for its stock.

Two wells complete

Ronald R. Perkins, Dallas, No. 1 Lucius S. Evans, finaled for a daily pumping potential of 15 barrels of 41.5-gravity oil and 49 barrels of water, as a second Palo Pinto well and 1⅛-mile northeast extension to that pay in the Motley, North field.

Production was through perforations at 3,760-3,772 feet, after fracturing with 8,500 pounds of sand.

The reopener of Palo Pinto production, Perkins' No. 1 Underwood, finaled April 29, to pump 23 barrels of 41.5-gravity oil daily, along with 45 barrels of water, through perforations at 3,820-3,832 feet.

Also, the Red Flat pool gained its current second Gardner well and location east extension to that pay with completion of James K. Anderson, Inc., No. 1 Chastain, five miles northeast of Norton.

It finaled on the pump for 10.5 barrels of 41-gravity oil and one barrel of water daily, through perforations at 4,399-4,407 feet, following 800 gallons of acid.

A reentry, it originally was completed from the Gardner, and later recompleted from the Capps lime.

It is 3,180 feet from north and 1,263 feet from west lines of T. J. Hardeman survey 267.

Three PB areas gain sites for explorers

Homer Olsen Jr. of Midland will drill a northwest stepout to the Eldorado, two-well East (Canyon) gas field of Schleicher. It is No. 2 Griffin.

ENERGY

Drillsite is 2,040 feet from south and 1,400 feet from east lines of section 47, block A, HE&WT survey. The planned depth is 6,300 feet.

R. L. Foree of Dallas has scheduled No. 1 Gene Knabel as a one-mile east outpost to Strawn sand oil production in the Sandy Hill field of Fisher County.

It spots 2,921 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of S. Overby survey 8, Scrap File 1742, two miles west of Royston. It also is ¾ mile east of Strawn gas production in the Sandy Hill field. The field has two oil and two gas producers.

NRM Petroleum Corp., Midland, intends to drill a north and west stepout to the Wellman, Southwest (San Andres) pool of Terry. It is No. 4 Cotten.

It is 2,173 feet from south and 2,100 feet from west lines of section 61, block DD, J. H. Gibson survey, 3½ miles southwest of Wellman townsite. Slated depth is 5,550 feet.

The Irion reentry is John H. Hill, Austin, 2-B Sugg, a 9,181-foot wildcat failure, 16 miles north of Barnhart.

Originally drilled by Sunray Mid-Continent Oil Co. as No 1 Ela Sugg, it was abandoned in September, 1955.

Spotting 660 feet from south and west lines of section 65, block 14, H&TC, operator will attempt completion as a producer in the Ela Sugg (Wolfcamp) gas field.

Conversion pollution decried

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter's proposed coal conversion program will create "major environmental damage" by dramatically increasing nitrogen oxides, which cause respiratory problems and are linked to lung cancer, Sen. Gary Hart (D-Colo.) said Tuesday.

Hart, who was just elected co-chairman of the Environmental Study Conference, a House-Senate group, said the administration should compensate for the increase in industrial and power plant pollution by adhering to a strict nitrogen oxide emission standard for automobiles.

Carter has proposed relaxing the nitrogen oxide standard for autos, but not as much as industry would like.

"The American people are being required to make a Faustain bargain," Hart said, 'by trading off public health for a solution to the energy problem."

Hart's comments are among the first open criticisms of Carter's energy package on environmental grounds. Environmental organizations have so far strongly supported the President, who says he will not sacrifice environmental standards to increase energy production.

The administration plan, supported by bills pending in Congress, is to prohibit most industrial and utility plants from burning oil and natural gas.

Discovery potentials

American Quasar Petroleum Co., Fort Worth, has announced completion of No. 1-27 Dunagan, a Morrow gas strike, 10 miles north of Barstow in Ward County.

Drilled to 19,269 feet, it has a 7⅝-inch casing set at 17,668 feet.

...en hundred Moroccan troops ...earheading the advance on the ...nd. Until being stalled by an am... ...h, they had been covering 12 miles ...day against an enemy which chose ...o fade into the countryside rather than fight.

Also on the ground in Shaba are 50 newly arrived Egyptian pilots and engineers especially trained in close-air support — a task at which the Zairians are hopelessly inept — and a platoon of Ugandan soldiers who, for unknown reasons, have been nicknamed the "Suicide Squad."

With the new cast of leading and supporting characters has dramatically altered the course of the war — and, observers believe, has shown that the 50,000-man Zairian army is incapable of dealing with internal or external thrusts without foreign intervention.

By Tuesday the combined Zairian and Moroccan forces had covered 100 miles in its two-week offensive. Pushing westward along the old Benguela railroad line, the troops were within 65 miles of the Angolan border when they fell into the ambush near the town of Musangu in the first heavy combat of the war.

But as an indication that the province was no longer in any immediate danger of failing to the rebels, 20 Americans returned Monday to Kolwezi, the capital of the copper-mining district to resume work on a hydroelectric project. They were evacuated last month when Kolwezi appeared within easy stricking distance of the rebel advance.

Most Western and African diplomats believe that if Zairian President Mobutu Sese Seko can repel or contain the Katanga invaders who struck from inside Angola March 8 — and it appears likely that he can with foreign help — "the guide" will have achieved a significant political victory.

He will have shown, temporarily at least, that he is still in control of this volatile, diverse country that was considered ungovernable after gaining its independence from Belgium in 1960. And by winning support from a wide ranging number of African and Western countries, his prestige on the continent is sure to rise sharply, observers say.

Mobutu continues to insist that the invasion was planned and supported by Cuba and the Soviet Union. He has closed the Cuban and East German embassies in Kinshasa although the Russian Embassy continues to operate. Fresh intelligence reports, however, throw some doubt on the depth of the Cuban and Russian involvement.

Contrary to earlier reports, Western intelligence sources now say that the invasion appears to have been hastily planned and ill conceived. The rebels carried no heavy weapons or armor and reconnaisance pilots flying over the border area report no traces of logistical buildup inside Angola or supply lines extending westward from the rebels' positions. The strength of the rag-tag guerrilla unit now is placed at not much more than 1,500 men.

It had been presumed that the invaders were former Zairians who lived in Shaba province when it was known as Katanga and that they had returned from camps inside Angola to reclaim their homeland. But even this presumption raises many questions about the real intent of the invaders.

Why, for instance, didn't the Katangans drive on into Kolwezi when they were meeting no resitance during the early stages of the invasion? Why did they withdraw so tacitly back toward or into Angola? Why did they not use disruptive tactics like cutting communication lines? Why were they apparently content to seize only a few strategically insiginificant farming towns when the copper-rich province is the economic heartland of Zaire?

To bolster its claim that the invasion was aborted by a superior Zairian force, the government has quoted numerous erroneous reports. It saud, for example, that 100 zairian troops had parachuted behind rebel lines last week and captured nine prisoners. The airdrop never took place, well informed diplomatic sources said Tuesday. And the much publicized "elite batallion of pygmies" who were saud to be leading the advance, never fired a bow, these sources report.

Observers offered two theories for the the false reports: First, they were widely carried in the international press, giving credence to the contention by Mobutu, who is a former journalist, that he had the situation in hand: Second, most of the rebel intelligence comes from the voice of Zaire and the secretly broadcast reports could have had a demoralizing effect on them.

Barely, however. The rebels are still to be reckoned with. They have shown that they easily can disrupt Zaire and they have proved the Zairian army, whose soldiers in Shaba now are receiving double pay, to be a largely ineffective, poorly disciplined force. Intelligence sources believe that, despite the retreat, the Katangans are likely to strike again in the future.

Two persons indicted for helping McManus

HOUSTON (AP) — Two person have been indicted on charges of helping capital murder defendant Vernon McManus flee from prosecution.

A Harris County grand jury indicted Betty Jean Plaskett, 46, and Lester Beckworth, 43, both of Baytown, Tuesday on charges of aiding McManus in jumping his $30,000 bond on charges of slaying a Baytown couple.

Mrs. Plaskett and Beckworth were arrested Sunday.

McManus, charged in the last July slaying of Paul and Mary Cantrell in their Baytown home, disappeared last week one day before his trial was to begin. He was arrested last Saturday in Jacksonvillle Beach, Fla. He waived extradition and was returned here where he remains jailed without bond.

State District Court Judge has rescheduled the start of the trial next Monday.

Suspects held for robbery

ODESSA — Odessa police have arrested two suspects for an armed robbery of a 7-11 store Tuesday night.

Police said the 7-11 store at 3915 Tanglewood St. was robbed by two men at 8:20 p.m. Tuesday. One of the men was armed with a knife, police Capt. Jack Fillyaw said.

Fillyaw said the store clerk was alone at the time the robbery began, but two customers came into the store during the robbery. One suspect was apprehended by the customers and the other escaped, but was arrested later from a description of the vehicle, Fillyaw said.

Police expected to file charges this morning.

Odessa woman dies in crash

best work with the media.

Mrs. William Gilmore, panel moderator, began the discussion by telling the women that "publicity is characterized by excitement, integrity, dependability, accuracy and mutual respect and trust."

"It is common," said Humes, "to misunderstand how to work with the media. In all probability, you are not using radio publicity to its full advantage."

He pointed out that radio is pledged to give public service time and as far as this time is concerned, said Humes, "You just have to ask for it."

Allison offered some sound advice when he told the guild members that when they appoint their publicity chairman, this person should become acquainted with the reporter she will be working with for the year. "We can layout publicity campaign and inform the chairman of the limits we can go. This makes for better working relations," said Allison.

He gave further advice by saying that "a group is better off" not mentioning to a news reporter that he has just bought certain number of inches of advertising space and wants the same amount of inches in the news story. The publisher explained that the news department and the advertising department of a newspaper work, usually, independent of each other.

Allison told the guild members that when they have an event that is closed to the public they should not expect as much coverage as they would if it was a function that was available to the public because the public is not interested in reading about something they cannot attend.

"In addition to great advance stories, also have a good news story about what actually happened," Allison said. "The media feels funny when shut off in the middle of something."

Herndon feels that nothing can take the place of "a talented person who makes direct contact with the media. Once she takes on this chore," no matter if the media representative has known her for years, "she should talk over the publicity with the media."

"Guilds exist to support the symphonys," said Herndon and there must be "a fine cooperation between the guilds and the symphony associations," who, in turn, cooperate with the media.

The television manager told the women that news of their happenings should be released at a time when all media can break the story at the same time.

Allison noted that as far as the R-T is concerned, that unless something was spot news and had to go that day, it is better to call a reporter in the afternoon after both editions had gone to press. "If possible," Allison said, "two or three days in advance is better."

In closing, two members of the panel suggested ways of thanking the media for outstanding coverage.

Herndon said one way was through programs printed for a symphony event. He suggested the guilds show their appreciation to the assistance given by the media by boxing in their programs a list of all the media involved.

Allison said that a letter to the publisher or editor about a reporter who had done a good job of covering an event means a lot to the reporter and is important to the publisher and editor.

Junior League delegates attend conference

Mrs. William U. Sumner, incoming president of the Junior League of Midland, Inc., and Mrs. Glenn A. Rogers, incoming vice president of the league, are representing the league as delegates to the 1977 annual conference of the Association of Junior Leagues, Inc., in Los Angeles, Calif.

Other participants are Charlton Heston, actor and professional artist; Elizabeth Lane, president of the Canadian Conference of the Arts; Dr. Malcolm Todd, honorary president of the American Medical Association; Frank Schnidman, resident counselor, Urban Land Institute; Gordon Manser, interim director of the Association of Junior Leagues.

Midland woman to head TWASO state board

By PATSY GORDON

The general session of the 12th annual conference of Texas Women's Association for Symphony Orchestras concluded Tuesday with the election of new state board members and the naming of the 1979 conference site.

Mrs. Karen Jensen Gibson of San Diego, Calif. also made an appearance at the general meeting in the Yates and San Andres Rooms of the Midland Hilton, headquarters for the conference.

Mrs. Gibson is author of "The Symphony Cookbook," and she offered some recipes from the publication to the delegates.

State officers for the 1977-78 term include Mrs. Gordon S. Knox of Midland, president; Mrs. Roger D. Allen of Midland, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Harold B. Eudaly of Fort Worth, 1978 conference chairman; and Mrs. Sarah Fredric of Fort Worth, vice conference chairman. Elected directors were Mrs. W. V. Harlow Jr. of Amarillo, Mrs. Scott Taliaferro of Abilene and Mrs. Eugene Jericho of Dallas.

The 1978 conference will be held in Fort Worth, while Lubbock will host the 1979 meeting of TWASO.

Another highlight of the conference's final day was a panel discussion on how to get along with the news media by Ray Herndon, general manager and vice president of KMID-TV; Jim N. Allison, publisher of the The Midland Reporter-Telegram, and Parker Humes, general manager of KCRS Radio and KWMJMUSAK.

Prior to the panelists, a "Black Gold" luncheon, hosted by the Midland Symphony Association, was held for the delegates from 21 Texas cities in the Midland Country Club. After welcome notes by Russell Neisig, president of the association, Ralph Black, executive director, American Symphony Orchestra League, delivered a keynote speech.

The delegates were transported to Midland College where Allison, Herndon and Humes explained how the guild members and their publicity or public relations chairman can

Leaves drop when light changes

If you had your house plants outdoors all summer and they dropped leaves rather profusely when you brought them indoors, you can probably blame the change in light.

Even in shaded areas, light levels outdoors are considerably higher than indoors. When you move plants from high light to low light areas, leaf drop is apt to result. Plants will probably stop dropping leaves when they have adapted to indoor conditions.

DEAR ABBY

No kisses, no marry warns woman's lover

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Izzy and I have been living together as man and wife for eight years. We really love each other, and I want to marry him, but here is the problem.

I have this crazy hangup I can't seem to get over: I CAN'T bring myself to kiss a man on the mouth! No one would believe that two people could have such a great relationship without ever having kissed.

I'm 43 and have never been married, and Izzy is 50 and has been divorced for ten years.

My astrologist says our signs show us to be compatible in every way—and we certainly are. My chiropractor, who also knows Izzy, says he's never seen a couple better suited for each other.

I went to a psychiatrist a few times, and he says this obsession I have about kissing a man on the mouth stems back to when I was a little girl and my father, who was a heavy cigar-smoker, always kissed me on the mouth, which made me so sick I sometimes threw up.

The only thing Izzy and I ever argue about is marriage. I told him I'd be satisfied with a wedding ring from the dime store, but he says, "No kisses—no mazeltov."

What is your advice?—BELLA IN BROOKLYN

DEAR BELLA: Some men might be willing to tolerate a kissless marriage, but apparently Izzy isn't one of them, so you have two options: Get into therapy and stay with it long enough to overcome your hangup, or continue as you are and pray that Izzy never needs mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Biscuit recipe calls for cream of tartar

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

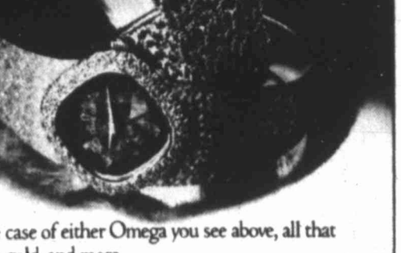

OLDTIME BISCUITS

1 cup flour, fork-stir well before measuring
2 teaspoons baking power
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine
⅓ cup of milk

In a medium mixing bowl stir together the flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, salt and sugar. With a pastry blender cut in the butter until the particles are tiny. Gradually sprinkle with the milk, stirring as you do so with a fork, until the dough comes away from the sides of the bowl. Turn out on a prepared pastry cloth; knead about half a dozen times. With a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out a little less than ½-inch thick; cut out with a floured 2-inch round cookie cutter. Place, a few inches apart, on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 450-degree oven until lightly browned — 10 to 12 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 11.

Designer emphasizes giving yourself time

By SHIRLEY GALLINA
Copley News Service

"It's more important to eat well, keep alert, be yourself and enjoy yourself than to have a lot of clothes," says Diane von Furstenberg.

"It's also nice to indulge yourself with time. To give yourself time is very important — it's difficult, but so is everything."

Furstenberg, a nonroyal little girl who grew up to be a real life princess and a member of the jet set, has written a book as a guideline to women who would make the most of what they have.

The book, "Diane von Furstenberg's Book of Beauty," subtitled "How to become a more attractive, confident and sensual woman." (Simon and Schuster, $9.95) was published in January.

In it, she tells about her own life, her success and what it means to be in control of your own life.

"Take yourself in control — decide what you're going to do, and take care of yourself, or you'll find you're guided by other people," she said in an interview.

"Face yourself as early as you can."

As soon as she was married to Prince Egon von Furstenberg, she decided she needed a career.

"I wanted it for my own identity, my independence and to be in control of my own life," she explains.

In 1970, she started by designing dresses because no one else was. Everyone was concentrating on sportswear, and she never wears pants except in the country or on vacation.

"I started with dresses — a new concept for the new woman who is active, who participates in things and belongs to today," she says.

The divorced mother of two, a son Alexandre, 7, and a daughter, Tatiana, 6, she not only runs a $20 million business, but a home.

"If you're a woman, it's difficult, but it's nice to be a little of everything. It's a choice, not an obligation."

Patching up lawn required before summer

By TOM STEVENSON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - In the spring many homeowners get an urge to patch up their lawns. It is not the best time to sow grass seeds but it can be done successfully. The problem is to get the grass growing well before crabgrass starts to appear, and to have the grass somewhat established before it has to cope with hot, dry summer weather.

The first decision is whether to do the whole lawn over or just to make repairs. If you have grass fairly well distributed over 50 percent of the lawn it is better to repair than to start over.

Try to figure out why there are bare spots and whether they can be corrected. Seeding or sodding alone will not be a permanent cure. The new plants will die for the same reason the old ones did.

A female dog can cause bare spots. In such cases, the old soil in the damaged areas should be removed to a depth of three of four inches and replaced with good soil.

Too heavy a salt concentration from winter use of salt for deicing can kill grass. Usually leaching will take care of this in a year or two.

Hard packed soil could be the problem. Heavy foot traffic when the soil is wet, or use of a heavy roller or other equipment, can cause soil compaction.

If there is constant heavy foot traffic in a particular area, perhaps a hard-surfaced walk is the best answer.

An easy way to fill bare spots is by sodding. Chunks of sod can be taken from inconspicuous places and used to fill the bare spots. Or, buy a few rolls of sod and cut it into peices of the required size.

To seed the bare spots, use grass seed of the same kind that is prevalent in the lawn. But don't just throw seed on the soil and expect mother nature to do the rest, It isn't as simple as that.

First get rid of the weeds. Then use an iron rake to scratch the soil. Sow the seed and press them into the soil with your feet or a roller.

If buried in the soil where there is inadequate light, the seeds will not germinate. And unless they are sown in good contact with the soil, the seeds may dry out rapidly and perish.

Moisture is a critical factor in grass seed germination and survival. A mature seed contains a small living plant that is dormant. This miniature plant is the embryo. When conditions (temperature and moisture) are favorable, the embryo starts to grow. This process, including bursting of the seed coat, is germination.

If the embryo dries out at any time after it starts to grow, the grass dies. That's why it is important to keep the seed bed moist. After the plant is up and growing, water instead of sprinkling, if rainfall is inadequate. The grass, needs about an inch of water a week. New grass, with a limited root system, cannot survive drought as well as established grass.

Lawn grasses with a good root system have the ability to crowd out weeds and keep them from becoming established. Mowing has a profound effect on the root growth of grass.

One of the worst mistakes is to let the grass get too tall and then cut off too much of the green matter at one time.

The green blades of the grass produce the food of the plant. The raw materials come from the soil and air.

If most of the green part is removed, root growth stops for several days or even two or three weeks, and the plant experiences shock.

No more than one-third of the green part of the grass blade should be removed at one cutting. If the grass is three inches tall, remove one inch, cutting it back to two inches.

If the grass is five or six inches tall, remove only two inches on the first mowing, and four or five days later remove another inch.

The grass should not be cut when wet unless it is absolutely necessary. Dry grass is easier to cut, does not ball up and clog.

Million dollar sales to pace land 'change'

By TOM DeCOLA
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Jerry Jackson's job is to put sellers of property together with potential buyers, hoping that a deal is made and accepting what amounts to a finder's fee.

It's the way he does it that's different.

Jackson is president of the San Francisco-based American Real Estate Exchange (AMREX), which will open its Houston regional office Friday with a market day aimed at moving 350 pieces of property worth some $1.3 billion. Each piece of property offered must be worth $1 million or more.

The posh River Oaks Country Club will be the scene, and an invited list of 100 sellers and 50 buyers will do their thing at the start of a bell — just like a stock exchange.

The buyers will be given a catalog giving a general description of each property for sale, without specifically identifying the property. Each parcel is given a code number.

If all goes well and a deal is made, AMREX gets paid according to percentage.

The closing process often takes weeks, and Jackson expects sales of from $100 million to $140 million to result from the Houston market day.

Jackson's company has been around for eight years, and he considers the expansion into Houston a natural. "The national investor loves Houston, and that makes our presence here mandatory," Jackson said.

Friday's trading participants will come from throughout the U.S., Middle East, Europe, the Far East and Canada. Jackson said international investors have different criteria than their American counterparts. "The international investor is seeking to find investments allowing relocation of his money...in a more stable economy, one that is not wanting or threatened by political upheavals," he said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Book-toting style OK

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have noticed that almost the only way the girls on our campus carry their books is hugged to their chests--as though for dear life. Is this some new co-ed fad? Or is it some standing difference between the sexes? It's the first year we have had girls at our university, so this is quite a new way of looking at women for all of us here.--Jay W.

Dear Jay: Well, you are in for something of an education, because hugging books to one's chest seems to be a widespread female practice. In fact, it has been noted in Montana, Ontario, New York, El Salvador and Costa Rica--just to mention a few of the many places--by two behavioral researchers at the University of Montana, Donald and Mary Jenni.

This team found that more than nine college girls out of 10 wrap one or both arms around their books, which they clasp to their chests--or, occasionally, rest on their hips. Over nine out of 10 college males carry books in one hand at their side. The load they happen to be carrying has no effect one way or the other.

Extending their research to younger students, the Jennis discovered that the majority of first-graders of both sexes start off with the side-carrying method. Girls shift progressively to the clasping technique, whereas boys remain steadfast side-carriers.

The Jennis think there are three factors at play. One is genetic: females tend to assume more closed positions than males--such as folding their arms or crossing their legs. The second is anatomical: differences in hip width and the angle of the lower arm make one style more comfortable for females, the other for males. And the third factor is social: copying what older students are doing.

The Jennis say that when they started their research on carrying behavior, they found no reference to it in scientific literature. They note, however, that Mad Magazine had pioneered with a cartoon strip on it by D. Berg, back in 1975. The topic has now graduated to Science!

Dear Dr. Solomon: If you have had gonorrhea a couple of times, do you develop an immunity to it?--X

Dear X: No, you probably won't. Just to give one example--there was a report in the Medical Tribune recently on a patient in Massachusetts who had 14 bouts of gonorrhea in one year. Each attack was a reinfection, and each responded to treatment.

Jordanian king undergoing physical exam

HOUSTON (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan was in a Houston hospital today undergoing what hospital authorities called "a routine physical."

Hussein was met Tuesday at St Luke's Hospital by Dr. Denton Cooley, famed heart surgeon, Dr. Robert Hall, who will conduct the medical tests, and Dr. Yousef Goussous, a Jordanian doctor who is in training at St. Luke's.

A short time after his arrival, Hussein was settled into one of St. Luke's 10 suites, which include a large bedroom, private bath and sitting room.

"Absolutely nothing is wrong with him that we know of," one hospital oficial said. "This is just an annual check-up, a practice he's made in recent years and similar to the one he had his last visit to the United States."

The official said nothing special was scheduled during the two day hospital stay and the only persons the king is expected to see are the physicians, nurses and others taking part in his tests.

No report of the examination findings will be made public, the official said, because "that is the way the king wants it."

Hussein is scheduled to leave the hospital Thursday morning and go directly to the airport.

Cooper takes 4-1 lead, but Bulldogs win, 7-0

By BOB DILLON

Umpire Leonard Garcia, working behind home plate, called Cooper's Jim Cook out at home on an appeal play by pitcher Bud Brigham. Cook missed home plate in scoring a run during a three-run rally Garcia called the runner out. The next batter, Mark Beale made some comment to the umpire and suddenly Garcia walked past Cooper Coach Chester Dougherty in the third base coaching box and headed for his car and a short drive to Odessa.

Dougherty claimed, "The umpire came up to me and said — Your fans have just cost you the ball game." So the umpire has the authority to call the game and did, awarding the contest to the Bulldogs by a 7-0 score instead of the 4-1 lead by Cooper.

THE WHOLE game was a strange one indeed from beginning to end. First of all, Garcia was almost 20 minutes late for the game and the other umpire, Jerry Norman, didn't even show up at all.

The game finally got underway at 4:30 p.m. with Boots Goode being called out of the stands to call the bases since Norman was a no-show.

Midland had taken a 1-0 lead off Cook in the second inning. Ricky Goode led off with a single up the middle. James Allen doubled Goode all the way to third and Goode raced home on a wild pitch by Cook.

Cooper tied the game in the fifth inning. Cook struck out, but Barry Russell legged out an infield hit. Randy Jones then doubled Russell to third. On the next play, Max Whiteley hit a ball to short where Jones stopped in front of Jimmy Zachry, who had no chance to try and field the ball. Garcia called Jones out for interference on the play. This seemed to irritate the Cougar fans along with Dougherty. Russell tied the game moments later by scoring on a wild pitch by Brigham.

MIDLAND GOT the first two runners on second and third due to errors by Jones and Cook, but Steve Cole and Kevin Pearce grounded out to third and Zachry was walked intentionally. David Johnston grounded out to John Grissom at first to end the threat.

Then came the wild sixth inning. Ken Dozier was safe on a throwing error by Zachry, Mike Hill struck out, but Grissom doubled in Dozier to make it 2-1. Cook lined a pinch single into left, scoring runner Greg Whisnehunt and Russell lined a single into center that scored David Laurence, but Cook was erased on the appeal play and that was when the fireworks started and the game ended abruptly.

The unusual victory gives Midland a 5-20 season record and a 1-5 District 5-4A mark, while Cooper is now 14-9 and 2-4.

COACH DOUGHERTY didn't seem too upset over the decision since his Cougars won the first half of the race with a 6-1 record and will be in the playoff series to determine the 5-4A representative in the AAAA state playoffs. "I will call Shorty Lawson, our Athletic Director and protest, but we don't really care about replaying the game if we have to since we are already out of the race in the second half, but still in the playoff series," said Dougherty.

The bad thing about a forfeit is the fact that all of the hitting and pitching records do not count because of the forfeit. Jones and Russell were the No. 1 and No. 2 hitters in the league going into the game and had three hits between them, but that is all wiped away with the umpire's decision to forfeit the game to the Purple Pack.

THE BULLDOGS wind up the season Saturday when they tangle with the Robert E. Lee Rebels at the Lee diamond in a Tall City contest.

Leadoff homer sinks Rebels

ABILENE — Centerfielder Herman Reece had a leadoff home run in the bottom of the first inning to propel the Abilene Eagles to a 1-0 victory over the Robert E. Lee Rebels Tuesday in a District 5-4A baseball game.

The victory moves the Eagles into a three-way tie for first place with San Angelo and Big Spring in the second half of the 5-4A race with a 5-1 mark while Lee drops to a 1-5 loop reading with the loss.

Doug Schmidt went all the way for the Rebels in throwing a four-hitter and his only mistake was the home run pitch to Reece.

Weldon Bragg also threw a four-hitter for the Warbirds, who stand 19-4 on the year going into their game with Abilene Cooper Saturday.

Bragg owns an 8-2 mound record while Schmidt is now 2-3 on the year.

The victory avenges a 15-1 defeat to Lee in the first half of the race in a game played n in the Tall City.

Four advance in AAU boxing

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Four of the favored boxers in Tuesday night's heavyweight preliminaries advanced in impressive fashion at the Amateur Athletic Union national boxing championships.

Winning by knockouts were Woody Clark of Miami, the 1976 AAU runner-up, and Clinton Cochran of the U.S. Army team, the 1977 inter-service champion. Both were first round knockouts.

Speier downs Foli, 3-2

By The Associated Press

Chris Speier used to hear cheers in San Francisco. Now he hears jeers.

"I expected the fans' reaction," said Speier Tuesday night after making his first appearance in Candlestick Park in a visiting uniform as the Montreal Expos beat the San Francisco Giants 3-2. "Personal pride made we want to show the fans I could still play."

Speier, traded to the Montreal Expos for Tim Foli last month, showed the San Francisco boo-birds that the Expos weren't short-changed in the swap of shortstops.

He outplayed his opposite number in every department and ironically fielded the last out of the game, a grounder hit by Foli with the potential tying run on third base.

"That last throw could have ruined everything," said Speier, whose throw in the dirt was saved by first baseman Tony Perez. "But I was so glad Foli hit it. I was just trying to throw as hard as I could and there's no way I should have thrown it in the dirt. All I could do was pray that Tony handled it."

That play capped a perfect evening for Speier and a perfectly awful one for Foli. The new Montreal shortstop had a double and a single and scored two of the Expos' runs, including the game-winner in the seventh inning. Foli was hitless in five trips and made an error on a ball hit by Speier that led to Montreal's first run in the first inning.

Speier's superior performance acquired more luster, considering the emotional pressure involved in his first game back at Candlestick since the trade. He had been an adored player in San Francisco for many years, but eventually fell out of favor after an arm injury tarnished his talents.

"I did a lot of reflecting when I came to the park," said Speier. "This wasn't a vendetta—but I did want to show the fans something."

Pirates 8, Braves 7

Pinch-hitter Ed Kirkpatrick's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the 11th inning gave Pittsburgh its victory over Atlanta and extended the Braves' losing streak to 10 games.

Cubs 9, Astros 0

Bill Buckner drilled three doubles and knocked in two runs, Manny Trillo walloped a three-run homer and Ray Burris pitched a five-hitter as Chicago routed Houston. Burris did not allow a runner past second base as he struck out five and did not issue a walk.

"Everybody has his day," said Burris. "Today just happened to be mine. I had good control of all my pitches. They hit some good shots right at people. We hit some good shots where they weren't."

Phillies 8, Padres 7

Dodgers 4, Mets 1

Burt Hooton hurled a four-hitter and singled home a run and Rick Monday drove in three runs with two doubles, leading Los Angeles over New York. Hooton struck out 11 and lost his shutout with two out in the ninth, when Dusty Baker dropped Roy Staiger's fly ball and allowed Ed Kranepool to score from first.

"I had very good location tonight," Hooton said. "I can't say I had better stuff than I had in my other starts, but I was around the plate all night."

Horton haunts Tigers

By The Associated Press

Part of the scene was familiar. Big Willie Horton was spraying hits around Tiger Stadium.

But one difference was that he was wearing a Texas Ranger uniform. And another change of pace was that the fickle fans of Detroit were on his side.

"It's a funny thing," mused Detroit Manager Ralph Houk, "the fans who were cheering him tonight were probably the ones booing him here a few weeks ago."

The 33-year-old Horton, who began playing for Detroit in 1963 but was traded to Texas last month, had a terrific homecoming Tuesday night. He stroked four hits in leading the Rangers to a 13-0 joyride over his former teammates.

Horton had three singles and a double, scoring twice. The fans couldn't get enough of him, showering him with a standing ovation when he moved into the on-deck circle in the first.

He said he had tears in his eyes.

"It was a great feeling," he said. "It's sad I have to come back against my old teammates. I tried not to look at them...I still have a lot of love there. I wish the guys the best after we leave here tomorrow."

In the rest of the American League action, the Chicago White Sox downed the Kansas City Royals 8-4; the Seattle Mariners outslugged the Boston Red Sox 10-8; the Minnesota Twins edged the Cleveland Indians 4-3 in 10 innings; the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 6-2, and the New York Yankees crushed the California Angels 8-1.

Texas pitcher Bert Blyleven also had a return of sorts, taking the mound for the first time since incurring a three-game suspension for intentionally throwing at Kansas City's Darrell Porter.

The suspension was mostly symbolic, since it coincided with Blyleven's normal three days' rest. The star right-hander tossed a four-hitter and fanned 12 batters for his second shutout in a row.

Since his teammates were busy battering four Detroit pitchers for 18 hits, Blyleven's biggest task was keeping warm in the Texas dugout.

"I had to go in and change my shirt a couple of times to keep warm and I had to get heat on my arm," said Blyleven, owner of a 3-2 record and a frugal 1.52 earned run average. "Mentally you have to go out there and think it's still a 10 ballgame."

It was hardly ever a 1-0 ball game since Ken Henderson slugged a three-run homer in the first inning, stretching his hitting streak to 13 games. Henderson doubled in his fourth RBI of the game in the second inning, when the Rangers scored seven runs and tied a club record with nine hits. Bump Wills, who had a two-run homer in the ninth, had two singles in the second.

Brewers 6, Blue Jays 2

Barry Cort's feat of pitching a strong nine-hitter was topped only by his father George's activities.

"I must have smoked—no, ate—a package of cigarettes during the game," said George Cort, an unemployed house painter who flew to Toronto from his home in Tampa, Fla. "I think I was more nervous than he was."

The rookie Milwaukee pitcher, who was born in Toronto 21 years ago, will now remember the city as the site of his first major league victory.

Yankees 8, Angels 1

Torrez, making his first appearance for New York since being obtained from Oakland last week, held the Angels to one hit over the first five innings. He left the game in the sixth with a blister.

Graig Nettles and Reggie Jackson also slammed homers to send the Yankees to their fifth straight victory and 11th in their last 12 games. California has dropped five of six.

White Sox 8, Royals 4

Chicago's Richie Zisk, in his first AL season, is feasting on the league's pitchers. He slammed his eighth homer to grab the league lead in that department.

Mariners 10, Red Sox 8

Bill Stein belted his first two homers of the season and Carlos Lopez drove in three runs with a homer and a pair of singles to snap the Red Sox' threegame winning streak.

John Montague, pitching in relief, hurled 62-3 innings to gain the victory.

Twins 4, Indians 3

Steers, Bobcats take 5-4A wins

Big Spring and San Angelo Central bombed Odessa and Odessa Permian in District 5-4A games Tuesday to keep pace with Abilene High in the second half of the race.

The Steers, Bobcats and Eagles all stand 5-1 in the wild race for the second half crown. Abilene Cooper won the first half of the race with a 6-1 reading.

Mike Harris had a two-run homer for the Steers in the second inning. Harris was the winning pitcher, giving Big Spring a season record of 16-7.

OHS, meanwhile, is 14-12 and 3-3.

San Angelo pounded out 15 hits in blistering Mojo, 8-2. Joe Paul Bramhall, Mike McLaughlin, Jody Martinez and Carl Brainard had three hits each for the Bobcats who are 15-10. Permian got a two-run homer from shortstop Stan Strifler. Mojo is 10-14 and 2-4.

TONY DORSETT, former University of Pittsburgh running back and Heisman Trophy winner, talks with the press Tuesday before he entered negotiations with the Dallas Cowboys. Dorsett was the Cowboys top draft pick in Tuesday's National Football League draft. (AP Laserphoto)

Within a few hours, he'd flown from New York to Tampa and had signed what was reported to be five one-year contracts worth close to $1.5 million.

DORSETT, THE Heisman Trophywinning running back from topranked, unbeaten Pittsburgh, was only No. 2. And he was trying harder the moment the Dallas Cowboys dealt a passel of picks to Seattle for the chance to grab him.

"I do feel I'm worth as much as anybody in professional football. I must be worth something for the Cowboys to sacrifice four draft choices," he said after Dallas gave to the Seahawks its first-round selection and the three second-round choices it had amassed.

When told about the contract numbers filtering out of Tampa, Dorsett observed: "I'd love to play for $1.5 million." He just might get it, considering that Mike Trope, Bell's agent, is Dorsett's main man, too. "Whatever Bell gets will be the going rate for Tony," he said.

AND DORSETT tossed a mild threat in Dallas' direction, suggesting he might head for the Canadian Football League if the right numbers didn't filter out of Texas, too. Last week he did a bit of negotiating with the Toronto Argonauts.

"I would love to play for the Cowboys but I will go where it is best for me," Dorsett said.

Presumably the Cowboys have no plans to let Touchdown Tony get away. What they might have to do, Coach Tom Landry said, is alter their offense. "Tony gives us a dimension we've never had—a back with breakaway running ability," he said. "It looks like we're going to have to change our playbook."

There'll be some changes made in Tampa Bay as well.

Last year, when the Bucs went 0-14 in their first season, they had running backs like Louis Carter, Ed Williams, Essex Johnson, Rod McNeil ... a bunch of guys named "Who's he?" Now McKay's got his allstar alumni, Bell and Anthony Davis, who spent two post-graduate years in the World Football League and with Toronto in the CFL.

"GETTING PICKED No. 1 ... this is like winning the Heisman," said Bell, who had expressed some disappointment at coming in No. 2 in that voting. "Now I know how Dorsett must have felt with all this attention."

The moment NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle read Bell's name—a foregone conclusion and an announcement greeted with near-apathy in the crowded Hotel Roosevelt ballroom—the bearded Bell strode in and held up his new orangeand-white Tampa Bay jersey with No. 42, the same number he wore for McKay at Southern Cal.

He praised the man he's rejoining. "Give him time and he'll win," Bell said of McKay, whose hair might have turned white last year if it hadn't already been that way. "He's making some wise decisions— like drafting me."

MCKAY HAS already decided what to do with his ace. "Ricky runs with power and speed," he said. "He's an excellent blocker as well as pass receiver. He can play both fullback and tailback and we plan to use him at both positions."

With No. 1 anticlimactically out of the way (the last time a running back was No. 1 was 1969, a Southern Cal kid named O.J. Simpson), the Seahawks' No. 2 turn came—and went.

It figured they wouldn't sign Dorsett, who had told them he had no desire to relocate in the Pacific Northwest. Most observers guessed Seattle, which gave up the most yards and most points last year, would go for a quality defensive star, perhaps tackle Mike Butler from Kansas.

INSTEAD THEY went for quantity—Dallas' draft choices. What they ultimately got was a mixture. In the first round they picked Tulsa guard Steve August. In the second round they picked Boston College offensive tackle Tom Lynch and Kansas linebacker Terry Beeson. Then the Seahawks dealt the last of the four Dallas draft picks back to the Cowboys and got secondyear wide receiver Duke Fergerson.

"We felt that, being a new franchise, the thing we needed most was quality players," Seahawks Coach Jack Patera said, explaining the four-for-Dorsett deal. "There has never been a situation that I've seen where one player turned a team around."

The Cincinnati Bengals, who had three first-round picks as a result of deals with Buffalo (for Sherman White) and Philadelphia (for Bill Bergey), picked third and went for defensive tackle Eddie Edwards from the University of Miami. They later took another defensive tackle, Houston's Wilson Whitley, and Michigan State tight end Mike Cobb.

NEW YORK'S teams picked fourth and fifth respectively and each went for Southern Cal talent—the Jets selecting offensive tackle Marvin Powell and the Giants choosing defensive tackle Gary Jeter.

It wasn't until the 19th pick that a quarterback was taken. He was Missouri's Steve Pisarkiewicz, chosen by the St. Louis Cardinals. The Minnesota Vikings, picking 27th, also took a passer, Rice's Tommy Kramer.

Joe Roth would surely have gone sooner. But the oncestrapping quarterback from the University of California lost a battle to cancer last February. "I want to acknowledge the memory of Joe Roth, who was a fine quarterback and who had so looked forward to playing in the NFL," Rozelle said in tribute at the start of the draft.

The first round took 2 hours, 54 minutes. The 28 clubs split offense and defense evenly, 14 apiece. Defensive tackles led the field with six picked. Five rounds consumed 11:22.

The remaining seven rounds were to be held today starting at 10 a.m. EDT.

NFL teams draft SWC stars in early rounds

By The Associated Press

The Dallas Cowboys have chosen two Texans, Val Belcher and Guy Brown of Houston, in the opening rounds of the National Football League draft.

Another Houston athlete, AllAmerican defensive end Wilson Whitley, led five Southwest Conference players who were selected in the first round of the draft Tuesday.

The Cowboys picked University of Houston guard Belcher in the third round and UH line backer Guy Brown in the fourth round.

Defensive back Raymond Clayborne of Texas went to New England as the 16th player selected.

Guard R.C. Thilemann of Arkansas went to Atlanta in the second round, followed by defensive tackle Greg Koch to Green Bay.

Fullback George Franklin of Texas A&I was a second round St. Louis Cardinals choice and A&M's Dennis Swilley, an offensive guard, was plucked by the Vikings to end the second round.

Third round choices included Texas A&M's defensive tackle Edgar Fields by the Atlanta Falcons and Texas Tech's linebacker Thomas Howard by the Kansas City Chiefs.

The New York Jets tapped A&M defensive end Tank Marshall and the Houston Oilers picked running back Rob Carpenter of Miami University in Ohio.

In the fourth round, New England picked Arkansas tackle Gerald Skinner while Buffalo drafted Texas A&M tackle Jimmy Dean.

Fifth round selections included Baylor tackle Gary Gregory, who went to the New York Jets, and Longhorn tackle Ernest Gee, who was picked by St. Louis.

Pittsburgh picked Arkansas linebacker Dennis Winston, and Oakland tapped A&M running back Lester Hayes.

The last seven rounds of the draft were scheduled today.

Manning's arm is healing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The sore arm that kept quarterback Archie Manning out of action all last season is healing nicely, the veteran New Orleans Saints signal caller said Tuesday.

Giboulee trainer hopes for fast, hard track

So, naturally, trainer Jacques Dumas hopes the Churchill Downs track is hard and fast on Kentucky Derby Day for his colt, whose name is French for "little snowstorm."

If it comes up muddy or sloppy, like the Keeneland track was when Giboulee finished ninth in the Blue Grass Stakes, Canada might not have a Derby representative.

"If it rains, I think I would scratch," Dumas said Tuesday. "There's no sense running a horse if he doesn't have a chance."

The Blue Grass was Giboulee's first out-of-the money finish in four races this year but the track condition beat him as much as his opposition, in the opinion of Dumas.

"He just didn't try," said Dumas. "He doesn't like a soft track. He has low action. He cooled out in 20 minutes because he didn't run."

But when the Canadian-bred son of 1964 Derby winner Northern Dancer, owned by Jean-Louis Levesque of Montreal, does feel like trying, he can be very good.

He won four of 13 starts, including the 1⅛-mile Coronation Futurity at Woodbine, last year and had two seconds and two thirds and earnings of $131,712. This year he was third in an allowance race, second to Seattle Slew in the Flamingo and the winner of the Calumet Purse.

Draft ignores large pool of grid players

CHICAGO (AP) — They were not chosen in Tuesday's pro football draft but you find them in every big city in America and plenty of small ones.

Big, grizzled beer hoisters with broken noses and missing teeth, playing football on rundown fields on the outskirts of town or in the shadow of smoking blast furnaces.

"I never did nurse any illusions of playing pro ball," says mailman Larry Ball. "I just want to play for the hell of it and to stay in shape. Anyway, if I don't play I'll probably go crazy or something."

Ball is a wide receiver for the Chicago Lions. It's called a semi-pro team but nobody is there for the money.

"In my entire seven years with this team, I have never seen a dollar paid any of these players," Coach Palmer Pyle, a former guard with the Chicago Bears and Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, says.

This year, the Lions are getting a break from their usual routine of gut-crunching games before crowds of 500 at Luther North High School. Starting May 30, they play a series of exhibition matches in Europe against the Newton, Iowa, Nite Hawks, another semi-pro team.

Cities on the tour are Paris, Vienna, Berlin, Brussels, Copenhagen and either Munich or Frankfort. They figure to play in soccer stadiums before crowds of around 25,000.

"To the the best of my knowledge, it will be the first time a pro or semi-pro American football team has ever played there," Tom Prost, Lions owner and offensive tackle, says.

Ball says the European tour has brought the team some recognition. He may be optimistic when he adds that "at this point, half the people in Chicago don't know we exist."

"People just think that, you know, we're a bunch of rinkydinks," he says.

Of course, some hold out hope that maybe—just maybe— there will be that magic game and a pro scout will just happen to be in the stands. Four players from the Lions squad have signed pro contracts. And the possibility of stardom is just real enough to keep dreams alive.

"I remember a few years ago we went to play the Quad City, Illinois, Mohawks," policeman Jim Arceo, a defensive back, says. "We had a pretty good team but we got beat so bad I forgot the score. They had this quarterback who was just hot that day. We couldn't stop him for the world."

The little-known quarterback was Ken Anderson and a few seasons later his spectacular passing arm would top the NFL and lead the Cincinnati Bengals into contention.

"Playing football is all I'm doing now," says 23-year-old quarterback Steve Licht. "I used to work construction after graduating from Weber High School. I had some offers to play college ball. But I turned them down because I was bringing home about $300 a week working construction. Somehow, I thought it would last forever.

"But then I got laid off, and then I broke my wrist playing for another semi-pro team last year," he says. "So I wasn't able to to even go back to work if they called me.

Cubs, Sox rained out

By The Associated Press

San Antonio's Jeff Leonards scored Marv Webb on an error in the top of the 12th inning to give San Antonio an 11-10 victory over El Paso night in a fight-marred Texas League game Tuesday night.

El Paso scored three runs in the bottom of the ninth to tie the score 8-8 and each team added a pair of runs in the 11th to prolong the four-hour duel.

El Paso's Jay Peters was thrown out of the game in the ninth for taking a swing at San Antonio pitcher Ted Farr after the two collided at home plate.

In other games, Jackson edged Arkansas 8-6 and Shreveport beat Tulsa 5-2. Midland at Amarillo was postponed because of rain.

Future looks brighter for supermarket industry

The Washington Post

DALLAS — Your grocer is smiling. It's not a wide grin, but a discernible look of pleasure was painted on his face at the opening of the annual Food Marketing Institute here this week.

Spokesmen for the supermarket industry and their public opinion pollster took a generally upbeat approach in the "state of the industry" briefings. They cited increases in consumer spending and consumption during 1976 and a lessening of the inflation rate as reasons for "a general upturn in performance" that should lead to a "steadily healthier, increasingly profitable food industry."

Statistics they use showed average store sales up 6.5 per cent last year. The inflation rate for food at home was 2.1 per cent in contrast to 8.3 per cent in 1975 and 14.9 per cent in 1974. Wages increased, but at a lower rate than in any of the last three years.

There were signs of a lessening of tension with consumers. According to Ruth Clark of Yankelovich, Skelly and White, the firm that does public opinion research for FMI, 92 per cent of the public expects further food price increases and only 10 per cent now blame the supermarkets for current high prices.

But the retailer isn't altogether out of the woods. "The climate of mistrust and suspicion continues," White reported. The survey found 61 per cent "feel that supermarkets strike a bad balance between profits and corporate responsibility." Oil companies, business in general and food manufacturers fared worse; but banks, farmers and neighborhood groceries did better.

Also, while the number of consumer activists stayed relatively stationary — at 10 per cent — another 40 per cent, a sharp increase, are now considered potential activists. This means, White said, consumers are "more vocal but not necessarily more committed."

An outlook report confirmed several previously reported food supply trends: less beef at higher prices, more pork and dairy products on the market, a leveling out of fruit and vegetable prices after dislocations caused by winter cold.

Beef referendum in July

Beef producers, from cattlemen to packers, in July will be voting in a nationwide referendum to determine if the marketing of beef should be promoted in a big-business fashion.

Called the Beef Market Development Plan, the research-and-promotional program would strive to "keep beef king" as the mainstay of America's protein diet.

The referendum and the plan promoted by the Beef Development Taskforce (BDT) was outlined Tuesday morning in the Midland Hilton before almost 40 cattlemen and those associated with the beef cattle and dairy industry in the Midland area.

Gary Condra of Fort Stockton, Agricultural Extension Service economist, explained the promotional plan through two slide presentations.

"I really don't feel like I'm going to have to enlighten you a great deal," Condra said at the onset.

The plan, to operate on a $30 million to $40 million annual budget, would promote beef sales through advertising, beef promotional plans, consumer education, research, and by exploring foreign markets.

But getting those dollars to finance "the plan" was the crux of the meeting.

Cattle owners, from 4-H Club members to the so-called cattle barons, will be voting in the July 5-15 referendum to see if they would give a "fair share" from their sales toward supporting the beef promotional plan.

That fair share would be one-third of 1 per cent from the initial sale of the animal. And as the animal changes hands along the marketing route, a similar fair share would be on the increased value of the animal.

Until the animal reached the packer, the fair share would be only paperwork, Condra said.

The packer would forward the money, say $1.20 on a steer the feeder sells to the slaughter house for $400, to the 68-member Beef Board.

Provisions for the referendum were made possible through the 1976 Beef Research and Information Act.

Cattle owners who wish to vote on the plan may register from June 6 to 17 at U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices. In Midland, the ASCS office is in Room 121 of the Federal Building.

The July 5-15 voting will be in ASCS offices across the nation.

Before it can go into operation, the plan must be approved by two-thirds of the voters. And at least 50 per cent of those who registered to vote must cast ballots, Condra said. Otherwise the plan cannot be approved.

Condra pointed out that of all the agricultural groups, the beef industry is spending the smallest percentage on promotion and consumer education.

Out-promoting the beef interests are the egg, cotton, duck, milk, prune and citrus industries, Condra said.

Emcee at the morning program, Texas State Chamber of Commerce President W. H. "Bill" Collyns, endorsed the promotion of beef sales.

"And what's good for you (cattlemen) is certainly good for the community, the county, the state and the nation," he said.

Cattlemen Clarence Scharbauer Jr. also spoke favorably of the promotional plan. He had some reservations

"This is a fine thing," he said, " . . . if the entire industry gets behind it . . . ."

Silence spurs creativity

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn. (AP) — The silence of a Benedictine monastery has given the Rev. Henry Bryan Hays the spiritual tempo he needs to create opera.

He has composed six of them in his 56 years — four at St. John's Abbey in Collegeville, and two amid the din of a world he left some two decades ago.

"To me, the most beautiful sound in the world is silence," Father Hays says. "I can create music only in silence."

His silent, cloistered world also has its penalties. Father Hays, who seldom makes contact with the professional music world, has not heard much of his music performed.

But he is luckier than most. His 1975 opera, "The Little Match Girl," was given 11 performances recently at the College of St. Benedict. Two pianos performed the orchestra part and the singers were not professionals.

But the performance was attended by Philip Brunelle, director of the Minnesota Opera Company, who expressed an admiration for the work. Father Hays says he now harbors hopes that some of his music will some day be performed by a professional opera company.

The monastery is an essential part of his creative life, Father Hays says, because the life of a monk is inward-turning. "Creation is a mystery," he says. "One finds it by going into oneself."

"Finding myself and refinding my art were synonymous."

Father Hays was born in Tennessee, the oldest child of a poor farmer. In 1939 he won a scholarship to the Chicago Music College. He later completed school after a stint in the army during World War II. As a student he wrote his first opera and in 1949 won the Gershwin Memorial Award, a B'nai B'rith competition for short orchestral compositions. His 15-minute "Pastorale and Allegro" was played in Carnegie Hall.

It has never been played since, Father Hays said, "nor would I want it to be."

With his prize money he went to Paris, where he listened to many operas and wrote his own. He returned to New York in 1950 and soon after became a scholarship student at the Tanglewood Berkshire Music Festival in Massachusetts. That was followed by a Guggenheim Fellowship for study in Italy.

In the 1950s, while teaching music at Peabody College in Nashville, Father Hays reached a watershed period in his life.

"I was trying to work on an opera, but something within me dried up. I couldn't write.

"I was a psychological mess; I'd lost my identity."

Brucellosis forum slated

COLLEGE STATION — An open forum or hearing for cattlemen and other interested individuals regarding the National Brucellosis Eradication Program will be held at Texas A&M University, May 17.

The hearing will begin at 9 a.m. at the Memorial Student Center on the A&M campus, according to Dr. John Hopkin, head of A&M's Department of Agricultural Economics and a member of the National Brucellosis Technical Commission.

"The hearing is designed to obtain the opinions and judgments of cattlemen, veterinarians and other interested parties in the national program of brucellosis eradication or any alternative proposals relating to the eradication or control of this animal disease," Hopkin said.

Wrongdoing played down

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — An official of the U.S. Office of Human Development has said there is not really much fraud in the nation's welfare programs.

Eighty per cent of all welfare goes to the aged, disabled, blind and to mothers who cannot work because they have small children, said Arabella Martinez, assistant secretary of the office of Human Development and the highest ranking ethnic minority woman apointed by President Carter.

Students, employers honored

Students in the Vocational Adjustment Cooperative Work-Study Program and their employers were honored last week at the annual employer-employe banquet.

Approximately 40 employers from Midland employ students in the program. Rach received a certificate for outstanding contribution. Juniors and seniors in the program at Midland and Lee high schools were honored with certificates for outstanding achievement.

Speaker at the banquet was Clark Straughan.

Mock auto wreck slated

ODESSA — Two Odessa College classes and one from Midland College will stage a mock automobile wreck at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Monahans.

The mock wreck will take place on the vacant lot at 3rd and Alice streets.

The two Odessa College emergency medical technology (EMT) classes are extension classes from Monahans and Balmorhea. The Midland College EMT class is from Fort Stockton.

The purpose of the exercise is to give EMT students the opptunity to practice skills they have learned in class.

Phylis Howard, EMT instructor from the Monahans class, said the mock disaster is a "major multiple trauma," which means the EMT students will have to treat injuries ranging from broken noses to broken backs to severed arteries. The students will be required to treat the "victims" and prepare them for transport to the hospital.

Mahon backed medical school

WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes April 21-27.

HOUSE

MEDICAL SCHOOL: Voted, 250 for and 162 against, to appropriate $12.5 million to keep the armed services new medical school for training military doctors open another year. President Carter had recommended deleting the money and thus terminating the controversial Bethesda, Md., facility, which is now under construction. With this vote the House agreed with the Senate that the money should be spent, thus virtually assuring continued life for the school. The vote occurred during consideration of the conference report on HR 4877, later adopted.

Rep. Robert Michel (R-Ill.), a supporter, said: "There is a shortage of physicians in the military. Without the school, and excluding a doctor draft, this trend can be expected to continue. The school will assist the military to cope with this chronic problem."

Rep. Robert Drinan (D-Mass.), an opponent, argued that there is no shortage of military physicians and that, if one occured, private medical schools could fill the need. "The Defense Department has testified against this school," he added. "If we want to go along with President Carter and the Office of Management and Budget and the Department of Defense, we will vote to defund this school."

Reps. Charles Wilson (D-2), James Collins (R-3), Ray Roberts (D-4), Bill Archer (R-7), Jack Brooks (D-9), Jake Pickle (D-10), James Wright (D-12), Jack Hightower (D-13), John Young (D-14), Kika de la Garza (D-15), Richard White (D-16), Omar Burleson (D-17), George Mahon (D-19), Henry Gonzalez (D-20) and Abraham Kazen (D-23) voted "yea"

Reps. Samuel Hall (D-1), Olin Teague (D-6), Bob Gammage (D-22) and Dale Milford (D-24) did not vote.

MILITARY PENSIONS: Rejected, 148 for and 247 against, an amendment to put military personnel under the congressional retirement system, doing away with the existing military pension system. It was proposed to HR 5970, a military procurement bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Les Aspin (D-Wis.), the sponsor, said that military pensions cost $1.2 billion in 1964 and $9.1 billion today, whereas the congressional system is much less expensive to the taxpayer.

"The congressional system is a great deal more generous than we find in private industry," he said. "It is a great deal more generous than we find in most governments. It is not, however, anywhere near as generous as the military pension scheme."

Opponents noted that the Aspin amendment had not undergone subcommittee hearings. "We have to do something about the (military) retirement system, that is a known fact," said Rep. Mendel Davis (D-S.C.). "But let us do it in a regular manner and not come in harum-scarum and adopt something when it could have been done through the subcommittee."

Collins, Mattox, Archer and Jordan voted "yea."

Hall, Wilson, Roberts, Brooks, Pickle, Poage, Hightower, Young, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Mahon, Gonzalez, Krueger, Gammage and Kazen voted "nay."

Teague, Eckhardt, Wright and Milford did not vote.

DEFENSE SPENDING: Adopted, 225 for and 184 against, an amendment to add $4.1 billion in defense spending to the congressional budget master plan for fiscal 1978. This vote —restoring money requested by President Carter but deleted by the House Budget Committee—raised to $120.1 billion the "targeted" spending level for defense in the fiscal year. Actual appropriation of the target amount will be considered later. This amendment was attached to H Con Res 195, later rejected and sent back to the Budget Committee.

ROLL CALL REPORT

One supporter of restoring the $4.1 billion, Rep. Bob Wilson (R-Calif.), said: "It will be a painful process, but we cannot afford to ever again shortchange our military preparedness as we have tended to do in the past decade."

Rep. Robert Giaimo (D-Conn.), an opponent, said: "I think that when the President asks us to tighten our belts in energy and tighten our belts in our expenses and our demands for federal goods and service, the Defense Department can do so also, and I think that they can do it without jeopardizing national security in any way."

Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks and Jordan voted "nay."

Teague and Milford did not vote.

SENATE

TAX CUT: Rejected, 40 for and 59 against, a Republican amendment to enact a permanent cut in income taxes. The proposed cut was to have been in the range of four to 14 per cent and concentrated on taxpayers earning less than $20,000 annually. This centerpiece of the GOP program for curing the economy was proposed to HR 3477, the Carter Administration's economic stimulus package, which was headed for final passage and conference with the House.

A supporter, Sen. Howard Baker (R-Tenn.), the minority leader, said: "Increased spendable income for the taxpayers equates to increased consumer confidence and willingness to recommit income to the economy. This greater degree of confidence on the part of the consumer will, in turn, inspire greater production and investment in increased production capacity necessary for non-inflationary economic growth."

An opponent, Sen. Robert Byrd (D-W.Va.), the majority leader, said: "I recognize that it is the kind of amendment that, especially on the surface, makes it difficult to vote against. But we are threatened with the specter of double-digit inflation, and I am concerned...that a permanent tax cut of this magnitude would be unnecessarily inflationary."

Sen. John Tower (R) voted "yea" and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D) voted "nay."

THE ELDERLY: Adopted, 44 for and 31 against, an amendment providing an annual tax credit of $250 to a person who keeps an elderly dependent (65 years or older) in his home. It would apply retroactively to Jan. 1, 1977.

The amendment was attached to HR 3477, the Tax Reduction and Simplification Act which was headed for final passage (see above vote).

Sen. Pete Domenici (D-N.M.), the sponsor, said his amendment would "help us to meet the growing shortage of housing for all older citizens," many of whom "too often live alone."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tex.), an opponent, argued that President Carter's economic stimulus package was the improper vehicle for such an amendment. He said a tax reform bill to be taken up later in the year is more suitable legislation for "seeing that children carry out their responsibilities to their parents..."

Tower voted "yea" and Bentsen voted "nay."

CONVENTIONS: Rejected, 45 for and 48 against, an amendment relating to tax deductions allowed U.S. taxpayers attending conventions in foreign countries in North America.

Present law says that no more than two such conventions annually can be written off by a participant as tax deductions.

The amendment sought to permit an unlimited number of deductible conventions. It said, in effect, that conventions elsewhere in North America should be treated the same for tax purposes as conventions in the U.S. are treated. The amendment was offered to HR 3477 (see Senate votes above).

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), the sponsor, said the two-convention limitation has harmed relations with host countries such as Mexico and Canada, and has damaged their economies. He called it "the height of hypocrisy" for the U.S. to limit travel abroad "at the same time we are enjoying great benefits from the same kind of travel."

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), an opponent, said that the opportunity to take two tax deductible business trips abroad in North America is ample. "As a deductible expense under the Internal Revenue Code about half of that trip is being paid by the American taxpayer. There are not many blue-collar workers or fishermen from Massachusetts or shoe workers who are getting half of their foreign trip paid for by the Internal Revenue Code."

Tower voted "yea" and Bentsen voted "nay."

Berms slated for greening

DETROIT (AP) — Unlike the biblical parable of the seed that fell on the rock, grew briefly and then perished, the seedling plants that land on the massive concrete abutments in front of the new Renaissance Center are in no such danger.

Some $300,000 will be spent to "green" the two massive 35-foot-tall "berm buildings" enclosing the boilers, pumps and air conditioning equipment that heats and cools the $337-million keystone to the revitalization of downtown Detroit.

Horizontal concrete shelves have been installed on the sloping walls of the abutments in front of the Center and filled with soil. Some 6,000 Chinese evergreen vines will be planted on the walls in the spring.

Turning over new leaf could hurt Californian

The Los Angeles Times

LIVERMORE, Calif. — Joe Mazrimas is afraid to turn over a new leaf.

He might get bitten.

Actually, it isn't really likely, but Mazrimas does have quite a collection of plants. They are all carnivotoud.

Of the approximately 500 species of flesh-eating plants in the world, Mazrimas has 250 of them.

"I have one specimen, nepenthes dicksoniana, that could eat a rat," he explained. "It has liquid inside and in its natural state the roden would stick his head inside to get a drink. He would lose his balance and slide to the bottom, where he would be trapped.

Many of his specimens, however, do get to eat. He bent over in his backyard to fetch a sow bug and demonstrate one of the Venus's-flytraps.

Along the base of the Venus's-flytrap were several lobes just sitting there like open books. The insect was placed into one and made a fatal mistake. He moved.

"Nature has equipped this plant so that it won't operate accidentally," Mazrimas said. "The leaf has very sensitive hairs, but it takes two hits to trigger it."

The bug began squirming, first touching one hair, then a second. Immediately the trap slammed shut, restraining the insect within stiff bristles that very much resembles prison bars.

"The lobes will begin pressing together tightly and within an hour the bug will be dead," Mazrimas went on. "The plant will take 7 to 10 days to digest its meal, after which the leaf will open again, the wind will blow away the dried husk of the insect, and the trap will be ready for its next victim."

Each mechanism is good for only two or three trappings, so the plant prefers fat insects, thank you.

Although the Venus's-flytrap is native to North Carolina, Mazrimas has in his collection carnivorous samples from around the world. One from South Africa, drosera ragiae, grows to a height of about three feet. He said the only two other collectors in the United States have the species.

The 39-year-old Mazrimas, a biochemist with the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, keeps track of these things through the Carnivorous Plant Newsletter which he coedits and which California State University, Fullerton, publishes. There are, he said, about 300 collectors of carnivorous plants in the nation.

The biochemist keeps his samples in two greenhouses in his yard, one heated and one unheated. Carnivorous plants are found from the Arctic to the equator, and when he receives his cuttings or seeds by mail he has a home environment waiting for them.

He has gotten some specimens while hiking with his family along bogs in the Crescent City area.

Prisoner escapes via river swim

EAGLE PASS, Tex. (AP) — An American escaped from Mexican authorities Tuesday and with handcuffs on his wrists and Mexican police firing at him, dog-paddled his way across the Rio Grande and into the arms of the U.S. Border Patrol.

David Driscoll, a 28-year-old diabetic from Albuquerque, N.M., escaped while being taken to a hospital from the Mexican prison at Piedras Negras. He swam about 150 yards in water 10 feet deep.

Piedras Negras, on the banks of the river just across from this Texas city, is the site of the prison from which 13 U.S. citizens were freed last March 12, 1976 during an armed raid. All made their way across the river to Eagle Pass and turned themselves to U.S. officials.

"He was born again today," said Maverick County Sheriff Tom Bowles after questioninig Driscoll, who said he had escaped while being taken the a hospital for a diabetic examination.

Driscoll, who said he had spent a little more than 13 months in prison, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from the sheriff's office that he had been arrested in Merida, Yucatan, in southern Mexico on March 23, 1976.

"They first accused me of engineering the breakout," Driscoll said. "I think it was just because I knew one of the men who escaped. He had gone to law school with me in New Mexico."

Two Dallas men later admitted that they had engineered the raid and had been paid by the father of one of the released prisoners. The men were charged with taking an illegal weapon across the border.

Piedras Negras Police Chief Alvaro Duran Huerta said Driscoll was taken along with another prisoner to a hospital early in the morning in a van. When the guards opened the door, he said, Driscoll confronted them with a pistol. The Mexican officer said only one of the two guards was armed. He said Driscoll ran about half a mile to the river and jumped in. By then, he added, other officer had joined the chase and fired at least four shots at Driscoll.

Driscoll said: "I was praying all the time I was swimming. I made it across and went into some weeds and waited about ten minutes. Then I saw this border patrolman approach. He saw me and told me to keep my hands in the air. I told him I was a U.S. citizen. I was so glad to see those blue eyes."

LIONS LEE ROY SHANNON and Tom Nipp, from left, measure up the coffee carefully in a practice run for the Westside Lions Club's "Salad Special" to be held Saturday in the Dellwood Plaza Mall. Hundreds of salads will be available. Serving hours are from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

CIA project involved spying on columnist

By TIMOTHY S. ROBINSON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Four Central Intelligence Agency operatives moved secretly to tables in the expensive Montpelier Room of the Madison Hotel here around noon on March 17, 1972, as part of what the CIA then described as an "extremely sensitive" operation called "Project Mudhen."

The agents were there to watch their boss, CIA director Richard Helms, eat lunch with a man known in the project under the code name of "Brandy." Brandy was nationally syndicated columnist Jack Andreson, who was being spied on by the CIA for three-months in an unsuccesful attempt to determine the sources of his news stories.

According to the highly classified report the agents filed on the lunch:

" ... (T)hey lunched and engaged in a rather animated conversation. Brandy and the director departed the restaurant at 13.38 hours (1:38 p.m.) Brandy returned, on foot, to his office."

Additional agents posted outside the hotel during the lunch said they found "no indication of possible hostile countersurveillance. Neither patrons nor that establishment's staff exhibited any particular interest towards the director or Brandy."

The details of the syping on the luncheon meeting are included in files that have been turned over to Anderson under a Freedom of Information request by the columnist. Helms was aware of the spying on the lunch and had approved it beforehand to make certain that Anderson wasn't bugging him.

The CIA files compiled on Anderson are more than four inches high and include vast amounts of information on the backgrounds and movements of Anderson and other members of his reporting staff.

Murder conviction upheld by state appeals court

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The capital murder conviction of James Paul Burns and death sentence assessed in the case by an Ector County jury was upheld Tuesday by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Burns' conviction stems from the Aug. 3, 1973, beating death of G.W. McDonald who was picked up by Burns and two other men while leaving an Odessa drive-in, beaten, robbed and left in a caliche pit.

Burns had argued in his appeal that his indictment was defective, that several prospective jurors were excused on improper grounds, that the death penalty is unconsitutional and that the trial court failed to let a favorable witness testify.

The appeals court overruled all points except one involving the trial court's refusal to grant Burns' request to further examine two potential jurors.

Mexican drug shutdown said 'not working out'

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Prosecution of major drug dealers in northern Mexico using information gathered in the United States is not working out, U.S. drug officials say.

After several convictions early in the program started two years ago, it has stalled, due partly to a large turnover among prosecutors south of the border, officials said.

"The Mexicans got rid of a bunch of prosecutors who knew how to do these things and wanted to do them," said a Tucson agent for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA).

The program, called Janus, allowed U.S. narcotics agencies to provide information about major drug smugglers operating in Mexico. Although the Americans could not prosecute them, the information could be used to prosecute south of the border, officials said.

They said extradition of Mexican citizens wanted in the United States on drug charges is nearly impossible and most of the big drug dealers do not cross the border. Mexican law allows Mexican citizens to be prosecuted there for crimes committed elsewhere.

Early in the Janus program, there were several successful prosecutions, U.S. officials said. Through last October, 62 cases were started against 130 defendants. Since then, there have been three, officials said.

Most of the early success was at the hands of Jorge Omar Villalobos, a federal prosecutor in Nogales, Son., on the border, DEA officials said.

But last year, Villalobos was arrested on charges of aiding drug traffickers. He was replaced as prosecutor but the charges were dropped later and he accused others of setting him up.

Jungle barrier blocks road, feared hoof-and-mouth disease

By LEONARD GREENWOOD
The Los Angeles Times

SANTA FE, Panama — The Pan American Highway, an unpaved, all-weather road in good condition, continues 25 miles southeast of here. It then becomes a winding track of dust and mud through a tunnel of tropical foliage and ends abruptly in a wall of jungle.

The wall stretches from the Pacific to the Atlantic 75 miles thick, dense, dark and forbidding. So completely does it block ground travel between North and South America that people here in Darien province call it "El Tampon del Darien" — the plug of Darien.

The plug of Darien is the only natural obstacle to the completion of a dream — a highway from Alaska to the tip of South America. The highway would open up the province, which covers a fourth of Panama, and relieve the hunger for land and ease enormous political, social and economic pressures.

But the link may never be completed. For the plug is the major roadblock stopping the spread of a multibillion-dollar disaster for the cattle industries of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama.

Pull that plug, experts say, and hoof-and-mouth disease — aftosa — will sweep north. It now contaminates Colombian livestock up to the southern edge of the forest.

In the United States, federal highway funds needed for construction have been blocked by court action, and in Panama the government still is undecided about the link.

An aftosa outbreak could cost the United States up to $14 billion in the first year. Ted Ray, an American veterinarian, said in an interview. Ray, who has worked in Panama for five years, said a study by the University of Minnesota indicates direct losses could be as much as $3.7 billion. Indirectly, aftosa in the United States could cost $10 billion more, including development of vaccine. The cost in succeeding years would depend on how long it would take to control the disease.

Ray, who also is coordinator of the U.S.-Panamanian Commission for the Prevention of Aftosa, and Lt. Col. Ruben Dario Paredes, Panama's minister of agricultural development, were in Santa Fe recently to discuss aftosa with farmers.

"We are consulting with the governments of the United States, Canada, Mexico and Central America to see if we can find a way of opening the road and still stop aftosa coming through," Paredes said.

"If we can't, I'm going to recommend to Gen. Omar Torrijos (Panama's head of government) that we stop the highway."

Hoof-and-mouth disease, one of the worst threats to cattle, pigs, sheep and goats, spreads with fearful speed. It can be carried easily on clothing or vehicle tires, explaining why completion of a road link with Colombia is so controversial.

Aftosa begins with the animal running a high fever, then open sores break out in the mouth, between split hoofs and on the teats of cows. Animals lose weight and milk yields drop dramatically. Cows in calf often abort. Many animals survive but are badly weakened.

Aftosa afflicts Africa, Asia, South America and parts of Europe. U.S. cattle have been free of the disease since 1929. Canada and Mexico conquered it in the 1950s.

"There are vaccines but they are not very effective," Ray said. "There are seven basic types of aftosa, but attempts to produce and use a vaccine seem to have succeeded mainly in proliferating strains. Today there are 72 known strains. So there is no effective protection except slaughter, isolation and natural barriers.

"This jungle has protected the United States for over 40 years. After we and other countries to the north wiped out aftosa, this jungle helped us to stop it coming back in from South America. But the barrier has been eaten into by colonization. It used to be 120 miles deep. Now it is 75."

The U.S.-Panamanian Commission is working to create permanent barriers in Darien. If the road goes through, the commission plans controls, with inspection of vehicles.

Two permanent belts, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, would be developed. The first, adjacent to Colombia and 25 miles wide, would be a national park and forest reserve. The Indians and few settlers already there would be allowed to stay.

High Potency Vitamin E

Sexual Potency Quickly Improves With New 'E-Pill'

NEW YORK, N.Y. (Special)— An amazing new "super-charged" vitamin E-Pill has recently been developed that reportedly "quickly increases and rejuvenates sexual drives and potency for both men and women of all ages. It also makes them feel healthier and more youthful". It is now available to the American public.

The new high potency E-Pill not only seems to increase sexual ability of both sexes but also "actually perks up sexual interest and stimulates a persons desires," according to a spokesman for the manufacturer.

ALSO IMPROVES GENERAL HEALTH

This new, easy-to-take E-Pill contains newly formulated, highly concentrated vitamin E. It tends to quickly build up and strengthen the natural physiological processes of the body that are believed to be basically responsible for its potency, youthfulness, health and long life.

HELPS 4 OUT OF 5 PEOPLE

Indications are that the new E-Pill gives quick and effective results to as high as 4 out of 5 people (80%) who have used it. Some people report no great change but feel the high potency of vitamin E in the pill does quickly make them feel better from a general health standpoint.

Other reports also show it tends to "lessen daily tension and give a more relaxed, happier outlook on life."

NOW AVAILABLE

The use of these high potency (one-a-day) E-Pills is perfectly safe and are now available without prescription from the manufacturer by mail order only. To get your supply, send $6.95 for a 2 week supply, (or $10.95 for a 30 day supply, or $17.95 for a 60 day supply) cash, check or M.O. to: The Mail Bag, P.O. Food processors plan to fight saccharin ban

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A group of food processors has chosen the saccharin ban dispute as the battleground in their effort to discredit the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), giving them the edge in future disputes over other, more financially important, food additives.

"This is the best issue that we'll ever have to take the FDA to task on," said William Miller, vice president of Royal Crown Cola Co. and chairman of the Calorie Control Council, the lobbying arm of a group of food manufacturers that either make or use artificial flavors and colors.

"If we don't do it now, we never will," he added. "There are 1,800 flavors we use in foods, and the FDA will try to attack each and every one ...Industry cannot live with an FDA that cannot accept science and creates a science of their own."

Deputy FDA Commissioner Sherwin Gardner conceded that the saccharin dispute could be the big play in a long ballgame. He added, "If they are trying to discredit us scientifically using the saccharin case, they've picked the wrong vehicle to do it with."

The processors' idea is to take advantage of public attention to the ban and create a groundswell of opinion against the FDA.

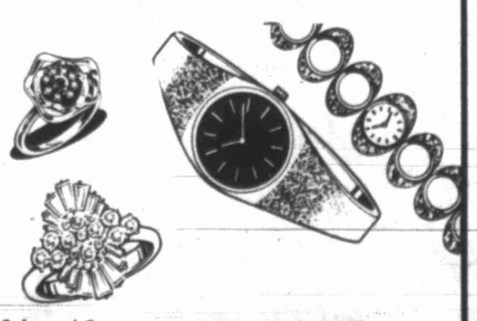

Miller talked bitterly of the days when the industry lost battles with the FDA over cyclamates, Red dye No. 2 and brominated oil (a wood resin used to stabilize carbonated beverages). All were suspected carcinogens. "We didn't have the public behind us like we do now," he said.

The council has a multimillion-dollar war chest and has spent an estimated $2.5 million so far. Since the FDA announced the proposed ban on March 9, the council has:

—Placed about 32 two-page advertisements in major newspapers, questioning the validity of the scientific tests on which the ban was based and attacking the FDA. Such ads can cost as much as $20,000 apiece.

—Retained the public relations firm of Hill & Knowlton, Inc., to present the council's side of the issue.

Union thinking now about recruiting the military

By MIKE CAUSEY
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Members of the government's largest employe union have a double-or-nothing decision to make this summer. The course they take could make them the largest, most influential labor organization in the world, or it could bring a host of legal, administrative and financial hassles that could cripple the union.

The issue for the American Federation of Government Employees is organizing the military. AFGE delegates last year voted to amend the union constitution to permit uniformed military personnel to join.

Earlier this year a task force proposed that the question be put directly to the 270,000-plus white-collar and blue-collar civilians who now make up the AFL-CIO union.

If AFGE locals vote to organize the military, and if large numbers of service personnel take out union cards, membership could easily double or triple. AFGE would have clout in Congress and with the White House that would make it the nation's union powerhouse.

Being able to speak for people in both the civilian and military arm of government would give AFGE leaders new respect with congressional liberals who already tend to go along with improved pay and benefit proposals for government workers. More importantly, it could open doors with conservatives who openly hate bureaucrats, but who are willing to do handstands for the Pentagon anytime military appropriations or benefits are considered.

Organizing the military — the last big bloc of virgin territority in this country for labor unions — could, if successful, give AFGE a big financial shot in the arm. AFGE, like other government groups, is hard-pressed because membership dropped, then stabilized, in recent years.

Also the union's dues are only a fraction of dues paid by members in the private sector yet demands for legal services, contract negotiations and servicing members grievances are complex, and growing.

The negative side of organizing the military is equally awesome, and sobering. It could cost the AFGE a bundle to organize soldiers, sailors and Marines.

Both the White House and the Pentagon are opposed to unions in the military, and there has not been what could be called a broad-based groundswell of interest in unions in the military.

Also, many AFGE members — and leaders — fear that the union could lose sight of its principle objective — protecting and improving the lot of civilian government workers — in its bid to sign up uniformed members.

There is also the distinct possibility that the union would be flooded with membership applications from military personnel whose demands for service and representation would cost far more than their dues dollars would be worth.

Finally, there is the unknown factor of what an attempt to organize the military would do for the union's image both with the American public and with Congress.

AFGE leaders have taken a relatively middle-of-the-road position. They are leaving the decision up to members who will be voting this summer and fall on the military organization question. Meantime, the union has done an excellent job of giving in-depth pro and con arguments to members.

The for-and-against debate is in the current issue of the AFGE Standard — the tabloid newspaper that goes to all members. It will probably become must reading as well for Congress, top military personnel and ordinary citizens who depend on — and finance -- both the civilian and military establishments.

If AFGE members decide to go after the military membership potential, the peacetime military will never be the same. It may be better, or worse, for unionization. But it will never be the same. Nor will the AFGE.

Carter aide wastes not, works much

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — A.D. Frazier Jr., walking along a hallway in the new Executive Office Building near the White House, stooped without breaking stride and scooped up a rubber band on the floor.

Later, walking along the street, he spied a pencil in the dirt at the base of a tree, picked it up and stuck it in his pocket.

So when he isn't picking up discarded rubber bands or pencils, he and his staff of 20 are poking around the 18 separate agencies that operate under the Executive Office of the President.

They range from the giant Office of Management and Budget to the relatively obscure Office of Telecommunications Policy.

Frazier says he's "trying to streamline the operation. Efficiency and delivery of service to Mr. Carter is the primary goal."

Twelve of the 18 executive office units were created since Richard M. Nixon became president in 1969. By this fall, the executive office will have 1,700 employes and an annual budget of some $80 million.

Carter made government reorganization a key theme in his campaign. When he was given authority last month to revamp the federal bureaucracy, he said his first target would be the White House and executive office buildings.

"He wants to get this one done in a fairly crisp manner to indicate he's serious about reorganization in the rest of the government," Frazier said.

That's where Frazier comes in.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina Law School, he spent the past seven years as an Atlanta banker.

"I'm not a student of government policy making," he said. "My background is pragmatic."

An associate in Frazier's reorganization task force describes him as "absolutely" methodical and "hard pushing."

Frazier has little time to complete his duties. He hopes to present several options to Carter on reorganizing the executive office by the end of the month. Then, he says, he'll go back to banking in Atlanta.

He has talked with officials of the various executive branch units about what they do and what changes might be made. Not surprisingly, no one has suggested that his own agency be discarded.

A leading authority on the presidency, Harvard professor Richard Neustadt, spent several days in Washington giving Frazier and his team a history of the office and changes made in it.

Chase discusses special

By JAMES BROWN
The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — Chevy Chase, awake on a smog-scented morning, was in the throes of post-production. He had spent the previous night in his small office — editing and scrutinizing a rough cut of "The Chevy Chase Show," his first network comedy special which will air Thursday night on NBC.

He had taken his time with this show, polishing the material with a quartet of comedy writers. The results seemed to please him. Even so, he projected an element of uncertainty about the whole affair.

"It's a major responsibility," he said, fighting off the morning with a cup of hot chocolate. "You talk about what you'd do with an hour of prime time television and now, here it is, they've given me an hour. I'm out there the entire show, my fingers are in every pot. It's like putting your body on the line."

Chevy Chase, of course, was until recently the pivotal wheel on NBC's Saturday Night — a phenomenon within a phenomenon — who stood out in a brilliant ensemble (the Not-Ready-for-Prime- Time-Players) with an identity of his own.

Chase combined satire and slapstick with the ability to retain the same character in any situation — from broad pratfalls to smirking newscasters to his inimitable portrait of President Ford, bouncing his head on podiums as though it were the most natural thing in the world. Chevy Chase was never out of synch with the personality he had established from the beginning.

It seemed inevitable that he would be the first of the Saturday Night ensemble to leave. When he did so last fall, armed with Emmy Awards for both writing and performing, there were some who were expecting him to provide an immediate windfall of speicals, guest spots and talk show appearances — the television circuit of mass exposure.

Chase, instead, chose to keep a low profile — refusing to challenge a medium that devours its young.

"The idea all along was to do short moments in places with tremendous exposure," Chase said. "So instead of going out and hitting the circuit, you'd see me on the Oscar show or the Inaugural Gala. It kept me in the public eye, but I was able to hold something back. It wasn't like going directly from Saturday Night to, say, a role on Barney Miller."

Chase said that he never considered the possibility of his career losing momentum. "When I left Saturday Night I was burned out and exhausted," he said. "And the fact is, I never like to be involved in any one thing for over a year. I couldn't do more than one of these (specials) a year. And never a series. Never at any time..."

"The Chevy Chase Show" is the first of three specials he'll provide for NBC in as many years. The guest list is, to say the least, unique.

Traveling through the special at one time or another are such diverse mediaphiles as Jack LaLanne, Dr. Joyce Brothers, the amazing Shapiro Sisters, Moore's Mongrel Review, boxers Ken Norton, Duane Bobick and Jimmy Ellis, golfer Dave Stockton...and, almost like a character in the wrong play, Tim Conway.

There will be no continuing theme to the show — other than what Chase calls "a reflection of my own perspective."

"The show will be episodic," Chase said, "jabbing at and about television, a parody and satire of familiar reference points."

Chase offered as an example, the work of the late Ernie Kovacs. "There were no themes in Kovacs' work," he said. "He simply hit you with ideas as they came to him."

Chase had acknowledged Kovacs as a source of inspiration at last year's Emmy Awards. "He was the first memorable thing I remember about television," Chase said. "I was selective about what I watched and Kovacs stood out because he broke with traditions, he didn't pay homage to the cliche. There was something pure about his humor — a visual element, like the pratfall — things that could make a baby laugh. It was all reacting to the unexpected."

Chase still has mixed feelings about his decision to leave Saturday Night. "These are my best friends," he said. "I have tremendous regrets emotionally but not intellectually. It became too much to concentrate on writing and to also deal with the Chevy Chase aspect."

Chase had some thoughts on why he emerged as Saturday Night's center of attention. "I was better," he said, and then smiled. "When people ask me that question I tell them that, and then go on to say I was only kidding.

"But maybe I was better. I mean, Dan Ackroyd is a giant. There's Belushi, the girls...there isn't a one of them who isn't a better actor than I am. But a kind of relationship developed, more than the craft or acting skills, a personality that came across and I probably played it to the hilt.

"I had the name, I had the feature spot every week and, of course, the press made it an issue."

No easy answer to bidding problem

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

There is no easy answer to certain bidding problems. Sometimes you have nine cold tricks at notrump, but neither partner can be sure that all suits are stopped.

Opening lead — ♠ K

South cannot bid three notrump for fear of the spades. His bid of three hearts is a step in the right direction, but North bids three spades, South can bid three notrump, but that can be defeated by a spade.

North must be declarer at three notrump, for then a spade lead is no threat. North can surely win six diamonds, two hearts and a club regardless of the opening lead.

Under the circumstances, five diamonds is a reasonable contract. Still , south would go down if West opened a spade.

South takes the ace of clubs, leads a trump to dummy, ruffs a club and then leads a low heart.

DEEP FINESSE

When West plays low, declarer finesse with dummy's nine of hearts. The idea is to duck a heart to East, who cannot attack spades. If declarer lost a heart to West, a spade return would defeat the contract.

Fortunately, the hearts break well. Declarer takes the ace and king of hearts, and then cashes the last heart to discard a spade from dummy. If the hearts failed to break, South could lead a spade toward dummy in the hope of getting a trick with the king.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one hear, and the next player passes. You hold: S- 843; H-K1054; D- AKJ72; C-K. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three diamonds. Slam is very likely if partner has a reasonable heart suit with the king or ace of spades on the side. The immediate jump in a new suit alerts partner that you are considering a slam.

Piano study slated

AUSTIN — Twenty talented high school students from throughout the nation will be accepted for a special piano performance workshop to be held on the campus of The University of Texas.

The July 11-21 workshop is sponsored by the UT music department.

During the workshop, each student will be able to concentrate intensively on performance under the guidance of two members of the music department piano faculty, Prof. William Race and Associate Prof. Nancy B. Garrett. Each student will receive a minimum of three hours' individual instruction. Daily master class sessions and special recitals by faculty members and visiting pianists also are planned. Applicants for the workshop will be accepted by personal auditions at UT or elsewhere by special arrangement, or by tape recordings. Tapes must be submitted to the UT music department no later than June 20. A grant from Dr. and Mrs. Irl Allison Sr. will provide full tuition scholarships to each of the 20 students accepted for the workshop. Participants will bear costs of room and board during the 10-day session. Full information on the performance workshop is obtainable from Dr. William Race of the UT music department, Austin 78712.

Roads bringing 'civilization' to Amazon jungle

By ALEX SHOUMATOFF
Special to The Washington Post-Outlook

BRASILIA — Five years ago the byword in Brasilia was "national integration," and a system of highways running up and down and around the Amazon basin, linking places previously accessible only by river or air, was begun. Today the road from Manaus to Boa Vista is open; you can drive from Cuiaba to Santarem; and the Perimetral Norte, along the northern rim of the basin, has gotten as far as the country of the Yanomami, Amazonia's largest and most primitive indigenous group. The Transamazonia has been halted at Humanaita where a road crew hit emeralds.

But the hopes for settlement along the Transamazonia have not materialized. Only one-tenth of the people expected to migrate from the poverty-ridden Northeast have shown up, and many are involved in disputes over the ownership of land hitherto considered worthless. Last August an American farmer and his sons were gunned down by squatters on his particularly fertile spread near Maraba.

At the moment, the road building and the cry for integration have died down; the government is struggling with an inflation rate of 50 per cent; work will resume "next year." As far as the Yanomami — and the people inoculating them and preparing them psychologically to cope with the civilization at their doorstep — are concerned, the longer the better.

When the roads are completed, the Amazon will be a smaller place. But for the people living like pioneers in the back-country, a week or two by canoe from the nearest store, life will remain the same. Stinking and oozing with life, Amazonia is a brutal environment for humans, and this is why it remains the last vast wooded wilderness on earth.

But there is little question that this civilization can in time subdue it. Unlike earlier efforts which melted into the jungle without a trace, this one seems to be here to stay. No place on earth, however wild and forbidding, is strong enough to withstand it.

The peixe-boi, or manatee, is one of the many amazing creatures living in the Amazon. An aquatic relative of the elephant, it grows to be several tons and propels itself along with graceful flicks of its tail fin. Its blimp-like shape and the other details of its anatomy make it perfectly adapted to munching placidly on grasses, hyacinths and other plants in the Amazon system. The peixe-boi lives in the water of lowland Amazonia; it cannot climb the cataracts which most tributaries have as they break down from the highlands.

Peixe-bois are traditionally hunted by mariscadores, the subsistence Amazonian fishermen who live along the tributaries of the tributaries. The mariscadores harpoon the animals at night.

But the mariscadores complain that, while they used to bring in five peixe-bois in a night, they are lucky now to find one in a week. No one knows how many of the animals are left; one scientist ventured "a ballpark estimate of 10,000" for all of Amazonia.

All over Amazonia the animals are being wasted at a fast rate. Millions of brilliant red cardinal fish are netted yearly at the mouths of the creeks that empty into the Rio Negro; they are destined for American aquariums, but only 10 per cent of them are alive when they reach Manaus, a city on the left bank of Rio Negro. In the high jungles of Peru, where there are more species of butterflies than anywhere else in the world, many of the local people live by guiding foreign collectors and selling the insects to people who make pictures and trays with their wings. In the Andes a Quechua Indian is paid a few dollars for a poached vicuna hide worth several thousand in Europe. Everywhere monkeys are sought for food and sale to zoos, medical laboratories and pet shops. The only species that has been overlooked so far is the pygmy marmoset of western Amazonia, which is so small you can hold it in the palm of your hand.

The most effective conservationists in the Amazon are the Indians. They are the region's largest landholders, although land granted them "in perpetuity" has repeatedly been sold out from under them. The forests on Indian land are invariably intact and their animal populations thriving; an Indian will never kill a young creature or an expectant animal mother, or overhunt a particular species, or take more than he needs.

Anyone who has spent time with an Amazonian tribe cannot avoid being struck by the beauty, skillfulness and freedom of their existence. As a mature adaptation to the rain forest, their culture offers unique insights into the whole ecosystem. Much of what the rural white Amazonian does to survive — his cultivation and processing of manioc, his harvesting of Brazil and palm nuts, his use of the dugout canoe and timbo, the fish-stupefying vine — was learned from the Indians.

One wonders who would want to change people who are basically content — riddled with disease but content — and force them to become part of a restless, modern society. But this has been the stated aim of the Brazilian government. "We are going to create a policy of integrating the Indian population into Brazilian national society as rapidly as possible," Rangell Reiss, minister of the interior, said in 1974. "We think that the ideals of preserving the Indian population within its own habitat are very beautiful ideas, but unrealistic."

What happens to Indians who are thrust directly from the Stone Age into the 20th Century is one of the great tragedies of Amazonia. "Amazonia," Claudio Villas-Boas, one of Brazil's leading Indian experts, has said, "is full of them — witless, detribalized remnants of a once vital people, passive morons of civilization waiting for decisions to be made in their behalf."

"There is no such thing as an integrated Indian," the FUNAI director, Gen. Ismarth Afaujo, remarked recently. "There are Indians who are in permanent contact with society, but that does not mean that they are integrated."

Doctors file suit on TV violence

By GENE BLAKE
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — More than 22,000 California doctors — the vast majority of all those practicing in the state — have gone to court with the novel medical diagnosis that television violence is a hazard to health.

They have done so through their California Medical Assn., which has filed a friend-of-the-court brief in a case that may become a legal landmark in the raging controversy over the effects of violent programs.

"It is in the interests of the health of all Americans, especially our children," says the CMA brief, "to hold broadcasters civilly accountable for acts which led to foreseeable harm."

The contention that violence portrayed on television causes a viewer to behave similarly is hotly disputed. But California's medical profession believes it has chosen an ideal case for taking such a stand.

The case arose Sept. 13, 1974, in San Francisco. A 9-year-old girl was attacked by four adolescents (three girls and a boy) who raped her with a bottle.

Only three days before, the young attackers admitted to police, they had seen the made-for-television movie, "Born Innocent." They were prepared to testify in court that they were influenced by what they saw.

The film was aired by the NBC network and station KRON-Tv in San Francisco at 8 p.m. on a Tuesday. In the opening minutes, viewers saw a violent and bizarre scene unfold:

A 15-year-old girl was portrayed being attacked in the shower room of a mental hospital by four other girls. Although shown naked only from the waist up, the victim clearly was being raped with the handle of a plumbing device.

On behalf of the real-life 9-year-old victim, suit for $11 million damages was brought against NBC and Chronicle Publishing Co., owner of the local television station. It alleged negligence and intentional wrongful conduct in presenting a program that eventually led to the physical and mental harm inflicted on the girl.

But San Francisco Superior Court Judge John A. Ertola, after viewing the film and hearing arguments, threw the case out of court. He ruled that the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which guarantees freedom of expression, gives broadcasters an absolute immunity from civil liability for personal injuries arising out of their programming.

That ruling is now before the state Court of Appeal in San Francisco.

The CMA brief, prepared by attorney Charles F. Bond II, is of particular interest because of the medical viewpoint it brings to bear on the issue.

Bond noted that "based on the overwhelming scientific and medical evidence," the American Medical Assn. in December declared television violence to be "an environmental health risk."

Acting on a resolution introduced by the California delegation, the AMA asked doctors, their families and their patients to actively oppose programs containing violence, as well as products and services of the sponsors of such programs.

Coyotes drive up lamb prices

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers are paying at least a penny a pound more for lamb because Western coyotes have a taste for the young animals, the Agriculture Department reports.

A study shows that in 1974 consumers paid $10 million more for lamb at retail stores than they would have if coyotes had not killed so many of the young animals. Even so, the loss to farmers and ranchers was much greater, $27 million.

The financial losses were described in the USDA's latest study of sheep and lamb losses to predators. It was initiated several years ago to find out how much coyotes were to blame.

In 1974, the report said, about 785 million pounds of live lambs were produced. If coyotes had not eaten an estimated 94 million pounds of them, lamb production would have been 879 million pounds.

Thus, the department's Economic Research Service said, retail lamb prices were driven up to the extent that it cost consumers $10 million more than if coyotes had preferred something else.

"This is a rough estimate, but it indicates that consumers are affected economically by predation, although the impact is substantially less than it is on sheepmen," the report said.

The survey found that in 1974 some 78,200 lambs — 8.1 per cent of the total born that year — were killed by coyotes. Other predators, including dogs, foxes and eagles, killed another 297,000 lambs, 3.3 per cent of those born.

Pregnancy test almost perfect

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Doctors here say they have evaluated a new pregnancy test and found it to be nearly perfect.

The test was 99.5 per cent accurate in 544 cases evaluated over an 11-month period at Deaconess Hospital here.

Dr. Jack Lippes, chairman of obstetrics at the hospital, said the new blood test can confirm pregnancy in a woman as early as one day after menstruation was to have begun. The test also can indicate at that early date if the pregnancys abnormal, he said.

The most accurate test now used is 98 per cent accurate, said Lippes, who is best-known for his invention of the Lippes Loop birth control device.

Like other pregnancy tests, the new one is based on the presence of a hormone called human Chorionic Gonadotrophin. The hormone is produced by the placenta beginning early in pregnancy.

Guilty verdicts reversed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Telephone harassment convictions of a collection company and its employe were reversed Tuesday because the prosecution charged under the wrong statute.

Collection Consultants Inc. of Harris (Houston) County was fined $1,000, and its employe, Stella Thornton, "alias Sadie Vance," was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $150. The trial court probated the jail term for 180 days.

Ervin O. Grice testified he received several calls at work from a Sadie Vance, representing Collection Consultants, about an alleged bill he owed Shamrock Oil Co. He said he told her he did not owe the amount claimed and would prove it in court.

She called him six times one day, four calls three days later, and six calls the next day. He also received calls from Gene Thomas of that firm during this period, he said.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals said the defendants had been charged under a general penal statute when a specific law, carrying a lesser penalty, applied directly to the facts in this case. Because the sentences exceeded those authorized by the specific statute, the high court reversed the case and sent it back with instructions that the proper statute be used if the matter is retried.

Take-home pay may increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — You may get to take home more of your pay check after June 1 if the House and Senate accept a compromise economic stimulus bill containing tax breaks for most workers.

House and Senate conferees, reconciling the two chambers' separate versions under pressure from the Carter administration and a variety of special interests, agreed Tuesday night on a bill providing breaks for most taxpayers, especially those of modest income who do not itemize their deductions.

If the full House and Senate agree next week, as expected, the withholding bite from paychecks will be adjusted next month.

The biggest single break for individuals is a new standard deduction estimated to save an average of $121 a year for about 47 million couples and individuals, or about $2.30 a week. It would, however, cost an average of $54 more in taxes for an estimated 1.7 million single persons earning more than $13,750 a year.

This provision does not help those who itemize their mortgage interest, charitable contributions, local taxes and other deductions. However, by continuing temporary tax reductions voted last year but due to expire at the end of 1977, the bill does something for nearly everybody.

The new standard deductions would be $2,200 for single persons and $3,200 for a married couple filing jointly. The present deductions range from $1,700 to $2,400 for a single person and $2,100 to $2,800 for a couple.

The bill is a much altered version of the proposals Carter sent Congress to help boost the economy. The $50 rebates that Carter requested and then turned his back on have been eliminated.

Other provisions, including a tax credit to encourage businesses to hire more workers, do not fit Carter's revised specifications. The guessing was, nevertheless, that Carter will approve it.

Overall, the tax reductions were estimated to amount to $2.8 billion this year, $17.7 billion next year and $13.7 billion in 1979, including the extension of existing tax reductions.

When he dropped the $50 payment plan, Carter asked Congress also to eliminate accompanying business breaks. The conference went along part way. It cut out an increase from 10 per cent to 12 per cent in the investment tax credit by which businesses recover some of their spending on equipment.

But the bill retains a jobs credit intended to encourage businesses to hire more workers.

In general, businesses increasing their work force by more than 2 per cent would receive a credit up to $2,100 for each additional worker hired, with a maximum $100,000 credit for any one firm. An additional credit up to $420 would be provided for each additional handicapped person employed.

A bonus in the bill is a provision intended to greatly simplify the filling out of tax returns by eliminating a number of computations.

House plans to reduce general revenue spending

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A liberal-conservative House coalition today planned a two per cent cut in general revenue spending — except salaries — contained in the $15.7 billion general appropriation bill.

"I think they have the votes," said Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, one of the sponsors of the proposed "meat ax amendment," said it would cut the budget bill by $118 million over the next two years.

"It's arbitrary as hell, but it's something the agencies can live with," Uher said.

Added to reductions already made in the seven days of appropriations debate, the amendment would chop the bill by nearly $400 million.

Presnal said he would not oppose the cut.

Speaker Bill Clayton said he planned to work the House late tonight in an attempt to finish work on the measure, send it on to the Senate and turn to other matters.

The House continued to consider amendments to the bill approved by Presnal's committee.

Representatives rejected an attempt by Rep. Joe Hubenak, D-Rosenberg, to add more than $400,000 to provide additional county entomologists to instruct farmers on the proper use of pesticides.

He said the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency says farmers who apply pesticides must be certified as knowing how to apply them properly.

"The crisis is in education. The crisis is not in the agricultural experiment business. Let's forget about this logrolling. Let's avoid a special session. Let's stop being politicians and be responsible statesmen for a change," objected Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline.

Rep. John Hoestenbach, D-Odessa, pushed through an amendment Tuesday that cuts from $63,000 to $54,000 the salary of E. D. Walker, deputy chancellor of the University of Texas System.

The salary currently is set by UT regents and comes out of a lump sum titled "all other general administrative salaries."

"He's almost up to what the governor's making," Hoestenbach said. Gov. Dolph Briscoe makes $66,800.

Two persons indicted for helping McManus

HOUSTON (AP) — Two person have been indicted on charges of helping capital murder defendant Vernon McManus flee from prosecution.

A Harris County grand jury indicted Betty Jean Plaskett, 46, and Lester Beckworth, 43, both of Baytown, Tuesday on charges of aiding McManus in jumping his $50,000 bond on charges of slaying a Baytown couple.

Mrs. Plaskett and Beckworth were arrested Sunday.

McManus, charged in the last July slaying of Paul and Mary Cantrell in their Baytown home, disappeared last week one day before his trial was to begin. He was arrested last Saturday in Jacksonvillle Beach, Fla. He waived extradition and was returned here where he remains jailed without bond.

State District Court Judge has rescheduled the start of the trial next Monday.

Suspects held for robbery

ODESSA — Odessa police have arrested two suspects for an armed robbery of a 7-11 store Tuesday night.

Police said the 7-11 store at 3915 Tanglewood St. was robbed by two men at 8:20 p.m. Tuesday. One of the men was armed with a knife, police Capt. Jack Fillyaw said.

Fillyaw said the store clerk was alone at the time the robbery began, but two customers came into the store during the robbery. One suspect was apprehended by the customers and the other escaped, but was arrested later from a description of the vehicle, Fillyaw said.

Police expected to file charges this morning.

Odessa woman dies in crash

ODESSA— An Odessa woman died Tuesday night in Medical Center Hospital from injuries received in a two-car accident in Ector County, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Gail Gray, 20, of Odessa died from head injuries about 8:30 p.m.

The Department of Public Safety said the car in which she was riding, driven by David Gentry of Odessa, was eastbound on the north service road of Interstate 20. A car driven by Vernon Brest of Odessa was northbound on Industrial AVe. The two cars were in collision, the DPS said.

There were no other injuries, according to the DPS.

Midland woman to head TWASO state board

By PATSY GORDON

The general session of the 12th annual conference of Texas Women's Association for Symphony Orchestras concluded Tuesday with the election of new state board members and the naming of the 1979 conference site.

Mrs. Karen Jensen Gibson of San Diego, Calif. also made an appearance at the general meeting in the Yates and San Andres Rooms of the Midland Hilton, headquarters for the conference.

Mrs. Gibson is author of "The Symphony Cookbook," and she offered some recipes from the publication to the delegates.

State officers for the 1977-78 term include Mrs. Gordon S. Knox of Midland, president; Mrs. Roger D. Allen of Midland, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Harold B. Eudaly of Fort Worth, 1978 conference chairman; and Mrs. Sarah Fredric of Fort Worth, vice conference chairman. Elected directors were Mrs. W. V. Harlow Jr. of Amarillo, Mrs. Scott Taliaferro of Abilene and Mrs. Eugene Jericho of Dallas.

The 1978 conference will be held in Fort Worth, while Lubbock will host the 1979 meeting of TWASO.

Another highlight of the conference's final day was a panel discussion on how to get along with the news media by Ray Herndon, general manager and vice president of KMID-TV; Jim N. Allison, publisher of the The Midland Reporter-Telegram, and Parker Humes, general manager of KCRS Radio and KWMJMUSAK.

Prior to the panelists, a "Black Gold" luncheon, hosted by the Midland Symphony Association, was held for the delegates from 21 Texas cities in the Midland Country Club. After welcome notes by Russell Neisig, president of the association, Ralph Black, executive director, American Symphony Orchestra League, delivered a keynote speech.

The delegates were transported to Midland College where Allison, Herndon and Humes explained how the guild members and their publicity or public relations chairman can

Course signup begins

Enrollments are being accepted for a Mother-Baby Care Course by the Midland County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The course will begin at 7 p.m. Tuesday and will run two hours each Tuesday through June 14. It is designed to assist expectant parents to prepare for parenthood. Mrs. Ervin C. Philpy, RN, will be the instructor.

Interested persons may contact the Red Cross Chapter House, 684-6161. There is no charge for the course. Fathers are encouraged to attend.

Leaves drop when light changes

If you had your house plants outdoors all summer and they dropped leaves rather profusely when you brought them indoors, you can probably blame the change in light.

Even in shaded areas, light levels outdoors are considerably higher than indoors. When you move plants from high light to low light areas, leaf drop is apt to result. Plants will probably stop dropping leaves when they have adapted to indoor conditions.

The Ninth Grade Midland Junior Cotillion will have a dance from 7:15 to 10 p.m. Thursday in the Midland High School Youth Center. A live band will play.

DEAR ABBY

No kisses, no marry warns woman's lover

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Izzy and I have been living together as man and wife for eight years. We really love each other, and I want to marry him, but here is the problem.

I have this crazy hangup I can't seem to get over: I CAN'T bring myself to kiss a man on the mouth! No one would believe that two people could have such a great relationship without ever having kissed.

I'm 43 and have never been married, and Izzy is 50 and has been divorced for ten years.

My astrologist says our signs show us to be compatible in every way—and we certainly are. My chiropractor, who also knows Izzy, says he's never seen a couple better suited for each other.

I went to a psychiatrist a few times, and he says this obsession I have about kissing a man on the mouth stems back to when I was a little girl and my father, who was a heavy cigar-smoker, always kissed me on the mouth, which made me so sick I sometimes threw up.

The only thing Izzy and I ever argue about is marriage. I told him I'd be satisfied with a wedding ring from the dime store, but he says, "No kisses—no mazeltov."

What is your advice?—BELLA IN BROOKLYN

DEAR BELLA: Some men might be willing to tolerate a kissless marriage, but apparently Izzy isn't one of them, so you have two options: Get into therapy and stay with it long enough to overcome your hangup, or continue as you are and pray that Izzy never needs mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Biscuit recipe calls for cream of tartar

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

OLDTIME BISCUITS

1 cup flour, fork-stir well before measuring
2 teaspoons baking power
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine
⅓ cup of milk

In a medium mixing bowl stir together the flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, salt and sugar. With a pastry blender cut in the butter until the particles are tiny. Gradually sprinkle with the milk, stirring as you do so with a fork, until the dough comes away from the sides of the bowl. Turn out on a prepared pastry cloth; knead about half a dozen times. With a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out a little less than ½-inch thick; cut out with a floured 2-inch round cookie cutter. Place, a few inches apart, on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 450-degree oven until lightly browned — 10 to 12 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 11.

Mrs. William Gilmore, panel moderator, began the discussion by telling the women that "publicity is characterized by excitement, integrity, dependability, accuracy and mutual respect and trust."

"It is common," said Humes, "to misunderstand how to work with the media. In all probability, you are not using radio publicity to its full advantage."

He pointed out that radio is pledged to give public service time and as far as this time is concerned, said Humes, "You just have to ask for it."

Allison offered some sound advice when he told the guild members that when they appoint their publicity chairman, this person should become acquainted with the reporter she will be working with for the year. "We can layout publicity campaign and inform the chairman of the limits we can go. This makes for better working relations," said Allison.

He gave further advice by saying that "a group is better off" not mentioning to a news reporter that he has just bought certain number of inches of advertising space and wants the same amount of inches in the news story. The publisher explained that the news department and the advertising department of a newspaper work, usually, independent of each other.

Allison told the guild members that when they have an event that is closed to the public they should not expect as much coverage as they would if it was a function that was available to the public because the public is not interested in reading about something they cannot attend.

"In addition to great advance stories, also have a good news story about what actually happened," Allison said. "The media feels funny when shut off in the middle of something."

Herndon feels that nothing can take the place of "a talented person who makes direct contact with the media. Once she takes on this chore," no matter if the media representative has known her for years, "she should talk over the publicity with the media."

"Guilds exist to support the symphonys," said Herndon and there must be "a fine cooperation between the guilds and the symphony associations," who, in turn, cooperate with the media.

The television manager told the women that news of their happenings should be released at a time when all media can break the story at the same time.

Allison noted that as far as the R-T is concerned, that unless something was spot news and had to go that day, it is better to call a reporter in the afternoon after both editions had gone to press. "If possible," Allison said, "two or three days in advance is better."

Herndon said one way was through programs printed for a symphony event. He suggested the guilds show their appreciation to the assistance given by the media by boxing in their programs a list of all the media involved.

Allison said that a letter to the publisher or editor about a reporter who had done a good job of covering an event means a lot to the reporter and is important to the publisher and editor.

Junior League delegates attend conference

Mrs. William U. Sumner, incoming president of the Junior League of Midland, Inc., and Mrs. Glenn A. Rogers, incoming vice president of the league, are representing the league as delegates to the 1977 annual conference of the Association of Junior Leagues, Inc., in Los Angeles, Calif.

More than 650 members of leagues throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico are participating in the conference, the theme of which is "The Delicate Balance."

Delegates to the conference are studying the traditionally dynamic balance and tension which exists tween voluntary sectors and the government. Nationally recognized authorities are leading delegates in panel discussions on the present positive pluralism in three focus areas: Arts, health and land use. Junior Leagues will define roles which leagues may initiate in order to preserve and strengthen the relationship between volunteer organizations and the government.

The keynote speaker is Carla Hills, former secretary of housing and urban development and an expert on the relationship between the public-private sectors. Other participants are Charlton Heston, actor and professional artist; Elizabeth Lane, president of the Canadian Conference of the Arts; Dr. Malcolm Todd, honorary president of the American Medical Association; Frank Schnidman, resident counselor, Urban Land Institute; Gordon Manser, interim director of the Association of Junior Leagues.

Designer emphasizes giving yourself time

By SHIRLEY GALLINA
Copley News Service

"It's more important to eat well, keep alert, be yourself and enjoy yourself than to have a lot of clothes," says Diane von Furstenberg.

"It's also nice to indulge yourself with time. To give yourself time is very important — it's difficult, but so is everything."

Furstenberg, a nonroyal little girl who grew up to be a real life princess and a member of the jet set, has written a book as a guideline to women who would make the most of what they have.

The book, "Diane von Furstenberg's Book of Beauty," subtitled "How to become a more attractive, confident and sensual woman." (Simon and Schuster, $9.95) was published in January.

In it, she tells about her own life, her success and what it means to be in control of your own life.

"Take yourself in control — decide what you're going to do, and take care of yourself, or you'll find you're guided by other people," she said in an interview.

"Face yourself as early as you can."

As soon as she was married to Prince Egon von Furstenberg, she decided she needed a career.

"I wanted it for my own identity, my independence and to be in control of my own life," she explains.

In 1970, she started by designing dresses because no one else was. Everyone was concentrating on sportswear, and she never wears pants except in the country or on vacation.

"I started with dresses — a new concept for the new woman who is active, who participates in things and belongs to today," she says.

The divorced mother of two, a son Alexandre, 7, and a daughter, Tatiana, 6, she not only runs a $20 million business, but a home.

"If you're a woman, it's difficult, but it's nice to be a little of everything. It's a choice, not an obligation."

Sherry Simpson, new president of Desert Winds chapter of Sweet Adelines, Inc., takes the gavel of office from the outgoing president, Judy Smith.

Winning the Sweet Adeline of the Year award were Sandy Clay and Kathleen Stewart.

The chorus performed for the entertainment. Also on the program was the Standing Room Only quartet consisting of Sherry Simpson, Lorea Fitz-Gerald, Betty Wheatley and Judy Smith.

Patching up lawn required before summer

By TOM STEVENSON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - In the spring many homeowners get an urge to patch up their lawns. It is not the best time to sow grass seeds but it can be done successfully. The problem is to get the grass growing well before crabgrass starts to appear, and to have the grass somewhat established before it has to cope with hot, dry summer weather.

The first decision is whether to do the whole lawn over or just to make repairs. If you have grass fairly well distributed over 50 percent of the lawn it is better to repair than to start over.

Try to figure out why there are bare spots and whether they can be corrected. Seeding or sodding alone will not be a permanent cure. The new plants will die for the same reason the old ones did.

A female dog can cause bare spots. In such cases, the old soil in the damaged areas should be removed to a depth of three of four inches and replaced with good soil.

Too heavy a salt concentration from winter use of salt for deicing can kill grass. Usually leaching will take care of this in a year or two.

Hard packed soil could be the problem. Heavy foot traffic when the soil is wet, or use of a heavy roller or other equipment, can cause soil compaction.

If there is constant heavy foot traffic in a particular area, perhaps a hard-surfaced walk is the best answer.

An easy way to fill bare spots is by sodding. Chunks of sod can be taken from inconspicuous places and used to fill the bare spots. Or, buy a few rolls of sod and cut it into peices of the required size.

To seed the bare spots, use grass seed of the same kind that is prevalent in the lawn. But don't just throw seed on the soil and expect mother nature to do the rest, It isn't as simple as that.

First get rid of the weeds. Then use an iron rake to scratch the soil. Sow the seed and press them into the soil with your feet or a roller.

If buried in the soil where there is inadequate light, the seeds will not germinate. And unless they are sown in good contact with the soil, the seeds may dry out rapidly and perish.

Moisture is a critical factor in grass seed germination and survival. A mature seed contains a small living plant that is dormant. This miniature plant is the embryo. When conditions (temperature and moisture) are favorable, the embryo starts to grow. This process, including bursting of the seed coat, is germination.

If the embryo dries out at any time after it starts to grow, the grass dies. That's why it is important to keep the seed bed moist. After the plant is up and growing, water instead of sprinkling, if rainfall is inadequate. The grass, needs about an inch of water a week. New grass, with a limited root system, cannot survive drought as well as established grass.

Lawn grasses with a good root system have the ability to crowd out weeds and keep them from becoming established. Mowing has a profound effect on the root growth of grass.

One of the worst mistakes is to let the grass get too tall and then cut off too much of the green matter at one time.

The green blades of the grass produce the food of the plant. The raw materials come from the soil and air.

If most of the green part is removed, root growth stops for several days or even two or three weeks, and the plant experiences shock.

No more than one-third of the green part of the grass blade should be removed at one cutting. If the grass is three inches tall, remove one inch, cutting it back to two inches.

If the grass is five or six inches tall, remove only two inches on the first mowing, and four or five days later remove another inch.

The grass should not be cut when wet unless it is absolutely necessary. Dry grass is easier to cut, does not ball up and clog.

Trading slackens

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed in slackened trading today, levelling off after the advance of the past six sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up nearly 20 points in the last six trading days, pulled back 1.44 to 932.75 by noontime today.

Gainers held an 8-7 edge on losers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Traders seemed to be shying away a bit on the theory that the market might be nearing what technical analysts call a resistance level at around 935940 in the Dow. The average topped out in the 940s in the market's last sustained rally attempt last month.

At the same time, Wall Street was looking for some favorable news Thursday when the government reports on the wholesale price index for April.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the most active NYSE issue, up ¼ at 63⅝.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks dipped .01 to 54.20. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .01 at 113.06.

Volume on the Big Board slowed to 8.55 million shares as of noontime from 9.74 million at the same point on Tuesday.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were higher in midday dealings.

Some buying was thought to be sharply influenced by higher soybean prices.

Midday prices were 60 cents to $3.25 a bale higher than the previous close. May 77.30, Jul 77.35 and Oct 73.65.

Million dollar sales to pace land 'change'

By TOM DeCOLA
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Jerry Jackson's job is to put sellers of property together with potential buyers, hoping that a deal is made and accepting what amounts to a finder's fee.

It's the way he does it that's different.

Jackson is president of the San Francisco-based American Real Estate Exchange (AMREX), which will open its Houston regional office Friday with a market day aimed at moving 350 pieces of property worth some $1.3 billion. Each piece of property offered must be worth $1 million or more.

The posh River Oaks Country Club will be the scene, and an invited list of 100 sellers and 50 buyers will do their thing at the start of a bell — just like a stock exchange.

The buyers will be given a catalog giving a general description of each property for sale, without specifically identifying the property. Each parcel is given a code number.

If all goes well and a deal is made, AMREX gets paid according to percentage.

The closing process often takes weeks, and Jackson expects sales of from $100 million to $140 million to result from the Houston market day.

Jackson's company has been around for eight years, and he considers the expansion into Houston a natural. "The national investor loves Houston, and that makes our presence here mandatory," Jackson said.

Friday's trading participants will come from throughout the U.S., Middle East, Europe, the Far East and Canada. Jackson said international investors have different criteria than their American counterparts. "The international investor is seeking to find investments allowing relocation of his money...in a more stable economy, one that is not wanting or threatened by political upheavals," he said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have noticed that almost the only way the girls on our campus carry their books is hugged to their chests--as though for dear life. Is this some new co-ed fad? Or is it some standing difference between the sexes? It's the first year we have had girls at our university, so this is quite a new way of looking at women for all of us here.--Jay W.

Dear Jay: Well, you are in for something of an education, because hugging books to one's chest seems to be a widespread female practice. In fact, it has been noted in Montana, Ontario, New York, El Salvador and Costa Rica--just to mention a few of the many places--by two behavioral researchers at the University of Montana, Donald and Mary Jenni.

This team found that more than nine college girls out of 10 wrap one or both arms around their books, which they clasp to their chests--or, occasionally, rest on their hips. Over nine out of 10 college males carry books in one hand at their side. The load they happen to be carrying has no effect one way or the other.

Extending their research to younger students, the Jennis discovered that the majority of first-graders of both sexes start off with the side-carrying method. Girls shift progressively to the clasping technique, whereas boys remain steadfast side-carriers.

The Jennis think there are three factors at play. One is genetic: females tend to assume more closed positions than males--such as folding their arms or crossing their legs. The second is anatomical: differences in hip width and the angle of the lower arm make one style more comfortable for females, the other for males. And the third factor is social: copying what older students are doing.

The Jennis say that when they started their research on carrying behavior, they found no reference to it in scientific literature. They note, however, that Mad Magazine had pioneered with a cartoon strip on it by D. Berg, back in 1975. The topic has now graduated to Science!

Dear Dr. Solomon: If you have had gonorrhea a couple of times, do you develop an immunity to it?--X

Dear X: No, you probably won't. Just to give one example--there was a report in the Medical Tribune recently on a patient in Massachusetts who had 14 bouts of gonorrhea in one year. Each attack was a reinfection, and each responded to treatment.

Jordanian king undergoing physical exam

HOUSTON (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan was in a Houston hospital today undergoing what hospital authorities called "a routine physical."

Hussein was met Tuesday at St Luke's Hospital by Dr. Denton Cooley, famed heart surgeon, Dr. Robert Hall, who will conduct the medical tests, and Dr. Yousef Goussous, a Jordanian doctor who is in training at St. Luke's.

A short time after his arrival, Hussein was settled into one of St. Luke's 10 suites, which include a large bedroom, private bath and sitting room.

"Absolutely nothing is wrong with him that we know of," one hospital oficial said. "This is just an annual check-up, a practice he's made in recent years and similar to the one he had his last visit to the United States."

The official said nothing special was scheduled during the two day hospital stay and the only persons the king is expected to see are the physicians, nurses and others taking part in his tests.

No report of the examination findings will be made public, the official said, because "that is the way the king wants it."

Hussein is scheduled to leave the hospital Thursday morning and go directly to the airport.

Within a few hours, he'd flown from New York to Tampa and had signed what was reported to be five one-year contracts worth close to $1.5 million.

DORSETT, THE Heisman Trophywinning running back from topranked, unbeaten Pittsburgh, was only No. 2. And he was trying harder the moment the Dallas Cowboys dealt a passel of picks to Seattle for the chance to grab him.

SPORTS

"I do feel I'm worth as much as anybody in professional football. I must be worth something for the Cowboys to sacrifice four draft choices," he said after Dallas gave to the Seahawks its first-round selection and the three second-round choices it had amassed.

When told about the contract numbers filtering out of Tampa, Dorsett observed: "I'd love to play for $1.5 million." He just might get it, considering that Mike Trope, Bell's agent, is Dorsett's main man, too. "Whatever Bell gets will be the going rate for Tony," he said.

AND DORSETT tossed a mild threat in Dallas' direction, suggesting he might head for the Canadian Football League if the right numbers didn't filter out of Texas, too. Last week he did a bit of negotiating with the Toronto Argonauts.

"I would love to play for the Cowboys but I will go where it is best for me," Dorsett said.

Presumably the Cowboys have no plans to let Touchdown Tony get away. What they might have to do, Coach Tom Landry said, is alter their offense. "Tony gives us a dimension we've never had—a back with breakaway running ability," he said. "It looks like we're going to have to change our playbook."

There'll be some changes made in Tampa Bay as well.

Last year, when the Bucs went 0-14 in their first season, they had running backs like Louis Carter, Ed Williams, Essex Johnson, Rod McNeil ... a bunch of guys named "Who's he?" Now McKay's got his all-star alumni, Bell and Anthony Davis, who spent two post-graduate years in the World Football League and with Toronto in the CFL.

"GETTING PICKED No. 1 ... this is like winning the Heisman," said Bell, who had expressed some disappointment at coming in No. 2 in that voting. "Now I know how Dorsett must have felt with all this attention."

The moment NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle read Bell's name—a foregone conclusion and an announcement greeted with near-apathy in the crowded Hotel Roosevelt ballroom—the bearded Bell strode in and held up his new orangeand-white Tampa Bay jersey with No. 42, the same number he wore for McKay at Southern Cal.

He praised the man he's rejoining. "Give him time and he'll win," Bell said of McKay, whose hair might have turned white last year if it hadn't already been that way. "He's making some wise decisions— like drafting me."

MCKAY HAS already decided what to do with his ace. "Ricky runs with power and speed," he said. "He's an excellent blocker as well as pass receiver. He can play both fullback and tailback and we plan to use him at both positions."

With No. 1 anticlimactically out of the way (the last time a running back was No. 1 was 1969, a Southern Cal kid named O.J. Simpson), the Seahawks' No. 2 turn came—and went.

It figured they wouldn't sign Dorsett, who had told them he had no desire to relocate in the Pacific Northwest. Most observers guessed Seattle, which gave up the most yards and most points last year, would go for a quality defensive star, perhaps tackle Mike Butler from Kansas.

INSTEAD THEY went for quantity—Dallas' draft choices. What they ultimately got was a mixture. In the first round they picked Tulsa guard Steve August. In the second round they picked Boston College offensive tackle Tom Lynch and Kansas linebacker Terry Beeson. Then the Seahawks dealt the last of the four Dallas draft picks back to the Cowboys and got second year wide receiver Duke Fergerson.

"We felt that, being a new franchise, the thing we needed most was quality players," Seahawks Coach Jack Patera said, explaining the four-for-Dorsett deal. "There has never been a situation that I've seen where one player turned a team around."

The Cincinnati Bengals, who had three first-round picks as a result of deals with Buffalo (for Sherman White) and Philadelphia (for Bill Bergey), picked third and went for defensive tackle Eddie Edwards from the University of Miami. They later took another defensive tackle, Houston's Wilson Whitley, and Michigan State tight end Mike Cobb.

NEW YORK'S teams picked fourth and fifth respectively and each went for Southern Cal talent—the Jets selecting offensive tackle Marvin Powell and the Giants choosing defensive tackle Gary Jeter.

It wasn't until the 19th pick that a quarterback was taken. He was Missouri's Steve Pisarkiewicz, chosen by the St. Louis Cardinals. The Minnesota Vikings, picking 27th, also took a passer, Rice's Tommy Kramer.

Joe Roth would surely have gone sooner. But the oncestrapping quarterback from the University of California lost a battle to cancer last February. "I want to acknowledge the memory of Joe Roth, who was a fine quarterback and who had so looked forward to playing in the NFL," Rozelle said in tribute at the start of the draft.

NFL teams draft SWC stars in early rounds

By The Associated Press

The Dallas Cowboys have chosen two Texans, Val Belcher and Guy Brown of Houston, in the opening rounds of the National Football League draft.

Another Houston athlete, AllAmerican defensive end Wilson Whitley, led five Southwest Conference players who were selected in the first round of the draft Tuesday.

The Cowboys picked University of Houston guard Belcher in the third round and UH line backer Guy Brown in the fourth round.

Defensive back Raymond Clayborne of Texas went to New England as the 16th player selected.

Guard R.C. Thilemann of Arkansas went to Atlanta in the second round, followed by defensive tackle Greg Koch to Green Bay.

Fullback George Franklin of Texas A&I was a second round St. Louis Cardinals choice and A&M's Dennis Swilley, an offensive guard, was plucked by the Vikings to end the second round.

Third round choices included Texas A&M's defensive tackle Edgar Fields by the Atlanta Falcons and Texas Tech's linebacker Thomas Howard by the Kansas City Chiefs.

The New York Jets tapped A&M defensive end Tank Marshall and the Houston Oilers picked running back Rob Carpenter of Miami University in Ohio.

In the fourth round, New England picked Arkansas tackle Gerald Skinner while Buffalo drafted Texas A&M tackle Jimmy Dean.

Fifth round selections included Baylor tackle Gary Gregory, who went to the New York Jets, and Longhorn tackle Ernest Gee, who was picked by St. Louis.

Pittsburgh picked Arkansas linebacker Dennis Winston, and Oakland tapped A&M running back Lester Hayes.

The last seven rounds of the draft were scheduled today.

Manning's arm is healing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The sore arm that kept quarterback Archie Manning out of action all last season is healing nicely, the veteran New Orleans Saints signal caller said Tuesday.

Giboulee trainer hopes for fast, hard track

So, naturally, trainer Jacques Dumas hopes the Churchill Downs track is hard and fast on Kentucky Derby Day for his colt, whose name is French for "little snowstorm."

If it comes up muddy or sloppy, like the Keeneland track was when Giboulee finished ninth in the Blue Grass Stakes, Canada might not have a Derby representative.

"If it rains, I think I would scratch," Dumas said Tuesday. "There's no sense running a horse if he doesn't have a chance."

The Blue Grass was Giboulee's first out-of-the money finish in four races this year but the track condition beat him as much as his opposition, in the opinion of Dumas.

"He just didn't try," said Dumas. "He doesn't like a soft track. He has low action. He cooled out in 20 minutes because he didn't run."

But when the Canadian-bred son of 1964 Derby winner Northern Dancer, owned by Jean-Louis Levesque of Montreal, does feel like trying, he can be very good.

He won four of 13 starts, including the 1¼-mile Coronation Futurity at Woodbine, last year and had two seconds and two thirds and earnings of $131,712. This year he was third in an allowance race, second to Seattle Slew in the Flamingo and the winner of the Calumet Purse.

Draft ignores large pool of grid players

CHICAGO (AP) — They were not chosen in Tuesday's pro football draft but you find them in every big city in America and plenty of small ones.

Big, grizzled beer hoisters with broken noses and missing teeth, playing football on rundown fields on the outskirts of town or in the shadow of smoking blast furnaces.

"I never did nurse any illusions of playing pro ball," says mailman Larry Ball. "I just want to play for the hell of it and to stay in shape. Anyway, if I don't play I'll probably go crazy or something."

Ball is a wide receiver for the Chicago Lions. It's called a semi-pro team but nobody is there for the money.

"In my entire seven years with this team, I have never seen a dollar paid any of these players," Coach Palmer Pyle, a former guard with the Chicago Bears and Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, says.

This year, the Lions are getting a break from their usual routine of gut-crunching games before crowds of 500 at Luther North High School. Starting May 30, they play a series of exhibition matches in Europe against the Newton, Iowa, Nite Hawks, another semi-pro team.

Cities on the tour are Paris, Vienna, Berlin, Brussels, Copenhagen and either Munich or Frankfort. They figure to play in soccer stadiums before crowds of around 25,000.

"To the the best of my knowledge, it will be the first time a pro or semi-pro American football team has ever played there," Tom Prost, Lions owner and offensive tackle, says.

Ball says the European tour has brought the team some recognition. He may be optimistic when he adds that "at this point, half the people in Chicago don't know we exist."

"People just think that, you know, we're a bunch of rinkydinks," he says.

Of course, some hold out hope that maybe—just maybe— there will be that magic game and a pro scout will just happen to be in the stands. Four players from the Lions squad have signed pro contracts. And the possibility of stardom is just real enough to keep dreams alive.

"I remember a few years ago we went to play the Quad City, Illinois, Mohawks," policeman Jim Arceo, a defensive back, says. "We had a pretty good team but we got beat so bad I forgot the score. They had this quarterback who was just hot that day. We couldn't stop him for the world."

The little-known quarterback was Ken Anderson and a few seasons later his spectacular passing arm would top the NFL and lead the Cincinnati Bengals into contention.

"Playing football is all I'm doing now," says 23-year-old quarterback Steve Licht. "I used to work construction after graduating from Weber High School. I had some offers to play college ball. But I turned them down because I was bringing home about $300 a week working construction. Somehow, I thought it would last forever.

"But then I got laid off, and then I broke my wrist playing for another semi-pro team last year," he says. "So I wasn't able to to even go back to work if they called me.

Cubs, Sox rained out

By The Associated Press

San Antonio's Jeff Leonards scored Marv Webb on an error in the top of the 12th inning to give San Antonio an 11-10 victory over El Paso night in a fight-marred Texas League game Tuesday night.

El Paso scored three runs in the bottom of the ninth to tie the score 8-8 and each team added a pair of runs in the 11th to prolong the four-hour duel.

El Paso's Jay Peters was thrown out of the game in the ninth for taking a swing at San Antonio pitcher Ted Farr after the two collided at home plate.

In other games, Jackson edged Arkansas 8-6 and Shreveport beat Tulsa 5-2. Midland at Amarillo was postponed because of rain.

Cooper takes 4-1 lead, but Bulldogs win, 7-0

By BOB DILLON

Trailing 4-1 in the sixth inning Tuesday, the Midland High Bulldogs suddenly found themselves declared 7-0 winners over the Abilene Cooper Cougars in a bizarre baseball game.

Umpire Leonard Garcia, working behind home plate, called Cooper's Jim Cook out at home on an appeal play by pitcher Bud Brigham. Cook missed home plate in scoring a run during a three-run rally Garcia called the runner out. The next batter, Mark Beale made some comment to the umpire and suddenly Garcia walked past Cooper Coach Chester Dougherty in the third base coaching box and headed for his car and a short drive to Odessa.

Dougherty claimed, "The umpire came up to me and said — Your fans have just cost you the ball game." So the umpire has the authority to call the game and did, awarding the contest to the Bulldogs by a 7-0 score instead of the 4-1 lead by Cooper.

THE WHOLE game was a strange one indeed from beginning to end. First of all, Garcia was almost 20 minutes late for the game and the other umpire, Jerry Norman, didn't even show up at all.

The game finally got underway at 4:30 p.m. with Boots Goode being called out of the stands to call the bases since Norman was a no-show.

Midland had taken a 1-0 lead off Cook in the second inning. Ricky Goode led off with a single up the middle. James Allen doubled Goode all the way to third and Goode raced home on a wild pitch by Cook.

Cooper tied the game in the fifth inning. Cook struck out, but Barry Russell legged out an infield hit. Randy Jones then doubled Russell to third. On the next play, Max Whiteley hit a ball to short where Jones stopped in front of Jimmy Zachry, who had no chance to try and field the ball. Garcia called Jones out for interference on the play. This seemed to irritate the Cougar fans along with Dougherty. Russell tied the game moments later by scoring on a wild pitch by Brigham.

MIDLAND GOT the first two runners on second and third due to errors by Jones and Cook, but Steve Cole and Kevin Pearce grounded out to third and Zachry was walked intentionally. David Johnston grounded out to John Grissom at first to end the threat.

Then came the wild sixth inning. Ken Dozier was safe on a throwing error by Zachry, Mike Hill struck out, but Grissom doubled in Dozier to make it 2-1. Cook lined a pinch single into left, scoring runner Greg Whisnehunt and Russell lined a single into center that scored David Laurence, but Cook was erased on the appeal play and that was when the fireworks started and the game ended abruptly.

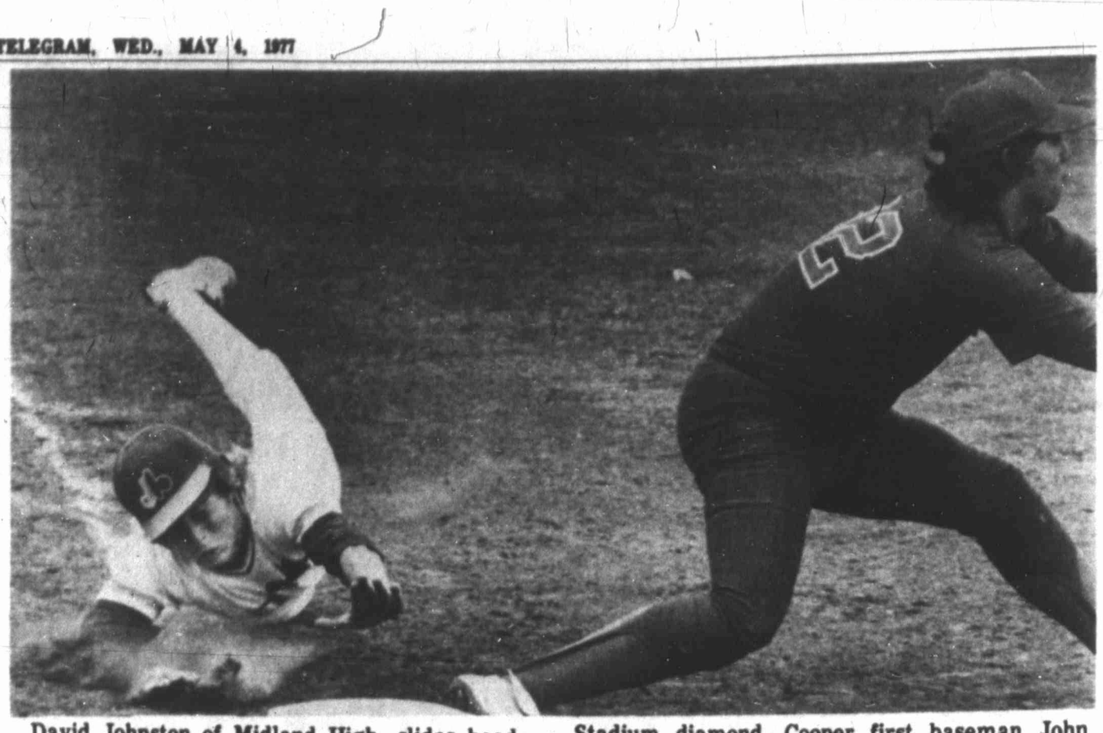

The unusual victory gives Midland a 5-20 season record and a 1-5 District 5-4A mark, while Cooper is now 14-9 and 2-4.

COACH DOUGHERTY didn't seem too upset over the decision since his Cougars won the first half of the race with a 6-1 record and will be in the playoff series to determine the 5-4A representative in the AAAA state playoffs. "I will call Shorty Lawson, our Athletic Director and protest, but we don't really care about replaying the game if we have to since we are already out of the race in the second half, but still in the playoff series," said Dougherty.

The bad thing about a forfeit is the fact that all of the hitting and pitching records do not count because of the forfeit. Jones and Russell were the No. 1 and No. 2 hitters in the league going into the game and had three hits between them, but that is all wiped away with the umpire's decision to forfeit the game to the Purple Pack.

THE BULLDOGS wind up the season Saturday when they tangle with the Robert E. Lee Rebels at the Lee diamond in a Tall City contest.

Leadoff homer sinks Rebels

ABILENE — Centerfielder Herman Reece had a leadoff home run in the bottom of the first inning to propel the Abilene Eagles to a 1-0 victory over the Robert E. Lee Rebels Tuesday in a District 5-4A baseball game.

The victory moves the Eagles into a three-way tie for first place with San Angelo and Big Spring in the second half of the 5-4A race with a 5-1 mark while Lee drops to a 1-5 loop reading with the loss.

Doug Schmidt went all the way for the Rebels in throwing a four-hitter and his only mistake was the home run pitch to Reece.

Weldon Bragg also threw a four-hitter for the Warbirds, who stand 19-4 on the year going into their game with Abilene Cooper Saturday.

Bragg owns an 8-2 mound record while Schmidt is now 2-3 on the year.

The victory avenges a 15-1 defeat to Lee in the first half of the race in a game played n in the Tall City.

Speier downs Foli, 3-2

By The Associated Press

Chris Speier used to hear cheers in San Francisco. Now he hears jeers.

"I expected the fans' reaction," said Speier Tuesday night after making his first appearance in Candlestick Park in a visiting uniform as the Montreal Expos beat the San Francisco Giants 3-2. "Personal pride made we want to show the fans I could still play."

Speier, traded to the Montreal Expos for Tim Foli last month, showed the San Francisco boo-birds that the Expos weren't short-changed in the swap of shortstops.

He outplayed his opposite number in every department and ironically fielded the last out of the game, a grounder hit by Foli with the potential tying run on third base.

"That last throw could have ruined everything," said Speier, whose throw in the dirt was saved by first baseman Tony Perez. "But I was so glad Foli hit it. I was just trying to throw as hard as I could and there's no way I should have thrown it in the dirt. All I could do was pray that Tony handled it."

That play capped a perfect evening for Speier and a perfectly awful one for Foli. The new Montreal shortstop had a double and a single and scored two of the Expos' runs, including the game-winner in the seventh inning. Foli was hitless in five trips and made an error on a ball hit by Speier that led to Montreal's first run in the first inning.

Speier's superior performance acquired more luster, considering the emotional pressure involved in his first game back at Candlestick since the trade. He had been an adored player in San Francisco for many years, but eventually fell out of favor after an arm injury tarnished his talents.

"I did a lot of reflecting when I came to the park," said Speier. "This wasn't a vendetta—but I did want to show the fans something."

Pirates 8, Braves 7

Pinch-hitter Ed Kirkpatrick's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the 11th inning gave Pittsburgh its victory over Atlanta and extended the Braves' losing streak to 10 games.

The Pirates, winning their ninth decision in their last 10 starts, began their winning rally with Phil Garner's single. After Garner was sacrificed to second, Ed Ott was walked intentionally and Bill Robinson singled to load the bases and set the stage for Kirkpatrick.

Cubs 9, Astros 0

Bill Buckner drilled three doubles and knocked in two runs, Manny Trillo walloped a three-run homer and Ray Burris pitched a five-hitter as Chicago routed Houston. Burris did not allow a runner past second base as he struck out five and did not issue a walk.

"Everybody has his day," said Burris. "Today just happened to be mine. I had good control of all my pitches. They hit some good shots right at people. We hit some good shots where they weren't."

Phillies 8, Padres 7

Dodgers 4, Mets 1

Burt Hooton hurled a four-hitter and singled home a run and Rick Monday drove in three runs with two doubles, leading Los Angeles over New York. Hooton struck out 11 and lost his shutout with two out in the ninth, when Dusty Baker dropped Roy Staiger's fly ball and allowed Ed Kranepool to score from first.

"I had very good location tonight," Hooton said. "I can't say I had better stuff than I had in my other starts, but I was around the plate all night."

Four advance in AAU boxing

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Four of the favored boxers in Tuesday night's heavyweight preliminaries advanced in impressive fashion at the Amateur Athletic Union national boxing championships.

Winning by knockouts were Woody Clark of Miami, the 1976 AAU runner-up, and Clinton Cochran of the U.S. Army team, the 1977 inter-service champion. Both were first round knockouts.

Horton haunts Tigers

By The Associated Press

Part of the scene was familiar. Big Willie Horton was spraying hits around Tiger Stadium.

But one difference was that he was wearing a Texas Ranger uniform. And another change of pace was that the fickle fans of Detroit were on his side.

"It's a funny thing," mused Detroit Manager Ralph Houk, "the fans who were cheering him tonight were probably the ones booing him here a few weeks ago."

The 33-year-old Horton, who began playing for Detroit in 1963 but was traded to Texas last month, had a terrific homecoming Tuesday night. He stroked four hits in leading the Rangers to a 13-0 joyride over his former teammates.

Horton had three singles and a double, scoring twice. The fans couldn't get enough of him, showering him with a standing ovation when he moved into the on-deck circle in the first.

He said he had tears in his eyes.

"It was a great feeling," he said. "It's sad I have to come back against my old teammates. I tried not to look at them...I still have a lot of love there. I wish the guys the best after we leave here tomorrow."

In the rest of the American League action, the Chicago White Sox downed the Kansas City Royals 8-4; the Seattle Mariners outslugged the Boston Red Sox 10-8; the Minnesota Twins edged the Cleveland Indians 4-3 in 10 innings; the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 6-2, and the New York Yankees crushed the California Angels 8-1.

Texas pitcher Bert Blyleven also had a return of sorts, taking the mound for the first time since incurring a three-game suspension for intentionally throwing at Kansas City's Darrell Porter.

The suspension was mostly symbolic, since it coincided with Blyleven's normal three days' rest. The star right-hander tossed a four-hitter and fanned 12 batters for his second shutout in a row.

Since his teammates were busy battering four Detroit pitchers for 18 hits, Blyleven's biggest task was keeping warm in the Texas dugout.

"I had to go in and change my shirt a couple of times to keep warm and I had to get heat on my arm," said Blyleven, owner of a 3-2 record and a frugal 1.52 earned run average. "Mentally you have to go out there and think it's still a 10 ballgame."

It was hardly ever a 1-0 ball game since Ken Henderson slugged a three-run homer in the first inning, stretching his hitting streak to 13 games. Henderson doubled in his fourth RBI of the game in the second inning, when the Rangers scored seven runs and tied a club record with nine hits. Bump Wills, who had a two-run homer in the ninth, had two singles in the second.

Brewers 6, Blue Jays 2

Barry Cort's feat of pitching a strong nine-hitter was topped only by his father George's activities.

"I must have smoked—no, ate—a package of cigarettes during the game," said George Cort, an unemployed house painter who flew to Toronto from his home in Tampa, Fla. "I think I was more nervous than he was."

The rookie Milwaukee pitcher, who was born in Toronto 21 years ago, will now remember the city as the site of his first major league victory.

Yankees 8, Angels 1

Torrez, making his first appearance for New York since being obtained from Oakland last week, held the Angels to one hit over the first five innings. He left the game in the sixth with a blister.

Graig Nettles and Reggie Jackson also slammed homers to send the Yankees to their fifth straight victory and 11th in their last 12 games. California has dropped five of six.

White Sox 8, Royals 4

Chicago's Richie Zisk, in his first AL season, is feasting on the league's pitchers. He slammed his eighth homer to grab the league lead in that department.

Mariners 10, Red Sox 8

Bill Stein belted his first two homers of the season and Carlos Lopez drove in three runs with a homer and a pair of singles to snap the Red Sox' threegame winning streak.

John Montague, pitching in relief, hurled 62-3 innings to gain the victory.

Twins 4, Indians 3

Steers, Bobcats take 5-4A wins

Big Spring and San Angelo Central bombed Odessa and Odessa Permian in District 5-4A games Tuesday to keep pace with Abilene High in the second half of the race.

The Steers, Bobcats and Eagles all stand 5-1 in the wild race for the second half crown. Abilene Cooper won the first half of the race with a 6-1 reading.

Mike Harris had a two-run homer for the Steers in the second inning. Harris was the winning pitcher, giving Big Spring a season record of 16-7.

OHS, meanwhile, is 14-12 and 3-3.

San Angelo pounded out 15 hits in blistering Mojo, 8-2. Joe Paul Bramhall, Mike McLaughlin, Jody Martinez and Carl Brainard had three hits each for the Bobcats who are 15-10. Permian got a two-run homer from shortstop Stan Strifler. Mojo is 10-14 and 2-4.

Ford, Watson tee up today

DALLAS (AP) — Masters champion Tom Watson, easily the outstanding player of the year, returns to action but may be upstaged—at least briefly— in the $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Former President Gerald Ford was expected to gain most of the attention today as a partner of Watson and comedian Bob Hope in the traditional pro-am event that precedes the Thursday start of this chase for a $40,000 first prize over the 6,983-yard, par-71 Preston Trail Golf Club course.

It's the fourth pro-am appearance of the year for the former President, who also played in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, the Bob Hope Desert Classic and the Inverrary Classic.

When the tournament proper gets under way, however, the popular Watson, owning the best credentials of the season despite skipping last week's event, will be favored in the strong, 156-man field.

In addition to his Masters triumph, he's won two other titles, could have won three more, is the season's leading money-winner with more than $190,000 and—even though the season is less than half through—ranks as a solid choice for Player of the Year honors.

And he has a little something extra going for him in this event. It's one of his favorites. He's won it once before, could have won it twice and—because of his long, close friendship with Hall of Famer Nelson, ranks this among his choice tournaments.

"The Masters, of course, was very important to me," Watson said. "It was a major step toward the things I want to accomplish."

And that goal, he said, is recognition by his peers, the other players, as a superior performer.

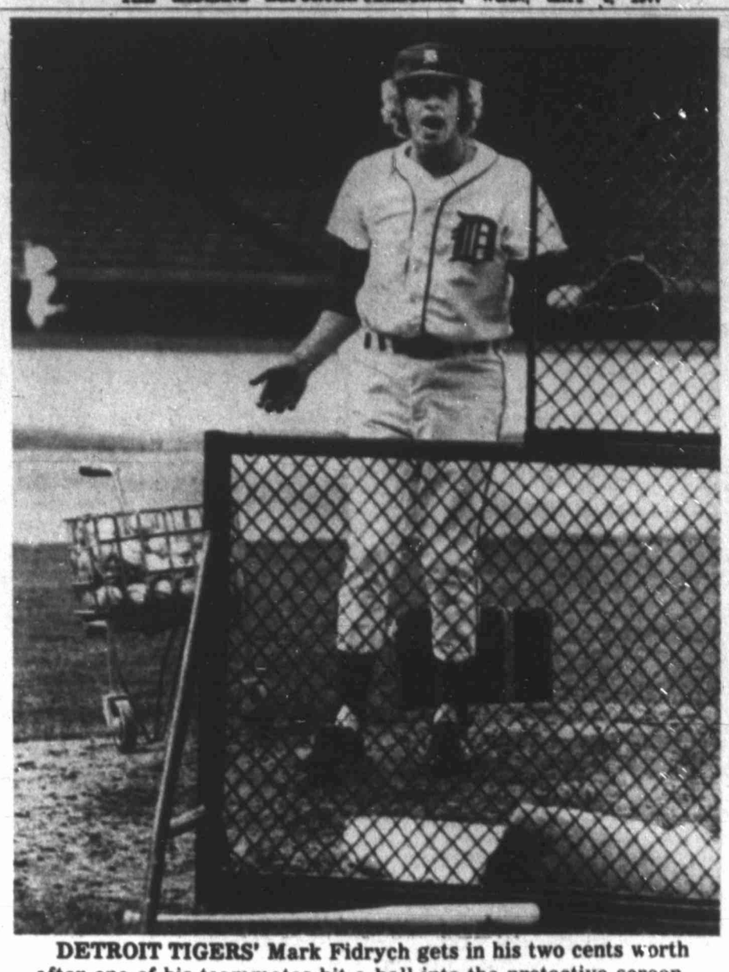

"That takes a lot of time and a lot of accomplishments," he said. "You will know it's happened when they speak of you as they do the great ones of the past.

"I think that's my goal—acceptance by my peers. Only the other players know what it means. Not the public, not the press. Only the other men who play the game."

Chief among his opponents this week are Johnny Miller, who may have snapped his slump in his last start at the Tournament of Champions; defending champion Mark Hayes, and Bruce Lietzke, a two-time winner and two-time runner-up this season.

Other major stars include Arnold Palmer, who had one of his best tournaments in years last week at Houston, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Lee Trevino, Ben Crenshaw, Dave Stockton and Al Geiberger.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by ABC-TV.

Houston Aeros narrow Winnipeg Jets' lead

HOUSTON (AP) — Getting caught behind a high-speed rush by Winnipeg's lightning skaters is not unusual, but Houston's Terry Ruskowski turned it into an advantage Tuesday night that kept the Aeros alive in the World Hockey Association playoffs.

Ruskowski scored two goals in the second period, including a breakaway goal when he was out of position, to lead the Aeros to a 3-2 victory over the defending WHA champion Jets.

The victory narrowed Winnipeg's lead in the best of seven series to 3-2 and takes the series back to Winnipeg for Thursday's sixth game.

"I was sort of caught back there," Ruskowski said of his first goal. "I just came up behind him (Winnipeg's Barry Long) and got the puck. I wasn't even thinking about a goal then, just trying to check him."

The Aeros had fought off three Winnipeg power plays in the first period and a fourth at the start of the second period when Long took off on the Winnipeg rush.

Ruskowski skated in behind Long, got control of the puck and then skated right up to Jets goalie Joe Daley and rammed home the game's first goal at 10:36 of the period.

Ruskowski scored his second goal at 18:59 of the period to give Houston a 2-1 lead after Mike Ford had scored his first playoff goal at 13:34 for the Jets.

Winnipeg's Perry Miller faked a pass and then fired a tying goal past Houston goalie Ron Grahame at 2:24 of the final period before Houston's Ted Taylor scored the clinching goal at 6:09.

"The great thing about this game is that our backs are against the wall," Ruskowski said. "It was a great team effort and it's a great feeling to play on a team like this that never quits."

The Aeros still face an uphill battle if they are to win the series. They must win at Winnipeg Thursday and then take the series finale in Houston on Sunday.

"We didn't lose it, we gave it to them," Jets Coach Bobby Kromm said. "We'll have to play much better at home than we did her if we expect to win. We rarely miss opportunities but we did tonight. You can't miss opportunities and win hockey games."

Houston Coach Bill Dineen figures the Aeros still are in good position to win the series.

"We got ourselves behind and now we have a change to go out and get the lead," Dineen said. "If the Jets are going to win it up there then they are going to have to fight for it because we're going to give it all we've got."

Royal says Mrs. Shepard asked about financing

DALLAS (AP) — Darrell Royal, Texas athletic director, said Tuesday in a copyrighted story in the Dallas Times Herald that the mother of Odessa High Scholl bluechip quarterback Darrell Shepard asked Royal last year if financing could be arranged on a car should older son, Woodie, transfer from Oklahoma.

"She Mrs. Rose Shepard called me and asked me if Woodie could transfer to the University of Texas," said Royal. "I told her she'd better check with Barry Switzer Oklahoma coach. She told me that she would have to transfer the financing of his car.

"She told me that wherever Darrell went to school his financing would have to be there, too. I told her you could have it financed right there in Odessa if you have the money. She kept telling me 'I don't believe you know what I am saying,'"

The Times Herald reported Sunday that Darrell Shepard, an All-American quarterback who will attend the University of Houston, drove a 1977 sports car away from a dealership in Odessa two days after signing a national letter of intent with the Cougars in February.

The car was financed at a small bank in Brazoria some 500 miles from Odessa. The chairman of the Bank of Brazoria is Charles Marino, a Houston graduate and a longtime friend of Cougar coach Bill Yeoman, the newspaper said.

Woodie Shepard told the newspaper "I knew my mother called Coach Royal because I reall did want to go to another school.

"I did plan to transfer. But I bought the car with my money so why would I want to get it financed or refinanced somewhere else?"

Private funeral for Collins

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A private funeral will be conducted here Thursday for Sid Collins, whose running commentaries of Indianapolis 500mile auto races were heard around the world via a 1,200station network.

Collins, 54, committed suicide Monday in the apartment here where he lived alone. Authorities said friends reported he had been despondent since returning from the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., 10 days ago. He had amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a deterioration of the spinal column and nervous system.

Collins would have begun his 30th year as chief broadcaster for the Indianapolis Motor Speedway network this month.

Time and place of the funeral were not announced. Burial will follow in Indianapolis Hebrew Cemetery South.

Utah St. denied

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Utah State University Athletic Director LaDell Andersen says he's disappointed the school was not asks to join the Western Athletic Conference.

But Andersen said Tuesday that not being chosen won't hurt the Logan school's athletic program.

The WAC Presidents' Council Monday agreed to expand the league to nine teams and invited Hawaii and the University of Nevada-Las Vegas to join the conference.

The presidents agreed to continue considering Utah State's and New Mexico State University's applications to join the league.

Andersen said Utah State will continue to play WAC schools, in cluding Bringham Young University and Utah.

He said the only reason he could see for picking Hawaii and Nevada-Las Vegas have more appeal than Logan.

It might have helped Utah State if attendence at footballs games were higher, Andersen said. But he said the school probably had better attendance than Nevada-Las Vegas.

Towns is top Oilers' pick

HOUSTON (AP) — Missouri offensive tackle Morris Towns weighed 340 pounds prior to his junior year in high school, wasn't interested in anything and above all, didn't want to play football.

That's not a very auspicious beginning for someone who Tuesday was selected in the first round of the National Football League college draft by the Houston Oilers.

"Most of the kids were on the team and they kept trying to get me to try out," Towns said. "I finally got tired of saying no so I tried out but I really wasn't interested in doing anything."

Once out for the football team at St. Louis' Vashon High School, Towns' attitude didn't change immediately.

"I didn't like all that hitting and rough stuff," Towns laughed.

So whatever posesssed Towns to drop 80 pounds by the start of his junior year, make allstate two years and go on to become a three year starter for the Missouri Tigers?

"Before my junior year I worked around at the school and I saw all these pictures on the wall of athletes who had gone to college on scholarships," Towns said. "I wanted to go to college and I knew my parents didn't have the money to send me so I decided to try to get a scholarship too."

Towns said it was only through his desire for a scholarship and the persistence of his coach, Paul Jones, that he became an outstanding player.

"I owe him a lot," Towns said of Jones. "I guess he saw a lot more in me than I saw in myself. The first thing he did was tell me I'd have to lose weight."

Islanders trim Montreal lead

MONTREAL (AP) — New York Islanders goalie Glenn Resch said what everyone had known all along.

"There wasn't a person alive who thought we would win, and I'll be honest with you—we were kidding about it ourselves," he said. "But I really felt confident coming into tonight. I think everybody did. It was just a feeling I had."

His feelings were right on the money, and so was the backhand shot by Billy Harris at 3:58 of overtime Tuesday night—a shot which gave the Islanders a 4-3 triumph over the Canadiens and cut Montreal's lead to 3-2 in the best-of-seven National Hockey League semifinal playoffs.

RESCH, MAKING his first postseason start, stopped 26 of 29 shots. Possibly the key save was the one on a Bob Gainey breakaway moments before Jude Drouin tied it for New York with less than seven minutes remaining in regulation.

"We've had some big wins, but I'd have to say that this has to rate as one of the sweetest," said Resch.

"There's no doubt I'll always remember this one," said Harris, who now has seven goals in postseason play this year and four in the series against Montreal. He tallied on a rebound after a Dave Lewis shot caromed off the goalpoast.

A DISALLOWED goal by Lewis may have turned the game around for New York and given them the lift necessary to end Montreal's 38-game home unbeaten streak. The last time the Canadiens lost here was Oct. 30, 1976, when the Boston Bruins beat them 4-3.

Referee Bob Myers ruled that Lewis had directed the puck into the net with his glove and disallowed the apparent score early in the second period.

"When we saw everything going against us, it really picked us up. He called that goal back that Lewie (Lewis) scored. It was a good goal. You watch it on the replay and you'll see it was good," said Resch.

THE CANADIENS' dressing room was quiet and almost deserted minutes after the goal by Harris. Not many expected they would have to hastily arrange a flight back to New York tonight to face the Islanders in front of their rabid fans for a sixth game Thursday night.

"You know the Canadiens are expected to win all the time," said Harris. "They are like a machine, they are that good."

So the Bruins are going to have to wait a little while longer to find out who they will be meeting in the Stanley Cup final.

Feeney joins Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles Feeney Jr., son of National League president Chub Feeney, has been hired as assistant to San Francisco Giants General Manager Spec Richardson, the team announced Tuesday.

Feeney, 27, has been director of park operations for the Chicago Cubs the past year.

Lakers battle Warriors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I don't see any reason why the home court advantage won't continue," says Lucius Allen.

If it does, he and his Los Angeles Lakers will go into the National Basketball Association playoff semifinals.

Tonight it's the Lakers vs. the Golden State Warriors at the Forum, where the Lakers have beaten the Warriors seven straight times, dating back to Jan. 2, 1976.

In playoff competition, the Lakers have whipped the Warriors eight straight at the Forum, dating back to March 26, 1969.

So Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and the Lakers are slight favorites to win this seventh and deciding game of the quarter-finals. The games stand at 3-3 with each team victorious only at home.

In the past three games, Abdul-Jabbar has scored 41, 45, and 43 points. In a previous game he hit 40. His average for the six stands at 37.3.

Rick Barry leads the Warriors scorers with a 29.1 average, and he'll have to be hitting his usual assortment of long shots if the Warriors hope to break the Forum jinx.

Abdul-Jabbar also leads the individual rebounders with a 17.5 average although the Warriors have outrebounded the Lakers as a team. The 7-foot-2 Laker star also has averaged five assists and four blocked shots a game.

Tonight's winner meets Portland on Friday and Sunday in the first two games of the semifinals. If the Lakers win, the semis start at the Forum. If the Warriors win, they go to Portland to start the series.

Jamaal Wilkes, who plays forward opposite Barry, says, "When the Lakers beat us at the Forum, it's like a velvet hammer. They beat us, but not badly. The teams seem to play with more confidence when they're at home."

A sellout crowd of 17,505 and a national television audience will watch this series finale with the tipoff scheduled for 8:30 p.m. PDT. The game will be blacked out in the LA area.

Allen, the Laker guard who was injured in the opening game, has played in the last two and should be ready again tonight. He had dislocated a toe on his left foot and the injury has been painful.

It undoubtedly will hurt again, but Lucius said he is ready to play.

His value, in addition to scoring and defending, comes with an ability to set the game pace for the Lakers.

Charles Johnson, the Warriors reserve who has come off the bench to score crucial points, says Golden State must avoid a letdown to break the Forum hold.

"You can attribute the fact we've lost all the games there to a lot of things," Johnson said. "But what it all comes down to is our mental approach. Your mind can't be wandering or spacing out on something. You have to be thinking about your man and concentrating on your job however long you're on the floor."

As for strategy, Wilkes says, "We have to push the forwards and guards out. That way he (Abdul-Jabbar) has to come out higher. When he gets the ball down where he wants it, who can stop him? No one."
