ANOTHER BIG OIL COMPANY COMES IN FOR LEASES

Washington Letter

By Helm News Service, Inc.

Washington—As soon as one powful but peaceful elephant, several midian lions a few Royal Bengal ers, a hyena or two, and a small ck of lambs have been trained to ide in the same enclosure in peace d harmony, a couple of ocelots mb the stockade and indulge in the eliminaries of a Kilkenny altercan which, if carried to a conclusion, th usual feline boisterousness, might sult in an altogether too general version to form and upset the long ught tranquility of a modernized smodic zoological garden.

Probably it would not do to go so r as to say that they are attempting stage a comic-opera down in South merica, for it would seem that beeen Bolivia and Paraguay there is real issue, but when a not insignifant part of the rest of the world as been struggling for a score of ears or more to include the idea hat there are better ways of settling nternational boundary disputes-parcularly between the lesser powers, nd of no possible interest to other tions--than by making younger citens targets for each other, it is subitted that our little second cousins, olivia and Paraguay, should be anked and sent to bed.

Just as that valiant "Soldier of eace," Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, S. A., who had complete charge of e polling in the Nicaraguan election hile our Leathernecks, by request, trolled the country, returned with s laurels, a special committee of the an-American Arbitration Conference ad succeeded in effecting an agreeent between Bolivia and Paraguay n a portocol for the settlement of heir boundary scrap. Steps have een taken toward the setting up of n international tribunal of nine udges--two each to be named by olivia and Paraguay and the others t the conference. Secretary Kelg acted as Chairman of the Comittee.

Just three weeks ago the initial sh occurred at Fort Vanguaria, and hat promised to be the makings of Alsace-Lorraine situation on the outhern Hemisphere is now headg toward settlement. Mr. Hughes as a member of the special comittee.

Thinking Washington is wondering day how anyone can fail to see that ithout the Army and Navy back of r efforts toward peace, we could ot exert this pacifying influence? nd so, they say, almost providential, and as a symbol of our strength a nation, Brig. Gen. McCoy comes me to us from Nicaragua, having own a tottering little nation what ndly but firm justice can do when a ctful and unaggressive armed force ands guard for fair play. Gen. Mcy says that our sturdy sea soldiers on the admiration of all factions of e people. 132,000 Nicaraguans, with disturbance, voted for President -a record vote—and thus came to ght and self-expression the wish of ore people than it was supposed ere were in the little land. And day not an embattled and embroiled country, trying to be a republic, t a real republic whose electorate s expressed itself, starts on an era tranquillity.

Those who had looked for a battle yal between the Kellogg Peace Pact d the Naval Cruiser Bill for the nter of the stage when the Senate convened were disappointed. Chairn Hale of the Naval Committee, ardian of the Cruiser Bill, and hairman Borah of the Foreign Retions Committee, the engineer of the ace Treaty, got together in true ew Year's spirit and agreed that hile Senator Hale would open the rvices with a speech on the Cruiser ll he would yield the floor to Sena Borah who would then start off e Kellogg Treaty. And it happen as agreed. As this is written the lleries are awaiting the clash beeen Borah and Reed of Missouri. nator Reed is hoping to rip into Treaty and have the time of his and Senator Moses is expecting back up Missouri Jim in this last ndstand play of the latter's fiery eer, for this session ends his Senate rs.

Incidentally, all the long-haired and short-haired women and the ld-be reformers have been sticking nd ready to storm the old Capitol inst the Naval Cruiser Bill, spesly claiming that the building of cruisers would be "provocative". ey seem to forget that, after a war begun neither the Kellogg Treaty any other treaty would effect the ition. A nation well defended is likely to be aggressively attacked. ause a city passes new and better ilance laws against fire, and its izens agree to do everything posle to stop fires, is poor excuse for ing up the city Fire Department cancelling fire insurance policies. One fact cannot be controverted— the great powers, with the exceon of the United States, are promotg and extending their defence equipments and making them keep pace with their widening commerce and growing population. Both the British and the Japanese cruiser fleets are stronger than the cruiser fleet of the United States, and thus, in total naval strength, the treaty ratio no longer exists and the United States now holds third place. Great Britian, France, Germany, Italy and Japan all built new cruisers during 1928.

World Peace is not a proposition over which the United States has complete control and it is urged that we cannot afford to risk being caught empty-handed for our own defence. Incidentally, your correspondent talked with a pacifist woman promoter who is here "with blood in her eye", and she carried quite a complete little emergency kit in her hand-bag—iodine for cuts, adhesive plaster, smelling salts for head-aches, and all the rest of it; and it was a great temtation to ask her whether these emergency provisions were not conducive to a promotion of bodily ills. But—what would have been the use? None are so blind as those who do not wish to see.

Nick Longworth spoke out on top of his Christmas dinner in opposition to an extra session of Congress or a revision of the tariff and Cordell Hull leader of Southern Democracy and erstwhile potentianl presidential candidate, with the shade of that noble tariff plank in the Houston platform hardly buried, runs true to form in a demand for lower tariffs.

Speaking of tariffs, President Coolidge gave a practical Christmas present to the farmers who grow onions all over the country. A few weeks ago, at the suggestion of the Tarriff Commission, he raised the import duties on onions from Spain and Bermuda. So that's one sample of real honest to goodness farm relief that Calvin Coolidge has handed to the farmers without bothering about the pleasure of Congress.

JOE MERRITT LETTER

As I promised in my final write-up of our trip to California, that I would talk about home, I shall give you some thoughts at this time.

There is a large percent of our own people here at home who do not realize the possibilities of the country in which they live. Too often they will tear up and make a long move trying to better their condition, and frequently they have reached the end of their journey and settled down again only to find they are confronted with conditions that hamper their chances to prosper.

After making this four thousand mile trip I am back at home content and satisfied that I am in just as good a country and among the best people in the world.

First, the resources of old Texas are inexhaustible. Texas has a total area of 265896 square miles, which is a larger area than the combined total of England, Ireland, Greece, Portugal, Austria, Belgium, Denmark and Holland. It is fifty-four thousand square miles larger than France; eighty-three thousand square miles larger than Germany. One can travel 740 miles North and South and 826 miles East and West and still be in Texas. Not only is Texas one of the richest farming states but its mineral assets are staggering in amounts. Not only in one commodity, but in almost everything. I can remember some twenty-five years ago, before the anti-gambling statute was written, that Texas bred horses would go to NewYork and Chicago and bring back the blue ribbons as the fastest horses to be found. And when we look about us we find it is so in nearly everything. Some three years ago the West Texas Chamber of Commerce prepared an agricultural exhibit and sent Mr. B. M. Whitaker with it to Philadelphia to that great exposition, and he brought back the blue ribbon on more than one entry. C. M. Largent and son have exhibited their famous Herefords at the International Fat Stock Show at Chicago and brought back the blue ribbon in every instance. I am told, that this past August there was held an international poultry show at Ardmore, Oklahoma and old Texas walked away with nearly every blue ribbon. Think of it, nearly every state in the union, Canada and England were represented there and Mr. Kettle of Dallas, took the grand championship with one of his black minorca cockerels.

If the resources of Texas were developed like some parts of the country I have seen we could almost feed and clothe the balance of the country. Why? Not because we produce one third of the cotton of the United States, more wool and mohair, more meat, more oil, rice, lumber and the finest citrus fruit to be found, with vegetables of every description. The poultry and dairy industry is just now starting to develop. If Texas was under irrigation as all of California I saw, we could take care of fifty per cent more people than we now have. If all the creeks and rivers were prepared with dams to hold the waste water millions of acres of land that are now idle, would be made to produce.

The difference between us people in Texas and those in California is we never have much to say about what we do and can do. It is different over there. If one has only a peanut stand he will have a sign, as big as a barn door, hanging out telling to the world that he is in the busines, using every means to improve his condition.

When we have such adverse conditions as that of the past year we all have to take our loss and we become more or less restless. Under such conditions people often sell out and make a bad move. Some will benefit by moving, but in my judgment, the best time to move is when things are prosperous.

I cannot believe that all the farm legislation we hear about will ever benefit the actual producer. I do believe that all things will come to them who wait, provided they are hustling while waiting. So, let us hope for a better 1929.

Respectfully submitted,
J. A. Merritt.

T. F. BAKER HERE

T. F. Baker, now of Little Rock, who was here Wednesday attending the funeral of his mother, and on yesterday visiting with friends, was for many years a leading man in this community. He was prominently identified with the Banking interests here and also with the Insurance business.

In 1914, having been elected representative of this district in the state legislature, his thorough knowledge of insurance matters at once attracted the attention of the state authorities and he was offered, and accepted, a position on the State Fire Insurance Commission.

About ten years ago the State of Arkansas, being in need of the services of an expert insurance man, prevailed upon Mr. Baker to take charge of the administration of the Insurance Laws of their state. He is now manager of the Arkansas Fire Prevention Bureau.

Although sympathizing with Mr. Baker very much, upon the sad occasion which brings him to our midst, his many friends are indeed glad to see him again.

MOVES HIS OFFICE

J. E. Sentell is moving his law office equipment from the former location over the First National Bank to a suite of rooms above the First State Bank and Trust Company, being the central location in the upper part of that building.

C. F. Sentell will maintain his office at the former location above the First National Bank, to which place he has recently moved.

The business of these two lawyers will be conducted separately in the future.

MUSIC STORE FOR SNYDER

Mr. J. D. Boyd of Lubbock has come back to Snyder and is installing a music store here.

He left here in 1918, and says he has never been satisfied anywhere else, for he likes Snyder and Snyder people. Mr. Boyd is a musician of ability, and he could not be happy in any other line of work.

ANOTHER DEATH

Mrs. Jesse Jenkins died at her home in Fort Worth and was buried in the cemetery at Hermleigh on last Wednesday. Rev. Parks, Baptist minister of Roscoe conducted the service.

Mrs. Jenkins was formerly Miss Myrtle Cross, daughter of H. B. Cross now deceased, who was an old settler in this county.

SNYDER N. F. L. A. MEET

On last Tuesday morning the annual meeting of the stock-holders of the Snyder National Farm Loan Association was held in the office of Towle and Boren. About twenty-five stock-holders were present and a number of proxies were sent in. At this time the same board of directors was named to serve another year, being: J. A. Merritt, T. E. Greer, John S. Irwin, Ralph Hicks and W. V. Jones. In the organization of the board W. V. Jones was elected President and J. A. Merritt, Vice President. The Board of Appraisers named was J. A. Merritt, Ralph Hicks and John S. Irwin.

The board for the tenth consecutive time elected A. J. Towle as Secretary-Treasurer, which is ample testimony to his efficiency in handling this big business of the finances of the farmers in the district.

Mr. Towle's books show that a total amount of loans to the amount of $2,500,000 have been placed by the Federal Land Bank of Texas on good farms in this territory, thereby enabling farmers to buy and improve lands, paying only a low rate of interest on their money and paying off the principal gradually and on long time so as to incur no hardship in doing so. Approximately seven hundred thousand of this amount has been paid off, leaving Secretary Towle to look after $1,784,004 of loans now in existence.

When Secretary Towle was elected to this place the Federal Land Bank had been doing business here only about a year, and there had been placed only about ninety thousand dollars in this territory. A remarkable growth is shown, not so much by the fact that the farmers in this territory have borrowed lots of money, but by the improved appearance of the lands. Prosperous looking farms with good farm homes dot the territory, and a further evidence of prosperity is the fact that all interest and principal then due on these loans were paid January first.

PREACHER IN LIMELIGHT

A special to the Dallas News from Washington, D. C. dated January 5th brings the announcement that Senator Morris Sheppard has presented to the senate a petition submitted by Rev. Jas. H. Tate of Fluvanna asking that a resolution be passed authorizing an amendment to the Federal Constitution to include the name of Jesus Christ in the preamble.

If this resolution should be passed, then the question will be referred to the state legislatures for ratification and if passd by a three-fourths majority the amendment would become effective. And thus a preacher would start big business.

Rev. Tate has given his ministerial life to Scurry county and his influence has always been wholesome. He identifies himself with the onward progress of his community and now his influence is spreading nationwide.

NEW EQUIPMENT FOR PALACE

Messrs. Hal Farley of Roby, Wilmont Cloud, Mrs. T. L. Lollar and Mrs. E. M. Deakins returned from Dallas Wednesday.

Mrs. Lollar purchased a synchophone which will be immediately installed at the Palace Theatre. By a happy adjustment of music to action, the theatre loving public may now enjoy the music along with the program that is adapted to the picture.

Lee grant Blocks Up Sufficient Acreage of Leases to Induce Company to Come in

Some weeks ago the T. & P. Coal and Oil Co. indicated that they would like to come into Scurry county territory if a lease could be secured of sufficient proportion and in promising territory that would interest them in drilling, so Lee Grant got busy and tied up about five thousand acres south of town and the Company indicates that the block will be taken over at once and pay out about five thousand dollars to the land owners in that section.

The T. & P. Company is one of the biggest producing companies in the country and, while it is not stated definitely with the authority of the Company, that they will put down a test well at once, it is thought that they will do so at an early date.

The same Company wants more leases, according to Mr. Grant, and he has another block of acreage he expects to tie up and turn over to them as soon as titles can be made.

Leasing is still active throughout the county, a number of well known wildcatters being in the game as well as nearly all the big Companies, and drilling is expected to become active within a short time.

DRUG STORE MOVES

Stinson Drug Store No. 2 moved this week from the southwest corner of the square to the old Grayum Drug Store stand on the west side of the square. And the fact that this stand has been occupied as a drug store for fifteen years gives it an advantage that will be important to the business and the firm that has moved in.

THE BLOODLESS BATTLE

Wiley Crowder brought to our office the other day an old copy of "The Borden Citizen" published at Gail, March 17, 1904. It gave an account of the "War of the Ribbons," or in other words a bloodless war of the land rush day.

It is claimed by the citizens that this was the latest land rush that was ever pulled off in West Texas and the undisputed champion of the world.

Following we give a partial account of the occasion given by the Citizen.

zThe "Reds" are known in all parts of West Texas as the actual settlers and the "Blues" are the stockmen and their cowboys. Hence, since the present land laws of Texas went into effect, it is always the strongest side that wins "might makes right." In other words you must have more help than the other fellow can get, if you want to take up school land in West Texas. But to proceed:

Not withstanding the fact that every one was searched by the officers and all pocket knives etc taken away from them before they were allowed to enter the scene of strife as participants, it was not a bloodless war wholly, for many and roughs were the scratches and tumbles; yet good order prevailed, and, with the exception of a few personal differences, the kindliest feelings were promoted and sustained throughout the contest.

Five sections of land come on the market on the 4th inst., and three on the 11th. Settlements had already been made on the land and the settlers had been holding the Clerk's door for two or three months. The cattlemen were none the less determined on filing their applications, so a great struggle was freely predicted—in fact was inevitable.

On Feb. 29 a large number of cow-punchers arrived in town from various parts of the country. They took in the situation at once, donned the blue ribbon and finding the enemy very weak they concluded to take advantage of the situation. Big Bob Odom, Commander in chief of the Blue army, held a short council with his chiefs and it was decided to make the attack at once. No sooner resolved than they filed into the courthouse yard and into the hall. The struggle was short. About ten minutes later they tossed the last red ribbon man out of the hall and then there went up from the Blues a yell that would have stampeded an army of apaches. But this move was probably made too soon. It gave time for reaction and the reaction came. The red ribbon boys picked themselves up out of the dust and mounting their ponies rode hard and long recruiting their forces. On the evening of the 2nd the reds were ready and charged the fort. After 20 minutes of rolling and pulling, exultant shouts and the waving of red ribbons told that the Reds had retaken the hall. The Blues did not make any effort to retake the hall, but leaving the Reds to file without any opposition they departed, fully resolved to return with sufficient force to insure the filing of their applications for the land that should come on the market on the 11th. It is estimated that 225 men participated in the pull just described.

While preparation was being made for the "pull" on the 11th excitement was running high. The Blues hired and brought out a great many men from Abilene, Colorado and Big Spring, besides a large number which they picked up in Borden, Garza and other counties north. The Reds made a pretty thorough canvass of the country and on the evening of the 9th numbered 225 men, representing ten or twelve counties. On the morning of the 9th, however, the Reds had only about 125 men while the Blues claimed 175. At 10 a. m. on the 9th these forces clashed. There was guying, grunting and gnashing of teeth for a short time after which there was a blue ribbon demonstration. But this demonstration was not to last long. The Reds were continually coming in, and every detachment served to decrease the faith of the late victorions army. The Reds were more than 200 strong when on the afternoon of the 9th Red Rogers, the Commander, lined them up for action.

The enemy had about one-third of its force stationed in the hall of the courthouse and the remainder just outside the hall.

The attackting army was composed of three divisions, also. The first two divisions were to engage those who guarded the entrance. The reserve force, composed of the third division, was to leap the breastworks (composed only of heaps of struggling humanity), and take the fort. Events transpired as per arrangements and everything went off on schedule time. The Red Ribbons Reserves charged the hall at the opportune moment and the climax of the struggle was soon reached. Outside the main body of each army was scuffling, rolling and tumbling. A few less fond of such active sport, compromised with members of the opposing army, and thus paired, they locked arms and retreated to what they considered a more respectable distance where they watched with interest as the battle raged. In the hall the Red Ribbon Reserves and the Blue Giants were fiercely struggling for supremacy. For a few moments none of the results of this conflict were visible to the outsiders, but very soon the Blues were outnumbered, broken up and demoralized and the Reds began to put them out. Apparently no mode had been prescribed for this feature of the fight, much to the annoyance and discomfort of the Blues who were now being pulled out, snaked out, filled out, backed out, scrouged out, talked out, led out pushed out, tossed out and turned out. Neither was there any precaution exercised as to what particular portion of the enemy's anatomy should first collide with terra firma. The Blues were ousted in just 15 minutes, and though they were completely defeated it was made possible only through the fact that they were outnumbered. They conducted themselves well and bore their defeat manfully, even heroically, and won the applause and admiration, not only of the spectators, but of their opponents as well, withal they have no obvious cause to regret their endeavor.

Red Burnett, the Scurry county leader of the "Reds" was here in all his glory, with a young army and did some very effective work with his boys.

Those participating in the land rush from Scurry County were: John Summers, Fred Miller, P. A. Miller, C. M. N. Jennings, W. F. Daley, S. N. Cade, J. E. Janes, J. F. Clawson, J. A. Scrivner, Sterling Lane, Dick Stokes, Tom Leach, Orbie Setcher, John Williams, Clyde Fairly Charley, Harless, Jim Harless, Oscar Smith, Tom Cary, C. D. Weems, J. J. Weems, Ira T. Mathews, J. K. How to Attain Perfect Figure

By RING LARDNER

To the Editor:

Pretty near every place you go nowdays where they's a mixed gathering, the people that ain't talking about Mr. Coolidge's coat is disgusting their diet and how to get fat or thin especially the last named and whenever you walk in anywheres where the hostess don't expect no Co. you generally always can find a book on the living rm. table on how to get skinny and etc. so it seems like this is the most important problem outside the Yap questions, and the women folks is all spending hundreds of dollars on books that will learn them how to not look much like a group.

Obesity begins at home like everything else and what I am getting at is that the only people who can learn you how to reduce or build up is people that did it themselfs and is normal and can tell you what they done to get that way. Like for inst. you would not go to Babe Ruth for beauty hints like no more than you would ask Lillian Gish which cheek to park your tobacco in vs. a left hander.

Well, friends, I don't like to brag, but it looks like they wasn't nobody better fitted to give advice on the fat and lean question than the undersigned and if I can be of any assistance to my friends that is worried about their weigts why I'll overlook my prejudice in regards to bareing secrets of my private life and sacrifice myself on the altar of pro bono publico.

Lest there be any doubts as to my qualifications along these lines, why here's the figures by which a person finds out how much they should ought to weigh according to their higth. Multiply the number of inches you are over 5 ft. tall by 5½ and then add that to 110. Well friends I am 13½ inches over 5 ft tall and multiply 13½ by 5½ and you get 74¼ and when you add that on to 110 it makes 184¼ avordupois which is exactly where I tip the old beam. In other words my weigt is ideal like pretty near everything else.

"How does the boy do it," you ask.

"Well, friends, I am going to lay all my cards on the table and tell you the system I generally always follow in regards to diet and exercise and if my fat and skinny friends will also try and follow out a similar program, I don't see why not they shouldn't also get to be perfect.

First we will take eating. I generally always eat in a rm. where they's a riot. I try and get to meals on time as I prefer my own napkin. I always set in a straight back chair and face east. I never talk t meals as when I talk I like to be heard. I never accept no invitations to meals at nobody's house unless I already been there and know that mine host is a good provider.

Now in regards to exercises, I never let nobody feed me and I always dress and undress myself. I always shave standing up. Shaveing three or four times per week is enough to keep the jowls supple, but if I find I'm a couple oz. overweigt I shave every day and reduce the flesh on the neck. In brushing the hair I can also generally manage to lose a little.

When the door bell rings I always walk, not run, to the nearest exit.

In the morning I always snatch the paper to quicken the eye. I hold it myself and turn the pages myself. When I see that my thumbs is getting too fat I roll my own cigarettes and I always smoke plenty of them as they's no exercise that brings more muscles into play than coughing and tossing in bed.

I always wash my hands before retiring and my face when necessary, though one of my friends says it is silly to wash your face when you go to bed as they won't nobody be likely to see if its dirty or clean and it's just as foolish to wash it when you get up as you ain't been anywheres to get it soiled. But do it 2 or 3 times per wk. anyway to reduce the soap.

Batheing as exercise depends on what kind of a tub you got. The madam picked mine out and bought it by the front ft. and I guess we must have been pretty near broke at the time. Anyway when I have took a bath I generally always feel like challenging Tunney.

I go to bed pretty near every night at 9 or 10 o'clock but once in a while somebody comes in to play cards and I take setting up exercises. I generally manage to lose a little this way.

But if a person really wants to limit their diet I don't know of any better scheme than to buy a car or take up golf. In a short while you won't be ordering no wheres near as much grocerys or if you do the grocery won't send them. But as for golf itself making a person thin or fat it depends on who you are playing with. Most of the boys I play with is so rapped up in their own game that I can generally take off a couple of strokes.

Personally it seems kind of funny to me why there should be so many people worring these days about getting stout when they can't nobody only a white wings or a bell hop afford to eat anything but roots and herbs. They must be something besides food that makes people bulge out. Maybe they's some truth in the old saying "Laugh and grow fat" and the combination of income tax and telephone service is too much for us.

THEY WANT TO KNOW

We have had two letters this week from subscribers asking us to tell who in Snyder, if any, are afflicted with "Villageitis." We are not sure yet who here is afflicted, but we'll find out in time and promise to advise the public, but in the meantime anybody can spot them. Villageitis is a disease caused by the cultivation of an inferiority complex in a man of a dwarfed mentality, and a symptom most prominent is fear of competition in business and an occasional spasm of talking during which he will indicate that he objects to two newspapers in Snyder because two papers will build the town faster and as the town builds he will have more competition in business.

With the announcement of Giles Garner's poultry program others have come to more seriously consider the poultry colony project, there will be no difficulty encountered in putting the proposition over with local farmers. And besides the farmers who are interested there are local business men who realize that they can make more money with less worry by getting out of the mercantile business and into the poultry business and they are planning to work about a change. But when there are a hundred or two hundred poultry raisers in the vicinity of Snyder business will be better and the business man will prosper along with the agricultural interests of the community and everything will be lovely all around. The merchant might not make as great a success on the poultry farm as he will make with his store under the new prosperity and if he is not afflicted with villageitis it may be well for him to stick with his business.

We ask the readers and friends of the News to carefully observe the advertisements appearing if the paper each week. In Central Texas where half the land formerly planted to cotton has been turned to feed and pasture for milk cows the farmers are still producing about the same amount of cotton from half the acreage and it's all velvet because they make all the cash required throughout the year from their cows. By rotation of feed, pasture and cotton the land has been brought back to its former richness and the rot eliminated to such extent that half the acreage now produces as much as the full acreage produced a few years ago in cotton. Verily, we live and learn.

Good Morning, how's your fill?

"HOOVER A GREAT MAN"

Herbert Hoover is not only a president, but he is a plumber as well. He is author of the plumbing code used by the federal government, most of the State governments and numerous cities and towns.

The Master Plumbers Association endorses the "Hoover Code". We have a copy of it in our office; come in and look it over. Snyder would do well to adopt it. "The Best is always Best."

MAKING GOOD

Homer Jenkins who recently sold out his stock and quit the grocery business simply because he was not making enough money to please his ambition, opened a little cafe and proceeded to serve the public with the same old smile. And his place is so nifty and clean that it is really attractive and the public approves with a liberal patronage. But Homer would succeed in any line of work.

CAPITAL SOCIAL FESTIVITIES

By Ethel Syford, Special Correspondent of Helm News Service

Washington, D. C.—Old Saint Nicholas must have sneaked into the nation's capital in an airplane after having parked his reindeers somewhere along the way, for the cheeriest Christmas in Washington for years was nevertheless a snowless one and the day was as balmy and sunshiny and the sky as blue as the picture postcards paint it. It was a real out-of-doors Christmas.

There was also evidence that 'Coolidge prosperity' and Mellon financing were not myths. Never has the holiday spirit been gayer and never has the Christmas buying been heavier. In fact the District went on the greatest buying spree ever.

Speaking of seasonable gaiety, a 'coming out' tea for a cabinet bud commanded the attention of all social, executive and diplomatic Washington last week. I refer to the party given at the Mayflower Hotel by Secretary and Mrs. Jardine for their daughter, Marion. She is the only cabinet bud of the season, and Mrs. Coolidge and the President's entire cabinet and their ladies came to do the Jardines honor, and turned the event into an ovation.

Your correspondent knows of no woman in public life whose graciousnes and simple sincerity and charm equals that of Grace Coolidge, but ventures that a throng in chorus would echo that second to Mrs. Coolidge; Mrs. Jardine is most admired and most beloved.

Mrs. Jardine and Marion and her cousin, Miss Ruth Nebeker, formed a receiving line in front of a tall latticed white screen with flowers arranged as though they grew out of it. Blue lights were thrown at the base of the screen and there were piles of flowers and pots of poinsettas and baskets o roses and chrysanthemums everywhere. The side walls were almost entirely lined with flowers. At each end of the two large connecting tables were huge mounds of scarlet carnations and ferns, and along the center gracefully arranged were baskets of poinsettas And on the table was every good thing to eat that one could imagine at a tea- little cocoanut cakes, large cakes, Christmasey cookies, all kinds of little sandwiches cut in strange and interesting shapes, nuts, candies, candied orange peel, coffee and tea.

Men may claim that they do not like to go to teas but it was quite noticeable that at this tea the men thoroughly enjoyed themselves and it was their wives who had to tear them away. The scene was remarkable for its gajety, and the Secretary proved an admirable host. He mingled with the guests and introduced them to one another, danced with the ladies and was most genial.

Mrs. Jardine wore an afternoon gown of black chiffon over pale pink lace, and to her left was pinned a trailing bunch of orchids and lilies of the valley. Marion's gown was beautiful in its girlish simplicity--of oyster white chiffon and just a little touch of Alencon lace. Its front was full and shirred on each shoulder. The skirt was short but with long flowing draperies. She carried the lovely nosegay bouquet of pink roses in their nest of lace paper which the President and Mrs. Coolidge sent to her. Her cousin Ruth wore a gown of amethyst chiffon and lace.

Mrs. Coolidge had been to visit her mother in Northampton, Mass. who had been ill for so long, but knowing how much it would mean to Marion to have her come to her party, Mrs. Coolidge had written Mrs. Jardine a little note,a few days before, saying that she would go back to Washington in time for the party. And at about five-thirty she came. Mrs. Kellogg and Mrs. New, who had presided at the tea table for some time, with Secretary Jardine met Mrs. Coolidge at the door on her arrival. She looked beaming and lovely. She wore a white dress and a sealskin coat with wide white fox fur collar and deep cuffs, and a very becoming little hat covered with embroidered silver cloth, with a little spray of silver holly leaves and having tiny red berries on the brim of its right side; her silver slippers were of the same embroidered cloth.

The Secretary escorted her around among the tea tables after she had lingered for quite a time speaking with Mrs. Jardine and Marion, and she chatted interestedly as those who knew her almost gave her a little reception of her own. Your correspondent noticed how hearty and sincere her hand's grasp was, and how earnest her eyes and how cheery her smile, and how she said something sincere and fitting to each friend; and it was apparent what a real First Lady she is-- an example for the mothers as well as the daughters of the nation.

Mrs. Kellogg was radiant in an afternoon costume of burgundy red velvet, and Mrs. New wore a chic costume of black satin, with a black satin hat having a little drooping brim and a sparkly pin. Mrs. Edward Gann, Senator Curtis' sister, took Mrs. Kellogg's place at the tea table for a while. She wore a garnet red velvet dress and hat of the same color. Mrs. James J. Davis helped also, and looked very smart in a black cloth dress, and a hat of black the crown of which was made of strips of soft black felt faggoted together. Mme. Peter, wife of the Minister from Switzerland, also assisted and wore a wine red chiffon afternoon dress and small black felt hat. Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh was fairly resplendent in a dress of gold lace with emerald green velvet draperies, and two extremely long bar pins, one on each side,-- almost like shoulder straps of crystals and emeralds,-- and a hat of gold lace and emerald velvet.

The Assistant Secretary of War, Col. Charles Burton Robbins, who had given a lovely tea for his two debutante daughters Anne and Julia only a few days ago, was there with them both. When I spoke to him he was with Julia and said he had mislaid Anne, but I noticed her in a violet velvet gown with flaring flounces and a tiny violet velvet hat, dancing and merry and anything but mislaid.

Thus social Washington wends its way through the holidays and toward the inauguration.

When completed, it will be a nifty arrangement and a vast improvement over the old manner of handling both hides and cream up in the open front.

TEXANS! let's talk Texas

—and make 1929 the most active year Texas has ever experienced

THIS IS an appeal to every Texan to study closely and understand thoroughly the possibilities of his state, and to pass on this understanding to every person with whom he comes in contact, so that everyone who seeks a location for a home, an office or a factory will know exactly what Texas has to offer him. Then Texas will ascend to her just place of leadership. But we must talk Texas---all the time.

Manufacturing must move to the doorways of large markets, where raw material, favorable transportation facilities, taxes and labor supply combine with abundant and economical electric power to afford ideal locations.

Texas cities and towns served by this Company supply each of these needs for a host of industries, but, since physical advantages do not always determine the selection of industrial locations, certain other vital things must be thrown into the balance.

Sound exploitation must be persistently used. The manner in which Texas tells its story will determine its industrial accomplishments in 1929.

The Texas Electric Service Company, employing several hundreds of Texas men and women, endeavors to give each of them a clear conception of the natural resources of Texas and to impress upon them the importance of their development. Basically the purpose of this Company is to render an electric service to a large number of Texas cities and towns.

Having done this, and having charted courses of growth that anticipate vast developments in the Texas of tomorrow, this Company feels that its duty to Texas extends still deeper. Therefore it is telling the story of Texas' advantages to industries through the use of paid advertising in sectional and national trade magazines. The purpose of this advertising is to stimulate the movement of industries to Texas.

TEXANS LET'S TALK TEXAS

For many years the Texas Electric Service Company has worked not only to serve an appreciative public but to help build a greater State.

Texans! Let's make 1929 the greatest year of sound development Texas has ever had.

On Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 6 the girls of the Third H. E. Class under the direction of Miss Engle, served a tea to the P. T. A.

The dining room of the H. E. Dept. was attractively decorated in a green and white color scheme. The dining table was adorned with a beautiful lace cover, while on the buffet silver bon-bon dishes with delicious candies rested.

The guests were greeted by two charming hostesses, Misses Naoma Busby and Bamma Cayce. A delicious two course luncheon was served by Misses Juanita Darby and Hazel Cauble. About forty guests called.

GOOD MAN GONE

R. T. Hailey, a well known land mark of Scurry county, is no more. He passed away in seemingly painless sleep at 1:30 A. M. Wednesday. If he had lived until April 6th he would have been ninety-three years of age.

He leaves his aged wife and twelve living children of the fifteen which were born into the home, together with numerous other collateral kindred, and a host of warm friends to mourn his departure.

Seven of the children were with him in his last hours, being: George P. Hailey, Chico; Mrs. Ernest Johns, Chico; Mrs. F. E. Ingram, Abilene; Will T. Hailey, Colorado; Mrs. J. B. Holcomb, Snyder; Tom Hailey, Ira and Mrs. H. R. Amos, Dunn. The other children who were detained at home on account of illness are: J. R. Hailey, Chico; Mrs. Albert Jackson, Alva, Okla.; Mrs. J. W. Hughes, Kansas City, Kansas and Mrs. Ed Kirkham, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Mrs. Hailey, wife of the deceased was a victim of the flu at the time of her husband's death. Accordingly, for her benefit, a short service was held at the home, on yesterday afternoon at one o'clock. Bro. W. M. Speck spoke words of comfort and later preached a sermon at the First Christian church where a large concourse of friends viewd the remains of the honored dead. Interment was had in the Ira Cemetery.

Bro. Hailey had been a minister in the Church of Christ. He had filled places of responsibility and trust and in each capacity he served he exemplified the beauties of Christian principals and an honest purpose. For a number of years he served as commissioner of the Ira and Dunn Precinct. He lives on in the hearts of those who loved him.

SENIOR A PICNIC

On January 4, 1929, the Senior A Class had an all day picnic. The jolly crowd left the high school building at 8:30 A. M. and arrived at the old Lon Smith ranch house at 9:30.

After warming the class voted to go hiking. All enjoyed the scenery except Vera, who did not like the bear-grass.

Whew! How hungry that class was when they returned to the house, where, as some of the gang termed it, "an elephant of a feast awaited them." After lunch, with the floor as tables, forty-two was played.

At 2:30 P. M. the photographers urged the class members to pose for some pictures. Later the merry group started for home and arrived at home at 3:45 P. M.

There were no serious accidents except when our Loretta got upon the house and could not get down.

HOUSE BURNED

J. A. McKinney of the Dunn Community was in town Wednesday making up a purse to rebuild the home of Mr. Whitt Farmer which was totally destroyed by fire on last Sunday morning at about 10:00 A. M.

The origin of the fire was evidently a defective flue in the living room. Mrs. Farmer who was the only one at home, was in the kitchen preparing dinner and was not apprised of the fire until it had made such headway that there was no chance of putting it out or even saving anything of consequence.

Neighbors living near by were called and came immediately, but the flames had enveloped the whole building. A mattress, a few quilts and an empty trunk were all that could be saved.

The house was a three room structure and was uninsured.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Mrs. Allen Warren, President; Mrs. J. C. Dorward, First Vice President; Mrs. C. E. Fish, Second Vice President; Mrs. Nelson Dunn, Recording Secretary; Mrs. W. T. Raibon, Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. W. M. Scott, Treasurer.

EXTENSION COURSE STARTS

Through the untiring efforts of our capable County Superintendent, A. A. Bullock, Snyder is to have an extension course from the Technological College, which will open for instruction at the high school auditorium next Saturday, and continue on consecutive Saturdays for a term of twelve weeks.

Mr. McDonald, head of the Extension Department will be here Saturday bringing with him a teacher, who will have charge of the course.

Twenty-three students have enrolled to take work in the one subject to be taught, which will be Education. Two and a half hour periods will be conducted, and when the course is completed it will count as a one third unit college course.

Some four or five other towns around the college have the privilege of these Extension courses, Snyder being the most outlying town.

It is to be hoped that this course will strengthen interest in college work at home, and that a larger enrollment and more subjects offered may be the outcome.

MRS. CARMACK DEAD

Mrs. W. A. Carmack died at the family home five miles South of Hermleigh, last Thursday. She was buried at Hermleigh. She left a husband and eight children, all of them grown. She was about sixty-one years of age.

W. D. REYNOLDS DEAD

W. D. Reynolds, well known West Texan, and capitalist died at his home in Fort Worth a few days ago.

Mr. Reynolds came to Shackleford county when but a baby and has been identified with the growth of that part of the country, having made a fortune in the land and cattle business, and a name as well for his philanthropic use of his means.

Together with his brother, Geo. T. Reynolds, a partnership known as the Reynolds Cattle Company, was formed which grew in proportions until it had acquired 150,000 acres of land, and large herds of fine Hereford cattle were raised and marketed.

He was the father of Nathan Reynolds, who lives on the 9R Reynolds ranch west of town.

HEART TROUBLE

A traveling man, by the name of J. P. Miller, in passing through Snyder Monday afternoon was almost overcome by a heart attack. He was accompanied by his sister. Upon arriving at Stinson Drug Co. No. 2, he alighted hurriedly and called for assistance. He was removed to the Emergency Hospital, and restoratives were administered. His wife, who lives in Fort Worth was called and she, together with her brother M.r C. M. Long of Yampa, Colorado, arrived in Snyder early Tuesday morning. The patient has revivied and is getting along quite nicely under the attention of our capable physician and his able corps of nurses in charge.

GOOD MILK

A reporter in conversation with Mrs. T. J. Gassaway, is informed that they recently had the milk of the Snyder Dairy tested at Abilene, and that it ranked in the highest notch, being graded 6. Grade 4 is said to be the standard grade for milk, while grade 6 is superior and of the highest rank. The milk furnished by the Snyder Dairy is rich in butter fat, the dairy herd being high grade jersey cows.

Song Popular Among Rovers of Caribbean

The sea-song of the pirates with its weird refrain of "Fifteen men on the dead man's chest" which Robert Louis Stevenson introduces into his famous book "Treasure Island" is in part at least authentic and was sung by the pirates and buccaneers who roved the Caribbean sea in the late Seventeenth and early Eighteenth centuries. Dead Man's Chest was an island of the Virgin group, which has been christened "Dead Man's Island," thereby losing much of its piratical flavor. To this island the pirates used to repair, to careen their ships, stretch their legs, drink rum, sing their buccaneering songs and make merry after their own fashion. Curiously enough there is a little church on the Chilean coast which is obviously built of ship's timbers. Recently a traveler of an inquiring mind, reasoning that if the church were built of ship's timbers, the bell would also come from a ship, determined to investigate. A climb among the rafters did not reveal the name of the ship, as he had hoped, but around the edge of the bell were inscribed the words: "Fifteen men on the dead man's chest." All that the clergyman knew was that the church bell came from a ship that was wrecked in 1722, which was just the time when the West Indies were getting hot for pirates, and many were being driven into the Pacific.

Odd Forms of Prayer for Parching Fields

Many countries hold odd ceremonies to end drought. The Chinese take their dragon god around in procession and beat him soundly when he ignores their prayers for rain. The Bantus of Delagoa bay sing songs at their dried-up wells and make mothers who have twins carry the children around the parched fields. In Greece they send children marching round all the wells and springs, under the leadership of a girl adorned with flowers, who sings at each halting place. The same custom prevails in Yugo-Slavia, where a little girl called the Dodola is clothed from head to foot in grass and flowers, and leads her companions through their native village, stopping at each house, so that the housewife may pour a pail of water over her and singing the good news that the rain has come, even though it is usually far away.

"Traveling Stones"

"Traveling stones," from the size of a pea to 6 inches in diameter, are found in Nevada. When distributed upon a floor or other level surface within 2 or 3 feet of one another they immediately begin to travel toward a common center, and there lie huddled like a clutch of eggs in a nest.

A single stone, removed to a distance of 3½ feet, upon being released, at once started with a wonderful and somewhat comical celerity to join its fellows.

These queer stones are found in regions that are comparatively level and little more than bare rock. Scattered over this barren region are little basins, from a few feet to a rod or two in diameter, and it is in the bottom of these that the rolling stones are found.

The cause for the strange conduct of these stones is doubtless to be found in the material of which they are composed, which appears to be lodestone or magnetic iron ore.

Considerate of Mother

Bobbie had just been cleaned up for the afternoon. As it was raining his mother told him not to go off the porch and get his feet wet. Some time later she missed him, and going to the door she called. A neighbor answered, saying Bobbie was at her house and she would like to have him stay. Bobbie's mother explained that he was not to leave the porch, and so he must come home at once. A minute later in came Bobbie with a stick in his hand.

"Here, mother," called Bobbie, "I brought you this stick so you wouldn't get your feet wet."

"Chowder" Really French

Chowders, although considered American, did not originate in America. They are supposed to have been made first by the fisher folk of Brittany. For them, every one in the village brought their contribution for the dish and added it to the common cauldron and the name "chowder" comes from the name of their cauldron, which was "chaudiere." Our early colonists learned this dish from the French and so chowders are associated with the history of New England and are thus linked with America in general.

Valuable Hardwood

Birch is Canada's most important hardwood. Of the seven Canadian species, the yellow birch (Betula lutea) and the paper birch (Betula alba or papirifera) are the best known. The former is used for flooring, furniture, cabinet work, and vehicle stock, while the tough, resinous bark of the latter has supplied the aborigines for centuries with the material for covering their famous birch-bark canoes.

Not Mated.

Billy was very much excited over the arrival of a new baby brother and spread the news all over the neighborhood.

"Does he look like you?" asked the corner groceryman, trying to be sociable with one of his best penny customers.

Billy thought it over for a few moments and then replied seriously: "Oh, no, he is a much deeper shade than I am."

THE WHIPPET

Finger-Tip Control

The most Notable Advance in Driving Convenience Since the Self-Starter

The ingenious "finger-tip control"—the most notable advance in driving convenience since the self-starter—is one of the outstanding features of the Superior Whippet.

A single button conveniently located in the center of the steering wheel, controls all the functions of starting the motor, sounding the horn and operating the lights.

This fundamental improvement does away with all troublesome foot-fumbling for the starter button, a frequent source of annoyance, particularly to women drivers. It is a distinct safety factor in night driving since the driver has absolute control of his lights at all times without removing his hand from the steering wheel.

While this new feature will be welcomed by everyone, it has a special appeal to women drivers.

Call in and let us explain the simple operation of this new Whippet feature
