

While it's not a regular feature of this column to forecast weather, this seems like a good time to predict rain.

This prediction is based, not on sound meteorology data, but on the premise that it always rains just before dove season.

And the drier the year, just when you think every bird in the country will be watering at the few remaining water holes, then the rains are general enough to produce watering holes every hundred yards.

Coinciding with the opening of dove season is also the beginning of football season.

We now have Thursday night football, (7th, 8th, Freshman, and Junior Varsity) Friday night football, (High School) at least two televised college games on Saturday, two or more televised pro games on Sunday, and Monday night football.

Apparently due to popular demand (created by the bird hunters desire to enjoy some football during the season) the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has again set legal shooting hours for morning dove at one half hour before sunrise to sunset.

This scheduling allows the combination bird hunter/football fan to hunt dove in the mornings five days a week and two days in the afternoon and still enjoy up to ten football games a week.

A couple of minor problems may result from strict adherence to the above schedule.

The first problem is that some employers may not understand all those dove feathers floating around the office when you come running in a few minutes late after an early morning hunt.

Another problem is wives who can't understand the need from watching ten football games in a week for ten or fifteen weeks.

Chamber Of Commerce Forecasting Good News For Haskell Area Economy

BY JERRY JENNINGS

At no time in history, has the old adage, "No news is good news" been more appropriate than now. It seems that everytime you turn on the television or open a newspaper, you discover new ways in which the world is rapidly crumbling around you.

From every corner of the globe come documented indepth videotaped reports which declare that the human race is going to "you know where" and will arrive at 6:01 P.M. Central Standard Time. (Persons on the west coast will arrive two hours later due to the difference in time zones.)

Each news story seems to begin with, "If you think that was bad, wait until you hear this!" The detailed disasters, turmoils and atrocities appear so imminent that you are almost afraid to switch on your porchlight at night for fear of what you may find happening in your frontyard.

Before you don your combat fatigues, load the family musket and finish the foxhole in your livingroom, you should be informed that not everyone believes our town is on the verge of collapse. In fact, although Haskell is besieged by drought, inflation, recession and sundry evils, there are some who are actually optimistic about our situation.

These people proclaim that times of adversity are times of challenge. They have scouted the problems which face us and are convinced that this is no time for retreat. They believe that our greatest enemy is our own pessimism.

They realize that we cannot solve all of the world's problems but they are determined to improve our small spot on the globe. They declare that it is still possible to create a community where peace and prosperity abound.

They believe that Haskell can be such a community. They are eager for our town to move forward and achieve its full potential.

These positive and progressive people are known as the Haskell Chamber of Commerce. They have joined forces because they believe that their goals can be more easily attained through unified efforts. They maintain that cooperation, coordination, communication and promotion are the keys to the responsible growth and development of our community.

Members of the Chamber are advocates of a new math which says that 1+1=3. They know that a coalition of business, industry and agriculture will produce much greater results than any one of these segments alone.

They believe that the personal and financial support they give to the Chamber is not an obligation but an investment. They know that this investment will be compounded by the efforts of others and will pay dividends to everyone in the community.

The Directors of the Chamber realize that the growth of Haskell must be accompanied by growth of the Chamber. If the organization is to expand its efforts, it must also expand its resources.

The Haskell Chamber of Commerce is eagerly seeking people who are committed to the improvement of our community. On September 1, it will begin a drive to enroll these people as members of the Chamber. All interested persons are cordially invited to hang up their muskets, ignore the voices of doom and join the Chamber's effort to ensure that "Haskell's news" is good news!

DPS Urging Safe Labor Day Holiday

Major C. W. Bell, Regional Commander of the DPS said, "The Texas Department of Public Safety is preparing to save lives and prevent injuries on the Texas Highways this Labor Day. Are you planning to do the same?"

"If a Labor Day trip is on your schedule, plan ahead. Know your route and where the turn-offs are located. This is especially important on the interstate highways. Turning suddenly from the wrong lane, or trying to get back to a missed turn-off can be fatal. What the grim total will be this weekend depends on each driver, each passenger and each pedestrian in this state," he said. The DPS has predicted that 45 persons may die during the holiday period.

The main hazards in Texas, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety, are driving too fast for conditions and the drinking driver. Drivers frequently overlook the fact that weather, traffic and road conditions dictate safe speed. The condition of the driver is often over looked when returning from a party. It is best to obtain a sober driver for the trip home.

The DPS will be out on the highways in full force this Labor Day, so remember to separate the bottle from the throttle and drive 55 to stay alive. It is a law we can all live with!

Brossman, Kemp United In Double Ring Ceremony

Kemberly Kay Kemp of Haskell and Pherl Eugene Brossman of Houston, were united in marriage Saturday evening at 8 o'clock p.m., August 23, 1980, in a candlelight ceremony at the First United Methodist Church in Haskell. Reverend H.O. Abbott, of Sweetwater performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William James Kemp of Haskell and the groom is the son of Colonel and Mrs. Pherl Vincent Brossman of Seguin.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. The brides wedding gown was an original gown by Phyllis for Bianchi. Her gown was of silk organza and lace in candlelight. The fitted bodice of re-embroidered Alencon lace, from France, had a Queen Anne neckline and long tapered sleeves. Tiny seed pearls traced the pattern of the lace. Her bias skirt was a deep Band of Alencon lace embellished with pearls and plates had back fullness and fell into a chapel train. A mini Juliet cap of lace held her long veil of imported English illusion and lace was repeated around the veil. The bride carried a cascade of bridal pink roses, gardenias, gypsophila, stephanotis and English ivy. For something old the bride carried a lace handkerchief belonging to her great aunt, Mrs. Paul Hackbarth. For something new she wore her new gown. For something borrowed she wore her grandmother Kemp's diamond watch. She wore a blue garter, a gift from Mrs. Janice O'Neal, and a lucky sapphire in her shoe, a gift from Mrs.

MRS. PHERL EUGENE BROSSMAN
...formerly Kemberly Kay Kemp

W.A. Lyles.

Mrs. Kenneth Lane, of Haskell, was the organist and played the traditional "Bridal Chorus" as the processional and the "Wedding March" as the recessional. Miss Mona Bledsoe, of Haskell, was the pianist and accompanied Mr. Brian Burgess as he sang "Longer" and "The Wedding Song." Mrs. Lane and Miss Bledsoe played duets of traditional and current love songs as the prelude to the ceremony. William James Kemp, III, of Amarillo, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. He wore a black tux, a white tux shirt with a pink sweetheart rose boutonniere.

Miss Sandra Jean Lindley of Houston was maid of honor. Matron of honor was Mrs. William James Kemp, Jr., of Amarillo, sister-in-law of the bride. Bridal attendants were Miss Diane Klippel of San Marcos, Miss Cynthia Sue Thomas and Mrs. Jimmy Tidwell of Haskell. All the attendants wore identical long dresses of chiffon in Rosette pink. The blouson bodice with portrait neckline had butterfly sleeves and a softly gathered skirt, floor length. They carried Colonial bouquets of pink sweetheart roses, button pom-poms, stephanotis, daisies and gypsophila showered with candlelight ribbon.

Mr. Denny Brossman of Lubbock was his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Mr. James Ehrman of Houston, Mr. Mike McGee of Seguin, Mr. Jeff Selig of Stewart, Florida, and Dr. William James Kemp Jr., of Amarillo, brother of the bride. The groom and his attendants wore black tux with white shirts, the groom's boutonniere was a pink rose with babies breath taken from the bride's bouquet. The groom's attendants boutonnieres were pink roses.

Ushering the mothers were Dr. William James Kemp, Jr., and Mr. Denny Brossman. Ushers seating guests were Mr. Mickey Ables, Mr. Don Leonard, Mr. Mark Chambers and Mr. Carlton Spears.

The bride's mother wore a floor length chiffon dress in midnight rose. The camisole of the blouson top was enhanced with shiffley embroidery and the embroidery was repeated on the long bishop sleeves. The groom's mother selected to wear a peach and ivory chiffon full length, layered, dress with elbow length cape sleeves and high neckline. Both mothers wore a white orchid corsage.

Both fathers wore black tux, white tux shirts with a white rose boutonniere.

Mrs. Giles Kemp of Haskell, grandmother of the bride, wore a Mike Beret Original in beige chiffon with a full skirt. Her chiffon capelet drapes lightly over the bodice and arms and flows down the back. The sequin and pearl motif accents the front bodice and holds the soft panel that swings to the hemline. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Following the ceremony the parents of the bride hosted the reception at the Haskell Country Club. Guests were registered by Miss Jill Adkins of Haskell and Miss Ann Burst of Houston.

The church and reception decorations were done by Mr. Lewis Patello, A.I.S.D., of Lubbock. The church was centered with an altar arrangement of mixed white summer flowers. Flanked on either side and behind the altar were arched candelabrum holding cathedral length pillar candles and woodwardia fern. The Bride's

New School Year Brings Old Memories

BY GINA JENNINGS

Although it was rapidly getting hot under clear, blue skies and seemed a typical morning preview of another blistering summer day, Monday, August 25, was special.

It was the first day of school for Haskell students and traditional sights were in evidence all around—

A perspiring 6 year-old tramped proudly down the street in a pair of stiff denim jeans and an unseasonably warm long-sleeved shirt. A forgotten sales tag waving behind his collar like a tiny flag, he shifted his bulging satchel and ignored the heat...

A mother and her small daughter walked silently to a bright red schoolroom door. Construction paper leaves in autumn colors taped to the door wrestled softly against the wind. On one of the leaves was printed the daughter's name. Young eyes sparkled with the excitement of new beginnings. A mother's eyes sparkled with the tears of the first letting go...

Two fresh and pretty high school girls walked briskly down the hallowed halls chatting excitedly. Two high school boys gave them their full attention as they passed.

Time passes, yet some things never change.

For Nelda Lane, mother of Kim, Kiersta, Shannon, Shawn and Matt Lane (all school age) the first morning of school roared through like a freight train. With all five children getting ready for school, the house was filled with the combined wailing of several blow dryers competing for air time with a couple of stereos and the television set.

Her kids charged out in shifts—7:00, 7:30, 8:00—until at last the house was silent. Yet sitting amidst the golden stillness (the kind of stillness only a mother of five could truly appreciate) she admitted that even with all the excitement, the day held a hint of sadness for her.

"It seems like this time of year shows up the passage of time," she reflected. She recalled her own tears the first time she left her youngest child at kindergarten several years ago. Those same feelings were present in most mothers on Monday morning. Those kinds of things never change.

For the children, that initial day continues to be a thrill. Kindergarten teacher Shirley Sloan said she didn't have even one weepy student this year, although she did admit to some shakey mothers.

"They were so excited about everything. They wanted to use all their supplies the first day," she laughed. But that was no surprise...it's the same way every year, she explained.

The students sparkled. Pressed, polished and combed perfectly in a classic back-to-school look that has been around for years.

And what did the children themselves say about it all?

I interrupted the ecstatic chattering and giggling of some elementary school children to ask them that very question.

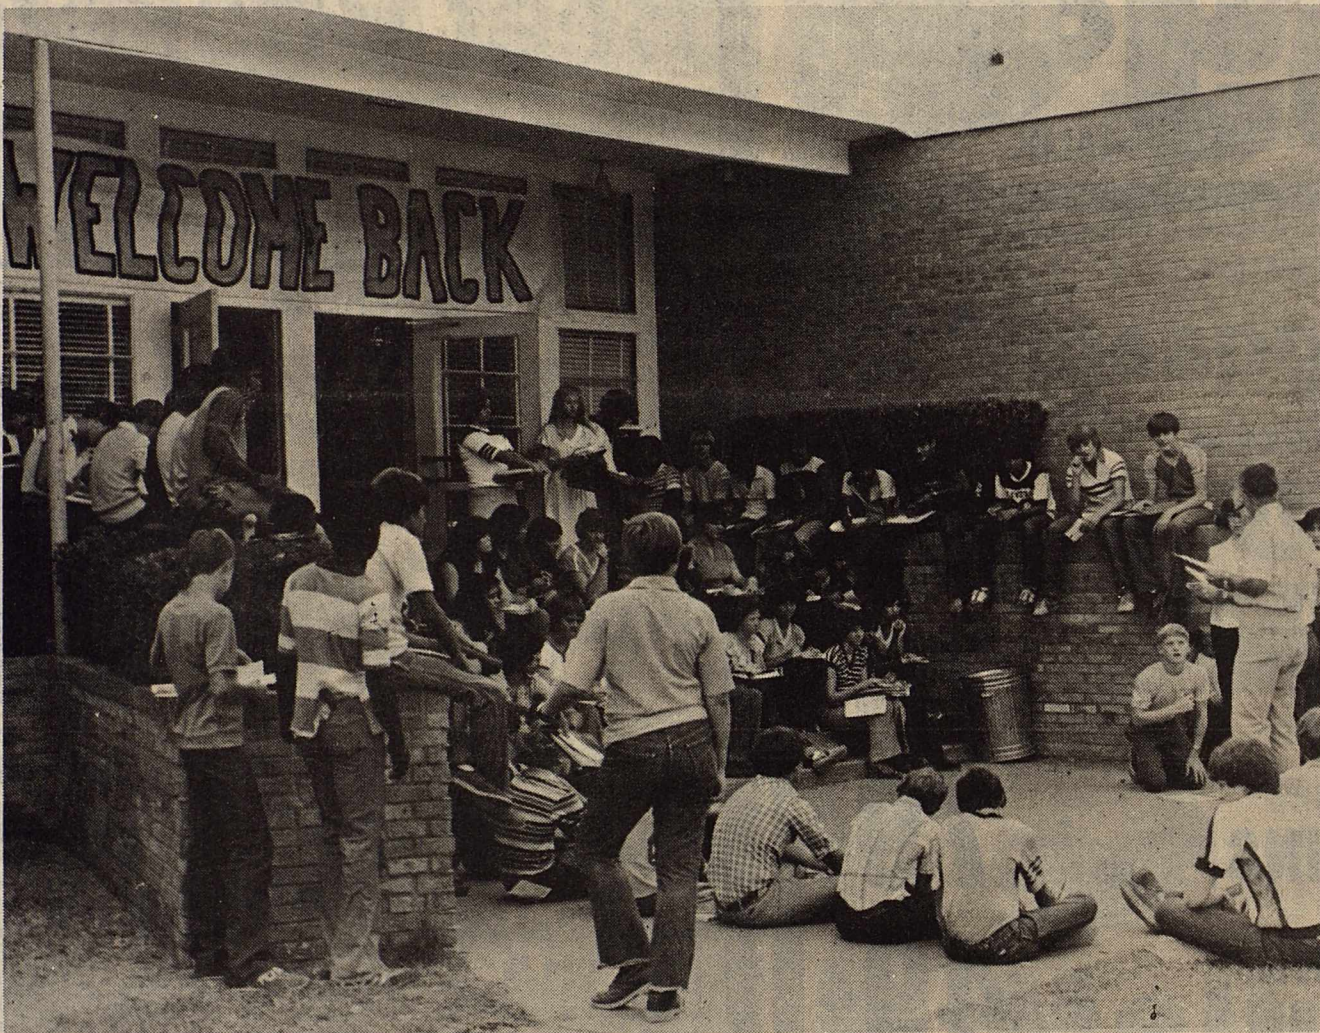

Quickly, their animated laughter subsided and they were at once very non-challant...very 'cool.' "M-m-m-m, it's okay," they shrugged.

Some things never change.

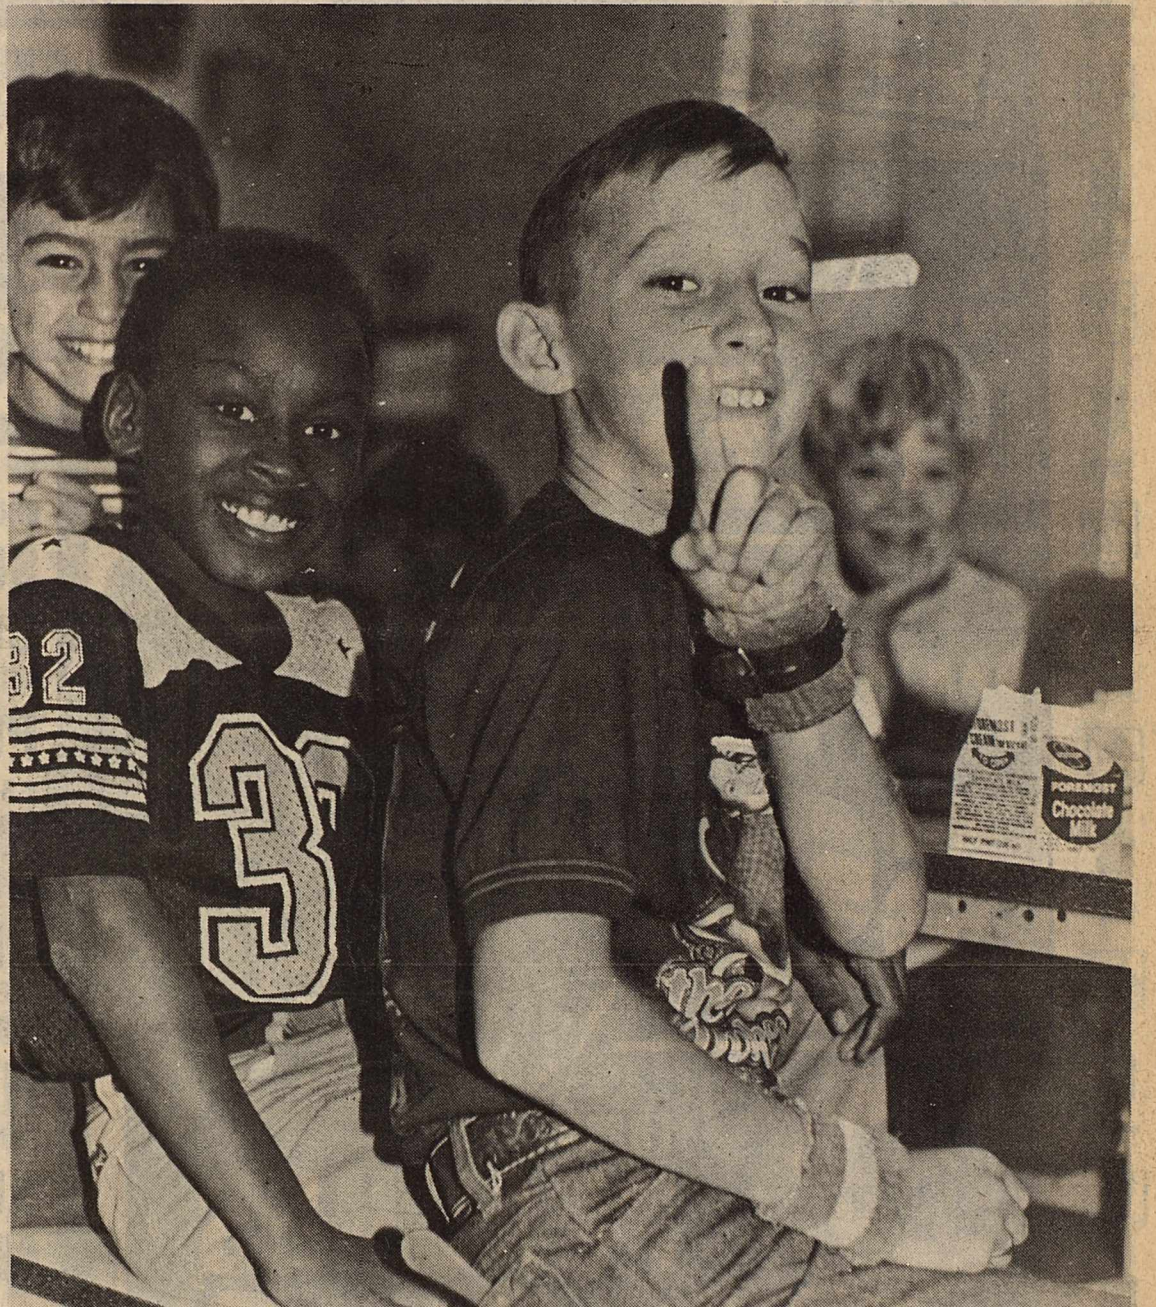

Elementary students ready to charge the playground—no energy shortage here.

Peach Tree Damage Worsened By Drought

Many peach trees because of the drought are in poor condition. These peach trees must be protected from borers to prevent excessive damage and to get them in good condition for fruit production.

In Haskell County there are three borers, two moths and a beetle, which attack peach trees and can directly or indirectly destroy them. The moth's are the peachtree borer and the lesser peachtree borer and the beetle is the shothole borer.

The peachtree borer and the lesser peachtree borer feed on the cambium and inner bark. The peachtree borer feeds at or below the soil line and the lesser peachtree feeds above the ground line in the trunk and limbs. Peachtree borer moths, are active from late May through September and the lesser peachtree borer moths are active from February through September. Peachtree borers complete a generation each year while a high percentage of lesser peachtree borers complete two generations annually.

The damage caused by the peachtree borer often goes unnoticed because the larvae confines their feeding activity to the lower tree trunk near the soil line. Peach tree borer larvae are capable of girdling the trunk resulting in the trees death. Even if the tree is not girdled it will be devitalized and more susceptible to damage by other insects and diseases.

Lesser peachtree borers often attack trees that have been damaged by peachtree borers. Trees that are in good condition are not frequently attacked by lesser peachtree borers. Insecticide applied for other insect pests also help prevent attack from the lesser peachtree borer. Gum and frass exudes from holes in the trunk and limbs caused by the lesser peachtree borer.

Shothole borers only attack peach trees that are in very poor condition. The small beetles which are 1/10 inch long tunnel into the bark making small holes. Several small holes are often observed in a group. Under the bark the beetles construct tunnels 1 to 2 inches long which run parallel to the grain of the wood. Galleries radiating from these tunnels are made by the developing shothole borer larvae that hatched from eggs deposited along the central gallery.

Damage caused by the shothole borer and the lesser peachtree borer is best controlled by keeping trees in healthy growing condition. Pruning out weakened or dead limbs also aids in their control.

The use of paradichlorobenzene crystals (PDB) mixed with dormant oil during the dormant season for lesser peachtree borer control is discussed in L-1329, "Suggestions for Controlling Insects and Diseases on Commercial Peaches and Plums." This publication is available at your County Extension Agent's office and it also contains information on the materials that can be used for peachtree borer control.

Lorsban 4E® is only available to the commercial grower for control of peachtree borers. It is sold only in five gallon cans. PDB and Thiodon® should be used by the individual who has a few trees. Treatment with Lorsban® should be made during August or September and PDB should be applied between October 20 and November 15 when the soil is dry and the soil temperature is 55°F or above. To avoid damage to the tree PDB should be applied according to the directions given on the label.

Lindane is also available for control of the peachtree borer. This material can be used anytime but it would be most effective if applied in August or September. It is to be applied only to the trunk not to the foliage or fruit.

Control of the peachtree borer can greatly lengthen the life of peach trees and result in a stronger tree which can better resist attack from the lesser peachtree borer and the shot hole borer.

Skunks Cause Rabies Increase

COLLEGE STATION — Skunks, which already account for three-fourths of all rabies cases in Texas, seem to be spreading the disease at an alarming rate to horses and cattle as well as pets, says a Texas A&M University researcher.

For the first five months of 1980, rabies cases in the state are 10 to 15 percent ahead of the same time last year, previously the worst on record.

Despite widespread appeals for people to vaccinate pets and avoid contact with skunks, rabies has continued to be one of the largest health problems overall because of the skunk population and its ability to tolerate mankind's encroachment, said Dr. Leon Russell, professor of veterinary public health.

"They are ornery little beasts. They can live in culverts, under a porch or in a storage shed," said Russell. And although skunks can adapt to city life, some of their natural enemies — coyotes, bobcats, and foxes — have a harder time doing so.

Superintendent's Views

BY JAMES LANIER
Superintendent, Haskell ISD

Inservice is completed for the teachers and staff. Several people have inquired just what is the purpose of inservice.

Approximately 10 years ago, the legislature extended the school year to 180 days plus 10 days for inservice. This has since been changed to 175 school days plus 5 inservice and 3 teacher work-days.

Inservice was established to give teachers time to hear and experience new trends in education, to make long range plans and to develop new teaching skills. In rural areas, this has often been frustrating simply because people to serve as resource people were not available. Ideally, inservice should be a time where teachers can acquire new ideas and training in new skills. However, not all inservice has provided this training for all people.

The inservice schedule for Haskell ISD for this coming school year has been a busy one. On Monday, the teachers and staff had a general faculty meeting where introductions were made, the objectives for the coming year were discussed and a state of the district talk was given by the Superintendent. Also, the results of the TERS tests were gone over thoroughly and discussion was held as to how to use these results in planning and organizing course content. Next on the agenda for Monday was building faculty conducted by the principals. The rest of the day was devoted to departmental and grade level meetings for planning and organizational purposes.

On Tuesday, the majority of the teachers and staff journeyed to Rochester. The main thrust of this meeting was a section on stress and ways to improve reading performance.

Wednesday, the majority of the teachers sojourned to Sweetwater where we attended various department sessions where people with expertise gave us some new insights.

Thursday, we were back in Haskell for a session with Ray Simmons from the Educational Service Center in which we begin the task of writing PLO's (performance learning objectives) to improve the direction and overall scope and sequence of the curriculum.

Friday was a teacher work-day which was used for teacher preparation, new teacher orientation and student registration. We hope this week accomplished the spirit and purpose of inservice.

We will try to profile our new teachers at a later date. We simply list them at this time. We would welcome the public to come to school and get acquainted with the new additions to our staff. The new staff members and assignments are as follows:

Frank Pulattie, High School Principal; Clayton Neal, Junior High Principal; Bill Blakley, Elementary Principal (re-assigned from High School Principal); Jill Druessedow, High School English & Journalism; Ralph Armstrong, High School Math; Berry Crudgington, Band; Glenda Drinnon, Spanish & Speech; Catheryn Jones, Library; Calvin Powers, Vocational Agriculture; Betty Sadberry, Home Economics & Lunch-room Supervisor; Jimmy Dan Raughton, Coach & Jr. High Health; Lena Armstrong, Special Ed; Lynda Burris, Jr. High Reading & Spelling; Peggy Payne, Elementary Special Ed; Viola Sims, Elementary Physical Ed; Kay Neal, Title I Aide; Virginia Barrera, Special Ed Aide.

Infant Stimulation Program To Start

BY GINA JENNINGS
While the spotlight this week is on the school youngsters beginning a new year, next week another program will be getting underway for an even younger set of students.

Beginning September 4, children ages 0-3 will be able to start their own learning program at the Haskell Training Center under the enthusiastic direction of Mrs. Mary Jennings, assisted by puppet 'P. Mooney' and a host of other delightful characters. Although these 'mini-students' will be busy playing games, listening to stories, talking with puppets and generally having fun, Mrs. Jennings points out that each activity will be a learning experience. "We have five areas we try to cover," she explains, "adaptive behavior-teaching children to adjust to their environment; gross motor coordination such as walking and skipping; fine motor skills like eye-hand coordination; language; and social interaction."

She stresses that the things children learn in the program help tremendously when a child begins his formal schooling later. "Teachers can tell just exactly which children have been to pre-school programs when they start kindergarten," she says.

With the aid of colorful educational toys, books and games, Mrs. Jennings is able to help even the youngest children increase their abilities. They will learn more about following instructions, listening and interacting with other children. While enjoying themselves, tots are learning basic skills which will form an important base for later education.

Mrs. Jennings also points out that each child's visits are individually scheduled for the convenience of parents. The length of the visits will also be determined according to the individual child's needs and abilities.

The program is offered free of charge to all children ages 3 and under.

Fifteen students enjoyed the program last year and the pre-school teacher hopes for more students this year. Eager to have more community children involved in the program, she emphasizes, "The sooner a child begins, the more success you'll see as he gets older."

Anyone interested in the program should contact Mrs. Mary Jennings at 864-3622 between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

Honor Grandparents Sept. 7

The Sunday following Labor Day was designated as National Grandparents Day in a bill signed by President Carter in 1978. It is a special day to remember some special folks—whether they are grandparents within the family or elderly outside the family.

Since this is a relatively "new day" for honoring and remembering grandparents, we all need to jot September 7, 1980, down on our calendars and take the time to celebrate and commemorate. How? Anyway you choose. If you are out of ideas, consider the following:

- invite grandparents or other elderly, and possibly a few of their friends, to breakfast, brunch, lunch, or dinner at your home.
- make something special for a grandparents such as one of their favorite foods or a handcrafted item.
- take grandparents on a picnic.

- if you live far away, send a singing telegram, mailgram, candygram, flowers, card, or letter-or make a telephone call.
- ask grandparents how they would like to celebrate the day.

Whatever you do, remember to make plans to celebrate National Grandparents Day with some of your favorite elderly people.

ALIEN PHILOSOPHY

With about a million illegal aliens sneaking into the country each year, it seems likely the Border Patrol would intensify its efforts to stem the tide. However, when they do, no one seems to appreciate it. Because the aliens claim their "civil rights" are "violated" (yes, even illegal aliens have civil rights), the Justice Department decided to crack down on suspected violators within the Immigration and Naturalization Service. They did this by sending undercover agents into Mexico and instructing them to attempt to penetrate the border. They did, got caught, and, when they put up a fuss, they got clobbered by the border guards. Result: indictments for two border patrolmen and charges placed against a third.

NEW SYSTEM

The Haskell Volunteer Fire Department has received a cascade system to refill air bottles used during fires. The system was donated in memory of Howard Perry by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swinson. The new system will allow local firemen to refill bottles on air packs which previously had to be taken to Abilene or Wichita Falls. Shown with the new system are: (l to r) Chief Tom Watson, Fire Marshall Chester Hodgkin, and Secretary John Watson.

Allen To Kickoff Round-Up

When cowboy movie star Rex Allen said "I do" to the idea of an annual West Texas telethon to help the handicapped, it was almost like a marriage made in heaven. The veteran of the silver screen soon became the public spokesman for the West Texas Rehabilitation Center and its subsidiary, the annual Cattleman's Round-Up for Crippled Children.

Rex Allen is returning to the land of "his roots" on Sept. 6th when the 21st annual Cattleman's Round-Up for Crippled Children Kick-off Barbecue debuts near San Angelo.

"My daddy grew up at Robert Lee and until he died he always talked about the good life around San Angelo," commented Allen.

"I am looking forward to coming down on the Concho River."

WTRC executive director Shelley V. Smith went to San Antonio about 20 years ago while Allen was performing at the fat stock show rodeo and they talked about the Rehab Center. From that meeting the telethon was born and the CRCC program enhanced.

"Rex Allen is our national honorary chairman for the Cattleman's Round-Up," said Smith. "He talks the cowboy's language."

CRCC directors, area and county chairmen, and livestock donors from across West Texas have been invited to the evening with Rex Allen at the Hollihan Acres, one mile east of Mertzon on Highway 67. The CRCC Kick-off event is hosted by Jerry Stokes, the Handy Packing Company, and Hollihan Friends.

USDA Soil Conservation Service

Conservation Viewpoints

Welcome new cooperators.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Haskell Soil and Water Conservation District Board of Directors on August 20, new cooperative agreements were approved for Bobby J. West of Rochester, 488 acres; Tom V. Alvis of Southland and Bobby Lush of Rule, 154 acres; Philip Josselet of Haskell, 84 acres (Brown Farm); W.H. McBroom of Haskell, 188 acres (Florence Westenhover Farm); James R. Crawford of Haskell, 308 acres (J.R. Davis Farm); and Tim Burson of Haskell, 175 acres (Morris Farm).

Great Plains Conservation Program contracts with Leroy Casey of Rule, 747 acres and Haynes Partners, Dr. Harry Haynes, Administrator, Stamford, 402 acres were reviewed by the Board prior to sending them to the SCS State Office in Temple for certification of funds.

A G.P.C.P. contract on Don

Cobb has been certified for funding, and Cobb has already started working on cross fencing and other conservation work planned in the contract.

Applications for assistance under the GPCP were received and reviewed by the Board on the Kainers Farms, J.D. Kupatt of Rule, Operator; Van W. Sedberry of Rule; and Willie Buerger of Haskell. Preparation of contracts are now in process for these applicants as well as for G.W. Lefevre of Sagerton.

Extreme drought conditions are prevalent in the Haskell SWCD at the present time. Livestock producers and ranchers are advised to be very attentive to their available forage resources. Native pastures are not growing now, and are insufficient for too heavy stocking. Care should be taken not to overgraze, not only native ranges, but also improved pastures of Klein-grass, bermudagrass and other species. Overgrazing now will not only be a deterrent to native grasslands and improved pastures, but will be extremely costly in years ahead.

Overuse now will take several years of understocking and deferred grazing in order for grasslands to make restoration to its potential carrying capacity.

Any rancher or livestock farmer interested in determining what conditions his grassland is presently in may request SCS assistance. We will be glad to help analyze forage resources and range conditions with you, and assist you in making a determination of how much forage you have left for the future months. There are still eight or nine months before the 1981 growing season starts. Even good rains in the very near future will be too late to help because we are too near the end of the present growing season.
