Yanks Roam Skies, Dare Japs To Fight

Stars-Stripes Raised Over Berlin Ruins

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERLIN, July 4. — The American flag was raised over Berlin today in the same blood-stained barracks square where Adolf Hitler's enemies were purged in mass executions by the Gestapo 11 years ago.

Outside the parade grounds of Hitler's own elite body of guards, Berlin lay in ruins, almost destroyed in the war Nazism brought to Germany. The capital's sullen, subdued people lined up for food and labored in long work-lines.

Sides Soviet Flag

The raising of the Stars and Stripes symbolized the partial occupation of Berlin by the U. S. Army. Old Glory went up beside the Red flag of the Soviet Union.

Turning the American occupation zone over to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the U. S. 12th Army group, the Russian commander of Berlin, Maj. Gen. Nikolai N. Barinov, said:

"The raising of the American flag side by side with that of the Soviet Union symbolizes not only the unity of the past but in a greater sense the further fight against fascism and for democracy."

Reply Terse And Brief

In brief, terse sentences, Bradley replied:

"This victory is made possible by all working together. Hope our close relationship will continue so that never again will it be necessary to conquer any nation as was necessary in the case of Germany, which desired to rule her neighbors."

The huge Adolf Hitler parade ground was jammed with troops. With Bradley was Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, commander of the U. S. First Airborne Army, who has been named American commander of Berlin, and French Commander Maj. Gen. Geoffrey de Beauchesne.

The honor guards were an infantry battalion commanded by Lt. Gen. Robert F. Brockman, of Ind., of the U. S. Second Armored division, and a Russian Berlin guards battalion under Maj. Vassily Demchenko, Soviet hero who forced the crossing the Dnepr river.

In a well-modulated voice, stocky Gen. Barinov turned the American zone over to Bradley and Parks and, paying tribute to American aid to Russia, said that the "Soviet Union always felt gratitude for the help given by the United States."

Quiet Holiday Observed Here

Lubbock experienced another quiet, well-behaved Fourth of July Wednesday, unmarred by major mishap.

Even the weather was reserved. Precipitation, although it would have been much welcomed, was nil and temperatures were moderate.

Lacking special events to attend, most people stayed at home or stretched out on the cool grass of Mackenzie park. Business and professional doors with few exceptions were closed. Police reported traffic light throughout the city.

Imbibers Are Few

Obnoxious imbibers were at a premium. Up to 9 o'clock last night police had jailed but one drunk, the sheriff's office none.

But at Levelland, where a rodeo attracted thousands, some soldiers drank too heavily, and a squad of military police had to be sent there to keep them under control.

Police investigated a handful of wrecks. Hershel L. Baker, 18, of Lubbock route 5, received a lacerated lip, a cut on the left elbow and several bruises in a collision at 9:55 o'clock yesterday morning near Nineteenth and Ave. U. Police said the drivers were Baker and Waldo W. McCoy, 17, of 311 Ave. W. McCoy, they said, was unable to steer his car back into the right lane in time to avoid colliding with Baker's car, coming from the opposite direction.

Two Mexicans Picked Up

Police picked up two "crazy" Mexicans. One man, 45, had locked the door of his hotel room and had shoved a dresser against it. Police, acting on a tip from a negro porter, managed to persuade the suspect to "come out." The other, 20, on "parole" to his parents from an insane institution, was arrested after he attempted to steal an automobile. J. W. Morris, of Lubbock route 2, owner of the machine, and officers chased the suspect down in the Arnett-Benson addition.

Firemen had not answered a single alarm, they said late last night.

Other Nations Newly Freed Join Yanks In Independence Day Fetes

(By The Associated Press)

FRIENDLY young Americans serving in far-flung lands celebrated America's Independence day with a gusto sparked in many of these nations by their own newly-won freedom.

There were fireworks, dances and parades — from Berlin to Canberra — but behind it all was the solemn reminder sounded in Britain by United States Ambassador John G. Winant that "we have much to be grateful for today—but the war is not yet ended."

"When I was asked two years ago what kind of world lies ahead, I suggested that our faith and our future then rested with the soldiers of democracy," Winant told the American Society in London. "Already our debt to them can never be effaced. We carry on only as debtors to the generous and the brave."

In the United States, millions of persons gave up traditional holiday trips in response to government stay-at-home pleas. The bureau of labor statistics estimated that the work of those who went to their war plant jobs would make up time lost by strikes since Pearl Harbor.

New Rochelle, N. Y., made a citizen out of its onetime resident, Thomas Paine, the Revolutionary war patriot who was denied the right to vote 139 years ago on grounds that he was not an American citizen.

Dade county, Georgia, "rejoined" the United States, officially ending, with pageant and oratory, a legend that it seceded individually from the union in 1860 and never rescinded the action.

The President, in a Fourth of July statement, had expressed confidence that "under Providence, we soon may crush the enemy in the Pacific." He spent the day working at his desk.

The famous flags that were raised on Iwo Jima were hoisted at New York's Eternal Light, honoring the dead of World war I, and patients from Army hospitals were among the thousands at an American Legion show at Chicago's Soldier field.

"Our boys can win victories on the battlefield but they cannot overcome civilian selfishness at home," Lt. Gov. John Lee Smith said in an Independence day address at Galveston.

The ceremony at which he spoke —a flag raising at El Mina Shrine Temple — was one of many occurrences by which Texas cities marked this fourth of July.

From Nathan Adams, state chairman of the War Finance committee of Texas, came an appeal to "start a victory march on this Independence day — a march from your home, office, factory or farm, to the nearest issuing agent" and buy E bonds to meet the state's quota.

After checking latest official tabulations Adams concluded that Texas had a fighting chance of making its "E" quota. Sales jumped Tuesday $8,917,500 for a total of $145,512,281.25. The quota is $168,000,000.

Business houses, banks, state, and county offices closed in most cities. Many war industries continued in operation.

Jap Diet Lists Grow Stringent

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4 (AP) —Dried fishheads and leaves of withered vegetables, powdered, make "wonderful food," the ration-short Japanese people were advised today as the imperial cabinet met to consider Nippon's slimming waist line.

Following up Premier Kantaro Suzuki's advice that potato vines and mulberry leaves "can be eaten by making them into powder," radio Tokyo picked up the ball in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communication commission and offered the fishhead menu.

Food Future Dark

"Judging from the present state of affairs, in which the war situation is worse than ever, the future of the food situation absolutely does not permit of optimism," the radio said.

Despite the growing shortage of edibles on the home islands, the people were assurd that Minister Tadaatsu Ishiguro "who is responsible for the present food policy, feels responsibility from the bottom of his heart and is saying he will make all kinds of effort and devote all of his strength to improving the situation."

Nevertheless, the Japanese "must produce by our own efforts and make up for the shortage" . . . "what we lack in distributed food."

Slash In Rations

Premier Suzuki yesterday announced a 10 per cent cut in staple food rations, effective generally on July 11 and in the major cities on Aug. 11 to remain until new crops are harvested in October.

Today, the cabinet adopted measures to increase salt production and distribution to the people and announced that "the government will further devise an unrestricted relief measure and promote to the utmost the increase in production of secondary food.

"Thus complete counter measures (against the food shortage) demanded by the government have been devised."

Vote Set Today On Iron Works Walkout

HOUSTON, July 4 (AP) — Some 450 members of AFL Local 12 of the International Association of Machinists on a walkout at the Cameron Iron Works here, will decide in a meeting tomorrow whether to return to work, A. H. Houser, business representative of the union, said today.

Houser said that at the meeting, to be held at 2 p. m., he would ask the men to return to work pending an election on the question of a bargaining agency. The entire Cameron works was shut down today because of the July 4 holiday.

JOHN CURTIN

John Curtin Of Australia Dies

CANBERRA, Thursday, July 5. (AP) — Prime Minister John Curtin died in his sleep at 4 a. m. today.

The death of the prime minister, who had been ill for some time with a recurring lung ailment and heart condition, was announced here by acting Prime Minister Francis Forde.

His illness had prevented his attending the United Nations conference at San Francisco.

War Taxed His Strength

Forde said yesterday that like President Roosevelt, Curtin had drawn heavily upon his waning strength in prosecuting the war and in seeking the peace.

Curtin's doctors had advised him to take a year's rest last year when he was stricken with a grave heart condition, but he stuck to the job.

Last April, a recurring lung congestion complicated his condition and forced him to return to a hospital. Announcement that his condition was deteriorating came this week.

Curtin was the son of a police officer. He was born at Creswick, a small gold mining town in Victoria, and early in life associated himself with the Australian trade union movement.

He edited the Worker, official paper of the Labor party in West Australia, before entering politics.

Was At Labor Conference

In 1924 Curtin represented Australia at the conference of the international labor office at Geneva, Switzerland. Four years later he was elected to the Australian House of Representatives, remaining in office until defeat at a general election in 1931.

Curtin was elected to the House from the Fremantle, western Australia, district again in 1934 and in October, 1935, became leader of the Labor party, automatically

Japs Sink Two U. S. Destroyers

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP) — Two of the Navy's newer destroyers, the Twiggs and William D. Porter, were sunk by Japanese aerial attack during the latter phases of the Okinawa campaign, with a total of 244 casualties.

Loss of the 2,050-ton vessels had been previously announced but their names were not disclosed until today's Navy announcement.

Dive Bomber Gets Porter

The Porter, victim of a Japanese suicide dive bomber, sank three hours after being hit on the morning of June 10 and escaped with light casualties. Of her wartime compliment of between 300 and 350 men, 61 were wounded, and only a comparatively few of those seriously. There was none killed or reported missing.

Her sister ship, the Twiggs, was lost on the evening of June 16 in a surprise attack which came so suddenly survivors were unable to say with certainty what hit them. Later evidence indicated it was a torpedo dropped by the attacking plane which swept suddenly out of the night sky.

The ship's bow was broken off by the explosion and all the officers were killed or disabled by injuries. Command of the vessel fell to Chief Pharmacist's Mate Joseph E. Deworocki, Long Beach, Calif.

Aiding Shore Barrage

The Twiggs was participating in shore bombardment in support of ground troops closing in on Japanese bottled up on the southern tip of Okinawa when the fatal blow came.

"We were preparing to fire," Deworocki reported. "It was shortly after 8 o'clock in the evening. I suddenly heard the noise of a plane, looked up and saw what looked like a red ball zoom over the bow, swish, like that. A few seconds later there was a ter-

Nine Airmen Die In Collision Of Bombers

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 4 (AP) —Nine airmen were killed and six injured when two Liberator bombers collided at Abbotsford station during night flying operations, it was announced today by the Western Air command.

All 15 were members of the RAF training at the Abbotsford station 35 miles southeast of Vancouver. The collision occurred about 2:35 a. m. e.w.t today. Condition of the six injured was reported as "satisfactory."

The 15 comprised the complete crews of the two huge bombers.

Western Air command said no further details would be announced immediately.

Next-of-kin have been notified.

Russia Asks Place At Paris Conference

MOSCOW, July 4. (AP)—A well informed diplomat said today that Russia would participate in the Paris conference on restoration of Tangier to its pre-war international status.

The Russians have been insisting that they should be represented, along with the British, French and Americans, at the meeting, which was scheduled to open yesterday. No formal meetings were held today.

An editorial in the newspaper Izvestia said Russia had asked a postponement of the conference so she could participate.

Half Million Japs Die In Philippines

(By The Associated Press)

MANILA, Thursday, July 5— The "entire Philippine islands are now liberated and the Philippine campaigns can be regarded as virtually closed," Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Summarizing the campaign which began last October at Leyte, MacArthur said the Japanese employed 23 divisions—approximately 450,000 men—which "were practically annihilated."

A spokesman said that the 250-day campaign cost the American Army 54,000 in killed, wounded and missing. The figure did not include Marine or naval casualties.

30,000 Remain Alive

Best estimates are that of the 450,000 enemy soldiers, 30,000 remain alive, but they are scattered and widely separated. They range from small bands foraging for food to pockets of several thousand.

MacArthur, whose heart was close to the Philippines operation because he had to take leave of the islands while they were being occupied by the Japanese invaders in 1942, reported:

"Some minor isolated action of a guerrilla nature in the practically uninhabited mountain ranges may occasionally persist, but this great land mass of 115,600 square miles with a population of 17,000,000 is now freed of the invader."

Only 17 Yank Divisions

Against elements of 23 Japanese divisions, MacArthur said he sent 17 divisions and cited it as "one of the rare instances when in a long campaign a ground force superior in numbers was entirely destroyed by a numerically inferior opponent."

In the victory, MacArthur's communique gave credit to all arms —the Navy, which in battles "reduced the Japanese Navy to practically impotence" and the air forces, which "seriously crippled" the enemy's air potential.

"Working in complete unison," he added, "the three services inflicted the greatest disaster ever sustained by Japanese arms."

Primary Objectives

MacArthur said the objectives of the Philippines campaign were six fold:

1. To pierce the enemy's center so as to divide him into north and south—the homeland on the north, the captured Pacific possessions on the south. Each half could then be enveloped and attacked in turn.

2. The acquisition of a great land, sea and air base for future operations comparable to the British islands in the war against Germany.

3. A stangulating air and sea blockade to prevent raw materials being sent to Japan, and supplies or reinforcements to the south.

4. The liberation of the Philippines, with the consequent collapse of the enemy's imperial concept of a Greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere, and the reintroduction of democracy in the Far East.

5. The liberation of captured officers and men and internees.

6. To strike a crippling blow to the Japanese Army, Navy and Air force.

All Accomplished

Said MacArthur: "All these purposes were accomplished."

In the current ground operations, the communique announced that the 37th Infantry division Tuesday occupied Gonzaga, on Luzon's north coast 23 miles east of the port of Aparri. Other advances were made in the mountains to the southwest, where sizeable enemy forces are pocketed.

By best estimates here, 12,000 Japanese are scattered through the wilds of southernmost Mindanao island; 5,000 are in the central islands: 11,000 are holed up in wild crags and nonproductive jungles of north Luzon and the other 2,000 are in the Marakina watershed east of Manila.

J. J. Loy, 'Father Of Grayson County' Dies

SHERMAN, July 4 (AP)—Jake J. Loy, Grayson county judge for 13 years, died today. He was ill of a heart ailment complicated by pneumonia.

Known in North Texas as "the father of Grayson county," Loy came to the county in 1909 as an employe of the Katy railroad. He was elected to the state House of Representatives in 1926, and state senator in 1930.

Loy was a former president of the National Association of County officials and of the Texas County Judges and Commissioners association. He was survived by his widow.

Laugh After Meal Blamed For Death

PRINCE RUPERT, B. C., July 4 (AP)—A coroner's jury decided that a hearty laugh over a dinner-table joke led to the death of Charles Biehl, 60.

"Biehl's stomach was filled with food and created a pressure on his heart, which caused it to stop beating when he leaned forward during his laugh," Coroner R. E. Coleman testified.

AUSSIES ADVANCE ON BORNEO—Capturing the burning heart of Balikpapan, pier installations and gasoline plants on the third day of their invasion, Australian troops are pushing forward on Borneo in two columns, one on the city, and the other toward Balikpapan's rich oil fields.

Aussies Smash Into Heart Of Fire-Ruined Balikpapan

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

MANILA, Thursday, July 5 — The blazing heart of Balikpapan's central town area, including seven waterfront pier installations and gasoline cracking plants, was captured by the Australians Tuesday, third day of the invasion, headquarters disclosed today.

"For all practical purposes the oil port is in Allied hands," reported Associated Press correspondent Russell Brines in a July 4 field dispatch from the invasion scene.

He said American Army engineers on the day sailed aboard two small craft into Balikpapan bay, the first Allied craft there since 1941, moving up to Japanese-built pontoon wharves.

"Contrasting with the desolation of the land, the bay is mostly an expanse of calm water, with only a few sunken ships protruding," Brines added.

The Dutch-installed Pandasari refineries, largely in ruins due to intense Allied attacks, were being steadily enveloped at the north extremity of the city.

Sharp Swing On Flank

Sir Leslie Morshead's Seventh Australian Infantry division made a sharp swing around the left flank in hard fighting through Monday and Tuesday to seize Tokong, or Signal Hill, then swept down the bluffs upon the bomb and shell-wrecked skeletons of oil storage tanks and masses of pipes.

More than 60 per cent of the towns was destroyed before the troops were put ashore. Three days of intense bombardment and artillery fire by Aussie 25-pounders added to the devastation.

Hard fighting still was under way in the center of the eight-mile-long east Borneo beachhead. The Aussies gained high ground 500 yards northeast of hill 99 and fought off a savage enemy counterattack.

Other ridge positions a mile east of hill 99 also were secured. Enemy machinegun fire and intermittent shelling of the invasion beach continues on a slackening scale.

On the right flank of the beachhead, other Aussies gained two miles to reach a point within four miles of the big, two-runway Manggar airdrome. They met moderate opposition from small arms and machinegun fire as they approached the little Batakan river.

The ultimate objective of this force was the Samarinda oil fields, 48 miles beyond the airdrome. These wells feed the refineries of Balikpapan.

Jap Planes On Ground Smashed

MANILA, Thursday, July 5 (AP) Fifth Air force Liberators, escorted by Mustangs, spilled 4,200 20-pound fragmentation bombs Monday on Formosa's Toyhara airdrome, among the heaviest concentration of enemy fighter planes spotted there in months, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

More than 20 enemy fighters were caught on the ground. Formosa's airfields have taken such a daily blasting that it has been unsafe for the Nipponese to keep planes bunched on any of them.

Fires In All Areas

Small fires burned in all areas where planes are dispersed at Toyohara.

Java, brought within fighter range of Allied planes by the invasion of Balikpapan, was attacked by seven Royal Australian Air force Liberators. They struck four airfields.

The Southwest Pacific air arm, extending southward in power from the Philippines, also lashed the Oelin and Tobanio fields of South Borneo and air bases on Dutch Celebes in support of the Balikpapan invasion.

Headquarters disclosed that on D-day, Sunday, at Balikpapan, more than 20 RAAF Liberators joined 100 planes of the 13th and Fifth U. S. Air forces in supporting ground operations. The next day more than 50 missions were flown by heavy, medium and fighter bombers of the 13th. One RAAF Liberator was lost but its crew was rescued.

A Fifth Air force Liberator sank a Japanese freighter, estimated at from 5,500 to 7,500 tons, Tuesday off Shanghai, China.

Also operating off the Asiatic coast, a pair of Navy Mariners damaged 10 enemy barges and a junk off Amoy. A Seventh Fleet Privateer pounced on 10 small freighters taking on cargo at Kuantan, destroying one and setting two more afire.

An Army Liberator set new fires with incendiary bombs at the previously hit small arms plant at Canton.

DIXIE FLYER WRECKED

TALBOTTON, Ga., July 4. (AP) —The all-steel, streamlined Dixie Flyer en route from Chicago to Miami collided headon with a local passenger train today and approximately 25 persons were injured, most of them slightly.

July Fourth Is Gala Day For Airmen

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUAM, Thursday, July 5.—More than 150 Mustang fighters of the U. S. Seventh Army Air force roamed at will yesterday over hundreds of square miles of Japan, shooting up six airfields around Tokyo the same day 500 Superfortresses set mammoth fires in four homeland cities with 3,000 tons of fire bombs.

One Mustang squadron vainly broadcast an hour-long invitation to the Japanese airforce to come up and fight. The fighters circled three airfields for an hour but the Japanese declined combat.

Unprecedented Show

Scourging both Japan and the water around it, American planes put on an unprecedented Fourth of July pyrotechnics, including bomb hits on two destroyers of a four-ship convoy blasted in the Yellow Sea.

Fresh reports built up to huge proportions the air offensive lashing Nippon from all quarters, with B-29 pilots bringing back accounts of seeing four empire cities on fire at the same time after yesterday's pre-dawn strike.

One B-29 flier said they looked "like all the fires of hell broke loose."

The Mustangs, Iwo headquarters reported, destroyed eight enemy planes on the ground, damaged 24 more but shot down only one in the air and were so disappointed over the airfield targets that they looked around for power houses, radio stations, freight cars and shipping. These were rocketed and strafed.

Tokyo Fields Battered

At Tokyo's Imba and Nobara airfields, hangars, control towers, ammunition sheds and gas tanks were shot up by the low-flying P-51s.

Northeast of the bomb-battered capital city, the Mustangs tore into the Kashiwa, Tsukuba, Konoike and Kasumigaura airfields. One Mustang was downed by ack ack over Kasumigaura.

At three fields, the Mustangs were unable to find a single enemy plane on the ground. The only plane shot down was a bi-plane.

Targets either destroyed or damaged included a power house, six warehouses, a replacemept ship, 12 freight cars and two light houses. Two small surface vessels were hit.

Jubilant pilots on the pre-dawn Superfortress fire raid said one en-

Jap Island Off Coast Battered

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4 (AP) —Japan reported today that American warships shelled Karafuto, the Japanese half of the Russo-Japanese island close to the Asiatic coast, on Monday and Tuesday in their deepest penetration of Japan's northern waters.

A submarine carried out attacks both days and a force of five warships bombarded the island yesterday, said the unconfirmed Tokyo broadcast. It was beamed to the United States and recorded by the FCC.

Karafuto is the southern half of Sakhalin island, the northern portion of which is held by Russia. The island is about 600 miles long and 85 wide at its broadest portion.

Falls On Port City

Yesterday's bombardment fell on Shikura, a port on the Bay of Tarika, only 50 miles south of the Russo-Japanese boundary line that bisects the island. The submarine shelled the coast near Shikuka, Tokyo said, and warships bombarded defense installations in the same area.

The previous day—Monday—a submarine reportedly made three successive shelling and machine-gun attacks on the tiny island of Kaihyo, off Karafuto's eastern coast.

Tokyo claimed the bombardments did "absolutely no dam-

Churchill Confident On Eve Of Election

LONDON, July 4. (AP) — Britain's noisiest and bitterest election campaign — her first in 10 years —ended tonight with Prime Minister Churchill warning the nation's 25,000,000 voters that defeat of his government would plummet many European countries into the "violence of Communism."

Riding through south London constituencies on election eve, Churchill told crowds lining the route of his eleventh-hour tour that "if there should be landside to the left, many countries on the continent would slide, not into decent socialism, but into the violence of Communism."

"If we go down," the prime minister warned, "all the nine-pins of Europe will fall."

"We are going to win," he added. "I can feel it in my bones."

While Churchill rode about the city, hundreds of halls throughout Britain rang with the last-minute appeals of candidates. In the open air more rallies were held to garner the last doubtful votes.

Rain was forecast for tomorrow in some areas of the United Kingdom, but a heavy vote was expected nevertheless. The results will not be announced until July 26, after servicemen's ballots are collected and counted.

Churchill's opponents also expressed confidence in tomorrow's results. Lord Samuel, a Liberal party leader, said that "on July 26 there will be an explosion, when many expectations will be blown to pieces."

Clement Attlee and his two chief labor lieutenants, Ernest Bevin and Herbert Morrison, doggedly campaigned in their own districts.

Governors Sidestep Food Shortage Plan

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 4. (AP)—The 37th annual conference of state governors today avoided taking a definite stand on steps to solve the food problem and compromised by pledging support to the government in finding a way out of shortages and maldistribution.

Adoption of the food resolution terminated the hottest discussion of the four-day convention.

Northeastern governors wanted a more detailed resolution calling for importation of meat from Canada and Mexico and for separate red ration points for meat only instead of those now covering meat and other commodities. Westerners fought this and won out for the general resolution as offered by Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska.

The convention adjourned after naming Pennsylvania's Gov. Edward Martin, 65-year-old former soldier, as chairman of the 1946 governors conference, succeeding Gov. Herbert B. Maw of Utah.

Earlier it had adopted 13 other resolutions headed by one endorsing the United Nations charter and calling for its prompt approval by the Senate.

The food resolution adopted said the situation surrounding food production, processing and distribution is such that the people "are now unable to purchase the necessary items upon an equitable basis."

Besides pledging support to Congress and interested government agencies in finding a solution, the resolution called for appointment of not less than three governors to go to Washington soon to lend assistance in trying to improve the situation.

Adm. Mitscher, Back In States, Fears Desk Job Slated For Him

By JAMES A. MACLEAN
United Press Staff Writer

SEATTLE, July 4—Hard-hitting, soft-spoken Vice-Adm. Marc A. Mitscher has stored away his famous jockey-cap, his trade-mark in all but one Pacific fleet action.

"There's some danger," Mitscher said today, "that I'll be assigned to a desk job in Washington, D. C., possibly in the bureau of ships. I don't know how to get out of it. I'd like to see the Pacific war through. For one thing I'd like to meet Tokyo Rose."

Carefully Packed Away

Mitscher's famous visored cap, he said, has been packed away carefully. "It almost fell apart the first time it was washed and I can't risk having it washed again. I have a new one but I've packed that away too."

In Seattle as honor guest in the city's Independence day celebration, Mitscher scoffed at Japanese boasts that new suicide weapons were being developed for defense of the home islands.

The Japs, Mitscher disclosed, hurled a flight of 50 fast bombers, each carrying 500-mile-an-hour piloted rocket bombs under their bellies, against Task Force 58 last March.

Battle For Franklin

"They were making one last attempt to get the carrier Franklin which we were towing away from Kyushu after it had been hit."

Two United States carrier planes spotted the aerial suicide force as it circled for the attack. American pilots destroyed all the bombers and rocket bombs, as well as all the escorting Jap fighters before they reached their target.

"Not one Jap got away," Mitscher said.

Generally speaking, the admiral said, only two per cent of enemy suicide planes reach their objectives, and only half that many ever broke through the defenses of Task Force 58.

Japs Unsafe Everywhere

With the Jap Navy and naval air force eliminated as a fighting force, enemy shipping is no longer safe anywhere in the Pacific, he said. Complete control of the air over Japan itself, the task force commander said, depends on the effectiveness of Jap underground factories in maintaining production. "Our B-29s can only work and burn above the ground."

Mitscher's ideas on how the Jap military caste ought to be treated after the war were brief.

"The only Jap I know is the fighting man," he said. "He ought to be killed."

AUSTIN, July 4 (AP) — Current prices for practically all Texas farm products declined from mid-May to mid-June, but were higher at mid-June than they were at the same date a year ago, the United States Department of Agriculture reported today.

Tech Bureau Places Dozen In School Jobs In Past Month

The teacher placement bureau of Texas Tech has placed 12 persons in teaching and executive positions since June 5, Dr. Doyle D. Jackson, director of the bureau, announced.

Expectations are that more than 100 teachers will be placed before fall school terms begin, Dr. Jackson said. The bureau placed 95 persons last year.

"On the average, salaries are up 15 per cent over last year's figures, with some school systems offering a bonus to teachers who complete a year's work," he added.

Recent Placements

Recent placements of the bureau are:

Mrs. Madge P. Berry of Lubbock, August 1945 Tech graduate, primary work in Lubbock schools.

Mrs. Tommie Davenport Hankins of Lubbock, August 1938 Tech graduate, social science in Lubbock schools.

Owen T. Loyd of McAdoo, June 1938 Tech graduate, to serve as superintendent at Smyer.

Miss Margie LaRue Moore of Muleshoe, May 1945 Tech graduate, English at Brownfield.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Dunlap of Lubbock, both undergraduate students of Tech, to serve as superintendent and grade school teacher respectively at Union Rural school, Terry county, Brownfield.

Miss Marjorie Street of Graham, May 1945 Tech graduate, fourth grade at Corpus Christi.

Miss Margie Gerber of Pampa, August 1945 Tech graduate, English and Spanish in Olton High school.

Miss Johnnye Bagwell of Claude, May 1945 Tech graduate, commercial work in Corpus Christi High school.

Pat Goodwin of Tulia, June 1943 Tech graduate, science in Wellington High school.

Mrs. Ethel Triplitt of Lubbock, junior Tech student, primary work in Plainview Public schools.

Clear Statement On Jap Terms Is Urged

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP) — Senator White of Maine, minority leader, declared today that the Pacific war might end quickly if President Truman would state specifically just what unconditional surrender means for the Japanese.

In a speech to his colleagues, White called on the President to point out clearly that Japan's choice is either annihilation or a surrender with permission to continue peaceful pursuits.

He said there is now "some evidence, slight though it is, of the beginning of a breach in the morale of the Japanese forces."

Huge New Hospital Slated For Houston

HOUSTON, July 4 (U.P.)—A new four-building Methodist hospital plant costing more than $2,500,000 is to be built on the site of the proposed Texas medical center here, Raymond P. Elledge, chairman of the hospital board of trustees, disclosed today.

Elledge revealed plans for the construction of a new hospital building, nurses home, doctors and internees building and a combined power plant and laundry. The new hospital will have not less than 300 beds, he said.

Financing of the new hospital plant will be made possible partly through the donation of $1,000,000 by H. R. Cullen, Houston oilman and philanthropist, and assistance of the Anderson foundation, Alledge said.

Additional funds will be raised in campaigns to be launched in the Texas Methodist conference in the early fall, it is expected.

ODT Urges Wider Use Of Refrigerator Cars

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP) — The ODT today urged shippers and the railroads to use more refrigerator cars instead of box-cars for non-perishable shipments to the far west.

This, the agency said, would eliminate the hauling of empty refrigerator cars to the west, and at the same time insure an ample supply of refrigerator cars in the California fruit area.

The western freight situation is the "tightest in history," the ODT added.

Rev. Eastburn Goes To Del Rio Church

SEDALIA, Mo., July 4 (AP) — The Rev. Fordyce E. Eastburn has accepted the rectorship of the St. James Episcopal church of Del Rio, Texas.

Mr. Eastburn has been rector of the Calvary Episcopal church here almost three years. His resignation is effective Sept. 1.

False Teeth Of GI Speed Up Natives

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP) — An exasperated corporal in New Guinea really put teeth into his dealings with the natives.

The natives refused to take seriously their work for the quartermaster corps. The corporal had tried every way he knew to speed them up and then, in a burst of words, his false teeth popped out.

"The incident," the Army gravely reported, "caused great concern among the natives. From then on, the corporal was looked upon with respect and awe, and his orders were obeyed with alacrity."

Universal Military Training For Youth—Do You Want It?

PEACETIME DRAFT—that hotly debated issue—is tonight's question on America's Town Meeting. If it becomes law, your young son or brother at 18 or on graduation from high school must spend a year in military training. Those in favor say it's the only way America can be ready if another war comes; also notifies the world we intend to back up the World Peace Organization with power. Those against it say it creates a huge military caste, won't prevent war, may touch off a world-wide armament race. Tonight H. V. Kaltenborn acts as moderator when actor Burgess Meredith and Dr. Edward C. Elliott clash with Senator Robert A. Taft and Dr. Felix Morley. Hear both sides on America's Town Meeting, sponsored by The Reader's Digest, 7:30, KFYO

Irrigation High Hit On Plains

AUSTIN, July 4 (AP)—A progress report issued by the state board of water engineers in cooperation with the U. S. Geological survey indicates a new high in irrigation from wells in the high plains of Texas.

"The record does not encourage the belief available supply of ground water in the high plains is inexhaustible, nor that concentration of heavy pumping in small areas is advisable," said the report.

It estimated there were approximately 3,500 irrigation wells completed, and the area under irrigation totaled 450,000 acres at the end of 1944.

Well To 850 Acres

"The total area within the exterior boundaries of the principal irrigation districts is about 3,000,000 acres," it said, "hence in that area about 15 per cent of the land is irrigated, with an average of one well to 850 acres.

"In the more heavily pumped localities the wells are much more closely spaced, the average being one well to 280 acres in one area of 50 square miles and one well to 300 acres in another area of the same size.

Most of the irrigated land was in eleven counties. Hale county with 760 wells had the largest number. Other counties follow in the order of magnitude named: Lubbock, 563; Floyd, 390; Swisher, 385; Deaf Smith, 350; Lamb, 310; Castro, 265; Bailey, 165; Hockley, 100; Randall, 60; and Crosby, 55. The remainder are in Dallam, Parmer, Armstrong, Lynn, Martin and Terry counties.

Comparative measurments of water levels of 200 wells between the early spring of 1938 and February 1945, made a favorable showing attributed to the following factors:

Wells are still rather widely distributed in most of the area comprising the principal pumping areas.

Recharge to the underground reservoirs during the phenomenally wet year of 1941 was very large.

The principal irrigated crops, wheat, maize, corn, and cotton, require comparatively little water in addition to rain.

Net average decline or rise in the water table for the last seven years (by counties):

Bailey, rise 3.3 feet; Castro, decline 1.4 feet; Crosby, rise 1.9 feet; Deaf Smith, decline 3.3 feet; Floyd, decline 5.6 feet, Hale, decline 4.1 feet; Hockley, rise 3.5 feet; Lubbock, rise 2.8 feet; Lamb, rise 3.4 feet; Swisher, decline 4.6 feet.

Provisions Of April Directive Suspended

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP) — The War Labor board in an unprecedented action today suspended the shift premium and vacation provisions of its April 3 directive order for 16,700 striking CIO rubber workers at Akron, O.

The board, with labor board members dissenting, acted after Chairman George W. Taylor had warned the strikers at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber co., that it would consider modification of its directive orders as a disciplinary mov. Repeated efforts by the board and by the international officers of the union to get the striking members of local 2 back on the job thus far have proved fruitless. The strike began June 16.

Weather Shaves Kansas Wheat

TOPEKA, Kas., July 4 (AP) — Heavy unseasonable rains and cool weather have combined to delay the winter wheat harvest and have reduced the state's estimated yield by millions of bushels.

As late as May 1 government experts estimated a yield of 239,000,000 bushels, the second largest crop in the state's history. Most forecasts now are that there will be about 192,000,000 bushels of wheat, about the same as last year.

Farmers, who just a few weeks ago considered a box car shortage and scarcity of labor their big problems, now are hopeful only for a chance to get into their fields.

Harvest Just Begun

The rainy season this year extended right up until the last day of June. Consequently, at a time when the harvest normally is at its peak, work is underway only along the southern border of Kansas and in a few other scattered areas of the state.

In normal years the Kansas City board of trade has a July 4 glut that takes several days for clearing. Today only 187 cars were received at that terminal, a startling contrast to the 1,733 cars received July 3, 1944, which was below normal for the season.

Virtually all of today's receipts were from Oklahoma and Texas.

Transportation Available

Railroads, which only three weeks ago completed movement of the 1944 crop, report there will be adequate rolling stock to move the new wheat—but a lot of the equipment won't bear much resemblance to the conventional grains cars of previous years.

To meet the transportation problem, railroads have converted gondola cars—built to haul coal, gravel, ore and such heavy freight—and open cattle cars into grain cars, and are using refrigerator units in this work.

Senator Reed (R-Kas), at a meeting with Kansas City grain men, said the roads also were working on a plan to halt eastbound empty freight cars briefly in Kansas, load them with grain and send them on their way for another load of war material while carrying grain to million points and elevators.

While more harvest hands are needed, no critical labor shortage is anticipated by E. H. Leker, director of the Kansas state harvest labor office.

Glowing Future For South Is Forecast

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP) — The Commerce department made a glowing report today on economic opportunities in the South after the war and advised southerners to concentrate on developing small businesses.

"There is not a village or hamlet in the entire South too small for a small processing plant, provided the raw materials are there and markets are nearby," it said.

The department cited these points concerning the South's future: The South is an area with abundant raw materials; it has ample manpower; the war has greatly stepped up its management know how, skills, plants and equipment.

The 13 states covered by the statistics include Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas.

Shortage Of Worsted Garments Is Averted

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP)—The possibility of an acute shortage of civilian worsted garments this autumn was reduced today as the Army lowered its demand for such fabric.

Hitherto 100 per cent of yarn spun from wool tops has been "frozen" and set aside for military requirements. The WPB announced today that the freeze has been reduced to 65 per cent.

Noted Archeologist And Professor Dies

SUNAPEE, N. H., July 4. (AP)—Theodore Leslie Shear, 64, internationally known archeologist and Princeton university professor since 1921, died yesterday at Lake Sunapee.

Acting medical referee William P. Clough, jr., said death was from coronary thrombosis.

Shear, in summer residence at New London, N. H., was boating with his family when the attack occurred.

He is survived by the widow, a son, a brother and a sister.

Born in New London August 11, 1880, Shear had been a consultant in foreign nationalities to the O.S.S. and a director of the Greek War Relief society. He conducted excavations in Greece and since 1930 had been director of the excavations of the Athenian Agora.

Diplomatic Corps Greeted By Byrnes

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP)—James F. Byrnes, the new secretary of state, shook hands in spirit today with much of the civilized world.

In a brief but colorful ceremony at his State department office, Byrnes greeted representatives of the diplomatic corps of the entire 55 nations on the United States diplomatic list.

Ambassadors, ministers, charges d'affaires filed through the office one by one, according to the order of their diplomatic precedence, and got a warm handshake, a broad smile and a few words greeting from the short-statured South Carolinian who spent his first day at his desk today.

As soon as the last one had left, the secretary of state sat down at his desk, grabbed a sheaf of papers—and went to work.

Mystery Lifts From Big Pile Of Shoes

BEAUMONT, July 4. (AP)—Chief of Police Artie Pollock said today that approximately 850 pairs of women's shoes discovered in a lot here Monday were left there by a truck driver who had been hired to haul them to the city dump.

Pollock said that a shoe jobber now in the Army had left the shoes in a building formerly occupied by a man who had been in the dry goods business and that the former dry goods merchant ordered them hauled away because of a fire hazard. He said the jobber specialized in buying odd lot shoes.

Now all eyes are on the Route to Tokyo

Part of the war is over.

Now all the emphasis of war lies along the Route to Tokyo.

There are still boys in bomb bays we all want to see back at their jobs.

There are still young fellows steering tanks and landing craft who ought to be back steering family cars.

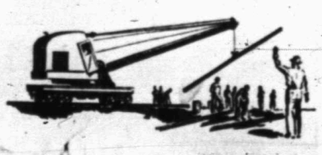

There are still fellows hunting Japs in jungles who ought to be hunting rabbits on the "south forty."

These men can't get back until they get the stuff to fight with—and plenty of it.

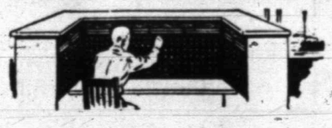

That's where Santa Fe comes in.

Like the branches of a river flowing into the main stream, guns, tanks, food, plane parts and other material of war are flowing along the "Route to Tokyo" on Santa Fe rails.

Movement of these vital war supplies is facilitated by—

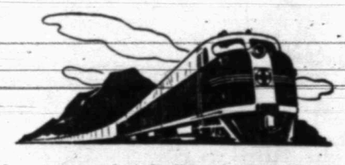

Greatly increased yards—More than doubled at many points. More trains of war can get in and out in less time.

50 per cent more trains on the same tracks are now made possible by centralized traffic control at key points, which avoids trains being held on sidings.

More power—in the form of giant 5400 horsepower freight Diesels. Santa Fe now has 71 of them—and more are coming!

New bridge speeds war traffic. The new Topock bridge over the Colorado River is speeding up movements of freight and troops to California's Ports of War.

When Victory is won and the boys come home, these facilities will help provide better passenger service than ever, and will haul more peacetime freight even more efficiently than before.

ON FOLK MUSIC

A DECIDED swing back to American folk music has manifested itself in current stage and screen successes like "Oklahoma," "Sing Out Sweet Land" and "Meet Me In St. Louis," according to George A. Wedge, director of the Julliard Summer school in New York, which is established for the purpose of developing and spreading music in America.

He attributes it to the natural, emotional appeal of simple melody that always helps people over a lot of bumps. "Singing," says Mr. Wedge, "is a release from tension and you'll usually find it's the people in trouble who sing or whistle rather than those who are happy. It is the oppressed races who have created the most stirring folk music."

* * *

While we agree that oppressed races have created the most stirring folk music, thinking of course of the heart rendering spirituals that are the negro's gift to American folk music, we can't go along with Mr. Wedge in thinking only oppressed people are those who sing and whistle. In a current article about Bing Crosby we learned that the beloved baritone loves to sing, and whistles while he works or plays or any place he happens to find himself day or night. And as happy a man as we know whistles all day long.

It's true that this war did not produce the songs that grew out of the first world war; numbers such as "Keep The Home Fires Burning," "Tipperary," or "Over There." But this world-wide conflict is vastly different from World War I which saw soldiers leaving by the tens and hundreds while relatives and friends stormed the stations, bearing gifts. It has a more serious mien than the "Dere Mabel," conflict of 1917.

THIRST QUENCHER

There's a real old-timer called "Switchel" which was sent out to haymakers in the fields in the "olden days" to quench their thirst. The big brown jugs, in fact, went out from the kitchen several times a day. "Switchel" consisted of a mixture of vinegar, molasses and a little ginger and cold water, but later on, lemons were substituted for the vinegar and the drink was renamed "Harvest punch." Now keep your mind on the name please and don't confuse it with Planter's punch.

Here is how harvest punch is concocted: One quart cold water, one-half cup molasses, juice of one lemon and one teaspoon ground ginger. Mix thoroughly and serve very cold.

GOOD LUCK SGT. WARD

WHEN Sgt. Alice Ward of the WAC detachment at Lubbock Army Air field left Lubbock Tuesday en route to Fort Bragg, N. C., where she is to be discharged under the point system, she took with her the best wishes of many townsmen. Sgt. Ward, who arrived at the field with the first detachment, will go to her former home in Winterhaven, Fla., to resume civilian living.

As chapel organist at the base, Sgt. Ward has played for literally hundreds of weddings. She also has been able accompanist for Lt. Richard Chamberlain, baritone, who has been generous in singing for church services and civic programs.

The handsome young woman served as librarian at the field's central library until a few weeks ago and recently had been serving in the intelligence library.

CHEST EXERCISE

FOR teen-agers who sit over desks in a slouched position the following exercise is suggested as particularly good:

Take two books of equal weight, one in each hand. Stretch your arms out sideways — shoulder level — with the inside of your wrists up toward the ceiling. Keeping the inside of your wrists facing the ceiling, inscribe as large circles as you possibly can with the books, first going forward, then up, then back and then down. Repeat these circles for at least ten times and then rest for a minute or two. This exercise develops the chest muscle and makes a firm, flat back, so necessary for evening dresses.

More Newsprint For Third Quarter Seen

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP) — Newspapers will receive slightly more newsprint on their quota allocations for the third quater, the printing and publishing division of the WPB announced today.

In the first relaxation of newsprint consumption limitation order since it was put into effect January 1, 1943, WPB officials said that the sliding scale of reduction in the use of newsprint from the base year will be relaxed approximately one to three.

An overall increase of approximately 38,500 tons of newsprint available for newspaper publishing in this country will make possible the following rate of deduction from the amounts used for the same period of the base year of 1941.

Basic Usage	Deduction (3rd Quar).	Previous Deductions
125 tons	3%	4%
125-250 tons	6%	8%
250-500 tons	9%	12%
500-1000 tons	15%	18%
More than 1,000 tons	18%	24%

"WPB said that monthly delivery quotas will be 1-6 of the total of a publisher's consumption quotas for the third and fourth quarters of 1945."

Exemptions for small newsprint consumers are increased from 1 1-4 quarter tons to 5 tons per quarter for newspapers published weekly or less frequently, with an exemption for each additional day of publication of 1 1-4 tons per quarter.

Each publisher consuming 25 tons or more of newsprint during any calendar quarter must report his inventory on hand and in transit at the close of each month. Each publisher also must send to WPB copies of all orders placed by him for delivery of newsprint.

Publishers in northern and eastern sections of the United States must confine their newsprint inventory to a 30 days' supply on December 31, 1943. Publishers in the south and west may not exceed investories of 50 days' supply by the end of the year.

Reds Stripping Plants In Germany Of All Kinds Of Heavy Machinery

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERLIN, July 4—Reparations in kind—a policy agreed to by the Allies before defeat of Germany—already is being carried out on a large scale in the Soviet occupation zone.

In Berlin districts now being taken over by American and British troops factories were stripped of heavy machinery four to eight weeks ago.

Reports from Allied nationals who have been through other German areas whose permanent occupation by the Red Army never has been in doubt confirm that similar removal of industrial equipment is in progress there.

Big Armament Plant

This correspondent visited today the vast Rheinmetall-Borsig armament works in the northern suburb of Tegel, which the Russians evacuated last Sunday in expectation of the arrival of British forces.

Huge shops which produced everything from gasoline refineries to Tiger tanks until they were severely damaged by American and RAF raids cover 25 city blocks. At their peak these shops employed 70,000 workers, 40 per cent of them foreign "slaves," including 1,000 Soviet women.

Of the 2,500 machines which survived the bombings, less than 300 have been left behind by Soviet authorities, according to company records.

Ship Out Many Items

The Soviet-appointed technical director, Dr. Arthur Zinzen, said the Russians shipped off over 2,200 items of industrial equipment, mostly of a heavier type than those they did not confiscate.

What is left in the way of small machine tools have been ordered by the Russians to be operated by the new management of the Rheinmetall-Borsig as the official repair shop for Berlin's city government.

"There is no question of our producing anything," said Zinzen. "Our productive capacity is absolutely nil."

The huge armament works suffered its heaviest bomb damage when 225 U. S. Eighth Air force planes dropped 441 tons of bombs on the bright, cloudless afternoon of March 18. One bomber was lost.

Pounded In December

Previously Americans hammered this target last December, unloading 942 tons from 300 bombers with the loss of 11 planes. Zinzen said the March raid halted operations and no work was resumed before the entry of Soviet forces one month later, although the main power station was only slightly damaged.

Zinzen said Soviet authorities put through a drastic shakeup of the plant management, promoting him and two others to top posts.

The men who were at the top during the Nazi regime were summarily dismissed. Zinzen formerly was an engineer in the boiler works and presumably was a non-Nazi.

The Soviet dismantling of German industry is not confined to armament works. In the Zehlendorf district, now under American control, a spinning mill, a sugar mill and various other plants have been thoroughly cleaned out.

Factories of all types in the Russian-held areas are reported being combed in the same fashion for machinery needed in the Soviet union.

Something approaching panic is expressed by many Germans—even those who had anti-Fascist records before the war and now are serving with Soviet approval in police and municipal administrations.

Absence Of Jap Air Force Puzzles Yanks

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP)—The Japanese air force—or the lack of one—has developed into the biggest question mark of the Pacific war.

Top U. S. air generals are divided over the puzzling question of why B-29s can roam at will without encountering interceptors.

Some, including Gen. George C. Kenney, chief air officer to General MacArthur, think the Japs simply have run out of planes. Others believe the enemy force has been whittled down but that a good-sized number are being held back to resist actual invasion.

Brig. Gen. William J. Flood of Washington, chief of staff of the Seventh Air force, returned from Saipan today with the declaration that he frankly is puzzled by the situation.

Flood says the question no longer is how good the Japanese plane and pilot may be. Instead it is where is he?

Seven Brazilians Killed In Air Crash

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP)—Two lieutenants of the Brazilian Air force and five sergeants were killed in a plane crash at Burgaw, N. C., last night, the Brazilian embassy disclosed today.

Lt. Col. Clovis Monteiro Travassos, air attache of the embassy, said names of the dead would not be made public until next of kin in Brazil had been notified.

The men were flying from Brazil to Philadelphia to pick up a new Navy plane when the accident occurred. There were no survivors.

Vets Howl Over Jam On Train As Nazis Loll In Pullmans

MARYSVILLE, Calif., July 4. (AP)—Five hundred combat veterans from the European theater arrived at Camp Beale yesterday protesting that they were required to ride cross-country in crowded day coaches while German war prisoners were given Pullman accommodations.

Lt. Col. Peter de Paola, ranking officer aboard, described the trip as "a mess." At a stop in New York the colonel called Washington protesting the overcrowded conditions in the cars where three men were occupying seats for two. Sleepers were promised at Chicago and later at Omaha, but failed to materialize.

At Omaha the veterans said they spotted a trainload of German prisoners riding in sleepers. "They really raised the roof," the colonel declared.

Frequently there was no drinking water and seldom was there water for washing or shaving. Maj. John E. Norberg of Burlingame, Calif., said they were so crowded that men were forced to sleep in the aisle. Two men jumped train in New Haven and two in New York, the officers said.

Bread Shortage Is Feared In Panhandle

AMARILLO, July 4 (U.P.)—Panhandle residents served by Amarillo bakeries were warned today that after August 1 they may be able to have only one slice of toast for breakfast.

Local bakeries reported today they were 30 per cent short on lard and sugar, therefore making 30 per cent less bakery products on the market.

Allen Woods, manager of one of the city's largest bakeries, said: "It looks like after the first of the month there will be no cakes and very little bread on the market. You'll have to eat just one slice of toast for breakfast."

Negro Retires After 50 Years Of Teaching

DALLAS, July 4. (AP)—Adlissa V. West, negro teacher of English in the Dallas public schools, has resigned after 50 years in the classroom, longest service on record here.

She received her teaching certificate from Fisk university in Nashville in 1894 and the next year began teaching in Dallas.

Vicksburg Observes Fourth For First Time Since 1863

VICKSBURG, Miss., July 4. (U.P.)—Once upon a time the streets of Vicksburg ran red with southern blood, and it took its residents 82 years to forget that it happened on Independence day.

National unity overcame heartaches and bitterness and tears today as the city's 24,000 population celebrated the Fourth of July for the first time since Vicksburg fell to the Union armies of Gen. U. S. Grant on July 4, 1863.

Honor guest was Major Gen. Edward H. Brooks, commanding general of the Fourth Service command at Atlanta, Ga., whose entrance into the city was heralded far differently from that of the Yankee leaders who broke the "backbone of the Confederacy."

Lt. Gov. Smith Flays Civilian "Selfishness"

GALVESTON, July 4. (AP)—Lt. Gov. John Lee Smith said today "our boys can win victories on the battlefield but they cannot overcome civilian selfishness at home."

He spoke at the annual Fourth of July flag raising ceremonies at El Mina Shrine temple on the waterfront here.

"Citizens who withhold wholehearted support from the war effort are not worthy of the flag," Smith declared, adding he considered the flag "our covenant with the dead who have given their lives away in battle for us."

Clay Sherrod and Tom Brown won the American flag awards in an American history contest conducted by the public schools of Galveston city and county.

Flatbush Rejoices At Babe Herman's Return To Dodgers

NEW YORK, July 4 (AP)—There is joy in Flatbush today for The Babe is coming back to the Dodgers.

Branch Rickey made the surprise announcement that 42-year-old Floyd (Babe) Herman had been purchased from the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast league for an unannounced sum and would be used as a pinch-hitter.

It was as a Dodger in the 1926-31 era under the late Uncle Wilbert (Robbie) Robinson that the Babe earned his fame. It was in the period when a harassed Robbie, constantly dumbfounded by the zany antics of his team, shuffled and reshuffled his lineup and then talked it over with taxicab drivers.

The Babe always was a slugger and had a lifetime major league batting average of .325 with the Dodgers, Cincinnati, Chicago and Pittsburgh before being shunted out of the big show in '31. But it was his fielding and getting conked on the head by flyballs as well as his wierd baserunning that left an indelible mark in Brooklyn's baseball history.

Herman—an earnest gent on the basepaths—once got up with the bases crammed and sent a terrific liner to the outfield. One run scored but Dazzy Vance, who was on second, pulled up at third fearing the ball would be caught. Chick Fewster, on first, steamed into third followed swiftly by the head-down running Herman. There the three stood—all on third. Fewster thought he was automatically out and was tagged as he stepped off the bag. The Babe nonchalantly jogged back towards second looking over his shoulder to see how his mates were making out and also was thrown out. On the bench Manager Robbie was incoherent.

But the story Flatbushers like best is the one where Herman got very indignant over a sports-writer's account of his getting beaned by a fly ball. Herman went to the scribe and offered to bet that he wouldn't get hit on the head by a fly the rest of the season. The writer, the story goes, facetiously asked Herman: "but how about the shoulders?"

The Babe shook his head and replied: no good, the shoulders don't count."

Equifox Wins In Equipoise Mile.

CHICAGO, July 4. (AP)—Equifox, 8 years old but still one of the famed Equipoise's swiftest sons, romped to victory in the first division of the $25,000 added Equipoise Mile before a holiday crowd of 40,000 at Arlington park's program at Washington park today.

The aging Equifox bagged $18,550 first money to stretch his winnings to $24,000 in his third straight victory of the season.

Daily Trouble, owned by David Straus, Cincinnati, Ohio, took the second division by three and a half lengths, running the distance in even faster time than Equifox.

Howard Wells, Lexington, Ky., turfman held the distinction of training both winners. Wells is the owner of Equifox and the conditioner of Daily Trouble.

Equifox's time was 1:38. He paid $5.60, $4.20 and $3.00. St. Jock returned $8.20, $4.80. Valdina Lamar paid $4.60.

Bechtol Reports To Texas For Last Year

LUBBOCK, Texas, July 4 (AP) All-American football players worry too. This is how Hubert Bechtol, big wingman who made the mythical team at the University of Texas last year, sums it up:

"They are going to be looking for me to be better than I really am. They are going to be watching me—every team we play will have me marked, just because I was named all-American. That's going to make it hard to get away."

Bechtol, who starred at Lubbock High school and Texas Tech before going to Texas in the navy program, will have another season with the Longhorns. He will report back to the Texas campus today to start the last year of work leading to an ensign's rank in the navy, which will be due about July, 1946.

Hubert has already started helping Coach D. X. Bible worry. He says he feels sure Texas will have a great line because of plenty of seasoned material. "But the backfield is going to be a problem," he adds. There are only two lettermen.

Summer Practice At Rice To Begin Soon

HOUSTON, Tex., July 4 (U.P.)—Fifteen schoolboy gridders enrolled at Rice institute yesterday will report for informal mid-summer football practice next week, Coach Jess Neely said today.

One of the most promising in the crop of newcomers was Tom Murphy, who sparkled at center for Sunset High of Dallas the past two years. Another Sunset player, backfielder John McElroy, also enrolled yesterday.

Rice's basketball forces were bolstered by the enrollment of big Bill Tom, six-foot, six-inch center of Dallas' Highland Park high, and Johnny Clark, six-foot, seven-incher from Breckenridge high.

Stymie Surprise Brooklyn Winner

NEW YORK, July 4 (AP)—Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Stymie, climaxing a Horatio Alger story of the turf, won a surprise victory over the favored Devil Diver in the $50,000 added Brooklyn Handicap at Belmont Park today.

A holiday crowd of 50,269 saw the four-year-old equestrian colt, who ran in a $1,500 claiming race in 1943, come from last place to win the mile and one quarter route going away under a spirited ride by Jockey Bobby Permane.

One and a half lengths separated the 6 to 1 outsider from the Greentree stable's 6 to 5 favorite at the finish.

Stymie teamed up with his stablemate, Haile, to thwart the Divxr's bid to become the first horse to sweep the Metropolitan, Suburban and Brooklyn handicaps since Whisk Broom 2nd turned the trick in 1913.

Stymie started to make his move on the outside coming around the turn into the stretch. He sped by Bankrupt, Haile, Megogo, Wait A Bit and Alex Barth to be fourth at the top of the stretch. Devil Diver, meantime, had taken a 1¼-length lead over Olympic Zenith and Rounders.

Eddie Arcaro went to the whip on the Devil as Stymie ranged up alongside him midway through the stretch, but to no avail. The Jacobs horse, beaten three lengths by the Diver in the Suburban handicap and by two in the Queens County handicap, forged into the lead and pulled away.

Olympic Zenith hung on to finish third, three lengths behind the Diver while Alex Barth beat Rounders by a length for fourth. Megogo, Wait A Bit, Haile and Bankrupt were strung out further down the track.

Stymie's victory, a triumph for his trainer Hirsch Jacobs, put the four-year-old colt into the $100,000 class.

Blue Bonnet Defeats Edwards Grocery 4-3

Blue Bonnet laundry continued on its undefeated course Wednesday night and edged out Edwards Grocery 4-3 in a regular City league game at Mackenzie park.

Blue Bonnet managed to break the tie in the fifth with another run. The Grocerymen again tied the score in the sixth, however. Coming back in the last of the sixth, the Blue Bonnet ten pushed the winning run across, and held the Edwards team scoreless in the seventh.

Taylor pitched the win for Blue Bonnett, Hilliard caught. Battery for Edwards: Maloney and Lingle.

Staggering Production In U. S. Cited In Krug's Annual Report

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP) — WPB Chairman J. A. Krug today reported the United States produced 45 per cent of the world's munitions in 1944 while keeping Americans "the best fed—the best housed—the best clothed civilians in the world."

In the first annual report ever issued by the WPB, Krug stated that American war planes have sustained better than a five billion dollar monthly munitions pace since the summer of 1943.

"The nation has supplied the best equipment to the largest Navy, the largest air force and one of the largest armies in the world," the report declared, "and our civilian economy though short of some of the things to which it was accustomed has been maintained in a sound and healthy condition.

Production In 1944

"In 1944 alone the country produced 96,359 planes, including 16,048 heavy bombers, built 30,889 ships, 17,565 tanks, 595,330 Army trucks, and produced 3,284 heavy field guns and howitzers and 7,454 light ones, 152,000 Army aircraft rocket launchers, 215,177 bazookas and 1,146,774 tons of ground artillery ammunition."

Krug reported that the almost uninterrupted climb in arms production from $500,000,000 monthly in 1940 to a volume ten times as great in 1944 was "dogged at almost every step by crises." The manpower pinch was acute last year, he said, because of the loss of nearly 1,000,000 workers from the civilian labor force.

Largely Due To Draft

"To a high degree this loss was the result of inductions of skilled labor into the armed forces," he said. "Inductions sometimes caused by a not-too cautious weighing of the need for a worker on the production front against the need for that need on the fighting front."

"The important and astonishing fact is that in 1944, the year in which the crescendo of war mounted to a thunderous climax, the American consumer and his family remained by far the best-fed—best housed—best clothed civilians in the world.

"While all battle fronts were ablaze, while the U. S. productive system was feeding shipload after shipload of munitions into a funeral pyre for the enemy the American consumer was furnished with more goods and services than in any year since 1941."

Rise of Synthetics

In 142 pages, the report described the rise of synthetic rubber production from 8,000 tons in 1941 to 753,000 in 1944; the trebling of aluminum output from 1942 through 1944; the 50-fold rise of magnesium production in five years and the 80-fold increase in penicillin output in one year.

In 1941 the WPB chairman continued, the United States contributed only 12 per cent to the comparatively small world production of armaments. Last year this country alone was responsible for almost 45 per cent of the $110,000,000,000 in combat munitions produced by the Axis and the United Nations together.

Nowlin said the War Shipping administration has advised that it has enough tonnage to justify such shipments.

Late Hero Of Savage Battle Rates Tops

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP)—Sgt. Day G. Turner, who killed and wounded several Germans and captured 25 in a savage four-hour battle inside a house in Luxembourg, was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously today.

The 23-year-old Nescopeck, Pa., doughboy emerged unhurt from the hand-to-hand struggle in the house last Jan. 8 but was killed a month later while fighting with the 80th (Blue Ridge) division inside Germany.

The War department announced that the medal, highest given for bravery, will be presented to his mother, Mrs. Leona Belle Turner of Nescopeck.

Falls were the greatest single cause of accidental deaths in 1943.

Demobilization Is Slow

But The Picture Has Two Sides

DISCHARGE plans for the American Army are elaborate, even a bit confusing. The general intention is to release enlisted men as rapidly as military needs and available transportation will permit. General rules include the need of 85 points to become eligible for discharge, or having reached the age of 40 years.

These rules, it is announced, will not be changed in the near future. Furthermore, no service since last May 12 will provide points for those who lacked a few on that date.

One disappointing development, as announced by the assistant Chief of Staff, is that many eligible for discharge will not be out of service within a year from last May 12. This is because of transportation difficulties, replacement in vital areas, and other factors.

Discharges, now averaging 100,000 a month, will be stepped up to 200,000 a month by January 1. The plan is to release 2,000,000 men by July 1, 1946. During that period 800,000 youths will be inducted.

A year hence, it is indicated, there will be 4,000,000 men overseas, compared to 5,500,000 at the present time. Nearly all will be in the Pacific area. Should Japan be defeated in the meantime, the number overseas may be considerably smaller. But all in all, end of the war in the Pacific seems to offer the only possibility that discharges will be greater than indicated.

• • •

BUT there is a somewhat brighter side to the now generally realized fact that demobilization of fighting men will be slower than some earlier hoped for, and certainly slower than desired by most people. That is, the slower extra fighting men are pumped back into civilian life, the less the difficulties in placing the ex-service men in jobs.

Although demobilization has barely started, the government already is facing serious problems in carrying out the promise that all returning service men would be assured employment. A specific promise that a veteran of this war, under certain conditions, could be assured his old job, may turn out to be impossible of fulfillment.

Congress gave Selective Service authority in the matter of employment for veterans, but that authority appears to be futile in the face of growing complications. This situation is typical:

The automotive industry will need a total of 1,100,000 workers in the first peacetime years. Maximum number of employes during the war was 1,400,000. That is, there have been 300,000 more workers engaged by the industry in recent years than there will be jobs after the war. How many more will be thrown out of employment to make way for veterans who are former employes? Labor officials in Washington, appealed to for an answer, dodged the issue.

The industry's plan to hire veterans might tend to increase labor turnover, these officials declared, nullify wartime employment gains, especially of women, and otherwise disturb labor relations. Nearly 30,000 discharged veterans are now receiving unemployment payments because they cannot find jobs.

From the standpoint of economics, and forgetting the sentimental side for a moment, perhaps it is well that there is no mass demobilization taking place at this time as reconversion is just beginning.

Be Rural---Live Longer

CONTRARY to what most Americans think, as reflected by their actions, moving to town is not the thing to do if the object is to live longer. Figures reveal that it is more healthful to live in the country than in the city.

The proof comes from the Bureau of the Census, which has compiled statistics showing that conditions were more conducive to survival in rural areas than elsewhere in the United States in 1940. The report, delayed until now because of the war on "Age-Adjusted Death Rates in the United States. 1900-40," is soon to be published by the bureau.

In general, survival conditions were better in rural areas, the age-adjusted rural death rate in 1940 having been 9.8. In urban places of 10,000 to 100,000 it was 11.2, and in cities of 100,00 or more it was 11.4. In the smaller urban places it was highest, 11.8. The national death rate was 10.7. Rural areas in Iowa had the lowest rate, 7.3, and the highest rate was in urban places of more than 10,000 in Arizona, 20.7.

Now that they have been warned, whether people will continue to prefer shorter life under bright lights will be answered by statistics after the 1950 census is taken.

Scallions to the news service that reported that a Little Rock woman wept continuously for 11 hours, but failed to report what she wanted and if she got it.

The American House

By Virginia Chase
(Copyright, 1945, NEA Service, Inc.)

XV

Early in February Cousin Victoria wrote us that she would board for the remainder of the winter at the American House. Balmoral was getting too much for her. She would arrive, she announced, on the afternoon of the fifteenth. (Cousin Victoria never consulted anyone's convenience. She merely announced her own).

"I suppose we should be thankful for the extra money," my mother said. "But it does seem . . ." What she meant was, "This is the last straw."

"She won't stay a week, if she comes," my father assured her. "You know Victoria. As likely as not, she won't turn up at all. Someone ought to convince her that the Queen was steadfast," he added with a wink at the three of us.

Cousin Victoria had always imitated the Queen. From girlhood she had studied pictures of the royal costumes, and, being an expert seamstress, copied them. Her home bore the name of the Queen's. Her dog, now buried under the lilac bush, had been called Dash. Reading once that the Queen had gobbled her food, Cousin Victoria had formed the habit, too, and as a result was constantly "in distress." Naturally she kept a Journal, which now in her seventy-third year had reached its eighty-second volume. This was her second most valued possession. Her first was a letter, dated Nov. 16, 1898, from a Lady-in-Waiting to the Queen herself, replying to Cousin Victoria's cabled felicitations upon the Jubilee of 1897.

Like the Queen, Cousin Victoria was a widow, and still (ostensibly) grieving. Her husband's picture hung above the fireplace in hte parlor of Balmoral, delicately mustached and whiskered. His name, discordantly, had been Hiram, a circumstance which Cousin Victoria had found hard to bear. She was childless. When she lamented this state, you had the feeling that her grief was less for the children she lacked than for the opportunity she had missed of presenting them with royal names.

• • •

Instead of arriving on the afternoon of the fifteenth, as she had announced, Cousin Victoria came, bag and baggage (including volumes 76-82 of her Journal) on the morning of the twelfth in a hired carriage, much upset that no one had met her at the train.

She was a handsome woman. She possessed—you had to admit it—a truly regal air. Stepping out of that carriage, her hair as black as her bonnet, her eyes bright and her body nimble, she had a good deal about her that the Queen herself might have envied.

My father, who had told us only an hour earlier that he was going to spend a quiet morning at home, left almost immediately for his office. My mother had responsibilities in the kitchen. But we grils had no escape. We followed Cousin Victoria upstairs and dutifully helped her unpack.

Cousin Victoria's room was next to the parlor and facing the village. It was the best room in the American House. "If I put here there in the first place," my mother said, "there won't be any excuse for her wanting to change." But Cousin Victoria took nothing on faith. Before we could unpack a bag she had to be shown every bedroom, including our own. Then, satisfied, at least temporarily, she allowed us to help her settle.

In selecting Cousin Victoria's bedroom, my mother had thought of its convenience to the parlor, where she had planned for her to sit during the day with her crocheting.

Cousin Victoria used her spare time and surplus energy in making lace for edging. This never wore out. A pair of drawers might fall into shreds, but the lace remained as good as ever. In order that none should be wasted, my mother used it lavishly around hems, necklines, and even armholes. We girls had hardly a spot on us that had not at one time or another been scratched by it. (Cousin Victoria had a very embarrassing way of lifting our skirts to see how it was wearing). Roll after roll lay untouched in her work basket. Yet she kept right on. . . .

• • •

But Cousin Victoria soon made it clear that she didn't care for the parlor. She preferred the sociability of the office. She ignorde Mr. Cutter—as she did all the help—but she relished the drummers. One of them couldn't be in the office five minutes before she knew his product, his route, his schedules, and the size of his family. Even the most agile couldn't escape her, for she had her chair right by the door with another drawn up beside it. If a victim started by, she seized his forearm, and under her grip even the strongest wilted.

This distressed my mother terribly. Something had to be done, she said.

Something was. During the morning Cousin Victoria wrote in her Journal, but during the remainder of the day keeping her away from the office became another of our chores.

There were just two ways you could keep her, in the parlor. One was to get her to give you a lesson in lace making; the other was to get her to read aloud from one of her Journals. (These were underlined, of course, in the manne rof the Queen). Since long and intimate association had made us detest the lace, we usually promoted the Journals. They were dull reading. "Awakened at seven. Lay until seven-fifteen. For breakfast oatmeal, prunes, gooseberry jam, toasted muffin. Two cups of tea. (Green). Recorded the events of yesterday. Examined the books of F. of the B. F. Branch 2. Found them in good order. Re-read In Memoriam. Here follows my reflections on it. . . ." Those reflections might cover from 10 to 20 pages.

We began to think more longingly than ever of the time when vacation would be over.

Texan Gives Land For National Youth Camp

KANSAS CITY, July 4 (AP) — An 800-acre tract of land located near Versailles, Mo., has been given the grand council of the Order of Demolay by Dr. Blanch Duncan, Mercedes, Tex., for development as a national camp for boys, it was announced today by Frank S. Land, founder and secretary general of the order.

The camp is within one-fourth mile of the Lake of the Ozarks. It will be known as the Duncan National Demolay park.

It is the Demolays' plan to develop the camp into a national training center in citizenship for young boys of America, Land said. Chandler C. Cohagen of Billings, Mont., architect, will draw plans for improvements at the camp, including an administration building, chapel, recreation buildings, mess hall and cabins.

The land has been in the Duncan family for the past fifty years, Land said.

New Marlin Naval Hospital Approved

WASHINGTON, July 4, (AP) — Construction of a new naval hospital of 500 beds at Marlin, Tex., for arthritis and rheumatism patients, was approved today by President Truman.

Although no details of the project were available from White House or naval officials, the project is expected to be similar to one recently announced for construction at Austin, at a cost of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.

Announcement of the President's approval was made by Sen. Connally and Rep. Poage, Texas Democrats.

The site chosen for the new project, said Poage, is a 150-acre tract, one mile north of Marlin on the Waco highway.

Officials of the naval bureau of yards and docks, which has charge of hospital construction, had recommended the site.

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

"BE a man among men" advertises a summer camp in the Berkshire mountains of New York state.

And then it tells the reader all about the manly sports in which he may indulge—golf and swimming, horseback riding and hunting.

But, at the end of the advertisement there is a paragraph which interested me—and probably most of the manly readers as well.—"Take your meals at the adjoining club, where there is a congenial crowd with dancing and smart revues."

Be a man among men. That's very good advice.

BRANDEIS

But being a man among men twenty-four hours a day gets pretty tiresome, doesn't it?

So there's a club adjoining where you can meet girls and have fun and where you can be a man among women as well.

Being a long-married man my opinions on the subject are entirely objective; of course, particularly in view of the fact that my wife reads this column.

But I'd hate to be a man among men all of the time.

I remember when I was a bachelor I went on a few of those men-among-men vacations several times.

I remember how we roughed it and how proud we were of being strong and sturdy and entirely independent of women.

I also remember how we didn't shave for days, how we ate greasy and burned food, how we didn't care what we looked like—and how awfully bored we got after a few days of being men-among-men.

So then we got on our horses or into our jallopies and we inquired where the next place was where one could meet a few girls.

And how nice it was to dance and strut and brag and try to make an impression.

• • •

One of my best friends is a bachelor. He is about 45 now so there isn't much hope for any girl to catch him at this late age.

He wouldn't think of getting married, he told us.

But there is hardly an evening that he isn't out with a "lady friend" and the next day he tells us about his conquest and how glad he is that he doesn't have the responsibility of a home and a wife and children with all the expenses that go with that sort of life.

And yet, I wager that he spends more money being single than any of his married friends with all their responsibilities.

• • •

I GUESS being a woman among women isn't much more interesting, at least not after what my wife told me about a ladies' luncheon she attended yesterday.

Apparently the two principal themes discussed were men and clothes.

In a spruce tree outside my window a lady robin is sitting on her nest, while her mate is out hunting worms for the family.

And in the grass two male catbirds are having a fight.

Men among men!

Exit Henry Wallace

His Political Star Disappears

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

WHATEVER faint chance Henry Wallace had for the 1948 Presidential nomination has vanished because of the disappointment of his liberal friends in his performance as Secretary of Commerce. Since he was the leftists' sole candidate, the way is even clearer than it was before for president Truman. And he seeks re-election, although he has not said so publicly.

The Chief Executive, as reported exclusively in this column, asked his cabinet member to make a study of the patent question with a view to liberalizing existing laws. As a result of his experiences when he headed the Senate Committee to Investigate the National Defense Program, Mr. Truman wanted present restrictions lifted. He found that many corporations had shelved discoveries which would have facilitated our war effort had they been on the market at the time.

The President, in accordance with his methods, merely suggested an inquiry. But he hoped that the Wallace-named experts would recommend a system by which competing corporations could obtain licenses from the original inventor after only a few years, if the latter did not commercialize his find. Mr. Wallace, however, has named men who a couple of years ago pronounced the existing patent setup to be perfect.

TUCKER

Naturally, his backers at the Chicago convention — Sidney Hillman's wing of the CIO — are furious and are quitting him.

The former Vice President's handling of the sale of surplus consumers' goods has got him in bad with the various war veterans' organizations. This difficult task was wished on him by the late President Roosevelt, although the transfer was consummated under President Truman. By accident or design the Iowan was given a "problem child."

In this instance, however, no fault rests at the door of Mr. Wallace. He is merely carrying out the law and regulations, which provide that the individual soldier or sailor has little preference in purchasing outworn articles. He must stand in line behind federal agencies, states and cities and counties, philanthropic institutions like schools, hospitals etc.

Even then, if he wants to buy as much as $2,500 worth, he must own a business capitalized at $50,000 as a minimum. Few discharged fighters can meet those requirements. On the other hand, many fly-by-nighters have organized companies with even fancier capitalizations and are grabbing the best stuff offered.

The farmers went sour on their erstwhile buddy long ago. They recall his famous "kill the pigs" order, and although that porky execution has scant connection with today's shortages of food and agricultural profits, they hold it against him.

It is a political axiom that any office seeker blackballed by the labor liberals, farmers and veterans has no future, especially as HST has said that the ex-Servicemen would and should run the country for the next 25 years, as did their soldier fathers and grandfathers before them.

CHINESE: Numerous members of Congress are muttering privately over their secret discovery that several thousand Chinese students are being educated in American colleges, universities and vocational schools at federal expense. Their reaction suggests that the spirit of intense nationalism is not dead on Capitol Hill.

"They took my boy out of college and sent him to fight for China," said one legislator in a typical outburst. "Here we are paying good money to educate Chiang Kai-shek's men. That strikes me as a silly arrangement."

Government sponsors, however, consider it a smart deal. They recall the beneficial effects of our refusal to accept the Boxer indemnity and our decision to use it to subsidize young Chinese in our educational institutions.

Their aim in the present instance is to acquaint the Oriental guests with American culture, civilization, and — to tell the blunt truth — with made-in-America goods. They are trying to create a market for Yankee ideas and exports.

When these youngsters go home after the defeat of Japan and the expected awakening and unification of China, it is hoped that they will become indirect salesmen.

BOMBS: Maury Maverick was twitting a Standard Oil representative about the company's prewar cartel arrangements with I. G. Farbenindustrie. "Tell me," asked the head of the Smaller War Plants Corporation, "what did you folks pay I. G. for the patents you got from them?"

"Oh, about thirty-three million dollars," was the reply.

"Well," profounded the Texan, "you folks were taken for a bunch of suckers."

"You think so, eh? Well, you probably heard how all the great German cities were reduced to rubble by our explosives and how we are plastering Tokyo, Yokohama and Kobe with petroleum jelly bombs. We got those missiles into production because of our former tie-up with I. G. Farbenindustrie. If Hitler were alive today, how much do you think he would be willing to pay to get those patents back?"

Maverick rubbed his chin.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

"THE SAN FRANCISCO Charter," declares President Truman, "is a great instrument for peace and security and human progress . . . the world must use it."

Every thoughtful patriot realizes that maintaining peace will require effort as well as determination.

Acclaim for the new organization is universal this weekend. But before long irritations, inexplicable acts by other nations, lack of interest here in foreign policy and the sophistries of cynics may endanger making real the dream born at the Golden Gate.

LEMAN

New York authorities on international matters believe that statesmen and conference delegates alone cannot make the new system effective. The burden must be shared by the intelligent in every community. These groups must follow world developments as background for molding sound public opinion.

Lasting peace now depends in large measure on local officials, women's club officers, veterans' organizations, farm bureaus, editors, churchmen, educators, businessmen, union chairmen and other neighborhood leaders. It calls for knowledge of facts and not snap judgment from headline skimming.

• • •

TRADES: American businessmen can be instrumental in making the charter's economic council work and help to wipe out grievances that encourage war. In this field we already have a large number of trained specialists — our importers and exporters.

John Abbink of New York, president of Business Publishers International corporation and board chairman of the National Foreign Trade council, says, "Many people are unaware of the size, the strength and the knowledge of America's collective body of traders. It represents agriculture, industry, business, banking, investment, merchant marine and aviation. These are men 'who know their way around the world.' "

The State department's network of diplomats has its place, but the ministers are of no more value than the thousands of businessmen who deal daily with foreigners in every corner of the globe.

Conditions are becoming so precarious in this neck of the universe that we sometimes wish we could thumb a ride on some vagrant comet.

Paradox: The weaker the dollar becomes, the harder it is to hold.

Mackinac Conference Raises GOP Curtain

Stassen Challenges Tom Dewey

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

MACKINAC ISLAND, — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's chances for renomination as Republican Presidential candidate in 1948 have been figured as diminishing by politicians who make it their business to analyze such things—even this far ahead of convention time.

But the New York governor, who is 43, does not intend to let the decision go by default.

He is capitalizing upon the annual Conference of Governors here to reassert his postion as titular leader of the Republican party.

STOKES

Gov. Dewey's appearance at this conference was not attended with the fanfare of similar gatherings last year and the year before. He is not so much in the public spotlight, nor in quite the same glamorous role, as when he appeared at this same conference last year at Hershey, Pa., a few weeks in advance of the convention which nominated him, or as when he came here to Mackinac Island in September 1943, for the conference of Republican governors and party leaders which drafted the so-called Mackinac Declaration, pledging the party to international cooperation.

Dewey Recalls 1943

It was at the 1943 Mackinac session that he stole the show, right off, by coming out at a press conference for a continuing military alliance with Great Britain, into which he suggested that other nations might be drawn—Russia, China, France and others.

At this Governors' conference here, in the same hotel conference room, at another press interview, he captured the headlines again by urging prompt ratification of the San Francisco Charter for a world security organization without amendments and without reservations.

He recalled his 1943 declaration here, with the inference that what has come out of San Francisco was, in effect, a development of that general idea. Likewise he referred back to his own campaign declarations — as titular leader of the party. With an emphasis that could not be mistaken he spoke also of how far the party and the country had come in the last four years on international cooperation, with the implication that he had some influence in the change of sentiment both in his party and with the public.

• • •

HE harked back, too, to his recent speech urging international cooperation on all fronts, political as well as economic. He declined to comment about the failure of a majority of his party in Congress to follow his advice on the Reciprocal Tariff program, but took the occasion to remark that he had gone further in the program outlined in his speech than the Truman administration, and is waiting for it to catch up.

It was altogether an interesting study in psychology for the listener. The young man is still trying to hold the reins.

The New York governor also is exerting his leadership on a domestic problem that looms up big for the moment at least—food—about which other governors here are sweating. For this he is well situated because of the recent conference he inaugurated among governors of 13 Eastern states, both Democratic and Republican, which formulated a program that will be discussed here.

• • •

Holds New Rival

It was obvious, in his outspoken opposition to reservations by the Senate to the San Francisco charter, that he is seeking to hold the leadership of the strongly international wing of his party as against the more conservative element led by Senator Taft (O.), who is seeking a reservation that would define the duties of the American representative of the Security council of the World Security Organization.

It is plain, as a matter of fact, that the New York governor is conscious of a rising rival to his own ambitions, another young man in the party, his junior by seven years — Commander Harold Stassen — who has emerged rapidly to the top as a contender for the 1948 nomination because of his work on the American delegation to the San Francisco conference.

• • •

COMMANDER STASSEN is having his own day before the conference, too, with a public appearance and a speech.

Tom Dewey got in a few licks on his own behalf before hand.

The battle of the young men in the months to come may be dramatic.

Joint Complaints Of Ice Houses Dismissed

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP) — The United States emergency court of appeals has dismissed nine joint complaints by "ice houses" in Texas against OPA regulations governing sale of iced beer for off premise consumption.

These establishments have been selling beer and other beverages and food in addition to ice.

The OPA permitted charging 13 cents a bottle for premium beers and 13 cents for other brands for consumption on the premises, but ruled that the price for off-premise consumption must be two cents lower.

Each of the complainants operates in one or more of four Texas cities, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio and Fort Worth.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Buses are overburdened as never before. A crisis is near. With more men, tires and gas going to war, present service can barely be maintained. Each day brings greater loads. When you must travel locally, let this be your creed:

1. Do Not Ride in Rush Hours, except to and from your job.
2. Have Exact Fare Ready, saves time and fuss.
3. Move Back When Driver Asks, speeds your ride.

This simple creed will work wonders.

OPA Fights New Ration Menace

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP) — Price Administrator Chester Bowles today ordered a nation-wide drive to crush what he termed an organized racket in the sale of ration bank checks.

These checks are written against accounts of ration currency in much the same way as regular checks are drawn on money accounts.

Bowles said the first evidence that "this phase of racketeering had assumed large proportions" was uncovered in New York recently, and resulted in arrest of "several big operators."

The bogus checks, he added, were being sold at prices varying from $6 to $8 a thousand points.

Mostly In New York

Bowles said that while operations detected thus far have been confined mostly to the New York area, "persons in other cities are implicated and we have advised our field offices that similar methods probably are being used in other parts of the country."

The OPA chief said that spurious checks already uncovered were sufficient to supply 600,000 persons with a full month's ration of meat, butter and other red point foods. He added that these checks had put 30,000,000 red points into illicit use.

Japs Battered Over Long China Front

CHUNGKING, July 4. (AP) — China-based American fliers blasted Japanese communications along a vast 1,000-mile aerial front from the Yellow river to Indo-China yesterday while Chinese soldiers posed a new threat to Kweilin, 360 miles southeast of Chungking, U. S. and Chinese communiques said today.

Site of three former American airfields, Japanese-held Kweilin already was threatened by medium-sized Chinese forces battling within 10 miles west. The Chinese high command reported that the main Chinese armies in south-central China now were swinging toward the Kwangsi province capital from the southwest.

Fanning out from captured Liuchow, these forces of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies pursued withdrawing Japanese troops toward Chungtu, 60 miles southwest of Kweilin, after capturing Liucheng, 17 miles northwest of Liuchow, on Monday, a communique said.

The Chinese in the Liuchow area were wheeling northwestward along the Liuchow-Kweilin highway and railroad, and the high command said some formations had reached the west bank of the Liu river six miles east of Liuchow. These Chinese elements apparently were preparing to sweep eastward and ultimately pose another threat to Kweilin from the south or souheast.

Messersmith Named SMU P. E. Director

DALLAS, July 3 (AP)—Lloyd E. Messersmith, athletic director of DePauw university, will succeed the late James W. St. Clair as chairman of the Physical Education department at Southern Methodist university and will coach varsity baseball, Athletic Director James W. Stewart announced tonight.

Messersmith will report at the beginning of the fall semester in September.

In addition to coaching baseball at DePauw, Messersmith directed the basketball team to two Indiana intercollegiate conference championships.

He was interviewed by the Southern Methodist University Administrative board two weeks ago and employed by Dr. Humphrey Lee, university president, on that group's recommendation.

Messersmith for the past two years has been acting athletic director of DePauw.

ALBANY, Tex., July 4 (AP) — Col. Richard H. (Dicky) McCarty, 88, whose colorful writings and oratory since West Texas frontier times helped spread Albany's name as "The Home of the Hereford," died today in the Veterans hospital at Waco.

He had been ill three years.

McCarty in 1902 became publisher of the Albany News and many of his articles, which wove together fact, fancy and exhortations, have become West Texas legends.

For ten years beginning in 1922, McCarty was orator of the Texas Press association. He also was a life-time honorary president of the West Texas Press association.

Funeral services will be here Thursday at 5 p. m. at the Baptist church.

Surviving are his widow: a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Webb; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Wood of Dallas, and a brother, John T. McCarty of Gainesville.

Future Of Europe Hinges On Big Three

LONDON, July 4. (AP)—Responsible Anglo-American diplomatic sources maintained today that the forthcoming meeting of the Big Three would shape Europe's economic future for half a century at least and sketch in general terms a new draft of the continent's map.

In Potsdam—paradoxically the museum of Frederick the Great's military ambitions and the site of the Friedenskirche, or "church of peace"—Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Stalin and President Truman were expected to open their momentous deliberations between July 14 and 16.

Unofficial reports indicated the Big Three's agenda was designed to liquidate most of the outstanding differences on European problems.

An estimated 30 per cent of Canadian dwellings are still lit by kerosene or gasoline.

ific explosion and there was no more bow to the ship. Fires broke out below decks, forward, and spread up to the stack. Soon another fire broke out aft. An LST nearby said we were hit by a suicide plane. Some of the men said there was gasoline and oil back aft. Some said the wind blew the flames from the fires forward back to start the fire aft. Everyone who was forward is missing."

Munitions Explode

With ammunition exploding below decks, Deworocki said, there was nothing to do but try to get off the ship.

"I didn't have time to treat the men," he said, "but had to have them lowered over the side without giving them any aid. It was pretty brutal on the men, but it was the only way we could get them over. All of the wounded and all men not missing got off the ship except one, a non-swimmer who was on the fantail."

Nearby ships picked up the survivors and the Twiggs sank just one hour after being hit.

The Japanese suicide plane which sank the Porter, the Navy reported, shot out of an overcast sky about 8:30 in the morning, came in very low and struck the destroyer at the water-line on the starboard side near the after engine room. Within seconds the engine room and other compartments flooded and the ship listed heavily to starboard.

Evacuated By Night

By noon all of her crew had escaped the ship and by nightfall all of the injured had been taken aboard the hospital ship Relief.

Wounded officers of the Twiggs included Lt. Oscar N. Pederson, Kilgore, Texas.

The Twiggs was built at the Charleston, S. C., Navy yard and commissioned November 4, 1943.

The Porter was built by the Consolidated Steel company, Orange, Texas, and commissioned July 6, 1943. She was named for Commodore William D. Porter and sponsored by his great-great-granddaughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Reeder, Charles County, Md.

In the Yellow sea convoy attack, Navy and Army planes fired a patrol craft and damaged a transport as well as hit the two destroyers.

The attack by Army Thunderbolts and Fleet Air Wing One search planes was announced today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz in a communique listing successes against more than 15 enemy surface craft.

Airfields Pounded

Headquarters disclosed an attack by Army Mitchells and Thunderbolts and Marine Corsairs Tuesday on the Chiran and Kanoya airfields on Kyushu, southern Japan but gave no confirmation to enemy broadcasts that more than 200 Iwo and Marianas-based planes hit the homeland as a followup to yesterday's Superfort firebomb raid.

Also on Tuesday, search planes of Fleet Air Wing One operating over enemy empire waters sank two small coastal cargo vessels south of Korea, damaged a medium cargo ship off Kyushu's west coast and five coastal cargo vessels in the Tsushima straits between Japan and Korea. An enemy fighter was shot down.

Ships Sunk Off China

Nimitz said planes of the same wing left a small coastal cargo ship and coastal tug in a sinking condition off Shanghai, China. They also sank a lugger and left another burning west of the Ryukyus.

Tactical air force planes from Okinawa raided the southern Ryukyus Tuesday. Night fighters off Ie Shima, an island immediately west of Okinawa, shot down an enemy plane.

Corsairs of the Fourth Marine aircraft wing hit enemy bases in the Palaus yesterday and Seventh Army Air force Liberators pounded Marcus the day before.

Tokyo Reports Attack

(Tokyo radio said 240 American bomber and fighter planes from Okinawa and Iwo Jima raided cities and airfields on Honshu and Kyushu islands in the Japanese homeland yesterday, following the Superfortress raids.

(Sasebo, naval base city on Kyushu, was one of the cities attacked in the widely separated daylight raids, said the unconfirmed broadcast. Another enemy radio report said 25 B-29s sowed mines in and near Kanmon strait, at the western entrance to Japan's inland sea.)

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, commander of the 21st Bomber command, said the early morning Fourth of July raids on the cities of Tokushima, Takamatsu and Kochi on Shikoku island and Himeji, on Honshu, were "highly successful."

The S.S. America, largest passenger vessel ever built in the United States, is now the transport U.S.S. West Point.

FEA Declines Shipping Permit On 100,000 Tons Of Steel To Spain

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP) — The Foreign Economic administration said today that it had turned thumbs down on shipment of 100,000 tons of steel rails to Spain.

The agency said that last month private American exporters, whom it did not name, inquired whether such a shipment could be made to Spain, and were told that an export license would not be granted.

FEA officials disclosed their action when a reported asked for comment on a protest by Philip Murray, president of the CIO, against any such shipment.

Letter Made Public

Murray made public a letter to Mobilization Director Fred M. Vinson, which said:

"My information is that the Sparrows Point, Md., plant of the Bethlehem corporation is rolling or preparing to roll 100,000 tons of steel rails for shipment to Spain. I am advised that request has been made by the Export Traders company, New York City, for an export license to ship steel rails to Spain."

He called this an "outrageous situation" and said it was made possible because the War Production board has permitted the sale of steel "in the free market."

Urging retention of controls on all scarce materials, Murray said that to abandon such controls now would be detrimental to small business men, workers and farmers "who will be forced to go without essential goods" until the demands of other buyers are satisfied.

Needs of Own Roads

"It is unnecessary for me to point out," he said, "the need of our own railroads for rails in order to meet the current tremendous transportation demands, to say nothing of the need of rails for rebuilding the transportation systems of our Allies and the liberated countries."

FEA officials said that no steel rails have been sent to Spain and that no license has been granted for such shipments. Advised of this, an aide to Murray said: "If that is the case, we are naturally pleased." Murray himself could not be reached for comment.

Sgt. T. R. Cravens Is Awarded Bronze Star Medal In Philippines

The Bronze Star medal has been awarded T/Sgt. Theodore R. Cravens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Cravens of Route 6 for "meritorious achievement in connection with military operations against the enemy at Luzon from Jan. 27 to Mar. 11, 1945." He was with the First Cavalry band.

The citation reads in part, "During this period the band was attached to the medical detachment for use as litter bearers and Sgt. Craven was charged with the responsibility of coordinating and integrating their function. Short handed as they were, Sgt. Craven utilized the available men to the fullest, thereby insuring that sufficient litter bearers were forward at all times. When one of his NCO's became sick and left a section of the litter bearers leaderless, he voluntarily filled the breach in addition to his other responsibilities. In order to facilitate the evacuation of the wounded, Sgt. Cravens on numerous occasions left the squadron aid station, frequently under fire from the Japanese, and assisted in removing the wounded from their forward and dangerously exposed positions."

In addition to the Bronze Star, Sgt. Cravens has been awarded the Purple Heart for wounds from shrapnel received at Leyte, and the Combat Infantryman's badge. He has been in Australia, New Guinea, the Admiralties, Leyte and Luzon for the past two years, and is now on his way home. His wife, Apolinaria Cravens, nurse for the Mexican government, lives in El Paso.

Sgt. Cravens' father was a bugler with the Army band at Luzon during the Spanish-American war.

Roosevelt Loan Is Explained

NEWARK, N. J., July 4. (AP)—Maxwell M. Bilofsky, manufacturer of radio tubes and electrical apparatus, said today he loaned Elliott Roosevelt $50,000 in 1939, took as collateral 500 shares of Texas State Radio network stock which he said proved to be worthless, and received final and total repayment of $20,800 in 1941.

Bilofsky, president of the Industrial Electronics Corp., Newark, said the loan to the late president's son was "pure and simple business."

The manufacturer said the transaction was arranged by David B. Baird, of Montclair, a New York insurance man who, he said, approached him in behalf of Elliott Roosevelt when he was raising funds to purchase the Texas network.

Pegler Answered

His statement was made in response to queries about Columnist Westbrook Pegler's published report that Baird loaned young Roosevelt $70,000 in November, 1939, and arranged for the $50,000 loan by Bilofsky.

Baird had been unavailable for comment at his home or office.

Bilofsky said he loaned Roosevelt the money to help him acquire the Texas network because he hoped to get the radio tube and incandescent lamp business of the Texas station and, through them, to promote his business relationships in the radio field.

Another Loan Studied

The manufacturer said he was not lamenting the $29,200 he lost, although he got no business from the Texas network. He said he did not claim the transaction as a loss in his income tax return.

Both Congress and the Treasury department in Washington are studying a $200,000 loan that John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., reportedly made to Elliott Roosevelt.

Hartford's attorney said that loan was settled for $4,000 and was written off by Hartford in his 1942 income tax report as a bad debt.

Roosevelt could not be reached today.

Occupants Hang On After Plane's Belly Ripped On Jap Ship

OKINAWA, July 2 (Delayed)—A Navy Privateer came home today from a bombing raid in the Yellow sea, dangling a three foot piece of the mast from a Japanese ship with a tattered remnant of the rising sun flag.

Most of the plane's belly was ripped out when the Privateer hit the mast during a strafing run. But Lt. G. E. Miller of Long Beach, Calif., brought his crippled ship with her 11-man crew and two passengers safely back in a perilous 500 mile flight.

Passengers Injured

The crew had to cling to the sides of the "inverted bath-tub" to keep from falling into the Pacific ocean, but all were unscathed. The passengers were injured, however. Both are expected to recover.

Accompanying Miller, former employe of the Long Beach Press-Telegram, was co-pilot Lt. Robert A. Littman, San Mateo, Calif.

Crew members included AMM 1/c O. M. Osborn of Mineral Wells and Fort Worth, Tex.; ARM 3/c M. R. Stach of Killeen, Tex., and S1/c J. E. Ibie of Tyler, Tex.

"I heard a tearing noise going through the plane," said Miller, "and we slid down to within five feet of the water before the plane finally pulled up slowly.

"Fortunately no men were in the fuselage or they would have been swept away.

"A 140 knot wind was whipping up through the hole and it almost blew lightweight Ibie out into the blue."

Littman said he crawled forward into the nose where a Marine photographer and another injured passenger were hanging on for dear life. The Marine, whose right arm was almost torn off was about to faint and fall out of the hole.

Littman grabbed him with one hand and clung to the side of the ship with the other until others helped get the passengers on to the flight deck.

Miller said that all the controls on one side of the ship were knocked away or dangling.

Despite the severe damage Miller landed the plane perfectly with a 300-yard belly slide, said Littman.

Spilled drops of medicine can cause holes to be burned in a table cloth.
