

FIFTEEN DEAD IN TAVERN FIRE

GO AROUND WORLD IN TWENTY EIGHT DAYS

TWO ADVENTURERS BREAK ALL RECORDS FOR CIRCLING GLOBE

HINTON WELLS AND EDWARD EVANS 7 DAYS AHEAD OF ALL

REACH NEW YORK PLANE, STEAMER, AND R.R. AIDED IN FASTEST JOURNEY

NEW YORK, July 14.—Speeding eastward by airplane, boat and train, two adventurers have circled the world in twenty-eight and a half days.

Linton Wells, young New York newspaper man, and Edward S. Evans, multi-millionaire Detroit manufacturer, won their race against time when their airplane nosed down to a perfect landing at Macmillan Field, Long Island. They had broken the best previous mark for circling the globe by more than seven days.

Seven nations joined in helping the pair achieve their remarkable feat, high spot in the dramatic episodes which have been plentiful in both their lives.

Wells and Evans sailed from New York shortly after midnight on the morning of June 16. At 4:15 p. m. Wednesday, an automobile, with the way cleared by a snorting, spitting escort of mounted police, brought them to city hall from Mitchell Field. They had completed their journey around the world in 28 days, 14 hours, 56 minutes and 51 seconds.

Their airplanes crashed, vessels were delayed by fog and storms, and trains were delayed. But with more frequent use of long distance flights than was possible for predecessors in the around-the-world race, Evans and Wells had little difficulty in making good their promise to return to New York in less than a month.

The adventurers were one day behind their schedule, which called for them to complete the journey in 27 days.

Building Jumps $100,000 Mark

With July not yet half gone, Lubbock building permits for the month A. M. Hensley of permit to build a yesterday hopped over the hundred thousand mark, with the issuance to five room residence for Dr. W. T. Reed of Tech college at 2619 21st street, to cost $5,300. The total building for the month is now $104,200, largely residences, and the largest permit yet issued was only $12,000.

Yacht Believed Lost In Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla., July 14.—Torn away from its mooring to a light house forty miles south of Miami during a violent storm Sunday night, a small fishing yacht with four men and two women aboard is now believed lost.

Coast guard boats and airplanes have been searching for the yacht for the last 24 hours.

TERRY CLAIMS FIRST COTTON BLOOM JULY 1

J. E. Shelton of Brownfield, reading in The Avalanche that Luckey claimed the first cotton bloom on the South Plains, on July 6, declares that H. G. Russell, Terry county farmer of seven miles south of Brownfield, reported cotton blooms in large numbers July 1.

Myrick Building Nears Completion

The six story Myrick building now being erected on Avenue J, and nearing completion, will not only be one of the largest office buildings on the South Plains but one of the most modern. It is a unit of the million dollar construction program which has been going on in Lubbock since the first of the year, and which during the first two weeks of July has been augmented by a steady building of residences, amounting to more than $100,000.

GEORGIA BANKS CLOSE WHOLESALE

40 SMALL BANKS SHUT DOORS AS ATLANTA FIRM LEADS WAY

ATLANTA, Ga., July 14.—Their principal source of funds, the Bankers Trust company of Atlanta, thrown into receivership, forty nine small banking institutions of Georgia have closed their doors since Monday.

They have been placed in charge of the State banking department. Many of them are solvent, according to the banking department, and may reopen when present financial difficulties are straightened out.

The Bankers Trust company, financial agent for a large string of small banks in Georgia and Florida, was forced into receivership by the Bank of Umatilla, Fla. in a suit filed in superior court here, the Umatilla bank alleged the Trust company was insolvent, that it had misused and misappropriated trust funds and converted them to its own use.

Following the appointment of receivers, a bankruptcy suit was filed in federal court against the Trust company by four creditors.

83 Absentee Votes Are Cast

Indicative of a heavy vote to be cast in Lubbock county in the coming primary election, eighty-two absentee votes had been filed last night in the county clerk's office. Forty-three of these were mail votes, filed up to yesterday when the time limit on these expired. Thirty-nine were brought into the office by voters who will be out of Lubbock on election day. This latter class have until three days before election to file their ballots.

Potter came to the meeting here ill, despite warning of his friends, and is now in the John Sealy hospital recuperating.

TO TRY DALLAS PASSENGER PLANE

THREE MONTHS' TEST STARTS SATURDAY ON TEXAS-CHICAGO LINE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 14.—Until the feasibility of the project is determined by a three months' test, the proposed passenger service on the Chicago-Kansas City-Dallas air mile line will not be installed.

This announcement was made today by Luther K. Bell, traffic manager of the National Air Transport, Inc., following the receipt of a message from Paul Henderson, general manager.

A test passenger Ford plane, constructed entirely of metal, will be delivered to the company Saturday in Chicago and trial flight will begin immediately, Bell was informed.

The plane will carry air mail and ballast during the three months' trial. If the experiment proves satisfactory, the proposal will be presented to the board of directors of the company by Henderson.

HUNDRED THOUSAND ELKS STAND WITH BOWED HEADS AS ATWELL DEDICATES B. P. O. E. MEMORIAL

CHICAGO, July 14.—With impressive ceremonies the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks has dedicated its new $3,000,000 building here which is to serve a memorial for the 70,000 Elks who serve in the war and as a headquarters for the national organization. Nearly 100,000 delegates to the Elks convention stood with bowed heads in Lincoln park late Wednesday while Rush L. Holland, former attorney general of the United States, delivered the dedicatory oration.

CHICAGO GANGS AT WAR AGAIN

BOOZE RING RIVAL DEAD AS GUNS BLAZE AGAIN

CHICAGO, July 14.—The guns of gangland are blazing again in Cicero. After a brief lull, occasioned by police activity in the killing of Assistant State's Attorney William McSwiggan, the old feud between rival beer runners has been resumed.

Detroit squads are slashing their way through another series of two raids on saloons many of which have been reopened the light suburb since "the cleanup" which followed McSwiggan's death, but they are running into the same conspiracies of silence that have defeated them before.

Nobody knows who killed Jules Portugese, the falshiest gunman of the valley, and no body knows who killed Joseph Ciccone, the alcohol peddler which was too ambitious. Both men were murdered Wednesday.

All that police can learn is that two more competitors in the liquor "racket" have been eliminated by the guns of their rivals. Their bullet torn bodies and their records are evidence enough that the bloody war is on again.

Hopes For Fusion Christian Churches

NEW YORK, July 14.—Hope for the fusion of the Protestant and Catholic faiths into a single creed was expressed by Bishop William T. Manning of the New York diocese of the Episcopal church as he sailed for Europe on the Cunard liner Berengia.

Scout Council Plans New Drive for Funds

MUST HAVE $1200 BEFORE CAMP STARTS, SOUTH PLAINS MEN SAY

Twelve hundred dollars must be raised right away for the Post Memorial Scout Camp before the boys can go there to camp August 17. This was the decision reached by the South Plains Scout board at a meeting in the office of R. J. Murray yesterday afternoon. The board took action on the question immediately and a committee of twelve men will canvas Lubbock beginning at 8:30 Friday morning.

An effort to raise $500 of the amount here in Lubbock will be made. "If Lubbock raises this much, I am sure that the other towns of the South Plains will more than do their part," stated L. S. Harkey, chairman of the meeting.

The committee which will make Lubbock is composed of Dr. Paul W. Horn, L. S. Harkey, R. J. Murray, Chas. L. Adams, Jed Rix, Pink L. Parrish, Neil Wright and Harry Roberts. Every man in the city will be asked to give something to the fund.

The board approved the report of the committee on expenditures. At present $1228 is owing and $1400 is needed to complete the absolute necessities of the camp. The fund now has $1400 available cash. The $1200 must be raised. The committee will be around at 8:30 Friday morning.

Davidson Man Talks Here Tonight

Several hundred seats borrowed from the South Plains fair association will be placed on the vacant lot at Thirtieth and Avenue I for the speaking by Claude Miller of Waco tonight at 8 o'clock in behalf of the candidacy of Lynch Davidson for governor of Texas. A platform will be erected during the day.

Mr. Miller spoke last night in Crosbyton to a good crowd, who were attentive to what he had to say. This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock speaks at Brownfield.

LONDON, July 14.—Mrs. Dolores Drummond, "the mother of the British stage," is dead. She was 92 years old.

GUESTS BURN IN MOUNTAIN HOTEL IN NEW YORK STATE

6 STILL MISSING AFTER MANY BODIES ARE FOUND

TANNERSVILLE, N. Y., July 14.—Fifteen dead have been removed from the ruins of the Twilight Tavern, an exclusive Catskill mountain summer resort at Haines Falls, N. Y., which was swept by fire before dawn today, trapping 48 guests.

An indeterminate number, ranging from six to eighteen, is still believed to be in the charred building.

Fifteen to twenty guests have been treated in hospitals or emergency Red Cross stations. Their injuries consist chiefly of burns and broken limbs.

Troopers Search State troopers, New York city police from their summer camp near Twilight Park, and Red Cross workers from Tannersville, Catskill and Haines Falls are continuing their search for bodies in the razed structure.

None of the dead has been identified.

Burns Like Tinder Fire started in the servants' quarters in the northwest corner of the hotel. The building, constructed of wood over which a thin layer of stucco had been laid, burned like tinder.

H. S. Stryker, the night watchman whose presence in mind in warning guests probably saved many lives, gave the alarm, running through the corridors and knocking on doors.

By the time he reached the upper floor, the structure was wrapped in a sheath of flames.

Whether he escaped could not be determined; he is listed among the missing.

Who Bumped Into Charley Baughman?

AUSTIN, Texas, July 14.—Charles E. Baughman, candidate for railroad commissioner, appealed to Travis county officers Wednesday for assistance in ascertaining the identity of a motor bus driver who ran down his machine Tuesday night. Baughman's machine was sideswiped and forced into a ditch between Austin and San Antonio. Baughman escaped injury. Officers were told that the offending bus driver failed to halt after the accident.

U. S. BANKMEN SEE "OLD WEST"

SPECIAL RODEO STAGED FOR A. I. B. MEETING IN DALLAS

DALLAS, Texas, July 14.—American bank employees spent the most of the third day of the 24th annual convention of the American Institute of Banking in getting acquainted with the Old West.

Cutting short technical conferences, the delegates adjourned at noon to "take in" a specially staged rodeo with the usual bull-dogging, cowboy and cowgirl stunts at the state state fair ground.

Additional lectures and instructive addresses were scheduled on the program for Thursday, preliminary to the election of officers and selection of the 1927 convention city Friday. To date, Detroit is the only applicant for the 1927 session.

PLAN NEW DRIVE TO DRY UP NEW YORK; MILLS WOULD MAKE PROHIBITION POPULAR THERE

By RAYMOND CLAPPER, United News Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, July 14.—A new drive to enforce prohibition in New York city is being organized. An additional force of about 150 men is to be sent into the nation's great west spot in an effort to make an eighty per cent reduction in the present traffic in alcohol within six months.

Preparations were discussed during a conference here between Major Chester P. Mills, prohibition administrator for New York, and Frank Dow, acting prohibition chief in the absence of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews. These plans are in furtherance of the program for

New York city recently discussed when Andrews made a special trip there to inspect conditions. New York agents estimated that between 400,000 and 500,000 gallons of denatured alcohol are being diverted each month there. Of this additional force to be sent in, 150 men will check sources of alcohol supply. The other fifty will be clerks and general investigators.

A new supervisor of brewers control was named today. Lieutenant Colonel James C. Waddell, a retired army officer, Major Mills said that he was to undertake to make prohibition "popular" in New York.

DAN CONTINUES ATTACK ON JIM

ROASTS FERGUSON IN TALK AT CENTER BEFORE BIG CROWD

Special to The Avalanche. CENTER, Texas, July 14.—Continuing his triumphant tour of East Texas, Dan Moody, attorney general and candidate for governor of Texas, continued his attack upon Fergusonism before people of this vicinity in a speech here this afternoon.

"The most vital issue before the people of Texas today," Mr. Moody said, "is the elimination of Fergusonism from the political life of Texas and the restoration of responsible government in this state. We are confronted today with the unusual and unusually dangerous situation of having our government dictated by a man who holds no office and is responsible neither to the law nor the people for his acts."

"Ferguson pleads that his wife be given a second term. The people of Texas know that Mrs. Ferguson never has yet had her first term and that Jim Ferguson, himself, is now running for a fourth term, but it is my firm conviction that the people will rise in their just wrath July 24th and forever blot from our political life the stigma of Fergusonism."

Moody dwelt at some length with highway matters, charging graft and corruption had been practiced in the letting of contracts and gave figures in connection with the highway suits which he successfully prosecuted.

"Give the counties a voice in highway department," he said. Competitive bidding and proper bonding must be required, Moody said.

Moody advocated amendment of the present law so as to bar grocers, book stores and for a free and open publication of prices to block expenditures redounding to the benefit of others than the state as necessary restrictions to be placed upon the text book commission.

Discussing the prison system he said that this system should be centralized and a business management inaugurated by responsible and honest officials held responsible for the conduct of the system.

"But the most necessary thing to do," Moody said, "is to get rid of old Jim and to free Texas of this curse and blight of Fergusonism. Nothing else is so important as long as Jim Ferguson is entrenched in the governor's office, embodiment of the power of the office and bartering it off for his enrichment and the reward of his political friends."

Moody spoke this morning at Catholic and following his address here left for San Augustine, where he will speak tonight.

Tells Women to Use Their Smiles

By United News. DES MOINES, Iowa, July 14.—"The best substitute for butter is a smile. That applies throughout the business world."

This counsel was proffered a group of delegates attending the national convention of business and professional women here today by Mrs. Ora Snyder of Chicago, famous for her capitalization of the home made candy idea.

"Personality is the greatest factor in success, and a smile is the biggest factor in personality," she said in explanation of her business philosophy and practice which requires all of her sales girls to greet customers with a smile.

Three New Faculty Members chosen At Canyon

Special to The Avalanche. CANYON, July 14.—President J. A. Hill of the West Texas State Teachers' College has announced the election of three new members to his faculty for the coming session.

C. W. Batchelder, now of the University of Nebraska, will come to the public speaking department to succeed Earl C. Bryan who has resigned to accept a position at the University of Oklahoma. Mr. Batchelder is a native of Vermont, a graduate of the Emerson School of Oratory at Boston and has taught in the Southwest. He will have charge of the debate work at the Canyon college.

Herbert Goza has been elected to a place in the department of education to take the place of Professor H. M. Cook who has been granted a year's leave of absence. Mr. Goza is a graduate of the Teachers College at Cape Girardeau, Missouri, and holds a master's degree from the University of Missouri. He has taught in practically every type of public school and comes to the Teachers College here with an enviable reputation for scholarship and ability to work with people.

W. L. Vaughan who has filled a place temporarily during the past year has been elected to a permanent place in the department of history, where he will work in the sub-college section. Vaughan is a graduate of the West Texas State Teachers' College; he was formerly principal of schools at Memphis, Texas.

After drinking three bottles of wine sold by Andrew Farris, a jury at Stafford, Eng., convicted him of selling adulterated stuff.

MORE BUILDING FOR LEVELLAND

NEW BRICK BUSINESS HOUSE BRINGS TOTAL CONSTRUCTION TO SEVENTEEN

LEVELLAND, July 14.—T. D. Heldt of Lubbock, has purchased a lot on East Main street and has the foundation laid for the erection of a brick building. This increases the number to 17 brick business houses in course of construction at this place.

Perhaps no town in West Texas can boast of such activity where there is nothing but agriculture to back the town.

The growth of the city is not out of line to that of the agricultural district, as several hundred farmers have located in the county and will patronize the home town happily.

Several more bricks are being contemplated in the fall. Ropes, the oldest town in the county, on the Seagraves branch of the Santa Fe but of Lubbock, is building some very nice brick business houses, and otherwise show an increased activity.

Faculty Members of Canyon Are In Europe

CANYON, Tex., July 14.—Miss Darthull Walker and Miss Edna Graham of the Teachers College faculty of this city are spending the summer months touring in Europe. When last heard from they were visiting the countries of the Mediterranean; they will go as far east as the Holy Land. They will return to Canyon for the opening of the fall session of the college, September 23.

Efforts to promote rubber growing in the Philippines have resulted in the appointment of an agricultural expert to study the production of rubber on the small plantations in the Middle East.

Scout Troop Goes to Camp at Post

Troup One of the Lubbock scouts will leave this morning for the Post camp where they will spend the week end. They will do general scouting and probably work on merits. Scoutmaster Sam Henry will accompany them. They expect to return to Lubbock Saturday.

TO PROSECUTE VOTE VIOLATORS

PINCHOT PUTS COPS ON TRAIL OF CORRUPTION IN PENNSYLVANIA

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 14.—Governor Pinchot has directed Attorney General Woodruff to begin prosecutions "wherever the evidence warrants" of persons who violated the Pennsylvania election laws during the republican election in May.

The governor made this announcement in a letter to the executive committee of the election laws reform of 76, appointed by Pinchot to draft election laws reform for the special legislative session which he summoned last January.

The committee is urged to draft bills to be submitted to the legislature next winter. They should provide a permanent limit for campaign expenditures with "loss of the election" by the candidate who violates them and a jail penalty for persons or heads of committees who fail to properly account for expenditures the latter advises.

The committee is further to draft regulations to curb the use of paid watchers and to stop the use of municipal, county and state employees from doing political work at public expense.

NEW YORK THIRD IN CANADIAN SETTLERS

OTTAWA, Ont. July 15.—New York ranked third among the states in contributing settlers to Canada in the twelve months ending April 1, 1926, according to a bulletin issued here by the Department of Immigration and Colonization. The state sent 1,913 immigrants to the Dominion.

PECOS VALLEY PLANS JUBILEE

WILL CELEBRATE RED BLUFF DAM FUNDS ON JULY 20

PECOS, July 14.—people of the Pecos Valley, athrill since the bill appropriating two million dollars for Red Bluff dam and reservoir, will seek an outlet for their high spirits in a big jubilee and jollification to be staged here July 20. This region, colorful since the days of Judge Roy Dean, "The Law West of the Pecos," will stage the most gorgeous event in its colorful history on that date. Not the least spectacular event of the occasion will be a big free barbecue spread on the banks of the beautiful Pecos River when twenty thousand people are expected to feast together in celebration of the momentous event for the valley. A full program has been arranged for the day which will provide entertainment for the more serious minded as well as for the throng of merrymakers. During the morning hours a great parade symbolizing the stages of valley development and depicting the products of the valley will be staged. During the afternoon speaking by persons high in state and national political high in state and national political and business life will feature, while at night the entertainment will climax with a grand ball with music by the Fort Bliss Military Band, and by a special orchestra. A feature of the ball will be an old fashioned cowboy's dance with music to be furnished by winners of the "old fiddlers" contest. Both modern and old fashioned dance music will be provided. The Charleston will meet the Virginia reel, while the square dance will vie with the Merry Widow Waltz for popularity of the merrymakers. The Spanish population of this section will have a full part in the celebration. Spanish and Mexican entertainments will be staged for the delight of the visitors.

Pecos wants the world to know that this is going to be a real celebration. The Red Bluff victory they regard as not merely a victory for the valley, but for West Texas and all Texas. Half a million acres of fertile land will be brought under the ditch, adding to the resources of Texas an agricultural empire equal to that of many entire states. The acquisition of Red Bluff and the re-

Milt Good Goes to Penitentiary

By United News. FORT WORTH, July 13.—Milt Good, one of the slayers of Cattle Inspectors Roberson and Allison, left Monday for the State Penitentiary at Huntsville in custody of State Penitentiary Agent Bud Russell. There were 15 other prisoners in the party.

Good has been held in the Tarrant county jail since being returned from Oklahoma, where he was recaptured several weeks ago. His companion in the double killing and the subsequent escape, Tom Ross, still is at large. Both Ross and Good are under sentence of 57 and 51 years for the killing of the two inspectors of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association.

DONATES $50,000 TO BAYLOR HOSPITAL

DALLAS, July 13.—The endowment fund of Baylor hospital here has been enriched by donations amounting to $50,000, according to announcement of E. E. King, superintendent of the hospital. The endowment fund now totals $100,000. The fund is used for the care of charity cases were cared for at the hospital last year.

cent appropriation by Congress of $150,000 for potash development, bids fair to make the Texas-Pecos country stage a great comeback and the valley folk are commemorating the bright outlook for the future by this celebration.

Included in the list of distinguished speakers and visitors who will be present are: Senator Carl B. Mayfield; Claude Hudspeth, member of Congress; Arthur P. Duggan, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce; J. L. Lancaster, president Texas and Pacific Railway; John M. Cage, state highway commissioner; George D. Hunter, general passenger agent, Texas and Pacific Railway; Richard Burgess; Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce; A. P. Barrett, president, Texas-Louisiana Power Co., and R. S. Taylor, president Texas and Pacific Railway. Invitations extended to Herbert Hoover and Secretary Work are expected to be accepted by one of the officials.

NO ACTION ON POSTOFFICE YET

VAUGHN HAS RECEIVED NO INSTRUCTIONS AS TO MORE SPACE

The postoffice situation in Lubbock remains the same although Postmaster Vaughn is looking every day for word from the department. The inspector when he was here made a survey of the facts and it is likely that the department will take action on his recommendation. What change is made will not be known until Vaughn receives instructions from the department at Washington.

"It may come in the form of additional room in the present building or a change of buildings stated Vaughn yesterday. Also they may ignore the report made by the inspector and act upon the application of the chamber of commerce for a Federal building here. In the last report of the department $120,000-000 was accorded as emergency while only $100,000,000 was appropriated. It is hoped that Lubbock will be included in the next emergency appropriation. At present the local department is waiting for action from the department at Washington.

NEBRASKA LAD GETS STAY OF DEATH AT SISTER'S PLEA

LINCOLN, Nebr., July 13.—Donald Ringer, 20 year old Hastings, Neb., murderer, late Tuesday was granted a reprieve until August 13, when the state board of pardons will hear the application of his 16 year old sister for reduction of his death sentence to life imprisonment. The reprieve was granted after the board spent most of the afternoon considering the application for a final hearing. Ringer was to have been electrocuted for the death of Carl W. Moore, Hastings automobile salesman, October 16, 1924.

FAMILY REJOICINGS—"And ye shall rejoice before the Lord your God, and your sons, and your daughters, and your menservants, and your maidservants." Deut. 12:12

AMERICAN FOREIGN INVESTMENTS

If there may have been foundation for the old charge that the United States had no foreign policy, the time rapidly is approaching when this government must develop a definite working plan in its relations with other countries, and must adhere to the fundamental principles of that plan regardless of whether a Republican or a Democratic administration is in power. The necessity for the formulation of such a policy is recognized by all thoughtful and well-formed leaders in American life today, irrespective of party affiliation. It is created by the enormous increase in the volume of American investments abroad, and the certainty that with the bulk of the world's gold supply concentrated in the United States, these foreign investments must be increased. Americans are accustomed to think of the British Government as the last word in diplomacy, and with reason. Here again the old adage, necessity is the mother of invention holds true. For many years the inhabitants of the "Tight Little Isle" have led the world in the total of their investments abroad. With their vast accumulations of capital it was imperative that such investments be made, not only because the home investment field was limited, but also because their huge purchases of raw material from abroad made it necessary to create a demand in other countries for British exchange if the pound sterling were to be prevented from going to a premium such as would automatically check sales of British goods abroad. Accordingly, Britishers invested their capital abroad, and it became a cardinal principle of British foreign policy to protect not only the lives of British agents in foreign lands, but British investments as well. These primary considerations became the keystone of the whole intricate and ramified system which today is known as the British foreign policy. In a manner of speaking the British colonial empire and the British navy are merely phases of this development. Theoretically, the United States always has endorsed the policy of the protection of American lives and property in foreign lands. Actually, however, the United States until the World War was intent on internal development to the exclusion of almost everything else. There was too much opportunity for investment at home of any available capital, for the American people to be greatly interested in foreign investment or foreign policy. Only a few years ago when intervention in Mexico seemed possible, politicians raised the cry, "You shan't send our boys to Mexico to fight for the oil interests," and the slogan found sympathetic response in many quarters. In 1900, the total of American investments in foreign lands was less than half a billion dollars. In 1913 these investments were about two and a half billions. Today they are in the neighborhood of twenty-five billions of dollars. Earnings from these investments create a demand for dollar exchange, and tend to keep the dollar from going to too high a premium. When the exchange value of the dollar reaches a point where other countries with cheaper money, cannot afford to buy American goods, then commerce suffers, and the prosperity of the country is affected. Therefore, it would appear that investment of surplus capital abroad is necessary if the country is to remain prosperous, and capitalists naturally demand that their government support them in any legitimate investment enterprise they may undertake in a foreign country. If they could be assured of consistent support regardless of whether a Democrat or a Republican is President, so much more readily would they respond to opportunities for foreign investment. And capitalists as a rule, are not without influence in government affairs. They usually get what they want.

THE LEAK IN THE BOAT

Vernon Tenold of Lake Norden, S. D., aged 14, adventuring on the lake with his younger brother in an old boat they had discovered, and being blown out into the lake in a high wind without oars, faced a real problem when the water poured in through a hole in the bottom. But by the time there were four inches of water in the boat, Vernon mastered the situation. He thrust his finger into the hole, and held it there until the boat drifted clear across the lake, saving the lives of both. Vernon had never heard of the Dutch boy and the "leak in the dike," either. Thus history repeats itself. This, however, need not be a signal for boys in general to begin stopping leaks with fingers. It would not only deprive dike-builders, boat-builders and plumbers of honest employment, but would make a lot of fingers unnecessarily sore. An analytical view of the problem leads to the conclusion that while both of these finger-plugging boys were heroic, neither was any too clever. Almost anything would do as well as a finger to stop a leak, and save pain and leave the hero free to do something else. A stick or stone in the dike, a handkerchief or piece of shirt in the boat, would doubtless have served the purpose admirably. Cotton is standard material for making boats tight. Still, if we're going to be so practical, heroism will go into a decline.

WEATHER AND WINE

A motor truck left Paw Paw, Mich., as a recent news dispatch related, laden with four barrels of grape juice, destined for Chicago. When it arrived, that juice was seized by the federal authorities as grape wine. It had fermented unquestionably, and turned into such "new wine" as is traditionally supposed to wreak more havoc to the drinker than the mature vintage. The driver blamed it on the weather. It was hot. Here is a problem that is making a good deal of trouble all over this land just now, and puzzling many an official head. It is lawful to possess fresh fruit juices. It is lawful to transport fresh fruit juice. It is not lawful to possess and transport alcoholic fruit juice. Yet time and temperature will inevitably turn the fresh beverage into alcoholic beverage, unless the possessor takes special precautions against it. If he does nothing but bide his time, he is breaking the law. Human law and the natural law of fermentation don't agree. In cases of Arabia and northern Africa, dates gathered from the palm trees unripened are packed on the backs of camels and transported across the desert to market towns. When they arrive, they are ripened and mellow. The heat and sweat of sun and beast work the transformation enroute. The two cases somehow seem oddly parallel. But they are not the same. Ripe dates are good for people, and there is no law, human or natural against them.

CALCULATING CRIMINALS

The eleventh hour rush of criminals to get themselves incarcerated in Sing Sing prison before the new and more stringent parole laws become effective should prove profoundly significant for penologists, as well as sundry sentimental persons whose hearts bleed for the poor unfortunate in the toils of the law. As a result of this last minute rush, we are told, the gray prison on the Hudson is filled to overflowing, with its guest list the largest in more than ten years. Not only in New York City, but in jurisdictions all over the state, prisoners hastened to change their pleas from not guilty to guilty and deluged district attorneys with offers to confess or to give state's evidence, asking only that they be permitted to enter Sing Sing before midnight June 30, when the new parole law became effective. Thus to beat the barrier meant in some instances the difference between a six-year and a ten-year term, and in the case of old offenders, the difference between five or six years' and life imprisonment. The doctrine of leniency for prisoners has as its foundation a kind of vague assumption that the culprit, either through lack of education or opportunity, or because of improper environment, has no proper appreciation of the seriousness of his act, and that society, not the prisoner, in reality is to blame. Few will dispute that crime often can be traced to social conditions for which society as a whole is at least partly responsible, but the spectacle just afforded in New York state gives an illuminating picture of another phase of the problem. Here we have a glimpse of shrewd calculating criminals, quick to see their own advantage and ready to choose the least bitter dose from among the medicines which the law prescribes. One scarcely can help thinking that with such persons, probable punishment is the all-important consideration. Men of this type would not hesitate to commit a crime so long as chances of being caught seemed slight, so long as sentimental juries acquit, lenient judges impose light sentences, and so long as misguided pardon and parole-boards release them after a few months again to prey upon society. But the same calculating, chance-measuring individual might view the matter differently if he saw himself confronted with almost certain apprehension, prompt conviction, and a long prison term that did not consist too largely of baseball games and moving pictures.

A VALOROUS DEED

The salvaging of the submarine S-51 will long stand as an eloquent testimonial to the hardihood, courage and persistence of the navy. To raise the submarine S-51 from the bottom of the ocean was a stupendous task and towing it into port was only slightly easier. The officers who had the salvaging in charge are to be congratulated for their coolness and good judgement and the enlisted personnel who assisted in the exploit deserve all credit for high personal valor.

FEWER DETOURS

Good news for the motor tourists! Some states are adopting a definite policy of preventing detours. Engineers and contractors are finding that it is by no means so inevitable as they used to think, that traffic should be sent the long way around every time a piece of construction or repair work is going on. One state highway director issues explicit orders that where new bridges are being constructed, temporary bridges shall be built or the new bridges so located that traffic may continue crossing the old structures while the new ones are going up. Likewise in working on highways, half of the paving strip is to be built or repaired at one time, leaving the other side open to a single line of traffic. "It costs the traveling public much more to go around a detour than the extra expense to the state to carry on the work and maintain traffic over the road at the same time," says the director. Doubtless this is true in a majority of cases. The policy might well be adopted in all local as well as state work.

So Think We

We think that if the people would only talk about the things they know there would not be so much talk.

We think there is one thing certain and that is the fellow who gives up is sure to go down.

We think that one of the most popular flowers in the South Plains is the cotton bloom, and there will be plenty of them very soon.

We think that robbers must be going in for culture. We notice where a gang went in and robbed the Detroit Museum of some of the rare articles of art.

We think it is not every dry section that prays for wetness that are praying for booze. Most of them want water.

We think if the report that college student drinking is decreasing, it may be attributed to the stuff that is offered them. College students are supposed to have ordinary horse sense.

We think when it gets to where automobiles will run a hundred miles on a gallon of gas, people will run out of gas just the same.

We think that balloon tires should be cheaper than they are, for they are mostly air.

We think it will soon be time to roast and salt down the peanut politicians.

We think it is about a fifty-fifty proposition in this old world. There are about as many things that we wish we knew as there are things that we wish we didn't know.

We think if ever that fellow dies who admits that the men who put their money and their energy and their thought into the newspaper business, knows more about it than he does there should be a substantial monument erected to his memory.

We think the old Methodist love feast is almost a thing of the past and the old Democratic love feast is certainly a back number also.

We think he that driveth an automobile should never look back, unless the gear is in the reverse.

We think most of the people are observing the stop signs on the streets, but enough of them are violating the rule to smash up a lot of automobiles and possibly make from one to a dozen new graves in the cemetery.

We think that the 1926 gubernatorial campaign will surely go down in history as one of the most "bunkiest" of bunk.

We think it is not necessary for a person to blow around about what they have done or what they are about to do, if it is worth anything at all it will be found out in plenty of time, and the other fellows will make fuss enough.

Famous Last Words

I wonder if it's loaded?

We think this is what might be termed open season on automobile drivers at the railroad crossings.

We think about the best thing to do with some of the voices that we have heard is to turn them entirely under first "plowing".

We think it will be impossible to get a line on the political situation in Texas this year. It is too crooked.

We think that very often alibis are worse than the crimes they are used to vindicate.

We think one way of evening things is to say a lot of things that we do not think, to make up for the many things we think and do not say.

We think that "battle axe" does not render much assistance in solving great questions, but it certainly does stain up the sidewalks when the battle axe presser gets in full operation.

It Is Reported

That when it comes to matching wits, quite a number of the candidates are running a close race—much closer perhaps than the race for office will be when the final vote is announced.

That great minds run in the same channel. We think possibly this is the reason that most of them have gotten in a rut.

That a Slaton man who is in the habit of talking in his sleep had two of his front teeth pulled so he would not talk so plain.

That Dan Moody must beat Ma exactly one vote, not two, three or five, if she is to resign in accordance with "Her" proposition at Sulphur Springs several weeks ago. The situation must be beginning to look a bit shaky.

That a man's pocket book is the most sensitive part about his anatomy.

That one young smarty, possibly educated at a cross roads school house some where and came to town, invested in a lip stick and a quantity of paint, paid a barber a fifty cent piece for a bob, says our language is punk. It may be, but we have never yet been accused of saying "where is it at."

That one old tight wad in Lubbock (but he is an optimist) says as long as it stays hot this way we won't have to worry about an overcoat.

That fifty billion words are sent over the telephones in America every twenty-four hours further along the pathway to agricultural independence through di-

Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, lady evangelist and "healer" of Los Angeles, who claims to have been kidnapped and carried to Mexico, is thought by some to have been involved in a love affair, but Arthur Brisbane thinks otherwise. He declared that her specifications for a future husband are that he must be six feet tall, a trombone player, singer and a good and holy man, also a preacher. Like Brisbane, we doubt if there is any such animal.

A Methodist congregation at Yucalpa, Calif., in a Bible-reading marathon, read the good book thru in 49 hours and 29 minutes, failing to break the Seventh Day Adventists' record of 55 hours and 47 minutes made last year. Such stunts get publicity, but we doubt their value in any other respect.

Amity between the United States and Japan is being further improved, according to a story which sounds "fishy" but isn't. The United States bureau of fisheries some time ago presented the Japanese government three million whitefish eggs, and the Japanese will send in return 100 choice goldfish and 100 beautifully ornamental carp.

The first American sailor to be killed during the World War was John Eopolucci, who perished on the steamer Arctec, sunk off the French coast five days before the United States entered the war. Congressman Bloom of New York introduced a bill granting $10,000 to Eopolucci's mother, as her son was killed before the war risk insurance act became effective. She ought to have it.

The news-magazine Time reports that Andrew Bishop, a resident in the vicinity of President Coolidge's summer White House in the Adirondacks, had his ears frost-bitten a few nights ago—keeping cool, etc.

General Lincoln C. Andrews expects to have his new enforcement machine perfected early this fall, in spite of the failure of Congress to put additional teeth in the Volstead act at his request. But it is said that he is getting tired of this job, and will resign about the first of October to give someone else the fun of running the machine.

The announcement from the office of A. P. Duggan of Littlefield, newly chosen president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, that that body will continue its campaign for diversification of farming in West Texas comes in good time. It is probable that no other work of the imposing list of activities of West Texas' premier public organization has produced such favorable results as has the sustained and oftentimes intensive campaign for more intelligent farming. West Texas today is farther along the pathway to agricultural independence through diversification than are most other regions predominantly agricultural. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce is entitled to much of the credit for this fortunate state of affairs.

In a way, West Texas faces a handicap in the extraordinary fertility of its soil and the fact that large areas may be cultivated with machinery and comparatively little manpower. Such a state of affairs invites "single-cropping" of "money crops" to the exclusion of the variety of products which make the farm first a home-supporting institution and secondly a factory for the production of commodities which may be exchanged for cash in the markets of the world. Cotton can be raised easier in West Texas than anywhere else in the world, therefore sensible West Texas must fight against parasitism of the cotton crop to the destruction of a sane-farming program upon which alone year-in-and-year-out prosperity can be based.

West Texas should lift itself at once completely out of the "crop mortgage" farming classification with one-cropping imposes wherever it is permitted to gain the upper hand. West Texas farms should produce, first, a variety of products that will insure food for the farm family and feed for the farm animals, and second, a variety of "money" crops that will insure against market disasters which may affect any one crop at any time.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has helped effectively in furthering this ideal farming program for West Texas. It is one of that organization's greatest works.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

TODAY

We think of time in years, yet in today
Joy comes and goes and honor lives or dies.
What is to be when next the sun shall rise,
Save death and sorrow, is our own to say.
This morning's deed shall shape tomorrow's way.
In this brief act the life-long future lies.
Now we are judged as foolish men or wise.
Worthy of trust or needs temptations sway.

The day is all-important, for the year
Are but a sheaf of days which time rans in;
So stand you fast against the world's harsh sneers,
But true today—the future's faith you win.
In this brief hour of trial splendor lies—
Today your honor either lives or dies.

LAMESA MAKES IT TWO IN A ROW WINNING FROM HUBBERS 6-4

AMARILLO METS WILL MEET HUBBERS IN THREE DAY SERIES

LOBOES ROMP ON HUDSPETH IN THE INITIAL SESSON SCORING ON TWO HITS, A WILD PITCH AND A WALK

Special to The Avalanche
LAMESA, July 14.—Again the Hubbers fumbled down their percentage row by dropping the last of a two day series here, with the local nine by a score of 6 to 4. This even the games for the season for both clubs, Hubbers winning 4 and the local 4. It is intimated that a three game series will be scheduled soon to determine which of the two clubs is the better.

The Lobos romped on Hudspeth in the initial frame getting to him for two safe blows, which resulted in scoring three men. L. White doubled to rightfield and Radford grounded to Lassiter who fumbled the catch allowing L. White to take third base. Hudspeth made a wild pitch which allowed L. White to score, then Adams walked and Bill White connected for a single to right field scoring both Radford and Adams. After this inning "Stingy" held the locals to a fairly good game. Ten hits were gotten from "Lefty"

Caraway, a new recruit of the Lamesa nine; however he kept the hits well scattered through the nine sessions.

Two double plays were credited to the locals in this afternoon's clash the last one was a great break for the locals in that the Hubbers had the bases full and will a wonderful catch by Jack Radford, keystones man of the locals, of Sheppard's liner if went into a double play thus ending a great chance for the Hubbers to score; this play came in the seventh frame.

Tomorrow the locals will battle the Post City nine and a great crowd is expected to attend.

KIWANIS VERSUS PIRATES RECEIVE ROTARIANS TODAY SERIOUS SETBACK

Exactly at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at Merrell park the great question will be settled; Who has the better ball players, the Kiwanian or the Rotarians? Nothing is known of the answer, but both managers state that their team will be in there fighting until the very last.

Both teams have been going through grueling work outs for the past several days and are in readiness for the contest. The game is expected to be filled with hits and star plays. Manager Frank Jones of the Kiwanian nine stated that although his team might fall down in fielding they would make up for it in hitting. Manager Charlie Guy of the Rotary nine will call his nine out early this afternoon and give them some good lessons in the game before the contest, and stated that he wanted all the men listed below to be at the park by 3:50 this afternoon.

Umpires which are to be agreed upon will likely be Be Hamilton, behind the plate and Chester Sheppard at the bat.

Probable lineups:
Rotary Position Kiwanis
E. Y. Freeland Herb Stubbs
M. B. Hilbura Baby Hall
Sled Allen I. F. Holland

PIRATES RECEIVE SERIOUS SETBACK

The Pittsburgh Pirates aspirations to repeat their 1925 triumph received a Boon setback Wednesday, when the world's champions lost a double header to the Giants, 19 to 8 and 5 to 2.

Cincinnati gained by defeated the Phillies, 5 to 1, while the Braves were stopping the Cubs, 6 to 4. The Robins at St. Louis, 5 to 2.

In the American league the Yanks increased their lead, taking a 12 inning game from Detroit, 7 to 6, while the White Sox walloped Washington 10 to 2.

The Athletics were idle because of rain.

NORTH PLAINS STELLAR NINE TO MEET SOUTH PLAINS LADS HERE ON FRIDAY, SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

The argument has been settled and Amarillo has agreed to meet the Hubbers here for a three game series on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday of this week. Preparations are being made to care for a great crowd that is expected to attend this series. Intense rivalry has been stirred between the two clubs, more so this season than ever before, and both the Mets of Amarillo, and the Hubbers of Lubbock, will have their fighting clothes on for the three days so a real battle may be promised to the South Plains fans on these three days.

Manager Middleton has been putting the youngsters of the Mets thru strenuous workouts and reports are from the Panhandle Metropolis that they are "hot and ready" for the Hubbers. Much interest is being shown in the Hubber-Met clash since the series with Amarillo during the West Texas Chamber of Commerce as they broke even in the series in the games played and the last game ended with a squabble which resulted in a forfeit of a game to the Mets. The fans of both the North Plains city and the South Plains city are very anxious to get the two clubs together in order that things may be brought out as to show which of the two nines will get the best of the series.

Skipper Allen will no doubt hurl his best pitchers versus the Mets and much is being counted on the present staff in Hudspeth, Hale, Ratliff, Bassinger, and possible "Big" Quattlebaum will be given a chance

For the past few days the Hubbers have been in a slight slump on hitting, base running, fielding and at times were subject to occasional "Brains storms" all of which is hoped to be out of their system when they meet with the Mets.

The games for the series will be played at the Merrell park starting at 3:30 o'clock.

P. A. signifies Pleasure Always

PROVE it, for instance, with a home-rolled cigarette. Get yourself a tidy red tin or a tippy red bag of Prince Albert and make a cigarette today. There's pleasure even in rolling it. The tobacco is crimp-cut and doesn't dance out of the paper. Saves time, temper, tobacco.

Sooner you get going with some P. A. and the makin's papers, the sooner you'll know what a grand and glorious tobacco Prince Albert is for cigarettes. There's a P. A. sunshine shop not far from here where they hand out Pleasure Always in tidy red tins and tippy red bags.

That's a detail, of course. But just put one of these cigarettes between your lips and light it. Man, oh, man—what a wonderful taste! Cool and refreshing. Sweet and fragrant. Mellow and mild, but with a body that satisfies all the way down. You'll say so.

Incidentally, if you smoke a pipe, try a load of Prince Albert this way. P. A. will make your old jimmy-pipe yield more downright smoke-pleasure than you ever thought possible. It will for a fact. The tobacco's the thing... how you smoke it is optional.

"Wise Money" Is All On Delaney

By FRANK GETTY United News Staff Correspondent NEW YORK, July 14.—The light heavyweight championship of the world, which Paul Berlenbach won from Old Mike McTigue on Decoration day two years ago is due to pass to Jack Delaney Thursday night, unless the unforeseen happens. In this instance the "wise money" is with Delaney. When the fight talk rages along the beer-ringed bars and rumbles through the cellar speak-easies, there is a deal of loud talking about Berlenbach's power, his left-hand punch, his tremendous recuperative powers and endurance. But when the "wise money" goes down on the line, it is to the challenger.

Dealers Muss Up Laundrymen

The Auto Dealers ran over the Laundrymen yesterday at Merril park with a score of 16 to 6. Hunt held the wash men to 9 hits while his mates gathered 14 from the offering of the opposition. Not a Laundry man got past first until the fourth when five hits, a walk and two errors netted them five runs. Another run was made in the fifth.

Hunt struck out five men. The hitting honors went to Whitlock with three safeties out of three trips. Hunt and Cunningham hit doubles. Graves was on the starting end of a double play in the first inning. Graves to Nabors.

HEAT EXHAUSTION AND SUNSTROKE TO BE GUARDED AGAINST IN SUMMER

By JOHN WYCKOFF, M. D. (Written for the United Press) CHICAGO, July 14.—Heat exhaustion is the commonest form of illness resulting from individuals being subjected to high temperatures for long lengths of time. Most people have experienced it in milder forms. In its graver forms it is a very serious disease and not infrequently causes death. It frequently attacks children and people who have been in poor health. It finds a ready victim in the individual who is intemperate in his use of alcohol.

The symptoms begin with a feeling of giddiness and frequently of nausea. The legs feel unsteady, the patient looks pale and may become unconscious. Externally the body is cold and clammy. The temperature is below normal.

One of the oldest diseases on record is Heat Stroke, or Sun Stroke as it is more commonly called. It is usually brought on by direct exposure to the sun's rays in extremely hot weather, particularly if the person is exposed for a long period of time.

Its onset is sudden and in rare cases, it seems to cause almost instantaneous death. Usually, however, it is ushered in with a terrific headache, dizziness, a feeling of oppression, and sometimes nausea and vomiting. Patients also complain that objects appear to them as being peculiar colors.

The victim of Sun Stroke looks altogether different from the heat exhaustion patient. In that condition the skin is cold and clammy; in Sun Stroke the skin is hot and fiery. In the former condition the patients are unconscious; in Sun Stroke they are red. The temperature rises rapidly frequently going to 110 degrees.

Enough has been said of the seriousness of the diseases of heat to show you the necessity of taking certain precautions in hot weather. Wear clothing of thin texture to allow the perspiration to evaporate readily, and of light color to reflect the sun's rays instead of absorbing them. Wear clothing as loose as possible, particularly about the neck, so as to avoid interference with the circulation.

As far as possible take things easy. Do not hurry. Don't run for street cars—wait for the next one. It is better to be late than to have to go to a hospital.

Don't eat too much in hot weather. Particularly do not eat hot things. Avoid pastry. Eat meat only once a day. Drink plenty of cool water, but no alcoholic drinks.

Bathe frequently. Shower baths are particularly good. In hot weather avoid, as far as possible, staying out for long periods in the sun. If this can not be avoided be sure to wear a hat, preferably a straw hat.

If you are called, in an emergency, to help someone who has been overcome with heat, summon a doctor as soon as possible. Then if the patient is cold and clammy, has a pale face, cover him with a blanket, give him a warm drink and put a wet water bag at his feet.

If on the other hand the patient's face is red put him in a cool place. Apply ice to the head, give him a cool drink and sponge his extremities until the doctor arrives.

The Skeets won their second game of the season at the Tech park yesterday afternoon from the Wholesalers, 10 to 3. The Skeets regained their initial form and hit the ball for a fair average. Wright struck out six men and was touched for six hits.

While Johnson and Zachary yielded to eleven of the soda batters. Hitting honors went to Buchanan, 3-3. Carter featured with a double play in the third inning. The Skeets cut three men out at the plate and prevented the Wholesalers from scoring until the fourth.

May Sell Tahoka Municipal Plant

TAHOKA, July 13.—Several propositions have been offered the city council of Tahoka by a number of companies that wish to purchase the municipal light and ice plant. A contract price of seventy-five thousand dollars was offered the city officials by the Marcus Bros., of Wichita Falls. Three of the five city aldermen voted to accept this proposition and submit it to a vote of the tax payers of this city; however Mayor Singleton vetoed this contract setting out a number of reasons for his veto.

Other propositions have been made by the Texas Utilities Company, the Texas Power and Light Co., and by Allen and Harris, local businessmen. All of these offers to buy the plant have not met with the entire approval of the council and no election date has been set calling an election for this purpose, while several of the councilmen announce that they are determined to sell the municipal plants believing that it would be to the best interest of the tax payers. On the other hand the other members of the Council points out the fact that these plants are paying a good profit each year as well as making many extensions and rendering a real service to the customers as well as saves them many dollars in the way of taxes.

This plant was sold last October to Clifford M. Thompson, acting in the name of the Mutual Light and Ice Company of Amarillo, Texas. After operating the plant for a few months it was discovered that the plant had been sold with a flaw in the election which affected the title to the property. Due to this error and the fact that many of the citizens were wanting the plant to be municipally owned the city council made an agreement with this company to take back the property and reimburse said company the money invested in the plant.

This plant has more than three hundred light customers and is equipped with first class machinery, having had one new one hundred and fifty horse power engine installed this past year. The other two engines are in good condition. A new ten ton ice plant was also built this past year. This plant has been leased to individuals for this ice season for a contract price of seven thousand dollars.

TEMPERING JUSTICE WITH MERCY, JUDGE NORDYKE LETS LADS OFF WITH LIGHT JAIL SENTENCE

Temporing justice with mercy, County Judge Nordyke yesterday saved from the dump pile material for future good citizenship in the shape of three boys, charged with a series of car stealings and petty thievery over a period of six months. He ordered the juveniles, one of them only 13 years old, and the others, each 15 years old, to be locked in the county jail for ten days, and thereafter put on probation, explaining to the parents that conviction might carry with it sentences to the reformatory.

The parents and the three boys were all in court. Judge Nordyke first reviewed the testimony against the lads and then delivered a fatherly admonition to them and a warning that reformatory sentences would be given them for future misbehavior.

When he announced his sentences of jail and told the parents to decide whether they would accept that or call for trial by jury or with counsel, the older people conferred a while and then told the judge "they guessed it would be good for the boys." As one pretty blonde mother told Judge Nordyke she would accept the sentence for her son, the 13 year old youngster looked at her with a rather frightened face, but said not a word. A few minutes later he was complacently combing his own blond hair with a little pocket comb and talking with his little sister, who sat inside the court railing with him.

Another of the boys had been admonished several times before by officers. A neighbor appeared and pleaded for him with Judge Nordyke. This fifteen year old boy had run away from school once, he told the court. His father is dead.

Several more boys in the same crowd have been apprehended by the officers, and await hearing before the county judge. Judge Nordyke said last night that he could not tell what sentence he would pronounce until he had heard the evidence and talked to the boys.

President Hill To Meet Control Board Today

CANYON, Tex., July 14.—President J. A. Hill, who left Canyon today to present the needs of the West Texas State Teachers College to the State Board of Control at Austin, states that he expects more students at the Teachers College this fall than have ever been enrolled before. President Hill states that everywhere there is a growing confidence in the methods of instruction employed by the teachers college for the student who wants real knowledge whether he intends to follow the profession of teaching or secure a firm foundation on which to build some other profession.

During the school year 1925-26 two thousand five hundred students have been enrolled. An increase of ten percent over this number would not be surprising to the college officials.

BIG TIM MURPHY OUSTED FROM JOB

LABOR LEADER MAY COME TO TEXAS TO RAISE BANANAS

CHICAGO, July 14.—Big Tim Murphy, Chicago's famous labor leader, has been ousted as president of the local tire dealers' association, where he was trying to make $20,000 with which to pay a government fine for his part in the Dearborn station mail robbery.

The injunction restraining Tim and his associates from holding office was issued Wednesday by Judge Ira Ryner on application of members who said Tim had "strong armed" himself into the presidency.

The disgruntled members charged that Murphy had resorted to his old practice of using dynamite bombs against tire dealers who declined his invitation to join the association and pay the initiation fee.

Tim says the association will be sorry it put him out and that unless "something turns up here" he may go back into the banana and banana oil business in Southern Texas.

Baylor College Increases Staff

BELTON, July 13.—The faculty of Baylor college here has added a number of new instructors who will take up their duties with the beginning of the 1926 fall term in September. The new professors, according to college authorities, are composed of a great many who have attained the degree of Ph. D. or those who have completed the work for that degree and will give the school a faculty composed of fewer instructors with bachelor's degree than any school in Texas.

Why Girls Go Back Home

BY CATHARINE BRODY

Copyright 1926 by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patry Pitter Miller in a Warner production from this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Marie Downey, innocent and pretty, misinterprets the kisses of Clifford Dudley, a matinee idol, as a proposal; he ruthlessly "frames" her to get rid of her, but the notoriety has the effect of making Marie's stage fame. She quickly rises to stardom. Meanwhile, the scandalous story gets into her home town papers. John, her former sweetheart, writes that he believes in her and will come to New York to marry her if she consents; but Marie, tasting success, puts him off.

She had been such a hit that they had decided to put it up in electric signs finally. Of course her agent had something to do with that and her personal publicity agent to whom a bit of her salary had gone ungrudgingly for some months. She had become hardened to this press agent not permitting the public to forget what she had done so ardently wished to prevent it from learning—that she had once been the fiancée, cast off in disgrace and in record time, of Clifford Dudley.

She allowed Sally and the publicity man to persuade her to build up a new personality, that of a chic, adorable, half-French, coquettish little girl, subtly but not too obviously tinged with what the theatrical public is an irresistible perfume of elegant immorality—not flagrant immorality, you understand.

She and Sally sat at the orange and yellow tea stand.

stead, which is like the disgusting reek of perfume in the making, but simply a sophisticated lack of conventionality. What difference is a syllable!

Thomas Burke speaks somewhere of the corners people turn in life, when they suddenly become conscious of leaving behind a definite portion of the road. Such a corner Marie saw when they gave up Sally's apartment and moved to a spacious duplex studio in the Fifties.

She hated to denude the walls of their pictures and leave them reproachfully bare and lonesome. Each bit of discarded furniture was a wrench. The old telephone number had become a part of her. When she found a picture of Clifford hidden under odds and ends in a bureau drawer she wept.

"Yeh, it's remarkable how we can keep on loving them even when they're proved saps and cads," remarked Sally sympathetically.

Marie hung the picture from her. "Oh, don't be a fool, Sally. The sight of him, even in a picture, makes me sick. But—but—"

She couldn't explain it. She cried more than ever. But she could not tell Sally that it was only because she was sorry that a bit of her life had been utterly lived, that one page of the book had been turned over and contents lost to all but memory. It occurred to her oddly that she had never had a picture of John. She wished she had had one. She had never even fancied herself in love for such a long time!

They left the picture of Clifford Dudley lying face downward on the floor, where the janitress found it and hung it devotedly in her living room to the utter demoralization of her husband.

The duplex studio in the fifties proved to be a very short corner indeed. By next autumn, when a new theatre flashed Marie's name to the world, she, with Sally always in her train, was ready to conquer new worlds.

There were still dancing lessons, but there were no more afternoons spent in home grooming, nor were there any but the fleetest of visits to the big shops. Marie's maid attended to the grooming and the routine shopping. Her sleeker than ever stockings no longer cost $1 a pair, but came in dozens of pairs and were paid for by checks which would have made the old Marie wince. Wherever she went there were stares and murmurs. Unknown girls besought her for advice on how to get on the stage, and the Sunday papers wrote columns analyzing the alluring Marie Downey for the public.

The public discussed on newspapers and over dinner tables and with their best friends did she really get a thousand a week or only half that much, and was it true that that millionaire who had been reported engaged to her was keeping her? And was she really French, or was she really come from the Midlands, as some people said? But it was more than likely that she was French, in view of the gossip about her, and you remember how she threw down poor Clifford Dudley, and so she must be French, because you know what these French girls are.

The final move of Marie and Sally, three years after the apartment in the Forties, left them in a house like a tiny but super-precious jewel set in the quiet, super-quiet professional street of a quaint street in Greenwich Village. The square and the Village both and lives a life sufficient to itself. Society women trying to turn actresses live there, and famous painters and wealthy dilettantes and writers who would not know a garret if they saw one. The cobblestoned division between the houses disappears with any but the merest suggestion of a sidewalk. Its people do not walk, and even its windows shun the curious passerby.

At night the way is deserted, but subdued sounds of cheer, the faint glow of lights and the explosive comfort revealed by an occasional opened door strike envy to the hearts of those who pass.

Many of these sounds of cheer came from Marie's house in the middle of the row. She had developed—perhaps it was her keeping father again—striking ease and interest as a hostess. In visitations to her after theatre parties were wrangled for, not only by theatrical people, but by the whole semi-smart professional crowd that has a foot in all the arts, and by people with old and well-known names, who would turn down an invitation to a house on Fifth avenue when Marie Downey gave a party.

"Why, I could think of half a dozen men," declared Sally, "who'd be willing even to marry me if they could go to your parties for the rest of their lives."

Sally was as much the flatter of other people's troubles as ever. She had grown a bit bolder, and some of the winks, due to her trying about engagements, had been the delay of almost checks, had been ironed out. She was always sure of a part in a Marie Downey show. Marie, on the other hand, had grown appreciative of her father's advice. She had had to remember to keep her eyes wistful. But neither her complexion nor her hair, nor her round chin, nor the new famous dimple and equally famous knees had altered.

She was smoking now as she and Sally sat in the living room over the orange and yellow tea stand, smoking and looking impatient over a letter.

"Letter from home?" guessed Sally.

"Yeh," said Marie briefly. She folded it at Sally.

"Read it and weep. I wish I could put that town of the map, where it belongs."

"What's all the shootin' for now?" sighed Sally. A newspaper clipping fell out of the folded letter. She read it. "Tch-tch!"

Wineville was not letting Marie forget. Three years meant little in its life. But Marie Downey (who, the editor always added mockingly, was better known to her home town with a "y"), as a great subject for gossip meant a lot. This latest story was an exaggerated account of her engagement to another millionaire, with faint innuendoes.

"It is said that Mr. Clarke's first gift to his fiancée, who may be affianced by this time, because of her well known habit of breaking engagements in record time, was a well stocked cellar. He would not let her want!"

Sally clutched her hair and went on to the letter.

"You don't seem to care for your own reputation, but you might think of your father's. The lady from the W. C. T. U. was down to see me about this cellar that the paper says a millionaire gave you. She said she wouldn't believe of a daughter of mine, when I've always been a teetotaler, and your mother was a member of the W. C. T. U. She asked me to see my influence, and I write to ask you to please think of your father if you don't care what you do yourself. You might remember how I care. It breaks my heart to think of you doing those things. No girl could have a whole house alone. There's something wrong in it. Even if your friend, Miss Short, lives with you I do not like what you write about her—a divorced woman. You know I do not believe in divorce, Marie."

POLITICAL WINDS BLOW VARIOUSLY

LUBBOCK STRAW VOTE IS FOR MA, TAHOKA FOR DAN, O'DONNELL FOR LYNCH

If trawls tell the way the wind blows, the political winds of the south plain are certainly blowing in various directions and any of the leading gubernatorial candidates or their proponents can draw aid and comfort, such as it is, from the following straw votes: Lubbock—Ferguson 71, Moody 19, Davidson 16; O'Donnell—Davidson, 66, Ferguson 54, Moody 22; Tahoka—Moody 101, Ferguson 34, Davidson 23.

Ma Leads in Lubbock

In the straw vote which is being conducted at the Real Service Station, 820 Main, Ma Ferguson is leading the ballot in the governor's race with a total of 71 votes. Dan Moody is second with a total of 19, while Davidson follows closely with 16 votes. But a few votes have been cast in the past few days according to C. C. Sook, manager.

MOODY TAKES TAHOKA

TAHOKA, July 14.—R. E. Keiner, proprietor of the Limit Confectionery of Tahoka conducted a one-day straw voting event to get the general attitude of the people here in the governor's race. Moody headed the ticket with a total of 101 votes, with Ma running second with 34 votes and Davidson trailing with 23 votes.

The straw voting represented the majority of the businessmen of the town.

O'DONNELL FOR DAVIDSON

O'DONNELL, July 14.—A straw vote on the coming election of a governor revealed the fact that Davidson is leading in O'Donnell. The straw voting was conducted by a local business firm and shows that Davidson received a total of sixty-six votes with Ma running a close second with fifty-four votes and Moody receiving only thirty-two votes.

HOW TO FIGHT COTTON FLEAS

EATON, IN TIME OF PEACE, PREPARED FOR WAR

"Just in case," says County Agent D. F. Eaton, "the cotton flea does transfer his unwelcome attention from other parts of Texas to the Lubbock untouched Panhandle, we had better tell the farmers how to get rid of him." Accordingly Mr. Eaton publishes the following dissertation upon the habits and customs of cotton fleas, and the proper methods of combating them:

During the past few weeks, there has been a totally unexpected and unprecedented spread of damage to the cotton crop caused by what is known as the "cotton hopper" or the "cotton flea." This has aroused widespread interest and apprehension and owing to the lack of information on many points of importance in meeting this problem, it has been necessary to carry on emergency research observations. Several circulars have been issued as information became available, and it is the purpose of the present one to bring the subject to date and include the experiences of the past few weeks.

This spring it was noticed early that an unusual number of hoppers were transferring their attention to the cotton in south Texas but damage in the remainder of the cotton belt became evident less than three weeks ago.

This damage is caused primarily by the insect which has been termed the cotton hopper.

The hoppers, both adults and nymphs, feed principally in the buds and growing tips of the branches. The injury is to the squares when they are very small. As a result, the tiny squares die, turn a brown or blackish color and sooner or later drop from the plant leaving a distinct scar. These blasted squares though small and often very minute are easily visible to the naked eye and anyone who will take the pains to inspect the cotton when the squares are being developed and watch for this kind of injury should be able to detect the presence of the hopper in time to use control measures.

The hopper is a very small insect, usually greenish in color, but sometimes rather yellowish or grayish but easily seen with the naked eye. When present in large numbers in a cotton field, the adults will readily appear like small white gnats darting among the plants whenever they are disturbed. Before developing wings, the hoppers are small green bugs, reminding one somewhat of plant lice. They remain on the plant and may often be discovered with their beaks inserted in small squares from which they extract the sap.

The hopper passes the winter in the egg stage, principally in the stems of cotton plants. They hatch in the early spring and begin feeding and breeding on certain common weeds, especially various kinds of horse mint, croton, evening primrose, etc. They also begin feeding and breeding in the cotton early in the spring, but it is probable that where the greatest damage occurs, certain early weed plants furnish a breeding ground in which the hoppers multiply in large numbers and when these weed plants begin to die out, the hoppers migrate to cotton.

In addition to the shedding of these squares, a very abnormal type of growth is displayed by cotton plants experiencing a severe damage. There is a decided tendency toward increased size and a rank vegetative growth. Furthermore, the plants become abnormally branched, with many small branches leaving the main joint, thus in many ways, resembling what might be called a sucker growth. This produces a very unusual looking cotton plant, and the combined characteristics of abnormal branching, shortage of squares and presence of the small blasted squares afford the easiest means of detecting hopper injury. The severity of infestation varies tremendously even within field and ranges from the loss of only a few squares to the complete destruction of all fruit on the plant. Many fields today with plants 3 1/2 to 36 inches in height have practically no fruit on them. In other cases, the hoppers have taken only a portion of the squares and there is a small amount of fruit being saved. Past experience has shown that once the cotton plant is relieved of the hopper there is often a very considerable recovery, and it is thus impossible to estimate the exact amount of loss at the present time. However, it is obvious that there has been a very large loss of cotton fruit, which cannot be entirely replaced and that the problem of still producing a crop is a serious one. Past experiences have shown that at some time during the season a majority of the hoppers migrate from the cotton fields and devote their attention to other plants for the remainder of the summer. Apparently, this period varies greatly, and there is no way of predicting when any particular locality will be relieved of this pest. In south Texas, the hoppers usually remained active on the cotton plants for about two to three months, but in some extreme cases they stayed on the cotton practically the entire season and almost completely prevented the setting of bolls. In other instances, where they left earlier, the plants recovered and made a fair late crop but by no means a full one. Undoubtedly, this is the condition which will be experienced through most of the infested area this season.

The best material to use is superfine dusting sulphur; that is, a sulphur ground so fine that at least 95 per cent of it will pass through a 200 mesh sieve. Flowers of sulphur is almost as effective against the insect and can be used where the superfine is not available but is more expensive and is more difficult to dust. Both these materials should be applied with dusting machines such as those used for the distribution of calcium arsenate for boll weevil control. However, the different grades of sulphur feed quite differently from calcium arsenate, and it is thus necessary to modify the feed valve setting of these machines. Where no dusting machinery is available and only small areas are to be treated, fairly satisfactory results can be secured by dusting the sulphur on the plants by hand with a bag, but this method is at best a poor substitute and should be used only in cases of extreme emergency.

The sulphur should be used at the rate of 10 pounds per acre and applications should be made under the same conditions as those favorable for calcium arsenate dusting; that is, when the air is calm or nearly calm and it is thus possible to get the sulphur down among the plants. The question of whether to use sulphur must, of course, be answered by the individual farmer. The best that can be recommended is for the farmer to examine his cotton closely and if he finds any considerable number of the blasted squares present and notices the insects hopping and flying around the plants, it will probably pay him to dust. Under such conditions, an application should be made at the earliest possible moment. A second application should follow not more than four or five days later. It is very important to make these two applications at a short time interval in dealing with heavy infestations already present in the cotton field. About four or five days after the second application the field should again be examined carefully and further applications made at five day intervals whenever there is a noticeable abundance of the insects and blasted squares. The number of applications necessary to afford control is naturally going to vary. So far, in the experiments around Tallulah, including about 1500 acres of sulphur dusted cotton, it has been found that the two applications will not be necessary in these fields unless there is a re-invasion. Of course, constant watch should be maintained for such a re-invasion.

The action of the sulphur on the insects is not entirely understood but undoubtedly the formation of sulphur gas in the fields is a very important factor in the killing. It has been found that the effect is comparatively gradual; that is, while some of the insects die in a short time, the killing continues for several days after the application. Furthermore, the hoppers in their feeding on the plant have injected some form of poison which causes a continued blasting of squares for some time after the hoppers have been killed out. Apparently, the number of blasted squares often does not diminish for at least five days and some squares will continue to die for at least ten days or two weeks. Experience this season has shown that the fields suffering medium damage began retaining a higher percentage of squares within about four or five days after the first application and were greatly improved

LUBBOCK MARINE TO SOUTH SEAS

By United News
SAM KING, AFTER TRAINING AT PARR ISLAND, GOES TO GUAM

PARR ISLAND, S. C., July 14.—After completing his preliminary training as a U. S. Marine, Samuel Lafayette King, of Lubbock, Texas, recently left this training camp for a tour of duty in Guam, a tiny tropical island far south in the Pacific. He will probably remain abroad for a year or longer before returning to the United States.

Samuel lived at the home of his father, Arthur A. King, Star Route, Lubbock, before he joined the Marine Corps, at Dallas, last March. For some time the local boy was stationed at the South Carolina camp, where he was taught the drills, customs, and duties of a marine. When a detail was organized here for duty in Guam, Samuel was one of the Marines selected.

Guam was ceded to the United States shortly after the Spanish-American War. U. S. Marines are stationed there, guarding the naval base and living amid surroundings typical of the South Sea Isles. Supplies are furnished there regularly, while moving pictures, athletic sports and entertainments help to vary the regular military routine.

Levelland People Planning Picnic

Members of the Levelland Chamber of Commerce are at this time arranging for a three-day picnic and barbecue to be held in that city on August 6, 7, and 8, according to a statement made by C. J. Rhea, Wednesday.

Last year more than 10,000 people attended the Levelland picnic, and members of the committee in charge of the affair say they expect a much larger delegation this year. Ranchmen and other large property owners in Hockley and adjoining counties are financing the proposition while members of the chamber of commerce are doing the work.

The first and last days will be given over to old time basket picnics, while a free barbecue will be spread on the second day. Fifty beehives have been purchased. Last year forty beehives were killed and 9,500 plates were served. Arrangements will be made to care for 12,000 this year. Uncle Jim Robertson, known far and wide as a barbecue expert will look after the eats.

Special entertainment in the way of races, roping and dancing will be provided, and the public generally will be given an invitation to be present.

MAP SALES SHOW INTEREST IN OIL

LARGE COMPANIES BUY HUNDREDS OF MAPS OF SOUTH PLAINS COUNTIES

The large oil companies have begun to take notice of Lubbock and surrounding territory and investigations are being made daily by them. According to C. A. Tubbs, draftsman for Sylvan Sanders engineering firm of this city, several hundred maps have been sold in the past few weeks by the firm to large companies.

The maps are of eleven counties mostly west of Lubbock. The list includes Hale, Lamb, Bailey, Lubbock, Hockley, Cochran, Terry, Lynn and Gaines and Dawson. Several wells have already been started in this territory and more leases are being considered by the larger companies. Sanders will return from Jackboro some time next week and work will start on maps of the eastern part of New Mexico of the field which is being opened up there.

Ownership maps of Lubbock county and others are being compiled by Tubbs during the next week or so. With the buying of maps by the large oil companies the situation around here seems to be of promise.

Examining Trial of Sam Fowler be Concluded Today

The examining trial of Sam Fowler held on a liquor charge, was called in Justice Court at 1:00 o'clock yesterday, but was continued until 9:00 o'clock today on account of two state witnesses being absent.

Fowler and a friend by the name of Robert were arrested here on July 3, by members of the sheriff's department. A quantity of liquor was confiscated and this was used as evidence against the men.

Only one witness, Deputy Sheriff Williamson, testified at the trial yesterday. He stated that he was present at the time the men were arrested—that he found the men pouring the liquid into a bath tub, and that he procured something like a quart of the alleged liquor.

District Attorney Witcher represented the state while Judge Triplett served as attorney for the defense.

Redman Buys Abernathy Review

S. J. Redman, who recently sold the Wilson Pointer, has purchased the Abernathy Review from J. J. Riley, who has been operating same since last fall when he acquired it from Mr. Redman.

Mr. Redman was the founder of the Review, several years ago. He sold it last fall, but is so in love with the people of that live little city that he wants to be back with them.

Oil Scout Visits Lubbock Section

Fred W. Turner, Jr., scout for the Lamar Oil Company, was in Lubbock yesterday. Mr. Turner will spend several days in various parts of the South Plains looking after the interests of his company.

LOCAL SHOWERS ARE COVERING LYNN COUNTY

Special to The Avalanche
TAROKA, July 14.—Local showers have been falling here for the past few days with a result that practically all of Lynn county has received enough moisture to greatly benefit the growing crops. In some than one inch, which will supply communities the rains were more enough moisture to keep the crops at their best for some time.

In fruiting within a week. It will be plain from the above that the farmer should not expect to dust his fields with sulphur and have the insects disappear immediately. So far, the hoppers have not been eradicated in any instance and there are always some present in the most heavily dusted fields, but proper dusting has reduced the number below the point of damage.

CARLISLE WOMAN TO GO TO SHORT COURSE

Funds obtained from the sale of ice cream and cake tonight at Carlisle by the home demonstration club of that vicinity, during the speaking by Durwood Bradley, will be used to send Mrs. Earl Lovelace, president of the club, to the short course at A. and M. College this summer. Miss Hazel Hammer, county home demonstration agent, said yesterday.

Palmer Compiles Scout Camp Dope

A camp folder is being compiled by Scout Executive Palmer which will be mailed out to the boys of the South Plains in the near future. The folder will contain information concerning the camp, what to bring to the camp, when to come and other general information. It will also include a blank of application for enrollment in the camp.

Some definite number must be reached before the officials can tell how many boys to prepare for. Every boy who plans to go to the camp must sign one of these applications. It is the present plan of the officials to use the camp in August regardless of the scarcity of funds. The ranch house will be drafted for the mess hall with a few minor improvements.

George Webster, aged 2, fell from a rapidly moving train near Evanson, Ill., but was not seriously hurt.

BETTER SERVICE

- ☛ We have to give better service on our ranges than is customary. We know our record will prove that. Its better to buy where your money will go the farthest, where the service is better, where the Western Electric Crawford will do more and cost less, why not buy it?
- ☛ Buy this week, it will pay you to come in and see this wonderful NEW type of range, this week.
- ☛ Its hot weather now, and why not buy and keep cool this summer.
