Ask Us

Q. — Has April 15 always been the deadline to file your income tax?

A. — No. The date used to be March 15, according to officials with the IRS, and it was changed in 1961. In addition, there are at least two proposals before the U.S. Congress now to change the date again — based on such individual items as birth date or social security number — in an attempt to stagger filing dates throughout the year.

Reagan seeks House ok for Contras

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, a narrow winner in the Senate on his Contra aid proposal, now has to persuade the House to change its mind and approve the plan for military aid to rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

The vote by the Republican-controlled Senate late Thursday reversed last week's defeat of the $100 million plan by the Democratic-run House. But before the Senate approved the proposal by voice vote, it voted 53-47 to attach a condition that delays delivery of lethal weapons to the U.S-backed rebels for 90 days in order to boost chances for negotiations.

On few foreign policy issues had Reagan ever worked so hard. Even as the Senate debated the issue Thursday, Reagan lobbied by telephone as he traveled west for an Easter vacation.

Only 11 Democrats joined 42 Republicans in voting for the aid resolution while 36 Democrats joined by 11 Republicans voted against it.

The narrowness of Reagan's victory in the Senate showed he still has a fight on his hands. The House rejected the Reagan plan 222-210 a week ago, so Reagan must find some converts there if he is to prevail.

The White House's stress on what it pictured as a large-scale incursion this week by Nicaraguan troops into neighboring Honduras failed to have much impact on the vote, according to opponents and supporters of the aid plan.

"I don't think it made a difference," said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and chief proponent of Reagan's package. "We thought we had about 52 or so votes all along."

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., the leading opponent, concurred, saying, "I don't think the alleged invasion really had much effect one way or the other."

County may claim suspect's vehicles

132nd District Court officials have filed civil lawsuits here seeking the forfeiture of six automobiles allegedly used by defendants jailed earlier this month on drug trafficing charges.

The suits follow new provisions in Texas law which allow the seizure of property used in or acquired from the profits from the manufacuture, sale or transportation of controlled substances.

Now being sought are a 1976 Dodge, a 1982 Ford, a 1976 Buick, a 1975 Chevrolet, a 1980 Chevrolet and a 1984 Chevrolet.

All six are said to have been used by one or more of the 27 suspects indicted and arrested this month for delivery of marijuana and other controlled substances in Scurry County between Nov. 8, 1985 and Mar. 8.

In a similar but unrelated case — styled The State of Texas vs 1977 Pontiac — the State was successful this week in gaining legal ownership of a 1977 Pontiac allegedly used for the transportation of marijuana here in June of 1985.

Once seized, the vehicles become the property of the court to be diposed of at the court's discretion.

Vehicles seized locally since Jan. 1 have either been sold or given to law enforcement agencies for their use.

HOUSTON PARKWAY CURBING — Construction of Houston Parkway moved into a new phase this week with the installation of curb and gutter. Employees of Hugh Bledsoe Construction in Amarillo are putting in the curb with a computer guided machine. Board tables vote for lab equipment

A proposal to purchase new laboratory equipment at Cogdell Memorial Hospital — specifically a machine capable of analyzing blood and drug samples — was tabled Thursday night for further study.

Members of the Cogdell Hospital board of managers are considering either a purchase or a lease option for the equipment. They discussed the plan during their regular board meeting Thursday.

The machine, a Beckman Astra, can be purchased for some $65,000 or leased at $1,450 per month, it was noted. It is described as a clinical chemistry analyzer — a sophisticated machine for analyzing blood and certain drugs.

Ralph Price moved to table the proposal after a lengthy discussion concerning the method of purchase. Board members are considering leasing the equipment from either the company or from the D.M. Cogdell Memorial Foundation.

If the second option is followed, the foundation — a non-profit entity also administered by board members — would have to purchase the equipment.

Dan Cotton, board member and local attorney, noted he wanted to study the foundation's function and powers before making a decision. The matter will be discussed during the board's regular bill-paying session scheduled April 11.

Once the method of purchase is determined, the machine will replace equipment currently used by the department. Dr. James Howell, the board's medical advisor, noted that two analyzers are in operation at a cost of some $97,046. The second analyzer will continue to be used after the new one is secured, but the hospital's cost is projected to drop to some $69,780.

In other action, hospital manager Don Sealy reported that overdue bills filed with Small Claims Court and with the Retail Merchant's Association are being paid. He added that an additional 600 letters had been mailed this week.

Administrator Cy Miller noted that work is continuing to secure a permanent CAT scanner device

Alcohol sale charged here

Two Snyder residents — a 54-year-old man and a 48-year-old woman — were jailed by Scurry County sheriff's deputies Thursday evening on charges of possession of alcoholic beverages for sale in a dry county.

According to investigators, a large quantity of beer and whiskey was seized when they entered a residence in the 3100 Block of Ave. I. around 6 p.m.

Possession of alcohol for sale in a dry county is a misdemeanor offense.

Area rancher named to cattleman council

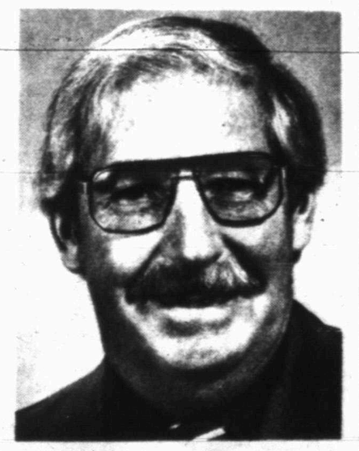

Billy Huddleston, a former member of the Scurry County Appraisal District and an active member of the Farm Bureau for many years, has been named vice president of a newly formed statewide group organized to strengthen the cattle industry.

Huddleston was among the 16-member board named to the Beef Industry Council. Board members are comprised of the seven organizations now in existence to help the plight of the cattleman.

Huddleston was named through his association with the Farm Bureau. In addition, he was chosen to serve as vice president, aiding newly elected President Jim Owens, representing the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

Other cattlemen groups comprising the Beef Industry Council board are the Independent Cattlemen's Association, Texas CowBelles, Southwestern Meat Packers Association, Livestock Marketing Association of Texas, Texas Purebred Assocations and representatives of the dairy industry.

The goal of the newly formed council is to development, implement and monitor the $1 per head checkoff collection system; and to oversee consumer and industry information designed to strengthen the cattle industry.

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Danny Hukel, in the Gatesville Messenger, printed a variety of excuses collected over a period of years by a veteran high school principal.

Many of the notes written by parents are not prime examples of proper English. At any rate, the following is proof that you what say is not always what you mean:

"Billy had to miss school, he had an attack of whooping cranes on his chest."

"I kept Susan home today because she wasn't feeling too bright."

"Janet was kept home sick. She was in bed under the doctor and could not get up."

"Barbara was not at school yesterday because her mother was having a baby. It is not likely that she will be missing school again for the same reason."

"Please excuse Jane on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. She had an absent tooth."

"Please excuse my daughter's absence the past week, as she had a case of the fool."

"Mary could not go to school today because she had very close veins."

"Jimmy did not do his homework today because I couldn't understand it."

"Please excuse Chris' absence yesterday. I took him golfing with me. Chris shot an 86. I shot 92. Chris will not be absent to play golf again."

"The basement of our house got flooded where the kids slept, so they had to be evaperated."

"Please excuse Alexander Thursday, he had loose vowels."

"Please excuse Joanne from gym class tomorrow, as she is going to be sick."

"Please excuse Anne for being absent. She was sick and I had her shot."

"My son is under a doctor's care and should not take PE. Please execute him."

New owners at 'Donuts'

Country Donuts, located at 318 East Highway, is now under new ownership. Andrea Jennings and Becky Fuller have purchased the business and began its operation earlier this month.

Both women work together at the store. They make donuts fresh daily, sometimes making two batches in one day.

Jennings had managed other stores in the past and Fuller was one of the people who founded Rollin' Wheels here, a roller skating rink.

Country Donuts also offers free deliveries to groups or organizations who order at least a dozen donuts. Jennings said they hope to branch out in the future, but have made no definite plans as yet.

In Brief

Budget plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress began its Easter recess today with little hope of meeting an April 15 deadline for enactment of a fiscal 1987 budget blueprint.

The House and Senate reconvene April 8, but White House officials have said they do not think the Senate can pass a budget acceptable to the administration. The House, meanwhile, is waiting to see what the Senate does.

The Senate wrapped up work Thursday night and the House had recessed earlier this week.

The only spending plan pending on Capitol Hill for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 is a bipartisan package approved last week by the Senate Budget Committee that calls for $18.4 billion in additional revenues and pares about $25 billion from President Reagan's military spending request.

White House officials have denounced that plan.

Bank reopens

MEMPHIS, Texas (AP) — The First State Bank of Memphis, closed down Thursday after 52 years of business in this Panhandle community, will reopen today as Memphis State Bank.

"First State Bank was closed due to loan losses incurred well in excess of capital funds," State Banking Commissioner James Sexton said. "The loans on which losses were suffered included a sizable number of agricultural production debts as well as several loans to local and out-of-area small businesses."

Sexton said "current difficulties in the farm economy" contributed to the bank failure, but he also said "the lack of management continuity over the past few years, and, at times, the absence of managerial expertise and experience appears to have been a factor of some significant consequence."

Fleet leaves

WASHINGTON (AP) — A large U.S. Navy battle group has sailed unmolested from the Gulf of Sidra and away from Libya with vows by American leaders that the ships will return any time they wish.

"We'll do it again, whether or not any incidents happen or anything of the kind," said Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger.

Taxpayers pay shopping bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $39,000 shopping bill run up at U.S. military bases by the associates and family of former Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos has been paid on an "interim" basis with U.S. taxpayer dollars, a Navy official says.

The decision to reimburse the Air Force base exchanges with federal funds was made earlier this month by Adm. Ronald J. Hays, the commander in chief of the U.S. Pacific Command, according to Capt. Al Becker, a spokesman in Hawaii.

Hays authorized the issuance of a U.S. Treasury check to the exchange system, drawn on the Pacific Command's operational and maintenance fund, because he did not think the exchange system should be forced "to bear the burden of carrying these bills on its books," Becker said.

Hays fully expects his military account to be repaid, Becker said, although the matter of reimbursement has yet to be resolved.

Earlier this month, Pentagon sources disclosed Air Force officials were becoming increasingly concerned the bills at the Air Force exchanges in Guam and Hawaii never would be paid. The issue became a sensitive one because the base exchanges are self-supporting and profits are used to support morale, welfare and recreational programs for active-duty personnel.

The exchange system does not use money from Congress, and if the bill is not paid, "it's our people on Guam and Hawaii that could turn out the losers," said one Pentagon official who demanded anonymity.

"Admiral Hays was sensitive to the concern on the part of the officers and airmen and their families that the expenses that were incurred at exchanges would be a long time in being repaid," Becker explained in a telephone interview Thursday.

"It's important to underscore that this is only an interim thing until we find out ultimately how we're going to take care of all the billings. How that will be resolved, we don't know yet," Becker said.

Sister Adds Angry Chapter To Story of Father's Abuse

DEAR ABBY: My sister recently informed me that eight years ago she was sexually abused by our father. She said he didn't go "all the way," but he sexually abused her nevertheless. Our mother found out (how, I don't know), and all three went for therapy.

At the time, I knew something was wrong, but I didn't know what. I am all mixed up about my feelings now. Why did my sister tell me about it? I have always loved my father. Am I supposed to hate him now?

Actually, I think I am madder at my sister for telling me. She seems to want to hurt our father—which I can understand—but she didn't care who else she hurt in the process.

When I asked her why she told me now about something that happened eight years ago, she said she thought I should know what our father did to her, and it shouldn't be kept a secret.

What I want to know is, Why do you think she told me, and who should I be mad at?

ALL MIXED UP

DEAR MIXED UP: I don't think you should be mad at anybody. Perhaps your sister wanted to open the door for a discussion, in case your father had abused you, too. (It is not uncommon for a father who sexually molests one child to molest the siblings.) Your sister is obviously still very bitter and angry; she needs more therapy to resolve these painful feelings. She also needs your patience and understanding.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: "Big in Flagstaff" asked if a person who is 5 feet 10 and weighs 370 pounds can fit into an airplane seat going overseas. You said, "If you go first class, you should have no problem."

Obviously neither you, "Big" nor his travel agent has ever been in the coach section of a modern airliner.

If any of you had, you would know that all one needs to do is lift the arm rest between any two seats, and you will have enough space to accommodate a baby hippo.

Your advice to consider first class is both ludicrous and expensive. Coach fare from Flagstaff to London is $613 round trip. First class is $3,606. If "Big" were to buy two coach seats, it would cost him $1,226, and he would fly comfortably, as opposed to flying first class for $3,606.

You blew it on this one, Abby.

C.J. PADFIELD,
LA MESA, CALIF.

DEAR C.J.: What's fare is fare. You'll get no argument from me.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I dated a super man for a year. He boards with a family who loves him like a son. He gave me a ring and we planned a February wedding. This other family found out about me and threw him out, so he moved in with me. On the fourth day he cried and wanted to return to the family he was living with. He said he missed the children. So that's where he is living now.

I told him I needed six months to think things over, but now he's pressuring me to marry him.

My friends and family keep asking me when I'm going to get married. It's kind of embarrassing because we bought our wedding clothes but never went through with the wedding. (I kept the ring.)

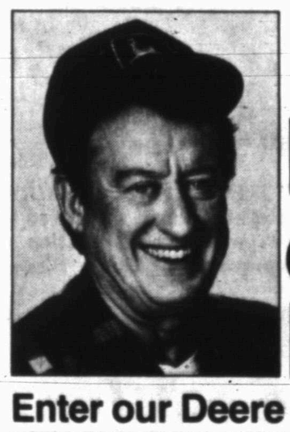

What should I do? He is a very fine person, but he can't seem to bring himself to cut the ties with the people he's living with. I need help!

ON THE FENCE
IN AURORA, ILL.

DEAR ON: Better to sit on the fence than jump off on the wrong side. A man who can't seem to cut the ties with the people he's living with is not mature enough to marry. Take your sweet time and don't resume the relationship until you're absolutely, positively sure he's able to leave the nest.

Meteorite creates rich ore deposits

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A catastrophic meteorite impact about 1.8 billion years ago created one of the world's largest and richest deposits of metal ores, according to new evidence reported by scientists at the University of Rochester.

The findings of Asish Basu and Billy Faggart of the university confirm the theory that the metal-rich region around Sudbury, Ont., was formed when a giant meteorite hit the region. They say this caused the earth's crust in that area to melt and separate into distinctive layers of metals.

In addition to nickel and copper, of which Sudbury is one of the world's largest suppliers, the complex produces significant amounts of platinum, palladium, iridium, and other rare metals.

Parade of colorful suits

By Florence De Santis

© 1986, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Easter is early — March 30 — this year. Thus the weather in many areas is likely to be less than balmy, so the Easter Parade will call for suits rather than dresses. Conveniently, designer spring collections emphasize more than the usual variety of suit styles and colors.

Adele Simpson likes plaids, either black and white with white tunic sweaters instead of blouses, or red-accented glen plaid for classic suit tailoring. Softer looks appear for those in areas where a suit may be worn without a coat in late March. The designs include an obi-sashed kimono jacket in white-piped navy linen, topping a white skirt.

Oscar de la Renta also likes soft suits with sweaters. He shows taupe jersey tops with peach wool suits, and suits with long jackets in peach or ivory accented with brown. A touch of draping marks these jackets, but for those who like tailored suits, the fabric is brown-and-white checked wool. Jade green, periwinkle and pink are de la Renta's other choices, proving that navy and white aren't the only colors for spring suits.

The attempt to get away from the classics can be seen even at Gucci, the very shrine of classicism. A black, short, fitted jacket edged in white goes with a pleated long skirt in plaid. Lemon yellow ribbed and cabled sweaters with print scarves are paired with suit separates in emerald and black, while silk suit separates are turquoise.

Bill Blass designs so many suits for this spring that one is reminded of the years when he designed for the upscale suit-and-coat house of Maurice Rentner, which eventually became the firm that now carries the Blass name. Blass' suits range from purely tailored styles in menswear pin stripes to coats in pink warp print paisley over gray-and-pink plaid suits. This Edwardian influence is still seen in London, where it also gets the band-collar Nehru variation, as in Jenni Ku's blue-on-blue Persian print denim, worn over a white band-collar tunic and tapered pants or skirt.

Notable in the Blass collection is the return of the sweater set, in white-collared navy or red cashmere to wear with pin-striped or white tailored slacks.

Color has become vital to fashion ever since most designers retreated from far-out looks to easy, wearable classics, which would be good investments. The color trend has been aided by the increasing fashion importance of knits, in which women seem to accept bolder designs and colors.

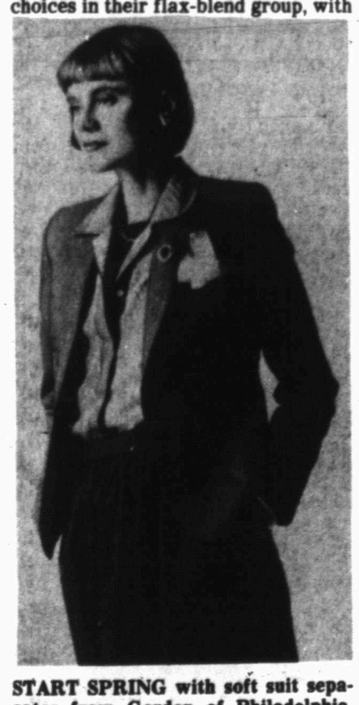

Thus Gordon of Philadelphia hasn't much altered their well-cut jackets, skirts and pants for spring. However, royal, magenta and jade are the color choices in their flax-blend group, with sweaters mixing the three colors. Huge fuchsia roses are shaded with navy on a white cotton sweater and, on another, a huge spray of leaves slants across the front in fuchsia on white.

At Pendleton, the mix of collarless shorter jackets, blazers and slimly tailored longer jackets is familiar, but the colors are new. The early suit group comes in grape, French blue and bisque. Using Washington, D.C., in the spring as a theme leads to cherry blossom pink, U.S. Mint green, navy stripes and checks, brick red and natural, all to be found mixed in a cardigan, a tennis V-neck pullover and a couple of vests. The knits lend spark.

Folio is doing three color groups. Black, vanilla and golden yellow mix in the most vivid group, with print blouses and classic but patterned sweater tops. A second group mixes green, red, royal blue and white — no trace of navy. The third comes in blue, pink, sand and white, as pastels form one branch of spring color themes this season. You hardly notice the classic styling.

BUSINESS SUIT separates from Folio by Fire Islander combine a casually-tailored jacket and skirt in black-and-gray stripe with a yellow, bowed blouse and white pullover cable vest.

START SPRING with soft suit separates from Gordon of Philadelphia. Suit is red cotton/poly gabardine. Shirt is striped and bordered in red on tan, worn over a navy T-shirt.

Prose and poetry slated

American Association of University Women will meet on April 2 at 4 p.m. at Martha Ann Woman's Club.

The program will be presented by Kay Hopper, UIL sponsor and English teacher at Snyder High School.

Students from Hopper's class will read prose and poetry. Robyn Fambro and Shannon Lunsford will read prose. Kirsten Miller and Jayme Gregory will read poetry.

Family and friends are invited to attend.

Following the entertainment, the business portion will be conducted. The officers for the coming year will be elected. Plans will be made for fund raisers.

This is the last regular meeting of the year before the final meeting that will be held at The Shack on May 7, at 6 p.m. The installation of officers is planned for this meeting.

An entry vanishes

By James Jacoby

South bid merrily up to three spades, a contract he should have made with an overtrick. But he played his side-suit carelessly, and the defenders alertly capitalized on his mistake. East won the opening lead with the diamond king and returned a diamond. Declarer trumped and played the club 10. If West had been kind enough to take that trick, South would no doubt have played West to hold the club queen as well. He could then win the next club with the jack, pick up the spade suit by leading the nine from dummy, and later return to dummy with the club king to take a heart finesse. That would be 10 tricks, a good result for South.

However, West was not in a friendly mood. He played low on the club 10. Declarer played low from dummy, and East played the eight, starting a signal to show his doubleton. South continued clubs. West won the ace and gave his partner a ruff. East now led a high diamond — the third round of that suit. Declarer did his best by pitching the heart 10. If East now leads a low spade, declarer can let it ride around to the nine in dummy. He can then take a heart finesse and still make nine tricks. But East wisely led a heart instead. Declarer could win the heart queen, but he still had to give up the setting trick to East's spade king.

How should declarer play? If his first club lead is low to the jack, he will be in dummy to take the successful trump finesse and will have no trouble with the contract.

City benefits from aid fight

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — While Nicaraguans battle themselves and President Reagan pushes Congress to aid rebels fighting the Sandinista government, this South Texas city is basking in the newfound notoriety it owes to the president.

When Reagan earlier this month asked Congress for $100 million to aid Contra rebels in Nicaragua, he said Harlingen would be on the front line if Nicaraguans invaded the United States.

Since then, the House denied his request for $70 million in military aid and $30 million in non-lethal humanitarian aid, but the Senate approved the measure Thursday night and sent it back to the House.

Reagan says failing to provide the funds would "open up the possibility of Soviet military bases on America's doorstep, threaten the security of the Panama Canal and inaugurate a vast migration march to the United States by hundreds of thousands of refugees."

He also said it would mean "consolidation of a privileged sanctuary for terrorists and subversives just two days' driving time from Harlingen, Texas."

Since that statement, telephones at Harlingen's City Hall, the chamber of commerce and newspapers have been ringing constantly.

Columnists have been writing about Harlingen — which is about 1,300 miles from Nicaragua — and cartoonist Garry Trudeau has dedicated this week's "Doonesbury" strip to the area and the conflict.

Law enforcement officials want to be prepared for an invasion of Sandinista troops, but city officials are taking the statement a little more lightly.

"I think the president's statement was nothing more than comical," Mayor Sam Lozano said, adding that he didn't believe Harlingen would be attacked.

"Since Harlingen did get notoriety as far as being mentioned by the president, it gives us an opportunity to tell the country that we have a great area down here," Chamber of Commerce Manager David Allex said. "We just give them a propoganda pitch.

Allex called the statement a political maneuver and noted that "I don't think there's any kind of military strategy involved in that statement at all."

He noted that Reagan was here during the 1980 presidential campaign and that "this was a town that stuck in his mind or his staff's mind."

Harlingen is a palm-studded city of 50,000 people located about 10 miles from the Mexican border. It is also home during the winter months for thousands of elderly people from northern states, and some merchants depend on shoppers from Mexico for their livelihood.

Like other border-area towns, however, Harlingen has suffered because of the devaluation of the Mexican peso over the last four years, but Allex said the economy is improving.

Reagan's statement has provided Trudeau with comic material for his "Doonesbury" strip, which talks about several towns in the area called the Rio Grande Valley.

In one of the strips, two men — one wearing a cowboy hat and the other an oil company cap — are interviewed about Harlingen's proximity to the Central American country.

"Is Managua really only two days' drive from Harlingen, as Mr. Reagan claims? Is the threat real? Listen to two long-time residents," the interviewer says.

"Shoot, yes,!" responds the cowboy. "I got a cousin who made it to Nicaragua in a Firebird in 32 hours!"

"And that was 'fore 345 was widened, right, Hap?" asks his buddy.

"Yup. And th' bridge was out in San Benito. 'Spect now a fellah could do it in 28!"

"Or less, if he knew the shortcut outa Brownsville."

"Shortcut? What shortcut?" the interviewer asks.

"Ain't at liberty to say," answers the cowboy.

"National security," the other adds.

Cameron County Sheriff Alex Perez, who was denied funds by county commissioners for some equipment, has sent Reagan a letter asking for funds to help secure the border.

Perez is asking for $125,000 to buy seven patrol cars, 12 riot helmets, 12 riot shields, 15 pump shotguns, 15 bullet-proof vests, two patrol car radios and cages for his patrol cars.

"I'm indicating that there's a serious problem south of us, south of our border; we'd (better) be prepared to meet any type of emergency," Perez said. "I don't really think that they're going to come across. I'm sure we'll have the military down here if they come."

Although the strips and the comments may have been taken lightly, some Nicaraguans already are a few miles from Harlingen and they are not laughing.

Two jail escapees are apprehended

FORT WORTH (AP) — An ambush, set up by officers on the shores of Marine Creek Lake, netted three fugitives, including a man described as part of a modern-day Bonnie-and-Clyde duo.

In what was described as a military operation Thursday, six officers hauled in the three men, two high-powered weapons, a stolen truck and a stray dog.

Two of the men — Lawrence Edward Byrom, 56, and Thomas Bromfield, 25 — escaped Monday night from the Cooke County Jail in Gainesville.

They were captured without violence about 8:15 p.m. Thursday as they met with a third man, a federal fugitive whose name was not disclosed, on the west bank of the lake, officials said.

Fort Worth police spokesman Doug Clarke said Byrom and Bromfield were driving a stolen Chevrolet pickup. U.S. Marshal Clint Peoples of Dallas said they were armed with a sawed-off shotgun and a 6 mm bolt-action rifle.

All three men were held without bail in the Tarrant County Jail.

Byrom and Bromfield, charged with aggravated robbery, and three other prisoners sawed their way out of jail Monday night, starting a crime spree that authorities say includes one kidnapping, three car thefts and at least one house burglary.

One of the escapees — Steven Dooley, 22, facing car theft charges — was arrested in Gainesville on Wednesday without incident.

Still missing were Ismael Bruno and Patrick Lewis, both 17 and both charged with burglary.

Lewis and Bruno were last seen between 1:30 and 2 a.m. Tuesday in north Dallas, the Cooke County sheriff's office reported.

Byrom and his wife, Alice Hart Byrom, pleaded guilty last year to robbing four North Texas banks. In all, Byrom has admitted to robbing 14 small-town banks, authorities said.

At the time of his escape, Byrom was serving a 50-year federal sentence and was in Cooke County awaiting trial on another bank robbery charge.

Bob Manning, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Westbrook, will be the evengelist and Keith Longbotham of Hendersonville, Tenn. will sing.

Everyone is welcome and a nursery will be provided.

Longbotham, a native of Plainview, began singing and playing his guitar at the age of 13. In 1980 he entered full time music evangelism. Since then he has lead revivals and performed at concerts in churches all over West Texas and New Mexico.

In 1982 he was selected to perform with Country Grass, a bluegrass group at Opryland USA in Nashville. He has performed on many local TV programs, on the Nashville Network and has also performed on WSM Grand Ole Opry.

Area hospitals attend meeting

Five area hospitals met at Cogdell Memorial Hospital Tuesday for an inservice and training meeting conducted by Syborn Castle personnel. Syborn Castle is a major manufacturer of sterilization equipment, such as autoclaves.

The hospitals in attendance were Cogdell, Hamlin Memorial Hospital, Hamlin; Fisher County Hospital, Rotan; Stonwall Memorial Hospital, Aspermont; and Mitchell County Hospital, Colorado City.

Plans were made for another meeting on April 23 to be held at Cogdell.

Self-treatment is hazardous

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A dear friend is 63, 5 feet 9 and weighs 300 pounds. He refuses medical help of any kind, but says that something just shuts off in the hollow of his throat and he can't breathe until he swallows a little whiskey. What causes this?

DEAR READER — He may be suffering from spasm of the muscles that form the upper esophagus. His weight doesn't help, because excessive fat deposits can cause pressure in the throat and lower neck. Whiskey may provide temporary relief; it has a muscle-relaxing effect. However, I think he will develop more serious problems if he self-medicates with alcohol. There are safer and more effective treatments.

People who refuse medical evaluation are usually afraid of what the doctor may find. Perhaps your friend fears that cancer is the cause of his symptoms. Maybe he is afraid the doctor may prohibit whiskey. In any case, his problem is probably treatable; I hope he chooses to seek medical help.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor says that my bone marrow is producing too many red blood cells. Every six weeks I go to the blood bank and they take two pints. I keep telling my doctor that I am very dizzy and lightheaded, to no avail. Why can't he give me something to help these problems?

DEAR READER — Your lightheadness may result from your overly thick blood. The disease is called polycythemia and can be treated with blood withdrawal. However, I am concerned about the reason for your polycythemia; the condition can be primary (from the bone marrow itself) or secondary (due to another disease, such as emphysema). You and your doctor will need to investigate the cause of your blood disorder; then more direct and specific treatment will be in order. I believe it is reasonable for you to suggest a consultation with a hemotologist (blood specialist). Blood removal may temporarily reduce the viscosity of your blood, but it is not, in my opinion, the treatment of choice.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 60 years old, and for the past three or four years I have noticed that whenever I bump the back of my hand or lower arm, I am left with an unsightly red bruise. I've seen this even more pronounced on people older than myself. What cause this condition?

DEAR READER — Older people bruise more easily because of thinner skin and more fragile capillary blood vessels in the skin. The tendency to bruise is a consequence of aging and, by itself, requires no treatment.

For information regarding the causes and treatment of impotence, write for your copy of Dr. Gott's new Health Report on IMPOTENCE. Send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this newspaper to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

Catholics protest exclusion

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A bishop's ban on women at a pre-Easter foot-washing ritual is discrimination because females weren't the only people absent from the Last Supper when Christ washed the feet of his apostles, protesters said.

"There were no old people at the Last Supper, there were no blacks, there were no handicapped people, there were no Italians. I didn't see any kids under 12," said a middle-aged protester who refused to identify himself.

Bishop Anthony J. Bevilacqua last month told priests throughout the Diocese of Pittsburgh that women could no longer participate in the traditional foot-washing ceremony, a re-enactment of the Last Supper.

"Christ washed the feet of his apostles, who are men," the bishop explained in a Feb. 25 memo.

Sister Kathleen O'Malley, 34, one of about 30 demonstrators who gathered outside St. Paul's Cathedral before Thursday's 10 a.m. Mass, described the bishop's order as a "slap in the face."

"I think it's narrow-minded and legalistic and it excludes recognition of the services of the women in the church," Sister O'Malley said.

Ask The Preacher

"...about 'the curse of the Law', in Gal. 3:13"

This passage discusses the contrast between a system of works (like the Law of Moses) and a system of grace (like the 'Law of the Spirit' -Rom.8:2).

Any system of works, like the Law of Moses, had to be obeyed PERFECTLY before it was of any value to the lawkeeper. Just one single violation of a law of works breaks the whole law and makes the lawbreaker stand condemned by that law (James 2:10).

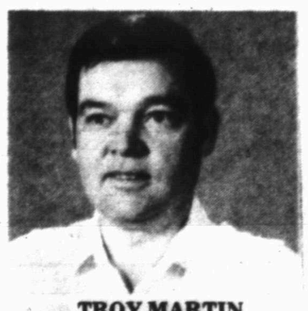

Thus the 'curse of the Law' refers to the curse of 'demanded perfection' in lawkeeping. Christ, in offering the grace of God, offers forgiveness for imperfection - releasing those who accept his offer from the curse we are discussing.

Beat Merkel 11-8...

Tigers hand Lewis 200th career win

MERKEL – It took awhile, but Coach Albert Lewis finally put number 200 behind him.

"We've been trying for two weeks now," laughed Lewis, after the Tigers defeated Merkel 11-8 in a non-district ballgame here Thursday. "I didn't think it would take this long."

Lewis' 200th victory as a Tiger baseball coach came in typical Snyder fashion for 1986 - a slugfest that was marred with erratic pitching and a handful of errors.

"I'm happy to get that 200th but it was pretty disappointing because our pitching didn't show any better," mused the coach, who used four pitchers to get past the scrappy Merkel ballclub.

Snyder started Justin Webb and he gave up four hits and three runs in one inning. Next came Joey Felan, who pitched well in the second but tired quickly in the third, allowing two hits and a pair of walks before giving way to Don Osborn.

Osborn finished the third and Jimmy Velasquez came on to pitch the final four innings.

"That was the first time Joey has pitched and so I'm not really disappointed in his performance," said Lewis. "We decided to give Jimmy the work to keep him sharp. He'll have four days rest before Lamesa now."

Snyder opens the District 2-4A season next Tuesday by hosting the Golden Tornadoes, 7 p.m., at Moffett Field.

While Snyder pitchers allowed 10 hits and were backed by six errors, the contest wasn't in serious doubt for very long. Merkel's pitching staff wasn't effective against the Tigers, either.

Snyder came up with 11 hits, used four walks and benefitted from three errors.

Webb put the visitors on the scoreboard with a one-run homer in the first inning.

Merkel took its only lead of the game in the bottom of the stanza when Keith Watson's ground-rule double scored two runs. Carey Miller later singled to score Watson and give the hosts a 3-1 advantage.

Snyder, accustomed to giving up runs chunky-style in the first inning, was undanted, however. The Tigers answered with six runs in the second inning and Merkel never recovered.

Mike McWilliams led off with his first of three walks on the afternoon. Next up Michael Long reached on an error and Ricky Hunter followed with a bunt single that put McWilliams across home plate. David Martinez then followed with a single to bring pinch runner Scott Lanier home, tying the score at 3-3.

Snyder's final runs of the inning came on a single by Brad Holcomb and a three-run shot over the 325-foot fence by Webb.

Merkel eventually got within two points, 8-6, in the bottom of the third when Shane Newberry cracked Felan for a three-run homer. Osborn came in and was able to quell the rally, despite a single and an error. Short stop Holcomb made a nice play on a line drive ball to get Snyder out of the inning.

Snyder had scored it's eighth run in the top of the third when McWilliams walked and came home on a fielder's choice. In the fifth, Fryar nailed a sacrifice fly that sent Lanier home for a 9-6 advantage. The score grew to 11-6 in the sixth when Hunter cracked a two-run homer.

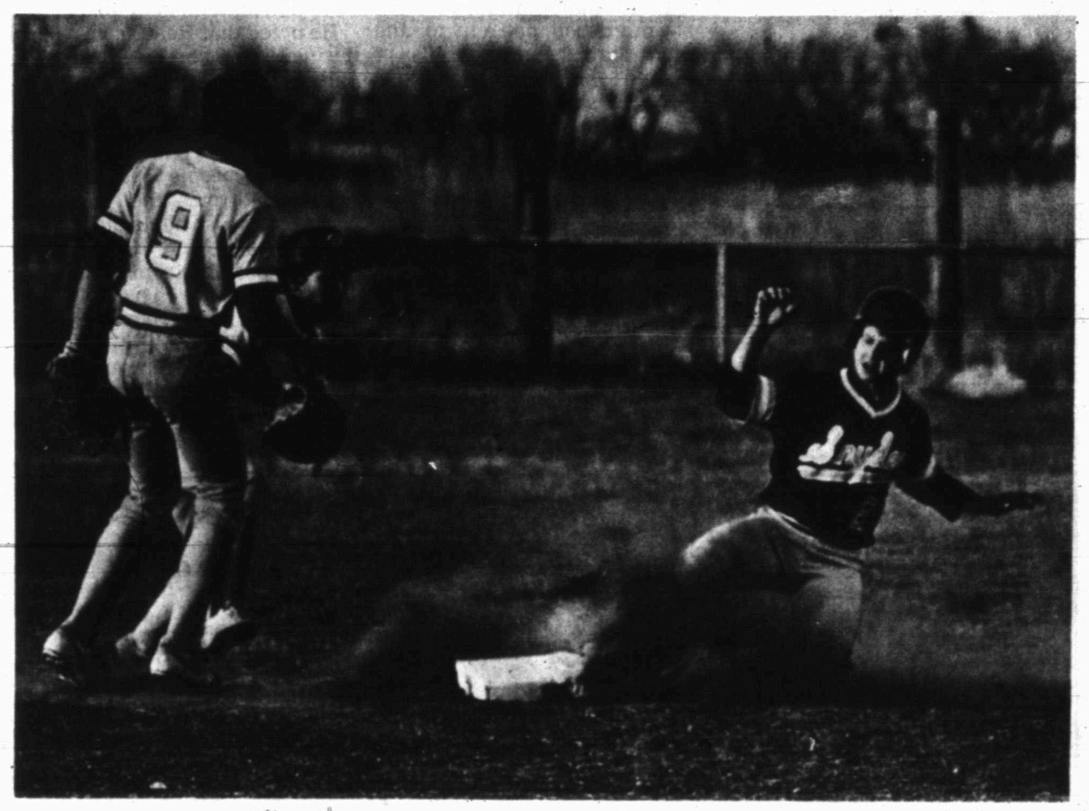

Snyder left eight batters stranded and missed several scoring opportunities, another fact which Lewis was concerned with.

"Some guys hit the ball well but some of our veterans went defensive on us in key situations at bat. We've got to be aggressive up there. We weren't always sure of ourselves. We've got to have a little better effort than that," he said.

Ken Jowers took the loss for Merkel, now 4-2. The hosts used five pitchers.

Velasquez was credited with the win. He is now 4-3 for the season.

The win brings Snyder's season record to 8-7 and Lewis' overall mark to 200-90-2. He is 87-16 in district play.

TOP MERKEL – Snyder exploded for seven runs in the second inning Thursday enroute to an 11-8 victory over Merkel. Above, pinch runner Michael Carter slides safely into second base. The Tigers, 8-7, open District 2-4A play next Tuesday with Lamesa. (SDN Staff Photo)

Hall plays in classic

Clyde Hall, Jr., from Snyder, has returned from New Orleans where he played with professional golfer Scott Hoch in the WSF&G Classic Pro-Am at Lakewood Country Club.

The Pro-Am and classic that followed were sponsored by the Baltimore-based WSF&G Insurance, one of the top multiple line insurance companies in the country.

Hall is an independent insurance agent from Snyder.

Top name PGA players, including 1985 Classic champion Seve Ballesteros, Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson and Hal Sutton competed in the classic for $500,000 in prize money.

Texas probe still growing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - As school officials considered policy changes to put more distance between alumni and football players, an NCAA representative arrived to investigate reports that University of Texas athletes have received cash, meals and preferential treatment from school boosters and sports agents.

James G. "Butch" Worley, an NCAA enforcement representative, has arranged interviews with at least one UT player named in recent reports about the UT football program, UT Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds said Thursday.

Worley will interview Tony Degrate, a defensive tackle who played at Texas from 1982-84 and who has admitted accepting cash payments and free dinners from alumni and agents, the Austin American-Statesman said today.

Degrate said Thursday that he has met briefly with Worley and will meet with him again next week, the newspaper reported.

Degrate said Knox Nunnally, a lawyer for the Houston firm of Vinson & Elkins who UT hired to investigate the recent allegations, would sit in on his interview with Worley.

The NCAA will not comment on activity by its enforcement officers.

In a related development, Dodds said UT is considering banning alumni from locker rooms after games to put more distance between football players and former students.

"I've thought about that a lot in the last two or three years. You like the associations but you've got to make a call on that," Dodds said Thursday in an interview with the Associated Press.

He said the university would "look under every rock" in working with Nunnally and the NCAA to complete an investigation touched off by stories in the Morning News and American-Statesman that indicated NCAA rules had been violated by players, agents and alumni.

'Final Four' works wonders when it comes to recruiting

DALLAS (AP) - A giant by-product of being in the NCAA Tournament's Final Four, besides the $850,000 payday for each team, is the wonders it works for recruiting.

"It's like having the U.S. government stamp meat with 'government inspected,' " said Louisiana State's colorful coach, Dale Brown. "It makes recruiting easy. Nobody says 'LSU Who?' when you call. It's a distinct advantage to being in the Final Four."

Kansas Coach Larry Brown says, "I agree, it adds creditability to your program."

Duke Coach Mike Kryzyzewski adds: "It should help next year's class. A youngster sees you are in the Final Four and perceives your program as being an excellent one."

Louisville Coach Denny Crum said a Final Four berth "makes it a lot easier to get your foot in the door to talk. After we won the title in 1980 it really helped us."

The four coaches discussed the matter on Tuesday in a national telephone hookup with the media.

Kansas arrived late Wednesday night with the other three teams expected today.

Louisville plays LSU at 2:42 p.m. Saturday in Reunion Arena, with Duke and Kansas meeting 30 minutes after the first game is over.

Krzyzewski is making his coaching debut in the Final Four, but said he's not worried about being a rookie.

"I'm too excited to feel the pressure and I hope the players catch onto it," said Krzyzewski. "I talked to (Indiana Coach) Bobby Knight and he's helped me get prepared."

Krzyzewski is worried about the Blue Devils' poor shooting during the tournament.

"I don't know why because it is one of our strong points," he said. "We've played good defense and we've rebounded well. Kansas is the best shooting team we've played and if we both have hot shooting it could be a high-scoring game."

Duke defeated Kansas 92-86 in the finals of the Big Apple NIT tournament in December.

Crum, making his sixth visit to the Final Four, called LSU's defense weird.

"LSU is a hard team to play because of the 'freak' defense," he said. "I think we might be a hard team to defense, though, because everyone on our team is capable of scoring 25 points."

Brown said that "freak" was as good a name as any for his defense.

"It's a combination of man-for-man and zone coverages. You have to be careful and not get so cute your kids can't do it," he said.

Louisville was rated a five-point favorite over LSU while Duke was a two-point pick over Kansas.

Berry player of year

DALLAS (AP) - St. John's junior Walter Berry today was named winner of the 15th Adolph F. Rupp Trophy as the Associated Press college player of the year.

Berry, a 6-foot-8, 215-pounder who was the only unanimous selection on this year's AP All-America team, received 66 of 192 votes in a nationwide poll of sports writers and sportscasters conducted before the NCAA tournament.

Berry, from the Bronx, N.Y., spent a year at San Jacinto, Texas, Junior College which he paced to the national junior college championship.

The award, named for the late University of Kentucky coach, is sponsored by the Commonwealth Athletic Club of Kentucky, a group of businessmen who formed a not-for-profit organization to establish the trophy and care for it and other Rupp memorabilia at Rupp Arena in Lexington,Ky.

Kenny Walker of Kentucky finished second with 50 votes, followed by Johnny Dawkins of Duke with 18 and Len Bias of Maryland with 12.

Playing out of position at center on a team that lost All-American Chris Mullin and 7-footer Bill Wennington to graduation, Berry averaged 23 points and 11 rebounds game and shot almost 60 percent from the field in leading the Redmen to a share of the Big East Conference regular-season crown and the league's tournament title.

Sutton coach of year

DALLAS (AP) - Eddie Sutton, who took over Kentucky this season and led the Wildcats to the Southeastern Conference title, today was named college basketball's coach of the year by the Associated Press.

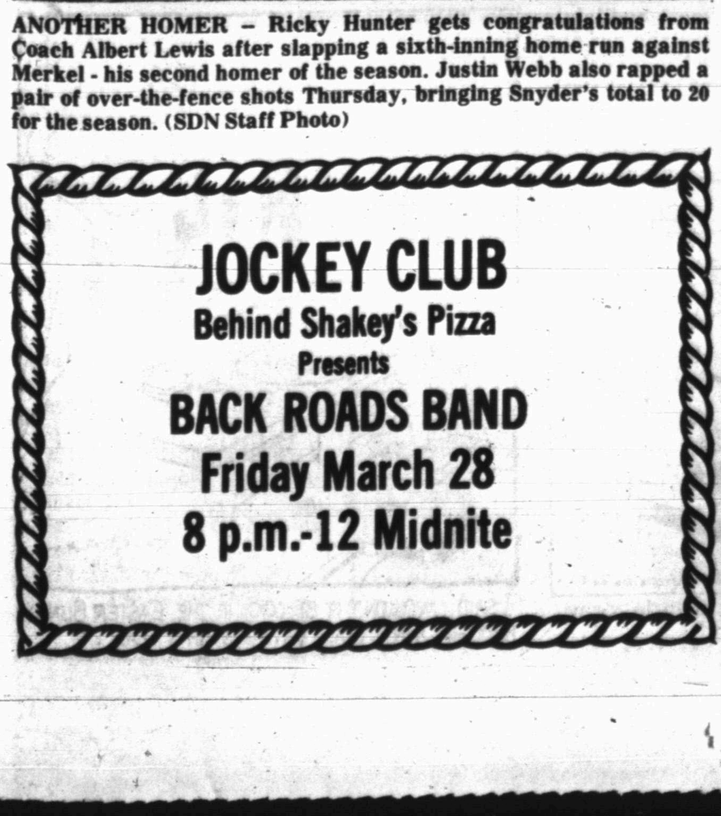

It was the second AP award for Sutton, who won in 1978 when he guided Arkansas into the Final Four, where the Razorbacks were beaten by Sutton's current employer. He is the sixth coach to win the award more than once - UCLA's John Wooden won it five times - but the first to win at different schools.

Sutton, who stepped into a pressure situation by replacing Joe B. Hall as coach of college basketball's winningest team, attracted 35 votes from a panel of 192 sports writers and broadcasters.

The Wildcats were 18-13 in Hall's 13th and final season and returned only two senior starters, one being All-American Kenny Walker. But Kentucky posted a 17-1 record to win the SEC regular-season title and then won the SEC tournament.

Dick Versace, who guided Bradley to the Missouri Valley Conference regular season title, finished second with 32 votes. Mike Krzyzewski, coach of Atlantic Coast Conference champion Duke, was next with 30.

St. John's Lou Carnesecca, whose team surprised by sharing the Big East regular season championship and winning the tourney crown, drew 26 votes. Dean Smith, whose North Carolina team was No. 1 for 13 weeks before injuries struck, got 23, while Larry Brown of Kansas' Big Eight champions, landed nine.

ANOTHER HOMER – Ricky Hunter gets congratulations from Coach Albert Lewis after slapping a sixth-inning home run against Merkel - his second homer of the season. Justin Webb also rapped a pair of over-the-fence shots Thursday, bringing Snyder's total to 20 for the season. (SDN Staff Photo)

Heat on NCAA to use replays

DALLAS (AP) - The heat is on for the NCAA to follow the National Football League in using television replays to correct glaring mistakes in tournament basketball games.

The final straw was the clock controversy during last week's NCAA Midwest Regional in Kansas City where the Kansas Jayhawks got some help when time stood still.

Dr. Ed Steitz, editor and interpreter of NCAA basketball rules, says the time has come for action.

"I will present to the NCAA committee the possibility of using TV to monitor time and scoring," Steitz said. "I think the chances are very good that something like that will be done."

Kansas defeated Michigan State 96-86 in overtime in the regional semifinal but valuable seconds were left on the clock when the timer had trouble getting it started with 2:20 remaining. Michigan State led by six points.

Steitz said the TV wouldn't be used to question judgment calls by the officials.

"The reason is that you would need probably five cameras and games would last until midnight," he said.

Steitz, the athletic director at Springfield College, also said that from his own view in his living room, at least 10 seconds should have been taken off the clock in Kansas City.

"What should have been done was the timer should have notified the referee that the clock had malfunctioned," Steitz said. "The referee said he never did that."

Steitz added that, if he had been Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote, he would have run on the court with his arms waving.

"Any referee who gave him a technical foul in that situation shouldn't be working an NCAA game," Steitz said.

John Thompson of Georgetown, president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, said it would be difficult to get the use of television monitors approved.

"Sometimes the tendency in our sport is to reject scientific advancements," Thompson said.

UT ladies feeling no pressure now

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - Texas is undefeated, top-ranked and feeling no pressure in its bid for the NCAA Division I women's basketball championship.

"We did tell them after regional and the pressure that we went through to get here that this was going to be a fun trip," says Texas Coach Jody Conradt, who sends the 32-0 Lady Longhorns against No. 5 Western Kentucky in tonight's opening semifinal at Rupp Arena.

No. 3 Southern California, chasing its third national title in four years, faces No. 15 Tennessee in the other semifinal. The winners clash Sunday afternoon for the title.

"We're not going to have expectations that detract from this season," Conradt said. "This team generally has more fun when they play to win, so I can't imagine them doing anything different from that."

Western Kentucky upset Texas in regional play last year, 92-90, on a last-second shot by Lillie Mason.

"I'm confident," Conradt said at a news conference Thursday. "I think this team has proven themselves through the course of the season."

Coach Paul Sanderford of Western Kentucky is also confident.

The Lady Toppers, 32-3, are the only member of last year's Final Four to earn a return ticket.

"I think that the experience we gained last year was tremendous," Sanderson said. "I think it's a distinct advantage to have been there before. We'll find out just how much of an advantage Friday night."

Southern California, 30-4, and 24-9 Tennessee met earlier this season. The Californians recorded an 85-77 victory.

The Lady Longhorns, who failed to make it to the Final Four the past two years despite being ranked No. 1 in the season's final poll, have become familiar with the adversity of injuries.

Two years ago Annette Smith injured her knee two days before the regular season ended and was out of action for 19 months. The 5-foot-11 senior has slowed some, but Conradt credits her return with producing the trip here.

Sanderford wouldn't mind if Texas thinks about avenging last year's loss.

"I hope Texas plays for revenge," he said. "We're playing for the national championship."

Crouser sets javelin mark

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) - American Brian Crouser set a world outdoor record for the new-style javelin Thursday night with a throw of 262 feet.

Crouser's record, set on the final evening of the two-night Tahiti International track and field meet, beat the previous record of 252 feet.

Meet officials said the new mark would be ratified internationally April 1.

The new javelin was introduced into competition this year. Though it is the same weight as the old javelin, its center of gravity is nearer the point, causing it to drop more quickly than the older javelin.

TEXAS PROBE

have both been told what the rules are and what the standards are, that's one thing," he said.

"But when we provide a positive emotional setting that might be conducive to the kind of things that we're going through right now, we've got to look at that and decide," he added.

"As bad a time as it is, it can be made into a good time, and we'll come out in better shape in the end," Dodds said.

Dodds also said he would support a legislative proposal to make it a criminal offense for a sports agent to violate an NCAA rule.

During the 1985 Legislature, football coach Fred Akers testified before a House committee that several of his players had been "wined and dined" by agents before the Oklahoma game in Dallas the previous fall.

Akers also said he and his staff had to run agents out of the hotels while the team was on the road and they frequently checked hotel rooms for agents on Fridays before home games.

"I think it's a real serious problem," Dodds said. "There are some great agents out there - professional, correct, good - and there are some that would do anything to get a kid to go with them, and they'll start them as early as high school.

"They are not waiting until the (final) bowl game is over. They're going to pick them out as seniors in high school, and they're going to track them all the way through college. They're going to work anyway that kid tends to want to work. If it's money, cars, drugs, gals, whatever - they'll work that way."

One recent story about the UT athletic program said Longhorn players had been selling complimentary football tickets for hefty profits.

Dodds said it was UT, however, that had first suggested a current NCAA rule that took tickets out of the players' hands and set up a system where the people listed as a player's guest have to show identification at the gate.

Victim promises tosurrender

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A Tyler man who maintained he was poisoned by cyanide-laced Tylenol but later turned up missing, told a newspaper he would surrender to federal authorities today on a weapons charge.

Bill Case, 41, called the Tyler Morning Telegraph from an undisclosed location and said he would turn himself in to the FBI on a federal gun charge. He refused to reveal his whereabouts or where he would surrender, saying only that it would not be in Tyler.

Friends had said Wednesday that Case had not been seen in Tyler in about a week, disappearing shortly after he was fired from the Mental Health and Mental Retardation regional center of East Texas for falsifying his job application.

Dick DeSanto, executive director of MHMR in Tyler, said Case was fired earlier this month after a background check revealed he had lied about obtaining a degree from the University of Southern Mississippi. It also was learned that he had served three years in prison and had been convicted for fraud, theft, forgery and auto theft.

Three friends said Case had $30,000 that he had persuaded them to give him to invest in Krugerrands or oil.

Authorities said Case had been reported last seen Wednesday in nearby Murchison, where he picked up a deer rifle he had loaned a friend.

However, Tyler police said Wednesday they had no case against him and weren't looking for him.

But on Thursday, federal authorities issued an arrest warrant for him, on grounds that possession of the rifle constituted violation of his parole.

Case's wife, Susan, filed for divorce Wednesday, court records show.

In his conversation with the Tyler newspaper, Case denied speculation that he may have himself tainted the extra-strength Tylenol capsules that he took shortly before going into convulsions Feb. 4, when he almost died of cyanide poisoning.

"No matter what happens, I didn't contaminate that capsule," he said. "I'm going to the federal clink, but I'm guilty of nothing except buying a gun."

Bill Atteberry, manager of Southpoint Mobile Home Park where Case lived, said he gave Case $20,000 to invest in Krugerrands, after Case promised him a $15,000 profit before the end of the day.

Atteberry said he had known Case for four years.

"When someone you've known that long comes up and tells you that if you invest $20,000 at 8 o'clock in the morning (and) he'll turn it into $35,000 by 5 o'clock that night, who wouldn't go for it?" Atteberry said.

But Case failed to return with either the initial investment, the profit or the gold, Atteberry said, and Case contracted cyanide poisoning six days later.

A neighbor, John Wilkins, said he gave Case $5,000 to buy Krugerrands when Case promised him a return of $10,000 within 45 days. Wilkins said he received $600 back but only as a result of his wife pestering Case about the money.

Another friend, Frank Atkinson, said Case convinced him to invest $5,000 in an oil well in Webb County, southwest of San Antonio. Atkinson said he received approximately $1,100 back on the deal but never the return he expected.

Case told the newspaper that the transactions as "strictly legitimate business deals," but said he kept the gold dealings secret because Congress last October banned the importation of Krugerrands, as a sanction against South Africa.

Case said he was buying the Krugerrands from "a man in Mexico" but had been unable to rendezvous with him since he collapsed in convulsions Feb. 4 at his job.

"I bought some gold coins for them (the friends who invested with him)," he said. "It's still out there, I just can't get to it."

He said everyone who invested money with him would be repaid.

"Mostly, just tell everybody I'm sorry, but they'll get their money," he said.

Case said he dropped from sight because the FBI revealed his criminal record and other dealings to his family.

But Wilkins said the FBI told him Case was scheduled for a 9:30 a.m. appointment March 19 when he left town.

"The day he disappeaared he had an appointment with the FBI," Wilkins said. "The FBI told me he would never have left that interview. He had about 10 hours of talking to do."

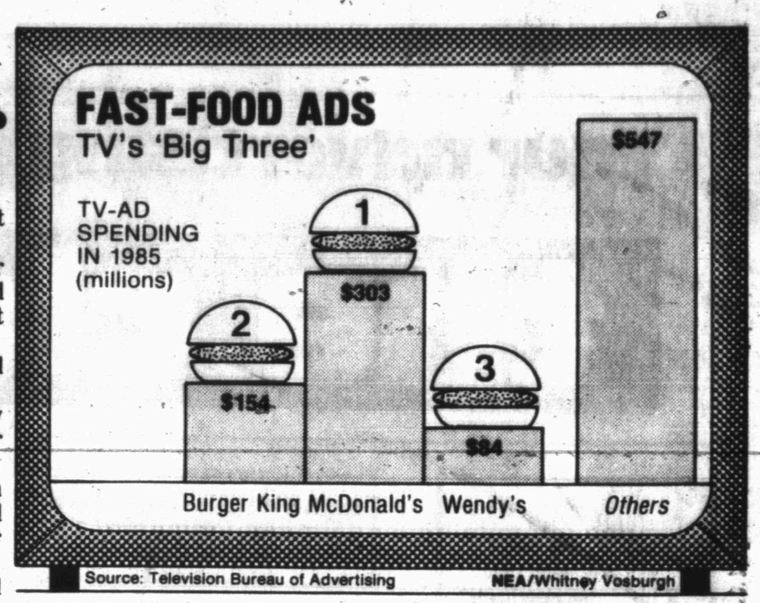

The FBI is investigating his contention but has not released their findings. Nor have FBI officials disclosed whether cyanide was found in his blood, although Case's doctor said officials with the Food and Drug Administration confirmed the presence of the poison days after the incident.

Case's neighbors, even those who "invested" with him, described him as an exemplary father, husband and friend.

Wilkins said he had known Case and his family more than a year.

"As for his personal character, he was respectable, trustworthy, a good friend," he said.

"Up until the last day, I figured the guy's word was as good as gold."

McDonald's spending for television advertisements increased by 17 percent last year — less than Burger King's (19 percent) or Wendy's (20 percent) — but it remained No. 1 in TV spending.

Former teacher is given life jail term

EL PASO, Texas — A jury sentenced former YMCA day-care teacher Michelle "Mickey" Noble, 35, to one life term and 17 other prison terms totaling 311 years after convicting her earlier in the day of 18 counts of child sexual abuse.

Jurors imposed two 60-year prison terms, one 50-year term, 11 12-year terms and three three-year terms Thursday night, in addition to the life sentence.

Defense attorney Charles Roberts said the conviction will be appealed because the prosecution's case centered on hearsay testimony by parents of their children's "outcries." Those outcries described a variety of deviant sexual acts the students claimed took place at Mrs. Noble's house.

Roberts argued throughout the trial that Mrs. Noble was denied her rights, under the U.S. and Texas constitutions, to confront and cross-examine her accusers.

Roberts had asked the jury to give Mrs. Noble 10 years' probation and a chance for rehabilitation from "this one aberration" from what he said was otherwise a "good life."

Assistant District Attorney Debra Kanof pleaded with jurors to impose the maximum sentence.

"Life is not a sentence; it's a symbol of how much those children are worth," she said.

After receiving the case on Wednesday, jurors deliberated five hours before recessing, then deliberated for about two more hours Thursday morning before returning with a guilty verdict on 18 of 19 counts involving either aggravated sexual assault or indecency with a child.

Their verdict evoked strong emotions from the parents and from Mrs. Noble's young children. Her 8-year-old son climbed into his father's lap, while her 13-year-old daughter wailed loudly inside the courtroom, where relatives and Mrs. Noble's close friends sequestered themselves for more than an hour.

Mrs. Noble returned red-eyed to the courtroom three hours after the verdict as 205th District Judge Sam Callan began to prepare jurors for the punishment part of the trial. Crying, Mrs. Noble took the stand to tell jurors that she never before had been arrested.

Her son, in the courtroom for the first time, sat in the second row of the gallery, staring at his mother while clutching a rabbit's foot for good luck.

The spirit of Easter and resurrection should guide jurors to give Mrs. Noble 10 years' probation and a chance for "rebirth," Roberts said.

"As far as rebirth, this is her first offense. She's always had a good life generally."

It was one of two fire runs made Thursday. Also, firemen extinguished a grass fire one mile north of Snyder on the Clairemont Highway at 2:29 p.m.

Pickax killer says she's new person

GATESVILLE, Texas (AP) — Karla Faye Tucker, one of three women on Texas Death Row, says she's not the drugged-out immature person who three years ago buried a pickax more than a dozen times in the body of a woman she didn't know and then bragged that the action gave her sexual gratification.

"I think everything about me was bad — the way I was living, definitely the way I was thinking," she told the Houston Chronicle in a copyright story published today.

Ms. Tucker, 26, was sentenced to die for the June 13, 1983 slaying of Deborah Thornton, 32. During her trial, she took the stand and told of how the pickax murder culminated a life that began with marijuana at age 8, heroin at 10 and prostitution at 14.

Now, she says she's off drugs, has found God, is enthusiastic about life and is pursuing her education from prison.

"I have a better grasp on things, maybe because I want to, maybe because my mind's free of drugs, and it allows me to," she said.

"I've changed, definitely. I care about things and people, the way I act. I care about what people think of me where before I didn't care, except I wanted them to think I was big and bad and mean and didn't care."

Ms. Tucker quit school in the eighth grade after failing the seventh grade three times. Since arriving at the Texas Department of Corrections Mountain View Unit, home of the women's death row, she has earned a high school equivalency certificate and now is taking college courses.

"I knew there were things I could do and achieve, and I hadn't done it," she said. "The more little things I did, the better I felt about myself, and the better I felt, the more I felt I needed to do to feel better, and on and on."

Her statements are not unlike other death row inmates who find "jail house religion."

"What makes it different for me is that if I got out today, I would not drop my religion, my beliefs," she said. "I would pick them up out in the world and do more."

But she has managed to convince some of the people who worked to put her on death row, including the detective who arrested her and the prosecutor who argued that she be put to death.

"It is such a horrible crime, it goes beyond the pale of the ordinary crime," says Rusty Hardin, who prosecuted her case. "And yet I've gotten to know her enough that I personally see, if I'm any judge, a person who has changed. I like her and I hope she doesn't die."

Sgt. J.C. Mosier, who arrested her, says the punishment is deserved for the crime but would prefer Ms. Tucker not die.

"I feel more empathy toward Karla because at least she had the guts in the trial to admit she was guilty," Mosier says. "I believe in the death penalty and she's not the only person that I've ever sent to death row. But in most cases, they're bad people, period. She never had a chance from the start. There was no way for her to go but bad."

Ms. Tucker says she thinks about dying and is ready for it.

"I don't think anybody wants to die," she said. "Although, if I do, I feel like I'm ready in my heart and in my head for whatever happens. I can accept it as much as anybody could accept that fact. But I don't want to die."

New heroin is linked to deaths

NEW YORK (AP) — A cheap and potent new form of Mexican heroin is spreading rapidly across the United States and is being blamed for dozens, perhaps hundreds, of overdose deaths, The New York Times reported today.

The new heroin, called "black tar" because of its resemblance to roofing tar, is blamed for causing the first general increase in heroin use in more than five years.
