LUBBOCK GIRL KILLED AT PECOS

Five Day Week Is Sought By Organized Labor

THREE KNOWN DEAD AND PROPERTY DAMAGE IS IMMENSE

The South Plains and Northeast Texas Monday were slowly recovering from the effects one of the most torrential rains ever recorded in a similar period of time over such a wide territory, and as flood waters from Oklahoma swept down across the border into Texas, rivers throughout the state were on a rampage that threatened not only to destroy a large portion of the crop, but in many instances lives are endangered.

Three are known to have died as a result of the flood waters, property damage has been immense, railroad traffic throughout the entire north and northwest part of the state has been impaired, and injuries to many have been reported, while rivers continue to rise with flood waters rushing down from Oklahoma and adjoining states.

Rail traffic has been halted over the Crosbyton branch of the Santa Fe railroad. Several hundred yards of track is under water near Lorenzo, where a near cloudburst fell from Friday evening to Saturday evening. Highways in all directions are heavy with water, and many accidents due to culvert washouts and slippery roads have been reported.

The exact precipitation at Lorenzo is not known, though it has been estimated the rain totaled at least 15 inches between six and ten o'clock Friday evening to nine o'clock Saturday night. Several hundred feet of track just west of Lorenzo was still under water Monday and it was necessary to transfer mail and passengers at this point. Just how long this condition will exist is not known, though in all probability it will be several days before traffic is normal on the Lubbock-Crosbyton branch.

Gas Showing Found In Whicker No. 1 At Depth Of 200 Ft.

With a fair showing of gas at a depth of less than 200 feet, the Whicker No. 1 located three and one-half miles southeast of Hedgerow now gives promise of being a real producer. The well was drilled at 210 feet Friday afternoon and considerable progress has been made since that time.

Drilling operations were held up for some time owing to a shortage of water, but now that the operators have their own well it is thought nothing else will retard them.

The "red bed" was found in this well 300 feet higher up than in any other well on the plains, and operators as well as geologists are encouraged. This is one of the best signs a well can have. Then, too, it is known that it is only a short distance to the New Mexico field where there are a number of producing wells, and owners of the Whicker No. 1 feel that their test will eventually end in a producer. There is no other well within 30 miles of this test, but geological formations are similar to those found in the Reagan, Amarillo and New Mexico fields. The test is being financed by local men which makes it a good proposition for the general public. If oil or gas may be found then every Lubbock and South Plains citizen has an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, whereas a larger company would have the entire field under control.

With drilling well under way and indications for oil very bright it appears that it may be only a matter of time when the low price of cotton will not attract the attention of South Plains citizens as much as the high price of oil.

MANY PROBLEMS TO COME BEFORE ANNUAL SESSION

46TH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF ORGANIZATION OPENS IN DETROIT TODAY

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 4.—Committed to the five day week as the next major step forward for the "highest paid workers in the world," executives of the American Federation of Labor turned today, in the opening sessions of the federation's forty-sixth annual convention, to a multitude of problems centered on the welfare of American labor.

Eleventh hour agreements between groups widely separated on several vexatious questions opened a fair prospect for the two weeks' assembly, bringing forth the prediction of prominent leaders that the entire time probably would be devoted to deliberations upon conservative policies bearing directly upon immediate program of the organization.

Mexican Question Settled.—"Division of sentiment in the preliminary sessions last week upon the question of relations with the Mexican Federation of Labor, was bridged by an informal agreement between representatives of a majority of the convention voting strength to accept without debate the resolutions of the executive council on Mexican relations for the coming year.

The five day week of forty hours was defined as a cardinal point in the federation's "policy of conservative progress" by president William Green, after the final reconvention of the executive council yesterday.

Although it was announced mere coincidence that the announcement came in the city to which Henry Ford last week declared the five day week the operative wage has for thousands of workers in the motor industry. Mr. Green alluded to the Ford program as a sign of the times. Three national delegates from the Mexican Federation of Labor were among the scores of representatives of foreign labor organizations who received credentials as guests of the convention.

The Mexican delegation was headed by Ricardo Trevino, secretary general of the Mexican Federation of Labor.

Insurance Phase Gains.—Successful culmination of two years endeavor to launch a national life insurance organization controlled by members of the federation were announced today by Matthew Wolf, vice president of the national labor body and president of the recently incorporated Union Labor Life Insurance company.

With an initial capital of $300,000, almost entirely paid by members of affiliated labor organizations and anticipated formal approval of the enterprise by the convention, this week directors of the insurance company, all of whom are officers of the federation, are now planning to launch a standard insurance organization during the next year.

Efforts To Halt Consideration Of Gas Tax Defeated

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 4.—Efforts to postpone consideration by the senate of the three cent gasoline tax bill and the motor fee reduction bills as passed by the house, failed at the beginning of the fourth week of the called session today. A simple resolution to postpone consideration by Senators Stuart, Reid, and Floyd was defeated by a vote of 12 to 10 and three pairs.

The resolution urged that consideration be postponed to give more time to the senate and pointed out that the bills have been in the state affairs committee for several days, and that if they pass the revenue for the state highway department will be reduced by about $2,000,000 from the state and Texas will lose about $2,000,000 of federal aid.

The senate opened with an address by former Governor Joseph E. Sayers, 84 year old Texas hero and statesman, who served 53 years ago as a member of the senate before the state house was built. The aged confederate hero scored the carpet bagger of the 12th legislature and said that "excepting that one, every legislature Texas has had has been constructive."

Senator Joe Moore of Hunt county introduced a resolution to appoint a committee to investigate the numerous investigating committees. It was referred to the common stock and stock raising.

Governor Ferguson submitted the proposition to exempt demonstration farms from taxes along with several local school matters.

The senate recommended to the judicial district committee Moore's senate bill 329, reorganizing the state into twelve supreme judicial districts for courts of civil appeals, the twelfth court to be located at Greenville.

MISS MARGARET WILCOX VICTIM OF GUN WOUNDS

ACCIDENT ENDS LIFE OF HIGH SCHOOL GIRL AT HOME OF SISTER

Miss Margaret Wilcox, aged 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Wilcox, 2016 Main street, a fourth year student in Lubbock High School, died shortly after six o'clock in Pecos this morning as the result of an accidental gun shot wound received yesterday afternoon about three o'clock in the southwest Texas city.

Little is known here concerning the accident save that Miss Wilcox was visiting her sister, Mrs. J. C. Hicks, of Pecos, at the time of the tragedy. Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox were notified of the mishap last night and left for Pecos on an early morning train, where they are today making final arrangements for the care of the body. They were accompanied by the dead girl's older sister, Miss Nellie Wilcox, Amarillo train nurse, who was formerly superintendent of nurses at a local hospital.

To Return Body Here.—Friends of the family said today that in all probability the body would be returned here for burial but no formal announcements concerning the funeral services were available. Efforts of The Journal to complete telephone communications with Pecos were futile, but members of the family are expected to learn of further developments tonight.

The Wilcox family has resided here for nine or ten years, friends said, and Miss Wilcox had had practically all of her schooling in the local system. Mr. Wilcox is in the general contracting business and has two sons, Ira and James, living in Lubbock who are both connected with the contracting business. The family is well known among older citizens of the city and the victim of the tragedy has many friends among the younger people.

It was revealed today at the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial.

A letter signed by President Coolidge and dated March, 1925, was read to the jury by William Randall Miller, counsel. The letter expressed the president's thanks for "all you've done and for efficient service." The letter was a reply to Miller's letter of resignation.

Lines Drawn For Highway Scrap

AUSTIN, Texas, October 3.—Lines being drawn here today in legislative circles over pending highway commission confirmation fight which was thought to have been settled definitely in the senate when the assent of Commissioners Moseley and Case were deferred by an overwhelming vote until the 40th legislature.

It is known that Governor Miriam A. Ferguson is seeking three men who will be acceptable to the senate as highway commissioners. The first three on the list were Judge E. L. Pitts of Mineral Wells, George P. Robertson of Bosque county and former State Senator Scott Woodward of Fort Worth.

John H. Bickett of San Antonio, has already resigned as a member of the highway commission and it is rumored that the resignations of Moseley and Case have been asked for.

Several senators admitted today that they had been approached on the subject of highway commission confirmations.

Judge Pitts admitted to reporters he had conferred with the governor in regard to a highway commission appointment.

Among the outspoken senators approached was W. H. Bledsoe of Lubbock who declared he would not vote for any Ferguson appointees and that he proposed to abide by the senate's first decision to defer the matter of highway commission appointments.

Ormiston Is Reported Hiding In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 4 (AP)—Flying squadrons of detectives searched the city today on information that Kenneth G. Ormiston, missing radio operator in the Aimee Semple McPherson case, was in hiding here, while Mrs. McPherson, the accused evangelist, Ormiston's former employer, faced the court in the opening of the second week of her preliminary hearing.

When the case was called in court today the prosecution continued reading the transcript of Mrs. Kennedy's statement before the county grand jury several weeks ago, when that body was investigating Mrs. McPherson's charge that she had been kidnaped and held prisoner in a shack along the Mexican border.

This Woman Has Made Life A Path Of Roses

MRS. HARRIET FOOE KNOWS EACH BUSH ALONG THE WAY. FINDS PERSONALITIES AMONG FLOWERS OF OLD GARDENS.

Mrs. Harriet Foote knows the intimate secrets of her flower-friends.

By VIRGINIA SWAIN. NEA Service Writer. MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Oct. 4.—Eight thousand rosebushes and not one rose for sale. Mrs. Harriet Foote, of the little village of Devereaux, by 30 years of love and labor, has brought the world to her garden gate, and sent it away empty handed. Whoever visits this most famous of American rose gardens must be satisfied to feast on beauty without despoiling it. For Mrs. Foote's garden is her laboratory and her playground. But there is nothing in it for sale. In her quaint New England house, surrounded by old maple and beech trees, Mrs. Foote lives in simple, widowed retirement, plying her white magic, entertaining old Smith college friends, letting the world go by. It does not go by without stopping, however. Gleaming white yachts from the Marblehead clubs, limousines from Boston and New York, every variety of road vehicle brings pilgrims to the celebrated garden. Garden for the Fords. In the stream last summer was Mrs. Henry Ford, who wished to show her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edison, the wonders of the garden. The result of this visit was that Mrs. Foote was commissioned to lay out a mammoth rose garden of 10,000 bushes on the Ford estate at Dearborn, Mich. Beginning the work last October, she personally selected each bush and supervised the planting. For seclusion gave way to a strenuous regime of weekly trips to Dearborn throughout the spring and summer. Since June, Mrs. Foote's roses have decked the Ford dinner table at Dearborn nightly. The Marblehead garden is a research laboratory, containing 2000 varieties of roses. There is at least one bush from every country in the world whose roses grow—Killarney roses from Ireland and English teas bloom beside the blue roses of Germany and the black roses of France. Perhaps the strangest rose in the garden is the green rose of China. It is called the Veri de Flora and its blossom is the same shade of green as the stem and leaves. Twenty Years Old. Beyond the winding paths through rose thickets and trellised climbers, there is a patch of small "maiden bushes" where new roses are planted for a trial of their strength and beauty before being initiated into the inner circle of the garden. The rose garden at Devereaux was laid out 20 years ago. It covers three acres and is laced with paths and dot-all the ugliness and pain of this world. Henry Ford wanted a secret garden, accidentally to be stumbled upon in his great estate. That's why I laid out the garden with only one entrance. "No one would suspect that back of a certain hedge, a wilderness of roses was in bloom. Back of that hedge, 10,000 rose personalities are waiting to comfort the world-weary. "That's my idea of a garden."

Menu For Today

BREAKFAST—Chilled apple sauce, cereal, thin cream, crisp graham toast, cornmeal waffles, syrup, milk coffee. LUNCHEON—Onions and eggs au gratin, rye bread and butter sandwiches, peach poly-poly, milk tea. DINNER—Breaded lamb chops, baked potatoes, creamed carrots, tomato and lettuce salad, squash custard, milk coffee. Hard cooked eggs and parboiled onions are combined with a rich white sauce. The mixture is then put into a buttered baking dish, covered with buttered crumbs and baked thirty minutes in a hot oven. And it's surprisingly good. The eggs of course are sliced and the onions finely chopped. Peach Poly-Poly. One and 1/2 cups graham flour, 1/2 cup pastry flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons sugar, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, milk, 2 cups finely diced peaches, 1/2 cup sugar. Mix dry ingredients and rub in butter. Beat egg well with a tablespoon milk and cut into first mixture. Add more milk as necessary to make moist enough to make a soft dough. Roll on a floured molding board making a sheet about 1/4 inch thick. Sprinkle with peaches which have been sprinkled with sugar, and roll up like a jelly roll. Place in a buttered and floured pan and bake twenty minutes in a moderately hot oven. Serve warm with sugar and cream. Cut in slices to serve. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

CARD SLUGGERS BATTER YANKS TO WIN 6 TO 2

SOUTHWORTH DRIVES OUT HOMER WITH TWO ON TO CINCH GAME

(By Associated Press)

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Oct. 3.—The St. Louis Cardinals still led the New York Yankees in the second game of the world's series Sunday by a score of six to two. The largest crowd that ever saw a ball game—62,000—witnessed the triumph of the National leaguers, in which Billy Southworth won the game with a home run with two men on in the seventh inning. The ancient Alexander, recently acquired by the Cardinals for the waiver price of $4,000, held the Yankees helpless. He allowed only four hits and after the third inning the American leaguers were unable to make a single safety. His pitching may be summed up in one word—control. He kept his fast ball on the corner of the plate and his famous hook swept by the Yankee bats. Alexander struck out ten of the Yankees.

The official box score tells how the Cardinals easily romped off with the game:

Hitting Sports Highspots With James R. Dow

Guess maybe you think that Southworth and Grove can't be mayor of St. Louis today? They did a plenty to those Yankees yesterday.

A record breaking attendance witnessed the clash of the Yankees and the Cardinals yesterday in New York. Something over 62,000 attended the game. The former record was 62,817.

Grove made the big "bamboo" Ruth look like a bush leaguer in hitting yesterday.

The third game of the series will be played in St. Louis tomorrow, beginning at 1:30, St. Louis time, which makes the game begin here at 12:30. The game will be announced play by play in front of the Avalanche Journal building with reports of the game coming over a special baseball wire direct from the Sportsman's Park. Be there—'tis free—it's the service of the Avalanche-Journal.

The official figures of the second game of the world series were:
 Attendance 62,000. (New record.)
 Total receipts, $201,828.
 Commissioner's share $30,274.20
 Players' share $102,932.28.
 Club's share $68,621.52.

W. W. Roper and Tad Jones, head coaches of Princeton and Yale respectively, have agreed to refrain from scouting on each others' teams. The agreement is: 1st. No members of the Princeton coaching staff or others identified with the team will be in the Yale team prior to the Yale-Princeton game.
 2nd. On the other hand, no member of the Yale coaching staff will see the Princeton team in action prior to their clash.
 3rd. It is the coaches' hopes that all supporters of both teams will assist in carrying out the letter spirit of this agreement.

Guess by having the Yale-Princeton agreement between the coaches that there will be plenty of follow-ups created in the football circles of the country.

The usual Sunday calm of St. Louis was broken by prolonged cheering, shouting, hollering and other dis-

"Right As A Trivet!"

GROVER ALEXANDER

Grover Cleveland Alexander—The Old Master who got the Yankee sluggers down Sunday with four baseruns while his team-mates belted the offerings of Shocker, Shawkey and Ed Egan dominated the game. "Big Alex" joined the Cards in the heat of the 1925 season after the club had asked waivers on him forlornly because of his record. He cost Rogers Hornsbey's boss $4,000 and was a big factor in the St. Louis team's success while pounding down the pennant stretch.

World Series Contenders Speeding West To Resume Play Before Home Coming St. Louis Crowd Tomorrow

By BRYAN BELL

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Two good baseball teams were speeding to the west today, all even, to give St. Louis its share of the world's series and to appease the hunger of fans who have waited 38 years for a chance to acclaim a championship team.

Tomorrow afternoon the series starts all over again at Sportsman park. The Cardinals have a home coming demonstration in prospect. The Yankees expect nothing but a hard fight. After the Yankees took the opening game, 2 to 1, the Cardinals came back with a 6 to 2 victory yesterday.

Hornsbey's Starter
 In the box tomorrow Hornsbey will start either Reinhart, a clever left hander, or Haines, who pitched an inning in the series opener Saturday. Miller Huggins had narrowed his available choices to Hoyt, young in years but world's series veteran, and Reuther, experienced left hander, who carries a punch at bat.

The players expect to find a crowd at St. Louis that will make up in enthusiasm what it lacks in numbers. The limited capacity of the park will not permit the breaking of the record made in New York's game at the Yankee stadium when 63,000 customers paid to see the athletes work, making an attendance for the two opening games of 122,258.

Two Games Much Alike
 The first two games of the series were much alike, domination of pitchers being the prevailing note. Saturday Penneck held the Cardinals to three safeties, two in the first and one in the ninth. Grover Cleveland Alexander yesterday allowed the Yanks four hits.

Three hits were made from the delivery of the 39-year old star in the second inning and one to start the third. From that point, the game was over so far as the Yankees were concerned. Alexander retired the last 21 New York batsmen in order, striking out the side in the fourth inning. His strike outs totalled ten. Only Combs was able to escape the third strike, Ben Paschal, who went up for Severid, needed only three pitches to end his stay in the batsmen's box.

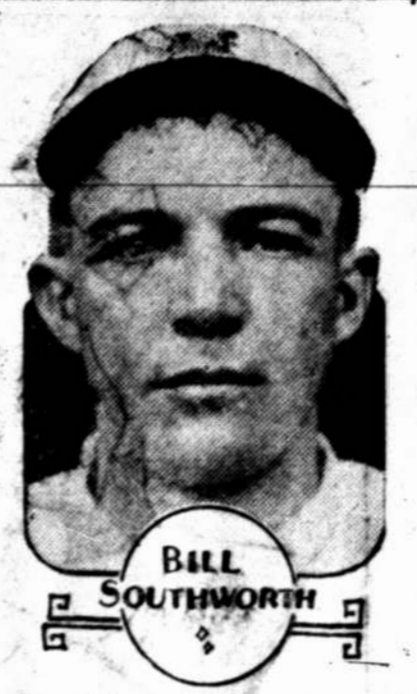

Alexander Invincible
 Alexander had all the stuff the world's series pitcher needs, plus orderly demonstrations when the word flashed over the United States that the Cards won the second game of the series. Thousands of Cardinals fans flocked to the radio stations, score boards, and others listened in on their radios. Well, they didn't have much on Lubbock—there were plenty of the sphere getting the results of the game.

The "pro" football results yesterday were:
 American League—Boston, 3; Newark, 0; Cleveland 17, Wilson 14; Brooklyn 12, Chicago Bulls 7.
 National League—Los Angeles 6, Milwaukee, 0; Canton 13, Louisville, 0; Frankfort 10, Hartford, 0; Chicago Cardinals 20, Racine, 0; Green Bay 9, Duluth, 9, (tie); Chicago Bears 19, Detroit, 7.

Excavation Of New Baker Building Is Being Worked Upon

Preliminary operations for the erection of a new brick building, to be occupied by the Baker Furniture and undertaking company, have been begun with the moving of a frame building which has here to fore occupied the site at Avenue J and 13th street. Norton Baker, manager of the furniture concern, announced this morning.

According to Mr. Baker, contracts for excavation of the basement have been let to Val J. Tudor. Lubbock excavation contractor, and as soon as the frame building, occupied by Wolford's Tin shop, is removed, digging of the basement will begin. It will take from sixty to ninety days to complete the excavating work and the basement will be nine feet deep and 60 by 90 feet in lineal dimensions.

NEW RECORD MADE IN NON-STOP RUN BY FORD

Flashing a generous slice off three world transcontinental motor records, the "Bambino" driver, "Bambino" Bill Baker of Indianapolis, has arrived in Los Angeles, driving his own Ford roadster, sealed in high gear just five days, two hours and 13 minutes after leaving New York City. He was officially timed at start and finish by Western Union officials.

This time cuts 11 days and 5.34 hours off the old high-gear transcontinental record, made by a six-cylinder car selling for three times as much as the Ford. It is also two days and 13 2/3 hours faster than the fastest time ever made before by any kind of a car with one man driving from coast to coast without relay of drivers. The previous one-man speed record over this course was made by Baker in 1924, driving a $2000 car. Baker's new record is also 14 hours faster than the best time ever made across the continent on a motorcycle.

The car used was a standard type Ford roadster that was not equipped with overhead valves nor special cam nor overbalanced crankshaft. It was making 74th trip across the American continent.

SAINT AND SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE, a stenographer, is utterly different from her sister, FAITH, who does all the work for the family of six, including her semi-invalid mother, her father, who is a carpenter and contractor in a small way; her brother, JUNIOR, or "Long" Lane, and JOY, nine.

Cherry, the flirt, is carrying on affairs with a dozen admirers, including CHESTER HART, formerly a suitor of Faith's; BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect; ALBERT ETTLESON, a married traveling salesman; and MR. CLUNY, Cherry's present employer, and CHRIS WILEY.

GEORGE FRUITT, rich man's son and amateur artist, showers Faith with attentions, but Faith cares only for Bob Hathaway, who is infatuated with Cherry.

At a party at Pruitt's, to which Faith cannot go because of a heart attack suffered by her mother, Hathaway sees Cherry in Chris Wiley's arms and goes to Faith for comfort, not realizing she leaves him. Faith resents the fact that Cherry has received from Ettleson a suitcase which she has packed from Ettleson's fits with dark suspicions.

Pruitt continues to pay marked attentions to Faith and on a Sunday takes her to a nearby resort for dinner. Before leaving, Faith finds a packet and a locked suitcase in Cherry's closet and the memory of a mysterious telegram which Cherry has received from Ettleson fits with dark suspicions.

She has no time to discuss the matter with Cherry, but asks Junior to hide the suitcase in his automobile truck. Pruitt tells Faith that he loves her and humbly asks her to kiss him. Strangely enough, she raises her lips to his.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVI

When George Fruitt's fabled lips pressed hard upon her mouth, Faith forced herself to rest passively in his arms, but when, bewildered, deflated, he raised his face and gazed at her out of cheated, accusing eyes, she shuddered and flung an arm across her face, so that she would not have to witness his pain.

"Why did you let me kiss you?" he demanded hoarsely. "It was a brutal way to show me that you didn't care. I won't do it again," he assured her, his head drooping upon his breast, his big, freckled hands locking tightly between his knees.

"I'm sorry, George—and ashamed," she whispered huskily. "You see, I wanted to know—beyond the shadow of a doubt, I've heard that love comes sometimes, like a rushing torrent, in the first kiss. I wanted it to come—if it would, I wanted to love you, because I'm so grateful for love. I need love—but I need, more than anything else, to give love. Some women are like that, George, and some are like—like Cherry, greedy to take, having little to give. I'm sorry—sorry!"

"Don't blame yourself," the man interrupted her fiercely. "I'm ashamed of myself for having kissed you that way. I'm that. I'm sorry, too—all broken up. I think I'm a little off my head. For ten days I've wanted to shout and sing, stop people in the streets and force them to listen—'See, I've found the finest girl in the world, and I'm going to marry her.' That's what I wanted to yell from the house-tops, Faith."

"I know," Faith rested her chin on her clasped hands and brooded over him, her brown eyes drowned with tears of pity—for herself as well as for him. "I couldn't believe at first that it was me—Faith Lane—that you wanted. It's always been Cherry—but I couldn't help knowing, after a bit, and I tried to keep you from saying it, because I knew it hadn't happened to me, too. Why, George, dear, I've prayed, on my knees, like a child, these last few nights that a miracle would happen, and that I'd wake up and find my heart filled to overflowing with love for you."

"If you want to love me so much," George said slowly and painfully, "why not let me try it—getting married, you know, I'll be so good to you, Faith! It makes me sick, and so angry I could fight, to see you staying from dawn to midnight for this insignificant family of yours, taking the leaveings, substituting in me, dropping them as in their weakness."

"They're not ungrateful," she stiffened, and brushed his tears away with an angry hand. "They need me, George. I love mothering them all—Dad, and Mother and Junior and Cherry and Joy. You don't understand that I love to give."

"I want to give, too—to give you everything lovely that you ought to have and eat. Fine soft silks and graceful velvets for your wonderful body, and delicate food that you don't have to cook over a hot stove; books and leisure and travel to feed that clever brain of yours. Listen, Faith, I'll hire the best housekeeper in town to look after your family."

"I'm glad Dad didn't hear you say that," she interrupted sharply. "The Lanes don't take charity, George. We're as proud as the Lincoln Pruitts. Oh, let's not quarrel! Don't you think I want to marry you, and live as your wife who live—beautifully? But I can't, George. I can't be broken in the plume. George, no matter how fine and soft the bed I sleep on. You know that when you sketched that picture you want to paint. Let's be friends, George. I've never had a real friend. I love you in so many ways."

"All right," he said abruptly, springing to his feet. "We'll have our swim now, and then take it easy going home." He reached a hand to her to help her rise.

"Friends!" she asked, when she stood beside him, holding his hand in both of hers.

He looked away, as if his eyes were searching for strength in the imperturbable beauty of the low, wooded mountains. Then he turned back to her, his face illumined with that sudden, gay smile of his—a smile that touched her heart more than his tears of a few moments before had done.

"Friends!" He shook hands vigorously. "I'd rather have you for a friend than any other woman as a wife."

They talked eagerly, as if to prove their comradeship, as George drove smoothly at twenty miles an hour back to the city. Now that he knew he could not have her back, you ever read— was the burden of their swiftly shuttled conversation. He would bring her Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage," which he liked better than any book he had read in ten years. Did she know Rupert Brooke's poems? He had had a sophomore enthusiasm for them during and immediately after the war. He was still young enough to admire the young English poet's boyish disillusion and idealistic cynicism. Did she have the Oxford Book of English Verse? He would give her a copy tomorrow.

"George!" Faith cut in sharply, gripping his arm. "Wasn't that Bob Hathaway who passed us just then? Quick! Turn around! Catch up with him! It's awfully important! Please!"

Without wasting time with questions or quibbling, George swung his car in a wide circle, without losing speed, then accelerated to forty in an hour. Bending over the steering wheel, he watched the road for chances to cut in between cars going less swiftly, grinned at the curses the drivers flung at him, and galloped steadily on the dark green roadster in which Bob Hathaway sat alone, hunched over the wheel, his head bare, the late afternoon sun glinting on his thick chestnut hair.

When the cars were almost abreast, George elbowed a palm on the horn button and kept it there until the hoarse clamor caused Bob Hathaway to turn his head, in anger and impatience, to investigate.

"Hell, Bob!" George sang out. "Can you pull up by the road a minute? Faith wants to speak to you."

"Hell!" Faith smiled into his haggard blue eyes when he came striding up to the car in which she sat. "I saw you passing, and I wondered why Cherry wasn't with you. She said she had a date with you for this afternoon. Please don't think I'm just prying."

"Of course not!" Bob Hathaway leaned upon the door of the car, his sunburned arms— he had been driving coatless as well as hatless, with the sleeves of his white sport shirt rolled above the elbow—touching Faith's. She quivered at the accidental contact. "Cherry phoned me at two that she was sick, couldn't come with me this afternoon. She wouldn't let me come over, so I suppose she's feeling pretty badly. Is it anything serious? I admit I've been rather worried. Her voice sounded odd."

"She—she seemed all right when I left at eleven," Faith said slowly, her mind racing to grapple with whatever this might mean.

That packed and locked suitcase! As she studied the worried, sincere face of the man lounging against the car, she realized that, all day, in the back of her mind, had been the suspicion that that packed suitcase had meant that

PISTOLS HELD CONTRIBUTORY TO CRIME WAVE

400,000 DISTRIBUTED BY U. S. FIRMS LAST YEAR, REPORT SHOWS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 4.—Ninety percent of the crimes committed by all classes of criminals are affected by the use of the pistol. Four hundred thousand pistols were distributed in the United States last year and several thousand of this number were transported through the mails.

This citation of the pistol as one of the chief contributors to crime, was made in a report submitted to the Missouri Bar Association, by its crime committee, at the closing session of that organization's meeting Saturday. This committee was organized for the purpose of devising ways and means of curbing crime.

The automobile was named along with the pistol as an aid to crime. The pistol serves as a weapon for the criminal and the automobile is used as a means of escaping detection.

"The pistol is not an article of sportsmanship, nor is it a factor in warfare," the report said. "Practically speaking, its sole function is to kill human beings. As an article of commerce it should be placed under a ban."

Three classifications of general crimes were named: Those committed by the casual offender for revenge or in the heat of passion; those committed by young persons between 15 and 25 years of age who crave the luxuries of modern life; and the professional law violators who infest the larger cities and whose goal is money at any price.

Some of the conditions which give a large measure of immunity to criminals were discussed. Among them were the professional bondsmen, fixers and attorneys who have little or no regard for the ethics of the profession.

In addition to these aids there are many ancient and obsolete technicalities of the law which are invoked in the trial of criminal cases.

Misdirected public sentiment was charged with responsibility for much of the mollycoddledness on the part of juries. This results in the increasing numbers of paroles and pardons.

The most drastic recommendation for improving these conditions was that highway robbery in which a deadly weapon is used be made punishable by death.

Cherry was planning to elope with Bob Hathaway. And here was Bob—

"But I remember now," she went on rapidly. "But she seemed listless, tired. I suppose it's nothing more than a bad headache. You'll pardon me for stopping you like a traffic cop, won't you?" she stammered reassuringly, but her face was beating heavily with dreadful forebodings.

When they were saying good-by, Faith stopped him on a sudden, in surprise. "You might telephone in about half an hour, Bob. If it's convenient, and if you're really worried about Cherry. Ask for me. If you call, and I can give any message to Cherry, if she isn't sleeping her headache away."

"I wasn't going anywhere in particular," Bob Hathaway told her. "I think I'll drive on back to the city. I'll call you up from my house when I think you've had time to get home. Maybe she'll let me come over this evening."

When George's car was again headed toward town, Faith tried to talk cheerfully, to keep him from suspecting the very real worry that was gnawing at her heart.

But she was so tired that she had not entirely succeeded in throwing him off the track, for when she let her out at her house, he gripped her hand hard, with the low-spoken, serious words: "Call me if you need me for anything! I'll be at home all evening."

"Thanks, George—for everything," she answered simply, then ran up the gravelled path to the house.

She found her mother and father in the living room, looking worn and uncomfortable and bored in their Sunday clothes.

"Where's Cherry? In her room?" she asked breathlessly.

"Why, no, she's out with Bob Hathaway," her mother answered irritably, around all day, with nobody to talk around all day, with nobody to talk to.

"When did she leave?" Faith persisted, fear making her voice sharp.

"My land! I don't know exactly. Me and your Pa was takin' a nap after dinner, and when we woke up she was gone. I don't know what you're so flustered about! You knowed she had a date with Bob!"

Without replying, Faith hurried to Cherry's room, jerked open the dresser drawers, glanced into the closet, and then, her worst fears confirmed, ran through the house to the back yard. Without her suitcase she couldn't see—Then the girl was brought up with a jerk. Junior's car was gone, and he had said he was not going to use it, was going to be out with Fay Allen in her coupe.

She had just reached the Allen home by telephone when her father called out:

"Here's a lady to see Cherry, Faith. Maybe you'd better talk to her."

"Hello, hello!" Faith shook the receiver hook impatiently. "This is Faith Lane, Mrs. Allen. Is Junior—Jimmy Lane there? He and Fay are out in her car, you say? You're sure, Mrs. Allen? Thank you. I'm sorry to have troubled you. When Jimmy comes in, will you ask him to call me, please? Yes, it's important."

She hurried into the living room, wondering who the stranger could be who had come, uninvited and unexpected, to see Cherry.

A thin, faded, tremulous little woman in shabby clothes that tried pathetically to be smart, took a hesitating step toward Faith.

"I'm awfully sorry to intrude," she stammered, "but I had to try to see Miss Cherry Lane today—you see," and her eyes were suddenly suffused with righteous anger that gave her slight, insignificant body a temporary dignity. "I'm Mrs. Etteson—Mrs. Albert Etteson."

UNION LABOR IS MADE THE GOAT IN FAKE SCHEME

MERCHANTS FLEEDED OUT OF MUCH BUSINESS IN KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 4.—Local business men and merchants have been the victims of a new type of swindle who has defrauded advertisers of thousands of dollars in the past year.

The swindle has been under the guise of a union publication. Advertisers have paid for space in this Bulletin not only once but as many as fifteen times for one advertisement. Fake covers were made in the publication for use in collections only.

The game was based on the use of the Union Label League official bulletin on 1925-26. This publication was originally accredited by the Labor Council and was issued in the latter part of 1925, above 100 pages of advertising matter, totalling $16,000 was printed in this edition.

A few months after the Bulletin came out, the same men who had acted as solicitors for it in the first place, appeared in various business houses with bills for advertisements in the "Central Union." Two times more they came around and collected for space in the "Midwest Union Bulletin" and "Railroad Men's Directory of Greater Kansas City." And each time the man who had advertised in the original Bulletin paid what he was charged without a murmur. He was afraid to antagonize labor men.

What had really been done in each case was to print 25 covers for the Bulletin, give it a new title, rip off the old cover and put on the new one. This was then taken to the business men and the solicitor had his publication right there to show him that he had run an advertisement.

In one instance the method was even more crude. Stickers, carrying the desired name, were printed and pasted over the old name.

Labor organizations now are investigating the things done by men who used the name of union labor.

None of the business men who have been swindled are willing to let his name be made public or used in connection with a prosecution of the fakers.

Labor leaders are contemplating joining with all forms of advertising solicitation in order to combat the evil.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4 (AP)—The authorities announce that federal troops have captured and killed the leader of the bandits who a week ago attacked a Mexico City automobile party on the highway midway between Mexico City and Pachuca.

Authorities believe that with federal troops patrolling the highways in the Mexico City region and prompt execution of the bandits who murdered Jacob Rosenthal of Woodmere, N. Y., travelers will be safe in the country surrounding the capital.

Many in Denmark are out of work.

You must spend money to make money, and there is no medium whereby you can tell the people what you have at a more reasonable rate than thru your newspaper. It is covering your trade territory and reaching the people who buy what you have. If you are one who has procrastinated and not bought newspaper space, now is the time to start. Don't wait until tomorrow. If you do not feel that you can use a large space, or your business does not justify it, then use the classified ads, regardless of the business you are in. Sales 7,000 bales including 4,700 American. Receipts 3,000 bales, no American.

NEW YORK TRADING NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of six points to a decline of one point.

Over Sunday selling orders from the south were in smaller volume than recently, while there appeared to be considerable buying as well as covering and buying for a reaction. This was reflected in a firmer tone as soon as early offerings had been absorbed, the market selling up to 14.3c for December and 17.0c for March, by the end of the first hour, or about 12 to 15 points net higher.

The early advance to 14.3c for December met increased offering which appeared to come partly from the south and prices broke in to new ground for the movement under a renewal of liquidation and reselling by early buyers. December broke to 13.15c, representing net dealings of about 7 to 12 points on the active months, but these figures brought in a little more covering and prices rallied four or five points from the lowest at mid-day.

Mid-day rallies on unfavorable weather reports from the southwest were followed by renewed weakness under continued southern selling and liquidation. Prices made new low ground and December broke through the 13 cent level, selling off to 12.9c.

GRAIN MARKET CHICAGO TRADING CHICAGO, Oct. 4 (AP)—Owing largely to wet weather northwest, wheat prices averaged higher today during early dealings. Starting unchanged to 3-8c, the market scored a moderate general advance, which however, failed to hold well. Corn and oats were firmer, corn opening 4c to 5-8c higher and subsequently gaining a little more but then receding to about Saturday's finish. Provisions tended down grade.

STOCKS AND MONEY WALL STREET TRADING NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—An irregular higher price movement ushered in the new week in the stock market. Initial gains of a point or so were recorded by General Motors, General Asphalt, Case Threshing machine. Allied chemical yielded 13-8 points on the first sale. Trading was in moderate volume.

The sharp deficit in reserves shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement was used by bear traders as an excuse for another attack on supposedly weak specialties after the opening. Continental Baking was driven down 3 points to a new 1926 low record below seventy. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe cracked 4 points. Atlantic Coast Line 3 and P. & O. 2. This selling, however, caused only a momentary pause in the upward movement, elsewhere which was quickly resumed under the high grade industrial and Van Sweringen rails. U. S. Steel common was quickly lifted above 153 and early gains of a point or two were recorded by American Smelting, Dupont, Freeport, Texas and Allis Chalmers. "Nickle Plate" common led the early advance in the rail list.

Except for another break of about 10 points in Spanish pesetas, which were quoted around 15 cents the foreign exchanges opened steady on quiet trading. Demand sterling ruled around 45 1/2, and French francs around 230 cents.

MERCHANTS URGED TO WATCH FOR CHECK PRANKS

Old checkers have been dealing Lubbock merchants real misery, but if dealers and their clerks would be more careful there would be less cold checks.

For instance a few days ago a man walked into a local grocery, bought a bill of groceries and then asked for a blank check. The obliging clerk accommodated him and the man paid off with a check signed "Dinky Moore." Had the clerk been on the alert he would have known in a moment something was wrong.

A bill collector walked up to a man and presented a statement, and at the same time began praising the man for being "prompt pay."

The customer wanted a little fun so he paid the bill with a check "U. R. Bony." The happy collector moved on and didn't know a mistake had been made until the customer told him late that day. Had he been dishonest the collector would have been out of luck. Another man bought a bill of goods and paid off with a check signed by "N. O. Good."

There are plenty cold checks in Lubbock—too many business men know, but there would be fewer of them if all dealers would be more careful.

erated successfully over this section. A report from Santa Fe officials indicated that no other track has been washed away, though many slow orders have been issued and trains, almost without exception are running behind schedule.

Highways Impassable
Highways leading out of Lubbock are in many instances impassable. North of the city on the Plainview highway traffic is almost at a standstill. The lake is higher than it has been for many months and the road bed is so soft the average car can not make it. On the Lubbock-Tahoka road several culverts have been washed out and two or three accidents have occurred. Chas. Garrett and his family narrowly escaped death Sunday night when their car plunged into a ditch six feet deep. The culvert was missing, but because of mud, water and darkness Mr. Garrett did not notice it until it was too late to stop his car.

The car nosed into the gully, but was stopped before it overturned. Mr. Garrett was painfully injured and the car was badly wrecked. Another car wreck was averted when the driver saw the Garrett car drop from view. Stage lines are finding it impossible to make daily trips and it will be three or four days before they are again running on schedule.

Crops have been materially damaged in many sections and should the rain continue even greater losses may be expected.

Three Known Dead
KANSAS CITY, Oct. 4 (AP)—The death toll in the flood which swept out of Southern Kansas into Oklahoma yesterday, sending thousands of lowland residents from their homes, reached three when it became known that Oscar Brooks, railroad foreman, was drowned yesterday while attempting to save a Rock Island bridge over the Elm fork of the Red river, near Mangum, Okla.

Two deaths, one from drowning and one from fright, were reported near Bartlesville yesterday. Several were still missing today and officials were attempting to make a check.

Rail Traffic Impaired
WICHITA FALLS, Oct. 4 (AP)—Railway transportation through Northwest Texas and Southwest Oklahoma was paralyzed Sunday afternoon and for a few hours was virtually at a standstill, on account of the heavy rains which resulted in washouts through this section of Texas and Oklahoma.

Three railroad bridges on the M. & N. P. railroad into Oklahoma are out and service will not be resumed into that state for at least five or six days, local railroad officials said Monday. Washouts were also reported by the Frisco over Red river, eight miles north of Quanah.

Fort Worth and Denver trains which were delayed Sunday by the unsafe condition of the Pease river bridge near Vernon, were the only ones running Monday morning. Buses of the city have not been operating for several days on account of the heavy rains. The Quanah Acme and Pacific have been carrying extra cars to accommodate the heavy traffic. Sunday morning the last train on this line left Quanah and has not returned on account of the bridge being washed out between Quanah and Paducah. The wagon bridge over Red river north of Quanah is also out.

Three Bridges Washed Out
Three railroad bridges along the Katy lines into Oklahoma were washed out Sunday. The Elm fork bridge at Burk Burnett, the Elm fork bridge at Mangum and the Salt Fork bridge, west of Abilene on the Wellington bridge were made impassable by the floods. Travel over that line will not be resumed for several days, Katy officials said.

The Fort Worth and Denver trains to the north were running several hours behind Sunday night. Heavy rain soaked a considerable portion of North Texas and apparently cooled the atmosphere further south. Although Dallas got only 44 inch, Fort Worth, 36 miles westward, got 2.25. Two inches fell at Gainesville and 1.53 at McKinney. Wichita Falls rain was 54 inch.

Light showers and cooler temperatures were felt in the central and southeastern parts of the state.

Rivers On Rampage
Heavy rains in this section have brought the Red river and Pease rivers to high levels. The Sioux bridge of the Frisco railroad a half mile this side of Red river has been washed out and traffic on the line has halted. Seven bents were washed out of the highway bridge between Vernon and Fargo when Pease river went on a rampage. Crops in the lowlands along the rivers have been damaged and considerable damage to the cotton crop is reported.

Heavy rains were reported on the Wichita Valley railroad to the end of the line at Abilene. On the Wichita Southern the rain was also heavy and extended to Breckenridge.

DEPENDABLE MERCHANDISE

Truth Crushed Will Rise Again, Claim

"Pay boss, I gave a nigger down here in the flat $14 to keep for me and now he won't give it back," were the mournful words of a dusky son of Ham to a Lubbock officer. "I just gave it to him to keep for me, and now I want it back." The officer investigated, and learned from the "alleged money holder" that there had been a scam game. "I have his $14 cap'n, but I won't give it from him rollin' bones. If that nigger wants to go down and pay a fine I am ready to plead guilty, too." When the officer made his report to the complaining negro he slunk away. For fourteen and fifteen are twenty-nine, and $29 is too much for any negro to lose any time.

Fair Checks Ready Manager Announces

Checks to prize winners in the livestock and poultry departments of the 1926 Panhandle and South Plains fair are ready for distribution and will be held in the offices of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, in the city hall for a three day period. A. B. Davis, manager of the fair, said today. According to Mr. Davis, if the checks are not called for within a three day period they will be mailed to the individual prize winners.

Fair workers are laboring to complete prize lists in the other departments and checks to cover them will be forthcoming as soon as possible. No accurate report of attendance, prize list totals, expenses or insurance money is yet available, pending a meeting of the directorate.

W. J. GARRETT, LUBBOCK DRY GOODS MERCHANT, SAYS PEOPLE OF SOUTH SHOULD WEAR MORE COTTON GOODS

"It's entirely to the people who are most affected by the price of cotton to work out a solution for the southern farmer and make sure of a sound prosperity in all lines business," says W. J. Garrett, owner and manager of a local dry goods store. He continued: "Simpler forces at work, costing the people of the South millions of dollars, seem to be so well covered that it is impossible to remove or uncover them. Therefore I believe it is up to the people of the South to work out the problem and that once we have all definitely set our minds and efforts to work we shall win." "There is one way—a sure one! That is for every person who loves the South to take a stand behind the movement to 'Buy and Wear More Cotton.' It isn't enough to sympathize with the 'poor farmer' because every single one of us suffer with him when the price of cotton slumps. Why not every patriotic person in Texas—in Lubbock—buy and wear more cotton goods. Why not the good women of our section set their own styles in this patriotic movement. Buy in made and it is a relative thing. When Lubbock women wear good, sensible cotton hose they are creating a style that reflects patriotism and in so doing they are creating a demand for cotton goods—the only logical solution in my opinion of the economic uplift of Texas and the South."
