HANKOW BURNED AS CHINA AGAIN SEETHES WITH CIVIL STRIFE

SOLDIERS ROAM OVER PANICKY CITY, LOOTING RESIDENCES AND STORES AHEAD OF NATIONALISTS

EVACUATING ARMY SETS FIRE TO CITY; UNPAID SOLDIERS ARE LEFT WITHOUT LEADER AS GENERAL SENG FLEES SECTION

(By The Associated Press)

HANKOW, China, Nov. 12.—The evacuating troops of General Tang Seng-Chi set fire to the native city of Hankow tonight. Thousands of troops and civilians are looting the city, looting. Panic resigns.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Yangtze valley again ablaze with civil war with the important industrial and commercial center of Hankow once more the scene of disorder.

The flight today of the military dictator at Hankow, General Tang Seng-Chi, before the steady advance of the Nanking Nationalists who have been opposing him, has left almost leaderless his unpaid troops, free to loot the city and striking terror to the hearts of the terrified population, including the foreigners.

Reports from the former capital of the Nationalist regime, state that Japanese marines have landed, that the foreign concessions have been barricaded and that the Chinese inhabitants of the city are moving on the foreign sections for protection. Fighting and looting is going on in the city, say the advices, while the authorities for the Wuhan cities of Hankow, Wu Chang and Hanyang is being handed over to Tang's successor, General Ho Chien, who is seeking to take command of the situation.

FOUR DIE IN SMASH

Crash of Auto and Train At Oklahoma Crossing Fatal To Four; One Badly Hurt

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Nov. 12. (AP)—Four persons were killed and another seriously injured then an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Midland Valley passenger train half a mile northeast of Haskell, 22 miles northeast of here, early tonight.

The dead: Cornelius Doudinot, an Indian; Vercie Oliver, negro woman; Susie Fleetwood, an Indian woman and a four-year-old boy. A two-year-old girl was the fifth person in the car. Physicians said she has a chance of recovery.

The group was returning to their home on Snake Creek near Bixby, when the accident occurred. Wheels of the locomotive were locked but the train could not stop as it was going down grade.

The train dragged the motor car a quarter of a mile and the automobile burst into flames and burned the bodies almost beyond recognition before rescue work was effective.

METHODISTS WILL OPPOSE ANY 'WET'

REMOVE RULE WITHOLDING SUPPORT TO SOUTHERN METHODIST U.

BY HAMILTON WRIGHT
Staff Correspondent.

BIG SPRING, Nov. 12.—Removal of a rule which heretofore had prevented the granting of financial support to Southern Methodist university on the the question of orthodoxy; and the passage of a resolution to oppose any candidate for the presidency who is not in harmony with the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, featured the Saturday session of the Northwest Texas Methodist conference here yesterday.

The removal of the alleged obnoxious rule followed the reading of the report of the educational committee and a two-hour debate that waxed warm at times. The fight to retain the rule was led by G. W. Baccus, leading layman of Vernon, supported by D. P. Yoder, Snyder layman, and Rev. J. H. Hamblen, presiding elder of the Stamford district. A substitute known as section number eleven of the educational report, which carries a rule equivalent in effect but without the alleged animus of rule number nine, seemed to palliate the stand-patters.

Rule number nine, stricken from the minutes by today's action, reads:

"Before this conference will consider making an appropriation to any institution of learning there must be placed in the hands of the conference secretary and the chairman of the board of education the following statement signed by the president of the institution of learning: 'All the teachers of our institution within my knowledge, be-

JONES' TRIAL TO START TOMRROW

CASE WILL BE CALLED IN 99TH DISTRICT COURT MONDAY MORNING

Attention of the criminal court proceedings in the Ninety-ninth district court this week will be centered upon the trial of Tom Jones, charged with the murder of William Zatloukal, which will be called at the Monday morning session.

Jones, whose plea is self-defense, is being represented by the legal firm of Bledsoe and Crenshaw.

Zatloukal was killed here September 8, the shooting taking place on Avenue K, near the Lubbock hotel. He was a master mechanic with the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railway company at Stamford.

Immediately after the shooting Jones walked into the office of the sheriff at the courthouse and surrendered to Deputy Bob Crump of Shallowater, who was in the office at the time.

FIVE DIE IN FIRE

All of Victims in Indianapolis Hotel Fire Are Women; Origin of Blaze Is Unknown.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 13 (AP).—Five persons were killed here early today in a fire at a hotel in the downtown district. Smoke began pouring from the building shortly before midnight. Several women were said to have jumped from second story windows.

All five of those killed were women. Their bodies were said to been found on the third floor of the hotel.

Origin of the fire is unknown. Hospitals were in confusion in an effort to check on the dead and injured.

PRESIDENT OF DENVER ROAD PREDICTS COMPLETION OF LINE NEXT MAY

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 12. —Work on the South Plains line of the Fort Worth and Denver railway is two months ahead of schedule, Hale Holden, president of the Chicago Burlington & Quincy and the Denver, said here Saturday while here on an inspection trip.

"Indications are that the 202 miles of main line serving Lubbock, Plainview and other South Plains towns will be completed by May, Holden said. Forty-two miles of the road from Estelline to Quitaque already has been finished and business is being handled. All grading work has been done.

"As soon as two tunnels now under construction, are completed, workmen will begin laying steel at the rate of two miles a day. This program calls for very rapid work, but will be made possible by the use of modern rail laying devices.

"Plans for the stations along the line have been completed and contracts will be let soon."

VERBAL BATTLE IS FEATURE OF FACTIONAL ROW

DISSENSION IN THREE STATES IS BROUGHT BY FT. WORTH MAN

(By Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, Nov. 11. 12.—Southern Baptists are now getting ready to face one of the bitterest denominational fights in the history of their existance. It is one of bitter personalities, under the guise of Fundamentalism and Evolution.

The battlers are headed by followers of Dr. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church here, on one side, and other famous Baptist leaders of the south on the other.

Norris' supporters are all fundamentalists; denominational supporters—Norris is disfranchised in the Baptist denomination—are both fundamentalists and evolutionists.

Fight Is Spreading.

The fight now centers between Norris and presidents of the various Baptist schools of the south Among the latter are Dr. S. P Brooks, president of Baylor University at Waco, and Dr. Lee R.

LOCK CAUSED IT ALL

T. A. Norman Must Remain In Jail Two Weeks Longer Because Cell Door Wouldn't Open

Such a small thing as a lock that wouldn't open temporarily will be the cause of at least two more weeks in jail for T. A. Norman before he can be brought to trial.

Norman is being held on charges of highway robbery. His trial was slated for last Wednesday, and the jury had been selected, witnesses summoned and everything ready for the trial. But when Sheriff H. L. Johnston went to the jail to get the prisoner, the lock on the cell, which worked by combination, refused to open.

Without the prisoner, the trial could not be held, and so Judge Clark Mullican was forced to dismiss the jury and witnesses and adjourn court.

Thursday the witnesses could not be secured, Friday was a holiday, and no court was held Saturday. The docket is filled for the next two weeks, and in the meantime Norman remains in jail.

Borah Demands Showdown On Prohibition Question And On Law Enforcement

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Senator Borah, of Idaho, called tonight for a showdown in the next presidential campaign on the prohibition question and law enforcement. Explaining that he would not assume to advise the Democrats, he aimed his demand chiefly at the Republicans, who, he asserted, should take a stand for rigid enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"It is my contention," the Idaho Republican declared before the New York Women's Law Enforcement committee, "that the supreme political problem in the United States today is obedience to law—the integrity of the constituted government.

"I contend that the highest duty resting on a political party at this time is to recognize that fact, meet it openly and courageously, call its voters and supporters to the contest and fight it through to the end. In the clear sunlight of this issue, here political expediency is both discreditable and futile.

Corruption Widespread.

"We know from the decisions of the supreme court that we are passing through a period in which corruption has reached to the very doors of the White House dominated cabinets and robbed the people of their inheritance.

"We know that our daily press day by day records a series of crimes, both in number and horror which have no precedent or parallel.

"We know, if we but stop to reflect, that this spirit of lawlessness has come to be the most stupendous problem of our national life.

"We know too, that this spirit of lawlessness has now taken the form of an utter disregard and defiance of our character of govern-

NORTHER SENDS MERCURY DOWN

ACCELERATED BUSINESS IS COMPANION TO COLD SNAP AND EVERYONE'S HAPPY

Lubbock shivered yesterday in her first touch of wintry weather the norther predicted by the weather man materializing and pushing the mercury down to a minimum of 27 during the wee hours of the morning.

Warmer weather was forecast for today and Monday.

The freeze was, on the whole, beneficial to the crops, according to the general opinion.

Along with the cold snap came accelerated business for all lines in Lubbock. Great crowds thronged the downtown streets and milled around the department stores. All in all, it was one of the busiest days the city has ever experienced. Parking space was at a decided premium. The banks were lined with smiling depositors and prosperity was reflected on most every countenance.

NORTHER DUE TO BOUNCE EASTWARD.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12 (AP).—A realistic imitation of winter, which bounced boisterously into the middle west yesterday astride a gale is due to hop to the Atlantic seaboard tomorrow. Its icy breath also will be felt as far south as the Gulf states, the weather bureau predicted.

The week will open under clear skies, with the forecasters venture that snow will fall in the middle west and in the east by Tuesday.

A temperature considerably below freezing will prevail over the territory east of the Rocky Mountains.

As the gale yesterday romped in across the Plains states it left a trail of damaged buildings in Chicago suburbs. Preceding it the visitation of an electrical storm took two lives, killing a boy at Milwaukee and another on an Illinois farm.

SATURDAY'S FREEZE BENEFITED RATHER THAN HARMED MATURE CROP; 45,000 YIELD IS FORECAST

TEMPERATURE DROPS TO 27 DEGREES IN COLDEST SPELL OF SEASON; SHALLOWATER LEADS GINNINGS WITH LUBBOCK SECOND

While the weather man was serving below freezing weather and frost to the South Plains Friday night, killing foliage on cotton plants so the blazing of the sun can penetrate to the mature bolls, farmers were busy concentrating their attention to gathering what is estimated to be yet more than half the crop.

Simultaneously with this, a tabulation made by the Avalanche-Journal late Saturday evening revealed that approximately 18,000 bales have been ginned in this county this season. A minimum temperature of 27 was reached early Saturday morning.

Shallowater continues to lead all towns in the county, including this city, with a total ginning of 3,500 bales, with the city of Lubbock second with 3,000. Five gins in Slaton have turned out 2,700 bales, with an additional 1,800 ginned by three plants at nearby communities.

No definite count was available from Idalou, but City Secretary W. S. Anderson estimated the ginnings there at 3,000, which he said he considered conservative. Reports frome these five sources mentioned above bring a total of 14,000.

Other Gins Report

The one gin at Hurlwood reported 535 bales; Wolfforth 392; Canyon community 636; and definite reports from Monroe and seven other rural gins were not available. R. E. Overstreet, state director of the Farm Bureau Cotton Association, estimated that ginnings at the seven rural gins not enumerated above would average on a par at least with gins of this city, and it was agreed that 325 bales at each plant would be conservative.

This computation would add 2,275 bales to the total, and it is estimated that two gins at Monroe, with ginnings of two plants in this county in the vicinity of Abernathy would add at least 800 or a thousand to this. Using 800 as ultra con-

BURNS MEN MADE FALSE REPORTS

ONE OF DETECTIVES TELLS OF UNDERHAND WORK IN OIL JURY 'SHADOWING'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Testimony that the Burns detective agency fabricated reports for use should the defense in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy case decide that a mistrial was necessary, was presented today to the grand jury investigating the surveillance of the trial jurors.

It was furnished by one of Burns' own operatives, who since October 24, had been assisting the government in weaving a net about William J. Burns, his son, W. Sherman Burns, and the more than a dozen detectives sent here at the behest of Henry Mason Day, one of Harry F. Sinnclair's confidential associates. This operative is William J. McMullin, of Philadelphia, a world war veteran, and known to Burns and his men as William C. Long, with the code designation of L-36. He swore that those directing the jury shadowing required him to swear to a false affidavit on which William J. Burns based his charge of jury tampering by government agents, and which was presented to the oil trail judge, Justice Frederick K. Siddons, by counsel for Burns.

McMullin declared at the time the affidavit was presented, the elder Burns, founder of the detective agency, knew that it was false. This affidavit had to do with the alleged activities of Harris R. Lamb a special assistant to the Attorney General, whom McMullin declares was never shadowed for even a moment.

Paul Huey Plans Article for Early Issue of Progressive Farmer On Plains Region

Paul Huey, field editor of the Progressive Farmer, Dallas, spent Saturday afternoon in Lubbock county getting data for an article in this magazine at an early issue.

Huey visited the farm home of Fritz Fuchs near Abernathy. Pictures of the home, and various barns and other improvements were taken and will be used in connection with a story regarding Fuchs' success as a farmer. Fuchs was selected as a master farmer last year. While here, Huey stated that Douglas Pounds of Lubbock county has a good chance to be selected as one of the 15 master farmers of Texas in the contest sponsored by the Progressive Farmr.

The Progressive Farmer is also sponsoring a ton-litter contest this fall, in connection with the Texas A. and M. college. D. F. Eaton, county agent is handling entries for Lubbock county and expects a number of farmers who are raising hogs to enter.

SHALLOWATER IS BUSY

Total of Over 3,500 Bales Ginned This Year; Report Issued at End of Run in Shallowater.

Still ginning along!

Shallowater continues to put up its cotton crop in one-two-three order and when the three gins were shut down for the Sunday rest late last night slightly more than 3,500 bales had been run through.

The report was issued to the Avalanche-Journal by T. C. Calley, manager of the Farmers' Gin at Shallowater.

JONES LAUNDRY BURNS

Loss of $2000 From Mysterious Blaze That Destroys Plant In South Part of City

Fire of unknown origin last night practically destroyed a laundry owned by Harold Jones near the corner of Avenue F and Sixteenth street, the loss being estimated at approximately $2000.

The fire was discovered at about midnight. It is believed to have originated near the boiler, although there had been no fire there since 1 p. m. yesterday.

There was no insurance on the building, and only a small amount on a part of the machinery.

The flames caused the fall of a 2300-volt electric wire, which for a time endangered the lives of the firemen who extinguished the blaze.

MUSTANGS BOLT OVER BEAR DEFENSE FOR 34 TO 0 VICTOR

BAYLOR BEATEN BY PASSING OF DALLAS ELEVEN

HUME AND WASHAM ARE STARS IN TILT ON DALLAS GRIDIRON

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Nov. 12. — In a game packed with thrilling passes and breath-taking runs, the Southern Methodist University Mustangs of Dallas today defeated the Baylor University Golden Bears 34 to 0, before a crowd of 6000 rather chilled spectators. Three passes led the Mustangs' first touchdown, Love receiving one to gain 45 yards, Johnson taking one for 15 yards and Reed carrying the third 11 yards to cross the Baptists' goal. Love then booted the ball between the goal posts for the extra point. Hume, in two broken field runs that netted about 60 yards in the next few minutes brought the ball to Baylor's eight-yard line, and then dashed around right end for the Mustangs' second touchdown.

Bears Over-Anxious.

The over-anxious Bears were off sides on the try for goal, and the Ponies were given the extra point. Then Hume made the prettiest run of the day. With the ball on his own 41-yard line, Mann called for a lateral pass, received the pigskin and tossed it to Hume, who dodged and side-stepped Bear tacklers for 59 yards, crossing the Baptists' goal in the center of the field. Love's place-kick for the extra point was blocked. Shortly after the kick-off the Mustangs, failing to gain with line bucks, Mann threw another to Hume who ran 52 yards, sliding out of bounds two feet from the goal. After one plunge at the Bear line had failed, Mann dived over the line of scrimmage for the Methodists' fourth touchdown. Hume kicked goal. After the Ponies had again been held and forced to punt to Baylor's 20-yard line, a Bruin back failed to toss a pass far enough, and Watters, Mustang end, intercepted it, running 16 yards to the Bears' four-yard line. Hume on the next play, dashed through left tackle for his third touchdown of the day and a moment later kicked goal.

Waltonites Are To Boost Through Air

Enlistment of radio broadcast facilities in various parts of the United States in its efforts to save millions of wild ducks which die in the West annually because of alkali water poisoning will assist the Izaak Walton League in its campaign, according to C. L. Adams president of the Lubbock chapter of the League.

The campaign to stop the duck mortality, said to threaten the existence of ducks in the West and to seriously effect the duck supply of the entire country, was initiated over station KOA, Denver, on November 1, and other chapters of the League are carrying on the broadcasting work, Mr. Adams said. The entire strength and national power of the League will be thrown into the fight for proper flooding of effected areas by fresh water and the impounding of poisonous waters by dikes, he declared.

St. Xavier Eleven Scores Many Times

(By NEA Service)

CINCINNATI, Nov. 12. — The leading football scoring machine in the country. That is the claim made for St. Xavier college of this city. The records distinctly prove the right to such an honor.

In six games played since the opening of the grid season, St. Xavier has scored 325 points, an average of better than 50 per game.

Four more games remain on the schedule, so by the close of the season, St. Xavier should boast a total reminiscent of the days of "Hurry Up" Yost's point a minute teams at Michigan.

The U. S. Marines and the Haskell Indians are two of the four teams still to be faced and greatly feared.

Littlefield Wins From Idalou Team

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LITTLEFIELD, Nov. 12.—In a game replete with thrills, and during which the outcome was in doubt until the final whistle, the Littlefield high school football team merged victorious over the invading Idalou high eleven. The score was 13-12 and was the feature of Littlefield's observance of Armistice Day.

Amarillo Almost Sure To Cop Top Rung In Class A

The Panhandle Class A conference title is looming brighter and brighter for the Amarillo Golden Sandstormers, for Hugh Butler's well organized machine has marched successfully through its schedule with the other class A teams of the district and has won each of its games by a decisive score. The Vernon Lions dropped a hard-fought game to the Sandies at Vernon last Friday, 7 to 6. In Lubbock the Bulldogs of Plainview played the battling Westerners to a 6 to 6 tie, and Saturday the Wichita Falls Coyotes defeated the Quanah Chiefs by a 64-2 count. The Electra Tigers drew a week of rest. As the matter stands in percentages the Wichita Falls Coyotes are tied with the Sandies, having never lost a conference game. However, the tie game the Westerners played the Coyotes to gives the Sandies a slight moral edge over Bud McCallum's Wichita Falls combination.

The Conference standing is:

	P	W	L	T	PCT.
Amarillo	5	5	0	0	1.000
Wichita Falls	4	3	0	1	1.000
Plainview	4	2	1	1	.667
Lubbock	4	1	1	2	.500
Vernon	5	2	3	0	.400
Electra	4	1	3	0	.250
Quanah	4	0	4	0	.000

This week brings the Quanah Chiefs to Lubbock to clash with Henry Frnka's Westerners, the game will be played on the Matador field. The Sandies meet the Electra Tigers on the Sandie lot; the Plainview Bulldogs take on the Wichita Falls Coyotes and the Vernon Lions draw a rest.

The Tiger handlers, Walker and Ransom of Electra, will attempt to turn back the onward march of the Sandies. The Westerners should have a very easy time with the Chiefs, but "Buckie" Allen, dean of Panhandle high school mentors will entertain plenty of trouble against Bud McCallum's Coyotes.

Should the Sandies defeat the Tigers, which they are rated to do, the championship will not be decided until Turkey Day when the Coyotes tour to the Panhandle city to meet with Butler's machine, provided, of course, the Coyotes find a victory over Plainview.

Illinois Wins From Chicagoans, 15 to 6

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 12. (AP)—Illinois bounding along on the highway that leads to the western conference gridiron championship, knocked Chicago over, 15 to 6, before upwards of 50,000 spectators and began licking its chops over the prospects of walloping Ohio State a week hence.

Vanderbilt Battles Tennessee To a Tie

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 12. (AP)—Vanderbilt's passing attack failed against an inspired Tennessee University eleven here today and the two Tennessee teams battled to a 7 to 7 tie.

Michigan Drowns Navy Team, 27-12

MICHIGAN STADIUM, ANN HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 12. (AP)—A slashing, fighting Michigan backfield tore through the Navy line and off the ends to win their third intersectional clash with the Midshipmen, 27 to 12, here today. Some 87,000 persons crowded into Michigan's new $1,000,000 stadium to witness the game.

A versatile line-smashing attack, which twice took the ball over the goal line in the first period gave Michigan a lead which they did not relinquished despite the brilliant passing and running attack of Lloyd and Ransford, Navy backs.

Awards For 4-H Clubs Ordered By County Agent

Pins and certificates for members of the 4-H girls' clubs of the county have been ordered by Miss Louise Baird, county home demonstration agent, and will be presented to the girls at an "Achievement Day" which will be held in the middle of December.

Bronze pins will be given to the following six girls who have completed their first year's work: Helen Wilke and Mildred Davis, of Lubbock; and Betty Sedgwick, Katherine Schmidt, Marguerite Schmidt and Lile Pearl Schmidt of Shallowater.

Silver pins will be given to the following four girls who have completed their second year's work: Virginia Mathis, Inez Allen and Josephine Moore, of Lubbock; and Faustina Woodruff of Shallowater.

Gold pins will be given to Ruby Phillips of Lubbock for completion of the third year's work, and a gold guard to Elouise Wilke of Lubbock for completion of her fourth year of work.

This Week To Be Real Opener For Tech Basketball

Some 40 or 50 Texas Tech basketball recruits have been in training in the assembly hall during the past week under Victor Payne, head basketball handler of the Matador coaching staff. The first week of training brought to Payne many valuable first-year men, from numerous high school teams over the state, and from all indications the Tech cage mentor will have plenty more recruits this week.

Most of the varsity men will start out this week, including, Percy Walker, Hemphill, White, Jennings, Hunter and Teague. Coach Payne expects to get into full swing this week and start scrimmage workouts three times a week.

Since the Amarillo city basketball league has started up Coach Payne will possibly arrange several games with the members of that loop, so the Matadors can have some 10 pre-season games before taking up the actual college schedule.

During the meeting of the coaches of the Southwestern, Texas and T. I. A. A. teams in Dallas during the early part of December, Coach Payne will arrange his complete card for 1928. Although nothing definite has been announced, it is rather likely that several games will be scheduled with Southwestern conference teams.

CROWD THRILLS AS BLUE SQUAD SNATCHES TILT

WITHOUT CALDWELL IN GAME, SONS OF ELI BATTLE GAMELY

(By Associated Press)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 12.—Yale snatched victory from Princeton today 14 to 6 with a sensational last period rally that turned the tide with dramatic swiftness just when it seemed that the big blue football machine was stalled and powerless to score without the aid of its ineligible cog, Bruce Caldwell.

With as thrilling a finish as those ancient rivals have ever put on, the Elis came from behind with a sudden display of aerial fireworks, scoring both their touchdowns with not much more than five minutes to go and with Princeton seemingly putting up a stone wall barrier to keep the six point margin gained in the second quarter when Eddie Wittmer dashed over for a touchdown.

With an electrical suddenness that sent most of the vast crowd of 74,000 in the Yale bowl into a delirious frenzy, Johnny Hoben, standing on Princeton's 47 yard line, hurled a long pass to Dwight Fishwick, giant end, who raced 25 yards for the first Blue touchdown. Duncan Cox, big fullback, booted the goal that put Yale into the lead and clinched the game, but the Elis, now rampant, rushed over another touchdown as Charlesworth, recovered a fumble on the Tiger 20 yard mark and Bill Hammersley, in Caldwell's post, reeled off the remaining distance to the goal line in a series of short thrusts.

Georgia Fullback Has Special Shoes

(By NEA Service)

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 12.This McCrary, who plays fullback for Georgia has feet so peculiarly shaped that he has to have his football shoes made specially for him

McCrary possesses feet with heels very small and the fore portion large, much bigger than the usual run.

And to avoid having his star fullback troubled with sore feet Coach Woodruff sends him up to Atlanta every now and then during the season to get special foot wear.

John Tarleton Wins Off Ranger Junior

STEPHENVILLE, Nov. 12. (AP)—John Tarleton Cowboys defeated Ranger Junior college today, 26 to 6. Captain Tallor was the first enemy to cross the Tarleton goal line this afternoon when he raced 30 yards for a touchdown in the last half.

Ranger held Tarleton to one score in the first half but weakened in the two closing kuarters. Hunter and Patton starred for the victors.

Carleton Stepping High In Army Game

(By NEA Service)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 12—Just how does Carleton college get that way, having a place on the 1928 schedule of the Army?

That's what fans in this section are asking since the announcement was made that this small college had scheduled a game with the West Point outfit for 1928.

Carleton is at Northfield, Minn., and seldom plays schools in the Big Ten. In her class, in the Mid-Western conference, she has been a steady winner. Northwestern swamped her in 1926, but several years ago she gained a victory over Chicago.

BATTLING SOUTH BENDERS NEVER GIVE UP, TAKE MORE FIRST DOWNS; DEFENSE CRACK AS SOLDIER BACKS RUN FOR BIG GAINS

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—An alert army team tra ed to the minute mentally and physically, stopped No Dame in its tracks today to win an exciting, but none t well played football game 18 to 0. The great team fr South Bend never quit fighting but it never had a chan

The Army was in command of situation throughout. The soldi outguessed the Civilians and o played them. Notre Dame's tack did not do a bit of good and defensive tactics at times was b ly run down at the heel.

Notre Dame gained an edge earned first downs with 12 to but five of the losers were m in the final quarter when No Dame unleashed a dazzling forw passing attack, but this was conclusive. Keener Cagle, comes from the sugar bowl Louisiana proved himself as swee football player as his environme would suggest, started the Ar on its way by scoring the fi touchdown an dheaped on the for good measure after Billy Na had injected one in between.

Billy Evans Says:

Star Hard to Replace.

Take one star out of the lineup of a major league club and it makes a tremendous difference. I could enumerate a score of such cases.

No second baseman has ever been able to fill the shoe of Eddie Collins when injury or illness has made it impossible for him to play.

A lot of outfielders have essayed at various times to take Tris Speaker's place, when for some reason he has been unable to play, but none have delivered in his incomparable style.

When Walter Johnson was in his prime, there never was a pitcher who came even close to taking his turn on the rubber as the ace of the staff, when Walter was ailing.

All of which simply proves that one star can either make or break a ball club.

Gilbert Was Missed.

While I have always realized that such a happening holds good in most sports not until the Michigan-Illinois game did I fully appreciate what an outstanding gridiron performer meant to the success of his team.

Louis Gilbert, sensational halfback of Michigan, was unable to play against Illinois. Michigan was beaten. Possibly the result would have been the same had Gilbert played but certainly it would have not been so easily accomplished by the proteges of Bob Zuppke.

Gilbert was operated on for an infected arm a few hours prior to the game. The Michigan coaches while realizing what his absence meant, placed his welfare above the desire to win from Illinois.

Against Ohio State, with Gilbert starring, Michigan looked like a great team. With Gilbert on the sidelines in the Illinois game, Michigan looked very ordinary.

Michigan's offense in the Illinois game never functioned properly, making it seem that much of it was built up around Gilbert.

Explains Michigan's Defeat.

Michigan missed Gilbert in almost every department of play. Illinois enjoyed a decided edge in punting, which might not have happened with Gilbert in the game. His punting against Ohio State had the Buckeyes constantly on the defensive.

Michigan's passing game carried little or no deception, quite the contrary of the previous games in which Oosterbaan alternated with Gilbert in hurling the passes.

In running back punts, Gilbert was also sadly missed. All in all, Michigan was simply lost without him, making it seem that possibly too much dependence has been centered on the elusive Mr. Gilbert.

Watching the Wolverines in action, three players, Oosterbaan, Gilbert and Baer stand out. In the Illinois game, Oosterbaan was not at his best, Baer played himself out and was forced to retire in the final period, while Gilbert could lend but moral support from a seat on the sidelines.

The failure of these three stars to function in high, perhaps best explains the upset of Michigan. In conclusion, don't forget that a potentially great Illinois team trimmed 'em.

Battered Oklahoma Team Beats Kansas

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 12. (AP) — Protected by a light line that stood, fought and outcharged the University of Kansas, the University of Oklahoma's make-shift back-field ran rings around the University of Kansas Jayhawkers as a fitting climax to the Sooners' home-coming. Coach Ad Lindsey's Crimson-clad warriors won, 26 to 7. A colorful crowd estimated at 20,000 persons, filled the stadium and cheered the Sooners on. The Sooners made 14 first downs to their opponents' six. Oklahoma made 263 yards in scrimmage as compared to 136 for Kansas.

Arkansas opened a drive w Cole doing the passing and Razorbacks crossing the Aggi goal line five times. Cole, Arka sas quarterback, with the aim o sharp-shooter, completed nine o of 14 passes. Wright, Giant Okl homa halfback, threatened seriou ly in the third period with his h smashes. The Oklahoman ran wi putting the ball in scoring po tion twice before the dazed Razo backs could nail him. Arkans record showed 19 first downs, wh the Oklahomans made 12.

Various Types DISSECTING GRID RULES Of Kicks Used

BY DR. E. J. O'BRIEN
Member National Advisory Committee on Football Rules and Famous Official

I have had a great many followe of the game ask me at times t difference between a place kic punt and so forth.

For their enlightenment, I wou say that a place kick is made b kicking the ball from its positi while it is resting on the ground.

A kick-off is the best exam of a place kick, this being t kick used in the opening play the first and third periods, and a ter a touchdown or field goal h been scored.

The kick-off is really a plac kick from the 40-yard line of th side having the ball.

A punt is made by dropping th ball from the hands and kickin it before it reaches the ground.

A drop kick is where a playe drops the ball from the hand hands and kicks it at the instan it rises fro mthe ground.

Now a free kick is one tha puzzles ever so many people, an this type of kick is any kick mad when the opponents are restraine from advancing beyond a certai point before the ball is put in pla For example, a free kick includ a kick-off, kick from a fair catc and the catch following a safety.

THANKSGIVING GAMES TO DECIDE DISTRICT CLASS B GRIDIRON HONORS

SLATON AND FLOYDADA, UNDEFEATED, TO BE IN TURKEY DAY CLASSIC

Thanksgiving will likely be the deciding day for the championship of the Class B teams of the Lubbock Interscholastic League district, as the two teams, Floydada Whirlwinds and Slaton Tigers are yet undefeated and their annual scheduled contest falls on Turkey Day with the scene of the classic in the Tigers' lair. However, before the November 24th game, both the Whirlwinds and Tigers have scheduled games for this week-end. The Tigers are scheduled to meet with the Spur high school, one of the strongest teams of the district, at Spur; and the Floydada club plays the Lockney Steers at Floydada.

Should both the two undefeated teams fall in defeat before their foes this week it would bring back into play several clubs of the district, including Spur, Lamesa, and Post, as all of these schools have only one defeat on their year's work.

Both Won Friday

Armistice Day brought victories to both Floydada and Slaton at their home gridirons over Post and Lamesa respectively. The Whirlwinds won over Post by a score of 14 to 0; while the Tigers took the Golden Tornadoes into camp for a 13 to 0 score.

The 1927 season for Class B schools has been the strongest the group of teams has ever experienced. The district which includes 18 counties, namely: Andrews, Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Garza, Lynn, Terry, Yoakum, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Dicken, Motley, Floyd, Hale, Lamb, and Bailey counties, has played some very interesting games. The strongest clubs of the conference, are Spur, Lamesa, Post, Ralls, Crosbyton, Lockney, Floydada, Tahoka, Littlefield, and Slaton.

At the beginning of the current season the coaches of the Class B schools decided to make two different and distinct divisions, schools of the larger cities of the conference in one section; and the teams of the smaller schools in another. This was done in order that clubs of the district would have a chance to be represented in the play-off with the stronger and larger schools. But the teams of the smaller group will not be represented for all of the clubs have been defeated.

The stronger teams of the small division of high schools in the Lubbock Conference, include: Hale Center, Amherst, Idalou, Olton, Sudan, Levelland, and Brownfield. It might be said that the 1927 season among the Class B schools has been the most successful year in the district's history. C. L. Sone, chairman of the Class B conference, of Slaton, has had but very little ruling on eligibilities and all in all the loop has been one of the most successful of the state.

Much interest is expected to be shown in the play-off contests and the Post, Lamesa, and Spur clubs are driving on with their work, for yet, they have a mathematical chance at the title.

MATADORS TO GET NEEDED THREE DAY REST

TURKEY BATTLE PRACTICE WILL START TUESDAY

HOSPITAL SQUAD WILL BE READY TO PLAY AGAINST BUFFS

The Matadors defeated for the first time in two years by a T. I. A. A. conference team, the A. C. C. Wildcats, will take this week easy for they are not scheduled for a game. The next contest slated for the Bullfighters is Turkey Day, when all of Canyon and W. T. S. T. C. will be here to wage in the third annual classic of West Texas on the Texas Tech athletic field.

Coach Ewing Y. Freeland turned his Matadors loose Friday after the Christian game and will not take to practice until Tuesday. "The boys have had a very strenuous season and they deserve a rest before the game with the Buffaloes," the Tech mentor stated last week. There is not a question as to the strength of the 1927 Matador schedule, as it has been the hardest card any Texas school, outside of the Southwestern conference, has had. Two of the eleven's games have been with the strongest teams of the Southwestern conference, the T. C. U. Horned Frogs, and the Texas Farmers. Two with the Texas conference teams, the Simmons University Cowboys and the St. Edwards university machine, have been battles in the Matador season. Two of the T. I. A. A. leading teams, the Daniel Baker Hill Billies and the A. C. C. Wildcats, have also been met with; and the Sul Ross Loboes, possibly one of the hardest teams outside of conference jurisdiction, have also been handled by the Picadors.

Rest Badly Needed.

The rest period comes at a very appropriate time, too, for at this time Ewing Freeland's big guns, Walker, Westerfelt, Wooldridge, Jennings and Hamilton, will all be back with renewed fight for the Turkey Day classic with the Buffaloes.

The Buffaloes, like A. C. C., have the great achievement in view, "Beat Tech," and as in the two previous seasons the Buffs will rise to heights in the Matador clash. The Canyon News states the following as to the game with the Matadors here on November 24:

"Coach Eckhardt says that his team has not realized its greatness and its strength and he wants to bring them to the season's peak in the last game — the game that means to the Buffaloes more than all the others together—against the Texas Tech Matadors. Twice have the Matadors won, each time by the gods of fortune, that, seemingly, have always watched over the football destiny of the Bullfighters.

"In both of the Buffalo-Matador games the Buffaloes have been the under dogs. As dope will have it this year the Buffaloes are due to enter the Thanksgiving game with the odds about even. It is conceded that the Matadors have the best team in the short history and that their line will compare favorably with any line in the Southwest conference.

"Students are urged to start saving their dimes now, and let's all go to Lubbock for the Turkey Day game. A special train will carry us and everyone will have a good time, and come home that night with victory-gladdened hearts."

Buffs Beat A. C. C.

The Buffaloes, the week before the Matadors were defeated by the Wildcats, took the hopes of T. I. A. A. championship for the Purple and White outfit of Abilene Christians, by defeating Bugs Morris' machine on the Buffalo home coming day, by a score of 13 to 6.

Since the Wildcats stopped the Matadors by a 6 to 3 count the Buffs are rated higher than the Matadors. Plenty of work, drive and punch is in store for the Bullfighters after this week of rest and Ewing Y. Freeland hopes to continue his victorious route over the West Texas Teachers by taking the game with them here Turkey Day.

Many of the ex-es of W. T. S. T. C. will flock to Lubbock on November 24 to witness their favorites in the annual clash with the flaming jerseys. The largest attendance since the Aggie-Matador game is expected to turn out on the Thanksgiving occassion at the Tech athletic field.

A special train will run from Canyon on the day bearing the greater portion fo the W. T. S. T. C. enrollment. The Buffalo band, boys and girls pep squads, will also be numbered among the passengers for the Buffalo special train.

Still Seeking For Relatives Aphasia Victim Held Here

Efforts to locate relatives or friends of Anton Hartman, who is now being cared for by the American Red Cross, have thus far proved fruitless, according to Miss Mae Murfee, secretary of that organization, who has been endeavoring to find some trace of the man's relatives.

Hartman, when brought to Lubbock from Slaton, was unable to tell anything about himself. His condition is termed motor aphasia by medical men. He was tried for lunacy in the county court in order that he might be placed in a state institution, provided no relatives are found. In the meanwhile he is being cared for by the Red Cross.

Major Hoople Gives His Views About Armistice Day! Says We Should Thank Those Making Present Peace Possible

By MAJOR HOOPLE McCORKLE
Avalanche-Journal Philosopher

Armistice Day! The day of all days so far as wounded and maimed soldiers are concerned, has again been celebrated by 110,000,000 peace loving American patriots, and possibly five times that number of subjects in half a dozen European countries. Armistice day in 1518 meant temporary peace—Armistice day in 1927 denoted continued peace.

Of course there is unrest. There is trouble. There is dissatisfaction. In some cases we still have fighting, but as a whole the world is more or less at peace.

War Long Remembered

The last great war left its scars and its sad memories, and people who lived and prayed and thought and planned during that mighty conflict will soon forget. Age will heal, in a way, but so long as this old world shall stand this war will be remembered, and sad as it may seem, the very memories of this war will bring grief to the souls of man. The war was not the will of God, but the work of man, and its blot on civilization shall ever remain.

War is an abomination. War means sorrow and misery for innocents who can not hope to profit regardless of the final verdict. Innocent, peace-loving people are dragged into war. Young boys, millions of them, have been forced to give their blood on battle fields merely to satisfy the whims of aristocratic war lords who choose to operate by might—to force people into subjection.

Americans are not what you might term "pugilistically inclined." They want peace and are willing to pay for it—but not at any price. America was dragged into the great world war, and whether we agree with the acts of leaders matters very little. We entered the war and remained in the war until Kaiser Bill hoisted a white flag, said "calf rope" and made a breck-neck run for Holland where he went into permanent exile.

None of us have ever doubted the value of the American troops and equipment, but too many of us have overlooked an opportunity to thank those who made peace possible.

Early in the conflict when men were dying by the hundreds and thousands every day—when life in the trenches meant a living hell and sure death people were not very eager to accept "soldiering." Then came the draft, and while some of the boys didn't run over themselves to "get in" they accepted the decree of congress and our president and donned the khaki. How well we remember the training camps, the exemption boards and the draft registration. Millions remember while teeming millions remember no more.

We Boosted 'Em

When our boys were being called out to face German bullets and mustard gas for $30 a month and their chow, we said we were "with them." We told them to go over there and "pour it on the Huns." We told them to keep up their courage and not to fear the dreaded submarines, for even if their ship was attacked they might swim to shore. Yes, we gave them encouragement—we gave them "bull"—lots of it, for both are cheap. We told them they were the "hot stuff" and that the kaiser would be scared to death when he saw the Sammies marching up to the Hindenburg line. We told them a lot of things—things we didn't know anything about.

We even told them that when they returned all they would have to do was produce the kaiser's scalp and make known their desires—we would give them whatever they wanted. This all listened good and a lot of the boys really were foolish enough to believe it all. They dodged submarines, at hard-tack, wore dirty clothes, scratched cooties, faced bullets and smelled mustard gas and never once complained. Why should they when they were fighting for the "folks back home" and the folks were going to "set 'em up in business" as soon they licked the Huns. They wanted to get it over with and get back home where they could enjoy life.

Most of them left sweethearts or wives, and about the last thing they remembered was the parting kiss and a promise to remain true until they returned.

Yes, those boys entered the fight to win, and they succeeded.

Armistice Day! The kaiser hoisted his white flag—the war was over.

The boys smiled, washed their faces, scraped the grime off their hands, went to de-lousing camps and prepared to come home and claim their own. We imagine they were a happy though hungry bunch. Every fellow was telling the other what he was going to do—get that free farm and marry the sweetest girl in the world. Armistice Day—indeed a day of rejoicing.

Ships, after many delays, began moving these boys westward, and they were all "set" for the big reception. They imagined all the "folks" would turn out and give them a welcoming hand, and then show them where they would find the best "free farm." Those who quit good positions figured the boss would make good his pre-war promise and give them a big raise and an interest in the business. They figured that the "sweetest girl" would meet them at the train with a minister and marriage license, and that they would live happy ever afterward. Yes, these boys dreamed a lot.

The Dreams Failed

But their dreams failed to come true. Conditions had changed and the people who hugged them and bathed them in tears when they went away scarcely noticed them now. There was no more fighting to be done so why all the "soldier soft stuff?"

They found that the free farms were not farms at all, but desert wastes the government hadn't been able to pan off even on Jap irrigationists. Four sections of this land, as a rule, would not produce enough to keep up a billy goat and the boys who accepted it starved a few months and then went off to "look for work."

The boss did remember that they once worked for him, and he was sorry he had no opening for them just at this time. He would take their name, however, and in case anything turned up he would get in connection with them. Lounge lizzards, too yellow to fight, too lazy to steal too infernal sissy to live, filled all the good jobs, and the boss saw no reason why he should turn them out and give the returned soldiers their old jobs.

"Sweetest Girl" Gone

The sweetest girl could not be found. She had allowed some "mealy mouthed" slacker to "bull" her into matrimony. Of course he was a "war worker" in a way—he wore a pink ribbon and distributed circulars for the Red Cross. Some of them sought cigaret donations—got them smokes and then sold them to the boys in the trenches. But what can you expect of a slacker anyway?

Husbands were heart-broken when they returned home and found the door locked and friend wife absent. Neighbors told him that she ran away with a fellow who kept out of the war on the strength of exemption. No doubt he was fourth class, alright.

No the return was not as it had been pictured to them—it was not as they had dreamed. They had gone through a living hell—faced bullets by the million, drank filthy water and consumed tainted food. They gave their all for "others" and now the "others" didn't appreciate it. They cursed themselves for being fools, and we can not blame them. They soured on humanity, and we think they were within their rights. But they had learned a lesson. And while these boys aren't talking very much they are thinking a lot, and should another conflict open we warn you now that an ordinary "draft" will not move them—it will take a cyclone and maybe an earthquake. They have been lied to, lied about and lied upon, and by people who remained at home and enjoyed life while they took their baptism of fire on the battle fields of Flanders.

Most of Them Forgive

These boys are real, he-Americans. They are not trying to double-cross anybody, and most of them have forgiven those of us who lied to them and wronged them. They will defend the stars and stripes every time it is necessary, and they won't 'ache" about it. But next time they are going to see that the slackers and promise makers face bullets as well as talk.

The American Legion is strictly American, and when Armistice Day rolls around members of this organization may be expected to celebrate, for after all the day means more to them than to any other class. If they want to remove the capitol dome, smear oil on the white house steps and give America's elite the benefit of a shirt-tail parade we are for them. Maybe not so very proper, but strictly in keeping with some of the things we do.

RIVER TUBE OPENED

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP).—The new $48,000,000 Holland tunnel—a submarine boulevard linking New York and Jersey City under the Hudson—was formally opened today with elaborate ceremonies on both sides of the river. At a telegraphed signal from President Coolidge, flags draped across the tube openings were dropped and seven years of labor had ended. Thousands who have gathered for the ceremonies in Jersey City trooped through the big tubes, preceded by the widows of two engineers who died before the tube was completed.

THAT WARM DESIRE FOR COLD CASH

Honestly, isn't there a peculiar thrill in finding a $20 bill in an old suit of clothes?

If you opened an old trunk and found a handful of $5 gold-pieces, wouldn't you whoop and holler?

Well, then, if you're willing to stand right up and admit that you like U. S. coins and have a fondness for U. S. currency, why don't you dig out the cash which potentially is right at hand—right now—in your own home?

Up in your garret there stands an old rocker and a bed. Sell 'em for CASH!

You've got a stack of old books, half-a-dozen pictures and some other discarded things. Sell 'em for CASH.

You've got an old lawn-mower, an old washing-machine, a jig-saw or a box old old tools. Sell 'em for CASH.

Through Avalanche-Journal want ads you can quickly sell all such things—or rent your spare rooms—or find employment—there's a classification for every need.

The BENSON MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE

Characters of the Story

PHILO VANCE.
JOHN F.-X. MARKHAM, District Attorney of New York County.
ALVIN H. BENSON, Well-known Wall Street broker and man-about-town, who was mysteriously murdered in his home.
MAJOR ANTHONY BENSON, father of the murdered man.
MRS. ANA PLATZ, housekeeper for Alvin Benson.
MURIEL ST. CLAIR, a young actress.
CAPTAIN LEACOCK, Miss St. Clair's fiance.
LEANDER PFYFE, intimate of Alvin Benson's.
MRS. PAULA BANNING a friend of Pfyfe's.
ELSIR HOFFMAN, secretary of the firm of Benson and Benson.
COLONEL BIGSBY OSTRANDER, a retired army officer.
WILLIAM H. MORIARTY, an attorney.
GEORGE G. STITT, of the firm of Stitt and McCoy, public accountants.
MAURICE DINWIDDIE, assistant district attorney.
ERNEST HEATH, sergeant of the Homicide Bureau.
BURKE, SNITKIN, EMERY, Detectives of Homicide Bureau.
District Attorney's office.
BEN HANLON, Commanding Officer of Detectives assigned to PHELPS, TRACY, SPRINGER, HIGGINBOTHAM, Detectives assigned District Attorney's office.
CAPTAIN CARL HAGEDORN, Fire-arms expert.
DR. DOREMUS, Medical examiner.
FRANK SWACKER, Secretary to the District Attorney.
CURRIE, Vance's valet.
S. S. VAN DINE, The Narrator

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Vance eliminates Miss St. Clair as a suspect, and when Pfyfe's statements strengthen the case against Leacock he intervenes to keep Markham from arresting the captain. It is brought out that Pfyfe had forged Alvin Benson's name to a check. Vance thinks Pfyfe must have put some security to cover the forgery, and he believes this security was the box of jewelry that disappeared from Benson's house when he was murdered.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CCHAPTER XXXVII

Markham sat up suddenly; then sank back with a shrug. "Even if it was," he said, "I don't see how that helps us. Unless the Major knew the package had nothing to do with the case, he would not have suggested to his secretary that she omit telling us about it."

"Ah! But if the Major knew that the package was an irrelevant item in the case, then he must also know something about the case—eh, what? Otherwise, he couldn't determine what was, and what was not, irrelevant. . . . I have felt all along that he knew more than he admitted.

"Don't forget that he put us on the track of Pfyfe, and also that he was quite pos'tive Captain Leacock was innocent."

Markham thought for several minutes. "I'm beginning to see what you're driving at," he admitted slowly. "That in this affair Sh. may have an important bearing on the case . . . I think I'll have a chat with the Major about things."

Shortly after dinner at the club that night Major Benson came into the lounge room where we had retired for our smoke, and Markham accosted him at once.

"Major, aren't you willing to help me a little more in getting at the truth about your brother's death?" he asked.

The other gazed at him searchingly; the inflection of Markham's voice belied the apparent casualness of the question.

"God knows it's not my wish to put obstacles in your way," he said, carefully weighing each word. "I'd gladly give you any help I could, but there are one of two things I can not tell you at this time. . . . If there was only myself to be considered," he added, "it would be different."

"But you do suspect someone?" Vance put the question.

"In a way—yes. I overheard a conversation in Alvin's office one day that took on added significance after his death."

"You shouldn't let chivalry stand in the way," urged Markham. "If your suspicion is unfounded, the truth will surely come out."

"But when I don't know, I certainly ought not to hazard a guess," affirmed the major. "I think it best that you solve this problem without me."

Despite Markham's importunities, he would say no more; and shortly afterward he excused himself and went out.

Markham, now profoundly worried, sat smoking restlessly, tapping the arm of his chair with his fingers.

"Well, old bean, a bit involved, what?" commented Vance.

"It's not so damned funny," Markham grumbled. "Everyone seems to know more about the case than the police or the district attorney's office."

"Which wouldn't be so discon-certin' if they all weren't so deuced reticent," supplemented Vance cheerfully.

"And the touchin' part of it is that each of 'em appears to be keeping still in order to shield someone else. Mrs. Platz began it: she lied about Benson's having any callers that afternoon, because she didn't want to involve his tea companion. Miss St. Clair declined point blank to tell you anything, because she obviously didn't desire to cast suspicion on another.

"The captain became voiceless the moment you suggested his affianced bride was entangled. Even Leander refused to extricate himself from a delicate situation lest he implicate another. And now the Major! . . . Most annoyin'.—On the other hand, don't y 'know, it's comfortin'—not to say upliftin'—to be dealing exclusively with such noble, self sacrificin' souls."

"Hell!" Markham put down his cigar and rose. "The case is getting on my nerves. I'm going to sleep on it, and tackle it in the morning."

"That ancient idea of sleeping on a problem is a fallacy," said Vance, as he walked out into Madison Avenue.—an apologia, as if were, for one's not being able to think clearly. Poetic idea, y' know. All poets believe in it—nature's soothe, the balm of sea, childhood's handmaids, tired nature's sweet restorer, and that sort of thing.

Shortly after dinner at the club that night Major Benson came into the lounge room where we had retired for our smoke, and Markham accosted him at once.

"Major, aren't you willing to help me a little more in getting at the truth about your brother's death?" he asked.

The other gazed at him searchingly; the inflection of Markham's voice belied the apparent casualness of the question.

"God knows it's not my wish to put obstacles in your way," he said, carefully weighing each word. "I'd gladly give you any help I could, but there are one of two things I can not tell you at this time. . . . If there was only myself to be considered," he added, "it would be different."

"But you do suspect someone?" Vance put the question.

"In a way—yes. I overheard a conversation in Alvin's office one day that took on added significance after his death."

"You shouldn't let chivalry stand in the way," urged Markham. "If your suspicion is unfounded, the truth will surely come out."

"But when I don't know, I certainly ought not to hazard a guess," affirmed the major. "I think it best that you solve this problem without me."

Despite Markham's importunities, he would say no more; and shortly afterward he excused himself and went out.

Markham, now profoundly worried, sat smoking restlessly, tapping the arm of his chair with his fingers.

REPORTS FALSE

the grand jury to tell that McMullin had voluntarily come to him on October 24, seven days after the Teapot Dome trial started, and explained what the Burns men were undertaking to do.

Pinchot reported immediately to Owen J. Roberts, of special government oil counsel and plans then were laid to trap the private operatives. Under orders of the government, McMullin continued to serve with the Burns agency and the story of how he and the government prosecutors outwitted the Burns men, including William J. Burns, himself, reads almost like a moving picture scenario.

As Gordon told the story in the presence of Pinchot and McMullin, the Philadelphia man, who formerly was an insurance adjuster, was employed by the Burns agency on October 13, and sent here on October 18, after the oil trial jury had been sworn in.

Sought Governor

"McMullin became so disgusted within a few days that he went to Governor Pinchot," Gordon said, "He had read in the newspapers that Pinchot was in town and he sought him out because, as he expressed it, he knew the Governor was "on the level."

Roberts could scarcely believe the story at the outset, but had McMullin continue with the Burns men and report to the prosecutor. McMullin, it was stated, became disgusted because Charles G. Ruddy, in charge of the Burns' operatives, required him to sign reports which both knew had not the slightest foundation in fact. McMullin told the district attorney that these reports, bearing on the alleged movements of Lamb were to be used if the defense found it necessary to move for a mistrial.

BORAH DEMANDS

ment itself."

Contending that there are only two courses open, enforcement of repeal, the senator added:

"The only safe course—and certainly it is the only honorable course, is to meet the issue and throw the tremendous power of the party behind the law and the constitution."

Pleads Enforcement.

"Enforcement of the law," Mr. Borah asserted, "requires the election of a president and officials who believe in the prohibition law and who will be as vigilant and active to enforce it as its opponents are to violate it.

"Not only is the constitution defied," the senator said, "but its enforcement and maintenance in many respects has become a mere formality, and, yet we are told that this is not a matter with which political parties may deal or about which they should be concerned."

In this stronghold of the wets and home of Governor Smith, Senator Borah mentioned the probable presidential candidate, insisting that the people generally were interested today in what is the position of a presidential candidate on the Eighteenth Amendment.

Modification No Issue.

Modification of the Volstead act is not involved in the prohibition question, he argued, contending that repeal or enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment is the heart and life of the wet and dry issue.

Rallying the women to the issue the Idahoan said they alone "can bring the political parties to the support of this constitutional amendment.

There is no reason in the world, he added, why, if a party intends to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment it should not say so.

J. FRANK NORRIS

Scarborough, president of the Baptist Seminary, Fort Worth, two largest denominational schools in the south.

So broad, however, has the fight become, that practically every Baptist minister and educator of the south has been brought into it. The fight has spread from city to city, the latest being Oklahoma City and San Antonio.

Because of the power of the radio, over which Norris broadcasts his sermons, the nation has become more or less acquainted with the fight. Norris hurls his defies and challenges through the other over station KTQE controlled by Norris. He is then answered from the pulpit by other Baptist ministers, and through hundreds of thousands of pieces of literature that are being sent out.

Baptist preachers in nearby towns who are opposed to Norris hold services in which Norris is derided, and Norris travels many miles to hear these sermons. As soon as the services are over he mounts the rear end of a truck without the building and proceeds to flay denominational Baptists calling them "monkey faces," and other such names. He applies the gentle epithet of "sewer rats" to newspapers which ignore his charges and refuse to print his propaganda.

Norris' latest rise to oratory has been in denunciation of Al Smith, presidential possibility. He announced in Oklahoma City recently that if Al Smith should be a candidate for president he would stump the United States at his own expense against Smith.

His tirade against Al Smith, however, hasn't lessened his harsh words for Fort Worth city and county officials, and every Sunday night he proceeds to flay them all the harder.

His sermons go out over the radio, but Norris doesn't print all of them in his publication called The Fundamentalist. That would be libelous. Under Texas laws a man can be slandered or libeled only by publication. A person can be slandered orally, but a man not and Norris so far has refrained from saying anything about a woman, and officials are still examining every statute to find some law under which they can stop him. So far they have failed.

There are more than 8000 members of his church in Tarrant county, which numbers about one-fifth of the voters of the county. This makes it almost impossible to get a jury for a case in which Norris is interested, without getting two or three "sinkers" in the box, precluding prosecution attempts by the state, where Norris is concerned.

CAL REVIEWS TROOPS

Royal Canadian and Other Troops of Canada Swing Past President In Ceremony at Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12. (AP)—TheRoyal Canadian and 22nd regiments of Canada's standing army were reviewed by President Coolidge today, the red-coated uniforms casting a brilliant picture against the executive mansion. The troopers were aligned in two ranks on the south lawn of the White House and the president, accompanied by his staff and Vincent Massey, the Canadian minister, walked along the line in formal review.

As Mr. Coolidge appeared the kilted Canadian Highland band played the Star Spangled Banner and posed with the troopers for pictures.

GINNINGS HERE

servative, the total by almost actual count, would be 18,638.

Ginnings Lag

Ginning at a few places over the county the past week has shown a tendency to lag slightly over the previous week, correspondents told the Avalanche-Journal, due, in their opinion, to the fact that fields had been picked over the first time, and farmers were waiting for renewed opening that will be a direct result of the killing frost experienced Friday night.

Agricultural leaders here, who have closely followed the cotton situation, believe that not half of the crop has been gathered, and under present indications, said that the crop in the county probably will reach 40,000 to 45,000 bales, with possibly more.

The slight lag in ginnings at the several points might also be attributed to the $7 a bale drop in the price on publication of the government estimate of yield over the nation, leaders said. Inactivity on this account, however will not be of long standing, it is believed, as the price is steadily climbing back to the season high reached just prior to the report.

Freeze Beneficial

Although the temperature Friday night reached a new season low of 27, the spell brought much more benefit than damage, according to Don L. Jones, of the experiment station here, and David F. Eaton, county farm agent, both of whom said the frost was sufficient to kill cotton foliage, but still not sufficiently severe to damage mature bolls.

It was their opinion that the late top fruitage was killed, but it was also said that this was inconsequential, as it would have been lost anyway. All the consequential crop already has reached maturity, and with the foliage gone so that the sun can penetrate to the matured crop on the plants, rapid opening of the remaining crop is anticipated

Lubbock Entry For Aged Auto Race Is Sought By C. Of C.

"Who's got an old car and wants to help advertise Lubbock.

A letter from Myron F. Ward, assistant manager of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce to the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce invites any Lubbock citizen with a car prior to the 1912 model to enter the "Pioneer Automobile Parade" in Fort Worth, Sunday, November 27.

The parade is being sponsored by the Fort Wogth Star Telegram and the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce and full rules may be obtained by calling the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Signs or advertising slogans will be allowed on the ancient cars that rock down the streets of Fort Worth November 27, and newspapers will give due publicity to the cities that are represented.

Prizes will be awarded to the most antiquidated model entered.

METHODISTS

lieve without mental reservation, equivocation or interpretation, other than the accepted standards of our church, in the statement of faith, adopted by the 1926 general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South.'"

Substitute Passed.

The section eleven substituting reads: "We recommend that nine be stricken from our minutes and in lieu thereof we instruct the trustees of our institutions of learning to use all care and diligence in seeing that the faculties of these institutions are both sound in faith and Christian in character, to the end that our young men and women may be brought under the most gracious and healthful influences during their college years."

Southern Methodist university is given $1500 conference support. The institution last year was left out in the ministration, due to the unwillingness or inability of the president of that institution to comply with the rule.

Debate Waxed Warm.

Baeckus, in his fight to retain the rule, declared it imposes nothing but right and that this conference has a right to govern its own body and withhold its financial aid. A. L. Scales, Abilene, declared the rule has caused the conference to set itself off to itself. Rev. D. B. Dodk, presiding elder of the Lubbock district, said the action of the conference if concurred in by other contributing conferences could end in a legal tangle that could cause the loss of Southern Methodist university to the church. D. P. Yoder, Snyder layman, in reply said that if Methodist institutions were teaching heresy it would be a good thing for the church to lose them. Presiding Elder Hamblen observed that if the church educational institutions are not religious it has no business in the educational world.

Lubbock Man Supports.

Rev. O. P. Clark, Vernon, declared rule number nine was a barrier in the hands of the enemies of education. He offered a compromise substitute for section eleven but later withdrew it. Others who supported the substitute and made addresses to that end included Rev. R. A. Stewart, Stamford; W. M. Murrell, Childress; W. E. Lyon, Abilene; E. D. Landreth, Abilene; J. C. Griswold, Clarendon, a trustee of Southern Methodist university; E. E.White, Lubbock; B. Y. Dickenson, S. M. U. professor, and Virgil Fisher, Amarillo.

Landreth declared the rule thrust dishonor on young men of this conference who sought to attend the institution. Griswold challenged the world to put its fingers upon any institution. Wherein the institution had departed from the faith of the Methodists, assuring the body that if such charges could be substantiated by investigation the guilty person would be removed.

Asked by W. M. Murrell what effect this conference's removal of financial support had on the institution, Bishop Moore responded, "No effect whatever." Dickenson said that he believed the conference could put trust in the constituted authorities. Griswold declared that S. M. U. was possibly as clear of heresy as any institution in the Southwest or on the continent.

No Attack On School.

After the heat of the battle and just before the vote was taken, G. W. Baeckus, leader of the fight for retention of the rule, said "We are making no attack on the university. We are merely safeguarding our own interests and if S. M. U. cannot subscribe to the rule that is its business. Whatever action may be taken I shall be glad to abide by it." When the vote was taken the substitute was an easy winner.

The conference opened today with the singing of "Am I a Soldier of the Cross." And a prayer by Dr. R. E. L. Morgan, followed by the reading of the third chapter of First Timothy. The class of the second year was brought before Bishop John Moore who spoke good advice to them. The class was then declared in full connection with the conference. Dr. C. C. Jarrell, representing the general hspital board, spoke feelingly of the work being done by the church in hospitalization.

Appropriations.

The report on Epworth Leagues read by W. E. Hamilton, chairman of the committee, was adopted. The educational board recommended appropriations to the following institutions: S. M. U., $1500; Texas Woman's college, Fort Worth, $200; McMurry college, Abilene, $15,000; Amarillo college, to be established, $3,000; Wesley Bible Chair Austin, $500 and $900 on indebtedness; scholarships in Texas Tech, $125; Canyon, $200; expenses of educational board, $300.

COTTON AND WHEAT MAKE ABERNATHY PROSPER

PROGRESSIVE CITIZENSHIP MARCHES TO BETTER TIMES; GROWTH OF TOWN IN KEEPING WITH THAT OF SECTION

BY STAFF CORRESPONDENT

ABERNATHY, Nov. 12—"Where King Cotton Meets Queen Wheat; And Cow, Sow and Hen Make Both Ends Meet."

—That's Abernathy. Perhaps crudely expressed, but truthful, the above ditty characterizes the thriving, progressive little city of Abernathy, filled with that type of progressive, alert and prosperous citizenry which is typical of the Plains region, and located in the center of a rich farming section, which annually produces vast quantities of cotton grain and feedstuffs.

Abernathy, like many other now prosperous towns of this region, came into existence coincident with the laying of rails northward along the Sweetwater branch of the Santa Fe.

In Two Good Counties

Abernathy, which has the distinction of lying in both Lubbock and Hale counties, was surveyed June 3, 1909. One corner of the town lies in Hale county and the residents of that part must pay his poll tax in Lubbock 17 miles away; while his neighbor across the street must journey 31 miles to Plainview in order to secure his voting papers. Great advancement has been made by Abernathy during the past three years—more so perhaps in proportion than by any other town of similar size in the region. There are competent observers in Abernathy who declare that 75 new residences have been constructed there during the past three years. And then, as pointed out by government statistics, Abernathy was last year put in fourth place in regard to financial conditions among South Plains towns. Only Lubbock, Plainview and Floydada are rated above Abernathy in this region.

Dairying, Swine Stressed

Dairying and swine production are two projects being stressed by the promulgating agricultural development in the Abernathy section. Encouraging more dairying through the furnishing of a ready market is an active branch of the Hale County Dairy Association. W. E. Richter is the Abernathy manager and vast quantities of cream and dairy products are bought and shipped from this station each week.

The Hog production has attained impressive proportions in Abernathy. J. J. Riley is in charge of a large feeding pen. Forty cars of the porkers have been shipped to markets since last January, and a return has come a steady stream of revenue to their producers.

Many Turkeys Produced

Abernathy also rates along with the well known town of Brady as a turkey producing center. This is specially interesting in view of the proximity of Thanksgiving, the day on which the gobbler, though an impotent factor indeed, reigns supreme in homes the nation over. "Is Abernathy a turkey center?" an old timer ejaculated. "Why with Brady, she could just about provide Thanksgiving dinner for the whole country."

Then there are the other customary crops of the region. A steady stream of cotton pours into the three gins at Abernathy. Last year nearly 10,000 bales were produced in the immediate vicinity. This year due to a diversification campaign and therefore a large acreage cut, the yield is variously predicted to range between 4,000 and 6,000 bales.

The gins are owned by the Farm Bureau (Charlie Williams, manager) by Charlie Filmet and by T. B. Stone.

Grain Crop Good

Then, all kinds of grain are produced in large quantities.

Abernathy has the distinction of being about the southernmost point on the Plains that can successfully produce wheat. Acre after acre of this golden grain may be viewed in season.

Sudan, corn, kaffir, feterita, maize and the other grains and feedstuffs raised elsewhere in the South Plains are, of course, produced around Abernathy.

Indicative of the progressive attitude adopted toward agriculture by Abernathy is the fact that a complete agricultural department is maintained in the high school. Over this J. L. Young presides as instructor. His students may often be found on trips, fruitful of instruction, at the agricultural expriment station near Lubbock.

Abernathy folk quite justly pride themselves on their efficient school system. In the system all credits of high school work are given, with two over the minimum limit being provided.

There is an enrollment of 411 at the present time and 18 teachers are employed, L. P. Shaw is the superintendent and G. W. Johnson principal of the high school.

School Building A Good One

An imposing and attractive building houses the educational mechanism of the town. A $50,000 addition to the high school was completed only a few months ago. The entire school system is reckoned to represent an investment of more than $100,000. Abernathy claims it can present educational advantages unexcelled by any town of similar size.

The "men behind the guns" in Abernathy might aptly be said to be members of the Chamber of Commerce, which represents the civic and progressive force in the town. There are at present fifty-one members of this organization. E. B. Lindsey is the president; C. W. Beene is the secretary. Meetings are held twice monthly, in the form of luncheons. In this manner, the Chamber of Commerce assumes also the function of a civic club.

The directorate is composed of the following: A. M. Medlin who is also vice president; and B. F. Struve, Ray Pinson, George Ragland, and F. Clawson.

Bank Is Strong

The First State bank at Abernathy is considered one of the strongest financial institutions in any town of the same size. Its president is S. R. Merrill.

The mayor and alderman form of government furnishes municipal rule in Abernathy. The mayor is J. N. Nystel. Aldermen are T. B. Stone, Ray Pinson, Leonard Harwell, R. M. Hardesty, and M. C. Hicks.

Abernathy has a 30 piece municipal band, which carried away fourth place in competition at the Wichita Falls. The distinction of such an honor will be realized when it is stated that more than a hundred bands competed in this event.

Mr. Beene is likewise director of the band.

Has Five Churches

Abernathy prides itself upon its churches. There are five and the Methodist, Baptist, Church of Christ, Lutheran and Nazarene are the denominations represented. New buildings have recently been completed for the Church of Christ and the Nazarene congregations.

Excellent transporation connections are available for Abernathy. The Sweetwater-Amarillo branch of the Santa Fe passes through the city and it is located on a state highway over which hundreds of automobiles travel daily. The South Plains Bus lines operate through Abernathy.

A paving program recently inaugurated by Hale county will bring hard-surfaced pavement to Abernathy and link it with pavement clear through Hale county, paving work has already begun along the Plainview highway.

Two Grain Elevators

Two Grain elevators located at Abernathy indicate the magnitude of the grain production in the section. The Plains Grain company, operated by E. B. Lindsey is one of these concerns; the Farmers' Coal and Grain company, managed by A. M. Medlin is the other. Then there is the Rea Milling company of which O. A. Rea is manager.

To cater to the intellectual tastes of the residents there is a community club library. It is under auspices of the Community club of which Mrs. C. H. Bucks is president. Mrs. J. O. Jones, is also a leader in the club.

Law and order in Abernathy is excellently maintained by E. T. Maupin, the city marshall; M. Z. Holland, Hale county deputy sheriff; I. P. Settle, Lubbock county deputy sheriff; and J. J. Merrill, justice of the peace. George Ragler, is the postmaster.

Many Farms Sold

Herman Schulz, manager of the Schulz Land company, has for many years sold farms to the homesteaders who have from time to time located in Abernathy.

Hotels are operated by E. C. Ripley and C. F. Burke.

The Struve Mercantile company, operated by F. W. and B. F. Struve, is considered one of the most complete concerns of its nature in the section.

Abernathy, too has possibilities for oil. A second test is being drilled 4 miles west of town, known as the Richter well, No. 2. It is due to be brought in within a few days, a depth of from 1300 to 1450 feet being sought. As the country sheriff said when he brushed off his 20-year old badge: "Just because I ain't never arrested nobody ain't no sign I'm not going to." Abernathy believes it some day may have oil in paying quantities.

Unshaved Since Lincoln Died

When Abraham Lincoln was assassinated, John Q. Trimmer, a pioneer of Mound City, Mo., vowed he never would shave again. At 92 he has kept that promise.

WAGHORNE ORGAN RECITAL TONIGHT

Program At Methodist Church Is Second Number Of Tech Artist Course.

Scheduled as the second number of the Technological college artist course for this fall, W. R. Waghorne is to play organ numbers at the First Methodist church tomorrow evening, beginning at 8:15 o'clock.

Opening with a Sonata by Mendelssohn, the organist will follow with a light suite by an American who touches the humorous in "The Tragedy of a Tin Soldier." The great "Marche Funebre et Chant Seraphique" of the famous late French organist, Guilmant, will be the next number and conclude the first part of the program.

Part two will open with Edward German's "Dances from Henry VIII"; two of the performer's own compositions will follow, "Sunset at Sea" and "A Pastoral Poem." The former of these last two pieces is being played by request.

The program is to conclude with a Prelude and a Fugua in C Minor by the German organist, Hesse.

The program is free to the public. Ticket holders for the course will sit downstairs, visitors occupying the balcony.

The next artist course number will be on November 30 when Captain John Noel, the explorer, will show pictures of his ascent of Mount Everest.

To Plan Year Book For Women's Clubs

Plans for the new year book for the women's clubs of the county will be formulated at a meeting which will be held at the offices of the county agents nevt Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Miss Myrtle Murray, district agent, will be present to talk to the club members.

Miss Murray will arrive in Lubbock Wednesday night and will confer Thursday with Miss Louise Baird, county home demonstration agent. Miss Baird is notifying all club presidents in order to assure a good representation of all clubs.

Miss Vera Scales is the weekend visitor of Miss Louise Baird She will return this afternoon to Vernon.

PINK GOWN

Shell pink has a renaissance in popularity for evening gowns. A chiffon gown has silver and pearls for trimming and a red rose decoration.

Dean J. M. Gordon, Of Texas Tech, In Demand As Speaker; Plainview And Slaton On Week-end Program

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 12—Before approximately 1,500 Plainview business men, women and school children, Dean J. M. Gordon, of Texas Technological college, Lubbock, was the principal speaker here yesterday afternoon as the local Post of the American Legion observed Armistice Day.

Using as his general subject, "America's Challenge Today", Doctor Gordon pointed out that the nation's task is to outlaw war and to substitute in its stead an international consciousness of good will.

He called attention to the phrases of the late President Woodrow Wilson, "A War to End Wars" and "Making the World Safe for Democracy" the speaker declared that a solution of these questions still face the United States.

Music for the program was furnished by the Junior high school band.

To Preach At Slaton

SLATON: Nov. 12 (Special)—Dr. J. M. Gordon, dean of the school of Liberal Arts at Texas Technological college, will fill the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church at both the morning and night services Sunday. Dean Gordon, a prominent layman of Lubbock, is widely experienced in church work.

Delegates Return From Meeting Of State Federated Clubs; Mrs. W. R. Potter, Bowie, Elected President

Delegates from Lubbock to the state convention of Women's Federated clubs in El Paso during last week returned to Lubbock last night and today, bringing reports of the sessions there.

Mrs. W. B. Price, president of the seventh district, could not be reached late last night but Mrs. W. H. Meador, who represented the Twentieth Century club and was chairman of the seventh district, breakfast served Wednesday morning at the Orndorff hotel, arrived in the afternoon.

Mrs. W. R. Potter of Bowie was elected state president for next year, Mrs. Meador said. She did not know the names of all the other officers.

Hear of Biennial.

The biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's clubs in San Antonio next spring, when Texas women will be hostesses, was the principal theme of discussion at the state convention, Mrs. Meador said. Mrs. J. U. Fields, of Haskell, retiring president of the state organization, is chairman of the biennial meeting in San Antonio.

Three hundred and seventeen voting delegates attended the El Paso meeting, Mrs. Meador said, and visitors and other representatives swelled the number of approximately 700.

The city of El Paso cooperated with the women in entertaining the guests. The general decorative theme was Spanish, in keeping with this border city and a trip to Juarez, Mexico, was a feature of the entertainment. This use of Spanish motif made every affair most colorful, according to Mrs Meador.

46 Attend Breakfast.

The district breakfast was of interest to women from this section and 46 attended. Mrs. J. T. Whitmore was the toastmistress and gave a toast to Mrs. W. B. Price of this city, the retiring president. Mrs. Meador toasted Mrs. F. T. Collins of Amarillo, the incoming executive.

Other numbers on the program included a talk, "What the Federation Means to Me," Miss Capitola Cerlack, of Canadian; a talk on the biennial meeting, Mrs. Lon V Smith of Floydada, district chairman; another talk, financing the biennial, Mrs. Price.

Favors for the banquet were pieces of Mexican pottery. The table center piece was made up of seven red candles and chrysanthemums were in harmonizing colors.

In addition to Mrs. Meador and Mrs. Price, delegates from Lubbock were Mrs. R. A. Mills, Mrs. F. V. Brown and Mrs. R. I. Tubbs.

Miss Swearingen Is Honor Guest At Bridge Party

Complimentary to Miss Bethany Swearingen, of Jackson, Miss., Mrs. Murray Jones was bridge hostess to a few friends Friday afternoon at her home, 2205 Broadway. The guests upon this occasion were Mrs. I. C. Enochs, Miss Swearingen, Mrs. Jed A. Rix, Mrs. M. B. Hilburn, Mrs. H. Jones, Mrs. Lewis Howard, Mrs. W. H. Bledsoe, Miss Mary Meador Mrs. Roscoe Wilson, Mrs. Richard Douglas and Mrs. Harold Griffith. Tea guests were Misses Annah Jo Pendleton and Eunice Cox.

Mrs. Bledsoe scored high in the games, Mrs. Douglas cut high and the honoree was presented with a favor. Each gift was a piece of pottery. Cake and coffee were served.

Birthday Dinner Is Served Honoring Miss Edwards

Miss Margaret Edwards was honoree at a surprise brithday dinner served last evening by Mrs. J. B. Edwards at their home, 1626 19th street.

The prettily appointed three-course meal was followed by games of bridge during the evening. Covers were laid for Miss Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bean, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hailey, Homan Barge, Miss Jackie Reeves and Aubrey Edwards.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

The nose without powder is a shining example.

The Woman's Day By Allene Sumner

Blanche Bates Creel shows the most sensible viewpoint I have ever heard or read on this much ballyhooed subject of the modern girl. Mrs. Creel bluntly states that girls are no different today than they were 50 or a 100 years ago but that mothers are. The mother who once said "no" and meant it, is too lazy or busy today and it's too much of a job to battle youth's desires, so she kids herself with the glib phrases about "child freedom" and "the child's self-expression." Boiling it all down, Blanche Bates says that if today's mothers had any of the same intestinal qualities which their own mothers had, if they were stronger than upstart youth, and dared say "no" and mean it, we would have none of these child tragedies we hear so much about today.

DISHONOR AND WOMEN

Are women without honor? A current magazine raises this question and tends to answer that they are. The author cites woman's flair for buying gowns and hats and coats on approval, wearing them to some particular party, and returning them the next day. The author reminds us that brokers won't take a woman's account, if they can help it, because women won't stand their losses; that they can't stay in a club if some other woman excels them in honors, and that they are even dishonorable in their lavish use of artificial beauty lures. To all of which there seems no argument unless one wants to take time to make a counter list of the male forms of dishonor, such as being a good sport in public and coming home to snarl at the wife.

BLONDES ARE PREFERRED

Only seven out of every 100 women are blonde, and only 3 out of every 100 are red-headed, the International Congress of Eugenics informs us, which is the first scientific answer to the old question of why gentlemen prefer them. Rarity gives anything a luster.

OWN FAULT

There are 1100 members of the Alimony Payers' Protective Association, an organization "to create public sentiment, promote legislation and aid in litigation to stop gold diggers, crooked attorneys, perjurers, framing detective agencies, and politically controlled judges from profiteering on their victims."

One might suggest to the 1100 that if they used as much judgment in picking wives as in buying shoes or a necktie they would need no membership in this protective association. A woman with alimony propensities may be detected before marriage as well as after. Merely a case of being victims of their own bad bargains.

WHO WANTS PRODIGY?

With the awarding to 14-year-old Nathalia Crane of Brooklyn of the $500 award for the best Lindbergh poem written by anyone, anywhere, an award which this child takes away from poets of renown, one can imagine many a fond mother soothing her jealous soul with a prayer of thanks that her child isn't "queer." I suppose a child prodigy in the home would be quite a thorn in the flesh, though few parents would refuse a chance at one for fame and glory accruing from such an offspring.

Ruth Henry Is Given Birthday Party Yesterday

Mrs. Stockton Henry, 1318 9th Street, entertained last evening for her daughter, Ruth, on the latter's ninth birthday. Assisted by Mrs. K. L. Bonds, and Mrs. W. J. Davis, Mrs. Henry directed a series of games for the children and served fruit jello and candy with the birthday cake, which was topped by nine candles.

Guests were Gladys Hall, Doris Moreland, Louise Hodges, Verline Furlow, Howard Hodges, Carter Bentley, Geneva McKinzie, Ray Davis, Ruth Davis, Royce Lang, Jocymae Furlow, Eliza Lang, Virdie Lang, Virginia Needham, K. Anhony Barrier, Pauline Barrier Estill Furlow, Mary Kathryn Hodges, Jack Henry and Ruth Henry.

Miss Mary Davis Is Married To Mr. Arendall

Miss Mary Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Davis, 1922 Avenue P, was married to W. R. Arendall Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock by G. R. Scott, justice of the peace, at his residence, 1901 Main street. Mr. and Mrs. Arendall, both of whom are employees of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, expect to remain in Lubbock for a short time, after which they will make their home in Abilene.

Sport's New Four-Piece Mode Is Winning Fashion By Daring Originality

Jean Patou Tells How He Came To Plan Its Versatility And Great Charm

Without the cape, it is a stunning beaver-trimmed suit.

BY JEAN PATOU
For NEA Service

PARIS, Nov. 12.—The influences and tendencies of an epoch can better be traced in woman's dress, I think, than in any other form of art. This has been abundantly demonstrated throughout the ages.

Woman is a mirror in which both a period and its events are reflected. True, these events and tendencies may be somewhat exaggerated, in so far as woman is given to excess in most things pertaining to her own activities. When woman hits upon a theme, whatever its nature, which has a strong appeal for her, she adopts it with an enthusiasm bordering on exaggeration.

Sport's Influence.

Take for instance the influence of sport on our present age. It was manifested in women's dress. As soon as woman took up outdoor sports, like golf and tennis, she began at once to demand clothes to suit the spirit. She found a new phase of life and had to have a new style of clothes. In vain did I try to regulate these to their proper sphere, but I found it impossible. Nothing would please women but the "genre sportif," and all their clothes reflected the spirit of the times. We made the best of an anomalous situation while it lasted with the assurance that in time women would regain their senses.

A Changed Order.

Now the order of things has changed. Sports clothes have resumed their proper sphere and I am glad to see women realize that tea at the Ritz, for example, calls for a smart, more elaborate afternoon dress than they had been wearing, something to suit a luxurious limousine rather than the long favored sweater suit of the roadster or the golf course.

Practic l, Well-Dressed

I have carried the feminine in my present collection right through the sports section. Women can be practical in their clothes and at the same time well-dressed, without exaggerating any theme. This season I created the four-piece sports suits which are practical, smart, feminine and eminently suited to the end in view, whether it be a game of golf, a country-house party or a morning's shopping in town.

Every detail has been a subject of long study and I think I have at last struck a theme which will appeal to the women who dresses well and appropriately. At the same time it disregards the deplorable tendency, so noticeable a few seasons ago, to the "masculine" in women's dress.

Lubbock Red Cross Chapter To Open Annual Roll Call Drive Wednesday; Need Of Organization Is Felt Here

Planning a drive of the business district of the city to be initiated Wednesday, the eleventh annual roll call of the American Red Cross is under way here. This announcement was made yesterday by George E. Benson, roll call chairman.

Captains and other workers are to be named to assist in the drive, Mr. Benson said, and four majors have already ben appointed. These are J. A. Raley, Nell H. Wright W. W. Royalty and Spencer A. Wells.

The local central committee, of which W. B. Atkins is chairman, has general supervision of Red Cross activities here, co-operating with Miss Mae Murfee, secretary. Members of Mr. Atkins' committee are the following: Roll call chairman, Mr. Benson; chairman Junior Red Cross, Mrs. Hub Jones; Mayor Pink L. Parrish; Charles Nordyke, county judge, women's work, Mesdames T. R. Prideaux, J. S. Johnson and Hub Jones.

Helped In Disasters

In appealing for a greater support of Red Cross this fall than during previous years, Miss Murfee recalled this week that the national organization has this year carried the extraordinary burden of caring for the Mississippi flood sufferers, in addition to 75 other disasters in this country and 20 in foreign countries. Simultaneously with the Mississippi relief work, the Red Cross was dealing with 12 additional disasters in 11 States, some large, some small, but all requiring Red Cross assistance of a substantial character, she said.

Miss Murfee has received word from national headquarters this fall saying that, although the disaster relief at home and abroad was the most spectacular work done, the organization aided more than 73,000 disabled ex-service men and their families each month, at the same time extending service to 225,000 men engaged in active military duty; gave instruction in home hygene and care of the sick to 67,000 women and girls, while 115,000 children and 12,000 adults were taught the importance of nutrition through class room instruction; trained 31,000 in water safety and life saving while 19,000 completed the course in first aid to the uninjured, family welfare agencies were supplied in 505 communities where there were none and more than 5,000,000 children were enrolled in Junior Red Cross work.

Aids Sick and Needy

Miss Murfee's local report shows that 200 visits were made to sick families, 10 orphans were assisted. 20 delinquents were given aid, five deserted children were found homes, employment was found for 175, sixty imposters were checked upon, civilian relief was given 200 and medical attention given 40 during the last year.

In addition to these, the local chapter sent boxes to the flood sufferers, gave relief to ex-service men and their families, assisted in the Rock Springs and Alaska disaster work and put on 30 education and health programs.

In the ex-service relief, Miss Murfee assisted more than fifty men in proving their claims for hospitilization and gave assistance in the way of room, board and clothing while waiting action on the part of the government in their individual claims; looked after the affairs of 10 deceased men; helped take care of 10 mental cases; assisted the families of 50 ex-service men and adjusted 580 compensation blanks. This work was done in 17 counties and a total of 715 families were assisted.

Miss Murfee's work is varied. She cooperates with County and City officials in mental cases, with delinquent boys and girls, and women. She helps those who are seeking employment and, through the Red Cross, she investigates cases when there is an appeal for help, thus protecting the people of the city from beggars.

The needy and sick are visited and given such assistance as is needed or, if the help is not warranied, the secretary keeps records of the case as a protection for the city.

Mrs. E. M. Smith Is Delegate To Houston Meeting

Representing Parent-Teacher associations of Lubbock, Mrs. E. M. Smith is leaving today for Houston where she will attend the nineteenth annual convention of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations until Friday of this week.

Mrs. Smith, who has been associated with Lubbock schools in P.-T. A. work since 1923, is chairman of county extension work in the eighth district and is also a district officer in juvenile protection work. She served as first president of the city council here and has been president of school associations. This year she is in charge of the lyceum course numbers at the high school, a work which she has directed for several years.

Amarillo Wants Meeting.

With other delegates from the Panhandle, Mrs. Smith is to use her influence in bringing the next annual P.-T. A. convention to Amarillo, she said yesterday, after having received an appeal for support from the Amarillo associations.

She did not know yesterday what part she might take in the Houston program, but Mrs. Smith is prepared to give reports on the work in Lubbock, to attend conferences and lectures in order that she may bring back to the local associations a message about what other chapters are doing in this state and about new aims in parent-teacher societies.

The Rice Hotel is to be convention headquarters in Houston and all general meetings and sectional meetings are to be in the city auditorium.

Many Prominent Speakers.

The general theme for this convention is to be "The Challenge of Childhood" based upon the challenge of the state, the school, the teacher, the parent, the home, and the church.

Among the speakers who are to appear during the week are the Hon. T. W. Davidson; Dr. J. C. Anderson, state health officer; Dr. A. H. Flickwir, director of health in Houston; Mrs. F. L. Jaccard, Fort Worth; the Honorable S. M. S. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction; Dr. A. W. Birdwell, Stephen F. Austin State Teachers College; Dr. J. L. Henderson, University of Texas; Mrs. Maggie W. Barry, A. and M. College; Rev. J. Elmer Ferguson, Houston.

Mrs. C. E. Maddocks, of Ranger, is president of the state association and Mrs. J. I. Kendrick, of Amarillo is president of the eighth district, which includes Lubbock.

Entertainment Planned.

Rides over Houston, luncheons, breakfasts, a boat ride to San Jacinto battleground and other social events have been scheduled for the delegates.

Mrs. Will T. Decherd, of Austin, publicity chairman for the state association, has written as follows this week of the convention:

Probably the most elaborate opening banquet in the history of the organization will usher in the Nineteenth Annual Convention of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, Monday, November 14th, at the Rice Hotel, when the address of the evening will be made by the Hon. T. W. Davidson on the "Challenge of Childhood to the State."

Mr. F. M. Black, dean of Houston Junior college, will pronounce the invocation, and Mrs. Robert E. Morse, Jr., president of the Houston Council of Parent-Teacher associations, will give greetings from the Council and will introduce Dr. E. E. Oberholtzer, superintendent of Houston schools, who will give greetings from school and board of education and will preside. Greetings will be given by Mayor Oscar Holcolmbe on behalf of the city; by Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, on behalf of National Congress of Parents and Teachers; and by Mrs. C. E. Maddocks for the State Congress. The Houston high school orchestra will give the music.

Expect 500 Reservations.

The banquet promises to be a notable affair as to attendance, according to Mrs. W. H. Still, Houston, banquet chairman, who expects four or five hundred reservations; and this banquet only seems to begin a series of notable events. Reports of officers and committee chairmen, of standing committee chairmen, publicity, pioneer and health breakfasts, conferences, sectional meetings, and addresses follow each other until it seems that nothing has been omitted that could possibly be of benefit. Speakers such as Hon. T. W. Davidson, Hon. S. M. N. Marrs; Dr. J. C. Anderson; Dr. E. E. Oberholtzer; Dr. J. L. Henderson; Rev. J. Elmer Ferguson; Mr. A. W. Birdwell; Mr. S. P. Waltrip; Mrs. Ina L. Cain; Miss Ethel Hilton; Mrs. Maggie W. Barry; treat the Challenge of Childhood" from every possible angle and insure a splendid program.

Breckenridge Couple Weds In Home Of Bride's Sister

Miss Frances McDonald and F. C. Renfro, of Breckenridge, were married at 12 o'clock yesterday by the Rev. H. K. Monroe, in the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. A. Humphries, 2218 Main Street.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served by Mrs. Humphries. The couple is to remain here visiting for a few days before returning to Breckenridge to live.

Guests at the wedding and luncheon were relatives of the bride, with the exception of Miss Marie Clark, of Ropes, a friend. The bride's mother, Mrs. N. H. McDonald, of Wace, her sisters, Mrs. Humphries, Mrs. Hugo Plath, of Breckenridge, and her brother, D. B. McDonald, of Dallas, were in attendance with Mildred Plath, Mrs. D. B. McDonald and Mr. Humphries.

The bride's niece, Daisimay Humphries, attended her during the wedding ceremony.

Mrs. Renfro formerly taught in the Monroe school.

Members of Delphian Clubs To Go To Clovis, N. M.

Alpha Clo Delphian chapter of Clovis, N. M., has invited women from the Lubbock Delphian chapter to attend a luncheon at 12 o'clock tomorrow in the home of Mrs. Hugh Williams, 1400 Giddings St. and a number of women are planning to make the trip.

This affair is to be social in nature and the invitation was extended in order that the club women might become better acquainted. Taffeta And Velvet Is Young Society's Evening Favorite

Ruddy Reds Are Particularly Pleasing For Night Wear

MARY GAWTHROP

FRANCES MAHER

BY BETSY SCHUYLER
NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The "little season" this autumn seems to have become so formal and elaborate in its entertainment and costumes, that I find myself wondering just how unbelievably whirling and gay the real winter social season can be.

As if there were not enough parties to keep them busy, many of the Junior Leaguers have volunteered lately to aid a series of charitable events.

And however successful all of these affairs are, the costumes that the fair fashionables attend them in are even more so. Never, I swear, could evening clothes have been more glitteringly, flatteringly, stunningly lovely.

Three Tell-Tale Lines.

Three lines of these garments tell the tale—hemlines, neck-lines and waist-lines. There are various new and intricate versions of the down-in-the-back line that introduce organ pleatings, bustle bows, fanshaped trains and pointed tiers.

New necklines may be square or a deep "V". But the smart ones start on the square and dip to points halfway in, or take odd little angles or curves to chic that are new, above all else. Hip-lines remain best when girdled tight.

As a mannikin in a charity fashion show, Mary Gawthrop wore one of the latest black gowns, slightly fitted until the hip-line when it dipped to flaring, pointed sides. Its supreme achievement was its unusual drape, a graceful, flowing scarf caught on the shoulder with a flower and hanging down both the front and back for more lacy uneveness.

At the same event Frances Maher looked like the charming little deb she is in a stunning red gown that used tulle for the triple tiered skirt with side dips and shiny, soft, gleaming matching satin for a cleverly draped bodice. Its neckline was just too pretty — a charming surplice effect edged with a tiny line of the red. A smashing bow of yards of the satin was draped on the hip.

White taffeta is popular with the young this season. Quite rightly, I thought, when I observed little Eugenia Woodruff in a cute little swanky frock with fan-shapped side drapes that accentuated her slender form. The neck was square.

I saw Grace Tingue in a cleverly manipulated French blue velvet, with some kind of a subtly flared skirt and a bolero back split to form two streamers.

Velvet, too, seems to be a universal favorite for evening wraps among the very young stylesters. Elisabeth Bassett and Hanna Gawthrop both favored velvet wraps the other evening.

Ruddiest of Ruddy Reds.

Elisabeth's was the ruddiest of ruddy reds, with a great shirred collar that, standing up, would easily protect her ears from frost. A smashing pink flower on one shoulder illustrated the blending this season of shades that used to swear at each other.

Hanna chose a soft green velvet, figured in modernistic design. It was simply cut, with gorgeous long chawl collar and deep cuffs of white fox. It was lined with shell pink velvet, the same shade as her sweet chiffon gonw under it.

This having one's evening wrap and gown match is about the last word of style this smart season. For of course it presupposes one has fully as many wraps a one has gowns. Which might mean — no one knows how many!

Bits Of News And Personal Mention

D. N. Arnett, jr., left yesterday for his home in Saint Joseph, Mo., after visiting relatives here for several weeks.

Her Secret Beautifier Envy of Her Friends

Miss C. Delano, Washington, writes: —"About two years ago I was bothered a great deal with a muddy, sallow and pimply skin. I found I could cover the blemishes with cosmetics, but this was only a temporary relief. "My druggist recommended your purely vegetable laxative, and suggested my trouble might be constipation. After taking a short while I noticed a wonderful difference. My complexion has improved, also headaches, indigestion and biliousness never bothered me any more."

Women who are accustomed to doing the family washing in the home, dred the coming of wash day with its mess and drudgery. Modern women however regard Monday as any other day in the week, for they realize that by phoning 305 we relieve them of all the responsibility and return the laundry to them fresh, spotlessly clean and do it ECONOMICALLY as well.

Modern equipment and skilled workmanship are the means of adding extra wear to your old hat, for we'll make it look like new.

Garments that you have discontinued wearing but that are yet good in style and fabric could be given extra wear if you'd send them here to be dry cleaned. It doesn't cost much either.

By phoning 305 each of these services or all are yours.

OUR RECENT VISITORS

The South Plains has recently had some very distinguished visitors in the person of Loring A. Schuler, editor of the Country Gentlemen, along with several other very important gentlemen. These men were not here for idle curiosity, but were here for a purpose, and that purpose was to thoroughly investigate the possibilities of the section, and to look into the future of this section. The Texas Digest in speaking of the visit of this party to Texas says it cannot be denied that he was greatly impressed with what he saw, and that he has gained an entirely new conception of what Texas really means. His survey, although necessarily somewhat sketchy in one sense, cannot be classed as superficial, because he never failed to get down to fundamentals whenever occasion offered. Here is an outstanding editor who seized the first opportunity to see Texas for himself. From now on, Mr. Schuler is qualified to judge with considerable accuracy what does, and what does not constitute a fact as applied to Texas. He has been there and he has seen. He has an insight into Texas and some of Texas' problems that he could not possibly have othewise. There is an appalling amount of misinformation concerning Texas, and Texas' resources and Texas' problems printed in papers in other sections of the United States. This is almost entirely due to a misconception amounting to a real ignorance of the facts. In any case, this condition is detrimental to the welfare of the state. Many times it is extremely harmful. Texas may be said to represent the Southwest, and the southwest is now being more rapidly developed than any other section of the United States. As conditions change, new problems are constantly arising, and the manner in which they are solved is of far reaching influence. In many instances, these problems affect the country as a whole, either directly or indirectly, and it is certain that other states will continue to take action upon them as they have in the past. A just and equitable settlement of any problem can be made only when all of its various angles and contributing factors are thoroughly understood. Understanding may only be reached through an intelligent consideration of the evidence of facts. It is conceivable that first hand evidence will receive more favorable consideration than that gained through other sources. It is to be hoped that other eminent journalists will see their way clear to visit Texas and so gain first hand information for themselves. This would in a very large degree solve the problem of getting accurate news of Texas before the public. It could not help but forestall adverse editorial comment on questions of the utmost importance to Texas, for no editor worthy of the name will knowingly permit unjust and inaccurate statements to appear in his paper. A pointed sermon addressed generally to the influential press is seen in Mr. Schuler's welcome visit.

So great is the change in the agricultural conditions of the South Plains during the past few years, men in high places have been attracted to this country, for the very purpose that Editor Schuler came. The Department of Agriculture recently issued a statement that has given those who are in doubt about the South Plains much to think about. The department says the position which the South Plains, or Staked Plains, area holds in the future of the cotton belt has been the subject of extensive study on the part of the Department of Agriculture, and the following general conclusions are given in the 1927 Yearbook of Agriculture:

"Cotton farming along the eastern half of the Staked Plains is assured; (2) as one moves westward the growing season becomes progressively shorter and dryer and the risk of failure on cotton growing increases rapidly; (3) cotton can be grown in the New Mexcio counties of the Staked Plains only part of the time.

"Considering the Staked Plains as a whole, if proper allowance be made for wasted land, there are over 15,250,000 acres of land that may be used for crops and pasture in Texas and more than 4,250,000 acres in New Mexico.

"If we assume that the eastern half of the region in Texas can be organized safely on the basis of 40 per cent of the tillable area in cotton, the western half on a basis of $20 per cent in cotton, and the part in New Mexico with 10 per cent in cotton, and that total be reduced one-third to eliminate the heavy soils of the region upon cotton is quite uncertain, we get approximately 3,200,000 acres that may go into cotton.

"Detailed studies of owner and part-owner-operated farms in Lubbock County, Texas, which is representative of eight or ten counties of that section, show that the average net income per farm received from its operation by the family, after paying all interest on borrowed capital, was over $3,000. Three men lost money, 10 per cent of them less than $1,000, 13 1-2 per cent made over $5,000 and the remainder made between $1,000 and $5,000.

"These incomes were obtained on farms averaging 323 acres in size, valued at $68 per acre, with 37.6 per cent of the land in harvested cotton having an average yield of 148 pounds of lint, selling at an average price of about 20 cents per opnud. The average net worth of these farmers when they settled in the region was just over $5,000 per man and on March 1, 1925, the corresponding figure was $18,000, the difference having been made by the operation of the farm and its own increase in value in an average period of operation of 5.84 years."

These figures were taken from a total of 139 farms in Lubbock County, which appeared to be representative of the section as a whole.

MAKING THE MOST OF OUR CROPS

S. Wallace Dempsey, in addition to being chairman of the House rivers and harbors committee, is an enthusiastic horticulturist. His interest during his recent trip to South Texas to attend the Intracoastal Canal Association convention, was divided about equally between waterways and the fruit and vegetable industry. Mr. Dempsey was honestly impressed with the possibilities of South Texas. He was surprised, and did not hesitate to express his surprise, at the lack of cold storage plants in an area which devotes so much of its attention to fruit growing. The plants, he said, are essential to the industry in New York, which produces millions of dollars' worth of fruits. As conditions are now, South Texans ship their fruit and their vegetable products to market when they are ready for shipment. If the market is off, that is just too bad; if the market is good, so much the better. The grower may or may not make a profit. He hasn't much to say in the matter. He either ships and takes his chance, or he doesn't ship. In the former case he may realize a profit. In the latter, he at least isn't likely to stand a severe loss. Cold storage plants would make it possible to hold the products, without damaging the quality, until the market was "right." They would make it possible to avoid dumping a huge amount of products on the market at the same time, driving prices to their lowest ebb and wasting, in many instances, foodstuffs for which the people are clamoring. They would make it possible to feed fruits and vegetables into the markets of the country in such a way as to preclude the chances of an oversupply. Prices could, and probably would, remain fairly stable. Not only would the producer be helped. The consumer, who pays exorbitant prices for products one day, and sees thousands of tons of the same product wasted the next day, would be protected. Prices would remain constant. The carriers, who today find their services in demand today and useless the next, would enjoy the benefits of a more or less constant flow of traffic. Service would be improved, beyond a doubt. Public, quasi-public agencies and private interests might find it profitable to investigate the development of cold storage plants. They offer interesting possibilities.

LITTLE THINGS SOMETIMES COUNT FOR MUCH

There is reluctance among many of us to accept at face value the intrinsic worth of little things, which in some way or another have an intimate bearing on our happiness. If we will stop for a moment in the bustle of our frenzied existence, when our brains are cool and in condition to receive impressions and retain them we will perceive how trifles often affect our attitude toward our fellow beings. A sharply spoken word, suddenly flaring up between life-long friends has been known to foment an enmity that endured till death. A little thing, to be sure, but tremendous in result. A falling apple led Sir Isaac Newton to the discovery of the law of gravitation. A caress and kiss from his adoring mother made Benjamin West a great painter. Lincoln's famous speech at Gettysburg, November 9, 1863, comprising only 265 words, stirred the whole world by its sublime eloquence and its touching appeal to human hearts. Large fortunes have their beginning in the saving of dimes. The trusted bank clerk starts his ruinous career by little pilferings. It is the little things that often take us to the heights, or to the valleys. The commonplace mite in the end becomes the overwhelming mammoth, and leads us gayly to good or evil. Give serious thought to every word and act, to habits in the forming, to our deportment our duty to one another, not forgetting duty to ourselves and those dependent on us. To disentangle the difficult emotions that enmesh us, when we come face to face with the overwhelming deluge of little things, is indeed difficult, but if we go about our duty seriously and earnestly we shall see our way clearly. The road to success or failure will be well defined, and we shall know which direction we are taking. Let us hope that we will not make a pitiful job of it. Let us make certain that the faults that almost overcame us in the beginning are no longer to be feared, and that we are now climbing the hills to a good and useful life, singing as we go.

SO THINK WE

We think that after the cotton experts of the United States spent several days looking over the cotton conditions of this section of the state they were well pleased and predicted a great cotton producing area in the years to come. It is possible the South Plains vast stretches of raw land will be developed in the next few years as its agricultural resources is attracting and encouraging immigration for the settlement of its undeveloped land.

A SHORT SERMON

What Would the Verdict Be? If You Were Suddenly Called Into the Presence of God, How Would You Stand?

A certain artist spent more than twelve years attempting to paint the scene of Belshazzar's feast, and then left his work unfinished. It is said that the chief difficulty which the artist's genius could not overcome, was that of depicting the despair of the doomed king.

Well it might be so, for it was the despair of a lost soul brought suddenly face to face with the retributive judgment of God, written by a mysterious hand from another world. What art can portray it in the look of a human face?

This Chaldean monarch is one of the few individual cases mentioned in the Scriptures, of men whose damnation in eternity is made morally certain. Rarely, even in the case of a very wicked man, does the inspired writer lift the veil from individual destiny, and assure us that it is fatal. But in this instance there can scarcely be room for doubt. The implications of doom are overwhelming.

Belshazzar had been long familiar with a knowledge of the true God. He had had miraculous evidences of it in the experience of his father. "Thou knewest all this," is the faithful reminder which the prophet gives him. Yet he had persisted in a life and reign of extreme and unblushing guilt. "O Belshazzar, thou has not humbled thine heart; but has lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven." Then appeared the fearful writing on the wall, the purport of which is too plain to admit of doubt. That night the king was summoned to the bar of God.

This may be fairly assumed, therefore, as a case of clear and prolonged conviction of sin which did not result in the soul's salvation. Who of us has the heart to follow the doomed monarch beyond the scenes of that awful night? Let us draw the veil over that unwritten and unutterable future, and turn to a class of men whose experience on the subject is not dissimilar, so far as this—that they have long known the truth, have long felt themselves to be sinners before God, yet they stop just there, with the acknowledged sense of sin often lying as a wearisome weight on their souls, and never relieved by repentance and the consciousness of peace with God.

If they were to be suddenly called into God's presence with hearts unchanged, as the Chaldean king was, the verdict of the mysterious hand would be the same: "Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting."

It has been said that, in such a world as this, "A man may have too much love to weep!" So in the appalling extremity to which sin has reduced mankind, God has too much love to beguile them with a maudlin kindness which would not gain them, by a disclosure of their guilt to their own souls. God is intent on their salvation, not so much from the suffering as from sin. Sin is the maelstrom which sucks into its vortex all joy, all peace, all hope.

God strains the resources of His wisdom and His power to rescue men from eternal guilt. He condescends to enter into conflict with them to save them from themselves. Such is His faithful, His enduring, His long-suffering, His overwhelming friendship.

God's Great Love

George Fox describes his own discovery of this truth in language which portrays the experience of all who are enlightened by the grace of God. He says, "I saw that there was an ocean of darkness and death. But an infinite ocean of light and love flowed over the ocean of darkness. And in that I saw the infinite love of God."

At some point in our mental history, if we are ever to be saved, we must let into our souls that mighty and swelling flood of benignity which God has poured forth in this world for our deliverance from guilt, and in which the whole heart of the Godhead has been expressed. Said one, reflecting upon the disclosures of God in nature: "Flowers surely are smiles of God's goodness."

"Yes," said his friend with a deeper insight, "yes, but the fairest flower I ever saw climbing around a poor man's window was never so beautiful in my eyes as the Bible which I saw lying within the room."

So should we look at the goodness of God, as it is seen in the revelation of the brightness of the Father's glory. Nowhere else do we feel as we do here, that God is a sinner's friend.—War Cry.

Congress And Farm Relief

No Congress for many years has faced more interesting domestic problems than the one which will convene next December. Farm relief, flood control, the position of the government in power development and tax reduction are a few of the more important matters.

As usual, Congress will be confronted with a "program of the insurgents." In plain English, this is the perennial endeavor of persons Socialistically inclined to put the government into some branch of business.

The proposals for government ownership of power development at Muscle Shoals, Boulder Dam, on the Columbia river and at other points, have been aptly described as a program "of Socialism by installments."

Advocates of such measures will find themselves aligned with the Socialist party because the adoption of public ownership of any industry advances the cause of Socialism and the Socialistic doctrine does not square with the fundamentals of this government which have been carried forward by the Republican and Democratic parties.

It will be more difficult in the next Congress than ever before to advance Socialistic measures under some camouflaged title; for two reasons: First, the people, are better informed on public questions and understand that industrial stability, good wages, and a constructive government policy toward private initiative and enterprise go hand in hand; second, private industry has no excuse to make for the manner in which it is conducted or for its record of achievement It is right out in the open and will fight political attacks which seek to destroy it.

In the past, advocates of public ownership have been able to throw a shroud of mystery over their objects of attack. Today industry has removed mystery from practically every phase of its operation. Millions of citizens comprise its list of stockholders and enjoy dividends which result from good business, or suffer losses which result from industrial conditions. Just as the public is aware of the fact that the greatest magician does not actually take rabbits out of a silk hat, so is it aware of the fact that public ownership of industry will not accomplish miracles which are impossible and unknown to private enterprise.

Congress must realize that the public appreciates its action along constructive lines, and that it frowns upon its actions which tend to demoralize industrial or agricultural pursuits. The public has favored legislation which has tended to stabilize industrial, labor and financial policies. It will favor legislation of a helpful and conservative character for farming. It realizes that prosperity for agriculture and industry are inseparable. But it will not favor attempts to instill Socialism into either our agricultural or industrial pursuits.

Congress will find the people behind it if it will confine itself to advocating a business program for agriculture and industry, but it will find confusion and inharmony if it attempts to break down American traditions and ideals, by substituting public ownership of any line of industry for private ownership under suitable regulation as it exists in this country today.

OPINIONS

A LITTLE BABY

A friend asks me to her home, and as the doors open, a little boy, 2 years old, romps out. Its face is wreathed in smiles. Happy chatter touches the sun warmed air—chatter that only a mother can understand.

It's on parade, this baby. And so it rushes back to the house and appears worthwhile with an armful of its own—babies of rags, of plaster, and of tin. And into my arms are thrust these treasures of the bubbling babe.

I must "tiss" them. I must warm them to my heart. I must understand the stream of baby thought and interest. Certainly—and so I do. And the baby knows that I do.

My own world is thrown to the discard. I a a 2-year-old again myself in the fancified world of baby and mother dreams.

Toddling feet, swinging arms, flying tresses of driven gold, laughter, questioning, smile trust, dimples, jeweled eyes, a mother's love in bloom. That's a little baby.

A little baby! Do I believe in God? Did a mechanic make this world? Is death in the end?

If you can not react to the tease and toddle of a baby then life can hold nothing of richness or worth for you.

A little baby is God's contact with the universe. A little baby is the love pledge from a mother's heart to the world. No wonder that a little baby is dearer to a mother than life itself.

A thread of newly woven human gold on which the aspirations of us all are always freshly tuned, and vibrated upward to the stars—a little baby!—Geo. Mathew Adams, in Dallas Journal.

Today's Poems

A MOTHER'S GIFT

Master, I lend my child to Thee,
She was Thy gift, and from her birth
She has been, and is still to me
The dearest thing I have on earth

Lord, in my youth I found no door
Leading to service for the lost,
Such as stands wide, here face before,
Else, had I counted not the cost.

Gladly would I have entered in
And every other claim denied—
To wage a ceaseless war with sin
And back to Thee its victims bring.

It was not mine, but it is hers
To hear that call, to make that choice.
This joy Thine own dear hand confers,
In this clear call we hear Thy voice.

I lend her, Lord, herself she gives,
A lifelong sacrifice sincere;
And in this spirit, while she lives
There can be no regret, no fear.
Though she is Thine, she still is mine,
Most surely mine because Thine own;
To yield her up did I decline
This joy I never would have known.

"We lose what on ourselves we spend;
As treasurer, endless, we possess
Whatever, Lord, to Thee we lend"
E'en so—how could I offer less?

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE
Rev. S. H. Erwin, Pastor

Our Bible school has been reorganized and is taking on new life under the supervision of Supt. C. T. Hayes. The committee has purchased new curtains to separate the different classes. Mrs. S. S. Erwin is the new teacher for the young ladies class. C. A. Gibson was elected teacher for the young married people's class. James Reddington, teacher of the junior boys and J. W. Wiggins, teacher for the young men's class.

The two socities—junior and senior N. Y. P. S. have been well organized with splendid leaders. Last Sunday evening they rendered excellent program. We expect a great year for them.

The pastor's theme Sunday morning will be "Christian Perfection as Taught by John Wesley." His evening subject will be "Christian Baptism, as Taught by John the Baptist and Christ." Be sure to hear these two great messages for they will be full of instruction and inspiration to holy living.

News Notes And Happenings In Abernathy During Past Week

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

ABERNATHY, Nov. 12.—The Abernathy Girls' basketball team ran true to form Friday evening when they won from the Hale Center Girls by a score of 10 to 8. The girls have been coached by Miss Edith McMath of the high school and have won all games played this year.

The Abernathy Boys basketball team lost to the Hale Center five after the Girls' game.

The games were played in the Hale Center gymnasium and was attended by a large delegation of Abernathy and Hale Center rooters, as well as both the Hale Center and Abernathy bands. C. W. Beene is director of each of the bands and had them assembled on the stage in one band, and furnished music throughout the evening.

Quite a few of Abernathy citizens have been attending the Plainview theatre this week where Ben Hur has been showing for several days Among those attending were: G. W. Johnson, L. J. Young, C. W. Beene, Garland Nystel, Buford Haynes, Elton Beene, Mrs. C. W. Beene, L. P. Shaw, Mrs. L. P. Shaw, Miss Edith McMath, Miss Dillingham, Miss Jones and Miss Sloan.

Dr. J. W. Bailey visited his friend in Lubbock Friday.

Abernathy school was closed Friday november 11th, for memorial services during the morning period from 10:30 to 12:00, when a very interesting program was rendered. The Boy Scouts were an outstanding feature of the program, and did credit to Mr. Young, their Scoutmaster, as well as themselves during their performances. The orchestra played some well selected numbers and were appreciated by all attending.

Mrs. E. B. Lindsey entertained with a bridge party at her home on H Street Thursday evening and was aided by Mrs. Troy Stambough, in entertaining. T. D. Stambough, E. B. Lindsey, W. A. Richter, and wife, Geo. Ragland and wife, Dutch Crow and wife, Ed Hardesty and wife, Lenord Harrel and wife, F. Clawson and wife, R. E. Risinger and wife, Bob McAllister and wife, Mrs. Irma Jones, and Mrs. Grady Kincaid.

Abernathy people regret the loss of one of our citizens, Dr. Prestidge, who is moving to Petersburg, Monday of this week.

Mrs. Justin Law has moved back to Abernathy to again make her home among her friends here.

The Abernathy boys band is progressing nicely with the following membership: Marshall Ramsey, Leon Ramsey, Ray Shehorn, Edgar Strawn, Victor Strawn, Hugo Richter, Elton Beene, Rex Beene, Lloyd Reagen, Garland Nystel, Phillip Sterret, Buford Haynes, Shelton Hardin, J. C. Davis.

Crop conditions in this community are above expectations and money is beginning to circulate as a consequence of the moving of cotton and other crops. Merchants report that their business is better than ever before, and are praising the Cow, Sow and Hen for keeping the table spread while other money crops are being prepared for market, thus giving the farmer more money to spend for his other necessities.

Population Grows Rapidly In Lamb

LITTLEFIELD, Nov. 12.—According to the best figures available the population of the town of Littlefield has increased approximately 400 in the past 45 days. Every residence in the town is occupied and there is a big demand for more homes. There are 1,045 pupils in attendance at the Littlefield schools. The streets are crowded and business houses working overtime. The city commission has called an election for Tuesday, Nov. 15, to vote on the question of paving the streets. A general air of prosperity prevails.

A GREATER TELEPHONE SYSTEM FOR TEXAS

Texas Telephone News

A Journal of Telephone Information Published by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company

Vol. II No. 11

Telephone Employees Fitted By Training and Experience

MEXICO

Mexico is now within sound of your voice. On September 30, long distance service was opened between the United States and Mexico, bringing another nation within reach of your telephone. Just ask for "Long Distance" and give her your call in the usual way.

A POPULAR SERVICE

During the first eight months of this year, 9,990,000 long distance calls were placed by Texas telephone subscribers. Of this number, approximately 1,998,000 were placed after 7 o'clock in the evening, showing the popularity of the reduced rate periods for station-to-station calls, which start at 7 p. m. and continue until 4:30 a. m.

YOU ARE INVITED

In Texas, more than 4,400 operators are required to handle the continuous flow of telephone calls. Why not drop in at your telephone office some afternoon and see just how your telephone calls are handled at the switchboard? You are always welcome, and the visit will be well worth while.

Average Service of Texas Telephone Employees is Four Years

The telephone business is a highly specialized industry and in a great many of its departments requires considerable technical knowledge. In most branches of telephone work this knowledge can be gained only through experience and special training. The longer the experience, generally, the more capable a telephone employee is of serving the telephone company and telephone subscribers.

In Texas the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has in its employ more than 7,100 people. The average length of service of these employees is over four years.

LONG SERVICE RECORDS

More than 900 of these employees have had more than 10 years of telephone service, about 200 have had more than 20 years.

These employees in Texas represent but a small portion of the telephone workers who make possible the telephone service you enjoy today. In the United States there are more than 425,000 men and women engaged in telephone work. Their coordinated efforts make it possible for you to reach by telephone all corners of this nation, as well as Cuba, Canada, Mexico, or Great Britain, from your home or office.

THERE ARE 585,000 TELEPHONES IN TEXAS

Thanks, Folks——

¶ For the wonderful reception you gave the largest M System in the world Saturday.

The great response to our opening invitation exceeded our fondest hopes—and we are grateful.

We will further show our appreciation in additional big stores of this type, for your convenience in shopping.

is struck me as a good plan, because we had no time to I decided to get Furey on out there and send Pete back for our luggage. I wanted to avoid complications in Jacksonville, and we were soon speeding on our way.

Furey had remained silent during all these maneuvers, although I wondered that he did not seem more discouraged or resentful. His optimism was plainly shown in his manner, even though he said not a word.

He changed, however, when we left the city limits and began to beg for freedom. He said he would make good every cent I had lost through him and his confederates.

"I'll give you $20,000 of it tonight," he cried.

For miles he kept a steady fire of pleading and promises. I told him I would certainly like to have the money, as I needed it badly, but—

"I wouldn't trust you if you were dead!" I snorted.

"You don't know me," he sighed.

Perhaps I didn't know him, even though I had spent $45,000 to get acquainted, but we would have a much better opportunity to get acquainted on the long trip back to Fort Worth.

He winced.

"Oh, my God, man! Have mercy! Let me pay you back and go free! Don't take me back to Texas, Norfleet! Oh, for the love of—"

"I know all about 'suffering humanity' and 'rush acts' and you needn't worry about me taking a 'brainstorm,' so you'd better just save your breath. You're going back to Texas!"

We neared the little flag station and I ordered the driver to stop a short distance away where I might hold Furey in the woods while Pete returned for the luggage.

A creek ran alongside the railroad, making a sharp bend away for about three hundred yards, then turning back toward the track. The road over which we came lay between the railroad and the creek. The bend left a wooded area of quite some size which was thickly covered with pines and palmetto shrubs. Concealed here, Furey and myself would not be seen from the road, and we would be safe, I believed, until Pete's return and the arrival of the train we expected to flag.

"Norfleet! Let's get down to business! I'll see that your son gets $20,000 as soon as he gets back to Jacksonville. I'll stay here with you—" that was amusing; I felt sure he would stay— "and when he comes back, you'll have that much on—on account—as we say in business."

Furey was sitting on a stump, well hidden from the view of passers-by. Pete was preparing to return to the city and I was settling myself for guard duty.

"Where are you going to get the $20,000?" I inquired.

"My friends were there in the restaurant with me," he answered.

"Was Spencer there?" I cut in.

"Yes, and several others," he replied. "Several of us were stopping at the Mason Hotel. They will be there now. Our headquarters are in Room 1000. We were just closing one of the biggest deals we ever pulled off in Florida. In another hour it would have been completed and I would have had my cut of a good sum. You damned old trail hound! If it hadn't been for you butting in I'd have had my money and been out of the rotten state instead of being here, chained to a log like an animal!" His breath was short and great beads of nervous perspiration rolled down his face.

"I'll write out an order, payable to Pete Norfleet for $20,000. Have him go back there and present it to Weintre, the treasurer of the exchange. He'll pay it over to the boy and then you can do as you please until I can raise the balance of $25,000. Or, if you prefer, I'll give you a deed to my apartment house on the corner of—and —streets, in San Francisco. It is valued at $33,500. My agent, Mrs. Harrison, will transfer it to you. It's in her name. Or, if that won't do"—he was gasping for breath and perspiring at every pore as he watched my face for a sign of compromise—"I'll deed you my half interest in a 400-acre ranch near San Luis Obispo, California."

"Who owns the other half?" I asked.

"My financial agent."

That was amusing. I'd get a great kick out of a partnership with the disheveled female of Stanford Court. I burst out laughing at the thought, and Furey must have thought I was refusing to believe that he owned the property he referred to. He burst out indignantly that this was not all he owned—that he had a great deal of valuable property. I recalled a visit I had made to the tax collector.

"No, I know that, Joe. You're pretty well heeled. Your Glendale residence isn't exactly a dump."

"Glendale!" he shouted, in surprise, his face purpling. "Damn your western soul. Who told you?"

"Now listen to me Furey. I'm going to let you write out that order for $20,000 and I'm going to let Pete take it and present it for payment. But get this straight—if you get the boy into one of your traps—if anything happens to him and he isn't back here by the time the sun goes down, you'll get a dose of hot lead! Do you understand?"

"Yes," he answered, nervously.

I gave him a pencil and some paper. He scratched out an order and signed it. I gave it to Pete who had heard the conditions and who was anxious to take the chance. He jumped into the car and told the driver to step on it.

"I'll be back before sundown, Dad," he called to me, "and bring Spencer along if I can find him."

My heart sank as I saw the car disappear down the road. I couldn't realize that the little son of such a short time ago was now a man, fully grown, and able to take care of himself. I censured myself for letting him go, then was reassured by the thought that Furey was pretty well scared and that the boy would be safe.

After about half an hour of silence, Furey turned to me and spoke:

"Well, you old trail hound, I never expected to see you out here. How did you get here? I thought we left you in Fort Worth, cleaned to your last dime."

"I was a trifle bent," I admitted, "but I lacked a lot of being absolutely broke I could stand another cleaning like you gave me." I didn't want him to know how nearly he came to ruining me completely. It would give him too much confidence that he could bargain and browbeat me. I must make it seem that I had all the money I would ever need to run him and his gang to earth and scrap them through all the courts of the land.

"I thought we had you strapped. If we had known you had more money, we'd have tried to sting you harder. I supposed you couldn't raise another hundred dollars."

"Am I the first victim who ever followed you? What did you expect me to do?"

"Oh, either get sick over the loss of your money and die off in a year or so or go nuts grieving and take a shot at yourself. Either way would have saved me further bother with you."

I chuckled. Perhaps, if others had done that way, I could find some consolation in the fact that I hadn't admitted defeat, even though I was badly whipped. Since I first met Mr. Furey, I had grown so accustomed to being broke that there was no danger that I would ever take a shot at myself.

Furey fell to muttering aloud to himself:

"I told Goldie"—I believe they called Gerber "Goldie"— "this old man would be our Waterloo. I told him I had enough when we got the first $20,000. A fool that don't know when he's broke is bound to be dangerous."

"What's the matter, Furey?" I broke into his reverie.

He shot me a quick glance, a menacing gleam in his eyes.

A New Real Estate Firm

We have opened an office here, and are engaged in boosting Lubbock and the surrounding country, and in handling all kinds of farm, ranch and city property. If you want to buy, sell or trade real estate, we are at your service. We were in business in East Texas for a number of years and have numerous prospects from that section. Come up to see us and tell us about the farm you want to sell, or about the kind you want to buy. We would appreciate a visit from you.

OFFICERS LOCAL UNIT FARM BUREAU WILL BE ELECTED SECOND SATURDAY OF DECEMBER, MEETING SO RULES

Officers of the local unit of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association to serve during the year 1928 will be elected the second Saturday in December, according to results of a meeting of the local unit held in the county court room in the court house yesterday afternoon.

A committee composed of L. O. Burford, S. S. Rush, James Burroughs, R. E. Overstreet, and L. C. Boyd, was appointed as nominating committee to bring in recommendations at the December meeting.

The chief address on the program of the meeting yesterday was made by Mrs. F. F. Revier of Carlisle, who lase summer was one of a party which made a tour of the Western states in a study of farming conditions, particularly with reference to marketing.

Mrs. Reviere stressed orderly marketing as the greatest need for the farmers of Texas. She explained the methods of marketing used in California as an example of orderly marketing, and showed how the association could model its principles after it.

Mrs. Reviere contrasted the ideas of marketing in California and in Texas, and showed the advantage of the California system.

R. E. Overstreet, state director of the association, made a report of the meeting held in Dallas recently in the interests of organized farm effort.

After these talks a general discussion was held.

Douglas Pounds, president of the local unit, presided at the meeting.

HARROLD SCHOOL CHIEF RESIGNS

FAILURE IN HEALTH CAUSES THE RESIGNATION OF F. W. SHEPPARD AT SCHOOL

Failure in health has caused the resignation of F. W. Sheppard as superintendent of the county school at Harrold, about twelve miles north of Shallowater, according to a message received by W. M. Pevehouse, county superintendent.

Mr. Pevehouse is endeavoring to fill Mr. Sheppard's place by Monday, as the trustees of the school had expected to open it up again at this time after a two week's suspension, due to the fact that children had been called from the schoolroom to the cotton fields.

Mr. Pevehouse wants a mature young married man, at least 28 or 30 years of age, for the position. The Harrold school is a ten grade, five-teacher, independent district school. Anyone wishing to apply for the place can do so by getting in touch with Mr. Pevehouse.

GAS COMPANY BUILDING OPENS FORMALLY TUESDAY

RIES OF DEMONSTRATIONS ARE TO BE A FEATURE; LADIES URGED TO BE ON HAND TO SEE NEW FUEL COOKING

With the formal opening of the office building of the West as Gas company, which is announced for November 15th, a series of demonstrations and talks on efficient and economical use of ral gas will be inaugurated.

ese demonstrations will be in rge of Mrs. Mina K. Graves, ector of the Home Service Dertment of the company. This is a cooking school, but an inctive and interesting talk on efficient use of gas appliances the appliance dealers of Lub have been invited to partie in the display of appliances.

Wide Range To Be Shown

e demonstrations are of a char- not only showing a wide var- of ranges and heaters, but have ense value to those who attend he information they receive as he efficient and economical use gas.

While a general invitation is exded to all interested, a very cial one is given the ladies and high school pupils.

These demonstrations are scheduled for 2:30 each afternoon and those attending are invited to ask any questions they desire as to the use and adjustment of gas heating appliances.

LONDON PAPER OF 1859 TELLS OF ELECTION MUDDLE AND GAS RATES FIGHT

(By Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, Nov. 12.—Election frauds, fight on gas rates and income taxes were just as popular back in 1859 as they are today, as is revealed in a newspaper which Mrs. James A. Ault of Fort Worth recently uncovered among her possessions.

"Loyds Weekly Newspaper," is the name of the 12 page paper dated London, Sunday, October 16, 1859. Its leading story is headed "The Doom of the Lash," and in a two column article use of the "cat" in the British army and navy is argued, both sides being given.

Under the caption "Election Corruption" is written, "Those two sinks of corruption, Gloucester and Wakefield, have been sadly raked over during the past week, and the odor which has been emitted smells most rankly."

Liquor Cost is High

The story reveals that votes sold for from five to seven pounds. It accuses one candidate for office of spending 1,000 pounds for liquor.

Another article charges excessive gas rates are being charged and outlined a campaign for a bill to control gas prices. The article shows that private consumers paid from four to five shillings a thousand feet and municipalities were charged 25 per cent less.

Income tax discussion was as important in the news then as today, as shown by a story running more than two columns in length. Other stories dealt with church and social activities and crime news. Thefts of horses and carriages were reported in about the same space auto thefts are reported today.

Within a year now the American people will have to make their quadrennial choice of the lesser of two evils.

OFFICE OF WEST TEXAS GAS FIRM A MODERN STRUCTURE; IT ADDS TO THE BUSINESS SECTION'S NORTH PORTION

The office building of the West Texas Gas company is an attractive addition to the business section of Lubbock, located at 914 Avenue J. Substantially built of tile, brick and stucco with a tar and gravel roof, and artistically finished inside and out, the building combines strength and serviceability with beauty of design. It is a onestory building 30 by 50 feet in dimensions.

Two large plate glass windows are at the front of the building, one on each side of a recessed entrance. Green and white glazed tile has been set in the space below each window. A concrete walk leads to the entrance and on each side of this grass and flowers will be planted.

Building Well Lighted

Entering the building, one is immediately impressed with the flood of light that is afforded by numerous large windows. In addition to the plate glass front windows there are four large windows on the south side and three on the north. A large window and a glass door in the rear bring in additional light. All have Venetian blinds.

Light colored tints on the walls and ceiling brighten the room even more. The ceiling is finished in ivory, the upper walls in light tan and the lower in reddish brown. A hardwood floor is throughout the building.

Includes Fireplace

One of the most attractive features of the interior is the decorated stone mantel and hearthstone surrounding a fireplace on the south side of the building.

The front fifteen feet is separated from the rest by a railing and will be used for a reception room. The fireplace is included in this section. Back of the railing is the main office, well lighted and commodious. In the rear are laboratories, a built-in vault and a space for storage.

Now a resident of Lubbock, is Herbert S. Brown, agent for the company. Mr. Brown is a man of wide experience, having grown up in that section of Pennsylvania, where natural gas has so long been in use, that no other fuel is greatly used for house heating. He is assisted in the office by Mrs. T. J. Sutherland as cashier.

In charge at the warehouse, with general charge of gas connections, extensions and all such work is Harry Brown, widely experienced in his line. "Barney" Hughes, connected with the city office, is available under Mr. Brown, agent, for inspection or survey of any special problems relating to heating requirements of industries or large buildings or institutions.

CLOSE INSPECTION

For the 19,000 inspections made on Studebaker cars during their manufacture, more than 700 inspectors are required.

SCHOOLS USE BUSES

There are 986 schools in New England using the motor bus for the transportation of children to and from their homes.

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 12.—Members of the livestock judging team of the A. and M. college of Texas, which will compete in the International Livestock exposition at Chicago November 26 to December 3, have left the college enroute to the exposition. A. and M. teams have won the bronze bull trophy in this contest twice and should it be won again this year it will become the permanent possession of the college. Other states that have won the trophy twice are Indiana, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Six members of this year's judging team are: W. S. Amend, Ideal; T. G. Greenwade, Whitney; R. R. Peoples, Tehuacana; H. E. Howard, Devine; N. G. Ryall, Jasper; J. M. Bired, Dublin. All are seniors in the animal husbandry course. They were accompanied by their coach, A. K. Mackey of the animal husbandry department.

Enroute to Chicago the team will compete at the American Royal, Kansas City, and will visit Iowa State college, Ames, Ia.; Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., and the University of Illinois at Urbana, Ill.

Funds for defraying expenses of the trip were raised by the rodeo and pageant given, in accordance with annual custom, for that purpose by the Saddle and Sirloin club of the college November 4.

MODERN AUTO IS USED FOR HAREM

KING OF ARABIA CLOSES UP HIS "GIRLS" IN WINDOWLESS TRUCK ON JAUNTS

(By Associated Press)

MECCA, Arabia, Nov. 12.—Modern automobiles have replaced camels for carrying the harem of the king of Arabia on his long jaunts from Mecca to Medina and across the Persian gulf.

The king, who is also sultan of Najd and king of the Hedjaz, is very strict about his 24 wives. So the new harem cars of the royal motor caravan are like glorified police patrol cars. No man is allowed even to look at the royal wives, and the royal wives are not encouraged to look upon any man other than their royal master.

Have No Windows

The two harem cars have no windows. Shuttered slots on each side and in the rear admit air. There are no seats, only arm rests, for the 24 queens. They squat on the floor, six wives on a side, in the two cars.

A heavy carpet and some very excellent springs on the chassis take up most of the jolt of traveling, sometimes as far as 1,100 miles at a single trip. At the back of each car is space for one wife at a time to stand up and stretch in case she becomes cramped in her sitting position.

Drinking Water

Each car is equipped with a tank of drinking water and the sultanas spend their time gossiping in the semi-darkness about whatever it is that harem wives talk about. Electric fans help keep the hot air of the desert moving in the cars.

Strong locks on the back doors deny the regal consorts the privilege of getting out and walking home if they become dissatisfied.

Ahead and behind the harem cars two open automobiles carry 50 swarthy guards whose flapping white robes conceal all sorts of wicked looking knives and pistols. Bringing up the rear of the queer caravan are four luxurious cars for the personal use of the king and his suite. A steel flagstaff on each car carries the royal pennant. Outriders in white robes man the sides of each car when the procession is passing through a city. Oil lamps are in the shiek's personal car for use if the electric lights go out.

Each car is of polished aluminum, because paint work wouldn't last a week against the blowing sands of the desert.

Near Scandal Caused

A near scandal was caused when it was discovered that the mascots on each radiator were winged figures of Mercury, but these offending objects were removed before they were seen by any of the royal wives.

The king had to dig down in the folds of his flowing robes for some $60,000 to pay for the eight cars in the caravan, but he thinks it's worth it. Camels are too slow.

CHANGES TRAFFIC PLAN

Austria has adopted the right hand system of traffic regulation. It is estimated that the cost of changing traffic laws from left to right will be about $2,000,000, and it is expected that the system will be fully installed by 1930.

Gas Company Head Pleased With City
He Sees Wonderful Future On Plains

R. F. HINCHEY

BY R. F. HINCHEY
V.-President and General Manager
West Texas Gas Company

There affords me a very genuine pleasure, in the opportunity given by the Avalanche-Journal, to place before its readers, something of what the West Texas Gas company has brought to this city and county, where it has made available for your homes and industries, the great fuel convenience—natural gas.

Our company has faith, that this city of Lubbock is designed for a great growth in industry and population and we hope to be a contributing factor to it, and to share in it with you.

Now, we have blazed a new trail across more than two hundred miles of the great staked plains. This trail is marked, not with the sun-bleached skull of the buffalo, but with a great artery of commerce, that brings convenience and comfort to your homes and a fuel that will mean a broadening vision and expansion to your industrial development.

The present readily suggested itself as a fitting time to tell you something of what this project of the West Texas Gas company is, in scope and the part of Lubbock in it and what we aim to do.

Line Is 170 Miles Long

Your gas comes to you through more than 170 miles of line, from the field north of Amarillo. This line traverses the counties of Potter, Randall, Swisher, Hale, Floyd, Crosby and Lubbock, serving the centers of population in those counties, as well as the farmers and ranch owners along the route.

You will recall, that when we received a franchise from your city for natural gas service, we agreed to be ready to serve you on December 1. We have abundantly kept the faith we pledged.

Actual construction on this work was commenced on June 22 and completed in 67 working days.

Credits Field Men

The engineering work under the supervision of Frank McCarthy, anticipated every want, of the construction crews under the superintendency of J. P. McCloskey, and I like to acknowledge the credit that is due these men for the record making achievement of this work. More than fifteen solid train loads of pipe from the great iron and steel mills of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Youngstown, Ohio, entered into the construction of this line.

This line was not only laid in record time, but the workmanship was of the best, as proved by the severe tests applied.

Our company, built, owns and operates one hundred and eighty-six miles of telephone and telegraph line, paralleling the pipeline from Deal to Lubbock and known as a Simplex circuit. The Simplex circuit is a metallic line (two wires). Telegraph and telephone conversations may be worked over this line at the same time. The line is well balanced and transposed. A whisper in the transmitter at Deal may be heard over the wires at Lubbock very distinctly.

Have Fool-Proof Phones

We have "fool proof" mine phones at a distance of every six miles along the line, and all poles are numbered. In case of a break in the pipeline, the line-walker gets the number of the pole nearest the break and calls in to nearest office. The operator immediately gets the "repair gang", and in this way any feasible break is repaired in a very short time. Division linesmen maintain this line and are subject to call twenty-four hours a day.

Talks of Future

But, you now have the gas, or at least some of you have, and we hope eventually all of you will be patrons of our company. I want to say something to you of the future. We have very definite ideas of what constitutes service to you, the instruction to the employees are explicit; they understand them and we aim to merit your confidence and good-will by the character of service we render to you. The convenience of natural gas will be your first impression, but as time goes on, what now seem something of a luxury, will be a necessary part of your daily lives, and every employee of this company is pledged to at all times insure you, as far as it is humanly possible to do so, an efficient and economical service. We want you to use our service and we especially want that you should get full value for every cubic foot of gas that you burn, and all that years of experience has brought to us in knowledge, as to the proper use of gas, we now through our inspection department unreservedly place at your service.

To the industries and business enterprises of this community, let me say that the faith of our company, in the future of Lubbock, is given concrete expression in an investment in this county, well in excess of a million dollars. We envisage for you, growth and prosperity, we expect to aid you in this development by our service, and we hope as the years pass on to share with you the rewards that the great South Plains country has in store, for the worker with vision, for the farmer with industry, for the youth with thrift and for the investor with ideals of service.

NEW GAS TAX

New Jersey gas dealers face a $1,000 fine if they do not take out their $2 gas certificate by January 1. This gas license has only recently been made a law in the state.

38,000,000 BY 1940

There will be 38,000,000 motor cars in the United States by 1940, according to a prediction by George Broser of the Automotive Equipment association of Chicago.

ROADS INCREASE

Compared with 153,530 miles of surfaced highways in the United States in 1904, there are more than 521,915 miles of this type road at present.

AUTO BUSINESS SECOND

Motor transportation ranks as the second important business in Springfield, the capital of Illinois. It is exceeded only by food supplies.

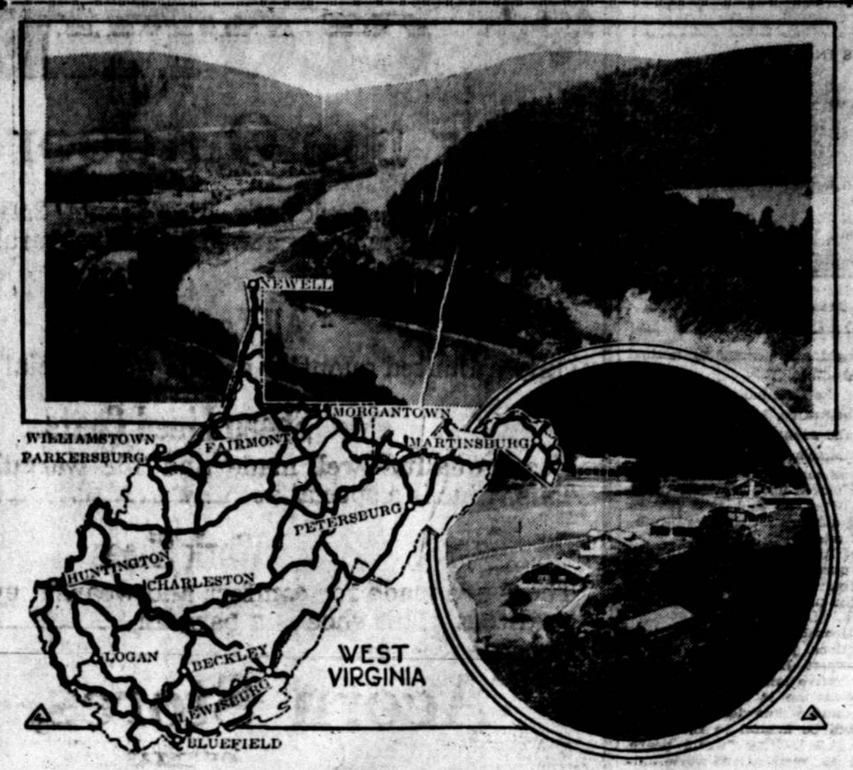
West Virginia Prepares Good Highways To Its Shrine

Wonderful Scenery Of The Mountain State Will Be Shown



CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 12—West Virginia, the Panhandle state, is so full of historic and scenic spots that many movements are on hand to preserve these to the state and to the thousands of motorists expected there.

For West Virginia hopes to become one of the country's greatest motoring meccas. It offers its hills and valleys of a beauty few other states can surpass. It recalls the historic events that took place there. It is preserving the remains of pioneer days for the education and entertainment of future generations.

In order to make all these attractions accessible to motoring visitors the state is speeding up its road building program and already has produced some of the finest roads in the country. Wide well-paved highways take the mountain sides in easy grades, so that any car can cover the state without trouble.

The Midland Trail, U. S. 60, crosses the state from Huntington, through Charleston to White Sulphur Springs, connecting with U. S. 21 at Parkersburg and Charleston, U. S. 19, at Morgantown, and U. S. 11 over the Virginia border. This and the Huntington-Bluefield road cross not only historic and natural sights for which West Virginia is noted, but take the motorist through the heart of a billion dollar coal district.

National Routes Enter

In the eastern panhandle, the Lee highway, the Northwestern turnpike and the National pike bring the tourist army from the north and scatter it through districts that are rich in historic lore. The colonial atmosphere pervades the air while, from a utilitarian viewpoint, there are vast peach and apple orchards, great grain fields and some of the greatest limestone quarries in the country to intrigue the newcomer.

At Harpers Ferry, where the Potomac and Shenandoah unite, is the lowest spot in the state, and one of the loveliest. Here John Brown and his fellow abolitionists made their ill-fated effort to arm and free the slaves.

The Northwestern turnpike, U. S. 50, from Parkersburg to Winchester, is typical of the early roads that followed the tracks of white trapper and pioneer hunter or the trail of Indian and buffalo. This road appeals to the traveler today as the best route from Washington to Cincinnati and St. Louis because of its easy grades and a saving of 75 miles in distance.

Throughout the state efforts are being made to preserve the historic and scenic spots for the future. A commission is to report on the needs of the battle field at Philippi where the first land battle of the Civil war was fought. Another group wants to preserve the site of the home of Nancy Hanks in Mineral county.

Other organizations want to locate the site of Daniel Boone's cabin in Kanawha county and to preserve Ashby's fort in Mineral county, one of the few remaining log block houses of pioneer days.

Monuments have been placed throughout the state in memory of the men who did great things for West Virginia as well as the rest of the country. Besides these historic shrines, a number of parks and forest areas are being urged for state use, and camps for motorists are being dedicated.

Altogether, therefore, West Virginia offers a splendid attraction to tourists passing through the east.

REFINEMENTS IN AUTO EXERT BIG INFLUENCE ON USED CAR AS TRADE IN THIS DIVISION SHOWS INCREASE

By A. H. SARVIS
Assistant General Sales Manager
Buick Motor Company

The startling refinements which our motor cars have undergone in the last few years have exerted upon the used car an influence quite as profound as that which the new cars themselves reflect. We need only glance at the proportions which the user car business has assumed, to realize that the used car of today must be an entirely different quality from the commodity which went under that name a comparatively short time ago.

Used Car Tendency

There are several reasons for the public's growing tendency to buy used cars with confidence. The ultimate reason, of course, is that such confidence is being justified to a greater and greater degree with each passing year, by the performance of used cars themselves. Every possible agency is co-operating to bring this about—to surround the purchase of a used car with the same assurance of owner satisfaction as goes with a new car.

The fact that the motor car leaving the factory today is a vastly better product than any of its predecessors is the greatest single factor in the rising desirability of the used car. The industry's constant effort to build better is steadily increasing the amount of dependable transportation delivered with each new car. Consequently, there is a greater and greater reserve of service left when the original owner yields to the lure of a new machine. Improved design and better materials and workmanship play their parts in bringing this condition about, and so does the interesting process which might be termed the evolution of the car user.

Not Fully Educated

The world is not yet fully educated to the use of the motor car. We know much more about maintaining, operating and dodging vehicles than we did 25 years ago, but fifty years hence we shall know far more about these things than we do now. Usage will implant them in the blood. And even the development which the car user has undergone to date is contributing, not only to our safety, but to the amount of service our motor cars yield.

The statement is easily proved. So rapid has been the motor car's conquest of the country that most of today's owners are driving their third, fifth, or even tenth car. They are deriving greater satisfaction from it than from their first for two reasons: because it was a better car to begin with, and because they know more about its care than they did about the care of their first. They have learned to give it the attention which will insure freedom from battery failure, lubrication trouble, or undue tire wear. And the car which they eventually pass along to its second user has had the benefit of their extended knowledge. It is almost certain to give better service than the used car of ten years ago, when the percentage of "first owners" was far higher.

It would probably prove surprising if every car on the street were to display a placard stating whether it was in the hands of its original, or a subsequent owner. That the proportion of "new" cars is comparatively small may be gathered from the fact that there are some 22,000,000 cars licensed in the country today, while the yearly production of new cars is only about 4,000,000. Such a comparison makes it obvious that the used car business has attained vast proportions—proportions, in fact, which would be inconveivable, were not the used car of today a thoroughly proven investment in transportation.

IMMEDIATE REPEAL OF GOVERNMENT LEVY ON AUTOMOBILES SOUGHT THRU NATIONAL AUTO BODY BEFORE BOARD

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 12—Characteristizing the attitude of the Treasury Department on the Federal Automobile Excise Tax as "ill-conceived, wholly unjust and savoring of an indefensible brand of opportunism", representatives of the American Automobile Association appeared before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives and urged immediate repeal of the government levy on automobiles.

Henry Makes Statement

The principal statement on behalf of the car owners was made by Thos. P. Henry, of Detroit, president of the A. A. A., appearing in the role of spokesman for the 943 motor clubs with a membership of 1,000,000 car owners, constituting the national motoring federation.

At the outset of his presentation, Mr. Henry undertook to refute the arguments advanced by the Treasury Department as having no bearing whatever on the equities of the case of the car owners in their demand for repeal.

He ridiculed the idea that the automobile is a semi-luxury and pointedly asked why it was that the Treasury had selected this "semi-luxury of widespread use" together with pistols for a peacetime tax when the similar war tax on such articles as perfumes, cosmetics and scores of other such commodities had long ago been repealed.

Link Up With Highways

He described as "wholly untenable" the attempt to link up the automobile tax with Federal Aid for highway, pointing out that this tax had already yielded to the government a total revenue of more than $1,068,000,000.

The attempt to justify a tax on passenger automobiles because they are said to compete with railroads, Mr. Henry declared, is "nothing short of amazing," as coming from a presumably disinterested Federal official.

He stressed the fact that the burden of automobile taxes had increased at a greater rate than any other form of taxation and that the only hope of the car owners for relief at the moment lies in the repeal of the emergency war tax levied by the Federal government.

An equally vigorous plea for the repeal of the Federal tax on buses was presented to the committee by S. A. Markel of Richmond, Va., chairman of the Legislative committee of the Motor Bus Division of the A. A. A., the national organization of the bus operators of the country.

Common Carriers

Mr. Markel pointedly asked the committee if it is the Treasury's view that an industry consisting of 70,000 individual units, operating as common carriers, carrying more than 2,250,000,000 passengers a year over 275,000 miles of routes connecting almost every town and hamlet in America is a "semi-luxury."

The Federal tax, he declared, adds measurably to the already heavy tax burdens of the bus operators, who are now paying at the rate of $700 per year on each bus earning an average gross revenue of $7,500, all of which is reflected in higher fares to the public and in the retarding of America's fastest growing industry.

Representatives of the car owners from several states with a large motor vehicle registration made a brief presentation to the committee, endorsing unequivocably the case for repeal outlined by the president of the A. A. A. Among these were Herbert A. Meldrum of Buffalo, N. Y., president of the New York State Automobile association; A. E. Mittendorf of Cincinnati, Ohio, president of the Ohio State Automobile association, and Charles M. Hayes, of Chicago, Ill., president of the Chicago Motor club.

Raps Treasury Plea

Referring to the contention of the Treasury that the automobile should be taxed because the railroads pay corporation income taxes, Mr. Henry advanced the counter argument that in all probability the automotive and related industries are today paying as heavy taxes to the Federal government through the corporation and income levies as are the railroads.

"In my opinion," he said, "the Treasury department has stepped beyond the bounds of common sense and judicious reasoning in this matter. It should leave to the railcompanies the privilege of firing the first gun in a retaliatory war against the automobile. If they want Federal intervention, let them ask for it. It ill befits the Treasury however, in attempt to revise moth-eaten, discarded theories of railhighway competition as an excuse for retaining a hang-over war tax on automobile owners."

How's She Hittin'? Hints On Car Care

Keeping the moving parts of the car well oiled and greased is as important in summer as in winter. But there's still a difference between summer and winter lubrication, because of the weather conditions.

Winter demands use of a lighter oil in the transmission, lest it become a hindrance rather than a help to smooth operation of the gears.

Cold weather also demands more careful attention to lubrication of all parts that move against each other, for lack of lubrication might cause the parts to freeze or bind and make further riding difficult.

This is best illustrated in treatment of the spring bolts, where grease cups are paced for a definite purpose.

Rather than grease, a heavy oil should be used to keep these joints well lubricated. In fact, they should be treated with a dab of oil at about every 250 miles, to be sure of their easy operation.

Otherwise there's danger of their freezing, and if they freeze the bolts are hammered out with difficulty. If they are neglected even in a freezing state, not only will the riding be uncomfortable, but a broken spring may result.

In the case of the transmission, a lighter oil than that used in the summer should be installed for the winter. The reason is that a cold spell might harden a heavy oil so that the gears would merely cut a path through it and continue running without getting any benefit from the lubricant.

The lighter oil would keep flowing through the gear teeth to assure easy running.

Besides, use of lighter oil permits easier starting in cold weather. The battery has less resistance to contend with and so can turn over the engine more easily.

Of course, the crankcase should be drained every 1000 miles or so. But for winter, it should also be cleaned out by running it in a quart of thin oil. Kerosene should not be used, for it is difficult to drain it out completely and the remainder will cut the lubricating oil and render it less useful.

The importance of lubrication at all times is emphasized by no less an oil authority than Thomas A. Boyd, of the General Motors Research Laboratories.

"The surface covered by an automobile is equivalent only to about one-fourth the area of metal that the moving parts of the engine and driving mechanism slide over while tracks are being made," he says.

"Unless the rubbing parts of its bearing surfaces are supplied with some kind of smoothener, the best machine in the world will not run more than a short time."

Greater difficulties from winter driving make it all the more urgent that all these moving parts be kept well oiled.

"Average American Doesn't Realize Where World Is Going Politically" Says Hindu Visitor, Syud Hossain

The average man does not know where the world is going politically, culturally or economically, and yet the United States is today taking the initiative in world affairs and promises to be the center of civilization tomorrow.

This is the opinion of Syud Hossain, of Bombay, India, who is known as the Orient's most brilliant young man and whose studies of international problems has given him an extraordinarily comprehensive understanding of world affairs. A magazine which he publishes in New York, "The New Orient", deals with the problems of the world in more than a limited way employed by many writers and seeks to give to its readers an extensive knowledge of the trend of world affairs.

People in this nation have more opportunity for learning than do those of any other nation, he said, and children, particularly, have the greatest chance for an education. Yet, chiefly because the United States has always been isolated and this large part in international relations is a new thing, men and women of the nation do not take a pertinent interest in the affairs of other nations, he thinks.

Mr. Hossain came here from the Dallas forum to lecture at the Tech college auditorium on "Eastern and Western Ideals" Wednesday evening under the auspices of a number of clubs in the city.

I: Former Newspaperman

A Hindu by birth, he is a former newspaper man of India. He came to the United States in 1921 to attend the Washington conference for limitation of armaments as press agent for India. He began his public career in the British secret service, later going into journalism. In 1920 he was one of the three special delegates elected, with the consent of the Viceroy of India, by the people of India, to present the Indian case at the Near East peace settlement. When this mission was completed, he remained in Europe to follow the development of the international situation.

It was not in a deprecatory manner that Mr Hossain referred to the people of this nation as neglecting to make use of their opportunities. It takes a while for anything new to be assimilated in a nation, he thinks, and as Americans become accustomed to their role in world affairs that followed the World War, they will regard international questions with more interest, he said.

Discusses Ideals

As people learn more of the bigger problems of the times they become less dogmatic and realize that all the world is akin, according to this student of affairs, whose theme of study is often a comparison of ideals and ideas of the East and West, and who hears opinions of the people as he travels through the country each season lecturing and conducting forums.

The center of world affairs is moving to the Pacific ocean as it has been on the Atlantic in the past, he said, thus bringing the Orient and the United States closer in thought and demanding mutual understanding.

All of the East has a deep spiritual intengration, he said, and people of the countries in that section lay emphasis always on spiritual things as contrasted with the stress that is placed upon material things in the West, he said, thus making it more difficult for the two peoples to understand one another.

East After Intangible Things

The quest in the East is for the intangible values of life and in the West the pursuit is of the tangible, he says.

Mr. Hossain's whole interest is in international problems, of which he is an expert. He expects to return to his native land some time, but at present he is remaining here disseminating knowledge that he feels will be helpful to the entire world, and inviting "world peace, world enlightenment and world unity in inclusive terms."

He's for the Ladies

Asked about his opinion of the status of women in the United States as compared with their standing in the Orient, he said that he favored the emancipation of womanhood.

At present women may not always know just how to use their new freedom and powers to the best of advantage since they have no traditions upon which to base their actions, but their abilities are equal to those of men and their finer perceptions and judgments should give to them unlimited powers, he said.

"Undoubtedly, all women in the world will eventually have privileges equal to those of men," he stated. "But that is a thing of the far distant future." Women in India, China, Persia, or even in England, have no conception of the freedom of the American woman, he said.

You would be astonished to know how many owners of two or more cars leave their larger cars at home, to drive the Essex; for they sacrifice no comfort or performance their larger cars can give, and they enjoy definite advantages in driving ease and handling. And these same advantages appeal to every owner, no matter what his previous car experience. Essex ownership is a progressive discovery of satisfactions and enjoyments that grow with possession and of which performance is but an item.

Greetings from:

A House Of Service

To the People of Lubbock:

We take a very sincere pleasure inviting you to the formal opening of our new office building, 914 Avenue J, Tuesday next, November 15.

This office of our company, will be to the people of Lubbock, the central point of our service to you, where you will come to transact your business with our agent.

We want it to be for you all, just exactly what we have named it, "A House of Service," where at all times your particular problems, as affecting our service to you will receive unfailing consideration and courteous treatment.

This "House of Service," is a concrete expression of our faith in the future of Lubbock and the South Plains country.

We have a great investment here in capital, and with the actual opening of our new office building, we become in an intimate sense, a fellow citizen to you all.

We know we have brought to you a service, that has meant growth, prosperity and comfort to many American cities, and it is our belief and hearty hope, that it will do the same for you, and the city of Lubbock.

Beginning, Tuesday next, Daily Gas demonstrations at our office, Mrs. Mina K. Graves, home service director in charge.

YEAR OF PLENTY IN 1928 SEEN BY NASH HEAD WITH PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR GENERAL BUSINESS TO IMPROVE

Indications of a "year of plenty" or 1928 are seen by W. H. Alford, ice president and comptroller of he Nash Motors company, known hroughout the financial and indus- rial world for keen business in- ight and sound conservativatism. fr. Alford's optimistic view of gen- ral business conditions during the oming year was given by him onday night at a talk in Kenosha o a group of dealers representing he Nash Motors company in New ork state and lower New England.

Expects Better Year

"The year 1927 is rapidly drawing o a close and manufacturers and usiness men generally are giving hought to the business outlook for 928," said Mr. Alford. "In my udgment there is every indication hat general business should be as ood or better in 1928 than in 1927. base this conclusion on the gen- ral improved condition of our reat agricultural population.

"Except for small areas, average rops of corn and wheat have been aised and are bringing good prices. attle and hogs are in good condi- ion and are bringing higher prices han they have for several years ast.

"This should mean added stim- ulus next year to the metropolitan arkets and industry in general for, fter all, the farmer is the very ackbone of our national business abric. When the farmer has his oney his local merchants benefit. hey in turn benefit the jobber or holesaler, the cycle then reaching he manufacturer in the industrial enters. Thus a good wheat crop in he northwest is soon beneficially elt in Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. ouis and other industrial centers, nd the effects of a good cotton rop, in like manner, serve as a stimulus to business throughout the orth.

"The southern farmer, where cot- on is the principal money crop, vill have at least $500,000,000 more or his 1927 crop than he received or his 1926 crop although some ,000,000 bales less will be gathered. .e is receiving from 8c to 10c a pound more for the crop this year han he received for it last year or, on the basis of a 500 pound bale, rom $40 to $50 more. On a price asis of 10c a pound, the 16,000,000 ale crop last year brought him $800,000,000 and the 13,000,000 bale rop this year at 20c a pound will bring $1,300,000,000, or an increase of $500,000,000 for this year's crop ver last year's crop.

Not Whole Story

"This, however, does not tell the whole story of the improvement in he condition of the cotton farmer, or the cost of gathering and gin- ning is a big item in the cost of raising cotton.

"It takes 1,500 pounds of seed otton to produce a 500 pound bale of lint cotton. On an average, it osts about $1.50 a hundred pounds of seed cotton to gather or pick or $22.50 a bale, and about $3.50 a bale for ginning and bagging and ties, or a total of $26 for a 500 pound bale. When lint cotton was selling for 10c a pound, or $50 a bale, the farmer had $24 left out of each bale to cover the land rental, seed, plant- ing, fertilizer and cultivation, or $384,000,000 for the 16,000,000 bale crop. At the present price of 20c a pound for lint cotton, a 500 pound bale brings $100, but the cost of ginning remains at $25 and leaves the farmer $75 a bale to cover the same items of producing and, on a 13,000,000 bale crop this amounts to $962,000,000 or $578,00,000 more than the larger crop of last year.

Cotton Seed Higher

"It must also be remembered that out of the 1,500 pounds of seed cot- ton, there remain approximately 1,- 000 pounds of cotton seed which, due to the smaller crop alone, is bringing a higher price, but on ac- count of the high price of corn, and the demand for cotton seed by-pro- ducts for feeding purposes, cotton seed should bring still higher pri- ces and, due to the high price of lard, which is governed by the price of hogs, cotton seed oil is more in demand and will bring higher pri- ces. All of these things bring add- ed prosperity to the southern far- mer.

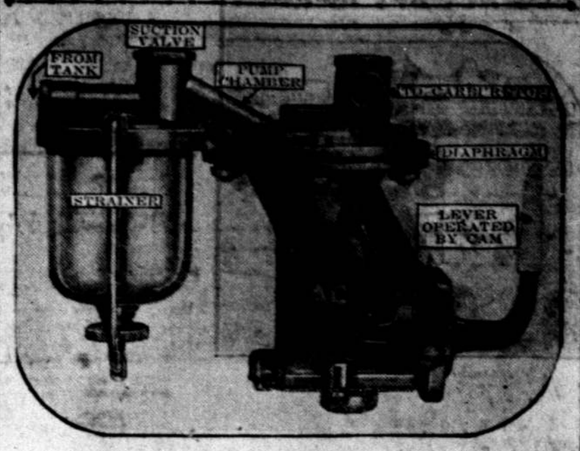
"It must also be remembered that there was some curtailment in acre- age planted to cotton and that this land was planted to feed crops, which reduces the amount usually spent by the southern farmer for feed stuffs.

"This improvement in the condi- tion of the cotton farmer will give greater purchasing power to the South and will greatly stimulate business in that section and must inevitably be felt throughout the entire country.

"Recent reported earnings of in- dustrial concerns have shown some falling off in profits, but it is too early for prosperity of our agri- cultural population to find its way into channels of trade and this tem- porary lull in business must not be confused with the outlook for 1928."

We can't look for much in the way of prison reform until we start sending a better class of people there.

Fuel Pump Is Coming Into Its Sphere, Will Replace Vacuum Tank, Is Belief



This photo shows the simple construction of the fuel pump

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

The vacuum tank system of feeding fuel to the engine will be replaced, say fuel engineers, with the more direct pump in a very few years.

One moderate priced automobile is being produced with this type of fuel feed, after having tried it out for the last two years. And at least two other cars are expected soon to follow its example.

Thus the vacuum tank, considered a marvelous improvement over the gravity feed system, gives way to a newer system now said to be proportionately superior.

A. M. Babitch, research engineer of the AC Spark Plug Co. which is manufacturing the new type of fuel feed system, reminds us that the vacuum tank was merely a compro- mise between the inferior gravity tank and the superior but costly direct fuel pump, which has been in use on the high-priced car for many years.

He enumerates its disadvantages. "It is extremely hard to prime when the suction of the engine, as it is turned over with the starter, is low," Babitch begins.

"If its valves are out of order, or the float punctured, there is danger of sucking raw gas into the engine.

"It is most efficient when least gas is used and often doesn't sup- ply enough gas when most needed. It retards progress in engine and manifold developments, since low vacuum manifolds or super-charg- ed engines are impossible with vacuum tank feed."

And so on.

More Direct Feed

So the pump is devised to work from a cam in unison with the en- gine and pump gas through a strainer into the carburetor in pro- portion to the amount required. Thus when the engine speeds up, the pump speeds up with it, and when the carburetor bowl happens to be filled the action of the pump is damped.

This is done by means of a suc- tion diaphram which works up and down through a linkage ar- rangement with the cam and sucks enough gas from the tank as is needed in the carburetor.

"The work done by the pump," Babitch explains, "is limited and is strictly in proportion with the requirements of the engine. That is, at no time can the pump de- liver any more fuel than the en- gine can consume."

The pump itself is of a simple design and of sturdy construction, which assures its operation even beyond the life of the car itself.

Sidelights On The Conference

BY HAMILTON WRIGHT
(Special Correspondent)

BIG SPRING, Nov. 12—Rev. Aubrey Ashley, pastor at Lorenzo, will probably move to Abilene in the near future and engage in evangelistic work over the North- west Texas conference. He has ask- ed for such relations. Ashley is completing a new home near Mc- Murry college, Abilene. He has been long engaged in pastoral work.

Walker Asks "Location"

Rev. L. W. Walker, 19th street church, Lubbock, is asking for "lo- cation" this year. Last year he served as pastor of the Stamford circuit. Previous to that appoint- ment he served as station pastor at Odom, in the West Texas con- ference. Walker says he is step- ping out temporarily in order to rel coup his financial status.

City Is Crowded

Though Big Spring is royally en- tertaining the conference the city is crowded due to the ingress of oil men. Bishop Moore told the Avalanche-Journal correspondent today that the last session, Sunday evening, would begin at 6 o'clock in order to allow preachers to leave that evening for their homes.

Many Changes Expected

While innumerable changes in line-up of preachers this year are expected in the conference the bishop and his cabinet have almost completed their skate and the ax- ping out temporarily in order to re- leased early Sunday morning, mem- bers of the cabinet said.

Favors Open Cabinet

Quite a contrast is noticeable in the methods employed now and those employed a few years ago as to the announcement of assignment of pastors for the ensuing year. Formerly announcements were held under secrecy, but Bishop Moore rather favors the "open cabinet," whereby preachers are allowed to inquire of their presiding elders as to their appointments. Preachers now have more say about where they shall go and congregations de- siring certain preachers send rep- resentatives who make known their wants. The open cabinet, it is ad- mitted, has some disadvantages, but as a general thing it is preferred by most of the preachers and the presiding elders. It at least per- mits of some adjustments before the conference terminates and be- fore appointments are finally made public.

Sunday School Service

A capacity auditorium Wednes- day evening attended the anniversa- ry Sunday school activities over the territory embraced within the jurisdiction of the Northwest Tex- as Annual conference.

Mrs. W. E. Lyon of Abilene spoke at length of the progress of ele- mentary Sunday school work.

Rev. B. L. Nance, conference sup- erintendent of Sunday schools, gave a detailed and interesting report on progress of Sunday school work throughout the eight presiding elders' district. He has been prom- ised better support next year.

Superannuate Fund

Dr. C. W. Weibel, repres the executive board of superan endowment fund, St. Louis, a ed the conference Wednesday that he had received during May $8,109 from the various ch of the Northwest Texas confer as this conference's contribution the $10,000,000 fund being rai throughout the connection.

Plainview Changes

A well founded rumor in confer ence circles is that Rev. L. P. Lips comb, who has been pastor of the Plainview First church the last four years, will be made a presid- ing elder and will be in charge of the Sweetwater district. It was not hinted as to who will become presiding elder of the Plainview district which is being vacated this year by Rev. Ernest E. Robinson, who is lated for the First church at Plainview or San Jacinto church at Amarillo.

Circuit Is Divided

The Lamesa circuit of which Rev. Hamilton Wright was pastor this year is to be divided and made into two circuits, it was intimat- ed. Higginbotham, Three Leagues and Patricia, three of the points on this circuit, will probably be or- ganized into the Andrews mission. McCamey, Liberty, Mount Olive, Pride and Ballard will compose the Lamesa circuit for 1927-28, with Lamesa as the headquarters. Draw will become a half station and Grassland will be put with it. A $1600 parsonage is to be built at Draw this winter. Wright had 106 conversions on the Lamesa circuit this year.

Virtues Of Natural Gas Praised By Official Of West Texas Gas Company

By W. W. GRAVES
Assistant to the General Manager
West Texas Gas Company

Gas is the most efficient most economical and easiest regulated fuel known.

Of the various gasses commercially used—coal gas, water gas, oil gas and natural gas, the natural gas is recognized as being the most desirable fuel.

Coal—water and oil gasses are produced by means of scientific manufacturing processes and for that reason are more costly to the consumer than natural gas.

Natural gas is, as the name implies, a product of nature. Chemical processes of nature are continuously at work producing hydro carbons. The lighter hydro carbons are found in the form of gasses while the heavier are oils and coals.

Natural gas is made available by the drilling of wells into known gas bearing strata in the earth and, the amount of gas that may be produced from a given area is governed largely by three factors. First, the porosity of the gas bearing formation. Second, the thickness of the gas bearing strata and third, the extent or area of the gas bearing formations.

Many Formations Known

There are many gas bearing formations known to the gas fraternity in the world and it is the belief of most geologists and authorities on gas that no portion of the globe is entirely free of gas bearing strata.

Many large gas fields have been discovered and the product utilized and others have been found that are too distant from a paying market to be of any value as yet.

Perhaps at no other place or location on the earth's surface is so large or so prolific a gas area as that of the Panhandle fields of Texas. The great thickness of the gas bearing formations and the great area tested and proved make this field the first in importance in all the universe. Competent gas engineers are astounded when the possibilities of this wonder field are studied. It has been estimated that there is enough gas in the North Panhandle gas field to supply all the fuel and lighting needs of all the United States for 50 years and that if it could be made available for use in all domestic and industrial institutions from Chicago and west of the Mississippi river that the year 2027 would still see North Panhandle gas used exclusively as fuel over the western two-thirds of the United States.

The cost of gas to the consumer is governed by two factors. The cost of production and the cost of transportation to the consumers' burner.

Can Be Piped Far

Manufactured gas can not be transported any great distance on account of its high production cost but natural gas is being piped hundreds of miles and even at this high cost of transportation can be sold to the consumer at a lower price per thousand cubic fet than can the artificial product.

Every gas company is entitled to and should receive from its customers a price that will offset the cost of production and transportation and allow a reasonable margin for emergency costs and profits.

All these items have been carefully calculated by experts acting both for constituted authority (state and national) and by the very best engineers representing the gas companies and regulating measures have been enacted protecting the consumers from excessive prices.

Natural gas is the cleanest, most satisfactory, most efficient and most economical fuel known. It is much better than the manufactured product on account of its greater heat value.

The West Texas Gas company, the youngest of the major gas distributing organizations has visioned the possibilities of a new commonwealth to be built on the South Plains. It has shown its faith in this great territory and its coming development as the greatest agriculture and industrial section of the southwest by becoming a pioneer with the people of the territory covered and has added millions of dollars to the present material wealth of the district and made possible a greater future development than heretofore dreamed of by its most optimistic boosters.

Helpful Hints To Users Of Gas

Those using gas in furnaces and boilers should give careful attention to the following suggestions:

1. Flues and chimneys should be unobstructed and the latter should be high enough for proper draft. Flues should be fitted with some form of back-draft diverter. A back-draft diverter is a device for preventing "down drafts" from smothering or extinguishing the flames. The names "automatic draft regulator," "draft hood", "back draft hood", and "safety collar" are applied to various forms of back draft diverters. Some of these devices also aid in preventing excessive "up-drafts."

2. All parts of the burners should be kept clean, and they should be adjusted to give steady blue flames.

3. The supply of air should be just enough to provide for complete combustion. An excessive supply of air causes loss of heat through the chimney.

4. Heating surfaces should be clean, as soot or dirt prevents the efficient transfer of heat.

5. The appliance and distributing pipes should be well insulated to prevent heat waste.

6. A thermostatic control saves gas and aids in maintaining proper house temperatures.

OAKLAND-PONTIAC SALES INCREASE

COMPANY HAS SOLD 172,027 CARS DURING FIRST TEN MONTHS OF YEAR

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 12.—Record breaking October sales of 15,674 Oakland and Pontiac sixes, 61.6 per cent greater than during October of 1926, are reported by W. R. Tracy, vice president in charge of sales for the Oakland Motor Car company. Mr. Tracy also states that sales totals for the last ten months have made 1927 the company's most successful year.

The October record follows a September sales increase of 37 per cent over the corresponding period of a year ago.

The grand aggregate of Oakland and Pontiac six sales during the months from January to October inclusive, is 172,027, against 121,330 during the first ten months of 1926. This increase of 50,697 represents a gain of more than 41 per cent over the sales during the same period of 1926.

"The introduction of the improved Pontiac six at lower prices early this year contributed substantially to the increased total of sales," said Mr. Tracy. "Oakland six sales experienced a brief mid-summer interruption while the factory was being rearranged for production of the new all-American six.

"But the immediate public acceptance of the Oakland all-American models since their introduction early in August, together with the sustained demand for the Pontiac six, have increased our business to the point where Oakland-Pontiac retail registrations ranked fourth among all manufacturers in the United States August and September.

"The factory expansion necessary to keep pace with the continued rise in our sales has been going forward steadily. The completion of the model factory for the Pontiac six has been followed by an additional plant expansion program for the Oakland six. This project, already under construction, involves the expenditure of $3,000,000 which will provide the Oakland six with a gigantic new assembly building and new shipping facilities duplicating those already in operation at the Pontiac six factory.

WINTER CARE OF AUTO STRESSED

SATISFACTORY COLD WEATHER DRIVING ASSURED ONLY BY GOOD TREATMENT

At this season the prudent motorist, taking time by the forelock, is beginning to consider approaching changes in driving conditions and is planning how best to put his car in order for winter months.

Chrysler service experts, following Chrysler policy of assuring to owners the fullest possible enjoyment of their cars throughout the year, have outlined a program of preparation. They advise motorists to make use of service station facilities, wherever possible. But as there are always a certain number of owners who prefer to condition their own cars for the winter, these suggestions will be read with profit by many.

Refill Crank Case

The first step advised is to remove from the oil pan any accumulated sludge and to refill the pan with fresh oil, taking care that it is of good quality. Frequent changes of oil afterward, in conjunction with proper adjustment of crankcase ventilator, will continue to safeguard oil circulation.

Next, the chassis should be completely lubricated and the oil changed in the transmission and differential. The generator should be thoroughly inspected and cleaned and any worn parts replaced. With this done and the battery checked and recharged the electrcial system will have plenty of "punch."

The starting motor should be removed and cleaned, and worn parts if any replaced. Cleaning the starter driving mechanism is stressed as being of particular... both on the starter and... the flywheel, as accum... gets gummy and in th... gears from engaging, or... gaged, from disengaging.
