IF IMPEACHED

President Repeats Vows To Conduct His Defense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will not resign "under any circumstances" nor will he temporarily relinquish office under pressures of the Watergate scandals, he said in an interview published today.

Nixon vowed to fight impeachment "as effectively as we can," and expressed confidence that he could run the country and his own defense siimultaneously if the House votes to impeach him and he is put on trial by the Senate.

In an interview with syndicated columnist James J. Kilpatrick, his first meeting with a single newsman since 1972, the President discussed Watergate and the controversial White House tape recordings as well as his views on conducting United States foreign policy.

On foreign policy, particularly, he said "it would be wrong" for him to step aside because of the gap it would create.

The interview took place Tuesday in Nixon's Oval Office, lasting 80 minutes. Kilpatrick said he recorded Nixon's comments in shorthand.

"I would have to rule out resignation. And I would have to rule out the rather fatuous suggestion that I take the 25th Amendment and just step out and have Vice President (Gerald) Ford step in for a while," the President said.

"If the House should vote an impeachment, and we go to trial by the Senate, of course I would follow that course. It would be immensely timeconsuming, but I could do it, and I would do it for reasons that are not—what do you call it—those of a toreador in the ring, trying to prove himself, but I would do it because I have given long thought to what is best for the country, our system of governnment, and the constitutional process."

Later in the interview, the President reinforced his point by saying: "I will never leave this office in a way which resigning would be, or failing to fight impeachment would be, that would make it more difficult for future Presidents to make tough decisions."

A President, he added, "must do what is right, whatever the public opinion may be at the moment."

"I will not resign," the President repeated, "and I will of course present the case on impeachment before the House as effectively as we can. I shall accept the verdict in good grace, but I know that the United States of America means something in the world today not just because of its military and economic strength, but also because it has stability in its leadership.

"Resignation or impeachment would have the traumatic effect of destroying that sense of stability and leadership. And as far as this particular President is concerned, I will not be a party under any circumstances to any action which would set that kind of precedent."

REINTRODUCED TODAY

Senate Rejects Bill On Busing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate antibusing forces, narrowly defeated Wednesday in a move to severely restrict busing, reintroduced the proposed bar in a surprise move today.

Assistant Senate Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin proposed a cutdown version of the proposal, defeated by one vote Wednesday to prohibit the busing of a student beyond the second closest school to his home.

Unlike Wednesday's proposal, Griffin's plan would not allow school districts, now under court order to bus, to revamp their plans to conform to the amendment. the Griffin amendment would apply only to future cases.

Voting Wednesday only two days before the 20th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision outlawing segregated schools, the Senate rejected a proposal that would have banned virtually all busing of students for desegregation purposes.

Offered by Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., as an amendment to a four-year, $23 billion extension of the Federal Education Act, the proposal was defeated, 47-46.

The Amendment

The Gurney amendment would have prohibited the busing of a student beyond the second closest school to his home and would have allowed school districts now under court order to bus students to revamp their programs to comply with the amendment.

The anti-busing forces, beaten in their major effort, then rallied behind an amendment offered by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind. It would permit busing within downtown city school districts or within suburban districts.

Gurney Not Named On Jury Indictment

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A federal grand jury investigating a $400,000 "booster fund" for Sen Edward Gurney, R-Fla., Wednesday returned a sealed indictment, but Gurney was not named, according to courthouse sources.

The sources said the indictment was sealed because the person named was-not in custody.

The grand jury has been investigating the booster fund and other campaign contributions collected on behalf of Gurney.

The fact that the person charged was not in custody apparently rules out three key figures in the jury investigation, all three of whom have been indicted.

They are former Gurney fund raiser Larry Williams, now in jail; Miami developer John Priestes, and former Federal Housing Administration (FHA) official William Pelski.

The indictment reportedly deals with the FHA fraud investigation which has been handled by the Jacksonville federal grand jury since last summer.

Gurney has appeared voluntarily before the jury this week, but refused to discuss his testimony.

He was indicted earlier this month by a Leon County grand jury on a state charge of failing to report $100,000 in campaign gifts. Gurney has contended he did not have a campaign organization in full swing and could not report the gifts. He pleaded innocent and has asked that the indictment be dismissed.

The grand jury has probed the allegations of the Miami Herald and some builders that Williams solicited funds for Gurney in return for influence - peddling in the FHA. Pelski was FHA director in Coral Gables.

Williams was convicted on charges relating to his fund-raising activities and Priestes is serving a year in prison said he paid $175,000 to Pelski for housing commitments.

Hot Weather To Continue In Panhandle

It was hot everywhere in the state Wednesday and more of the same was predicted for Texas today.

The high in Pampa yesterday was 96 degrees. Forecasts call for that mark to be equalled again today. It should not be quite so warm Friday but the high should still reach into the 90s.

Humid air from the southeast spread across most of the state Wednesday sparing only the Panhandle and Southwest Texas.

The low in Pampa today was 66 and the minimum today will also be in the 60s. Winds are gusting from the southwest at 15-25 mph.

As seems always to be the case this year, no rain is expected through the weekend.

In UPI reports:

Showers moved across the Southeast early today and away from Arkansas where National Guardsmen had evacuated nearly 400 persons.

Up to nine inches of rain swamped Helena and West Helena, Ark., Wednesday, flooding streets and forcing residents to flee their homes.

Thunderstorms and showers were scattered from Florida to South Carolina. Gainesville, Fla., reported .84 inch of rain.

Showers also fell in South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota and Iowa as well as the Pacific Northwest. Golf ball-sized hail pelted Grand Island, Neb.

A band of clouds veiled the upper Mississippi Valley, the Gulf Coast and the eastern Plains.

Cold air flowed into the northern Rockies where skies were clear. Temperatures dropped into the 20s in Montana, Wyoming and Idaho. Frost and freeze warnings were issued for South Dakota.

Fair skies prevailed in the Northeast and Southwest.

Clean-Up Drive Enters Ward 3

Sixteen loads of trash were hauled away yesterday on the first day city clean-up crews made collections in Ward 3.

It brought the load total to 176 since the annual clean-up campaign started May 1.

The first two weeks of the drive, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the City, were spent in Wards 1 and 2.

The final week will start in Ward 4 Wednesday, May 22.

Israel Launches Fight On Guerrilla Positions

THOSE DOG DAYS AHEAD? — Pampans suffered under 96 degree weather yesterday accompanied by moderate winds. The dog above, left in a car, spent his time perched on the top of the seat, hoping to catch the breeze blowing in. Forecasts called for similar weather today as the first really hot spell of the approaching summer continues.

Israeli warplanes today carried out their heaviest and deepest strikes into Lebanon since the 1973 war in retaliation for the Arab guerrilla attack which killed 30 Israelis at the Galilee village of Maalot. Targets included heavily populated Palestinian refugee camps and targets near the Beirut airport.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said waves of Israeli planes bombed and machine-gunned targets near the Beirut airport and in five districts of South Lebanon. Most of the areas listed by the Ministry were the sites of big Palestinian refugee camps.

Palestinian guerrilla attacks against Israeli settlements have invariably been followed by massive Israeli retaliation. Prime Minister Golda Meir gave a hint of such action Wednesday night when she vowed to "cut off the hands" of the guerrillas responsible.

The Israeli announcement said the 30-minute attack hit guerrilla targets near Beirut, around the coastal city of Tyre south of the capital, and in southern Lebanon above the frontier. Israel said all the Phantom jets returned safely.

The raid came as the Israeli nation was burying its dead from the Maalot attack, the costliest guerrilla raid in the nation's history. The death toll of 30 included 18 teen-age Israeli schoolchildren and the three guerrillas who carried out the raid.

Lebanon had feared some sort of massive retaliation and the foreign minister called in the ambassadors of the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France and China and asked them to use their influence to restrain Israel from carrying out its threats.

It was the fourth consecutive day of Israeli air strikes into Lebanon against Arab guerrilla bases, but today's was by far the strongest and deepest the planes had staged into Lebanon since the October war when they destroyed a radar station and hit other guerrilla bases.

Israel put its entire northern tier on full alert today for other Arab guerrilla attacks like the one at Maalot. The 30 dead included 18 teen-age schoolchildren, in the costliest terrorist attack in Israel's history. Death of the children raised a larger outcry than a raid April 12 which killed 18 persons at the border village of Qiryat Shemona.

Villagers at Maalot, a town of 5,000 lying just below Lebanon, demonstrated this morning chanting "death to the terrorists!" Newspapers and opposition politicians called for revenge strikes into Lebanon, from where the raiders were said to have come.

Newsmen in southern Lebanon said the Israeli Phantoms, sweeping in in pairs, bombed the Ain Helweh refugee camp on the outskirts of the southern port city of Sidon. Other planes attacked refugee camps in the region of Nabatiyeh, a sizeable market town, the reports said.

The Ain Helweh camp outside Sidon is one of the largest in Lebanon and houses 19,869 Palestinian refugees. It is on the Mediterranean coast about 30 miles south of Beirut and 42 miles north of the Israeli border. The camp at Nabitiyeh houses about 3,500 refugees.

The newsmen said the attacks started around 4:15 p.m. (8:15 a.m. CDT). They covered a wider area and were much more intensive than Israeli air attacks near the Lebanese slopes of Mt. Hermon in recent weeks, the reports said.

There was no immediate comment on the attacks from Lebanese authorities.

The reports said the attack on the Nabitiyeh area lasted about 20 minutes and the attack on Ain Helweh about 30 minutes. There were no immediate reports of damage or casualties.

Sounds of sonic booms and bombing could be heard in the streets of Beirut.

At 4:50 p.m. (8:50 a.m. CDT) air raid sirens sounded an alert in Beirut, but there was no sign of air activity.

Lebanese government officials had expressed fears of an Israeli reprisal attack in view of Israeli claims that the three guerrillas who seized hostages in Maalot crossed into Israel from Lebanon.

Spokesmen for the Marxist Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PDFLP), which claimed responsibility for the Maalot operation, strongly denied the Israeli charges and said the guerrillas had not left Israel since 1948.

Heavy security precautions were taken in Qiryat Shemona after Israeli police said the found the tracks of more guerrillas who had crossed from Lebanon.

The Arab siege ended Wednesday when Israeli troops stormed a three-story schoolhouse in which three guerrillas held about 85 high school students hostage for the release of 20 jailed commandos.

The advancing soldiers killed all three guerrillas, but not before the commandos left 24 persons dead and 88 wounded.

World Leaders Condemn 'Senseless' Arab Attacks

United Press International

President Nixon termed the Palestinian guerrilla attack on Israeli school children a "senseless act of terrorism" today, but said it would not affect American peace-seeking efforts in the Middle East.

Nixon joined other world leaders in condemnation of Wednesday's raid on the Northern Israeli village of Maalot, the worst guerrilla attack in Israel's 26-year history.

In a note of condolence delivered to Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, Nixon said, "This senseless act of terrorism has underscored once again the need for true peace in the Middle East."

Nixon said United States efforts "toward this goal will not waver. Please extend, Madame Prime Minister, my personal condolences to the Israeli people in this time of mourning."

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson called the raid "an evil outrage."

The Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram, however, said the incident showed "the Palestinian people are still there and have not laid down their weapons and that they cling to their land which was usurped by Israel."

The papal secretary of state, Cardinal Jean Villot, sent a telegram Wedneday to Msgr. Pio Laghi, the apostolic delegate in Jerusalem, on behalf of the Pope.

The Pope said he was "deeply saddened by the extremely grave act of violence" and said he "profoundly deplores as repugnant to human conscience" actions endangering "the fate of so many innocent children."

Kissinger is Shocked

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was in Jerusalem on a Middle East peace mission, said Wednesday he felt "shocked and outraged" by the raid.

"Our hearts go out to the families and to all of Israel," Kissinger said. "Violence such as this will serve no cause but to undermine the prospects for peace in the area."

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said Wednesday he hoped the raid would not divert the search for peace in the Middle East.

"I was deeply shocked at the news of the terrorist action at Maalot in Israel," he said. "Such violent actions are to be condemned whatever their motivation, expecially when they involve innocent persons, including children."

In Tokyo, Joji Omura, the deputy cabinet secretary, said Wednesday the raid "which resulted in casualties among many innocent children is unpardonable from the humanitarian viewpoint."

More than 1,000 Jews held a vigil Wedneday outside the Rome synagogue and the Italian Jewish community said the attack came "right at a time when the people and government of Israel were showing wisdom and moderation."

In Paris, a pro-Israeli group announced it would hold a demonstration today to protest the Maalot killings.

C-C Releases Check-In Total

The Chamber of Commerce today released the figures for its first "check - in" on the progress of the annual chamber membership drive currently being conducted.

The Tigers, managed by Gary Stevens, are in first place at this time with 375 points.

In second are the Braves, managed by Benny Kirksey, with 248 points, and in third are the Mets, with Gene Barrett as manager, 185 points.

The next "check - in" will be Wednesday, May 22, Chamber of Commerce spokesman Harris Brinson said.

Daniel Considering Probe Of TWQB

AUSTIN (UPI)—House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. could decide today if he wants to begin a special investigation of the Texas Water Quality Board. Legislators have told Daniel the board is biased in favor of polluters.

Forty-five representatives presented Daniel with a petition Wednesday asking for an investigation. Daniel said he would study the petition overnight before making a decision.

Hugh Yantis, the board's ecutive director, said "We can stand an investigation by anybody."

Rep. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, initiated the petition because of the board's decision to allow the dumping of toxic wastes in a spot where engineers said it could contaminate the Corpus Christi water supply.

"Yantis dressed up this permit with some cosmetic eye wash, but Corpus Christi City Manager, Marvin Townsend said that he saw nothing that would make him change the city's opposition to the project," Truan said.

Yantis said, however "any investigation will show" the permit "does comply with state statutes and the geological evidence."

The petition presented to Daniel asks him to authorize an investigation by either the House State Affairs Committee or the Environmental Affairs Committee as soon as the constitutional convention adjourns.

Medal Designs Selection Made On Bicentennial

The executive committee of the Panhandle Bicentennial Committee met in Pampa yesterday and selected the design to be used on one side of all commemorative coins minted for Panhandle towns issuing such coins.

The artist whose design was chosen by the committee is Doug Watkins, Amarillo commercial artist.

Pampa's Mrs. Jan Ragsdale is the winner in the amateur division of the Panhandle contest and the design winner for the Gray County side of the coin is Richard Thompson of Pampa.

The winners in the Panhandle design were picked at the executive meeting Wednesday at noon at the Pampa Country Club.

Following that meeting, the entire Texas Panhandle Area Bicentennial Committee met at the White Deer Land Museum at 2 o'clock. There, progress reports were given on all communities planning bicentennial celebrations.

Attending the meeting were members of the committee from Pampa, Panhandle, Canyon, Tulia, Hereford and Amarillo.

IN PORTUGAL

Spinola Beginning President's Term

LISBON (UPI) — Gen. Antonio de Spinola began a one-year term as Portuguese president today, naming a left-leaning, civilian cabinet that includes the head of the nation's Communist party.

Spinola, who led last month's military coup ending a half-century of rightwing dictatorship, promised to establish democracy in Portugal and peace in Africa. He said he would step down at the end of his term.

Spinola assumed the presidency Wednesday and within hours named a provisional civilian cabinet to run the nation until a free election promised for next year.

The general named Communist party leader Alvaro Cunhal as minister without portfolio in the cabinet and Socialist chief Mario Soares as foreign minister.

In addition, Communist-backed Avelino Antonio Pacheco Goncalves, former head of a militant bank clerks union, was named labor minister.

It was not immediately certain, however, how much power the general would reserve for himself and how much he would let the cabinet assume.

Spinola, head of the junta that ousted Caetano and President Americo Thomaz, named Adelino Palma Carlos, a 69-year old Lisbon law professor, as Portugal's new prime minister.

Former Atty. General Enters Plea Of Guilty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst pleaded guilty today to a misdemeanor charge.

The charge against Kleindienst was based on his refusal to testify at his Senate confirmation hearings about conversations with President Nixon regarding the handling of a federal antitrust case against International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT).

Under law, Kleindienst must serve at least a month—and possibly as much as one year— in jail and pay a fine of $100 to $1,000. Chief U.S. District Judge George L. Hart released Kleindienst on personal bond pending sentencing.

Kleindienst waived indictment and pleaded guilty to a criminal "information" filed by Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

It charged that at confirmation hearings by the Senate Judiciary Committee in March and April of 1972, he refused to answer certain questions about the ITT case.

Kleindienst pleaded guilty to refusing to discuss conversations about the ITT case he had had with Nixon, White House staff members and with his predecessor at the Justice Department, John N. Mitchell.

Kleindienst's lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, said Kleindienst "did in fact refuse a direct order of the President of the United States to drop the ITT case," and it was this discussion with Nixon about which Kleindienst had refused to testify.

"I plead guilty, your honor," Kleindienst said when the charge was read.

Following the 10-minute court proceeding, Jaworski's office made public a May 10 letter to Miller saying a guilty plea by Kleindienst would "dispose of all charges," then known, that might be brought against Kleindienst as a result of his confirmation hearings or grand jury testimony.

The letter left open the possibility of future charges "if substantial new evidence develops demonstrating that Mr. Kleindienst has failed to disclose material matters relating to the ITT matter."

Jaworski has been investigating whether out of court settlement of an antitrust ITT suit in 1972 was tied to the company's offer to underwrite the Republican national convention by $400,000 at a time when it was scheduled for San Diego.

"One significant factor in my determination (to accept this plea) is that our investigation has failed to disclose any criminal conduct by Mr. Kleindienst in the manner in which he handled the ITT antitrust cases," Jaworski's letter to Kleindiensts' lawyer said.

Kissinger Attempts To Finish Mission

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger made a final effort today to save a troubled Middle East peace mission aimed at separating Israeli and Syrian forces along the embattled Golan Heights.

The secretary of state planned one more Jerusalem-Damascus diplomatic shuttle to end the Golan Heights war of attrition despite a setback to his 19-day-old mission by a terrorist attack against the Israeli town of Maalot.

Kissinger, who has to be back in Washington by Sunday night to address a diplomatic conference, was expected to return to the region in several weeks if he fails to get a disengagement accord during the current trip.

A high U.S. official said Kissinger would leave the area after greatly narrowing the Israeli-Syrian negotiating gap even if he fails to get the two sides to agree on a troop separation pact.

"Despite the crime, we are determined to continue our activities for peace and hope it will not interfere," Kissinger said Wednesday night after meeting with Mrs. Meir to express "the grief of all Americans" for the Maalot victims.

Kissinger said earlier the terrorist attack threatened to disrupt his mission. "Violence such as this will serve no cause but to undermine the prospects for peace in the area," he said.

Kissinger was expected to turn his attention in the coming talks to the main issue still pending —setting a new ceasefire line between Israeli and Syrian forces.

Senior U.S. officials said secondary issues —such as a buffer zone, a thinning of forces and a role for the United Nations —would fall into place once Israel and Syria agree on a new truce line.

At the very least, Wednesday's guerrilla attack delayed Kissinger's mission at a crucial stage when time was running out.

Kissinger called on Prime Minister Golda Meir this morning and met with the larger group of Israeli negotiators before taking off on his fifth shuttle to Damascus in the early afternoon — one day late because of the Arab guerrilla attack on a school building in Maalot that took more lives than any such previous incident in Israeli history.

Drinker Booked For Intoxication

A 30-year-old Pampa man was booked into city jail for intoxication Wednesday shortly before 3 p.m. after having allegedly "chug-a-lugged" a bottle of whiskey.

Dean Henderson was taken by ambulance from Little Betty's, a bar located in the 100 block of S. Somerville, and his stomach was reportedly pumped to get the whiskey out, reports said.

Witnesses at the bar said Henderson lifted the bottle and "killed it." Police were called to the scene and summoned the ambulance. Henderson was later freed on bond.

School Board Changes Code At Perryton

PERRYTON (Spc) — The board of trustees of the Perryton Independent School District has liberalized the student conduct handbook regarding both punishment of students and the student dress code.

The board voted Tuesday to give administrators more freedom in suspension of students regarding possession or use of alcohol, cigarettes or drugs.

The code as it now stands calls for mandatory 3-day suspensions for students found involved in those activities. According to the new ruling, administrators can suspend the student involved, but are not required to do so.

High school principal George Zoller comments that it is hard to enforce the rule requiring male students hair not to be over the ears or below the collar led to a liberalization of the dress code.

The new rule simply states that if the hair is combed straight down, it cannot reach below the midpoint of the ear.

1st Round Emmy Honors Presented In Hotel Room

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The winners of "first-round" Emmys, top awards for television performers, were announced in a small hotel room with no stars on hand, no dinner jackets or gowns, and no hooplah.

JIM D. BROWN
...gets promotion

That comes later, at the second round, when a selected few winners will emerge from the ranks of also-ran winner in a ceremony that tries to match the glitter of the Oscar Awards for movie types.

"The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," a touching special about the life of a black woman from the days of slavery to the civil rights movement, collected the most first-round Emmys, four. The Carol Burnett and Mary Tyler Moore shows took three each in the balloting by the National Television Academy.

This is the first year for the reorganized Emmy Awards, with the "first-round" winners being announced to newsmen Wednesday, and the presentational and "second-round winners to be revealed in a national television show May 28.

The Emmy Awards have been criticized in the past as being confusing, excessive, difficult to grasp and lacking in dramatic impact to the televised Oscar presentations, because there were so many of them, cut into so many categories —daytime drama, prime time comedy, one-shot specials, and mini-series.

But many of the performers think it's unfair to judge efforts in one category against those of another. Thus, the academy's effort at a "two-level award. The winners of the Emmys announced Wednesday will receive their statuettes at the formal presentation May 28, and then the overall winner in a category —best actor or actress for example —will have the extra honor added to the plaque.

"The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" collected Emmys for its star, Cicely Tyson (best actress in a drama), Tracy Keenan Wynn (best writing in a drama), John Korty (best direction in a drama) and Fred Karlin (best musical composition for a special program).

Other best actress winners were Mary Tyler Moore (comedy series), Michael Lerned of "The Waltons" (dramatic series) and Mildred Natwick of "The Snoop Sisters" (limited series).

Brown Gets Promotion At Celanese Co.

Jim D. Brown has been promoted to utilities superintendent at the Pampa plant of Celanese Chemical Co.

Brown moves up from the post of utilities unit supervisor and will be responsible for planning, scheduling, directing and coordinating all activities of the plant's utilities section.

He has been with Celanese since 1952 following four years in the U.S. Navy. He was named utilities supervisor in 1968.

Brown and his wife, Betty Jean, reside at 1711 Holly.

Pampan Injured While On Job

Marvin Fugate, 23, of Pampa remains in critical condition today in St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo suffering from injuries sustained in an industrial accident Wednesday.

Fugate reportedly suffered critical back injuries when an I-beam broke from its bracket and struck him.

The accident occurred about 10:30 a.m. yesterday at Carlson and Cradduck Construction Co., one mile west of Pampa on Texas 152.

After undergoing emergency treatment at Highland General Hospital in Pampa, Fugate was transferred to St. Anthony's.

Price Suggests Creation Of Ranching Loan Fund

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Bob Price yesterday urged creation of an emergency loan fund to guarantee credit for cattlemen suffering substantial financial losses and to help them restock feedlots to insure a continuing beef supply for American consumers.

In a letter to the President, Price asked immediate establishment of the special landing fund "so that qualified beef producers can apply for emergency low interest loans."

He said such a fund could be administered through the Farmers Home Administration which is already struetured to carry out such a program.

"Many experienced cattlemen have lost their savings, ranches and any equity that they have accumulated over the years," Price wrote. "Because of these cattlemen's loss of capital, they will not be able to borrow money from private lending institutions without government guarantees."

Cattlemen are not currently covered by existing FHA emergency loan programs.

Price called for a $3 billion emergency loan guarantee fund and called that a minimum necessary amount to help the $20 billion beef cattle industry.

He said the industry normally used approximately $5 billion in annual credit in Texas alone, but that estimated cattle feeding losses in the state have already exceeded $1 billion.

The Texas Congressman said the special emergency lending funds for cattlemen without sufficient collateral to obtain normal credit would cost very little since the government would only guarantee the loans — the money actually coming from local private lending institutions.

If cattlemen are unable to finance their future operations, "they will be unable to enter the market to purchase the calves and yearlings which are needed to replace cattle in the feedlots," Price wrote the President. "Without these replacements, the end product, beef for the American people, may be in short supply in the future."

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Alan expresses the same complaint which I get from thousands of others every semester. For only 25% of psychology professors are good salesmen of their courses! The other 75% are impractical, polysyllabic and unable to motivate their pupils properly!

CASE A-634: Alan Q., aged 19, has a widespread complaint.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I started reading your 'Worry Clinic' at the advice of my freshman science teacher in high school.

"And your column sold me on majoring in psychology when I went to college.

"For you showed its value in solving the everyday problems most of us face, such as carrying on conversation, being popular, winning sweethearts, plus good jobs.

"Well, I registered for psychology here at the university but the emphasis is on too much impractical stuff.

"The professor talks in 5-syllable words and is way out in left field on many questions.

"Why don't the colleges take the same practical slant about psychology that you employ?

"Indeed, my prof even tries to ridicule your daily column, saying it is too simple!"

SCIENCE IS SIMPLE

Simplicity is the basis of science.

When you really know something, you can generally state it in a few terse words.

Verbosity is thus a "cover-up" by which impractical people try to disguise their lack of real solutions to your problems.

Many of these "polysyllabic professors" indict me to their college students, exclaiming:

"That awful Dr. Crane is debasing the prestige of scientific psychology by using 2-syllable words!"

But I taunt them for their devotion to long words by saying:

"They obfuscate the proposition by polysyllabic circumlocutions."

Which is why students struggle to decipher the meaning of the classroom lectures and dull, verbose textbooks till they lose their intitial interest in majoring in psychology.

However, about 25% of our college psychology profs understand the art of human motivation and are thus superb teachers.

For they go out of their way to dramatize their classroom lectures and thus employ simple language which the freshman students can readily understand.

A basic law of verbal psychology states that you can't persuade or motivate people properly unless they understand what you say.

While teaching psychology at George Washington and also at Northwestern Universities, I thus went out of my way to make the class lectures interesting.

Which means I slanted my teaching around that simple human interest formula: "Me-Here-Now."

My classes were soon overflowing. Registration even had to be cancelled early for lack of seats.

And my classes were popular not because I gave top grades for lazy output.

Instead, I assigned weekly homework practical cases, daily quickie exams, and allotted but 10% "A" grades, 20% "B", etc.

For students don't object to working hard if they are interested in the course.

Thus, I tried to "sell" psychology so that I could persuade more students to major in my field than in rival departments, such as math, chemistry, etc.

Luckily, over 1,300 college classroom adoptions of my current textbook attest to the fact many of the pragmatic profs in that upper 25% have this same competitive zest to make introductory psychology courses interesting via their practical slant!

Business Today

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The training department is fast becoming one of the most important "profit centers" in any sizable company, says Charles E. Miller, president of International Correspondence Schools of Scranton, Pa.

ICS still is known to the public primarily for home study courses to which eight million persons have subscribed in 84 Correspondence Schools of Scranton, Pa.

ICS still is known to the public primarily for home study courses to which eight million persons have subscribed in 84 years—including such notables as Walter P. Chrysler, Robert G. LeTourneau, Stuart Symington, Eddie Rickenbacker, Luther Hodges, Arthur Godfrey and Charles E. Wilson of General Electric.

Miller says that, in the past decade, ICS has expanded its corporate industrial training service, started in a modest way in 1908, until it now comprises 40 per cent of the company's business. He says it probably will account for more than half of its business in a few years. The industrial training division got a lift during World War II when the armed forces used its services to train millions of soldiers and sailors.

Customers of the division include nine of the top 10 and 73 of the first 100 companies in Fortune's list of the nation's 500 biggest industrial concerns.

"Profit center" is a term management consultants and graduate business school professors are fond of using to describe activities that produce the biggest return for the effort.

Miller cited the Soo Railroad as a dramatic example of how the training department can become a profit center. A few years ago the Soo, like many railroads "hired by the grapevine and promoted in defiance of "the Peter Principle," which says most people sooner or later reach a level of competence beyond which they cannot advance. The Soo had no training programs and few college graduates in its whole family. Within a few years after putting in an ICS training program, the Soo reached the point in 1973 where its revenues were up 2,000 per cent over a decade and it was earning 7.6 per cent on capital against a national average for railroads and trucking lines of 4.9 per cent. Miller hastened to say ICS doesn't claim credit for all of this.

"Manpower is the most expensive commodity for any company if it is misused," said. A good training department becomes a profit center because it eliminates the need to hire people away from competitors at premium salaries. A corollary of this, Miller said, is that a company that cuts its training budget when business gets tough is acting like the seaman who mistakenly tossed something non-floatable to a drowning man instead of a lifepreserver.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "If the market is not yet oversold technically, then it certainly gives the impression of being sold out and also looking for an excuse to go up," says E. F. Hutton & Co. Despite recent fluctuations in the market pattern, its "longer-term technical picture continues to improve suggesting that the next major move may be up," the firm continues. The market could be boosted by the sudden plunge in Treasury bill yields this week, it adds.

"April's rising interest rates diverted investor attention from better-than-expected earnings reports, and a broad decline in stock prices saw four times as many industry groups decling as rising," says Moody's Investors Service, Inc. Electric utility stocks fell 18 per cent, service companies 17.7 per cent and real estate 14 per cent, the firm reports. On the upside, soap manufacturers posted a gain of about six per cent, canning concerns four per cent and tire and rubber companies 3.1 per cent, it adds.

Are TV Ladies In Retirement?

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Equality for women appears to apply in almost every facet and activity of American life except television.

Last season not a single woman headed a dramatic series.

Lucille Ball, Mary Tyler Moore, Bea Arthur, Cher Bono and Carol Burnett had their own shows. Others as Karen Valentine, Jean Stapleton, Shirley Jones, the females on "The Waltons," and a few others were prominent but still members of the minority.

In years past women were much more equitably represented: Loretta Young, Jane Wyman, Ida Lupino, Eve Arden, Shirley Booth, Mia Farrow, Barbara Rush, Inger Stevens, Elizabeth Montgomery, Doris Day and others.

But drama without action usually is a television disaster.

A few years ago one of the networks tried to combine action and drama with a woman lead, Anne Francis, in "Honey West." It bombed.

Neither men nor women, it appears, enjoy watching a female using karate to subdue a man. It is unfeminine for a woman to mow down a villain with a machine gun.

But NBC will take a run at a woman in action with "Police Woman" next season. Angie Dickinson will star in the title role.

In an attempt to keep pace with the growing feminist movement, all three networks are searching for properties featuring women. But there are few women screen writers and even fewer female producers sympathetic to woman-oriented stories.

To compensate, the networks all have experimented with "special" programs—comic and dramatic—dealing with women. Marlo Thomas and other big names have played hostess to these hour or 90-minute specials with only moderate success.

Partly to blame are women viewers who, according to research analysis, prefer to watch Jim Arness, Peter Falk and Mike Connors in dramatic situations than any female on the tube—although the ladies enjoy cheering for "Maude" and Mary Tyler Moore in comedy confrontations.

Diana Muldaur will star for NBC in "Born Free," a dramatic show without excessive action come the fall. But otherwise the network will be starring men in nine of the eleven new shows for 1974-75 season.

ABC is producing "Get Christie Love," the story of a black police woman who works under cover, starring Teresa Graves (formerly of "Laugh in"). Another ABC offering is "That's My Mama," with Theresa Meritt in the title role.

Bonnie Bedelia will star along with Scott Thomas in "The New Land," the story of Scandinavian immigrants, for ABC. And the network will feature child actress Jodie Foster in "Paper Moon," a video version of the hit motion picture that won a best supporting Oscar for Tatum O'Neal.

CBS, the feminist leader with Moore, Burnett, Ball, Arthur and Esther Rolle (Good Times) for the past few seasons, has plucked Valerie Harper from "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" to star in her own new series, "Rhoda."

A full grown trout could swim comfortably through most of the blood vessels of a blue whale, according to Project Jonah, an international whale protection organization.

Dollar Bounding Back In Europe

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar bounded back Wednesday, gaining strongly on European money markets from Tuesday's low levels. Gold's price fell slightly.

The dollar lost ground in Tokyo, closing at 277.45 yen compared with Tuesday's 277.90 yen. But European markets provided the first good news in weeks for holders of U.S. dollars.

The American currency climbed to 4.82 francs in Paris, up from 4.7787 overnight. It opened on the Brussels free market at 38.875 Belgian francs, up from 38.55 Tuesday night. It gained in Amsterdam from Tuesday's 2.525 guilders to 2.5488 guilders today.

In London the dollar gained three-quarters of a cent overnight, opening at $2.4105 to the pound. Tuesday's closing figure was $2.4184.

Gold dropped $1.50 an ounce overnight in Zurich, opening at $165.25 an ounce. In London the overnight drop was 25 cents an ounce to an opening price of $166.25 an ounce.

FAIR PARTICIPANTS — Estelle Pruitt, in top photo, Panhandle artist, prepares a painting for the annual Arts and Crafts Fair to be held Saturday under the sponsorhip of the Carson County Square House Museum at Panhandle. In bottom photo, Jim Williams, museum trustee, gets in practice for the chuck wagon fare, including sourdough bread and beans, he will provide for persons attending the fair.

Panhandle Sets Arts & Crafts Fair Saturday

PANHANDLE — The Carson County Square House Museum will hold its annual Arts and Crafts Fair Saturday here with events scheduled from 10 a.m. through 5 p.m.

The educational and entertaining events are free of charge and offers activities for the entire family.

Exhibitors and entertainers from Texas and New Mexico are participating in the annual event this year.

An auction at 10 a.m. for various arts and crafts and other items will begin the day's activities. It will be followed at 10:30 a.m. by a demonstration by the quilting club from Stinnett.

At 11 a.m. the Patriettes, a teen singing group from the Baptist Church here, will perform under the direction of Mrs. Douglas Smith.

Other activities include a flint working demonstration at 11:30 a.m. by Teddy Bedwell, Borger; pioneer fire arms display, noon, by Floyd Scott; use of the potter's wheel, 12:30 p.m.; spinning wheel demonstration, 1 p.m., by Alice Allen, Sanford; square dancing, 1:30 p.m., under the direction of Douglas Stewart, Amarillo; a dancing program at 2 p.m. by the Linda Germany school of dance from White Deer, and the Gloriettes, Panhandle youth singing group, at 2:30 p.m. under the direction of Mrs. Douglas Smith.

Two exhibits will continue through the day — quilting and saddlemaking by Wayne Cates of Amarillo.

A display of arts and crafts, including needlework, iron work, paintings, castings, jewelry, sculptures, candies and other items, will be on sale throughout the day.

Dole Rejects Crops Predictions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., says he disagrees with the Agriculture Department's optimistic predictions about the wheat crop and that they should be changed to reflect the "actual condition."

Dole wrote to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz Tuesday urging that the "latest official estimate of the 1974 wheat crop be reviewed and changed to reflect the actual condition of the crop."

Dole said he has received complaints from wheat growers throughout the state saying the crop is "nowhere near government expectations."

"These farmers say this year's crop in the number one wheatproducing state will be 16 to 26 per cent less than the official estimate," Dole wrote.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Comments by members of Congress since release of the Watergate tape transcripts make President Nixon's future even more uncertain.

I can't tell whether they plan to impeach him or wash his mouth out with soap.

It seems unlikely a President's use of expletives, particularly deleted ones, would be considered cause for removing him ffrom office.

But some of the lawgivers appear more disturbed by Nixon's language than by anything he may or may not have done.

If it does come down to that, Nixon will have available what may be an ironclad defense — precedent. He can claim he was only doing what other Presidents have done in moments of stress.

Didn't Work Too Well

That type of defense didn't work too well when Nixon claimed he learned about tax deductions from Lyndon Johnson.

Nor were all of his critics placated by the White House reminder that public funds had been spent for security-related improvements on the personal property of previous presidents.

But at least one noted political scientist, Dr. Luigi V. Populi, believes Nixon can make a good case of having picked up profanity from his predecessors.

"Where else could he have learned to cuss like that?" Populi reasoned. "Pat doesn't swear, and Julie and Tricia don't swear, and you can bet your boots David doesn't.

"Furthermore, he isn't likely to have learned it from any of his boon companions. I'm quite sure an oath never crossed the lips of Bebe Rebozo.

No Colloquialisms Even

"In the law firms with which Nixon was associated they don't even permit colloquialisms, much less obscenities.

"And it goes without saying that the speech of Congress is devoid of vulgarity.

"But notice that almost from the time he frst came to Washington, Nixon was thrown into the company of presidents. He has had private conversations with them and heard how they talk under pressure.

"For anyone who wanted to be president as much as he did, it would be only natural to emulate the speech of the incumbents.

"Therefore it is reasonable to assume that the expletives in his vocabulatory stem from what psychologists call 'peer group identification.

If Populi is on the right track, the bill of impeachment may be dead. Instead, Congress will approve a constitutional amendment requiring Nixon to go to the blackboard and write "I must not use naughty words" 100 times.

Careers in Animal Torture.

Spot.

Lady.

Spot leaps desperately to escape electric shock through a shock collar. If he doesn't jump fast enough, the researcher shocks him by remote control and he rolls and howls in pain. Lady is being electric shocked too. But she is too terrified to leap. So she suffers the shock in frozen silence.

Why is the researcher electric shocking Spot and Lady? Because that's what he was educated and trained to do.

Students at institutions all across the country are receiving the same kind of science education and training. In medical schools. Universities. Colleges. Hospitals. Primate centers. Even in veterinary schools. Students can earn their PhD's and other academic titles by electric shocking animals and tormenting and injuring them in other ways. Congress votes millions of dollars annually to help pay for this education in cruelty, but then is unable or afraid to tell the public how the money is really used.

Only an aroused citizenry can stop this secrecy in government and this abuse of animals that has been masquerading as education for more than 50 years. We need your help to inform the public of what is being done to animals in our institutions of higher learning. Please use the coupon below for more information.

'Good Times' Father May Envy Character He Plays On TV

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — John Amos, the black father in the new "Good Times" series, may well envy the character he plays as compared to his real life role as husband and parent.

In the series Amos is unemployed much of the time, but he is the solid, authoritative figure in the black family trying to keep body and soul together in a Chicago housing project.

As an actor Amos is fully employed. In addition to "Good Times" he has been a recurring character in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" playing weather newscaster Gordy, and he can be seen in a singing commercial for a national hamburger chain.

But Amos, a heavily muscled former athlete, is in the midst of a divorce from his wife, who won custody of their two children.

Loves Animals

He rarely speaks of his private life or reasons for divorce.

For the time being, Amos lives in a rented apartment on the periphery of the San Fernando Valley, where government-owned land abutted his own property.

His choice for living near open country was not accidental. Amos is an animal lover of gargantuan proportions.

When he and Mrs. Amos separated she also won custody of three horses, 40 chickens, five cats, four kittens, three dogs and three goats. All of the critters were dear to the heart of John Amos.

Asked why, he answers: "After a hard day's work in show business I like to come back to animals. They're easier to be around. They're passive and conducive to relaxing. I love to feed the chickens and go horseback riding."

Amos is looking to relocate near his former residence and establish another menagerie.

As a rule he works from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. during the week. He watches his diet and skips lunch in favor of working out at a gym during the noon break.

His social life is almost nil. His ties are still with the Mary Tyler Moore group. He is a dinner guest infrequently at the Ed Asners (he plays Lou Grant) and at the home of Valerie Harper and her husband.

Amos is a relaxed, low key man with a rich sense of humor and a great compassion for his CBS show. He thinks "Good Times" is the first show to clearly identify the black family in terms that can be understood by other Americans.

He identifies with his character, James Evans, in that he too held menial jobs from street cleaner to auto assembly line worker.

Now that the show is on its annual hiatus Amos is busy at the typewriter and hopes to complete three scripts for the series for next season.

He got his start in show business writing copy for an ad agency and turning out comedy material for other television shows.

Dear Abby

Generalizing peoples' characters is dangerous

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have this theory, and I would like your opinion. If you want to know a person's true character, find out how he feels about animals.

People who like animals and make a big fuss over them have a very kind and affectionate nature and are likely to make good mates and parents.

But a person who dislikes animals [especially dogs and cats] and either ignores or mistreats them, is sure to be unkind, inconsiderate and unaffectionate and will probably make a very poor mate or parent.

What do you think? ANIMAL LOVER

DEAR LOVER: Generalizations are dangerous. There are people who relate much better to animals than they do to humans, so they naturally make a big fuss over animals—but it doesn't necessarily follow that they will make better mates or parents. We've all known animal lovers who lavish an excessive amount of affection on pets, but who are cruel to people. The best index to a person's character is [a] how he treats people who can't do him any good, and [b] how he treats people who can't fight back.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 22 years and have the reputation of being a very good cook.

Whenever we have company and someone compliments me on my cooking, my husband says: "She's great in the kitchen, but she's not so hot in the bedroom." It always gets a laugh. My husband thinks he is being funny. I don't.

How should I respond next time he says this?

GREAT IN THE KITCHEN

DEAR GREAT: Ask your husband if he'd be happier if you slept in the kitchen and cooked in the bedroom.

DEAR ABBY: I will have to go back a long way to fill you in on what kind of person I am, and my wife as well.

Fifty years ago I married a preacher's daughter. I was the town "bad boy." I was late to my own wedding as I was rolling dice in the back room behind the barber shop and forgot the time. The wedding got a late start, and we missed the train for our honeymoon.

We raised four good kids, though. The boys both got through college and are doing well, and the girls married fine men. We have ten nice grandchildren. I'm retired now, so I'm spending more time playing cards with the boys at the club. The problem my wife is threatening to divorce me over is my not getting home on time. I get tied up talking to somebody, or shooting pool, or playing cards, and I don't know where the time goes. I get home late, and the wife is ready to skin me.

She never had to work outside the house a day in her life, and we've always had a joint checking account. I never looked at another woman, and I drink like a gentleman. But she says if I am late once more it's the end of our marriage. Is this fair? THE LATE JOHN S. McB.

DEAR LATE: My guess is that she doesn't mean it. But on the chance that I'm wrong, shape up and keep your eye on the clock, Grandpa.

WEDDING-ENGAGEMENT DEADLINE

The following deadlines and procedure on wedding stories will be as follows: For a wedding story to appear in a Sunday edition, information and picture must be turned in to the women's editor by 5 p.m. on the Monday BEFORE the wedding. All wedding stories submitted after that time will appear during the week. Engagement announcements must be submitted by 12 noon Wednesday to appear in Sunday's edition.

TOPS TX-41

Members of TOPS TX-41 met recently at Zion Lutheran Church, 1200 Duncan.

Linda Richter was honored as monthly queen for having the most weight loss for the month.

Weekly fruit basket winners for April were Juanita Stump, Ellen Hamlin, Linda Richter, Connie Fulton, Mary Graham, Veda Maggart and Ruby Jones.

The club had a net loss of 15 pounds for the month of April.

LAMAR PTA

"Getting involved in activities and actions of the younger generation," was the topic for discussion at the recent coffee held by Lamar PTA members.

Mrs. E.R. Sikes, Jr., 825 S. Banks, hosted the meeting and introduced Principal Dan Johnson to the new in-coming officers for the local unit.

Farm specialists say that deficiencies of three relatively minor elements —boron, zinc and molybdenum —can have adverse effects on crop growth and production.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, MAY 17

Your birthday today: Philosophy may help, faith will help tenfold as you meet the challenges of this uphill year. You have to count solely on your own resources from start to finish; you do, however, attract cooperation in fair proportion to your unassisted efforts. Relationships often get slighted as outside considerations prove distracting. Today's natives are patient, industrious, well adapted by nature for today's competitive conditions.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Caution with all things electrical or mechanical should have priority today. Special opportunity arises from coincidence, luck in the midst of a passing moment of stress.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Your own welfare should come first, so you're in still better position to protect those you cherish. Colleagues pursue their own plans—check to limit confusion, duplication.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Follow your own intuition rather than friendly advice. If in doubt, leave your financial arrangements in safe order. There's plenty of time for most matters.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Business affairs run to temporary sticking points. Time out to attend home and family concerns is normal for current conditions. Try to see the views of others.

Leo [July 23 - Aug. 22]: Work alone if it's possible, expecting no immediate detailed cooperation. Wind up your work week first, then catch up correspondence, neglected household routines.

Virgo [Aug. 23 - Sept. 22]: Your finances are subject to scattering; make sure your money goes for genuine necessities, neglected obligations. Clear out anything you own that has lost its purpose.

Libra [Sept. 23 - Oct. 22]: There's nothing for present circumstances but to continue tact and tolerance. Associates and family eventually come to see things your way, but not for the moment.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Avoid legal technicality; be in the clear from the beginning. Without special pressure, take the trouble to work out compromises, sharing of responsibility.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: There's likely some extra expense, so forget about splurging just yet. Avoid lending or betting on a "sure thing." Gather old friends to compare notes.

Capricorn [Dec. 22 - Jan. 19]: Prefer the nearest expedient, the temporary, rather than overinvestment or purchase of extensive quantity of anything. Just maintaining current levels is enough for the day.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Concentrate on routine, don't casually discuss immediate plans or recent journeys. You can be misunderstood by those unfamiliar with the background information.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: The welfare of those near you raises your concern and your expenses. Let the past rest where you can. There's enough here and now to keep all hands busy.

Brittian-Roberts

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brittian of Borger announce the engagement of their daughter, Amanda Lea to Leon Roberts, son of A.J. Roberts of Lipan and Mrs. Patsy Snapp. Nuptial vows will be read August 9 in the First Baptist Church of Fritch. Miss Brittian is the granddaughter of Charlie and Odell Brittian of Amarillo and former Kelton residents.

Pitman-Johnson

Presbyterian Church in Hereford will be the scene of a May 25 wedding for Jaime Ruth Pitman and Gary Ray Johnson. The announcement is made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Pitman of Hereford. Mr. and Mrs. R.O. Johnson of Pampa are parents of the bridegroom. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Johnson of Kelton and Mrs. W.O. Ray and the late W.O. Ray of Shamrock. The future bride attended both Oklahoma University and Texas Tech University.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

When co-operation from the defenders is necessary to set up an end - play position, it is usually necessary to lay the groundwork early, before they have a chance to figure out what is going on. Today's deal is a case in point. Sitting South was United States Internationalist, Robbert Hamman. The deal arose in the 1974 Spring National Championships.

North-South vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ A J 10 8 4
♡ Q 10 9 2
◇ A K 9

WEST
♠ K 2
♡ 8 6
◇ J 3
♣ K Q J 8 5 4 2

EAST
♠ Q 7
♡ J 7 5 4 3
◇ Q 8 7
♣ 10 9 6

SOUTH
♠ 9 6 5 3
♡ A K
◇ 10 6 5 4 2
♣ 7 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	3 ♣	Dbl.	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

After dummy's ace of clubs had captured the opening lead, the ace of trumps was immediately laid down, East playing the seven and West the deuce. Next came a heart to South's ace, after which declarer ruffed his remaining club with dummy's jack. Clubs had just been eliminated from both the North and South hands.

The diamond ace was now cashed, and this was followed by a heart to South's king. Then came a diamond to the board's king, West dropping the jack. The red suits had now been eliminated from West's hand, leaving him with the singleton king of trumps and a heap of clubs.

A trump was then led, thrusting West into the lead. West now had no option but to lead a club, on which dummy's remaining diamond was discarded as South ruffed the trick in his own hand. Thus declarer avoided the loss of a diamond trick. He ended up making two overtricks, which gave him an excellent result on the deal.

The result might have been different if declarer had deferred cashing the ace of trumps until after he had eliminated the red suits from the West hand. In this latter case, West might well have seen what South was trying to accomplish: and when South later played the ace of spades, West, perceiving that he was enroute to being end - played, would have "unblocked" by tossing his king of trumps on dummy's ace.

When declarer then made a second trump lead, East would obtain the lead with his high queen. And East would now cash the queen of diamonds, thereby preventing declarer from garnering in two overtricks. As declarer played the hand, he gave West no clue as to what was going to develop; and, at trick two, West made the normal play of not tossing away his king.

More than 90 per cent of the agricultural crops harvested in California receive irrigation.

Fashion — In A World Of Shortages And Crises

COLLEGE STATION — Fashion — everyone talks about it.

Fashion has a new role today — amidst the energy crisis, fiber shortages and delivery problems, coupled with inflation and the cost of living, says Mrs. Becky Culp.

"As a result, consumers prefer fewer clothes — those with year - round appeal and higher quality in tasteful designs," the clothing specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, noted.

"Fashion extremes, dictates and frivolities receive less attention."

Mrs. Culp maintained that a specific garment, design or fabric has lesser importance as a fashion trend. New trends lean on overall categories that have flexibility within — such as the "bare look" for summer '74.

"In addition, fashion promotions by industry have slowed down considerably.

"According to a recent survey of major retail stores, an average store featured and promoted four to 12 major fashion trends during 1973. Of these, half became consumer favorites.

"Stores which were more selective in their promotions received greater consumer acceptance," she added.

Ten years ago, most fashion trends originated from expensive designer garments. During 1973, in contrast, less than 40 per cent of retail sales involved such items, the specialist said.

"Last year also saw an equal amount of all purchases made in dress, sportswear and junior departments — an increase. Experts attribute this change to more fashion information readily available to a variety of consumers — coupled with industry's faster adaption and production of fashions in all price ranges."

In general, Mrs. Culp predicted "continued excitement for fashion enthusiasts — with clothes that look and feel right for the time."

WORLD PREMIERE

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — The Lake George Opera Festival this summer will present an opera world premiere. The work is "The Child" by Jose Raul Bernardo, 34-year-old Cuban, and the first performance will be on Aug. 8 at the Performing Arts Center, State University of New York in Albany.

Doctrine Of Incompetence

John Doar, impeachment counsel to the House Judiciary Committee, raised a question as to the accuracy of the edited transcripts of the White House tapes.

If accuracy is a genuine question, why doesn't Committee Chairman Peter Rodino listen to the tapes as President Nixon invited him to do?

The explanation that Doar gives is that both Rodino and his Republican colleague, Rep. Edward Hutchinson, are technically incompetent to judge whether relevant material has been omitted or if the tapes have been tampered with. Rodino agreed with the counsel.

The admitted incompetence of the impeachers thus becomes the basis for a claim that part of the impeachment investigation ought to be hired out to more qualified personnel; namely to the staff appointed by Mr. Rodino. The claim takes the form of the subpoena issued from the committee, as agent for the House, that the tapes must be made available to the committee staff.

The procedure here might be compared to the routine that a lawyer goes through as officer of the court when he brings a piece of paper to a court clerk. The clerk's signature magically transforms the formerly ineffective paper into a legal requirement backed by the police power of the state. Similarly, the House Judiciary Committee — acting under standing rules or custom — would normally be expected to wield the full power of the House, as though it were the House itself.

One point colors that picture just a little — certain language in the U.S. Constitution. Article I, Section 2 (5) states, "The House of Representatives ... shall have the sole power of impeachment."

The word "sole" either means nothing or it means something. If it means nothing, then it may be presumed not to be in the document; therefore, it has a meaning. Can it mean anything else than that the House of Representatives per se must shoulder the burden; that the impeachment chore can come to rest in no other place?

The House of course may determine the rules of its proceedings (Article I, Section 5 (2), but obviously any rule so made has to be in accordance with other constitutional provisions including the "sole power" clause.

Well, then, supposing that rule - making can be stretched so far as to permit the full House to farm out the preliminary impeachment investigation to Rodino's judiciary committee, but it does not follow that the committee can extend the rule - making even further. What you see here is this: The House hands an early phase of its "sole power" to a committee, and the committee in turn begs off because of its incompetence and hires unelected outsiders to do the work. We suppose that could be called the rubber - band theory of constitutional interpretation.

The reason for the subpoena is not to make the tapes availabe to committee members. That is already the case. The subpoena is to make the tapes available to the hired experts. Frankly we don't know whether an ordinary subpoena, issued from the committee, will stand up, because an impeachment - type subpoena might reasonably be tied to the "sole power" restriction on impeachments.

Of course, you can kick the subject around forever. The meat of it is, the Constitution's writers clearly expected impeachment to be conducted by electees, not by appointees. At that time the House was the only popularly elected body in the federal government. But you know politicians have a gift. Maybe the original intent can be changed by a latter-day interpretation to become known as the Doctrine of Congressional Imcompetence.

ALL THAT GLITTERS

Letter To A Fellow Lefty

By VIC GOLD

SINISTER: adj., on the left side, unlucky, unauspicious ... dishonestly underhanded ... singularly evil or productive of evil.

Dear Mr. Vice President:

Pardon the scrawl, but I'm writing this letter out longhand, you see, instead of typing it. Reminding myself, as I proceed, of the rank injustice we lefthanders have endured over the years. Because as I write, with knuckles smearing along the page in the wake of what I've written, the evidence of the malign neglect of a righthanded society is there to see. On the knuckles and shirtcuffs which will have to be washed when I'm finished.

It's all part of the systematic pattern of de facto discrimination we portsiders begin suffering in our elementary school days. As kids we're seated at desks which, in the first place, are constructed for righthanders. Then, Palmer - method writing instruction commences (similar to Palmer - method golf which you encounter during later life, wherein the instructor, despite your natural inclination, tries to get you to play the game righthanded).

All right, everybody, the teacher tells the class, center your page. Now, angle it to the left. Which everybody does — including Our Kind. All she has to do is remember that there's a forgotten minority in the classroom: ask US to angle our sheets to the right. Then people like you and me could spend our lifetimes writing behind - and under our longhand. Right?

Well, to tell the truth, Mr. Vice President, I had no idea that you were a member of our minority. Then that news photo appeared in all the papers last week. The one which showed you scribbling over the text of your speech just before addressing that audience at your alma mater, the University of Michigan.

I spotted it immediately: the telltale pen poised above - and - moving - across whatever it was you were writing. And needless to say, as a member of the lefthanders' minority and the father of yet another member, I took heart. So one of Our Kind finally made it, I thought. A lefthanded scribbler at the top echelon of government. In a position to do something that might get our legitimate grievances aired. Somebody who's actually walked in our shoes. Or written with our hands, as it were.

Of course, the insensitive, biased majority that sets the physical specifications for schools and public places couldn't care less about our problems. In fact, they encourage all the subtle forms of righthanded chauvinism we put up with even in later life. Things like water handles on fountains in buildings always being located on the righthand side. Don't we pay taxes, too? Shouldn't one out of every ten, at least, be on the left side?

And aside from the knuckle - washing, what about the brain - washing? The pejorative semantics we have to put up with every day. Words and phrases to remind us that we're an inferior species. Like "lefthanded compliment." Or what about, as an expression of clumsiness: "He has two left feet?" As if two right feet could play the pivot for the Milwaukee Bucks!

At that, I guess we're among the LUCKY unlucky ones. At least we didn't have parents and teachers who tied our left hands behind our backs to get us right (as did King George VI). But still, there's a long way to go to set things aright (see what I mean?) in a society contrived, built and operated to frustrate the physical convenience of one - tenth of its population.

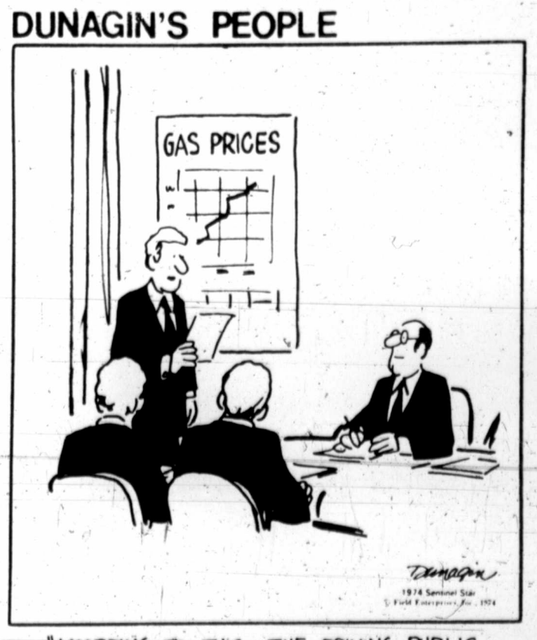

But you're the man who can do it, Jerry. I tell you, seeing that photo in the papers gave us all a lift. Only one thing: keep a sharp eye (the left one) out for them.

For example, what could Alex Haig have meant not long ago when he blamed that 18½-minute tape erasure on "sinister forces?" See what I mean? They'll stop at nothing. Don't trust ANYBODY without smeared knuckles.

Inauspiciously yours...

Kennedy Is Running 'Scared'

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — After talking with the victorious Gov. George Wallace during what should have been his gayest moments on Alabama's recent primary election night, I understood far better than ever before why Ted Kennedy is running scared — literally as well as physically and politically. The bullet which hacked the Governor's spine still throws an awesome shadow over national politics.

George Wallace's voice was weary and pain - wracked. Immediately it brought to mind what Sen. Kennedy told a German newsman in Bonn April 8 when the reporter asked him if he was frightened of some future would-be assassin.

"Yes," mused the 42 - year - old survivor of the three brothers, "if I am honest."

Nonetheless, Ted is running. That's the latest, bluntest absolute word from several of his most intimate friends and shadow cabinet members.

These are the men who slipped out of the political apparatus into the business and industrial world. These are the sleepers. These are the men now readying to swing back into the old presidential operation as only the Kennedy cult can.

Sen. Kennedy has done his homework. He's not making Bobby Kennedy's strategic errors. The Senator knows, for example, he will need the powerful, instant, political machinery of the sprawling labor movement. He knows he just doesn't have it with him at this moment. He is aware that for most of the labor leadership the semi - official candidate is Washington state's Henry (Scoop) Jackson. And Ted Kennedy is out there, hitting labor convention after labor convention picking up support, whipping up audiences, avoiding direct mention of his own candidacy but never disavowing it. Nor does he mention Watergate.

He does more than touch base with the man who quadrennially turns the labor movement into a major political party in all but name. This man is AFL-CIO chief George Meany. Ted keeps in close touch with Mister Meany and the AFL-CIO's secretary - treasurer, Lane Kirkland.

I do believe, and I think Ted Kennedy does too, that no Democratic presidential nominee can unleash a major national campaign of near successful proportions, without the backing in money and manpower of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE). So we find the Massachusetts Senator rushing from Russia to Miami to address Teddy Gleason's International Longshoremen's Assn. (AFL-CIO) pension and welfare conference.

And then back to Washington for more labor scheduling — the AFL-CIO Conference on Community Services. In a few weeks, he will fly back to Miami to address the national conventions of Lou Stulberg's International Ladies Garment Workers Union and Max Greenberg's Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union. You'll win easy money if you wager that Scoop Jackson is the favorite son of both these unions.

Already on Kennedy's schedule is an upcoming conference of Joe Tonelli's United Paperworkers International Union in September. And so it goes. Riproaring cheers. Introductions by union presidents who avoid politics. But the imagery of Jack and Bobby, gossamer though it is, blurs the voice and the face and the delegates are back in the early '60s.

No sophisticated labor leader doubts Kennedy is running. They're realists. They want to win. They searched Tuesday's primaries for subtleties to foreshadow the things to come. Some inside COPE took a long hard look at the John Glenn - Howard Metzenbaum Ohio senatorial primary fight. Deep in the background as they analyzed the precinct statistics in their backrooms they saw the Kennedy mantle on Glenn's shoulders. The ex-astronaut has long been a friend of "the family." Jack touted him. Bobby fought for him. Ted did too. Here Glenn is known as a Kennedy man.

The labor movement is eggshell tiptoeing. They threw a couple of million, says one union chief, behind Metzenbaum in hard cash and soft services. International Assn. of Machinists (AFL-CIO) mobilized its Ohio State Council. Telphone banks sprang up. The national AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Dept. had some strategists shuttling between Washington and Cleveland for Metzenbaum. The auto workers concentrated. Metzenbaum had "the whole thing." And lost heavily.

But even that's not the point. What's vital to the labor political strategists is that their man Metzenbaum, who introduced some 15 bills in their favor in the few months he has had in the Senate, lost many working - class districts. He lost in the urban centers. The rank and file just didn't believe their leaders' message.

And that's in Ohio — not exactly the almost factory - less New Mexico. This is a slashing defeat for the labor machine. But not for "the Kennedys." At least that's what some of the Kennedy people are telling some of the national labor chiefs. It is pointed out that the 52 - year - old Glenn had one, possibly two unions with him.

So the labor professionals are taking another look at Ted. They know he's running. And up on top they're not guessing. They want to throw their money and manpower on a winner. They're being stalked on the left by the old McGovern's new politics and on the right by George Corley Wallace's old politics. And they don't really see Scoop Jackson leading them out of the wilderness.

So they're beginning to look at Ted as once they looked at Jack — the young man so few of them knew in '60 that he had to be taken by the hand by Mr. Labor Lawyer Arthur Goldberg and introduced all around.

It took hundreds of off - the - record breakfasts, lunches and shoes - off hotel suite gabfests for John F. Kennedy to get to know the labor chiefs. Ted Kennedy isn't waiting that long. Watch him on the union circuit. He's running.

TURNING CHILDREN AGAINST PARENTS

It is generally recognized that one of the great evils of our time is the growing gulf between parents and children. Yet now government is making these divisions deeper by turning children even more against their parents.

Congress has authorized the tax-paid distribution of birth control pills and devices to minors without parental consent. And the "legal services" program of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) has supported lawsuits on behalf of juveniles to establish their "right" to an abortion without parental consent or even knowledge.

An article in OEO's Clearinghouse Review went so far as to say that if a girl is old enough to have a baby, she is old enough to be allowed to have it aborted by her own decision. One might as well say that any person old enough to eat has a right to take poison. Many believe that the decision for abortion is always wrong. Certainly it is a decision too big for a young teenage girl to make alone, without her parents.

In St. Louis, the "legal services" program sued a child's parents for "neglect" for withdrawing her from "a program of psychiatric evaluation and treatment." The lawsuit failed, but the intent was clearly to deprive her parents of all authority. In San Francisco last year, "legal services" filed suit against a girl's father for opening her mail.

All of this is being paid for by the taxes of parents, most of whom would vehemently and rightly object to legal actions of this kind. It is government's business to protect the family, not destroy it.

Release Of Transcripts Is A Study In Paradox

By GARRY WILLS

The release of edited White House tape transcripts was a marvelous study in paradox. It both widened and narrowed the inquiry. It flooded the market with Nixon indiscretions and petty non - crimes (most criminals having more delicacy and thieves' honor than the President can, any longer, lay claim to). But it also, in this lava - spread of pettiness, narrowed things to one precise locale. The transcripts deal with the Watergate break-in; and the transcript defense begins with the fact that Nixon did not know about that break-in from the outset — something that has always been obvious, it seems to me.

But the President's lawyer wants to go for broke on an even more narrow point — that Mr. Nixon did not countenance the paying of hush money to E. Howard Hunt. It is the President's game to stake everything on one issue, however ambiguous; since he can at least predict the lines of attack on this single redoubt. But even on this chosen point of battle, with all the evidence pre-sifted by the President's employes (under Fred Buzhardt), things do not look good. His men make, essentially, two claims: that the President did not authorize payment; and that the President's men, who did do the authorizing, had pure motives.

Take the first point alone, the stronger of the two. The whole Nixon team leans heavily on the fact that their paragon did, once in all the transcripts, amid innumerable expletives and unintelligibles, get the word "wrong" out from between his teeth. For a man to whom such categories as "right and wrong" seem alien, this is a victory understandably celebrated.

Still, context indicates something unfavorable that recorded nuance may decide — and the chance to monitor inflections is denied to most of us, though this testing spot was singled out by Nixon's own defenders. The whole phrase turns on the way its first monosyllable was spoken: "No."

Imagine that I come up to you and say, "Let's dump our wives this weekend and bed out with two cuties I have line up?" And you answer, "No — it is wrong, that's for sure." Morality triumphs.

But suppose I said, "Gee, I'd like for us to get away with Trixie and Flossie, but I'm sure our wives would find out." And you say, "No — it is wrong, that's for sure." Morality squeaks by, in that case, despite itself — prudence prevailing over scruples. Your inflection tells us everything.

Well, the context of Mr. Nixon's famous remark on what is "wrong" resembles the second case, not the first. Do his inflections confirm this? He does not want us to know. But the context points in that direction.

Chance gives us a marvelous illustration of the key role played by inflection, in the Gene Hackman movie; "Conversation." There, everything depends on which words are emphasized in the simple phrase, "He would kill us if he could." Hackman's whole error is that he did not catch the right ictus — a life and death matter. The movie should be required viewing for every member of the Judiciary Committee.

Absent the live recording, there is a valuable indicator of what Nixon meant in a later part of the transcripts themselves. On pages 1034 and 1035, Mr. Nixon and Mr. Haldeman are recalling this conversation with John Dean, and Haldeman says: "They could jump and then say, 'Yes, well that was morally wrong. What you should have said is that blackmail is wrong, not that it's too costly.'"

Mr. Nixon's reply is muffled, but does not seem to challenge Haldeman at the factual level: "Oh, well, that point (inaudible) investigation—" At best, the exchange gives us another argument for rehearing the tapes themselves. At worst, it shows Haldeman — and, apparently, Nixon — agreeing on the tone and purport of the conversation as tactical, not moral.

I have not gone, yet, into the matter of Nixon's distinction between hush money and clemency, or between his own hints and nods at a payoff and his knowledge that underlings were doing the hinting and nodding. These are subtleties, and they will be studied in time.

More important, at the outset, is the intimate record of Nixon and Haldeman agreeing in their memory with Dean that the real obstruction to further blackmail payments by the White House was not moral but prudential. It was "wrong" in that sense — which seems to be the only sense of wrong Mr. Nixon has, to this point in this life, maintained.

DR. JEAN MAYER'S "Food for Thought"

NUTRITION AND AGE

By DR. JEAN MAYER
Professor of Nutrition
Harvard University

Hardly anybody likes the idea of growing old. No doubt that is why certain quacks and health profiteers find it so easy to hoodwink so many people into believing they will live longer and feel younger if they swallow enormous doses of certain vitamins or take copious amounts of "natural" nutritional supplements.

Nobody has found a shred of proof for the claim of preserving youth by consuming a daily diet of pills and concoctions, but food and nutrition do indeed play a major role in fostering good health and a longer life.

We know for certain that good nutrition can prevent or alleviate certain diseases of old age. We strongly suspect that better nutrition might even retard the process of aging itself. And finally, we can pinpoint certain conditions of old age that interfere with good nutrition — and we know that this problem can be corrected.

As a person grows older, he needs fewer calories, because he is less physically active, and because some of his protein tissue is slowly being replaced by fat — even in persons who are not overweight. At the same time, the older person needs just as much protein as a much younger individual, and probably just as much calcium.

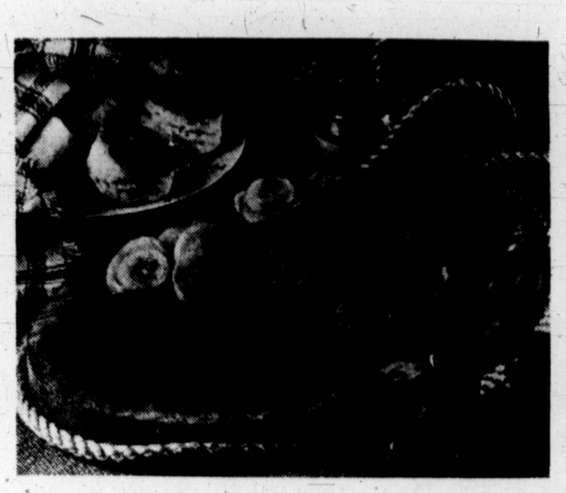

He certainly needs as much iron as he ever did — and probably is not getting enough. Iron - deficiency anemia is common in the elderly of both sexes, particularly those who have little money or little incentive to eat a varied diet. An older person hardly needs to begin taking flourine in order to build strong tooth formation, but a lifelong use of adequate flouride not only helps keep healthy teeth longer, it also seems to lower the risk of osteoporosis — that loss of calcium from bones which makes them brittle and prone to fracture.

Older people still need the usual vitamins, too. Indeed, B vitamin deficiency may account for much of the mental confusion seen in the elderly. If the condition is misdiagnosed as "just something to be expected with age," instead of the vitamin deficiency it actually is, an old person may be confined to a nursing home where the diet may be inadequate and the desire to eat at all may be further depressed by lack of companionship. So the fuzzy mental condition goes from bad to worse — and all unnecessarily.

Deficiencies in the fat soluble vitamins A, D and E are more frequent in the aged, because of the widespread habit of living on simple things like tea and toast and consuming a diet vary low in fat, as well as the habitual ingestion of mineral oil as a laxative (the mineral oil drains fat soluble vitamins away).

All in all, there is no evidence that the older you get the less nutrients you need. But since you do need less quantity of food as you grow older, the quality of the diet actually needs to be higher than it does for younger, more active people. Unfortunately, poverty (more than one quarter of all elderly Americans are below the poverty line), lack of transportation (due to lack of money or various physical handicaps), lack of mobility and capacity to shop, and lack of companionship militate against the elderly receiving adequate diet from the viewpoint of nutrients.

We have no positive proof, at least not in humans. But long experience and common sense do tell us that a lifelong healthy diet, along with the good - health practices of exercise, avoidance of smoking and various dietary excesses, may not make life longer, but definitely can make it healthier and more enjoyable. And while good nutrition won't do a thing to prevent your becoming 65 or 70, it may postpone the day when you FEEL like 65 or 70.

LASSO A SUPER BEEF STEAK FOR DAD! Be a real "pardner" and treat him to a thick steak broiled just right.

He'll be the happiest of Dads when served slices of this big and beautiful top round steak, marinated and broiled to perfection on the outdoor grill or indoors. Sherry, soy sauce and lemon juice form the base for the marinade that both tenderizes and adds an intriguing flavor accent to this most satisfying steak, according to Reba Staggs, National Live Stock & Meat Board.

Dad's Steak Special

Chill a beef top round steak, cut 1½ to 1¾ inches thick; score on both sides in diamond pattern, ⅛ inch deep, with a sharp knife. Combine ½ cup sherry, ½ cup soy sauce, ¼ cup salad oil, ¼ cup lemon juice, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, ½ teaspoon ginger, 1 clove minced garlic and 10 drops hot sauce in saucepan. Cook slowly 10 minutes; chill. Place steak in plastic bag, add marinade, carefully press out air, tie securely and place in pan in refrigerator for 6 to 8 hours or overnight. Remove steak from marinade, reserving marinade, and place on grill over ash-covered coals or on rack in broiling pan so surface of meat is 4 to 5 inches from heat. Broil at moderate temperature to rare or medium (25 to 40 minutes, depending on thickness of steak and doneness desired), brushing with marinade and turning occasionally. Carve in thin slices, diagonally across the grain.

Texas Lamb Industry Big But Consumption Small

AUSTIN — Not too long ago, mere mention of the word "sheep" was enough to start a range war in Texas. Today, the wooly animal is politely ignored except in those 10 or so counties where it is big business. Last year Texas marketed $49.5 million in sheep and lambs to make it second to New Mexico in cash receipts.

"We may produce a lot of lamb, but we sure haven't been eating much," said Agriculture Commissioner John C. White. "About 95 percent of lambs slaughtered in Texas are sent east and to the West Coast where folks appreciate them."

White and others in the Texas Department of Agriculture, however, think the picture is changing. They cite the influx of people from out of state, especially into areas like Dallas and Houston. Many bring with them a taste for lamb, which creates a greater demand for it. Roasts and chops are starting to appear in the meat counters of major chains.

Lamb comes from animals 4 to 12 months old. Always tender, it is not to be confused with mutton which comes from older animals and has a strong flavor. Mutton is used mainly in sausage and processed meat.

Lamb is a versatile meat. An unglamorous cut like shanks, when cooked in wine, takes on a company air. Lamb curry, made from scratch or leftover roast is a sure - fire way to beat the mealtime blahs.

ROAST LEG OF LAMB

Select a leg 5-8 pounds. The fat will be covered in a paperlike "fell." Do not cut it off. It holds in juices and retains the shape of the roast. Season as desired before or after cooking. For additional flavor, cut four or five small slits in the meat and insert slivers of garlic. A sprinkling of rosemary gives a delightful cooking odor. Place meat fat side up on a rack in roasting pan. Roast uncovered 30-35 minutes a pound in a 325 degree oven. Before carving remove garlic.

TO CARVE: Place roast on a platter with shank bone to carver's right. Cut a few lengthwise slices from the thin side and turn the leg over so it rests flat on the cut side. Make vertical slices down to the leg bone. Cut horizontally along the bone to release slices.

DIRECTOR NAMED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alan Jabhour, head of the Archive of Folk Song at the Library of Congress, has been named Director of Folk Art for the National Endowment of the Arts.

Queen Now Living In Manhattan

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hope Cooke, the only American ever to become a queen, has been separated from King Palden Thondup Namgyal of Sikkim since last summer as a result of political events and is living almost incognito in New York.

Friends of the 33-year-old one-time New York debutante respect her desire for privacy and refuse to divulge the location of her reportedly modest East Side Manhattan apartment, a sharp contrast to the 15-room Himalayan palace where she lived for 10 years as crown princess and queen. But all insist the separation is geographical, not marital.

With Queen Hope in New York are her two children, Prince Palden, 10, and Princess Hope Leezum, 6, and a daughter of the king's by his first marriage, Princess Yangchen Dolma. The latter has been undergoing treatment for a kidney ailment.

The queen's own children have been enrolled at a Manhattan private school which has a reputation for progressive educational methods since last September.

Queen Hope left Sikkim shortly after her husband signed an agreement last May with India which ended more than a month of political upheaval in Sikkim, a country of 2,744 square miles with 210,000 population.

The royal family was under virtual house arrest and there is reason to believe the king could not leave Sikkim today — even for a vacation —with any expectation of returning to his throne.

"I don't know when I'll see my wife again," the king has said.

Since 1950, Sikkim has been a protectorate of India, although it has had a degree of internal autonomy. In April 1973, two dissident political parties charged the king with rigging state council elections in favor of his supporters. Some 20,000 protesters marched on the capital, Gangtok.

Indian troops took control to preserve public order and the king acceded to the creation of a legislative assembly elected by adult franchise. Later, one of his nephews charged that the coup was engineered by neocolonialist elements in the Indian government. The king was relegated to a consultative position.

New Developments Threatening To End Need For Spare Tire

DETROIT (UPI) — New developments from the tire industry could make the spare tire about as necessary as the hand crank.

Whether the tire and auto manufacturers will be able to convince motorists they don't need a spare is another story altogether. Thousands of tubes are sold each year although tubeless tires have been on the market since the 1950's.

The B. F. Goodrich Co. has developed a tire that will seal most punctures while the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. has followed a different route with a tire that can be driven 50 miles after going flat. Both could eliminate the need for a fifth tire.

The energy crisis has pushed Americans toward smaller and more economical cars and, at the same time, has left automakers looking for ways to cut down the weight of their cars. Automotive engineers would love to be able to eliminate the space and weight taken up by a spare tire, its wheel and jack.

"It's a kind of emotional subject trying to get motorists to rely on just the four tires on their car," observed one Firestone official during a display of the company's Steel Radial 500 ACT (Advanced Concept Tire).

Firestone engineers said tests have shown that a flat ACT tire can be driven about 50 miles at about 40 miles per hour, depending on what caused the tire damage and added there was an even greater margin built into the tire. A conventional tire would be ruined if driven only a fraction of a mile at that speed.

To prove the capability of the tire to run while it's flat, a crew drove 245 miles in a Ford Pinto on which the front tire was punctured and the air valve stem removed to make sure the tire was flat.

The demonstration for newsmen covered the distance between Firestone headquarters in Akron, Ohio, to a ski lodge at Clarkston, north of Detroit, over turnpikes, freeways and city streets. They maintained a legal speed limit of 55 miles per hour on the turnpikes and freeways.

Bump Designed

The tire runs so smoothly while flat that engineers have decided to design in a "bump" that will cause a slight vibration while it's running flat. The "bump" would warn the driver that the tire needs attention, but would not affect the steering or handling of the car.

While company officials say no price has been set for the tire when it is finally introduced during the 1976 model year, it probably will be more expensive than conventional steel radial tires. One objective, however, is to make four cheaper than five of the present tires.

The ACT steel radial tire is constructed in such a way that should a flat occur the tire would settle down onto the wheel rim. The tire would not flop on the rim, as does a conventional tire when air pressure is lost. It is the flopping that results in steering control difficulty and damage to both the tire and the wheel.

Richard A. Riley, Firestone president, said that flat tires are becoming less common with the increased use of belted tires.

"But our surveys show that one-third of car-owning households had a flat tire during the past year," Riley said.

Punctures Sealed

He added that 72 per cent of these occurred within two miles of a service station, while 5 per cent were more than 10 miles from a service facility. The survey also showed that 38 per cent of the tires which went flat were well worn at the time.

While Firestone looks for a way to let a driver keep going even though he has a flat tire, Goodrich would rather design a tire that probably won't go flat in most cases.

Goodrich put its self-sealing Golden Lifesaver steel radial tire on the replacement market in January. It has a cellular liner system that has successfully sealed punctures up to one-quarter inch in diameter.

The idea of mending tire punctures through the use of a built-in puncture sealant isn't new.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Bending Knees Is Good Exercise

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 14 - year - old son enrolled in a gymnastic group at school and came home to tell me some of the exercises the instructor has them do.

One is touching the floor without bending the knees. It seems to me that I read somewhere about this damaging leg tendons or some such thing. And that while we used to do it years ago, doctors now frown on it as causing more harm than good. Could you clear this up?

—A.R.

I can't agree that bending the back with the legs straight is harmful. Of course most of us can't do it without practice and conditioning, because our muscles are too taut. But the hamstring (thigh) muscles can be loosened and conditioned if we keep at it.

To reassure you — look at the ballet dancers, skaters, acrobats and other athletes who can bend that far with ease — because they've gotten into condition. I say don't object to your son's gymnastic program.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you give me some information on emphysema? I had a test that showed I had a mild case. Is there a cure? Can it get worse? How can I control it?

—M.D.

Emphysema, a loss of the "balloon action" of the lungs, is not curable, but beginning with giving up smoking (if you smoke) there are various ways of controlling it, to prevent it from becoming markedly worse.

Since you have a "mild case" now, now is exactly the right time to start taking care of it. I suggest that for fuller details you send 20 cents and a long, stamped, self - addressed envelope to me in care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, for my booklet, "How To Control Emphysema."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: you had a letter from a student of 18 who had a very rapid heart beat which no one could find a reason for. Our daughter had a similar experience several years ago, with no reason even after a zillion tests.

Quite by accident one day she discovered what her problem was — allergy to some foods, to dust and other things. She was fluffing her bed pillows (feather stuffed) and had an almost instant reaction.

Allergy tests confirmed it, and discovered a list of things to which she is sensitive. She avoids them as much as possible and no more heart problems.

We have a granddaughter with severe allergies, but in her they react in the form of a severe chest cold, so every patient is different. I hope this may help someone else.

—Mrs. J.R.

Let's not give anyone the idea that allergy is a common cause of rapid heart beat because there are more predictable causes.

But your letter is a vivid reminder of the curious and sometimes deceptive ways allergy can assert itself. You are so right in saying that each patient is different. It could well be that your observation will help someone else who has been similarly baffled.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had my sinuses cleaned out about five years ago and I have never been bothered again. My friends said one should never have their sinuses cleaned out as it causes the tissues in your head to deteriorate. How much truth is there in this?

—C.L.M.

None. Sounds to me though something ha deteriorated in your friend heads.

Note to H.M.: Avoid AN kind of honey wit hypoglycemia. It principally sugar and sugar will increase your problem.

Low blood sugar — a puzzler until correctly identified — is often the cause of faintness, headaches, visual and emotional disturbances. To learn how it can be identified and brought under control, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, for a copy of his booklet, "Help For Hypoglycemia," enclosing a long, self - addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated into his column whenever possible.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Redford Glad At Non-Illness

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Robert Redford will be glad to hear that he's not in Lenox Hill Hospital having a knee operation.

And that he hasn't been tossing in pain in the hospital for a whole week under an assumed name, and that he didn't apply for a private room only to find that there wasn't one available.

Because Redford's such a hot guy, these rumors will not submerge although he denies them personally. He's out alfalfaing his ranch in Utah, but tipsters keep calling me that a nurse just saw him with a bedpan and that he's being treated by Dr. James Nicholas, medicine man to Joe Namath.

"This is all I need," Redford muttered, for he's so famous he was pilloried by a London paper quoting Mia Farrow saying after "The Great Gatsby" that she couldn't stand to kiss him anymore. She's suing the paper, alleging that it wasn't at all painful to kiss him.

When a celebrity like Redford gets mentioned in these wild rumors, the hospital goes nuts. Somebody in the hospital is putting out these stories. Why? One hospital staffer even was confused and said the stories were true, then screamed a retraction. "I've been hearing the same rumors you have," he confessed.

Dr. Nicholas' secretary stiffly stated:

"It's not so. I am a fan of Mr. Redford's and I would know."

Redford's wife Lola, reached in Utah, said she couldn't figure where it all originated, that Redford would be in Washington fund - raising for Rep. Wayne Owens of Utah who'll run for the Senate. "Bob's stomping around in the fields," she said.

Dr. Nicholas couldn't be reached about all this furore. "He's sick," his secretary said. A friend said, "I hope he's got a good doctor, otherwise he'll drive Bob Redford back into the hospital."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

One of the great political brains of the nation says Nixon's biggest worry is not impeachment but the morning, noon and night grilling by the media and his own followers which, this man thinks, must drive him into resignation ... Otto Preminger got Bob Mitchum and Cliff Gorman for his film about a kidnaped heiress, titled "Rosebud," written by Joan Hemingway, listed as "Ernest Hemingway's granddaughter" ... Henry Fonda went back to Lenox Hill Hospital in N.Y. for a checkup two days after being released ... "Let My People Come" will have London and Australia companies very soon, under contracts just signed ... "Dude," the musical they remodeled the Broadway Theater for a couple of seasons ago, will be shown by Joe Papp in mobile theater units all over NY.

Secret Stuff: A new gang war will erupt in N.Y. over a week - old murder that has so far been kept unreported, although Mafia circles are scandalized by its ramifications ... Carol Channing and Sheila MacRae made the Dutch Theaters happy at the Plaza. Carol is unbelievable. Despite her daily "Lorelei," she does a free show almost daily ... Bob Hope, who just collected a couple more honorary degrees, already announced that he will do our next year's Fight for Sight benefit ... Comedians of Hope's stature are being very discreet about Nixon jokes now, because it's all too critical.

Show Biz Quiz: What four actors portrayed "Martin Kane, Private Eye," on TV? Ans. to yesterday's: Spencer Tracy won the Best Actor award two years in a row.

Robert Stigwood, producer of "Jesus Christ Superstar," will put a revue in the Plaza's Persian Rm. next month ... Mrs. Louis Armstrong signed a deal with Paramount for a film about Satchmo's early years ... Cary Grant'll give James Whitmore the Straw Hat Award next week; Whitmore's wife Audra Lindley got one in 1970.

The B'way show "My Sister, My Sister," is trying to boost business by doing excerpts outside the theater every day before curtain time ... Rod Steiger, who's been Napoleon, Mussolini and Al Capone, will do the Hermann Goering bit next ... Bette Davis gave Maxene Andrews a photo autographed "to my roommate;" they shared a dressing room at the Tony Awards.

Ron Leibman of "Sugar Cops" sold his Malibu home and moved back to NY. "In Hollywood," he said, "everything is a status symbol. In New York everything you own is insured against theft" ... Singer Helen Reddy, dining in a midtown spot, signed an autograph for a waiter who explained how much he wanted it. When she asked if she could sign for her meal, he said hesitantly, "Do you have any identification?"

Alan King says he'll open a posh tennis club and marina in Florida: "It'll be so exclusive that if I wasn't the owner I wouldn't be able to get in!"

I'D RATHER BE LIGHT

Today's Best Laugh: John Markus of London, Ohio, says he likes the intimate, small - town atmosphere: "There's a drive-in here that shows home movies."

Wish I'd Said That: Everything's more expensive nowadays, complains E.G. Rosenblatt: "One doctor's even raised the price of his free samples."

Remembered Quote: "A good marriage is like a violin. When the beautiful music is over, the strings are still attached."

Earl's Pearls: The late Joe E. Lewis always insisted reports of his drinking were exaggerated: "If I drink a quart they say it's a gallon; when I drink a gallon they say I'm drunk."

"My wife's always talking about the guy she could have married," a fellow sighed. "I think she feels worse about it than I do."

That's earl, brother.

Under Twenty

By NANCY WILTON

Very young children are an honestly emotional group of individuals. Anger, love, satisfaction, desire and frustration are shown freely and openly.

As they grow older they are taught to hide and suppress many of their feelings and by the time they are in their teens most people have reached a point where they cannot recognize their emotions.

"I don't feel quite right, but I know something is bothering me," is not an uncommon thought among teenagers (and adults) and it is one which is rarely voiced even to the closest of friends. The young, troubled person knows everything isn't right, but doesn't know whether the suffering is coming from anger, rejection or jealousy.

The same situation is often true on the opposite side of the coin. One feels happy, elated, loving or loved and doesn't recognize the source of the feeling of well - being. What is worse is that one feels restricted in showing these warm and positive emotions.

The book, "How do you feel? - A Guide To Your Emotions" by John Wood is an excellent insight into how people feel about themselves and the things that happen to them.

Wood has gathered views on both the positive and negative emotions from a cross - section of people, has quoted them on their attitudes towards their feelings of emotions and has come up with a book not only well worth the reading, but one which most people will want to reread from time to time.

His chapter titles read like a list of question marks for young people. For example: "Accepted," "Afraid," "Angry," "Attracted," "Bored," "Confused," "Disappointed," "Guilty," "Hurt," and dozens of others.

The book does not, except in some rare instances, tell how to deal with these feelings or emotions. It does, however, clearly define how these people feel when they experience the wide range of emotions covered.

The reader is quite likely to say to himself, "Oh, yes, I've felt that way, but I didn't quite know why I was feeling like that." In many cases it is a comfort to know that others have felt the joys and sorrows one has felt or is feeling.

Learning to sort out the various emotions we have can be a big step in learning to deal with them, to accept them or rejoice in them. Mr. Wood's, "How do you feel?" can help a great deal in reaching this goal.

"How Do You Feel - A Guide to Your Emotions," by Carl R. Rogers, Prentice Hall, $6.95.

OREGON GROWING

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — While Gov. Tom McCall acknowledges he has admonished tourists to enjoy themselves "but for heaven's sake please don't move here," because he wanted Oregon to avoid the population crunch, he acknowledges things may be going in reverse.

Oregon, in 1973, was the 11th fastest growing state in the union.

President, U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON — Who worries about foreign trade anymore? That was at least two crises ago.

"Practically nobody" is the answer to that question, and it's a shame. It's a shame because many of our problems - of - the - moment are directly or indirectly tied to the ebb and flow of commerce among nations.

Inflation, for example, can be aggravated or alleviated by trade policy, although it is not caused by internal trade.

Until the recent devaluations of the dollar and the decision to abandon fixed exchange rates, many experts believed we were "exporting" our inflation. That is, foreign countries had to accept dollars in exchange for their own currencies at the specified rate, even though the dollar was becoming worth less in terms of what it would buy, while their currencies were growing more valuable.

Undesirable Import

Now the shoe is on the other foot, although to a lesser extent. The prosperity of Europe and Japan — added to our own — has caused a strong growth in demand worldwide, which tends to raise the prices of the things we need to import. Consequently, we have lately been "importing" some inflation.

The Arab oil embargo is another illustration of the effects trade developments can have on domestic affairs. Embargoes and other forms of economic warfare are the things orderly trade treaties are designed to prevent.

The fact that other raw - materials producers are casting envious eyes at the Arab example is a good sign that we had better pay some serious attention to renegotiating and stabilizing the rules of the game for international commerce.

The U.S. could cope with embargoes of other scarce materials more easily than with an oil embargo, but even so we wouldn't enjoy the necessity, I guarantee you.

Now is the time to head off such developments, while all potential participants are still on speaking terms. Once trade wars break out things get messy, to put it mildly.

The world is ripe for a new round of trade negotiations. But it won't happen without U.S. participation. And the U.S. will not be in a position to participate until Congress grants the Administration authority to get down to hard bargaining.

Trade Reform Act

Such authority has passed the House in the form of the Trade Reform Act (H.R. 10710). It is — as of this writing — stalled in the Senate.

The Act would:

1. Provide authority to negotiate with other nations mutual reductions in trade barriers.

2. Provide greater accessibility to either tariff relief or adjustment assistance for industries and workers seriously injured by import competition.

3. Introduce greater flexibility in the management of trade policy, permitting, for example, the reduction of tarrifs to counter inflation and the imposition of import surcharges to reduce chronic balance of payments deficits.

4. Allow the U.S. to fulfill its international pledge to grant tariff preferences to the less developed countries.

I hope the Senate rouses itself to action soon on this issue. It may be a "hidden" problem now, but it won't remain hidden long. Foreign trade is not a subject of academic interest. We MUST purchase abroad. And we must sell abroad to earn the money to pay for what we buy there.

Too much is at stake to begin experimentation with international anarchy in 1974.

Court To Rule In Tax Dispute

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Supreme Court agreed Wednesday to hear oral arguments June 12 on a sales tax dispute between Comptroller Robert S. Calvert and operators of the Lone Star Army Ammunition plant near Texarkana.

The plant operators, Day and Zimmerman Inc., paid the sales tax under protest on materials they purchased for use in their operation of the munitions plant.

Herb Alpert Resumes Playing After Exile

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Herb Alpert, who only had to play his trumpet to earn millions of dollars five years ago, is making a comeback after a self-imposed exile to reassess his values.

Alpert was the hottest musician in the country. All 13 of his albums were awarded gold records, symbolic of a million sales each.

His television specials were highly rated. His concerts were sellouts. Alpert's music was an isle of unique style in a maelstrom of rock and roll. His Tijuana Brass was a great new sound.

But he couldn't take the idolatry nor the pace. Marital and other personal problems beset the handsome trumpeter and he dropped out.

"No Longer Fun"

"I had a lot of reasons for quitting," Alpert said in his office at A&M Records, a company he owns in partnership with Jerry Moss. "It was no longer fun. I had too many obligations and I couldn't function.

"But the most important reason for quitting was the horn. The trumpet was trying to tell me to relax and reevaluate my playing style.

"Finally, the horn refused to play for me. I couldn't even coordinate my hands on the valves.

"All my life it never entered my head that I wouldn't be able to play the horn. But it happened. Emotionally I just wasn't involved."

Alpert didn't worry about finances. He was rich. Still is.

For four and a half years Alpert studied books on the trumpet. He took lessons. He also produced a few albums for other performers at A&M. He traveled to Europe and thought about himself.

Turning Point

"I tried to find a better me," Alpert said. "I wrote some music but it wasn't good. I listened to other music, but I was an incomplete person. Of course, it was all in my mind.

"The turning point that convinced me I was on the wrong track and should disband the group was while we were cutting the 'Going Places' album. Right in the middle of it I was told orders for 1.3 million albums had been made, good or bad.

"I realized then I had become a commodity. I felt cheated. Why would anyone want to buy an album not knowing if it was worthwhile?"

Alpert was disappointed with his last few albums, describing the music as uptight, tense, not upbeat.

"I'd always done positive, happy things," he said. "And now the music sounded negative. It reflected my own mood and personality."

But the horn became a catalyst, and gradually Alpert found himself playing the trumpet with as much ease as ever before. Eight months ago he realized he was ready to return to the world he knew best.

"Values Are Different"

"I want people to dig my music again," he said. "I'm in motion again. I feel there will be more fun in music and I hope to be more successful than before. But my values are different now.

"I wasn't ready for fame the first time because I never expected to be a star. I was embarrassed by it. Now I can handle all that."

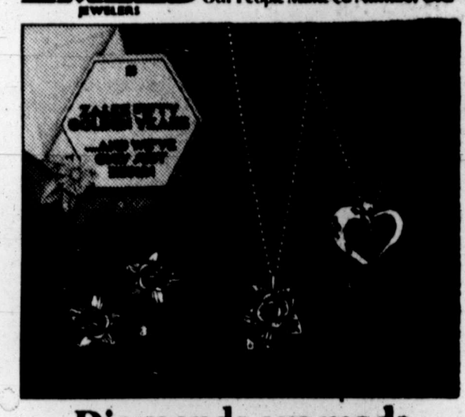

Alpert has recorded his first new album in five years, "You Smile—The Song Begins." The Tijuana Brass has regrouped. The music is hauntingly similar to his early work, but improved with some innovations that are pure Alpert. It is free, loose and optimistic.

"I'm not trying to recapture the past," Alpert explained. "The old positive feeling is back—personally and musically."

Spring Training For Football

SUITING UP

Only two days remain for Pampa High footballers in spring training and as head coach John Welborn says, "After just two weeks of teaching sessions and drills, you can't expect to be in mid-season form."

Not that he was being pessimistic, for Welborn is far from being that. But the Pampa coach doesn't want fans at Saturday night's annual spring game to expect the Harvesters' play to be completely indicative of the upcoming season.

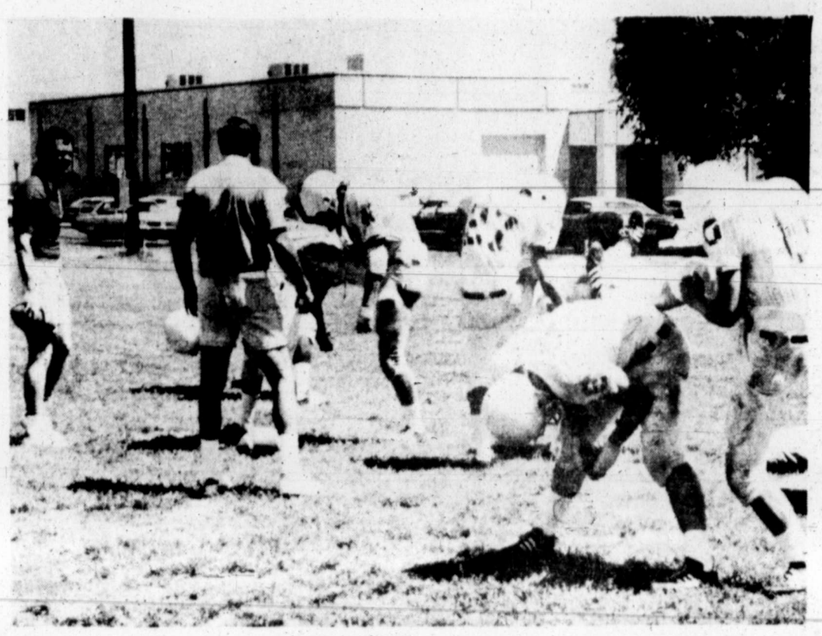

Welborn, however, does anticipate a good scrimmage Saturday since Pampa has had one of its best spring programs in years. "I'm real pleased," said the first-year mentor, "We're about as far along as you'd expect to be in two and a half weeks. I feel like people have learned quite a bit about the game.

"I feel like our offensive linemen (a weak spot for Pampa in past years) are doing a real good job picking things up. We've got two pretty good quarterbacks (Chuck Quarles and Jim Agan). We still need a little more work on execution, a little more polish on timing and execution."

Pampa has been in pads for most of the program, which started April 29. However, the team will chuck pads and don T-shirts and shorts today and tomorrow and have no contact until Saturday's spring game. "We'll work on our kicking game and passing game a lot; we won't have any contact," said Welborn.

Thus far, the team has been working on game situations, dividing up into a "go" team and "hit" team, meaning offense and defense. Saturday night, both "go" and "hit" teams will play both ways, meaning the "go" team will also play defense.

Welborn has introduced total platooning in Districe 3-AAAA as Pampa, next season, will have separate offensive, defensive and special teams. This will also be the first spring game in years Pampa will not have players going on both first team offense and first team defense.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

The Hutcherson Flying Queens of Wayland Baptist College in Plainview had a fairly easy time this season, winning 37 games in 41 tries and two national tournament titles.

However, it isn't going to be so easy in an 8 p.m. game May 28 as the Queens must play the Russian National team. You ask, well what's so hard about that; the Queens are among the country's top women's teams, shouldn't they be able to handle Russia's top team?

Not when the starting lineup for the Russians stand 6-9, 6-6, 6-4, 6-2 and 6-2. The 6-9 woman, Ulyama Semenov, weighs 240 pounds and has played 70 games in national competition. Nadezhda Zakharov has played 104 games with the national team. She is 29-years-old and the team's veteran.

Not only do the Russians have a size advantage over the Queens, they have an edge in experience in playing quality opponents. Russia won the 1972 Women's World Basketball Jamboree in Lima, Peru, and the World University Games last August in Moscow. In the latter, the Soviets thrashed the United States, 92-53, and 81-44. In that tournament, Russia also beat France, Mexico, Bulgaria, Romania and Cuba.

The Queens hope to beat the Russians by using a fast style of play to wear down the bigger team.

The game will be played in Wayland's Hutcherson Center. Tickets can be purchased for $2.00, $1.00 for children under 12. For Pampa-area basketball fans, the two-hour trip will be well worth making.

★ ★ ★

At noon this Sunday, ABC's Wide World of Sports will show highlights of the opening game of the United States - Russia women's basketball series, which is to be played Friday night in New York's Madison Square Garden. A Wayland player — Brenda Moeller — is a member of the American team.

Cherri Rapp, a former Flying Queen, will also play for the American all-star team, and Harley Redin, former Queens coach, will be an assistant in the game.

★ ★ ★

Sheri Haynes, an all-state basketball player, and a possible future Flying Queen, and Lynda Howard, a second-team all-stater, will be among athletes honored as McLean High School will host its annual All-Sports Banquet at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the McLean Country Club.

Misses Haynes and Howard led McLean to a 20-6 record last season as the team finished second behind Valley in District 2-A.

McLean had a successful athletic year overall as the football team went 3-7, the boys basketball team went 10-16, the girls volleyball team went to regional, the girls golf team qualified for regional, the boys golfers placed third in 2-A, the boys track team qualified three for regional and the girls track team qualified five.

On the boys track team, Joe Ray Riley, Wesley Brown and Skeet Lowery qualified in the hurdles (120 and 330), discus and broad jump respectively. On the girls squad, Miss Haynes qualified in the 100, Kathy Raines in the 220, Rose Dwyer in the broad jump, Delinda Howard in the high jump and Lavonda Corbett in the shot put.

Besides honoring all the McLean athletes, the outstanding football player will be recognized by the presentation of the Fighting Tiger Award. Riley, who quarterbacked McLean last season, fullback Ricky Kennedy and tackle Joe Sherrod are the leading candidates for that award.

PGA Experiment Begins

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — The PGA's grand experiment —designed to appease the galleries who watch and the sponsors who pay for the golf tour—will have its first test beginning today.

The first of this year's three designated tournaments, the $250,000 Colonial National, opens over the demanding, tree and water infested 7,142-yard, par 70 Colonial Country Club layout.

"If you would have to rate the golf course," said Jack Nicklaus, "it would fall in the category of the top 10 in the country."

But Nicklaus would not have entered if this event had not been one of the "designated" ones. And neither would a lot of other top figures in the game.

For this tournament the PGA demands the presence of:

—The winners of the Masters, The U. S. Open and the PGA for the past five years.

—Last year's British Open winner.

—The leading money winner for each of the past five years.

—The members of the 1973 Ryder Cup team.

—Last year's top 30 money winners.

Thirty-seven players fall into these categories, with Nicklaus qualifying nine different ways as PGA champ in 1971 and 1973, U.S. Open winner in 1972, Masters champion in 1972, top money winner in 1971-72-73, a Ryder Cup team member and one of last year's top 30 money winners.

The PGA's idea, of course, is to create more tournaments each year where all the top players are certain to appear. Golf's heirarchy is considering holding as many as 10 such events a year, depending on the success of the three this year.

Many of the leading players, however, resent being told when and where they must play. The sponsors and fans, in turn, resent it when their tournament is bypassed by household names.

Nicklaus is fully sympathetic to both sides, and says the situation has developed simply because golf—like the rest of life—is caught in changing times.

"It used to be the top prize on the tour was $20,000, there was no television and the tour was looked upon as a fun thing. The sponsors put on a tournament more for civic pride and they didn't need much money to do it.

"Now it is a business enterprise. It takes $350,000 to put on a good $150,000 tournament and inflation is not the only cause of that.

"It used to be the golfers had to stay on the tour all year to make a living and maybe only 10 guys out here made a living at golf. But now there are 70-80, no, I guess 100 guys who are making a living.

"I'm talking about $40,000 a year, but when you take away all the travel expenses you are talking about $12,000 a year.

White Sox Nip Twins, 1-0 As Bahnsen Has 2-Hitter

United Press International

Bobby Darwin ruined Stan Bahnsen's perfect-game bid Wednesday night —then almost gave him a second shot at it.

Bahnsen had a perfect game for 7 2-3 innings before Darwin lined a shot off the leftcenterfield wall. He was all the way to second base when he heard a coach yelling that he hadn't touched first base so he had to retreat to first base and settle for a single.

If Darwin hadn't returned to first and the Chicago White Sox had thrown him out there, he wouldn't have been credited with a hit. And Bahnsen probably would have had his perfect game.

The Twins got a second hit with two out in the ninth by Jerry Terrell but Terrell wouldn't have come to bat if Darwin had been out at first. So Bahnsen settled for a twohitter as the White Sox downed the Minnesota Twins, 1-0.

He'd Have Taken It

Bahnsen was asked what his reaction would have been if he had gotten a perfect game on Darwin's mistake. "I would have taken it," he smiled.

"I think I started becoming conscious of it in the first inning. I wasn't really nervous but it's something I've always wanted. When Darwin hit that pitch in the eighth inning, I thought I had made a good pitch. In fact, it was a better pitch than some others that were hit."

In the other games, Detroit downed New York, 6-5, Baltimore edged Milwaukee, 6-5, Texas drubbed California, 6-1 and Boston topped Cleveland, 7-4.

In the National League, Cincinnati edged San Francisco, 4-3, Pittsburgh topped Chicago, 3-2, in 14 innings, Montreal beat Philadelphia, 5-4, Atlanta blanked San Diego, 3-0, St. Louis routed New York, 10-1, and Los Angeles swept Houston, 11-7 and 10-2.

Orioles 6, Brewers 5:

The Brewers' loss, combined with Cleveland's loss, left four teams —Milwaukee, Detroit, Baltimore and Cleveland — separated only by .002. Designated hitter Tommy Davis banged out three singles, drove in two runs and scored two others in leading the Orioles over Milwaukee.

Tigers 6, Yanks 5:

Reliever Sparky Lyle walked designated hitter Al Kaline with the bases loaded and two out in the eighth inning to force in the tie-breaking run and give the Tigers a triumph over the Yanks. Lyle should have been out of the inning but Jim Mason fumbled Jim Northrup's routine grounder. Joe Coleman got the win with relief help from John Hiller.

Rangers 6, Angels 1:

Alex Johnson drove in four runs and David Clyde picked up his third victory without a loss in leading the Rangers over the Angels. It was only the second win for the Rangers in their last 10 games and Clyde has both. Clyde, 19, went the distance for the third time this season and allowed nine hits.

Booster Club Picks Officers

The Harvester Booster Club's board of directors met last night at the Pampa High School athletic building and elected officers for the upcoming school year.

Jewett Scarbrough was elected president, Luther Robinson vice - president and Lajuana Quarles secretary.

The three replace H.L. Weatherly, Buell Frogge and Lee Fraser respectively.

Entry Deadline 9 a.m. Friday For City Golf

Entry deadline has been set at 9 a.m. Friday for the Men's City Golf Tournament Saturday and Sunday at the Pamcel course, according to Bill Ellis of Celanese.

"We still have a few entries open. We've had about 15 or 20 sign up out here at Celanese and I'm sure the Chamber of Commerce has several," said Ellis.

The Chamber of Commerce and Celanese are sponsoring the affair for the second straight year. Entry blanks can be obtained at the Chamber office in the Hughes Building or from Ellis or Art Aftergut.

LA Wins Ninth Straight As Houston Falls Again

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — If Joe Ferguson sat down and started to pen a book today, his title probably would be something like "Slumps And The Single Player."

The premise—baseball players are better off being married than bachelors. Especially when they're slumping.

Ferguson, the big, affable regular catcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers last season, knows all about slumps. He's been in one all year.

At least until Wednesday night. In a doubleheader sweep by the Dodgers over the Houston Astros, the 27-year-old receiver got his first chance to play since May 5. He responded by smashing two home runs for five RBIs.

"Everybody has tried to help me this year," he said, "but my wife has been my biggest asset through it all. She's literally kept me from going to the nuthouse. I can't imagine—I really can't—what it would have been like if I'd been single."

For the record, Ferguson has been married 5 ½ years to a lady named Mary Florence. They have no children.

By going 3-for-4 in a 10-2 Dodger romp over the Astros following an 11-7 L.A. win, Ferguson hiked his average from .147 to .181. He also doubled his home run total—to four—and also his RBI total-to 10. A year ago, he finished with 25 homers and 88 RBIs.

By winning two, the Dodgers ran their victory streak to nine games, their longest since reeling off 13 in a row in the team's last world championship year in 1965. They hiked their lead in the National League West to 7 ½ games.

If Ferguson is indeed back, that's really bad news for the Cincinnati Reds, the defending divisional champs who are eight back.

Relaxation, he contends, is the key.

"I just relaxed up there tonight," Ferguson offered. "I didn't get upset when I got a strike. Anxiety plays a big part in this game and you have to relax. Last year when I had a good year I went to the plate with a free mind. Really, that's why this club has been hitting. There's no doubt in their minds they can hit. There has been some doubt in my mind about it.

"Am I excited about tonight? It's more of a relief than excitement."

Aeros Take Lead In Hockey Series

CHICAGO (UPI) — Andre Hinse scored two goals to lead the Houston Aeros to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cougars Wednesday night and give the Aeros a 2-0 lead in games in the World Hockey Association championship playoff series.

Houston had scored all six of its goals before Frankie Rochon slapped a 40-footer past Aero goalie Don McLeod to spoil his shutout with just 16 seconds left in the game.

Hinse got his first tally on a second period power play goal. Then in the final period he scored again 24 seconds after Jim Sherrit had gotten the Aeros' fourth goal.

Houston got first period goals from Murray Hall and Gordon Lavossiere and Ted Taylor got the team's final goal at 13:06 of the third period when he circled the net and tucked the puck behind Cougar substitute goalie Cam Newton. Newton had replaced Andre Gill in the Chicago net two minutes earlier.

Houston outshot Chicago 32-27.

The series moves to Houston for games Friday and Saturday night. A fifth game, if necessary, will be played in Houston Monday night.

TRAPPING IT IS A PROBLEM

Energy Shortages? Use Sunlight!

WASHINGTON — We already use solar energy to run our automobiles and heat our homes. The trouble is the sunlight involved is millions of years old; and the oil and coal it made are running out.

One way to cope with the energy shortage is to use today's sunlight. After all, why wait millions of years? The problem is to trap the sun's energy, and turn it into a more useful form.

Nature did the job for us by making coal and oil and natural gas. Now scientists are thinking of turning to nature again. Research is under way into methods of creating a variety of fuels directly from living plants.

Plants capture the energy of sunlight. In the process of photosynthesis, they use the energy to split apart water molecules into oxygen and hydrogen. Some of this energy is stored in chemical form when the hydrogen is added to carbon dioxide to make sugars and starches, the plants' raw materials.

Oil and coal are the fossilized remains of plants that grew millions of years ago. The energy of the sun is still locked within them.

Only in the last hundred years has man taken to using this conveniently packaged form of ancient sunlight. Earlier, his prime fuel was wood — solar energy stored in chemical form for only a few decades.

Studies have been made of the feasibility of turning back to wood as a fuel. One proposal is for "energy plantations," forests in which trees are grown for burning in a steam generating power plant.

A forest of several hundred square miles would be needed to fuel a large power plant. Pollution would be minimal, the wood - ash would make an excellent fertilizer, and the forest could be used for recreation and wildlife conservation.

But burning wood or any other plant directly for its energy is limited to making electricity. Plants contain a lot of water (which has been squeezed out of coal and oil) and are therefore bulky and difficult to transport.

What is needed is a way of concentrating the plants' trapped solar energy in a liquid or gas form. A number of intriguing possibilities have recently been described.

Dr. Donald L. Klass of the Institute of Gas Technology in Chicago proposes a "Perpetual Methane Economy," in which methane (natural gas) is obtained from plants with the aid of microbes.

Dr. Klass sees no big technological barrier to converting the plant material to methane gas. The major problem is growing enough plant material. This means choosing the right sorts of plants — plants which are most efficient at converting solar energy to chemical energy — and also finding the land areas needed to grow them.

Water plants seem to offer the best possibilities. The water hyacinth, which can grow at a phenomenal rate, is an excellent candidate. Acknowledging the "formidable" political and business obstacles that stand in the way of a Perpetual Methane Economy, Dr. Klass maintains that "it is entirely conceivable that one of our Great Lakes or a relatively small area of the Atlantic or Pacific Oceans or even a large area of land could be set aside specifically for producing biomass for methane."

It would seem that political rather than technological barriers also stand in the way of the suggestion made recently by Dr. Peter Fong, of Emory University, Atlanta, Ga. Dr. Fong proposed doubling the corn output of the United States and fermenting it to alcohol.

Enough alcohol could be made to extend the nation's gasoline supplies by one quarter. Added to gasoline, it would burn perfectly well in your unmodified automobile engine, and reduce pollution in the bargain.

To grow the extra corn and make alcohol, Dr. Fong suggests settling some 1.5 million families on 40-acre farms, each family with its own alcohol still. Although perhaps a rather extreme solution to the gas shortage, Dr. Fong sees it as solving too the problems of urban poverty and unemployment.

A rather less ambitious if technically more difficult method of making alcohol from plants is being studied at the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory in Berkeley, Calif. There Dr. Charles Wilke is studying ways to break down plant material into a form suitable for fermentation to alcohol.

Dr. Wilke believes that enough waste wood, paper, straw and so on exist to provide 13 billion gallons of alcohol a year, equivalent to 10 percent of U.S. gasoline production.

Also at Berkeley, Melvin Calvin — who won the Nobel prize for his work on photosynthesis — is similarly enthusiastic about alcohol. He suggests sugar cane as one likely source, and spoiled grain as another. Nebraska, for instance, which has about 7 million tons of spoiled grain a year, could make from it some 20 million gallons of alcohol to be added to gasoline.

But Calvin, is more interested in trapping the sun's energy from plants in a direct way. One possibility is to trap the hydrogen that photosynthesis releases from water, and use this as a fuel.

Research on a blue - green alga by chemists at the University of California, San Diego, is giving some early glimmerings of promise.

Calvin himself hopes to create an artificial photosynthesizing system that will make hydrogen — which many scientists have hailed as the "fuel of the future" — from the simplest recipe possible: sunlight and water. SITTING ON TOP OF THE WORLD

... with a business of his own!

We'd like for you to meet the Executive Officer of a thriving business . . . the boy who delivers your daily newspaper.

As the owner and operator of his newspaper route, this Junior Independent Merchant must solve problems and shoulder responsibilities, just like all other businessmen.

He buys his product, your newspaper, at wholesale and then retails it to his customers. He must make daily deliveries, do his own accounting, billing, and even struggle with a collection problem here and there.

He is discovering, through actual experience, the rewards for promptness, dependability, self-reliance and initiative.

One of the rewards is his profit, the difference between the wholesale and retail prices of the paper. His route means money for a savings account for college, a new bicycle, a week in camp, many things.

But he is earning even greater rewards. As he learns about sales and salesmanship, he is equipping himself for the future. From boys who learned the principles of business as newspaperboys have come presidents, governors, mayors, industrialists and professional men . . . those who determine the quality of our civilization in their generation.

It's his world to conquer . . . and he's off to a good start.

BUSY BOYS ARE BETTER BOYS

If you have a son that you think might be interested in a newspaper route, why not write or phone us.

Mainly About Wheeler

By MRS. W. BECK

Six students are graduating seniors in the Mobeetie High School. They are Becky McCurley, Kent Sims, Dennis Medley, Ruby Knight, Jimmy Medley and David Wright.

Becky McCurley, 18, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted McCurley, is the valedictorian of the senior class for 1974 with a four year grade average of 91.70. Becky has been treasurer of her class the last three years, and has also been a student council representative, editor of the annual staff and has had roles in class plays. In Becky's senior year, she was chosen Most Beautiful Girl in High School, Most Intelligent, Most Athletic, Most Likely to Succeed, Most Courteous and Class Favorite. She was also Class Favorite in her sophomore and junior years. Becky played basketball and volleyball through high school and was crowned Basketball Queen this year. In her first and second years, she was a member of FFA.

Joe Kent Sims, 17, is salutatorian for 1974 with a four year grade average of 90.53. Kent, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Sims, was president of his class all through high school, and was also a representative of the student council both his junior and senior years, a member of the annual staff, and participated in class plays. Both as a junior and senior, Kent was chosen as Most Handsome and Class Favorite. He spent four years as a member of FFA, and played basketball four years and volleyball two years. This year he was crowned basketball King. Kent plans to go to work at Celanese in Pampa as a Welder's helper.

Jimmy Ray Medley Jr., the 19 - year - old son of Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Medley, served his class as vice president in his junior and senior years and was a member of the annual staff this year. Both as a freshman and sophomore, he took part in class plays and is a four year man in FFA. He played basketball the first three years, baseball when a sophomore and was on the track team both his sophomore and junior years. In Interscholastic League, he won second in the 100-yard dash in District. Jimmy plans to continue training as a machinist at Thompson Parts in Pampa and later attend TSTI to take a course in mechanics.

Ruby Ann Knight, 19, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Knight, was president of her freshman class, secretary as a sophomore, junior and senior, a member of the annual staff four years, and took part in class plays the first two years in high school. As a senior, Ruby was chosen Miss Mobeetie High School by the school faculty, and as a freshman was selected class favorite. She was a member of FFA and FHA her freshman year and FHA again as a sophomore. She played basketball as a junior and volleyball three years. Ruby plans to take nurses training and become an LVN.

Dennis Wayne Medley, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Medley, was president of the freshman class, vice president as a sophomore and member of the annual staff his senior year. He had roles in class plays in his freshman and sophomore years. Dennis has been in FFA all through high school. He played basketball the first two years in high school, baseball as a freshman and was a member of the track team as a freshmen and sophomore. He plans to become a restaurant owner and manager.

John David Wright, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Wright, was a representative of the student council his junior year, a member of the annual staff his senior year, and took part in the class play as a freshman. All four years of high school he was a member of the FFA. David played basketball as a freshman and sophomore, and was team manager his junior year. At present, David is working at the Mobeetie Grocery.

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Virginia Capers overcame all the drawbacks to become a star.

Her maternal ancestors were slaves. Her father was a dock hand—"he worked on the docks in all kinds of weather for over 30 years." Her mother, although an expert seamstress, could get work only as a domestic.

"My parents were simple folk," she said, "but one thing they insisted on was that we must get an education."

The "we" is Miss Capers, proclaimed as this year's Tony Award winner for best actress in a musical ("Raisin") and her brother, Jim, a referee with the National Basketball Association.

"Oh, there's still discrimination," said the actress. "The world is not all that enlightened. I would like to see all the amount of money it took to get to the moon spent on harmony of peoples."

"We all should be able to say proudly, 'I am an American.'

"Example of Discrimination

"But if you want an example of discrimination, look at this." She pulled out a page of newspaper ads for Broadway shows and almost all featured pictures of the stars. "Raisin," which won a Tony for itself as well as its star, did not.

Miss Capers said that when she goes house or apartment hunting it's with trepidation even "with all my sophistication, my background. I always say, 'Oh my God, do I have to go through this?'"

Yet in her own right she holds a real estate broker's license—"It kept bread in the children's mouth when I wasn't acting."

Currently, she's settled into an apartment not too far from New York's Lincoln Center and with a spectacular view from the 40th floor of the Hudson River and Manhattan.

Eliza Virginia Capers was born in Sumter, S.C., but her parents moved to New York, and Harlem, when she was seven, simply because "they felt their children would have the best possible chance for education here."

She attended New York public schools and Howard University, Washington, D.C., during which "I worked and Dad borrowed. Work was expected of you. It was something you did without question."

Schedule Was Work

Her mother "who taught me the social graces" had started Miss Capers on piano lessons at an early age. And as a vocal talent (she's a mezzo soprano) also emerged it was only logical that after Howard she should study at the famed Juilliard School of Music in New York. The Metropolitan Opera's Leontyne Price was a classmate.

The schedule in addition to school was work—"in a doctor's office, at a hospital as a nurse's aide, a typist. A lot of kids would come from Southern schools to work in New York in the summer as porters or maids so they could go back in the fall."

On the road up, she sang in vaudeville, burlesque, night clubs, the borscht circuit of the Catskills (Abe Lyman, the late band leader, taught her Yiddish). As the years went by, she appeared in musicals at the Civic Light Opera in Los Angeles doing "Porgy and Bess" and "Kiss Me Kate" among others.

1 Card Of Thanks

Robert E. Montgomery

WE WISH to express with sincerity our gratitude to those who offered their kindness and service, not only for our bereavement, but the many years of his illness. To Rev. Warren for his message of condolence, to Rev. Wadley and Tracy Cary for the music contributions. For the many floral tributes, memorial offerings, the food and those who prepared and served it. For the many cards and all verbal expressions of sympathy. May the Lord bless you is our prayers.

You are not forgotten, loved one
Nor will you ever be.
As long as life and memory lasts,
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by,
We miss you more,
Your loving smile,
Your gentle face
No one can fill your vacant place.
