MAN SWINGS TO DEATH VOICING HIS INNOCENCE

He Admonishes Crowd Not To Get Into Trouble

CROWD LOOKS ON

Blind Violinist Passes Playing "Nearer My God To Thee"

International News Dispatch

LAFAYETTE, Ga., April 27.—George Baker went to his death on the gallows today for the murder of Deputy Sheriff J. W. Morton. The trap was sprung in the Walker county jail at 11:54 o'clock.

Before the trap was sprung Baker leaned from a window in the death chamber and spoke to the crowd below. He appeared calm and composed and spoke in a cool, clear voice.

Maintains Innocence

"Goodbye, boys, I'm going now. Don't get in any trouble. Always stay out of trouble. Tell the woman I was boarding with I will never forget her. I am paying the penalty for murder for which I am not guilty. I committed no murder. Goodbye, Buck. Goodbye, son, Farewell, farewell, all."

Baker was the most composed of the little group on the gallows.

"Pa" Baker faltered through a little lecture that was intended for cheer and comfort, but that broke into a plaintive protest against fate, the first word of bitterness he has uttered.

"It's unjust," he said, tears streaming from his eyes, eyes that seem to have been washed out by weeping. "I've lived in the way of the Lord and I hope I will die in the way of the Lord."

"I'm ready, Pa," said George. "Don't you worry."

Baby Cries

The old man wept silently a moment. Baby Vera, in her mother's arms, cried loudly in fright at the gloomy crowded death chamber.

Baker's body passed through the trap door of the gallows and it swung between a picture of Bebe Daniels in a bathing suit and a photograph of Gloria Swanson posted on the wall.

Spectators See Body

The trap of the gallows is on the second floor landing. The body of the condemned man passed almost to the landing of the first floor in the small space between the stairs. Morbid spectators could see the body as it fell, as they stood in the jail yard and watched through the glass window of the back door.

Ie was a motley crowd, consisting

Spuds Didn't Kop the Kup But All Clouds Have Silver Lining So Team Took It Out On Shreveport Pitchers

Weather Threatening Early In Day And Neighbors Feared Trip, But Our Opener Drew Big

Care-free and happy as a bunch of grade school youngsters on closing day, was the throng of loyal fans and fanettes who flocked to Athletic park yesterday afternoon to pay homage to the Spudders in their opening game of the season.

The crowd carried no age scruples and it was made up from all walks of life. It mingled in the democratic spirit of the great national pastime and all hearts beat in one accord and with one purpose—to put the Spudders over the top. The grand total showed that 4,283 paid to see the contest. That number won't kop the attendance kup offered by President Roberts, but it was a fitting tribute to the local game, and there is reason enough why it was not more than it was.

Cloudy Weather Drawback.

—A cloudy morning, which threatened to pour rain time after time, put a crimp in the plans of many who had planned to attend. Especially so with the out-of-town visitors. The weather was bright enough around game time, but it was too late for the visitors to start from their homes at that stage. There were lots of visitors and there would have undoubtedly been more had it not been for the cloudy morning.

As it was, Wichita has no need to make any sort of apology. The crowd was a dandy one, anyway it is looked

INFANT'S BODY FOUND IN SEWER

10-Pound Girl Hidden At Night At Corner Of Indiana and 14th

The body of a perfectly formed infant girl, weighing more than 10 pounds and apparently less than 24 hours old, was found at noon Friday at the corner of Indiana and Fourteenth streets. The tiny form was wrapped in a rough shirt and was concealed in a small box thrown under a sewer grating.

Found by Negro

A negro whose name could not be learned, found the body and immediately hurried to the Magnolia storage plant across the street with the information. Sheriff Pat Murphy was notified and he visited the place at once. Questions in the neighborhood, however, failed to throw any light on how or when the body was placed there.

The O. W. Hines undertaking parlors were notified and the body embalmed. An examination revealed that the baby was perfectly formed and no marks of violence could be found. It had apparently died at or soon after birth. Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn was called for an inquest and returned a verdict to the effect that death had come from causes unknown.

Burial Today

Unless something develops this morning as to the identity of the child's parents the body will be buried today by Mr. Hines.

Officials who investigated the case declared that it would be practically an impossibility to trace the parentage of the baby. No marks of any kind were found on the old shirt, the single thing in which the form was wrapped, and diligent inquiry in the neighborhood failed to find anyone who could shed light on how the body reached the corner.

It evidently was secreted late Thursday night.

12 Perish In Early Morning Tenement Fire

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, April 27.—Flames that suddenly enveloped a five story tenement in East One Hundred Ninth street early today killed 12 persons, six of them children and led to injury of more than a score of other tenants.

They trolman John Malone, and accompanied him through the flames to the second floor of the burning tenament. Malone tried to drop the ladder to the sidewalk. Rusted with age, it stuck. A taxicab driver by the name of Mannie Friedman, a former pugilist, pushed through the hysterical crowd. A hundred women and children were passed down the fire escape to the top of the cab and saved.

On the top floor, the family of David Mandel Baum, painter, was trapped. Mandel Baum's son, Hyman, crawled with his father to the fire escape and was saved. Mandel Baum tried to go back for his wife and six other children, ranging in ages from 1 to 16 years, but failed.

Associated Press Dispatch

FORT WORTH, April 27.—Nine cars of tick-free cattle, shipped on certificates (Form A.) of state tick inspectors have been received at the Fort Worth stock yards and have been placed in a new division known as division A. The new division follows the ruling of the bureau of animal industry that cattle shipments from quarantined areas must be made on certificates of federal inspectors.

J. E. Boog-Scott, chairman of the livestock sanitary commission, declined to comment Friday over the difference that had arisen between state and federal inspectors over the ruling of the bureau of animal industry.

The nine carloads of cattle placed in division A. are not eligible for interstate shipment until put in the southern division and dipped, it was said. However, it was said they can be handled intra-state. The man in charge of the cattle was quoted as saying that he intended the nine cars for shipment to Oklahoma.

A meeting of the livestock sanitary commission of Texas will be held Monday in this city. It is expected that the differences between federal and state tick inspectors will be considered by the commission, although no announcement was made to that effect.

ALL KILLED IN SLEEP BY MEN WITH SHOTGUNS

Door Battered Down By Either Two Or Three Men

TWO OF SEVEN ESCAPE

One Left For Dead And Another Is Seriously Wounded

Associated Press Dispatch

IDABEL, Okla., April 27.—Three men were held tonight in connection with the slaying of four persons and the serious wounding of another late last night at the home of T. E. Hansell, a farmer near Haworth.

John W. Pope, 45, son-in-law of Hansell, was arrested by a posse this afternoon across the Texas border, near Clarksville. A. L. Miller and Ira Gardner, said to be friends of Pope, were taken in the Red River bottoms near Haworth. They were reported to be headed for Texas.

Two Held In Jail

Pope was taken to Clarksville and plans were made to bring him back to Idabel tonight. Both Miller and Gardner are held in the McCurtain county jail here.

Fearing possible mob violence, county officers refused to discuss the arrests. It was said, however, that formal charges of murder would be filed tomorrow morning in connection with the case.

Feeling is running high in McCurtain county over the brutal murders.

While the Hansell family slept last night in the back room of their two-room house, the door was battered down. Either two or three men walked into the room and opened fire on the sleeping figures with a shotgun and large calibre revolvers.

Of the seven sleeping in the room only two escaped the bullets of the assasins.

The Dead

T. H. Hansell, Mrs. T. H. Hansell, Mrs. John W. Pope, their daughter; infant daughter of Mrs. Pope, Aubrey Pope, the small son of Mrs. Pope was seriously wounded and physicians say he cannot survive.

Ben Hansell, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hansell, and his 7-year-old sister, Ruth, escaped, unwounded.

According to Ben Hansell, he awoke as he heard the men enter the room. He started to crawl under the bed, drawing a sheet over him. When the intruders opened fire the body of his sister, Mrs. Pope, slipped down over him. He lay still while the firing continued. The assassins left, apparently thinking him dead.

Believes There Were Three

The youth said he was sure there were tow men and thought there was a third.

The assassins quietly carried out their work firing point blank into the prostrate bodies.

After their departure Ben picked up the Pope baby, who was still alive, and hurried for a neighbor's home. The infant died in his arms.

Mrs. Pope left her husband and returned to her parents some time ago.

Want Bill Resubmitted

Each club of the first district, according to the decision reached today, will send a telegram to Governor Neff urging that he resubmit the Blanton $200,00 delinquent appropriation measure. The programs for the day went through practically identically as had been arranged, the only deviations being caused by inclement weather which necessitated a postponement of the Dramatic club pageant. Programs for the pageant were passed out to the delegates, however, during their afternoon session.

at, and it did its full share in helping the Spudders batter the Gassers. With good weather today and Sunday, it would not be surprising if the locals played to two more wonderful crowds for the opening game was well advertised, the Spudders won and pleased the crowd and an suspicious opening was enjoyed all around.

Parade Features.

Prior to the game, a parade, marshaled by Lloyd Weaver, wound its way through the business section of the city. There was a band, the fire apparatus, the mayor and city officials and players of both clubs in uniform to make up the procession.

Arriving at the park the mayor and the fire chief thoroughly amused the crowd with their pre-game performance. Mayor Collier, who was to pitch the first ball, took to the "bull pen" immediately and with his trusty battery mate, Fire Chief McClure, proceeded to warm up. It was great. The chief found "hizzoner" with so much "stuff" that he could not hold his delivery and the crowd "poured it on" with glee. Frank Kitchens kindly proffered the use of his mask and protector to the chief and he got by without casualty.

As the game was about to start, the mayor tok his stand in the box and shot over a few. He sent two strikes across the pan and then a wide pitch. Centerfielder Harris, of the visitors, playfully rapped his fourth pitch to Elliott for an unofficial out and the umpires called for "play." Prexy Harvey, who was to have been the first batter, evidently saw the mayor warming up and is not to be censured for not appearing at the plate.

It was a splendid opening from start to finish and the fans of Wichita Falls and the neighboring territory, responded nobly to their club. Such a fine start speaks well for a successful season and none can say that the long baseball voyage of 1923 was not given a rousing start in Spudderville.

rant is 128 feet by 74 feet and will have a seating capacity of 300 people when the furniture and fixtures are in place. It will be furnished and decorated in modern style, and the entire building will be a blaze of light and beauty. The interior is to be decorated in gold and blue, with expensive furnishings throughout the large room. The seating arrangement is planned to leave a large dancing floor in the center, and an orchestra will play during evening hours. In addition to the dancing, the management plans a number of cabaret features including vaudeville and other entertainments.

Modern Kitchen Provided.

The kitchen will be all modern and electric, all old methods of cooking being done away with to promote the plans of Mr. Lutjeans, who learned his profession in France, where he is a member of the Progressive Culinary association.

Work on the building is expected to satrt within a few days and will be rushed to completion. The furnishings are already on their way to the city and it is the intention of the builders to throw open the doors of the cabaret within two months, or possibly sooner. Electricians are working on plans for special lighting effects, and carpenters and decorators will begin within the week.

WARRANTO BILL GETS ON FLOOR

Vote To Print Wins; Bryan Invited To Make Address

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, April 27.—The first record vote in the senate on the Patterson quo warranto bill, which was one of Governor Neff's principal recommendations to the present special session, came today when the upper house ordered the measure printed by a vote of 13 to 9.

The bill was reported unfavorably to the senate this morning by the civil jurisprudence committee with a minority report signed by four members. The vote came on motion by Senator Wood to print the bill thus placing it before the body for consideration. Senator Bailey attempted by two points of order to prevent a vote but both were overruled.

To Come Up Wednesday.

Although the motion to print carried, members opposing the bill said several who oppose it voted for printing. It probably will be next Wednesday or Thursday before the bill is taken up. A recent report of the United States department of agriculture which is said to have estimated the cotton acreage and production was criticized in a concurrent resolution by Wirtz, which the senate adopted. President Harding and Attorney General Daugherty were asked to investigate the report which the resolution declares to be "untimely and unwarranted" and injurious to the cotton industry of Texas.

Three appropriation measures were passed finally by the senate before it adjourned for the junket to Eastland and Stephens county. They were: Emergency appropriation totaling $271,000; deficiency appropriation of $15,400 and adjutant general's deficiency appropriation of $52,000. The two remaining appropriation bills—departmental and eleemosynary, were set as special orders next Monday.

Bryan Invited.

William Jennings Bryan was invited to address a joint session following his appearance in Fort Worth the first week in May under a house concurrent resolution adopted by the senate. Alvin Owsley, national commander of the American Legion, also was invited to speak to a joint session.

An effort to revive the Clark bill which seeks to repeal the $600,000 reclamation bill failed when the senate voted down a motion 14 to 10 to recommit the measure. It was unanimously reported unfavorable by the mining and irrigation committee.

also. The lieutenant governor denounced the act as "unfortunate and inopportune." He said it is calculated to create confusion during the legislative work and "unfortunate that it should occur in Travis county also immediately upon closing of the Schaffner-Bell murder trial." The jury which tried John Miller included five negroes.

The senate president's statement was not discussed but received considerable applause.

FIVE DEPARTMENTS WOULD BE ABOLISHED

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, April 27.—Probably the most far reaching proposal of the special session was presented to the legislature today when Representatives Melson and Cope introduced a series of bills proposing abolishment and consolidation of five state departments.

Disposition of the five departments as proposed follows: Consolidate market and warehouse department and livestock and sanitary commission with state agricultural department; abolish board of control entirely; consolidate industrial accident board with state labor department and the board of water engineers with reclamation department.

Plan Considered

Governor Neff recently conferred with agricultural officials relative to consolidation of agricultural agencies, it is known. A plan for such consolidation has been under consideration. A move to consolidate the agricultural department with the markets and warehouse division also has been launched. Supporters of the $600,000 reclamation and flood control bill passed by the regular session have threatened to attempt consolidation of the reclamation department with the board of water engineers. The measures today however are an entirely new development in the state department consolidation plan.

Thirteen measures were introduced in the house today, bringing the total for the session in that body to 95.

The Harris text book bill which seeks to limit the annual expenditure of text book funds to $1.50 per scholastic was discussed briefly. An amendment by Pope to reduce the limitation to 50c was offered before the measure was set as special order next Tuesday.

The house appropriations committee this afternoon reported favorably the senate educational appropriation bill in order to have the measure printed before next week. No changes were made in the bill as passed yesterday by the senate.

The house adjourned at noon to enable members to make the junketing trip to Eastland and Stephens counties.

LOYALTY ASKED BY DR. POWERS

Wichita Delegation Will Go To Missouri Convention

Dr. O. L. Powers is making a special announcement to the members of the First Baptist church, especially, as follows:

"The Southwestern Baptist convention meets this year in Kansas City, Missouri, on the 15th of May, and we are hoping that there will be a good delegation to go from Wichita Falls.

The books of the convention close the first of May and every Baptist should make a sacrificial offering to the work of the convention before that time. All of the work is included in the 75 million campaign fund. It happens that this spring the most of our offering to this fund will go to the Home and Foreign mission boards. If these boards should come up to the convention in debt, the work of the convention would be greatly handicapped for another year.

Texas Baptists have been largely made by the Home mission board, and surely now, out of gratitude, we should come to the rescue of their work. Texas has more foreign missionaries on the field than any other state in the Union, and this is the time for us to show our gratitude to God for calling them into His service in these benighted lands, and to show our loyalty to Him and them by sacrificial giving to their support.

The pastor urges every man, woman and child of the church to bring a sacrificial offering to go to these objects next Sunday, April 29th.

Kuntz and Sartin Differ On Oil Tax; Producers Probably To Make Own Valuations Subject to Change

Signs of clearing skies in the county commissioners court oil valuation controversy were seen Friday afternoon following a stormy court session that brought no definite action but which aired the matter thoroughly.

Determined efforts of County Judge B. D. Sartin to pass an order rescinding the $750 a barrel valuation of county oil lands failed, but after the meeting adjourned two of the out-of-town commissioners are reported to have expressed a willingness to retract their former action. Judge Sartin intimated that Mondays meeting might be expected to bring a settlement of the trouble.

County Menaced.

The Friday meeting was called by Judge Sartin in an effort to clarify a serious situation resulting from the oil tax problem here. Refusal of oil producers to render their property for taxation, this being inspired by the recent boost from $450 to $750 a barrel, had necessitated prompt and decisive action, Judge Sartin reported. He pointed out that the $750 a barrel basis was acting as a "scarecrow" for oil men and that until it was removed the county stood an excellent chance of losing practically all of its oil tax revenue.

He urged that the former order, passed by three of the commissioners as a retributive measure against the special Wichita county road tax law, be repealed and the oil men allowed to render their property at any valuation they wished. In this connection Judge Sartin declared that the commissioners court had no power to state what figures any property should be rendered at. The $450 barrel basis, he said, was merely a gentlemen's agreement between the court and oil men here that this figure was equitable for all concerned.

Rendition Not Mandatory.

With this in view, the judge urged that it be made plain to oil men that they were not compelled to render their property at $450, $750 or even $1 a barrel if they did not see fit. However, the county tax assessor may raise the valuation to any figure he believes fair and the county commissioners, sitting as a board of equalization, could later declare what the tax rate should be.

Judge Sartin's position was that as things stood, the commissioners court had passed a measure which it had no lawful right to do and that this was blocking the rendition of oil properties. The judge then declared that the county would hold the commissioners responsible for their actions and that it was necessary to come to some understanding.

He asked that a motion be made rescinding the $750 order but none of the commissioners offered to help. Commissioner Jackson of Wichita Falls stated that he would make the motion if he had anything to do with the original $750 order, but that since he had not taken part in this, he refused to mix up in it now. Mr. Jackson and Judge Sartin were not in court when the valuation rate was boosted by Commissioners Kuntz, Knauth and Haynes, this order being passed over the heads of the Wichita Falls men after the latter had blocked attempts to raise the tax in the regular meeting.

Kuntz Objects.

Opposition to Judge Sartin's plan was led Friday by Commissioner Kuntz of Iowa Park. He flatly refused to endorse any such action as proposed by Judge Sartin and declared over and over again that the only way to rectify the present muddle was to repeal the special county road tax law.

This measure, passed by the legislature, gives to the various commissioners power to decree where road funds raised by taxation in their precincts shall be spent. Formerly, the court as a whole voted on the expenditures of road funds, but under the new ruling, Commissioner Jackson is the only one able to apportion out funds raised by taxation in his precinct. Accordingly, all funds raised by taxation in Wichita Falls, which is in Commissioner Jackson's precinct, are not made available for the out-of-town commissioners without Mr. Jackson's consent.

Needs More Revenue.

Commissioner Kuntz reasserted himselfs to the effect that in order to maintain his roads it would be necessary to obtain more revenue from some source and that an increased oil valuation was the most feasible way.

"Repeal that road tax law and this trouble will adjust itself automatically," Commissioner Kuntz declared several times, and then added that "if you don't, this county will be divided on the matter for all time to come."

When told that none of the commissioners had anything to do with the road fund law and that to repeal it would necessitate action at Austin, Commissioner Kuntz retorted that "some of you Wichita Falls folks had it passed and you could get it repealed if you tried very hard."

With Mr. Kuntz and Judge Sartin at cross points, Commissioner Knauth of Burkburnett brought out his altenative plan again, suggesting that the oil properties be assessed according to pools. He suggested that producing fields in his precinct, namely the Burk townsite, the Burkburnett pools, the Burk shallow fields and the northwest fields be taxed on a $450 a barrel basis, this being, he said, all that they were worth.

$450 Favored.

If commissioners of other precincts, he then declared, wished to assess their territory at higher or lower rates, this should be permitted. He made it plain, however, that $450 was the rate on which he thought his pools should be valued and that regardless of other action, he would advocate this basis when the commissioners court meets as a board of equalization.

Considerable opposition to this was offered by Judge Sartin, who contended that this would also be a "scarecrow" for the oil men and would hold up property renditions. He pointed out that such action would give oil companies here even further grounds for fighting the payments, and stated in this connectin that he knew a number of concerns who had already engaged counsel to oppose the county in its efforts to force a rendition of taxes.

Legal opinions by County Attorney Fulton, which upheld Judge Sartin's opinions, failed to react on Commissioner Kuntz and Judge Sartin finally adjourned the meeting.

In the court house corridors later, a number of oil men and friends of the out-of-town commissioners held an informal discussion. It was rumored that Judge Sartin's proposal was gradually being accepted and that the commissioners might permit a retraction of the order, raising the valuation to $750. An effort was made to get a quorum for another meeting, but Commissioner Haynes left the court house immediately after adjournment and it was decided to wait until next Monday.

Should these unofficial reports prove correct and Commissioners Kuntz, Knauth and Haynes allow a rescinding of their order, no valuation will be made for any of the oil properties. Producers will render their property at any figue they wish, but his will be subject to revision by County Tax Assessor Deaton as he sees fit. The commissioners court, sitting later as a board of equalization, will then have the final say as to what valuation shall be placed on production.

Wichita Falls Scored Heavily At Fort Worth Rail Merger Conference

A report on the railroad merger hearing before Commissioner Hall at Fort Worth last Monday was the principal thing to come before the chamber of commerce business council luncheon Friday noon.

W. B. Hamilton and Hubert Harrison, both of whom attended the Fort Worth session, reported the proceedings and stated that Wichta Falls probably scored more heavily than did any other single delegation.

Mr. Hamilton stated that the petty, personal attacks of some of those factions opposed to Wichita Falls had rebounded to their own detriment, although he made it plain that this city was fighting its battle alone and had found practically all Texas arrayed against it on the merger question.

W. M. William Dies

W. M. William, age 62, of Randlett, Okla., died at the local hospital Friday afternoon at 12:30, after he was brought there Thursday from his home in Oklahoma. The body was prepared for burial at the Merkle-Lunn undertaking parlor and was taken by them overland to Walters, Okla.

The deceased is survived by his widow, five sons and two daughters, all being with him at the time of his death. He was a prominent farmer of Randlett and was well known in that part of Oklahoma.

NEW PEAK MARKS

March operations set a new record for the country's productivity and business activities, according to the statement issued by the Federal commerce department. There is activity everywhere. There are new peak marks in consumption of manufactured goods. Prosperity is sweeping over the country. This is a severe setback for the democratic party.

THERE IS MONEY IN STEEL

Representative Johnson of Washington is a republican and chairman of the immigration committee. He is opposed to Judge E. H. Gary's talk of "letting down the bars to relieve the labor shortage." This is what he said: "In spite of restrictive immigration, the United States Steel corporation seems to have done very well with net earnings of $410,000,000 in 1922. Cheap labor makes a cheap country. Common labor works for 20 cents a day in Haiti and 40 cents a day in Porto Rico." And Johnson says the bars are to be closed tighter. It is up Gary.

FLOWERS FOR THE DOG

Oswald West is a former democratic governor of Oregon. Frank Pierce is the present democratic governor but democrats did not elect him. Oswald has scant respect for Pierce or his politics. This is what Oswald wrote in a recent letter to Pierce: "One of these days, however, you are going to walk out of your executive office, going to walk out of it just as I did. When that time comes, you are going to walk out of it alone, just as I did—unless, perchance, you own a dog."

Flowers for the dog.

SPINACH

This may interest Texas girls. America has a new Venus. Experts say her beauty and form have driven Venus of old from the ring. Her advice is to all American girls, to eat spinach twice a day and become a perfect thirty-four. They feed hay to cows and spinach is a kind of a hay. Why feed it to women? A six-weeks' constant diet of spinach would drive a man of iron to the mad house or the grave. This American Venus says that sleep is essential for all who hope for beauty. She enjoys 10 hours of sleep every night. Thomas A. Edison is partial to three hours of sleep. He isn't much of a beauty, but when it comes to inventive genius, he is the wonder of the world. The wizard of Enlow Park would not eat spinach twice a day on a bet.

An Ohio editor broke the bank of Monte Carlo. After breaking it, he sailed for home. He did not venture a second play. Some day he will go back to Monte Carlo and when he walks out he will go barefooted They will get his shoes as well as his money. MENTAL ANGUISH

English women have the ballot They have adopted a legislative program. They say they are going to put it over or elect a parliament of their choosing. As the law stands now in England, the husband can divorce his wife for adultery but a wife may prove her husband guilty of adultery a thousand times over and she will not stand a ghost of a chance of getting a divorce unless she can show cruelty. The brute.

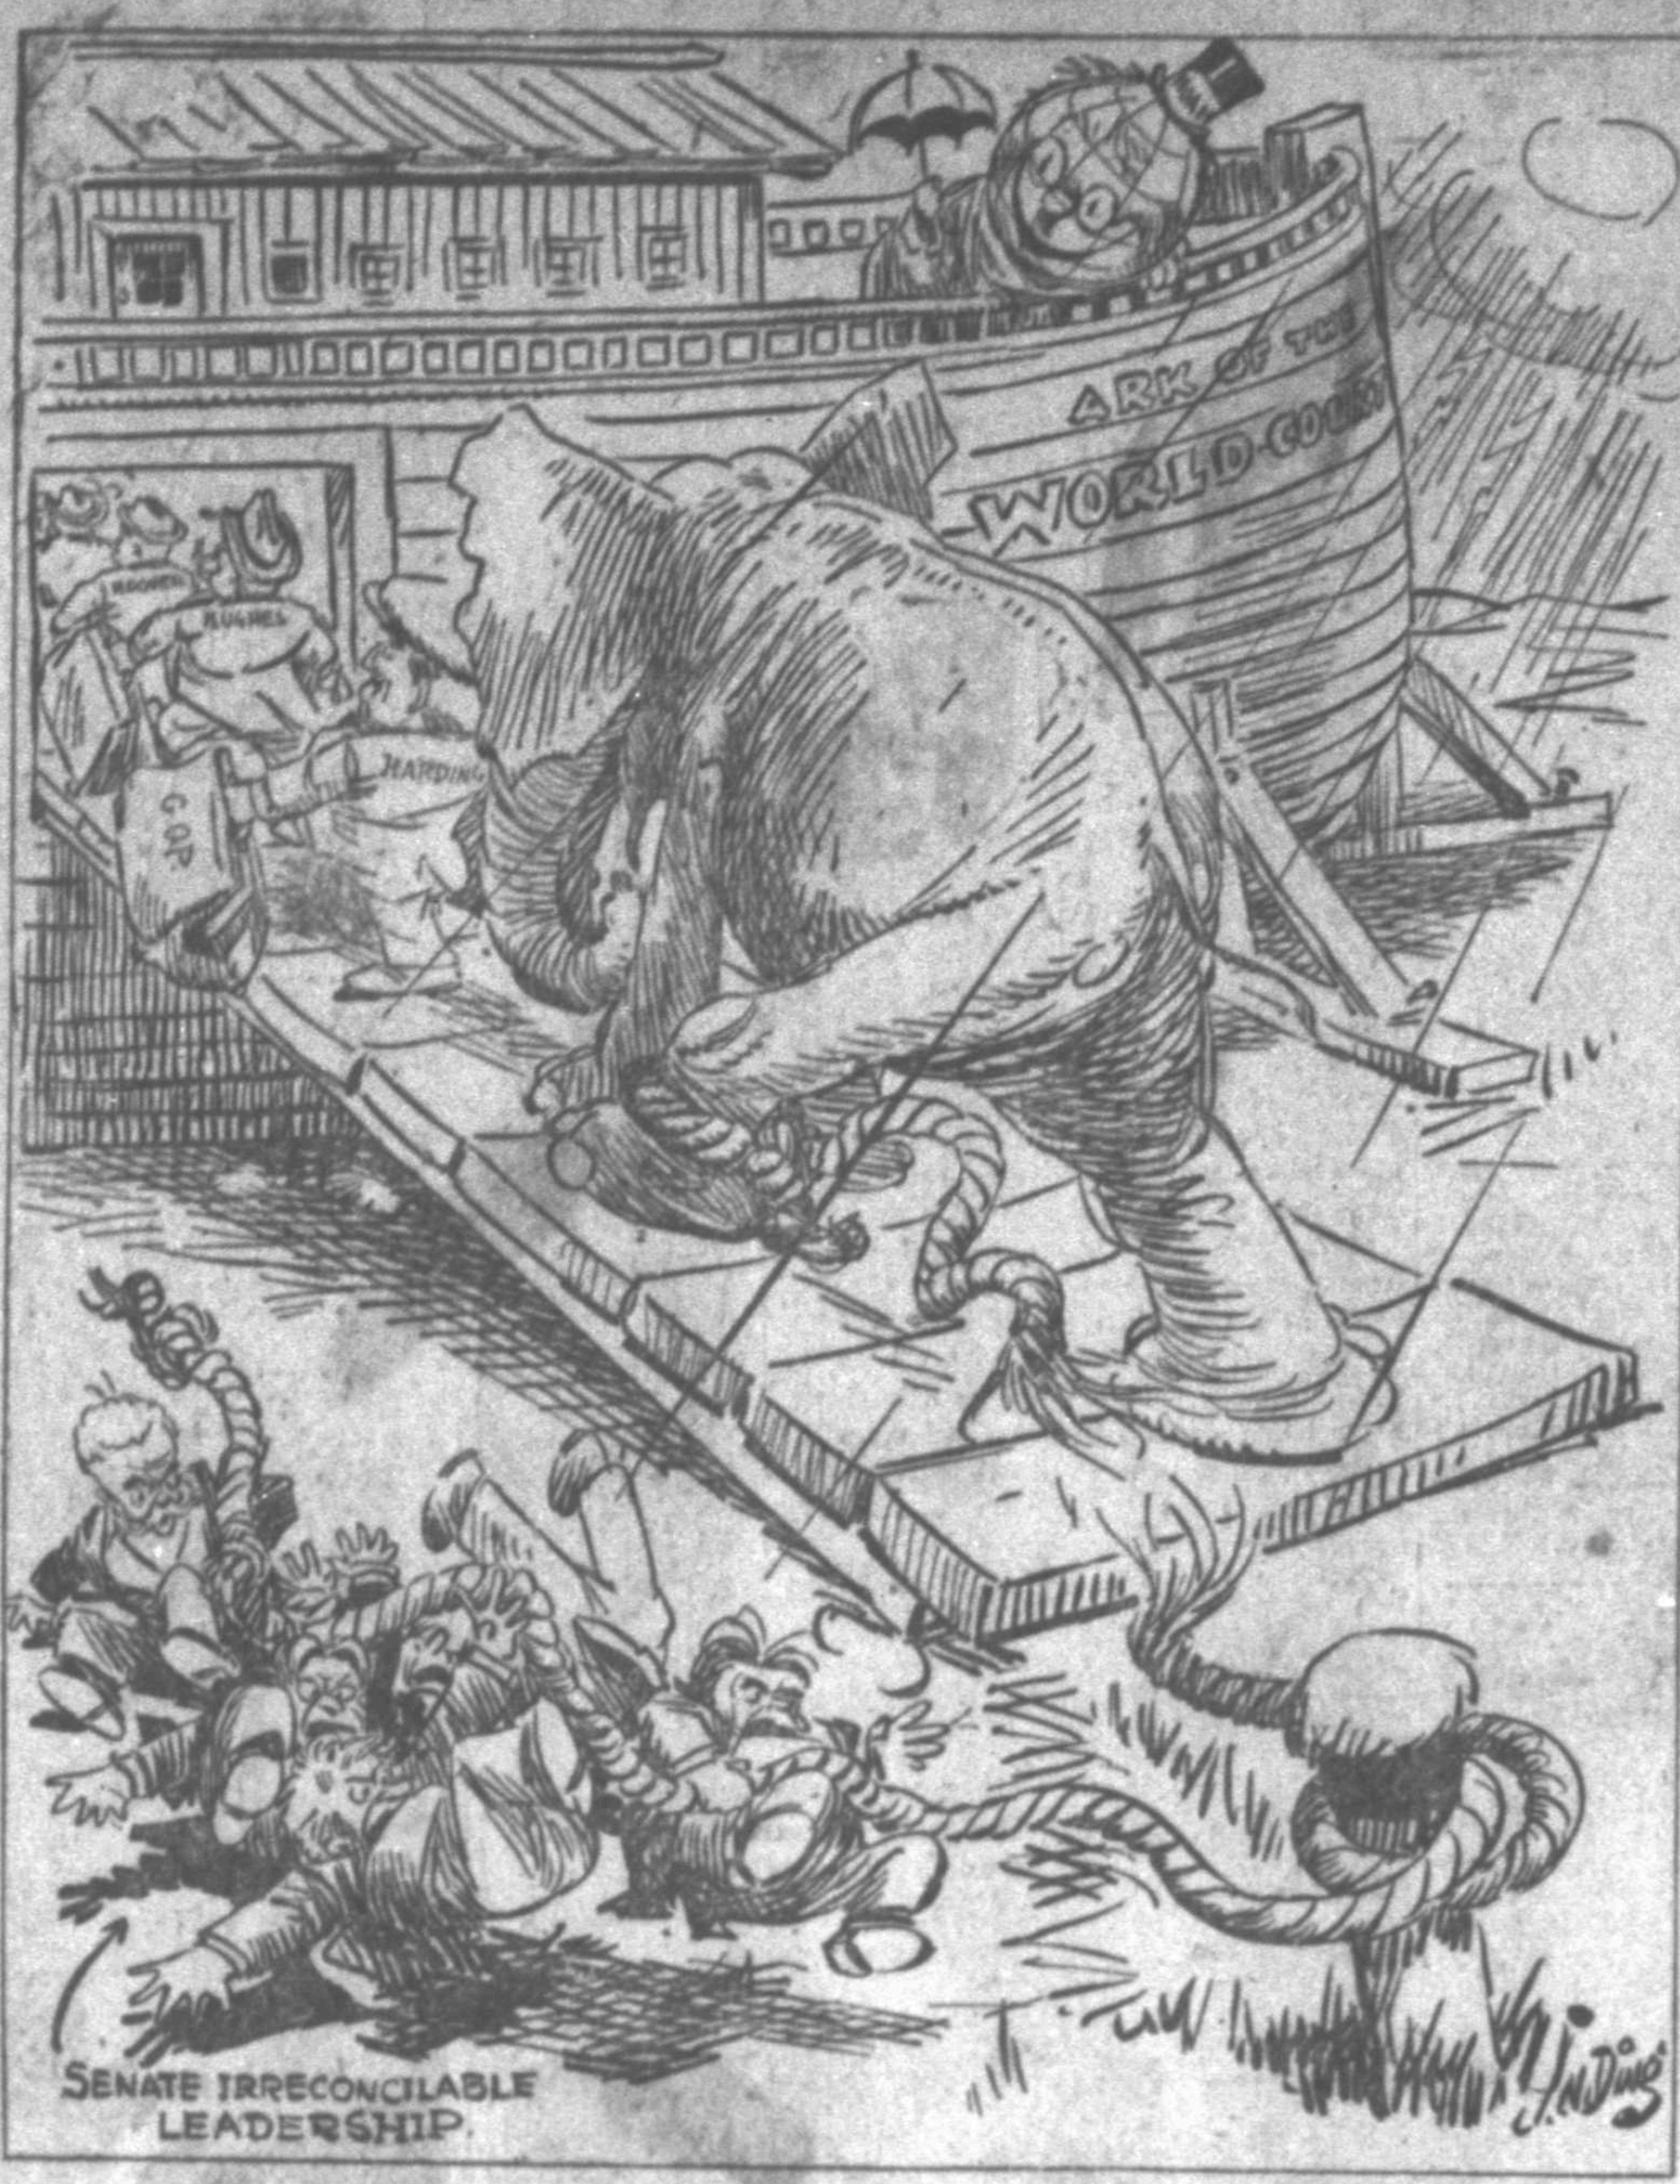
If It Turns Out Anything Like Biblical History, Somebody's Going to Be Left Out in the West



The Beautiful and Damned

By F. Scott Fitzgerald

In camp Anthony becomes entangled with a southern girl, "Dot" Raycroft.

Mr. "Black."

But the armistice brought an end to the romance and Anthony hastened back to Gloria.

His return brought into the foreground all their pre-bellum exasperations. Prices had arisen alarmingly and in perverse ratio their income had shrunk to little over half of its original size.

There had been the large retainer's fee to Mr. Haight, their lawyer; there were stocks bought at 100, now down to 30 and 40 and other investments that were not paying at all. Inevitably as the necessity for economy had increased they chattered of what they would do—oh—tomorrow, of how they would "stop going on parties" and of how Anthony would go to work.

But when dark came down Gloria, accustomed to an engagement every night, would feel the ancient restlessness creeping over her. Then the telephone, and her nerves would answer it with ill concealed eagerness. Some one was coming up "for just a few minutes"—and oh, the weariness of pretense, the appearance of the wine-table, the revival of their jaded spirits—and the awakening, like the mid-point of a sleepless night in which they moved.

As the winter passed they became more an more aware that since Anthony's return their relations had entirely changed. What endearments passed between them passed, it seemed from empty heart to empty heart, echoing hollowly the departure of what they knew at last was gone.

Anthony made the rounds of the newspapers and had again been refused encouragement.

In the mornings Anthony awoke tired, nervious, and worried. Halcyon summer twilights and the purple chill of morning alike left him unresponsive. One night in June he quarreled violently with Maury over a matter of the utmost triviality. He remembered dimly next morning that it had been about a broken pint bottle of champagne.

To Gloria the shrinkage of their income was a remarkable phenomenon, without explanation or precedent—that it could happen at all within the space of five years seemed almost an extended cruelty, conceived and executed by a sardonic God.

When they were married, 7,500 a year had seemed ample for a young couple, especially when augmented by the expectation of many millions. Gloria now realized that it was decreasing not only in amount but purchasing power. And though the suit over the will moved ahead of them like a persistant mirage and the financial danger-mark loomed up in the near distance they found, nevertheless, that living within their income was impossible.

She would be 29 in February. The months assumed an ominous and inescapable significance.

She grew supremely concious that she and beauty were going to make use of these next three months. At first she was not sure for what, but the problem resolved itself gradually into the old lure of the screen.

She was in earnest now. No matter for Anthony. Anthony, the poor in spirit, the weak and broken man with bloodshot eyes, for whom she still had moments of tenderness. No matter.

She would be 29 in February. Feburary came and seven days before her birthday Gloria called Joseph Bloeckman.

"Mr. Joseph Bloeckman has changed his name to Black," said the telephone girl. "Do you want him?"

"Why—yes." She remembered nerviously that she had once called him "Blockhead" to his face.

His office was reached by courtesy of two additional female voices; the last was a secretary who took her name.

"Can you see me?" she suggested lightly. "It's on a business matter, really. I'm going into the movies at last—if I can."

Next morning came a note that contented and excited her:

My dear Gloria:

> Just by luck a matter came to my attention that I think will be just suited to you. There is a "flapper" part in a Percy B. Debris production that I think would just be suited to you and would bring you notice. Percy B. Debris, who is directing the picture, says if you'll come to the studios day after tomorrow (Thursday) he will run off a test. If 10 o'clock is suited to you I will meet you there at that time.
> With all good wishes,
> Ever Faithfully,
> JOSEPH BLACK.

Gloria had decided that Anthony was to know nothing of this until she had obtained a definite position, and accordingly she was dressed and out of the apartment next morning before he awoke.

At the "Films Par Excellence" studios she was announced over the telephone and Bloeckman appeared—Bloeckman, a dark suave gentleman, gracefully engaged in the middle forties, who greeted her with courteous warmth.

A red-headed man approached them and spoke with familiar deference to Bloeckman, who answered:

"Hello, Debris. Want you to meet Mrs. Patch.... Mrs. Patch wants to go into pictures, as I explained to you.... All right, now, where do we go?"

Mr. Debris was introduced.

"Ever been in a studio before?" he asked. "No? Well, I'll explain exactly what's going to happen. We're going to take what we call a test in order to see how your features photograph and whether you've got natural stage presence and how you respond to coaching. I'll just have the camera man take a few hundred feet. We can tell pretty much what we want to from that."

He produced a typewritten continuity and explained to her the episode she was to enact.

Embarrassed she "acted" the scene.

A few moments later she left the studio. Bloeckman had promised that she would hear the result of the test within the next few days. Too proud to force any definite comment she felt a baffling uncertainity and only now when the step had at last been taken did she realize how the possibility of a successful screen career had played in the back of her mind for the past three years.

The third day of waiting found her in a highly nervous condition. She started for a walk in the park. At 3 there would be a mail. She would be back by 3.

Water was drying on the walks and in the park little girls were gravely wheeling white doll-buggies up and down under the thin trees while behind them followed bored nursery-maids.

Two o'clock by her little gold watch! She should have a new watch, one made of platinum oblong and incrusted with diamonds—if the right letter was awaiting her.... in about an hour.... 58 minutes exactly. Ten to get there left 48.... 47 now.......

Ages later, she sickened as the elevator groaned its way up—the floors passed like the slow lapse of centuries, each one ominous, accusing, significant.

The letter, a white leprous spot, lay upon the dirty tiles of the floor..

> My dear Gloria:
> We had the test run off yesterday afternoon, and Mr. Debris seemed to think that for the part he had in mind he needed a younger woman. He said that the acting was not bad, and that there was a small character part supposed to be a very haughty rich widow that he thought you might—

Desolately Gloria raised her glance until it fell out across the areaway. But she found that she could not see the opposite wall, for her eyes were full of tears. She walked into the bedroom, the letter crinkled tightly in her hand, and sank down upon her knees before the long mirror on the wardrobe floor.

This was her 29th. birthday, and the world was melting away, before her eyes.

"Oh, my pretty face," she whispered, passionately grieving. "Oh, my pretty face! Oh, I don't want to live without my pretty face! Oh, what's happened?"

Then she slid toward the mirror, sprawled face downward upon the floor—and lay there sobbing. It was the first awkward movement she had ever made.

Within another year Anthony and Gloria had taken a new apartment, for which they paid $85 a month, was situated on Claremont avenue, which is two blocks from the Hudson in the dim hundreds.

His companions now numbered a curious dozen. Several of them he had met in a place called "Sammy's," on 43rd. street, where, if one knocked on the door and was favorably passed on from behind a grating, one could sit around a great round table drinking fairly good whiskey.

Anthony, the courteous, the subtle, the perspicacious, was drunk each day—in Sammy's in the apartment over a book, and very rarely, with Gloria, who, in his eyes, had begun to develop the unmistakable outlines of a quarrelsome and unreasonable woman.

She was not the Gloria of old, certainly—the Gloria who, had she been sick, would preferred to inflict misery upon every one around her rather than confess that she needed sympathy or assistance; she was not above being sorry for herself.

As winter approached it seemed that a sort of madness seized upon Anthony. He awoke in the morning so nervous that Gloria could feel him trembling in the bed before he could muster enough vitality to stumble into the pantry for a drink.

For hours at a time he would sit in the great arm-chair that had been in his apartment lost in a sort of stupor—even his interest in reading his favorite books seemed to have departed, and though an incessant went to between husband and wife, the one subject which they ever really conversed was the progress of the will case.

One afternoon when the snow was dirty again along Riverside Drive, Gloria, who had been to the grocer's, entered the apartment to find Anthony pacing the floor in a state of aggravated nervousness.

"Have you any money?" he inquired.

"Why, Anthony, you must be crazy! You know I haven't any money except a dollar in change."

He executed an abrupt aboutface and returned to the living room, where he renewed his pacing. It was evident that he had something portentous on his mind.

"That darn bank!" he quavered. "They've had my account for over 10 years—10 years. Well, it seems they've got some autocratic rule that you have to keep over $500 there or they won't carry you. Well, I went there today to cash a check, and Halloran came up, told me they'd have to close my account and said this was a good time to do it because I didn't have a damn penny in there!"

"You didn't?"

"That's what he told me. And here it is Saturday," he continued, "and I've only got a dollar and some change, and we've got to live till Monday, when I can get to my broker's ....and not a drink in the house," he added as a significant after-thought.

"Can't you call up Dick?"

"I did. He's gone down to Princeton."

"Well, let's see— Don't you know some friend you might go to?"

"Well, how about that gentleman who was so anxious to help you once that he could hardly restrain himself, Bloeckman?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Why Is Nitrate of Soda Considered to Be the Best Fertilizer?

There really isn't any "best" fertilizer. If your soil needs more nitrogen then nitrate is very good, but if it needs lime or phosphates then nitrate of soda would not be the best fertilizer. In fact there is no such thing as a universal best fertilizer.

One soil may need one kind of fertilizer for a particular crop and another soil a different one. Some soils that are not productive do not need a fertilizer at all but something that will change their mechanical condition.

Heavy clay soils such as we have on portions of this project will probably need something to change their mechanical condition more than anything else. This mechanical change could in most cases be brought about by simply mixing sand with them, but this would be too expensive. The cheapest and best way to change this condition of some of our soils will be to plow under a few cheap green manure crops.

Where our soils are deficient in lime, or acid, then lime will have to be applied.

No doubt many of the soils on the project are deficient in available nitrates. The cheapest way to supply this deficiency will be to grow some such crops as alfalfa, sweet clover, or some other legume.

These crops have the same or better effect on soil than does nitrate of soda and in addition to supplying fertilizer in the best form they make money for the farmer while they are growing.

Nitrate of soda is a high grade, expensive fertilizer which can be used to great advantage to promote the growth of crops in many soils, but it is not necessarily the best.

More Truth Than Poetry

FOREWARNED

Because of so many breach of promise suits in which letters appear as evidence, the number of love letters in the mails has been cut down by more than half.

"He doesn't write the way he did,"
The troubled maiden sighed;
"He doesn't say, 'You honey kid,
My lovey dovey bride.'
No recent letter has he penned
Has said he loves me dearly,
But every one begins 'Dear friend:'
And ends with 'Yours sincerely.'

Oh, little maid, those misty eyes
Won't light up any more
When letters come, with glad surprise,
As in the days of yore.
No more hereafter you'll recall
The way he sang your praises,
He'll write you—if he writes at all—
In very guarded phrases.

He is not cold, dear little girl,
He's merely grown discreet;
To him you're still a perfect pearl,
The sweetest of the sweet.
But letters of the white hot sort
With words too freshly minted
From loving hearts may go to court
And afterward be printed.

No doubt he loves you just as well
As in the golden past
But seldom can a fellow tell
If love is going to last.
And though today he fondly dotes
He doesn't know what minute
You'll bring action on his notes,
And very likely win it.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

WISDOM CANNOT BE BORROWED

"The pilot," said Plutarch, "cannot mitigate the billows or calm the winds."

Neither can he teach the master of the vessel how to bring his craft successfully through the breakers or the raging wnids.

What the pilot knows is the deep waters of the channels. Through these he can guide the man at the wheel.

But his is limited, specialized knowledge.

Put him in any other port save his own, and he would require months, perhaps years, to fit himself for his work.

The master of the ship must know far more than the pilot. If need be, he must be his own pilot, using the chart to bring him into known ports or sending a boat ahead to find him the way through uncharted waters.

What the pilot has for sale is his own little knowledge. But wisdom as well as knowedge is required to navigate a vessel. And wisdom is not for sae.

It is not alone from the schools and colleges and the universities that knowledge can be had.

Almost every one with whom we come into contact has a little of it. All of them can be persuaded to shart it—at a price or for nothing.

But it is only knowledge they can teach us.

The wisdom we need to carry our human crafts through life we must build up for ourselves, using the knowledge that we get from others merely as the foundation.

That wisdom must be gained by thought, by real work of the brain, work more fatiguing than any muscular work, but far more useful when it is accomplished.

rFom our schools and our associates we get scraps of information, ways of getting things done, fragments of the knowledge that the race has been accumulating since it first began to think.

That we can buy, as the shipmaster can hire the pilot to show him where the channel is, or as the tourist can hire a guide to show him about Paris or Rome, and interpret for him the sign posts and the inscriptions on the monuments.

But all the pilots and guides in the world, whether they be channel navigators or inscription interpreters or college professors, cannot teach us to use our minds skilifully.

That is wisdom. And wisdom we must get for ourselves.

Knowledge will help of course. Mental training will help. All that we can learn from the past and the great men and women who lived in it will help.

But these helps after all are mere piloting through particular channels.

The wisdom that enables us to make our own way, even if no pilots are to be found is a thing of our own building. Years are required to construct it. But when it is once possessed, it will last as long as life.

What Today Means To You

By MARY BLAKE

The principal aspect today is an influence which inclines to haste. Therefore if you can overcome the tendency to act prematurely the mind and intuition will act with clearness interest and enthusiasm and much of use may be accomplished. But there is danger of being over confident and of assuming more than can be carried out. Use this influence for finishing up old work in a new way if possible.

A child born on this day is subject to "wanderlust." He will be clever, but perhaps very headstrong.

If today is your birthday, you are a perfectly normal human being who will certainly be a good citizen and a great help in the community in which you live.

You have considerable resolution and generally good luck. You will attain a degree of comfort, which will content you.

You are quick and active physically and rather fond of exercise and sports. But you are not the usual type of sportsman. As for you, the game is the important thing and you get just as much pleasure out of it, whether you win or lose.

You have the same philosophy in love and it will land you in sorry straits unless you revise it. For you there is some fascination in everyone of the opposite sex you meet and it amuses you to search it out.

You are not actually a flirt—you simply play the game of hearts as you would any other game, for the merry time of it all—and when taken seriously you are surprised and embarrassed.

For you marriage is the only means by which you will find ideal happiness, and you will realize this once you have settled down to it. You will make a wonderful mate if you curb your stubborn outbursts.

Spudder Bombardment Wins Opener, 10-2

RIP TAMES VISITORS WHILE LOCALS ARE BATTERING TWO GASSERS TO RAGTIME MUSIC

Spudders Show Best Attack of Year and Connect When Hits Are Needed—Riley Hits Two Homers and Whiteman Gets One—Opening Day Is Crowned With Success.

That omni-present opening day jinx which usually sticks to home clubs like a wad of gum on a new pair of kicks, was battered fifteen different ways from breakfast yesterday afternoon when Walter Salm's Spudders smeared up Ira Thomas' Shreveport Gassers like a tar and feather party and salted away the first game of the season in their own playground by the jolly little score of 10 to 2.

While the outcome of the merriment was never in doubt, it was so unusual for a home club to pull any sort of a trick such as winning a ball game on opening day, that it tickled and delighted the stand full of fans to the point where they forgot that the first of the month will soon be here and the rent will be due.

It Pops Out.

Every Wichita citizen and every other Spudder fan had been wondering for a week where that batting streak was and they saw it yesterday. The Spudders displayed a better attack than they have at any time during the season and the score tells it. They were hitting timely and opportunely, something they have not been doing heretofore and it was just about as welcome as pay day in the army.

The Gassers kicked in with enough naughty errors in the third to help the Spuds with four runs but excluding this bit of disturbance, the locals battered in enough runs of their own accord to win in a walk. It was Rip Wheeler's third out and his third win. He pitched a smooth and consistent game all the way through and was easily deserving of the spoils of victory. Aside from the two homers nicked off him, he was seldom in the hole and twice with men on third, timely double plays snipped off enemy runs.

Riley Shines Forth.

Had it not been for a long, rangy first sacker whose pay checks are made out to the name of Riley, the Gassers would have piled up a total that looked like a life preserver. This Mr. Riley was responsible for the only runs against Wheeler and twice he walloped the onion over the double barricade in right field for a home run. The second smash was as long as an Easter sermon and well worth four sacks. Riley also got two singles in his other trips to the platter.

One of the sweet parts of the victory was the fact that the Salm knights made no bones about getting started and they showed they were ready for business right now and without hesitation.

Bescher Gets First.

Bescher drew the first hit of the game, a single to right and was sacrificed by White. He scored on Tanner's double smash to center, bouncing over the plate with the first Wichita run of the home season. Elliott jammed a single past Sandaert and Tanner trickled to the plate.

Riley's first homer sailed over the lumber in the third but the Spudders danced to the tune of four in their half. It was "raspberry" inning with a home run 'n everything but not a single earned run. Wheeler was out when Bescher walked and White fouled to Riley. Tanner drove one at Standaert who gummed it up in the first place and threw wild to third for Bescher in the second. Bob scored and Tanner went to second on the mistakes. Elliott shivered the right fence with a double and Tanner scored. Burns gave Whiteman a life by dropping his foul and George paid his thanks by smacking his second home run of the tour over the left fence scoring Elliott in front.

Rose Departs.

Rose took a trip to the dripping showers after the third and Bird assumed the responsibility. Kitchens started him off with a single and was forced by Wheeler. Bescher waited for his second walk and after White's fly had found a resting place in Harris' glove, Tanner's bat connected with its second double of the game, scoring Wheeler and Bescher.

Bird continued wild but the Spudders got no more runs until the eighth and in the meanwhile Riley had swelled the Gasser's sum total to two with his other lost ball over the fence in the seventh.

Berger bolted a single by Sargent to start the eighth and drew up at third on Kitchens' double down the left line. Wheeler hoisted a sacrifice fly to Jackson and Berger came in. Kitchens registered on a single to right by Grigsby, Jackson making a gallant effort but missing the catch.

Well begun is half done and the noisy bombardment which the Spudders touched off should bring out the confidence on the home soil and put the club where it belongs in the Texas league firmament. The clubs play again at 4 o'clock today. Today's pitching guess—Fincher and Burns or Jolley.

BEARS PROSPER OFF KIRCHER

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 27.—San Antonio players liked the offerings presented by Pitcher Kircher and on six hits scored six runs in the first inning, before the southpaw was jerked in favor of Harle, who allowed but five hits in the seven and two-thirds innings he worked, and but one run. Roberts, for the Bears, was right, and held the visitors to seven hits and two runs. He struck out nine and walked four.

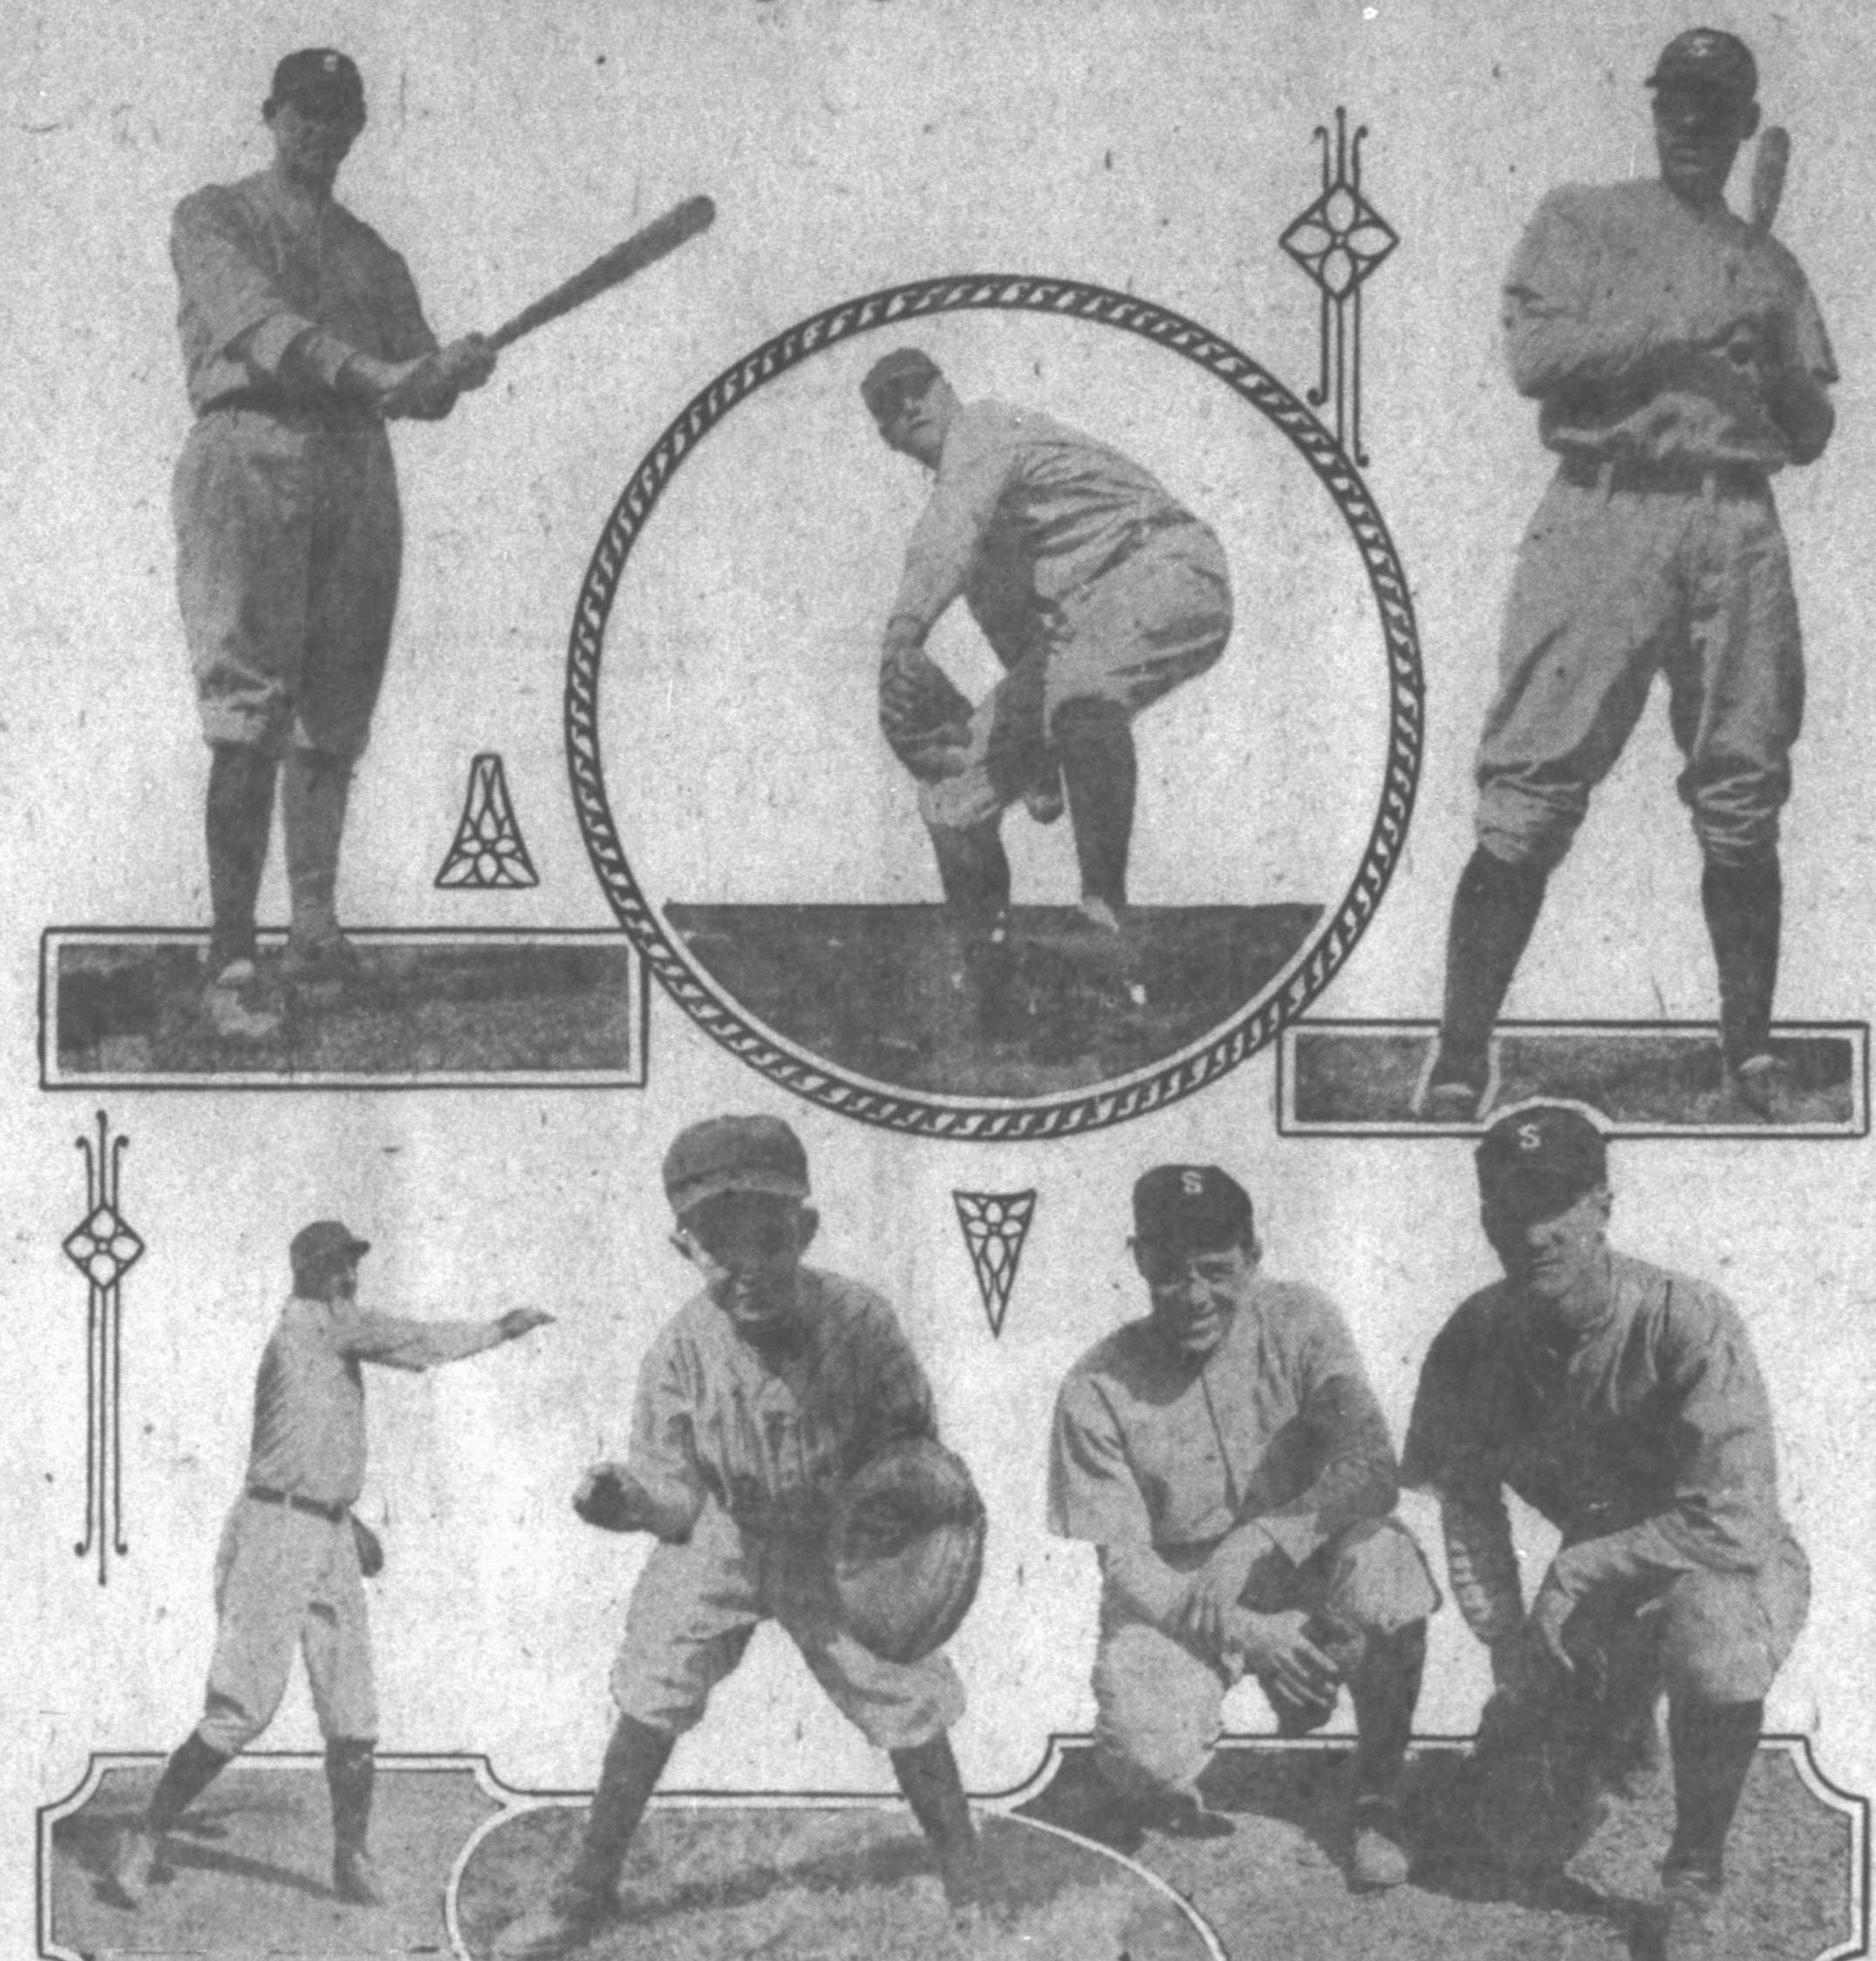
Some Shining Lights Of The Gassers



A few of Ira Thomas' Gasser crew who are here inaugurating the season with the Spudders. Top row at left: Shay, utility player who can work in any position on the diamond. Gasser fans believe he is a real gem on the club. Center: Chief Youngblood, the Indian hurler who relieved Rose and lost the first game to the Spudders at Shreveport. He was changed with a wild pitch, which let in the winning run, but Torres, his battery mate, very gracefully admitted that it was a passed ball after the game. Right: Jim Riley, who did nothing more than smite two homers out of the park in yesterday's frolic.

Bottom row, left: Smead Jolley who beat the Spudders in the second game at Shreveport; Tommy Van Lear, youthful and diminutive shortstop, who is the lucky piece of the Gassers; Joe Sargent, who is touted as one of the main cogs in the Thomas machine; Standaert, who is holding down second base in approved style.

PAUL SENTELLE, UMPIRE, IS DEAD

Former Texas League Arbiter Dies In Cincinnati Hospital

Associated Press Dispatch

CINCINNATI, April 27.—Paul Sentelle, national league umpire, died in a hospital here tonight, from the effects of an aggravated attack of appendicitis. Sentelle was 45 years old and lived in New Orleans. His wife was at his bedside when he died.

Sentelle was operated on here last Sunday by Dr. H. H. Hines, physician of the Cincinnati National league club. It was found the patient had suffered from a ruptured appendix, which made his condition precarious. He rallied after the operation and appeared to be recovering until yesterday, when he suffered a relapse.

Sentelle was appointed an umpire in the National league two years ago by President John Heydler.

Sentelle was well known in Wichita Falls for work here while connected with the Texas league. He was one of the most popular arbiters who ever donned the blue serge in the Lone Star circuit and his death is a keen blow to the baseball world in general.

DALLAS, Tex., April 27.—Paul Sentelle was manager of the Galveston team, of the Texas league, from 1913 until the team disbanded, during the world war. He then took up umpiring in the Texas league and was made chief of staff.

Coyotes Drop First Battle to Amarillo

Lose, 0 to 6, But Are Confident Of Double Victory Today

Special Dispatch to Record News

AMARILLO, April 27.—The Amarillo high school baseball team won the first of a three-game series here today from the Wichita Falls high school base ball team by the score of 6-0. A doubleheader will be played tomorrow to determine the high school championship of North Texas.

Ed Kollman pitched the game for the Wichita Falls delegation and had plenty of stuff, but seven hits gathered off of him and several miscues by his teammates was enough to lose the game. Wichita Falls only secured five hits off of Nichols, Verney Ross securing four of these. Ross, who is a catcher for the Coyotes, secured a triple, a double and two singles and played a good defensive game.

A message was received from Coach Henderson last night from Amarillo, saying although the Coyotes had lost the first game of the series, they intended to make a strong fight for the doubleheader today. It is not known yet who will pitch for the Coyotes, but in all probability it will be Ronie Glidwell, who pitched the Coyotes to a championship of North Texas last year at Amarillo. Kollman pitched a good game, but the seven hits were bunched off of him and his teammates made several costly errors.

Last year, when the hard-slugging Amarillo high school team had battered the offerings of all the Wichita Falls' pitchers to the corners of the lot in the opening game of the series, Ronie Glidwell, then a youngster in junior high, stepped in and pitched the Coyotes to victory in the two remaining games. Again Glidwell will have another chance today to bring a championship to Wichita Falls as two games must be won by the local boys. The task is great, but Glidwell rose to the occasion once before and he may repeat again today. The attention of the entire student body at the local high school is upon him and the question is, will he prove effective this year as he did last? This question will be answered after today's game.

NEVER SAW SUCH IMPROVEMENT

Says Lady Who Took Cardui After Having Become So Weak She Couldn't Stand—Had Pains All Over

MAGEE, Miss.—Mrs. J. M. Hall, of this place, writes that she was "getting weaker all the time" when Cardui, the woman's tonic, was first brought to her attention. After she had taken Cardui a while, she writes that she "never did see such an improvement."

"I suffered all the time and had pains all over," says Mrs. Hall. "I was so weak I could not stand. My skin was cold and flabby. I did not have any color. I had always been a very active woman—used to outdoor exercise, walking and going where I pleased, and to get down, not able to get myself a drink, was indeed a hardship.

"Nothing seemed to help me, till I began on Cardui. The first bottle seemed to strengthen me, and I sent for five more. By the time I had taken these, I was on my feet, going around, doing my work, gained in health and strength.

"I took two more bottles, and I am well and strong. Can work my garden. I haven't had any more sickness."

Cardui acts gently and in a natural manner, helping to relieve the symptoms of many forms of female trouble, and to build up the system to health.

Cardui is for sale at all druggists.

FAIR ENOUGH

Maybe we didn't Kop the Kup,
But we Kopped the opening game;
And our Spudders are started onward,
In their upward climb to fame.

You can't beat Bescher. The lively Ohioan got on three times and scored three runs. And he "wasn't feeling well," before game time. Poor boy, wonder what he'll do when he gets healthy again?

Didn't the Spudders look natty in the new white "unies?"

All spick and span and spotless,
In their uniforms of white;
The Spudders looked like candy kids,
They made a pretty sight.

"I ain't hittin' the size of my collar button, but I'm makin' stars out of the infielders," laughs Joe Berger before the game. He's not far wrong. Joe has been meeting the ball squarely but hasn't been able to shove them by the infielders. They've turned some fast plays to throw Joe out. Stay in there, sonny, they'll be sifting through before long.

The field was rather heavy after the recent rains. So was the Spudders' bombardment.

HOW ABOUT IT, CHIEF?

The mayor's in the bull pen,
A' warming up his arm;
The fire chief is listening,
In case of fire alarm.

The mayor shoots one over,
The chief sticks out his mit;
We don't know just what happened,
But we think the chief got hit.

Whiteman earned his homer, but it wasn't an earned run. Don't let's have any argument now. The little baseball bible says, no earned runs can be scored after a chance to retire the side has been spoiled. And if Burns had caught George's foul the side would have been ree-tired.

The theory of the business is that George should not have had a chance to earn a homer and therefore, it's not earned. Whether or not, it counts in George's book.

ONE-MAN STUFF

If it hadn't been for Riley,
His club would not have scored;
He drove a pair of homers,
Over the right field board.

He scored the Gasser total,
He did it all alone;
He earned himself a lofty seat,
Upon the home-run throne.

While Kid Simmons, who played the two-homer role at Shreveport, went to the rear of the class, with four outs.

Bescher and Grigsby are tied for the prize suit of clothes offered for the best batting average of the day on the Spudder club.

ONE WAY OUT

They might give Bob the pantaloons,
Let Grigsby have the coat;
And then present the vest to us,
Let's put it to a vote.

Spudder Players Capture Prizes

Several members of the Spudders are richer by some valuable merchandise as a result of the prizes offered by local merchants for the "firsts" of the opening game of the season.

Bob Bescher and Denver Grigsby were tied for the honors of the best batting average of the day, each hitting 1000. Bescher was up three times, got a hit and two walks, and Grigsby came up twice for a hit and a walk. A suit of clothes was offered for this honor and a decision will be made today by the donor, as to who is the lucky player.

Several of the prizes offered could not be decided yesterday. For instance, there was no three-base hit but these winners will be announced as soon as they go over.

The list of prizes follow:

First Spudder run, Bescher, $6.50 straw hat, by Ludlam & Riggs.

First Spudder base hit, Bescher, Bill Doak glove, by Collier & Landon.

First Spudder two-base hit, Tanner, $5 laundry coupon, by Pond's laundry.

First Spudder crossing plate for initial run, Bescher, bouquet of flowers, presented on field by Wichita Floral Co.

Field Is Entered For Drake Relays

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 27.—With record-breaking lists of more than 1,300 athletes, representing 151 institutions, entered in the competition, the fourteenth annual Drake university relay carnival will be held here tomorrow, with indications favoring a shattering of records. The relay carnival ranking in importance in the West to the Pennsylvania games in the East, attracted entries from all the universities in the "Big Ten and the Missouri Valley conference, and from universities as far south as Texas and Florida, and as far west as Oregon. The east will be represented by stars from Carnegie Tech. In addition to the large universities in the midwest, virtually every college and many high schools, also are represented.

Louis B. Race And Marathon Dancer Coming

Louis B. Race, another protege of Peach Tree street, Atlanta, Ga., long famed for its weird musicians of what is commonly termed the art of jazz and its follies girls, will reach the city today to stage a dance Sunday at the lake.

Race is bringing with him six of his best musicians, according to his manager, C. R. Astoria, who is arranging with WKAF broadcasting station to also put Race's program on the radio.

It is not unlikely that a dance marathon will be conducted here by Race, according to Astoria. The orchestra leader himself is somewhat of a "non-stop dancer," having gone for 40 hours and 60 hours respectively on two different occasions in Dallas. He is bringing one of the Dallas marathon dancers with him for an exhibition marathon dance here.

Keeping Pace In The Chess Match

Between Houston And Wichita Falls

Queen to King Rook, 5

This move, made by the Wichita Falls club, relieves the pressure which was brought to bear against the Queen and takes her into a place of safety. It is a good place for the Queen at all times.

The move also puts the Queen in position to open a direct attack on the Houston Kings Rook pawn when properly supported by other pieces.

The local strategic general was caught in the wave of straw hats yesterday and it is generally believed among the sporting element of the board that his nibs had the right side of the bet on the Spudders opening game. At any rate, the new bonnet takes some weight off the worthy general's mind and several strategic and incomprehensible moves are expected to be forthcoming within the week.

GOLF OPENING IS POSTPONED

Formal Celebration Will Be Held Next Week

Opening of the new municipal golf course which had been planned for this afternoon, has been postponed until next week, according to an announcement made yesterday by Walter Robbins, president of the Kiwanis club.

The postponement was made because of the fact that baseball was occupying the limelight this week with the Spudders staging their opening games of the season.

Date for the formal opening will be announced later and Arthur Salmon, who is to operate the club house, is planning to give a dance at the club on the night of the ceremonies.

Postponement of the opening will not prevent members from playing over the course.

Mid-Continent Oil Production Increases During Past Week

NORTH TEXAS FIGURES SLIP

Eastern Central Area Shows Gain During Seven Days

TULSA, April 27.—Apparently vexed by phenomenal increase in production by the California oil pools, centered within six counties, the Mid-Continent fields, located in five states has been forging ahead. For the week ending April 14, it was producing at the rate of 900,067 barrels a day, and for the week just closed the output increased 23,871 barrels a day to 823,738 barrels. This is revealed in the Oil and Journal's weekly survey of daily production made public today.

Oklahoma continues to lead with 484,338 barrels a day output, an increase of over 18,000 barrels a day. This increase is due exclusively to Tonkawa and Burbank, all other pools revealing losses. Kansas is also in the loss column.

The North Central Texas pool is slipping somewhat, while the East Central Texas shows a gain, the two totaling 197,450 barrels, or 128,450 barrels for North Central and 69,000 for East Central, which includes Currie and Mexia. The gulf coast field, which is not included in the mid-continent, also slumped a little.

Hughes Brings In Gusher At Mexia Flowing 5,000

Special Dispatch to Record News

MEXIA, April 27.—Morrow No. 1 of the J. K. Hughes Development company, extending Currie field about three-quarters of a mile southwest, came in Thursday night about 9 o'clock for the biggest gusher of the year, being credited with 5,000 barrels daily, flush production. The well came in during the progress of a thunderstorm bordering on a cloudburst. Two hours after the well came in, Mr. Hughes estimated the production at 5,000 barrels daily, but this morning the well is said to be going even better.

The Humble company pipe line men began laying pipe last night and the well is now producing 41 gravity oil into the pipe line. The coming in of this well has created new enthusiasm here, as it will very likely mean the drilling of a new territory, probably one-half as large as the Currie field is at present. It is producing at a depth of 3,180 feet in what is known as the second sand. It is two offsets distance from the gas fire of the Texas company, which recently destroyed the block Stock Gracey $30,000 rig, which has been rebuilt and where drilling is now in progress.

Cottom Makes Location For His Seventh Well

J. H. Cottom has made location for his seventh well in block 49 Wichita valley farm lands, Kemp tract, and will drill immediatey. Three producers have already been drilled.

No. 3, which was brought in several weeks ago, making only one barrel, was shot and produced two more daily.

Hobbs Plugs Two

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company has abandoned and plugged its No. 6 well on the A lease in the Hirschi pool, Wichita county. It is located on section 834.

SWASTIKA NOT ALLOWED FLOW

Second Well May Be Necessary To Prove Field

Special Dispatch to Record News

OLNEY, April 27.—The Swastika well was shut down all day yesterday and not allowed to flow, while preparations are being made to equip for pumping. The sand pump which has been working was shut down and the well closed down for the day, after producing freely all day and part of Thursday.

Some trouble has been encountered in the well, due to the type of plugging used when the well was left several weeks ago. Some pipe that was thrown into the hole, below the cement plug, along with rocks, and junk iron, has become lodged in the bottom of the hole, and will necessitate under-reaming to free the hole. The drill bit has pounded against the side of the pipe during all the weeks operations, making work exceedingly difficult. The well will be put on the pump as soon as possible and a test of actual production made. Estimates still run high regarding the well's production when completed.

At present there are seven derricks up in the field, with two more in the process of building. A water tank has been erected by the Swastika and the laying of a four-inch water pipe line from the Olney lake, by the Wilson Water company has been started.

The lack of water will not permit of drilling by other companies than the Swastika for at present all available water is under control of that company. The Swastika has derricks up for Nos. 2 and 3 and will probably start drilling in the new wells within the next few days. Other companies will wait until the water line is completed, probably some time next week, before work will be started.

Large crowds still remain in Olney and Megargle, and interest is still high with estimates of the wells productions running in high figures. However, it is the general opinion of drillers that another well will be necessary before the field will be proven.

The pipe line that was supposed to have been built at once following the completion of the well will probably not be built until another well is brought in to prove the field, for the Swastika will sell all its oil, in all probability, to wells to be drilled in the vicinity for fuel.

Hanes Company Is Granted Permit

The Hanes Oil company, newly established in Wichita Falls, was granted a permit Friday by the railroad commission at Austin, to do business in Texas. This company, which was originally organized in Winston-Salem, N. C. is capitalized at $10,000,000, and has established state headquarters here, with offices in the Staley building. H. T. Vass Jr., has been made state agent for the company and will be in charge of the Wichita Falls office.

CHEAPER LIGHT FOR VERNON

City Equips Own Plant In Fight To Lower Rates

Special Dispatch to Record News

VERNON, April 27.—With the Vernon Electric & Ice company having almost completed the installing of a new 520 horse power Deisel engine at a cost of approximately $50,000 and the city of Vernon having received a 250 horse-power engine to be installed right away to give electric power, Vernon is facing a period of more and cheaper lights.

There has been keen rivalry between the city and the lighting company. The city has contended that light rates have been too high and for that reason has decided to build its own plant. A rate war between the city and the light company is expected to bring down the rate here, it is said.

In addition to putting in the powerful engine, which is said to be the largest in this section of the state, the lighting company has spent approximately $50,000 on general improvement to the plant.

ODD FELLOWS MEET

RAIN MAY COST

VERNON, April 27.—After a few hours of sunshine following two days of rain at intervals, rain started falling here again today with every indication of continuing throughout the day.

Mrs. Musser Dies

BURKBURNETT, April 27.—Mrs. Elizabeth Christine Musser, age 48, died Wednesday night, in the Burk hospital. She was the mother of H. B. Cleary and M. Cleary. The remains will be shipped Thursday afternoon by Undertaker A. G. Dunn, to Kettlerville, Ohio, for burial.

OUTING AT BURK

BURKBURNETT, April 27.—On Tuesday evening the young ladies of Miss Pauline Gill's Sunday school class, and the young men of the Methodist congregation, enjoyed a brief, but jolly, outing, at the Red river bridge. A great "weinie" roast was cut short by the evening storm, but not before the gay party had enjoyed many a luscious roast with pickles and cake and fruit around the cheerful camp fire.

Mrs. W. R. Hill, Dr. and Mrs. Gill accompanied the twenty-odd young people, all of whom report a jolly outing party.

WHEN A BABY, YOUNG HERPICIDE WRIGLEY O'SHAY HAD HIS PHOTOGRAPH TAKEN TEN TIMES EVERY DAY, GREW TRAINLOAD OF WHEAT.

Twelve thousand bushels of wheat, enough to fill a train of 10 cars, have been delivered by C. Leeper to the Oklahoma Wheat Growers' association of which he is a member. Leefer has received three payments from the association totaling nearly $10,000. Another and final payment will be paid in June. This grain grower has more than 800 acres of wheat planted this year which he expects to market thru the same co-operative marketing organization. Wheat pooling is extending all over the wheat belt.

JUSTICE WAS KIND.

Jane Shetters, deserted with her babe, was arraigned for moonshining in a Tennessee court. "If your honor should see fit to give her a jail sentence," said her lawyer, "which I don't believe you will do, I ask that you give her time to wean this baby and I myself will pay her expenses back to court." Justice on the bench took thought, and spoke: Mr. Attorney," it said, "instead of accepting your offer to pay this woman's expenses back here, I am going to give you an opportunity to pay her railroad fare back home and she won't have to return." So justice was tempered to a little lambkin and his best friend. A one cent fine satisfied the law.

ONE ACE TOO MANY.

Francesco and Toby were playing poker in the rooms of the Italian Sociale at Westminister. Toby "called," Francesco showing four aces and beating Toby's four queens. Toby sat back and sighed, then he saw another ace on the floor near Francesco. Francesco was shot.... An extra ace in the deck has helped the undertaker more than once.

GASOLINE CUT HIT STOCKS

Heavy Openings By Short Interests Force Losses

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, April 27.—The irregular price movements in today's comparatively quiet stock market reflected the play of opposing speculative forces, net losses exceeding net gains at the close.

Announcements of another cut of 1 cent in gasoline prices, the second within a week, brought about heavy offerings of the oil shares by short interests, the net losses ranging from 1 to nearly 3 points, but the rest of the list offered better resistance to selling pressure. Higher call money rates had a restrainng effect on trading, but little significance was attached to them.

New low records for the year were established by a number of popular issues, notably Standard Oil of New Jersey, at 36⅝, Texas company at 47, Pierce Oil preferred at 32, Virginia-Carolina Chemical at 41⅝, American Cotton Oil at 11⅛ and Allied Chemical at 71, but most of these rallied later.

Motor shares were heavily bought, Studebaker leading the list, closing 1½ higher at 123¼, General Motors closing fractionally higher at 17¼.

Railroad shares were heavy. Losses of a point or more were recorded by Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley and Chicago & Northwestern preferred.

The call money market opened at 5¼ per cent, advanced to 5½, and then 6 but eased off to 5½ again just before the close.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was a new low record for the year made early in the day by Sterling demand at $4.62⅜, but good buying support made its appearance and the price rallied a cent for a slight fractional gain on the day. French francs held steady around 6.80 cents.

Associated Press Dispatch

FORT WORTH, April 27.—Small receipts of cattle arrived and most of the run consisted of stockers, for which there was little or no demand. In fat cattle the market was steady. Receipts were estimated at 3,500 head of cattle and 500 calves, but of that number 2,200 head of cattle were en route to pastures.

NEW ORLEANS, April 27.—While advances were the rule in the cotton market today, the upturns were fitful and the strength not well sustained. Heavy rains in Texas and the extremely bullish showing of the weekly statistics were the supporting influences but whenever the market hardened a great deal of realizing came from the long side, and this sort of selling was heavy enough several times to wipe out the gains. Highest prices came before noon when the trading positions were 34 to 42 pounds over the last quotations of yesterday. At the lowest the active months were unchanged to seven points up, compared with yesterday's final quotations. The close was at net gains of 16 to 19 points. May traded as high as 28.02 cents a pound and closed at 27.77 while October traded as high as 24.44 and closed at 24.28.

The feature of the weekly statistical statement was the great shrinkage in the visible supply of all kinds of cotton, world figures showing a loss for the week of 264,575 bales, while the visible supply of American cotton decreased 94,575 bales.

BRADSTREET'S REPORT

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, April 27. — Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"The advent of brighter, warmer weather, this aiding retail trade and crop planting and growth, and the maintenance of most lines of industry, this including building at high, if not record levels, are the distinctly favorable features of the week. On the other hand, wholesale buying and bookings by manufacturers and others for the future are quiet, while collection still lags. Employment is apparently in excess of the supply of labor, and special mention is made of some other marked shiftings of common labor from one section of the country to the other under the stimulation of high wages or bonuses. This is especially marked in the building trades and industries which call for large quantities of common labor.

WHEAT MART HIT BY BEARS

Prices Close Unsettled 5-8 to 1 ½ Cents Net Lower

CHICAGO, April 27. — Improvement in the outlook both for the spring crop and the winter crop had a bearish effect on the wheat market today. Prices closed unsettled, 5-8 to 1 1-2 cents net lower, with May 1.25 1-4 to 1.25 3-8 and July 1.23 1-4 to 1.23 1-2. Corn finished at 1 1-8 to 1 38 cents decline, oats 1-4 to 3-4 cents down, and provisions varying from a setback of five cents to a raise of 2 12 cents.

Rallies which from time to time took place in the wheat market failed to develop any lasting quality and the close was at almost the bottom figures of the day.

Offerings of corn for private elevators here exercised a depressing influence on values of corn and oats.

In the provision market the effect of higher prices on hogs was offset by the weakess of grain.

TOURIST PARK IS ADVOCATED HERE

Stopping Place For Transients Needed, Council Is Told

Suggestions of establishing a recreation park for tourists on the Moore & Richolt lot at Ninth and Indiana were made at chamber of commerce business council luncheon Friday. The matter was brought up by Al Ellis, who stated that something of this nature was needed to provide a stopping point for those motoring through the city.

No Camping Site

It was explained that this would in no way be a camping site, but that rest rooms might be erected for tourists. This would be especially welcome on Sundays, it was thought, when business houses are closed and there is no place to rest for a few hours.

Mayor Collier stated that he thought some place to be utilized for parking of local automobiles was needed quite as much as a tourist park. The overflow on downtown streets, the mayor said, was becoming an acute problem.

"Excuse Me," Is Crouch Subject Friday Evening

Following a fine song service last night at the First Christian church revival, Evangelist W. P. Crouch spoke on the subject "Excuse Me."

The basis of the sermon was taken from Luke 16, the invitation to the wedding feast. Various excuses were made—all of them excuses—and the final declaration of the Lord of the feast was "None of those who were bidden shall taste of my supper."

The evangelist mentioned the various excuses offered today by people, who are not Christians. He stated that when one is asked to do a thing he knows to be wrong, he immediately sets forth many reasons why he should not stop. But when a man is asked to do a thing he knows he should do, he can only give excuses and these excuses can never excuse a man from doing what he should do. The sermon was forcefully illustrated thruout and following two confessions were taken.

There will be service tonight at 7:45 and Mr. Crouch will also speak at both services Sunday. The music is featured by the work of Mr. Roper at the piano and Mr. Shepherd, who leads the singing.

Thousands Crowd School House Halls Friday Afternoon to Inspect Various Articles in Tenth Annual Exhibit

Thousands crowded the various school buildings in this city Friday afternoon to inspect the work of local students at the tenth annual school exhibit in Wichita Falls. The doors were opened at 2 p. m. and the halls were crowded until the closing hour of 7.

In the high school, work from all departments was displayed. Among this could be found material that would have been creditable to college pupils. Probably a larger crowd was in attendance at this building than any other in the city. An interesting program was rendered in the auditorium by the public speaking and music departments of that school.

History Maps and Charts.

The history department had maps, papers, charts and trophies of all kinds. A saddle was on display that was reported to have belonged to Santa Anna and a chest was also shown that came over in the Mayflower. Pictures of the five most representative Americans were also on display, together with pictures of most of the flags of the world which the history students had drawn.

The English department presented poems written by the pupils in that department, some being distinctly original and showing that the poet in question spent considerable time in construction work on the article. Demonstrations were also given in the makeup of an annual and the various processes necessary before a finished product can be placed in the hands of the purchasers.

Athletics Please.

Perhaps the most attractive and novel exhibit in the high school building was that of athletics, planned by Coach Jim Jones. Pictures of the football, basketball, track, and baseball teams were placed on two of the large blankets hanging on the school hall wall. Results of all the games have a large W in the center. Sitting on a table directly under the blankets were the cups which the teams have won this season. Pictures of the football which were used this year were also shown.

The Latin and Spanish departments were also well represented with pictures of Roman settings and Spanish and Mexican pictures. Papers from this department were also displayed.

Domestic Art Popular.

Several of the young ladies in the domestic art department acted as models in illustrating the various fashions of the day and of course the domestic art department was the main attraction. Dresses of all descriptions were hanging about the walls and the majority showed the results of much work on the part of the makers.

Several tables in the main hall were lined with good things to eat and which had been prepared by students in the domestic science department. Everything from fish to cake was exhibited.

At 3 p. m. a large audience listened to several selections rendered by the high school music and public speaking departments in the school auditorium the chief ones of these being "The Golden Sceptre," by the high school orchestra and a playlet, "Preparing For An Exhibit," by members of the public speaking classes.

All the ward schools in the city report a wonderful success with their exhibits. Most of the exhibits in these schools stressed the routine work of the students, showing their papers, maps and construction work taken from the regular class work during this school session.

Auto Fire Here

Flames belching from the hood of an automobile parked at the corner of Sixth and Lamar streets resulted in a fast run for trucks from the Central Fire station. The fire proved to be only from grease under the hood and was extinguished before any material damage was done. It is not known what caused the fire, the driver being absent at the time.

Denying a plea for a suspended sentence, a jury in the Eighty-ninth district court Friday afternoon assessed a penitentiary sentence of two years against Leo Wright, following his plea of guilty to charges of theft.

Wright was indicted on charges of stealing a number of automobile tires, accessories and equipment from a local sales house last month. In appearing for trial Friday, he entered his plea of guilty but asked the jury to give him a suspended sentence.

Equipped to move an increased load

Rail traffic doubles each generation. To adequately serve its territory a railroad must constantly add facilities and equipment. To keep pace with growth in the Southwest, and to provide increased and efficient service, approximately $40,000,000 has been expended in improving M. K. & T. facilities and equipment since 1915, the beginning of the receivership which ended recently.

Since 1915 the M. K. & T. has enjoyed largely increased traffic and revenue. Conditions beyond control of the management have caused increases in operating costs more than proportionate to the increase in revenue, but through better facilities and increased efficiency, the Katy has steadily improved its service.

M. K. & T. operating expenses increased 73% during the receivership period, while revenue increased but 68%. As a result of higher wages, payroll costs increased 84% while taxes increased 120%. Capital expenditures, which enlarged transportation capacity and enabled more economical operation, made possible successful results.

The re-organized Katy is now receiving additional power and equipment, purchased last year and involving an expenditure of $7,500,000. Additional equipment of fifty-five new, modern locomotives, 2500 new freight cars, and 30 new steel passenger coaches is available to handle 1923 traffic.

It is the Katy's purpose to continue the policies that have made possible the improvements during the receivership, and to steadily strengthen its capacity to serve the Southwest. The traffic essential to successful railroad operation, and the support of the public in the policies necessary to the maintenance of adequate transportation service, are earnestly solicited.
