Coming Sunday . . .

What benefits can Midland expect to receive from the Texas Tech Medical School's Permian Basin Regional Academic Health Center?

The "bricks and mortar" of the center building will be in Odessa. But, according to Dr. Sam Johnson, assistant vice president for program development of the medical school, Midland will get most everthing else it would have gotten had it been selected as site for the center.

In Sunday's Reporter-Telegram, staff writer Linda Hill Schaffrina takes a look at the Tech Medical School — its new facility in Lubbock, the way students are trained and what Midland can expect in benefits from the regional center.

Coal talks face informal deadline

By DAVID ESPO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations to end the 7½-week-old national soft coal strike resumed today against the background of an informal Carter administration deadline to get a contract accord by the end of the day.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall met separately with union officials and representatives of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association before reconvening a joint session.

Marshall, taking the role of chief mediator, had kept the parties around the bargaining table nearly continuously from Thursday morning until 2 a.m. today, when the bargainers recessed for a rest.

On Thursday, Marshall announced his intention to push for agreement sometime today, although he said that was not a hard-and-fast deadline.

But he said, "We don't have long. This thing can't go on."

There was other pressure from the administration, retreating step-by-step in recent days from its policy of non-intervention in labor disputes.

President Carter met with governors from a dozen states hard hit by the strike. Gov. James Thompson of Illinois said Carter remarked he would personally "step in" — a term that was not explained — if the talks don't result in agreement.

The White House dispatched presidential aide Landon Butler to the Labor Department to monitor the negotiations.

The administration also was beginning to talk more openly about the possibility of invoking the strike-halting provision of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"People are certainly talking about Taft-Hartley if this effort (the talks) fails, but no final decision has been made," said one admininistration official who asked not to be named.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said, however, there are "no plans to invoke Taft-Hartley" today or at "any specific time."

Sentiment in favor of invoking the act is tempered by a widespread feeling that miners will ignore any back-to-work court order issued under the act. And Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp said the governors' advice to the president was not to invoke the law.

In an interview with journalists Thursday, Carter said that "We...have to prepare for the eventuality, that I hope we never see, of a breakdown in the negotiations."

The president said if the TaftHartley Act is invoked, "it will require a little more attention to law enforcement to make sure there is no violence perpetrated against persons or properties."

Meanwhile, dwindling coal stockpiles in the Midwest continued to pressure electric utilities and their customers.

LIKE A GHOST from the past, an old wooden coal barge seems to rise from the mist in Little Bay de Noc, Lake Michigan. The pilings are all that remains of old ore-loading docks which have been replaced by new facilities at Escandaba, Mich. (AP Laserphoto)

Public events top trip agenda

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's first campaign swing of this election year is taking him to three New England states where Democratic senators face re-election challenges.

Carter scheduled a midday departure today for the 25-hour trek into Rhode Island, Maine and New Hampshire.

The White House is not calling it a campaign journey because public events occupy most of the president's schedule. But when Carter is not engaged in overt politicking, he will be campaigning on behalf of his programs and seeking voter approval of his own stewardship.

Because the trip officially is deemed mostly non-political, Democratic organizations will pay only a minority share of the cost.

The biggest event on the president's Rhode Island schedule was a nationally broadcast regional news conference, at a hotel ballroom in Cranston this afternoon.

But he also set aside time for a reception for Sen. Claiborne Pell, a three-term Democrat who is not expected to face major Republican opposition.

In Bangor, Maine, where Carter will field questions from citizens at an evening "town meeting," the president may confront critics of a proposed Indian claims settement, a federal plan for a big waterpower project and a Pentagon blueprint to all but shut down Loring Air Force Base in Aroostook County.

Moreover, Democratic Sen. William Hathaway is expected to get a stiff GOP challenge from Rep. William S. Cohen and perhaps from Gov. James Longley, a Democrat turned independent who is judged potentially capable of beating both.

Carter will take part in a Hathaway fundraiser and, on Saturday morning, join the senator at a political rally before flying to Nashua, N.H.

The president will hold a 90-minute question and answer session with New Hampshire high school students in Nashua, then return to Washington.

With Carter in New Hampshire will be Democratic Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, whose only announced Republican opponent is Alf Jacobson, president of the state senate, rated an underdog.

Meldrim Thomson, the state's conservative Republican governor, has hinted at a possible race against McIntyre, particularly if the Democrat votes to ratify the Panama Canal treaty. But a Thomson bid for a fourth term as governor is seen as more likely.

The expected Maine race between Hathaway and Cohen is viewed as a toss-up.

More cold forecast

After rain Thursday night and a trace of snow this morning, the weatherman is predicting less cloudiness but more cold tonight.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal reported .09 inch of rain Thursday night between 9:30 and 11:30 p.m. and a trace of snow from 5:25 to 6:05 a.m. today.

Texas Electric Service Co. readings showed .12 inch in East Midland, .16 inch in South Midland County and a trace in Odessa.

Hill favors strong civil rights law

By LINDA HILL SCHAFFRINA

Texas Attorney General John Hill Thursday called for stronger state civil rights laws to help in prosecuting cases involving deaths of prisoners in legal custody.

The attorney general spoke at a news conference at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Hill said the "official oppression" portion of the state penal code is very similar to the federal civil rights law concerning violations by law enforcement officials.

But, he said, unlike federal law, the state law does not make civil rights violations a felony when a death is involved.

Changing the state law to make it a felony would give district attorneys "flexibility," because a case could be prosecuted under that law without proving intent to kill, Hill said.

Rather, he added, it would be necessary only to prove intention to violate civil rights.

Hill made his proposal in response to questions about the Jan. 22 Ector County Jail death of Larry Lozano. The attorney general's office is conducting an investigation of that death in order to determine whether to recommend federal civil rights prosecution, he said.

"I don't like asking the federal government to involve itself in state affairs at any level," Hill said. However, he said, even if state law was strengthened, federal prosecution still could be used if local officials failed to prosecute.

Hill, a Democratic candidate for governor this year, had been accused by Ector County District Attorney John Green of entering the Lozano case for political reasons. Green said the attorney general had no jurisdiction in the case.

Hill called Green's charges "unjustified and unwarranted."

He said he has responded on several occasions to requests from citizens groups to investigate such cases, and the request from the League of United Latin American Citizens to investigate the Lozano case had come "in proper form."

The attorney general added that his office currently is investigating several other deaths of Mexican-Americans who were in legal custody. One of those cases is the Glasscock County death of Tiburcio Griego Santome Nov. 6, he said.

"We're interested in the truth and we're interested in the facts," Hill said.

He said he has a "responsibility" to investigate and determine whether to recommend federal civil rights prosecution. That, however, is his only jurisdiction in such cases, he said.

The attorney general said he had notified Green and Ector County Sheriff Elton Faught that he was investigating the Lozano death, and both pledged their cooperation. He characterized his conversation with Green as "sober and sane."

He said Dan Meso, who is handling the attorney general's investigation, has reported the investigation is proceeding "in a normal fashion, and I know of no obstruction."

Hill also called for increased spending for training law enforcement officers to help prevent police brutality incidents.

John Hill

Hill attacked incumbent Gov. Dolph Briscoe's leadership ability and competency. "Frankly, the office has gotten away from him" Hill said of Briscoe.

Hill said he is committed to imposing no new taxes on Texans, and he attacked Briscoe's handling of state money.

"He's had twice as much money to spend as his predecessors, and he's blown every penny of it....He does not have a strong hand on the helm and lets the Legislature predominate and dominate him" Hill said.

He called for an increase in education funding, and accused Briscoe of "hostility to education."

The attorney general pledged to take an active role in the budgeting process.

"I will be a working governor, and that'll help a lot — just to have somebody there on the job," Hill said.

The candidate said he has raised more than $700,000 of the $1 million budgeted for the primary campaign. He said he hopes to raise the other $300,000 at a fundraising event in Houston March 1.

At his press conference, Hill announced that his Midland County campaign will be run by Reagan Legg. Marilyn Baker and Pat Basin will have "leadership roles" in the county campaign, he added.

In Odessa, Mayor Dan Hemphill will be campaign chairman, and Lucius Bunton, co-chairman.

Nixon aides dispute nuclear 'invitation'

By OWEN ULLMANN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former foreign affairs aides to Richard Nixon are disputing H.R. Haldeman's claim that the Soviet Union asked the United States to take part in a nuclear strike against China in 1969.

There was no denial, however, that the Russians were considering a preemptive nuclear attack on China's atomic testing facilities during that period. One U.S. official said the Soviet's thinking was common knowledge.

A Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman in Peking said it was not Chinese practice to comment on such reports.

There also was no comment from Soviet officials.

Haldeman, the former president's chief of staff, says the holocaust that would have resulted was averted by a combination of diplomatic moves and an intelligence ploy patterned on a tactic used successfully during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

Haldeman, who is in prison for his Watergate crimes, makes the claims in his book, "The Ends of Power," which goes on sale today.

However, Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's national security adviser at the time, said, "This is not true," when asked Thursday about Haldeman's report that Russia had asked the United States to participate in the attack.

Kissinger, appearing on NBC's "Today" show, said, "All the papers on foreign policy matters run across my desk and I do not recall any such event and I would not have forgotten it."

In Peking, a U.S. official who asked not to be identified said today he doubts the United States was invited to take part. "The Russians knew full well what our reaction would have been," he said.

And retired Maj. Gen. George Keegan, then the Air Force's intelligence chief, said he was unaware of any official, high-level Soviet invitation to the United States.

But Keegan acknowledged that "a number of lesser Soviet officials ...made discreet inquiries and suggestions to lesser Americans

Mayor asks re-election

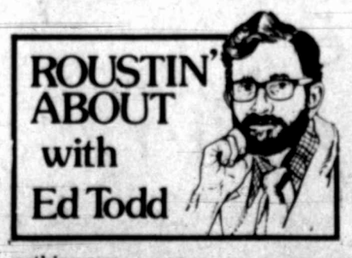

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. this morning announced he will seek another two-year term as mayor.

"For the last six years, I have enjoyed the privilege of serving as mayor of the City of Midland. It has been a challenging and rewarding experience working with a great community and fine people who live here," Angelo said.

"My enthusiasm for our city and its potential has not diminished over the years," he added.

City elections will be held April 1.

91-year-old ex-farmer has 78 great-grandkids

For almost a quarter of a century, Ira Freeman has been indulging in one of the world's most sought-after pastimes — doing nothing.

That seems to be his fruit, however shrunken, for a lifetime of labor.

And if that's a "just reward" for this 91-year-old ex-farmer and former filling station operator, well, it's also reward enough for his son, Leon, who owns up to "doing nothing" since he retired as a mechanic two years ago at age 63.

Their life seems to be one of easy relaxation, which may or may not be tantamount to idleness and nothingness.

"He still piddles around in the garden here," the son said of his father, who moved to Midland from Paris in Northeast Tecxas in 1954, when he retired to do exactly what he's doing today.

Ida Freeman is not your "typical" old-timer who moved to Texas from Alabama in a covered wagon. Perhaps he could have. But it must have been much simpler and more practical for his farming father to relocate the family by rail — The Texas & Pacific.

Freeman, one of 13 children, reckoned that his daddy brought the family to near Paris in Lamar County because his daddy's twin brother had already moved there.

"They were always close together," Ida Freeman said this week in the company of four generations of his king. "I guess that's why he followed him."

Freeman has lived long enough to be counted among the first of five living generations in his lineage. He figures that that is worth mentioning.

But that's getting ahead of the mule

Saudi jet capability upsets Dayan

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's decision to sell top-line jets to Saudi Arabia may stiffen Israel's determination to hold on to military airfields in Sinai in negotiations with Egypt.

This became clear as Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan told reporters after a meeting with Carter that he is "very upset" about the prospect of the Saudis being able "to cover the entire Israeli sky without refueling."

Dayan signalled a drive to either get Carter to change his mind, which seems unlikely, or to persuade Congress to block the $2.5 billion deal. There is a much better chance of that.

Already, 10 of the 15 members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have recorded their opposition. Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., has launched a drive to block arms sales to Egypt and Israel as well as Saudi Arabia, and Republican Party Chairman Bill Brock criticized the package as ill-timed during critical negotiations.

The Israeli campaign, which also seeks to scuttle sale of 50 F-5E short-range fighters to Egypt, will grow in intensity next month as Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and then Prime Minister Menachem Begin visit here.

"The Saudis, when they get the F-15s, would be able to get to Eilat, (Israel's vital Red Sea) within 10 minutes," Dayan said. "The Israeli people would be asking, 'Where would be the Israeli air field to meet and intercept the airplanes?'

"Shouldn't we have our airfields as close as possible to (Saudi Arabia)?

"What I'm saying is that these planes would have an effect on the entire military picture of Israel, its defensible borders and military installations."

Even before Carter made up his mind, Israel was trying in negotiations with Egypt to hold on to military airfields at Etzion, near Eilat and near the Yamit settlement to the north. Both bases are on the Sinai, just beyond Israel's old border, and were not included in the territory Israel offered to give up as part of a peace agreement.

The Egyptians, with growing support from Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, are also demanding that all 19 civilian settlements be dismantled. Israel is trying to retain them, but in a concession, Dayan told a news conference Thursday, it is prepared to have policemen rather than troops protect the settlers.

Dayan, during his tightly scheduled day, met with Vance over lunch, with Carter for a half-hour, saw reporters and met with House members on Capitol Hill before flying home.

team, so to speak.

Once Ira Freeman's father "got up on his feet" after coming to Texas, he settled in the Broadway community 10 miles south of Paris to farm cotton and corn.

Freeman and his day had a "four-horse crop" which amounted to about 100 acres, he recalled.

"I had a small crop, and he (th father) had the rest of it," Ira Freeman said.

Those draft animals used to pull the plows also included mules.

"They're all smart as long as you teach them what to do," said Freeman, who never traded his draft horse and mules for a tractor. "They're not dumb."

In 1909, Freeman entered into a marriage that was to last beyond 63 years. His wife, Zollie, died in Midland five years ago.

It was in the mid-1920s when Ira Freeman packed up the family and belongings and moved to Oklahoma in a 1917 Model T Eord to raise a "two-horse crop" of cotton and corn.

"Tractors always got the best land," said Freeman, who farmed at Blanchard, Okla. "And what you could get with ules and horses was poor (land), so I quit."

That was in the late 1930s, when he worked for a spell in clearing timberland in New Mexico for the Rural Electrification Administration (REA).

By 1942, he got caught up in the war effort. He was working for the U.S. Army Air Corps at the Douglas Aircraft co. plant at Oklahoma City. His job was to "check in" stuff at the receiving dock.

Afterward, he returned to Paris and operated a gasoline service station for nine years.

By then, it was time to retire and do nothing. He came to Midland to be close to his children.

And just this week, Ira Freeman posed before the camera with his kind for that five-generation portrait. With him were his oldest living son, Leon Freeman; his oldest granddaughter, Barbara Roberts, 40, of Plainview; his oldest great-granddaughter, Kathy Marshall, 21, of Plainview, and his oldest great-great-granddaughter, Matthew Marshall, who's 12 weeks old.

For a man who's not doing much these days, Ira Freeman at least can count his "blessings" when he's not hoeing in the garden or reading the newspaper. He begat eight children, who in turn gave him 34 grandchildren. The grandkids gave him 78 great-grandchildren, and the latter brought him three great-grandchildren.

Hospital room rate increase in effect

ODESSA — Medical Center Hospital room rates will go up $10 to $15 a day, effective immediately.

The increases, approved Wednesday by the hospital's board of managers, are the first since May 1975.

Ward, semi-private and private rooms will increase in cost by $10 a day and intensive care and coronary care units by $15, according to Administrator San Glenney.

New rates will be $65 for ward beds, $68 for semi-private, $79 and $80 for private and $150 each for intensive and coronary care.

Glenney said those rates are lower than most of the hospitals in Abilene, Big Spring, El Paso and Midland. Midland Memorial Hospital's intensive care rate is $140, but all other Midland hospital rates are higher than the new Medical Center rates, Glenney said.

The new room rates are expected to produce $557,505, which, in turn, will yield $462,602 after deductions for Medicare, Medicaid, bad debts and free care, according to Glenney.

The major portion of that will go to salary increases for employees and night shift incentive pay.

Glenney said salary increases were necessary because Medical Center had "fallen behind" other hospitals and is having difficulty recruiting and keeping employees, particularly nurses.

Money shortage brings resignation

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. David Boren's office confirms that Grand River Dam Authority Manager Charles Richard Huddleston resigned from his job suddenly this week because of reports of a fund shortage at a Houston bank where he once worked.

"Records of the U.S. District Court Clerk's office in Houston show that Charles Richard Huddleston was charged on Aug. 4, 1971, with embezzlement of funds by a bank employee," the Daily Oklahoman reported in today's editions.

unofficially to ... determine whether the United States would be interested in participating in a surgical strike against Chinese nuclear installations."

"I am unaware of (discussions on) higher levels where Kissinger or Nixon would know directly," Keegan added.

When informed of Haldeman's account, he said, "How the hell would Haldeman know all that?"

Haldeman wrote that the Soviets, considered "paranoiac about China" by U.S. intelligence agents, moved several nuclear-armed divisions within two miles of the Chinese border in 1969, with plans to wipe out Chinese nuclear plants.

If the Chinese struck back, he said, there would have been global war.

"Insane. And yet, the Soviets were ready to go. In fact, they insisted we join them," he said.

Haldeman said Kissinger initially did not recognize the severity of the situation, and when he realized that a Soviet-Chinese war was a serious possibility he and Nixon decided to let the Soviets know the United States wanted to be a friend of China.

Walter J. Stoessel Jr., the U.S. ambassador to Poland, was ordered to approach the Chinese envoy to Warsaw at a party and tell him the United States wanted to resume U.S.China talks in Warsaw, which had broken off early. "In the atmosphere of the time, when China was a bitter enemy of the U.S....this approach at a party would be a seismic event," Haldeman wrote.

Meanwhile, said Haldeman, intelligence chief Keegan remembered a 1962 incident in which the Air Force commander-in-chief deliberately sent an uncoded message to the secretary of defense as a warning to the Russians. That message discussed U.S. nuclear weapons and named Soviet cities allegedly selected as targets. Russian ships carrying missiles to Cuba turned back a short while later.

Keegan decided to use a similar ploy in 1969, Haldeman said. The aim of this message was to make sure the Russians knew that nuclear fallout on China also would kill thousands in Soviet Siberia.

Haldeman said the Soviets "teetered on the edge for days....Finally, the Soviets realized they no longer could take the chance" and withdrew their nuclear divisions from the Chinese border.

Keegan, however, said Thursday, "That's very badly garbled...almost all in error."

He confirmed in a telephone interview from his suburban Maryland home that the Soviets were told fallout from an attack would affect thousands of their citizens as well as Japanese, Koreans and others in that part of the world.

But he said he was "unaware of any messages...It was not at all like in 1962."

"A few low-level officials acting entirely on their own and outside of the chain of command made some very discreet efforts" to dissuade the Soviets, he added.

Keegan would not fully describe those "efforts," although he said they were personal contacts outside Washington.

Airline avoids strike, reaches late agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Airlines avoided a strike when it reached agreement shortly before midnight Thursday with the Transport Workers Union.

The strike, which would have shut down the nation's second largest airline, had been scheduled for 12:01 EST today.

The union represents 12,000 American employees, most of whom hold mechanical, maintenance,inventory, communications and meteorology jobs.

Charles A. Pasciuto, the airline's vice president for employee relations, said the two sides agreed on a 28-month contract, retroactive to last September, when the old accord expired. He said the new contract would expire March 1, 1980.

The agreement must still be ratified by the union members and details of it were not available.

Ernest Mitchell, director of the TWU's transport division, said the tentative contract covered wages, hours and working conditions and provides for "the highest wages and one of the best pensions in the industry."

The union had extended the old contract's deadline until Jan. 16 and the two sides continued negotiating during a 30-day cooling off period mandated by the Railroad Labor Act.

Two from Greenwood seek school board posts

Two Greenwood residents Thursday announced they are seeking spots on that school district's board of education.

Marvin G. Manning, owner-manager of Texas Motor Co., is running for Place 5. That post currently is held by Bud Lea, who is not seeking re-election.

Leroy Ledford is seeking Place 4, now held by Charlie Dunn, who also has decided not to run for re-election. Ledford is a lieutenant in the Midland Fire Co.

In announcing his candidacy, Manning said he wants to "help to improve communications between faculty, administration and parents" and to "work towards continuing high academic and moral standards in our school."

Ledford also pledged to "maintain the school system's high standards."

Ledford said he felt he can "better serve the school system as one of their trustees" after working closely with the Greenwood School system for the past five years."

Midland hospital district board election set for April 1

By ED TODD

The board of directors of Midland County Hospital District on Thursday ordered an election April 1 to fill two places on the five-member board.

Filing for election to the posts they currently hold are rancher Frank Cowden Jr., the board's president, and banker William P. "Bill" Franklin, secretary.

The board was created last Sept. 17, when Midland County voters by a 3-to-2 margin authorized the hospital district and the selling of $10 million in bonds for expansion of the 28-year-old 175-bed hospital.

The hospital district, as a taxing entity, takes in the city and county of Midland.

Cowden and Franklin will be seeking two-year terms on the board of directors.

Filing deadline for candidacy is March 6.

Those wishing to get their names on the ballots may file petitions by March 6 with board secretary Franklin at the hospital's administrative offices.

To be eligible for candidacy, a would-be director must be at least 18 years of age, must own taxable property in the county, and must "file a petition . . . signed by not less than 25 electors asking that his name be printed on the ballot," reads the bill, passed by the 65th Texas Legislature, that authorized creation of the taxing district.

Serving with Cowden and Franklin on the board are board vice president L. Decker Dawson, president of a geophysical company; Edwin H. Magruder Jr., an oil operator, and Robert L. Pendleton, banker. An election to fill the places held by the latter three directors will be in 1979.

The board of directors Thursday agreed to:

— Share the six polling places on April 1 with the city of Midland, the Midland public schools and Midland College. The four taxing bodies will share election expenses.

— Set up a polling place at Greenwood, so that voters in that community will not have to travel to Midland to vote in the hospital district election. The Greenwood public schools election falls on April 1.

— Appoint Patsy Bohannan, Gene McDaniel and Walter Holton to the board of equalization, which is common to the city, Midland public schools and the college.

— Transfer the $8.5 million in hospital assets (land, buildings, equipment) from the Midland Memorial Foundation to the hospital district. The hospital's board of governors and board of trustees already have approved the action. "I think that it is absolutely essential that we maintain a high degree of liaison between those two bodies," director Magruder said of the boards of governors and trustees. (In terms of replacement, the hospital is valued at in excess of $20 million.)

The board noted that economic evaluators Standard & Poor of New York has given a "double A" bond rating to the hospital district. The bonds have yet to be solt.

VOTING PRECINTS

The six polling places in the April 1 election are listing by voting precincts:

— Precincts 1, 10, 12 at Midland Fire Station No. 3, 1710 N. Edwards St.

— Precincts 6, 7, 9, 20, 23, 27 at Fire Station No. 4, Delano Avenue and Circle Drive.

Volunteers plan visits to homes

Volunteer interviewers this week began visiting Midland senior citizens in their homes to find out how they find out about services they need.

The survey is a project of the Senior Services Office of First Christian Church.

Marion Fisher, senior services director, said a great many Midland senior citizens do not know about special programs and services available to them. Many learn only through chance conversation about help designed to be delivered through community agencies, she said.

The interviewers will carry identification with them and will present each cooperating senior citizen with a packet of informative materials.

The survey is planned to include a representative cross-section of the approximately 8,000 Midlanders who are more than 60 years old.

Transplant patient improves

HOUSTON (AP) — A 21-year old Texas oil field worker who doctors said was the first patient to benefit from an assist device and a human transplant was reported in stable and improved condition today.

The recipient received a new heart and one kidney from a suicide victim in what was described as "last ditch" surgery Wednesday. It was Houston's first cardiac transplant in more than eight years.

Hospital spokesmen earlier had said the young man's ailment began with a tooth abscess that caused infection to spread throughout the body, including the heart.

Meanwhile, two top oficials of the Texas Heart Institute in St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital said a new heart transplant era soon may be possible by using partial artificial pumping devices until donor organs can be found.

The patient has not yet been identified.

"His mental status has been encouraging and he is cooperative and responsive," a statement the Texas Heart Institute said. It said the transplanted heart, which was removed from Leona Singleton, 38, a Houston mother of two who shot herself Sunday night and died Tuesday afternoon, was "functioning well."

However, the gift kidney had not started to work Thursday but hospital public relations representatives said the specialists in charge of the double transplant patient did not expect it to function for perhaps another day or two.

The statment said Dr. Denton A. Cooley and Dr. John C. Norman "maintain hopeful but cautious optimism."

Cooley is surgeon-in-chief at the Institute and Norman is chief of the institute's cardiovascular surgery research laboratories.

A statement read to newsmen Thursday quoted Norman and Cooley as being "encouraged" by the patient's condition and "optimistic" that the same type of technique could help other critically ill heart patients.

They emphasized "this is the first instance" wherein a partial mechanical heart, the abdominal left ventricular assist device (ALVAD), had been combined with a donor heart successfully to sustain the life of a patient after cardiac death.

The combined use of the assist device and donor organs "may open a new era for management of patients with terminal heart failure," the statement said

The patient came to the heart institute last week for for a fairly routine aortic valve replacement operation after the the abscessed tooth had caused a bacterial infection that destroyed the the heart valve, hospital representatives said. During that surgery, they said, his own heart failed, necessitating use of the ALVAD and he was sustained on the mechanical device for six days before the heart transplant.

"We are gratified at his present condition, especially since his own diseased heart ceased to function seven days ago," the Cooley-Norman statement said Thursday.

The ALVAD maintained the transplant patient's blood circulation normally for six days and could have been continued, the Cooley-Norman report said, but doctors "concluded his own heart would never recover and that cardiac transplantation offered the only viable option for survival."

The scientific and treatment effort for the transplant patient "is the result of some 10 years of research activity" at the Texas Heart Institute, the statement said.

The ALVAD "has been tested in experimental animals (calves) in excess of 20,000 hours and has previously been implanted in 16 patients," all of whom died.

Local TV show premiere slated

A new television show, produced locally, will have its premiere at 1 p.m. Saturday on KMID-TV.

"Youth Today," a 30-minute show planned for monthly presentation, has been written and produced by the radio and television department of Midland College.

"This program is designed to appeal both to young people and adults since it will be dealing with local problems, college and high school activities and various special events," said Jerry Watson, program coordinator for "Youth Today" and speech, radio and television instructor at Midland College.

An earlier program of the same title was produced by students at Edison Freshman School of Midland, with production assistance from Midland College students. The new show has MC students on-camera as well as handling production responsibilities.

The initial program in the series will include a segment on problems of teenage runaways in Midland. Called "Let's Talk About It," the segment provides an interview with Midland County Judge Barbara Culver who also serves as judge of the county juvenile court. The segment presents filmed scenes at the Culver Youth Home, the county's modern facility for runaways and juvenile offenders, and provides an interview with a Midland girl who was a runaway.

Other segments of the program will include a discussion of "Pyramid Power," with affirmative and negative views of the subject to be presented, and information about current activities and coming events not only at Midland College but at Lee and Midland high schools.

Researched and written by Midland College students, some portions of the program are being produced on videotape in the television studio at Midland College.

"We feel that 'Youth Today' provides an exciting learning experience for our students," Watson said. "They know that what they are working on is going to be seen on commercial television and judged against professionally-produced programs. That gives them the sense of urgency, quality and reality they will face when they enter the radio or television field."

Shorty Stokes of the KMID-TV staff is serving as program director for "Youth Today."

Escapee wanted on Midland warrant remains at large

LIBERAL, Kan. (AP) — One man who escaped from the Seward County jail Thursday night was still at large today, but another, charged with first-degree murder, was captured in Meade, the Kansas Highway Patrol said.

The highway patrol said that it, along with the Meade County sheriffs office and city police, arrested John Edwards, 26, in Meade. He has been charged with the Jan. 21 slaying of Bula Pervis of Liberal.

The other escapee was identified as Mark Wilson, 27, Lubbock, Texas, who was being held on a fugitive warrant issued in Midland, Texas, in connection with an aggravated robbery.

Meade County Sheriff Arlie Johnston said Edwards was stopped at a roadblock and offered no resistance. Johnston said Edwards told them he stole a pickup truck in Liberal and drove it to Kismet, where he stole the car he was driving when stopped at the roadblock.

Johnston said Edwards said he and Wilson split up in Liberal shortly after the escape. A house-to-house search was being conducted for Wilson in Liberal.

The men overpowered Seward County Sheriff Howard Smith and escaped from jail about 8 p.m., authorities said.

Odessan treated, released

Robert V. Bernard, 29, of Odessa, was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital at 2:30 a.m. today, after his 1975 Chevrolet pickup truck ran into a ditch and overturned in the 4700 block of U.S. Highway 80 West.

According to Midland police reports, Bernard was going west on U. S. Highway 80 when the accident occured. Police said the pickup was totally destoryed.

Terminal constable admitted

Leonard Garcia, of Odessa, a constable at Midland Regional Air Terminal, was admitted to Midland Memorial Hopital at 2:55 a.m. Friday with multiple contusions and a broken rib after he was found unconsicious near KMID-TV station.

His condition was reported as satisfactory by a hospital spokesman. Police reports listed Garcia as the victim of an assault. No other details are known as this time.

Bus hijack shooting may cost driver job

DALLAS (AP) — Officials say a young Dallas bus driver faces possible loss of his job for carrying the pistol he used to shoot a Nigerian national who allegedly comandeered a bus and three passengers with a weapon that turned out to be a toy pistol.

Osogie Omoredioion, a 24-year-old car wash attendant who has used the name Tony Johnson, remained in serious condition early today with a gunshot wound to the neck. Police said he faces four counts of aggravated kidnapping.

Kenneth Earl Cobb, 22, a Dallas Transit Authority driver for three months, grabbed his pistol and shot the alleged hijacker Thursday afternoon after the man had held the bus for about 45 minutes.

Cobb was illegally carrying the pistol, but police spokesman Ed Spencer said, "The department has no intention of filing any charges on the bus driver. We will turn our investigation over to the district attorney's office."

Jerry Johnson, DTA director of marketing, said it is against regulations for a bus driver to carry a weapon. "The matter will have to be taken under advisement," added Johnson, who said "it is conceivable" that Cobb could be fired for carrying the pistol.

Cobb and the three passengers were unhurt.

Police remained mystified about the man's motive in the incident. Cobb said the man told him about 2 p.m. that he'd announce at 4 p.m. why he had comandeered the bus. Cobb shot him at 2:35 p.m.

"We don't really know what to call it. It is bizarre," said Spencer. "The suspect never said what he wanted."

"What his motive was, he was going to tell us at 4 o'clock," said Police Lt. Melvin Southall. "He didn't make it."

Cobb told officers that when Omoredioion was distracted while the passengers were allowed to leave, he pulled a .38 caliber pistol he was carrying beneath his coat and shot the alleged hijacker once in the neck.

The guaranty is to amount to five percent (5%) of the total bid and must be in the form of cash or certified check, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City of Midland, or a bid bond. If in the form of cash or certified check, it is hereby expressly understood and agreed that the City of Midland is given the right to retain such as liquidated damages if such bidder withdraws its bid anytime after such bid is opened and before official rejection of such bid or, if successful in securing the award thereof, such bidder fails to enter into the contract and furnish satisfactory performance bond and payment bond. If a bid bond is submitted, it shall be executed on forms contained in these contract documents by a corporate surety authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and acceptable to the City of Midland.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Pursuant to Art. 5421q, V.A.T.S., notice is hereby given to the City of Midland Parks Department and the general public of a public hearing to be held on the 28th day of February, 1978, at 5:00 o'clock p.m. in the City Council Chamber at 300 N. Loraine St. in the City of Midland, Texas, for the following purpose:

The City Council of the City of Midland is contemplating the use of Block 23 of the West End Addition to the City of Midland, Midland County, Texas, commonly known as "Crier Park" for the site of a combination park and Central Fire Station. This property is bounded on the north by Texas Avenue; on the east by North "H" Street; on the south by Wall Avenue; and on the west by North "I" Street.

The proposed program or project is described as follows:

The new central station for the Midland Fire Department will be a one-story building of 20,000 square feet which together with required parking and driveways will occupy approximately two-thirds of the site now used as Crier Park. The building will be situated in the southern portion of the lot facing Wall Avenue with the majority of parking in front. There will be additional parking to the side facing "I" Street and the fire truck driveways will exit both ways from the building onto "H" and "I" Streets.

To the rear of the building facing Texas Avenue will be a landscaped park area approximately one-third of the lot in depth, and occupying the entire block front along Texas Avenue. This park is designed with sidewalks, trees, benches, a playing field, and appropriate landscaping.

An Earth Berm will be constructed against the rear portion of the Fire Station itself to provide visual and sound relief from the station activities.

The park will provide an area approximately 90 feet by 300 feet which could be used for outdoor activities of all sorts from jogging to concerts, and is designed to accommodate the City Christmas tree.

The public hearing is to assist the City Council in determining whether or not (1) there is no feasible and prudent alternative to the use or taking of such land for the above described project, and, (2) such program or project includes all reasonable planning to minimize harm to such land as a park or recreation area resulting from such use or taking.

Don't bury the Boston Celtics yet

By The Associated Press

Don't count the Boston Celtics out of the National Basketball Association playoffs yet.

The Celtics, seemingly out of contention not long ago, suddenly have regrouped, winning six of their last seven games, and are beginning to again put fear into their opposition.

Their latest victory was exceptionally eye-catching, a 98-95 decision Thursday night at Phoenix, where the Suns had won 16 in a row.

"You have to give Boston credit ..." said Phoenix Coach John MacLeod, whose Suns have the league's third best record, 36-18. "They controlled the game for the most part and made the big plays at the right time."

Boston now is 20-31 and has a long way to go to overcome some of the teams ahead of them in the playoff race. But since captain John Havlicek announced his retirement, effective at the end of the season, and Kermit Washington was reinstated following a two-month suspension, the Celtics have played more inspired basketball.

IN OTHER NBA games, the Cleveland Cavaliers routed the Denver Nuggets 119-87, the Washington Bullets whipped the Buffalo Braves 123-109, and the New Jersey Nets beat the Seattle SuperSonics 101-92.

Dave Bing led the Celtics with 23 points and Dave Cowens sank two free throws with 32 seconds remaining, putting Boston ahead 96-95.

Cavs 119, Nuggets 87

Cleveland took command by outscoring the Nuggets 13-2 during the final 3:45 of the first period for a 27-16 lead. By halftime, the Cavaliers were ahead 58-38 and Denver, the Midwest Division leader, never got closer than 16 points after that.

Jim Chones and Bingo Smith scored 18 points apiece for the Cavs, Austin Carr had 17 and Campy Russell 16, while rookie Anthony Roberts paced Denver with 19.

Bullets 123, Braves 109

"We were doing basketball things that are pretty," Washington Coach Dick Motta said after the Bullets' lopsided victory that avenged a 37-point loss — the worst of the season — to Buffalo in their last meeting.

"We were awful ... awful from the start," admitted Braves Coach Cotton Fitzimmons.

Elvin Hayes topped the Bullets with 25 points, Bob Dandridge and Kevin Grevey each had 22, and Wes Unseld scored 14 points and grabbed 17 rebounds. Swen Nater led Buffalo with 20 points and 16 rebounds.

Nets 101, Sonics 92

"The acquisition of John Williamson has given the team the confidence it didn't have earlier in the year," said New Jersey Coach Kevin Loughery after the Nets — the losingest team in the league — had beaten the Sonics.

Williamson, nicknamed "Super John," lived up to his billing, connecting for 39 points. Kevin Porter chipped in with 23 points and 13 assists for New Jersey, while Gus Williams was high for Seattle with 24 points.

San Diego event lures big names

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Possibly the strongest field of the indoor season competes tonight in the 12th annual San Diego Invitational track and field meet and at least one world record holder thinks she'll better her standard.

"I want to break 2 minutes in the 880 and if I do it anywhere it'll be here," says Mary Decker, now 19 and the former child star of the half-mile.

Four years ago as a tiny 90- pound youngster she set the world indoor mark in the half-mile at 2:02.4 on the same Sports Arena track. "If someone will go out fast against me, I can do it," said Mary, a University of Colorado sophomore.

IN JANUARY, Mary began a comeback after shin splint surgery last summer by running the 1,500 meters in 4:08.9 and the 800 in 2:01.8.

Her old late kick has been replaced by a front-running style. At the Times Invitational two weeks ago in Los Angeles she romped to a world-record 2:23.8 in the 1,000-yard run.

"I think the 1,500 is my best distance for the future," she said recently, "but first I'd like to run the 880 again."

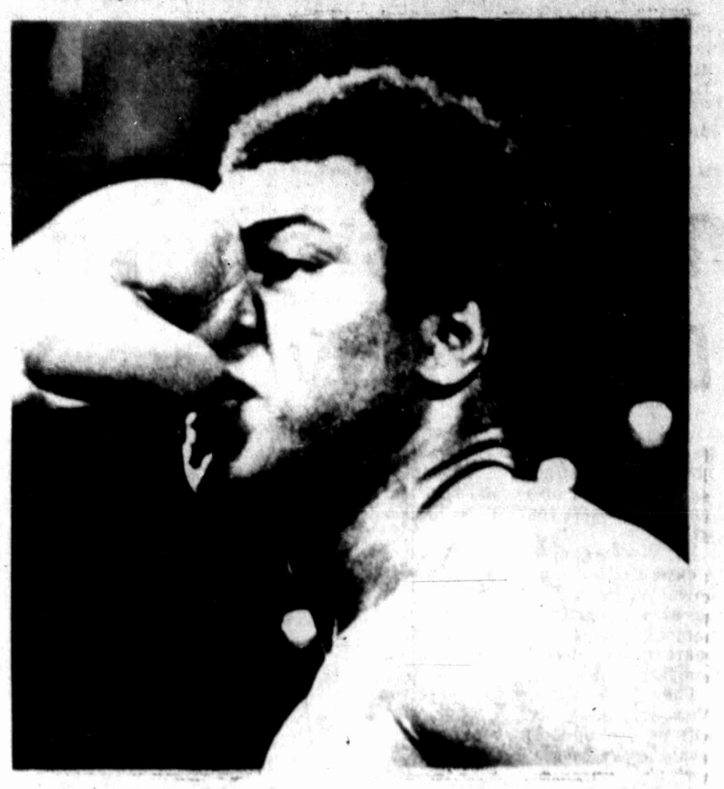

Dick Buerkle, who set the men's world indoor mile mark of 3:54.8 in Maryland last month, has withdrawn. He reportedly suffered a stress fracture of the right foot which he says might sideline him up to four weeks.

JAMES MUNYALA of the University of Texas-El Paso is a last-minute replacement for Buerkle in the mile. He'll line up against Mark Schilling, Jeff Jirele, Steve Scott, Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan, John Konigh, Paul Cummings and Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, world record holder over 1,500 meters.

The 2-mile matches Suleiman Nyambui of Tanzania, Dick Quax of New Zealand, Kenya's Henry Rono, Nick Rose of Great Britain and Americans Thom Hunt of San Diego, Duncan McDonald and Greg Meyer.

The high jump features the top finishers in the Montreal Olympic games in Jacek Wszola of Poland, Canada's Greg Joy and America's mercurial Dwight Stones.

Mike Tully, world record holder in the pole vault, will test Wladywslaw Kosakiewicz of Poland, who was top rated in 1977, Dan Ripley and Earl Bell.

CUT IT out. That hurts. Former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali takes one on the nose Wednesday night in Las Vegas as Leon Spinks connects with a solid left late in the fight. Spinks won a split decision and dethroned the Louisville Lip. (AP Laserphoto)

Ted Williams coming back

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams, the erstwhile Splendid Splinter who slugged his way into baseball's Hall of Fame in 19 seasons with the Boston Red Sox, is returning to uniform.

Williams, now 59 and out of baseball since leaving as manager of the Texas Rangers in 1972, will abandon his fishing paradise in Islamorada, Fla., to join the Red Sox March 1 as a batting instructor in spring training.

"Ted misses the game and wants to get back in," Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan said Thursday. "His contract is for more than one year. He'll be with us throughout spring training. Then he'll stay in Winter Haven (Fla.) when the Red Sox leave to work with our minor league hitters.

"During the regular season, he'll be in and out of here, evaluating our hitters. He'll also spend time with our minor league clubs to work with young hitters."

SULLIVAN SAID Williams has had "an open invitation" to rejoin the Red Sox' organization since shortly after the death of owner Tom Yawkey in 1976.

"We talked and told him to keep in touch," Sullivan said. "Then he dropped in during a brief visit to Boston a couple of months ago and we talked some more. He called me two days ago and said he wanted the job. We're delighted to have him back."

Although an avid fisherman, Williams is basically a baseball man. He broke in with the Red Sox as a brash, gangling kid in 1939, starting a brilliant, fiery and often controversial career.

Although his playing days were interrupted twice by Marine Corps flight duty during World War II and the Korean War, he lasted until 1960. In typical Williams style, he hit his 521st homer off Baltimore's Jack Fisher in his final time at bat — and refused to doff his cap.

WILLIAMS SERVED as a special batting instructor for the Red Sox the next five years, then became a vice president of the club during 1966-68. He left Boston to become manager of the Washington Senators, remaining with that club for its first year in Texas in 1972.

Williams, who had a .344 lifetime batting average and a .634 slugging percentage, hinted strongly that he planned to return to baseball before the Manchester, N.H., baseball dinner last month.

"You're damn right I miss baseball," he told Bill Liston, baseball writer for the Boston Herald American. "Baseball is part of my life. Certainly I miss it.

"I'd like to get back, but not as a manager, coach or scout. I'd like to work with young hitters, the younger the better."

The New York Yankees, who once tried unsuccessfully to sign Williams as a pinch hitter after he retired as a player with the Red Sox, recently tried to lure him as a batting instructor.

"Ted told me, 'You'll never see me in pinstripes,'" Sullivan said.

Longhorns open camp on Monday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Longhorns open spring training Monday, with the final spring training game scheduled for March 17 — Coach Fred Akers' 40th birthday.

Akers let the players decide on the starting time, and they wanted to get going early.

"It gives our players as much time as possible to go into finals better prepared," said Akers.

The March windup would also give defensive backs Johnnie Johnson and Derrick Hatchett — who are running track — and linemen-weightmen Guy Sellers and Dan Hunter eight weeks to get ready for the Southwest Conference track and field meet.

Explosion suspect investigated

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Authorities say they are investigating a suspect who may have been involved in an explosion and leak that temporarily shut down oil flow in the trans-Alaska pipeline.

But state police are releasing few details of their investigation into the second act of sabotage against the $7.7 billion line.

Oil was flowing normally through the 800-mile line today after being shut off almost 24 hours because of Wednesday's blast, which ripped a 2-inch hole through the crude-carrying line.

"We do have a suspect in the case. That's all I can tell you," a state police spokeswoman said today.

Lt. George Pollit said the type of explosive used in the blast was not definitely known, but he said the person responsible "has knowledge of the use of explosives."

Investigators have said a 20-foot length of slow burning fuse, believed to be the remains of a primer cord used to detonate the explosives, was found in the snow. They would not say what new leads may have been uncovered during aerial and ground searches of the area.

Last July, dynamite blasts ripped some insulation from the pipeline and dented some fixtures on an elevated section of the line, but the pipe itself was not damaged. Two men were arrested in the case. One pleaded guilty; the other awaits trial.

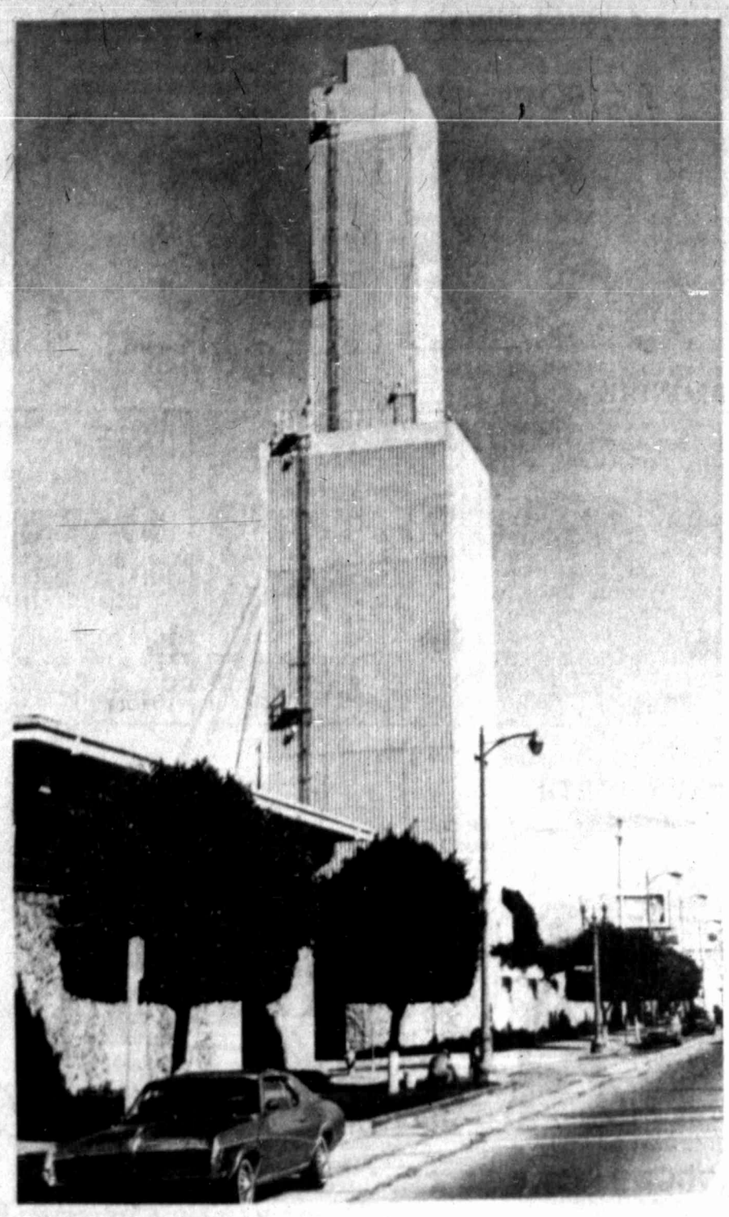

Oil started flowing through the line again Thursday at 10 a.m. and was "back up to normal"—730,000 barrels per day — by 2:30 p.m., said John Ratterman, Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. spokesman.

The line carries Prudhoe Bay crude to Valdez. From there the oil is shipped by tanker to refineries in the continental states.

The spilled oil was pumped from the ground to tanker trucks for transport to the nearby North Pole Refining Co. plant. Ratterman said officials at the scene reported 90,000 gallons of oil had been removed from the site by noon.

State environmental officials said it was too early to assess fully the effect of the spill, first reported by pilot Gil Glover of Fairbanks.

Glover said he was on a short pleasure flight when he and a companion "saw smoke or steam in the area of the pipeline."

The school district wants to put another 130-foot drilling tower on the Beverly Hills High School campus. Striking miners must deal with steal, oil

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — When United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller sits down to bargain with industry negotiators, he's talking to big steel and big oil as well as big coal.

The Bituminous Coal Operators Association, negotiating an industrywide contract with Miller's rebellious union, represents 130 companies that operate about 1,800 mines producing roughly half the nation's coal.

The association's membership list is a who's who of steel and oil: Continental Oil owns Consolidation Coal Co., the nation's second largest coal producer; Occidental Oil owns Island Creek Coal, the fourth biggest; Ashland Oil owns Arch Minerals, seventh largest coal producer; 11th-ranked Old Ben Coal is owned by Standard Oil of Ohio; and Gulf Oil owns P&M, the 15th biggest.

Many of the nation's top steel firms own "captive mines," which produce coal solely for steel mills. U.S. Steel Corp., the country's biggest steel firm, is the sixth largest coal producer while No. 2 Bethlehem Steel ranks eighth in coal.

With their companies holding vast coal reserves, much of the ultimate authority within the BCOA rests with top-level executives of the major steel and oil firms.

Oil companies alone are expected to account for more than 50 percent of all coal produced for electric power plants by 1985, according to industry analysts.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

When the BCOA sent five representatives to the White House Wednesday night for the resumption of contract talks, J. Bruce Johnston headed the list. Johnston, a U.S. Steel vice president, is playing an increasingly public role in the bitter labor dispute.

His private influence is even greater.

It was Johnston, sources say, who argued forcefully in private for the industry to reject President Carter's call Tuesday to return to the bargaining table and negotiate an end to the strike. And it was Johnston, these sources add, who drafted a sharply worded letter of rejection to Labor Secretary Ray Marshall.

The letter, however, was signed by BCOA Chairman E.B. (Ted) Leisenring, who is also chairman of Westmoreland Coal, an independent firm.

The coal industry, Johnston wrote, is "obliged to decline" the president's request. "This country should not be held hostage to any group which seizes the energy jugular," the letter said.

In later explaining the industry's refusal to negotiate further, sources who asked not to be named quoted Johnston as telling administration officials, "We haven't educated them (the UMW) yet."

It is believed the BCOA backed down only after high White House officials called the major executives of steel, oil and coal firms and threatened to denounce the industry bargaining association publicly.

Also, a number of influential members of the association reportedly were shocked at the rebuff to the president and told Marshall they would participate in the bargaining.

Creditors helping strikers

The Los Angeles Times

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — The coal miners here have managed to hold out through the longest strike in United Mine Workers history because local creditors have generally agreed to put off asking for money.

"The merchants have been going along with us quite well," said a UMW district official here. "This is a coal state. They almost would have to."

Assistant State Tax Commissioner Arnold T. Margolin said the miners live in self-contained communities. "The retail merchants are their friends and neighbors. They've been through this before and they just carry the miners on their books. We don't have branch banking in this state. The banks are very locally oriented. The money is loaned by local people to local people, so there have been few foreclosures," said Margolin.

He described the mood in the coal counties as the "spirit of the Old West. It's everywhere in time of crisis."

West Virginia, with an estimated 56,000 striking coal miners, is the most heavily unionized coal-producing state in the country. Every one of its 1,400 mines is shut down because of the strike, according to the West Virginia Coal Association.

Besides lenience by local merchants, the miners here have other means of making ends meet. These include:

—Federal food stamps, worth up to $138 a month, which are going to more than 30,000 miners.

—Emergency loans of up to $500 each from the UMW district credit union.

—Virtually free medical care dispensed by union-funded clinics.

—Deferred payment on utility bills, arranged by the union's miners' relief committees.

The miners appear to have staved off several hardships after 11 weeks on strike and without pay that had averaged $350 weekly with normal overtime.

However, the West Virginia state government said the prolonged strike was dragging other workers onto the unemployed and costing the state millions in lost wages.

David C. Hardesty Jr., the state tax commissioner, said the strike had cost the state $26 million in lost tax revenue, mainly from business and occupational taxes on the coal mines. The loss averaged out, he said, to $500,000 a day.

Besides, Hardesty said, the strike has caused a drop in statewide personal income of $440 million, including the $180 million in wages forgone by the miners themselves and the value of the other rents, royalties and services that would have trickled throughout the economy from the miners' spending.

Coal represents more than a quarter of the value of all of the goods and services produced in the state.

Moncrief opens field

W. A. Moncrief Jr. of Midland No. 1-8 State has been completed as a Devonian oil discovery in Lea County, N.M., 12 miles west of Lovington.

The new field opener reported a 24-hour pumping potential of 162 barrels of 56-gravity oil and 16 barrels of water, through perforations form 14,002 to 14,010 feet.

Gas-oil ratio was too small to measure.

The strike was drilled 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 8-16-34e and 11/4 miles east of Mewbourne Oil Co. No. 1-E State Communitized, a Morrow sand gas discovery.

The closest Devonian production to No. 1-8 State is 8.5 miles to west in the Anderson Ranch field.

Moncrief is drilling No. 1-Y Phillips-State (replacement for No. 1 Phillips-State), one location to the southeast.

Operator junked and abandoned No. 1 Phillips-State following a Devonian Wolfcamp drillstem test that flowed gas at the rate of 2,418,000 cubic feet per day from 10,760 to 10,786 feet.

The casing collapsed when tool was being pulled. Operator skidded the rig and started No. 1-Y Phillips-State which will drill to the Devonian.

Mexico field may be largest oil producer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — One oil field in southern Mexico is producing 773,000 barrels of oil and 946 million cubic feet of natural gas daily, possibly the highest producing field in the world, the government oil monopoly PEMEX said Wednesday.

the field, located in geological strat which spans the states of Chiapas and Tabasco, produces an average 5,725 barrels a day from each of 135 wells, said Felipe A. Lopez Silva, construction superintendent at the Lazaro Cardenas Refinery in Minatitlan, Veracruz.

President Jose Lopez Portillo inaugurated construction projects worth $143 million during a tour of Veracruz Wednesday as part of celebrations of Mexico's 40th anniversary of oil expropriation.

"We produced a million barrels of crude and liquid today for the first time in the PEMEX southern zone," Lopez Silva said. "This is 81 percent of national production which today was 1.235 million barrels."

He said PEMEX plans to produce 1.694 million barrels daily by the end of this year, with the increase coming mostly from Chiapas-Tabasco field.

"We are recovering 90 percent of the 946 million cubic feet of gas we produce currently," Lopez Silva said. "And with the installation of pumps now under way we will stop burning gas altogether."

Lopez Silva said PEMEX will drill other wells in the Ojicaque, Agave, Paredon and Arteza fields and another 27 in the Chiapas Mountains where PEMEX hopes the strata continues.

He also said PEMEX this week discovered traces of oil in chalky limestone in two wells being drilled in Tintal and Ricino.

"If these prove out," he said, "We will open up a very large area for development."

"Production is principally from Sitio Grande, Cactus, Artez and Antonio J. Bermudez, which compose the Samaria, Conduacan, Iride and Ojiacaque fields," he said.

"We are producing a half million barrels of crude a day from this complex, the most important limestone field in the world, which we call the Antonio J. Bermudez complex."

Allowable announced

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Alaskan pipeline is beginning to have an effect on crude oil imports into the United States, chairman Mack Wallace of the Railroad Commission noted today.

Wallace said at the statewide oil allowable hearing that imports were 7,741,000 barrels per day for the four-week average of Feb. 3, a million fewer barrels per day from a year ago.

The reduction, he said, "is due primarily to Alaskan production being able to reach the lower 48 states."

The commission routinely set the allowable for March at 100 percent, with some exceptions, including an 86 percent allowable for the huge East Texas Field.

Nominations by major buyers of Texas crude oil totaled 3,575,638 a day for March, a decrease of 8,502 barrels a day from February.
