SEVEN JURORS SELECTED FOR NEGRO'S TRIAL

Widespread Oil Activity Covers Archer County Following Heavy Rainfall

LOCATIONS FOR TESTS ASSURE MORE DRILLING

Various Shallow Pools Are Busy Places With New Water Supply

DEEP WELLS ACTIVE

Six New Operations Planned For Immediate Work, Reports Show

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

With plenty of water on hand for all kinds of oil field work, operations have started off with a bang in the pools throughout Archer county. Six new locations were staked out, and many wells which had been forced to shut down on account of the scarcity of water again have resumed drilling.

Chalk Hill, the county's deeper area, once more is listed as an active pool and a resumption of drilling is under way at the several deep tests.

Deep Oil Development-Lindsay No. A-5 L. F. Wilson in block 75, A. T. N. C. L. survey, the deepest test in North Texas, after uncovering two deep formations while drilling to a depth of 5500 feet, has fired up and is going ahead to the 6500-foot depth.

Test Spuds In

The same interests' No. 1, lease "T" in the east 80 acres of the northwest quarter of section 119, A. T. N. C. L. survey, has spudded in.

Consolidated-Primrose and associates No. 1 L. F. Wilson, in the southwest corner of block 76, A. T. N. C. L. survey, and northeast of the deep test is rigging up a rotary and will begin drilling in the next few days.

Two and one-half miles southwest of the Chalk Hill production, the Primrose-Consolidated No. 1 L. F. Wilson in northeast corner of block 116, A. T. N. C. L. survey, is breaking down to abandon as a dry hole at a total depth of 2315 feet. This test failed to pick up either the 1480 or the 2200-foot sands.

Bridwell Oil company has made location for its No. 20 Oil Investment test to be drilled to the 2200-foot sand 620 feet east and 200 feet south of the northwest corner of lot 5, block 125 Harris sub-division. The new test is north of No. 19 completed a short time ago as a dry hole at a depth of 2329 feet.

West of Hutchinson

The territory about two and one-half miles northwest of Archer City, and west of the Hutchinson pool will become active in the next week or 10 days. Two locations were made in this section for rotary tests.

Tom Looney and associates No. 1 Langford Investment company is 50 feet from the south and west lines of section 134, J. W. Harris subdivision. A half mile north of the Looney test Paul Gose and others No. 1 Langford Investment is to be drilled 330 feet north and east of the southwest corner of the north 83 acres of the west 126 of north 222 acres out of block 135, Harris sub-division.

Other locations made in the past week are Cullum & Alexander No. 1 Falls county school land, 500 feet north, 500 feet east of the southwest corner of block 1, F. C. S. L. survey.

Pols & Schultz No. L F. C. Green is 4462 feet north and 2500 feet east of the southwest corner of Jos. Levina survey, abstract 259.

Union Oil to Drill

The Union Oil company No. 5 J. A. Kunkel is located 300 feet northeast of No. 1 producer in block 4, Thomas McCoy survey, abstract 269, north of Olney in the south part of the county.

In the wildcat sections several wells with a bountiful supply of water are repairing water lines and giving the lease a general cleaning up preparatory to resuming operations.

Pipe line runs from the county averaged 12,545 barrels per day with two good producers choked down. This was a gain of 760 barrels per day as compared with the previous week's run which was 11,691 barrels per day.

Extra Workers Rush School Tax Notices To Property Owners

All City Taxpayers to Receive Statements by End of Week in Effort to Forestall Closing of Classrooms; Texas Electric Pays $10,400

Four extra employes have been shifted to the school tax department of the city to aid in the present rush of work in completing and sending out before the coming week end all statements of school taxes due from property owners. This statement, together with an expression of encouragement, was issued by W. Ralph Hyer, city and school tax assessor and collector Monday afternoon.

In connection with the present effort to secure payment of all 1931 school taxes to assure the operation of the local school system, statements of due taxes are being mailed to all taxpayers to eliminate the trouble and waste of time and energy by employes of the tax department in answering dozens of telephone calls by citizens asking the amount of their taxes, Mr. Hyer said.

Mr. Hyer expressed his belief that local citizens will come to the rescue of the school system, and by paying their taxes, make possible the continuation of the schools.

He stated that since the first call for aid last week, many residents have made payments on their 1931 school taxes.

Mr. Hyer stated that among the recent receipts of the school tax division was a total payment of $10,400 from the Texas Electric Service company, which approved immediate payment of its taxes in order to aid the schools and local government.

His record for the day is 522 pounds, he wrote, and he is ready to defend his title against all snatchers of the fleecy staple.

JAPAN ACCEPTS U. S. IN COUNCIL

Note Withdraws Objection To Participation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—Japan now is willing for the United States to sit with the League of Nations council as it tries to solve the Manchurian puzzle.

Understanding more clearly the American position, the Japanese government today withdrew her previous objections. Orders from Tokyo sent Ambassador Debuchi to the state department with assurances for Secretary Stimson that Japan no longer would oppose American participation in the league council's sessions.

The objections were withdrawn while the American government was awaiting formal notification of the invocation of the Kellogg-Briand anti-war treaty by five other leading nations.

The action by the powers was taken in an atmosphere of encouragement due to continued absence of reports of further hostilities in Manchuria. Hesitant to appear over-hasty in calling attention of China and Japan to obligations under the anti-war treaty, the American government decided to await notification of such action first by others.

The Japanese withdrew opposition to American participation at Geneva after Debutchi at Stimson's request had explained to Tokyo the exact status of Prentiss B. Gilbert, American consul general at Geneva who is sitting with the league council.

Gilbert's instructions were to participate only in discussions regarding the possible invocation of the anti-war treaty, of which the United States is a signatory.

The ambassador predicted a few more days without hostilities would virtually assure peace.

Bennett was alleged to have circulated scandalous handbills about Miss Warren.

TRUNKS YIELD BODIES OF TWO SLAIN WOMEN

Ghastly Cargo Discovered After Baggage Man Detects Odor

SENT FROM PHOENIX

Woman Calls for Boxes But Her Actions Excite Officials

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19. (US)—Two murdered women, one with blood still wet on her matted hair, were the ghastly cargo of two trunks shipped here by railroad today.

The trunks came from Phoenix, Ariz., and were consigned with a notation that they would be called for at the Southern Pacific station here by a man whose name police are withholding.

A woman came to the station baggage room a few hours before the discovery was made and attempted to claim the trunks. Suspicious, the baggage master refused delivery. She left and is now being sought by detectives.

Girl's Body Hacked

One of the murdered women was in her thirties. She had dark hair. her face was beaten until it was unrecognizable.

The other whose body was hacked into pieces, was younger. She was about 20 years of age and had red hair. The girl had been shot and her face also was crushed.

Both bodies were packed into the trunks with clothing about them. One contained a purse in which there were three 25 caliber cartridges.

A photograph of an attractive, dark-haired young woman and a large envelope filled with letters bearing a Phoenix address also were in this trunk.

Opens Trunk

The bodies were found this evening when Baggage Master A. V. Anderson traced a peculiar odor to the trunks. He remembered the suspicious actions of the woman who tried to gain possession of them and opened the smaller trunk—a green steamer box measuring 2 by 4 by 1½ feet—with a pass key.

From a tangled pile of silk dresses, quilts and clothing, stared the battered face of a woman. Her mouth was open, showing protruding teeth. He red hair was matted with blood.

Beside her head, lay roughly wrapped bundles, which held the lower portions of her legs.

The body had been hacked in two at the waist and knees, and the middle portion was not in the smaller trunk.

Police Summoned

Horrified, the railroad man summoned police and opened the second trunk, a large black box.

Here was another pile of clothing, and, at one corner, showed the hair and the back of the head of a second woman.

Blood matting her dark hair was still wet.

From the condition of the bodies police said that the women had apparently been murdered within the past two days. The trunks arrived on the Southern Pacific train No. 3, reaching Los Angeles at 7:40 o'clock this morning.

The woman who attempted to claim the baggage arrived about noon. She presented claim checks, but because of her suspicious actions, railroad detectives were called and asked her what the trunks held.

Woman Departs

She refused to state, and when she was told that they must open the trunks before the baggage would be surrendered, the woman said that she had left the keys at home with her husband. She departed hastily and did not return.

Both trunks were shipped from Phoenix at 8:10 o'clock Sunday night and, according to railroad officials in Phoenix, the person sending them gave a fictitious name and address.

A package in the larger trunk, addressed to Hedwig Samuelson, was believed to point to a possible identification of the older woman. The package had been sent from Juneau, Alaska, to Phoenix and contained letters, photographs and other small articles.

The younger woman was tentatively identified as Miss Hedwig Samuelson, about 18 years of age, and the elder as Mrs. Agnes Ann Leroy, 34. Police believed both were nurses at the Murray sanitarium, Phoenix. Concelled checks and letters in the trunks indicated the identification.

Acting on the assumption the body of Miss Samuelson had been dismembered by some one familiar with surgery to conceal a possible attack, Phoenix authorities were asked to question members of the sanitarium staff.

PHOENIX REPORTS WOMEN MISSING

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 19. (AP)—Officials of the Grunow Memorial clinic of Phoenix said tonight Mrs. Agnes Anne Leroi, clinic X-ray technician, had been missing from her home since Saturday night, and expressed belief one of the bodies found in a trunk in Los Angeles tonight might be hers.

Miss Hedvig Samuelson, who lived with Mrs. Leroi, could not be located by newspaper men who called at the home. Neighbors said

TOWN IRATE AT HOOVER'S SNUB

Annapolis Resents Ignoring Of Welcoming Party

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 19. (AP)—Failure of President Hoover to recognize an official welcoming party here Saturday when he passed through on his way to Yorktown, today led to a formal protest to the White House and abandonment of plans for a welcome on his return trip.

The protest was entered in the form of a letter which Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt directed to the president, asking an explanation.

"There will be no welcome when the president passes through tomorrow on his return to Washington from Yorktown," Mayor Quenstedt said. "We went to considerable pains to arrange the reception Saturday and failed to obtain even a nod from the presidential party."

"If a satisfactory explanation is not forthcoming from President Hoover, then I will make public my letter and the answer made to it," he said.

"I made arrangements for the reception with Col. G. C. Drescher of the secret service, who said he was the president's civilian aide. He fixed the hour of arrival and the point at which we were to meet the president."

President Hoover, Admiral and Mrs. W. V. Pratt and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the secretary of the navy, went through Annapolis late Saturday on their way to Annapolis roads to board the U. S. S. Arkansas, which took them to the Yorktown sesqui-centennial celebration where the president spoke today.

When the presidential caravan reached the designated meeting point it slowed down, but before Mayor Quenstedt's party could reach Mr. Hoover the machines gathered speed and went on, the mayor complained.

At the naval academy the presidential party was received by Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent, and a salute of 21 guns. It was revealed today that the salute was illegal, the president's party not arriving at the academy until five minutes after official sunset. Regulations forbid salutes after sunset.

President Hoover's schedule calls for his arrival at Annapolis Roads aboard the Arkansas tomorrow morning. Any necessary arrangements will be made in regard to traffic, the mayor said, but no official will take part.

Quenstedt is a Republican.

BRIEF PRAYER MARKS HOURS AT EDISON BIER

Minister's Words at Intervals Halt Procession Of Mourners

FUNERAL WEDNESDAY

Thousands File Before Casket Set in Laboratory Of Inventor

By FRANK GERVASI

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press)

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 19. —For a brief moment at midday today mourners stopped a continuous file past the bier of Thomas A. Edison—a minister offered a prayer.

The convocation was uttered by Mrs. Edison's pastor, Rev. Arthur H. Brown of the Methodist Episcopal church of Orange, at her request. He repeated it at 5 o'clock and planned to utter it again at 8 a. m., noon and 5 p. m. tomorrow.

Mr. Edison's body lay in a bronze casket in a niche of the high ceilinged library of his laboratory. Autumn leaves covered the bier.

Associate Dies

Dr. Brown mentioned in his prayer the name of John Ott, 81, who died of shock on learning of Mr. Edison's passing. Mr. Ott had worked in the inventor's laboratory for a half century.

At the sundown service Dr. Brown read briefly from the Book of Ecclesiastes.

"This man," he said, "was also touched with the spirit of Jehovah. In him were all the elements that go to make the man of god. His death was fulfillment of his valuable life."

He then recited Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar."

Funeral Wednesday

The funeral will be at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday at Glenmont, the Edison estate, with burial in Rosedale cemetery at Orange.

Rev. Stephen J. Herben, who while pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Orange from 1912 to 1916 enjoyed a close friendship with Mr. Edison, will conduct the funeral service unassisted. He now is engaged in editorial work for a Methodist book concern.

The service will be private, but Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone, the inventor's celebrated cronies, will join the family in attendance. President Hoover hopes to be present, but has been unable to plan definitely.

For a second time since Mr. Edison's death early Sunday, Arthur L. Walsh, vice president of Thomas

Young Whale Invades River to Create Stir

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 19. (AP)—A young whale with a landlubber complex barged into the Columbia river slough here yesterday and drew a gallery of 12,000 persons.

The sea beast took a liking to the water near the interstate bridge and brought vehicular traffic to a standstill. Somebody dubbed him, or her, Ethelbert.

Ethelbert put on a good show, dodging half a hundred canoes, speedboats and scows laden with those who wanted a close-up view. Once the whale came up under the bow of a canoe but veered away without overturning it.

Independent Oil Men Attack Major Importers

TYLER, Texas, Oct. 19. (AP)—Major importers were assailed frequently by speakers at the semi-annual meeting of the independent Petroleum association of Texas for what was termed an instigation of misleading conservation moves.

Importers were indicted on the ground they preached conservation in order to get domestic producers to curb production, enabling them to dump cheap, unlevied foreign oil on the domestic market.

Wirt Franklin of Oklahoma City, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, in tracing the history of the conservation movement, charged it was a "control move" by the major companies.

Three Detectives Wounded, Bandit Chief Slain in Spectacular Fight

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (US)—In a pitched pistol battle this evening, three detectives were shot down by three gangsters they had trapped in a room.

The gangster chief—Henry Ballau, wanted since 1928 for the murder of Policeman Brosnan—was shot to death.

Two gunmen escaped in a roof-to-roof chase. Four riot squads of police had roped off the block and began a search of every room in that area for the two desperadoes.

The wounded detectives are:

James de Ferrari, shot once in left lung, in critical condition.

Guido Pesagno, shot five times in back and side, expected to recover.

Edward Willi, shot in right chest. Expected to recover.

The Seige, which began at 5:15, was almost as spectacular as that in which Francis (Two-Gun) Crowley was captured a few months ago.

At 5:15 o'clock the pitched gun battle which attracted thousands to the scene, started on the second floor of a 10-story apartment house. Within 10 minutes, emergency police had surrounded the block. While every house was searched for the two gunmen who escaped.

During the afternoon, the three detectives got information that Ballou was in hiding in the apartment. He had been wanted since Sept. 13, 1928, when Patrolman Jeremiah Brosnan was shot to death while guarding a prisoner in Fordham hospital.

The detectives walked up the stairs, then along the hall to the apartment door. They knocked.

No word was spoken. The knock was answered by a hail of lead. Apparently, the men who shot through the door had been tipped off the police were coming.

The detectives returned the fire, wounded as they were. The door lock was smashed by a bullet, and the detectives plunged into the room.

One man was dead on the floor;

TESTIMONY IN CASE EXPECTED TO OPEN TODAY

Montgomery to Rule Finally on Motion to Quash Indictments

PREJUDICE DENIED

Johnson First to Go to Trial In Slaying; Brown Case To Follow

Seven jurors to try Richard Johnson, negro charged with killing Ted Nodurft, Fort Worth, here Sept. 9, were selected Monday afternoon after Judge Allan D. Montgomery had tentatively overruled a motion to quash the indictments against Johnson and Richard Brown, indicted with him.

Judge Montgomery said he would rule before the completion of the jury Tuesday morning as to whether the state violated the 14th amendment to the United States constitution in failing to include negroes on the grand jury which indicted the two men. Johnson and Brown also were indicted by the same jury on charges of assaulting Nodurft's fiancee and robbery with firearms.

Brown Trial to Follow

Cedric Taylor, appointed by the court to defend Brown, introduced the motion to quash on constitutional grounds when the cases were called Monday morning. After the temporary ruling, the two defendants were granted a severance for trial, Brown to get a hearing as soon as Johnson's trial is ended. Mr. Taylor has announced that he will ask a change of venue for his client.

The seven jurors were chosen from the questioning of 55 members of a special venire. Twenty men were disqualified for conscientious scruples against capital punishment; 10 for having fixed opinions about the case. Both the state and the defense used nine of the 15 peremptory challenges allowed each side in the trial of a capital case.

The seven men chosen Monday afternoon were C. W. Hullard, traffic manager for the Taxman refinery; J. W. Strothers, employe of the American Cleaning and Dye works; W. B. Johnson, employe of the Continental refinery; Fred Hall, Electra, employe in a gas plant; T. N. Muirhead, Wichita Falls insurance agent; J. B. Barbour, Iowa Park trucking proprietor; and J. E. Hobson, farmer living near Iowa Park.

20 Officers Patrol Court

Although 20 peace officers, including Ranger Captain Tom Hickman and two deputies, guarded the crowded courtroom, the spectators were quiet and apparently good humored. They laughed quietly when prospective jurors stumbled in their answers. Many women were among them and one mother was asked to leave the courtroom with her crying baby.

At the door, men and women alike were searched for weapons. A small section of the balcony was occupied by negroes, a number of them well dressed.

As the selection of the Johnson jury opened, the defendant, a little under normal size, sat with his hands clasped in his lap, turning his eyes slowly from attorneys to the men in the witness box. Through the long grind of questioning, with the state insisting on no objections to the death penalty, he scarcely moved and his expression did not change.

The young Wichita Falls girl, fiancee of the slain youth, who is to be the basic witness for the state, was not in the courtroom Monday.

Prospective jurors were closely questioned by Walter Friberg and Earl Kuntz, defense attorneys, for prejudice against the negro race, and the lawyers were careful to determine the home states of the veniremen on the stand.

The defense opened its fight to quash, claiming the negroes were denied their rights guaranteed by the 14th amendment when no negroes were included in the grand jury, with the testimony of C. E. McCutchen, banker and member of the October grand jury commission.

Mr. McCutchen said grand jurors from the Wichita Falls precinct were selected from the telephone and city directories and no negroes were considered. He said he would

MILL STRIKERS REFUSE JOBS

Jeers of Thousands Greet Factory Whistles

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 19. (AP)—Lawrence's striking textile workers who left their places two weeks ago in protest against 10 per cent wage reductions today refused the invitation of three big manufacturers to return to work.

Whistles which normally call tens of thousands of workers to employment in the great factories of the American Woolen mills, the Arlington mill and the Pacific mills, today were greeted with a roar of derision from long, marching lines of pickets. A straggling few who entered the mills drew shouts of ridicule. One man was arrested for clubbing a worker.

The three large companies which invited workers to return to their tasks employ a large proportion of the more than 22,000 strikers.

Couzens to Propose Suspension of Mergers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (UP)—Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, announced today he would reintroduce his resolution to suspend railroad consolidations until congress can determine whether the public necessity justifies a merger policy.

Couzens, chairman of the interstate commerce committee which handles railroad legislation for the senate, previously has opposed the four system eastern merger plan now before the Interstate Commerce commission.

ARMY TO HAVE FASTER SHIPS

Air Corps Orders Fleet Of Speedy Fighters

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—Radically new combat planes ordered by the war department may overrule British claims to the highest performing military ship in the world.

Within eight months a formidable array of military craft representing great departures from standard types will be aloft on service tests.

Pursuit planes, which are expected to equal or rival Britain's best, and attack, observation, and bombing ships of new design are under construction.

The British military speedster is the Hawker Fury, for which the air ministry gives an official speed of 215 miles an hour at 15,000 feet altitude.

Of more recent experimental development is a Fairey Firefly pursuit ship contracted for by Belgium from England, which has a rated speed of 223 miles an hour at 13,000 feet.

Details on the air corps designs are being withheld but they are expected to match more favorably with foreign models than equipment now in service. Pursuit planes in use now have estimated maximum speeds of 164 to nearly 190 miles an hour.

Air corps officers explain that the British and American planes are not directly comparable since the former are defensive weapons built for emergency use because of Britain's accessibility to enemy aircraft.

These defensive planes, or "intercepters," were designed for ability to climb quickly and ward off attacks as a primary consideration at a sacrifice of military load and more all-around use.

As a result, they are rated as being able to stay in the air for a maximum limit of three-fourths of an hour. The American pursuit planes, combining defensive and offensive abilities, carry more load and are able to remain aloft for two and one-half hours at top speed and more than a half hour additional at cruising speed.

Air corps fliers attribute any lagging in speed in American military aviation to the army's abandonment of racing in 1926 because of economy.

'What's Prohibition With Children Starving?' Asks Will Rogers

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19. (AP)—What does prohibition amount to, inquires Will Rogers, if your neighbors' children are not eating?

"What does all this yapping about disarmament amount to," the humorist wants to know also, "compared to our own people that haven't worked in two years?"

This was his way of getting at the idea that unemployment is the country's foremost problem. In a radio speech late yesterday, supplemental to President Hoover's appeal over the air for contributions to local jobless funds.

Speaking from station KFI of the NBC chain, Rogers said:

"It's food, not drink, that's our problem now. We were so afraid the poor people might drink. Now we fixed it so they can't eat."

He was referring particularly to what he called the "cockeyed" situation in which there is an abundance of food supplies but "yet we are starving to death."

In the way of relief, Rogers said the problem is to "arrange the affairs of this prosperous country (yes, prosperous right now) so that a man that wants to work can get work, and give him a more equal division of the wealth the country produces."

"Now," he said, "if our big men in the next year can't fix that—well they just ain't big men, that's all."

Referring to the unemployed, Rogers said:

"Now a miracle can't happen and all these people get a job overnight. It's going to take time, so they must be fed and cared for perhaps all winter. Everyone of us that have anything got it by the aid of these very people. There is not an unemployed man in the country that hasn't contributed to the wealth of every millionaire in America. The working classes didn't bring this on. It was the big boys that thought the financial drunk was going to last forever and overbought, overmerged and overcapitalized.

"Now the people are not asking for money. They are asking for a job, but there is no job. Towns and cities can't say they haven't got the money, for the same amount of money is in the country as when these folks had their share."

New Troubles Brewing for Capone As Judge Delays Setting Penalty

CHICAGO, Oct. 19. (AP)—More trouble was brewing in the federal building today for "Scarface Al" Capone, Chicago gang leader and his friends.

Capone's sentence on his conviction for violating income tax laws was delayed at least three more days as federal Judge James H. Wilkerson granted his attorneys until Friday to perfect their arguments for an arrest of judgment.

If this procrastination could be considered as favorable to the gang chief it was more than offset by word that the government had begun in earnest its attempt to collect the tax Capone tried to evade. The criminal proceedings which resulted in his conviction Saturday night, did not alter the government's claim that he owed some $215,000 in tax, and whatever can be traced to his ownership may be seized.

Torrio Held

Johnny Torrio, Capone's friend and predecessor as head man of the city's gangs, went up to the U. S. district attorney's office today and asked to be released from the subpoena that brought him from New York three weks ago as a government witness. He did not testify for either side during the trial.

But the government officers said "no," and it was subsequently learned that Torrio's grand jury testimony was being checked carefully with the facts brought in the trial. Another former Chicago gangster who came back under federal persuasion and appeared before the grand jury has already been charged with perjury.

Capone's companion and bodyguard, Philip D'Andrea, made another brief appearance in Judge Wilkerson's court as his contempt of court hearing was continued for the fourth time—this time until Thursday. D'Andrea, who had been with Capone constantly during the latter's income tax trial, was found with a pistol on his person at the end of the first week and he has been in the county jail since. Judge Wilkerson has been ready four times to hear reasons why D'Andrea should not be cited for contempt, but he has refused to hear motions for bail.

Sentence After Arguments

From all indications, Capone will be sentenced immediately after his lawyers have gone through the formality of making the arguing motions Friday. Judge Wilkerson stated, soon after the jury had convicted the gang leader Saturday night, that he would deny the motion for arrest of judgment, but he later said the lawyers could argue the point if they desired. "I suppose you will move for a new trial," the court said.

What Capone's sentence may be was a matter of speculation, especially in the court of Judge Wilkerson, who refused to take into consideration an agreement for leniency on Capone's original plea of guilty.

The longest sentence ever handed down in a similar case was the five-year term given Jack Guzik, Capone's business manager. Guzik was given two years on each of two felony counts and one year on a misdemeanor. Capone was found guilty on three felony counts and two misdemeanors. The possible maximum under Capone's conviction, in addition to a $50,000 fine, is five years for each of the three felones and one year for each misdemeanor.

OIL GROUP TO MEET OCT. 22

Marketers Charge Evasion Of Gasoline Taxes

Oil men from Texas and adjoining states will meet in San Antonio on Oct. 22 and 23 for the third annual convention of the Texas Petroleum Marketers association, and a meeting of the state code committee, appointed by the American Petroleum institute.

Officials are hopeful that James C. Denton of Tulsa, Okla., will make the principal address. Mr. Denton was recently elected chairman of the mineral law division of the American Bar association, and is vice president and general counsel of the Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation. Well known oil men and an official of the department of commerce have also been asked to speak.

State Loses Revenue

"One of the most important matters to be taken up at the convention," stated W. C. Gaylor of Houston, president of the association, "is a plan to curb the evasion of gasoline tax in Texas.

"The association and the State A. P. I. code committee have devoted much time and expense to this movement and are heartily cooperating with the attorney general and the state comptroller of public accounts in the enforcement of the gasoline tax law."

The school funds of Texas receive one-fourth of the gasoline tax. State Comptroller Sheppard stated before the legislature that, at least, two million dollars in gasoline tax was evaded in 1930 and the first part of 1931. On this conservative estimate the schools were wrongfully deprived of a half million dollars. Had this tax been collected, it is held by oil men, Governor Sterling would have been able to permit a larger appropriation for the state educational department.

"At the San Antonio meeting we will discuss a publicity campaign designed to acquaint the public with this menace. Effort will be made to enlist the support of state, county, district school officials and the various units of the parent-teacher organization of Texas."

"A resolution will be offered petitioning state officials to place a gasoline tax inspector in every refinery in the state.

For two years the association worked to have an adequate definition of taxable motor fuel incorporated in the state law, and to create sentiment among oil men and legislators to have gasoline taxed at its source. At the first session of the legislature this year amendments to the gasoline tax law were unanimously passed defining taxable gasoline and gasoline substitutes, and requiring refiners to pay four-cent tax. Prior to May, 1931, the tax was paid by distributors of petroleum products. It was pointed out to the legislature that gasoline tax inspectors could much more effectively check the sales of refiners than several thousand distributors. Since the amendment went into force there has been an increase in the collection of gasoline tax for each month, even though there was a decrease in consumption. For instance, in the month of August, 1931, according to gasoline tax figures furnished by the state comptroller, tax was paid on eight million more gallons than in August, 1930. From these figures it can reasonably be held that the state collected about $280,000 in tax under the new law that was illegally taken by socalled "gasoline bootleggers," or tax evaders, in August, 1930.

Gasoline "Bootleggers"

"Gasoline tax evasion has become a 'national racket.' In many states organizations are being formed to ferret out gasoline bootleggers and the law enforcement bodies of every state are vitally concerned with the problem. Responsible marketers cannot hope to compete with tax evaders, and in a number of instances in Texas responsible merchants have been driven out of business because of the ruinous competition of these 'bootleggers.'"

The association and the state code committee are supported by every large company marketing petroleum products in the state of Texas and a majority of the smaller independent concerns.

The officers of the state code committee are: E. T. Moore, president, Simms Oil company, Dallas, chairman; E. P. Angus, Magnolia Petroleum company, Dallas, vice chairman; L. H. Flinn, Texas Petroleum Marketers association, secretary; J. S. Leach, The Texas company, Houston, treasurer; O. H. Carlisle, Gulf Refining company, Houston; J. B. Russ, Consolidated Oil company, Houston; E. J. Marston, T. P. Coal & Oil company, Fort Worth; G. W. Reed, Panhandle Refining company, Wichita Falls.

The officers of the Texas Petroleum Marketers association are: W. C. Gaylor, Gaylor Oil company, Houston, president; E. J. Marston, T. P. Coal & Oil company, Fort Worth, vice president; E. H. Eddleman, American Refining Properties, Wichita Falls, vice president; George D. Bowers, Simms Oil company, Dallas, vice president; C. M. McNutt, McNutt Oil company, El Paso, vice president; C. A. Slimp, Slimp Oil company, San Antonio, secretary; L. H. Flinn, managing director counsel; J. B. Russ, Consolidated Oil company, Houston, chairman, board of directors.

COUNCIL CUTS BUILDING FEES

Two Streets Closed at New Athletic Field

Fees of permits for the erection of buildings valued at less than $3,000 were lowered by an ordinance passed on three readings as an emergency measure by the city council in its meeting Monday night.

Fees set by the council apply not only to erection of new buildings, but to the alteration of repair of old structures. Changes effected by the new ordinance are shown in the following comparative table:

Value of building	Old Pt. Fee	N. Pt. Fee
$ 0.00 to $ 50	.....	$ .50
50.00 to 100	.....	1.00
100.00 to 500	$2.50	1.50
500.00 to 1,000	3.50	2.00
1,000.00 to 3,000	3.50	2.50

Fees for buildings of higher valuation than $3,000 are left unchanged by the new ordinance.

Driver's Age Lowered

A second ordinance passed as an emergency bill provides for the closing of portions of two streets to permit the building of the athletic stadium for which arrangements recently were completed by the Kiwanis club. That portion of Valley Drive lying south of Fifth street, and the part of Harrison street lying north of the south line of East Sunset Heights addition, are closed by the ordinance.

An ordinance lowering the age limit for minors who may drive automobiles on the streets of this city from 16 to 14 years also was passed on three readings as an emergency act. The preparation of this ordinance was authorized by the council last week in order to validate liability and property damage insurance contracts held here, and which are predicated on a minimum age limit of 14 years.

Meeting Hour Changed

The council also passed an emergency ordinance providing that hereafter council meetings will be held at 7 p. m. on each Monday during the months of September to March, inclusive; and at 7:30 p. m. during the remaining six months of the year, as heretofore.

All members of the council were present at the session.

Exclusion of Negroes From Texas Demo Primaries Goes to U. S. Court

El Paso Negro Takes Question to Supreme Tribunal After Being Barred From Vote by Election Judges

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—Whether Texas Democrats can legally exclude negroes from the party primaries will be settled by the supreme court.

A protest was brought to the tribunal by L. A. Nixon, a negro of El Paso, claiming the state's voting law which authorizes parties to prescribe qualifications for their members is unconstitutional.

The present statute was enacted after the court had invalidated a previous state law specifically barring negroes from the polls. This action was taken in a case brought also by Nixon.

Nixon was refused permission to vote by election judges on July 28, 1928. He sued the judges, James Condon and C. H. Kolle, for $5,000. He claimed he was being deprived of his constitutional rights under the 14th and 15th amendments, and asserted the real question was whether his right to vote was to be denied to him because he was a negro.

He lost in the federal district court and the fifth circuit court of appeals held the constitutional guarantees applied only to state action and not to the action of a political party.

Little Rock, Ark., negroes at the last term were refused a review by the supreme court of cases in which they protested the action of the Democratic state executive committee in refusing to permit them to vote in Democratic primaries.

MacDonald Explains Governments Objectives

LONDON, Oct. 19. (UP)—The British general election campaign reached a new high pitch today when Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald issued an explanation of the three paramount objectives of the National government.

MacDonald's manifesto to his Seaham constitutents said the cabinet hoped to secure (1) stabilization of the pound; (2) some international agreement regarding debt payments which have had such devastating effect on world trade that they bankrupted those who had to pay and embarrassed those who had to receive; and (3) a balance of trade for Britain.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Candidates Hire Strong-Arm Guard

LONDON, Oct. 19. (AP)—Football players and prize fighters were in demand today to act as valiant squires for beleaguered candidates as the last week of the British election campaign turned the corner upon a trail of meetings featured by fisticuffs and pummeling.

Sir Oswald Mosley, founder of the British "new" party, took a bodyguard of gridsters and pugilists with him when he addressed a meeting of 15,000 persons in the Birmingham rag market last night, but he emerged without his guard and with several bruises and lacerations.

Chairs and bottles flew and police finally prevailed on the speaker to accept an escort of two policemen away from the place, insisting that his life was not safe.

Watching the Road

One car had gone into a ditch, through some luckless skid or other. Another car passed by. The driver craned his neck to see the first accident, forgot to keep both eyes on the road ahead, and presently his car was wrecked too.

This sort of thing happens rather often; and it ought to be an object lesson to all motorists. Looking at the sights along the way is all very well, but the driver's first job is to watch where he is going. He lets other things distract his attention at his peril.

If you see a car in the ditch, and feel the need of inspecting it closely, park your own car first—or you may land in the ditch yourself and take some unoffending fellow-motorist with you.

Rapping the Racketeer

THE "known gangster," who always manages to evade imprisonment because none of the high crimes for which common gossip blames him can ever be definitely and legally fastened on him, represents one of the greatest problems the police of American cities face. But now and then something happens to show that the problem is far from being as insoluble as we commonly suppose.

One city recently found a way of dealing with such a man; a gangster whose name had been linked with all kinds of murders, hijackings, bootleg enterprises and the like, but who had always gone scot free. Picking him up for questioning in connection with a shooting, the police found a revolver in his pocket; and after they learned that they could not hold him for murder they simply prosecuted him for carrying concealed weapons. Today he stands under sentence to the state prison.

That little law against carrying a gun could be an extremely valuable weapon in the war on gangsters if the authorities used it to the fullest extent.

Municipal Graft

THE Seabury committee in New York seems to have uncovered very definite traces of a large and obnoxious Senegambian in the municipal woodpile.

Those city and county officials who banked several hundred thousand dollars apiece on salaries of six, eight and ten thousand a year were either the most thrifty citizens the nation has ever known—or else they were up to something highly peculiar. They can hardly complain if the general public assumes the second answer is the correct one.

What will happen to them remains to be seen. The whole business, of course, is New York City's own affair; but the rest of the country, watching with interest and amazement, will be disappointed if the population of Manhattan's jails is not materially increased in the near future.

Who Killed Cock Robin?

A WRITER in an influential business magazine complains that politics has revealed its utter incapacity for handling the problems raised by the depression. Indeed, he finds politics "one of the chief obstacles to an early recovery," because the business world is trembling with uncertainty over the relief measures which congress will consider this winter.

All of this may be very true; but it would be quite possible to make out a good case for the exact opposite of this charge. No one can say that the political world has not given business a free hand in the last 12 months or so. The business leaders who have distinguished themselves by showing ability to bring back prosperity to the nation are not exactly too numerous to mention. If the approaching congress does consider ill-advised remedial legislation, it will only be because the business world has had almost nothing in the way of a solution of its own to offer the public.

Notion

Since we are past all hope of compromise,
I must go back along the paths we strayed;
Calling to mind a promise in your eyes—
Calling to mind the vows I disobeyed.
There are so many ghosts creep back this fall—
A book we loved—a walk we used to take,
That, surely, I cannot forget them all—
Though minding them may cause my heart to break.

Somehow, I doubt if those who once have cared
Can ever shake the grip of memory;
There have been far too many raptures shared—
Golden and gay—and they will always be;

Put me aside and take the way you please—
You will have work enough to cope with these!
—DON WAHN.

The Retort Proper

It happened aboard the Lipton yacht several years ago, when it was here with Lord Dewar as its distinguished guest. Ring Lardner was cornered by the nobleman, who unfolded a series of stale jokes.

Finally, Ring said: "You went a long way back for that one, me Lord."

"Sir!" growled Dewar, "a gentleman has never heard a story before!"

"I know," indifferently replied Lardner, "and no gentleman has ever told a story twice, either."

The Humor of It

A few years ago one of the well known blackface stars was awakened in the middle of the night by a newspaper man. The scribe told the star that his new bride's kid brother had been arrested in a Jersey town for stealing. "His first name is Cyril," said the reporter.

"Good God!" groaned the actor, "I don't object to his being a burglar so much as I do to having a brother-in-law named Cyril!"

Clearer Than Mud

One of the wealthier citizens "went for the duke" on his return voyage from Yurrop recently. Which means that his stack of chips was "knocked over" by a cheater, who when the producer went to pick them up, run in a "cold deck," known as "the chill," or "cooler." This cost the fellow just fifteen grand.

This picking up of chips under these conditions, to save a few dollars and thereby losing thousands, is known as "The Retrieval Racket" among the two-timing mob with a sense of color in their reverse English.

Anything for a Laugh

It happened at the first social affair of the season the other night. One of the Woolworth heiresses gave the ball. Sonny Whitney, a bit of a practical joker when the mood grips him, was dancing near Vincent Lopez, the orchestra conductor.

"Listen," whispered Whitney, "I'll give you $100 if you'll play 'I Found a Million Dollar Baby in a 5 and 10 Cent Store'."

"That's the one number," mournfully replied Lopez, "they asked me not to play."

Pardon Her Fangs

The lovely Gladys Glad's favorite joke actually happened in a Ziegfeld undressing room. A show girl was groaning to a roommate about her love life.

"He's crazy for me and I'm nuts about him," said the gal, "but he has a wife and two children!"

"So what?" yipped a listener, "do you want him to kill his wife and kids?"

"No," was the snapper, "just his wife."

Texas Woman Denied Property Suit Review

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (UP)—Annie C. Slaughter, San Antonio, today was denied a supreme court review of federal court proceedings in which she charged that she had been deprived of some of the property of her late husband, W. B. Slaughter, brother of the late C. C. Slaughter, cattle magnate.

Her suit charged fraud against the heirs of C. C. Slaughter, said to have been worth $30,000,000, in failing to account for her husband's property. Lower federal courts rejected her suit.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE FLATTEST THING IN THE WORLD—The optical glass produced in a Camden Town factory, London, England, has been called the most perfect in the world by eminent physicists in the science of glass making, and the firm has acquired a monopoly of such things as "echelon" gratings and other optical apparatus requiring perfect optical surfaces. In order to test a surface for flatness, it is laid upon a "proof-plate" of the required flatness and viewed by the light of the mercury lamp. Any irregularity of shape is immediately revealed by irregularities in the "Newton's" rings formed between the plates. The final testing apparatus is called the "phenika," which again uses interference fringes for discovering irregularities of optical thickness. The instrument maps out the slab in contour lines, the steps being a quarter wavelength of light, or about a 200,000th of an inch. An expert operator can gauge unevenness within a ten-millionth of an inch. The finished glass plates are used to build up echelon gratings for spectroscopic purposes, and as flat mirrors in large Newtonian reflector telescopes and other optical apparatus requiring the formation of a perfect virtual image.

THE BOOK OF WEALTH—The Book of Wealth by H. H. Bancroft, the American historian, was published in 1902, only 150 copies being printed in an edition de luxe, called by the publishers the "Black Swan" edition. The book sold at $2,500 a copy, a record in publishers' prices for all time.

THE GIRL WHO WON

By May Christie

Young and vivacious Nollie Day, public stenographer at an exclusive New York hotel, is befriended by the wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. One evening, Nollie goes to the theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Later in the evening she refrains from repeating her explanation for fear that Tony would lose interest when he learned the truth. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Disbelieving the report, he comes to the hotel. He looks at Nollie without recognition but she believes it is because he has discovered her masquerade. Before Nollie can reach him, he disappears. Nollie secures a new position as secretary to Jack Brilling of Galbraith & Co. Miss Galbraith, Brilling's fiancee is jealous when Brilling takes Nollie to dinner and warns Nollie against overstepping. Brilling tells Nollie he loves her.

Miss Galbraith enters the office just as Nollie frees herself from Brilling's embrace. Nollie is discharged.

Mrs. Judson gives Nollie a letter Tony had written her abroad. Intending to help Nollie and set the matter straight, she phones Tony to learn he has left on a vacation.

Mrs. Judson asks Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch.

Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane.

CHAPTER XXXIII

Nollie felt a sinking at heart as she heard Mrs. Judson's announcement.

The haughty Rhoda Vane arriving here almost at once!

Intruder in Eden she would be. That predatory, appraising air with which she scrutinized the opposite sex . . . at the garden-party in Westchester Nollie had it.

When an attractive man was by, Rhoda would lower her eyes and then suddenly raise them like a challenge, giving him a dazzling look.

Men seemed attracted by her too. Rhoda was tall and beautiful and chic.

But to Nollie there was something serpentine about the quick turn of her small head, her long lissom body.

She was arriving here this evening.

So was Tony!

A jealous fear of which she was ashamed caught Nollie.

This Rhoda had such poise—such queenly airs, as though all her life she'd been accustomed to being kowtowed to.

And men were strange anomalies, and if a beautiful woman demanded it they would figuratively bow the knee to her.

But Tony wasn't of that sort. In a woman he liked sweetness and shyness and modesty.

He was sick of the worldly type . . . the women who posed, and lived for dress, and gambled and drank and flirted.

He had told Nollie so. In his impulsive headlong way he had said that meeting her was like walking into a cool, sweet-scented garden after the heat and flurry of the day . . . that her eyes were deep and lovely pools where a man's very soul could sink in blissful rest . . . that he would never weary of being with her.

Why fear the advent of this Rhoda Vane, when this was so? She would believe in Tony.

Rhoda was a tall, gold sunflower of a girl flaunting her beauty like a banner. Nollie . . . well, Tony himself had likened Nollie to the shy, sweet wood anemone.

"And he likes real people. He's genuine himself. He's real. He'd never take to her."

With such assurance Nollie tried to drive this feeling of depression off. But the thought of Rhoda worried her.

Cynical phrases, rude remarks of this other girl's came back to her.

"She took a dislike to me on sight. And she despised my clothes, because she knew that they were cheap. She would like to 'put me in my place.' She'll try. She thinks I'm 'inferior'."

But Nollie kept these disturbing thoughts to herself. Mrs. Judson was annoyed enough about Rhoda's premature arrival.

"She has such nerve! She knew I didn't really want her here, and so she telegraphed me on the way, and I can't stop her."

"Do you know her intimately?" Nollie asked.

"No. That's the impertinent part of the whole thing. I only met her on the the Riviera."

"Is—is she well off?"

"I'll tell the world. Her people struck oil out West some years ago. They were quite ordinary people in Arkansas. She never brings them East—or if they do show up, she never introduces them to anybody."

"But—" —it was like biting on a sore tooth, but Nollie must go on, must find out more about this queenly creature—

Mrs. Judson finished her question for her.

"You're surprised at her refined look, her airs? So's everybody that knows her history. I heard about her when she first came to New York, several years ago. She was poor then and got a job on the stage as a show-girl. The names of one or two prominent men were linked with hers, and she figured in at least one scandal. Then oil was found on her parents' farm, and she dropped her job and rushed back home, and stayed right there till she induced them to settle at least half the property on her, though it's my belief she got the lion's share—she took her own lawyer out with her."

Said Nollie quietly: "Then—she has a large income?"

"Rhoda has plenty and to spare, so she no longer has to go after rich men."

"You mean—?"

"She's a huntress. That's her sport. And the other woman's man is her pet quarry."

Nollie's heart gave a great thud at that. Her thoughts flew to Tony. . .

With his beguiling charm, his looks, his feeling for herself, he would be like a challenge and a dare to Rhoda!

Mrs. Judson evidently thought so too, for she said shortly: "If I could get in touch with her I'd stop her. . . . I'm very sorry Rhoda Vane is coming here."

It poured that afternoon, so heavily that Nollie couldn't possibly make an excuse to slip out of the house in the afternoon and meet Tony down by the little clearing.

The rain came down in sheets. She had no raincoat and it was a long walk to that part of the lake.

"I suppose the four of us will play bridge all evening," remarked Mrs. Judson, "I certainly shan't let Rhoda play for high stakes."

"Oh, I don't play," said Nollie.

The "odd man out" she'd be. She felt a strange foreboding.

Rhoda arrived at 6, in a handsome car, accompanied by a maid and chauffeur.

She was wearing a Molyneux sports outfit that had cost $250.

"A drink, for the love of heaven! And then I'll have a hot bath and a snooze, and then Yvonne will attend to me. . ."

Yvonne was the maid she had brought from Europe with her.

Nollie slipped off to her own room as soon as possible.

At 7 o'clock, after she'd bathed and changed into her chiffon dress, she went down to the dining room to give the finishing touches to the table and arrange the flowers, as she had been requested to do by Mrs. Judson.

At twenty past the hour, Tony arrived. He did not wear a dinner jacket, but looked smart and handsome in a dark blue suit.

He had only time for a word or two with Nollie when down the wide and shallow staircase leading from the floor above swept a bright vision.

It was Rhoda making the grand entrance in a bewitching Paris evening gown.

Tony looked upward—stared—halted dead in the middle of a sentence.

"It's I, Tony, really I," twittered Rhoda, beaming at him as she came forward, "and not anybody's ghost!"

Hotel de Gink Reopens in New Dress To Care for Spokane's Unemployed

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 19. (AP)—The Hotel de Gink, Spokane's hostelry for the unemployed, opened its doors today under new management, redecorated and ready for 1,000 jobless men. Six courteous clerks were on hand to register the guests.

It has a more elegant name now—"The East Trent Billet"—but to the men who turned Schade's old brewery into a haven for the hungry, it always will be the Hotel de Gink.

The management, under direction of city officials, will furnish food, lodging, barbering, tailor and shoe repairing, with most small necessities of life, for four hours work per day. The guests will saw wood, beautify parks and do everything else the city can find for them.

The institution was established one year ago by a group of hungry hoboes who tore the board from the brewery windows, "bummed" food supplies and discarded furniture and startled the police force by banning booze and boisterousness.

Chair Prepared For Electrocution

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 19. (AP)—The electric chair at the Southern Illinois penitentiary was prepared today for the electrocution at 4 a. m. tomorrow of Merle Johnson, 25-year-old confessed murderer of Mrs. Carrie Bowers and her two little sons, at Mattoon last May 20.

The prison chaplain has spent much time with him but he has not changed his story that he killed the woman and children, with whom he lived, because she asked him to. He has not explained intimations at his trial that he was in trouble because of rum-running activities.

Johnson accompanied Mrs. Bowers and the children to Mattoon last February from a rice plantation near Stuttgart, Ark. Johnson worked for Mrs. Bowers' husband prior to his death in April, 1930, and afterward continued in her employ. He has admitted that the younger of the two slain children, Delmar, 19 months old, was his.

A.—One that is composed of two branches or bodies, as house of representatives and a senate.

Q.—How is the money raised for the upkeep of Mount Vernon?—T. E.

A.—An entrance fee provides the necessary funds.

Q.—Isn't there a bird that hunters get by luring it into killing itself?—F. D. S.

A.—The gannet, or solan goose. It feeds on fish, which it captures by plunging into the water, with closed wings, often from a considerable height. Fishermen tow a board with a herring painted on it below the surface of the water. The gannet dives for the painted bird, strikes the board and breaks its neck.

Q.—What is the distance from Calcutta to the mouth of the Ganges?—L. J.

A.—About 90 miles.

Q.—What is the origin of the salutation, "How do you do?"—J. W. G.

A.—It is not known definitely. Murray's dictionary indicates that an older form of this expression was "How do you?" This authority traces the inquiry back to 1563.

Q.—What is meant by lingua franca?—L. E. M.

A.—It is a term used for a language used in any country secondary to the principal language of the country.

Q.—When peat is burned, what kind of a fire does it make?—M. M.

A.—In its natural state, peat contains as high as 90 per cent of moisture and, to make it a satisfactory fuel, it must be dried as much as possible. It is almost impossible to eliminate moisture entirely from peat, and thus it burns with a slow, smouldering fire and produces very little smoke. stems about six inches from the ground. They should be closely packed together in boxes, using dry sand, and stored away where frost will not affect the rhizomes.

Q.—When and by whom was the commonwealth of Australia inaugurated?—M. H.

A.—Thirty years ago the Duke of York, now George V, king of Great Britain, went to Australia and there proclaimed to the world the birth of the commonwealth. In the same year he opened in Sidney the first federal parliament.

Q.—In colonial days, how did the mail sent to people in this country get distributed?—M. D.

A.—Massachusetts was first to establish a postoffice. In 1639 the general court issued the following statement: "It is ordered that notice be given that Richard Fairbanks, his house in Boston, is the place appointed for all letters, which are brought from beyond the seas, or are sent thither, to be left with him, and he is to take care that they are to be delivered or sent according to direction; and he is allowed for every letter a penny, and he must answer all messages through his neglect of this kind." Other colonies sent mail by messengers with some regularity. In Virginia every planter forwarded mail from his plantation to the next one.

A.—They are ancient. Some of the small tablets found in Assyrian libraries must have been bookplates. Japan had them in the 10th century. Modern bookplates are nearly contemporaneous with printing. The earliest actually known is a hand-colored heraldic wood-cut of about 1480.

Q.—Is it true that both the large and small size currency are now being made?—A. I. T.

A.—Since Jan. 1, 1930, the old-size currency has been canceled as received, and all currency issued has been of the new, small size.

Q.—What is the origin of the expression, queen's-ware?—D. W.

A.—It was originally a cream-colored pottery made by Wedgewood and named after Queen Charlotte of England.

Q.—How is a zither played?—T. B.

A.—A zither is a musical instrument having from 30 to 40 strings over a shallow sounding box, set horizontally before the performer. A fretted finger board at one side lies under some of the strings on which the melody is played by a plectrum on the right thumb, these strings being stopped by the left hand. The remaining strings are timed in fourths and plucked by the fingers of the right hand.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

"It's 10 o'clock," said a man in an elevator Monday morning. "That means the day is almost over."

◆ ◆ ◆

Which is symbolic of the rush of the times. Even though there is more cotton and wheat in storage and more money in savings banks and more people out of work than at any time in America's history, still the world looks busy.

◆ ◆ ◆

Women are down town from early in the morning until late in the evening; looking at the new fashions and, make no mistake about it—buying autumn wardrobes.

◆ ◆ ◆

At a gathering of many women not so many days ago, I almost had a sense of embarrassment over my summer attire (though the day was warm), when I saw almost every other woman wearing the smart lines of autumn and winter costumes.

◆ ◆ ◆

I said almost—but not quite. Some way those things do not embarrass me when I am among my friends. But there's one fact it would pay some husbands to know. Nothing changes a woman's viewpoint more quickly than new garments. And never have a word of approach if your wife buys some small bit of new furniture, for a vicarious thrill may be won for her from that; women like to doll up their homes quite as much as themselves.

◆ ◆ ◆

Planting spring flowers and watching the green leaves thrust themselves out of a brown earth; washing windows after a summer of sand storms or a winter of smoke; putting a bright new bit of furniture in a dull corner of a room; wearing a becoming new hat—all these have an effect somewhat alike. But mind you, woman can't wash windows every day.

◆ ◆ ◆

Men, now, put on their new clothes and walk about as if they never knew they would be noticed. But deep in their hearts, they appreciate some one speaking of their smartness quite as much as women.

◆ ◆ ◆

I like to eat in a cafe where men take their meals. They talk from one table to another with no sense of privacy, and one may learn lots of news even before it is published. Today, for instance, I heard points of law discussed with a knowledge that greatly enlightened me.

◆ ◆ ◆

I also heard two men speak of fishing. "Why I can't catch fish," remonstrated one who had been resisting his friend's plea to go to the lake. "I couldn't catch a fish if it should jump in the boat."

◆ ◆ ◆

Which reminds me of a most delicious treat I had. Rainbow trout, caught in the Rockies were smoked and, if anything, proved better eating than the fresh fish. I wish the fisherwoman who caught and smoked them would send the friends who gave me my fish a whole bushel.

OUR CHILDREN

THAT LAZY BOY

"What would you do with a boy of 17 who refuses to get up in the morning, refuses to go to school, refuses to do anything but what he wants to do. He won't study and he won't work."

I'd have a conference with myself and ask why I had allowed this to happen. There was a beginning time when it was easy enough to assert leadership, even authority, if that were necessary, and make him rise on time, do his job and behave like a human being. Now the mischief is done and all the mistakes will have to be corrected and the boy reconditioned. That is no easy matter.

Adolescence slows the boys down always. For a couple of years, the 12 to 14 spans, particularly, the boys are likely to show an inclination to repose on their laurels. All activity is distasteful. That is to be expected but it is also to be adjusted. The boy must be kept moving even though it be on another's power, until he is able to take over his own responsibility once more.

Carefully plan his day. He is to rise and retire on schedule time. His school hours are set, of course. His meal times are to be observed religiously. His study hours are to be regulated to allow him enough time and no more, for home study. He is to play in the open air for at least two whole hours every day, and the half of Saturday. All day Saturday if he likes, but it must be active play on the field. No hanging about the house and no long sessions in the movies. He needs open air and activity.

The boy of the family should always have some responsibility to the household. There must be a job that is his and for which he is held to account. Perhaps it is a job in the garage, keeping it swept, the car cleaned, and polished. Or it may be the walks and porches and the cellar. In the apartment house he can be responsible for some of the household chores. The vacuum cleaner, the floor polisher, the electric refrigerator, all offer him opportunities for usefulness. Some job he must have. It need not be a heavy one, but it must be one that is worth while. No made up job will serve. The real thing or nothing is demanded.

The boy who refuses to go to school beyond the age required by the law, and who refuses to work, ought to be made to work for his living. How that is to be done under the present circumstances is not clear. There is no need for the labor of boys and girls. The adult workers need all the opportunity there is for work. Our youth ought to be in schools under training to carry on the work of the next generation when their turn comes. But our schools are not fitted for that. All they offer usually is a dreary book lesson. This is no good to boys and girls who are alive with energy and rearing to put it to use. We must build and equip schools to teach industry to our adolescents.

I think a society that permits its youth to idle about the streets until they are taken up by the police under charges of crime, is to be blamed. Severely blamed. If the women of this country would take the education of the youth to heart and campaign for schools, the right sort of schools, they would be earning the gratitude of generations to come. And they would be doing a precious service to their country.

Helen Mencken Balks At Costume of Red

CHICAGO, Oct. 19. (UP)—Helen Mencken, here for a three weeks' engagement in Shakespearian plays, upset tradition today by announcement of her refusal to wear red in the portrayal of Portia.

"Black is more suitable, no matter what all the great actresses have worn in the part," she declared.

REVIEW DENIED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—The supreme court today refused to review the contention of Ivan L. Skeen of Lea county, New Mexico, that Beulah V. Lynch of Roswell, N. M., the Texas Production company, and others were unlawfully taking oil, gas and water from his lands under a federal oil and gas prospecting permit.

After Sickness

. . . take S.S.S.—a splendid Tonic for restoring the appetite and for rebuilding the red-blood-cells

"DEAR, here is good news for you."

"Let me read you a message I found in the papers today . . . then I want you to start on your first bottle which I brought home for you tonight."

Those important precious red-blood-cells that mean so much to vitality, when lowered in count, render the body weak and deprive you of an appetite.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

S.S.S. is especially valuable in aiding the system to recuperate after the specific cause of a disease has spent its force.

Its tonic properties will help the body restore to normal a low red-blood-cell count and by so doing many ailments may be avoided—body resistance increased and conditions of a low blood count corrected.

Take S.S.S. and notice how much better you will "feel" . . . as it helps Nature build red-blood-cells it will also create an appetite for food. These two things working together aid the human body in its struggle for health and vitality.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

S.S.S.

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

(Right) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities.

Don't let them count you out!

Pork

The people of America use more pork in various forms than any other meat, and annually consume over 20 pounds more pork per capita than they do of beef.

The greatest amount of pork is sold as fresh pork, and is prepared by roasting, frying or broiling the fresh meat. Large amounts are also used as smoked ham and bacon.

There is a general belief that there is something viciously poisonous about this kind of meat. This is a false impression, no doubt developed from certain religious teachings against the use of swine's flesh and supported by the experience of those whose digestive strength has not been equal to digesting and assimilating such fatty meat.

The main hygienic objections to the use of pork is that smoking the meat interferes with its digestibility ,and also that even lean pork is so much fatter than other meats. Ham is generally sold salted and smoked, but also salted only and fresh-boiled—in the latter named condition chiefly for retailing in slices or by the pound .as "pork steak" or "fresh pork."

The curing of ham consists of immersing from 40 to 60 minutes in a brine composed of table salt, granulated sugar, and a trace of saltpeter to fix the color. It is then washed, dried, and smoked for about three days. Hickory wood or mahogany sawdust is generally considered the best for smoking. The final step is wrapping and sewing into canvas or burlap bags.

The healthiest pigs are usually those that have a good layer of fat and so most hams are quite fat. The famous Virginia hams from lean Virginia hogs are exceptions to this rule, their delicacy being attributed to the animals' summer diet of forest roots, acorns and nuts.

A great improvement has taken place in the curing and smoking of ham and bacon. Bacon is now sold in convenient containers already sliced, often in a transparent wrapper so that the housewife can see just what she is buying. Large plants keep samples of bacon which is cooked and eaten right in their own kitchens to assure that the flavor is kept right.

These meats cook quickly and this is undoubtedly a factor in their success for breakfast, which must be prepared early in the morning. They do not require elaborate cooking vessels.

The farmer has found it economical to eat pork, since the scraps from the table may be in this way converted into a food supply. The best way to cook ham and bacon is by broiling them. The rind should be cut from bacon before using.

Ham and eggs, or bacon and eggs, are a typically American dish, but an improvement is made if the eggs or coddled or poached, and not fried in the ham or bacon fat.

Pork sausage is made with very fat meat and although the packers use good meat, most people will find difficulty in digesting such fat food. Any kind of pork meat should always be thoroughly cooked so that no red blood shows. Most cases of poisoning, or of Trichinosis, can be traced to sausage which has not been sufficiently cooked.

Pickled pigs feet do not contain much protein, and on account of the vinegar in which they are prepared are hard to digest.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sea Foods Good Proteins

Question—Mrs. W. asks: "Are sea foods, such as fish, oysters and shrimp wholesome?"

Answer—Almost all fish except the fatty types are desirable forms of protein for food and may be used in place of meat. Oysters are not quite as nourishing but may be used occasionally by one in good health.

Tonsils and Adenoids

Question—McK. writes: "I have been advised to take X-ray treatments for my tonsils and adenoids. I have always been afraid of X-ray treatments. What would you advise?"

Answer—The enlargement of tonsils and adenoids has a toxic cause and any treatments to reduce their size or make them shrivel without removing the real cause will only lead to further trouble. The amount of X-ray needed to produce such a shriveling may endanger other structures. I always advise a dietetic treatment for these troubles before considering any other measure.

Poor Circulation Causes Jerking

Question—Mr. Paul S. writes: "I am getting along in years and have recently noticed that the muscles of my legs twitch whenever I go to bed if I am the least bit tired or am not feeling just right. What causes this? I am anxious to know as it interferes with my sleep."

Answer—The jerking in your legs is doubtlessly caused by a poor circulation of blood. I would advise you to take some exercises about an hour before retiring. After the exercises, sit in a tub of warm water, immersing the legs in the water for about two or three minutes. A short fruit fast of three to five days is also beneficial as it tends to cleanse the blood stream of accumulated toxins. This will help the circulation and should prevent the jerking.

Board Increases Rail Valuations

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 19. (UP)—The state board of equalization today raised the 1931 assessed valuation of eight principal railroads by $2,000,000 over the 1930 valuation.

The total valuation for 1931 was $190,918,509. The 1930 valuation was $187,994,828.

The raise given the railroads was negligible in comparison with that assessed other public utilities. Previously, the board had raised the assessed valuation of Oklahoma Gas and Electric company from $19,000,000 to $29,000,000.

Railroad valuations were assessed as follows:

Kansas City Southern, for 1931 $5,064,717, compared with $4,799,537 for 1931; Fort Smith and Western, for 1931 $826,636, compared with $1,035,449 in 1930; Midland Valley, for 1931 $3,037,970, compared with $3,000,000 for 1930.

Missouri Pacific, $5,543,742, compared with $5,543,200 for 1930; Kansas, Oklahoma and Gulf for 1931, $4,286,630, compared with $3,989,900 for 1930; Missouri, Kansas and Texas, for 1931, $29,528,253, compared with $29,554,000 in 1930.

Rock Island, 1931, $41,017,056, compared with $41,073,080 for 1930; St. Louis and San Francisco, for 1931, $50,953,675, compared with $50,750,000 for 1930; and Santa Fe, $50,616,986 for 1931, compared with $49,286,091 for 1930.

TEXAS AGGIES AND BAYLOR RENEW GRID WARS THIS WEEK

TEAMS MEET AFTER 4 YEARS

Game to Mark Renewal Of Athletic Relations

Special to The Record News.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Oct. 19.—Headlining the Southwest conference gridiron program for Saturday, Oct. 24, in interest probably will be the Texas Aggie-Baylor university game on Kyle field at College Station because it will be the only clash between member teams of the conference. The renewal of football rivalry between the two schools after a four-year interval will mark the 30th game between the Cadets and the Bears.

Football relations between Baylor and A. & M., first began in 1899 and continued with only four short interruptions until 1926 when athletic relations between the two schools were severed. The Aggies have won 20 of the 29 games played and the Bears six. Three were deadlocked at the final gun and two of these were scoreless. The Aggies have rolled up a total of 370 points in these encounters and the Bears 163 points. Three games were played in 1901 and 1903 and two games were played in 1902, 1904, 1905. The Aggies and Bears did not play in 1900, 1906, 1907, 1910, 1914 and 1915.

Since and including the 1920 season the Aggies and the Bears have broken even in their contests, for each team has won three games and one game ended in a tie.

The all-time record of the Aggie-Baylor games is as follows:

Year—	Ags.	Bay.	Year—	Ag.	By.
1899	33	0	1911	22	11
1901	0	46	1912	53	0

FROG CRIPPLES WON'T PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

FORT WORTH, Oct. 19. (AP)—Although injuries to Texas Christian university's three husky linemen—Ben Boswell, Lon Evans and Foster Howell—are not as serious as first thought, none of the trio is likely to be used against Simmons university Friday night at Abilene. At least, Coach Francis Schmidt announced this afternoon that he doesn't plan to insert them into the contest unless absolutely necessary.

Schmidt started filling their positions with today's workout. Jack Shackelford, who starred at Abilene High school several years ago and earned his T. C. U. letter last year will be at one of the tackle positions with Hersel Kinsey, giant sophomore from Marshall at the other.

To fill Evans' guard position, Coach Schmidt has Standard Lambert, letter man; Bud Taylor and Lee Bassinger. Lambert is most likely to get the call.

Carey Selph Refuses To Play for Chisox

HOUSTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—Carey Selph, stellar Houston second baseman drafted three weeks ago by the Chicago White Sox, is slated to confer here Tuesday with Lou Fonseca, new manager of the White Sox, but Selph said today he would not report to the major league club.

"I will play baseball only in Houston," Selph said. "This is my positive decision in the matter. I believe that when the White Sox realize I am sincere in this declaration they will make no effort to force me to play with Chicago."

In addition to being a ball player of much ability, Selph is a hustling insurance agent. During the past two years he has built up a thriving business here.

The RAMBLER'S CORNER

By FRED D. THOMPSON

Pete Turgeon and Milt Steengrafe, in their hot stove league session the other day, reviewed almost the complete baseball roster of the nation, told what every player is doing now, and what he hit last season. What memories these baseball players have!

Turgeon passes out gossip about former Spudders in Milwaukee. Earl Caldwell, so-so pitcher with the Spudders in 1930, had a good year with the Brewers the past season, hurling well above the .500 mark, and turning in a fine earned run average. Jack Kloza also had a good year, despite a tendency to be temperamental in hitting. Poor Hal Wiltse, who developed a sore arm by training too hard in the camp of the Phillies at the first of the season, and who was turned back to Milwaukee, passed almost the entire season on the Brewers' bench. He got into only one game, so far as Turgeon remembers, and in that one he walked two men and hit a third before being jerked. There seemed to be something radically wrong with the arm, and Wiltse was sent to various specialists. Toward the end of the season Wiltse said the ailing member was beginning to feel better, and that he hoped to start over again next year.

Turgeon said Jack Crouch looked great in the games he played with the Brewers toward the end of the season.

Steengrafe will linger around for a few more days before continuing the trip to his Oakland, Calif., home. Milt attended the world series, returning to Memphis, and then headed here. He brings along a rather interesting story about Dizzy Dean, who is now barnstorming o'er the country. Dizz started out in New Orleans, where he played to a great crowd, and then pitched several games in Missouri. Before he left for Memphis, Tenn., he wired every sports writer in the Tennessee metropolis, that the great Dean was coming to town, and that if they wanted to interview him he would meet them at a certain place at a certain time. Every sports writer in town was there, and the next day all the papers were full of copy about the big Buff.

Mrs. Wayland Sanford of Dallas, formerly of Wichita Falls, is looking forward to a dismal year in 1932. She'll have to root for the Dallas Steers! But it will be merely a civic duty, you know . . . When the Spudders rove into Dallas, she'll feel more at home. Mrs. Sanford, visiting friends here, tells about the last two games of the world series, which she and her husband attended. They sat in back of the press gallery at one of the games, and she saw a bloke writing a story of the game signed "By John McGraw." Doubtless there were other ghosts in the gallery, too. It reminds me of the time Jinx Tucker, Waco sports scribe, had three bylines on his page. One of the stories with his name over it came from a small town near Waco where a high school football game had taken place. Another signed by Jinx came from Dallas, where Baylor played the day before. The other, also signed by Jinx, was a story about some local event. In addition to "covering" three stories, Jinx covered a lot of ground that day.

A Vague Rumor

Secret operatives of the Rambler's corner report there is a movement on foot among the other four teams in district No. 2 to immediately crown the Quanah Indians champions, and do away with playing out the schedule.

The matter was referred to the inter-allied council of the League of Nations, but this body, it was said, refused to act unless it obtained a certified copy of the resolution from the Texas senate and one of the four or five (hundred?) governors of Louisiana.

But my mind is as clear
As the cool woodland streams.
If Texas beats Harvard
It'll be in your dreams.

Imagine Chaucer Covering a Football Game!

By HENRY M'LEMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (UP)—As the Harvard-Army game might have been written had the Messrs. Calvin Coolidge, Geoffrey Chaucer, Milt Gross, Ogden Nash and Thornton Burgess been present, and if they had recorded their impressions.

Calvin Coolidge:

In 1931 there have been 4,231 footballs used in America. Some of them have withstood wear and tear well. Others have not withstood the ravages of war. It would be a splendid thing if all possible diligence were used in making footballs. Before this game some had thought Harvard would win. Others had taken the opposite viewpoint. Conservative Americans should never take violent sides on such questions as these, rather working side by side to compose their differences and show a United front.

Geoffrye Chaucer:

Then came they at hymn hip and thighe
And so smote hym he was a-near to dye;
Eleven men there were ecleped ye Harvards
Swinging ye armes like blades from out ye scabbards.

Milt Gross:

Hm-m-m-m, is dees a fect; Ommy getting bitten yat by Hovvid pessing, wide plonging, by ponting, wid and-ronning, hull de time chessing itch edds beckwards wide furwards. Avvy times Ommy stots off to de totchdowns, arriving queeck Kwottabeck Wood. Avvy time Ommy trying yat to be furr hussmen, Kwottabeck Wood teckling avvbody hodd wid fest yat terrible.

Scurr, and of sacond haff, nodding motch. Rafferee, go Husstralian crawl, pess de sussages, plizz.

Ogden Nash:

You should have seen this halfback Crickard
His game was little short of wickard
And this guy Wood, who played at quarter
You shoulda seen him. You really oughter.
I'd also spare a couple of nouns and maybe a verb
To praise those guys, Stecker, Elliott, Carver and Herb.
And so for that other Army man, Jack Price,
These Harvards had better left him to his own device.

Thornton Burgess:

Little Johnny Harvard had no more than said "Hell, Mister Army Mule," before the mule shook his big ears, kicked up his hind legs, ran right over little Johnny, and Lippity-Lipping down the field for two touchdowns.

All the people expected to see little Johnny run and cry home, but no siree. Johnny's mother had taught him to be a little man, and so he did not become afraid when the mean Army Mule tried to eat him up. Instead, little Johnny walked right up to the big mean old mule, tied a big knot in his tail and said: "There Mister Mule." After that the mule was nice as could be and let little Johnny Harvard ride him around all afternoon.

Eight Teams Stand Out In East's Grid Race

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (UP)—The race for eastern college football horses remained an open competition today after a week-end of surprising games.

No fewer than eight teams stood out as possible leaders of the East although four weeks of play were complete. The teams were Harvard, New York university, Syracuse, Columbia, Cornell, Pittsburgh, Colgate and Fordham.

Pittsburgh downed Western Reserve, 32-0.

Cornell humbled Princeton, 33-0.

Colgate downed Manhattan, 33-0.

Syracuse beat Florida, 33-12.

Fordham lost some prestige by being held to a 6-6 tie with Holy Cross.

BIG TEN FACES BUSY WEEK

Sensational Upsets Feature Last Week's Tilts

CHICAGO, Oct. 19. (INS)—Crawling out of a battered, topsy-turvy dope bucket, football teams of the Big Ten today began preparation for a week-end which will see four conference contests and two intersectionals.

Next Saturday's schedule lists Indiana at Chicago, Northwestern at Ohio, Michigan at Illinois, Wisconsin at Penn, Purdue at Carnegie, and Iowa at Minnesota.

Title hopes are booming at Wisconsin and Ohio as a result of sensational upsets last Saturday. Supporters of Northwestern and Minnesota are optimistic also, for they are the only other elevens which have not been beaten or tied.

Playing on the home grounds before some 30,000 ecstatic partisans, the Badgers unleashed a scoring punch they have been lacking for years and topped over the highly touted Boilermakers of Purdue, 21 to 14.

Wisconsin, with the aid of such performers as Greg Kabat, Francis McGuire and Joe Linfor, marched down the field twice in the first quarter and made a third touchdown in the same period by blocking a kick.

Purdue attempted to recoup in the third quarter, but the rally was checked after the second touchdown. Both teams played magnificently on a dry, fast field, putting up a battle sufficiently stirring to make even "Gloomy Glenn" Thistlethwaite exultant.

Michigan's aspirations to a split in another championship went booey when a new kind of Ohio State eleven tore up the turf at Ann Arbor and won by a 20 to 7 score. Nearly 70,000 persons saw the contest.

Flukes and fumbles caused the game to stand at 7-all at the half, but throughout the closing quarters the Buckeyes clearly proved their superiority. Michigan's only score came on a blocked punt.

Alonzo A. Stagg, celebrating his 40th anniversary as head coach at Chicago, suffered a big disappointment Saturday when he saw the Maroons defeated by Yale, his old alma mater, 27 to 0. It was Eli's game from the start.

Check and double-check was the motto at Iowa City when Indiana and Iowa destroyed each other's slight hopes for the title. The wrangle ended in a scoreless tie.

Northwestern defeated the University of California (Southern Branch) 19 to 0. The Wildcats will undergo the acid test this Saturday, meeting Ohio at Columbus.

Illinois took a "breather" over the week-end, playing Bradley Tech of Peoria. The final standing was 20 to 0. Minnesota was inactive.

The warriors from Drake were brave, but they were no match for the men of Notre Dame, and the fans of South Bend were able to rejoice over a landslide of 63 to 0. The Irish play Pittsburgh this week.

There's a Kick in This Picture

There is a certain snap in the art of punting, football coaches aver, and you'll agree that this a rather snappy piece of art. Pretty Lois Harper, dance instructor in Dayton, Ohio, shows the University of Dayton gridders how to kick without bending the knee. The football player pictured above with her is Floyd Evans, but of course you aren't interested in him.

Coyotes Muster Forces for Quanah Game; Vodvil Tickets Go on Sale

Quanah's 32 to 0 victory over Electra last week left with the Coyotes a very definite impression that they must do everything and do everything right if they are to make any headway in their game with the Indians here next Saturday. And with that objective, the boys prepared yesterday to delve into a week of hard work, determined to put everything into the Saturday clash, which will mark their first appearance before the homefolks and which, in all likelihood, will be the most important Coyote game of the season.

Yesterday the team was acquainted with a host of Quanah plays in a dummy scrimmage, and today the practice will be started in earnest, with the regulars trying to break up the gridiron tricks hatched in Quanah, and which will be duplicated here by a strong team of reserves.

The injury of Bill Reynolds, left guard, in the Poly game at Fort Worth, necessitated a shift in the line-up yesterday. Max Sepkovitch, bulky tackle, was run in at Reynold's post, and Bill Huff, young lineman whose hustle has made an impression on the coaching staff, was placed in Sepkovitch's right tackle position. The shift may be made permanent for a week at least, if Reynolds does not recover quickly. Reynolds sustained a wrenched knee in the Poly game.

Meanwhile, tickets for the "Let's Go Athletic" program to be staged Friday night, on the eve of the game, were placed on sale by high school students. The program will include a vaudeville, in which talented performers will be presented, and a huge pep rally, designed to give the Coyotes a rousing send-off in the first home game. The affair will be held at the Memorial auditorium.

ALL BIG SIX TEAMS TO PLAY

Kansas Ags Meet Sooners In Feature Game

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19. (INS)—An all-conference schedule is on the menu for Big Six football fans this week with all six teams meeting on one card for the first time this season.

The Kansas Aggies, sensations of the 1931 season, will just about sew up the conference crown if they succeeded in defeating the Oklahoma Sooners at Manhattan.

The Ags have won their first two starts against Missouri and Kansas and as a result are perched on the top roost of the conference standings without the slightest indication in the remaining schedule that they will be knocked off, unless it remains for Nebraska to turn the trick.

If the Ags whip the Sooners and Kansas succeeds in defeating the Cornhuskers in their game at Lincoln Saturday, then it's all over but the passing of the laurel wreath.

The Aggies whipped Kansas to a standstill at Lawrence Saturday, 13 to 0. But, withal, the Jayhawkers put up a good scrap and should do well against Nebraska.

Missouri, hopelessly in the mire, with two losses and no wins, will meet Iowa State at Ames. It will be Iowa State's first conference game of the season. It should be a nice wishy-washy game. Both teams are regarded as evenly matched.

However, Missouri did snap out of its dream to some extent Saturday in holding Colorado to a 9 to 7 win. That's one touchdown without the extra point, and a field goal. Not bad, considering that the Tigers also scored a touchdown.

The potential 1931 champs have been fortunate in sustaining a minimum of injuries. Missouri and Kansas have had more than their share.

The Big Six conference football schedule for Saturday, Oct. 24:

Kansas State vs. Oklahoma at Manhattan.

Kansas vs. Nebraska at Lincoln.

Missouri vs. Iowa State at Ames.

SUBURBAN DAY
Thursday, October 22
Life assumes new aspects in October. Falling leaves, comfy fires and the cry of wild geese are symbols of change.
Indoor living becomes highly enjoyable. There is a call for new furniture and new furnishings. It didn't make much difference about the threadbare davenport and frayed draperies in the summer time. Nobody noticed them. Now they must be replaced if the house is to be attractive and inviting during the fall and winter months.
Whatever your needs in the home, or whatever your requirements in clothing, it will pay you in money saved and in satisfaction to avail yourself of the ample stocks of the Wichita Falls merchants.
Come to Wichita Falls Suburban Day, next Thursday, October 22. On that day Wichita Falls merchants will feature articles that are especially appropriate to the season.
Prices will be attractively low. The volume-business of the Wichita Falls stores permits small margins of profit and price advantages to the customers who trade with them.
Variety in color, styles and patterns is another factor. The wholesome competition of many stores insures the shopper the opportunity of finding exactly what she wants.
In chinaware, luggage, furniture, radios, pianos, lamps and art objects the same advantages await the critical buyer.
The Suburban Day advertisements will appear in the Wichita Daily Times and Record News. Read these issues carefully. Make a list of the things that interest you and where they may be had. It will be a great help to you when you do your Suburban Day shopping.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (AP)—An advance of approximately $1.50 a bale occurred in cotton today on trade buying and covering together with some broadening of commission house demand.

Comparatively light offerings from the South were on a contributing factor on the advance, which carried the price of December contracts up to 6.72, or 31 points net higher. That delivery closed at 6.68, with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 24 to 30 points.

The market opened steady, 1 to 9 points higher, but after some little irregularity right at the start, sold off under a moderate volume of offerings from the South and New Orleans while there was also some Wall street selling. Both Liverpool and the continent were buyers here, while there also seemed some demand from brokers who are credited with frequently operating for far eastern account, after showing net losses of 6 to 8 points, price turned steadier. There was little southern selling here after the early offerings had been absorbed. The absence of pressure from that source contributed to the better tone to the market, and the buying became more active in the late trading. January sold up from 6.47 to 6.82 and March from 6.65 to 7.03, and closing quotations were with 3 or 4 points of the best.

The absence of southern selling here in greater volume attracted considerable comment and in some quarters was coupled with reports that a good deal of spot cotton was being bought in the South for speculative or investment account, and that the holding movement was showing increased firmness.

Liverpool cables said that light hedge selling had been absorbed by trade buying and calling in that market. Exports today 53,222 making 1,202,921 so far this season. Port receipts 55,557. U. S. port stocks 4,072,403.

Futures closed very steady, 24 to 27 higher. Spot steady; middling 6.75.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19. (AP)—Cotton was quite active in today's trading and prices developed an upward trend. Aside from some hesitation at the start due to hedge selling and an easy opening of the stock market, the market soon developed an upward slant in sympathy with a recovery in stocks, good trade buying, price fixing by the mills and active short covering. The close was steady at net gains for the day of 29 to 30 points, equal to $1.50 a bale.

Liverpool is due 16 to 17 penny points up on New Orleans tomorrow.

Liverpool came in one to two penny points worse than due and private cables stated the trade called and hedge selling was light. Manchester cabled that demand for cloth from India was improving. First trades here showed gains of 4 points.

Later in the morning the market rallied rather sharply owing to a recovery in stocks, good trade buying and short ocvering and by early afternoon, December had advanced to 6.66, January to 6.77 and March to 6.95 or 31 to 32 points above the previous lows and 26 to 27 points above Saturday's close.

The market continued to advance in the late trading in sympathy with the firmness of stocks and higher grain markets and prices made new highs with December at 6.72; January at 6.81 and March at 7.01 up 35 to 38 points from the lows. Prices receded a few points at the end on realizing, December closing at 6.69, January at 6.80 and March at 6.99 up 30 points net for the day on these active months.

Port receipts 55,557; for week 97,957; for season 2,642,279; last season 3,665,431. Exports 50,372; for week 83,542; for season 1,173,459; last season 1,810,279. Stock Market's Firmness Indicates More Sober Sentiment in Securities

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (US)—A quiet but firm stock market today reflected a week-end which brought no outstanding news. The fact that prices were able to maintain their previous levels, however, was widely interpreted as evidence of a more sober sentiment toward securities, and the gradual passing of the fright which had ruled the markets for some time. This view, in fact, was particularly strengthened by the action of bonds, prices for which tended generally higher.

Japanese issues were an exception in the bond list, but they of course were responding to the specific nervousness induced by the Manchurian difficulties and the maintained uneasiness over Japan's ability to maintain the gold standard. The nation's leaders, however, continue to express confidence in their position and reiterate their intention to maintain the standard. Strength among bonds, firmness in stocks coincided with decided strength among commodity prices, with some wheat options up a cent, and cotton at one time gaining a dollar and a half a bale.

Action of the commodities is being closely observed by economic students on the look-out for evidence that an inflationary movement is under way. Commodities, of course, would show immediately the effects of any such movement. It was considered significant, too, that some of the stocks mainly dependent for improvement upon a rising trend in commodities were displaying unusual strength.

Thus, the coppers came in for greater constructive attention in the stock market. If any industry is suffering from low prices, it is copper. Most of the companies are unable to show any profit whatever on the current price of the metal. For some time, there has been persistent buying demand for Kennecott, American Metals, American Smelting and certain others of the group. The buying very obviously was highly speculative, but nevertheless has been based on belief that something would develop, by reason of the below-cost-of-production price of the metal, to improve conditions. All such buying, however, is strictly for the pull.

Railroad stocks made no headway in the absence of official news concerning the Interstate Commerce commission's ruling on the rate increase. Some cheer was gleaned from the repeated story that the railway brotherhoods would voluntarily accept a wage reduction. Such stories plainly are inspired by reckless speculators. The sound view of the railroad situation would be to anticipate some compromise in the matter of the carriers' application for a 15 per cent advance in the rates; the stock market, however, would more warmly welcome wage reduction. Strong buying, though of speculative nature, is reported still continuing in the rails, probably in anticipation of some market celebration when the "good news" is issued.

Throughout today's session, there was an undercurrent firmness which was highly gratifying to the real friends of the market. Any creations under prevailing circumstances would be unhealthy since stability is the main objective at present.

The best class of buying is taking place on reactions.

With Premier Laval fast approaching these shores, there was a decided disposition in important quarters to await disclosure of his objective and outcome of his talks with President Hoover, before formulating definite investment and speculative program. This attitude of indecision was plainly apparent from today's volume of less than a million shares.

Speculative activities of constructive nature are being formulated in the hope that the Laval visit will be conducive of encouraging developments. In the meantime, with short selling still restricted, the constructive forces are enjoying virtually a free hand but are none too anxious apparently to stage more than a demonstration of quiet strength.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 19. (AP)—Breadstuffs went brickly upward today, wheat and rye both outdoing previous top quotations for the season. There was aggressive speculative buying, simultaneous with assertions that France would negotiate for the purchase of 50,000,000 bushels of United States government sponsored wheat holdings. Other stimulating factors were 2,670,000 bushels decrease of the United States wheat visible supply total and late rumors of Japanese troops movements in Manchuria.

Wheat closed strong, at the day's highest figures, 1⅜@1¾c advanced, corn ⅞@1⅜c up, oats ¼@⅜c higher and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

Special impetus to the upward trend of wheat came from a Paris cable saying that the French government through the Laval commission would conduct negotiations for the purchase of American farm board wheat. Failure of efforts to confirm this report led to a transient early setback in prices, but speculative demand persisted, and the market rose bucyantly in the late dealings notwithstanding that officials of the grain stabilization corporation said they knew nothing of the supposed forthcoming proposal from France. Rye was influenced by wheat strength, and closed like wheat, at the day's topmost level, 1¼@1⅜c up.

Contributing to momentum of the wheat price advance was a dispatch from a European continental grain house to a Chicago exporter declaring that the general European situation was more healthy. The dispatch added that the Danube region was offering but little wheat, that Russia was not pressing wheat sales, and that she was offering only wheat already afloat. Urgent need of rain in domestic winter wheat sections continued.

Corn and oats followed wheat and rye upward.

Provisions responded to upturns in hog values.

New Plan Evolved To Pay Teachers

CHICAGO, Oct. 19. (AP)—Chicago's unpaid school teachers have a new plan to keep the wolf from their doors.

The joint board of teachers unions, representing 7,000 teachers, yesterday decided to urge President Hoover's newly organized $500,000,000 national credit corporation to come to their aid.

The corporation will be asked to purchase or rediscount 1930 school board tax anticipation warrants now held by local banks so the money could be reinvested by the banks in 1931 warrants which the board has been unable to sell. In this way funds would be provided to meet the teachers' salaries for the past five months, the board members explained.

PATMAN SAYS DEFICIT 'FAKED'

Figures Juggled to Balk Bonus, Says Solon

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Charging the present treasury deficit was "deliberately conceived" to block world war veterans relief legislation, Representative Wright Patman, Democrat of Texas, declared today the nation's actual net debt is but little more than $4,400,000,000.

Entering the controversy over a drive to force payment of the soldier "bonus" while President Hoover is appealing for drastic economy, Patman presented what he describes as the "true condition" of the treasury.

"I believe the deficit was deliberately created by juggling figures for the purpose of unduly influencing legislation desired or opposed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon," he said.

"One of the chief objects of the juggling, in my opinion, is to prevent payment of adjusted service certificates and to kill other relief legislation in behalf of veterans."

Patman said the liabilities of the government, as shown by the detailed treasury statement on Aug. 31, are $16,865,897,276.24 while the net assets on the same day were $12,403,309,765.81.

"The treasury deficit figures take into account the cash position, and when officials speak of our bonded debt as over 16 billions they fail to take into account our assets," said Patman.

Deep Wildcat Has Saturated Lime

Consolidated Oil-Primrose Refining company No. 1 S. I. & H. M. Munger, located in the northwest corner of block 31, Wichita valley farm lands in south Wichita county is coring into the saturated lime topped at 3785 feet.

The well, a wildcat, is located approximately two and one-half miles to the southeast of the Deep Oil Development No. 1 Munger discovery well in block 30 one mile north of Kemp City. It is also one mile east of the Jack Martin townsite producer.

The top of a dry lime was picked up at about 3785 feet and when cored into several feet showed considerable oil saturation, and with each core taken increased in the amount of oil carried. Eleven feet of this formation was cored and Monday afternoon the formation had not changed.

A well at this point would be the factor in proving up a big scope of territory within the productive section of the 3800-foot pay and further progress is being watched by the operators in this area with the keenest of interest.

TRUNKS YIELD WOMEN'S BODIES

Boxes Shipped From Phoenix Hold Gory Cargo

they had not seen either of the women since Saturday.

Southern Pacific officials said one of their baggage clerks reported to them trunks bearing check numbers given by Los Angeles authorities as containing the bodies were brought to the station late Sunday afternoon by a man and a woman. The woman purchased a ticket to Los Angeles and checked the trunks.

The trunks were brought to the station on the running boards of the couple's car.

The clerk said the man did not get out of the car. He described the woman as being about 25 years old and said she had a bandage on her head and another on her wrist.

After the train on which the trunks left had pulled out employes noticed blood on the station floor near where the trunks had been, but did not connect it with the trunks.

Trio Shot, One Killed in Battle

two others were scampering up a fire escape. There was more shooting, but the fleeing men reached the roof without being hit.

Meanwhile scores of riot calls had been sent in. Two emergency crews arrived in screaming automobiles. Fire apparatus was called and ladders stretched to various roofs.

Then began the systematic search for the two missing gunmen. Detectives went down skylights, and searched all houses in the neighborhood.

About 6 o'clock, detectives working through the crowd of hundreds which jammed the streets and sidewalks observed a young man apparently in a hurry to get away from the scene. He was arrested and taken to a police station for questioning.

At 6:15 police had isolated completely the block from Seventy-eighth to Seventy-ninth streets, and from Columbus to Amsterdam avenues. Even persons living in the block were not permitted to pass through the police lines—and the hundreds of curious who had rushed up at the beginning of the shooting were not permitted to leave.

Fire department and police searchlights began to play over the roof tops as darkness descended. At 6:45 o'clock, there were some 200 police and firemen engaged in the manhunt.

The shooting which precipitated today's siege occurred in a ward in Fordham hospital, James Ward, a prisoner charged with burglary, was guarded by Patrolman Brosnan.

Suddenly, two men appeared on either side of Brosnan. Pistols spat bullets. Brosnan, who was dozing at the time, fell off his chair, dead. He didn't have a chance.

CORPUS CHRISTI LOSES GAS SUIT

City Held Liable to Firm For Damages

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—The supreme court refused today to review a decision of the fifth circuit court of appeals holding the city of Corpus Christi, Texas, liable to the Corpus Christi Gas company for damages resulting from an injunction obtained by the city in 1923 which prevented the company from making connections to obtain a supply of natural gas.

The gas company, operating under a franchise granted Henry M. Wallace in 1912, sought permission in 1923 to make connections for the use of natural gas.

The city of Corpus Christi not only refused to grant permission, but instituted suit in March of that year to enjoin the company from making a connection with the White Point Production company for the supply of natural gas. The injunction was granted and was in force several years.

Charging the city had refused to grant permission and had obtained the injunction to enable it to have a clear field for the sale of natural gas, the company sued for $475,000 damages, contending that under the injunction the city was able to enter the natural gas field without competition, and had obtained such a monopoly that it was impossible for the company, when the injunction was dissolved, to compete.

The federal court at Houston held that the city was not liable and dismissed the suit. The fifth circuit court of appeals reversed that decision, holding the city was liable for damages and leaving it to the lower court to decide the amount. The city claimed it was exempt from all liability resulting from issuance of the injunction.

An appeal was issued for children in more fortunate circumstances to donate their discarded toys.

CYR FILES SUIT TO OUST LONG

Huey's Faction Pooh-Poohs Opponent's Move

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 19. (AP)—The controversy over who is governor and lieutenant governor of Louisiana became more complex today with the filing of an ouster suit against Huey P. Long as governor and the functioning of Alvin O. King, president pro tempore of the state senate, as lieutenant governor.

Paul N. Cyr, until recently the undisputed lieutenant governor, filed suit against Long on the contention that Long is a United States senator and does not legally hold both offices. Cyr also ignored a meeting of the state pardon board and allowed King to preside over it as lieutenant governor.

The Long faction claimed the undisputed acceptance of King as a member of the board by Attorney General Percy Saint indicated the latter recognized Cyr is "out of the office."

None of the principals to the controversy had anything to say about the day's events.

The developments of the day brought a solemn mien to the populace, which had a big laugh over the situation after unemployed men had taken the oath of governor and lieutenant governor and set up their claims for the offices. These men were out of the picture today.

JANITOR SLAIN

BRADY, Texas, Oct. 19. (AP)—J. W. Cross, high school janitor, was found shot to death in the basement of Brady High school today.

PAPERS PROVE CHRIS ITALIAN

Or So Says Discoverer Of Documents

ROME, Oct. 19. (UP)—Two priceless documents—one, the original diploma which Ferdinand and Isabella gave to Christopher Columbus appointing him "admiral of the Indies" before he set out to find the new world—have just been discovered.

These, with a third document unearthed in the vatican archives, establish decisively the Italian origin of the discoverer, according to Prof. Francesco Creti, who made the announcement today.

Professor Creti believes he has a completed chain of records which prove that Columbus was born near Genoa.

The original diploma appointing Columbus an admiral was found in the archives of the Museum of Seville after many years of toil and effort.

The fact that Columbus was not a Spaniard was noted in the wording of the bestowal of command. The date of the document "1492" confirmed the date of the discovery of America.

Even more interesting than the first document is the second document, according to Professor Creti. This is dated 1493, after the return of Columbus from his first voyage. This document goes into length to describe the honors bestowed and to give a clear indication of the coat of arms which Ferdinand and Isabella had approved for their hero.

One fact in the second was especially important, said Professor Creti. A fourth of the crest was left without description. This was interpreted as indicating that Columbus came from a locality outside of Spain and for that reason the two sovereigns could not design the entirety of the heraldic badge because they were not familiar with the characteristic features of his birthplace. They therefore left it vacant to be designed by Columbus himself.

To complete the coat of arms therefore, it was necessary for Professor Creti to make further investigations. One day he came across a group of documents of the same epoch. One captured his attention. It described a seal and a coat of arms. He watched more closely and found that it not only described the Columbus heraldic badget but also filled in the missing fourth-quarter.

From the new discovery, Professor Creti immediately saw that the fourth portion of the crest referred to his birthplace in the region of Genoa.

Professor Creti has devoted his entire life to the search for documents and has spent years in the vatican archives.

Junior C-C May Seek Insurance Law Change

Ralph Pond, director of the board of the Texas Junior chamber of commerce and member of the local organization here, was appointed a member of an important committee at the meeting of state directors Saturday at Waco, it was announced here Monday on the return of Mr. Pond and Jerry Vinson, also a state director, from the conference.

The committee of which Mr. Pond is a member was named to investigate the possibilities of legislation to reduce arson through the enactment of laws permitting fire insurance companies to pay claims on the basis of actual loss, rather than on the total amount of a given policy.

In this way, it was explained, an owner who has destroyed property by arson can expect to collect only the actual amount of the loss and has no opportunity of realizing a sum in excess of the value of his property.

Highest Court to Review $60,000 Fine Assessed Against Blackmer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—A $60,000 fine assessed against Harry M. Blackmer for refusing to testify in the Teapot Dome oil cases will be reviewed by the supreme court.

Blackmer, wealthy Colorado oil man, was wanted as a witness in the trials of Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior. He persistently refused to return to this country from Paris.

After the revelations of circumstances surrounding leases of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills naval oil reserves, a law was passed which gave the government the power to punish witnesses who refused to come from foreign countries.

It gave United States consuls authority to serve subpoenas on persons residing outside this country and provided that a continued refusal might be considered contempt. A summons was served on Blackmer, who was supposed to know much of the transactions of the Continental Trading company which bought some of the Teapot Dome oil after the reserve passed to a Sinclair company. He paid no attention and continued his self-imposed exile begun in 1920.

The government seized $100,000 in liberty bonds belonging to him. He was cited for contempt and fined $60,000. The judgment was affirmed by the District of Columbia court of appeals. Blackmer's attorneys appealed to the highest court.

They argued that the law, introduced by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, was aimed specifically at him and the late James O'Neil, another oil man, who refused to return from abroad to tell what he knew of the leases.

American Artists Found Gallery To Aid Home Painters

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (AP)—Seven American artists, who charge that the exhibition and distribution of art both in Europe and in the United States has become largely a "racket" in the hands of French dealers, opened their own gallery in New York today.

They have taken a five-year lease on a small gallery in a mid-town hotel and there they will show their own work and the work of "the fellow out in Texas, or Montana, or Ohio," who, they explain, finds it almost impossible to get a showing in New York.

They call themselves "an American group" and each year will admit two American artists to their organization. Each year there will be guest shows, too, at which non-members, both American and foreign, will be permitted to exhibit.

German Film Star Ducks Through Bars

Halted Sunday on her arrival in the liner Toloa because her visa had expired on a short trip to Cuba, Miss De Putti was automatically barred from re-entering. But this was waived on her promise to secure a time extension from Washington.

Convicted Banker Tells Of Asserted 'Promise'

CHICAGO, Oct. 19. (US)—Walter E. Wolf, sentenced to 10 to 100 years after confessing embezzlement of $3,667,000 from the Continental Illinois bank, charged today he had been promised he would be let off with 18 months if he confessed to his defalcations. His statement came after his attorney, Louis Piquett, had filed a motion for a stay of sentence pending an appeal.

G. O. P. Committee Called to Gather To Select City

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (UP)—The Republican national commitee will meet in mid-December to select a city for the 1932 national convention. Cleveland and Chicago are the the leading bidders but formal offers have been received also from Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Denver and San Francisco.

Chairman Simeon D. Fess said today he had decided to send out within a few days a call for the committee to assemble here Monday, Dec. 14, and the full committee the next day.

Even more important than selecting a city for the nominating convention, the committee will decide the methods of apportioning delegates to the convention. The convention representation system has been disrupted by congressional reapportionment and failure of some states to redistrict.

The committee also will decide whether states which went Republican by large margins are to be given additional delegates, as was done four years ago. The regular representation includes two delegates for each senator and representative.

The Democratic national committee will follow its usual custom of meeting in January and it is believed that if the Republicans meet in the mid-west, the Democrats will, too.

MOURNERS FILL EDISON HOME

Thouands File by Casket Of Loved Inventor

A. Edison Industries, Inc., said the inventor was not an atheist, even though he acknowledged no specific creed.

"I can't emphasize too strongly," he said, "that Mr. Edison did believe in a supreme intelligence.

"I have seen him hold up a glass of milk as a chemist might look at a test tube and say, 'the almighty is a great chemist'."

Faith Cited

Mr. Walsh recalled that once as he sat with Mr. Edison in the laboratory, the latter said: "Sometimes when I've reached the end of my rope in an experiment, suddenly there will come a thought that is the key to my problem. Certainly that supreme intelligence guides the human mind."

The room in which the body of Thomas Edison lay was much as he left it before his last illness. His old rolltop desk, a blue covered couch on which he used to rest, the long shelves of books lining the balcony, the scores of photographs and paintings on the walls—all were undisturbed.

Leaves Strew Casket

Close to the desk at which Mr. Edison had pored over many of his inventions stood the coffin. Over it were sprinkled red oak leaves from the trees on the Llewellyn Park estate. Around the room were several vases of chrysanthemums, a few sprays of smilax, and bunches of brightly colored autumn leaves.

Directly above the coffin was a big bronze wall clock, its hands strangely stopped at 3:27 a. m. yesterday, three minutes after the inventor sank from a coma into eternal sleep.

The soft amber radiance of the incandescent lamp—considered by Mrs. Edison his greatest invention—filled the room.

It was into this setting that the employes of the Edison plant were ushered at 8 a. m.

Workers' Tribute

Charles Edison, the inventor's son, was there to receive the men and women of all ages. Some were in their Sunday clothes; others, soon to go on duty, were in overalls. Some led their children through the slowly moving line for a glimpse at the figure under the coffin's glass lid.

At 9 a. m. the public was admitted, and until 6 p. m. the room was filled. A guard of honor—four Edison employes standing with folded arms at each corner of the coffin—was changed every 15 minutes.

Mourners Polyglot

Public mourners numbered thousands and they were polyglot. There were bankers in cut-aways, school children carrying their books, old persons who wept freely, unemployed in threadbare clothing, Salvation Army corps in uniform, mothers with babies in arms.

In death Mr. Edison appeared serene, showing little of the ravages of his prolonged illness. James Earle Fraser, a sculptor of Westport, Conn., made a death mask of the inventor's face and also an impression of his hands.

"He had a marvelous, powerful face," Fraser said. "The beautiful full forehead, the nose, the mouth, the chin—practically all the great qualities are in that face."

Plans are to fashion a likeness in bronze or marble from the mask.

Laval Continues Study for Parley With President

ABOARD THE S. S. ILE DE France, Oct. 19. (UP)—Premier Pierre Laval, who will arrive off quarantine at New York probably around 1 a. m. Thursday, continued his study of technical reports today in preparation for his talks with President Hoover.

With his experts the French premier concluded a program for the Washington conferences, except for actual figures. It was emphasized that the French premier will not propose any defnite program to Mr. Hoover, merely awaiting an opportunity to present the attitude of his government in the course of the conversations.

Laval's outline involves disarmament and the French policy of security, based in part on the French memorandum to the League of Nations: reparations and war debts.

Laval sent a wireless message to his foreign minister, Aristide Briand, at Geneva, urging him to telegraph Tokyo and Nanking in another effort to settle the Manchurian conflict under pledges in the anti-war treaty. He also studied returns from the French cantonal elections, saying the opinions of voters seemed to be unexpectedly moderate and indicated popular approval of the government's policies for international conciliation. The vote was considered significant because of the national legislative elections next May.

SLAYING TRIAL OPENS HERE

Johnson First to Face Court In Double Outrage

Martin Testifies

Arthur Howard, tax collector; Frank Johnson, former tax assessor's employe, and Max Shumake, tax assesor testified as the number of qualified negro jurors in the county, varying in their estimates from 250 to 700. Mrs. A. B. Eichelberger, district clerk, described the procedure of handling the names drawn for the jury.

Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court said he had been connected, officially and as a practicing attorney, with Wichita county courts since 1906 and that he had never known a negro to serve on either a grand jury or petit jury in the county.

He said he himself would not discriminate against a negro because of his race but that he would call a white man to the jury rather than a negro because he knew the white population better.

Sam Spence, district attorney, answered the charge of invalid indictments with the contention that negroes were not purposely discriminated against in the selection of grand jurors, that race prejudice did not enter into their absence from the body.

He called E. C. Knox, Iowa Park, and Edward Schlaffke, Electra, other members of the commission. Both testified that the question of negroes on the jury did not arise, that they named jurors from their knowledge of their precincts, and that lack of competence was the only reason for not including members of the race.

Judge Montgomery held his decision in abeyance until Tuesday morning. Unless the motion to quash is upheld, the Johnson jury will be completed and testimony opened Tuesday morning.

Man Slain, Girl Attacked

Nodurft was killed and the girl attacked as they were parked in Nodurft's car below Brook street on Dayton Sept. 9. Nodurft was shot when he attempted to start his car after two armed negro men had commanded him to stop. After he was shot, the negroes forced the girl to leave the car and attacked her. They stole her diamond engagement ring and watch and took money from Nodurft's pocket.

The girl herself drove the mortally wounded man to the Wichita General hospital where he died two days later.

Johnson was arrested after a chase through the business district here about 10 days after the shooting. Brown was caught just after he alighted from a freight train the same day.

Superintendent Of Banks Is Indicted

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (UP)—State Superintendent of Banks Joseph A. Broderick, a personal appointee of Governor Roosevelt, was indicted on charges of neglect of duty and conspiracy today by a grand jury which also returned indictments against 28 officers and directors of the defunct Bank of the United States.

Broderick, frequently the object of bitter attacks both by Repbulican leaders and by Tammany hall, is charged with having permitted the bank to continue doing business and accepting deposits in spite of his knowledge that the institution was insolvent.

All of the charges on which the banking superintendent was indicted are misdemeanors, though a superseding felony indictment was returned against the four key figures in the bank failure and Herbert Singer, a law clerk, who was involved in the crash.

One charge is based on the $8,000,000 bookkeeping deal "through which, according to Max D. Steuer, special prosecutor in the bank of the United States case, three subsidiaries of the bank fraudulently paid a debt to the bank with the bank's own money.

Fourth Death Results From Auto Collision

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19. (AP)—Frank H. Doerr, 40, died here today, the fourth victim of an automobile collision six miles north of Platte City, Mo., on highway No. 71 yesterday.

Mrs. Doerr and Mr. and Mrs. Otis B. Nelson, Kansas City, were burned to death in the accident.

WANTS TO IMPOSE CHARGES

St. Andrews, Scotland, famous home of golf, will apply to parliament for a provisional order to enable it to impose charges at the 1933 open golf championship and other leading golfing events. Some time ago the championship committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf club informed the St. Andrews town council that in future golf championships could only be held at St. Andrews on condition that charges were levied. The admission money is to be retained by the championship committee of the Royal and Ancient club, or such other body as may have control, for defraying expenses of the events, the costs of the order to be met out of the receipts.

"WILLIAM TELL" SHOT WILD

During the "William Tell" act of "Two Gun Rix" given before hundreds of spectators at Coney Beach, Portcawl, Wales, Rix accidentally shot his 18-year-old daughter. A number of apples had been shot off the girl's head, and her father had aimed at a cigaret in her mouth when she screamed and collapsed. Many women onlookers fainted in the confusion that followed. When the girl recovered consciousness she pluckily wanted to go on with the show. She was not dangerously wounded, the bullet having entered above the eyes without touching the optic nerve or penetrating the brain.

JOBBERS ON ROAD TODAY

Business Leaders to Visit Towns of Area

The second of the manufacturers and jobbers division series of contact trips to towns of the Wichita Falls trade territory will be made Tuesday, it was announced Monday by C. H. Thompson, division chairman.

Designed to create better trade relationships between wholesalers and manufacturers of Wichita Falls and the business men of neighboring cities, similar trips will be held at intervals during coming months.

Due to a very busy week on the part of division members only two groups of trippers will go into the territory Tuesday, it was said. One group will visit in Randlett, Grandfield and Walters, Okla., the other going to Burkburnett and Devol.

Efforts will be made, it was said, to form the largest group of trips for next Tuesday or for the following week. Activities which members of the division must participate in here will have been brought to a close by that time, it was explained. Some 20 or 25 groups of trippers are hoped to be assembled for the next trip.

On the trips every concern of each town visited is called on for suggestions and criticisms as a means of obtaining material to improve the service rendered neighboring communities by the manufacturing and jobbing industries here.

School and College Notes

By HELEN BROODO

Supt. H. D. Fillers has been appointed chairman of a committee of necrology by J. C. Cochran of San Antonio, president of the Texas State Teachers' association.

The committee is to report on members of the state organization who died during the past year, according to Mr. Fillers, at the state teachers' convention to be held at Amarillo in November. Other members of the committee are Supt. A. L. Day of Commerce and W. N. Brown of Sugar Land.

The late Dr. J. W. Cantwell, former superintendent here, and J. G. Wooten, former superintendent at Paris, will receive special mention in the report as former presidents of the state association, Mr. Fillers said.

Attendance Decreases

The fact that there are 651 less children in the public schools of Wichita Falls than there were last school year during the first month was revealed Monday by H. D. Fillers, superintendent of schools.

Mr. Fillers' report showed that there were 651 less children and 19 less teachers in the local public system.

Attendance during the first month of the 1930-31 term was 9,013 as compared to 8,362 during the first month of the 1931-32 term.

Spanish Club Elects

Beverly Calhoun is the new president of the high school Spanish club, when it began yearly activities Monday morning under the supervision of Miss Agnes Zihlman, sponsor. Other officers were elected as follows: Vice president, Carl ten Brink; secretary, Inez Sims; treasurer, Genaro Gonzales; reporter, Ed Peterson. Due to lack of time, the plans for future work were deferred.

Freshmen Meet

Hal Hoffer, KGKO staff pianist, was the musical entertainer on the regular program of the Junior college freshman class, when a large number of freshmen met in the little auditorium Monday morning.

The pianist was introduced by Fred Sehmann, college student connected with the KGKO staff.

George Nelson of the senate invited all the college students to attend the unusual program to be put on by that organization Tuesday night, starting at 7:30. The program will consist of the trial of the impeached president, Herman Porterfield. Although evidence is against the impeached, S. C. Anthony, chairman of the program, stated recently that the accused will probably be acquitted.

Howard Bunch, sponsor of the freshmen, announced the appointment of temporary committees for the class party to be given probably on Oct. 30 at the Elks club. The only committee which had not been announced before is the decoration committee as follows: Sadie Shain, chairman; Margaret Alice Pease, Evelyn Lippard, Willie D. Roye, and Nell Reed.

Sophomore Meeting

Members of the Junior college sophomore class met Monday morning to discuss activities of the future, according to R. O. Jonas, faculty sponsor of the group.

Clubs Reduce Dues

Dues of practically all organizations in both the high school and Junior college have been decreased and in most cases split to make requirements for membership the payment of only 25 cents per semester. As the membership of most of the groups is large, sponsors and treasurers believe that if students desiring to participate in the activities pay their dues promptly, activities can begin without much financial difficulty.

Red Cross Leaders of 22 Counties Hold Regional Meeting Here Today

Officials to Make Plans for Relief Work in Small Towns Of District During Coming Winter

Attendance of at least 150 Red Cross officials of Wichita and surrounding counties was predicted by W. O. Beeman, local chairman, for the regional conference to be held here Tuesday at the Wichita club.

Registrations have greatly exceeded earlier expectations, Mr. Beeman said, and indicate the attendance of large delegations from Dallas, Cottle, Wilbarger and Knox counties. Other territory also will be represented, 22 counties comprising the district for which the conference here has been planned.

Luncheon at Noon

Mrs. W. E. Huff and Mrs. Harry ten Brink will be in charge of the registration of those who attend, it was announced. Mr. Beeman, C. C. Kirby, and other directors of the Wichita county chapter will form a reception committee, according to Miss Pearl Rorabaugh, local nutritionist.

Plans for carrying on relief work in small towns during the ensuing winter will be the major objective of those who will assemble here Tuesday morning. Departing from its usual program of providing relief in disaster cases only, the Red Cross has announced its intention of meeting the emergencies expected in small towns this winter because of no local relief organizations.

Representatives of the national organization scheduled for participation in Tuesday's conference will be Henry M. Baker, director of disaster relief for the mid-western area, and Mrs. Edith Hennessey, field representative for West Texas.

In connection with the luncheon to be given at noon at the Wichita club by the Junior chamber of commerce, it was announced Monday that musical entertainment will be furnished by Hal Hoffer, Phillip Small, and Luther Thurman.

Morning Session

9:30—Registration of delegates.

10:00—Invocation by Rev. L. S. White, pastor of the First Church of Christ, Wichita Falls; welcome address by Mayor Walter Nelson Jr., Wichita Falls; response by Maj. C. W. Connery, Fort Worth, chairman of the Tarrant county chapter; musical number.

10:30—Address, "Red Cross Accomplishments in Texas in 1930 and 1931," Mrs. Hennessey.

10:45—Address, "Practical Methods of Family Relief Work," by Mr. Baker.

General discussion by chapter delegates.

12:15—Luncheon at the Wichita club with Mr. Beeman presiding and Rabbi S. J. Schwab of Temple Israel, Wichita Falls, asking the invocation.

Afternoon Session

1:00—Roll call of chapter delegates.

1:10—Piano solo.

1:15—Address, "Forward Texas," Mr. Baker.

1:45—Round table discussion by chapter delegates and roll call plans and its objectives.

2:30—Adjournment.

Official

H. M. Baker of St. Louis, director of disaster relief for the American Red Cross for the mid-western area, will participate in a regional conference of Red Cross officials representing 22 counties to be held here Tuesday at the Wichita club.

C-C DIRECTORS

The board of directors of the chamber of commerce will hold a regular session Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in the directors' room of the chamber offices. Routine matters will be discussed, it was said.

County Line School Tax Rate Set at $1

Members of the county commissioners court, in their weekly meeting Monday voted to change the tax rate for the Archer County Line rural school from 50 cents to $1.

On Aug. 26 the commissioners set the rate at 50 cents per $100 of property valuation. Monday's order provides for the assessment of 50 cents for maintenance and 50 cents for payment of bonds.

BANKERS MEET FOR CONCLAVE

Dual Purpose Marks Dallas Gathering

DALLAS, Oct. 19. (AP)—Definite points of attack upon economic ills causing business depression prompted earnest discussion tonight among bankers, business men and farmers arriving in Dallas for two statewide conferences tomorrow.

Two programs were foremost in their minds—one aimed at releasing frozen assets of banks outside the federal reserve system, and the other at financing the holding of sufficient cotton from the present market to save cotton prices from further slump.

Nathan Adams, Texas member of the board of directors of the National Credit corporation, formed at the suggestion of President Hoover, returned to Dallas today from the first directors' meeting in New York. He intended to explain the credit plan to a meeting of bankers called by J. W. Fred Hoopes, president of the Texas Bankers' association.

Adams also was expected to address a meeting of farmers, cotton seed oil men, ginners and others, called by C. O. Moser, vice president of the American Cotton Cooperative association.

Adams was expected to explain to the bankers the plan fostered by a meeting of bankers in New Orleans on Oct. 12, when a resolution was adopted calling upon the federal farm board to withhold 3,500,000 bales of its reserve cotton from the present market upon condition that southern bankers would finance the holding of every fourth bale of this year's crop.

Similar meetings were called for tomorrow in other cotton growing states and Adams had received assurance from James C. Stone, chairman of the federal farm board, that the board would stand back of the plan the bankers approved.

Coal is found in almost all parts of Colombia, the resources of its better known regions being estimated at 27,000,000 metric tons.
