High School Work

PRELIMINARY construction work for the building expansion program has gotten underway at Colorado High School. Contracts on all phases of the work were let by the School Board in its last regular session.

Roads Commission Okays Local Route

From Loop To Interstate

Texas Highway Commission approved expenditure of $218,000 in 1967-68 for 1.2 miles of construction to extend State Highway 208 from Loop 377 down the "old Snyder Highway" to Interstate 20.

The rerouting of State 208 was supported by the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce and the City Council to provide shorter driving distance from the loop to Interstate 20.

At this time west or northbound traffic must come through Colorado City in order to connect with the Interstate west or 208 north.

The $218,000 price tag on the project will cover right-of-way purchase, grade construction, structures and surfacing.

The work will be under the supervision of Ben R. Wilkinson, resident engineer for the Texas Highway Department in Colorado City.

This work is part of the 1967-68 Consolidated Highway Program in the amount of $350 million for the two-year period just authorized by the Highway Commission.

Under the program, U. S., State and Loop highways will be constructed or reconstructed. The project includes 9,469 miles of highways.

Purpose of the program is to continue the construction and modernization of the arterial highway system for the protection of investment previously made from highway user tax funds and the immediate benefits that will add to the safe and efficient movement of traffic over the Texas highway system.

For some projects, the acquisition of additional right-of-way will be required. In these cases the affected county or city will be expected to furnish 50 percent of its cost.

C-CITY PLAYHOUSE

Scary Production Thrills Audiences

By RUTH COFFEY

First night audience gave rapt attention to "The Haunting of Hill House," Colorado City Playhouse production of Thursday and Friday evenings in Junior High School auditorium.

"Pin drop" silence of playgoers during the tense scenes was a credit to the performance of the whole cast. So was the sustained applause after the final curtain.

The play had its lighter moments. Don DeLaney, who played Luke Sanderson, had a way with his lines and his stage business which brought him appreciative laughter from the crowd and an extra wave of applause when the cast came back for after curtain bows.

First and last and all through the suspenseful drama, the stage setting, tricky lighting and sound effects played a strong and effective part in the play. Setting and sound were in the "pro" bracket. Porter Richardson and Melbourn Palmer staged the drama.

Playhouse, organized here by a group of amateur theater fans, in 1964, is proving itself play by play.

Colorado City actors, behind scene helpers and the director, Mrs. Gerald Gordon, again proved apt at bringing alive a drama with little plot and not much substance.

"The Haunting of Hill House" was liked by the audience, not because it was a great play to begin with, but because that hard-working amateur cast chose to make of it a dramatic and entertaining performance.

Mary Post was just exactly right as the abrupt and scared housekeeper, Mrs. Dudley. Topper Steakley, good-looking senior student in Colorado High, came across the footlights creditably in his role as Arthur Parker. Rochelle Smith was a standout as Mrs. Montague, particularly in her expressive use of her hands and her distinct stage diction.

Sharon Hammond as Theodora again won a Colorado City audience with her performance. Absolutely at ease on the stage, petite Mrs. Hammond is both young and graceful. As she did in "Bus Stop," she managed to live her role.

Dr. Ralph Graham, the Dr. Montague of the show, had the lion's share of the lines spoken by male members of the cast. His voice, trained for the pulpit, was excellent and he managed to look and act just like the somewhat hen-pecked psychologist he was portraying.

Charlene Birdwell, as Eleanor Vance, neurotic, lonely, frightened, was the hit of the evening. Mrs. Birdwell is too young to be aware of it, but she is blessed with Carla Kimbell Young eyes. The panic in her huge eyes was visible and effective to people watching from the 20th row center. The timbre of her voice and her "stage presence" made her a memorable Eleanor.

The curtain went down on "The Haunting of Hill House" Friday night and left a satisfied audience.

Winter production, planned by Colorado City Playhouse, is to be "Mary, Mary" which is a well-known comedy-drama, widely successful. In the spring, members will present a musical, its first, "The Fantasticks."

Members of the theater group, headed by George Womack as president, invite new members to join Playhouse and welcome inquiries for a part in any phase of the theater's projects, said Womack Saturday.

Nix Tells Reasons Behind Oust Of Baseball

Truman Nix, head coach and atheletic director at Colorado High, has given reasons behind his recent recommendation to the School Board to drop baseball from the athletic program at CHS.

Nix's recommendation won the Board's approval in their regular meeting Nov. 8.

Since that time, a group of local residents have been working and circulating petitions seeking to have the sport reinstated.

At this time it is thought that the group will go before the School Board at their next session to present their case for restoring the diamond sport to the CHS program.

In a Thursday afternoon interview with the RECORD, Nix offered the reasons behind his decision to drop the sport.

High on his list was the fact that no other teams in District 5-AA participate in the sport and the difficulty in scheduling a full slate of games.

Nix explained that most schools played 24 to 30 games during the season.

In 1965 when Colorado High won the regional championship, the local team played ten games plus a pair of playoff tilts.

"There's simply nobody to play," Nix said. "We spent some $50-75 in phone calls trying to set up games last season."

"There were so many days in between some games that it hurt the pride and interest of the team," the coach explained.

In the past season the Wolves were automatic district champs and then defeated Seymour and Alpine for the bi-district and regional crowns.

Nix said, "There's not much pride in winning championships as easy as we did."

Speaking on the sport itself, Nix commented, "I played baseball 23 years and have three sons who love it too. If there was any way we could play and still call it baseball, then I would be the first one to keep it." I love baseball as well as anyone in the world."

The coach explained that the cost of participating in the sport for the next three years would be $5-6,000. Colorado City will be in Class AA for at least that long and it appears no other teams in the district are going to resume the sport.

"The cost is too much for no more than we're getting out of it. I am duty-bound to give the community the best athletic program for their tax money. I feel the same on all sports," Nix said.

The coach went further to explain that primarily AAA and AAAA teams were keeping baseball in their sports program. "The reason we fielded a team in the past season was because we expected to be moved up to AAA next season."

Summer Program

Coach Nix has suggested a summer baseball program to give high school age boys the opportunity to play.

"People who want baseball can do more good by helping and managing these teams (summer league) than by circulating petitions for a program that won't be," Nix said.

The coach in listing other reasons for dropping the sport said that there was small hope of ever getting baseball scholarships in college due to the scant few awarded.

Also, he noted that the baseball season extended through the end of school and created problems with graduation activities.

In making a point of how few AA teams are still playing baseball, Nix said that the district comprised of Alpine, Crane and McCamey was the only one of our class between here and El Paso.

Going east he said that Seymour and Olney were the only teams between here and Fort Worth.

"What's left to do?" Nix asked.

"We have to be realistic and not just look at it from the point of liking to see the sport played," Nix said. "I didn't recommend dropping the sport just because I wanted to—it came after long consideration and deciding it was the only sensible thing to do."

Asked if baseball interfering with the track program had anything to do with its ouster, Nix replied, "We do not try to force anybody to run track or anything else. Track had nothing to do with dropping baseball. It had nothing to do with my decision."

AFTER ONE WEEK

UF Total Makes $7,000 Mark

Mitchell County United Fund collected $7,245.50 in its first week of activity.

The division by division breakdown of totals goes like this:

Employees — $140.
Special gifts — $718.
Branch house — $1,655.
Loraine — $405.50.
General — $316.
Advance — $3,090.
Public employees — $844.50.
Farm and ranch — $64.
Westbrook — $12.50.

The latest figures put the branch house division closest to their quota of $1,700 of which they are only $45. short.

Mrs. Arlene Morris reported from the United Fund headquarters that donations had been "real good" for the last three days of the week.

Campaign Chairman Don Benson strongly urged all UF workers to work their cards as soon as possible.

Benson noted that this year's first week total was a little under that of 1964, but he felt the total would come up if all workers would get busy on their cards.

"By working the cards as soon as possible, it makes for a more successful campaign," Benson added.

effect the dropping of baseball would have on the calibre of our teams should Colorado High go into AAA in three years, Nix said, "If we have a summer program, there will be no effect."

Asked the effects of not having a program of any type, Nix commented, "Even if it hurts, we couldn't justify spending that much money on something that is not a reality."

"People see the games, but not all the work required in order just to play a few," Nix said.

Regarding the summer program, the coach said that Snyder and Sweetwater were in a league last summer and that Colorado City was asked to join. He explained that there had been difficulty getting a coach for any local team.

Nix went on to say that the school had the equipment and that he felt a manager for a team could be found should a summer program be instituted.

"In my own mind there is no doubt about the decision to drop baseball as being correct. It is a false hope to think we can carry on a good program."

"I thought out every possibility. It's just not feasible."

Mr. an Mrs. Richard Clemmer visited the Jimmy Healds in Flower Grove, Sunday.

Mrs. Willie Byrd is in Lubbock this week.

Ruth Coffey's CONVERSATION CORNER

THERE'S never a day dawning so sad and so bad that people who haven't forgotten how to laugh can giggle a little.

One way to brighten the day is to take a glance, if you have time, at the "Dear So-and-So" columns.

They're plumb packed with possibilities for a little mental relaxation. And most of them are funnier than the funnies ever are any more.

SOME HUSBAND, for instance, wrote a note to Helen Bottel who writes a syndicated column for King Features. She calls it "Helen Help Us."

The poor man was all worried to pieces because his wife always buys herself perfumes with terribly "unvirtuous" names like "My Sin".

The habit made him nervous, he claimed, when he asked Mrs. Bottel if she didn't think a good wife should choose a more "virtuous" scent — like "Spring Violets," or something, he said.

LA DE DA, the things people think up to worry about! Take a look on the dressing table of the average good wife and you're liable to find a whole collection of devilish stuff in bottles, jars, tubes, spray cans and fancy boxes.

A perfectly nice woman may go around feeling elegant and smelling like "My Sin . . . Indiscreet . . . Temptation . . . Tabu . . . Toujours Moi (that's just French for Always Me) . . . or Rendezvous, or Intrigue, or Seduction."

All in the world it means is that she'd rather smell devilish than domestic. She'd rather be remembered for the scent of "Midnight Madness" than for the lingering odor of spagetti and meat balls at noon.

NAMES of toilet articles have absolutely nothing to do with virtue.

A woman on her way to a study club or church meeting or party or evening dining out may have something called "Secret" under her arms, "Touch and Glow" on her face, "Kiss Me Red" on her lips, "Scarlet Woman" on her nails, a compact called "Love Pat" in her purse, and "Jealous Heart" lining her eyes.

It really does not prove a thing. Not even that women are kooky. All it proves is that in this dangerous age the MEN who think up names for feminine cosmetics must lie awake nights trying to sell other men's wives products that cost money.

LET you in on a little female secret. If you don't already know it, Mister, it's high time you learned that there's a little bit of the latent hussy in the best woman alive. Virtue may be "its own reward." But "unvirtuous" scents can be strangely rewarding to a weary wife.

Just so long as she indulges herself only with little shopping flings involving black nylon nighties . . . "Interlude" bath oil . . . a drop of "Chase Me" behind her ears . . . and a "Forever Amber" rinse on her hair, she's safe. And so are you.

Besides, saw an article the other day saying that the new scents for masculine cologne now come in lemon and bourbon.

How 'bout that?

FAMILIAR FACES spied at Playhouse opening night were those of Callie Craig (Mrs. Bill) . . . Isabel and Harry Ratliff . . . Steve Birdwell (the Rev.) . . . Irene Graham (Mrs. Ralph) . . . Porter and Anita Richardson, plus his mama Mrs. J. Edd . . . Naomi and Dr. Bill Rhode.

Saw Margaret (Trulock) and Curtis Latimer and their youngest, John Baxter. When the lights dimmed and the stage got spooky, John Baxter landed on his daddy's lap in nothing flat.

SEEN LATELYS, other places, have been the Ivan Barbers and the Berkmans, Elton and Virginia, at lunch together . . . Mallie Lou Wallace and her husband, Rip.

Saw Louise Giesenberger and her father Bert Wulfjen. Did you know that they bought the lovely little house which belonged to the late Mrs. C. L. Root Sr?

(Time right here to say that it was the George Lay Powells who moved to Vine St. And it's the Vic McCabe house they live in — not the Maddox. Life can be slightly confusing when you try to remember what it was somebody was saying three days ago at coffee break.)

OFFICE VISITORS to cheer the staff have been Bobby McMillan, nice pastor of St. Luke Methodist . . . and Carl Lee, likeable pastor at Oak Street Baptist.

Mrs. Jim Nunn dropped in to say that our mutual friends the Bennett Scotts had gone to Dallas.

Cute Freddie Guitar (Mrs. Don) was in on Chamber of Commerce biz. And the cutest group of Girl Scouts you ever saw marched through to see where newspapers get put together.

With them were Nell Harris (Mrs. Hubert) of the L.T.N.S. (long time no see department) Carolyn Shimer Merritt, wife of Joe who is somewhere in Viet Nam . . . Mrs. Sam Tidwell, and Mrs. Johnny Ramsey.

OFF THE CUFF: New announcer for the local radio station sounds like Danny Majors.

The three gorgeous roses on the women's editor's desk — a lush red one as big as a teacup, a snow white one in full bloom and the size of a saucer, and a rare "orchid type" pink one which could cover any pie plate — came from the garden of the Joe Bells.

Elizabeth Elliott (Mrs. Lewis) has a travel-tale to tell about travelers who talk and talk and talk some more. She still laughs about the time somebody loudly disputed her word after having asked her what kind of tree a mesquite tree was!

Ah, wilderness.

BRIEF ENCOUNTERS brought chats with attractive Dora Stansel (Mrs. John) . . . Arlene Morris, the postmaster . . . Mrs. C. P. Gary who was saying there'll be another "living tree" lighted by TB seals sale donors soon now . . . and Rae Ann Carlock (Mrs. Bim.)

Callers by phone, and fun to talk to, have been Carolyn Braswell, wife of Eddie the ASCS man . . . Madge Nichols, wife of Luke the Penney man . . . Mrs. Bobby Hamrick of Plainview Community . . . George Womack . . . and Barbara Girvin, wife of L. S. Jr. (Bunky.)

A Better Community Begins With Christianity

Socialism would lead us to believe that if we change society then the man will change. Christianity teaches us to change the man and society will be better.

Every race is entitled to hear the gospel of Christ and therby be made better. It is a mistake to concentrate upon one group to the neglect of another. The great commission says, "Go . . . teach all nations. . . .

In an effort to comply with this great commission the members of 22nd and Austin Streets Church of Christ are joining hands with the Northside Church of Christ A greater effort is to be made in reaching the Spanish speaking population of our city and county.

The building now vacant, at 5th and Elm Streets will be used as a meeting place for the Iglesia de Christo now meeting on the Snyder highway.

It is believed that this is a step forward for the entire community. There are two reasons for this belief. Firstly, Spiritual development of individuals creates better citizens. Secondly, the building, when in use, will be kept in a better state of repair. The building and grounds will be kept neatly and cleanly. This will add to the beauty of our city.

This means is being used to invite all Spanish-speaking people of the community and surrounding area to attend service in this, your new location. The first meeting will be November 28.

COMMUNICATIONS

Hesperians Hear Paper By Mrs. Ralph Graham

Hesperian Study Club members heard Mrs. Ralph Graham as speaker Friday, Nov 12, when they met in Villa Inn party room with Mrs Bennett Scott, club president as hostess.

Mrs. Graham discussed "Centers of Advancement in Communicative Media," with emphasis on familiar advances, their scope, improvements and significance.

"Communications throw a bridge around the world," the speaker began by saying. "Today, as never before, we are living in a very small world. The Great U.S.A. has done and is doing much to promote understanding among men.

"The paradox of our era is that the closer the world is brought together, the faster it seems to fall apart." Mrs. Graham told the club. "The inventive genius of man has made it possible for the ends of the earth to be reached in minimum time, and the speech and actions of men heard instantly anywhere on the globe. Suddenly we find that all our achievements which we call 'civilization' are in jeopary.

"We must recognize that just conquering time and space in our advancement in communications is not enough. We must work harder to help man to communicate with man by removing ignorance in addition to barriers of language and culture. Then, and only then, can our advancement in communications be a magic channel to global peace," said the speaker.

Mrs. Graham then launched into her account of advances made in the field of communications. Her club discussion follows:

"All the world was witness on July 10, 1962, to the performance of the communications satellite Telstar. They shared the excitement of the new communications supermight-way through space. Telstar, designed by American Telephone and Telegraph's Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc. enabled America and Europe to make test viewings of each other's live television programs in 1962. Telstar was the first in a U. S. series of experimental space stations to relay microwave radio signals.

"Two important advances in printing have resulted from Telstar: images of newspaper pages could be transmitted thousands of miles into space and received back on earth at the rate of a page a minute with a possibility of four pages per minute; 5000 words of copy were transmitted from New York to Paris 1972 times faster than by radio or cable, signals being transmitted into perforated tape would operate type-setting machines. Through electronic typesetting the New York Times published a Los Angeles edition simultaneously with the New York edition at the rate of 1,000 words per minute.

"On Aug. 19, 1964, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration succeeded in placing Syncom III, satelite built by Hughes Aircraft Company, into a nearly perfect orbit over the Equator and then maneuvered it into a stationary position in the pacific, at the International Date Line. Its placement in orbit was more accurate than that of Syncom II. Only three of the Syncom-type satellites are needed for world-wide coverage.

"During the fall of 1964 the Defense Department began to use Syncom II and Syncom III to transmit and receive messages from Saigon, South Vietnam. Portable 15-foot ground stations were designed by Hughes Aircraft for this first combat use of space communications, demonstrating the speed and flexibility of satellite transmission for reaching remote trouble spots. Such satellites are equipped to handle telephone, television, radio, teletype, and photo-facsimile transmissions.

"Advances made by Western Union Telegraph to meet requirements of a combination of voice, teletypewriter, facsimile and data transmission for large business are the Telex and the TelTex. The construction of microwave networks from 1958 to 1963 has been the largest ever undertaken at one time.

"Another advance made by Western Union was the expansion of the Defense Department's AUODIN, the goal of which is the unification of the communications services of the individual branches of the armed forces to enable the president and his advisers to make ecisions in rapidly moving situations.

"Bell Telephone's change to electronic switching will make possible world-wide direct-distance dialing.

"The revolutionary improvements and inventions occuring in communications are almost incredible.

"Many of the values are obvious. Here are some of the outstanding results: Our unity is being strengthened; We are being helped to deal with the problems of our people as aware of them: We are better equipped to present a truer picture of America to ourselves and to the world; We are able to accelerate and increase the efficiency of our efforts for peace; A great contribution is being made to our national security and defense in times of peace and war; The public is better informed than at any time in history; The efficiency of our business techniques is being strengthened. Finally, in its finest sense, communication means the conveying from one generation to the next of the best that was in it.

"Truly, communication throws a bridge around the world and makes us all near neighbors. If we are to make the most of our communications opportunities, we must read, watch, and listen objectively and sympathetically."
