Motor Trouble Causes Question Mark To End Record Flight

FALTERING SHIP FORCED DOWN AFTER 5 DAYS

Army Endurance Craft In Sixth Day's Flying At Close of Feat

UP 150 HOURS PLUS

Left Motor Gives Trouble Which Causes Landing At Starting Point

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 7 (UP)—Motor trouble put a period at the end of the world's greatest endurance flight today when the army's monoplane Question Mark was forced to land at Van Nuys field after nearly a full week of continuous cruising over San Fernando valley and along a route between here and San Diego.

The plane's crew of five men brought her to earth at 2:07:01 o'clock on the afternoon of the sixth day since she took off on a test that broke all records for sustained flight and refueling in mid-air.

Men vs. Machines

It was an endurance contest between men and machines. The unique name of the craft had come to stand for the uncertainty as to which would prevail. In the end five men won the contest, the mechanism of the three-motored plane failing on the eve of the seventh night of flying.

Taking the air on New Year's morning at 7:28:46 o'clock, the Question Mark was in the air just 19 minutes and 44 seconds short of 151 hours, an official sustained flight record for all types of aircraft.

The members of the crew, Major Carl Spatz, Lieutenants Quesada and Halverson, Captain Baker and Sergeant Hooe, showed no serious effects of their long grind.

The official time was figured at 150 hours, 40 minutes and 16 seconds by checkers at Van Nuys airport.

Left Motor Fails

The left motor had failed completely and the right engine developed trouble, about 2 p. m., as the plane soared above the airport. A crowd of several hundred persons witnessed the faltering craft start gliding. At that time it was about 2,000 feet high.

It came down in a graceful sweep.

Guarded Conversation Causes Pair's Arrest

DALLAS, Jan. 7 (AP)—Two men, one of whom police believe shot and killed William Mann, 18, here last night, were arrested today.

Flu Epidemic Waning Here, Reports Show

Schools Announce Better Attendance, While Physicians Say Number of Cases Declining Rapidly in City

Influenza cases in Wichita Falls are decreasing in number, with indications that the peak of the epidemic here is well past, according to reports received Monday by The Record News from leading physicians and school authorities.

Attendance at city grade schools has shown a small increase over low figures of last week, Dr. J. W. Cantwell, city superintendent, told The Record News, and apparently classes should soon reach their normal attendance. Dean S. H. Rider of Junior college also commented on the marked improvement in attendance there, and said "conditions are much better."

New Cases Decline

From the peak at which more than 2,000 cases of influenza were estimated here, physicians said Monday there has been a sharp decline, with fewer new cases and satisfactory progress being made in most cases previously under treatment. Clear cold weather has materially aided in the fight against the epidemic, it was said.

Dr. M. A. Beckman, county physician who expressed fear a week ago that closing of schools would be necessary, said Monday he had noted a steady decline in the number of cases under his personal supervision. Dr. Beckman will make a tour of the county today to secure information on the progress of the epidemic. All other physicians called by The Record News reported a decrease in the number of new cases, and expressed the belief that the epidemic here will shortly pass.

Attendance Improves

Burl Bryant, county superintendent of schools, had received no new reports Monday, he said, but declared he would make a canvass of county institutions Tuesday. Three county schools have been closed because of the epidemic, but others have continued classes, while no suspensions apparently will now be necessary in the city.

A small increase in Sunday school attendance was noted Sunday, while other organizations reported better attendance as the week opened.

W. A. Baber Home Wrecked in Fire With $2,000 Loss

Fire of unknown origin caused damage estimated at $2,000 to the house and furnishings of W. A. Baber, 1911 Eighth street, about 8 o'clock Monday night.

Mr. Baber and a score of relatives and friends who had returned only a short time previously from funeral services for Mrs. Baber were seated in the living room of the home, according to reports given, when the fire was detected at the rear. The sleeping porch at the back of the house was in flames. Hose companies from Central, No. 2 and No. 4 fire stations responded to the alarm, and succeeded in restricting the flames to the rear portion of the house. Much of the furniture had been removed during early stages of the fire, preventing a much greater damage. The building was badly damaged.

RICKARD WILL LIE IN 'GARDEN'

Body of Promoter Goes To Famous Arena

NEW YORK, Jan. 7. (UP)—The body of Tex Rickard is to lie in state in Madison Square garden, the monumental sports arena his genius made possible.

A change of plans, agreed to by Mrs. Rickard this afternoon as the fast express bearing her husband's flower-strewn coffin sped northward, will permit the public to pay its last respects to the late promoter within the $5,000,000 building which stands as a testimonial to Tex' success.

Garden Opens Wednesday

The public will not be admitted until Wednesday morning, however, although the "Havana special" of the Florida East Coast line, bringing the body to this city, is due at 10:19 a. m. Tuesday.

After the public has been permitted to file past Rickard's coffin from 10 a. m. until 1:30 p. m. on Wednesday, private funeral services will be held in the garden, attended by close friends and associates of the promoter.

Instead of in the ornate chapel of Frank Campbell's funeral parlors, therefore, Tex is to be honored as he probably would have wished, in the vast arena erected for him after he had successfully raised professional boxing from an underworld "racket" to a respectable and highly profitable business.

Face to Be Missed

When the crowds storm the entrances of the big garden on Wednesday for a last glimpse of the dead promoter and a last prayer for him on his greatest adventure, it will seem strange to miss that unobtrusive, almost furtive figure who used to stand smoking his cigar in the shadows, estimating the attendance with a gratified smile wrinkling his bronzed features. It will seem strange that Tex isn't there, leaning on his cane, shifting his cigar rapidly and chuckling:

"Greatest lot of people I ever saw. Never saw anything like it."

BURNS UNDER CAR

Senator Stevenson For Lateral Road Funds

AUSTIN, Jan. 7 (AP)—Lateral county roads should receive some of the revenue from the gasoline tax as well as the "cardinal" highways, Senator J. W. Stevenson of Victoria, stated today in declaring his intention to draw a highway bill incorporating this feature.

"I am going to give considerable of my time to highway legislation and I shall do my best to convert the senate to my belief that it is important to give a little help to the lateral roads," Senator Stevenson said.

Review of Tulsa Zone Ordinance Is Refused

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7. (AP)—The supreme court refused today to pass on the validity of the zoning ordinance of Tulsa, Okla., passed in 1923. It was challenged by Raymond J. Delano of Kansas City, Mo., as the owner of land at Elwood avenue and Riverside drive, on which he wanted to erect an apartment house in a restricted residential district.

COUNCIL HEARS PLEA FOR 7C CARFARE HERE

Traction Company Asks Hike in Rates to Maintain Present Service

DATA PRESENTED

Trolley Head Agrees To Maintain Trackage On Paved Streets

Increase of street car fares from six to seven cents is asked in a petition laid before the city council by L. L. Allbritton, manager of the Wichita Falls Traction company, Monday night.

The seven cent fare is necessary for the maintenance of present service, Mr. Allbritton told the council. Street cars now operating on a 10 or 12 minute schedule must drop back to a 15 or 20 minute system unless the company can be put on a more profitable basis, the manager declared. He gave the names of Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana cities which have been granted fares of from 7 to 10 cents.

Maintenance Agreed

By the terms of the proposed ordinance granting the increase, the company agrees to maintain the spaces between the tracks on paved as well as on unpaved streets. Proper reductions for half fares are to be provided if the increase is allowed, the petition adds. Seven cent fares obtain in New Orleans, Dallas, Texarkana and El Paso, according to data presented the council. Tulsa, Okla., has an eight cent far and Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston and Galveston companies collect 10 cents for each passenger, the statistics show.

An appeal for a similar increase was denied by the council after an investigation by a special commission 15 months ago.

Doctors Re-Named

The council unanimously voted the re-appointment of Dr. C. R. Harlsook and H. L. Hunter as members of the hospital board. The county commissioners appoint two of the remaining three members, and the city and county bodies jointly appoint the fifth.

A contract with the Acme Brick company, allowing the city to dump waste material in a hole on the company's premises just north of the brick plant on the Petrolia road was approved at the meeting Monday night. The council also passed on its first reading an ordinance forbidding the washing of any vehicle on the streets, sidewalks or alleys. A correction in the present building ordinance, providing that the city engineer rather than the city clerk shall issue a permit for the moving of buildings, was passed on its first reading.

Congratulations Clutter Office Of Dan Moody Sr.

AUSTIN, Jan. 7 (AP)—The governor's office was piled today with telegrams of congratulation on the arrival last night of Dan Moody Jr., the first born child of Governor and Mrs. Dan Moody.

Mark Wigington, one of the secretaries to the governor, estimated that these messages numbered between two and three hundred. They came from Texas and many other states.

As a topic of discussion in crowded hotel lobbies and in Texas' "White House," the fact that the state's chief executive now was a father was second in importance only to speculation concerning the outcome of the contest for the speakership of the house of representatives.

WITCH TRIAL DISGUSTS CITY

Cigar Metropolis Seeks To Protect Fair Name

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY

YORK, Pa., Jan. 7. (UP)—This prosperous Pennsylvania town which would so much rather be known for its cigar factories than for its black magic, fought hard all day today against the witches which were hovering around its handsome courthouse. But it lost the fight in a final crushing hour of the first day's session of the trial of John Blymyer, tall, pasty-faced, sharp-nosed, tiny-eyed master of witchcraft, for the murder of Nelson Rehmeyer, himself a dabbler in the supernatural.

York was determined that it was not to be advertised to the world as the witch's den of America and to that end it developed not long after the Blymyer trial opened today, that the state had determined to make robbery the motive and to leave out all mention of witchcraft if possible in its attempts to prove Blymyer a murderer. Things moved swiftly.

Jury Completed

Blymyer, John Curry and Wilbert Hess were indicted in 20 minutes by the grand jury. Promptly at 11 a. m. the work of getting a jury began and on the stroke of 3:40 p. m. the last of 12 substantial citizens of more than middle age, largely of German descent, and one 25 years old were sworn in as the jury. Women do not serve on jury panels here.

Until that moment York was on top in its battle to keep the witchs all well exercised and not a sign of a broomstick rider had been seen. But then things began to happen. Amos Herrmann, broad shouldered district attorney who feared no man but was very nervous over magic at that particular time, in a thoroughly disinterested

New Wichita Grand Jury Opens Investigation of Robberies Here

26 Witnesses Questioned During First Day of Activity; Two Judges Deliver Charge

Instructed to give special attention to the numerous holdups and robberies reported here recently, the 30th district grand jury Monday afternono plunged into its work of investigation, considering the evidence in 15 cases before the end of the first day's work.

Twenty-six witnesses for the state had been questioned when the body adjourned for the day. In most instances the cases involved defendants already held under complaints filed in the office of District Attorney Sam B. Spence. Quick action is expected in the investigation of a stabbing affray in Burkburnett Sunday night. Evidence collected by the district attorney's office is being passed immediately into the hands of the grand jury. The first report of the grand jury is expected toward the end of the week.

Judge P. A. Martin and Judge Allan Montgomery jointly charged the group after its impaneling Monday morning.

Judge Montgomery, acting individually in his official capacity for the first time, instructed the jury first according to the statutory requirements, then called its attention especially to the large number of holdups and highway robberies reported in Wichita county within the last few weeks. He suggested immediate arrest and punishment as the most effective check to such conditions.

Judge Martin's charge was concerned with the handling of the witnesses to be presented the body and ended with a plea for great care in returning indictments.

Jury Members Named

It was necessary to send for additional men before the jury could be impaneled, half of the original venire of 16 jurors having been absent on account of illness. Will Daniel was made foreman. Other members include: Tom Corriden and W. L. Hodges of Iowa Park, W. S. Duvall of Burkburnett, W. D. Cross, E. V. Haltom and H. A. Decker of Electra, and J. S. Bridwell, J. D. Cooper, F. P. Cullum, J. L. Jackson and W. R. Duke of Wichita Falls.

Big Game Huntress' Husband to Appear In Shooting Trial

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—Dallett H. Wilson, a lawyer, who was shot and seriously wounded, last March 29, promised in general sessions court today that he would be present on Jan. 18 when his wife, Esther Evans Wilson, big game hunter, is brought to trial charged with the shooting. Wilson said, however, that he had "no desire to appear as a willing aid to this prosecution."

Wilson's promise was made during the arraignment of Mrs. Wilson, who was continued under $10,000 bond.

"If I am called as a witness," Wilson said, "I will tell the truth, although reluctantly."

Burke Returns From Airway Conference

Andy Burke, chief pilot of the Municipal airport and one of the incorporators of the Lone Star Aviation company, returned Monday from Oklahoma City, where he conferred with officials of the chamber of commerce of that city relative to the proposed Oklahoma City-Wichita Falls-San Angelo airline, tentatively announced a few weeks ago to open about Jan. 15.

According to Mr. Burke, officials of the chamber of commerce at Oklahoma City were enthusiastic in their response to the airline plans.

WEEKS OPENS FARM PROGRAM HERE TODAY

Colonization Expert to Tour State as Sales Campaign Starts

1,000 INQUIRIES LISTED

Organization for Valley Development Ready To Start Work

General offices will be opened in the City National Bank building and a field sales office near the Westmoreland Park swimming pool Tuesday for the beginning of actual work of colonization of Wichita valley irrigated lands, according to Charles Weeks, California colonization expert, who arrived in the city Monday night, accompanied by James Yeths, general sales and development manager, and Miss Jane Yeths, office secretary.

Speaking Tour

Immediately after the completion of office organization here, Mr. Weeks will depart on a lecture tour which will include practically the entire state of Texas and will require from 30 to 60 days, it was announced. Mr. Weeks' lectures will be delivered in the principal cities of the state, he said, with the object of acquainting the people of Texas as far as possible with the project which is now under way in this community. After completing his tour of Texas, Mr. Weeks said, the extensive publicity campaign which he has carried on during the last three months in the interest of the colonization plan here will be supplemented by further speaking engagements in various northern states.

Approximately 2,000 acres of land lying south and west of the Westmoreland Park pool are included at present in the territory which Mr. Weeks contracted several weeks ago to colonize. According to the contract, colonization is to be completed within five years. The land is divided into units of two-thirds acres each. Purchasers may buy the minimum of one such unit, or any number of such continuous blocks, it was said.

Construction of a model small farm will begin at once, according to Mr. Weeks, in order that it may be available for demonstration to prospective colonists, more than a thousand of whom already have made definite inquiries relative to securing land in the area now under development. A small, attrac-

AUSTIN, Jan. 7 (AP)—Immediate repeal of the acts of the 1925 legislature which required the commissioner of the general land office, "when there is land in demand," to sell oil and gas leases not less than once each month after due advertisement, is advocated by Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston.

Senator Holbrook said he is convinced the best interests of the university would be subserved by withdrawing the lands from the market.

SOLONS TAKE SERIOUS VIEW

Barry Miller Starts Move To Tackle Problems

AUSTIN, Jan. 7. (AP)—A strong tendency of state legislators to make the 41st session, opening at noon tomorrow a "business matter" was noted here today. How long this resolution will survive is problematical.

Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller on his arrival today put his foot down on all talk of letting the appropriation bills rock along with the expectation that they can be given attention in a special session to follow the regular term next spring.

Action on Funds

He said positively that the money bills, based on recommendations of the board of control and representing more than $48,000,000 in appropriations to run the state for the next biennium, would be introduced soon after the senate convenes tomorrow.

Senator Tomas G. Pollard of Tyler, scheduled to become chairman of the senate finance committee, has the bills prepared and ready to go into the hopper. He has been in conference with departmental heads on items over which there is likely to be committee dispute and believes he has put them in shape to avoid delay in hearings.

Solons Impatient

With practically all members of the senate and house in town and impatient for the "long grind" to start, both houses will convene at noon tomorrow.

Interest in the race for the powerful house presiding officer's place is keen with W. R. Montgomery of Edinburg, and W. R. Barron of Bryan apparently going to the vote-counting stage with the result in doubt.

In the senate, Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman and Senator Gus Russek of Schulenberg, have been put forward as candidates for president pro tem.

Senate Caucus Today

Senator Archie Parr of Duval county, by reason of his seniority of service, will preside over the senate caucus, called for tomorrow morning, when officers of the senate will be chosen.

Several senators and a number of house members contend that the appropriation bills, which Lieut. Gov. Miller will attempt to have passed during the regular session, cannot possibly get attention until a special session.

Governor Moody several weeks ago announced that he had decided that the money bills best could be considered at a special session and that he had ascertained that a majority of the legislators prefered this plan in order to be free to get off legislation during the regular session.

Pryor Seeks Recovery Of Forfeited Bond

A motion to set aside the $1,500 bond forfeiture ordered against Ed Pryor by former Judge E. G. Thornton in December will be heard before Judge P. A. Martin at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Pryor's bond was forfeited when he failed to appear for trial on burglarly charges when his case was first called. He was later brought into court on a stretcher, ill from injuries received in a fall from an automobile, according to the testimony.

Three Arrested, Loot in Benjamin Robberies Recovered by Police

Within 30 minutes from the time when they were given information Monday night of a series of burglaries in Benjamin, on Sunday night, local police arrested three men suspected of having committed the offenses and had recovered a portion of the stolen goods, according to information given by Night Chief J. E. Glenn.

Williams' Barber and Tailor shop at Benjamin was broken into and robbed of a large number of barbers' tools and about $700 worth of clothing Sunday night. It was said, following which a filling station in the same neighborhood was robbed of a quantity of oil and a spare tire was taken from a Benjamin physician's automobile.

Two Benjamin officers, accompanied by an employe of the tailor shop, arrived in Wichita Falls late Monday night and reported the robbery to local police. Officers W. S. Johnson and P. W. Timmons located the three suspects in a cafe, and immediately following the arrest, recovered a considerable portion of the loot.

Signed statement were secured from the three men.

Death of Lawyer's Mother Causes Postponement of McCloskey's Trial

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 7 (AP)—Death interfered today with the opening of the criminal trial of Augustus J. McCloskey, congressman-elect from the 14th Texas district.

The trial to determine whether as county judge, he altered returns of the Nov. 6 election was postponed until Wednesday.

The two days' delay was caused by the death last night, at Goliad, of the mother of Wayne Davis, member of defense counsel.

Both sides were ready for the opening of the trial when the death of Mr. Davis' mother was announced.

The prosecution declined to reveal which of the several indictment it would elect to go to trial upon, but McCloskey was charged in general with changing returns from 17 Bexar county (San Antonio) precincts to show that he was victor by 627 votes over Harry M. Wurzbach of Seguin, Texas' only Republican congressman.

On the other hand, there were indications, but no definite statement, that the defense would demand that the McCloskey indictments be quashed. It was pointed out that since enactment of the present Texas election law there was no precedent for a standardized indictment in such cases.

Congressman-elect McCloskey expressed himself, however, as anxious for a trial by jury.

G. T. AND W. TO CARRY LINE TO PADUCAH

Charter Amendment Paves Way for Expansion Of West Texas System

FRISCO OWNS ROAD

First Step Taken to Gain Q. A. and P. Connection Near Paducah

First official approval of a new program of rail extension to serve towns in Northwest Texas was given at Austin Monday when the attorney general authorized the Gulf, Texas and Western Railway company to make an extension of 71 miles from Seymour, Baylor county, to Paducah in Cottle county, by amendment to its state charter.

The application was filed by W. Frank Knox Jr. of Dallas, president of the company, according to Associated Press dispatches to The Record News. The proposed extension, which has been under discussion for some time, follows closely the opening of the great South Plains extension of the Fort Worth and Denver railway. The approval of the charter change by the attorney general paves the way for the securing of interstate commerce commission approval of the project, the Associated Press said.

The extension would be from a point on the main line at Seymour in a northwesterly direction through Baylor, Knox and Foard counties into Cottle county to a connection point with the Quanah, Acme and Pacific railway at a point at or near Paducah.

Following the approval of the charter change, it will be necessary for the road to secure its certificates of public convenience before proceeding with the extension, Frank Kell explained to The Record News Monday night. The Gulf, Texas and Western was purchased by the Frisco lines some time ago, Mr. Kell said, which makes it possible for the company to proceed with its plans for expansion, with the backing of one of the nation's major rail systems. Mr. Knox previously has been receiver for the company, it was stated.

IRON HAND IN JUGO'S STRIFE

King Alexander Takes Command of Government

BELGRADE, Jugo Slavia, Jan. 7. (UP)—Assuming a dictatorial attitude over his faction torn kingdom after suspending the constitution dissolving parliament and instituting a military cabinet, King Alexander today stood ready to solve his problems with an iron hand.

In a royal degree, the king made known that all efforts to bring harmony and co-operation between the parties of the triple kingdom of the Serbs, the Croats and the Slovenes had failed and that he saw no possibility in further pursuing the conciliatory attitude of "guaranteeing the preservation of the national unity."

After announcing the official personnel of the cabinet, a decree making clear the king's stand was published, saying that the new members of the cabinet are "responsible only to the king."

The first law promulgated by royal decree after suspension of the constitution, a law for the protection of the state, provides for the dissolution of all political parties with special denomination or separate national platform and empowers the police to deport "persons endangering public order."

Texas Solons to Be Seated in House According to Eyes and Ears

AUSTIN, Jan. 7. (AP)—The deaf, near deaf, blind and near blind members of the house of representatives will be given first choice in the designation of desks in the hall.

Desks will be allotted after the house convenes Tuesday noon. After those who do not hear or see well have selected their desks, the others will draw for their seats. Numbers will be placed in a hat.

Many of the members were in the hall Monday in an effort to get "orientated."

The old members of the house will find the floor covered with a new $7,000 carpet, authorized by appropriation at the last session.

Loud speakers have been installed in the hall. During the 40th session these were not put in until after the session was several weeks old and there was constant interruption of speakers by members who complained they could not hear.

White House Not Only to Have New Tenants but Young Blood as Well

By FULTON LEWIS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7. (US)—A boisterous return of youth, after a sombre quietude of 16 years, is in prospect for the White House this spring when new tenants, moving in on or about March 1, bring with them a 21-year-old son, fresh from college and a regular fellow.

Allan Hoover, youngest child of the president-elect and Mrs. Hoover, probably will not be a member of the household from the start, for he still has half a year to finish at Leland Stanford university in California, but he is due in Washington, armed with a sheepskin early in June and from that time on the executive mansion should be a very different place.

Not since the days of Theodore Roosevelt and his famous "kennis cabinet" has the white palace at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue been much more than an austere town house. In Taft's administration there was a young daughter, Helen, but she entertained little and Woodrow Wilson's daughters, who followed, were of more advanced ages. John Coolidge, son of the present regime, has been away at college most of the time his father has been in office, and even when he was at home, he kept largely to himself.

But with Allan Hoover, things are quite different.

Where John Coolidge is shy and reticent, Allan has definite and positive presence. Where John chose to stay in his room and read, Allan prefers the company of friends. And where John was busy falling in love with one girl, Allan is free, and 21, and so far as is known, with no entangling alliances.

As far as ultimate ambitions are concerned, he intends eventually to take up the profession of his father, engineering. His course at Leland Stanford was planned with this in view, and at some later date he intends to take an engineering course at some eastern university, possibly Massachusetts Tech., but future possibilities do not bind him down too heavily to enjoy life at the present.

Castaway's Note Submitted to U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7. (AP)—An unusual message—reminiscent of Robinson Crusoe—picked up in a sealed bottle on the German coast of the North sea last October has been submitted to the state department by the German embassy in an effort to secure information about its writer.

The message, difficult to read, has been deciphered as:

"Help, help, I, Cranston Marshall, am on an island 45 degrees latitude, 60 degrees longitude. Only wild goats and (?) to eat. Cranston Marshall."

German authorities said the message does not show whether north or south latitude is meant but the former intersection would lie in the vicinity of the Canadian coast. The message first was handed the Canadian government which stated it had been unable to ascertain anything definite relative to the sender.

CHINESE WASH MEN ON STRIKE

But New Soap Relieves Frisco's Tension

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7. (AP)—Many boiled shirt parties programmed for San Francisco may be compelled to turn very informal if a threatened strike of Chinese laundry workers is carried out.

These workers, numbering some hundreds and used by some thousands of citizens, announced today they wanted an 11-hour day instead of the 15 they have been working and Saturday afternoons off. The workers are members of the Sei Sok Chinese Laundry Workers association.

They want an answer to their demands by Jan. 11.

Meanwhile, its an ill wind that blows no soap bubbles. The same papers that carried the announcement of the strike threat carried a story of a new synthetic soap invented by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nichols, San Francisco chemists.

This soap, its inventors claim, does the work of a washing machine and a scrub brush. All one has to do if one is bathing is throw in some soap and sit still. In a few minutes one is clean.

But it won't do the ironing.

Cardinal Tosi's Death Creates Situation

ROME, Jan. 7. (AP)—An unprecedented situation in the Sacred college was created today by the death of Cardinal Tosi, archbishop of Milan. For the first time since the so-called Babylonian captivity (when the popes lived at Avignon in the 14th century) the Italian cardinals are in a minority of four.

There are now 29 Italian cardinals, 33 others and 8 vacancies. This makes it practically certain that the pope will bestow several red hats at the spring consistory.

Bartlesville, Okla., Holds Negro for Texas Slaying

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Jan. 7 (AP)—A negro, arrested when officers were informed he had changed his name, was being held here today for return to Bell county, Texas, as a suspect in the slaying of a deputy sheriff 15 years ago.

The negro, booked as William Maxwell, alias Walter Mathis, told officers the Texas officer was killed by a relative of his who also was known as Walter Mathis.

Mellon's Million Buys a Raphael

LONDON, Jan. 7. (US)—The last privately owned authentic Raphael in England has been bought by Andrew W. Mellon for the record price of $1,000,000.

The sale, which is announced in this morning's Daily Mail represents a profit of $125,000 for its owner, Sir Joseph Duveen, who purchased it from Lady Desborough for $875,000—at that time a world record price for a single picture.

The picture measures 30½x22 inches. It bears Raphael's signature dated 1508. It was brought out of Corpisini palace about 1780 by the third Earl of Cowper who smuggled it out of Florence in the lining of his coach.

Sir Joseph took the picture to America in October, 1928.

Parachute Jumper Lands in Ocean

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Jan. 7. (AP)—Search for James Young, parachute jumper who fell in the ocean near Carpintria yesterday, was resumed today. Three airplanes swept over the beach and carried the search far out to sea.

Young jumped from a plane above the Carpintria airport and was blown half a mile to sea in his 3,000-foot drop. Hampered by heavy garments he was thought to have had no chance to swim ashore.

Police started an immediate search for the Santa Monican. An all night patrol of the beach proved fruitless, as did a hastily organized air search, which had to be abandoned on account of darkness.

TEE-TOTALERS ARE BIG NEED

Author-Pastor Has Plan for Law Enforcement

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 7. (US)—Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, author of the once famous novel, "In His Steps," now has joined the ranks of those who have plans for enforcing prohibition. His plan is simple—it is merely to get drinkers to take the pledge to become tee-totalers.

"We have been hammering away at the bootlegger long enough," said Dr. Sheldon. "Now is the time to start on the man who drinks. The real reason for present chaotic liquor conditions is not the bootlegger, but the American citizen who buys and drinks what the bootlegger makes and sells.

"We have neglected to try to persuade the man who drinks to observe the law. The drinkers, for the most part, are good citizens. They will cooperate in a law enforcement movement by proper coaching."

Sunday, Dr. Sheldon, in the pulpit of the church he once occupied here, the Central Congregational, launched his tee-totaler campaign, which he hopes will become nationwide. Like the minister in the novel "In His Steps," who electrified his congregation by asking them to pledge themselves to live literally as Jesus would have lived had He been in their positions, Dr. Sheldon will put the proposition of being liquor tee-totalers directly up to all American citizens and to professing Christians particularly.

He will ask all members of the congregations he addresses to sign total abstinence pledges. He will also ask such a pledge from Clyde M. Reed, governor-elect of Kansas who was selected on a dry platform and who has announced he will eliminate legislative booze parties at the state capital and make the state dry from border to border.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO FLU

Coughs from Flu May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

What about the FLU ?

HAVE you had it? Are you going to have it? What are you doing to prevent it?

Everybody is asking these questions just now.

Doctors say to keep out of crowds; be cheerful; eat good food; get plenty of sleep; keep the bowels open.

At the first sign of constipation, take a dose of Thedford's BLACK-DRAUGHT.

At the first sign of Flu, that is, when you begin to have a little temperature and feel like you are taking cold, go to bed and call your doctor. You can not cure the Flu on your feet.

Prevention, as everyone knows, is better than cure. One of the best ways to prevent catching a cold which might develop into the Flu, is to keep your system free from impurities by using Thedford's

7 ways to fight flu

1 Keep out of crowds all you can.
2 Remove germs from hands as often as possible.
3 Get plenty of rest, sleep, exercise, fresh air and nourishing food.
4 Avoid exposure to chill and wet, especially when tired.
5 Fortify yourself against the flu by having a health examination.
6 If you have the real flu don't take "home remedies"—call a doctor.
7 Be careful in convalescence. It's a danger period.

A little horseplay in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Brand

Years without sickness in the Brand family

"And we owe much to Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather for our splendid health," says Mr. Fred A. Brand

"It certainly was a lucky day for my family when we started using Lifebuoy," says Mr. Fred Brand, father of three vigorous and radiantly healthy children.

"It's years now since we've had any sickness at all in our home, and we owe much to Lifebuoy for our splendid health.

"I have tried many different toilet soaps, but for a real, honest-to-goodness kick—for lots of cleansing lather that leaves me fresh and full of pep—give me Lifebuoy every time.

"My wife says it's marvelous for the skin, too. But her real reason for training the youngsters to use Lifebuoy is because it guards health. We have three children—Joseph, Frederick and Florence—and I'm sure that their busy little hands, touching books, playthings, etc., must come in contact with germs many times a day. We'd never feel safe if they didn't use an antiseptic toilet soap." Mr. Fred A. Brand, 17 Crescent Terrace, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Germs all around—beware!

Mr. Brand's letter is typical of many we could quote to show you how Lifebuoy is helping thousands all over the country to guard family health.

In your home, too, health protection is necessary. Remember that your hands, your children's hands, are constantly touching things that others may have handled and left germ-laden—such as money, carstraps, telephones. It's safer for every member of your family always to use this gentle, antiseptic toilet soap—its purifying lather removes germs. Keeps skin clear and healthy, too, prevents chapping.

Your family has to wash with some toilet soap anyway, so why not use Lifebuoy which gives added health protection—at no extra cost? You'll quickly learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant extra-clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse. Adopt the Lifebuoy habit today. LEVER BROS. CO., Cambridge, Mass.

You've never seen two sturdier, livelier boys than Frederick and Joseph Brand—and one big secret of their health is Lifebuoy!

QUESTION MARK FORCED DOWN

Record Flight Halted By Motor Trouble

The crowd unloosed its admiration, pressing forward eagerly. The plane was surrounded. Cameras clicked.

Perfect Landing

The crew, deafened and their faces covered with whiskers, climbed out, touching ground for the first time in more than six days. The landing had been perfect. Rules governing endurance flights provided that it end where it started.

The ground crews yelled "ice cream" loud enough for Lieutenant Quesada to understand. Throughout the long flight Quesada kept calling for ice cream with every meal.

An orderly came dashing into the group with a dress suit for Sergeant Hooe, who furnished the comedy relief for the crew members.

Sergeant Hooe used sign language to indicate he understood and did an awkward jig to indicate he would be ready for any banquets and dances tonight.

The members of the crew almost were manhandled getting into the automobile but they took it good-naturedly.

"Glad We're Down"

Sergeant Hooe confided in a yell that rose above the general shouting that "we'd like to have stayed up longer but we are damn glad to be down."

The Question Mark, in the middle of the field, was covered with oil and grease.

An offer of a ground mechanic to take care of the plane met with rebuff from Sergeant Hooe, mechanic on the trip.

"No, sir," Sergeant Hooe said, "I thank you, I took care of her in the air and I'll take care of her on the ground."

Sergeant Hooe was dragged away from the ship and pushed into the limousine.

"You don't understand, sergeant," a ground crew man said. "You can't work on that plane now because you've got to do a dance tonight."

Joe Nikrant, the N. A. A. checker, climbed into the plane as soon as it landed and removed both barographs.

Major Spatz said:

"Well, we landed but we could take off right away again if we had to."

Stork Leads Old Man With Scythe By Margin of 352 in 1928

The annual marathon between the deceptive stork and the long-haired old man with the scythe showed the bird with an advantage of 352 over the ancient reaper, for the year 1928, in Wichita Falls, according to figures given by the city officials Monday.

The total number of births reported for the last 12 months was given as 1049, as against 697 reported deaths in the city during the same period. It was said that the figures were almost identical with those of 1927.

Anticipated Rush on Rich Diamond Field Fails to Materialize

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Jan. 7. (UP)—At a great mass meeting in Port Nolloth, Cape Colony today, thousands of discontented diamond diggers failed to make an anticipated decision to rush the fabulously rich Namaqualand field.

The meeting was orderly and a deputation was appointed to ask the cabinet to open a portion of the field to public claims.

Earlier reports from Port Nolloth said the diggers were determined to pass a vote to charge the field and break down the barbed wire barriers around it with motor trucks. The government sent several hundred police to protect the field with machine guns.

The Namaqualand field, described as one of the greatest "Eldorados" in history, is producing from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 worth of diamonds weekly now, it was reported.

Witchcraft Trial City Indignant

fashion told the jury in his opening statement that he would prove Blymyer guilty of murder.

Case Outlined

He outlined his case in some detail, promising to prove that Blymyer bought the rope with which Rehmyer had been trussed up after being beaten into unconsciousness and how Blymyer allegedly wanted to return Thanksgiving night to the scene of the murder and burn down the Rehmyeyer house.

But so careful was Herrmann to delete from his statement any reference to the lock of hair which Blymyer, Curry and Wilbert Hess had intended to pluck from Rehmeyer's head and bury eight feet deep back of the Hess hen house as symbolical destruction of one who had cast a witches' spell over the Hess family and possessions that he forgot to name a motive for the murder.

Herbert Cohen, defense attorney, was about to call his case won, when the court asked Herrmann if there were a motive for the crime.

"Oh yes," he said, "in the stress of all the excitement I overlooked that. I will prove that there had been a sum of money in the house and that it was taken and divided among the three accused men." That satisfied the legal requirements and the witches had been kept out by just that narrow margin.

Brother Testifies

Things went better then, until Clayton Hess, brother of Wilbert and member of the Hess family which had engaged Blymyer to raise the spell they thought Rehmeyer had cast over them, was called as the last witness of the day. Clayton, a tall, rangy lad of about 20, redfaced, with a shock of brown hair, and with a bit of antogonism in his voice, admitted he drove Blymyer, Curry and his brother Wilbert Hess to a spot in the woods near the Rehmeyer home.

That was the Tuesday before Thanksgiving, and the night of the murder. Thanksgiving night Blymyer came to see him.

"He wanted me to drive out and see if the Rehmeyer house had burned down," Clayton said. "He said that if it had not he was going to burn it down. He said, too, that he had got the man and he said a name."

"Name" Is Bared

Said a name?" queried the district attorney.

"Yes, he said he got the man and he said a name," answered Clayton.

"What was the name?" asked the inquisitive district attorney.

"Shall I say the word?" asked the cautious willard.

Spectators got ready to blush as the district attorney told him to go ahead and say it right out loud.

"Well, he said he got the witch," said Clayton.

Ring then and there the district attorney indicated he was willing to adjourn court for the night and he retired quickly from the scene, leaving the courtroom to the witches, the Hob Goblin and all the kindred things which York does not care to have people talk so much about.

Doctors Disagree

When children are irritable and peevish, grind their teeth and sleep restlessly, have digestive pains and disturbances, lack of appetite, and have itching eyes, nose and fingers, doctors will not always agree that they are suffering from worms. Many mothers, too, will not believe that their carefully brought up children can have worms. The fact remains that these symptoms will yield, in a great majority of cases, to a few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge, the sure expellant of round and pin worms. If your child has any of these symptoms, try this harmless, old fashioned remedy, which you can get at 35c per bottle from Miller Drug Store. -Adv.

MONEY SAVED SAYS ROBISON

Answer to Injunction Suit Filed by Commissioner

AUSTIN, Jan. 7. (AP)—Asserting belief that if the Jan. 2 sale had not been stopped it would have brought Texas university $5,000,000 in bonuses, J. T. Robison, land commissioner, filed his answer today to the injunction suit of the state, joined by university regents, restraining him from selling oil leases on 108,000 acres of university land.

The case will be on district court's appearance docket tomorrow, when it will be set down for a hearing. Robison also will file a motion at that time to dissolve the temporary injunction.

In their answer, Robison and Walker claim that they, being the heads of an executive department of the state government, whose duties relative to the matters complained of are prescribed by law, cannot be enjoined by a court of equity from the performance of their official statutory duties.

The answer alleges that the board of regents is "an improper party plaintiff" because the board "has no power, jurisdiction, or authority either under the constitution or laws relative to the sale of oil and gas leases on the lands" in question.

Answering the plaintiffs' allegation that there was not any "specific demand" for the lands, Robison sought to sell, Robison claims the land commissioner has the sole power of determining when there is land in demand within the meaning of the law.

"Rose Marie" Wins Wichita's Approval

By The Record News Critic

"Rose Marie," Arthur Hammerstein's musical play, lived up to all advance notices and proved to be one of the finest pieces of entertainment ever seen in the city when it was presented to an extremely well pleased and almost a capacity audience at the Memorial auditorium Monday evening.

The lure of good music was manifested in the receptions accorded the "Indian Love Call" and "Rose Marie." Other musical numbers were done with equal artistry.

Especially beautiful was the voice of Virginia Fox, who played the part of Rose Marie, as were the dances rendered by Mira Nirska, who carried the role of Wanda. Miss Fox's voice, both in speech and in song, drew the highest admiration of her audience.

Paul Donah, Rose Marie's lover, Jim Kenyon, was another outstanding members of the cast.

Insurgent Caucus Votes For Unit Rule

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 7 (UP)—Insurgent legislators seeking the impeachment of Gov. Henry S. Johnston scored an initial victory today on the eve of the 12th Oklahoma legislative session.

The caucus of 47 house Republicans, holding a minority balance of power between the anti and pro administration Democrats, voted late today to abide by the unit rule.

Results of the caucus will, in effect, determine whether or not the Republicans will ride in coalition with Democrats seeking investigation and impeachment.

The particular action pending was whether or not the Republicans would accept or reject the proposal that the house adopt rules calling for a committee on committees. Heretofore, all speakers have held the power to name all committees.

Daughters of Nile Honor Queen With Charming Affairs

Mrs. Victoria L. Crouse, of Hollywood, Calif., supreme queen of the Daughters of the Nile of North America, paid her first visit to Wichita Falls last week when she constituted the temple here by presenting the members with their charter.

Courtesies shown Mrs. Crouse while she was here included an informal luncheon at Ye Olde French Inn when the table was centered with a huge cake, presented to Mrs. Crouse by the manager, Mr. Ross, with "Welcome Queen" written on it. The room was attractively decorated with red roses and peacock feathers and an Italian luncheon was served.

Another lovely affair honoring Mrs. Crouse was a dinner at the Wichita club when Mrs. C. C. Kirby served as chairman and toastmistress. Special numbers on the program included a vocal selection by Mrs. P. M. Cordell, who was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. F. R. Collard, while Mrs. J. S. Pittman gave a reading. W. H. Caldwell extended a welcome to the distinguished guest.

Following the dinner initiation was held for Mesdames Dave Shepherd and D. Dellis with Mrs. Crouse acting as the installation officer.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Jan. 7. (US)—The girl across the hall says she can't understand what they mean when they tell you, via radio, that you are invited to visit the "fur factory." She thought they got fur from animals.

She got a black velvet evening coat for Christmas, with white fur which she thought came from a fox or a cat or something, but she went to the theater with a gentleman in black, and he had to send his overcoat and his suit to the cleaners next day. He was literally covered with white cat or fox hairs And they stuck, electrically.

That may be the factory fur.

A man in Poughkeepsie cut his own salary. Not only once, but twice. Which is a good deal like the joke about going home and robbing your own trunk. He's a sober citizen too. A little too sober I think.

The new styles show women in high necked, long sleeved dresses with skirts touching the ground.

The spiritual influence of Susan B. Anthony Comstock! But it's rather nice, because now he will see what lies in women's eyes—and lies and lies. To keep people interested, you must show them something else occasionally.

These articles on what women should wear for aviating are interesting, but somehow to the uninitiated, the most important question that comes to the mind of the average woman, is, do they strap you in tight and place a parachute in your hand?

A boom in the canning trade is predicted for the year 1929.

A boom in indigestion is hereby predicted to accompany it.

The rector of the Holy Name cathedral in New York praises men for their practices of confession. "Men confess oftener than women," says the rector.

There is a natural inborn something in women that makes them hesitate to make known the facts. That's why they lie about their ages. When the whole truth is known women lose interest.

A woman in Yonkers got a warrant for her husband's arrest, charging desertion. They made up before the officer arrived and was not she mad when he insisted upon taking the party of the second part to jail! She followed and begged the judge to let her darling go.

You try to figure it out. After so many years my mind aches.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as 10 times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonfuls. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.—Adv.

"I know an easy way to keep from getting fat..... Light a Lucky instead of eating sweets."

Nazimova
Famous Stage Star

THE modern way to diet! Light a Lucky when fattening sweets tempt you. That's what thousands of lovely women are doing—successfully. The delicately toasted flavor of Luckies makes them a delightful alternative for fattening sweets. Toasting does it. Toasting removes the impurities and improves the flavor of the finest tobacco. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Men who pride themselves on keeping fit discovered this long ago. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition—many prominent athletes have testified to this fact. They discovered, too, that Luckies don't irritate the throat—a fact subscribed to by 20,679 physicians.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

Nazimova

Parents Let Daughters Marry Men Who Are Perfect Strangers to Them

Dorothy Dix Urges the Importance Of Investigating a Young Man's Record Before Marriage—Straight Talk to the Boy Who Won't Go to Work—Does All Knowledge Result From Years Spent in School?

Dear Miss Dix—My 19-year-old daughter is madly in love with a young man whom she has known only a year. Two days before they were to be married he told her that he couldn't marry her because his aunt didn't think he should marry, but when we asked why his aunt objected to his marrying, he gave such a vague reply that I went to his home town to investigate, and found out that he had been married and divorced. It made him furious. He said he would never forgive me, and that his past life didn't concern me. My daughter sided with him and she has left home, and says that death is the only thing that will keep her parted from him. Did I do right or wrong in investigating about this young man? —A WORRIED MOTHER.

Answer: Of course, you did right in trying to find our everything you could about the young man, but you were too late about doing so. As soon as you found out that there was any probability of your daughter marrying him, it was your duty to begin looking up his record.

The most amazing thing on earth is the fact that parents will let their daughters marry men of whom they know absolutely nothing. If a girl was going to buy a dog, her father would look up its pedigree and see what sort of stock it came from, and he would have a veterinarian examine it to see that it was free from disease. If his daughter was going to buy a house, her father would have a lawyer examine its title and see that it was clear, with no mortgages on it. If a girl had some money to invest and was going into partnership with a man, her father would inquire around and find out if he was honest and industrious and sober and not given to gambling, and was likely to make a success.

Yet a man will let his daughter marry a perfect stranger without even taking the trouble to go to the place where the young man was born and reared and find out whether he comes of good, honest, respectable people or not. He doesn't even try to find out whether or not his past is so black that it will smirch all his future.

All of us know pathetic cases of sweet, lovely, innocent young girls who have married men who turned out to be bigamists, or who were former jailbirds. All of us know girls who have married men who posed as being successful business men and prominent citizens in some distant city who turned out to be ne'er-do-wells who couldn't even make a living. All of us know pathetic cases of girls whose lives were wrecked through marriage with rogues.

Whether a man will make an amiable, considerate and tender husband, and be easy to get along with, nobody can find out beforehand. Every girl has to take her chances on that, but what sort of a man a man is can easily be found out, and any girl's parents can get a good line on their daughter's fiance in time to stop the wedding if his record is bad, and the girl has any sense. As simple a thing as making an inquiry through a commercial agency will bring the desired information.

It may be said that if the girl is in love she won't listen to any warning. Possibly that is true in a few instances, such as that of your daughter, poor Worried Mother. Most girls have more intelligence, however. They are not anxious to have a No. 1 wife from whom their husbands have neglected to get a divorce bobbing up with a batch of children, and to find out that they are wives in name only, as Bertha Clay used to say. Nor do they want to marry men with some shameful blot on their past lives. Nor do they want to marry men who have a record for being no-account and trifling.

Mighty few girls would be idiotic enough to go on and marry a man whose record showed that he was everything they didn't want for a husband, for there are few sentimental Suzies left now who hold to the all-for-love-and-the-world-well-lost theory. So it puts the responsibility of most of the disastrous marriages straight up to the parents who are so careless of their daughters' futures that they will not even send a postcard to the mayor of the town the boys come from to find out what is the real name of the man their daughter is proposing to marry.

You may be very sure that any young man who isn't willing to have his past life investigated has one that won't stand looking into. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a boy of 22 living at home. Dad makes $200 a month, maybe a little more, but he is always swearing at me for not working. I try hard to get a job, but I always get there too late, or I am too young, so I miss it. Dad and mother are very old-fashioned and object to my going out to parties and dances, and Dad is always recalling things that I did five years ago, though none of them were very bad, and he is always ready to put the blame on me. I have no money and no other place I could go. What would you advise me to do? —BOB.

Answer: I would advise you to brace up and be a man instead of a whining cry baby. Above all, I would advise you to go to work. I certainly don't blame your father for swearing at you for being a lazy loafer. It's a pity he hasn't enough grit to chuck you out of the door and tell you either to earn your own living or starve.

I know your type, Bob. You are one of the boys who hunt for work, praying Heaven they will not find it. That is the reason you always get to a place too late, just after all the hustlers who want to work have been hired. That is why you always lose a job when you get one. When anybody has to be dropped, you are the one who can be spared.

In every business there is a constant weeding-out process going on, and it is the slack, uninterested, inefficient men who are let go, and the energetic hustlers, who are up on their tiptoes trying to make good, who are kept. It isn't a question of luck. It's a matter of performance, and the men who deliver the goods invariably succeed.

So, Bob, quit framing up an alibi for yourself and see yourself as you are, a good-for-nothing, lazy loafer. A human sponge. Sleeping late of a morning, idling around all day, going to dances at night, holding up your old mother and making her pinch the market money for a dollar or two to take girls out on, and letting your father support you. Isn't that a shameful record for a boy of 22?

Consider this, Bob. Right now you are at the turning point of your life. You are deciding your whole future. If in the next year you don't go to work and support yourself, you will be a deadbeat the balance of your days. For indolence is a slow, creeping disease that will numb your ambition and paralyze your energies, and once it has fastened itself on a man he can never shake it off. You can cure yourself now of this deadly malady. A year from now it will be too late.

What do you want to be at 40? A prosperous man, respected by all who know you? Or a tramp asking for handouts at back doors? For you will not always have a father to support you, and when he is gone you will be too old to get a start in the world. So I say go to work, Bob, and make a man of yourself. Don't be that most contemptible of all things, a male parasite. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am engaged to a girl who is attending college while I am at work at a good job that has a future to it. I have only had one year of high school and I am wondering if we can be happy together when she has had more education than I have.

Answer: All knowledge does not come put up in textbook packages, Robert, and you may have acquired far more education in business than she has at college. You may be like the man of whom Whittier wrote: "He had his own free bookless lore, the knowledge Nature taught him, and wisdom that the fields and hills and toiling men had brought him."

Some of the most brilliant and intelligent men I have ever met were self-educated and were graduates only of the University of Hard Knocks.

You can make up for what you have lacked in schooling by reading. Get Dr. Eliot's five-foot shelf of books and read them over and over again and you will not have to fear that your sweetheart will know more than you do.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Microbe Bandit Is Given Fair Warning

LONDON, Jan. 7. (US)—M. R. Brady has advertised in all the London newspapers that if the thief who stole his bag from his automobile outside the Sayville club in Brook street, breaks any of the test tubes in the bag he is not only likely to die himself but will release germs that perhaps will cause an influenza epidemic in London.

The tubes contain millions of influenza germs taken by Dr. W. M. Crofton, noted bacteriologist, from patients, for laboratory use. Doctor Brady's warning reads: "These germs are virulent. If released in the air of a warm house they will survive and multiply and cause untold harm. The thief had better return them to the owner, whose name is on the bag."

Stubborn Cough Quickly Ended by Famous Recipe

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that usually follow the "flu."

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON
(Copyright, 1928, by Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—A vanishing American institution is the year-round dime museum. Some 30 years ago no town with a population of 10,000 and upward was without one, but at present New York is the only city in the country which has a year-round museum of this type. Nowadays the dime museums, or side shows as they are now called, seem to thrive only at summer resorts. When the summer is over they close simultaneously with the latter and wait in patient silence until the following summer.

A number of factors account for the decline of the dime museum as an all year-round attraction, according to the manager of the only remaining permanent museum, a man who has been in the field the greater part of his life.

"In the first place there are the radio and the movies to compete with," he said. "In former years the dime museum was about the only form of diversion for the public.

"Also, there is the problem of hiring freaks. In former years genuine freaks were aplenty and one only had to spot them and hire them, but nowadays every worthwhile freak is contracted for by one manager or another to appear at some fair or exposition."

The modern dime museum saw its first day on the Bowery in 1876. It was founded by a circus man named George Middleton, upon his return from a circus tour of Australia. During his many years of travel he collected a variety of genuine freaks and put them on exhibition at his Bowery museum. His novelty was fairly well received in New York, but the Chicago folk evidently showed more enthusiasm for it, as it was in the Windy City that Middleton permanently located. There he went into partnership with another circus man named Charles E. Kohl and both enlarged the scope of their undertaking. They founded three dime museums in Chicago and later branched out into Cincinnati, Cleveland and Minneapolis. Both men acquired immense fortunes from their enterprise and built for themselves palatial residences in the most aristocratic section of Chicago. In later life they entered the vaudeville contracting field, where they met with equal success.

Spurred by the success of these two pioneers, other circus men and attraction managers founded similar museums, and before long the country was flooded with dime museums. The idea also spread abroad.

The dime museum's bill of fare usually consisted in dwarfs, giants, bearded ladies, fat men and women, living skeletons and tattooed men and women. Among the most prominent freaks of their day were Col. Ruth Goshen, the tallest of all giants, and the Mexican midget, Lucia Larate, who was only 19 inches tall. She was discovered by an American tourist who later became a successful theatrical producer. He engaged little Lucia and exhibited her together with Colonel Goshen. The contrast between the two was so astounding that the exhibition met with great success everywhere. Lucia was later engaged by a booking agency which arranged for her exhibit at the World fair. Colonel Goshen later became Barnum's star freak. Other freaks of note were Jonathan Bass, the ossified man; Chang and Eng, the Siamese twins, and Chang, the Chinese giant.

The salaries of the freaks were governed by the law of supply and demand. The rarer the freak the greater salary did he command. The highest paid of all was probably tiny Lucia, who received $1,200 a week for appearing at the World fair.

So rapidly did the dime museums multiply that there were not enough freaks to go round. To meet this shortage many unscrupulous managers hired bogus freaks. Their wild men of Borneo were in many cases harmless men of short stature born on American soil. There was one establishment in the city which made a great fortune from manufacturing counterfeit freaks as well as Egyptian, Aztec and Mexican mummies, mermaids, and etc. In the galaxy of bogus freaks, were Homo-Equus, the half man and half horse; the monstrous double-headed giants; the four-legged and three-legged freaks and the man with the bullet hole through his body, which was in reality only an optical illusion. The Cardiff giant was probably the most famous of all fakes.

Short Words

ENGLISH is rapidly discarding its long words and becoming a language of monosyllables, according to Prof. Otto Jespersen of Denmark.

British savants, following the national custom of blaming every new development on America, say that it's our fault. Maybe it is; if so, we ought to be proud of it.

Short words make language a flexible, easily mastered instrument. Consider some of the jaw-wrenchers that other languages contain. In Finland, for instnce, a roofpaper tar company has to advertise itself as a "houpapaperitervakattotervateldasosakeyhtio." In Danish the old-age pension law is "varemaerkeindregistrerengskontrolkalerne." "Highness," in Russian, is "vysokoprevoskhoditelstwo." The abstinence movement in Poland is "wstrzemiezliwosc."

If we are tending more and more to one-syllable words, we may be very glad of it.

The Uses of Science

PROFESSOR HARRY ELMER BARNES of Smith college, addressing the American Association for the Advancement of Science, declares that man, instead of being the lord of all creation, is only a "temporary chemical episode" on an insignificant planet which he described as a "celestial juvenile and cosmic dwarf."

This, says Professor Barnes, is clearly proved by modern science, and because of it we must furnish ourselves with an entirely new conception of God.

This sounds a trifle depressing to those of us who still cling to the old-fashioned notions about souls, immortality and so on. However, it is only fair to point out that science hasn't proved anywhere near as much as Professor Barnes seems to think it has. What he is giving us is not the hard-and-fast conclusions of modern science, but his own opinions.

Every so often some man of learning surveys the facts and theories which science has produced, draws his own conclusions, and announces these conclusions to the world as facts. There is an intolerance and a dogmatism to it as unpleasant as the intolerance and dogmatism of the medieval theology which the scientists so abhor.

For instance: Professor Barnes has evolved in his mind a new conception of man; therefore he demands a new conception of God. Who needs it? Surely not those of us who fail to see eye to eye with him on his new conception of man. And if he is correct, why should any "temporary chemical episode" need any conception of God at all?

His little speech is valuable, however. It illustrates aptly the double-edged nature of that keen, glistening tool called science. For science, while it is making us rich and free, and is preparing us for the larger lift to an extent that would not have been dreamed possible a few decades ago, is also quite capable of cutting out of life some of its highest values, and leaving us far worse off than we were before.

If, just at the moment when it is releasing us from countless old shackles and launching us on a new golden age, science should convince us that we are mere accidents of cosmic chemistry, devoid of souls and doomed to an eternal death after a few brief years of activity—then we should not be beginning a golden age, but an age of great darkness.

Luckily, however, science isn't doing anything of the kind. It is presenting us with a tremendous variety of new facts, and to date no one has come forward big enough and far-sighted enough to harmonize and interpret them for us properly. Eventually the pote of the new day will arise, just as it has always happened before. Meanwhile, it might be well to bear in mind that there is a vast difference between the established conclusions of science and the ideas of individual professors.

The VICARION

The Astounding Story of an Invention Greater Than the Movies

Copyright by Gardner Hunting

By Gardner Hunting

Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

In the year 1935 Radley Brainard demonstrates to some friends his invention whereby it is possible to project past events exactly as they happened. In the group are his sweetheart, Phyllis Norman; her father, mother and brother, John; John's sweetheart, Carol Gould, and Radley's Aunt Relief. While they are looking at a famous dinner given for a motion picture star who had been drowned a week before, and Radley explains the scenes he shows are released from liquid air contained in "bombs," a ragged, gaunt man staggers in the studio. He cannot remember who is, but calls Phyllis by her name. Radley names the stranger Van Winkle.

"Perhaps if I just go on with my story I'll answer you all in time," Brainard told them. "Without discussing the whys and wherefores, which I am frank to admit I can't make clear to myself, I have found out that liquid air, condensed from a given locality, invariably contains a record of some event that has occurred in that locality. In frozen state the liquid air can be transported. By evaporating under certain conditions and to just the right density, the 'liquid events,' as you call it, becomes visible in the escaping gases—and not only visible, but audible, too, as you have reason to know!"

"But Radley," Phyllis found herself saying, drawn into speech in spite of herself, "why aren't events confused? There must have been hundreds of happenings—yes, thousands—in some localities!"

"Exactly," he returned. "But there are thousands—or at least very many—broadcast messages in our atmosphere all the time, yet your radio receiving set picks out one. That's where I use the law of vibration. I do control the selection of the event I want by setting up vibrations of the wave-lengths of—or tuned to—that event."

"That requires a long stretch of the imagination, boy," Mr. Norman commented.

"You haven't begun to stretch your imagination yet, sir," smiled Brainard. "Wait till you really begin to think what all this means."

"Then," cried Carol, "you condensed the air on the beach out here last night, and froze Rip in it! Was that what we saw?"

"You saw a scene that occurred on the beach out here last night, as it was recorded in the ether, caught in liquid air that was condensed under vibrations timed to get that scene," explained Radley carefully. "If I talk all day I won't be able to make it much clearer to you without telling you just how I set up the vibrations and how I combine condensation with timing. Those are my secrets."

"Did you know you were being condensed, Rip?" asked Carol, turning suddenly to the gentleman in the lounging robe.

"He wasn't," interrupted Brainard. "I made the condensation this morning."

For a moment there was a complete silence. Then Van Winkle laughed. "History while you wait!" he said. "I've had some strain put upon my credulity in the last 24 hours, but this is as hard to believe as something I know isn't so!"

"But, Radley," insisted Phyllis, "as you say, men have been making liquid air for 50 years. Why has nobody ever discovered any hint of this?"

"Nobody ever applied any tests for such a thing. Nobody ever experimented with lights, with different densities. But remember, needles and wax were matrials in mother's work basket for centuries before anybody ever thought of making phonograph records with them. The idea must precede the experiment."

"But if—oh, we might as well accept what you say!—but if you are condensing, freezing and transporting records, as you say, how can you prevent distortion, confusion, upsetting, reversal—a thousand things like that? Even steel upsets when you try to condense it, as you might say!" Mr. Norman took out a fresh cigar and settled back in his chair.

"Distortion?" repeated Radley "Why should my event distort? Why doesn't life distort? There are laws—like gravitation—that keep life right side up and preserve its proportions. You can't destroy that equilibrium or those proportions."

"I should think you would if anything could!" said Van Winkle. "But how do you limit your field? How do you know how much to condense? How do you know when you get a complete record?" Carol fired at him swiftly.

"It's rather technical," replied Brainard slowly, "and it's a new technique, for which we have no terms. There is a unity in action that men have always recognized dramatically, but which they never realized was based upon a fundamental physical law."

"Do you, a scientist, call any physical law fundamental?" queried Mr. Norman. "How do you know you've reached the fundamental?"

"Any law that works without variance is related to the fundamental," returned Brainard impatiently. Then he took up his interrupted thought.

"The unity of action is evidenced in the handling of any 'liquid event' by a property I discovered, which is only comparable to tensile strength in steel, say. Do you know what tensile strength is, Carol?"

"Yes, it's what makes anything hard to pull apart."

"Well, tensile strength—a cohesion inherent in the unity of the event—is what holds it together and causes it all to condense when any part of it is condensed. Like a fish, you can't catch it at all without catching the whole of it. Does that sound too difficult? As to completeness, however, no event is ever complete in life, despite its unity. There's a paradox in that, but it's a paradox nobody ever seems to mind in a theater. At the same time it's the explanation of why nobody is ever quite satisfied with drama, or fiction, or pictures, or any other parody of life."

There was a sharp crash. Mrs. Norman screamed. The others sprang up.

There seemed to Phyllis to be a fallacy as well as a paradox here. But her mind was leaping ahead and running into chaos again. "But it's going to create all sorts of abnormal conditions, this invention of yours, Radley," she said, "intolerable conditions!"

"Oh, I don't know," he answered. Why?"

"But, Rad," interrupted Carol, "you say that when you release a scene it all escapes, no matter whether we see it all or not. Do you loes scenes like that? Can we look only once at any one scene?"

Brainard smiled. "You can look as many times as you like at anything you like. I have only to set up my vibrator and condenser again and take the scene once more into captivity."

"Hah! Does it run away home when you let go of it—and then just wait around to be captured again?" asked John.

"Maybe I Shall!"

Brainard did not laugh with the rest. "I can't make any positive statement about that," he said slowly. But what I think is that I get only a copy, as I may say, of the original record each time I compress the air of its locality. I think the original impression in the ether remains just where it was made made. It is a sort of master record, from which the mere air takes its ever-repeated impressions, like photographic prints from a negative or like paper from a form of type in a printing press."

"Ho!" exclaimed Aunt Relief "Radley, I think your brains are becoming addled. This is ridiculously plausible! But you don't expect sane people to swallow it all, do you? I admit that you make some pretty convincing pictures, but if you could show us history, as you pretend, you'd—turn the world upside down!"

"Maybe I shall," returned Brainard quietly.

"But look here, Mr. Brainard," said the Van Winkle again. "I wish you'd explain to me another thing. I don't know much about liquid air, but I know that very little of what you condense liquefies and that the nitrogen in it always evaporates faster than the oxygen. I should think part of your liquid scene would get away from you while you condense or while you are waiting for the other part to melt down."

"Ho—yes;" cried Carol, "Your leading man might be on doing his bit while the star was still in her dressing room!"

"I'm indifferent to what happens to the nitrogen," returned Brainard. "My actors stick to the oxygen—like all sensible living creatures." He smiled at Carol. "And what I liquefy always contains my scene; maybe that's why it liquefies!"

Mr. Norman rose from his chair. "Well," he said, "I've had all I can digest for a while, Radley. I'm going home."

Mrs. Norman also rose. "You make me dreadfully uneasy, Radley," she told him. "Somehow it doesn't seem—natural—or right. If you aren't fooling us! It's so fantastic—almost farcical—in its dealing with——"

"I'm not fooling you, and it's all right, Mrs. Norman," Brainard assured her.

"And isn't every unfamiliar thing just as fantastic to us at first? Think, for instance, that iron freezes at some 3300 above zero, and air boils at 350 below. Those are well known, everyday facts to science, but they seem weird to ordinary folk."

Phyllis lingered behind as the others moved toward the door. Radley turned toward her.

"I thought you'd be glad, Phyl, that I've succeeded," he said quickly, his eyes smoldering with anger.

"Radley!" protested the girl. "Of course I'm glad for anything good that comes to you! But—if you see any effect that this has on me, you see that I'm frightened by it. That is, I'm frightened in the moments when I believe all you say. Then, like the others, I think you are playing an elaborate joke on us.

"It's not a joke."

"It certainly is not a joke to me to have it come between you and me as it has come lately—is coming now. Is that frank enough?"

"It's not what I'm doing that is coming between you and me, Phyllis. It's the same thing that women always feel: jealousy of what interferes with monopoly of the men they love."

"Perhaps you're joking, Radley. We'll overlook that for the moment. The feeling that is uppermost in me just now is that you are tampering with something that is inconceivably dangerous, if what you tell me is true. It's a sort of upsetting, defying of natural laws."

Phyllis' Concern

"Nobody upsets or defies natural laws, Phyl, rest assured of that. I'm merely using some just discovered."

"Well, we needn't quibble over exact statements—I mean that there is something terrible, something that—oh, what shall I say? Men have misused natural laws!"

"We have to learn to use 'em."

"But if you have—what you think you have, Radley, do you think you can learn to use it without—hurting anybody?"

"You have just been explaining to me that you are the first to be hurt," he said.

"You don't seem to care very much, Rad."

"Of course I do—if the hurt is real."

Phyllis studied him. He had never talked to her like this before. "This is already changing you," she said. "And I think I care a great deal more about what it will do to you than what it is doing to me."

"Do you? Well, let me face my own problem. You don't half realize what this is going to do for both of us."

"What is it?" she asked.

"Do you realize," he began with rising excitement, "that I have a wizard's wand—an Aladdin's lamp—that is going to command the obedience of the world?"

"That's what frightens me!"

"I shall have not only a monopoly for a public necessity—entertainment, the greatest of all human necessities!—but far more than that, I shall hold the world by something as inseparable from it as its shadow—its past! And still more, I shall hold—" he stopped, and laughed, and that repellent questioning look again overspread his face—"I shall hold a weighty club, Phyl—over anybody who opposes me!"

She stepped back from him involuntarily. The passion that burned in his eyes was a thing utterly alien to the man she had loved.

"Do you know, Radley," she answered him, "that you are not the man you were? I've seen the sense of power growing in you; sometimes I've thrilled to it. But you are like—you are like a man who knows he is misusing something, who refuses to admit it, even to himself, yet is instinctively defending and justifying himself."

"Go to it," he said, his lip curling. "I shall suffer plenty of criticism, I suppose—and censure naturally begins at home."

"You are censuring yourself!"

"Look here! What do you see in this that scares you? I know you'd be startled, but I didn't think it was going to put you in a panic. What is wrong in it, if I do corner the show-market? Men have cornered things before."

The impulse was strong to turn away from him and end discussion with him till he should come to himself. He was anything but the lovable fellow he had been. But that was the fact that held her.

"I can't array my thoughts about it in any kind of order, Radley," she said. "Im overwhelmed the moment I let my imagination begin to review the possibilities—and then utter skepticism is the only thing that comes to help me out!"

He laughed briefly. Then he seemed to think he could reassure her. "Well, there's nothing in it that's going to hurt you," he assured her.

"It will hurt me if it hurts you!" she cried.

But the appeal did not touch him. "I can take care of myself," he returned.

She looked at him an instant. He added nothing. She turned and went out, and he did not follow her.

But in the hall, Brainard's mysterious guest waylaid her. His face was full of a concern that seemed to be primarily for her.

"You see what it means, too, Phyllis!" he exclaimed, his eyes studying hers.

Terror caught again at her heart. "What does it mean!" she cried.

Phyllis could not discuss the thing with a stranger, even if she could rid herself of the sense of the strangest thing about him. She stopped him as he tried to answer her own terrified question.

Van Winkle was too weak to protest. Apparently he had come into the hall alone and the effort was too much for him. He took hold of the doorpost to steady himself. But he smiled at her.

"May I come to see you?" he asked.

Phyllis found it hard to concentrate on what he said. But she managed to reply presently.

"Yes," she said. "Come when you can. When you are strong enough."

"Mr. Brainard will bring me," he replied.

That caught her attention thoroughly. As if he were Brainard's creature! But he seemed to attach no special significance to his own words.

She went down to the waiting car—where her mother and father sat talking of some subject they dropped when she arrived. They seemed as unready as she to discuss the theme that absorbed them all. The fact added nothing to her composure, but relieved her of the necessity of facing the phases of the subject they might think important. They were clearly disturbed.

She escaped from the worst of her thoughts, however, by going again over the conversation that had last occurred among the whole group gathered in Radley's studio. Away from the spell cast by the white room and the sense of what had occurred there, she could get a perspective that seemed to throw all Brainard's explanations once more into the region of clever nonsense. That night, alone in her room, and next morning, as she took a gallop on her mare Betty, she began to recover her cheerful view of things. And she wondered at herself. What a curious thing was a human mind, that could be so wrought upon by mere sense impressions as to repudiate reason itself! She had been appalled at visions of a world turned back upon itself, reliving its action of the past—with the thousand chimercial threats the idea contained. She shuddered with the after-chill of it now. It was the world's salvation that it could forget! Then she found that she could laugh with a huge relief in the conviction that the involved explanation Radley had offered them had been nothing but a smoke-screen to cover some psychological experiment he was making on them. She might have resented this last idea had it not comforted her to believe that the real Radley was also merely still behind the screen.

And he had something, as Carol had said. Of course he had been disappointed at her attitude! The thing he had shown them through the sheer curtain of his exhibition chamber were nothing short of miraculous. Entertainment? He would have a world at his feet!

She paused at the crest of a rise back of the beach and looked down upon the little city in which was her home. It was not so lovely a thing as a city of homes at the Pacific's threshold should be. It was not so beautiful as it had once seemed to Phyllis. Back there where the enormous spread of studio upon studio of the present colossal entertainment combine stretched away toward what Rip Van Winkle had called Hollywood there was color enough, a gay show of banners and streamers, of glittering gilt, of flowing life, visible even from here. But that was not beauty. She looked off at the blue Pacific—and filled her lungs with its sweet breath—and went back home feeling that her world was normal again!

COMMERCIAL BASKET BALL LEAGUE OPENS SEASON TONIGHT

F-H-V MEETS KILOWAT FIVE

Coyotes Face Indians; Play On College Floor

Play in the 1929 five-club Commercial Basket Ball league will be started tonight on the court at junior college. The Commercial loop, opening its sixth season, promises to again furnish a fast and interesting brand of basket ball, such as marked the hectic campaign of last year.

In tonight's opener, the Featherston-Hawkins-Vague Insurance company five will face the Texas Electrics, and the Coyotes and Indians of the high school and junior college meet in the second game. The opener starts at 7:30 o'clock.

Hub clothiers, fifth member of the circuit, opens its schedule next week.

George Blackerby, Chicago White Sox outfielder, and referee of the Commercial league last season, again will handle the games this year in the circuit. Blackerby, one of the best known cage officials in this section, incidentally is open for engagements by amateur and school teams. He may be communicated with at 705 Polk street.

Jim Jones, president of the Commercial league, predicts another successful season. He points out that with only three business institutions represented in the loop, that those teams will be stronger than previously, as only the best players will make up the fives.

Sarazen Again Wins at Miami

Gene Takes Third Straight Golf Tourney

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 7. (UP)—Gene Sarazen of New York is richer by $750 as a result of his third successful triumph in the annual Miami golf tournament which he won yesterday with a score of 294.

Jock Hutchinson of Chicago was second with 302. George Crist of Rochester required two strokes additional to take third place with 304.

Sarazen, playing the 72-hole grind in alternating wind and rain, was on his steadiest game and turned in cards of 73-73-74-74.

Jock was crowding Gene until the last nine holes when the latter gained six strokes on him.

Fourth and fifth money was split by Joe Turnesa, New York, and Eddie Williams, Cleveland, with 305 each.

A cash prize of $500 went to Hutchinson as second money while Crist's share was $400.

Smith finished with 283. His card read 71-69-72-74—283.

Diegel took $750 in prize money and Smith got $450.

A large crowd watched Diegel sink his winning putt. He needed a 4 and holed out easily.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

ANOTHER former grid star reigns as king of the heavyweight wrestlers. Gus Sonnenberg, who played football at Dartmouth, deposed Ed Lewis as boss of the ground and lofty tumblers. This may or may not cause a lifting of the eye brows. Mr. Sonnenberg was a comparative unknown as a grappler, and for such a novice to lift the crown from the dome of the king brought about much buzz-buzz from mat enthusiasts.

Sonnenberg, if you are interested, met the Strangler a few months ago. Gus was treated so roughly on that occasion that he was in the hospital several days. That seems to have merely whetted the fighting spirit of Sonnenberg. For did he not give Lewis the mighty more than enough to win the title last Friday night at Boston?

Seven times was Lewis butted out or fell out of the ring Friday night, after Sonnenberg won the first fall. That was too much for the weary referee. It probably also was too much for the weary customers. Anyhow, the referee awarded the second fall, and with it the match and championship to Sonnenberg.

SEEMS AS if I recall that another football player, and at that time a comparative unknown, met Mr. Lewis. And that Mr. Lewis was champion of the world at that time. Incidentally, Mr. Lewis outFinnegans Mr. Finnegan of off again, on again fame in the matter of winning and losing championships. Mr. Lewis has been heavyweight wrestling champion of the world more times than Mr. Finnegan's train was off and on again. The Strangling one met this collegian, Big Munn you will recall, a few years ago at Kansas City. Munn tossed Lewis out of the ring and was awarded the championship thereby.

Old Man Stan Zbyszko then acquired control of the championship in some manner, I believe it was by beating Big Munn. But Lewis regained it and held the crown by outstaying Joe Stecher last summer.

Now Eddie has lost the crown to a collegian. But neither experience is new to him.

◆ ◆ ◆

I MEAN, being tossed out of the ring by a collegian and losing the championship to a collegian is nothing new in the varied career of Mr. Lewis. Nor is regaining the title by that master of the grapple anything to cause great wonder. Indeed, unless Gus Sonnenberg is something more than a lucky fellow and is really a great wrestler, I expect Mr. Lewis will be champion of the world again within a few months.

Sharkey-Strib Fight Assured

Last Match Made by Tex To Be Held as Planned

NEW YORK, Jan. 7. (US)—Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling will meet at Miami Beach, Fla., in a heavyweight elimination contest Feb. 27, just as though Tex Rickard had lived, it was formally announced today by Col John S Hammond, vice president and assistant general manager of the Madison Square Garden corporation. The match had been closed as Rickard's last official act before the illness that resulted in his death from gangernous appendicitis yesterday morning.

The bout, according to the dead promoter's plans, will be a ten-round affair, with the winner to qualify for a final bout that either was to establish a heavyweight champion or to provide an opponent for Jack Dempsey with the title at stake.

Will Draw $500,000

Rickard's estimate was that the Miami Beach venture would draw a gate of $500,000, owing to the prominence of the principals and Stribling's popularity in the South.

Sharkey is understood to have been guaranteed $100,000 for his end. Stribling's share was not divulged but it is understood to be the biggest purse the southerner yet has earned. Some of Rickard's aides are now in Florida taking over the preliminary arrangements, which were held in abeyance by the promoter's last illness.

Col. Hammond's statement read as follows:

"Mr. Rickard had built a machine which will function as a memorial to his name for all time. That is as he would have wished it. That is the spirit which will carry on in the organization so long as great sporting events continue.

Tex Had Plans Made

"Arrangements were practically completed by Mr. Rickard for the Jack Sharkey-Young Stribling boxing contest at Miami Beach on Feb. 27. This bout will take place as scheduled. Details yet to be concluded will promptly be taken up."

TEX' BURIAL FROM GARDEN

Rickard's Body to Lie In State Until Funeral

NEW YORK, Jan. 7. (AP)—Holding their first meeting since the death of Tex Rickard, the board of directors of Madison Square Garden today named Col. John S. Hammond, hitherto assistant to the promoter, as acting general-manager.

The directors adopted resolutions of tribute, decided to close the garden Tuesday and Wednesday and tendered use of the sports arena to Mrs. Rickard as a place for the promoter's body to lie in state until Wednesday, when the funeral will be held.

Shortly after the meeting, telegraphed word came from the funeral train en route from Miami Beach, that Mrs. Rickard had accepted the suggestion and agreed to have the burial take place from the garden.

Speculation concerned the possibility of Jack Dempsey's assuming a major role in garden affairs but there was no evidence to support this other than the former champion is expected to help put through plans for the Stribling-Sharkey fight at Miami Beach, Feb. 27.

Col. Hammond announced no change would be made in plans for this bout.

Gene Pays Tribute To Genius of Tex

By GENE TUNNEY

ST. MORITZ, Jan. 7.—I am deeply grieved to learn of Tex Rickard's death and sympathize with Mrs. Rickard and her little daughter in their great loss.

Tex Rickard was a man of genius in his way. He made a place for himself through his education and through his ideas that no man before him has held and one which it is quite doubtful will ever again be held by any individual.

His passing is a great personal loss to many people, of whom I am but one.

Rickard's Last Boxing Ranking Forecasts Dempsey's Comeback

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—Tex Rickard's last contribution to boxing literature is his ranking list for 1928, coupled with what he planned to be the definite announcement of Jack Dempsey's comeback this year. It is contained in a copyrighted story written by the promoter for the issue of The Ring, monthly boxing publication, appearing Friday.

Rickard's rankings are significant, as giving the promoter's final analysis of the game he developed so extensively. Equally interesting is his forecast of Dempsey's plans, even though they now are in doubt as a result of the promoter's death.

The promoter ranked the former champion as the outstanding heavyweight now that Tunney had retired and declared that Dempsey would fight once, either in August or September, as a finalist in the elimination tournament that gets under way with a battle between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling at Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 27.

Jack Greatest of All

"Jack Dempsey will come back this year," Tex wrote. "One cannot think of Dempsey except in terms of greatness and therefore in his case inactivity last year must be disregarded in the rating of the world's leading heavyweights, for he is greater than any fighter now basking the limelight and striving for the title left vacant by Gene Tunney.

"The return of Dempsey will cause the public to accept the appointment of a successor to Tunney as a genuine champion. The fellow who can whip Dempsey will earn the recognition of the public as champion. He will win their confidence and after all public opinion is what will count most in deciding Tunney's successor. Although Dempsey lost the verdict to Tunney at Chicago, there are thousands of fight fans throughout the world who feel that he is the uncrowned world's heavyweight champion.

"Dempsey will fight only once and that one battle will be for me and it will decide the holder of the crown. He will be one of two finalists, the other to be selected from other contenders. Dempsey is the former champion and as such is entitled to more consideration than Sharkey, Stribling, Paolino, Heeney, Risko and the rest of the field. The date of the title bout will depend on how long Dempsey needs to get in condition.

"Dempsey is coming back to give the heavyweight class the punch it now lacks, to re-inject a lot of the old interest and Dempsey color into the situation. The public wants Dempsey to return and he will heed public clamor as did Jim Jefferies."

416 Boxers in Ratings

In rating 416 boxers from all parts of the world in the various divisions on the basis of the ring wars of 1928, Rickard placed Gene Tunney, although he is retired, at the head of the heavyweights, named Fidel LaBarba as the outstanding bantamweight in a division that knows no generally recognized ruler, and gave the same recognition to Spider Pladner, of France, of the leaderless flyweights.

The promoter gave Jimmy McLarnin the palm among the junior welterweights in preference to Mushy Callahan, considered the champion of this unorthodox division, but recognized all other titleholders as the leaders of their classes during 1928.

Rickard ignored claims of Izzy Schwartz, New York state champion, and Frankie Genaro, national Boxing association titleholder, among the flyweights. Similarly Bushy Graham, New York champion, and Al Brown, National Boxing association titleholder, ranked behind LaBarba among the bantams. Rickard's rankings follow:

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 7. (UP)—Two more shifts between now and the opening of the 1929 National league pennant race remain to place the St. Louis Cardinals on the mid-season basis of 25 men. Latest transfers, announced over the week-end, were:

Outright release of Heine Sand, shortstop, to the Cardinals International leageu farm at Rochester. Sand was acquired after the close of the 1928 season from the Phillies in a trade which sent to Philadelphia Tommy Thevenow, last year's utility shortstop.

Transfer of two young outfielders, Pepper Martin and Howard Williamson, to the Houston club of the Texas league, also a Cardinal farm. Both Martin and Williamson are subject to recall. They played minor roles in the 1928 race.

LARRY BENTON SIGNS

NEW YORK, Jan. 7. (AP)—Larry Benton, leading pitcher of the National league in games won and lost, today was the first New York Giant to sign for 1929. The pitcher returned his contract by return mail.

TEXANS! let's talk Texas

—and make 1929 the most active year Texas has ever experienced

THIS IS an appeal to every Texan to study closely and understand thoroughly the possibilities of his state, and to pass on this understanding to every person with whom he comes in contact, so that everyone who seeks a location for a home, an office or a factory will know exactly what Texas has to offer him. Then Texas will ascend to her just place of leadership. But we must talk Texas—all the time.

Manufacturing must move to the doorways of large markets, where raw material, favorable transportation facilities, taxes and labor supply combine with abundant and economical electric power to afford ideal locations.

Texas cities and towns served by this Company supply each of these needs for a host of industries, but, since physical advantages do not always determine the selection of industrial locations, certain other vital things must be thrown into the balance.

Sound exploitation must be persistently used. The manner in which Texas tells its story will determine its industrial accomplishments in 1929.

The Texas Electric Service Company, employing several hundreds of Texas men and women, endeavors to give each of them a clear conception of the natural resources of Texas and to impress upon them the importance of their development. Basically the purpose of this Company is to render an electric service to a large number of Texas cities and towns.

Having done this, and having charted courses of growth that anticipate vast developments in the Texas of tomorrow, this Company feels that its duty to Texas extends still deeper. Therefore it is telling the story of Texas' advantages to industries through the use of paid advertising in sectional and national trade magazines. The purpose of this advertising is to stimulate the movement of industries to Texas.

TEXANS LET'S TALK TEXAS

For many years the Texas Electric Service Company has worked not only to serve an appreciative public but to help build a greater State.

Texans! Let's make 1929 the greatest year of sound development Texas has ever had.

Prolapsed Organs Cause Adhesions

The vigorous exercise of the abdominal muscles is a penalty we must pay if we desire to continue to walk upright and look into the light of day, and not on all fours, with our faces to the ground. If children were taught this truth, they would learn something of more value than the intricacies of infinitesimal calculus or the conjugation of almost forgotten languages.

The most serious results of a prolapsus of the abdominal organs are that kinks may occur in the colon and small intestine, or that adhesions may form. Crowded organs cannot perform their normal functions. The womb may be cut off from its normal blood supply and painful menstruation and headaches in back of the head are the usual consequences. The colon, by becoming twisted and kinked, is impaired in action and makes constipation inevitable. The stomach loses its tone and in this condition cannot properly digest and assimilate even the finest food.

Chronic constipation, considered by many doctors to be the foundation of most diseases, is nearly always caused by a slight obstruction of the intestines, and the fact that such constipation does exist is almost a sure indication of prolapsus.

There is a grave danger of permitting a prolapsed condition to exist because the movement of one organ, pressing upon or rubbing the other, soon creates an irritation which encourages the growth of connecting tissues between the irritated and inflamed surfaces. They finally grow together at the point of greatest irritation which, if allowed to continue, will be much harder to sever as time goes on.

Many people believe that adhesions only grow around the locations of a healed surgical incision. Good surgeons are very cautious to bring the severed tissues together to avoid this if possible. It is true that some vicious adhesions do occur after an operation, but the surgeon has tried to avoid this. The chronic inflammation of any organ will likewise produce adhesions with its neighboring tissues. If an X-ray examination has disclosed the presence of adhesions binding your intestines or abdominal organs together, it has also shown that these organs have prolapsed on one another.

There is usually only one method to separate these organs and that is by surgical methods. Now, this does not necessarily mean cutting them loose with the scalpel. The word "surgery" originaly meant "hand work" and I am now referring to hand work of the surgeon who does not operate with the knife but carefully separates the adhesions with his well trained fingers. This kind of surgery is of greater value, for a permanent removal of adhesions than the type of surgery where the knife is used. By deep manipulations the bloodless surgeon can separate the organs that have been joined together without the danger of additional adhesions from opening up the abdominal walls. This treatment must often be given for several months before the desired results can be obtained.

(In the next article I will outline the best exercises for overcoming adhesions and prolapsus.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Reducing Hips

Question—Mrs. K. A. S. writes: "Kindly tell me, if the weather was so you weren't able to get out and take your daily walk to reduce your hips, would walking in your home have the same effect?"

Answer—Any kind of walking would be good for reducing your hips, but it is best to take most of your walks out of doors where you can walk rapidly, making yourself perspire. Walk on the level as much as possible. On an occasional rainy day you can take hard calisthenic exercises in your room.

Orange Milk

Question—J. H. asks: "What do you mean by 'orange milk' for lunch?"

Answer—Orange milk is made in this way: Empty a glass of certified milk into a clean quart milk bottle and add another glass of pure orange juice. Put the top on the bottle at once and shake vigorously. This makes a pleasing milk drink, with the orange flavor, and with all of the food value of the orange and milk retained. It is more easily digestible than sweet milk, as the slight acidity of the orange juice assists in breaking the milk into smaller curds.

King's Evil

Question—Long Sufferer writes: "My whole family is and has been troubled with scrofula or 'King's Evil, I think you call it, all our lives. I also have a necrosis bone in the second joint of my big toe—had it since I was a boy. Is there anything I can do for it?"

Answer—The trouble is that your whole family has been living on the wrong kind of food. This is the usual cause of scrofula which was at one time called 'King's Evil. I would advise you to consult a bone specialist about your toe. He would doubtless have X-ray pictures taken of the toe and in this way could make a correct diagnosis.

FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By ROBERT Z. LEONARD

Bob Leonard sang in more than 100 light operas before he went West, young man, and landed a job in the film flam studios of Hollywood. He is further identified as having had Lillian Russell for a cousin and Mae Murray as a wife. At present he is married to Gertrude Olmsted—but when speaking of Hollywood marriages one should end the story with a comma.

R. J. LEONARD

"I get a great chortle," he told me, "whenever an incident that happened when Mae Murray and I were married recurs to my mind.

"Mae had been in New York several weeks on business. She had set the fifteenth of the month as the date of her return to Hollywood.

"On the fifteenth she wired me: 'Missed train; will start at same time tomorrow.'

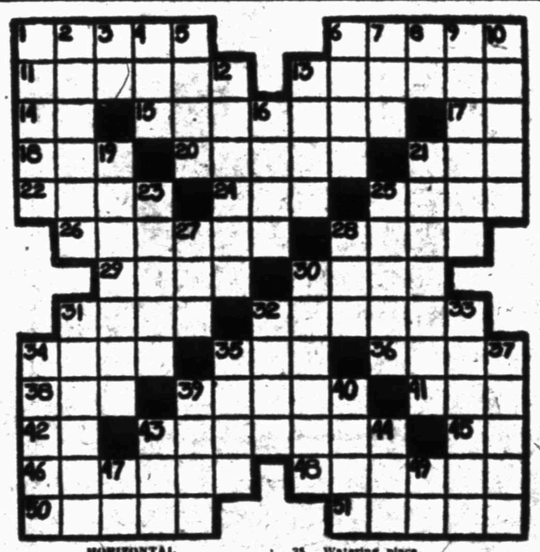

"I immediately dispatched the following reply: 'If you start at the same time tomorrow, you'll miss your train again'."

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—Renewal of liquidation combined with southern and local selling sent cotton prices lower today on the New York market.

Selling was accompanied by talk of unfavorable cloth and consumption statistics for December. Prices touched new lows for the movement but after selling off from 19.81 to 19.60 for March, recovered part of their loss in the late trading on trade buying and covering. March closed at 19.72. The general market closed steady at net declines of 7 to 11 points.

A decline was checked by increased demand from the trade for shorts around the 19¾ cent level for the spring months. This buying was supplied, and the market weakened again later.

Brokers with Wall street and western connections were among sellers, and some stop orders were uncovered as prices worked into new low ground. January sold off to 19.53, May to 19.62 and July to 19.25, making net declines of about 17 to 21 points. The trade was reported a buyer on scale down orders, however, and when offerings tapered off after the stop orders were executed, the market steadied on covering.

Closing prices showed rallies of about 10 to 12 points from the lowest. New style October contracts sold off with the rest of the list, and at the close were 1 point below the old style October compared with a difference of 14 points at the close Saturday. No particular news feature was emphasized in connection with the decline. Brokers attributed it to further liquidation and selling for a reaction owing largely to the failure of trade demand to become more aggressive.

Private cables said local and Bombay liquidation in Liverpool had been absorbed by trade calling and covering and that demand for cotton cloth was well sustained. Port receipts, 27,952 U. S. port stocks, 2,293,350. Exports today, 56,054, making 5,037,359 so far this season.

Futures closed steady 7 to 11 points lower. Spot quiet; middling 19.95.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 7. (AP)—Absence of speculative support and a minimum of trade buying were responsible for a reactionary tendency in the cotton market today. Although there were several good rallies the trend of prices was mainly downward, the decline being aided by preholiday liquidation and realizing. March contracts eased off to 18.93 but recovered 14 points in final trading and closed at 19.07, compared with 19.14, Saturday's closing figure. The general market closed steady at net declines of 3 to 10 points.

The market opened easy despite relatively favorable Liverpool cables. Fears of bearish textile statistics for December was responsible for the initial weakness which carried January down to 19.02, March 19.04, and May 19.09, or 19 points below Saturday's close. When it was found that statistics would not be issued before Wednesday the market strengthened and January recovered to 19.08, March 19.15 and May 19.19, or 9 to 11 points above the lows.

The demand tapered off at these levels and the market eased off due to lack of speculative support and liquidation by longs in advance of tomorrow's holiday here. The cold wave in practically every section of the belt probably helped the easiness, as some traders expressed the opinion that the cold weather would destroy boll weevils in hibernation.

At the lowest reach in the afternoon trading January sold at 18.92, March 18.93, and May 18.99, or 20 to 21 points, practically $1 a bale below the previous close.

In the final trading there was more or less covering by shorts in advance of the holiday and January rallied and closed at 19.02, with May finishing at 19.13, or 6 to 10 points net down.

Strong Reaction in Stock Market Coming, Say Well Informed Ones

By BROADMAN WELL

NEW YORK, Jan. 7. (US)—Heavy selling broke out in the stock market today, forcing prices of industrials down more than four points on the average. It was the worst break since early December.

At one time it appeared as though quotations would end the day with vicious declines, but a strong rally developed in the last hour and the final levels were substantially above the lows. Considerable nervousness, however, was induced by fears over the money situation, with the call rate showing a tendency to firm, remaining at 7 per cent all during the session.

The best-informed stock market people are frankly of the opinion that a sizeable reaction is in store for the market, subject of course to sharp rallies. Each bulge in prices for several days has met heavy offerings and this tendency is likely to continue.

Studebaker Leads

Studebaker furnished an exception to the general weakness, featuring the automobile section by running up over 6 points. Reports on its new models from the auto show were highly favorable, with expectation voiced that Studebaker is in for a record year. Unbiased comment on the general run of new models was far from optimistic, however, and the majority of auto shares were under pressure. It is becoming more and more evident that 1929 will prove to be a year of tremendous competition for the entire industry. Peerless sold off fractionally. Durant is reported to be interested in this enterprise, with the possibility of its absorption into Durant's promulgated greater automobile combine.

American Can, which has been under accumulation by powerful interests for weeks, ignored the selling and approached its record high by advancing over 3 points. Important development is pending in this company, exact nature of which may be disclosed in the near future. Pittsburgh Coal was another strong spot, reaching its daily new high. While unconfirmed the buying of this stock is reported for the account of steel corporation interests. Its position has been materially improved in the past year. The same thing is said to be true of Island Creek Coal, which is attracting greater attention from informed interests. Greene Cananea Copper lost 5 points and other coppers also were lower, but banking opinion on the coppers has not changed from the favorable views expressed recently.

Westinghouse Down

Westinghouse Electric yielded along with the main body of stocks, but it is quite evident that one of the most powerful industrial banking groups in the country is continuously adding to its investment in this company. The Mellon interests are anxious to secure greater representation on Westinghouse's directorate, a desire which if not agreeable to the present executives may result in an open contest. The Mellon group is said to be confident they hold working control of Westinghouse. Important developments with respect to this situation may be disclosed in the near future.

Initial weakness developed in radio which broke 20 points. Much of the selling is "news is out" character, but substantial holders were said to be disappointed with the Vitcor deal terms. International Nickel closed the day unchanged, but heavy liquidation is understood to have taken place in the stock. An official announcement is anticipated which will deny the recent wild rumors of this company's Canadian Mine property.

Various large holders of nickel stock, who have tremendous profits, have been unloading during the recent strength, it is declared, profits of the company will not be sufficient to warrant present prices of the stock, according to semi-official information, for perhaps years to come. Nickel has advanced ten-fold in the last few years.

Smelting Loses

U. S. Smelting lost a fraction. A leading house pointed out that improved conditions in the lead industry, which it foresees, should help this company, as should also its Alaskan gold development. "Rights" will be out of the way on Thursday. Railroad shares in the main were lower in sympathy with selling of the industrials. Chesapeake corporation is selling about 10 points below its holdings in Chesapeake & Ohio, according to one analyst.

While the oil shares showed no signs of renewed vigor, there was great interest in the "accidental" presence in this city of some of the leading speculative interests who usually co-operate in stock market operations. Their gathering is rumored to be in connection with proposed formation of a gigantic holding company to acquire large interests in various oil companies.

Choice sorted fed western lambs reached $16.90 at Chicago, while at the river markets $16 was paid rather freely. Matured classes ruled strong to 25 cents higher, with fat ewes selling at $8.50@9.50; total receipts were 56,950, against 55,710 last Monday and 76,643 a year ago.

A broad shipping outlet at most of the larger markets influenced a healthy undertone in the hog market and prices were generally 10 to 25 cents higher than last week's close. An active trade featured the stocker and feeder market with prices strong to 25 cents higher. Choice yearling stockers brought up to $12.40 at Omaha. CHICAGO REVIEW

CHICAGO, Jan. 7. (AP)—Assertions that cold weather damage threatening much United States winter wheat may equal the disaster witnessed last year went along with considerably higher prices today. Reports in particular from Wayne and White counties, Illinois, said indications there pointed to harm already on a par with that suffered from similar conditions in 1928.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ⅜@⅝c to 1@1¼c net higher. Corn finished at a shade to ⅜c down, oats a shade to ¼c advance, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a parallel gain.

Wheat values displayed an upward trend from the outset, and the close was at virtually the day's top level.

In the corn market, liberal receipts and the fact that shipping demand was light tended to check buying. There was also 1,707,000 bushels increase of the corn visible supply. Oats today sympathized with wheat rather than with corn.

Provisions were slightly firmer owing to strength of hog values.

Green Produce Still On Home Market

A good portion of the green produce for the Wichita Falls market is still coming from local growers, an unusually open winter to date having extended the usual period of yield in this territory, according to local produce dealers. Spinach, it was said, endures the cold weather better than any other variety of green stuff, and will perhaps contribute to local consumption longer than any other item produced here.

The local supply, it was said, is being supplemented chiefly by shipments from South Texas. Cabbage, lettuce, onions, beets, radishes, carrots, cauliflower and turnips in considerable quantities are being brought from the Rio Grande valley and from west coast sources.

A few new strawberries have put in their appearance, but it was stated that a general supply of this fruit will not be available for some weeks yet.

Poultry raisers reported unusually good yield in eggs, but a large percentage of the egg production now is being retained for the spring hatch, contributing to a comparative shortage of fresh eggs on the market, it was stated.

Cotton fell off five points on Monday's market, local buyers offering 17.75 on middling basis.

RHINE-WESTPHALIA ELECTRIC POWER CORP.
5 Year Record

RHINE-WESTPHALIA ELECTRIC POWER CO.

The Rhine-Westphalia Electric Power corporation, with its subsidiaires, forms one of the largest electric light and power companies of Europe. It serves the important Ruhr district of Germany supplying current to 440,000 industrial and residential customers. It was incorporated in 1898. In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1928, 1,650,000,000 kilowatt hours of energy were produced and sold of which 81 per cent was generated from coal from the corporation's own mines.

The company, with additions to its own plants and purchase of others, is increasing this capacity. In addition to its own subsidiaries, it owns minority interests in other companies including Ruhrgas. The company has shared in the revival of industry in Germany and in the last four years net income has approximated $4,000,000 annually. Property holdings June 30, 1928 were valued at $115,250,000. This does not include holdings in any but subsidiary companies.

The concern controls 74,000,000 tons of unmined coal, 450,000,000 tons of lignite; nine generating stations, 1,580 miles of high power transmission lines and 15,000 miles of distributing lines.

Net income for 1927 was $4,067,649 as against $3,898,034 for 1926. Funded debt totals $29,483,500. Some of the issues are subject to the Dawes plan debentures.

Capital stock outstanding consists of 376,500 shares of bearer common of the par value of 400 reichs marks; 220,000 shares of registered stock of 20 reichs mark par value. Under a deposit agreement of Aug. 21, 1928, one American share was issued for each 100 reichs marks of shares deposited by the company in Berlin. Voting rights entitle holders of American shares to one vote for each four shares held. Dividends are declared for the full fiscal year and for 1927-28 amounted to $1.92 on the American shares. This compares with $1.98 in the previous fiscal year. As of June 30, 1928, total current assets were $4,550,078, total current liabilities $7,548,864, an excess of liabilities over current assets of $2,998,786.

The Roberts Oil corporation's No. 7 Grayson, one location east and three north of the Hucony Gas company-Atkinson and Sandefer No. 1 Tiner, discovery well, with the hole seven feet in the pay at 2503 feet, was flowing 500 barrels. The other completion, the No. 5 Mason of the Phillips Petroleum company, was in the old Noodle Creek pool, two miles south. It is 330 feet from the east line and 992 feet from the north line of the west eighty of the northwest quarter, section 18, block 19, T. and I. survey, Jones county. Pay here was struck at 2515-21 feet.

Say It Is Not True

Knute Rockne, in a comment before the Southern California-Notre Dame game, said he couldn't use 26 players against the Trojans as he did in 1927 because he didn't have 26 on the squad who knew the signals.

NEWS of the FIELD

TEXAS PET. PRODUCERS

The Texas company and Petroleum Producers company have made location for No. 2 Jones well to be drilled in the Isaac Hugson survey, abstract 256 in the Bryson area of Jack county.

KELLEHER AND OTHERS

Harold Kelleher and others made location for a test to be drilled 1168 feet west and 1144 feet north of the southeast corner of section 2422, T. E. L. survey, J. C. King lands in south Archer county.

PIPELINE COMPLETED

The Texas Pipeline company has completed its new eight inch oil carrier which has been under construction for the past few months and after testing with water, made its initial run of oil from Gray county Saturday. The new line will accept oil from its numerous gathering lines in the Gray county pools to the station at Lefors and discharge it at the Texas Pipeline station in Electra in Wichita county. The line, which is electrically welded, will have a capacity of 12,000 barrels daily but can be increased to 18,000 barrels by the installation of its centrifugal motor driven pumps. In the event of need of an intermediate station a site has been purchased at Kirkland, in Childress county. However, at the present time the drop of 1500 feet in gravitation between the two terminals makes it unnecessary for any intermediate station. The completion of the carrier permits the Texas Pipeline company facilities to transport to the refiners any amount of Gray county output in a speedy manner.

HIKE IN TARIFF IS DEBATED

Texas Solon Plays Big Role In Hearings

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7. (INS)—Representatives of American industry and agriculture today began laying the state of their business before the house ways and means committee, the result of which is expected to determine just how far congress shall go in revising the tariff to meet present day European competition.

The hearings, ordered by the committee in belief that President-elect Herbert Hoover will call a special session probably in April, will continue until Feb. 25.

Representative Willis C. Hawley, Republican, of Oregon, chairman, declared before the hearings started that the committee was proceeding without definite knowledge as to the attitude of Mr. Hoover, other than his expressed demands for tariff protection made during the campaign.

The committee at the outset, Hawley said, is confronted by widespread demands to raise the duties of the Fordney-McCumber tariff of 1922, declared at the time of its enactment to be America's most comprehensive barrier to foreign competition.

At the same time he declared that the committee was hopeful that the hearings will develop a demand and necessity for revision of comparatively few of the thousands of items embraced in the tariff schedules.

The Democratic position was undefined as the committee opened its sessions. Representative John N. Garner, Democrat, of Texas, ranking minority member and probable Democratic floor leader after March 4, is an avowed protectionist.

He declared that some schedules, particularly agricultural, probably must be raised, but he expects to make a fight for reduction of schedules on some alleged "over-protected" industries. At the same time Representative Cordell Hull, Democrat, of Tennessee, a member of the committee, was urging Democrats to demand general lower tariffs.

Eighty-seven witnesses are scheduled to pass before the committee in the first three days of hearings, devoted to the chemicals, oils and paint schedules. All are expected to voice demands for higher tariffs.

Formation of great international chemical combinations abroad, ruthless competitive methods and new developments of industry all combine to demand radical revision upward of many schedules, in the opinion of many leaders of these industries.

One of the first demands was to be voiced by Representative William E. Hull, Republican, of Illinois, for a duty on butyl acetate, used in making lacquer. The use of lacquer, he said, had increased enormously with growth of the automobile industry.

The great German chemical combination, he said, has cast envious eyes toward the American automobile industry and had invaded it to the great loss of American chemical manufacturers.

The problem, he declared, is related to agriculture since butyl alcohol and butyl acetate are corn products. He appeared for the Commercial Solvents company of Peoria, Ill.

New Officials To Take Oath

Special to The Record News
FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 7.—Three county officials, E. I. May, sheriff, P. V. Ruch, attorney, and C. E. Hass, court clerk, elected last November, will be given their oath of office next Monday by D. W. Scott, judge. Haas is the only one of the trio to hold over. May will take the place of Jenks McCorcle and Ruch will take the position now held by Herman Davis. May served as sheriff several years ago, being defeated four years ago by McCorcle. Ruch served two terms as judge but were defeated two years ago by Scott.

W. D. Scott, who was unopposed in the primary and election, will be sworn in Jan. 14.

The terms of Miss Bessie Edwards, treasurer, E. H. Shelton, superintendent of public instruction, and John W. Williams, commissioner from this district, also elected in the November election, do not expire until July 1. The trio were re-elected.

Gas Stove Left Burning— Fire Damages Home $1,500

Damage estimated at $1,500 was caused by flames which broke out in a residence at 1803 Burnett street about 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The furniture in the house was almost completely ruined although firemen managed to save the greater part of the structure.

The house was owned by the Wichita Mill and Elevator company and was occupied by Mrs. J. J. Ivey. No one was at home at the time of the fire. The blaze probably started from a gas stove left burning in the front room of the house, according to J. L. McClure, fire chief.

Orgatone Is Helping Wichita Falls Family

The Damerall Family Take Orgatone for a Preventative Against Flu and General Tonic

Mrs. E. C. Damerall, residing at 1614 Magnolia St., came into Allison's Drug Store, recently for another bottle of Orgatone and while talking with the Orgatone nurse said:

"My sister recommended Orgatone to me, she had been taking it for the 'flu' and it helped her so I came into the store for another bottle to keep away the 'flu.' My two children were very badly constipated and had indigestion, I gave them Orgatone and they are completely relieved.

"Orgatone has proved a wonderful medicine in our case, it is keeping us all in tip-top shape. We shall continue taking it as long as it helps us. My husband who is a marble cutter does pretty hard work, and needs some kind of medicine to keep him in condition. Orgatone has certainly proven its worth to all of us and I am glad to say a good word for it. I think so much of it I am telling all of my friends about it and we, my family, will continue taking it as long as it helps them."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific preparation containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Allison's Drug Store, 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily and charges nothing to explain her theories on health and hygiene. Out of town customers are being supplied promptly by mail upon receipt of price—one bottle $1.25 or six bottles for $6.25.—Adv.

Wichita Churches to Seek Closer Cooperation in Education Work

The necessity of closer co-operation between the various churches of the city in order that members might take advantage of the educational and training meetings as they wish was stressed at the monthly meeting of the Wichita Falls Ministerial alliance Monday morning at the First Christian church.

The meeting time of the first Monday in each month was changed to the first Tuesday in each month. It was voted that the business session be held at 11 o'clock in the morning and be followed by a luncheon at the Y. W. C. A.

Reports of activities during the Christmas period were given. Church services at the county jail will be held this month by the Grace Methodist church, it was announced.

A leadership training school, which will be held for one week this winter by the First Christian church was announced by Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, pastor. The members present were invited to attend the Methodist district missionary institute at the First Methodist church, Jan. 16, by Dr. S. Stephen McKenney, pastor, while Rev. W. H. Townsend, pastor of the Lamar Avenue Baptist church, extended a general invitation to the alliance to attend the school of missions which will be held at his church soon.

County Again Promises Help To Wards of Children's Aid Society

Wichita county will help pay the expenses of the children who become wards of the county during 1929, according to a tacit agreement between the county commissioners court and the Children's Aid society at the regular meeting of the court Monday afternoon.

In 1928 the court supplied $1,900 toward the expenses of the children who came under the care of the society, according to the reports offered the court. The annual report of Miss Katheryn Henricle, head of the organization, was presented for the consideration of the group. It showed the care of 39 unmarried mothers, of 11 runaway girls, 43 children in boarding homes, 51 in foster homes, and the return of 15 girls to their own homes and parents. Miss Henricle stated in her report that every child handled by the society is a potential criminal and therefore would probably, if undeterred, some day become a ward of the county in a different sense.

Cline Spokesman

The court, without taking formal action, indicated that the arrangement carried out last year would be resumed for 1929, no definite appropriation to be made, but needs to be met as they arise. The society was represented in the court by W. D. Cline as spokesman.

The court Monday morning approved the application of Sheriff W. G. Bralley for the appointment of 10 deputies, one fewer than was on the pay roll until Jan. 1. He asked for one chief deputy at $225 two field deputies at $175; one field deputy at $150 and another at $125. The list included two court baliffs at $90, an office girl at not more than $100; a jailor at $4.90 per than $100; a jailor at $4.50 per day; a jail guard at $4.50 per day; and a matron at $90.

Deputies Reappointed

Aggregate expenses were estimated at $22,000 and aggregate recepts at $27,000 for the year to come. The members of the department reappointed include: H. F. Hawkins, chief deputy; W. W. Belcher, Charles Gant, Dick Morris, and J. B. Scarbrough, field deputies; W. J. Duncan and L. P. Lile, court baliffs; Mrs. Winifred Graham, jail matron; George Hawkins, jailor; Fred Watkins jail guard.

The bonds of J. M. Isbell, county engineer, and J. B. Fitts, newly appointed county traffic officer, were presented and approved. The court voted to continue its $20 monthly contribution to each of the five national guard units here. The December report of Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, showing receipts totaling $2,356, and disbursements of $1,850, was accepted. Tom McHam, county treasurer, presented the first annual report to be offered by any county official.

F. R. Knauth, commissioner from precinct No. 2, was unable to attend the session because of illness.

Retail Leader Sees Good Business in '29

By EARL C. SAMS
President, J. C. Penney Co.

A nationwide feeling of optimism, supported by industrial conditions which are notably good, by agricultural conditions which are appreciably better than for several years, and by a world trade condition which is increasingly improved, presages a year of widespread prosperity.

A cross section of the country, taken through 1,078 store managers shows an even distribution of prosperous conditions reflected in good buying on the part of the general public with satisfactory increases coming to retail merchants who are conducting their business on a basis which is economically sound.

Present indications are that there will be helpful considerations by the federal government which will add to agricultural security and to industrial stability. These two great phases of our national activity are being treated in a national way which cannot help but result in an improved distribution of success and profit.

WEEKS OPENS OFFICE TODAY

Colonization Program To Get Under Way

tive cottage, model poultry houses, scientifically designed according to the land and climate here, wire fences with steel posts, for the support of various fruit trees and vines, and decorative landscaping will be included in the model which will be recommended as the desirable plan for purchasers of homes in the district.

Financing Arranged

Arrangements have been completed, Mr. Weeks said, for the financing of purchases of both land and buildings by local concerns on generous terms. A meeting of all real estate men of this city will be held soon, it was said, in order that the sale of lots in the Weeks colonization tract will be placed in their hands as well as with Mr. Yeths, the general sales manager.

Development of the area under Mr. Weeks' plan is based upon desirable soil, ample water supply, suitable climate, and adequate market. With the first three elements supplied by the community in which the develpment is to take place, arrangements for marketing produce from the farms in New York and other eastern points are now under way, it was said. Approximately 1,800 hens to each acre of ground will be maintained with green feed raised on the land, and plans call for the shipment of eggs in carlots through Mr. Weeks' marketing association. Location near the poultry ranch of Mr. Johnson, it was said, affords members of the Weeks colony here unexcelled opportunity for the acquisition of egg producing flocks.

Other Colonies

Mr. Weeks emphacized the development of community social life in the colonized area, as well as the co-ordination of business interests. Plans include erection of an adequate community house for all activities of the residents of the section.

The first colony organized by Mr Weeks is at Palo Alto, Calif., established in 1916, and at present composed of more than 200 families. The second, organized in 1922 at Owensmouth, Calif., has 600 families on 640 acres.

School and College News

Whether or not the Junior college should enact an honor system, was a question that was thoroughly discussed at the semi-monthly Junior college assembly that was held Monday during the 30-minute period.

Opinions were expressed by Dean S. H. Rider and several members of the college student body. The question was an outgrowth of articles that were alleged to have been taken from lockers in the corridors of the building.

Mr Rider expressed an opinion that the loss of these items were partly the fault of the students themselves, as students are somewhat careless in the care of the books and are quite easily misplaced. The cooperation of all students was asked in order that the acts of the weak students could be checked.

◆ ◆ ◆

The monthly meeting of the Junior college Parent-Teachers association will not be held on Tuesday afternoon, according to Dean Rider. Illness of many of those that were to have taken part in the program necessitated the postponement.

◆ ◆ ◆

Members of the student body will be entertained during the general assembly Tuesday morning by the high school orchestra. This will mark the first appearance of the orchestra during assembly and promises to be an unusual event.

◆ ◆ ◆

Two original one-act plays that were written by members of the Writers' club provided a most unusual and interesting meeting of that organization during the sixth period Monday afternoon. It was decided that the play written by Elizabeth Beumler would be used as the annual club assembly program play that it presented in February of each year. The entire cast is chosen from members of the club and try-outs will be held sometime in the near future. The play is under the personal direction of Miss Eva Weber, sponsor of that organization, and is credited with the outstanding success of the presentation of last year, entitled "Nora's Afternoon Off." A small entrance fee is made for the plays and the proceeds go to the college annual fund.

Wife Buys Gun So Hubby Asks Divorce

Tired of Self Serve Home, Says Another

Two harassed husbands, one oppressed by threats from a gun, the other suffering from his wife's revived affection for an old sweetheart, have sought relief in the divorce court here.

Husband No. 1 has been frequently slapped, according to his plea, and his mate has been known to tear his shirt from his back in her wrath. But things got serious when she first bought her gun. The gun, so the petition says, was purchased as a protection from the wife of the lady's boy friend. Friend husband decided it was a bit thick when the weapon, meant for the feminine rival, was turned upon him.

Then there was the aggrieved husband who was first hurt by his wife's failure to have his meals ready, he tells the court. She, it seems, was something of a gadabout, and the husband returned home daily to the task of dishing up his own soup. But things rocked along, albeit unsteadily, until that old flame came back to town. His campaign to regain the lady's affection, despite her husband, led eventually, according to the husband's allegations, to break up his home.

On the other hand, Judge P. A. Martin Tuesday granted a feminine plaintiff her second divorce from the same man. This time, she says, it's final. She had suffered frequent slappings and beatings from her re-married spouse, she told the judge.

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritations.—Adv.
