Highway cleared in crash aftermath

A Belize Air International charter flight carrying horses to the United States crashes on a Mexico City highway during rush hour Thursday.

Fire from sky stalls Mexico City traffic

By JAVIER PICHARDINI

MEXICO CITY (AP) — In the flash of an exploding airplane, the Mexico-Toluca Highway was transformed from a normal rush hour scene into an inferno of twisted metal and burning cars with people trapped inside.

The difference between living and dying was a matter of luck — a matter of being in the right place at the right time.

Alejandro Perez Palma told television crews his house beside the highway shook as if an earthquake had struck when the Boeing 377 crashed Thursday evening, seven minutes after leaving Mexico City's international airport.

Looking out his kitchen window, Perez said he saw the plane pass under a bridge on the highway, avoid a gas station to the right of the road, bounce off the tops of cars, crash into a restaurant and house and explode.

The bridge, commonly known as the Conafrut bridge, is about 16 feet high and leads from the eight-lane highway to the large Conafrut food processing plant.

The commercial cargo plane was bound for Miami with 12 people and 18 horses aboard. Officials said 37 people died in the accident and 40 were injured.

Cars crashed into each other and some burst into flames, trapping passengers inside when the plane came down into bumper-to-bumper traffic.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Steam shovels moved in today to clear charred debris from a highway where a plane crashed into rush-hour traffic before slamming into a restaurant and exploding. Thirty-seven people died.

The commercial cargo plane was bound for Miami with 12 people and 18 horses aboard Thursday evening when witnesses said it began swaying from side to side, shearing the tops off trees and knocking down power lines before crashing into bumper-to-bumper traffic on the eight-lane Mexico-Toluca Highway.

Mexico City Police Chief Jose Domingo Ramirez Garrido Abreu said the search for bodies ended early today and that 37 people were dead. Earlier, officials said 39 died. It wasn't immediately known how many died on the ground and how many on the plane.

A passenger who survived, horse trainer Guadalupe Pina, 42, said in a television news interview from his hospital bed that panic broke out as the plane began rocking from side to side.

Passengers screamed "God save us. Save us" and cried as the cabin filled with smoke, Pina said.

Alejandro Perez Palma told television news he was in the kitchen of his home when the plane flew past. The impact from the crash made his house shake so violently he thought an earthquake had hit, Perez said.

Residents of the Lomas Santa Fe neighborhood in the plane's flight path ran outside and watched as the plane buzzed low over their homes.

"It was obviously laboring. It looked like it wasn't going to make it and it didn't," said Elaine Carey.

The Boeing 377 crashed at 5:03 p.m. (7:03 p.m. EDT), seven minutes after takeoff from Mexico City's international airport, said airport general manager Carlos Padilla.

Three of the four crewmen and four passengers were being treated at three hospitals, but officials at those hospitals refused to give their conditions.

Hospital officials identified some of the victims being treated as the pilot, Rick Moore, the co-pilot, Robert Banta, the cargo master, Bryan Stuart, and passengers Pina, Federico Fernandez, Ruben Rodriguez Monterde, and his son, Ruben Rodriguez Enriquez. They provided no other details.

Three missing after copter mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy continued to search overnight in the waters of the Persian Gulf for three men declared missing after their helicopter crashed during a routine ferry flight to the USS LaSalle.

The accident, which occurred at 5:58 p.m. local time Thursday (10:58 a.m. EDT), left one man dead in addition to the three missing. Five others were rescued.

The Navy recovered the body of the one victim whose death was confirmed, the Pentagon said, adding that the identities of the victim and the missing were being withheld pending notification of relatives.

The Pentagon said the accident involved an SH-3G Sea King helicopter that was ferrying equipment and personnel from a land base to the LaSalle, the command ship for the Mideast Task Force.

Pentagon officials who asked not to be named stressed that the helicopter was not engaged in any mine-sweeping operations and had not come under attack.

"This was just a routine ferry flight and something went wrong," said one source.

CBS News reported Thursday night that the helicopter's rear rotor apparently struck the ship, but Pentagon sources said they could not confirm the report.

"The only thing we know is that it went down fairly close to the ship," said a source who asked not to be identified.

The Pentagon and the U.S. Central Command, which oversees the Navy's Mideast Task Force, described the accident in a brief statement. "The helicopter was completing a routine transit from shore to the LaSalle, carrying passengers and cargo. It crashed while attempting to land....

"The guided-missile destroyer Kidd, which was operating in the area with the LaSalle, immediately launched its SH-2 Sea Sprite helicopter and vectored the Kidd and LaSalle to the sinking aircraft. The Kidd and its embarked helicopter rescued five of the men from the water...."

Reagan 'shot down' pardons for Poindexter, North

Iran-Contra Affair

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan testified today that President Reagan "shot down right away" a proposed pardon for Iran-Contra figures John Poindexter and Oliver North last December, telling aides that neither man had been accused of a crime.

Testifying for a second day at nationally televised hearings, Regan recalled the president saying, "I'll be darned if I'm going to accuse them of a crime in advance."

Regan said the subject "never came up again" in his presence, adding that Reagan "put his foot down hard."

Regan recalled the events as the congressional Iran-Contra hearings neared the end of their dramatic summer run. Regan was expected to finish testifying later in the day, with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger waiting to appear as the last witness.

Regan said he didn't "focus on the Iranian situation at all" for most of 1986, leaving Poindexter, the president's former national security adviser, on his own to manage the secret initiative of arms sales to Iran.

Regan said that during his once-a-week breakfasts with Poindexter, he discussed administrative details and presidential trips abroad — but not Iranian arms sales.

Regan made his comments to Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Fla., who said he would not engage in hindsight and second-guess Regan's actions.

Regan testified on Thursday that he didn't know until last November that proceeds from the weapons sales had been diverted to Contra rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government.

When Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, brought up the pardon, Regan said he recalled the issue arising at a meeting involving the president, Vice President George Bush and himself sometime on Dec. 8, 9 or 10 of last year.

"Somebody brought it up and it was shot down right away," Regan said.

Regan said that the pardon "was something the president wouldn't even listen to."

Special vest makes baby 'a free boy'

The Bright Side

CHICAGO (AP) — A 2½-month-old boy with birth defects including too few ribs to support his chest is "a free boy" with the help of surgery and a vest that uses carpet tape and fake skin to help him breathe, his mother said Thursday.

Christopher Suranovic was born May 19 with the rib problem, an open spine, hydrocephalus — also known as water on the brain — and club feet, said Marge Suranovic.

The threat of retardation posed by Christopher's brain condition was averted with an internal tube called a shunt that doctors implanted to drain the fluid into his stomach, she said. His spine was closed surgically and casts were put on his feet to help straighten and flatten them.

Task force may proceed without federal funds

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

A 17-county West Texas task force designed to combat narcotics trafficking may be formed even if $800,000 in federal funds is not allocated for the project, lawmen said Thursday.

"Whether we get money from the government or not, I think we can still make this thing fly," Big Spring Police Chief Joe Cook, the chairman of the task force board of directors, told more than 20 area lawmen who met in Midland.

"We perceive that we have a problem, and obviously narcotics is not a problem just in Midland or Odessa or Big Spring," Cook said at the group's third organizational meeting. "It is a cancer, and it is affecting all of us."

Several lawmen, including those in Midland, said government bodies at their local level had approved resolutions calling for the task force formation. The money, more than $9 million, will be distributed by the office of Gov. Bill Clements.

Resolutions approved by city councils or county commissioners in the 17 counties will be collected by Aug. 20 and sent to the governor's office, Cook said.

The five-man board of directors, representing each section of the region, next needs to hire a coordinator for the one-year project and form committees to draft a grant proposal, Cook said.

"We have to decide if this will be a Rambo operation that goes in and kicks doors, and picks people up," he said. "Or, is it going to be more of an intelligence operation?"

"I think the most important piece of this puzzle is the coordinator...he is going to be the one who is moving all of the checkers on the board," Cook said.

Board member Richard Czech, Midland's police chief, said the focus should be on gathering and sharing intelligence in the region, and not simply swapping personnel.

"I have people to put into it right now, but I think we need to know what the plans are — we have to have some direction," Czech said. "What we're looking at is 17 counties of intelligence to get together. That's what I've been looking at instead of shuttling people back and forth to work on little problems."

To be successful, the group should present a united front to the governor's office — and, if a grant is awarded, it will probably be about $800,000, according to Richard Kleinhans, criminal justice coordinator for the Permian Basin Law Enforcement Academy.

Reagan 'unconcerned' about removal of third skin cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, paying the price for spending long hours in the sun, will have a skin cancer removed from the tip of his nose late today.

"They have to do a little peeling here on the end of my nose," Reagan said Thursday. He said he was feeling fine and was unconcerned about today's procedure at Bethesda Naval Hospital, which will be performed with a local anesthesia that blocks pain while allowing him to remain awake.

It's the third time in two years Reagan has had skin cancer on his nose. Experts say the 76-year-old Reagan likely will have recurrences of the problem — known as a basal cell carcinoma — for the rest of his life.

Skin cancer, which affects an estimated 500,000 people a year in America, is the most common form of cancer and the most easily cured.

Reagan, an avid outdoorsman and onetime lifeguard, called attention to his problem Thursday during a speech to anti-abortion activists. Pointing to a small bandage on his nose, where a skin sample was taken a day earlier, Reagan said, "This is just a small billboard that says...'Stay out of the sun.'"

Later, Reagan joked about his nose when reporters asked him about the seriousness of the cancer.

"Oh, my nose gets laughs all the time," Reagan said. More seriously, he said he had the problem because, "I went out into the sun too much."

Experts agreed.

"Good old Ronald Reagan was out in the sun a lot with his occupation, Western movies and all," said Dr. Thomas Nigra, chief of dermatology at Washington Hospital Center. "The cowboy hat wasn't big enough. Instead of a 10-gallon hat, he needed a 20-gallon."

On the other hand, Nigra said Reagan should not become a recluse from the sun, but should use sunscreen.

"I think the rest of his life, the president will be plagued by the recurrences of these things, but not seriously," Nigra said.

A biopsy of skin taken from Reagan's nose on Wednesday determined that he had basal cell carcinoma, as he did twice in 1985. Told of the diagnosis, Reagan canceled plans for a weekend at Camp David, Md., and arranged to go to the Bethesda facility just outside Washington.

The White House left open the possibility that Reagan might spend the night at the hospital, but said that was unlikely.

U.S. delays welcome for Contra leaders

By JOHN P. WALLACH
Foreign Affairs Editor
The Hearst Newspapers

WASHINGTON — The White House has deliberately delayed until next Wednesday a red carpet welcome planned for a new Contra leadership team because it wants to remind Central American leaders, who are to meet the following day, that the Contras have the support of the United States.

A senior administration official admitted the welcome for the new Directorate of the Nicaraguan Resistance Movement was rescheduled in part because the Central American presidents have refused to allow the new Contra leadership to attend the meeting they have scheduled for August 6.

The Central American summit, to be attended by Daniel Ortega, president of the Soviet and Cuban-backed Nicaraguan government, has been called to discuss a peace plan proposed by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez. The leaders of El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Belize and Panama also will attend.

Although publicly praising Arias for his peace efforts, President Reagan and his closest Latin American advisers have privately attacked the proposal because it would require the United States to stop aid to the Contras before Nicaragua's government is required to open a dialogue with the opposition.

Administration fights gulf policy critics

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the Navy prepared to escort two reflagged Kuwaiti vessels through the hazardous Persian Gulf without benefit of mine-sweeping equipment, administration officials sought to defend themselves against sharp criticism of President Reagan's beleaguered gulf policy.

Pentagon officials say the return journey of the flotilla from Kuwait through the gulf will begin as early as this weekend, even though improvements in U.S. mine-sweeping capabilities won't be available until next week. The officials spoke Thursday only on condition they not be identified.

While the Navy is trying to improve anti-mine capability, the service also is investigating the crash Thursday of a Navy helicopter on a routine ferry flight in the gulf.

The accident killed one man, and three others were missing, the Navy said. Five men aboard the SH-3G Sea King chopper were rescued.

The cause of the accident was unknown, but it was not related to the reflagging of the Kuwaiti tankers, the Navy said. "This was just a routine ferry flight and something went wrong," one service official said.

The helicopter went down as it was trying to fly from its land base to the LaSalle, the command of the Mideast Task Force.

The LaSalle is based in Bahrain but was at sea with the USS Kidd, a destroyer which will be the command ship of the three-vessel convoy that will escort the tankers Bridgeton and the Gas Prince through the Strait of Hormuz into the Gulf of Oman.

At the Pentagon, spokesman Robert Sims responded to critics of the administration's gulf policy, saying, "This is not a simple task, and anyone who says it is a simple task hasn't really been listening to us for the last three months."

He said the ships had to traverse a distance of 683 miles. "So protecting ships going through this body of water is not an easy, simple task."

"It's a difficult task, but it's not one we should walk away from," Sims said.

He made clear he was responding to remarks made a day earlier by Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y. The congressman asserted the American people wanted Reagan to explain "what the heck is going on."

"Each year you ask us for billions of dollars for the newest and most complicated weapons, yet our military seems unable to accomplish the simplest of tasks," Schumer said.

Sims said that criticism is "demagogic."

In another development, Rep. Mike Lowry, D-Wash., said about three-dozen House members plan to file suit in federal court against Reagan's Persian Gulf policies.

The lawsuit will be filed by early next week and is intended to force Reagan to comply with the War Powers Act, Lowry said.

The War Powers Act requires the president to notify Congress within 48 hours when U.S. military forces are sent into hostile or potentially hostile situations.

Damaged Bridgeton waits to take on oil

KUWAIT (AP) — The damaged supertanker Bridgeton waited to take on oil today and the U.S. Navy continued searching for three crewmen missing in the crash of a U.S. helicopter in the Persian Gulf that left another American dead.

Choppy seas Wednesday and Thursday delayed the loading of the Bridgeton and drove it away from its moorings, but shipping sources in Kuwait said the tanker was back docked at the Sea Island terminal late Thursday after spending a night anchored 10 miles off shore.

They could not confirm if it had begun taking on oil.

American divers hunted for mines Thursday on the southbound route that the Bridgeton, Gas Prince and their U.S. Navy escorts will take through the gulf.

In Tehran today, Iranian President Ali Khamenei warned the United States to pull its forces out of the "dangerous whirlpool" of the Persian Gulf or face attack by Iran.

In the Netherlands, a Dutch foreign ministry spokeswoman said the Dutch government had refused an informal American request for naval assistance in the gulf. She said Dutch forces would be sent only as part of a United Nations peacekeeping operation.

The Thursday afternoon crash of the Navy SH-3G Sea King helicopter occurred as it was ferrying equipment and personnel to the USS La Salle, the command ship of the U.S. Mideast Task Force, the Pentagon said.

One man was killed, five men were rescued, and the search for the missing went on through the night. One of those rescued was reported in critical condition in a hospital in Bahrain.

Pentagon sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, would not confirm a CBS News report that the rear rotor of the chopper struck the ship. "The only thing we know is that it went down fairly close to the ship," said one source.

The men involved in the crash were not identified.

The Pentagon said the LaSalle and the destroyer Kidd were patrolling the central Persian Gulf. Officials would not identify the land base, but Bahrain in the central gulf is the main staging area for the task force.

The two ships apparently were near Bahrain when the accident occurred, marine salvage officials said.

The gas products carrier Gas Prince had loaded its cargo of liquefied petroleum gas and moved away from the loading dock, the sources said.

The Bridgeton, damaged July 24 when it hit a mine while traveling north through the gulf, will carry 1.82 million barrels of oil, more than two-thirds its normal capacity of 2.4 million. It takes about 26 hours to load. After passing through the Strait of Hormuz at the gulf's southern end, it is to transfer the oil to other tankers and go to drydock in Dubai or Bahrain for repairs.

Temporary repairs to the ship have been made in Kuwait, and the U.S. Coast Guard declared the 1,200-foot long ship fit to sail with a partial cargo.

The mine, which the Pentagon believes was planted by Iran, blew a 48-square-yard hole in the Bridgeton's port side and damaged four of its 31 compartments.

HEARING

The former chief of staff said Reagan's reasoning was that "you only pardon for a crime and he didn't know what the crime was."

Regan recalled that at the time, no evidence of a crime had been presented to the president, the Tower commission had not yet issued a report and congressional hearings were still months away.

"The president said not only is it premature, but I'll be darned if I'm going to accuse them of a crime in advance."

Both North, a deputy on the National Security Council staff, and Poindexter are the targets of a criminal investigation being conducted by Indeopendent Counsel Lawrence E. Walsh.

North, in earlier testimony at the hearings, has said he funneled secret military aid to the Contras during a congressional ban on direct or indirect U.S. military aid to the Nicaraguan insurgents. He also described shredding official government documents told of lyng to Congress in earlier investigations.

Poindexter reported shredding a key Iran-Contra document to spare the president political embarrassment if it became public, and said that he personally approved the diversion of arms profits to the Contras without telling the president.

North and Poindexter testified separately at the hearings earlier this summer, each with a grant of limited immunity against prosecution and with a lawyer close by their sides.

Regan sat alone at the witness table, under oath but not protected by immunity.

He testified on Thursday that he didn't know until last November that proceeds from the weapons sales had been diverted to Contra rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government.

Regan sidestepped a question on whether he believed that former CIA Director William Casey did not know of the fund diversion until last Nov. 24. Casey told him he had not known, but North has testified that Casey knew all along.

Regan said that after discussions of the Iran initiative in January 1986, he turned his attention to U.S.-Soviet relations and other issues.

"I really didn't focus on the Iranian situation at all," between February and October, he said. "I was busy on a lot of other things."

He said the exception was in May, when the president decided to send former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane on a secret negotiating trip to Iran in the hope of winning the release of five U.S. hostages from captivity in Lebanon in exchange for American-made weapons.

In his testimony on Thursday, Regan said Poindexter had misled the president and other administration officials even as he resigned in the Oval Office last Nov. 25, not telling them he had taken it upon himself to divert arms profits to the Contras.

He added that Poindexter withheld vital information when he was preparing Reagan on Nov. 18 to go before a televised news conference the next day. The result, Regan said, was that the president botched answers to several questions.

The sessions will wrap up next week with a series of CIA witnesses behind closed doors, then the panels will spend August writing a final report.

In other developments:

The Army unwittingly helped generate additional profits from the Iran arms sales when it underpriced TOW anti-tank missiles conveyed to the CIA for resale, according to a report by the House Armed Services Committee. But panel chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Army procedures make it almost impossible to find the right price, and led in this case to "soap opera-like confusion."

Conservative fund raiser Carl R. Spitz Channell, who has pleaded guilty to a charge he conspired to defraud the government in connection with his fund-raising activities for the Contras, is disputing in bankruptcy court a $40,000 bill from lobbyist Lyn Nofziger, the former White House political director recently charged with ethics law violations. Channell said he hired Nofziger for his lobbying expertise and contacts.

— Congressional investigators and the government's independent counsel in the case, Lawrence E. Walsh, are looking into the relationship between Washington lawyer Martin Artiano and David Fischer, Reagan's former personal assistant who was paid $20,000 a month by Channell to set up "thank-you" visits with the president for private donors to the Contras. Artiano, a former Reagan campaign worker, reportedly split that money with Fischer.

CRASH

Many of the bodies were burned so badly they resembled twisted charcoal statues lying on the ground. There was no way to tell whether they were men, women or children.

Along a sidewalk, rescue workers put the remains in plastic bags and lined them up to be taken away. Smoke rose from some of the bags because of the heat of the remains.

Most of the horses died in the crash, but some survived the crash were so badly burned they had to be shot by policemen with pistols.

Pieces of wreckage burned in the streets, and fire hoses snaked across the highway as ambulances and helicopters came and went carrying the dead and dying to nearby hospitals.

Nearby, the manager of the Tras Lomitas Restuarant said 200 patrons heard the plane coming and rushed into the street before it plowed into the facility. One side of the restaurant was reduced to rubble and the roof collapsed on the tables.

Jaime Alvarez said he had stopped at a gasoline station near the restaurant when he saw the plane coming overhead.

"After the crash, there was an explosion that shook many of the passing cars, other cars that were parked and of course the area near the restuarant," he said in a halting voice.

The crash site quickly filled with curious onlookers. Police repeatedly asked them to move to the side so emergency vehicles could pass.

LAWMEN

"We're headed in the right direction," Kleinhans told the group.

Smaller cities and towns, some with only one or two lawmen, should be included in the task force, one board member stressed.

"We have a tendency through some of the larger agencies...they tend to want to work in some of the larger cities, where the (drug) dollars are," Andrews County Sheriff Wayne Farmer said.

Lawmen were asked by Cook to draft a list of "possible, probable" resources, such as men and vehicles, that could be donated to the task force when it is operational.

"The only thing that limits us is imagination and effort," Cook said.

Seminole Police Chief James Clark, representing Gaines, Dawson and Andrews Counties, and David Norwood, police chief in Kermit representing Loving, Winkler, Ward, and Reeves Counties, were also selected to serve on the board.

Czech represents Midland and Ector Counties, while Chairman Cook represents Borden, Martin, Howard, and Glasscock Counties.

BABY

But Mrs. Suranovic said the real surprise was the plastic vest that freed him from a mechanical respirator for the first time since his birth and helped make it possible for him to go home July 18.

"Christopher has no more intrusive devices. He's a free boy now. He can move around real well," she said in a telephone interview from her home in suburban Blue Island. "He's a real personable, real sociable baby."

The molded plastic vest, first invented for a Toronto baby born with too few ribs, is lined with double-stick carpet tape and a type of artificial skin that can be stuck temporarily to real skin and removed with warm water.

"It's an external shell that holds the chest wall out so the child can breathe," said one of its inventors, Stewart C. Young, director of orthotics, the development of surgical devices to replace lost limbs or body functions, at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Before Christopher's chest wall collapsed when he tried to breathe because he had too few ribs to hold it out, said Young, who flew to Chicago to fit the vest at Wyler Children's Hospital when Christopher was seven weeks old.

Regan works on image at Iran-Contra hearings

Regan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donald T. Regan, his pinstripes precise and his voice hoarse, is attempting an overnight transformation of his ruined public image.

In the process, the former White House chief of staff is painting a portrait of deceit in a presidential establishment he thought he ruled, but which he says he never really did in one vital sector.

Regan was blamed widely last November when chaos exploded in the White House with the stripping away of the secrecy that had concealed from both the chief of staff and President Reagan the diversion of Iranian arms sale profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Calls for Regan's resignation sounded on Capitol Hill for weeks until he finally was forced from his job in March.

But when Regan concluded his first day of testimony before congressional Iran-Contra investigators Thursday, Senate and House members first offered compliments, then clustered around, smiling, to shake his hand.

When one of them said it was clear Regan had become "the primary fall guy" of the Iran-Contra affair, the former treasury secretary and former board chairman of the Merrill Lynch brokerage house was ready with an answer.

In a fixed wrestling match, Regan said, the fall guy was "the guy who agreed to lose. I never agreed to lose."

Some of the key participants have said they once were ready to accept the blame and "take the spears in the chest," and Regan said that wouldn't have fazed him either.

"It's knives in the back that concern me," he said.

It was Regan's reputation as an iron-willed administrator, bent on bringing all strands of White House power under his personal control, that led to accusations that he must have orchestrated the diversion.

The critics asked: How could he not have known?

To hear Regan's testimony in the Senate Caucus Room, the public perception did not fit the reality or his own concept of the job.

From the beginning, John M. Poindexter, the national security adviser, then a Navy vice admiral, had direct, immediate access to the president, one of only a handful of officials so privileged, he said. Most others saw the president only if the chief of staff approved.

But there was a flow of paperwork inside the National Security Council he said he never saw. It included a key presidential decision document on the initiative to Iran that described it as a straight arms-for-hostages swap.

Poindexter has testified he ripped up that document and had it burned.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1987

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: You will find the answers you seek when you reconnect with family and friends. Being ambitious is great so long as you recognize the boundary between fantasy and reality. There is a great deal on your mind now. Talk with a trusted confidant. Let telephone calls take the place of some of the traveling you would have done in the past. You will get the same results — and save money.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: funnyman Dom DeLuise, "Moby Dick" author Herman Melville, Tempestt Bledsoe of "The Cosby Show," dancer-choreographer-actor Geoffrey Holder, composer Francis Scott Key, fashion designer Yves St. Laurent.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Avoid impulse buying. A sale item is no bargain if you do not need it. You may feel like getting away from everything today. Try bicycling in the country.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Make sure all reservations are firm before leaving on a vacation. Discretion is still the better part of valor — no matter what your friends advise. Try to do more around the house.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will have more success if you approach a problem by the back door today. Your optimism leads you to do something that the whole family will appreciate. Share the limelight with mate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Stop judging others and concentrate on cleaning up your own act. A know-it-all attitude is unattractive. Getting regular exercise will lift your spirits. Invite a loved one to join you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make this a weekend to remember. Be creative. You now understand the value of a stable homelife. Love conquers all! Decide what you want to do and where you want to live.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Music and art help prevent mental fatigue. Play hard this weekend, but also reserve some time for quiet contemplation and sleep. Protect your privacy from nosy neighbors. Refuse to answer impertinent questions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Certain friendships are particularly helpful now. Your outlook is very optimistic. Make allowances for others' mistakes. Your mate and close friends are supportive. Forge ahead with a special project. Success beckons!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Give top priority to projects that could increase your earnings. You need to check your insurance coverage if you have a new addition to the family. Make allowances for loved one's mistakes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Let mate or partner know your true feelings. Examine your motives and aim high. Romance will develop naturally if given half a chance. Play a waiting game. Postpone making major business decisions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone asks for special help. Give it if you can do so without straining your family's finances. A college-bound youngster gets last-minute financial help. Family matters require more of your time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Romance begins to settle down. You feel less frantic. Those closest to your heart know your affection for them. Domestic life is more relaxed than in the recent past. Be considerate.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Travel provides a welcome change of scenery. Try to get together with old friends and former neighbors. A peaceful atmosphere contributes to happy romance. Avoid petty squabbles.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

HUGE PENALTY FOR NO CRIME

Both vulnerable. North deals.

	NORTH ♠ K 9 6 2 9 7 6 3 A 9 8 2 ♣ 8
WEST ♠ J 8 5 4 Void K J 10 6 3 ♣ A K 7 4		EAST ♠ 10 7 3 A K 4 Q 4 ♣ Q J 10 6 2
	SOUTH ♠ A Q Q J 10 8 5 2 7 5 ♣ 9 5 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♠	1	2
4	Dbl	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣

In Gilbert & Sullivan's The Mikado, the Lord High Executioner sets out "to make the punishment fit the crime." That is laudable, but who will take up the cudgels for those who commit no crime yet have to pay a substantial penalty? We sympathize with West on this deal, but the Laws of Contract Bridge do not allow us to offer him any other balm.

First, let's consider the auction. West's cue-bid of two hearts was impeccable by any standards. When North raised preemptively to four hearts, East cannot be blamed for doubling. After all, his only quick tricks were in the opponents' suit, so the chances of his side making 11 tricks at a minor-suit contract, or 10 at no trump, seemed remote. Actually, four no trump might have been a winning decision (it would take a spade lead to defeat it). West had no choice but to respect his partner's double.

This will not be a long column, because the play was soon over. West made a normal lead of the king of clubs, then shifted to a diamond. Too late. Declarer rose with the ace, cashed the ace-queen of spades and entered dummy by ruffing a club. He discarded a diamond on the king of spades, then ruffed a diamond in hand and a club in dummy. He was quite happy to surrender two trump tricks—making four hearts doubled.

The only thing West did wrong was not being blessed with X-ray vision. Had he had the ability to see the whole hand, he would have led a diamond initially rather than a club. That would have made a world of difference. Now declarer has no quick entry to the table to take a diamond discard on the king of spades, so he has four losers.

Would you debit West with a rubber swing because of his choice of opening lead?

WATCHES

Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

If you need a good helper, try advertising in our classifieds. Who knows? You may spark the beginning of something big!

Captain Kangaroo undergoes surgery

Bob Keeshan

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Keeshan, who played Captain Kangaroo on television for nearly 30 years, is doing well after undergoing triple by-pass surgery a week ago, his surgeon says.

"He's a perfect patient," Dr. E. Stanley Crawford said Thursday. "He looks good and says he feels great."

Keeshan, 60, underwent the coronary artery by-pass operation July 23 at Methodist Hospital, and he should be returning to his Long Island, N.Y., home this weekend, said Ruth Manecke, his spokeswoman.

"He's just fine," Ms. Manecke said. "He's called his office and is coming home in a few days."

Keeshan's doctor in New York had recommended he undergo the operation, and it was not an emergency, hospital spokeswoman Brenda Blake said. Keeshan suffered a heart attack in 1981.

The actor and producer has had no complications, hospital officials said.

Alley

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Kirstie Alley is off to a flying start on NBC-TV's "Cheers" after showing up for her first rehearsal as a Shelley Long lookalike.

"I wanted to break the ice and get off to a fresh start," said Alley, who broke up the cast with laughter as she paraded in a blond wig and a conservative dress with her eyebrows colored blond and with makeup to look like Miss Long.

Miss Long quit the popular series to pursue a motion picture career.

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

The Supreme Executive Council authorized payment to doorkeeper Frederick Sneider of 15 pounds, 10 shillings and 10 pence for July's salary and 9 pence for a pint mug.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

Congress assembled, eight states and Mr. Varnum of Rhode Island present. They heard numerous reports, including one from the Board of Treasury on money to redeem Algerian captives (two captains, four mates and 15 seamen). The going ransom was $6,000 for a captain, $4,000 for a mate and $1,500 for a seaman.

CONVENTION TODAY

The Convention remained in recess while its Committee of Detail drafted a Constitution for its further consideration.

DELEGATES TODAY

George Washington's diary entry describes his day:

"Whilst Mr. Morris was fishing I rid over the old Cantonment of the American (army) of the Winter 1777, & 8. Visited all the Works, wch. were in Ruins, and the Incampments in woods where the ground had not been cultivated.

"On my return back to Mrs. Moores, observing some Farmers at Work, and entering into Conversation with them, I received the following information with respect to the mode of cultivating Buck Wheat, and the application of the grain. Viz. — The usual time of sowing, is from the 10th. to the 20th. of July — on two plowings and as many harrowings at least — The grain to be harrowed in. That it is considered as an uncertain Crop being subject to injury by a hot sun whilst it is in blossom and quickly destroyed by frost, in Autumn — and that 25 bushls. is estimated as an average Crop to the Acre. That it is considered as an excellent food for horses, to puff and give them their first fat-Milch cattle, Sheep, and Hogs and also for fatting Beeves....

"On my return to Mrs. Moores I found Mr. Robt. Morris & his lady there."

LOOKING BACK
A Dignified Visitor in a Plain Suit of Black

Writing in 1850, Henry Woodman, a Revolutionary War soldier, recalled his father's charming remembrance of an encounter with Gen. Washington at Valley Forge in the summer of 1787.

"It was in the afternoon of the day, and (he) observed an elderly person of a very dignified appearance, dressed in a plain suit of black, on horseback, accompanied by a black waiter, ride to a place in the road opposite to him, where he alighted from his horse and came into the field to him, and shaking hands cordially with him, told him he had called to make some inquiry of him, concerning the owners and occupants of the different places about there, and also in regard to the system of farming practices in that part of the country, the kinds of grain and vegetables raised, the time of sowing and planting, the best method of tilling the ground, the quantity raised, and numerous other things relative to farming and agriculture, and asking after some families in the neighborhood. As answers were given he noted them down in a memorandum book.

"My father informed him that he was unable to give as correct information as he could wish, as he had not been brought up to the farming business, and was not a native of that part of the country, having settled there since the war, that he came from North Carolina, where he resided previous to the Revolution, that he had been in the army and was one of the number encamped there during the war.

"This gave a new turn to the conversation. The stranger informed him that he had also been in the army and encamped there, and was expecting in a few months to leave the city of Philadelphia, with no prospect of ever returning. He had taken a journey to visit the place, view the old encampment ground, which had been the scene of so much suffering and distress, and see how far the inhabitants were recovering from the disasters they had experienced, and the losses they had sustained from that event, adding that his name was George Washington.

"Upon receiving this information, my father told him that his costume and appearance were so altered that he did not recognize him, or he would have paid more respect to his old Commander and the Chief Magistrate of the Union. He replied that to see the people happy and satisfied, and the desolate fields recovering from the disasters they had experienced, and particularly to meet with any old companion of his in arms and suffering now peacefully engaged in the most useful of all employments, afforded him more real satisfaction than all the servile homage that could be paid to his person or station.

"He then asked his name, noted it in his memorandum book, and...taking him by the hand bade him an effectionate farewell."

Hobby decision sets Demo course

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's announced decision not to seek elective office in 1990 throws an interesting light on the Democratic Primary. Hobby, who has served as the state's second-in-command since 1973, has come to be known as the voice of the Democratic Party in Texas.

Actually Hobby has been even more than that in his years in public service. He has become the state's foremost advocate of higher education and effective spokesman for improved state services for the needy — at a time when it was not politically safe to walk those roads. And he became a craftsman of state government. In fact, we're inclined to echo the sentiments of State Comptroller Bob Bullock, who said:

"Bill Hobby knows more about state government than any person alive. His record will be unequaled for decades to come and I suspect his talents will be sorely missed."

No doubt Bullock's comments are accurate. Bill Hobby embodies a wealth of experience in the daily operation of the state government and that knowledge and expertise cannot be lost without a detrimental impact.

But in the last few years the Democratic Party in this state has been undergoing a marked change, evolving if you will and embracing a new constituency. No longer is it the old Democratic Party of Texas' yesteryear that featured relatively distinct liberal, moderate and conservative "wings." Rather, much of the "old" Democratic Party has died as a result of conservatives and conservative-leaning moderates bailing out because of ideological rifts and, additionally, fractionalizing among those remaining. What's left, in fact, doesn't even resemble the Democratic Party that virtually ruled Texas during its heydey.

Bill Hobby is one of those Democrats the evolving party appeared to largely leave behind. Yet during his years in office Hobby, son of a former Texas governor and political power, helped provide a stabilizing force for Texas Democrats. It had been assumed by many Texas political observers for years that Hobby eventually would seek the state's highest political office and follow in his father's footsteps. Now, by bowing out of an anticipated gubernatorial bid in 1990 and, furthermore, indicating he will leave public office, Hobby has given to the future Democratic Party added incentive to reach out to find new leaders and new direction.

Certainly there are capable Democrats who can ably fill the void left by Hobby's departure. Some already known to be interested in the state's top leadership positions are Atty. Gen. Jim Mattox and San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros. Other Democratic leaders include State Comptroller Bob Bullock and State Treasurer Ann Richards. Together they'll help mold the Democratic Party of Texas' future.

In the interest of keeping Texas a viable two-party state, Democrats need to do exactly that.

Another View:

Forced retirement

One of the anomalies of last year's tax reform is that it left at least one group still paying marginal tax rates of 50 percent to 100 percent — the working elderly middle class. In effect, it amounts to a system of forced retirement, long before many older Americans are ready to retire.

Under present Social Security law, any retirement-age person who earns more than $6,000 a year (from age 62-64) or $8,160 (for those age 65-69 has to give up $1 in Social Security benefits for each $2 in earnings.

That's a 50-percent marginal tax rate on top of whatever other taxes the elderly worker must pay. Before tax reform, the total marginal rate reached as much as 104 percent for those in the 50-percent income tax bracket.

Federal income tax reform will cut that average by about 7 percentage points. In 1990 the Social Security earnings penalty will fall from 50 percent to 33 percent. But this still will leave those elderly who need or choose to work paying tax rates of well above 50 percent on median incomes.

In a nation where labor shortages are now developing (because of the "birth dearth"), such a penalty makes no sense. We are glad to see that some in Congress agree with the Social Security Administration, which wants to kill it altogether for those from age 65 to 69.

SSA estimates that this will increase benefits for approximately one million beneficiary families that now lose some benefits due to earning more than the limit. It also would add about one million new beneficiary families that now get no benefits because their earnings are too high.

Lest you think this is all "rich folks," the median income of those in the first income group is $27,700. The median of the second group is $37,700. Two-thirds of the added benefits of eliminating the test would go to those earning less than $40,000 a year.

In order to offset this surge in benefits, SSA proposes to increase Social Security payments for those who defer retirement. Presently a retiree's benefits are increased 3 percent for every year they wait to retire after age 65. Under the SSA proposal, the increase would be 8 percent. This incentive to delay retirement was scheduled to take place in 1990 anyway under the 1983 Social Security reforms.

The net effect of all this would be to increase Social Security outlays by about $12.3 billion over the next five years, or about $2.5 billion a year. But SSA says $12.2 billion would save about $200 million a year in administrative costs involved in managing the vast complexities in the present earnings test law.

This sounds like a pretty good deal to us. The administration and Congress don't accept SSA's claim that the changes would pay for themselves, but the idea deserves a fair hearing. The present system forces many people to retire from work before they want to. Work is important to many of the elderly, who are living longer. They shouldn't be faced with confiscatory tax for remaining productive.

NIS uses 'TV cop' questioning methods

WASHINGTON — Every TV viewer is familiar with the "good cop, bad cop" technique used by police interrogators to disarm their suspects. Some agents of the Naval Investigative Service have apparently been watching too much television.

Jack Anderson

As we've reported, the same organization of supersleuths that brought you the botched investigation of the Moscow Marine guards also mishandled earlier, less notorious cases by trampling on the rights of suspects. We detailed the harassment-by-investigation of Tim Reid, a civilian Navy engineer who incurred the wrath of the brass by blowing the whistle on multimillion-dollar waste in a submarine overhaul project.

One NIS investigation involved an alleged "death threat" of comic-book proportions against Reid's Navy superior, complete with mysterious note, a broken Darth Vader cup and an ace of spades. It also involved interrogation of Reid. He declined to be buffaloed, and the Navy dropped the bizarre charge.

But the interrogators did their good-cop-bad-cop best, according to Reid. He described to our reporter Daniel Kaufman the alternate browbeating and sweet-talking that he said characterized their attempts to wring a confession out of him.

They tried to win his confidence by saying repeatedly, "We are on your side," he recalled, adding: "They make statements like, 'It's in your best interests to (confess). It would be better for your career to admit to it.' "

Meanwhile, Reid said, "they refuse to tell you anything," claiming it would jeopardize their sources and the investigation. The NIS agents took only "selected" notes during the interrogation, Reid said, and never gave him an opportunity to review them for accuracy.

Reid's lawyer, John Shiposki, who has dealt with NIS agents for five years, said they routinely violate military regulations. "They put employees in pressure situations, threaten and intimidate them, and say they are not entitled to a union representative," Shiposki said. "Rules say the lawyer has a right to be part of the questioning."

We've learned of another defendant who says the Naval Investigative Service did a job on him: Ronald Ashley, a former Marine private at New River, N.C. He was convicted of transmitting a bomb threat in 1982.

At the time of the bomb threat, Ashley was waiting for his requested honorable discharge to be processed. Instead, he was interrogated by an NIS agent and signed a confession. He was then court-martialed, convicted and given a dishonorable discharge.

In the agent's eyes "I was guilty before I walked in," Ashley told us, adding: "He said the discharge was sitting on the table for me — if I just admit I did it."

At Ashley's court-martial, his lawyer pointed out that the NIS agent had interrogated only one suspect, had failed to ask Ashley for evidence that would corroborate his confession, and relied solely on his own recollection of the interview instead of using a tape recorder. A Navy spokesman confirmed that this last practice is common.

Louis Font, a military appeals lawyer, told us he has no doubt that one of the Moscow Marines, Cpl. Arnold Bracy, would have been court-martialed if there hadn't been such extensive publicity. "NIS is used to military juries believing them," he said. "The statements of what they say during an interrogation shade the truth." (All charges against Bracy were dropped last month.)

The Navy spokesman, Lt. Ken Ross, acknowledged that the NIS is "taking a beating" on the Moscow embassy case, but said that in some "difficult" situations the investigators must first get a confession and then "work backward" to gather substantiating evidence. "You take what you can get when you can get it," he said.

Attorney Shiposki was harder on the Naval Investigative Service. He said it is "management's way of getting rid of undesirables."

MINI-EDITORIAL — Ever since the War Department disappeared into the Defense Department, we've been bemused by the public-relations spin that organizations try to put on their image by the choice of title. Take the Coalition Against Nuclear Annihilation, for example. Sounds like a bunch of bearded, barefoot peaceniks, right? In fact, it's a conservative group formed to support President Reagan's controversial anti-missile project — which the president calls the Strategic Defense Initiative, his critics call Star Wars — and the coalition calls Peace Shield. What's in a name, indeed?

Baker strategy causing concern on GOP right

WASHINGTON — Out of the fear and loathing that permeates the Republican Right, a secret strategy session of national conservative leaders here last week concluded that White House lethargy in pressing the Bork confirmation betrays an attempt to save the Supreme Court vacancy for none other than chief of staff Howard Baker.

The assembled conservatives, from Washington and around the country, lacked any proof. Such a plot would be totally out of character for the former Senate majority leader. Even if Judge Robert Bork is not confirmed and Baker should be named in the Reagan administration's closing months as a nominee sure to be confirmed, there almost surely is no conspiracy.

Yet, beyond right-wing paranoia, the Baker fear exposes two realities: that there is widespread discontent with the pace of the Bork confirmation campaign and that the Right's confidence in the White House is at a point lower than any reached in the previous two staffs of the Reagan presidency.

The complaint is simple. Under Baker, the White House seeks to conciliate rather than confront the intensely-partisan Democratic Congress. While the gentlemanly pace of the Bork campaign is the main grievance, the list grows.

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

Item: When White House domestic policy chief Gary Bauer tried to hire veteran Senate Republican staffer William Gribbin as his deputy, he was vetoed by the senior staff. As in Kafka, there was no accuser, no crime. Who objected and why were secrets.

Item: The White House did not interfere when Jo Ann Gasper, a leading anti-abortion activist, was fired as an assistant secretary at Health and Human Services. (Now, she is about to be hired by Secretary William J. Bennett at the Department of Education.)

Item: Appointment to the AIDS advisory commission of Dr. Frank Lilly, a gay activist, has illuminated the White House switchboard with protests. The compensating selection of conservative Cardinal John O'Connor of New York was made only after serious opposition from senior presidential aides.

But it is the Bork fight, or lack of it, that most concerns the Right. Despite Justice Department experience managing judicial confirmations, it has been cut out of this climactic struggle.

The avowed reason is that Attorney General Edwin Meese III, as the target of two special prosecutors, is a liability. But bad blood runs between Justice and the White House. Meese's problems aside, presidential aides say Assistant Attorney General John R. Bolton's hard-nosed style might break too much china in the Senate shop.

That attitude sums up what's wrong in the opinion of Justice officials who say nothing is being done at the White House. Avoidance of head-on collisions with Congress, a tactic of chief presidential lobbyist Will Ball, means that confrontational ventures by administration conservatives Bennett and Bauer are deplored.

Bennett's call for Sen. Joseph Biden to recuse himself from presiding over Judiciary Committee hearings on grounds of prejudice found no public resonance in the White House. Nor did Bauer's chiding of Democratic senators for their failure to distance themselves from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's assault on Bork (though Baker himself thought Bauer was on the right track).

Senate minority leader Robert J. Dole, who first harbored misgivings about Bork's "confirmability," is fully on board and has expressed private concern about White House mismanagement. That concern helped build the fear among conservatives about what Howard Baker and his staff are up to.

The answer surely is that there is no plot to subvert the wishes of the president. Aware of whom the American people elected, Baker has been circumspect in respecting the wishes and philosophy of his former rival and present chief. But Ronald Reagan is a president who relies on his staffers for strategy and tactics in putting his wishes into effect, and the Baker way has planted ugly suspicions on the Right.

Reagan's to blame for public's lost faith

NEW YORK — Is President Reagan telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about the Iran-contra fiasco? Polls suggest that a majority of Americans doubt it. For that, Reagan has no one to blame but himself.

Tom Wicker

Last week's New York Times-CBS News Poll, for example, showed that 53 percent of the respondents did not believe the president's insistence that he was not informed about the diversion to the contras of profits from the Iranian arms sales.

Well, why should they believe him?

— His chosen national security adviser, John Poindexter, did tell the congressional committees that he made the decision to divert the funds and did not tell Reagan; but Poindexter also admitted lying and withholding information from Congress and other officials, and on 184 occasions told the committees that he couldn't remember various events and actions, some quite recent. The admiral's credibility is nil.

— Former national security advisers including Henry Kissinger and Brent Scowcroft said they found it hard to believe that Poindexter could or would have made such a momentous decision on his own.

— When disclosure of the diversion forced Reagan to demand the admiral's resignation, the president did not ask his departing national security adviser who had authorized the diversion, or how it had come about, or anything about it, even though the issue endangered his entire administration.

— Reagan himself claims not to remember signing an arms-for-hostages intelligence finding that Poindexter later destroyed to prevent embarrassment to the president.

— The larger story that has unfolded before the congressional committees has been one of administration officials who engaged in repeated lies, distortions, half-truths, withholding of information and attempts to mislead, with even Secretary of State George Shultz — so he testified — among the victims.

Trying to deal with what is described as Reagan's "growing frustration" at the public's unwillingness to believe him, the White House spokesman recalled the Tower Commission's statement that the president "did not, we believe, intend to mislead the American public or cover up unlawful conduct."

The Tower report, however, by the commission's own statement and as shown by later congressional inquiry, was not a complete account. Besides, whatever Reagan's intent as to "unlawful conduct," there's no real doubt that he and his associates did intend to "mislead the public":

— They said they would not pay ransom for hostages when in fact they were trying to trade arms for hostages.

— They said they would not sell arms to Iran when in fact they were selling thousands of TOW and Hawk missiles to Iran (though after the sales were disclosed, Reagan personally said that all the arms sold could be carried in one cargo plane).

— They said they were obeying the "letter and spirit" of the Boland Amendment (restricting aid to the contras) when in fact they were circumventing it in numerous ways.

Colonel North and Poindexter, if not Reagan, no doubt would argue that all this was necessary to protect "covert operations" that they believe advanced the national interest. It's hard to see how they did, or could have; but in any case the root of the administration's problem lies in those "covert operations" and not in Congress or the press.

These were secret activities concealed from Congress, insufficiently debated within the administration, heavily dependent upon non-official people and foreigners, and ordered by the president over the protests of the secretaries of state and defense. He knew these operations confounded his own public policies, and forced him to lie to the world; if disclosed, which was all but inevitable, they were bound to damage if not destroy his credibility. Reagan ordered them carried out anyway.

None of this necessarily means that the president was told of the diversion to the contras, or that either he or Poindexter is lying on that particular point. It all does mean that the public can hardly be blamed for its loss of faith in the credibility of this administration, including that of Ronald Reagan.

Events and testimony to Congress, in fact, have only confirmed what I said of Reagan in this column last Nov. 28, as the scandal was breaking open:

"He won't again lead the public by virtue of its unmarred trust in him ... Humpty Dumpty can't be put back together again."

Gulf losses compared to fatal Iran rescue mission

By BRYAN BRUMLEY

An Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — What began as a Reagan administration effort to show resolve in the Persian Gulf is bringing back memories of President Carter's failure in using military muscle against Iran.

On Thursday, the U.S. fleet in the gulf recorded more casualties — one man killed and three missing when a Navy SH-3G helicopter crashed on what Pentagon officials called a routine ferry flight.

In other words, it was an accident that could have happened anywhere, anytime. But it happened in the Persian Gulf as U.S. forces again grappled with Iran, the nation which defied American military might by holding 52 U.S. hostages from late 1979 to 1981.

Carter's effort to rescue the hostages failed spectacularly, leaving eight American servicemen dead in a fiery helicopter accident in the Iranian desert.

The helicopter crash Thursday recalls the haunting images of the "Desert One" rescue mission and raises the same questions posed a week ago, when the Bridgeton, one of two reflagged Kuwaiti tankers under U.S. escort, struck a mine, and on May 17, when two Iraqi missiles hit the USS Stark, killing 37 American sailors.

Why are we risking U.S. lives in a faraway place and why can't our mighty military cope?

The answer to the first question is that in part because of U.S. initiatives in the gulf and at the United Nations, the international effort to contain Iran appears to be growing. But it is by no means clear whether it will succeed in pressuring Iran to observe norms of international behavior.

Iranian officials attribute the mine which struck the tanker Bridgeton to the "hand of God," but U.S. analysts blame Iran's unpredictable Revolutionary Guards.

No one outside Tehran knows whether the regime of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini will take a crack at the next U.S. ships to pass by.

But Khomeini is persistent, and he may well seize the chance to bash the "Great Satan" and continue the war he has vowed to wage until Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein leaves office.

It would be less consistent, and unexpected, for Iran to forgo an attack, thereby signaling its willingness to end the war with Iraq, prolong the unofficial cease-fire in the gulf "tanker war" and embrace the armistice endorsed by the U.N. Security Council.

Few Americans are calling for the administration to cut its losses in the gulf and abandon Kuwait. But many are puzzled by the administration's inability to articulate its goals.

Others are asking why the administration, which has devoted a trillion dollars to rebuilding American defenses, doesn't have what it needs in the gulf.

The lack of U.S. mine-sweeping capability in the gulf, and the perceived unwillingness of Kuwait to help, sparked criticism in Congress.

"What the heck is going on?" said Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y. "Thus far, our multibillion-dollar, 600-ship Navy has been unable to deal with the antiquated air force of a third-rate power and the leftover World War II vintage mines of a medieval dictatorship."

Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims lashed back at such "demagogic" criticism.

"We're talking about a track of 683 statute miles" from the mouth of the Persian Gulf to Kuwait, Sims said. "So protecting ships going through this body of water is not an easy, simple task. It is a little bit disturbing to see someone, in a rather demagogic way, criticize the president and criticize our military for not being able to perform a simple task when the task isn't simple."

And he rebuffed complaints from Rep. James A. Traficant, D-Ohio, and others who asked why Kuwait was balking at allowing U.S. mine-sweeping helicopters to operate from Kuwaiti territory.

Kuwait had not been asked for basing rights, Sims said, and "We have no complaints about their cooperation."

Pro-abortion groups up in arms over plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of Planned Parenthood charged today that President Reagan's plan to end the use of federal family planning assistance money for abortion counseling and referral is politically motivated.

Faye Wattleton, president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, also said the orders announced Thursday are an attempt to appease pro-life groups.

"These regulations are politically motivated and only designed to give satisfaction to the anti-abortion extremists in this country," Ms. Wattleton said on NBC-TV's "Today" show. "The programs that Mr. Reagan has attacked...have not been violating the law."

But the president of one of those groups, National Right-to-Life, praised Reagan's decision.

"What President Reagan is saying is that he wants to return the federal family planning program to its original intent," said Dr. John C. Willke, who was interviewed on the same program.

"All that family planning funds for contraception can still go to groups like Planned Parenthood if they get out of the baby-killing business and referring for that," he said.

On Thursday, Reagan said he had ordered Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen to propose rules "to ensure that no Title X funds go to any program that encourages, promotes or advocates abortion, or which assists a women in obtaining an abortion." Title X is part of the Public Health Act.

He also said he had told the department to draft a proposal to eliminate language in Title X that requires recipients of federal funds to suggest abortion as an alternative for the pregnant.

Ms. Wattleton also promised court action to block Reagan's plan.

"We will go to the hearts and minds of people," she said Thursday. "But we will also go through the judicial process."

The specific changes Reagan suggested include these:

— Rules governing disbursement of federal family assistance money should "specifically state that a program that does provide counseling and referral for abortion services as a method of family planning will not be eligible."

— Regulations covering Title X grants would be revised so that "any organization that provides abortion-related services will be required to clearly separate these services" from programs for which federal money is used.

— There would be a cessation of federal financial support for "activities that advocate abortion."

"We believe this is an outrageous assault on the women of this country and specifically the poor women and the young women of this country for whom this program is designed to serve," said Ms. Wattleton.

Reagan said he also has ordered Surgeon General Everett C. Koop to prepare "a comprehensive medical report on the health effects, mental and physical, of abortion on women," although there was no indication of when the study should be completed.

Scott R. Swirling, executive director of the National Family Planning and Reproductive Health Association, said Reagan is seeking to impose "ill-conceived, misguided, untenable and illegal, unconstitutional regulations on the family planning program."

Patricia Ireland, executive vice president of the National Organization for Women, said the plan is "a desperation move. It's a lame-duck presidency, it's a discredited administration. We don't believe they're going to be successful."

In Congress, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Labor and Human Resources Committee, accused the Reagan administration of grandstanding on the abortion issue.

"All this new rule would do is undermine a physician's duty to tell the truth," Kennedy said at a hearing on renewal of the $142 million family planning program. "The administration doesn't seem to be listening to its own cabinet officials."

Wage gap between men, women reaches new low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uneven percentage increases in weekly paychecks for men and women have reduced the gender wage gap to a new low, according to figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Women working full-time now make 71 percent as much as men, up from 70 percent a year ago and 62 percent in 1979, the bureau reported Thursday.

Overall, weekly paychecks generally are keeping up with inflation as the nationwide median for full-time workers climbed to $371 in the second quarter of 1987 compared to the same period in 1986, the bureau said.

Women, whose growth among the legions of full-time workers was about 2-to-1 over men in the past year, saw an average increase of $12 in their paychecks, raising their median gross wages to $302, the bureau said. Weekly paychecks for men working 35 hours a week or more rose an average $11 to a $427 median during the same 12 months.

AIDS measure still tough

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional proposal to step up voluntary AIDS testing won't deny states the chance to enact stricter provisions such as mandatory testing to halt the spread of AIDS, sponsors of the legislation say.

The bill, introduced Thursday in the House and Senate, would authorize $400 million a year for three years for widespread, voluntary counseling and testing for antibodies to the AIDS virus.

"This bill would not preclude the states from deciding on mandatory testing," said Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce health subcommittee.

Waxman, chief sponsor of the House bill, said states also could set up a reporting system, require tracing of a victim's sexual contacts, or use other means to fight the disease.

FDA criticized on chemical

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group says the Food and Drug Administration is protecting the wine and liquor industry from regulation rather than shielding people from dangerous products such as a cancer-causing chemical.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest on Thursday charged that several wines and distilled spirits are contaminated with the chemical urethane, which has caused cancer in animals.

"We deplore FDA's refusal to take interim measures to protect consumers from this cancer risk while the alcoholic beverage industry seeks an ultimate solution to the problem," the group said in a letter to FDA Commissioner Frank E. Young.

FDA spokesman Jim Greene said his agency has been working on the problem and expects to reach a solution this year. Urethane, which occurs naturally in some types of alcoholic beverages, is not considered an imminent hazard as long as people drink alcohol in moderation, he said.

Course gives biblical view of sexuality

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Teaching human sexuality with the Bible as the textbook may seem like an impossible thing to some.

But Linda Goddard, founder of the Christian Life Enrichment Resources Ministries, found out five years ago that it's the only way to go.

Mrs. Goddard became distressed five years ago when she learned her tenth-grade daughter had not been and would not be taught any sort of sex education in the local school system.

So she introduced a watered-down version of a human sexuality course in the Presbyterian Sunday school class she taught at the time and voila — a tradition was born.

That notion has evolved into a course that has reached almost 300 Midland teens, and has been given a second $2,775 continuing education grant from the Midland Association of Churches, Mrs. Goddard said Thursday.

The classes deal with some of the tamer aspects of human sexuality — love and marriage, dating, peer pressure and infertility.

However, her curriculum stretches into what some parents or religions may see as more controversial, such as abortion, birth control and homosexuality, she said.

All facets of human sexuality, however, are taught with a warning, she explained.

"My class is based on a spiritual overview...that God created man and woman and sexuality for pleasure and procreation," Mrs. Goddard said.

"Our curriculum could not be used in the more fundamental religions because we don't say, 'God is keeping score and you're going to pay through the nose for whatever you do.'"

Mrs. Goddard said she believes God gave "his children" free will and choice and that he would be there to forgive them if they fell from the course the Bible outlines.

She teaches children that God had a plan for all of his people — a plan which suggested, among other things, one not have sexual relations before marriage or get divorced.

"But what we do here is tell them that if you fall off the plan, here's what you should know and expect."

Birth control classes consist of what she calls "intimate and powerful" discussions. "It's also very messy."

Condoms, contraceptive foams and sponges and birth control pills are passed around the class, she said.

"Most of the boys think the pill is the great answer to birth control after they see all the messy ways," Mrs. Goddard said.

"But...we take the class through the pelvic examination the girl has to go through before getting her prescription and what exactly the doctor does to her."

The outcome of the birth control class is that the boys and girls realize they must have to have a very close relationship to discuss these matters, Mrs. Goddard said.

Should the class not adhere to the birth control chapter, a class on abortion soon follows.

"We don't show the graphic videos on abortion," she said.

Instead, a video showing the actual union of the sperm and the ovum, and its implantation inside the woman's uterus is viewed by the class.

"Most are squirming by the time it's over."

After the video, a class discussion follows that tosses around the kids' ideas of when the "life" began, Mrs. Goddard said.

About 95 percent of the class usually says life begins when the sperm and the ovum unite, she said, with the other five percent believing it begins when the fertilized egg is implanted in the uterus.

"It's a real hard pick for them," she said.

That abortion is considered by many to be killing a human life is a topic often brought up by class members.

"I tell them what I think God meant for us to do but I also stress strongly in this chapter that God is loving and forgiving and there's not anything he won't forgive you for.

"But I try to teach them to not let themselves get into that position."

Discussing homosexuality is "absolutely essential," Mrs. Goddard explained.

"I help children understand that all of us are children of God. To this day, we don't know why we are heterosexual or homosexual.

"Through no choice of their own, a homosexual is the way he or she is. But often we don't afford them the forgiveness we do someone who's gotten a divorce, though God comes down on that in the New Testament as well," Mrs. Goddard explained.

"I'm moving the chapter on AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) out of the homosexual chapter because I don't want them to think it's just a 'gay' disease," she added.

Speaking broadly of her course, Mrs. Goddard said boys and girls don't understand that they view sexuality differently.

"Boys think girls want sex all the time (as they do) and girls think the boys are thinking of the house with the picket fence," she said.

"But if God made everyone think like the male, sex would be just a 'slam-bam' thing. If he made everyone think like the female, it would be too much trouble to have sex," she said.

Her class is taught that "males must slow down and bring the female along, but that the female must open up and relax," she said.

"But the giving of this is the most intimate part and works best in a committed relationship."

Classes are taught in four Midland churches — Episcopalian, Lutheran, Methodist and Presbyterian, Mrs. Goddard said.

She has taught scholarship classes for underprivileged children at Casa de Amigos as well.

Enrollment for the four upcoming human sexuality classes will begin on Saturday.

The classes are limited to 20 ninth graders and cost $50 per student, although some financial help is available, she said.

One can call 697-5078 for more information, she said.

Upon graduation from the 15-week course, children are given a "dating license," Mrs. Goddard said.

"At first we thought it was a joke, but we were serious as well. The expiration date is marriage."

Parents attack 'deceitful' policy of radio station

By RICK BROWN
Assistant City Editor

"Deceitful" and "creating a gap between parents and youth" is how concerned parents this week characterized a suggestive song's radio airplay that executives admit they cue toward times when mostly kids are listening.

But KWES radio executives in Odessa countered that their timing of a song by British pop star George Michael, "I Want Your Sex" — Billboard magazine's No. 2 song this week — is simply part of the game of radio economics.

"I sympathize with those people, but I cannot program for a 6 year old — as crass as it sounds — and make any money," said Mike Deardorff, general manager of KWES radio in Odessa, after hearing the parents' letter of protest.

Gardendale mother Susan Price, 30, who drafted the letter, said she first became aware of the song last Friday while working at her Enron Corp. office job in Midland.

A co-worker told a group of Enron workers they "had" to hear the song, and the workers called in a request to KWES about 4:30 p.m.

Putting the call on a speaker phone, they heard Disc Jockey Jim Scott say he was unable to play the song at that time, Mrs. Price said. "He just spelled it out point blank."

Parents would be listening at the late afternoon hour, she understood the DJ to say, and the song was reserved for later nighttime play when parents' ears tend to be tuned elsewhere.

"There were parents in that room whose blood pressure went sky high," said Mrs. Price, mother of a 11-year-old boy and 13-year-old girl.

Scott Thursday acknowleged talking to the Enron workers. "I was trying to give them a story that would shut them up and get them off the phone and not leave them PO'd," he said.

The strategy failed to have its desired effect. Mrs. Price was so concerned that she drafted a letter of protest and solicited 18 signatures from friends and neighbors.

Deardorff said that what Mrs. Price understood as station policy is really a function of the competitive Midland-Odessa radio market.

The station targets an audience of 18 to 34 year olds, he said. To reach the maximum number of listeners, "harder" sounding songs like "I Want Your Sex" are scheduled for later in the day and into the night.

"If the decision was made by the program manager to only play that song at night, it's because of the 'temperature' of the music, not the lyrics," the general manager said.

Mrs. Price does not believe the song itself should be banned, she said, but that the policy should be changed so she can have the opportunity to listen to the tune and discuss its message with her children.

"I don't want to say to them that you can't listen to this radio station or you can't listen to that song," she said. "But if we can discuss it, I think it will be OK."

While the mother was unable to hear the song that Friday, her daughter called it to her attention the next day when it came on the radio.

"I've heard worse," she said of the tune, but "it's definitely what I would call controversial.

"It's a song that I believe I need to discuss with my pre-teen and teenager," she said.

"We talked about it over and over — about sexual promiscuity — and she knows that premarital sex is wrong, and this song promotes premarital sex."

That point also was disputed by both the station manager and the DJ. They contended that "I Want Your Sex" is a song promoting "safe sex" and monogamous relationships. They quoted a section of the song's lyrics: "Sex is best one on one."

However, "I did not get the impression it's a song promoting safe sex," said Mrs. Price.

"For 13 year olds, the promotion of any kind of sex is against everything I stand for," she said. "I don't think KWES understands what ages of kids listen to the radio — 9, 10, 11-year-olds."

NETWORK tryout slated for meeting

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — A demonstration of the NETWORK international trade lead system by the executive director of the Houston World Trade Association will highlight the monthly meeting of the Permian Basin International Trade Forum Aug. 7 at the Odessa Hilton.

Bob Handy will explain how the NETWORK system can be used by local businesses to transmit and/or receive offers to buy and sell products and services among trade association members worldwide.

Under the auspices of the Odessa and Midland chambers of commerce economic development division, the Permian Basin trade organization has been a member of NETWORK since March 1986.

In the past year, according Mike Tolleson, Odessa chamber assistant economic development director, the trade forum staff has used the NETWORK system to generate a number of trade leads.

Now, anyone with a personal computer and modem can tap into the NETWORK system without paying membership or annual dues, Tolleson said.

There are minimal on-line user fees for certain applications, such as sending messages, but members can review headlines of offers to buy and sell free of charge, he said.

For those trade forum members without computers, the Odessa chamber economic development can also make arrangements for them to use the chamber's computer system to access NETWORK.

Tolleson said he hopes Handy's talk and demonstration will clear up any misgivings local business people may have about the system and generate greater use of NETWORK.

Through the system, the Houston World Trade Association coordinates the activities of about 150,000 users of the international trade communications system.

The luncheon and computer demonstration is open to the public and businesses interested in exploring international trade opportunities are invited to attend. Cost of the luncheon is $8 for members and $10 for non-members.

Rabbis spreading Hasidic gospel

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

An outreach mission — calling for moral guidance, ethical training and character-building among Jews and non-Jews — made its way to the Bible Belt Thursday with the pilgrimage of two El Paso rabbis.

Rabbis Israel Greenburg and Eliazer Halon were honored with a proclamation signed by Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas designating Thursday as Lubavitch Movement Education Day.

The rabbis are making a journey across West Texas to promote the basic ideology of the Lubavitch-Hasidic movement, whose roots began during the 18th century in Eastern Europe.

The Hasidic movement was founded by Rabbi Israel Ball Shem Tov, who has infused his followers with spiritual enthusiasm that extended into even the most mundane aspects of daily life.

His foremost successor, Rabbi Schneur Zalman of Lithuania, espoused a philosophy which called for religious observances to be accompanied by a vigorous intellectualism. His teachings became known as Habad — a Hebrew acronymn for the three basic segments of the intellect.

Because Habad leaders, the Rebbes, resided in the Russian town of Lubavitch ("City of Love") until 1916, Habad Hasidism became known as "Lubavitcher Hasidism" and its leader known as the "Lubavitcher Rebbe."

Habad Hasidism is a philosophy which teaches the genuine devotion to God should be blended with study and intellectual understanding of truth.

Rabbi Menachem Mendel Schneerson, the present Lubavitch Rebbe, has been described as the most phenomenal Jewish personality in recent history.

Scharbauer named TCAAA 'Man of Year'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

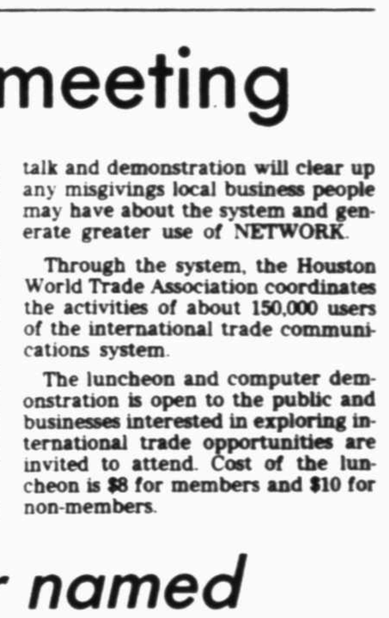
Midland rancher Chris Scharbauer, whose pioneer family's West Texas cattle operations date back to the 1880s, has been named "Man of the Year in Texas Agriculture for 1987" by the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association.

"He's an outstanding young rancher in the community and does an outstanding job in range management and livestock breeding," said Earnest Kiker, Midland County agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "He is well thought of and respected by his ranch hands," said Kiker. "And that speaks well of his character."

Kiker and Andrews County Agent Robert Roark had nominated the 33-year-old Scharbauer for the statewide honor.

The Midland rancher, who will be recognized by the TCAAA 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Lubbock Civic Center, is one of seven Texans selected for the 1987 award.

Scharbauer, who manages his family's cattle operations, is vice president and part owner of Scharbauer Cattle Company. His ranching interests for the Scharbauer Cattle Company and Scharbauer Brothers & Company include eight cattle ranches and one sheep ranch. He also is involved in the family's Quarter Horse operation.



Chris Scharbauer

Charles Neeb, director of the 22-county Far West Texas District of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said that the TCAAA "picked a good one" for the honor.

Scharbauer "has been a strong leader" in agriculture.

Aliens with symptoms of AIDS will be tested

Hearst News Service

SAN ANTONIO — Aliens seeking permanent residency in the United States are subject to AIDS testing and will be denied permanent residence if they test positive, immigration officials have said.

The test for acquired immune deficiency syndrome is to be given only if a doctor conducting a physical exam required of alien applicants notices AIDS-like symptoms or if there is mention of the disease in the applicant's medical history, an immigration official said.

"If there are any physical indications that an alien has AIDS then a doctor can decide to give the test," Chief Legalization Officer Omer Bangs said Wednesday.

But local Hispanic leaders blasted the requirement, calling it unjustified and discriminatory.

Jose Roberto Juarez, a staff attorney for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund, said the number of AIDS cases reported in Mexico does not warrant testing Mexican immigrants for the AIDS antibody.

"There is some question about whether the expense of an AIDS test is really justified, especially in Texas where the overwhelming number of people applying for amnesty are coming from Mexico," Juarez said.

"The reports I've read have said there are sporadic reports of AIDS in Mexico City, but certainly the incidence of AIDS there is less than in San Antonio and anywhere else in the United States," Juarez continued.

Jose Garcia De Lara, state director for the League of United Latin American Citizens, said the requirement singles out Mexican immigrants.

"I feel the testing itself is discriminatory because it focuses on those coming from south of the border," De Lara said. "If we're not going to discriminate, then all Americans should have to take an AIDS test."

Bangs, who heads the local Legalization Center, said none of the 5,300 amnesty applicants in San Antonio have tested positive for AIDS. He said the AIDS testing applies to aliens seeking amnesty, immigrant visas or adjustment of their immigrant status while in the United States.

Aliens seeking amnesty are required to undergo physical examinations to determine if they have certain contagious diseases, such as tuberculosis or syphilis, and the AIDS testing is an extension of the requirement, immigration officials said.

The U.S. Public Health Service sent notices to doctors who are authorized to examine amnesty applicants earlier this year stating that the AIDS tests should begin July 8.

One of the doctors authorized to give the exams said physicians are asked to look for a variety of symptoms, such as rapid weight loss, diarrhea and skin problems, that may indicate a person has AIDS.

A person can carry the AIDS virus and even pass it to others without actually having the disease or any of its symptoms, the doctor said.

If enough symptoms are found then the AIDS test — which costs $18 to $20 more — will be given.

Elsa Giron Nava, co-chair of the San Antonio Legalization Education Coalition, said the requirement is placing another financial burden on those applying for amnesty.

"They're nickel-and-diming these people out of their right to immigrate," she said.

Calling the available tests for the AIDS antibody "unreliable," Giron Nava said, "Here they are basing whether or not they are going to allow someone in (to the United States) on an unreliable test.

"Give them another test and it could come out negative. In the meantime, they've lost their ability to immigrate."

Patricia Moore, office manager at the Center for Health Control Inc., said no aliens have been tested for the disease even though the clinic examines 60 to 80 amnesty applicants a week.

"A person would have to display many symptoms of AIDS before a test would be done," she explained.

Deputy Chief Legalization Officer Ray Young said amnesty applicants who have been examined prior to the July 8 deadline will have their applications accepted until Aug. 8.

After Aug. 8, applicants examined before July 8 will be required to have an updated exam, Young said.

Under the new immigration law implemented in May, aliens who have been in the United States since Jan. 1, 1982, have a year to apply for amnesty.

Meanwhile, the Bexar County Medical Society AIDS Task Force at its first meeting Tuesday night established as a major goal developing an education program for local schools that could help prevent the spread of AIDS.

The 11-member panel selected Dr. Diane Simpson, coordinator of communicable diseases at the San Antonio Metropolitan Health District, as its chairwoman. Named vice chairman was Dr. David Gordon, a cancer and blood specialist.

Livestock export program will aid Texas ranchers

AUSTIN (AP) — A new livestock export program could mean up to $40 million in sales to Mexico for Texas ranchers in the next year, agriculture officials say.

The program, announced Thursday, will open new markets for Texans and provide needed breeding stock for Mexican ranchers, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said.

"The state of Texas and the Republic of Mexico are delving into a historic new area of international trade," Hightower said. "This came about because of a real need on both sides of the border."

With the new program, Texas ranchers will sell up to 40,000 head of cattle to Mexican ranchers next year, Hightower told a news conference.

According to Texas officials, Mexico's state livestock associations and that nation's agriculture secretariat recognized the potential of bringing stronger blood lines into their livestock by purchasing more registered breeding stock from Texas ranchers.

However, the sagging Mexican currency has made financing such purchases nearly impossible.

Children of town leveled by tornado enjoy Six Flags

ARLINGTON (AP) — Children who watched a tornado destroy their town and injure and kill relatives remembered what it was like to be kids again as they rode water chutes and roller coasters at an amusement park.

"I just didn't want to remember the tornado. I want to forget it for the day," Roman Muniz, 15, said Thursday.

"We will never forget it totally," he said. "But we need to have a good time today."

Texas Baptist Men organized the amusement park visit for 32 children from Saragosa, the mostly Hispanic community in West Texas that was destroyed by a tornado May 22, as part of a three-day trip to the Dallas area.

But some of the kids said that even the excitement of their first trip to the Six Flags Over Texas amusement park would pass.

"The memory will be back soon from the tornado," said 15-year-old Manuel Mondragon Jr. as he prepared to get on the Roaring Rapids. "We will be telling our children about it."

His sister broke her collarbone in the storm and couldn't come, he said. Mondragon's father also was injured.

Muniz said his mother and two brothers were in the town's community center to watch his little brother graduate from a Head Start program when the tornado came through. His mother suffered only minor cuts and there were no serious injuries in his family.

A total of 30 people were killed and 160 injured in the twister.

Albino Casias, 14, who lost his mother and two sisters in the storm, was quiet and reserved as he rode the Roaring Rapids with his friends.

House Interior panel considers bills to enlarge park

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Interior subcommittee is considering two bills which would enlarge Big Bend National Park and add to three East Texas wilderness areas.

Congressmen learned Thursday the Reagan administration supports one measure and opposes the other.

The Big Bend bill, the first measure introduced by freshman Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, calls upon the federal government to accept a 67,000-acre gift from the Texas Nature Conservancy adjacent to Big Bend.

The wilderness bill seeks the acquisition by the federal government of 690 acres of private land adjacent to three wilderness areas in East Texas — either through land swaps or purchase — if trading is unsuccessful after two years.

The three wilderness areas are Turkey Hill and Upland Island, part of Angelina National Forest, and Big Slough, part of Davy Crockett National Forest.

The Reagan administration opposes the wilderness bill, contending that in times of tight budgets the federal government should not be buying more park lands.

"Our primary reason for opposing the bill is cost," said Dale Robertson, chief of the U.S. Forestry Service. "We simply object to the mandated purchase of these properties."

He said that with the government trying to save every chance it can spending the $800,000 to $900,000 he estimates it would cost to buy the land would be wrong and wasteful.

The measure's sponsors, Reps. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, John Bryant, D-Dallas, Steve Bartlett, R-Dallas, and Joe Barton, R-Ennis, contend that most of the land, if not all, will be traded to the government for land of comparable worth elsewhere.

The Big Bend property was donated to the conservancy in late 1984 and early 1985 by brothers Houston and Ed Harte, who stipulated that the land be preserved in its natural state as part of Big Bend.

RABBIS

To his tens of thousands of followers, Schneerson is undoubtedly the most dominant figure in Judaism and the one individual responsible for stirring the conscience and spiritual awakening of Jews across the globe.

Greenburg said modern Habad Hasidism sends a universal message to all people — that worship of God requires intellectual discipline as well as sincere faith.

Implicit in its teachings are the seven laws of Noah, taught by Moses in the Bible. Do not worship idols, do not blaspheme, do not murder, do not steal, do not commit immoral sexual acts, do not be cruel to animals and maintain justice.

In the past, the movement was opposed by the more learned traditional rabbis, who perceived in it the dangers of worshiping nature and the discouragement of learning in favor of ignorant piety, said Greenburg.

But the movement has flourished, and — despite the destruction of countless Hasidic communities by the Nazis — still boasts thousands of members, particularly in the United States and Israel.

About 100 cities in the United States and Canada have Lubavitch institutions or centers.

In the Middle East, Kfar Habad, the Lubavitch city near Tel Aviv, has become a unique educational center for thousands of Jewish youth, and headquarters for Lubavitch activities throughout Israel. Other Lubavitch communities have been established in Nachalat Har Habad, Safad, Lod and Jerusalem. A huge network of diversified Lubavitcher educational institutions dot the entire country.

In other nations, Lubavitch institutions have been established in Argentina, Austria, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, England, France, Holland, Italy, Mexico, Scotland, Spain, Switzerland, Venezuela, West Germany, and North and South Africa.

These institutions, said Greenburg, monitor the pulsebeat of Jewish life in their respective communities, and contributed to their spiritual vitality and stability.

Halon said many of the Rebbe's achievements have so deeply shaped the development of post World War II Judaism that one could hardly identify them as Lubavitch inspired.

The Jewish day-school system and several outreach programs of Habad Lubavitch have been emulated by others. The movement emphasizes the need to reach out to alienated youth and bring them back to their Jewish roots, he added.

Although the movement is not aimed at converting non-Jews to Judaism, it provides some well-intended lessons for the entire world to follow, Halon said.

"Today, when international tensions have reached an all-time high, when the very moral fabric of society is suffering acute decay, keeping these seven laws can make the world a better, more stable place to live," he said.

YEAR

He's highly respected and well thought of as a leader of agriculture here and in the state of Texas," Neeb said. "He has been a strong supporter of extension work in Midland and in Far West Texas."

Neeb said Scharbauer has been "most cooperative and helpful" in serving on TAEX committes, including those on livestock and on the long-range planning study of agriculture in Midland County.

Scharbauer has been a 10-year supporter of the Texas State 4-H Horse Show and the National 4-H Congress.

"His role as a leader can be exemplified by his service to the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association for eight years, Texas director of the American Quarter Horse Association since 1985, director of the Quarter Horse Association of West Texas and the Sand Hills Hereford & Quarter Horse Show in Odessa," said James Alford, TCAAA awards and recognition chairman.

Scharbauer has served as chairman and superintendent of the Quarter Horse Division of the Sand Hills show since 1980.

He is a deacon of the First Presbyterian Church of Midland and is a director of the United Way of Midland. In 1985, he received the Distinguished Service Award from the Midland Jaycees.

Scharbauer, who was educated in the Midland public school system, was a high-school honor graduate in 1972 and is a graduate of Texas Christian University, where he majored in ranch management.

He and his wife, Connie Jean Thompson Scharbauer, have four children: Christen, Meghan, John Christian and Audra.

Scharbauer was co-chairman of the Midland Centennial Commission in 1985.

He is son of Clarence Scharbauer Jr. and Dorothy Turner Scharbauer and has two brothers and a sister: Clarence III, Douglas and Pamela.

Chris Scharbauer represents the fourth generation of Scharbauers who have ranched in the Southwest since his forefathers settled in West Texas in the early 1880s.

Panel authorizes state borrowing

AUSTIN (AP) — A committee has authorized the state borrowing up to $1.372 billion to make sure it doesn't issue any hot checks in 1988-89.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock voted for the issuance of cash management notes "very reluctantly," and Gov. Bill Clements skipped the meeting to protest the notes, which he called deficit financing.

"Recurring debt and today's rollover situation violates the spirit, if not the letter, of the constitutional principle of paying as we go," Bullock said.

"We look forward to getting out of this business at the very first opportunity," Bullock said in a statement Thursday.

State Treasurer Ann Richards and Jack Roberts, chief deputy comptroller representing Bullock, cast votes to issue the notes, near the end of August.

Clements, the third member of the Cash Management Committee, said his absence was symbolic "in the sense that I, in principle, do not agree with cash management notes. It's a form of deficit financing."

"I know they're a necessity, but they had a quorum without me."

Police probe vehicle burglary

From Staff Reports

Midland Police are investigating a burglary which occurred while a man was changing a tire on his vehicle, reports said.

Thursday at about 8:30 p.m. Mack Jones, 1106 E. New York Ave., was changing a flat tire on the corner of Terrell Street and Walnut Lane. Two suspects on bicycles were nearby, reports said.

Police think the two cyclists may be the ones who reached into Jones' open trunk and stole an antique Colt revolver and $450 in cash.

Aphids draw sap from tissue of almost all types of plants

Minzenmeyer

Nearly all plants are host to one or more species of aphid, a kind of insect that draws sap from plant tissue. Some aphid species feed on foliage, others on twigs, branches, flowers, fruit or roots. If left unchecked, aphids can stunt plant growth, deform leaves and fruit and cause galls on leaves, stems and roots.

Aphids excrete a sticky substance known as "honeydew." This secretion falls onto leaves, twigs and fruit and stimulates the growth of a black, sooty mold. This mold not only mars the appearance of plants but may restrict photosynthesis. Honeydew also attracts ants and flies and is a nuisance on cars, chairs, tables and other objects.

Aphids are small (about one-eighth of an inch long), soft-bodied, pear-shaped insects of many colors such as green, black, gray, yellow or red. Some are winged during certain times of the year. Generally, aphids can be recognized by their cornicles, a pair of tubelike structures projecting from the rear of their bodies.

Aphids reproduce faster than any other insect. The turnip aphid may produce as many as 46 generations annually, with each adult producing 50 to 100 young. While this represents an exceptional reproduction rate, any aphid may be considered a potential pest when condidtions are favorable for reproduction. The life cycle for most aphids is about 5 to 6 days.

Aphids attack a variety of house and landscape plants. The effects the insects have on the plants also are varied. They (1) feed on plant sap, (2) inject toxic salivary secretions into plants during feeding and (3) transmit viruses which cause plant disease.

Close, frequent inspection of trees and shrubs is important in detecting and controlling new aphid infestations, as well as in determining over all aphid populations. Since aphids reproduce so rapidly, damage often occurs before large populations are noticed.

Insecticide applications destroy beneficial insects as well as pests and leave trees or shrubs unprotected if pest resurgence occurs. Since beneficial insects play an important role in natural aphid control, try washing aphids away with a forceful stream of water before using insecticide sprays. Use the water during early morning or late afternoon to prevent sun scald of plants.

When insecticides are the only means of controlling aphids, use products containing diazinon, dimethoate, acephate (Orthene R), malathion, Meta-Systox-R R, methoprene, synergized pyrethrins, pyrethroids, or disulfoton. Some formulations injure tender ornamental plants. The manufacturer generally includes precautions on the label when phytoxicity is a danger. To avoid unnecessary damage, apply the insecticide only to plants specified on the label. Mix according to directions and apply the recommended dosage.

Treatment of large trees or groups of trees is difficult for homeowners. Most homeowners do not have the large-volume, high-pressure spray equipment necessary to effectively apply insecticides to trees. Without adequate application equipment, homeowners should secure the services of a local pest control operator or landscape maintenance firm.

Chicken industry fights contamination fears

AGRICULTURE

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $6.8 billion broiler chicken industry has begun a campaign to counteract some of the adverse publicity about the contamination of poultry by salmonella and other food-poisoning bacteria.

George B. Watts, president of the National Broiler Council (NBC), released a letter sent July 7 to Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which held hearings on the government's inspection program.

Various consumer groups have strongly urged improvements in federal meat and poultry inspection, which a National Academy of Sciences study found could not guarantee consumers protection against salmonella and other harmful food bacteria.

One recommendation supported by consumer groups and the Agriculture Department is for labeling of poultry to inform consumers that the product should be handled and cooked properly.

In a related development, a manufacturer says the Food and Drug Administration has approved a new test kit developed so consumers can quickly check their fowl for salmonella.

The $5 kit, called Chik Chek, is made by Diversified Diagnostic Industries Inc., Moraga, Calif. The company says the test takes less than 15 minutes and employs a chemical swabbed on the product to detect salmonella.

Watts said in his letter to Leahy and other committee members, "Assuring that the consumer receives safe and wholesome chicken has always been a priority of the broiler industry."

Even so, he said, the council's board of directors has just approved a number of projects under way to improve products, including one called GMPs for "good manufacturing practices" for fresh broilers.

The GMPs, Watts said, are being drawn from quality control plans throughout the industry and from scientific literature. When completed, the GMPs will be distributed to all broiler companies for their voluntary adoption.

Watts said the guidelines "will specifically address each major control point in the production and processing of poultry, and are designed to enhance product quality and consumer protection."

Further, he said, "A special task force is drafting cooking and handling instructions to be included in a voluntary labeling program. The committee will develop a number of versions of the labeling, some intended to direct application to poultry products, with alternatives for use in retail meat cases."

Since January, Watts said, more than one million food safety leaflets, addressing specific and detailed cooking, handling and storage instructions have been distributed to retail grocers, magazine and newspaper food editors, food associations, schools, extension home economists, meat and poultry distributors and consumers.

Watts said the broiler industry has endorsed the concepts of "risk assessment and risk-based inspection" embodied in the National Academy of Sciences report, including a shift from bird-by-bird visual inspection to a system of statistical sampling and quality assurance tests designed to detect major risks to public health.

The council "agrees that the current system should be changed and that the first step is the completion of a comprehensive risk assessment as called for by NAS," Watts said.

In a fact sheet also distributed by Watts, the council called attention to the academy's assertion that poultry "is a nutritious and desirable part of the American diet" and that "we do not want to discourage anyone from eating chicken."

The council's fact sheet said there has not been any dramatic new rise in foodborne illness, although reported salmonella cultures from all sources have increased over the 25 years records have been kept.

"The good news is that this rise is getting proportionately smaller," the council said. "In 1963, the annual increase was 5 percent — today, this number has been reduced to only 2 percent."

Chicken is not a major cause of salmonellosis, the disease caused by salmonella, the bacteria, the council said.

"According to the Centers for Disease Control, for the last 12 years of data, it was impossible to find a food cause for 39 percent of the salmonellosis outbreaks in the United States; 32 percent were the result of mixed foods, 12 percent involved beef and veal, 6 percent were traced to turkey, 4 percent to pork and processed pork, and just less than 4 percent to dairy products," the council said.

"Chicken was only involved in 3 percent of the outbreaks, fish and shellfish in just over 1 percent, and lamb in much less than 1 percent."

Microorganisms such as salmonella "are a natural part of our environment and are found on, or in, all types of raw food — meat, poultry, eggs, dairy products and even vegetables," the council said.

"Over the 20 years USDA has tested, the number of chickens with salmonella has been 30-35 percent, and remains in that range today," it said.

Hot and humid weather can feel even hotter

The "heat index" is a measure of how hot the temperature feels to the average person at various combinations of actual temperature and relative humidity. For example, an actual air temperature of 100°F. feels like 120°F. when the relative humidity is 50 percent.

THE 'HEAT INDEX' -- HOW HOT IT FEELS

Soil test 'best way' to judge fertilizer needs

Kiker

With planting time for fall wheat and other small grains rapidly approaching, farmers need to collect soil samples for a reading on nutrient requirements. Those nutrients can then be incorporated into the soil during final seedbed preparation.

Soil incorporation, or knifing, of fertilizer nutrients into a moist seedbed is important to reduce nitrogen volatilization losses associated with surface applied urea or urea-containing fertilizers. It also allows placement of non-mobile nutrients such as phosphorous into the higher moisture and more active root zone of plants.

A soil test is still the best way to determine fertilizer needs. The amount of a given nutrient to apply depends on the level of that nutrient in the soil, crop residue levels, cropping history, available moisture, grazing practices and management schemes. A soil test will determine the amount of residual nitrate-nitrogen in the soil and will reduce nitrogen recommendations by that amount, resulting in a direct savings to the farmer.

Producers who have not yet made a final decision to plant wheat on a particular field this fall, but who wish to leave the door open to plant cotton, sorghum or corn later in the spring, should submit a soil sample now and request fertilizer recommendations for these crops as well. Fertilizer recommendations for each of the crops can then be used to make cropping decisions.

The Extension Service Soil Testing Laboratories at College Station and Lubbock will analyze soil samples and make fertilizer recommendations. New automated laboratory equipment and computerized integration and reporting of soil test results have improved speed and precision. However, soil test recommendations are no better than the quality of the soil sample analyzed. Therefore, soil samples should be collected which are truly representative of the field being tested.

Honeybees' response to insecticide tested

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Trained honeybees don't jump through hoops. Not even at the University of Arizona.

In an ingenious experiment at the university, honeybees were lined up in a row in minuscule bee stanchions and trained to respond to thyme-scented air.

Every time a bee uncurled its proboscis, or tongue, it was rewarded with sugar water. By the fifth training session, 91 percent of the bees had learned their lesson — if they had not been exposed to pyrethroid insecticides.

That was the point of the research by University of Arizona entomologist Dr. Gordon Waller and former graduate student Kevin Taylor. Honeybees react to sublethal doses of the pyrethroids by laying off work and flying home to the hive to rest for a while.

Apparently, the bees are repelled by the chemicals. Before they can get a lethal dose, they stop foraging until the effects of the chemical wear off. However, scientists have never known what makes the honeybees so smart.

Tayor and Waller, who also is a research scientist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Carl Hayden Bee Research Center, started by treating filter paper with various pyrethroid chemicals. Half of the to-be-trained honeybees walked on the filter paper overnight before being odor-trained.

Those bees that had been exposed to pyrethroids flunked their training. Only 30 to 50 percent of the bees stuck out their tongues for a reward, depending on the particular chemical used.

The experiment may seem esoteric, but the survival of honeybees is absolutely essential to agriculture, says Waller. They pollinate the crops. Unfortunately, the same chemicals that protect crops from insect damage often kill the bees as well.

Pyrethroids, synthetic insecticides based on the bug-controlling compound found in daisy-like pyrethrum plants, normally decrease foraging by honeybees but don't necessarily cause high mortality rates.

Taylor says the honeybee reaction to pyrethroids may be caused by an impairment of the bees' central nervous system, including memory storage and-or retrieval.

Bees continue their foraging longer when exposed to the more lethal methyl parathion than when exposed to a pyrethroid. Another Arizona entomology research project by graduate student Joseph P. Rieth showed that bees kept working for 30 minutes longer.

However, within one day, 90 percent of the parathion-exposed bees were dead.

"The reason for the safety of pyrethroid insecticides perhaps is related to the speed of action of the repellent effect which may prevent the accumulation of a lethal dose," Rieth says.

Papal souvenir makers chase almighty dollar

Hearst News Service

SAN ANTONIO — From the silly to the sublime, souvenirs commemorating the Sept. 13 visit of Pope John Paul II have inundated San Antonio.

The likeness of Spuds MacKenzie, the Budweiser dog, is splashed across T-shirts saying, "Pope McKenzie, the original Vatican animal."

Much to the dismay of a local beer distributor, no legal action can be taken against the T-shirt company because of the difference in the spelling of the names and the alteration of the slogan, which is "the original party animal."

One of two San Antonio men who created the Buckaroo Brothers Co. to sell the controversial T-shirts said they are marketing them coast-to-coast.

The entrepreneur said he and his partner want to remain anonymous and would not reveal how many shirts had been sold to avoid trouble with Budweiser officials.

For those with more subtle tastes, a finely crafted silver coin designed and marketed by San Antonio residents illustrating the local visit is available.

Rusty Rose of Custom Quality Coins said that about 3,000 of the San Antonio visit coins, which usually retail at $24.95, already have been sold.

McDonald's will get into the papal picture by providing in September tray liners with information on the Park & Ride sites.

Even the U.S. Postal Service is getting into the act with a special cancellation stamp.

Cesta Ayers, spokesman for the Postal Service, said philatelists can begin sending in their stamped envelopes now to be postmarked with a design of the papal seal.

The envelopes will be held until Sept. 13, when they will be stamped, he said. However, requests must be made before Sept. 13.

A wide array of T-shirts can be found throughout the city, from the souvenir shops across from the Alamo to restaurants such as Blanco Cafe. Some T-shirts depict the various San Antonio sites the pope will visit, while others merely bear the pontiff's likeness and list each of the nine cities on the tour.

Then there is the unusual.

The "Holey See" pope mask, complete with the eyes of the pontiff peering out from beneath his miter, can be purchased from the San-Antonio based Papalphernalia.

Almost all of the nearly 25,000 masks already printed have been sold, with negotiations for printing a million more under way, company spokeswoman Megan Summers said. The company recently received a call from "The Tonight Show" starring Johnny Carson asking that a mask be sent for the show, she said.

Texas priest 'driving engine' behind 20-car Papal Eagle

DALLAS (AP) — A Texas priest who is a longtime train buff has arranged for 700 people to travel in a luxurious 20-car train from Dallas and Austin to see Pope John Paul II give a public Mass in San Antonio.

The train, called The Papal Eagle, will start from Dallas on Sept. 13 and stop in Austin to pick up more passengers before heading to San Antonio for the papal Mass later that day.

Rev. James O'Conner, pastor of the Holy Trinity Catholic Church in Georgetown, said he hit upon the idea a few months ago when he learned there were no more chartered buses available to take people to the Mass. More than half a million people are expected to attend the outdoor service.

O'Conner began taking reservations last week and said Thursday that space was still available.

Working with Amtrak and the Texas Southern Railroad, O'Conner rounded up 20 private railroad cars, including 12 owned by the two railroads and eight owned by individuals. Many are older cars that have been refurbished.

"They are so luxurious," he said. "They include seven sleepers, diners, chair cars, a number of lounge cars and four fully equipped diners. We'll have to feed a bunch of people in a relatively short time, you know."

The train will leave Dallas shortly after midnight, but O'Conner said the cars will open about 8 p.m. Sept. 12 so passengers may enjoy the accommodations before departure.

The train will be easy to spot as it winds its way south. It will be bedecked with the American flag, the Texas flag and the papal flag.

O'Conner said the Papal Eagle is a non-profit venture. Fares for the round trip begin at $99 per person for coach.

Rural land values likely to decrease

AUSTIN (AP) — Real estate market analysts say Texas rural land values will continue to decrease into 1988, according to a report by the Texas Real Estate Center at Texas A&M.

The report was based on a survey made in Texas and three other states and partly funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, officials said.

"The 75 rural land market participants surveyed in Texas reported the statewide economic recession has led to weakened land markets," said Dr. Charles Gilliland, an assistant research economist with the center.

Gilliland said panelists from Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma were asked about current land values and their predictions for price changes the next 12 months.

The panel predicted that an acre of irrigated cropland worth an average price of $966 an acre in January 1987 will fall 6 percent by January 1988. They estimated the same type land has already decreased 8.3 percent in value between June 1986 and June 1987.

Non-irrigated cropland, worth an average of $969 last January, and native rangeland, worth $874, were estimated to fall 6 percent also.

Gilliland said the panel found that improved pastureland, now worth $1,209 an acre will decline 5 percent.

Bush only GOP hopeful hanging back on debate

HOUSTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush is the only expected Republican presidential candidate who hasn't agreed to appear in a nationally televised debate, but the date of the show has been pushed back in an effort to get him to appear, the producer says.

The debate now is scheduled for Oct. 28 either in Houston or Los Angeles.

Bush's campaign manager has said Bush would not appear in debates until he is an announced candidate, which won't be until mid-September or mid-October.

Five GOP aspirants had earlier agreed to appear on the program, and Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole of Kansas added his name to the list Wednesday after the date was changed from Sept. 2, said Warren Steibel, the producer of the Public Broadcasting Service program.

"We really hope that by Oct. 28, he (Bush) will have announced and be able to appear," Steibel said.

The debate will be part of William F. Buckley's "Firing Line" television program. Steibel noted that Buckley, a conservative commentator, is a longtime friend of Bush.

A similar debate featuring seven Democrats was aired live July 1 from Houston.

Houston consultant Kevin Burnette, whose firm is handling logistics for Buckley, said he notified Bush's campaign leaders of the date change, and they are considering participation.

The others who have committed to appear are U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, evangelist Pat Robertson, former Secretary of State Alexander Haig, former U.S. Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada and former Delaware Gov. Pierre "Pete" du Pont.

Since the PBS program depends on corporate contributions for production costs, Burnette has said the choice of a site will be determined in part by where the contributions are easiest to raise.

He said commitments for contributions have been scarce in Houston, Bush's hometown, because Bush had not agreed to be on the program.

Streets of Haitian capital deserted as general strike in its second day

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Soldiers patrolled deserted downtown streets of the capital today, gripped by an uneasy silence in the second day of an indefinite general strike demanding that the ruling junta resign.

There were no burning barricades or demonstrations that characterized earlier strikes in the past two months. Dessalines Boulevard, the capital's main street, was empty. Not even youths took advantage of the lull in activity to play soccer on it.

The only recent sign of unrest came just before dawn Thursday, when gunmen shot at the offices of seven radio stations, the main source of news for Haiti's 6 million people.

No one was injured in the attacks on Radio Metropole, Radio Haiti Inter, Radio Soleil, Radio Cacique, Radio Antilles, Radio Caraibes and Radio Nationale.

At Radio Metropole alone, 40 shells were found, 38 from an M-16 semi-automatic military rifle and two from a Colt .45-caliber revolver.

People stayed indoors, apparently fearful of violence. A young woman interviewed in Delmas, a poor neighborhood near downtown, said she and her family stayed home because they feared they could be shot in the street.

In Washington, the State Department on Thursday condemned the killing of anti-government demonstrators by Haitian soldiers and said Americans may want to consider postponing non-essential travel to the island.

Since June 29, there have been 11 strike days, called by a coalition of 57 peasant, student, political and labor groups. Twenty-one people have died. The coalition wants the three-man National Governing Council, headed by Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy, to step down.

Strike organizers said the decision to make this strike non-stop came after soldiers opened fire on 2,500 people marching peacefully in downtown Port-au-Prince Wednesday. Eight people were killed and 15 injured.

"For all the people, it is very clear that after Wednesday's massacre the (National Governing Council) is a bunch of faithless and lawless terrorists," the organizing committee said in a communique.

Jean Claude Bajeux, a political moderate and one of the organizers, called the strike "a testimony of silence and immobility. We never want to see what happened (Wednesday) ... happen again in our country."

Wednesday's march had been called to condemn the Tontons Macoute, a private army created by late dictator Francois Duvalier. That force was disbanded and outlawed when Duvalier's son and successor, Jean-Claude Duvalier, fled into exile in February 1986.

Many believe members of the former terrorist force are now in the regular army.

Unrest began when Namphy and the council issued a decree last month to take control of upcoming elections. Although the decree was later revoked, the move triggered a wave of popular discontent and strikes that have left at least 21 dead and hundreds injured in clashes with the army.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Sri Lankan curfew lifted as monks end their sit-in

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — A nationwide curfew was lifted briefly today and about 250 monks protesting an accord signed between India and Sri Lanka to end this nation's civil war ended a four-day sit-in at a Buddhist temple.

Indian troops continued to move into rebel areas in northern Sri Lanka to disarm Tamil militants and enforce the peace pact, which was signed Wednesday. On Thursday, about 3,000 Indian troops landed in the northern Jaffna peninsula as a "peacekeeing force," as stipulated in the pact.

Police reported no major violence when the curfew, imposed after violent anti-accord demonstrations Tuesday, was lifted so people could shop for supplies. They said several government cars were burned in isolated acts of arson.

Tamils make up 18 percent of Sri Lanka's people and claim discrimination by the dominant Sinhalese, who control the government and armed forces. The war between the Tamils and the majority Sinhalese, which began in 1983, has cost more than 6,000 lives.

Councilman slain in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Four Sikh gunmen killed a Hindu city councilman and the brother of a colleague at their homes Thursday and the army was placed on alert in the Indian capital, officials said.

Police said they found a bomb in a loaded passenger train at the main railway terminal in New Delhi, a city of six million people, and a senior intelligence official said 14 Sikh extremists have arrived here from Canada, Britain and Pakistan to launch attacks.

Enraged Hindu mobs stoned city buses and deflated tires in protest against the killings and discovery of the bomb. At least 50 buses were damaged in the rioting. No casualties were reported.

All schools were ordered closed Friday and Saturday as a security measure and the city government banned public assembly to prevent Hindu riots in revenge for the murders.

The shooting victims were identified as city councilman Hansraj Sethi, 54, a member of the Hindu-dominated Indian People's Party, and Sudarshan Munjal, 27, brother of another city council member also belonging to the party.

Oil supply may be cut

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Venezuelan president Jaime Lusinchi said Thursday that the flow of oil from his country and Mexico would not be renewed to economically strapped Nicaragua unless it can be purchased under the regular terms of the San Jose Pact.

Lusinchi said Venezeula and Mexico, would supply oil to Central American and Caribbean nations, but cut off Nicaragua because it could not pay its debt, not for political reasons.

"There is the (San Jose) agreement, and only within that can the supply of crude to Nicaragua can be renewed," Lusinchi said at a news conference that concluded his four-day official visit here. "Oil is a national resource and there cannot be different conditions of sale from those established."

Draft treaty presented

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union today presented a draft treaty on reducing long-range, or strategic, nuclear forces and indicated it would continue to link such a treaty to limits on the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative.

"Today we are presenting our draft (treaty) on strategic offensive missiles," deputy chief Soviet negotiator Alexei Obukhov said. He called the Soviet proposal "another major step in the negotiations."

Obukhov, speaking to reporters outside the U.S. mission before the meeting, said an agreement on space and defense systems to include limits on the U.S. "Star Wars" defense initiative "is a necessary prerequisite" for an agreement on long-range weapons.

Manila policemen slain

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Communist rebels shot dead three policemen early today in a town 20 miles south of Manila and made off with five firearms from the station, police said.

Police said five New People's Army guerrillas entered the station in the town of San Pedro around 5:30 a.m. and shot dead two patrolmen on duty. They later shot a third officer at a checkpoint near the station as they fled, police said.

Police said the rebels took two M-16 rifles and three pistols from the station.

FAMILY MATTERS

Parents want more communication

By JIM MAY

May

DEAR FAMILY: My mother and father are in their late 60s. Generally, they are in very good health and I am grateful for that. Since we moved to Midland I don't see them as much as I did when we all lived in Dallas. While I did try to see them several times a week, I didn't talk to them everyday when we lived there. But now that we live here, my mother seems to feel that I should call her every day. She says that when I don't call, it makes them feel like I am not concerned about them. I am concerned about them but neither my husband nor myself think that it is necessary for me to call them every day just to show them that I am concerned about them. Are we right or are they? TOO OLD

DEAR TOO OLD: Your parents say that when you do not call call them, it makes them feel as if you are not concerned about them. I congratulate them on being able to convey their feelings in such a clear manner. While we may disagree with them, we cannot, and should not, try to deny that this is the way they feel. Even though we may not want them to feel that way, and we may even want to debate the facts with them, this is how they feel.

Sometimes, people have a tendency to read too much into what someone else says to them. It seems as if your mother is telling you to call every day, but she could be communicating to you that what you do, or do not do, effects them — even though you have moved. So, while your mother has directly communicated her feelings to you, they are still open to interpretation.

I suggest that the next time you go to visit your parents you discuss this matter. Ask her: "Mother, when you tell me how you and dad feel when I don't call every day, it makes me feel ..." Using direct, personal "I" messages can be very useful in clearing up misunderstandings. Remember our feelings are ours, they really are not open to debate, only interpretation.

DEAR FAMILY: I watched an educational program on television a few years ago about a study done at a university with children who are small and young-looking for their age. The program dealt with problems that these small children might have because of other children their age not accepting them in their groups. The small younger-looking children might have problems with immaturity that could carry over into their adult lives.

I would like any information you have on this subject and any references you might direct me to. Thank you. CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Child psychiatrist Alan Apter lead a group of researchers that found that adolescents who exhibit abnormalities in growth are very likely to have damaged self-esteem. They found that retarded growth was potentially a larger threat to adolescent self-image than was delayed puberty. The boys seemed to feel that their relative lack of physical strength, in addition to appearing younger than their peers, was a serious emotional and often a serious social handicap. Being short was found to be as damaging to the girls' self-image as it was for the boys.

In terms of what we can do to help these children, we can concentrate on building, improving and maintaining their self-image. We can focus our attention on the things that they do well. Without denying their view, we can restate what they perceive as negative attribute and make it a positive one.

For example, "I am the shortest player on the team" to "I was noticing last week how good you looked catching the ball and throwing it to first base. I think you may be one of the most coordinated kids on the team." We should also have them checked by a physician to make certain that their bodies are functioning properly.

CONFIDENTIAL TO FRUSTRATED: Battles between children can be really hard on parents. You might consider a process like the following:

- Acknowledge each child's feelings of anger. Remember their anger is very real to them.
- Give each child an equal opportunity to explain their version of the problem.
- Establish who owns the problem. The hardest part is often determining exactly what the problem is and who it belongs to.
- After everyone has had their say, ask for possible solutions from them. Your objective at this point is to help them create an appropriate set of alternatives (to you) that will help solve the problem.
- When you have helped them create some acceptable ways to solve the problem, you may want to leave the room and let them actually decide which alternative to follow.

AT WIT'S END

'Domestic engineers' strive to solve world's problems

By ERMA BOMBECK

Bombeck

Something happened to me the year I went from housewife to "domestic engineer." I took the term seriously — especially the engineer part.

A building doesn't have to fall on me to know that I am no longer a part of the work force. I am Management! I am responsible only for the ideas now and not their execution. It feels good.

There isn't a day goes by that I am not putting together proposals to make this a better world. I have one idea that suggests directions for preparing fast foods be printed in large type for women over 40. (Who, incidentally, are the only women who cook anymore anyway.)

Taking the lights out of vacuum sweepers is another one of my ideas. Inquiring minds don't have to know what's buried in the carpet. And if you could find a way to channel steam from a teen-ager's shower, you could do away with nuclear power plants throughout this country altogether. That one needs work.

Education is so important when it comes to domesticity. I don't know why no one ever thought to paste a label on the toilet tissue spindle giving 1-2-3 directions for replacing the tissue on it. Then everyone in the house would know what Mama knows.

I'd like to see international picture labels in bathrooms where you see a toilet seat up and there is an X through it. When it is down, a stick figure is smiling. I hope that suggestion flies.

Some days as I sit watching the dust filter through the sunlight before it settles, I feel I am ready for a career move. There are so many things that require fresh thinking.

Take the airlines. Planes are obsolete. At least their designs are. They no longer meet the needs of passengers. Everyone knows that. People feel more secure traveling with their luggage. (Most of them want to wear their luggage next to their bodies.) I say put the passengers in the belly of the plane, take out the floor, and use the rest of the plane for cathedral-high overhead bins with ladders. Cool the planes down so you wear your coats instead of hanging them up and use THAT space to enlarge the restrooms so that you no longer have to back into them.

When I have time I'm going to concentrate on redoing the aerobic fashion industry. The whole concept is wrong, wrong, wrong. They are making leotards in sizes for women who don't need to work out. What they need is a "Wide Load" line for leotards and "Moon No More" tights.

A couple of domestic engineers from another firm and I are thinking of going off for a couple of weeks to the Bahamas for a seminar (tax free, of course) and kick around a few thoughts on ovens and what we can do about them. If any of you are interested, have your people call my people.

DEAR ABBY

'Helper' wants family to call ahead

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 37-year-old male "helper" presently employed to live with and care for an 89-year-old stroke victim in his home. He is still mentally very sharp. I take him to the senior citizens' center for lunch and company, and sometimes we go to the park to visit his friends.

My problem is with his family — daughters, son, grandchildren, etc. I have asked them to please call and let me know when they are coming. Twice now, they have walked in on me while I was in the midst of taking care of certain intimate problems that occur with elderly people — rather embarrassing for the old gentleman and unpleasant for me.

One of his daughters phoned me late one night to say that she and a family friend would be visiting around noon the following day. Her father and I stayed home all day waiting for them, and they never showed. Not even a phone call to let us know they weren't coming.

I realize that I am paid to take care of this man, but don't you think his family owes me the courtesy of a call to let me know when they are coming, as well as a call to say their plans have changed? — CONSCIENTIOUS CARETAKER

DEAR CONSCIENTIOUS: To phone and make specific plans to visit a disabled relative and then not show up is the height of insensitivity. But an occasional unannounced visit is the way concerned family members are assured that Mom, Dad or Grandpa is getting consistently good care.

DEAR ABBY: I am presently employed by a hardware company that brought in some hotshots who have made some recommendations that cost a lot of good, faithful people their jobs.

The last straw was a bulletin that looked like a shopping list:

"Company picnic at such and such park on July 4th. Invite your friends and family. Bring your own food and beverage. The park has barbecue facilities, but bring your own charcoal. Those who want to participate in the egg toss, don't forget to bring your eggs. We are having a balloon-breaking game, so if you're bringing the kids, bring your own balloons."

On the lunchroom bulletin board was a sign depicting a tree with the following message: "Pruning the tree enhances growth." Penciled in at the bottom was: "Too much pruning can kill the tree!"

I hope management enjoyed their picnic. — REAL PERSON IN LA HABRA HEIGHTS, CALIF.

DEAR REAL PERSON: I think the "company" was barking up the wrong tree when it labeled the "do-it-yourself picnic" a company function.

The sign should have said, "Careful pruning can enhance the growth of a tree." Right now, the company tree appears to have gone into shock, and the company spirit is noticeably wilted.

I hope things improve by Christmas. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: "Outside Looking In" was right. As a stepmother, I would much rather be called "my stepmother" than "my dad's wife." The wicked stepmother image in the Cinderella fairy tale is long gone.

You said (in another letter) that introducing someone as a "third cousin once removed" is a distancing maneuver. By the same token, making the stepmother an attachment of the father ("my father's wife") is also a distancing maneuver. You blew it, Abby. — STEPMOTHER AND LOVING IT

Exercise, breast cancer researched

Copley News Service

Adolescent girls who spend at least two hours a week dancing, swimming, jogging and playing tennis may decrease their risk of developing breast cancer later in life, according to a study by the University of Southern California Comprehensive Cancer Center.

The study found that such girls are more likely to have menstrual periods without ovulation. Earlier studies at the USC Cancer Center determined that breast cancer risk is directly related to the cumulative number of ovulatory cycles. Researchers found that any factors that modify the onset date of menstruation, frequency of ovulation or cycle length pattern alter a woman's lifetime risk of developing breast cancer.

It also has been established that strenuous exercise by adolescent girls can delay the onset of menstruation or cause cessation of menstrual periods.

Breast cancer rates said to be rising

Copley News Service

Breast cancer and resulting mortality rates are up, according to recent reports. Some 130,000 new cases of breast cancer are expected to be diagnosed in 1987, up from 123,000 last year, reported the American Cancer Society. Better surveillance and increased use of mammography account for at least some of the increase, according to Steven Stellman, assistant vice president of epidemiology with the American Cancer Society.

The National Cancer Institute estimates that one in 11 women in the United States will develop breast cancer.

Alysheba, McCarron to try again

By MARK ZEIGLER
Copley News Service

DEL MAR, Calif. — Second chances are precious few in sports. Saturday, jockey Chris McCarron and a horse named Alysheba, owned by Midland's Dorothy Scharbauer and daughter Pam, get one.

McCarron, who had four mounts here Thursday, travels to Oceanport, N.J., Saturday and climbs aboard the Kentucky Derby and Preakness champion for the $500,000 Haskell Invitational at Monmouth Park. There are but four other horses in the field. One of them, though, is Bet Twice.

It was Bet Twice who pulled away on the backstretch and ran away with the Belmont Stakes, denying Alysheba the third jewel of the Triple Crown and millions of dollars in bonuses. McCarron made his move on the final turn; lacking room, he was squeezed and finished fourth.

"Those kind of things, you never hope they come up again," McCarron said Thursday of the million-dollar misfortune. "But in horse racing, those kind of things occur, and you just have to do the best you can when they do. Unfortunately, I wasn't quite at my best that day.

"Hopefully, I can make up for my mistake."

It may not be easy.

Bet Twice, who has the home-course advantage at Monmouth, resumed training a month ago and reportedly is in top shape. Evidence: a speedy :58 1/5 over 5/8 of a mile in the mud Monday.

Bet Twice, an early 6-5 favorite, isn't McCarron's only worry. Lost Code has charged into the picture with seven consecutive stakes victories, most wire-to-wire.

"I've seen Lost Code twice in the past couple of weeks. He looks fantastic," McCarron said. "I was hoping to see him all drawn and skinny from all the races in a row. Those horses usually look like that, but Lost Code certainly didn't."

The other two in the field — Clever Secret and Born To Shop — are considered long shots. Clever Secret is a son of Secretariat.

But three big-name horses are enough for Haskell officials, who recently increased the purse from $300,000 to $500,000, with the winner collecting $300,000, the runner-up $100,000.

Alysheba, whose rash had improved, clocked a :48 3/5 half-mile in Thursday's morning workout. The 3-year-old then drew the No. 4 post position, between Lost Code (ridden by Gene St. Leon) on the inside and Bet Twice (Craig Perret). Clever Secret drew the No. 2 spot, Born To Shop the rail.

The 1⅛-mile Haskell is shorter than any Triple Crown race, and Alysheba has had more success against Bet Twice at the shorter distances. The Derby is 1¼ miles, the Preakness 1 3/16, the Belmont 1½.

"But I don't think that (shorter distance) will play to anyone's advantage," McCarron said. "All three horses have very good tactical speed...

"It's being billed as the race of the year. I'm just excited to have the opportunity to be in it."

Dallas Cowboys' offensive line coach Jim Erkenbeck is back on the job working with rookies in summer camp after surgery for a perforated ulcer six weeks ago.

Pelluer's confidence being rebuilt

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Young Steve Pelluer is rebuilding his spirit at this 27th Dallas Cowboys' training camp.

His confidence was badly shaken last year when he became the starter after Danny White suffered a broken wrist.

With Pelluer at quarterback, Dallas went 1-7.

"It was a tough and trying time, but I got some great experience and I feel it will help me immensely down the road," Pelluer said.

"I started pressing and put a lot of pressure on myself, and I hope I won't ever do that again."

Pelluer had trouble reading the confusing maze of NFL defenses and was sacked 47 times. He was battered and bruised from the experience.

"I had some lower back problems from it, but I'm fine now," Pelluer said."I just have to make sure I stretch and warmup properly."

Pelluer has a reputation of being a great scrambler, but the Cowboys' coaches didn't want him to do that last year.

"I started out scrambling away from the pursuit, but the coaches discouraged doing that," he said. "I thought my scrambling could be a positive tool for the offense. However, the coaches didn't want me flying out of there at the first sign of trouble."

PELLUER HASN'T conceded the starting job to White although he realizes it will be tough edging out the veteran.

"I'm No. 2, but I don't feel I'm out of the race for No. 1," Pelluer said. "I have to be prepared to start every game this year."

Pelluer's quarterback rating was only 67.9 points in 1986 after suffering 17 interceptions. He only had eight touchdown passes.

"My confidence level kept slipping," Pelluer said. "I wasn't at my best when other teams loaded up on me."

Pelluer, a fifth-round draft choice from Washington in 1984, said he thought the offensive line got a bad rap last year.

"They did a good job considering all the injuries and position changes we had," Pelluer said.

He said he learned that he can't be a one-man gang at quarterback.

"I kept trying to make the big play and make something happen instead of being consistent," Pelluer said. "I feel I can seriously challenge for Danny's job.

"I support him but my job is to push him."

Rookie quarterback John Shaffer, who led Penn State to the national championship, was one of nine players waived on Thursday by Dallas.

Others waived included wide receiver Carl Aikens of Northern Illinois, tight end Rich Borreson of Northwestern, placekicker Ron Keller of New Mexico, tackle Marty Peterson of Pennsylvania, running back Antonio Rice of Virginia, cornerback DeJuan Robinson of Northern Arizona, guard Scott Urch of Virginia, and quarterback Craig Wallis of Chico State.

Erkenbeck back and barking

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Jim Erkenbeck held up his Dallas Cowboys' coaching shirt and his stomach looked like he had been the victim of a shark attack.

A fresh, red scar ran from above his navel almost to his chest.

The offensive line coach got the scar six weeks ago while he was on vacation in California.

Erkenbeck was on the 15th tee box playing golf when he was doubled over with pain. The next day he underwent emergency surgery for a perforated ulcer.

BUT WHEN the Cowboys' training camp opened July 19, tough guy Erkenbeck was there, barking orders and running around like nothing had happened.

"I wasn't going to miss it," Erkenbeck said. "We're going to have a lot of fun and knock some folks around this year."

Erkenbeck replaced the retired Jim Myers after one of the worst offensive line performances in Cowboys' history.

The Cowboys ranked near the bottom of the NFL in permitting quarterback sacks last year.

There were 60, all told, and the Dallas offense was in shambles the last half of the season, when the team went 1-7.

Erkenbeck's job is to make sure such a disaster never occurs again.

Erkenbeck, who coached last year for the New Orleans Saints, believes in an aggressive, don't-yield-any-ground approach.

He has the Dallas offensive linemen attacking defenders.

"I tell them, they can give up 1 yard and that's it," Erkenbeck said. "I want 'em to hit and lock out. I want them to be able to be good at using their hands, legally of course."

Erkenbeck, who was also with the Baltimore Stars of the now defunct USFL, is constantly shouting at his players with a combination of instruction and praise.

"You're quitting on yourself," he'll shout to one player.

"That's decent, we can win with that," he growls to another.

"You're mesmerized out there, wake up," he snaps to another.

Cowboys' scout John Wooten, who was an offensive lineman blocking for the great Jim Brown at Cleveland, says, "I just love Erkenbeck and his philosophy. It's aggressive and that's what we need around here. We had been too passive."

The Cowboys are moving to the NFL trend of larger offensive linemen but they still lack depth.

"I get down on my knees and pray for a left tackle every night," Erkenbeck said. "Just give me one guy at that position where I can say 'big boy it's your job' and not have to worry about it any more."

Erkenbeck said the NFC East has some of the best defensive right ends in the NFL and the Cowboys haven't had a left tackle in the 1980s who can stop them.

"It's a great division for ends," Erkenbeck said. "I hope we can trade for a tackle if one doesn't develop in camp. We'll do the best we can with what we've got if we can't make a trade."

"Erkenbeck will find one if anybody can. He never gives up on a guy," Wooten said. "He's a good teacher. He'll find us a player or make one, whatever it takes."

HEAD COACH Tom Landry said Erkenbeck is a demanding coach.

"I think we have a great chance with him in there," Landry said. "Of course, we haven't lost a game yet."

The players respect him, although he can be hard on them.

"He's tough but fair," said Nate Newton, who is trying to win a job as a starting guard.

"Erkenbeck is a pile-driver," said quarterback Danny White. "I think we'll have one of the best offensive lines in the league with him. It'll be nice to pass the ball without somebody in your face for a change."

Britton returns to City throne

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

For two consecutive years, the name of Susan Britton hasn't been engraved on the Women's City Championship golf trophy, but things were back to normal Thursday as Britton's name went back on the trophy for the 14th time.

Britton lost to Ann Coombes in the championship finals in 1985 and missed the tournament last year. It was as if a Midland golf legend had died.

But the resurrection came Thursday when Britton convincingly defeated defending champion Jo Dickson on the 14th hole of match play at Hogan Park, leading six holes with only four to play.

IT WAS the 15th time in 16 years that Britton had been in the championship round of the tournament when she played.

"It's fun anytime to win a tournament, but I can tell you at 49 the body isn't the same. I don't play as much as I used to and I can feel it. I'm sore," said Britton.

But sore body or not, Britton was untouchable in the championship match.

Britton and Dickson had identical marks through the first four holes, but that's when things got away from Dickson as Britton made an early championship push.

Britton won the next five consecutive holes to own a 5-up margin through only nine holes of play. It was almost certain at that point that Dickson was going to have to give up her crown as city champion.

"Obviously, I didn't play very well, but Susan is always the one to beat. She's tough," said Dickson, who managed to win only one hole, No. 13, from Britton.

When Britton put on the final championship touches on No. 14, she gave her mother, Gertrude Alstrin (a Midland resident for 43 years), a big hug, prompting Dickson to say, "(Susan) is just like Pat Cash, except she didn't have to climb into the stands."

Mrs. Alstrin said, "I always like it when Susan wins. I made her take up golf when she was 12 years old. At that time, girls didn't play golf in high school, so none of her peers played golf and she always had to play against older competition. I guess she learned the game pretty well."

Britton said, "I guess I'm doing OK to be 49 years old. You always need some luck and bounces to go your way, but I think I played as well as I can the last two days. I think I was three over par when we quit on No. 14 and that's about as well as I can do. And, also, I came out today with a positive feeling and that helps.

"I kept my head down and was moving through the ball pretty good. Jo can be really tough when her short irons are working, but nothing much was working for her. I know that and she knows that."

AND BRITTON is already sending out warning signals for next year, much to the fear of Midland's women golfers, who have already endured the Britton plague 14 times.

"Before this tournament, I was thinking that I would really like to win the tournament next year," said Britton. "I think it would really be neat to win this thing at the age of 50. I plan to shoot for that next year, but it's getting harder and harder."

But "harder" is in the eyes of the beholder. This Britton championship looked like a one-woman cake walk.

Britton's first 13 titles were consecutive from 1972 to 1984. She may have started another string.

Glanville paves way to trade Woolfolk

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Jerry Glanville acted swiftly to make running back Butch Woolfolk a former Oiler Thursday.

Glanville said he made the move at the player's request after an attempted trade fell through at noon.

"He came to me during Operation Headstart (off-season workouts) and said he wanted to be traded if he wasn't going to be a starter," Glanville said."We tell the whole squad, 'if you don't want to be here, come and see me.'"

Woolfolk had a different story.

"He approached me," Woolfolk said. "He told me they were going to try to trade me.

"I said I'd prefer two things, an early trade so I could adjust to a new team and I'd like to be traded to a team that needed a running back."

Woolfolk said late Thursday night he had received calls from two teams.

"It kind of gives me confidence that I can still play," Woolfolk said, although he added that he was actually sorry to be leaving the Oilers.

"I'll be better off as a player but I wanted to be with this team because it's going to win," Woolfolk said. "I think they'll go over .500 this season, probably 9-7. I wanted to be a part of that and that's what I'll regret."

Glanville also said goodbye to offensive lineman Mike Kelley, starting his third pro year with the Oilers. Kelley said he was tired of playing football.

"He said he loved his teammates and that had nothing to do with his feelings," Glanville said of Kelley. "This game is very, very hard if you want to be here. If you don't, it's not worth it."

The Oilers also announced late Thursday that Walter Johnson, the team's second-round draft pick from Louisiana Tech, had agreed to terms.

Woolfolk played at fullback last season before suffering a shoulder injury and missing the final six games of the season.

Oiler rookie keeping vets off stretcher

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Houston Oilers rookie first-round draft pick Haywood Jeffires thinks his job this season may be to keep 1,000-yard receivers Drew Hill and Ernest Givins off the stretcher

"I can learn a lot from them and I can teach them a little about taking a lick across the middle," Jeffires said.

"They shouldn't take the hit too wide open and be on that stretcher. They were on the stretcher a lot last year."

Hill and Givins were among the top pass-catching combinations in the league last season. This year, they'll have help from a big receiver with a small receiver's speed.

"It's very unusual to find a player of his size to have the quickness and speed of a little guy," Oilers receivers coach Milt Jackson said.

"He's a big guy who can play the little man's (speed) game, but when the ball's in the air, he's more difficult for the defensive backs to handle."

JEFFIRES, AT 6-2, towers over Hill and Givins, both 5-9.

Jeffires closed out his collegiate career as North Carolina State's No. 2 all-time receiver with 111 catches, and he was third on the all-time list with 1,733 yards.

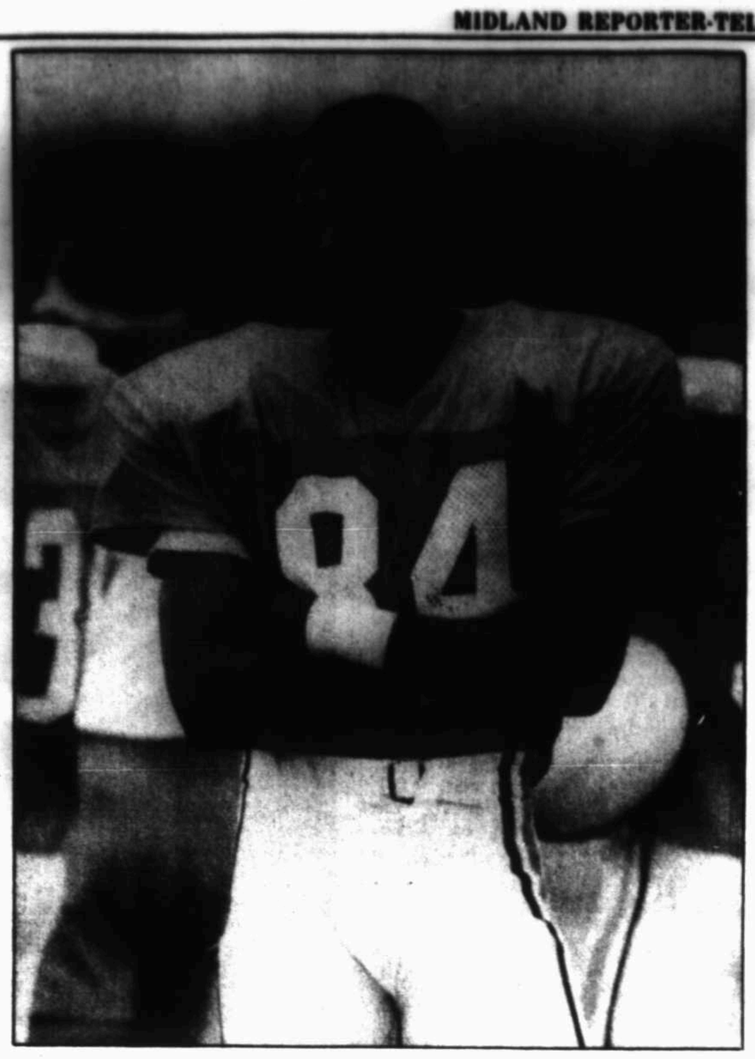
He caught 40 passes for 591 yards last season. In his final regular season game, Jeffires caught 7 passes for 164 yards and one touchdown in a 31-18 victory over Western Carolina.

Jeffires said he was surprised that the Oilers selected him with two 1,000-yard receivers already on the roster.

He thinks Givins and Hill were surprised too.

"Nobody's going to come right out and say they're not happy you're here, but I think they were a little surprised," Jeffires said.

"But as you get into camp and meet the other guys, you sort of become a family and you overlook other things.



AP Laserphoto

Houston Oilers' rookie Haywood Jeffires
...keeping veterans honest

Jeffires thinks he may have to learn from the starters for a couple of years before getting his chance as a starter.

"I think Drew's got a couple more years and then they'll want someone to fill his spot," Jeffires said.

Hill caught 65 passes for 1,112 yards and five touchdowns to lead the team, and Givins, a rookie from Louisville, caught 61 passes for 1,062 yards and three touchdowns.

Jackson thinks Jeffires can make an impact on the Oiler offense this season if he maintains proper concentration.

"I think he'll have to discipline himself to keep his poise when he lines up against people that he's read about since he was a kid," Jackson said.

"If he can do that, he can play for us and play good. Ernest proved it could be done last season."

Tigers making Anderson look good

DETROIT (AP) — Sparky Anderson let the cat out of the bag two months ago but nobody could see it.

Now that the cat has become the big, bad Detroit Tigers, nobody can avoid it.

On May 5, a full month into the season, the Tigers were timid. They were 9-16 and in sixth place in the American League East, 11 games out of first place and just one-half game out of last place.

It was about then that Anderson, the renowned master of the overstatement, went on local television and said this was the best Tiger team he'd ever had. The statement circulated and the baseball world had a good laugh.

Well, look who's laughing now.

The Tigers, once a well-kept secret, are now the hottest team in baseball. They won 10 of their first 12 games after the All-Star break and are suddenly 1½ games behind the first-place New York Yankees.

"New York allowed us to get close to them by losing lately," Anderson said. "Still, I'm not taking anything away from this team. These guys play hard and that's all a manager can ask."

The Tigers open a weekend series in Yankee Stadium on Friday night, then New York is in Detroit next weekend for a four-game series. That's the last time they play this season.

"We can go 3-10 against New York and make it up against someone else," Anderson said, trying to remove some of the pressure.

"The danger point is the next five weeks. If we're no more than five games back on Sept. 1, we're in good shape," Anderson said.

The torrid Tigers, not unlike the 1968 club that won the World Series, have used a combination of pitching, defense, timely hitting and a strong bench in their resurgence.

In one seven-game stretch last week they won five in their last at-bat.

"I have to say I have not been uncomfortable for a month when we're behind," Anderson said. "I don't care what the score is. Too many good things have been happening. There have been too many guys hitting the ball hard.

"I can't give this team a higher compliment than saying I'm not ever worried when the other team leads."

The Tigers are 15-9 in one-run games, 11-9 in two-run games and 6-4 in extra innings.

"We've been doing our job," said Darrell Evans, the 40-year-old first baseman who has 21 home runs. "We're playing loose and having fun."

Evans, who has become the leader in the clubhouse since free-agent catcher Lance Parrish signed with the Phillies, also noted that the Tigers have improved dramatically in the field.

In the first 72 games, they made 72 errors. In the next 25, they made only six. Part of that improvement stemmed from the benching of third baseman Darnell Coles, who had 16 errors; but not all.

"When the games are close, you tend to concentrate in the field a little more," Evans said.

"There are a lot of keys to a team playing the way we are," General Manager Bill Lajoie said. "One of the big reasons we're winning is Sparky's move to bat Alan Trammell fourth.

"When Alan was successful, other guys kind of took their cue from him and are having good years, too."

Mets put broom to Cards

NL East race now wide open affair

Associated Press

The New York Mets did what they needed to do. They went into St. Louis, swept a three-game series from the Cardinals and tightened the National League East race.

Dwight Gooden, moved up in the starting rotation to face the Cardinals, pitched effectively Thursday night as the Mets won 5-3 and extended St. Louis' losing streak to seven.

"After we lost to Houston on Sunday when they came from behind, I wasn't sure we'd bounce back for this," Mets Manager Davey Johnson said. "We've struggled all year but the race is wide open now."

New York moved within 5½ games of the division-leading Cardinals. Montreal is in second place, four games behind.

St. Louis' losing streak is its longest of the season and the team hurt itself throughout the series against New York with poor baserunning. The Cardinals were also smarting after losing an argument about Howard Johnson's bat after he hit a home run.

GOODEN, WORKING on three days' rest, won his sixth straight decision against the Cardinals. He gave up two runs on four hits in the first inning but then settled down and raised his record to 8-3.

Gooden left the game after Jim Lindeman led off the ninth with a single. Tony Pena reached reliever Roger McDowell with a single and pinch-hitter Jose Oquendo sacrificed the potential tying runs into scoring position.

Vince Coleman then followed with a bouncer that first baseman Keith Hernandez bobbled. Hernandez had no play on Coleman but suddenly threw to catcher Gary Carter, who tagged out the late-breaking Lindeman in a home-plate collision. McDowell retired Ozzie Smith to end the game for his 15th save.

Carter and McReynolds drove in two runs apiece, although it was Johnson's homer that sparked the most commotion.

Johnson, whose two-run homer in the 10th inning beat St. Louis on Wednesday night, hit his 25th of the season in the eighth for a 5-3 lead. When Johnson crossed home plate, he went to pick up his bat but Pena, the Cardinals' catcher, wouldn't give it back.

The Cardinals claimed the bat was illegally doctored. Umpire crew chief Paul Runge took the bat out of play, examined it after the game and then returned it.

"We had no way of keeping it," Runge said. "We took it out of the game to prevent a fight. The grain looked like it had not been tampered with (and) the weight was right. If he (Howard Johnson) had come up again, he would have been entitled to have it back."

Johnson and Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog had their opinions.

"It's a perfectly sound bat," Johnson said. "This is an insult. I've hit home runs all my career."

Herzog said the bat, the same one Johnson won Wednesday's game with, was illegal.

"I knew there was cork in it. He hit a home run, but he's not Babe Ruth," Herzog said. "I wanted to check his bat last night, but the batboy got away with it."

McReynolds hit a two-run triple and scored on Carter's single in the first inning against Greg Mathews, 7-8.

Darryl Strawberry, who had two hits and three walks, walked in the fifth, stole second and scored on Carter's single for a 4-2 lead.

Astros 8, Braves 5

Kevin Bass homered and drove in three runs and Alan Ashby had a two-run single that helped Houston's emergency starter Bob Knepper beat Atlanta.

Knepper, 4-12, started in place of Jim Deshaies, whose left shoulder stiffened while warming up. Knepper gave up a leadoff homer to Dion James and yielded six hits in five innings. Dave Smith finished for his 18th save.

The visiting Astros scored four times in the sixth for a 4-2 lead. Ashby singled home two runs and Hass had an RBI single. A balk by Rick Mahler, 6-11, allowed another run to score.

Baseball Roundup

Bass' two-run homer, his 10th, capped a three-run eighth.

Expos 6, Cubs 1

Mike Fitzgerald went 3-for-3 and drove in two runs as Montreal got 14 hits and won in Chicago.

Neal Heaton, 12-4, gave up just Keith Moreland's 20th home run in seven innings for his ninth victory in his last 11 starts.

Fitzgerald hit RBI singles in the second and the fourth innings. Vance Law, who also had three hits, singled home a run in the fifth against Bob Tewksbury, 0-3.

Padres 12, Reds 8

Former Midland Cub Carmelo Martinez hit a two-run single during a seven-run outburst in the fifth inning that carried San Diego over Cincinnati.

Luis Salazar and Benito Santiago had RBI singles in the Padres' big inning against Guy Hoffman, 7-6, and Bill Landrum.

Jimmy Jones, 3-4, won despite allowing six runs on 11 hits in five-plus innings. It was his first victory in five starts this season. Jones helped himself with a two-run homer, his first in the majors.

Terry McGriff and Bo Diaz hit two-run homers for the host Reds and Nick Esasky hit a solo home run.

Phillies 1, Pirates 0

Bruce Ruffin and Steve Bedrosian teamed on a five-hitter and Glenn Wilson's RBI single in the ninth inning led Philadelphia over Pittsburgh.

The visiting Phillies were held hitless by rookie Mike Dunne before Von Hayes' leadoff single in the seventh.

Pinch-hitter Ron Roenicke drew a leadoff walk from John Smiley, 3-2, in the ninth before Mike Schmidt and Wilson singled off Brett Gideon. Wilson had been 0-for-18 before his game-winning hit.

Ruffin, 9-7, gave up five hits in 8⅓ innings. Bedrosian got the final two outs for his major league-leading 29th save.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Yankees 6, Royals 3

Tommy John won his 10th game and Juan Bonilla had three hits as the New York Yankees completed a three-game sweep of the slumping Royals.

Kansas City has lost 17 of its last 21 games, and is 3-21 at Yankee Stadium since 1983.

John, 10-3, gave up three runs and six hits. He left after Bo Jackson led off the seventh inning with his 20th home run and Tim Stoddard went the rest of the way for his fourth save.

Former Midland Cub Henry Cotto also had three hits for the Yankees.

Brewers 6, White Sox 1

Glenn Braggs, Paul Molitor and Bill Schroeder each drove in two runs each as Milwaukee beat visiting Chicago.

Mark Knudson, 1-2, got his first AL victory. He gave up one run on eight hits in 6⅓ innings and Chuck Crim finished with hitless relief for his first major-league save.

Braggs hit a triple, double and two-run single. His single put the Brewers ahead in the sixth inning against Neil Allen, 0-5.

Molitor had a two-run double in the seventh and Schroeder hit a two-run double in the eighth.

Indians 6, Orioles 4

Cory Snyder ended his 0-for-20 slump with a two-run homer in the 10th inning that lifted Cleveland over Baltimore.

Snyder hit his 22nd home run after Carmen Castillo's one-out single off Mark Williamson, 5-7. Brook Jacoby's two-run homer, his 21st, gave the Indians a 4-4 tie in the eighth.

Sammy Stewart, 4-1, got the victory. He struck out Mike Young with runners on first and third in the top of the 10th.

Dollar tumbles

LONDON (AP) — The dollar retreated in Europe today despite a government report of improved economic performance. Gold bullion climbed above $464 in active trading.

Currency traders in Rome said the dollar was holding steady at slightly lower levels today in typically sluggish end-of-month trading.

Midmorning dollar rates compared with rates in Europe late Thursday:

—1,341.75 Italian lire, down from 1,347.00
—1.3295 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3309

The British pound edged up to $1.5940 from $1.5900.

The dollar closed in Tokyo at 149.25 Japanese yen, down from 150.60 yen on Thursday.

London's major bullion houses fixed a recommended gold price of $464.25 a troy ounce at midmorning, up from $460 late Thursday.

The metal was quoted at a bid of $464.30 in Zurich, up from $458.50.

Census reports good news, bad on poverty

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Reagan hails declining poverty for the third straight year, critics say that despite the good news the gap is widening between America's rich and poor.

"The official 1986 poverty and income statistics ... demonstrate once again that sustained, non-inflationary growth is the government's single best tool for fighting poverty and building a better life for our nation's families," Reagan said, citing Census Bureau figures released Thursday.

"Median family income, after adjustment for inflation, increased by 4.2 percent in 1986, the largest increase since 1972. This is the fourth straight year in a row that real median family income has increased," Reagan's statement said.

And it is the third consecutive decline in the number of people in poverty.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, meanwhile, reported that Americans' weekly paychecks generally are keeping up with inflation.

The bureau said that in the second quarter of this year, the $13-a-week or 3.6 percent increase in the median weekly earnings of full-time workers about equaled rising prices.

However, the Census Bureau's annual income and poverty study also found some increase in inequality in the distribution of income in the nation, with a shift in the share of earnings from the middle class toward the upper income families.

Robert Greenstein of the private Center on Budget and Policy Priorities termed the general report "disappointing," considering that it is the fourth year of economic recovery.

And, he noted, the "poverty gap," the difference in income between rich and poor, has increased.

Nonetheless, it was generally good news from Gordon Green of the Census Bureau, who said that from 1985 to 1986 the number of Americans living in poverty declined by about 700,000, from 33.1 million to 32.4 million.

The drop represents a decline in the national poverty rate from 14 percent to 13.6 percent, Green said. The poverty threshhold for a family of four in 1986 was $11,203.

The continuing recovery from the recession of the early 1980s is a prime reason for the decline in poverty and for income growth, although other social and economic factors have played a hand, Green said.

According to the bureau's annual study, median family income was $29,458 last year, up from $29,269 a year earlier.

That was not a record, though, with median family income having been $29,647 in 1978 and even higher, $29,734, in 1973. All those figures are 1986 dollars.

Median family income indicates half of all families had more income than that and half less.

For the fourth straight year, the percentage of Americans living below the poverty level declined and median income increased. But critics say the figures mask the widening gap between rich and poor.

House limits nuclear plant liability

By MATTHEW L. WALD
New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The House of Representatives Thursday approved a 10-year extension of the law that sets a limit on the liability of nuclear reactor operators in case of accident.

The bill would raise to $7 billion from the current $700 million the amount that could be received by all victims of any one accident. But in several important respects, Thursday's vote, 396-17, was nonetheless a victory for nuclear utilities and the companies that supply equipment to them.

In two days of debate, the House rejected an amendment that would have removed the ceiling entirely, and another that would have barred reactor operators from counting their legal defense costs against the $7 billion limit. Both amendments had been major goals of public interest activists.

In addition, lawmakers whose districts are near nuclear military facilities were unsuccessful in their fight for an amendment to make the private operators of those plants liable if they caused accidents through gross negligence or willful misconduct. Under the extension approved by the House Thursday, these contractors, as under the expiring law, would have no liability. Several such plants, involved in the production of bomb fuel, have major safety problems, the Department of Energy acknowledges.

The legislation now goes to the Senate, where the industry's opponents expect a tough fight. "This may be the high-water mark for victims," said Rep. Dennis E. Eckart, D-Ohio, who proposed the unsuccessful amendment to remove all legal limits from the industry's liability. He was among the 17 who voted against the bill.

The law that would be extended under the bill is the Price-Anderson Act, first enacted 30 years ago to encourage the development of the nuclear power industry by offering it some shelter from litigation. The law expires Saturday, but it includes a clause mandating that existing civilian reactors, of which there are about 110 across the country, be covered by its provisions until an extension or a repeal is approved.

While the House was debating the Price-Anderson extension, activists were preparing for a vote next week on another matter of key importance to the industry: the licensing impasse facing two reactors because of disputes over emergency planning.

The Seabrook plant in New Hampshire, just north of the Massachusetts border, and at Shoreham, on Long Island, are complete but unlicensed because of opposition by the States of Massachusetts and New York, which have refused to prepare emergency plans. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, in response, is considering new rules to allow the licensing without state governmental participation in such planning.

'Marlboro Man' to chair Texaco stock committee

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A wealthy Colorado rancher who is a former "Marlboro man" was chosen as chairman of a committee to represent the interests of Texaco Inc. shareholders in the oil company's Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings.

Robert Norris, 58, of Colorado Springs, owns 650,000 shares of Texaco and is a descendant of one of the oil company's founders.

Norris is also on the board of directors of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City. He appeared as the Marlboro man in magazine cigarette advertisements and on billboards at one time, according to Don Reeves, curator of the hall of fame.

Reeves said some of the pictures for the Marlboro ads were made at Norris' ranch. He said he could not provide further details. Norris has an unlisted phone number.

Norris was chosen as the shareholders' committee chairman late Wednesday at a meeting of major shareholders in the office of U.S. Trustee Harry Jones in Manhattan.

Texaco filed for protection from creditors on April 12 in an action stemming from a more than $10 billion judgment awarded to Pennzoil after a Texas jury ruled that Texaco had wrongly interfered with Pennzoil's attempt to acquire Getty Oil Co. Texaco later acquired Getty itself.

Creditors have since created two separate committees — one to represent general creditors, the other to represent industry creditors — to serve as watchdogs during the bankruptcy proceedings.

Members of the shareholders committee each own at least 25,000 shares of Texaco stock. The largest stockholder, Robert Holmes a Court of Australia, decided against serving as a member.

Regulators close record 17th bank in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Banking regulators say one bank will reopen today and the other on Saturday after they were closed Thursday, bringing the number of failures this year to 17, one more than the record total closed in the state in 1986.

State Bank Commissioner Wayne Osborn said the failed Bank of Granite in southwest Oklahoma would reopen today as a branch of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Maysville, which also would assume the failed bank's insured deposit accounts.

Bill Olcheski, a spokesman for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in Washington, said the Bank of Oklahoma N.A. in Tulsa will reopen the failed First National Bank of Yukon as a branch Saturday.

The Bank of Granite, chartered in 1900, was the 16th bank failure in the state this year, tying the number of failures reported in Oklahoma in 1986.

The First National Bank of Yukon, the 17th failure, was chartered March 15, 1902.

Bank of Oklahoma is paying $754,750 for the right to receive the transferred deposits of The First National Bank of Yukon and will purchase other assets of the Yukon bank for $21.6 million, Olcheski said.

Dean Marriott, senior deputy comptroller of bank supervision for the federal Comptroller of the Currency, said adverse conditions in the local economy played a major role in the decline of the Yukon bank.

In a news release issued in Washington, the comptroller's office said weak supervision and administration by bank officials caused the bank problems with its loan portfolio beginning in 1983. The rate of loan losses had since accelerated.

Osborn said loan losses caused the failure of the Bank of Granite.

The FDIC said in a news release from Washington that fully secured and preferred deposits also would be transferred under the assumption agreements in each bank case.

The First National Bank of Yukon had total assets of $37.8 million. At the time of the closing at 5 p.m., the bank had deposits of $38.5 million in 7,800 deposit accounts. Olcheski said $24,000 was in nine acounts that exceeded the federal insurance limit of $100,000.

The Bank of Granite had total assets of $13.9 million. At the time of the closing, the bank had about $12.7 million in 1,800 deposit accounts, including $109,000 in nine accounts that exceeded the federal insurance limit of $100,000, FDIC officials said.

Uninsured depositors and non-depositor creditors will share proportionately with the FDIC in the proceeds realized from the liquidation of the failed banks' assets.

The FDIC said the administration of the insured deposits transferred to the two banks will be funded by equivalent cash payments from the FDIC.

Farmers and Merchants is paying the FDIC a premium of $118,000 for the right to receive the transfer of deposits and will purchase other assets of the Bank of Granite for $3.4 million.

Meat packers reject union

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — A union formed during a 13-month strike at a Minnesota packing plant has lost its bid to represent workers at a Plainview packing company, but its leader said the vote may be challenged.

Employees of Excel Beef Packing Plant voted Thursday to retain United Food and Commercial Workers as their union, the plant's general manager said.

The vote was 496 for UFCW, 348 for North American Meat Packers, and 29 for no union, manager Warren Mirtsching said Thursday night after the votes were counted.

The challenging union was formed by deposed officers of the UFCW local representing Hormel workers in Austin, Minn., where they engaged in a 13-month strike before the parent union ordered them to call it off last year, said Bunn Butler, a representative from the Dallas offices of UFCW Local 540.

The Plainview Workers had to decide which union they wanted to represent them, or if there was to be a union at all. Mirtsching said 1,106 workers were eligible to vote.

Each union had the right to contest the outcome, and NAMPU spokesman Jessie Munoz said his group is considering disputing campaign tactics used by UFCW. Earlier this week he said workers at the plant were ready for new representation because UFCW was not fulfilling its obligations to the workers.

Anderson buying Pauley

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Robert O. Anderson spent two decades building ARCO into the nation's sixth-largest oil company, and now, less than two years after retiring, he plans to take the top job at yet another oil company.

Anderson, 70, who wrestled with grimy drill bits while working as a oilfield wildcatter during the 1940s, is merging his privately owned Hondo Oil & Gas Co. with the publicly held Pauley Petroleum Inc., the legacy of another oil legend.

Pauley Petroleum was founded by the late Edwin W. Pauley, a multimillionaire and adviser to Presidents. Pauley, based in Los Angeles, pioneered oil exploration off the California shore. But the company lost its zeal for wildcat drilling after the federal government temporarily ended offshore drilling in California in 1969. Pauley has since shifted to running a 22,500-barrel-a-day refinery and asphalt plants.

But there are more ties between these two oilmen than a preliminary merger agreement valued by analysts at $150 million.

Marathon erases salary cuts

From Staff Reports

On the heels of one its healthiest quarterly earnings performances in some time, Marathon Oil Co. has reinstated pay levels that were cut last year.

"The economic conditions that the oil industry is operating under are quite a bit better than last year when we were forced to make the cuts," explained William Ryder, Marathon spokesman at company headquarters in Findlay, Ohio.

Last year's pay cuts were 12 per cent for senior management and six percent for other personnel, Ryder said.

The salary reinstatement is effective Saturday, for all affected workers.

Marathon's payroll in Midland includes about 200 workers. Ryder could not say if all local workers would be impacted by the move but that "anyone who was cut last year will get that cut back."

Add some more grist to the office rumor mill

Howland

An average office employee spends almost the equivalent of a three-week vacation shooting the breeze with co-workers, according to a new survey.

Conducted by Adia Personnel Services, the survey found that nearly two-thirds of the 1,104 personnel decision makers interviewed believe that workers spend at least a half-hour a day socializing.

More than one-fourth of the respondents said that employees spend more than an hour daily in pursuit of non-work related chit-chat.

However, the personnel directors admit that "this can be valuable time" — building the camaraderie and team spirit that many companies find essential to their success.

Trading recipes and car repair tips, discussing last night's big game or the kids' progress in school are crucial to the concept of happy employees as more productive workers.

Inevitably, along with household hints and anecdotes about little Sally and arcane bits of information, the work place is fertile ground for exchanging rumors — those pearls of "truth" that gradually work their way into out national folklore.

Here are some of the rumors that have circulated locally or nationally in the last few years. See if you can sort out the actual rumors from the true facts and the products of a warped imagination:

■ 1. Procter & Gamble uses the man in the moon with 13 stars logo because it is run by Satanists.

■ 2. Seven times more female workers say they prefer male bosses to female bosses.

■ 3. McDonald's hamburgers contain earthworms, kangaroo meat, spider eggs, Argentine beef and horsemeat.

■ 4. Nearly a million people a day drink Coca-Cola for breakfast.

■ 5. The reason that Michael Jackson and Donna Summer never appear together is that she is actually he in drag.

■ 6. Johnny Carson was able to create a run on grocery stores by starting a rumor about an impending toilet paper shortage.

■ 7. Pat Sajak and Vanna White are next in line for the Tonight Show jobs of Johnny Carson and Ed McMahon.

■ 8. Three times more cars in California have "vanity tags" personalized license plates than in Illinois.

■ 9. More than 50,000 more Jews emigrated from the USSR in 1979 than during the "more relaxed" year of 1984.

■ 10. Peter Jennings and Dan Rather eloped to South America, where they were married in a secret ceremony.

■ 11. If properly motivated, Fawn Hall could have smuggled out an entire manuscript of War & Peace out of the White House concealed in her clothing.

■ 12. The reason Tammy Faye Bakker and Imelda Marcos have never been seen together is because they are actually the same person with different makeup — and the same shopping demons.

■ 13. "Nimby" is an accepted English phrase, used to refer to people who are all for a given program but "Not In My Back Yard."

■ 14. Dr Pepper is made with prune juice.

Statements Nos. 2, 4, 8, 9 and 13 are factual. Rumors Nos. 1, 3, 6 and 14 have actually circulated and had to be denied by their targets.

The rest are tomorrow's rumors just waiting to be spread. Gotta run now, I'm late for a week's vacation over at the copy machine.

Twin Peaks gains 291-barrel oiler

GUNN MANAGEMENT CO., Wichita Falls, reported a 291-barrel completion in the Twin Peaks (Conglomerate) Field in King County.

The No. SS-WA S.B. Burnett Estate was drilled to a total depth of 5,906 feet, and 5 1/2 inch casing was set at 5,905 feet. Oil was measured at 36 API and gas-to-oil ratio was recorded at 163:1.

The well was perforated from 5,768 feet to 5,777 feet.

Location is 330 feet from north and east lines of Section 13, Block F of the H&TC Survey, about 16 miles southeast of Guthrie.

Mobil producer nets 384 bopd

MOBIL PRODUCING CO. OF TX & NM INC., Houston, says a Salt Creek completion produced 384 barrels of 39.2 gravity crude on potential test. The well also produced 21 barrels of water and had a gas-to-oil ratio of 234:1.

Seven inch casing was set at 6,700 feet, also the total depth. Perforations were shot from 6,390 feet to 6,514 feet.

The No. 761-C Salt Creek Field Unit is located 1,225 feet from north and 2,575 feet from west lines of Section 167, Block G of the W&NW survey, nine miles northwest of Clairemont.

OCC combines Panhandle cases

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The state Corporation Commission has consolidated and assigned to a hearing officer two cases that could affect the number of wells permitted in the Guymon-Hugoton natural gas field in the Oklahoma Panhandle.

Oil and gas industry lawyers protested the consolidation, saying the two cases are different and should not be combined.

In one case, Mobil Corp. seeks an order requiring gas well operators in the field to do geologic, engineering and economic studies or give others access to field data in their files.

The goal of a such an order would be to help the commission determine the best system for future development of the gas field.

The field has more than 1,300 wells over 1,750 square miles.

The second case brought by a group of oil and gas royalty owners seeks commission permission to have one well per 160 acres, instead of one well per square mile, in part of the field next to the Kansas border. That would equate to four wells per square mile.

Mobil sought dismissal of that request Monday, and the royalty owners at first asked for dismissal of Mobil's request. They later withdrew that motion.

The Kansas Corporation Commission ruled last year that gas producers in the Kansas portion of the Hugoton field could put two gas wells per each square mile.

Oklahomans are concerned that the increased production in Kansas would pull gas from Oklahoma.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Mutual fund investors should beware of 'risk'

By BILL DOYLE

Q. After reading a magazine article about it, I invested in a mutual fund in the spring of 1986. Much to my surprise and despite a bull market in stocks, the mutual fund produced a "total return" of only 3.63 percent for the final nine months of 1986. That's less than I would have received from a bank.

I am at a loss to know how that could happen, when the fund is managed by professionals. Shouldn't the fund management's exploitation of money entrusted to it by the investing public be exposed?

Doyle

A. "Exploitation" is a very strong and really wrong word, as you use it. "Poor performance" is a more apt description of how the fund operated during the particular period you cite.

Mutual funds are run by professional managers who collect hefty salaries for picking stocks, bonds and/or other securities for the funds' investment portfolios. A key part of management's job is deciding when to buy and when to sell those securities.

But professional management can't assure you that your mutual fund investment will produce results better than bank deposits, or anything else. There have been in the past and will be in the future times when the values of mutual fund shares fall.

You should have known this before you bought shares in that mutual fund. You would have known it if you studied the fund's prospectus, which federal rules require be given to you before or at the time you invested.

"Total return" tells in percentage points the change in value of your mutual fund investment, assuming you reinvest dividends and capital gains distributions to buy additional shares.

No one can claim your fund's 3.63 percent total return for the last three quarters of 1986 was good. But many other mutual funds did worse. Some had negative total returns during that time span.

For the first six months this year the fund you named in your letter posted a 12.56 percent total return. That's an improvement. However, it's not as good as the average mutual fund and it's way below the gains in the Dow Jones Industrial Average and other popular stock market measurements.

Since you're obviously disenchanted with your mutual fund, my suggestion is to move your investment to a different fund.

Q. On March 11, 1986, my wife and I put a total of $4,500 into two mutual fund spousal individual retirement accounts for 1985 and 1986. The latest statements we received list the values of the IRA as $3,826.04. I say that our investment has been a loser. Am I correct?

A. Based on the numbers you supply, there's only one answer: "YES." But double-check your numbers and be sure you're including the total value of the two IRAs. And I suspect your latest statements list the account values as of Dec. 31, 1986. Right after that, stock prices surged and so did share values of most mutual funds.

Q. My mutual fund holds Ginnie Maes and U.S. Treasury securities. I nursed it along, so that the monthly dividend has increased to about $200, which I reinvest. The value of my account was $41,245.71 but now is down to $39,913.29.

Should I get out, before it shrinks more? I'm living alone at age 96, which has its problems.

A. I'd advise against "getting out" — redeeming your mutual fund shares by turning them back to the fund.

Instead, my advice is to keep the shares you now own but stop reinvesting your dividends. Take those dividends by check each month. Better yet, find out if the dividends can be deposited directly in your bank account. Many mutual funds have that arrangement.

Although your letter doesn't provide a clue, I'll assume you can use that extra money each month. I wish you an even longer, healthy and happy life, but at 96 you have to face the fact that the time has come — perhaps passed — when you should stop saving for the future.

Railey reportedly involved with other woman

DALLAS (AP) — The Rev. Walker Railey, whose wife has been in a coma since a near-fatal choking three months ago, had discussed marriage with a psychologist before the attack, a source told the Dallas Times Herald.

The source, familiar with the testimony of psychologist Lucy Papillon before a grand jury earlier this this week, told the newspaper Ms. Papillon also told the panel she and Railey had taken several trips "while he was out preaching."

Railey, former senior minister of the First United Methodist Church of Dallas, repeatedly took the Fifth Amendment when questioned Wednesday before the grand jury, sources have said.

The source told the Times Herald that Ms. Papillon, the daughter of a Methodist bishop who had been pastor of the church before Railey's tenure, and Railey became romantically involved in June 1986.

Ms. Papillon's attorney, Phil Burleson, has said there was no romantic involvement between Railey and his client.

The source said Ms. Papillon, who specializes in the treatment of eating disorders, testified that she first met Railey in 1984 on a religious television program the minister had hosted.

Ms. Papillon told the grand jurors she had no knowledge of the attack on Margaret "Peggy" Railey, 38, the source said. But she told the panel she and Railey had been together from 7:30 p.m. to 8:15 p.m. the night Mrs. Railey was assaulted.

Norman Kinne, Dallas County's chief criminal prosecutor, said Railey's failure to tell police he had been with Ms. Papillon the night of the attack was a discrepancy authorities had hoped to clarify during the grand jury investigation.

"He made no mention of visiting Lucy Papillon that night when he talked to the police," Kinne told the Dallas Morning News.

Railey told police he found his wife unconscious on the floor of their garage at 12:40 a.m. April 22. Railey told investigators he had been at a Southern Methodist University library doing research until he went home and found his wife, unconscious on the floor of their garage.

Railey, 40, had talked about divorcing his wife, the source said.

Although Railey and Ms. Papillon had discussed marriage they had made no formal plans, the source said.

"They had discussed it," the source said. "She had those hopes. And they had talked some about it. But there were no concrete plans."

Sources told the Dallas Morning News that they saw Ms. Papillon deliver a long-stemmed rose to Railey at Presbyterian Hospital on April 30, where he was staying to be near his wife.

STATE IN BRIEF

Waste dump site found

AUSTIN (AP) — A statewide search for a low-level nuclear waste dump has been canceled, with the agency in charge of the search indicating it has found the site it wants — in Hudspeth County, 40 miles southeast of El Paso.

The potential site depends on Gov. Bill Clements signing a bill approved by the recent special legislative session.

The bill directs the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority to give preference to state-owned land in its search for a site, and directs state officials to transfer the land to the authority.

The site selection process is being held up by a lawsuit filed by El Paso, which seeks to prevent the selection of the Hudspeth County site.

"I can't understand the concern of the El Paso County government," said Rick Jacobi, general manager of the waste disposal authority. "The site in Hudspeth County will not impact El Paso."

Crash linked to malfunction

FORT HOOD (AP) — Authorities linked the crash of a military helicopter that killed 10 people to an equipment malfunction, a heavy load and other factors, published reports say.

A source who has been involved in the accident investigation told the Killeen Daily Herald on Thursday that high humidity and heat also contributed to the crash of a UH-1 Huey helicopter on June 22 at Fort Hood.

The source, who asked to remain anonymous, said the helicopter's compressor apparently stalled, causing a loss of power.

Ten National Guardsmen and Army Reservists were killed as they were participating in Starburst '87, the annual two-week training exercise of the 49th Armored Division, Texas National Guard.

Group aiding history

AUSTIN (AP) — Junior historians throughout the state are helping restore historic buildings and sites.

"Adopt A Building" is a project of the Texas State Historical Association which is based at the University of Texas in Austin.

David DeBoe of the association said the Junior Historian chapters, which are a part of the historical association, "academically" adopt a building or other manmade landmark in their community which has not been previously researched.

The historians in junior and senior high school classes spend one year uncovering information about their building or site.
