Incumbent mayor, newcomer face off

Lonny Robbins

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

As Pampa's mayor, Lonny Robbins believes he can be a catalyst for change.

"I love Pampa and would like to see a sense of excellence come back to our community," Robbins explained.

"Realistically, I understand that I'm just one person," he said. "One person can't make that happen. What happens is, you need a catalyst sometimes to help people see what they do have."

Robbins, a Pampa native, decided to challenge incumbent Bob Neslage for the mayoral seat in the May 5 city elections.

He said a group of citizens asked him to run for mayor earlier this year.

"I think they came to me because they saw I had a love – a heart for the community and that I wanted it to be a strong place for families."

Robbins said strong leadership skills, an ability to encourage and motivate, and a powerful belief in Pampa's positive aspects qualify him for mayor.

Because Robbins serves as pastor of

Bob Neslage

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

No matter who wins the May 5 election, Bob Neslage predicts Pampa's next mayor will help the city face numerous challenges in the next two years – a dwindling tax base, increasing environmental regulations, and economic development concerns.

"This is a volunteer position," Neslage said. "Whoever's elected, you've got to understand that not either candidate is going to make a living out of the job. They just want to serve."

He should know. Neslage has served three terms – a total of six years – as mayor, the city's highest elected official. He now faces challenger Lonny Robbins in the May 5 city election as he seeks a fourth mayoral term.

"What concerns me is the very small amount of people who traditionally vote," he said. "I think people should study the candidates and make a conscious decision of who is best for the position. They need to be aware of (the candidates') qualifications.

Assault charges dismissed in dog hair DNA case

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

A man accused of brutally beating a convenience store clerk was in Gray County jail today awaiting a decision by probation officers concerning his future after aggravated assault charges against him were dismissed.

Judge Steven Emmert granted the state's motion this month to dismiss charges against Dewayne Gordon Hickman, 33, who has spent more than three years in Gray County jail while the state and defense attorneys wrangled over evidence in the case.

Court records indicate that District Attorney Rick Roach moved to dismiss the case on grounds of insufficient evidence. Judge Emmert signed the dismissal order April 18.

Court officials said the dismissal came following a hearing on March 28, on a motion by the defense to suppress post-hypnotic testimony. In ruling on that motion, Judge Emmert ordered that the victim in the crime, Brenda Angel, be prohibited from making any identification of the defendant during a trial.

"Judge Emmert granted the defendant's motion to suppress the testimony of Brenda Angel," said defense attorney Harold Comer.

Angel, during the investigation of the case, had been hypnotized by a Pampa police officer.

The use of hypnosis in the case was the subject of a bitter battle between former District Attorney John Mann and Comer during an Oct. 15, 1998, pretrial hearing, but the presiding judge at that time, M. Kent Sims, ruled that the hypnosis was allowable. Sims has since been replaced in 31st District Court by Judge Steven Emmert.

Judge Emmert earlier this year, however, ruled that during the hypnotism, the hypnotist did not comply with the standards set forth by the Court of Criminal Appeals.

"The court ruled that the proper procedure was not followed," Comer said, "and, therefore, Judge Emmert could not say the

Dog tests negative to rabies

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Pampa Animal Control Director Sandy Burns breathed a sign of relief Friday afternoon.

"The report on the dog is negative," she said. "It does not have rabies."

Burns was referring to a sick dog that a Pampa man found by the side of an area road Wednesday. He gathered the dog in his pickup and took the animal to the Pampa Control Center in Hobart Street Park where he dropped it off in the night drop.

Pampa authorities were very relieved the dog did not have rabies as news of the diagnosis spread Friday afternoon. Fear of rabies was a major concern throughout the community because of four confirmed reports of rabid skunks in the area in the past few weeks.

It was necessary on Thursday morning to euthanize the dog because of its health condition, said Burns. She contacted Dr. Jim Alexander, Zoonosis control veterinarian for the Texas Department of Health in Canyon about her concern. He called the TDH laboratory in Austin, telling them the animal's head was being shipped out of Pampa Thursday afternoon and requested a "rush diagnosis" on the dog. The animal's head arrived in Austin Friday and an immediate diagnostic procedure was begun on the animal.

Bush twin ticketed for alcohol

AUSTIN (AP) — President Bush's 19-year-old daughter Jenna was cited early Friday for alcohol possession by a minor, police said.

The ticket was issued by undercover Austin Police Department officers who were checking for minors in possession of alcohol at nightclubs along the city's popular East Sixth Street.

Officers questioned Bush and another woman they believed to be under age 21 about 1:30 a.m. at Cheers Shot Bar. They were given a citation but not taken to jail.

Bush, who was drinking beer, did not appear to be intoxicated, Assistant Police Chief Mike McDonald said.

"Both girls were very cooperative, as were the Secret Service," McDonald said. "They didn't interfere in any way."

Bush, a freshman at the University of Texas at Austin, is one of six who were cited at the bar. She faces a possible $200 fine or community service. Two Secret Service agents were outside the bar and did not know Bush was inside drinking, McDonald said.

White House officials would not discuss the incident.

"We respect the privacy of this young woman and we're not going to comment on her personal life," said Noelia Rodriguez, spokeswoman for first lady Laura Bush.

Earlier this year, Bush found herself in the middle of news surrounding a Mardi Gras party at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

It's unclear if she was in the house when law officers arrived after receiving complaints of noise and beer bottles in the street. She was not arrested.

TCU freshman William Ashe Bridges, who graduated with Bush from Stephen F. Austin High School in 2000, was cited for suspicion of public intoxication. Bridges, 18, claimed he was Bush's boyfriend and allegedly called her from jail, said Tarrant County Sheriff Dee Anderson.

The president and his wife have been fiercely protective of Jenna and her twin sister, Barbara.

The twins graduated from high school last May in Austin, where Jenna was dubbed "most likely to trip on prom night" and Barbara was named "most likely to appear on the cover of Vogue."

They both told their parents that they wanted to have little involvement in their father's presidential campaign, and during the campaign they managed to stay out of the public spotlight.

ROBBINS

Trinity Fellowship Church here, he says some people have raised the question of separation of church and state.

"It's an issue that is not an issue," he replied. "First of all, a lot of people don't understand that the whole idea of separation of church and state comes from a letter Thomas Jefferson – a Unitarian – wrote to some Baptists who were afraid he would impose his Unitarian beliefs as president of the United States. He said in his letter that he would not do that – nor will I.

"I'm a citizen no different than anyone running for this office that is employed. People have turned it around that the state needed to be protected from the church when it was the other way around – the church needed to be protected from the government. Our forefathers came here so that they could have freedom of religion.

"I can't force my church on anyone – nor am I," he said. "I'm going to lead with integrity and moral character. If that is equated with being a church... I don't see the two as being different.

"I want a community where there is no murder. I want a community where business is done with integrity," he added. "If you don't have a standard, you have anarchy. That's just upholding the law."

According to Pampa City Charter, the mayor's position is voluntary.

"My only responsibility according to the charter is to oversee the city commission meetings," Robbins said.

But he also feels that as mayor, he will have the opportunity to be a voice for the community.

"In this particular office, it's up to the mayor what he makes out of it," he said. "I think I can help by trying to encourage people to think positively about Pampa.

"I believe I'm a strong leader. I don't believe it's the leader's responsibility to do all the work. It's the leader's responsibility to encourage others to become involved.

"People need to know they're valuable again," he added. "People come to me and say they feel they haven't been a part of the community and would like to become more involved."

Robbins also believes he is a visionary.

"I envision our city being a place where people are being motivated and encouraged to be all they can be. Until you can get people to believe it's a good community, you're not going to convince others to come here."

He thinks that as mayor he can help foster cooperation among the entities – the city, county, and school district.

"I think we have to look at our assets and be very creative with how we market Pampa, how we market our school system," he said. "I think we should market Pampa from the standpoint as being a great place to raise your family.

"Families are looking for a safe place. We have our problems, but we're still a great place to raise kids," he said.

This not just campaign rhetoric. Robbins and his wife Gloria are raising their two children in Pampa schools – 17-year-old Amy, a junior at Pampa High School, and Nick, 13, a seventh grader at Pampa Middle School.

"I think Amarillo has been very successful in landing some businesses," he said. "We should be able to feed off that. For example, for people working at Pantex, it's the same driving time as it is from southwest Amarillo. We can market Pampa as having a lower cost of living. Real estate here is more affordable."

Marketing Pampa's pluses, Robbins said, could encourage more people to move here which would increase the tax base and help solve some of the city's budget problems.

If he is elected, Robbins said he will base his decisions as mayor on what will be best for the whole community.

"Sometimes you may have to make decisions for the future that may be uncomfortable for some people for a time," he said.

"I am who I am. I know my strengths and I know my weaknesses. Any good leader should be aware of their strengths and weaknesses," he said.

NESLAGE

"When you have a small turn-out then you don't have a mandate of the people. I want to encourage people to get out and vote," he said. "If by chance I'm voted out and we had a good turn-out, that's okay with me. That's the mandate of the people."

Looking back over his time as Pampa mayor, Neslage said, "I think my primary accomplishment is maintaining a harmonious atmosphere and a stable staff. Lots of turnover can be counterproductive."

Other achievements he's seen during his tenure include the street renovation project and landfill improvements.

"Because the voters saw fit to pass the bond issue, we've gotten the streets all repaired," Neslage said.

"The landfill was a major endeavor that was very costly, but we had to do that," he added.

He's also proud to see the completion of the Super Playground and the institution of the Cash for Trash program and points out that the city continues to clear abandoned property through tax sales and destroying dilapidated buildings.

"I want to continue to improve the face of Pampa," he said.

"I'm not going to take credit for anything," he insisted. "I have to share these with everyone."

"I'm not pleased with economic development overall," Neslage said. "The biggest thorn in my side has been the (U.S. Bus) operation. That's one thing about economic development. It's capital venture and it doesn't always work out as planned."

Despite the setback with U.S. Bus, a bus manufacturing business brought in by the Pampa Economic Development Corp. (PEDC) that failed, Neslage still believes efforts to develop the city's economy remain essential.

"I feel like if we don't fight for our own economy, who will?" he said. "I do feel we have had good people serve on the economic development board. We've picked the very best.

"It just shows that in business, even when you have good people, things can and will go wrong," he said. "We've learned by every project we've been involved in."

The city's water supply has come under scrutiny in recent months from state and federal authorities as water quality regulations have become more strict.

"The quality of the water hasn't changed markedly," Neslage explained. "The standards have become more stringent. They're testing not only parts per billion, they're testing for parts per million. All communities are having to comply. We were fined because we couldn't comply fast enough."

Not only the city's water purification program, but also it's waste water treatment plant, has been affected by the tougher rules, he said.

"When the Roberts County well water project comes on line – this summer, I think – we'll be blending 30 to 50 percent of well water with the lake water. That will improve the water quality greatly," he said, explaining that recent problems with smell and taste in the water has been traced to a retention tank in the Borger area.

"That has to be resolved by CRMWA (Canadian River Municipal Water Authority)," he said.

Despite a smaller tax base and lower population, Neslage said he feels city officials have been prudent with its dwindling revenues.

"We've been able to stay within our budget," he said. "We've cut staff considerably, but it's been through attrition."

The mayor predicts "tough times ahead" for the city.

"We'll be looking at a tight budget going into the next year," he said, adding that to make a significant different in the city's budget, officials will have to consider cutting more personnel.

"Lost population, the tax base has dwindled – these are all ingredients that make it difficult to manage a municipality," he said.

Neslage and his wife Sheila have been married for 34 years. They have two children, both graduates of Texas A&M University – a daughter, Jackie Hall, and a son, Rob Neslage.

DNA CASE

testimony was reliable. For that reason, he would not allow the testimony to be admitted into evidence or considered by a jury."

Angel was questioned under hypnosis on Oct. 25, 1997.

According to court records, she was questioned in an effort to relate details of the attack that she had previously said she couldn't recall. Following the hypnotic session, Angel specifically named Hickman as her attacker when she had previously been unable to identify her attacker.

The defense claimed that the officer who hypnotized her was not qualified to use the hypnotic technique and was also one of the principal law enforcement investigators in the case. Among other objections to the hypnosis, the defense claimed that there was no evidence to corroborate the hypnotically enhanced testimony.

The Court of Criminal Appeals in a previous case had ruled that the danger of using hypnosis is that not only can retrieve genuinely remembered data, but it can construct false but plausible data to fill in gaps in the memory. Once this takes place, the court said, neither expert nor jury nor the witness himself can differentiate historical fact from fantasy.

The only physical evidence that remained that connected Hickman to the crime was mitacondrial dog DNA.

The defense claimed that testimony about the DNA could not support a jury finding of guilty because mitacondrial DNA passes through the female descendants.

Comer said the defense intended to show evidence that the original owner of the dog from whom Hickman purchased the dog would testify that the female dog had had at least eight litters.

"Half of those litters would have been female," Comer said, "and they would have had litters. There could be as many as 500 to 1,000 dogs in this area carrying the same DNA."

A witness for the state during an earlier hearing said hairs taken from the crime scene matched the mitacondrial DNA of hair taken from Hickman's dog.

"They can say that they're the same, but the same DNA from those hairs would be in any female dog in that line," Comer said.

The state didn't have any other physical evidence, Comer said.

Hickman has spent almost four years in Gray County jail. He was being held without bond for parole violation in connection with charges of escaping a halfway house in Dallas.

Comer said Hickman has now served more time than if they had revoked his probation and sent him to prison.

Hickman was accused of attacking Angel in the early morning hours of Oct. 21, 1997.

Authorities said that a 47-year-old clerk apparently surprised a burglar in when she came to work early at the Minute Mart, 1106 Alcock.

"It was a particularly brutal attack," said Pampa Police Chief Charlie Morris.

Officers said the woman came to work about 4 a.m. on the morning of the attack. Authorities said it appeared that a would-be burglar was hiding in the store and beat her when she came in. She suffered two broken arms and numerous gashes to her head and body.

Hickman was arrested about a week later at his home at 2116 Coffee after the victim described her attacker while being questioned under hypnosis.

The trial had been rescheduled a number of times due to delays in crime lab testing of evidence.

Russian rocket lifts off carrying space tourist Dennis Tito

BAIKONUR, Kazakstan (AP) — A Russian rocket lifted off flawlessly Saturday from the Baikonur cosmodrome, carrying the first space tourist, American Dennis Tito, and two cosmonauts into orbit on their way to the International Space Station. The Soyuz rocket blasted off from the barren steppes of Central Asia under sunny, blue skies, and disappeared into the heavens, trailing a red flame and leaving a faint line of white smoke. The spaceship carrying Tito, a 60-year-old California businessman, was scheduled to dock with the ISS on Monday. A television monitor inside the spaceship showed Tito, in a white spacesuit decorated with an American flag on the shoulder and a plexiglass helmet, grinning broadly.

RABIES

The detection of rabies is made by a laboratory examination of the suspect brain tissue at the Austin laboratory. Local animal control officers were relieved to receive the news that the animal did not have rabies.

It was very good news for the unidentified Pampa man who delivered the dog to the animal control center as it meant he will not have to undergo rabies treatment for humans. Dr. Alexander said the method of treatment has improved and is not nearly as extensive as in the past.

Rabies is a fatal disease.

The treatment includes five shots in the arm.

He said rabies is predominantly transmitted from animal to animal through bites, human exposure from domestic livestock and pets usually occurs without a bite.

Area residents are urged to get their animals vaccinated, large animals as well as pets.

"Vaccination of our pets is the only way we can protect ourselves from rabies," said Burns. She said, "There is no way to control the wildlife, but vaccination is pretty cheap insurance for families."

Reports of rabies have been of concern to area residents in recent weeks.

The 31st Annual Rabies drive will be May 4, 5 and 7 in Pampa. Communities throughout the Texas Panhandle have scheduled the clinics due to the confirmed rabies diagnosis in the area.

The following reports are in chronological order in the area:

• August, 2000 - A bobcat found near McLean was confirmed to have rabies

• March 11, 2001 - A rabid skunk was found in Wheeler County

• March 23, 2001 - A skunk found on Price Road on the western edge of Pampa was positively confirmed rabid.

• April 14, 2001 - A skunk found in McLean was confirmed to have rabies

• April 20 - A skunk located in the 900 block of Reid in southeastern Pampa was diagnosed as rabid. Also, a horse in Deaf Smith County was confirmed to have rabies.

Confirmed reports have also been made in Randall County.

The number of rabies cases in the Texas Panhandle has doubled over last year. By this time last year, only two skunks and a bat were reported to be rabid last year.

Alexander said the tremendous increase in the skunk population is causing more cases of rabies. He said the skunks can maintain rabies and live with it for a long time before it kills them. They are able to spread it widely within their population before the die.

Area residents are cautioned to not leave any pet food outside following a feeding of animals as it is encouraging the skunks to go into backyards.

"Feed your animals and get the leftover food out of the pet feeding dishes," said Burns. "The skunks are coming into yards to eat the food."

Gunman shoots two deputies, one fatally, before killing self

HALLSVILLE, Texas (AP) — An East Texas man shot two deputies, killing one, before turning the gun on himself late Friday morning.

Charles Anderson shot and killed Lt. Clay Medrano of the Harrison County Sheriff's Department at a mobile home in a rural area east of Hallsville, police said.

Medrano, 51, had been with the department more than 15 years, said Harrison County Deputy T.K. Wadlington.

Medrano was shot in the forehead as he approached a mobile home where he was attempting to serve a misdemeanor arrest warrant to Anderson, officers said.

Faith and the goodness of dictators

Marvin Olasky
Syndicated columnist

China still holds an American airplane, but a divided Bush administration seemed hesitant to send Beijing a message by selling Taiwan four destroyers equipped with the Aegis combat system, the U.S. Navy's most sophisticated radar. Maybe that was smart — but maybe, for some within the administration, the refusal to sell was based on faith in the natural goodness of leaders with homicidal tendencies.

Let's acknowledge harsh facts. Beijing's dictators were willing to shoot students a decade ago. Reports indicate that they have ordered the shooting of protesting villagers in recent weeks. If one way to judge the willingness of a nation's leaders to attack other countries is to gauge how they act toward their own people, we may be in for Cold War II.

That's certainly not something I want. I don't want my grandchildren to repeat the elementary school drills in which I ludicrously dived under a desk for "protection" against Soviet nuclear bombs. But we need 20-20 vision now if we are to forestall that scenario in the year 2020.

What gets in the way of acknowledging harsh facts? We rightly associate the words "faith-based initiative" with President Bush's much-needed domestic policy proposals, but the State Department has been and apparently still is the home of an international faith-based initiative. Some folks there believe that war is an unnatural act, one preventable by astute diplomacy.

The faithful there possess great faith in human goodness. They believe that leaders across the world naturally want to avoid war, but are forced into it through mistrust or institutional problems. All they are saying is that we should give peace a chance by restraining our arms production, eliminating or reducing the effectiveness of our military alliances and so forth.

The Bush administration also includes skeptics who view international relations in line with a harder-edged view of human nature. They see war as very natural, given man's greed for power. They understand that dictators, often viewing war as a permissible way to gain more power, are ready to attack whenever they think they can get away with it.

The skeptics recognize that history is full of mistaken calculations of that sort. Dictators have a tendency to overrate their own power, but they may still plunge ahead unless restrained by the obvious power of their adversaries. So skeptics try to raise the cost of war to potential aggressors. They look for opportunities to help those courageous enough to stand up to dictators. They arouse the public to the importance of military preparedness and alliances.

Let's look at the faithful vs. skeptics debate in connection with the specific situation now in the news. Taiwan is 100 miles off China's coast. It's a Maryland-sized country (14,000 square miles) with a Texas-sized population of 22 million. China's leaders want to seize it partly for its wealth, partly out of nationalistic pride and partly to cover up embarrassment: Even with China's recent great leap forward, the average Taiwanese is at least four times richer than the average Chinese.

China's dictators clearly do not plan to salivate from a distance. Satellite surveillance shows that China each year is adding about 50 short-range ballistic missiles to its bristling attack force of 300 to 400 already. Beijing industrialists already dream of adding Taiwan's wealth and technological prowess to their own.

The State Department faithful say that China's dictators are good, humane, reasonable people with a few rough edges. Some also say that we and our Taiwanese allies have no choice: We must all kiss up to the big power. Some say that a country with the resources of a billion people can readily overwhelm one that is 50 times smaller. But Israel has shown that, with bravery and advanced technology, small countries can stand up to big bullies. Taiwan can do the same — if we help.

We should, for Taiwan's sake and for our own. We should trade with China when we can do so without harming our own national security, for we still hope to develop friendly relations. But we should not let faith in humanity's natural goodness, nor the love of commerce, be the root of a very great evil.

If we lose our allies, our sense of isolation will lead to a panic in a few years, and then a frenzied rush into a nuclear-edged Cold War II that I hope can still be headed off.

Texas Editorials

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial opinion around Texas:

San Angelo Standard-Times on presidential recount results confusing:

Maybe we shouldn't be surprised that even the unofficial recount of the presidential vote in Florida is confounding.

When news organizations and others made known their intentions to count the Florida ballots themselves, even many Republicans braced for bad news. They said the media tally wouldn't matter, that the loosest possible standards would be used to make it look as though Al Gore really defeated George W. Bush.

These months later, it really didn't seem to matter much, maybe because people already had accepted the possibility, or even likelihood, that Gore would win the recount that wouldn't count.

But then he didn't. Or, more accurately, and more peculiarly, he didn't win the recounts most thought he would win. At least in a review conducted by the Miami Herald and carried out by 27 accountants, Gore lost using every standard except the one that everyone presumed would most benefit Bush if only votes with cleanly punched holes on punch-card ballots were counted. Using that standard, Gore won the state by three votes.

Obviously, if that tally had been the original one on election night, the result would have been questioned and challenged just as vigorously.

This recount needed to be carried out, if only to write the final chapter on perhaps the most controversial election in history. As many questions as possible needed to be answered, even though its impossible to fully resolve all of them.

But the fact that the months-later recount stories are generating minimal interest indicates that the great majority of Americans have accepted Bush's election and presidency as completely legitimate.

Even if the recounts had gone Gore's way, it seems doubtful Bush's standing would have been affected. America has moved on, and the news about what happened last November already seems like the stuff for next years history books.

Certainly some Gore partisans will reject the latest numbers and continue to view Bush's presidency as illegitimate. But, then, so did many Republicans regard Bill Clinton's presidency in that light, and there was no question about his victory at the polls, only that he never won a majority.

The 2000 election was a test for American democracy. We learned that we need to do a better job of ensuring that all votes are properly counted, but we also can feel reassured these five months later that the process is fundamentally sound.

Sowell offering reveals economic truths

Walter Williams
Syndicated columnist

Dr. Thomas Sowell has just released his latest treasure — it's title is "Basic Economics: A Citizen's Guide to the Economy."

Reading through the book reminded me of a 30-plus-year-old conversation I had with Professor Armen Alchian, one of my tenacious mentors during my graduate training at UCLA.

Alchian said that the true test of whether one understands his subject is whether he can explain it to someone who doesn't know a darn thing about it. Sowell wasn't Alchian's student, but "Basic Economics: A Citizen's Guide to the Economy" demonstrates his ability to make economics understandable to a person who hasn't set foot into an economics class. It's a book rich with explanations and examples of everyday economic issues and problems without the jargon, graphs and equations.

Sowell gives an excellent example of the benefit of market over government allocation of resources. The same labor and construction material needed to build a Protestant church could just as easily be used to build a Catholic church. As the Protestant congregation makes plans and goes about raising money, high construction prices might cause them to scale back some of its more elaborate plans. But they are unlikely to blame Catholics, even though the competition of Catholics for labor and construction material makes their prices higher than otherwise.

If, instead, the government were in the business of building churches and presenting them to different religious groups, Protestants and Catholics would be explicit rivals for this largess. Neither would have financial incentive to cut back on their plans to accommodate the other. Hostility might arise whereby Protestants would blame Catholics, and vice versa, for the necessity of having to scale back on building plans or not being able to have their church at all.

While our Constitution prohibits the government from building churches, the same principle can be applied to groups not based on religion but on ethnicity, sex, geographical regions or age brackets. Who complains about blacks being 80 percent of professional basketball players and 66 percent of professional football players? But suppose instead of competition, government, in the pursuit of "sports justice," decided who could and could not be on professional basketball and football teams. Hostility between blacks and whites, tall people and short people, and the young and the old would be guaranteed. The same principle applies to race or sex quotas in college admission and employment demanded by various government authorities.

Towards the end of "Basic Economics: A Citizen's Guide to the Economy," Sowell takes on some of the most egregious economic fallacies. Those who favor government intervention in the economy often depict those who prefer free competition as Adam Smith's pro-business apologists. But Adam Smith, the 18th century father of free-market economics, was so scathingly critical of businessmen that it would be impossible to find a single favorable reference to them in his 900-page classic, "The Wealth of Nations."

"Unmet needs" roll off the lips of politicians, journalists and academicians as if unmet needs were unusual and curable by one government program or another. Anyone who has driven in most big cities might feel there's an unmet need for more parking spaces. While it's technically feasible for a city to have parking spaces available anywhere, anytime of the day, in the city is it advisable to meet this unmet need? Doing so would mean fewer hospitals, fire stations and other buildings. The point Sowell constantly makes is that scarcity is mankind's perennial state of affairs. That being the case, in order to have more of one thing necessarily means having less of another. Tradeoffs become a fact of life.

"Basic Economics: A Citizen's Guide to the Economy" is not only valuable for a general layperson audience; it would also benefit lawyers, politicians and, yes, economists, as well.

Never underestimate the wily gobbler

Charley Reese
Syndicated columnist

I went turkey hunting recently on a Florida ranch. But, animal lovers, don't worry. I didn't see a single bird.

The wild turkey was Benjamin Franklin's choice for national bird. The turkey is a very wily bird with exceptionally keen eyesight and hearing. Veteran hunters say that if the wild turkey had a sharp sense of smell, no one would ever have an opportunity to shoot one.

Today, gobblers are hunted during the mating season. I suppose it could be said of turkey gobblers as it is said of men that they have two gifts, one of which is the brain — but the bad news is that the two gifts won't work at the same time.

So to hunt tom turkeys in the spring, you wait until the mating season, try to find a gobbler in your general vicinity and then attempt to imitate a hen's call on various turkey callers. Gobblers, in the heat of the urge, will usually come to investigate, and that's when a well-disguised hunter can shoot a gobbler's head off.

Alas, my two days in the woods were toward the end of the season, and apparently most of the surviving gobblers had taken care of business. The first three hunts, I heard nothing but inedible birds and cows — which, by the way, are remarkably noisier than I had thought. They moo and squeal in a bass voice for no discernible reason. Maybe they are just clearing their throats.

But on the last day, some turkeys that had been watching me make a fool out of myself for two days said to each other, "Well, let's give the poor sap a thrill and gobble once."

So they did. But that was all. No amount of turkey calling, hopefully in the style of a love-starved hen, drew them to the blind. One of the other hunters tried to console me by saying that they were probably young male turkeys who hadn't quite figured it all out yet. (Have you ever thought about the fact that there is no one to tell the birds and the bees about the birds and the bees? Poor things don't even have television and Hollywood to help them.)

But hunting is called hunting instead of shooting for the very good reason that one hunts more than one shoots. It's wonderful to see the stars without light pollution and to watch a dawn in the deep woods.

As for the turkeys, there's always next year, and I will have the same shotgun shells ready to go.

Nominations sought for veterans' honor banquet

To the editor,

Once again, it is springtime in the Texas Panhandle, and plans are already being made for the Annual Panhandle Veterans Hall of Honor Banquet. This project was started in 1990, and was initiated to recognize and honor those outstanding panhandle veterans who have distinguished themselves in the service of their country. Over the years, we have inducted individuals from Pampa, Amarillo, Canyon, Claude and other area towns. These honored inductees have been recipients of such awards as the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross and even three who received the Congressional Medal of Honor.

We can never completely show our appreciation to these individuals for their bravery, love of country and unselfish sacrifices; however, in this small gesture, we hope to let the living and deceased know they are not forgotten and their sacrifices were not in vain. Unfortunately, some of those we honor have gone on to their final resting places; however, we feet confident where ever they are, they will hear their names called and know they have not been forgotten.

To nominate a deserving individual, we need a short narrative on their life, what branch of the service they served in, the awards they received and if possible a copy of citations that accompanied the awards, plus any copies of newspaper clipping pertaining to the nominee.

In the narrative, we are encouraging the writer to tell about the nominee's contributions to his or her community following his years of service in the military. This will give our selection committee a better idea as to the overall merit of the individual. We need to have all the nominations in no later than July 20.

After the selection committee has made their selection, the new inductees will be notified as to the time and place of the banquet which will be held in Pampa on Aug. 17 at 7 p.m. at the Pampa Veterans of Foreign Wars Post Home located at 105 S. Cuyler in downtown Pampa. Please address all nominations to me in care of: Panhandle Veterans Hall of Honor, c/o John L. Tripplehorn, Freedom Museum USA, 600 N. Hobart, Pampa, TX 79065.

I will look forward to receiving all nominations, and it is truly an honor for me to be associated with such outstanding veterans.

High Plains Public Radio promoting worthwhile project

To the editor,

The letter included here was originally sent to High Plains Public Radio in Garden City, Kan., and is in regard to the "Top O'Texas Public Radio Project" currently in progress. I was asked by the Community Public Radio Committee for Pampa-Lefors-Mobeetie-Skellytown-White Deer to share this. They thought these comments might be of interest to your readers.

To the Folks at High Plains Public Radio:

I am so excited about our upcoming chance to hear some good classical music after its absence all these many years. I am 80 and my husband, Joe, just turned 88 last week, so you can be assured we feel richly blessed for each new day!

I see the projected time line for the project completion is January, 2002 ... hope we're around to enjoy it. If not, our family in Pampa will and our grandchildren.

We are thankful that this is "in the making" and hope you will be delightfully overcome with funding for this worthwhile project!

Too little privacy for reporting a crime ...

To the editor,

What has happened to your newspaper?

Are you so desperate for space filler that you invade the privacy of the honest, hard-working citizens who simply report a crime?

If I had wanted everyone to know my middle name, my age or my address, I would have told them myself. There is a reason that people have their phone numbers unlisted. I'm surprised you didn't put that in your paper. It was on the police report.

I am certainly glad I didn't commit the crime! What would you have published then? My maiden name, how many children I have or possibly how high my gas bills were this winter?

HB 3070 threatens private property rights

To the editor,

There is an alarming bill being proposed by our own Rep. Warren Chisum of Pampa, Texas. It is called House Bill 3070. Essentially it is a bill that would require "forced utilization" of enhanced recovery units in Texas. Under the proposed legislation, if you are an operator of a lease you will lose control over whom operates your property if forced into a unit, and some of the terms of your lease may be voided without your consent.

If you are an unleased mineral owner and do not like the lease terms offered to you, you can be forced into the unit with a royalty that is less than what you believe to be the fair market value. If you are a working interest owner, you can be forced into costly projects without your consent. This may cause some concern to your banker!

The only way to avoid being forced into a unit which you believe is too costly is to sell your interest to the operator at the price her or she sets! Also if you decide to arbitrate, you will have the burden of proving that the unit adversely affects you.

Please contact Warren Chisum's office in Austin to protest this bill. It is presently in committee and should be voted on soon. Mr. Chisum's telephone in Austin is (512) 463-0736, and his oil/gas representative's name is Logan Spence, or you can write Mr. Chisum at P.O. Box 2910, Austin, TX 78768.

This affects private property rights for all of us. This bill must be stopped!

Conference addresses the need for positive teaching

To the editor,

In writing, my hope is that we will all unite in taking action to bring peace to our communities. I, like you, have seen the effects of a world at unrest. We have seen wars, hatred and much death. This death is not only upon foreign lands, but also right in our schools and homes.

Citizens and Voters of Pampa:

Gloria, Amy (17), Nick (13) And Lonny

I need to share with you a little about myself and clear up questions you might have about my seeking the office of Mayor.

Yes, I pastor a vibrant, growing church in Pampa; therefore, some of you may question how I will be able to pastor a church and serve as mayor at the same time. I view this as being the same as any person who is employed or operates a business and yet desires to serve the community of Pampa. I am capable of fulfilling my responsibilities in the roles of pastor and of mayor.

Another concern some of you may have is in regard to "the separation of church and state." My obligation as mayor will be to keep the church and the city separate. My church will not be an issue nor interfere with my role as mayor.

I believe in Pampa and its future. A strong leader recognizes the need for others to join in a cooperative effort for Pampa's success in the years ahead. Pampa is a city of great potential with its most valuable asset being the people.

I will be a good mayor and will strive in every way to make Pampa a safe and prosperous place to live, which will encourage industry and businesses to come to Pampa because of what we have to offer in our city. My expertise is not only in pastoring, but also in business, budget planning, and management. For the past 20 years I have jointly managed a family business.

As a citizen and leader of this city, I will serve with integrity and high moral character.

With warm regards,
Lonny Robbins

Western Heritage Museum to host annual chuck Wagon gathering

OKLAHOMA CITY — One of the nation's greatest opportunities for family entertainment is returning again to the National Cowboy and Western Heritage Museum, formerly the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center. The Museum's annual Chuck Wagon Gathering and Children's Cowboy Festival is scheduled for May 26 and 27, 2001, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. For the price of daily museum admission, the popular Memorial Day weekend event provides delicious food and quality entertainment for the entire family.

Stage entertainment this year will include award-winning western singers Red Steagall and Don Edwards. Steagall has performed during the Chuck Wagon event since 1990 and will be on-stage Saturday, May 26. Considered America's premier cowboy balladeer, Edwards is a musicologist and author on western and traditional cowboy music. He will be on-stage Sunday, May 27.

Each year, Chuck Wagon participants anticipate the opportunity to stroll from one chuck wagon to the next to sample real cowboy cooking. Ten authentic chuck wagon crews prepare food for the thousands of people who attend the weekend event.

All activities, excluding sampling bowls and concession, are included in the price of admission: adults $8.50; senior citizens $7; children 6-12 $4. Children five and under are admitted free, as are members of the museum. Tasting bowls are $3 each.

DEDICATION ... Does It Matter To Pampa?

Many scholars and most Americans hold to the idea that in the drafting of the American Constitution, our founding fathers were divinely inspired and guided as they wrote that immortal document. It is inconceivable that mortal men could have possessed such wisdom without some guidance from a greater power. Many had witnessed first hand the religious and monarch directed tyranny that had taken place in Europe during their lifetimes. The founding fathers chose their words ever so carefully so that future generations of Americans might never have to suffer under that type of oppression. One of the cornerstones of their new republic was "separation of church and state", and they were very clear and concise on this issue. Since those early days, this country has seen efforts by various groups to circumvent that part of the Constitution, but fortunately the American voter has held steadfast to that principle.

Lt. Col. Bob Neslage served this nation with honor, integrity and true patriotism for over 20 years in the United State Army, serving one tour in Vietnam. He then returned to Pampa to make his home. Since then he has served the people of Pampa in many capacities, never asking for anything in return, but rather freely giving of himself for the betterment of the community. He is now asking for your vote of confidence by being re-elected as mayor of Pampa. He is opposed by an individual who never served in the military, never walked in harms way in defense of our Constitution and has enjoyed all the many benefits that result from living in the greatest nation this world has ever known. If the voters of Pampa fail to give Mayor Neslage their votes and support, what message will they be sending local veterans and more importantly to the youth of our community? History has shown us far too many times that "bad" things can only happen when good people do nothing". Your vote in this important race could well determine the direction Pampa takes for several years to come. Your vote will most assuredly count. Please take the time on Saturday May 5th to tell Major Neslage "thank you for your dedication and patriotism--job well done".

Respectfully,

LETTERS

On April 20, 1999, the tragedy of Columbine High School occurred. On March 6, 2001, almost two years later, we had another horror in a school in Santee, Calif. This shows that we have done nothing to change the hearts and minds of the students to make sure this does not occur again. Unless we get to the cause of these tragedies, unless we stop trying to put a band-aid on the symptoms of a sick society, we will continue to mourn without hope of change.

My hope is that you will see there is a Peaceful Solution and a positive way to change the way our society is heading.

On Feb. 23-25, 2001, the Third Global Conference on Peace was hosted by The House of Yahweh in Abilene, Texas. It was co-convened by Dr. Yisrayl Hawkins, from Abilene and Dr. Oryema Johnson from Canada. There were 16 countries represented there, including men and women from China, Russia, Israel and Nigeria, to name just a few. Representatives from various peace organizations across the United States were also in attendance.

Though the people came from many nations, the problems all stemmed from the same cause: a lack of education in the laws of moral principles. It was agreed upon by all, that with proper education, starting at a very young age, all forms of the negative effects that we see in modern day society would be eliminated.

"The only way to stop hate and killing is through education, taught through the laws in the Peaceful Solution," said the representative from Israel. The representative from Armenia totally agreed with this statement. These two men have seen the devastating effects of their countries at war, because only war is taught there. Now they will be taking back with them hope, through the teaching of the Peaceful Solution.

What is the Peaceful Solution? The Peaceful Solution is a set of moral principles that can be taught to all people. Everyone who is taught and practices The Peaceful Solution will greatly benefit from these principles.

I urge you to obtain and consider this information. Free samples of this program are being offered. To receive your free copy, call 1-888-613-9494, or write to The Peaceful Solution, P.O. Box 2442, Abilene, TX 79604; or e-mail: info@peacefulsolution.com and request the Peaceful Solution program which was offered at the Third Global Conference on Peace in Abilene, Texas. Yisrayl Hawkins is also available for interviews.

You have the opportunity and the responsibility to do something to make a change.

Autism is a neurological disorder not mental illness

To the editor,

April 27, 2001, has been declared "Autism Awareness Day" in the state of Texas. So what, you say. I don't know anyone with autism. Maybe not, but I do.

My youngest child is autistic. Many of you know my child. He doesn't look autistic, you say. Think of it this way, you may know someone right now who is pregnant. She might be only a month or two along and not showing much, does that make her any less pregnant? Just because you don't see something doesn't mean it isn't there.

To most of us, autism conjures up pictures of Dustin Hoffman in the movie "Rain Man," or maybe a child who just sits and rocks back and forth. Autism is what doctors call a spectrum disorder, meaning there are varying degrees. Some might be affected severely, others more mildly. My child falls in the mild category. He still has autism, you just can't see it. Or maybe you can.

Autism is a neurological disorder, so it affects the central nervous system. It affects how an autistic person takes in their surroundings. To us, it is not a problem to go to the store — the lights, sounds, smells, movement and everything else do not really bother us. Think about how it makes you feel when someone runs their fingernails across a chalkboard. My child can get that same sensation from overhead lights, or crowds, or noise or any other number of stimuli that you and I never even give a second thought. Except now, I do give it a second thought. I have to plan my outings around how my child is feeling that particular day.

So, maybe you have seen us at the store when he is having a difficult time. The mother with a child you thought was just throwing a temper tantrum. Except we don't call them that, we call them meltdowns, because that is literally what happens to him. He goes into a rage and continues until he is physically exhausted and he melts into a heap onto the floor. Hopefully, we have gotten home before he gets to that point. Sometimes we don't make it.

Like I said before, autism is a neurological disorder. It knows no racial, ethnic or social boundaries. Family income, lifestyle or educational levels do not affect the chances of occurrence. It strikes about every 15 in 10,000 people. Autism interferes with the normal development of the brain in areas which control verbal and nonverbal communication, social interaction and sensory development.

The characteristics and behaviors of autism can present themselves in a wide variety of combinations, from mild to severe. It is not a mental illness. It is not caused by bad parents who gave their child too little attention. Autistic children are not unruly kids with a behavior problem. It is the third most common developmental disability, even more prevalent now than Down's Syndrome.

My child has always been autistic, and he always will be. There are therapies and programs that will help him to function in his life, but his autism will never go away. I have two older children, and I remember what is was like when we went places with their friends, when we were able to go out to dinner as a family and not have to leave before our meal was finished, when we could take a family vacation. My life changed when my youngest was born six years ago, my entire family's life changed. I think that if you ever met my child, he would change your life, too. Yes, I envy some of you when I see you with your child doing things my son will probably never do, but I wouldn't trade places with you for anything.

Food for thought concerning Second Amendment

To the editor,

Guns are a big item in the news when opposing sides argue about the Second Amendment.

These thoughts may help both sides to focus on the arguments.

—An armed man is a citizen. An unarmed man is a subject.
—A gun in the hand is better than a cop on the phone.
—Colt: The original point and click interface.
—Gun control is not about guns - it is about control.
—If guns are outlawed, can we use swords?
—If guns cause crime, then pencils cause misspelled words.
—Free men do not ask permission to bear arms.
—If you do not know your rights, then you do not have any.
—Those who trade liberty for security have neither.
—The United States Constitution of 1789. All rights reserved.
—What part of "shall not be infringed" do you not understand?
—The Second Amendment is in place in case they ignore the others.
—64,999,987 gun owners killed no one yesterday.
—Guns have only two enemies: rust and politicians.
—Know guns, know peace. No guns, no peace.
—You do not shoot to kill, you shoot to stay alive.
—911 - government sponsored Dial a Prayer.
—Assault is a behavior, not a device.
—Criminals love gun control - it makes their jobs safer.
—If guns cause crime, then matches cause arson.
—Only a government that is afraid of its citizens tries to control them.
—You only have the rights you are willing to fight to protect.
—When you remove the peoples' right to bear arms, you create slaves.
—The American War for Independence would never have happened if the colonists had submitted to gun control laws and surrendered their guns and powder.

Voters must search out the truth themselves ...

To the editor,

As a resident of Lefors, I will not be voting in the upcoming mayoral elections taking place in Pampa. I am, however, concerned with the statements being made regarding the separation of church and state.

This fallacy has been believed by many in the church as well as those not associated with the church. Unfortunately these beliefs have affected every aspect of our lives including the recent decision to no longer allow prayer at school events.

A close examination of the lives of our founding fathers shows that their religious beliefs governed every decision made. Our currency has the statement of "In God We Trust." The Ten Commandments were found displayed in the courtrooms of our government, as well as swearing on a Bible to tell the truth.

The purpose of the Constitution was to keep the government from interfering with the church, not the other way around. It was to avoid the very thing that Communist countries promoted, a state religion. Our Constitution was founded so that we might have freedom of religion.

Study this for yourself — search out the truth. Don't just believe what you are told.

Texas unemployment remains lower than national rate

AUSTIN — March's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in Texas rose to 4.1 percent from a revised 3.8 percent in February the Texas Workforce Commission (TWC) announced today.

"Even though the unemployment rate is up from February, it is four-tenths of a percentage point lower than the March 2000 statewide rate," said TWC Chair Diane Rath. "This also is the fourth month in a row it has been lower than the national rate."

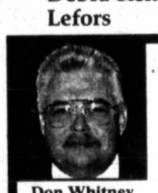

Nonagricultural employment grew by 21,700 jobs in March and added 258,000 jobs over the year.

"Mining showed tremendous strength with its highest monthly percentage gain (1.4 percent) in the last eleven years," said Commissioner Representing Labor T.P. O'Mahoney. "This surge was due largely to 2,000 new jobs in Oil and Gas Exploration."

"Finance, Insurance and Real Estate grew by 2,400 jobs in March," said Commissioner Representing Employers Ron Lehman. "This is an encouraging development since this is the industry's largest monthly job gain in the last 21 months."

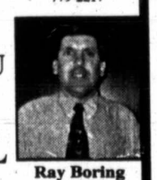

The lowest unemployment rate among the Metropolitan Statistical Areas (MSAs) in March was 1.4 percent in Bryan-College Station. Austin-San Marcos was next at 2.5 percent, followed by 2.6 percent in San Angelo and 2.8 percent in Lubbock. Amarillo and Wichita Falls tied for fifth at 3.0 percent.

The highest unemployment rate was 12.8 percent in McAllen-Edinburg-Mission, followed by 7.7 percent in Brownsville-Harlingen, 7.4 percent in El Paso, 7.0 percent in Laredo and 6.9 percent in Beaumont-Port Arthur.

Your Old Cell Phone Can Provide New Lease on Life

Dear Abby

Is written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips.

DEAR ABBY: Because of today's ever-improving technology in wireless phones, millions of Americans have cell phones lying around that are no longer being used.

Instead of tossing them in the garbage when new ones are purchased, these handsets can be given to the "Donate-A-Phone" program that helps domestic violence victims. Sponsored by the Wireless Foundation, the "Donate-A-Phone" campaign was launched in September 1999 to collect and refurbish a portion of the 24 million wireless phones no longer being used. The phones are reprogrammed with 911 and other emergency numbers so domestic violence victims can access local emergency services and hot-line numbers at the touch of a button.

From May 1 to July 31, 2001, RadioShack is once again partnering with the Wireless Foundation to collect cell phones for the program. Abby, please let your readers know they can help victims of domestic violence by donating their old wireless phones.

JILL A. LAIN, RADIOSHACK

DEAR JILL: What a terrific idea! Prepare for a deluge, because I'm sure that many people who see your letter will be delighted to join your "Donate-A-Phone" campaign.

Readers: Between May 1 and July 31, your outdated cell phone may be dropped off at any of RadioShack's 7,100 stores. Phones and accessories in any condition will be gladly accepted, and all donations are tax-deductible to the fullest extent of the law. IRS regulations prohibit the receiving organization from placing a value on donated items, but generally, the fair-market value can be claimed on your tax return.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever there is a death in or outside of our family, my mother always sends a card with cash in it to the grieving family. This mortifies me. She sends $5 to $50 for funeral expenses regardless of the financial situation of those in mourning. It seems so tacky. I beg her to send food or flowers or just a card, but she continues to send cash every time.

What do you think?

MORTIFIED DAUGHTER IN MICHIGAN

DEAR MORTIFIED: Lighten up! This may be a generational difference. It is certainly a caring gesture — and I cannot see that it is in any way "tacky." If the grieving family doesn't need the money, it can always be forwarded to the deceased's favorite charity.

***

DEAR ABBY: Why do athletes get paid more than teachers and policemen? They are the people who educate us and keep us safe. I believe the public can live without watching athletes, but can't live without people who keep us safe and make us smart.

GRACE KOUBA, AGE 9, EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR GRACE: You have asked a very good question. Athletes earn huge salaries because of the money and publicity they bring to the teams that hire them. Millions of fans pay big money to see their favorite athletes play. Whether their "service" is of more value than what a teacher or police officer has to offer is a matter of perspective — and a lesson in capitalism.

Notebook

HOCKEY

DALLAS (AP) — Marty Reasoner played nearly as many games in the AHL as the NHL this season. Considering he shuffled between Worcester, Mass., and St. Louis three times, it would be understandable if he was nervous every time the phone rang or a coach called him over for a chat.

But Reasoner impressed the St. Louis Blues enough to earn a spot on the playoff roster. Although he sat out the first five games, his play in the sixth game of the first-round series against San Jose earned him quality minutes in the opener of the second round against Dallas.

Reasoner responded by setting up the Blues' first goal and scoring the next two as the Blues beat the Stars 4-2 Friday night.

"I was staying positive and working hard, hoping to get an opportunity," Reasoner said of his series of demotions and recalls. "It's been a tough year so far, but we have a lot of games left. I'm just excited to play with those guys."

BASKETBALL

PAMPA — Pampa Academy will sponsor a 3 on 3 Streetball Tournament May 12 at Central Park.

There will be both male and female divisions for the basketball tournament.

Please call 669-7354 or 665-3005 for more information.

GOLF

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Mike Sposa, with no experience as a front-runner, wasn't really sure how to answer a question about weekend pressure on the PGA Tour.

"There is pressure in everything you do," said Sposa, who is leading the Greater Greensboro Chrysler Classic by a shot after 36 holes. "I really don't look at golf as being pressure.

"It's a pretty big honor to be able to play for a living. I don't look at things like, 'Boy, I hope I don't choke this away.' I look at it like it's a great opportunity to make something great happen."

Sposa, 31, in his third full season on tour, sank a 2-foot birdie putt on No. 18 to close out his 6-under-par 66 Friday. Sposa's 10-under total 134 is 1 shot better than first-round leader Scott Simpson, who shot a 69.

Five others are another shot back at 136, including Scott Hoch and Jeff Maggert. Hoch had his second straight 68, while Maggert shot a 67 on a sunny day at Forest Oaks Country Club.

Sposa's 66 Friday matched his best round of the season, and his best career finish is a tie for seventh in last year's Shell Houston Open.

He said he's not too concerned about his last three Sunday rounds, when he shot 74, 74 and 76 to fall from contention.

"I am going to use those rounds to help me," Sposa said. "This is a little bit different because I am hitting the ball much better right now and I don't have a lot of stress on my game.

"I am not feeling like I've got to force things and like it is a time bomb waiting to go off like it has been lately."

Sposa's putter has been very good the first two days. He's tied for the tourney lead with a putting average of 1.278 per hole.

After shooting a 4-under 32 on the front nine, Sposa took the lead at the par-5 15th with a birdie, then fell into a tie with Simpson with a bogey two holes later.

Then his 7-iron approach to the 18th green landed 2 feet from the cup, and he calmly sank it for the lead.

Meanwhile, Simpson followed his opening-round 66 with another solid round.

The former U.S. Open champion, just eight months removed from a major operation on his right ankle, has a chance to win his eighth PGA Tour event.

Rangers win, but Rodriguez is hurt

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ivan Rodriguez left Jacobs Field and was on his way to the hospital for X-rays and tests. The last time he did that, he didn't return to the Texas Rangers.

Rodriguez, Texas' All-Star catcher, bruised his left heel while running out a grounder in the top of the ninth inning of the Rangers' 11-9 win over the Indians on Friday night.

Last season, Rodriguez played in just 91 games when he fractured his right thumb while making a throw to second base and missed the rest of the year.

Rodriguez was scheduled to undergo tests at Lutheran Hospital late Friday night. A Rangers team spokesman said an update on his condition would not be available until Saturday afternoon.

Rodriguez said he jammed his heel when he mis-stepped near first base.

"I missed the bag," said Rodriguez, replaced in the bottom of the inning by Doug Mirabelli. "But if I can walk, I'm going to play."

As he dressed, Rodriguez appeared to be annoyed with one of his teammates, who may have questioned his toughness.

"I'm not going to name names," the nine-time All-Star said. "I'm human. I'm not an animal. I'm going to show people what kind of player I am."

Rusty Greer homered twice, Gabe Kapler hit a grand slam and Alex Rodriguez had a two-run shot to power the Rangers.

Greer led off the third and sixth innings with homers and added an RBI double in the eighth for Texas, which nearly blew an eight-run lead.

It was a typical win for Texas. The Rangers have the worst ERA in the majors but they entered Friday's action leading the AL in hits, doubles, homers, RBIs, batting average and on-base percentage.

Texas has 40 homers in 23 games and 31 extra-base hits in its last six. The Rangers pounded rookie Tim Drew (0-1) for six runs in three-plus innings, but nearly gave back all of a 9-1 lead.

"We've already learned in our first 22 games that there isn't a comfortable lead for us," Rangers manager Johnny Oates said.

Asked if that kind of game takes its toll, Oates said, "How do I look? That's what it's like, draining."

Ellis Burks had two hits — a single and a disappearing double — for Cleveland. Burks led off the fifth with a drive to left-center that vanished into the wall, dropping into an opening between the padded wall and scoreboard.

Texas reliever Pat Mahomes (1-2) got out of a bases-loaded jam in the fifth and Zimmerman went 1 2-3 innings for his second save.

The Indians closed to 11-9 in the eighth and had two on with one out, but Zimmerman retired Burks and Juan Gonzalez.

"We were a hit from going ahead," Indians manager Charlie Manuel said. "We just fell too far behind. It was uphill all night."

Kapler's first homer this season and first career slam gave the Rangers an 8-1 lead in the fourth.

The Rangers went up 9-1 in the inning when Rodriguez walked, went to third on a single and scored on a wild pitch.

But the Indians closed to 9-6 in the bottom of the inning by scoring five times off Texas starter Darren Oliver, who was trying to go 5-0.

Marty Cordova and Jolbert Cabrera hit RBI singles, and another run scored on third baseman Catalanotto's throwing error before Kenny Lofton hit a two-run double.

The Indians pulled to 9-7 in the fifth on Einar Diaz's run-scoring single and had the bases loaded with one out. But Mahomes got Omar Vizquel to pop out and struck out Jolbert Cabrera.

Notes: The Rangers have homered in 13 straight games. ... Gonzalez is batting .452 (19-for-42) during a 10-game hitting streak and has 17 RBIs in his last 15 games. ... Greer has nine career two-homer games. The last came on Aug. 21, 1999, against Boston.

DFB wins 11-12 contest

PAMPA — Duncan, Fraser & Bridges defeated Bill Allison Auto 8-1 in a Cal Ripken 11-12 game Wednesday at Optimist Park.

DFB's leading hitter was Drew Williams, who knocked in two runs with a single and double. Chris Smith had a double, Josh Mulkey triple and RBI; Colby Greenhouse single and RBI; Luke Raber single and Chase Harris double and RBI.

Winning pitcher was Matt Trusty, who struck out six and walked one in two innings pitched. Luke Raber and Brandon Crook also pitched for Allison's. Raber struck out five in two innings pitched. Crook gave up one run on two hits while striking out three and walking one in two innings.

Wood whiffs 14 as Cubs beat Giants

By The Associated Press

Kerry Wood is looking like the pitcher who won the NL Rookie of the Year award in 1998.

Wood struck out 14 — his highest total since elbow surgery two years ago — as Chicago beat San Francisco 7-3 Friday night.

"I had good stuff. I had four pitches working," Wood said. "I had good life on my fastball and I was spotting it."

Wood (1-1) allowed three runs and two hits in six innings, retiring his final 10 batters — eight by strikeout. It was the most strikeouts for Wood since he fanned 16 on Aug. 26, 1998, against Cincinnati — eight months before reconstructive elbow surgery.

"His breaking ball wasn't as sharp as it's been, but his fastball was electric when it was in the zone," Giants manager Dusty Baker said. "He came up with a changeup, and that makes him even more dangerous."

In other NL games, it was Atlanta 9, Arizona 0; Cincinnati 12, Denver 9; Pittsburgh 3, San Diego 0; St. Louis 9, New York 0; Montreal 6, Milwaukee 1; Florida 9, Houston 8 in 10 innings; and Los Angeles 4, Philadelphia 3.

At San Francisco, Rondell White hit a three-run homer for the Cubs, who won their second straight following a season-high three-game losing streak.

Jeff Kent drove in two runs and J.T. Snow homered for the Giants, who lost their season-high fourth straight.

Mark Gardner (0-3) allowed five runs and four hits in six innings.

Braves 9, Diamondbacks 0

John Burkett (1-3) pitched a three-hitter in his first complete game in 97 starts since July 2, 1997, as visiting Atlanta stopped Arizona's four-game winning streak. It was his first shutout since Aug. 11, 1996, for Texas at Toronto.

Chipper Jones had his first career five-hit game, and Andruw Jones and B.J. Surhoff homered off Armando Reynoso (1-4) in a five-run second inning. Reynoso is 0-10 against Atlanta.

Reds 12, Rockies 9

Ruben Rivera and Dmitri Young hit consecutive two-run doubles in a six-run eighth as Cincinnati won its eighth straight road game.

Colorado led 9-6 going into the eighth, but Kelly Stinnett hit an RBI single off Juan Acevedo, and Rivera tied the game against Jose Jimenez, who relieved Mike Myers (1-2). Young doubled for an 11-9 lead.

Hector Mercado (1-0) allowed one run and two hits in 3 1-3 innings, and Danny Graves pitched a hitless ninth for his eighth save.

Pirates 3, Padres 0

Jimmy Anderson (2-1) and four relievers combined on an eight-hitter at San Diego, sending the Padres to their 10th loss in 12 games.

Josias Manzanillo, Scott Sauerbeck, Jose Silva and Mike Williams finished, with Williams retiring Ryan Klesko on a foul popup with the bases loaded for his fourth save.

Bobby Jones (0-3) allowed three runs — two earned — and five hits in seven innings.

Cardinals 9, Mets 0

Matt Morris shut down visiting New York for seven innings, and Jim Edmonds and Placido Polanco each had three hits.

The National League champions have lost four straight and nine of 13, dropping to 8-13.

Hodges qualifies for state

LEVELLAND — White Deer's Drew Hodges claimed second place in the pole vault to earn a trip to state Friday at the Region 1-1A track meet in Levelland.

Both Hodges and Hunter Copeland of Iraan cleared to 13-6 to tie for first place, but Copeland was declared the winner because of fewer misses.

Nick Ball was fourth in the discus (141-2) for the Bucks.

In the girls division, Krisanne Davis of Groom was third in the long jump at 17-0.

At the Region 1-2A meet in Abilene, Cole Barbee of Canadian earned a state berth with a second-place finish in the 3200. Barbee's time was 10:10.38.

In the girls division, Canadian's Ebbie Brunson was fourth in the high jump at 5-2.

Hornets sweep, advance to conference finals

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Only when it was over did Jamal Mashburn admit how much he wanted to beat the Miami Heat. By then, he had already made that clear.

Mashburn, acquired from Miami in a nine-player offseason deal, scored 21 points against his former team to lead the Charlotte Hornets to a 94-79 victory Friday night, completing a stunning three-game playoff sweep.

The victory sent Pat Riley and the Heat to another long offseason, something Mashburn took much of the blame for during his 3 1/2 seasons in Miami.

"Sure, it's gratifying," said Mashburn, who set personal playoff bests with nine rebounds and eight assists.

"I'm not going to lie and say I didn't want to do this the whole series. I did want to sweep them and prove a point, and I think I proved it."

Mashburn averaged 23.6 points in the three games and set a playoff record by shooting 25-for-25 on free throws.

He carried the Hornets into the second round of the NBA playoffs for the third time in franchise history. They've never been to the Eastern Conference finals.

Mashburn shattered the record for most free throws made without a miss in a three-game playoff series. Kiki Vandeweghe went 18-for-18 from the line for Denver against Phoenix in 1982.

"His defense, his intensity, everything was just on a whole other level these three games," said teammate Baron Davis, who also scored 21 points.

"He really wanted to beat them, and we fed off his passion and desire."

Four more games were scheduled for Saturday: Philadelphia at Indiana, Utah at Dallas, San Antonio at Minnesota and Milwaukee at Orlando. The Jazz, Spurs and Bucks were leading 2-0, while the 76ers and Pacers were tied 1-1.

On Sunday, it's New York at Toronto, Sacramento at Phoenix and the Los Angeles Lakers at Portland. The Lakers lead 2-0, while the other two series are 1-1.

Charlotte won the three games by a total of 67 points and held Miami to a record-low 235 for the series. The previous record for fewest points in a three-game playoff series was 239.

Riley had no answer for the Heat's latest failure.

"I need to find a 12-step program, that's how I look at it," he said. "I'm going to have to do some real deep, deep searching on how this game has got to be played for the Miami Heat to go forward."

The Hornets, who wore headbands throughout the series to show team unity, took a double-digit lead early in the second quarter Friday and built it to 27 at halftime.

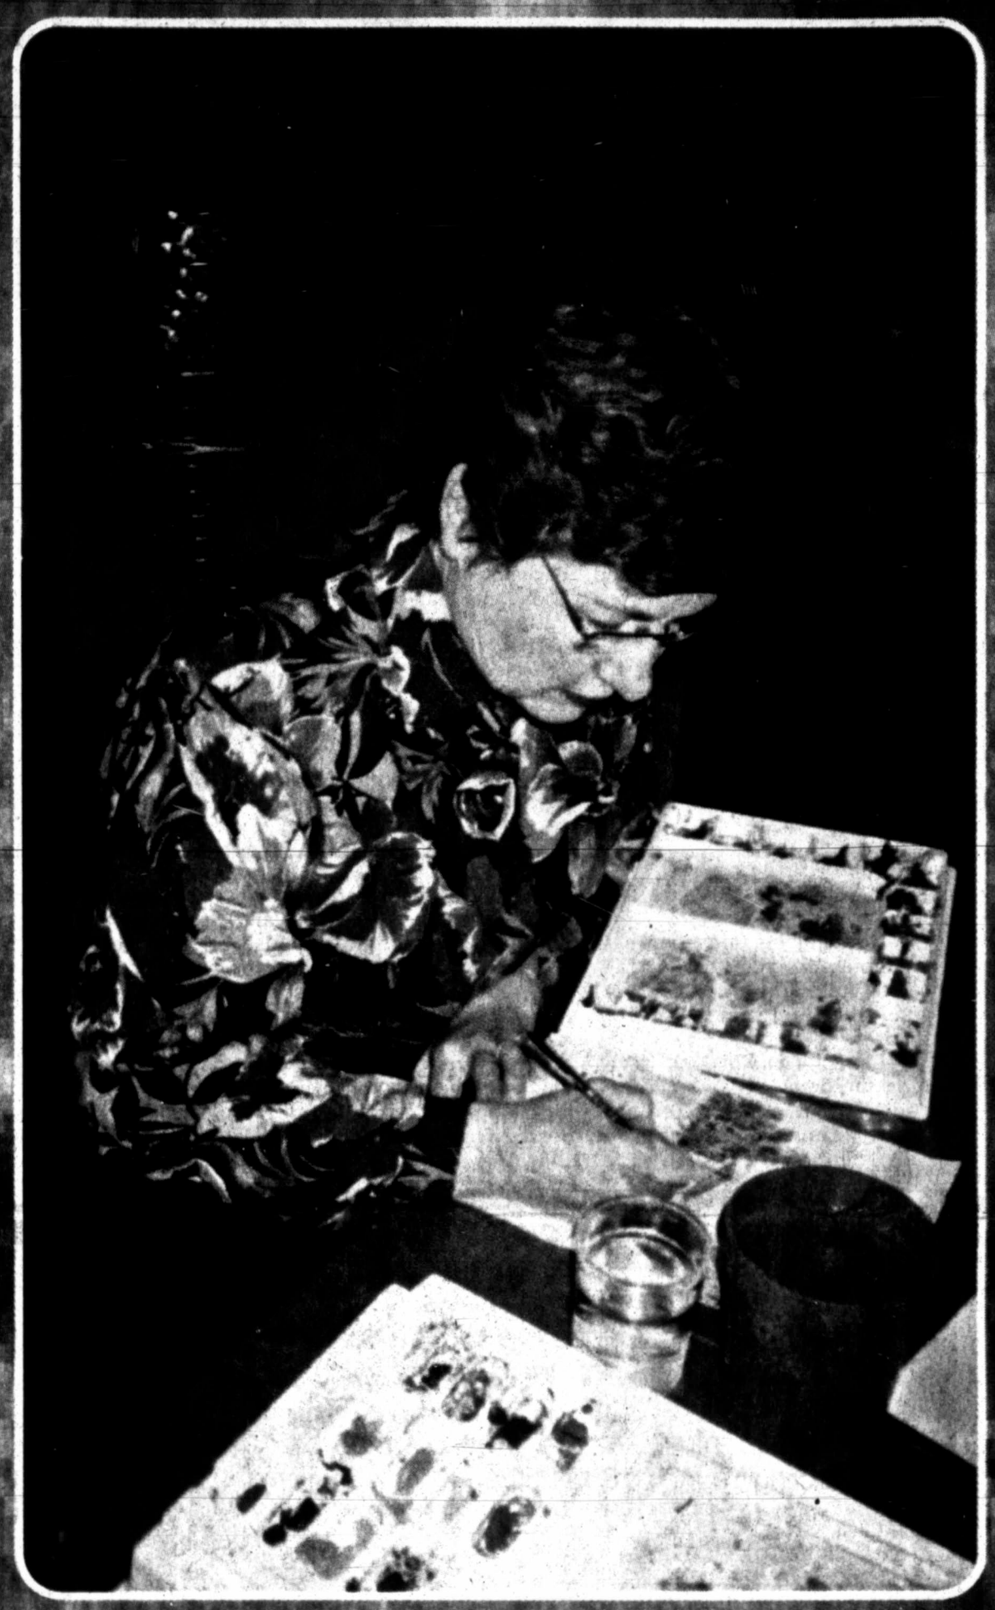

"There's power in the headbands, no doubt," Davis said. "When you see a 13-year veteran agree to wear a headband, that means something. It shows this team is together, playing as one, and we were for 12 quarters of basketball."

Pampa Arts Club benefits community

Sandra Mullenax paints a watercolor during a recent session of the Pampa Arts Club.

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

The Pampa Art Club got its beginning as a result of a ceramic class that was held in the home of Dr. Roy Webb in June, 1948. Those participating in the class organized the art club.

Main purpose of the art club was to promote the arts anywhere and anytime in Pampa. One of the big projects was to promote art to be taught in the Pampa High School.

Another project was to sponsor the Texas Art Commission's traveling art show. At that time the members uncrated and prepared the exhibition in the library in the basement of City Hall and recrate and mail the exhibition to another destination.

The club helped to organize the Pampa Fine Arts Association and was a member as a club. This particular organization is still functioning. Several club members have on the board of directors.

For years the Pampa High School and Junior High students were bused to the art club exhibits. To make sure they observed, the students had to write a theme on three articles that pleased them. When money was scarce, the art club paid for the busing.

Displays of several art members and other artists were put in Coronado Inn when it was first built. For several years the Regional Medical Center's administrator asked the art club members to exhibit in the then new wing and the lobby. The project was discontinued after several years.

The club also exhibited paintings in the M.K. Brown Auditorium for various chamber activities.

The art club was active in financial contributions when the Chamber of Commerce building was completed. They also contributed art sculpture to be placed on the walls of the Pampa Art Center of Clarendon College.

Pampa Art Club members designed and laid two mosaic walls along the walk below the M.K. Brown Auditorium. It depicts ranch and farm life and prominent local commercial buildings.

When the Art Train came to Pampa, several members of the art club served as docents and held demonstrations of their arts or craft.

Other activities the club has helped to promote include Top of Texas Arts Festival and the membership art show at Citizens Bank & Trust which later became First Bank of the Southwest. Exhibits were also set up for the opening of the bank building when it was completed.

The 30th Anniversary of the organization was celebrated in 1978 with a coffee in the morning for businessmen and women, and then the Guest Day Tea in the afternoon. Pampa Chamber of Commerce awarded plaques to charter members Mrs. Ann Heskew, Mrs. Ruth Nevstiel, Mrs. Mona Cox and Mrs. Frances Appleby.

Pampa's Art Club recognized the 50th Anniversary of the group in 1998 at the home of Fauncine Mack. The Pampa Chamber of Commerce presented plaques to two charter members Ruth Nevstiel of Pampa and Dorothy Ponce, now living in Santa Fe, N.M.

After 52 years, the Pampa Art Club is still functioning with the annual invitational Guest Day Tea scheduled next week. The art work will be available for public viewing the following day. This has been a custom of the club since 1957.

Most of the club teas and art exhibit have been held in the Lovett Memorial Library and the art work of that particular year has been on exhibit. Meetings are held twice a month with workshops and programs relative to the interests of the members.

Each year the Pampa Fine Arts Association selects an artist of the year. Members from the Pampa Art Club whom have been honored are Olive Hills, Betty Bailey, Karen Bonnell, Ann Lemons (Harper), Amy Lucille (Cile) Taylor, Peggy Palmitier, Jackie Kastor, Pernie Fallon Davis, Evelyn Epps, Rosemond Winborn and Kay Crouch.

Artist of the year for 2001 is Linda Nowell. She is a present member of the art club.

Various arts and crafts that members do are painting (oil, water color, acrylic and pastels) china painting, jewelry, copper enameling, pottery, mosaics, papier mache, tole painting, basket weaving, stained glass, and sculpture (clay, fimo, bread dough and sculpey.)

Mimi Gross, a Pampa Arts Club member, is busily working with a sculpey project. Billie Collingsworth, Betty Fletcher and Pat Youngblood work on a variety of art projects in the background.

The following students were chosen USAA award winners in various categories: Amber Asher, Krissy Holman, Aimee K. Stephenson, Nicholas Brant Story and Aaron Fernuik, all of Pampa High School, ("Honor Roll.")

In addition, Stephenson and Fernuik earned All-American Scholar, a USAA program open to students who achieve a 3.3 or higher grade point average.

The Academy bestows USAA awards upon fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students. The PHS students, except Fernuik, were nominated for the awards by Starla Kindle, a counselor at PHS. Fernuik was nominated by counselor, Karla Howell. All USAA award-winners will appear in the USAA Official Yearbook, published nationally. USAA All-American Scholars are named in the All-American Scholar Yearbook.

The Academy selects USAA winners (and Scholars) based upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors and other qualified sponsors. Other criteria includes academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit and dependability.

Asher is the daughter of Donny and Karon Hooper of Pampa and is the granddaughter of Paul and Ricky Baker of Hedley and Don and Colleen Hooper of Borger. She also received USAA awards in English, Foreign Language, Mathematics and Science.

Holman is the daughter of Dennis and Kim Holman of Pampa and is the granddaughter of Danny and Linda McCarley and Bill and Sherry King, all of Pampa.

Stephenson is the daughter of Randy and Donna Stephenson of Pampa and is the granddaughter of Odell and Marie Whitwell and Jack and Eunice Stephenson, all of Dumas. Other honors include being selected for inclusion in the 2000-01 edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Story is the son of Greg and Pam Story of Pampa and is the grandson of Arnold and Lu Story of Lefors and Raymond and Katrinka Love of Childress.

Fernuik is the son of Ron and Taci Fernuik of Pampa and is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. U.S. Cheney of Provo, Utah, and Elizabeth Fernuik of Pampa.

WEATHERFORD, Okla. — Deanna Dreher of Pampa and Glenda Dukes of Allison are among 33 Southwestern Oklahoma State University students serving as orientation leaders on the Weatherford campus.

As leaders, they will serve as mentors in this fall's eight-week freshman orientation courses taught by SWOSU faculty, staff and administrators. The students are already involved and responsible for a large part of the orientation sessions for incoming freshmen that are taking place in April, June and August.

The orientation leaders are also planning various programs for "Dawg Day" held during the first week of the fall semester.

The orientation leaders were selected through an application and interview process. All students must carry at least a 3.0 grade point average and must have completed at least 12 hours.

Twelve of the 33 students are returning orientation leaders from 2000, while 21 are serving their first year in 2001. The students are winding up a two-hour leadership course taught during the spring semester by Darin Behara, dean of students, and Jena Skarda, assistant director of high school/college relations — Dreher is one of the 12 returning orientation leaders while Dukes is serving her first year.

WEATHERFORD, Okla. — Deena Clifton of Pampa, a senior biology major at Southwestern Oklahoma State University, recently presented her term paper as a poster presentation at SWOSU. Clifton joined other senior biology majors presenting term paper poster presentations.

Dr. Peter Grant said the students are in the Senior Seminar class, which is the capstone course for the biology major.

CLARENDON — Three students from Clarendon College have been accepted for inclusion in the 2001 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges. The students are Dara Whatley, Misti Gleason and Holly Bradshaw.

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the names of these students based on academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and potential for continued success.

They join an elite group of students from more than 1,400 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations.

Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1966.

Americans take home improvement too seriously to laze away their free time

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You may think from the advertisements that the primary objective of Americans is to relax in a hammock or take a long vacation or idle away free time.

You are wrong. They are busy fixing up the house.

If there is any one all-American pursuit, engaged in by young and old, new owners and old, urbanites and suburbanites, immigrants and native born, it likely has something to do with the house.

And the preoccupation seems likely to evolve into an obsession. While projects might be simple as replacing a faucet, the costs add up to nearly $180 billion a year, and might eventually even surpass new-home building.

That, at least, is the view of scholars at Harvard Univeristy's Joint Center for Housing Studies, who marvel at the phenomenon which, they say, has helped to dramatically upgrade the quality of the nation's housing.

The Joint Center, which examines a phase of the housing industry each year, has most recently focused on remodeling and repairs, recognizing its enormous financial and sociological impact on the entire economy.

That $180 billion figure, for example, is a catalyst, the report's authors state, for stimulating another $100 billion or so a year in spending for furnishings, appliances and lawn and garden projects.

Those are federal budget-size figures, and in recent years they've been growing larger each year. Now, with existing home sales reaching an annual rate of 5.44 million units, there likely to continue rising.

With each ownership transfer of an existing home there usually comes a spurt of spending, much of it for renovations, furniture and appliances. Then come additions when a new family member — parent, spouse or child — is added. Now, technological innovations are becoming a major force.

This is not news to homeowners, who are well aware of the money and labor they put into redefining their homes. It is the aggregate effect of all these projects that has such an enormous impact on economic society.

It also helps explain why housing is so important to the economy, studied for clues to the future by economists at the Federal Reserve and examined by stock analysts for indications of corporate health.

While it booms along with the economy, remodeling and repairing is far less likely to collapse when the overall economy tanks. It might decline, but far less precipitously; then, it might even substitute for a vacation.

With average household incomes 150 percent higher than in 1940, adjusted for inflation, improving the home increasingly has become an outlet for creativity as well a place with a roof over one's head.

Viewed in its broadest perspective, the seldom interrupted activity in the American homestead is like a vast anthill, with owners coming and going, getting and spending and forever upgrading and improving.

And so long as young people marry and have kids, houses deteriorate, owners become bored with decor, breadwinners get transfered, oldsters retire to smaller digs and the population increases, it will remain so.

Good roots make sturdy plants

Kathy Davis Morris
GARDEN WISE

The Cat Brothers went berserk. Miss Kitty, their wild mama, firmly ensconced herself in my office. The dogs, too numerous to mention by name, showed their distress with increased barking. My husband voluntarily washed the dishes.

My computer clock mysteriously lost two hours. Doors opened and slammed of their own accord. Something was certainly awry. Invisible, it wailed through town like a runaway train — a very long train.

The wild screaming wind tore words from mouths, dismantled hairdos and created parachutes out of skirts. Quonset barn doors, jerked from their rails, lay flattened as if thumped by a giant. Except for Miss Kitty, grit pelted human, beast and machine.

Thank goodness the wind laid. One more day of the incessant howling and I fear that it would have driven me around the bend. (People in close circles say that I needn't pack a lunch. It would be a short trip for me.)

As the wind lay, the leaves quit trembling and appeared exhausted on their branches. Order restored itself. Even the ants skirting the sidewalk trailed in a straighter line. The shrubs and ferns begged for water and stood a little straighter as I uncoiled the hose.

This calm day beckoned me to check out the flowers. The perfume from the petunias and stocks carried me deeper into the greenhouse. The asparagus fern shoots, long and wispy, teased the hair from my bun.

As usual, with a phone glued to his ear, Kirk frantically ordered flowers. I shall soon mingle among the posies searching for the perfect plants.

... A blooming plant becomes confused when planted. It does not know whether to create roots or produce flowers. ...

Savvy gardeners pick bedding plants without blooms. A blooming plant becomes confused when planted. It does not know whether to create roots or produce flowers. If the plant is blooming, pinch off its flowers. The energy used for flowering diverts to the root system. Good roots make sturdy plants and profuse bloomers.

As the ground temperature rises, so do the grub worms. Examine your lawn for signs of grub worm damage. Grub worms usually create round dead spots in the lawn. Zap them with a dose of Milky Spore and Merit.

Shredding firms will rip it all up for confidentiality

By DAVID KAPLAN
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON — Once upon a time, people threw stuff away and that was the end of it.

Today, when you take your garbage outside for trash collection, you cannot expect privacy protection, the Supreme Court has ruled. Now that trash is considered public domain, some people go "Dumpster diving" for sport and profit.

Small businesses as well as individuals are nervous about what they toss out, whether it pertains to their own secrets or a client's private information. Among the concerned are accounting firms.

Anita Cavallo, a CPA and partner at the Houston accounting firm Mitchell & Cavallo, said that her trash contains her clients' Social Security numbers, stock-broker firm account numbers and other private information.

"I don't want that floating around in a Dumpster," she said.

Cavallo accumulates two to three more times as much trash at tax time.

She is almost done with this year's tax work, and "can actually see the wood on my desk again."

When cleaning off her desk, Cavallo no longer tosses her papers in a trash can. She slides them through the slot of a "security console," a locked trash bin. Its contents will later will be shredded.

"More and more businesses are turning to shredding because of the privacy issue," said Bill Sherrill, director of the Center for Entrepreneurship and Innovation at the Bauer College of Business Administration at the University of Houston.

E-mail and the Internet have created privacy concerns because, Sherrill said, "so much information exchange occurs." All sorts of information is valuable to certain companies. It's incumbent to any business dealing with confidential information to give it maximum privacy.

"The vast increase in our ability to store data has led to the preservation of any information that a business gets its hands on," Sherrill said. "You want to be very careful with it. Clients are very sensitive about their privacy these days."

To destroy its trash, Cavallo's firm hired Shred-it, an international, Toronto-based shredding service that arrived in Houston three years ago.

Shred-it's truck, called the "Shredder-On-Wheels," comes to Mitchell & Cavallo's west Houston office and, in the delivery drop-off parking area, turns her trash into something resembling confetti. The shredded paper is recycled.

The Houston area has several shredding companies, including MegaShred and Shredco, both of which provide on-site shredding, and Texas Shredding Co., which shreds trash at its west Houston facility.

Two tax seasons ago, Cavallo said, she went through three or four $80 store-bought shredding machines and had to pay someone to feed her trash paper through the shredder, and it took a long time.

Cavallo said she prefers an on-site shredding service because "we don't have to do anything."

Shred-it provides her office with the storage bin. The Shredder-On-Wheels typically comes by for pickup once a month. James Heard, the service representative in her area, removes the plastic trash bag from her console and shreds the contents in his truck. The shredder has powerful stainless steel teeth.

Most of Shred-it's clients are small businesses, said Rick Chase, general manager of Shred-it's Houston branch, who maintained that Shred-it can shred 30 to 40 times faster than a store-bought shredder.

Ed Allsteadt, Shred-it's sales manager, touted his company's shredding method: It's a cross-cut shred in which the blades cut paper both horizontally and vertically.

Such a technique is superior to one-way or strip shredding, said Allsteadt, who noted that in Houston two years ago, it was reported on a local TV news program that people were receiving gift baskets whose beds consisted of shredded paper. The strip-shredded pieces of paper were large enough to reveal personal checking account numbers, Allsteadt said. James F. Watson, one of the owners of Shredco, said his company uses both the cross-cut and "hammer mill" method of shredding. The two techniques create approximately the same size of shredded paper, but the hammer mill shredder works much faster, Watson said.

Shred-it's Heard said the Shredder-On-Wheels also is able to grind computer hard drives, license plates, CDs, video tapes and X-ray film.

Shredding companies send their shredded paper to recycling plants, where it's turned into low-grade office products, cereal boxes, toilet paper and paper towels.

Insider information involving large corporations often makes the news, but small businesses have their own secrets.

If, for example, "you represent a small company with an invention not yet patented that could be exploited by a competitor," said Bryan Domning, a litigator with a small Houston firm. And, noted Domning, "If there's enough money involved, people are willing to do espionage."

Domning had advice for any small business dealing with confidential information: "Limit the number of copies of sensitive information you generate. Sometimes you think you've destroyed all the copies but you haven't."

Small businesses involved in the medical and health professions also are mindful of client privacy. The federal government, through the new Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act, protects the confidentiality of personal medical data transmitted digitally between doctors, hospitals and insurers. Such electronic information often is printed out.

"It has to be handled in a confidential way so that it doesn't create problems for doctors, patients or insurance companies," said Kevin Watts, information systems supervisor at Medical Billing Services, a local company that handles billing for pathology, radiology and anesthesiology physician groups that work in medical facilities in Texas.

Before using Shred-It, Medical Billing Services hauled its trash to an off-site storage facility where another service would shred the information.

Watts said that by switching to an on-site shredding truck, "we have more control over it and can see it. They provide all the service we need and come to us. They invite us to walk down and watch."

Deaths heighten debate about how to deal with popular drug

The fatal consequences of Ecstasy — an illegal drug that some say is this decade's version of LSD — are becoming increasingly apparent nationwide, further stirring the debate about how to deal with the large numbers of young people who are using it.

CHICAGO (AP) — One dead after a party in suburban Chicago. Two more in Memphis, Tenn., and another two in Portland, Ore.

The fatal consequences of Ecstasy — an illegal drug that some say is this decade's version of LSD — are becoming increasingly apparent nationwide, further stirring the debate about how to deal with the large numbers of young people who are using it.

"It's the hottest drug going right now," says Michelle, a 19-year-old former Ecstasy user from New York City who is now in rehab and spoke on the condition that her last name not be used. "Anybody can get it anywhere, anytime."

While it is most often associated with the dance parties — or "raves" — federal officials say the drug also known as MDMA is so readily available that teens can buy it at school and on the street corner.

A survey of American teens released in February found that one in four questioned said they had a friend or classmate who had used Ecstasy, while 17 percent said they knew more than one user. It was the first time the nonprofit National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse conducted a survey on the drug.

In recent months, Dr. Vasilios Pitsios says he has treated patients as young as 14 who have arrived unconscious at the emergency room at Saint Vincent Hospital, in the heart of Manhattan's club scene. He says many have traveled to town from New Jersey and Long Island. And two have died on his watch.

Pitsios says he has a frank talk with those who survive. "But how much of that sticks?" he asks. "It's probably very little."

Some young people are taking matters into their own hands, preaching "harm reduction" methods that they hope can save lives. Rather than telling others to just say no, they believe it is more realistic to give users information about Ecstasy that, they say, can lessen the drug's damage.

"It's obvious that zero tolerance simply doesn't work," says Andrew Epstein, a senior at Amherst College in Massachusetts who helped organize an information session about Ecstasy on his campus this week

Among the tips he and others are spreading to young people nationwide: Stay hydrated to avoid severe, and sometimes deadly, overheating.

They also tell users to avoid "stacking," or taking more than one tablet in a night to enhance the drug's euphoric "I-love-everyone" effect.

Epstein says he first tried Ecstasy when he was a 17 but has cut back from nearly monthly use to two or three times a year.

Steve Svoboda, a 24-year-old Web site designer from Chicago, says he has done the same.

"If it's used sparingly and people know the risks, I believe the potential for harm is greatly reduced," says Svoboda, who heads Chicago's chapter of a California-based harm-reduction group called DanceSafe.

Among other things, the group offers to test Ecstasy tablets for other drugs that police and health officials say are increasingly being passed off as Ecstasy. In February, for example, police in Fairfax County, Va., confiscated hundreds of Ecstasy pills laced with the drug PCP.

"When somebody tells me they've taken Ecstasy these days, I have no idea what they've taken," says Dr. Charles Grob, director of child and adolescent psychiatry at the Harbor-UCLA Medical Center in Torrance, Calif.

Grob, who conducted the first Food and Drug Administration-approved study of MDMA's effects in mid-1990s, says the furor over the drug has overshadowed its potential as a psychiatric treatment for such ailments as post-traumatic stress disorder.

Michelle, the New York City teen, started using Ecstasy at 17 and developed a four-day-a-week habit. About a month ago, she checked into a rehab center in Millbrook, N.Y.

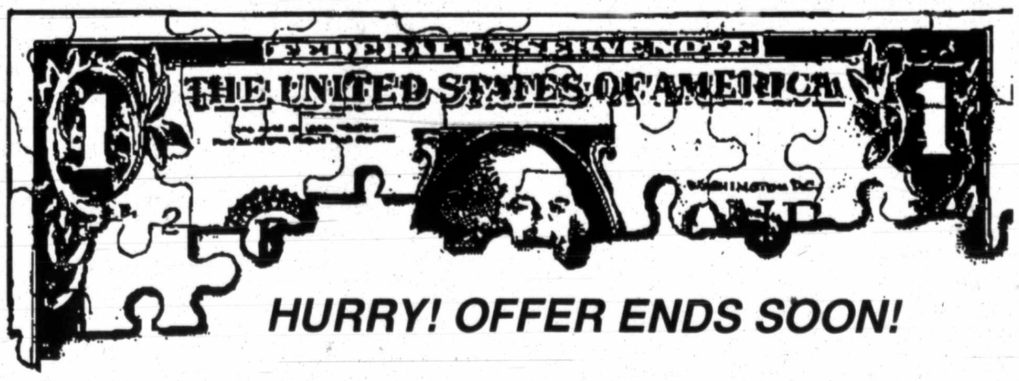

"You wake up in the morning with dark circles under your eyes. You're pale. And you feel down — like you can't do it anymore without Ecstasy," she says. "It's not worth it at all."

Horoscope

MONDAY, APRIL 30, 2001
BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★★ You'll be running on all cylinders — once you finish playing "who's on first" with a friend. Be clear in your communication. Brainstorm with those in the know. Use all the resources available to you. Become a mental dynamo. Tonight: Smile, and someone will come to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Avoid a fishing expedition. If you don't understand what someone means or wants, stop and get clarification. You might be a bit uncomfortable with the process. Consider that you might be more uncomfortable with messing up! Work with a financial wild card. Tonight: Go along with a loved one's suggestion.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ You still have questions, so by all means, ask more! It's not unusual, since others see you as curious. Someone expresses admiration in a way that delights you. Tonight: So what if it is Monday. Accept an invitation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Your self-confidence shows in your finances and how you handle them. A partner or associate reflects feelings about money in a similar way. Share more of yourself. Tonight: Order in or go out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ Recognize what others are saying in their somewhat elusive manner. Not everyone is as clear or as courageous as you are. Help another by asking questions. A meeting serves as a networking opportunity. Break through any restrictions by believing that anything is possible. Tonight: Whatever you want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Knowing when not to act is as important as having the right timing. Slow down and welcome an insight. Closely observe someone who has a lot of success professionally. Start molding your own career path, and head in a new direction. Tonight: Take some personal time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ Be more compassionate with a loved one or child who means well. You bring form to emotional situations and direction to meetings. Use your people skills to make it easier for others to respond. Share good news. What's wrong with a little celebration? Tonight: You're a star.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Focus on your priorities. Give others more feedback and more information. You don't always want to be the center of attention, do you? Handle distraction by clearing out a problem. An associate supports you in decisions you'll make in the near future. Tonight: Invite others to join you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ An idea staggers you with its potential. Others can't see what you can. Present your vision in a more concrete way, so others can grasp it. Use care with someone who might agree with you simply to please you. Encourage more authenticity. Tonight: Get into some fun music.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Deal with someone head-on. Shine the light of clarity on financial matters. Pace yourself carefully, with an eye to accomplishing your work and more. How you visualize a situation could change substantially if you discuss it with a key associate or friend. Listen to another perspective. Tonight: Dinner and a chat.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ You might not understand just how much confusion you add to a discussion. Others do their best to define what they want. Don't take someone's comments personally. Spark up a key relationship with a little imagination and creativity. Tonight: Respond to another's overtures.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Direct your enthusiasm and vitality into your work, even though that might not be enough for you right now. Use your lunch hour to exercise and relieve some of the stress you keep within. Arrange your work schedule to make more time for a special family member or friend. Tonight: Buy something on the way home that will make you smile.

EMERGENCY CRISIS GUIDE

THE PAMPA NEWS • APRIL 29, 2001

Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR)

Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR)

ADULT CPR

Check for breathing

• Establish unresponsiveness and call out for help. Place victim on a hard surface.

• Open the airway using the Head Tilt-Chin Lift technique. Establish the breathlessness (look, listen and feel for air exchange).

• Give two slow breaths (1 to 1 1/2 seconds per breath). Breaths are given with a pause between for the rescuer to take a breath and to observe if the victim has exhaled.

Open airway

• Check for pulse (carotid pulse). If absent, phone for medical help.

• Finding correct hand placement is important. With the middle and index fingers of one hand, find the notch where the ribs meet the breastbone (sternum). Place the middle finger on the notch with the index finger next to it.

Place hands over sternum, not the ribs

Give two slow breaths

• Place the heel of the other hand on the sternum next to and above your index finger. At this point, move your fingers from the notch and place this hand directly on top of the hand that is already on the sternum so that both hands are parallel and directed away from you. Do not compress over the ribs!

Chest compressions

• Compress the chest 15 times at a depth of 1 1/2 to 2 inches at a rate of 80 to 100 times per minute, while counting out loud, "one and two and three..."

• Give two full breaths after each group of 15 compressions.

• Deliver four cycles of 15 compressions and two ventilations followed by 15 compressions.

• Check for return of pulse and spontaneous breathing. If absent, resume with two ventilations followed by 15 compressions.

• Continue CPR until victim is revived or qualified help arrives.

Infants and children

Give two slow breaths

• Establish unresponsiveness and call out for help

• Open airway and establish breathlessness (look, listen and feel).

• Give two slow breaths covering the nose and mouth

• Repeat lung inhalations 20 times per minute, one ventilation every four seconds, 15 lung inflations per minute, for the CHILD.

Compression position for infants

INFANT

Check for brachial pulse

To find correct placement, use two or three fingers one inch below the nipple, on the center of the breastbone. Compress the chest 1/2 inch to 1 inch five times between ventilation at a rate of 100 times per minute.

CHILD (less than 9 years old)

Use your index finger and forefinger for infant CPR.

Same as for adult. Compress the chest 1 to 1 1/2 inches at a rate of 80 to 100 times per minute.

• Give one ventilation after each five compressions.

• Continue CPR uninterrupted until victim is revived or qualified help arrives.

IMPORTANT

Keep up CPR until help arrives to relieve you. Remember, you are doing the breathing for the victim.

IRREVERSIBLE BRAIN DAMAGE AND/OR DEATH CAN OCCUR WITHIN 4-6 MINUTES IF RESCUE BREATHING IS NOT PERFORMED.

Broken bones

In most cases, broken bones are not life-threatening. If you suspect a person of having a broken bone, keep him calm and call for help.

Victims should not be moved, unless they are in immediate danger of further injury.

Examine the injury site for:

Severe pain upon touch
Swelling
Deformity
Pulse beyond the injury site
Bone ends either through or below the skin

Then:

• Phone for medical help

• Keep the injured site immobilized until help arrives. If you must move the victim, splint the injured limb above and below the suspected fracture.

• Never straighten out a fractured bone. A medical person is qualified for this critical treatment.

• The victims should not be walking. Keep the victim flat on the floor, or in bed until he is examined by medical personnel.

Fainting

• Lie the person flat, with his head down and his feet raised slightly. Loosen clothing at the neck and chest.

• Give him plenty of air. Most times a fainting victim will come around right away. If the victim does not respond immediately, implement the ABCs of EMERGENCY ACTION and phone for medical help.

• A patient who merely feels faint should sit in a chair and lower his head between his knees, or lie down with his feet higher than his head.

Whiplash

What to do?

• Apply an ice pack wrapped in a towel to the affected area immediately. Twelve minute applications every hour are considered to be the most appropriate. Continue this procedure for 48 hours. In most cases it may be used longer.

• After 48 hours, moist heat in the form of hot packs or even hot moist towels would be mandatory.

• If the pain lasts for over 48 hours, call your doctor. If the pain prevents you from moving your neck, or if you have any numbness, tingling or weakness in your arms or legs, CALL 911.

Sprains

Sprains are injuries to soft tissues surrounding joints, with stretching and sometimes tearing of ligaments, muscles, tendons and blood vessels. Ankles, fingers, wrists and knees are most commonly affected.

• If the sprain seems severe, or if you have reason to suspect a fracture, splint the part and treat it as you would a fracture.

• To minimize swelling, elevate and apply cold compresses. Cold helps contract blood vessels and tends to reduce swelling and pain.

• In mild sprains, keep the injured part immobilized and raised for at least 24 hours, continuing the cold application.

• If swelling and pain persist, get medical help.

Drug overdose

Types of overdose may include prescription drugs, vitamins, heart medication, alcohol, laxatives, etc. Any time medication is taken without a doctor's prescription or is taken without following directions, an overdose has occurred.

Take action. Begin the ABCs of EMERGENCY ACTION and phone for medical help.

Until help arrives

- Observe the victim.
- Cover the victim warmly.
- Do not administer liquor or stimulants.

Do not induce vomiting in the following situations:

- When the victim is unconscious.
- When a caustic substance (lye, drain cleaner, acid or bleach) has been ingested.
- When petroleum product of any product made from petroleum distillates has been ingested (including insecticide, gasoline or kerosene).
- When the victim is pregnant.
- If the victim is drowsy or sleepy.

Medicine warning

Remember that drugs do not last indefinitely. They may lose their potency, or they may evaporate to concentrations that can be harmful.

- To prevent deterioration, keep all bottles tightly stoppered. Keep medications in a cool, dry, preferably dark place.
- Don't keep any drugs left over from a previous illness unless advised to do so by the doctor. Discard any drug that has changed color or consistency or becomes cloudy. Especially avoid the use of old iodine, eye drops, nose drops, cough remedies and ointments.

KEEP ALL MEDICINES, INCLUDING NON-PRESCRIPTION DRUGS SUCH AS ASPIRIN, OUT OF THE REACH OF CHILDREN.

Poisons

If a foreign substance is ingested, call your local poison center or 911 immediately.

- The only fluid that should be administered by mouth before contacting a physician or poison center is water.
- Neutralization is no longer recommended for any toxic ingestion. The heat caused by mixing an acid and base in the stomach could cause more harm than the effect of the initial poison itself.
- Individual treatments for specific categories of poison are no longer recommended as the details of each poison exposure best determines the most prudent course of action.

Here's how you can help:

- When a substance is swallowed, give the person water only, until instructed to do otherwise.
- Do not give water to victims of internal overdose of pills, as this may increase the absorption of poisonous drugs.
- In the case of skin contact, wash the area with cool or tepid water for 20 minutes.
- In case of inhalation, move the victim to fresh air for 20 minutes.

Take the product or empty bottle to the phone with you so you can read the label to the staff at the poison center. Be sure to tell them.

- what was taken
- how much was taken
- when it was taken
- the age and weight of the victim

To induce vomiting

- Give syrup of Ipecac only upon the advice of doctor or poison control center.

Dosage for Syrup of Ipecac:

CHILD
(1-8 years) 15 cc's followed by large quantities of clear fluids.

ADULT
(8 years and older) 30-45 cc's followed by large quantity of clear fluids.

ALWAYS REMEMBER –
if the ingested agent is from a container, take the container, with the label intact, to the medical facility treating the patient.

Bleeding

Bleeding

To control bleeding, use direct pressure over the area of the wound.

Direct pressure over the wound can stop bleeding.

• Use sterile gauze pad if one is available, or a sanitary napkin. A clean handkerchief and even your bare hand will do the job.

• Apply firm, direct pressure for 5 to 15 minutes. Most bleeding will stop within a few minutes.

• If there is bleeding from a foot, hand, leg or arm, use gravity to help slow the flow of blood. Elevate the limb so that it is higher off the ground

Pressure Points

If bleeding cannot be stopped by using direct pressure or by elevating the injured area, you may have to slow the supply of the blood using pressure points.

The diagram on the right shows the locations of major arteries that may be compressed against the bone to stop blood flow.

Feel for the victim's pulse at the pressure point and press until you feel no pulse.

Because pressing these areas can completely stop the supply of blood, do so only in extreme emergencies. Alternate between using pressure points and direct pressure every couple of minutes until help arrives.

Internal bleeding

The warning signs for internal bleeding are coughing up or vomiting up blood or "coffee ground" material, passing blood in urine or stool, or passing black tarlike bowel movements. All require medical attention!

• Have the victim lie on his back and elevate his feet. Have him breathe deeply.

• Do not let the victim take any medication until seen by a doctor.

• Phone for medical help - call 911.

Head Injuries

• Special care must be taken when trying to stop any scalp bleeding when there is a suspected skull fracture. Bleeding from the scalp can be very heavy even when the injury is not too serious.

• Don't press too hard. Be extremely careful when applying pressure over the wound, so that bone chips from a possible fracture will not be pressed into the brain.

• Protect the victim from any unnecessary movement because of the possibility of neck injury.

• Phone for medical help.

• Do not give alcohol or pain medications.

Nosebleed

• Have the patient sit quietly.

• Have him pinch the soft part of the nose for 5-10 minutes.

• If the bleeding persists, obtain medical help.

Shock can accompany severe injury, emotional trauma, extensive infection and heart attack.

• The patient is pale, his skin is cold and clammy, his breathing is quick and irregular and his pulse fast. He should be lying down with his head low and hips and legs raised if uninjured.

• Keep him/her warm.

• Phone for help immediately - call 911.

• Give the victim reassurance and keep him calm and quiet until medical assistance arrives.

- Keep him/her warm.
- Phone for help immediately.
- Give the victim reassurance and keep him calm and quiet until medical assistance arrives.
